Allied Fighters And Bombers Begin Softening Mareth Line
For Big Offensive

(UPI Associated Press)
British fighting raged deep behind the southern end of the Mareth line in Tunisia as Marshal Rommel struck out against the flanking British 8th Army forces near Ksar Philane and the first official account said the Germans had suffered another heavy blow.

British and American ground forces beat off three attacks in north Tunisia near Tamerza, seven miles west of Sedjenane, with the enemy suffering considerable losses, field accounts said.

Allied bombers and fighters began softening Rommel's Mareth positions and struck again at the Axis air bases, driving 12 planes while losing seven.

The R.A.F.'s giant bombers returned to the assault on Germany last night, heavily pounding the rail center of Stuttgart while Nazi raiders bombed and machine-gunned the suburbs of The British 8th Army threatening to turn the southern flank of Marshal Rommel's Mareth line in Tunisia has inflicted "heavy casualties" on attacking Axis troops, and the fight is continuing amid the wreckage of many enemy vehicles, a supplementary Allied communiqué said last night.

This was another Rommel attempt to push back an Allied ring gradually squeezing him into a pocket. It proved to have been no more successful than the smash against Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces last week-end when the Axis lost 52 tanks.

"In attacks on our forces near Ksar Philane heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy and many vehicles were destroyed," the communiqué said. "The British gave very effective support during the day. Fighting continues."

Rickenbacker Asks
Everyone Forget
"Money Angle"

INDIANAPOLIS, Mar. 12. (UPI)—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, returning to Indianapolis where he first gained fame as an automobile race driver, warned in a speech last night that "if all America—capital, labor, government and all of us—doesn't forget the money angle, it can mean political angle of the war, it can mean defeat for the United States."

"There is a huge difference between measuring war in terms of the dollar mark and measuring it with the dollar mark and measuring it with an 'all-out' effort to defeat the enemy," Rickenbacker said at a meeting sponsored by the National Foundation for Education in American Citizenship.

Capt. Galloway also announced that the practice about originally scheduled for Mar. 14 will definitely be held on Mar. 15. The men will assemble at the Armory at 10:00 o'clock in the morning and go from there to the clay pits west of the city.

Last night's drill consisted of the school of the soldiers manual of arms, foot drill and guard duty. These drills were conducted by Capt. John H. Galloway and Lt. Col. John H. Galloway.

New recruits are again needed for replacements as several additional members of the Defense Forces have recently been inducted into the United States Army. About four or five replacements are desired.

Farmers Plan Meeting On Prices Ceiling

Opposition Voiced To Placing Of Ceilings Over Prices Charged On Fresh Vegetables

A five-man committee, representing local growers and shippers, the Seminole County Farm Bureau and the Agricultural Committee of the County Chamber of Commerce, will leave for Pompano Tuesday, March 16, to confer with OPA officials in regard to proposed price ceilings on vegetables.

J. E. Wathan, of American Fruit Growers, will head this committee, which was selected at a meeting of the Chamber Agricultural Committee Wednesday noon at the Hotel Mayfair, held for the purpose of continuing discussions regarding vegetable price ceilings which were started at the meeting of growers and shippers Tuesday evening.

First Lieut. Orville L. Barks, well known physician practicing in Sanford prior to receiving his commission in the United States Army in September, 1942, has been reported missing in action, according to information from the War Department received by his wife.

Cattle Slaughter Orders Will Avert Shortage Of Meat

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Mar. 12.—Orders on livestock slaughter and sale will avert a serious shortage of meat which might cripple the war effort, said J. M. Williams, state supervisor of the Food Distribution Administration.

"We have previously been able to control over the small slaughterer, and with the present heavy demand for meat on the part of the public, indiscriminate butchering has been going on all over the country with small regard for quality, grade, or price ceilings."

Under the present regulations, a close check can be kept on all who handle meat, and excessive slaughtering can be prevented.

"There need be no undue hardship on the southern farmer, for a normal amount of slaughtering will be permitted and slaughtering for home use will remain unregulated. We cannot, however, let the present rate of killing continue, for it would mean serious shortages for both the public and the armed forces this summer and fall."

Under previous regulations, no slaugherer of less than $60,000 funds in any quarter of the year was permitted to kill more in any quarter of 1943 than he killed in the same quarter of 1941. High prices for "black market" meat, and difficulty of administering the order have handicapped enforcement, so that, in reaction under the new order, licensing of every slaughterer, both large and small, will facilitate enforcement and is expected to eliminate the "black market" entirely.

In the South, the Food Distribution Administration will through its graders, meat inspectors, and investigate staff working out of the Atlanta regional office," Williams stated.

"The State Office of FIDA in Jacksonville will assist in supplying information on the sale of all cattle and other War Bonds in the issuance of permits. The permits will be furnished to county U. S. Department of Agriculture War Boards about March 22. After April 1, everyone who slaughters livestock for sale and all dealers who handle livestock must have a permit."

Blind persons in Great Britain receive government old-age pension at 40.

SOMEBODY WILL WRITE THE RULES!

At least while the war lasts, perhaps longer, there will be more and more government regulation of farm and grove operations.

We have a choice:

1. We can organize all farm people strongly enough to make sure practical farmers help write the rules affecting us — and insure an adequate food supply,

OR

2. We can continue as an unorganized group easily subjected to impractical regulations that hinder production, and wind up being unjustly blamed should a food shortage develop.

Which shall it be?

TEN REASONS

why you should join and work with the Farm Bureau

- 1- Because it is the farmers' opportunity to save farmers, business, and honest labor from labor racketeers.
- 2- Because we want fair prices in the market instead of government subsidies.
- 3- Because it stands against Federal grabbing of powers that properly belong to the States.
- 4- Because it is curbing the bureaucrats.
- 5- Because our nation will go hungry unless we make Washington realize that we must have machinery, supplies, fertilizers, and farm labor.
- 6- Because, holding no office and wanting no appointment, Farm-Bureau can speak freely.
- 7- Because its policies, determined by its members, are 100% constructive.
- 8- Because it is fighting to preserve our democratic form of government . . . legislative, judicial, and executive.
- 9- Because it is the farmers' lobby at Washington.
- 10- Because it is the rallying standard of conservative thinkers.

Finland Seems To Be Unhappy Over Destiny

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Mar. 18. (UPI)—"Heavy rains with flooding and growing crops are the main reason for the heavy losses in voluntary recruitment," said General Heinz Hoffmann, director of the State Farmers' Markets, reporting on War Department's first crop and market review for this week.

Conditions at specific markets he described as "not too bad."

"People," Hoffmann emphasized, "that have been asked to pay taxes regarding filing and tax payment, earlier in the filing period of the tax, were given a chance to discuss the question of tax-as-you-go, the problem of and the possibility of getting a tax-free status."

No action on such proposals has been taken by Congress, he said.

He added: "The bill introduced last Fall remains in full effect."

That law requires every unmarried person who is 18 years old or more and every married person who is 21 years old to file a tax return and to pay a return to the tax, which may be made in quarterly installments.

Returns and checks postmarked before the deadline are to be accepted if the bills are provided for failure to comply.
