Crack Attack Parade Saturday

The culmination of a week-long intensive effort to fight cocaine use will be a downtown Sanford parade Saturday starting at 10 a.m. at 4th Street and Park Ave.

"This will be a protest march against crack," said Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett. "We are asking for people from all walks of life to turn out and stage a massive demonstration against this crack menace."

The parade will include bands, school and city officials, speakers and a live radio show.

Police officials have begun distributing 2,000 "Attack Crack" T-shirts in Seminole County.

The T-shirts, donated by the Orlando Crime Commission, are part of efforts throughout central Florida to combat rising cocaine use. The T-shirts, distributed to high school students, say "Attack Crack. Be part of the solution."

Meese: High Court Rulings Not Binding

Furor In Legal Circles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese's comments that Supreme Court rulings do not bind the country have raised the hackles of the legal community from the staid American Bar Association to the liberal ACLU.

Meese, in a speech this week at Tulane University in New Orleans, said the high court's rulings are not the same as the Constitution and, as a result, only bind "the parties in a case and also the executive branch for whatever enforcement" the case requires.

"But such a decision does not establish a 'supreme law of the land' that is binding on all persons and parts of government henceforth and forevermore," proclaimed Meese, the nation's No. 1 law enforcement officer.

Defense: Black Victim Would Have Spared Preston

Billy Nolas, attorney for convicted murderer Robert Anthony Preston, Jr., argued in Seminole Circuit Court Thursday along the same tack as attorneys in cases being considered by the U.S. Supreme Court, that is, if Preston's victim had been black instead of white, he probably would not have received the death penalty.

Attorneys have 30 days to present written arguments in the case of the Forest City murderer who is asking to be spared from the electric chair.

Preston, 28, took the stand briefly Thursday to answer questions about examinations with psychiatrists after the 1978 murder of Earline Walker, 48, of Winter Park. Her throat was slit after she was abducted from a convenience store during a robbery. Preston testified he did not know he could have refused to talk to psychiatrists.

The hearing, for post-conviction relief, was originally scheduled for two days but stretched into three. Preston is hoping to have his death sentence changed to life or a new trial ordered.

Hearing the issue at the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford was Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. who sentenced Preston to death in 1981. In Davis' six years on the bench, Preston is his first and only death sentence.

Earlier in the hearing, hair analysis testimony was challenged along with the quality of representation Preston had during the original trial.

Group Homes Allowed Under Zoning Plans

Sanford To Review Staff Proposal

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Congregate living facilities for the elderly and foster homes for the disabled would be allowed in all Sanford residential areas if zoning amendments drafted by city staff Thursday are approved.

Staff's efforts are response to commissioners indications Wednesday that zoning laws should be relaxed a bit following the city's recent crack down on four elder-care facilities operating in violation of city law. The facilities are all located in single family residential zones.

Mayor Bettye Smith said today she would not comment on how the proposed zoning revision would affect those homeowners cited by the city for zoning violations until she consults with the city attorney. If any considerations were granted it would be on a case-by-case basis depending on circumstances, she said.

Under the revisions, up to two tenants could be housed in all Sanford's residential areas with a city license and without public hearings. Sanford has seven single family and multi-family residential zoning classifications.

The revisions further propose allowing up to four elderly in a residence under single family zoning with a conditional use permit, issuable after a public hearing. Also, three or more elderly could be housed in a residence under multi-family zoning with a conditional use permit. The maximum number of tenants in multi-family residences would be based on occupancy limits in accordance with the structure's size and state guidelines.

The amendments were worked up by Engineering and Planning Director Bill Simmons, City Planner Jay Marder, Building Official Gary Winn and Zoning and Arbor Inspector Betty Sonnenberg.

The changes aim to make "provisions for the elderly without negatively impacting the city's residential neighborhoods," Simmons said.

Simmons said he will be prepared to discuss the proposals at Tuesday's city commission meeting, if asked.

The city's conditional use reviews will heavily consider what neighbors have to say during public hearings and, when applicable, the property owners must also prove licensing assurance from the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services before the permit would be granted, Simmons said.

The proposals may still be in for a bit of fine tuning, but basically are what will be presented to City Manager Frank Faison for review either today or early next week, Simmons said.

After Faison's review, the revisions are to be scrutinized by the city's commissioners, Planning and Zoning Board and attorney before possible adoption through ordinance. Commission and P&Z review of an ordinance proposal would be conducted during public hearings.

Gas Line

Traffic backs up on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Maitland following a 50 gallon gasoline spill at a service station Thursday at 2 p.m. The spill, at the Dodge Store, on the east side of the highway, flowed across both lanes and stopped traffic for four hours before it was washed down enough, right, for cars to pass. Deputy Fire Chief Bari Wright said Robert Samsel, 36, of Orlando was working on a gas pump when someone turned it on. Samsel, covered with gas, was hosed down at the scene and treated at a hospital.

NATION

Byrd Calls For End To Campaign 'Money Chase'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Money-raising, spending and donations from political action committees are spiraling to new heights for the 1988 elections, a study shows — and Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd says the "money chase" must end.

"Something needs to be done about it," Byrd said in an interview in response to the study's release Thursday. "And that means the press and the media are going to have to get into it and push these things."

The West Virginian's comment drew enthusiasm from Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer, whose non-profit lobby group conducted the study as part of its dogged effort for campaign reform.

Common Cause reported that through Sept. 30, candidate fund raising, spending and political action committee donations in this year's 34 Senate races have all far exceeded that of 1984. Candidates raised $140.8 million, spent $121.6 million and raked in $34 million from PACs.

Counting Campaign Megabucks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican Rep. Ed Zschau and Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston are pouring millions into their Senate battle in California, but they're stopping short of the all-time spending record set in North Carolina.

Zschau, the Silicon Valley congressman, and Cranston, the three-term Senate veteran, spent a combined $15.4 million through Sept. 30 — $7.9 million by Zschau and $7.5 million by Cranston — and that doesn't include money spent on their behalf by their national parties.

Still, the record of $25.4 million is held by Republican Sen. Jesse Helms and Democratic former Gov. Jim Hunt, who battled fiercely for the incumbent's North Carolina Senate seat in 1984. As of Sept. 30 that year, they had spent a combined $20 million.

Red Crossed Surveys Blood

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Red Cross has embarked on a major survey to ensure its blood supply is free of HTLV-1, a virus in the AIDS family believed to cause a form of leukemia.

"Our primary concern is whether any of this infection, which should be excluded by our donor guidelines, has in fact come into the eligible blood donor population," said Dr. Gerald Sandler, associate vice president for Red Cross medical operations.

"If this is the case, we will take steps to protect blood recipients."

Sandler announced a pilot program Thursday to check 30,000 blood donations for antibodies to HTLV-1 before deciding on further action. The preliminary screening will begin within the next 10 days in five unspecified areas of the country, he said.

N.Y. Welcomes Peace Marchers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Peace activists marching coast-to-coast for global nuclear disarmament arrived from Los Angeles after an eight-month trek and eagerly anticipate five days of rest and rallies before continuing to Washington.

Nearly 900 pairs of bare feet crossed the George Washington Bridge in bright autumn sunshine Thursday and were greeted by local politicians and celebrities on the east side of the Hudson River.

About 400 of the weather-beaten Great Peace March participants in New York were among the original walkers who set out from California on March 1, but the number of miles they journeyed had not been tallied, march leaders said.

MIT Proxy Pledges Aid To Blacks

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, reacting to a study showing racial bias on campus, says he will "spare no effort" to help black students.

The study, conducted by the university's Minority Student Issues Group, found "overt racist behavior" by some faculty and students impeded the educational and living environment for black students at MIT, one of the nation's most prestigious universities.

"We must spare no effort to improve the experience here for minority students," MIT President Paul E. Gray said Thursday.

Robber Raises Questions On Nuclear Plant Security

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — A convicted robber says he worked under phony names in nuclear power plants where security was lax and he was offered bribes of cash and cocaine to falsify inspection reports — claims under investigation by the FBI.

Gary Lee McChain, 35, said he worked in five commercial power plants in California, New York, Washington and Michigan, earning as much as $60,000 as a nuclear reactor inspector, the Idaho Falls Post-Register reported in a copyright story.

McChain, a fugitive who was on probation in Colorado, said he surrendered to the FBI so he could reveal bribery, drug use and lax security at the nuclear power plants. The newspaper did not say at which power plants he was offered bribes.

The FBI said Thursday it is investigating the allegations. "I'm very pro-nuclear, but I believe we have major problems in this industry," McChain told the newspaper. "I'm living proof."

McChain surrendered at the FBI's Pocatello office Tuesday after telling his story to the Idaho Falls Post-Register. He was arraigned Wednesday and agreed to be extradited to Colorado.

FBI Agent Toby Harding at the agency's Montana-Idaho headquarters in Butte, Mont., said agents would try to verify McChain's claims before deciding whether to launch a full investigation or turn the case over to authorities in the states where he worked.

The Post-Register said it confirmed McChain, under an assumed name, worked at each of the companies he claimed employed him as a radio-grapher's helper and weld inspector from 1979 to 1985.

The newspaper said McChain worked at the Son Onofre and Diablo Canyon plants in California, Nine Mile in New York, the now-mothballed Washington Public Power Supply System No. 3 plant and the Midland plant in Michigan, which never opened.

"He was a pretty good hand," Arnie Morrill, a quality control inspector for a United States Testing Co. of California, said. "I'd rehire him."

Iceland Summit Called Election Year Issue

By Norman D. Sandler

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — In an election year lacking national themes, the propaganda war spawned by the Iceland summit has become integrated into the Republican fight to retain control of the Senate next year.

The unprecedented public relations effort unleashed by the White House immediately after the summit was so successful that Republicans have seized the issue as a rallying point in the final days of the 1986 campaign.

President Reagan, an accomplished pitchman in his television days, has channeled his talents as "The Great Communicator" into painting the abruptly ended summit as a success for the elections that would be jeopardized by the election of a Democratic Senate majority Nov. 4.

Republican candidates, anxious to grab hold of presidential coattails, have been more than happy to join in the revisionism intended to bury the deep disappointment that dominated initial assessments of the summit outcome.

During a pair of political appearances Thursday, Reagan was lauded by Sen. Robert Kasten in Wisconsin for having "stood tall" and having done "the right thing" in Iceland.

He later was praised by Sen. John Danforth in Missouri for bringing the nation "to the verge of one of the most exciting breakthroughs for the cause of peace in the history of mankind."

The crowds cheered and cheered again as Reagan reaffirmed his determination to press ahead with his "Star Wars" space defense program, the Strategic Defense Initiative, even at the expense of an arms agreement in Iceland.

Democrats, who avoided direct criticism of Reagan in the wake of his return from Reykjavik Oct. 12, insist the summit's political value will be limited.

ANALYSIS

"If Reagan had come home with some kind of dramatic agreement, that would have been a plus. But he didn't," said David Johnson, executive director of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Nevertheless, the campaign has given Reagan a stage from which to play not only to American voters but to an international audience as well.

Choosing to accent the positive, Reagan told thousands of cheering students Thursday that his meetings with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev had left him "just optimistic enough to believe that now the question isn't whether, but when, we reach agreements on reductions."

Referring to Gorbachev's hour-long speech Wednesday that dealt largely in attacks on U.S. actions and statements in the days since the summit, Reagan maintained it was "heartening to find Mr. Gorbachev agreeing" that the offers made in Iceland "are still on the table."

"Our negotiators are ready in Geneva," Reagan said. "We must not allow areas where there's agreement to be held hostage to areas where there isn't."

With the Kremlin embarked on its own post-summit public relations push, the White House refined its early accounts of what, in fact, had been on the table during the Reagan-Gorbachev discussions.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes was asked about Gorbachev's statement Wednesday that Reagan, "albeit without special enthusiasm," had consented in Reykjavik to the elimination of all strategic arms, not just the long-range missiles said to have been part of a possible deal tied to 10 years of continued adherence to the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

Reagan Takes Campaign Aim

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — President Reagan, stumping for congressional candidates, seems to have chosen retiring House Speaker Thomas O'Neill and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev as his targets, along with some unnamed liberal Democrats he says want to raise taxes and weaken America's defense.

Reagan, who will travel to 13 states through Election Day on behalf of Republican candidates, was on the agenda today for freshman Sen. Don Nickles in Oklahoma City and at the University of Oklahoma.

In Waukesha, Wis., and Springfield, Mo., Thursday, Reagan envisioned a bright economic future for young people if they vote Republican.

"We can let the good times roll," he addressed in Wisconsin, warning in Missouri. "If we lose the Senate, the liberal Democrats will march us back to the grim days of the '70s."

When the Wisconsin crowd on the turf of Sen. Robert Kasten started chanting "four more years," Reagan reminded his supporters of the Constitution's two-term limit on his presidency.

"But if you want to vote for me, vote for Bob Kasten, so that we can have a Republican Senate that will work with me instead of against me and be around after I'm gone," he said.

At Southwest Missouri State University, Reagan spoke on behalf of former Gov. Christopher "Kit" Bond, who is matched against Democratic Lt. Gov. Harriett Woods in the race to succeed retiring Democratic Sen. Thomas Eagleton.

"We see the opportunity for new jobs, better education, rising incomes and lower taxes," Reagan told an ecstatic crowd. "We see the American dream taking new shape and rising to new heights, and we say 'yes' to the future."

South Soaked, North Chilled

By United Press International
A low pressure system that triggered flooding in Texas moved from the Gulf of Mexico into the lower Mississippi Valley today, spreading heavy rain across the South, while cool Canadian air chilled the Northeast.

"Western Kentucky, Tennessee, and parts of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas can expect a fair amount of rain," Bill Barlow of the National Weather Service said.

In a six-hour period ending at 2 a.m. EDT, 2 inches of rain fell in Shreveport, La., and three-quarters of an inch of rain was reported in Little Rock, Ark.

Cool weather prevailed in the Northeast today as a wind shift sent cold air from Nova Scotia across New England and into New York and central Pennsylvania, forecasters said. Early morning temperatures were in the 30s and 40s.

Daytime highs reached the 70s in New England Thursday, but were expected to be only in the 40s and 50s today.

Flash flood watches were in effect this morning over much of south-central and east Texas, hit by heavy rains Thursday.

Two to 3 inches of rain, some of it from remnants of Hurricane Roslyn, fell on south-central Texas early Thursday.

Ohio valleys into northern New England.
Cloudy and cool weather stretched from North Dakota across northern Minnesota to the upper Great Lakes, where temperatures were only in the 30s and 40s Thursday.

Sunshine was common over much of the West, with temperatures ranging from the 50s to the 70s over the Desert Southwest and Southern California.

Tourism officials say the red tide that killed millions of fish along the Texas coast is gone from this resort island near the Mexican border. But wildlife officials say it is not forgotten.

Tourism officials Dick Bushnell and Peggy Southall tore off their business clothes Thursday to reveal bathing suits underneath, then plunged headlong into the Gulf of Mexico in a bid to dispel unfounded fears about the red tide.

Bushnell, director of the South Padre Island Tourist Bureau, summoned reporters to a news conference on the nearly deserted beach that has been cleared of the thousands of dead fish that washed in last weekend.

He said he wanted to prove that his town — dotted with 4 miles of luxury hotels, restaurants and marinas — is unnecessarily suffering because beaches farther north on the 100-mile-long island have been closed the past week.

But Texas Parks and Wildlife officials said the red tide may be only temporarily "disguised" because of heavy wave action.

They warn that the red tide, made up of microscopic organisms that give off toxins that have killed millions of fish along 300 miles of Texas coast since late August, may reappear when bright sunlight returns, causing the organisms to reproduce.

Pot, Cash For Sex With Boy Charges Filed Against Man

The owner of Que-King Billiards, 2040 N. U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, has been charged with three counts of committing a lewd and lascivious act on a child, child abuse and possession of marijuana. He is accused of having sex with a 15-year-old boy in exchange for cash and marijuana.

The boy has alleged to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that on Oct. 16, 17, and 18 the suspect had sex with him at the suspect's home. The man allegedly gave the boy cash and pot in exchange for sex. The boy also claimed that the suspect had marijuana at his home and at his business.

Tuesday sheriff's deputies with warrants searched both places and reported finding marijuana. The suspect, Charles Clayton Davenport, 41, of 110 Hudson Lane, Maitland, was arrested at his business at about 10 p.m. Thursday. He was being held without bond.

At the time of his arrest he was but of jail on bond on charges connected with the alleged sale of marijuana at his business, a sheriff's report said.

Photographs of boys smoking marijuana and pornographic materials were reportedly found at the suspect's home and marijuana was allegedly found at his home, his business, on his person and in his car.

ATTACKS SIS, RANSACKS
A 20-year-old Altamonte Springs man who allegedly tried to hit his sister with two table legs and ransacked a home at 1780 Sunwood Drive, Longwood, causing $50,000 damage to the house and vehicles there, has been charged with aggravated assault and criminal mischief.

No reason for the rampage was given in an arrest report by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy. The report said the man's sister, who was at the home, feared for her life.

COKE DEAL BUST
A woman who allegedly offered to deliver two ounces of cocaine for $3,000 to undercover City County Investigation Bureau agents was only able to come up with about four grams of cocaine, agents allege. The woman was arrested at 6:50 p.m. Thursday at the Circle K on State Road 436, Longwood, when she allegedly offered that cocaine to agents.

In addition to charges of possession and delivery of cocaine, Susan Peterson Hood, 32, of 443 Longwood Circle North, Longwood, was charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana reportedly found in her purse. She has been released on bond.

FINGERPRINT CONNECTION
A man who allegedly burglarized a home at 430 Chickasaw Trail, Sanford, between Sept. 26 and Oct. 6, and pawned some goods stolen, has reportedly been linked to the crime by a thumbprint on a pawn ticket.

Some goods stolen from that home were pawned at Kokomo Kid Scrap Company. The items were recovered and identified by the owners and investigators were given a pawnshop ticket that held a thumbprint of the pawnier, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The fingerprint was matched by sheriff's investigators to that of a suspect.

William Wallace Presley, 28, of 380 Grantline Road, Sanford, was arrested at 2:55 p.m. Wednesday at the sheriff's department. He has been charged with dealing in stolen property and was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

A 29-year-old Longwood man who allegedly denied his driver's license had been suspended in Kentucky, when applying of a Florida license at the license office on Sanford Avenue, Sanford, has been charged with obtaining a driver's license by fraud.

Barry Dale Howard, of 880 N. U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, was arrested at the driver's license office, at about 10:50 a.m., after a records check showed his license had been suspended. He has been released on bond.

DUI ARRESTS
The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Robert Lee Ross, 22, of 206 Lorraine Drive, #216, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 4:09 a.m. Wednesday in the parking lot of Hideaway North Apartments, Altamonte Springs, by police investigating a reported domestic dispute.

—William Dale Postema, 26, of 2108 Magnolia Ave., Sanford, at 11:55 p.m. Wednesday, after his car hit a light pole on 21st Street, Sanford. He was also charged with driving with a suspended license.

Lake Mary police investigated theft of camera equipment from a man's work truck Monday. Kevin Ray Wilks, 26, of 131 E. Lake Mary Ave. said his truck was parked outside his residence with $333 worth of items under the seat, which were stolen overnight. He could not remember if he had locked the cab.

Sanford police investigated a burglary at Sanford Middle School, 1613 S. Lake Ave., Monday. Police said burglars entered in an unknown manner and took a $900 compressor and a 12-volt batter from a vehicle belonging to the school board.

Robert A. Howell, 68, of 804 Catalina Drive in Sanford, told police someone broke in a door and took $300 worth of fishing equipment.

School Board Approves Lawton's Global Program

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

Lawton Elementary School got approval Wednesday night to take another step in its growing global education program, spawned by Principal Michael Mizwicki.

The school board approved sending a teacher and student to Plymouth, Mass. for the second week in November to visit classes there. The teacher will be curriculum representative Fairlee Bagley and she will take Student Council President Ann Elliott of the fifth grade.

Updating his three-year-old global outreach program — which is the only one like it in Florida — Mizwicki explained that Lawton has been part of a national consortium of 30 elementary schools across the country chosen by the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development to discuss and solve common problems facing elementary schools.

One of the things Lawton has done has been to contact Epcot Center and arrange for the entire student body to visit the Living Seas project in the next few months to help the students learn about science and meet minimum state standards and state standards of excellence. Then, on Saturday, Nov. 1, Lawton instructors will take part in a teleconference from Epcot dealing with current issues in science.

Last year, as part of his global program, Mizwicki sent a teacher, Jan Fensch, to Alaska for 18 days and brought back an Alaskan educator to discuss that culture with Lawton students. He said that was a most effective tool that only cost $560 and one he hopes to repeat and expand each year.

But one of the most exciting projects to Mizwicki is the global computer network that being in the consortium has provided his school. With a computer station at his school, he has set up a "Student-Teacher-Administrator-Board member-Parent" network by which any of those people can ask questions of other participating schools all over the world.

There are stations in North America, Hawaii and Hong Kong so far. Lawton is the only school in the state active in this network so far. His computer center is also linked with Epcot and they have been able to exchange information via "electronic mail."

Students can ask questions and establish computer "pen pals," with other students, all the while learning not only about other areas of the world but their computer literacy skills as well. Mizwicki said this network is focusing on the fourth grade at Lawton at this time.

All this has been done with an initial grant by the school board of $8,000 followed by $3,500 for this year. But as it runs out, Mizwicki is making plans to ask local businesses for their support. He is also applying for a number of other grants to continue global education and computer networking.

In other action, the board: — Heard a report from bond counsel that all projects should be on time and on budget by Nov. 18;

— Approved a $50,000 grant application for the Teenage Parenting program serving 40 students and their children. The grant would allow for day-care for the children up to age 3, at which time they can go into Head Start, so the mothers can finish their education;

Longwood, Episcopalians Sign Property Agreement

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

An agreement between the city of Longwood and the Episcopal Diocese of Central Florida signed on Sept. 8 has been adopted by ordinance to comply by the charter.

Under the pact, the city agreed to pay the church $125,000 over four years in order to resolve and quiet interests of the diocese, which gave the property to the city in 1938 for a park. The city has already paid the diocese $50,000 as called for in the agreement.

City Attorney Ann Colby explained that although the land legally belonged to the city, there was a reverter clause in the deed that if the property was not used for a park it would go back to the church. She said although there is a 30-year statute of limitations, there is no case law on the law.

"For us to hold a fee simple absolute title, it would require litigation in order to quiet the title," Ms. Colby said. "We determined it was less expensive to pay $125,000 to the diocese."

A group of Longwood residents headed by Dave Gunter went to court in August to try and stop construction on the new police station and cancel the agreement. Part of the $732,997 police station is being constructed on the site in question, which is located between Church Avenue and Jessup Avenue. The suit was later dropped.

Deputy Mayor June Lornann said, "If it had been left between the church and the city it would have cost a lot less."

Groundbreaking on the one-story 9,569 square foot building was held June 19 and it is due for completion in December. A special meeting on procurement of police station equipment has been scheduled by the commission for 6 p.m. Nov. 3, prior to the regular workshop and meeting.

The suit held up closing on the $1 million Sun Bank loan to finance construction and equip it. Any delay caused by an injunction would have required the city to pay the building contractor $800 a day.

Some have suggested former city attorney Gerald Korman was responsible for the city's problem by not making them aware of the reverter clause in the deed. Ms. Colby was asked by the commission to look back in the minutes and review Korman's responsibility to the city as to the deed. She reported Monday night that she had gone over all the minutes and documents she could find, but couldn't find any specific request for him to review the title. A title search would have been required prior to the bond issue, but Korman was no longer attorney at the time. Whether it was expected that Korman would look into this as a matter of course, she said, the commission would have to answer that.

She said the commission's options are: no action; administrative action in which the Florida Bar might take upon itself to investigate whether legal ethics had been violated and perhaps take disciplinary action; or file a lawsuit for malpractice.

Parole Granted Jewel Thief, Murderer 'Murph The Surf'

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Murderer and notorious jewel thief Jack "Murph the Surf" Murphy has been such a model prisoner that he has earned his freedom, the Florida Parole and Probation Commission says.

Murphy, the former blond-haired beach boy whose daring theft of the 535-carat Star of India sapphire in 1964 inspired a movie, will be paroled Nov. 11.

The commission voted 5-2 Wednesday to parole Murphy, in part because of his record as a model prisoner while in the Zephyrhills Correctional Institute. Murphy also received strong letters of support from Orange County Sheriff Lawson Lamar and state Rep. Alzo Reddick, D-Orlando, both of whom said Murphy had made significant contributions to the community through his counseling work with other prisoners.

Murphy was sentenced to life in prison in 1969 for the murders of two secretaries who helped him in a securities robbery. Murphy shot, bludgeoned and stabbed Terry Rae Frank and Annelie Mohn and dumped their bodies in Whiskey Creek, near Fort Lauderdale, in a dispute over the disposition of $400,000 of securities stolen from the Los Angeles brokerage firm where the two victims worked.

Board Seeks Bathroom Bids

The School Board of Seminole County voted to advertise for bids to put in a 4,300-gallon septic tank and drain field to serve the new stadium restrooms and concession stand at Oviedo High School Wednesday night, although the board did not say where the money would come from or if it would be paid.

Board member Bill Kroll said the money, which was estimated at $7,500 - $9,200, should not come from the Booster Club, although that was a suggestion made by Superintendent Robert Hughes. The board considered taking the money from contingency funds but will make a final decision after receiving the bids.

Board member Joe Williams said he had a problem advertising for bids without knowing the source of funding but agreed to go along with the board's wishes.

The school has already received a permit for the septic tank, but no funds have been budgeted.

According to Assistant Superintendent Benny Arnold, the alternative to building a 4,300-gallon septic tank and drain field would be to keep the portable restrooms and build a grease trap or small septic tank for the concession stand, which would need a permit, too. The next regular meeting of the board where the topic may be discussed again will be at 2 p.m. Nov. 18.

The board also approved the substantial completion of buildings 200 and 300 at Oviedo High School, leaving the auditorium, gymnasium, bridge and student services building left to complete. Arnold said the gym was substantially complete now, the auditorium should be complete in February, and the bridge is looking like it will be done sometime after the first of November.

Of the total $13 million project, Arnold said $2 million worth of work is left to complete.

Amendment 4 Should Be Passed

Florida's 1988 Constitution provides for citizen initiatives to place amendments to that Constitution on the ballot for adoption or rejection by the electorate.

Requirements for such proposed amendments are the collection of sufficient numbers of signatures on a petition requesting placement on the ballot and that the amendment deal with a single subject.

The sponsor of the initiative must obtain signatures from at least 10 Congressional Districts, and in each district the number of signatories must total at least 8 percent of the votes cast in the previous presidential election. The number of all signatures from all districts must be at least 8 percent of the number of votes cast in the entire state in the previous presidential election.

Only six such citizen initiatives have made it through the entire signature process in the past 10 years. Two of those were declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court because they contained more than a single subject, and one was defeated by the voters — the casino gambling question in 1978. One requiring financial disclosure by political candidates and office holders was passed in 1976. Two are on the ballot this year.

The two proposed amendments via the citizens initiative process on the 1986 ballot, dealing with casino gambling and a state lottery, have had their day before the Supreme Court, and appeals to the court to have them declared invalid failed. The latest was only last week.

The process of appealing and defending by proponents and opponents is expensive and time consuming.

It can also result in invalid amendments being on the ballot due to last minute opinions by the High Court.

Constitutional Amendment 4 provides that the Attorney General of the state shall request the Supreme Court to render an expeditious advisory opinion as to the validity of an initiative petition which proposes an amendment to the Constitution and requires the Supreme Court to render such an opinion.

The right of citizens to propose such amendments should be closely guarded. Citizens should also be protected from wasting time. Seeking signatures on a petition which is later declared invalid is a waste of time and resources.

The proposed amendment requiring determination of validity ahead of time just makes good sense.

It should not result in a tidal wave of citizens initiatives since the signature requirements are unaffected. It will, however, assure citizens approached for their signatures that the question as stated is consistent with Constitutional requirements as to subject so the matter can be determined on its merit.

Participation by citizens in the governance of the state is healthy and should be encouraged.

Halloween Try Handing Out Vitamin Pills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Next Friday will be Oct. 31. Do you know where your congressman is?

The following week brings Election Day. Which gives poignant meaning to the Halloween holiday this year.

I mean, how can we be sure the trick-or-treaters who will be ringing doorbells next week aren't really campaigning for Congress.

And how can we be sure they won't play tricks on us beginning next Tuesday.

According to a national organization of toy makers, "Halloween, 1986, promises to result in more creative costumes."

In addition to the usual masks and wigs, some of the callers undoubtedly will be costumed as candidates. In other words, besides the usual assortment of ghosts and goblins that appear on Halloween, we can expect to be visited by office-seekers.

Among the favorite disguises noted by a spokesman for the Toy Manufacturers of America, was "a mask that comes with a foot already planted in the mouth."

If that's not asking to be confused with a candidate of some sort, I don't know what is.

But as for passing out goodies, that should be no problem.

Coming up this weekend in New York is the first of two "Journalists' conferences" on food safety and nutrition. The other meeting will be held in Los Angeles next month.

The Agriculture Department tells us these sessions will benefit "food, consumer, health, medical and nutrition reporters, correspondents, writers and editors."

Since I am none of the above, I don't plan to attend. However, I have been saving up government handouts to hand out Halloween and I can tell you I wouldn't be at all surprised to find William "The Refrigerator" Perry of the Chicago Bears at my door.

Only instead of wearing a professional football uniform, or dressed for some other political venture, he would be disguised as the cover from a new diet book.

At any rate, the department says there is "very little difference between the new 'no-refrigerator' items and canned goods."

Actually, the no-refrigerator items sounded newer, not to say fresher, to me. However, when a government publicist says vacuum-packed "retort" pouches have a shelf-life of about five years, equal of that of canned goods, I am not inclined to argue.

I'd rather save my breath to debate the premise that "diet gimmicks and fad diets that promise quick and easy weight loss" actually "can be dangerous."

As one who has spent about half a lifetime munching gimmicks and fads, I can testify that they are simply loaded with starch.

The department says "starchy foods that are relatively low in calories" provide "important vitamins and minerals." To which I can only gasp a hearty "amen."

I might add, however, that gimmicks and fads are every bit as non-fattening as the bread and potatoes extolled by the department, and I'm sure "The Refrigerator" would concur.

As to what to feed trick-or-treaters this Halloween, I leave that up to you. Nevertheless, I recommend charging at least $100 a plate.

Voting Against Contras

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — What is the relationship between the continuing military and political strife in Central America and next month's elections in congressional districts in New York, Pennsylvania and Colorado?

San Francisco political activist Fred Ross Jr. hopes those contests will serve as a model for an ambitious nationwide attempt to organize grass-roots opposition to U.S. intervention in Central America.

Ross's effort is notable because it is a departure from the traditional way issue-oriented organizations and voters try to influence political candidates.

The conventional means of befriending office-seekers is to contribute money. Some sophisticated givers, however, have become skeptical about that because too many candidates squander the money on emery boards, balloons and other items of dubious political value.

"The rule of thumb is that 50 percent of all money spent in politics is wasted. The trick is to figure out which 50 percent it is," says Russell D. Hemenway, executive director of the National Committee for an Effective Congress.

NCEC, a New York-based organization that aids liberal candidates, has sought during the past decade to make the most of its donations by giving favored politicians access to technical services rather than money.

Thus, NCEC recipients can receive media strategy consultations, public opinion polling, demographic targeting and other sophisticated services.

Similarly, the League of Conservation Voters, a Washington, D.C. environmental organization, in recent years has provided the candidates it supports with volunteers to do door-to-door canvassing.

Now, Ross has launched an unprecedented program to place young, highly motivated organizers in congressional districts to work directly for candidates who agree with the goals of his organization, Neighbor to Neighbor.

Atop that group's political agenda is opposition to any form of assistance, notably federal financial aid, to the contras seeking to oust the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

To advance its case, Neighbor to Neighbor has produced a half-hour documentary film called "Faces of War" that has been shown on more than 40 television stations throughout the country.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Dole's Looking Good

The 99th Congress has come to its end, and whatever one thinks of its accomplishments, there is no question at all about its highly beneficial effect on the presidential prospects of Senate majority leader Robert Dole.

Two years ago at this time, Dole was a senior Republican figure in the Senate, chairman of its Finance Committee and a former (1976) Republican candidate for the vice presidency — a losing race that injuriously enhanced his reputation as a highly partisan campaigner with a savage wit. He was known to aspire to the presidency, but where lay his upward path?

Though broadly conservative in his outlook, Dole had gotten into Kansas Republican politics before there even was a conservative movement, and thus was not first and foremost an ideologue. In a party as firmly in the grip of conservatives as the GOP, that was at least potentially a disadvantage.

Senate majority leader Howard Baker had let it be known that he would retire from the Senate altogether at the end of his term in 1984, to free himself to pursue his own quest for the 1988 nomination. Baker felt, with some reason, in view of recent political history, that running for the presidency is a full-time job, and in any case certainly incompatible with the duties of a Senate majority leader.

Dole thought about the matter carefully, and came to exactly the opposite conclusion. When Baker stepped down, Dole won the contest to succeed him as majority leader — and then coolly let it be known that he would rest his own case for the 1988 nomination in large part on his performance as leader.

It was a breathtaking gamble, but it is now clear that it has paid off spectacularly. While Baker has all but vanished as a presidential contender, Dole has been in the headlines and on national television practically every day. His previous image as a sarcastic wisecracker has been replaced with that of a serious and highly effective political leader. He has played a key role in virtually every legislative triumph of the second Reagan administration.

Perhaps most important of all in straight political terms, Dole has delivered for Ronald Reagan and the conservative movement again and again. At the end of the 98th Congress in 1984, his cumulative rating by the American Conservative Union over the whole period of his 16 years' service in the Senate was 75 out of a possible 100 — a reasonably conservative performance, with many of its blemishes attributable to the necessary concerns of a farm-state politician. But as majority leader during the 99th Congress, Dole has been almost totally loyal to the Reagan agenda and immensely effective on its behalf. Conservatives have every reason to be grateful to him.

Not surprisingly, Dole's ratings in the polls have risen steadily; in most of them he is now second, albeit still a rather distant second, to George Bush. But somebody has to be second, and the thing to notice is that thus far it isn't Jack Kemp, whose candidacy was supposed to command wide conservative support, but who has not yet managed to get airborne. Are conservatives, perhaps, waiting for Paul Laxalt? Are they reconciling themselves to Bush? Or are they, just possibly, on the verge of deciding that they would prefer Dole?

Dole's immediate future depends, of course, on whether the GOP retains control of the Senate next month. If it does, he presumably will continue in the high-visibility post of majority leader. If not, he will (assuming his own re-election, which seems certain) be able to pursue his presidential candidacy a good deal more vigorously.

Staplers To Mend Bodies

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doctors now have a new medical instrument that helps mend broken bones, reattaches tendons and ligaments, and has applications in open heart, brain and plastic surgeries.

It's a stapler. Called the Staplizer, it has been used on more than 1,000 patients and so far has proved an effective way of joining broken bones at more than 70 different anatomical locations.

"The thing that impresses most people is that, where it can be used, it just makes life so much simpler," says Dr. Jules S. Shapiro, the orthopedic surgeon who invented the device.

It may be modeled after an office stapler, Shapiro says, but it is far ahead of the technology typically used to mend broken bones.

"We're talking about screws and pins and plates, which at times can be very laborious," he says. "It's always something that takes longer in terms of operating time, and requires a significant amount of X-rays for proper placements of screws and such."

Shapiro says the Staplizer, which is manufactured and sold by the 3M Co. of St. Paul, Minn., is easier to use, has a shorter operative time and does not require as many X-rays as conventional bone fixation.

The results are not any better, he says, "but they are comparable and that's really all you want."

Shapiro, a surgeon at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, says he first got the idea for the bone stapler about six years ago at an orthopedic convention when he noticed a skin stapler at the 3M booth.

"I said seven words: Have you ever tried that with bones?"

Working with cadaver bones, Shapiro and 3M developed a working model of the instrument that was approved by the Food and Drug Administration three years ago. Following clinical trial on several hundred patients, 3M began marketing the Staplizer in February. The price: $6,995.

The staples are titanium, but other than that, the Staplizer is virtually indistinguishable from the pistol-anaped staplers carpenters use. It is powered by 100 pounds per square inch of compressed air, which delivers the staples quickly, evenly and precisely.

"It's not a quantum leap, but it's definitely a step forward."

JACK ANDERSON

The Fed Has No Respect For Money

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta
WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve Board apparently has money to burn. It has wasted more than $18 million on anti-counterfeiting technology that it tried to ram down the throats of the Secret Service and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Then, after stubborn Fed officials finally grasped that the anti-counterfeiting experts wanted no part of their goofy gizmos, they sold the unused equipment back to the dealer at a sizable loss. They also canceled the remaining technology contract, bringing on a $4 million lawsuit from the contractor.

Here's the pitiful story of bureaucratic bullheadedness:

Hoping to find a way to thwart counterfeiters in an age of increasingly sophisticated color copiers, the Treasury Department set up a task force of experts from the Secret Service and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing — plus some people from the Federal Reserve Board. Sources confided to our associate Michael Binstein that the only reason for including the Fed was for its money. As an agency that doesn't have to get money from Congress, the Fed has a reputation for "deep pockets."

Unfortunately, like the kid who owns the baseball, the Fed insisted on pitching — and the ideas it tossed around appalled the real experts. The Fed gave a series of contracts totaling $17 million to Optical Coating Laboratories Inc. to develop anti-counterfeit devices. They failed 90 percent to 98 percent of the tests conducted by Engraving and Printing.

Among the items the Fed forced on its reluctant task force colleagues were eight "hot stamp" machines, which apply a unique, hologram-like film to currency.

"The eight machines cost a total of $3,022,820," an internal House

Banking Committee memo states, "even though the Bureau of Engraving and Printing expressed no interest in the machines and had not determined that thin-film devices would be used as a counterfeit deterrent."

In fact, the Fed bought the first two machines before the bureau had run any tests at all. That was bad enough. What was infinitely worse was that after the technology had flunked the bureau's tests, the Fed bought six more.

The first two "hot stamp" machines were bought in December 1983 from the Swiss manufacturer's distributor. One cost $370,040, the other $442,351. The prices included a combined commission to the middleman, Optical Coating Laboratories, of $150,723.

In April 1984, the Fed bought a third machine directly from the distributor for $271,204. A month later, it bought five more, once again going through Optical Coating. The $1,939,225 total price included a commission of $385,179.

By last December, the Fed grudgingly conceded that the Treasury wasn't going to use the machines. So it resold two of them and put the rest in storage. When the storage charges began mounting inexorably, the Fed finally sold the remaining six machines back to the distributor.

A House Banking Committee memo sums up the transactions: "In total, the Fed paid $3,022,820 for eight Glets hot stamp machines. All were resold to (the distributor) for a total of $1,249,204, for a loss of $1,773,616."

As a final touch, the Fed then tried to persuade the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to take over the Fed's contract with Optical Coating Laboratories. When the bureau laughed at the suggestion, the Fed terminated the contract, with the result that Optical Coating is now suing for $4 million.

Kroll, Bryant, Betsinger, Neiswender Vie For School Posts

By Paul C. Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

Two Seminole County school board incumbents and two challengers remained in the board races following the Sept. 2 primary for the two seats available.

Incumbent two-term board member Bill Kroll, Longwood, narrowly edged challenger Larry Betsinger, Longwood, in the District 1 race. Kroll captured 37.2 percent of the vote or 8,142 ballots, to Betsinger's 36.3 percent, or 7,955 votes. Candidate Rudy Sloan was eliminated from the three-way, non-partisan race, with 26.5 percent of the vote, getting 5,790 of the ballots cast.

In the district 5 race, incumbent, three-term board member, Jean Bryant, Sanford, placed second to challenger Ann Neiswender, Paola, and the two face off in next week's general election. Mrs. Neiswender won with 46.9 percent of the vote or 10,834 ballots, to Mrs. Bryant's 35.4 percent of the vote, or 8,164 ballots. School teacher Herbert "Whitey" Eckstein was eliminated in the race by virtue of his third place finish which saw him claim 17.7 percent of the votes with 4,083 of the ballots cast.

Both Kroll and Bryant are running on their records of being experience board members. Betsinger is challenging Kroll on the issue of the incumbent's controversial stands on issues during the past year, while Mrs. Neiswender is using her professional school administrator and teacher experience to challenge Mrs. Bryant.

Mrs. Neiswender was the first to announce her candidacy in the school board races last April, and Kroll was one of the last to announce in July.

Mrs. Bryant, 61, is the oldest and longest seated of the candidates. She has been a Sanford resident since 1957 after moving from Indiana, and is an alumna of Purdue University. Being the district five school board member is her occupation.

Mrs. Neiswender, 42, quit her job of three years as Seminole County schools' personnel director to run for Mrs. Bryant's seat. She is a 15-year county resident and is a former high school math and computer sciences teacher. She held administrative positions in the district for nine years before resigning to run for office. She is presently self-employed as a consultant in the education field.

District 1

Larry Betsinger

Bill Kroll

Kroll, 44, is a sales manager for Commercial Chemical, Sanford, seeking his third term on the board. Since early this year, he has taken controversial stands on issues that Betsinger has said were election year plays for media coverage. Kroll won a controversial study of the county school's food service program, and protested the new middle school attendance zones adopted earlier this year to the U.S. Justice Department, saying they were unfair to some, and did not solve overcrowded conditions at some of the schools.

Betsinger, 43, is an insurance agent who coached soccer at two county schools for five years. He has been a central Florida resident for 32 years. He and Mrs. Neiswender are the endorsed candidates of the county teacher's union, the Seminole Education Association.

Here are the candidate's responses to the League of Women Voters' questions:

1. What do you consider the most urgent needs of the Seminole County school system and what steps would you take to meet these needs?

Kroll: Successful completion of the bond program improving school facilities in Seminole County. To do this, it is necessary to keep in daily contact with project architects and our facility department. Also, to have a successful program at our Crooms School of Choice to help reduce the student drop-out rate.

Betsinger: A. Teacher salaries - need as much money towards this as available; B. Handling of bond issue money - receive the most for the dollar when spending these funds; C. Employee morale - when an individual feels happy, they will do well; D. Better communication and working effectiveness between board members, parents, teachers, administrators, superintendent, and public.

District 5
Mrs. Bryant: Since the voters passed the bond issue we proposed to take care of the physical plant needs, (and I will carefully monitor the spending). I will concentrate on trying to recruit and retain the best teachers available, and to review and improve curriculum offerings and programs.

Mrs. Neiswender: Maintaining quality education while dealing with the challenges of growth. Action rather than reaction; Long range planning with input from parents, students, and the community; Giving first consideration to the impact on students in all board decisions; Application of sound business principles in budgeting and expenditure of all school funds.

2. Do you feel that the Vocational Training Program is adequate and satisfactory to the needs of both the students and business community? If not, what changes would you recommend?

District 1
Kroll: No, I do not feel the program is adequate. I believe we need more emphasis on high-tech (computer training). And in order to meet the needs of employers in central Florida, we need more hotel management, food preparation, tour guide-travel agent, construction trades, and foliage growing courses.

Betsinger: The new Raise Bill emphasizes demands towards academics. This program needs to be monitored closely to make sure vocational training is not being slighted. Both academics and vocational programs need to be made available to all students so that they may have a choice. Each school should have proper facilities for adequate administration for both.

District 5
Mrs. Bryant: No. To meet state requirements our vocational programs are suffering. I would expand the programs to satisfy more student needs. Being involved in the development of the "Crooms School of Choice," I want to offer vocational and trade skills. The business community is being surveyed and asked for input in planning our programs.

Mrs. Neiswender: The vocational program has been adversely impacted by the state legislature in recent years. The school board should study the available data on vocational students and programs in order to determine and implement the changes necessary to adequately meet the needs of both students and the business community.

3. What kind of coordination is there or should there be between high schools and community colleges for alternative education opportunities (including vocational training)?

District 1
Kroll: Very little other than the G.E.D. program at the present time. We need to research ways that we might better serve the students' needs. One possibility is through the services of the Private Industry Council. I do not believe that SCC offers any kind of alternative education at this time.

Betsinger: The School of Choice has been set up in Seminole County to offer an alternative education program. It would be a good idea to set up a committee consisting of high school and community college personnel to review on a periodic basis what is needed and to implement necessary programs.

District 5
Mrs. Bryant: There should be and is much cooperation between the high schools and community colleges, not only in vocational and alternative programs, but also for dual enrollment and advanced courses. We are all working for the students in our community.

Mrs. Neiswender: High schools and community colleges have coordinated alternative educational opportunities for years, including adult education and extension of high school training to the community college level. Recently Seminole County implemented the dual enrollment program, adding advanced academic opportunities for students. I would recommend continuation and possible expansion of those programs.

4. What changes should be made in funding to promote alternatives for our youth?

District 1
Kroll: The state has funded alternative education for the past 6-7 years at almost 40 percent above the standard funding for a student in high school and about 60 percent in middle school. C.S.S.B.-450 passed in the legislature this year will take effect in 87-88 and will make sweeping changes. This year Seminole County opened the Crooms School of Choice to better help those students with these special needs.

Betsinger: The Legislature passed an act authorizing counties to establish a governing Board of Juvenile Welfare to provide: 1. child guidance and psychological services; 2. care for dependent juveniles; 3. allocating and providing funds for services not under exclusive jurisdiction of the public school system; 4. collecting statistical data; 5. consulting with other agencies to prevent overlap of services.

District 5
Mrs. Bryant: The state funding should include the needs of the student who is looking for an alternative to the academic programs. We are losing too many students at the middle school level where the Crooms School of Choice could make a difference. Fund the alternatives, also.

Mrs. Neiswender: The 1986 Legislature enacted the Dropout Prevention Act, which provides for implementation of alternative programs in 1987-88, including dropout retrieval activities, alternative programs, teenage parent programs, substance abuse programs, disciplinary programs, and youth services programs. If properly funded by the state, this act should adequately meet student needs.

5. What changes would you propose to attract and retain superior teaching personnel?

District 1
Kroll: A major factor would be to raise the pay for the teachers to bring them into the top ten percent in the nation. Other helpful changes would be to decrease the teacher/pupil ratio, decrease the amount of paper work required and increase the teachers flexibility in the classroom by reducing state mandated requirements.

Betsinger: The structuring of a salary schedule that would attract and retain good teachers. Study the issue of implementing a career ladder.

District 5
Mrs. Bryant: Superior teaching personnel are attracted and retained by giving them the best salary possible, best working conditions, the best and most helpful administrators.

Mrs. Neiswender: Institute a sound recruitment program - Change the existing hiring policies of the board; Salary and fringe benefits - increase in salary and non-money benefits in order to provide a competitive professional employment package; Working conditions - improve working conditions, materials and resources in the classroom. Reduce the paperwork burden on teachers.

Deadline Looms For Some Games Events

Golden Age Games coordinator Virginia Longwell is receiving 40-50 entries each day for the various competitions in the Sanford's week-long event for those 55 and older to be held Nov. 10-15.

There are deadlines for entering some of the events, while other events are limited as to the number of participants who can be accommodated, so Mrs. Longwell is recommending getting those entry blanks in soon so that they will not be disappointed.

Deadline for entry in the tennis tournament will be Monday at 5 p.m. It will be held at the Bayhead Racquet Club on Lake Mary Boulevard.

Tuesday's golf tourney at the Mayfair Country Club is already filled, but there are still openings on Thursday morning. Deadline for golfers is 5 p.m. on Nov. 5.

Other deadlines for entering are: bowling, synchronized swimming, bike racing, canoeing, and billiards, Nov. 7; decathlon, Nov. 10; swimming, Nov. 11; and track and field, Nov. 12. The deadline for all other events is 5 p.m. the day before. Entry blanks and schedules for these and other events are available at the Sanford Chamber, 400 E. First St. There is a $1 entry fee for each event (plus a $1 lane fee payable at the bowling alley and $1 cart fee payable at Mayfair Country Club.)

Swimming will take place at the Parnell Pool on State Road 434, west of Longwood. Diving and synchronized swimming will be at Lyman High School, Longwood. New locations this year include: canoeing at Katie's Landing on the Wekiva River (off W. State Road 46); checkers, dominoes, croquet and pinocle at Howell Place on Airport Boulevard; and table tennis at the Salvation Army gymnasium in Sanford.

Games General Chairman Jim

Jernigan said Golden Age Games officials will wear navy blue vests while conducting their events this year to make them readily identifiable. After the events the one-size-fits-all vests will be returned to the chamber of commerce by the chairman of the event to be re-issued to others.

The official shirt for the members of the Games Executive Committee will be a navy blue knit with a gold logo embroidered on the pocket and Golden Age Executive Committee on the sleeve, he said.

Games participants will each receive a gym bag that flattens for packing and storing. They will also receive mugs provided by McDonald's and a game card good for free food items. A first time sponsor, Bill Knapp's Restaurant, is to provide free baked goods for workers at the headquarters in the chamber building. "Over 55" cards for all participants, and gift certificates for every medal winner.

Tickets are available for $7.50 at the chamber for the mid-week dinner-dance to be held at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday at the Sanford Civic Center. The Sanford Airport Restaurant will cater the buffet dinner, which will feature roast beef, chicken and ham. The event is sponsored by the Over 50 Club.

Kay Bartholomew, director of marketing for Central Florida Regional Hospital, announced a 2½-hour sports medicine clinic for seniors will be held 7 p.m. Nov. 11 at the civic center. It is open to the public as well as Games participants. Dr. Chester Miltenberger, internist and world class swimmer, will speak on preparing for racing and competition. Nurses will demonstrate how the athletes can take their pulse and heart rate. Dr. Bronson Lane will speak on "Food for Power."

The next Executive Committee meeting will be held Tuesday at 8 a.m. at the chamber.

Tricked Pregnant Girl Friend In Ploy

Jordanian Convicted Of Jetliner Bomb Attempt

LONDON (UPI) — A Jordanian was convicted today of tricking his pregnant Irish girlfriend into attempting to carry a bomb onto an Israeli jetliner two days after the U.S. attack on Libya, in a plot prosecutors said was aided by Syrian agents.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated less than eight hours to convict Nezar Hindawi and Justice William Mars-Jones sentenced him to 45 years in prison. Hindawi showed no reaction when the verdict and sentence were delivered and later flashed a "V" for victory sign with his fingers.

A spokesman said Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe was scheduled to make a statement before the House of Commons today and the Syrian ambassador was immediately summoned.

The ambassador was in the Foreign Office for five minutes and left without making any comment.

Prosecutors had charged that Hindawi, 32, who pleaded innocent, had been trained and supplied with explosives by Syrian intelligence agents.

"Terrorists can expect no mercy," Mars-Jones said in issuing the sentence. "This country will not tolerate the activities of terrorists. A more cruel and callous deception and a more horrendous massacre it is difficult to imagine."

During the trial, prosecutor Roy Amlot charged Hindawi was trained by Syrian agents to blow up the jet. He said Hindawi was given 3 pounds of plastic explosives concealed in a suitcase, which he in turn handed over to Ann Murphy, 32, of Dublin, then pregnant with his child.

Acting on a tip, an El Al security man discovered the explosives in the suitcase that Murphy was carrying as she waited to board the plane.

"This was a well-planned, well-organized crime which involved many others besides yourself, some of them people in high places," Mars-Jones told Hindawi.

Murphy testified she had Hindawi's child in July and said she believed that when he gave her the suitcase at Heathrow she was flying to the Middle East to marry him.

"Was ever a woman worse used by a man?" Amlot asked in his closing arguments.

"It is one of the most callous acts of all time," Mars-Jones said the explosives would have destroyed the New York-to-Tel Aviv El Al jetliner carrying 375 people, including Murphy, on April 17 after its stopover at London's Heathrow Airport.

Hindawi's bombing attempt was seen as retaliation for the U.S. bombing raid on Libya two days earlier. The United States attacked Libya, which it blamed for the bombing of a West Berlin disco popular with American soldiers. Hindawi's brother is accused of the disco bombing.

Whistle-Blowers Sue Lockheed Over Their Firing

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Three former Lockheed Corp. quality control auditors sued the aerospace giant for $15 million, claiming they were fired for blowing the whistle on potentially catastrophic defects in the military's biggest troop transport plane.

The Air Force ordered 50 of the planes in 1982 for a total of $7.8 billion. The first planes were delivered last year.

Thomas Benecke, Terrence Schielki and Clyde Jones filed suit in Superior Court Thursday, saying that Lockheed management refused to conduct tests on metal weakened by overheated ovens, and falsified records to make it appear as if the tests had been done.

The suit said that when Lockheed officials refused to have metallurgic tests done, the three men used their own money to have the tests conducted. The tests confirmed the plaintiffs' fears, the suit said.

Company officials said the three men were not fired, but resigned or retired after reprimands for unprofessional conduct for taking the metal scraps off the premises and having the metallurgic tests done.

Rampaging Cabbie Wrote Editor Letter

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — An enraged cab driver who went on a shooting rampage in a newspaper plant wrote a rambling diatribe before the assault targeting several prominent Alaskan politicians as enemies he might ambush, investigators said.

Donald Lee Ramsey, 41, dropped off a typed, 27-page chronicle of grievances and threats at the Anchorage Daily News a half hour before the bizarre episode Tuesday at the rival Anchorage Times, police and newspaper officials said Wednesday.

Ramsey chained the front door of the Times, set off firecrackers and smoke bombs, starting a small blaze, then opened fire with a rifle as he went gunning for publisher Robert Atwood, 79. But the feisty newspaper executive, aided by his daughter, assistant publisher Elaine Atwood, and several others, subdued Ramsey until police arrived.

Ramsey was arraigned Wednesday on charges of arson, assault and reckless endangerment, which together carry maximum penalties of 26 years in jail. His bail was continued at $500,000. He said he had no money, and a public defender was appointed.

Police said he had no known criminal record or history of mental problems but a check of his past was continuing.

The News published excerpts of Ramsey's document, which described how he had scouted various neighborhoods to find ambush spots and how he had stalked the offices of the politicians he opposed.

In one section, apparently directed toward Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, Ramsey wrote, "I could stand off at two hundred yards and pop a few caps at you." He listed other enemies, including 1982 gubernatorial candidate Tom Fink, former Anchorage Mayor George Sullivan and former state Rep. Jerry Ward.

"I've been mid-ranging everyone for a month now," he wrote in the disjointed document. He gave details about how he could ambush Fink and Ward, saying "it's an easy shot for a .375 H&H."

Atwood, Murkowski and Mayor Tony Knowles drew sharp comments on the first page, with Ramsey warning, "All you are now witnessing is not the blowing off of steam, but a major eruption, one that has been building for some time."

The News said nobody at the paper bothered to read the document, addressed "To Whom It May Concern" and left for a columnist, until after the events at the Times.

The document, containing many misspellings, was written in part as if the assault on the Times was already under way.

"Now, Mayor Knowles can order his CIRT (Crisis Intervention Team) or SWAT team, or whatever they call it, into this building on me, and if they come, I will probably end up dead and so will this old man, or whomever was lucky enough to be chosen by me to be his proxy."

Ramsey was apparently angry because Atwood had yanked a full-page political ad submitted by Ramsey two months before. The ad, which ran in one edition before it was pulled and the money refunded to Ramsey, attacked Murkowski apparently because he refused to help Ramsey in his personal crusade to recall Mayor Knowles.

Know Your Personality Type, Educators Say

By Kathy Tyrity Herald Staff Writer

Do people think you are shallow, glib, superficial, emotional, fuzzy-minded flake? If so, you may be an "ENFP" and you may want to adapt to some of the characteristics of an "ISTJ."

Confused? It's just a personality profile that educators are using, and they say everyone should know their type.

So convinced was the School Board of Seminole County that they had an expert come in an identify each one of them. Now, they say they can communicate better, knowing where each of the others is coming from.

According to People Types & Tiger Stripes by Gordon Lawrence, there are 16 basic personality types in the world. Maggie Culp, dean of student services at Seminole Community College, uses this material daily to help students and she explained it in detail.

She says people tend to be either extrovert or introvert (E or I), intuitive or sensing (N or S), feeling or thinking (F or T), and perceptive or judging (P or J). Most people in the world are extrovert, she said, and most are sensing rather than intuitive. So what does that mean?

"We are born with a preference toward a certain way of interacting with the world," Dr. Culp explained. "This means we will act this way in a pinch. This is our comfort zone." And the whole thing is measured by a simple test of everyday preferences, called the Myers-Briggs test.

Now think of this. Are you appalled by people who think out loud and by half-formed ideas? Do you require agendas in advance and time to think? And is it hard for you to give an opinion on something you've just read? Yes? Well, chances are you're an introvert. But that may not mean exactly what you think it means. People are important to one another based on their strengths, says Dr. Culp. And each personality is necessary in every group.

To explain the theory, she explained what the books say about each letter that defines a personality trait, as follows. An extrovert is not necessarily your basic big-time party-goer. This is the type of person who gets reinforcement from the outside world. They look outward. "He does his thinking on a clothesline, that is, talking to people and getting their opinions," she said.

Extroverts are constantly scanning the horizon for new sources of stimulation. They are very comfortable discussing half-formed ideas. They pursue many interests, skipping from project to project and they require direction and limits. They learn by trial and error. Because they like variety, others see them as shallow.

Introverts are not necessarily backward and shy. They may be successful actors and many are. But when acting as themselves, introverts often prefer one-to-one relationships or small groups. The basic difference between an extrovert and an introvert is that an introverts get essential stimulation from within. They pick up their ideas, expectations and values internally and are very uncomfortable thinking out loud or discussing half-formed ideas. They pursue few interests, but pursue them in depth.

Importantly for introverts is setting aside plenty of quiet time alone. Not ones to make snap decisions, introverts have to have time to think or you don't get their best. Since introverts ponder, others often consider them cold, withdrawn and judgmental. The experts seem to think that extroverts put their best foot forward often so than introverts.

Dr. Culp says that business executives need to know the personalities on their boards of directors, and on down to their secretaries, because they need to be treated differently. Extroverts, she says, will "pop off" and discuss their dislikes with ease. Introverts, on the other hand, should be listened to when they challenge something or have a problem, because it is only after great consideration that they make such a statement.

Going on to the other traits, she compared the sensing and intuitive types.

Sensing types take in their information through the senses.

They need concrete, step-by-step instruction. Living in the here-and-now, they use standard methods and known skills to solve problems. And they don't like new problems unless there are standard ways of solving them. They seldom make errors of fact and tend to be good at precise work. But they get impatient when details get complicated. They work steadily with a realistic idea of how long it will take.

Intuitive types, on the other hand, take in information by a sixth sense or hunch. They like solving new problems and need constant stimulation. They are constantly dreaming of possibilities and using their imagination. But they tend to forget the present. They dislike doing the same thing repeatedly. They work in bursts of energy, with slack periods in between. They reach a conclusion quickly and are impatient with routine details. But they are patient with complicated situations. They usually follow their inspirations and sometimes make slight errors of fact. They dislike taking time for precision.

Dr. Culp says only 25 percent of the population is intuitive but they have a big impact on society, particularly if they are also extrovert. "EN's lead the world — if they can get their act together," she said. But they are often at odds with the sensing people (the people who read "how-to" books), because the two are so diverse.

"These are the two groups that need each other most but have the most difficulty understanding one another," said Dr. Culp. "N's see S's as dull; S's see N's as flakes. But they are essential to one another in working groups. N's have the vision and S's can keep them on track and make the idea work." Twenty-five percent of the population are intuitive, she said, and 75 percent are sensing.

Now for the thinking vs. feeling types.

Thinking people use logic above all. They do not show emotion readily and are often uncomfortable dealing with people's feelings. (They may hurt feelings without knowing it.) In an office with tension, they can get along anyway, as long as they know the job will get done. They tend to decide impersonally, sometimes paying insufficient attention to people's wishes. They need to be treated fairly, are more responsive to people's thoughts, and tend to be firm-minded.

Feeling types tend to be very aware of other people and their feelings. They enjoy pleasing people, even in unimportant things. They like harmony, knowing that efficiency may be badly disturbed by office feuds. They often let decisions be influenced by their own or other people's personal likes and wishes. They need occasional praise. They dislike telling people unpleasant things, tend to be sympathetic and are more people-oriented.

Half the world's population is feeling and the other half thinking, although more women tend to be feeling. The thing to look at is that you can be used if you are the feeling type because you want to be liked. And feelers have to be careful in decision-making that they don't "sell-out" for harmony. Thinkers need to be careful they don't alienate people. Dr. Culp said feeling people make better counselors, teachers and people managers.

Again the view of one another: "F's see T's as cold and conde-

'There are no best personalities and no worst. Be what you are but try to develop a balance of all positive characteristics of the others. Each type will make a special contribution...'

scending, and T's see F's as emotional and fuzzy-minded."

Finally, the perceptive versus judging types, which has mainly to do with lifestyle choices. Perceptive people are flexible, adaptable and spontaneous. But they may have trouble making decisions. They may start too many projects and have difficulty finishing them, and they postpone unpleasant jobs. They tend to be curious and welcome new light on a situation or person.

Judging types, on the other hand, love organization, order and structure. They like to have control and they make their decisions readily. They are comfortable with deadlines and plan their work in advance. But they have trouble dealing with interruptions and may not notice new things that need to be considered.

Again, half the population is perceptive and half is judging.

Dr. Culp says one danger of the perceptive type is that it can allow too much freedom to the intuitive personality. This type, although creative, may be so lost in wonderland they can't get a grip.

And again their insights: "J's see P's as messy, disorganized, irresponsible people who can never make a decision. And P's see J's as demanding, rigid and uptight." Most heads of corporations are J's, says Dr. Culp.

She says the real value of knowing your personality is to know how to capitalize on your strengths and adopt the strengths of other personalities. "There are no best personalities and no worst. Be what you are but try to develop a balance of all positive characteristics of the others. Each type will make a special contribution and pose a different problem."

She gives the test to students and interested others with a battery of career tests for a $15 fee. And she says many businesses are using the test for their employees to lessen friction and get the most out of each department.

Dead & Alive

'Noles, Lyman Turn Focus To SAC After District Fade

(Tonight's Seminole-Lyman SAC football game will be broadcast live by Sanford's WUEZ-AM (1400) at 7:50. Steve Luba will handle the play-by-play and Stan Lee supplies the color.)

Herald Sports Editor
LONGWOOD — Seminole and Lyman, two teams very much alive in the conference and very much dead in the district, square off tonight in Seminole Athletic Conference football at Lyman High School. Kickoff is 8 p.m.

4A Seminole, which was brutalized by a tough schedule early and an impotent offense lately, is 2-4. Losses have been to Titusville Astronaut, Titusville High, Seabreeze and Lake Howell. Astronaut, Howell and Seabreeze are a combined 16-2.

4A Titusville, which has played a murderous schedule (5A No. 1 Merritt Island, 5A No.

2 Gainesville Buchholz and 4A No. 10 Melbourne Palm Bay), is 2-4.

The Seminoles, though, are 2-1 in the SAC. They have beaten Lake Mary and Lake Brantley while losing to Lake Howell.

"The thing that really concerns me about Sanford is that on several occasions they have been a play of two away from winning," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "They are better than their record indicates."

5A Lyman, which has sputtered offensively while playing solid defense against a weaker schedule, is 2-3. Lyman slipped past Orlando Boone in the opener before being blanked by Daytona Beach Mainland. Good special teams work turned back Lake Brantley before two controversial calls aided a DeLand win. Last week, the Greyhounds rallied to overcome Oviedo. The Greyhounds' opponents are a combined 9-19.

Lyman is 2-0 in the SAC and tied with Lake Howell.

Which means Lyman needs a win tonight to set up a showdown with Lake Howell before it closes the SAC on Nov. 21 with Lake Mary. Seminole needs a win tonight and must hope Lake Howell loses twice more. The Hawks play Lyman, Lake Brantley and Oviedo.

Lyman's pattern has been win, lose, win, lose, win. Seminole coach Dave Mosure said he hopes it continues.

"Defensively, they're very strong," he said. "They must have scored more points off blocked kicks than anybody around."

Defenders Johnny Luce, J.J. Miller and Scott Radcliff each have a touchdown. That's one-third of Lyman's 54 points.

Coach Jack Bloomingdale's defense, which shows 4-4, 5-3 and 6-2 looks, is led by linebacker Benny Glenn, who leads the county in tackles with 16 per game. Linebacker Scott King (11.6 tpg), safety Radcliff (11.0 tpg) and linebacker Mike Whitaker (8.0 tpg) are also big hitters. Chuck Scheele (7.8 tpg) and Larry Tucker (7.4 tpg) are next in line. Lyman has allowed 63 points in five games.

Since Seminole's passing game (5 of 24 for 34 yards) has been almost non-existent, Mosure said Lyman will bunch up. "They'll give you a six-man front and a nine-man front with two corners outside," he said. "I look for something along that line for us."

Seminole's defense, meanwhile, will match the Greyhounds blow-for-blow. It has given up 51 points in six

Red Sox Need 1 At Shea

BOSTON (UPI) — The fans are already dancing in the streets outside Fenway Park.

The reason? Not only do the Boston Red Sox stand within a victory of their first World Series title since 1918, they also have their best pitcher ready to pursue that triumph.

The Red Sox are talking World Series title after left-hander Bruce Hurst checked the New York Mets 4-2 in Game 5 Thursday night, thus salvaging one of the three games at Fenway.

Roger Clemens is scheduled to pitch the potential clincher Saturday night at Shea Stadium. The money's not exactly in the bank, but it's under armed guard.

Clemens will pitch on five days' rest in Game 6. Pitching in that situation during the regular season, the right-hander was 8-1 with a 2.12 ERA. He struck out 78 batters in 72 innings. Oh yes, his 20-strikeout effort April 29 against Seattle came with five days' rest.

"And now we have the pitcher with the most wins in baseball pitching Saturday night," Boston Manager John McNamara said.

During the playoffs, Clemens has pitched once on five days' rest, Game 1 of the American League Championship Series against California, and gave up 10 hits and eight runs in 7 1-3 innings. Throw that performance out, however, since Clemens had been injured in his previous start when a line drive off the bat of Baltimore's John Stefero struck his pitching elbow.

Clemens started this season 14-0, was named the MVP of the All-Star Game and won Game 7 of the AL playoffs. A victory against former Boston left-hander Bob Ojeda would make a pretty nice finishing touch, wouldn't you say?

"If it's a storybook, then it'll be that," Boston third baseman Wade Boggs said.

The Mets have their own story. They have won 114 games this year, but their season will amount to a failure unless they can win two more. They have only two chances to get them.

"We are still in very good shape," New York Manager Davey Johnson said. "Our backs are to the wall, but we're not out of it."

The Red Sox are in a position to wear the crown thanks to Hurst, who dominated the National League champions for the second time in the Series. He had blanked the Mets on four hits over eight innings in Game 1, and came back Thursday night to scatter 10 hits and a walk.

His stretch of 15 scoreless Series innings — the most since Bob Gibson in 1967 — was snapped when Tim Lincecum homered in the eighth.

"I didn't think I had my very best stuff," said Hurst, who became the first Red Sox left-hander to win a World Series game at Fenway since Babe Ruth in 1918. "I was getting some pitches up. I just kept trying to change speeds and mix things up. I know I can't overpower anybody."

That's usually the style employed by Dwight Gooden but, though it's hard to believe, "Doctor K" was ineffective again.

Gooden, downright invincible during the last two seasons, was kayoed in the fifth inning and left trailing 4-0. The right-hander allowed nine hits and two walks and fell to 0-3 in four postseason starts. Only three others in history have lost three times in the postseason.

"It wasn't really vintage Gooden out there tonight," Johnson said. "He did not have good movement on his fastball. He had good power, but he was not moving it well."

Gooden managed to escape a bases-loaded jam in the first inning, but surrendered a run in the second when Dave Henderson tripled and scored on Spike Owen's sacrifice fly.

Boston scored again in the third when Bill Buckner, wearing one high-top cleat and one low one, reached on an error by shortstop Rafael Santana and hobbled home from second on Dwight Evans's two-out single to center.

The Red Sox then took

Rogers, Radkewich Propel Greyhounds To First SAC Crown

LAKE MARY — Lyman's potent punch of Robin Rogers and Nick Radkewich finished 1-2 Thursday afternoon to break up a sweep attempt by Lake Howell and win the second annual Seminole Athletic Conference Cross Country Championships at Lake Mary High.

Rogers, who cruised the tough three-mile course in 15:42.5, and Radkewich, who was second in 16:03.8, made the difference as the Greyhounds upended defending champion Lake Howell, 42-50.

For Rogers, who is gearing up for the district, was his fourth major win. In his three past victories, Rogers has usually been a come-from-behind runner. Thursday, he took the lead from the start and never relinquished it.

"It's different when you're the hunter and going after people," Rogers said. "When you're the one being chased, it makes you a little nervous."

Radkewich, just a sophomore, kicked past Lake Mary's Eric Petersen in the last mile to complete the 1-2 punch.

"Coach (Fred Finke) told us to run against people and not time," Radkewich said. "We thought we could do it and just came in confident."

Rogers and Radkewich were backed by the efforts of Mike Moehler (eighth at 16:57.8), freshman Teddy Mitchell (15th at 17:26.5), and Kevin Quinn (16th at 16:27.2).

"We had an idea we would be competitive today," Finke said. "Nick (Radkewich) ran really well for us today. And our fifth man (Quinn) came through in a big way."

Lake Howell finished second overall as seniors Chuck Buster (fifth at 16:29.8) and Jeff Van Buskirk (sixth at 16:37.7) led the way for the Silver Hawks.

"Chuck (Buster) has a touch of the flu and wasn't able to run like he can today," Lake Howell coach Joe Corso said. "We have no excuses, though, we just weren't together and didn't have our fifth runner come through."

Lake Howell had four runners in the top 10 but could not push another runner across until after Lyman placed its top five.

Cross Country

Other top finishers for Lake Howell were Kavan Howell (seventh, 16:49.7), Steve Steffy (10th at 17:13.9), and Luis Caban (22nd at 17:48).

The Lake Mary boys team put in a solid effort Thursday finishing third with 60 points. Both Petersen and Brad Smith ran well for the Rams. Petersen, a junior put in a strong effort placing third with a time of 16:13, and Smith held on for a fourth place finish coming in at 16:26.8.

The Lake Mary pack showed progress after the front two as Paul Evans (14th at 17:25.5), Scott Plyler (18th at 17:33.3) and Anthony Surles (21st at 17:46.9) rounded out the Lake Mary scoring.

Seminole finished fourth in the meet without placing a runner in the top 10. A tight pack by the Tribe enabled it to combine for a score of 81. Rufaro Matipano led the way for Seminole placing 12th with a time of 17:21.8. David Johnson was just a step behind finishing 13th with a time of 17:24.5.

Seminole was aided by the efforts of John Skees (17th at 17:29.9), Jason Kaiser (19th at 17:36.4) and Alan Seward (20th at 17:40.9).

The Lake Brantley Patriots finished fifth on the afternoon compiling a team total of 119. The Patriots were led by Greg Webb who finished ninth running a time of 17:10.5 with freshman Derek Tugman 11th with a time of 17:14.1. Other scorers for Brantley were Ken Kramer (28th at 18:10.7), Tim Iler (18:50.6), and Samuel Shearman (37th at 19:25.7).

A usually docile Patriot coach Charlie Harris was enthusiastic about his team's performance. "I'm very proud of the team," Harris said. "We ran as athletes and were very competitive."

Oviedo rounded out the field finishing with a team score of 158. The Lions' top five included Derek Bates (27th at

RHODE CAPTURES JV HONORS

In the junior varsity race, senior Mark Rhode of Lake Howell took the individual honors running a time of 18:18.5 as the Silver Hawks won the title with a low team score of 19. Lake Howell pushed the first four runners across the finish line to ensure them of the win.

Lyman finished second with a team score of 72 compared to Lake Mary's 79. The Greyhounds were led by David Mobley who finished fifth running 18:48.4, and the Peter Schoemann led the way for Lake Mary finishing sixth at 18:51.3.

Oviedo was led by Tim Cook who finished eighth with a time of 18:55.3. Lake Brantley finished in fifth place with a team score of 128. Leading the way for the Pats was Tyler Iler running a time of 19:26.4 good for 15th place. Brent Posey led the way for Seminole running a time of 19:16.1 for 11th place. The Tribe did not have enough runners to fill out an entire team in the JV race.

The next meet for most of the county runners will be the University of Florida Gator Invitational to be held Saturday in Gainesville.

Samocki, Lady Hawks Reign, Brantley Slips

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Howell's "Pack Attack" reigned supreme once again, but a meet that was expected to be pretty predictable turned out to be an exciting, topsy-turvy event Thursday evening at Lake Mary High.

While the Lady Hawks made a thrilling assault at a perfect team score, Lyman's Lady Greyhounds and Lake Mary's Lady Rams rose from obscurity to prominence in the second Seminole Athletic Conference Championships.

Lake Howell, ranked second in the state (4A), won going away with a score of 17 while Lyman and Lake Mary both surprised sixth-ranked (4A) Lake Brantley. Lyman finished with a team score of 69 compared to 83 for Lake Mary and 84 for Brantley. Seminole finished fifth at 117 with Oviedo sixth at 170.

In winning the SAC for the second successive season, Lake Howell had the top four individuals in the race and five of the top seven. Lake Howell missed a perfect score (15) by two places and number five runner Bonnie Oliver came pretty close to making it perfect.

"The thing I'm pleased with is the girls ran aggressively," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said. "They wanted it bad enough to go out and take it."

Lisa Samocki claimed the individual title for the second year in a row with a time of 12:05.3 over the demanding Lake Mary course. Samocki took control at the half mile mark and never looked back as the senior stand-out put 13 seconds between herself and teammate Martha Fonseca who was second at 12:18.8.

"My goal today was to go out and win it," Samocki said. "I realized I had it on the first mile. It didn't seem like I was running a very fast pace, but each time I looked back Martha (Fonseca) was farther behind."

Sophomore Jenny Bolt gave the Lady Hawks the top three finishers as she came in at 12:52.3 and senior Mary Fonseca made it a top four sweep with a time of 12:59.9.

Seminole's Shownda Martin came in fifth with a time of 13:01.9 and Lake Mary's Sue Kingsbury was sixth at 13:05.4. Oliver, a junior, was gaining ground on the two runners in front of her but ran out of time to catch them. Oliver settled for a seventh-place time of 13:08.2.

"We felt we had a chance for a perfect score," Samocki said. "But 17 is close enough. We're real happy with the team performance."

Lyman showed just how tough it can be when it runs its full team. Led by the trio of Julie Greenberg, Lynn Gomezperalta and Tracy Fisher, the Lady Greyhounds took second in the conference after expecting to get anywhere from third to fifth.

"We want the district and region to be our big meets, but county pride was at stake today and the girls wanted to do well," Lyman coach Fred Finke said. "Some of our young runners are starting to come on now and that's making it more competitive for the older girls."

Greenberg, a senior, led the Lady Greyhounds with a eighth-place time of 13:12.5. Gomezperalta, a junior, came in ninth at 13:26.9 and Fisher, also a junior, was 10th at 13:31.5. Rounding out the top five for Lyman were freshman Adele Portnoy (18th at 14:03.3) and Tara Braheny (24th at 14:24.2). Portnoy was the top freshman finisher in the meet.

Lake Mary's Lady Rams turned in their top team performance of the season and beat Lake Brantley for the first time in three years. Kingsbury's return gave the Lady Rams a big boost. The senior standout had not run since the second race of the season due to a recurring hip injury but she ran an admirable race Thursday in coming in sixth.

"I was real happy to be up that far," Kingsbury said. "I hadn't run in so long, all I wanted to do was finish."

While Kingsbury ran well in her first race back, junior Heather Heikkila continued her climb toward the leaders. Heikkila finished 11th Thursday with a time of 13:35.7.

"Heather (Heikkila) ran a really competitive race," Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson said. "She would have been under 13 on a fast course like Trinity Prep."

Lake Mary also got strong performances from its third through fifth runners in freshman Allison Snell (20th at 14:11.2), junior Tabatha Gano (21st at 14:12.4) and senior Lisa Shelby (25th at 14:26.2).

"I thought Lake Brantley was out of touch," Gibson said. "I felt we might be able to beat Lyman, but they put it together on the same day we did."

Behind Martin for Seminole, Viola Posey ran a good race as she finished 17th with a time of 14:01.3. Oviedo's top runner was Cathy Champ who came in 27th at 14:57.

HOWELL WINS JV DUEL

There were 24 runners in the girls junior varsity race Thursday and all 24 were from either Lake Howell or Lake Brantley. Led by the record-breaking finish of individual champion Diane Madison, Lake Howell took top honors for the second year in a row with a team score of 25 compared to 30 for Lake Brantley.

Madison set a new meet record for the JV race with a time of 13:26.9, which also would have placed in the top 10 of the varsity race.

GT Prototypes Let It All Hang Out This Weekend

For the first time at Daytona International Speedway, the fastest prototype cars will participate in a single-car qualifying session. This will be similar to that used for Busch Pole Qualifying for the Daytona 500.

A field of 41 GT Prototype cars is entered for this weekend's Eastern Airlines race, a record number of the 215-plus mph cars. Twenty of those cars are Camel Lights, smaller prototypes powered by non-turbocharged engines.

In practice sessions today and Saturday morning, the 25 fastest cars will be singled out. The cars will then be lined up from slowest to quickest and one at a time, starting at 1:15 p.m., make their qualifying run.

"Really, this is a stupendous idea, for the racers and the fans," Derek Bell, driver of the Lowenbrau Special Porsche 962, said. "Sometimes traffic can be a problem when you're on a quick lap, but with this format, you can hang it all out, so to speak, without having to worry about slower cars."

The favorites for the pole, along with Bell and car owner Al Holbert, would have to be the GM Goodwrench Corvette GT and a pair of BMWs.

Sarel van der Merwe has driven the Corvette to the pole positions and the track record in the last two IMSA events at Daytona, while David Hobbs put the BMW on the outside of the front row in its debut appearance a year ago.

The Fiero GT, a distant cousin to the production Pontiac Fiero high performance sports car, will make its first Daytona appearance and, judging by its introduction in April, the car is the odds-on favorite for the

Carl Vanzura

MOTOR SPORTS WRITER

Camel Lights pole position.

In 13 races since that initial outing, the car has been on the pole nine times, with five track qualifying records, three class wins and four race lap records.

NASCAR star Bill Elliott, who holds the Daytona stock car record at better than 205 mph, will run a Ford Mustang in Sunday's race. Elliott, who drives Ford Thunderbirds on the Winston Cup circuit, will run in the GTC class in a Coors-sponsored Mustang entered by Roush Racing. The car is one of four Fords, three Mustangs and a Sierra XR4Ti, entered by Roush to try and overcome Chevrolet's six-point edge in the GTO manufacturers race.

If sports cars don't turn you on, Orlando Speedworld and Volusia County Speedway could just make your weekend. Speedworld will hold a 25-lap state championship figure eight event with cars from many of the Central Florida tracks scheduled to be on hand.

If you have never seen a figure eight race, take his one in — it is quite an exciting treat.

With just two more races left in the season at that track, the points standing will also be coming to a close.

On the super-fast dirt track at the Volusia County Speedway, the Florida State Late Model Championship will be held Saturday and Sunday. On hand will be defending title holder Dennis Bennett as well as track champion Tuck Trentham.

Some of the South's top traveling drivers will also be on hand. Larry Moore and Mike Duval, two of the winningest drivers in the nation, are entered. Sanford's Steve Harris will also be entered in the prestigious state championship.

Saturday's events will start at 7:30 p.m., with Sunday's racing starting at 6 p.m. This weekend's races at VCS are the last scheduled for the year, so if you want to see one more on the dirt, this is it.

UCF Opposes Wofford In Homecoming Battle

By Scott Bander
Herald Sports Writer

After two consecutive losses on the road, the University of Central Florida football team (4-3) has put itself in a tough predicament.

Two weeks ago, the Division II Knights were 4-1 and flying higher than a kite. But then UCF was forced to play a pair of road games against Division I-A Wichita State (a 9-6 UCF loss), and Division I-AA Eastern Kentucky (a 51-24 EKU victory). Last week, the Knights were ranked 19th in the NCAA Division II poll. This week they are unranked.

UCF has aspirations of making the Division II playoffs but only the top eight teams in the country qualify for playoff action. UCF coach Gene McDowell said that it will take eight victories to make the playoffs.

"Now that we have lost three games we're going to have to win the rest of them," McDowell said. "We are going to take them one game at a time. The players are not down and they still feel that we can make the playoffs. So do I."

It won't be easy as the Knights still have a pair of I-AA schools left on their schedule. UCF will travel to Virginia next Saturday to take on Virginia Military Institute. The Knights will host Georgia Southern, the defending Division II National Champions, on Nov. 8.

UCF will try to get on track on Saturday afternoon when the Knights play host to Wofford at Orlando Stadium. Kickoff is slated for 1. The game is UCF's homecoming.

Immediately after the game, the Beach Boys will be playing in concert. Tickets are still available at all Select-A-Seat outlets. The ticket price is $13. The ticket is good for the game and the concert.

Homecoming games have not been exactly sweet for UCF in the past few years. The Knights have dropped their last two homecoming games. In 1984, UCF fell to Austin Peay 24-21. Last year the Knights were crushed by Stephen F. Austin 59-24.

Wofford College is member of the NAIA and is located in Spartanburg, S.C. The Terriers were 3-8 last season and have posted a mark of 2-4-1 so far this season. Wofford has defeated Davidson University (20-10), and Liberty University. The Terriers have lost to Carson-Newman (17-15), Lenior-Rhyne, Presbyterian, and Newberry. Wofford tied Mars Hill.

McDowell said the Terriers are a very balanced team. "They are solid in all phases of the game," McDowell said. "They are a hard-nosed football team. If we play well we should beat them. If we don't it could be a very long day."

UCF has had it troubles on the road losing its last nine games. The Knights obviously like to play at home as they have won their last six games at Orlando stadium.

The UCF offense has become a unit that relies almost totally on the pass. The Knights are averaging 97 yards a game on the ground while averaging 268 yards through the air. Most of the rushing yardage, however, was picked up in the first four games. For the past few weeks, the UCF rushing attack has been virtually non-existent.

Football

"We haven't tried to run the football in the past few games," McDowell said. "We feel that we can move the ball very well through the air. We still feel that we can be successful if we choose to run the football. We will probably run the ball more in this game than we have been lately."

Aaron Sam is the leading UCF rusher. The senior fullback has picked up 370 yards on 68 carries including a pair of touchdowns. Tailback Elgin Davis has found that yardage has not been easy to come by this season. Defenses have been keying on Davis limiting the senior to 232 yards. Although Davis has not gained as many yards as he would have liked to, he has played well in critical situations and has scored five touchdowns.

In last week's loss, back-up quarterback Tony Lanham replaced starter Darin Slack. Lanham, who started last year and isn't thrilled with his back-up role this season, came in and threw for a career high 304 yards and two touchdowns.

Slack, a former all-state performer at Lake Howell has played well this season and his statistics prove it. The rifle-armed junior has thrown for 1,446 yards and eight touchdowns. In limited duty, Lanham has tossed for 431 yards and three touchdowns.

Despite Lanham's impressive performance last week, McDowell said that Slack will get the start this week.

"Darin is still our starter," McDowell said. "I was really happy with the way that Tony performed last week though. Our problem has been interceptions. We need to quit throwing them because they are killing us."

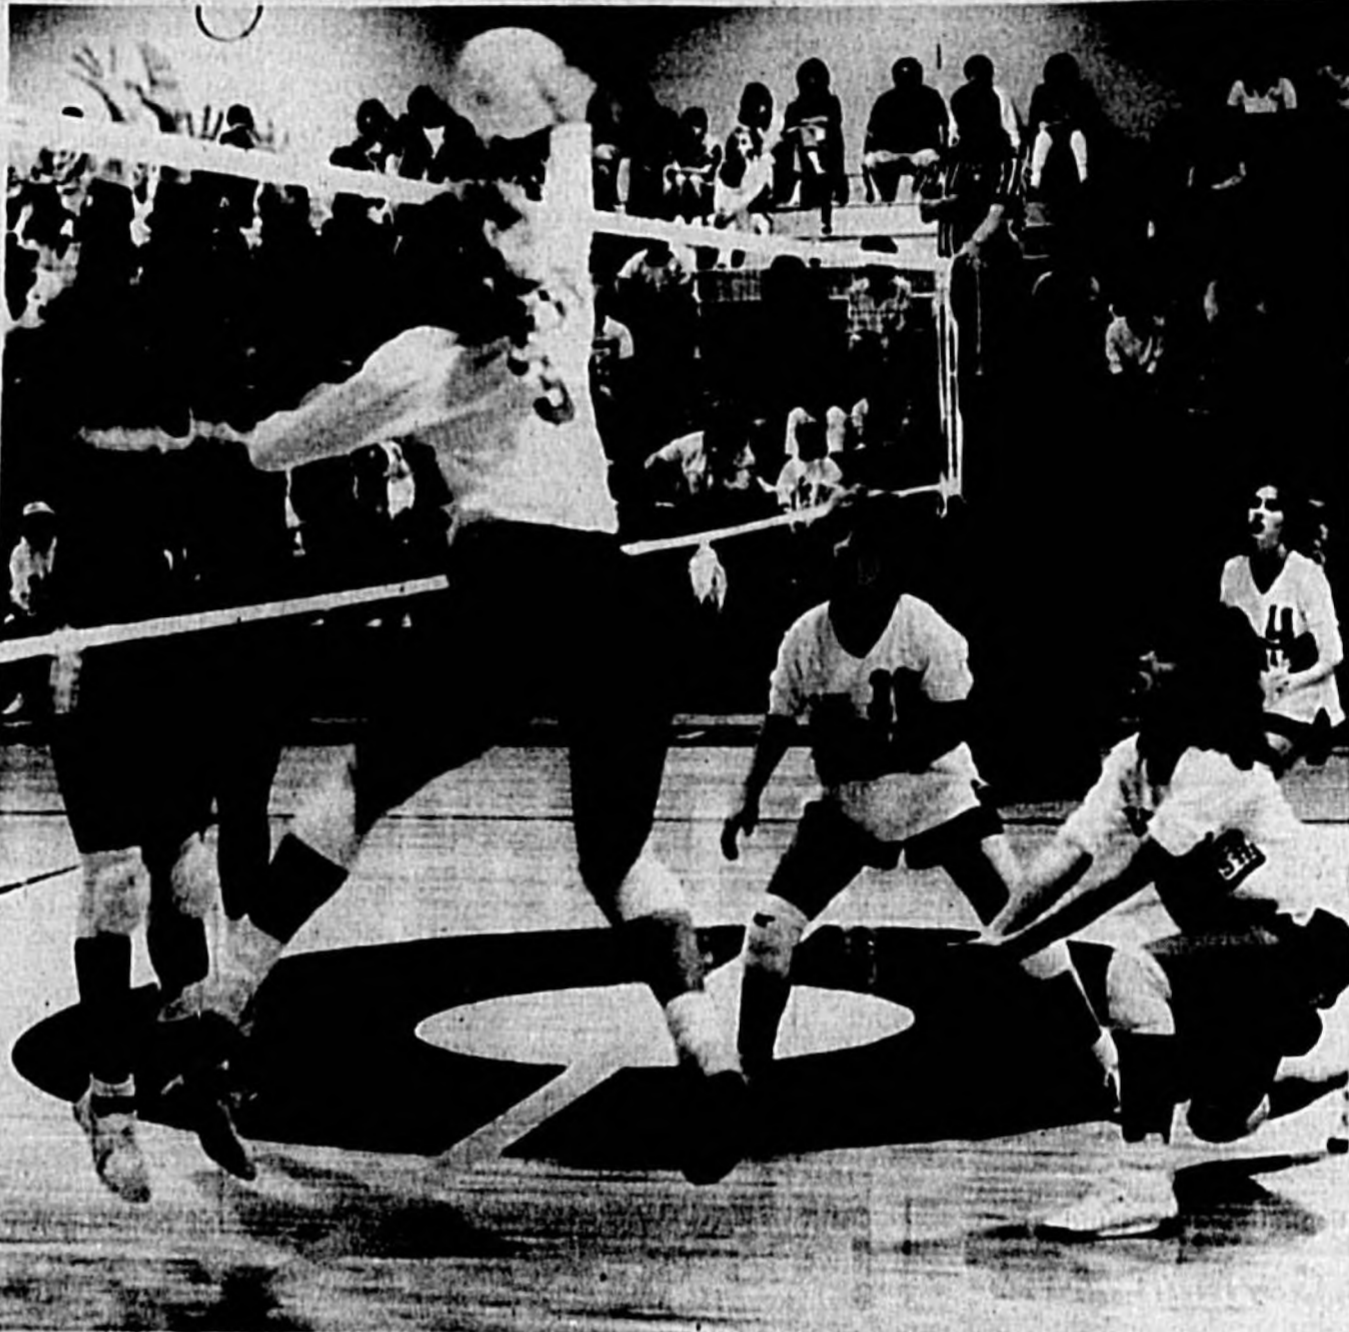

Slack and Lanham has combined for 11 interceptions this season. In last week's loss, two interceptions were returned for touchdowns giving EKU easy points.

Slack and Lanham are fortunate to have a group of gifted receivers. Senior Ted Wilson is the leader with 530 yards on 36 catches with a pair of touchdowns. Wilson needs only 11 more points to become UCF's all-time leading scorer. Scott Ryerson holds the Knight scoring record. Wilson has also caught at least one pass in 29 consecutive games.

The versatile Sam has caught 27 passes for 236 yards. Bernard Ford, the Knights big play man, has made the most of his catches as he has caught 22 passes for 463 yards and five touchdowns. Tight-end Mac Lantrip, who played for Dave Tullis at Lake Brantley, has chipped in nicely with 18 catches for 205 yards and a touchdown.

Donald Grayson, who backs-up Lantrip and played at Lake Mary, led all Knight receivers last week with seven catches for 102 yards. Grayson, a freshman, has fit in well as he has grabbed 13 passes for 121 yards.

"Grayson did a super job last week," McDowell said. "He is going to be a great player in the next few years."

Lady Seminoles Top Lyman For Second Win Of Season

By Mark Blythe

Seminole's Lady Seminoles picked up their second win of the season with a hard-fought 15-8, 15-17, 15-10 win over Lyman Thursday night before 101 rowdy fans at Seminole High's Bill Fleming Memorial Gym.

The win improves Seminole to 2-9 on the season and 2-6 in the Seminole Athletic Conference while Lyman dropped to 0-10 and 0-8.

Seminole's Sheri Peterson was able to come up with the big plays in clutch situations, contributing four kills, two blocks, and three service points along with her usual steady setting to aid to the Lady Tribe's win.

"Sheri (Peterson) played a great match tonight," Seminole coach Beth Corso. "She's come through for us all season long."

Seminole came out on fire in the first game, downing the Lady Greyhounds 15-8. Lisa McGrotha served the first three points of the game powered by a Liz Long spike to give Seminole a 3-0 edge. Cindy Bengue, who turned in a fine all-around performance, put three more on the scoreboard for the Lady Tribe giving it a 6-1 advantage.

Lyman managed another point before Faronda "Ferocious" Brown came in and served five straight points for a commanding 11-2 lead. Kim Walsh closed the door on Lyman after the 'Hounds managed four points. Walsh's service was kept alive by a Peterson kill and block and Seminole took a one game advantage.

The Lady Tribe threatened to make the match a sweep leading 11-7 before a Lyman rally. The Greyhounds' Julia Callerman ran off five straight points making the score 13-11. Bengue sent a spike down on a Brown serve to give Seminole new life.

Dana Boyesen closed the door on Seminole, though, with two straight points.

In the third and final game, each team seemed to want to give the game away. Neither team took advantage of the other's mistakes and neither team could score.

After the teams battled to a 5-5 tie, Peterson put down an apparent kill giving Seminole some momentum. A controversial call stopped the match and Lyman was awarded the point after a conference between the coaches and officials.

Seminole took control of the match late, though, using the serves of Adrian Hillman and Bengue to put the score to 14-10. Walsh then sent the game winner over to end the match.

"We've been hungry for a win," Corso said. "We needed this match, we had to win tonight."

Seminole will face Lake Howell next Thursday and has re-scheduled its Tuesday match with Lake Mary to Nov. 3, due to exam week.

OVIEDO HAMMERS LAKE BRANTLEY
The Oviedo volleyball express continued to move full steam ahead Thursday as the Lady Lions won their eighth straight with a 15-1, 15-11 victory over Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots in SAC action at Oviedo High.

Oviedo ran its overall record to 17-2 while improving to 7-1 in the conference. Oviedo and Lake Mary are tied for the top spot and will meet for a possible winner-take-all match Thursday at Oviedo. Oviedo has an Orange Belt Conference match Monday at home against Klamimsee Osceola.

Lake Brantley now stands at 5-15 overall and 3-5 in the SAC. The Lady Patriots are at Lake Howell Tuesday.

Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said Bobbie Kelly and Kim Marr played exceptionally well on the front row in the first-game rout while Barbara Malone and Kelly Davidson came up with the big serves.

"You don't hear much about Bobbie (Kelly) and Kim (Marr) but they both came in and played really well tonight," Carlson said.

Oviedo's junior varsity saw its SAC hopes slide as it dropped a 15-10, 15-4 decision to Lake Brantley. Lake Mary's JV is unbeaten in SAC play.

Forceful Lady Rams Zap Howell

CASSELBERRY — Even without clicking on all cylinders most of the time, Lake Mary's Lady Rams built up a 12-5 overall record and 6-1 in the Seminole Athletic Conference going into Thursday's match.

Thursday night, though, the Lady Rams showed just what a force they can be when everyone on the floor is at her best. Excelling at all phases of the game, Lake Mary roared to a 15-10, 15-8 victory over Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks in a crucial SAC game before 121 fans at Lake Howell High.

Lake Mary, 13-5 overall, remains tied for the SAC lead with Oviedo at 7-1. Lake Mary's next conference match is Thursday night at Oviedo and it will most likely decide the championship. Lake Howell now stands at 10-7 overall and 5-3 in the conference. The Lady Hawks host DeLand Monday and Lake Brantley Tuesday.

Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry said Thursday's match was probably the best the Lady Rams have played this season.

"I don't want to sound conceded, but I was really impressed with us tonight," Henry said. "We had six people out there playing good volleyball."

Lake Mary jumped out to the early lead in game one and built up a 12-7 lead before Lake Howell worked its way back. The Hawks scored twice on Jaudon Jonas' serve to make it 12-9 with Kelly Dean's dump, one of few Howell balls that fell past the Lake Mary defense, providing the eighth point. Susan Hayden's spike gave the serve back to the Hawks and Dean served a point to cut the lead to 12-10.

A missed serve gave Lake Mary a side out and Angela Capps then came on to serve the last three points of the game, the 15th point being an ace. The key to the game-winning rally was Lake Mary's defense which, on one point, dug up three consecutive hard-hit spikes by Hayden.

"Those digs were the key to us winning the first game," Henry said. "Lake Howell could have gotten the momentum if one of the spikes got in. Our defense was so gutty tonight."

Lake Mary took control early and never looked back in game two. With the Rams holding a 2-1 lead, Capps came on to serve five straight for a 7-1 lead. Marcy Lazar turned from setter to hitter in accounting for the fifth point.

Lake Howell came back within 7-3 but Lake Mary scored two more on Marnie Frey's serve, got the ball back on a Capps' spike, and ran the lead to 11-3 on Lora Splatt's booming serve.

The Lady Hawks made a last ditch run on Sandy Montes' serve to pull within 12-8, but a Splatt spike gave the Lady Rams a side out and Val Smith, who had another outstanding night on the front row, closed out the match with three straight serves. Splatt's offspeed hit eluded the Lake Howell defense for the 14th point and, on the 15th point, Capps made a fine dig of a Monica Schneider spike to keep the rally going.

"This was our most important match so far and we were really fired up for it," Capps said. "This is the first time all six players on the floor were on at the same time. No one had a bad night."

Lake Mary's junior varsity continued to roll Thursday with a 15-9, 15-9 victory over the JV Lady Silver Hawks. Lake Mary has now won 11 straight after an opening-day loss. Coach Willie Richardson's team is 8-0 in the SAC.

McManus Gets Florida State Offense Back On Track

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida State offense has found a familiar leader in quarterback Danny McManus.

McManus, a 6-foot-1, 191-pound junior from Dania, was the FSU starter last season as the Seminoles got off to a 3-0 start that included a win at Nebraska. However, he was knocked unconscious against Nebraska and Memphis State and eventually was forced to sit out the rest of the season with dizzy spells caused by the hits.

He received medical clearance to play this spring, but he entered the season third on the depth chart behind starter Chip Ferguson and freshman Peter Tom Willis.

Football

With Ferguson and Willis at the controls, the Florida State offense sputtered and Coach Bobby Bowden turned to McManus. He was put in late in a 20-18 loss at Michigan and drove the Seminoles to a touchdown.

Bowden named McManus as his starter for the Oct. 11 Tulane game. During practice that week, McManus was able to shed any lingering doubts that he was able to take a hit.

"On the Monday before the Tulane game, a defensive lineman hit me right underneath the jaw in practice. I laid on the ground and then got back up and it was no problem. It was good."

Shaffer Hopes To Erase Past With Win Over No. 2 Alabama

United Press International
The memory of last season's loss to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl still haunts Penn State quarterback John Shaffer.

Despite getting the Nittany Lions to the Jan. 1 game for the national championship, Shaffer is still criticized by fans and the media for the 25-10 loss to eventual-champion Oklahoma.

Shaffer and the Nittany Lions can get a step closer to their national-championship hopes this season with a victory over No. 2 Alabama Saturday.

"That's all I've heard about this year," said Shaffer, referring to the Orange Bowl. "But this game can change things."

Alabama-Penn State is the NCAA's feature and only real attraction this week. In the only other games involving two ranked teams, No. 7 Auburn visits No. 14 Mississippi State. No. 11 Louisiana State hosts co-No. 20 North Carolina and No. 16 Clemson is at No. 19 North Carolina State.

No. 3 Nebraska is so heavily favored on the road at Colorado that there was no betting line set by Harrah's Reno-Tahoe Sports Book. No. 4 Michigan is a 16-point favorite at Indiana. No betting line was set for the game between No. 6 Oklahoma and home-standing Iowa State.

Top-ranked Miami has the week off.

Hill, Natherson Team Up Again

Kevin Hill and Ron Natherson, two former Lake Mary High standouts, will team up again in two junior college all-star games this weekend.

Hill, a sure-handed third baseman for coach Jack Pantelias' Seminole Community College Raiders, and Natherson, a hard-hitting second baseman for Florida Junior College, will both play for the Mid-Florida Conference stars. Both are sophomores.

Mid-Florida joins forces with the Panhandle area to oppose a collection of players from the Sunshine-West Coast areas. The first game is Saturday at 1 p.m. at Valencia Community College. The second contest is Sunday at 10 a.m. at Orlando's Tinker Field.

Pantelias said Tony Ferrebee, a lefthanded pitcher from Clinton, Ohio, will also play for Mid-Florida.

Poor Weather Alters Vantage

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Bernhard Langer is in a stretch of golf that will take him from Texas to Arizona to Japan to Australia to Taiwan and to South Africa in six weeks. So he needs his rest whenever he can get it.

Langer had some rest Thursday and he will get a little more today as inclement weather has altered the schedule of the $1 million Vantage Championship.

Completion of the first round of the lucrative event was delayed until today and the tournament was reduced to 54 holes because of Thursday's morning fog and afternoon rains that swept the Oak Hills Country Club course.

Only six players finished the opening round before play was stopped Thursday. There were 72 players on the course and 78 more waiting to begin their first round.

Graf Leads West German Move

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Steffi Graf defeated Raffaella Reggi 6-4, 6-4 Thursday to lead a trio of West Germans into the quarterfinals of a $200,000 tournament.

Graf needed 66 minutes to beat her Italian opponent. Two other West Germans qualified for the quarters — Bettina Bunge, who defeated Terry Phelps of Larchmont, N.Y., 6-3, 7-5, and Claudia Kohde-Kilsch, who ousted Barbara Potter of Woodbury, Conn., 6-4, 6-4.

Kohde-Kilsch will next meet Caterina Lindqvist of Sweden, who beat Ann Henrickson of Mahtomedi, Minn., 6-2, 6-1.

In the last eight, Graf will play Robin White of San Jose, Calif., who defeated Grace Kim 6-3, 7-5.

Barnes Returns With Flair, Goal

Alyson Barnes returned home with a flair Thursday night, scoring the first goal to ignite the University of Central Florida to a 15-0 victory over Brevard (N.C.) College in exhibition soccer at Lyman High School.

Lady Knight freshman Barnes, an all-state performer during her prep days at Lyman, connected just five minutes into the contest. UCF, 12-2-1, outshot Brevard, 43-2.

The Lady Knights return to action Sunday at 1 p.m. at Orlando's Bishop Moore High School against highly regarded North Carolina. Seventh-ranked UCF and UNC battled to a 1-1 deadlock earlier this year.

Courageous Crewmen Released

FREMANTLE, Australia (UPI) — Four crewmen from the defunct Courageous IV America's Cup campaign were released Friday on $10,000 bail, after allegedly cutting up the aging yacht's $23,000 mainsail.

Police charged Robert Thomas Bennett, 26, of Chicago, Steven Wayne Humphrey, 31, of Oklahoma City, Okla., John Dennis Ahern, 23, of Beverly, Mass., and Donald Greg Stokes, 35, of Salem, Mass., with stealing and damaging the kevelar sail.

Lyman, Howell Swim To Wins

Lyman splashed past Orlando Boone and Lake Howell washed away Apopka in dual prep swimming action Thursday night.

Lyman's boys posted a 91-67 victory while the Lady Greyhounds coasted, 93-54. Lake Howell's boys ran up 106 points to Apopka's 59. Howell's girls breezed, 97-64. No individual results were reported.

Hartsfield's QB Education Continues Against Oviedo

By Mike Andrew
Special to the Herald

Carlos Hartsfield usually takes small bites. As the heir apparent to the Lake Mary quarterbacking job, that's the way coach Harry Nelson wanted to spoon-feed his talented sophomore.

Last week, however, the small bites turned into a big gulp. Two-year starter Shane Letterio suffered a broken collarbone against Spruce Creek and Hartsfield was thrust into action. He responded well enough, thanks largely to a splendid defensive effort, to pull the Rams to a 7-0 overtime victory over the Creek.

The force-feeding continues tonight at 8. Letterio will be sidelined for the season and Hartsfield's QB education receives lesson No. 2 as he assumes control five games early. Nelson said he will lead the Rams into their Seminole Athletic Conference homecoming showdown against the Oviedo Lions.

Hartsfield had a good week, Nelson said. "The kids really rallied around him. We're not as versatile as with Letterio, but we'll be all right."

Lake Mary is 2-3 overall and 0-2 in the SAC. Oviedo is 3-2 overall and 1-1 in the SAC. Neither team has a shot at district titles.

Even without the threat of Letterio, who was brilliant in '85 but never did hit his stride in '86, Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said he is worried about Lake Mary's wishbone.

"Shane (Letterio) is a tremendous athlete," Blanton said. "I'm still worried about this youngster (Hartsfield) who came in last week when Shane got hurt. He is not as effective as Shane, but he appears to be even quicker than Letterio."

Nelson said without Letterio's versatility, more of the burden with shift to halfback John Curry (328 yards/five TDs). "Curry's gotta come," he said. "The five remaining games will be close. We need a good effort from Curry."

A good effort is what Nelson received last week defensively. The veteran coach pointed to linebacker Lance Stewart and defensive end Brett Grocke in particular for outstanding performances.

"Stewart and Grocke made the difference in that game," Nelson said. "Stewart had 14 tackles and Grocke was chasing the quarterback (nine tackles) all over the place. Those kids did a great job."

Stewart joins steady Mike Smith and Rob Boss at linebacker. The Rams' secondary remains one of its strongest areas with Terry "The Cat" Miller, Sheldon Richards (three interceptions) and Hartsfield. Nose guard Robb Reddington is a force up front.

Richards is the top pass catcher in the county with 15 grabs.

Blanton said Lake Mary poses a tougher preparation than Lyman, a team which rallied to overhaul the Lions, 19-16, in the fourth quarter last week.

"We are going to have to be more prepared to beat Lake Mary than we were against Lyman last week," Blanton said. "Lake Mary is probably one of the most talented teams in the area. They have some really great athletes."

The tough loss to Lyman last week has Blanton concerned. "Everyone on the team is still pretty much in shock about the Lyman game," Blanton said. "We were in command of the game for almost the whole time, and then to lose late in the game is tough to overcome. It's hard to get back after a loss like that."

Blanton said fatigue could also affect the outcome, as Lake Mary suits up nearly twice as many players (85) as do the Lions (33). "Coach Nelson has a lot of players available to him," Blanton said. "And so many of them are really talented. We had better be in shape."

"Nelson will have his team ready to play," Blanton added. "You're talking about a coach with more than 100 wins, and he knows how to get his players ready."

Blanton felt the key for his team to spoil Lake Mary's homecoming is to play error-free football, and to have a solid performance from his special teams — especially from kicker Gordon King. "Gordon will have to have a tremendous game against them," Blanton said. "We really need to have a solid game from the special teams, and not make any mistakes on defense. With the talented people Lake Mary has, we can't afford to give up any big plays."

King has proven he can be counted on, drilling a 47-yard field goal last week against Lyman, and booting a 74-yard punt much to the chagrin of New Smyrna two weeks ago.

The Lions will bank on the running of Willie Gainey to offset Curry. Gainey is the fourth-best rusher in the county with 434 yards and an average of 5.8 yards per try. He darted for 192 yards two weeks ago against New Smyrna Beach but was held in check last week by Lyman.

Oviedo employs two QBs, Mike McCurdy and John Pettit. Their favorite target in receiver Alan Greene who has 10 catches for a 15.9 average, third best in the county.

Defensively, Oviedo is led by linebackers Jeff Joyce and Willie Pauldo along with tackle Andy Palmer. Joyce is fourth in the county with 13.2 tackles per game and Pauldo has 8.6 tpg. Palmer, a 270-pound junior, has been bothered by nagging injuries but is one of the top linemen in the county when he's 100 percent. He also plays offensive tackle.

Chad Duncan (7.6 tpg) and Donnie Hayes head up the secondary while Emery Sneed (two sacks) and Pete Lingard apply the pressure to the quarterback from their defensive end spots.

Anthony Hartsfield and Dennis Barnes, two starters in the backfield earlier this year, have reportedly quit the team, complaining about a lack of carries, according to one source.

Nelson said he had no comment concerning the matter.

But defense, as the stats attest, isn't the problem. It's offense, where both have been lackluster.

Seminole had its best showing against Lake Mary when QB Dwayne Willis along with halfbacks Curtis Rudolph, Eric Williams and Herb Hillery rushed for 242 yards.

Lyman's line, notably tackles Bobby Luce and John Spolski and center Mike Nelson, clicked last week. Robert Thomas (167 yards), Steve Jerry (71) and Victor Farrier (49) joined QB Darren Boyesen for 303 yards rushing against Oviedo.

Thomas, who carried 33 times for 103 yards against the Tribe last year, has 507 yards and is averaging 4.9 per rush.

"I expect him (Thomas) to carry over 20 times. When he gets it deep he does a real good job of reading blocks on front," Mosure said. "He just slides down and finds the crease."

Rudolph has 429 yards for the same average. Willis has 272 yards and Mosure said it is not the talented senior's fault that the option doesn't go.

"We have dropped too many pitches, and they're not Dwayne's fault," he said. "People should remember what Dwayne gave up for this team. Here's a kid who comes into his senior year as an outstanding running back. And, still is an outstanding running back."

"But when Jeff Blake got hurt (broken leg), Dwayne had to move to quarterback. There was never a moment's hesitation and he has taken on the responsibility.

"Dwayne is stepping forward. I wish some of the rest of these (offensive) kids would pick up his energy," Mosure added.

Lyman used a well-executed flea-flicker to upend Oviedo. Both Mosure and Scott said they wouldn't be surprised to see — or some variation — it again tonight.

"They have good skill people who can execute that stuff," Mosure said. "But if our defensive people just remember to stay in their area, it won't hurt you."

Scott said: "Seminole doesn't give you that much when you are on offense. You have to take what you can get. We might use a trick play if the situation calls for it."

Lake Mary JV Program Rolls To 29th Consecutive Victory

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Winning has become more than a habit for the Lake Mary junior varsity football program. Under the tutelage of coach Bill McDaniel and Charlie Reynolds, the Rams rolled to their 29th consecutive JV win Thursday night with a 15-6 decision over Lake Brantley at Lake Brantley High School.

"It was a defensive game for both sides all night," McDaniel said. "I would have paid to see this game. It was a great game for both teams."

The Rams' Jim Micholagek stepped in for his first start of the year at quarterback and Micholagek was no disappointment for Mary's 6-0 powerhouse.

Micholagek connected with wide receiver Calvin Davis on a 21-yard scoring pass with 5:17 left in the first quarter and Ray Williams ran in the two-point conversion for an 8-0 Ram lead.

Brantley jumped right back, making the score 8-6 right before the half.

With 1:08 left in the fourth, the Rams put the game away as Williams, who had 75 yards on 14 carries for the night, zipped in from 10 yards out. Alex Birlie came in and kicked the point after and Lake Mary went up 15-6 and went on to win its 29th straight over four years.

Leading the way defensively for the Rams were Pete Herzog with 10 tackles and three assists. Davis went both ways and also picked up 10 tackles on the night. The Rams will travel to Lyman next Thursday as Lake Brantley closed out its season.

BAILEY LEADS LYMAN

In a game Wednesday, the speed of Anthony Bailey was too much for the Oviedo Lions to handle as Lyman rolled to a 45-0 victory in junior varsity football at Lyman High School.

Bailey scored four touchdowns on the night, enabling Lyman to obtain its first win of the season. Lyman now stands at 1-3 on the year while Oviedo fell to 1-4 with the loss.

The Hounds erupted for 28 of the 45 points in the first quarter. Bailey reached the end zone three times in the quarter, rushing for over 120 yards.

Bailey took the first play from scrimmage and romped 70 yards and Greg Fulson added the point after and Lyman took a quick 7-0 lead. Oviedo then fumbled the kickoff after returning it into Greyhound territory and Lyman capitalized as Bailey took the second play from scrimmage 54 yards to give the 'Hounds a 13-0 edge.

Bailey broke the game open with his third TD in the first. Lyman put together a drive that penetrated to the Lion one-yard line before Bailey slipped in for the score. Fulson added the PAT for a 20-0 Lyman lead.

Delmon Simpson caught a 12-yard pass from quarterback Mike McNamee and the Greyhounds owned a commanding 28-0 lead after the first quarter.

McNamee teamed up with Bailey in the second for a 59-yard scoring pass and Lyman held a 32-0 halftime lead.

"We had a real good defensive game Wednesday," Lyman coach Rob Yapso said. "Chuck Dilaki and Mike Davis came through for us all night. Oviedo must have been down tonight. I've seen them play much better."

In its next game, Lyman will host unbeaten Lake Mary.

advantage of a whipping wind to make it 4-0 in the fifth. Jim Rice lashed a liner to Len Dykstra in center field, but the ball caught a gust and curved fiercely until it banged the five-foot fence in right center, about six inches short of a homer.

Rice had a triple, and he trotted home when Don Baylor blooped a single to right. Gooden was gone when Evans delivered again, this time with a hit-and-run single to left. Henderson then doubled for a 4-0 advantage.

Teufel, who had allowed the only run to score in Game 1 when he booted a routine grounder, flubbed two others Thursday night, but was not given an error because of some curious generosity from the official scorers.

Protect Plants From Winter Cold Damage

We've finally had a break in the weather, so you know that autumn is upon us. And, winter is just around the corner. It won't be long and we'll have plummeting temperatures. Some of us "old-timers" remember the big freeze of Christmas, 1983. And, it could happen again. Let's hope not, but we must anticipate the possibility. It's a perennial problem here, but not necessarily a disastrous one. If you're prepared to take protective action whenever frost or freeze warning are issued.

Each winter, there is some danger of cold damage to our landscape plants. You may have heard about many ways to protect them from cold. Commercial growers generally use heat more than any other method. However, for the homeowner, heating can present problems in trying to protect large specimens growing in the open. Still, wherever practical, the best way to protect home plantings from freezing temperatures is to heat them with an ordinary light bulb placed under a sheet, a blanket or similar cover.

Even if you don't use a light bulb or other heat source, you can reduce the amount of cold injury to your plants by simply covering them. Any cover will help keep the plants from cooling off as fast as they would otherwise. And, if the cover reaches the ground, it can help make better use of ground heat. Surprising as it may seem, covering a plant helps prevent cold damage by providing shade during the day, also. If a plant is frozen, it will thaw out more slowly if it's under shade. This results in less serious cold injury.

In spite of these benefits, covering a plant without additional heat is primarily a method of providing protection against frost, rather than hard freezes. Be sure you remove the coverings when the weather warms up — even if it's only for a day or two. Otherwise, your plants may suffer burns on the foliage.

The use of a mulch is one cold protection measure which causes a lot of confusion. If the temperature drops below freezing for just a few hours, a good layer of mulch will often lead to increased cold damage to the tops of your plants. This top injury results from a mulch holding ground-heat in the ground, away from leaves and branches. If a brief, overnight freeze is forecast, you may want to pull the mulch back away from your plants. Longer periods of very cold weather is a different story. If you expect it to get so cold that the tops of the plants may be killed. Leave the mulch in place. It may hold enough ground-heat to keep the plant's roots from being frozen. A plant may come back from considerable cold damage to foliage and branches. But, if the roots are frozen, you may lose the entire plant.

Sometimes, water can be very useful in the battle to protect plants from cold damage, but it actually works — in certain circumstances. In fact, a constant spray can protect some shrubs and trees against temperatures as low as 20 degrees F.

A small amount of heat is released as water freezes. So, even though plants seem to be frozen in solid ice, their leaf temperatures can actually be kept between 31 and 32 degrees F. The icy covering protects plants against the drying effects of cold winter winds, too.

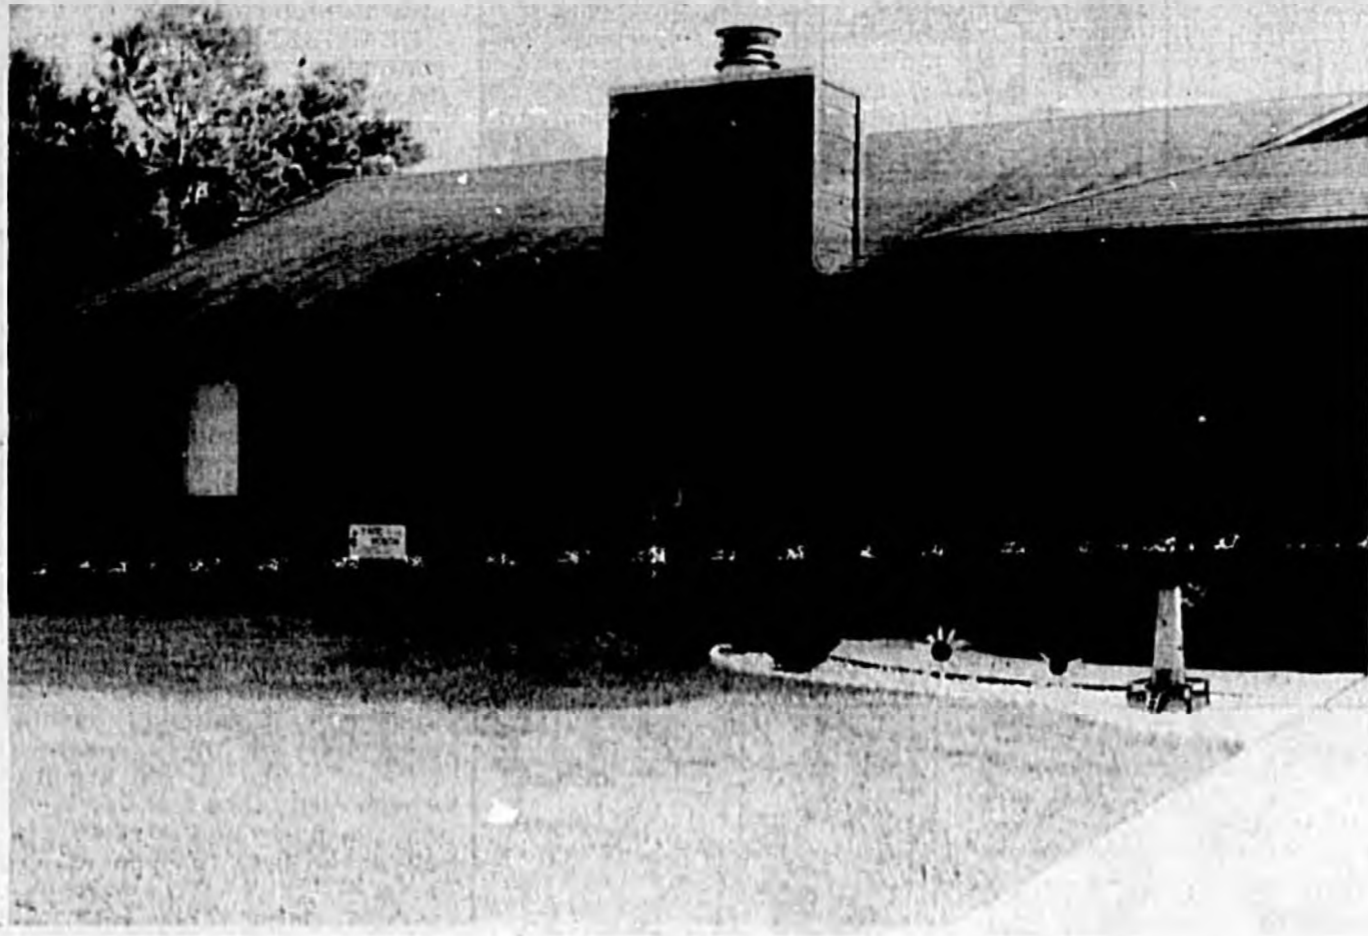

If you want to try this method on some of your landscape plants, you must remember two things. First, you must supply enough water to cover the plants evenly. Second, you must keep the sprinklers running until it warms up and all of the ice melts off the plants. If you don't put on enough water or you stop sprinkling while the ice is still on the plants, cold damage may increase. Remember, too, that the weight of the ice may cause breakage of branches and limbs. If you don't have a sprinkler system, do not try this method — it will be disastrous!

Another way to prevent cold damage is to water heavily the day before a freeze threatens. The idea is to prevent foliage damage caused by moisture loss. If high winds accompany a cold snap, plants lose moisture rapidly, resulting in scorching and browning of the leaves. If there is plenty of moisture available in the soil, the roots can quickly take up more to replace what's being lost through the leaves. If everything works right, this may reduce leaf scorch.

Remember, though that wet soil is a better conductor of heat than dry soil. If you water heavily just before a freeze, the soil around your plants may cool off faster than it would otherwise. This can be a negative effect.

If you plan to sprinkle or irrigate, use heat and covers, or some other method of plant protection, exercise caution and use common sense, and use the right equipment. Otherwise, you may cause more harm than good to bring your plants through a cold spell. With reasonable preparation and prompt action, you can usually protect your most valuable landscape plants from winter's bluster.

Happy Gardening!

Yard Of The Month

Sanora Homeowners' Association grounds committee has selected the yard of Mr. and Mrs. John Dubecky, 311 Krider Road, Sanford, for the "Yard of the Month" award for October. According to Levelle Thompson, the yard features a large pampas flanked by a climbing red rose, a podocarpus and ligustrum as foundation plants on the east and viburnum suspensum on the west side of the walkway, marked by a ligustrum, a sinense and box wood that are guarded by a decorative windmill.

Wife Has No Appetite For Fixing Husband's Breakfast And Lunch

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a part-time student and a full-time working woman. My husband commutes to work and must arrive there by 7:45 a.m. My problem: He expects me to prepare his breakfast and pack his lunch every morning. He contends that he can't do it — he doesn't have the time. I have been doing it for the last two years, and he hasn't seemed to appreciate my efforts.

For the last week I have refused to perform the above-mentioned services. I've told him that he must become responsible and take care of his own needs. Since then he has been buying his breakfast at a fast food restaurant and spending lunch money we do not have.

How should I handle this?
FRUSTRATED
DEAR FRUSTRATED: First, be honest with yourself. Your marriage is in trouble and the least of it is a shortage of money. If you are irritated by his lack of appreciation, say so, instead of punishing him by refusing to prepare his breakfast and pack his lunch "in an effort to make him responsible for his own needs." He's not your son, he's your husband. Get family counseling before your husband is not only eating out — he starts sleeping out.

DEAR ABBY: I've written to you many times saying, "Please help me, Abby!" None of those letters were mailed, but I'm writing to you now because I don't need your help anymore.

I was abused when I was a child, and for 20 years I was afraid of everything — afraid of failure, afraid of men, dating guys, and even calling for a dental appointment!

After a year of counseling, I am not afraid anymore. I can do anything I want to do. I can ask a guy out or go to a job interview with confidence because I know I'm a good person. It's like all my adult life I've been trying to get past a cement wall, and I suddenly broke through and found a whole new world!

I went to visit the father I had hated for so long, and it was like the guests are not supposed to stand. She says that people originally stood at funerals to show respect for the dead. I would like to know the answer so that my mother will know whether to stand or not.

I would hate for my wedding to be confused with a funeral.
MARRIED OR DEAD?

DEAR MARRIED: In some churches, and in some (but not all) areas, it's traditional for the guests to stand when the bride comes down the aisle. If you want the guests to stand when you come down the aisle, designate a few people to stand, then everyone else will follow suit.

DEAR ABBY: I just received your booklet, "How to Be Popular," and have read it through twice. It is excellent for older people as well as young. I think it should be in every home and high school library. I am not a teen-ager; I am a retired school teacher. Keep up the good work.

Men Past Forty Need Prostate Examination

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — How does a urologist examine a man for prostate problems?
 DEAR READER — The prostate gland, the organ that produces most of the seminal fluid, wraps around the urethra (the tube leading from the bladder) and lies close to the rectum. Therefore, doctors examine the gland either externally or internally.

By performing a rectal examination, a physician can feel most of the prostate and can tell if it is small or large, symmetrical or swollen, bumpy or smooth, hard or firm. This procedure is simple, safe, slightly unpleasant, and gives an enormous amount of information. It should be a required part of an examination of any man over age 40.

The internal prostatic examination is more complicated, expensive and uncomfortable. It should be performed only by a qualified urologist and is usually done under anesthesia. A lighted tube is passed up the urethra. The surgeon then looks to see if the prostate gland is compressing the urethra. The technique is called cystoscopy ('cysto' means bladder), because the urologist usually examines the bladder as well as the prostate.

Ordinarily, a patient's report of symptoms and the rectal exam are sufficient to enable a physician to decide whether a urological consultation (with or without cystoscopy) is warranted. If there are symptoms or if the prostate feels abnormal, the doctor usually will refer the case to a urologist who will then re-evaluate for the purpose of treating.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband died during bypass surgery. It seems that the surgeon cut into one artery that was to be bypassed. This same surgeon helped with the autopsy, and my husband's death was attributed to "natural causes." I am wondering if the surgeon's actions, during surgery and subsequently, were normal procedure.

DEAR READER — Bypass operations are risky. Surgical missteps occur, and patients may have heart attacks on the table, experience a reaction to anesthesia or suffer a variety of serious consequences from sophisticated surgery.

Certainly, the surgeon would have had to cut into the artery that was bypassed in order for the bypass graft to be attached. That particular act does not seem to me to be the cause of your husband's death, unless the bleeding was uncontrollable or a mistake was made.

Most surgeons care deeply about their patients and want to know precisely the postoperative cause of death.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
 "Sometimes, you can score your own winners only by preventing declarer from scoring his." This is one piece of advice given by H.W. Kelsey in his book "101 Bridge Maxims" (Devyn Press, 151 Thierman Lane, Louisville, KY, 40207).
 After North-South reached four spades, West led the queen of hearts. When that held the trick, East following with the two, West came to the conclusion that declarer had a single heart and had based his jump to four spades on a diamond fit and the A-K of clubs. If that were the case, the only way to take a trick with the club queen would be to deprive declarer of his diamond tricks.
 So West played a diamond at trick two. Declarer won in dummy and played a spade to his jack. West took the queen and played another diamond. Declarer won the ace and casually played the spade eight from his hand. But West passed that test. He grabbed the ace of spades and played his third diamond. Declarer now had to fall back on the club finesse and was set a trick.

 What would happen if the defense continued hearts at the second trick? After ruffing the heart, declarer would simply play trumps from his hand, giving up to the ace and queen. Communication with dummy's diamonds would be maintained, and his club loser would be pitched on a diamond.

Journal Letters Discuss AIDS: Pneumonia To Voodoo

CHICAGO (UPI) — An experimental drug shows promise in treating a rare form of pneumonia found in AIDS patients and others with damaged immune systems, researchers said Thursday in a letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Other letters reported AIDS does not appear to spread casually in prisons despite close contact and that dentists are not at increased risk for developing the disease even when treating large numbers of infected patients.

A fourth letter suggested a link between voodoo rites and the spread of AIDS in Haiti.

In all, seven letters in this week's AMA Journal concerned acquired immune deficiency syndrome, although their appearance was "more by coincidence than design," said Dr. Drummond Rennie, editor of the section.

"We publish a lot of letters on AIDS, perhaps too many," Rennie said. "It's a hot topic, I don't have to tell you."

Letters to the journal do not undergo the same extensive peer review process as the articles, but often serve as early and topical communications of subjects of interest to doctors.

Among this week's correspondence:

- Eflornithine appears to be effective in treating AIDS patients with pneumocystis carinii, a life-threatening infection that usually only strikes people with compromised immune systems, reported Dr. Thomas Gilman and his colleagues at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.
- Eight of 20 AIDS patients who had not responded to conventional treatment achieved "clinical cures" with eflornithine. Gilman said in a telephone interview. He said while nine of the patients died, "we think that we saved some lives with this drug."
- Eflornithine is classified as an investigational drug and can only be administered "on a compassionate basis" to people who do not respond to other drugs, Gilman said. Chemotherapy patients or those taking drugs to prevent rejection of an organ transplant are also at risk for this infection.
- Despite confined quarters and frequent close physical contact, the AIDS virus does not appear to spread casually in prisons, said researchers from the Walter Reed Army Institute in Washington. No new infections of the virus was found over a three-year period among 913 inmates of a maximum security military prison.

The researchers did not rule out AIDS could be spread through homosexuality and intravenous drug use at other prisons, and said screening for the virus "should be seriously considered in prison populations."

- A study of 951 Danish dentists found none had contracted the AIDS virus despite regularly coming into contact with the blood and saliva of patients. Denmark has the highest prevalence of AIDS in Europe, and the researchers said it was likely most of the dentists in the study had worked on people infected with the AIDS virus.
- Doctors from the Hoxworth Blood Center in Cincinnati reported on a successful acquired immune deficiency syndrome screening program that ensures anonymity for infected individuals.

People concerned they might have the virus were encouraged to go to an alternative test site, where their blood was identified only by a universal bar code. This guaranteed anonymity and discouraged people from giving blood to find out if they were infected, the doctors said.

- An Illinois doctor speculated that in addition to sexual activity, Haitians may be unknowingly infecting themselves with AIDS during voodoo rites, which can involve handling or ingesting the blood and brains of the freshly dead.
- Immune globulin, often given to soldiers as viral protection before they go overseas, will not cause a temporary "false positive" AIDS test as some have feared, said a doctor from the USAF school of Aerospace Medicine. Although the preparation often contains AIDS antibodies (though not the virus), it is too diluted in the blood to be detected with conventional antibody tests.
- A Sacramento doctor reported a case of an unusual infection in an AIDS patient. A 43-year-old homosexual male with AIDS developed Henoch-Schonlein purpura, a very rare gastrointestinal infection causing bled stomach and hemorrhages in the lower extremities.

More Women Named To State Cabinets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The percentage of women appointed to state cabinets doubled in six years with Louisiana leading and Alabama, under the leadership of George Wallace, ranking last, a survey said Thursday.

A 50-state survey by the National Women's Political Caucus found the number of women appointed by governors to top positions in state governments has increased dramatically in just a short period of time.

But Irene Natividad, the president of the non-partisan group, said a number of states lagged far behind in the numbers of women appointees.

The survey showed that Louisiana ranked first with eight of 12 cabinet positions held by women, followed by Vermont, Massachusetts, New Mexico, Arkansas, North Carolina, Arizona and New Jersey.

"While we applaud the record of these governors, and those others who rank high in our survey, we don't want last place to go unrecognized either," she said. "That distinction goes to Gov. George Wallace of Alabama."

Alabama ranked last in the survey by the NWPC with 4.7 percent of its cabinet female — one appointee.

Olive Jones, a NWPC official, said she has been working with all three gubernatorial candidates in Alabama to encourage the appointments of women in the next administration.

Wallace is leaving office.

Stephanie Alexander, director of administration in Louisiana, a cabinet post, told a news conference it sometimes has been difficult being a female cabinet officer in the South, but women officeholders have always been backed up by the governor.

"There is no question that I am not a part of and will never be a part of the good ole boy network," she said. "But the good ole boy network is aging and it's likely I'll live to see their replacements."

Also at the NWPC news conference were Govs. Tony Anaya of New Mexico, Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, and Thomas Kean of New Jersey, whose states were listed in the top 10 for appointing women cabinet members.

Smeal Sees Good Chance Of Defeating 3 States' Anti-Abortion Referendums

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, said Thursday feminists have a good chance of defeating anti-abortion referendums in Rhode Island, Oregon and Massachusetts.

Smeal said NOW has been campaigning against anti-abortion initiatives in four states, a California referendum banning AIDS carriers from working as teachers or food handlers and a state Equal Rights Amendment question in Vermont.

In Arkansas, she said an anti-abortion referendum was favored to win despite work by feminists opposing it. She said states with anti-abortion initiatives were carefully picked by abortion foes.

"They are trying to put on the books extreme measures," Smeal told a news conference.

In Rhode Island, Arkansas and Massachusetts, the question on the ballots contain language to ban funding for abortions but also would permit a total ban on abortion if the Supreme Court reverses its 1973 decision legalizing abortion, she said.

Smeal said in Oregon the initiative is a funding measure only.

"We view these as very important measures — Trojan horses — that can be sneaked in when people think their abortion rights are safe," Smeal said.

She said the measures could be interpreted to ban some forms of birth control, including the pill and intrauterine device.

S. Africa Irked By U.S. Report

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha demanded that the Reagan administration say whether it stands by a report advising prospective U.S. investors that South Africa is an unsuitable trade partner.

Botha Thursday summoned U.S. Charge d'Affaires Richard Barkley to his office in Pretoria and demanded to know whether the 50-page U.S. government report, which he called "arrogant and insensitive," reflected the administration view.

The Commerce Department report compared South Africa's commitment to self-reliance with 19th century America's "splendid isolation" policy.

"In fact," it added, "South Africa is closer to becoming just another African state."

The report called the country "a chronic debtor, import-starved, ridden with ethnic diversities, (and) a repressive regime unable to manage its own domestic constituency in any positive way."

It said Pretoria's "only leverage is its ability to manipulate foreign governments and attract international attention for better or worse."

"This is not an ambience which can attract U.S. trade and investment," the report said.

Botha said in a statement after meeting Barkley, "It was impressed upon the charge d'affaires that South Africa is part of Africa and therefore takes exception to the arrogant and insensitive comment that South Africa is closer to becoming just another African state."

A U.S. Embassy official said the report reflected "concerns which have been expressed by many commercial and financial sectors in South Africa and the U.S. and elsewhere."

He said it was intended for internal use by U.S. consulates but Botha said he had information that it was available on request to potential investors.

The document, listing statistics on U.S. involvement in various sectors of the South African economy, was released Thursday on request to reporters in Johannesburg.

In another development, police went onto the Johannesburg campus of the Witwatersrand University and used tear gas to disperse students leaving a memorial service for Mozambican President Samora Machel, killed in a plane crash in South Africa Sunday. No one was injured or arrested in the clash between police and students.

During the memorial gathering, dissidents accused Pretoria of having a role in the crash that killed Machel and 33 others Sunday.

Albertina Sisulu, co-president of the 2 million-member United Democratic Front, condemned "those who found it fit to end his life."

And dissident Aubrey Mokoena said, "We cannot dismiss the pilot's claim that the plane was shot down."

In a related development, police arrested about 20 Mozambicans in a ghetto east of Johannesburg, saying they were in the country illegally. The arrests followed a government decision earlier this month to halt recruitment of Mozambican workers in retaliation for Maputo's alleged support for African National Congress rebels waging a guerrilla war against white rule in South Africa.

South Africans Barred From Machel's Funeral

MAPUTO, Mozambique (UPI) — Though this nation has skirted the issue of alleged South African involvement in the plane crash that killed President Samora Machel, officials question why South Africa delayed reporting the crash and then gave the wrong location.

A senior government source told United Press International no South African officials would be invited to Machel's state funeral Tuesday, saying "the presence of any representative of the apartheid regime at the funeral of President Samora would be repugnant."

Machel, 53, the Marxist guerrilla leader who became the nation's first president after Mozambique gained its independence from Portugal, bitterly opposed South Africa's white minority government.

Apartheid Isn't In The Bible, Church Says

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — After more than a week of often bitter debate, leaders of the pro-government white Dutch Reformed Church voted to declare racism a sin but stopped short of condemning apartheid as sinful.

In a series of other decisions Wednesday at a synod meeting, 380 Dutch Reformed leaders said attempts to justify the government's policy of racial segregation through scripture "must be admitted as an error and denounced."

The church, an offshoot of the Reformed Church of Holland, had claimed a biblical justification for racial segregation for some 150 years.

The church leaders decided Wednesday to allow blacks, Asians and people of mixed race to join the white church. But they reaffirmed support for segregated education and refused to unite the white church with the three sister churches set up for blacks, Asians and people of mixed race.

The synod denounced racism as a sin and unanimously adopted a motion withdrawing support for "the policy which over the years has become known as apartheid." But it rejected a move to declare apartheid sinful, saying only that there is no biblical justification for the white-minority government's segregationist policies.

"They are saying that racism is a sin, but apartheid of course is not racism, therefore apartheid is not a sin," the Rev. Allan Bocsak, leader of the 650,000-member mixed-race branch of the church, told United Press International in The Hague, Netherlands.

"Their position of privilege and their rightness and their position of dominance in South Africa apparently is far more important than the suffering and the pain of black Christians," said Bocsak, who was in The Hague for a meeting with Queen Beatrix.

Colin Eglin, leader of the opposition Progressive Federal Party, said the rejection of apartheid as un-Christian "finally stripped the government of any excuse to cling to policies based on apartheid."

Chris Rencken, a spokesman for the ruling National Party, said the move was welcomed by the party.

Man Charged In Double Decapitation

NEW YORK (UPI) — A judge ordered a psychiatric examination Thursday for a man charged with decapitating his drinking buddy and another man and leaving the heads in the lap of one of the victims.

A source close to the investigation said an argument that led to bizarre killing Monday night may have involved a homosexual tryst. The source said one of the victims had AIDS.

Sacha Jean-Louis, 25, of Brooklyn, was arraigned on two second-degree murder charges in State Supreme Court in Queens.

Justice Eli Lazarus ordered the suspect to undergo psychiatric tests to determine whether he is mentally fit to stand trial. Jean-Louis was ordered held without bail.

He is accused of stabbing two men in the chest, cutting off their heads with a kitchen knife and placing both in the lap of one of the victims, who was left sitting in an armchair. Jean-Louis also allegedly lopped off the arm of one of men.

The bodies of his drinking buddy, Roger Berne, 63, and Gerald Blanchard, 62, both of Queens, were discovered Tuesday evening.

Berne was a printer at The New York Times and suffered from AIDS, and Blanchard was paying him a get-well call when they were killed, a source said.

The mutilated but fully clothed corpses were found in Berne's first-floor home after his ex-wife phoned police to say she could not get into the apartment, police spokesman John Clifford said.

The three men, all homosexual Haitian immigrants, had been drinking and the get-together escalated into an argument, authorities said.

"Berne and he (the alleged killer) were drinking buddies," police spokesman James Coleman said. "But they had some sort of a dispute that led to the killings."

Berne's body was discovered sitting in an armchair with both heads in his lap.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Exiled Leader Exits Paris; Arrested By Military

PARIS (UPI) — Jean-Bedel Bokassa, former emperor of the Central African Republic, slipped out of France with a wife and five of his 55 children and returned home, where he was immediately taken into custody, officials said Thursday.

Bokassa, 65, toppled in a French-backed coup in 1979, had spent seven years in exile and was sentenced to death in absentia in his Central African Republic for torturing and killing several schoolchildren. There were unproved allegations of cannibalism.

Bokassa drove from his chateau in a Paris suburb Wednesday night to Brussels, where he took a commercial flight to Rome and flew on to Bangui, Central African Republic, government spokesman Denis Baudouin said.

He arrived early Thursday and was immediately taken into custody by military authorities, who drove him to Droux, the presidential palace, Baudouin said.

Hasenfus Enters Not Guilty Plea

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A lawyer for Eugene Hasenfus, the American flier charged with terrorism for supplying arms to U.S.-backed rebels, entered an innocent plea Thursday and challenged the right of a People's Tribunal to try his client.

Enrique Sotelo Borgen took the opportunity of filing the plea to lambast the People's Tribunal. He denied the charges against his client and argued that the Sandinista court trying Hasenfus is incompetent, illegal and partial.

On Thursday night the University of Central Florida Community Orchestra will present a free Halloween Pops Concert at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium. Concertgoers may wear costumes if they wish and there will be treats for the children.

The Orange City Sorosis Club will sponsor a House of Horrors to raise money for playground equipment for the Orange City Elementary School Oct. 30, 7-10 p.m. and Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, 7-11 p.m. It will be held at the Orange City Recreation Hall, corner of E. University and Holly Avenue. Donations, $2 for adults and $1.25 for children 21 and under.

The city of Sanford Parks and Recreation Department and Seminole DeMolays will co-sponsor a Haunted House as a safe alternative for youngsters 12 and under at the Police Benevolent Building at 901 W. Seminole Blvd. (U.S. 17-92) on Oct. 31, 6:30-8:30 p.m. Admission will be 25 cents and there will be candy treats.

Altamonte Mall on State Road 138, Altamonte Springs, will host a Halloween Creative Costume Contest and "safe trick-or-treating" on Oct. 31, 5:30-9 p.m. The contest, which will be hosted by WFTV Entertainment Editor Burd Bullock and a representative of WDBO, will be for all "ghosts and goblins" 12 years of age and under. The contest for 6 and under will be at 5:30 p.m. while older children trick-or-treat in the mall before returning at 7 p.m. for their costume judging. Those wishing to participate must first register at the mall information desk, located lower

The revisions rely primarily on state statutes to define what constitutes adult congregate living facilities, nursing homes and adult foster homes and would allow these operations in nine of the city's 14 zoning classifications.

The statutes are contained in the state's nursing home and related health care facilities legislation. They define adult congregate living facilities as buildings, residences, private homes, boarding homes or other places, whether operated for a profit or not, which provide housing, food and personal services to residents not related to the owner or manager. Simmons recommends the city's possible new ordinance "hold fast" to the state's "personal service" criteria to ensure bonafide elder-care operations and "keep away from the rooming house syndrome."

Personal service provisions include assistance and/or supervision of tenants' "essential activities of daily living, such as eating, bathing, grooming, dressing and ambulating," according to the state statute.

The state defines adult foster homes as full time, family type living arrangements in private homes under which a person or persons, on a non-profit basis, provide services of room, board, personal assistance, general supervision and health monitoring for up to three aged or disabled adults who are placed in the home by HRS, the state's overseer of elderly operations.

Disabled adult is defined as "any person age 19 through 59 who, because of a functional impairment, requires personal assistance with the activities of daily living, but does not require nursing home or institutional care."

"At the moment, there is nothing in our code book that specifically addresses foster care," Winn said.

Nursing homes are permitted uses under one zoning classification, multi-family/office/institutional, and conditional uses under two others, special commercial and general commercial, Winn said.

Five of the city's zoning classifications allow adult congregate living facilities as conditional uses. The zones are two kinds of multi-family residential, two commercial and the multi-family/office/institutional designation.

Stocks Open Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which climbed 26.68 Thursday, was down 1.55 to 1833.39 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 397-353 among the 1,184 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 6,240,000 shares.

Stock prices rallied Thursday in active trading, buoyed by positive corporate earnings reports, economic data, and a strong bond market.

Traders said IBM and semiconductor issues benefited as some investors decided to cover short positions in those stocks. The New York Stock Exchange Tuesday said short interest rose to record levels between mid-September and mid-October. A short sale is a sale of borrowed shares. An increase in short interest is usually viewed as bullish.

Trude Latimer, market analyst at Josephthal & Co., said buying was "anxious" but not "panicky."

Investors also got better-than-anticipated earnings news from such blue chip companies as Ford, McDonald's and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, Latimer noted.

"Early this week, buyers were confused," said Latimer. "On Thursday the course was clearer."

Orders Boost Dollar As Gold Plummet

By United Press International

The U.S. dollar was higher on most major world money markets today, boosted by an increase in orders for U.S. heavy manufactured goods last month. The price of gold moved sharply lower.

Dealers in Zurich said the dollar was boosted by U.S. economic statistics released Thursday, showing that orders for heavy manufactured products rose about 4.9 percent in September to $109 billion.

The rise in orders for durable goods — the most expensive manufactured products, with average lives of three years or longer — was the largest since November 1984, when orders rose 8.2 percent.

In Frankfurt the dollar opened at 2.0235 German marks, compared with Thursday's close of 1.9903.

In Zurich the dollar began the day at 1.6655 Swiss francs, against a previous close of 1.6417; in Paris the dollar opened at 6.6225 French francs, against 6.5385 on Thursday.

In Amsterdam the dollar opened at 2.2895 Dutch guilders, against a previous close of 2.2540; and in Milan it started at 1,399.75 lira, against 1,378.40 on Thursday.

The only exception to the dollar's upward trend was in London, where it began the day lower at $1.4245 to the pound from a previous $1.423.

In the Far East the dollar rose to its highest level in more than 3 months in heavy trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange market.

The dollar closed out the week at 161 yen, up 4.65 over Thursday's close of 158.35. The close was the dollar's highest level against the Japanese yen since it closed at 161.70 on July 3.

Dealers attributed the dollar's rise to active buying by Japanese institutional investors seeking to finance dollar-denominated securities purchases.

Gold continued its downward move, opening $10.50 an ounce lower in Zurich at $413.50, against a previous close of $424; in London it opened $11.75 lower at $413, against a previous close of $424.75 an ounce.

Campeau Wins Allied Control

TORONTO (UPI) — Campeau Corp. announced Friday it has won control of Allied Stores Corp., the giant U.S. retailer that for two months has bitterly tried to fend off a hostile takeover bid by the Canadian developer.

Campeau said it purchased 25.8 million common shares of Allied at $67 each for a controlling interest in Allied, one of the largest retailing operations in the United States and the parent of such stores as Brooks Brothers, Bonwit Teller, Jordan Marsh, Garfinkel's and Ann Taylor.

Constitutional scholar Laurence Tribe of Harvard University said, "If the attorney general's views were correct, every legislature would be free to ban abortion. If Mr. Meese had his way, every school board would be free to adopt an extreme affirmative action program."

Meese insisted the nine justices deliver "constitutional interpretations," which are not "the same as the Constitution itself. My message today is that such interpretations are not and must not be placed in such a position."

Eugene Thomas, the American Bar Association president, said Thursday the high court is charged with interpreting the meaning of constitutional provisions and "that means that Supreme Court decisions are the law of the land."

Established constitutional principles allow that future disputes are governed by past decisions and "until overruled, public officials and private citizens alike are not free simply to disregard that legal holding," Thomas said.

The American Civil Liberties

Union criticized Meese's comments Thursday as "an invitation to lawlessness and a breach of (his) constitutional duty to uphold the law."

ACLU Director Ira Glasser said Meese is "fast establishing himself as the most dangerous public official since Richard Nixon." He compared Meese's position to the actions of some politicians in the South in the early 1960s who sought to avoid complying with Supreme Court civil rights rulings.

Be Kind To Your Lungs

Hidden Dangers Of Misfueling Will Become Evident In The Future

We all know that the traffic in Orlando is bad, but what is even worse is the fumes that we breathe in while waiting for the light to change. The observance of national Car Care Month during October as a means of promoting clean air, fuel economy and highway safety among car owners across the country has the full support of the American Lung Association — the Christmas Seal People.

If people took better care of their cars, they would not only improve vehicle operating efficiency and highway safety but air pollution could be greatly reduced as well, the Lung Association said. U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) studies have shown that over 50 percent of all air pollution is attributable to motor vehicles, and two major causes of this problem are the illegal practices of fuel switching and pollution control tampering.

Fuel switching, also called misfueling, involves the introduction of leaded fuel into a vehicle originally designed for unleaded fuel. Vehicles introduced after 1975 are equipped with a catalytic converter which may be rendered inoperative by the use of leaded fuel. Pollution control tampering concerns the disablement of any component of an emission control system, whether the disablement happened deliberately, inadvertently, or through neglect.

Both of these practices result in increased air pollution and are violations of federal law. Repair garages, service stations, fleet operators, muffler shops, and fuel distributors engaging in these activities are subject to heavy fines.

Motorists who indulge in tampering and fuel switching often mistakenly believe that by using cheaper leaded gas they are saving money and also getting better performance. Actually, neither is true. Leaded gas will cost them more in the long run. It dirties the oil, reduces spark plug life, corrodes the exhaust system, and destroys the car's pollution control device, and catalytic converter.

For all motorists, the American Lung Association joins the nationwide effort to promote car care by offering two suggestions:

1. Have your auto checked regularly and start doing it this October — National Car Care Month — to make sure emission control systems and other equipment are in good working order.

2. Contact the American Lung Association of Central Florida for additional information on air pollution, pollution control tampering and fuel switching at 898-3401.

Preparing For Winter Months

By JAN A. ZVERINA
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Despite record low interest rates and tax breaks, many motorists will not be buying a new car this year.

Many will have to make sure that older cars, which have made it through hundreds or thousands of hot summer miles, soldier on through the cool season.

Unfortunately, most car owners feel that preparing for winter means checking to see that the battery is healthy and the snow tires (remember them?) are up to snuff. These checks are usually made the same day Old Man Winter arrives.

Fall is an ideal time to give your car a once-over or have it checked by a competent repair shop. If you are even the most basic do-it-yourselfer — the type who checks fluid levels or changes the oil and air filters — autumn is a much nicer time of year than the cold of winter to perform routine maintenance or repairs.

Here are a few maintenance guidelines:

—Fluids: While it has been drilled into motorists' heads that oil changes should be done on a regular basis, everyone seems to ignore periodic changes of antifreeze or brake fluid.

Antifreeze can lose its effectiveness over time, so it is wise to have it checked or buy an inexpensive "eye-dropper-style" tester at any auto supply store. Many antifreeze formulations have silicates that prevent corrosion of aluminum parts. These silicates can "drop out," causing them to congeal and clog up coolant passages.

During a change, the radiator and engine block should be flushed out. Be aware that very high water pressure used during flushing could loosen a lot of old rust and scale and also clog passages.

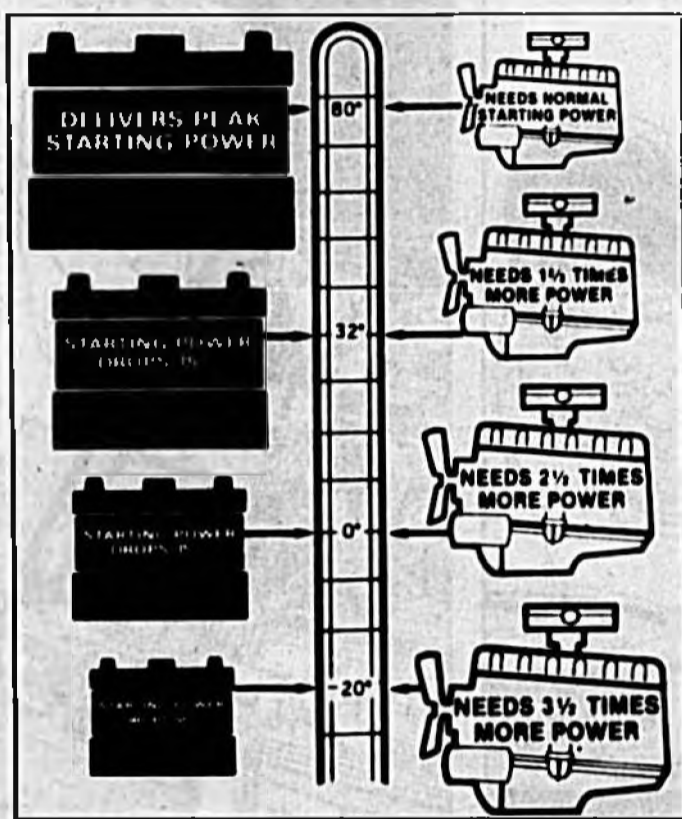

Use only as much antifreeze as needed for winter months. Many manufacturers are beginning to recommend a higher proportion of water to antifreeze during milder weather because too high a concentration of coolant may corrode internal parts sooner.

The brake fluid also needs to be checked because the high humidity of summer may have caused moisture in the system. Changing to a silicone brake fluid is more expensive, but worth it. It has a higher boiling point, lasts longer and does not eat paint finishes like conventional brake fluid does.

Whatever fluid you use, make sure it meets all requirements for your car.

Repair chains would have you think otherwise, but your car's transmission is a relatively failsafe component. However, like antifreeze or brake fluid, the transmission oil and filter should be changed every two years.

Since many cars do not have a drain plug at the pan and many front-wheel-drive models have side-mounted pans, you may want to take the car to a reputable place that will not try to sell you a new transmission. A small amount of metal shavings in the transmission pan is normal and if the gears shift fine, chances are there is nothing wrong with it.

Don't forget the power steering fluid, which has its own little dipstick at the pump. Transmission fluid may be used, although power steering fluid is recommended. Like all other fluids, do not overfill.

—Hoses: All hoses should be checked to make sure they are not spongy, swollen or cracked. That includes the flexible brake hoses behind each wheel and rubber gas lines. Clamps should be tight.

Operate the heater and defroster, making sure there are no coolant leaks under the passenger side of the dashboard, where most cars have a small heater core radiator. Clear the main radiator of any obstructions such as dead insects that find their way into the grilles during the summer.

If you have a rear drive car with a conventional engine-driven fan, grasp opposite ends of the fan blades and wiggle when the engine is cool and off. If there is more than a little play, it could mean the water pump is on its way out, something that is as critical during cold weather driving as it is in the summer.

—Belts: With the engine off and cool, check the fan belt's tension. One twist of the belts between pulleys will reveal whether they are glazed or cracked.

Other items that need to be checked are the battery and its terminals, all tires (including the spare), and the wipers, lights and horn.

Does Shopping For Gasoline Really Pay Off?

By Richard Harris

Is there really a difference between brands of gasoline?

A myth persists that by filling up at brand-name service stations you'll avoid the risk of a "bad batch" of gasoline.

At one time, it was common for off-brand stations to sell the dregs from oil refinery tanks, sometimes contaminated by water vapor or sediments that could hurt an engine's performance.

But today you're no more likely to get contaminated gasoline from an independent than from a national brand gas station.

Keeping your car's gas tank full is actually the best way to protect your engine from bad gasoline.

Gasoline is more likely to become contaminated when it's in your car's gas tank. As the temperature drops, water vapor condenses from the air. If you're low on gas, there's more air space inside the tank, so more water forms. It can mix with the gas, and it can rust the metal of the tank, dropping tiny flakes that settle at the bottom. The muck will stay at the bottom of the tank for the life of your car — unless you drive with the gas gauge on "Empty," when contaminated, bottom-of-the-tank gasoline will clog the fuel filter and shorten and the engine's life.

To avoid buying any contaminated fuel, don't pump your own gas when the station's tank is near empty. (You'll know it is when the pump runs very slowly). Sediments accumulate at the bottom of the underground tank, and more water will condense when the level is low.

You can also get bad gasoline by mistake if you pump it while a tanker is filling the station's tank, when the fresh gasoline pouring in can stir up sediment from the bottom.

By the way, save money by filling up in the early morning or evening, when the weather is cool. Gasoline expands with heat, so if you buy 10 gallons of gas when the temperature is 45 degrees, the same gas will measure 10 gallons and 1 quart at 80 degrees. Warm gasoline doesn't get you any farther down the road; it just costs more. If you fill 'er up, don't "top off" the gas tank, but leave a little room for the gasoline to expand, so it won't overflow.

Some nationwide gasoline companies custom blend their gas by region or for severe weather conditions. Blending gasoline distilled by the refinery at different temperatures determines its "volatility" and affects how fast your car's engine warms up. Custom-blended gas can prolong engine life, especially for older cars

Auto World Goes High Tech

As Electronics Advance, Do-It-Yourself Mechanics Are Left Behind

By JAN A. ZVERINA
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Nearly all 1987-model cars will have some sort of electronic controls on board, either under the hood or beneath the dashboard, leaving the driveway auto mechanic behind for good.

Although the increased use of electronics will mean more reliable cars that run better, the trend will spawn a whole new generation of sophisticated diagnostic equipment that may threaten independent repair shops which cannot afford the expense.

Onboard electronics will cause car owners to become more dependent on dealer service departments for repairs. Consumers can only hope that the new generation of "electronic technicians" will be adequately trained to serve their needs.

But the news isn't all bad. Advances in electronics also will mean future vehicles that outperform today's cars and trucks in driveability, fuel economy, emissions, safety, comfort and entertainment.

For example, almost all carmakers have already replaced the traditional carburetor with electronic fuel injection, a system that electronically meters the flow of fuel into the cylinders for improved performance and efficiency.

Electronics are beginning to appear on transmissions to control shift points. They play a major part in the new anti-lock brake systems and are incorporated into suspension systems to control ride firmness.

Soon electronics will overtake the chores of belt-driven accessories like power steering and letting the engine drive the car instead of add-ons.

Cars that diagnose their own ailments are also coming into vogue because of advances in the reliability and packaging of electronics. Even the air bags that will be required on many new cars rely heavily on electronic sensors and activation devices.

And let's not forget the glitzy digital displays found on a wide range of domestic and imported cars. Many early layouts were more like "Tokyo by night" displays, but the new ones are getting more sensible.

Some electronic applications down the road include a "heads up" display similar to those used in fighter planes. The image of critical information, like miles-per-hour speed, is imposed on the bottom of the car's inner windshield, letting the driver know how fast he is traveling without actually taking his eyes off the road.

Automakers are also experimenting with on-board navigational systems. As the car's signal bounces off an overhead satellite, motorists can chart their course on a computer screen display on the dashboard.

Electronics save weight because they are much lighter than any mechanical controls. They save space because one tiny electronic chip can outperform any other larger control.

Reducing size and weight means better fuel efficiency and performance and gives engineers the freedom to develop other aspects of the car.

tenance like lubrication or adjustment. Quality control is improved because electronic components require much more precision tolerances than conventional controls.

Another advantage is that electronics manufacturing is a relatively "clean" industry in the eyes of most people.

..Gasoline

in extremely cold climates.

Cars built since 1975 require unleaded gasoline, because leaded gas damages anti-pollution catalytic converters. But one reason for putting lead in gasoline in the first place was to protect the engine's valve seats and guides. Cars manufactured before 1975 could suffer valve damage if they are run on unleaded gas. Today, it's hard to find a gas station that still sells leaded gasoline.

Does this mean the 30 million cars still on the road after 11 years are doomed to excess engine wear and early retirement?

The deposits of lead already built up in an older car's engine may be enough to protect the valves. But for maximum performance and engine life in your pre-1975 car, use premium leaded gasoline when available, and otherwise use the highest octane unleaded gas available.

Buying gas is serious business. It's as vital to your car as water is to the human body. (In fact, an average car requires twice as much gasoline as your body needs water — about 650 gallons a year.)

At self-service stations, do your job with pride. Check your car's radiator, oil level and tire pressure. Polish the windshield until it gleams. Finally, grin at yourself in the rear-view mirror.

There's nothing like a full tank of gas, a clean windshield and service with a smile.

Mysterious Electrical Problems Can Baffle Experienced Mechanics

By Richard Harris

"Ignore the problem and it might go away" is wishful thinking when it comes to cars, as any mechanic will tell you. It can also be a dangerous philosophy. If you tune out that funny little clatter and wait until it becomes a nasty clunking noise, it could mean paying for a new engine — rather than a valve adjustment. But some car problems do solve themselves (or seem to).

I once knew a car with an engine that had a habit of quitting without warning when it was driven at freeway speeds. Since it was kept in Long Beach, Calif., where freeway driving is the norm, this habit often proved embarrassing. Yet, whenever its owner would take it to a repair garage, the engine would purr like a comfortable old cat. The mechanic would say something like, "Yep, sounds like a bad air-injection-system reed valve," and fix something that wasn't the problem.

The real problem was a red wire that ran near the top of the engine. When the hood was closed, the hood hinge pushed down a green-and-white wire in the same harness, which pulled the red wire close enough to the engine so that a small patch of insulation had melted away. At high speeds, road and engine vibrations sometimes moved the exposed wire close enough to touch the engine, shorting out the whole ignition system. But if the hood was raised, the wire was pulled out of the way and the engine ran fine.

months.

The complexity of wiring, relays, plastic connectors and (in recent years) micro-electronic "black boxes" inside the average car's engine compartment can frustrate and intimidate many home mechanics — and stymie more than a few professionals. Tracking down electrical malfunctions may require a wiring diagram, a circuit-tracing instrument called a volt-ohmmeter and infinite patience.

Not all electrical-system problems call for sophisticated diagnostics, though. The next time you look under your car's hood, check the condition of the wiring. By the time a vehicle is four or five years old, wiring insulation will crack due to exposure to changing temperatures, and the wire paths may

Attaining The Ripe Old Age Of 00000.0

By Richard Harris

When I got into my 1971 VW Beetle to drive over to the supermarket, I noticed that the odometer read "99998.6." I watched carefully, and a few minutes later, halfway to the store, the numbers stood in a row like soldiers: "99999.9." Pulling over to the roadside, I sat for a moment contemplating the display, then slowly pulled forward and watched as the numbers rolled over to show a neat line of zeros.

It was as if that old Bug had become new again! By the time I reached the supermarket, the odometer showed that the car had 1.3 miles on it — less than a new car accumulates on its way to the showroom floor.

The car itself hadn't changed, of course. The passenger-door handle was still missing, the rear fender was still bent, and the radio still worked only when the car was the right mood. What had changed was my perception of the car. Suddenly, it was a champion. Whereas the "average" car is ready for the junk heap after 80,000 miles or so, my VW had outlived the maximum lifespan the odometer could show.

It had happened before, on the same car, back in 1978. Two rebuilt engines, six sets of new tires and 33 oil changes later, the car had just turned over 200,000 miles.

Maintenance is the main factor affecting your car's longevity. Every person I've met who owns a car with more than 100,000 miles on it practices "over-maintenance" — changing the car's oil at least every 3,000 miles. If the car is usually used for short trips around town, the car seldom reaches the normal driving temperature needed to evaporate water vapor in the oil, so "over-maintainers" prevent the moisture from corroding the engine by changing the oil as often as every

Maintaining your car for longevity also means changing the air filter and oil filter at least every 3,000 miles, tuning up and lubricating the car at least every 5,000 miles, changing the transmission oil every 24,000 miles, replacing the ignition wires every 30,000 miles, and replacing all rubber belts every 40,000 miles. Maintenance like this will increase a car's life by 50 percent.

Even with impeccable maintenance, your car's engine probably won't last much beyond the 100,000-mile mark. An engine rebuild, or "transplanting" a new engine in place of the worn-out one, can double your car's lifespan for about one-tenth of the cost of a new car. I know a fellow who, by rebuilding or replacing the engine every 100,000 miles, has driven his '57 Chevy over 400,000 miles; he still drives it to work daily.

Choose The Right Car Dealer For Service As Well As Price

By JAN A. ZVERINA
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Next year millions of prospective buyers will walk in the front door of dealerships to admire the 1987 models, all bright and shiny under the showroom lights.

But it's what's around back that counts for the long haul.

Many motorists are switching from the corner station to the dealership for routine maintenance and emergency repairs. Selecting a dealer with good service facilities has become as important as finding one with a good purchase price.

The sales transaction is a one-time deal. However, longer warranties and the increasing complexities of new cars have made a buyer's relationship with the service department a long-term affair.

Recent surveys show that dealer departments provide higher quality service than other outlets such as local gas stations or chain outfits. Studies also have found that 30 percent of all cars are returned at least once to have the same repair performed again.

—Walk around back to the service department and note its general appearance. Clean, organized service bays and the neat appearance of the mechanics usually reflect a commitment to quality workmanship.

—Note if the service department has modern equipment. Today's cars require sophisticated computers and diagnostic tools for first-rate repair. Computers can also track the daily status of repair work and keep a "case history" file of each car serviced.

—Inspect the waiting rooms. Service awards will usually be displayed here. Some waiting rooms provide free coffee or reading material,

—Find out what ranking the dealership has according to the Customer Satisfaction Index compiled by the manufacturer. This information should be available upon request.

—Talk to the service writer, who is in charge of writing up the repair order and keeping you abreast of your car's needs. Ask how he or she schedules daily workloads. Are some "low-priority" cars bumped over to the next day or do they schedule only as much as they can handle each day?

—Note if the service writer has time to look over the car before writing up the repair order. Getting it right the first time by understanding the complaint improves customer relations and reduces comebacks.

—Inquire as to what the hourly labor rate is. The law requires it to be prominently posted but be aware that rates may differ, especially if foreign and domestic cars are serviced. A high rate does not guarantee a better job; a low rate does not always mean value.

—See if written estimates are provided. Replaced parts should be returned or at least shown if they have to be kept for remanufacture.

—Note if the dealership offers specials or other promotions for routine work. Mailings or circulars often indicate a dealership's pride in its service facilities.

—Last, try some acid tests. Phone the dealership in the late afternoon when most people are inquiring about their cars. A good service department treats all callers courteously and keeps waiting times to a minimum.

—Stop by the dealership at around the same time of day. This will give you a first-hand impression how business is done under pressure when customers come in to pay for repairs and pick up their cars.

..Electric

have been rearranged during other mechanical work. Replacing bad wires or at least reinforcing the insulation with electrical tape will prevent most common electrical malfunctions.

If your car stops running for no apparent reason, and you didn't hear any strange noises that might indicate mechanical problems, raise the hood and look for loose wires. If you don't find any, try disconnecting and reconnecting the plastic connectors, one by one, to make sure no connection has jiggled loose. Push down on the rubber spark-plug covers, too, to make sure they're tight.

If your car starts and runs after all this wire-wiggling, it means there is an electrical problem that you will have to solve at the next opportunity.

Such problems (when the engine "dies" or only runs intermittently, without making unusual sounds) can come from either the electrical system or the fuel system. Fuel and electricity don't mix, so before you start messing around with the wiring, always make sure there are no gasoline leaks around the carburetor. And before disconnecting, reconnecting or replacing wires, remove the "negative" battery cable from the battery to prevent electric sparks. These can hurt you even if there are no gasoline fumes around to explode.

Car Theft Rising, Stolen Vehicles Pay Drug Deals

By WARREN PERLEY
MONTREAL (UPI) - Motor vehicle theft is a multi-billion-dollar crime which occurred last year every 6½ minutes in Canada and every 29 seconds in the United States.

Law enforcement and insurance industry officials throughout the continent predict that thefts will continue to rise as thieves become more expert, new car prices increase dramatically and stolen vehicles are used to pay off drug deals.

In the United States alone, one out of every 50 registered vehicles was stolen or had its accessories and contents lifted in 1985. The total property loss was $5.1 billion, more than a 25 percent increase over the $4 billion property loss in 1984.

Some areas are hit harder by car theft than others. Boston, which along with New York City is known as a car theft center, catapulted Massachusetts into the lead last year as the state with the highest per capita incidence of vehicle theft with 864.8 per 100,000 population.

The car theft capital of Canada was Greater Montreal, with 25,048 thefts, compared with 4,968 in the slightly larger metropolitan Toronto area.

Canadian police and insurance officials don't keep figures on the value of property losses, but victims such as Montreal lawyer Mark Hanna are able to tell you to the penny how much they're out of pocket.

Hanna's 1984 Camaro was stolen during business hours recently from its parking spot on the street, a few blocks from his busy downtown office.

Protect your car with the proper security system.

"I was totally shocked," Hanna, 38, said. "I walked to where I had parked. I just didn't believe that it wasn't there until I stood on the spot. But the police weren't surprised. They said it happens frequently in the area."

The car was insured, but not for replacement value. A new Camaro cost Hanna $5,000 in Canadian currency above what the insurance company settled for.

Montreal Det. Sgt. Denis Sanscartier says a reduced police force can't keep up with proliferating car thefts. In 1975, when there were half as many thefts, Montreal police had 24 men in their automobile theft squad. The squad is now down to 12 officers.

The thieves have become more professional, often working in tandem with body shops or junk yards. A professional car thief can break into any car and strip it of its radio within two minutes — or steal the entire vehicle within 15 minutes.

Montreal Constable Gaston Vaillancourt likes to relate a case involving a body repairman who Do Tires Last?

By Richard Harris

Like running shoes, tires seem to last just long enough to surprise us when they're worn out. If tires needed to be replaced every 3,000 miles, like engine oil, we'd expect it as part of our routine car maintenance schedule. But a new tire lasts 20,000 to 40,000 miles, or one and a half to three and a half years, for the average driver.

Unless we live in a state with a mandatory auto-safety inspection system, we tend not to think about our cars' tires — until the day that we notice the casing cords peeking through the rubber on at least one tire.

Then we start searching the newspaper for advertised specials on

..Theft

spent $7,000 to buy a late-model Cadillac which was demolished in the back in a collision. He then stole the same model Cadillac, split it in half with a torch and welded its back onto the undamaged front of the other car.

"A new Cadillac was worth $35,000 at that time," Vaillancourt said. "He had the equivalent of a new Cadillac on the road. He could easily get $22,000 for it."

He was eventually caught. But most thieves aren't and most cars which are recovered are too badly damaged to be repaired.

In Montreal, police recover 52.2 percent of stolen vehicles. Toronto police, possessing the largest automobile theft squad in Canada with 30 men, have a recovery rate of 84 percent.

The average recovery rate in the United States is 64 percent, according to the National Automobile Theft Bureau in Chicago. Twenty years ago, it was 90 percent.

"The drop is attributed to the increased professionalism of the criminals," NATB president Paul W. Gilliland said in a recent interview. "Law enforcement officials are finding there is an interrelationship between vehicle theft and other crimes. Stolen vehicles are exchanged for narcotics, especially in the Florida area."

Car thieves often peddle their loot across the border. Police estimate that anywhere from 20,000 to 200,000 stolen vehicles are shipped out of the United States each year. Many end up in Mexico and South America.

Most of the new luxury cars stolen in the Montreal area are sold in New York and Miami using falsified registrations. Older cars are stripped for valuable parts which are sold locally.

"There are no stringent requirements for exporting vehicles," Gilliland said. "You can put it (a stolen car) in a container and mark it as household equipment. The thieves often don't even bother to change serial numbers. There is very little chance that the seal will be broken by customs officers."

Gilliland believes that "vehicle theft is one of the worst property crimes. It's big business — high profit, low risk."

"The most significant reason why car theft is increasing modestly in the U.S. is that automobiles have doubled in price in the last few years," said Harvey Seymour of the Insurance Information Institute in New York in an interview.

Car parts are also shooting up in price, which makes car stripping a lucrative activity.

It would cost $37,000 in parts and paint to repair a heavily damaged 1985 sports car worth $10,600, according to a study done by the Alliance of American Insurance. That does not include the cost of labor.

In fact, police say insurance companies inadvertently stimulate the black market for stolen car parts by opting for used car parts rather than new ones in accident repairs.

..Tires

tires, multiplying the price of one tire by four and wondering, with dismay, how this can be worked into the budget. Meanwhile, we check the spare tire's condition and estimate how far from home we can drive, confident that we can get back.

A lot of this anxiety can be avoided by checking tire condition frequently. Less than one-eighth-inch of tread depth is unsafe, and in many states illegal. Get in the habit of checking the tires — along with oil and radiator coolant levels and V-belt and hose condition — every time you fill up your car's gas tank. That way you can anticipate a new-tire investment ahead of time. It won't make your tires last any longer, but it does make it easier to work new tires into your budget.

Two factors determine a tire's life span — the "casing," which determines the tires' quality, and driving conditions. Tire manufacturers say a nylon bias-ply tire will last 20,000 miles, a bias-belted tire 30,000 miles, and a steel-belted radial 40,000 miles — at a speed of about 65 miles per hour. Most of us, (though, don't always drive our cars at this speed. At 40 miles per hour in city traffic, a tire with a rated life of 20,000 miles will actually last 30,000 miles.

Does that mean that a radial tire rated for 40,000 miles will last 60,000 miles if you only drive it in town? Wrong! "Ozone checking," or deterioration of rubber from ozone in the air, rots the tread on any tire, so it wears away fast after 40,000 miles. For in-town driving, an inexpensive bias-ply tire can last almost as long as a radial, which would cost three times as much. If you do most of your driving on interstate highways, however, a radial is a much better investment.

Some tire manufacturers claim that rotating your tires regularly will make them last up to 20 percent longer. Other experts dispute this and say the amount of wear is the same, and that distributing the wear evenly on all four tires won't change that fact. The best rule is to rotate your tires (switching front and back, left and right sides) every 3,000 to 5,000 miles if you prefer to buy tires in complete sets of four.

One disadvantage of rotation is that it conceals tread-wear patterns that could alert you to conditions causing unnecessary tire wear. Faulty wheel balancing or alignment, worn shock absorbers or defective brakes can cause one tire to wear faster than the others, and it often leaves a distinctive wear pattern that helps a mechanic diagnose the problem.

If you drive on rough, unpaved or potholed roads, be especially alert for unusual tread-wear patterns. Aside from the fact that rugged road surfaces shorten tire life dramatically, bumpiness can also cause any of the problems that increase tire wear. One of the lead weights put on when your tire was mounted can bounce off, making the wheel "out of balance."

The Car Is Running Great, And Then...

By Richard Harris

You start feeling good about the fact that your car is cruising smoothly and maintaining a steady speed across the vast expanse of Interstate.

And besides you're getting 31.79 miles per gallon.

Then you notice more trucks — a lot more trucks. An impossibly tall chrome grille leers into your rear-view mirror. The truck ahead of you has 16 license plates, and you can read each one, as well as the brand name on the mud flap.

Both trucks are going 80 miles per hour. And you're going 80 miles per hour too, because the traffic lanes on both sides are traveling at least as fast. There are eight lanes, all full, and you're being washed along in a sea of fast traffic. You're still 70 miles out of town. You spend the next hour with your eyes glued to the tail lights ahead of you, as the flow of traffic speeds up.

Your car's engine sputters.

Cars don't stop dead in their tracks without warning, but there are some sure hints that they're about to.

A sudden loss of power or a dashboard warning light means, "Pull over right now and see what it is."

But sometimes that's easier said than done.

If you were on the empty highway, here's what you could do:

You could pull off anywhere on the wide paved shoulder, set your handbrake and turn on the emergency flashers. Raising the hood, you could take your time to study the problem.

When your car quits suddenly at highway speed there's usually a simple explanation. And it's often not hard to spot.

First, though, let the engine cool down.

If the problem is vaporlock in your fuel line, it will cure itself.

When the engine is cool, check the radiator to see that it's full of coolant and that none of the cooling hoses are spewing steam from a leak. Check to make sure that the engine has enough oil and that you have gas in the tank.

Look at the clear plastic fuel filter to make sure it's not clogged with much. Check that the air filter is tight on the carburetor and not packed with dirt.

See that the fan belt is tight and the battery is strong enough to light the headlights.

Look for any wire that may be disconnected or shorting out against the engine or car body.

If none of those checks reveals what's wrong and the car still won't run, chances are you'll need to be towed to a garage.

Getting To Know You

Aging Cars Develop Eccentricities

By Richard Harris

"Sometimes you have to jiggle the key up and down before she'll start." My friend Bill told me when I borrowed his old VW Rabbit to pick up more party snacks from the convenience store. "No, not like that. Up and down ... There you go."

The engine coughed into fitful life.

"Okay, now step down hard on the gas pedal three times."

I did, and the engine racket smoothed to such a gentle purr that I wondered whether it was still running at all.

"Now remember, the left rear door only opens from the inside," Bill continued, "and don't roll down the passenger window, because if you do you'll have to remove the handle and crank it back up with pliers. That dashboard light stays on all the time. Don't worry: It doesn't mean anything. Oh, yeah, and don't use the emergency flasher while the radio's on AM, or you'll blow a fuse. FM's OK, though"

As a car ages, it develops eccentricities. If safety and performance aren't affected, most of us are more inclined to become used to our cars' mild peculiarities than we are to repair them. Many of us even learn to love them and plenty of folks proudly claim that their cars have "personality."

When you let friends or co-workers drive your car, what do you warn them about? If the car's idiosyncrasies are so numerous that the borrower starts fidgeting while you describe them, or if you always remember something you really should have mentioned too late, try this: Write a list of your car's flaws and mechanical whims, and tape the list to the dashboard or sun visor, where they can be reviewed at a glance.

After you write up the list, study it and decide which items should be repaired. Categorize them "Dangerous or Getting Worse — Fix NOW!"; "Don't Know Why — Find Out"; "Fix When I Get Around To It"; "Doesn't Bother Me"; and maybe even "Lovable Traits."

Any problems in the first three categories should be circled in red or written up on a separate list to show to your mechanic for a repair estimate the next time you visit his shop. If anything is "Dangerous or Getting Worse," don't procrastinate. Fix it right away!

If your car was several years old when you bought it, it may have problems you don't even realize are abnormal. Test-driving a different car of the same make and model can provide a basis for comparison. That can be very important.

Once I was traveling cross-country with a friend in his vintage GTO convertible. Tired after four hours behind the wheel, he turned the driving over to me at the

Buyer Beware When Buying A Car Via Classified-Ads

By Richard Harris

The classified-ad section in this or any other newspaper offers a wider selection of used cars than any dealer's lot. Sure, it takes time, energy and careful scrutiny to search out a car that's right for you, but there are advantages. A private seller will usually take several hundred dollars less than a commercial dealer will for a comparable car, and he's likely to be more honest and knowledgeable than a used-car salesman when it comes to discussing any defects the car may have.

Many professional car salesmen are not associated with car lots but instead "horse-trade" older cars through classified ads. They're as sophisticated as any dealer and often much less honest. Beware of "private party" ads that sound too slick. Too many abbreviations ("FIAT SpCpe '76, AC/5sp/LoMI/SR/PS/RdlS/Rblt, nice, p/p $4000 obo") may be a tip-off. An ad describing a car with words like "immaculate" or "stunning" or any ad offering financing terms probably means that the seller is considerably more savvy at negotiating used-car deals than you are.

An ad that says very little, like "1977 Plym. Duster, 8-cyl., must sell," with the price, phone number and nothing else, may offer the best opportunity — a seller who wants to dispose of his car as quickly and simply as possible.

When you phone in response to a classified ad, start by saying simply, "I'm calling about the car you advertised in the paper." You'll be able to spot professional "horse traders" if they don't immediately know which car you're referring to. (Often they'll respond with something like, "You mean the '76 Fiat Coupe?")

The next question to ask over the phone is, "Could you describe the car?" If the seller does so in terms that sound like those a professional salesman would use, chances are that's exactly what he is. If the seller can't tell you much beyond the car's color and his vague opinion of its mechanical soundness, he's probably neglected regular maintenance and minor repairs.

which should forewarn you to inspect the car very carefully — if you look at it at all. If a seller makes a special point of telling you how well the car has been maintained — and perhaps has the receipts to prove it — his car could be a true bargain.

Next question: "How long have you owned the car?" The answer tells you much more than the car's mileage (which means less than many people believe). A one-owner car, or one that's been owned by the seller for several years, is a better bet than one that's changed hands recently.

More questions to ask are: "Why are you selling the car?" "Does it have any engine problems?" "What about the transmission?" "Brakes?" "How's the body?" A sincere seller will answer these questions truthfully and let you consider as much information as possible before you spend your (and his) time seeing for yourself.

If the ad lists an asking price, don't argue the price by phone. It's much easier for a seller to stand firm from a distance — and once he's told you the price is firm, negotiation will be more difficult. The time to talk price is after you've inspected the car.

When you've seen the car, and price is the only remaining issue, get right to the point: "What's the least you'd take for it — cash?"

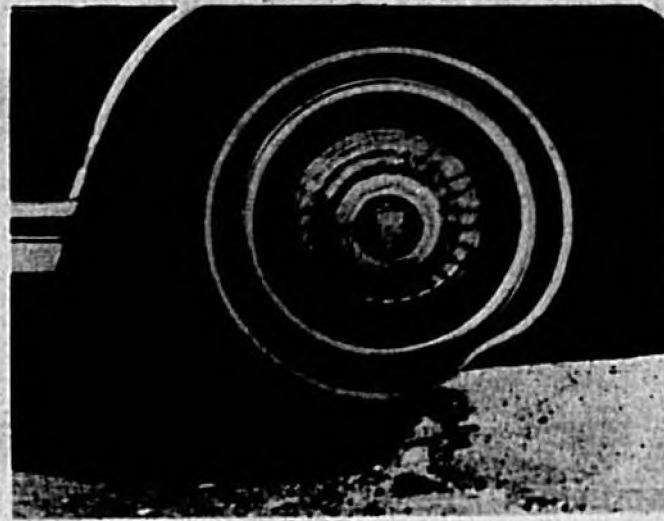

What To Do About Potholes

By Richard Harris

I know a gentleman who claims he lost a Volkswagen in a pothole near Skagway, Alaska. Unfortunately, I can't vouch for his credibility — before changing big-state allegiances, he was a Texan and already an artist at exaggeration. But I'll admit that I haven't seen his Volkswagen since.

New evidence in support of his tale was recently released by the Automotive Information Council, which reports that less than 40 percent of our paved-road system is rated in "good" condition — and it is deteriorating with age. In other words, there are more and more potholes.

Every year, when springtime comes, freezing and thawing cause pavement to lift and crumble. The broken spots in the roadway cave in, and when it rains, they sink to form those craters you swerve to avoid — or don't see in time. Road crews will be around to patch the pavement by the time the summer tourist season arrives. Maybe.

But until then, watch out.

Clunking into just one fair-sized pothole can ruin your car's handling. The first sign of damage is likely to be when your car's steering begins to "pull" — the car drifts to one side when you're driving straight ahead.

The most likely reason is that bouncing over the pothole knocked some air out of a tire. Check your tire pressure at the next convenient service station.

If the car still handles abnormally after you've inflated all tires to the correct pressure, then maybe a wheel weight has broken off, putting the wheel out of balance. If so, you'll be able to find a mark where it was attached.

The other possibility is that the pothole knocked your car's front wheels out of alignment. Having the wheels aligned promptly is much less expensive than replacing the front tires, which will wear out in a few hundred miles if you drive with poor front-wheel alignment.

The bad road surfaces of springtime — washed-out, bumpy or rocky dirt roads, as well as potholed pavement — hurt your car in other less obvious ways, too. Loss of traction and inefficient power transfer to the wheels can lower a car's gas mileage by more than one third. Tires wear out faster. And you're more likely to need repair work sooner, because the jolting and vibrations can rattle parts loose or out of adjustment.

Bad road surfaces also put extra strain on your car's engine. If you can't avoid bad-road driving, pay extra attention to your car's maintenance.

especially to changing the oil and filter. The car's owner's manual will recommend more frequent oil changes, and sometimes a different weight or grade of oil, for "severe service." For most cars driven on bad roads regularly, the oil should be changed every two months or 2,500 miles.

Then there's the question of proper roadside-emergency procedure: What if you do lose your Volkswagen in a pothole? I asked every mechanic and automotive writer I know, as well as spokespersons for three federal agencies, but none could offer a solution.

At last, I encountered a couple in a parking lot, fixing the starter motor on their dented old VW Bug, which was covered with stickers and decals showing it had been from Belize to the Yukon and back via Europe and Africa.

They looked like they'd know, if anyone would.

When they took a break to sip the tea they'd been brewing on their small butane backpackers' stove, I approached and asked, as casually as possible: "Suppose I lost my Volkswagen in a pothole? What should I do?"

"No big problem," the woman smiled. "Same thing happened to us once. You just set up camp and wait for the next rainstorm. The car will float right out."

He looked up from an illustration of a Volkswagen starter and solenoid, and asked curiously, "Say, are you from Alaska?"

..Aging

summit of a mountain pass, and I started down 20 miles of steep switchbacks. When I stepped on the brake pedal, nothing happened.

"You have to pump the brakes a few times before they'll take hold," he told me.

"What?!" I yelped, glancing nervously at the thousand-foot drop just beyond edge of road. "Don't you know what that means? This car's brakes could fail any minute!"

"Really!" He stared at me wide-eyed. "They've been that way ever since I bought the car last year. I mean, I thought the manufacturer designed them like that so the tires wouldn't screech when you stop fast."

My knuckles turned white.

We survived the trip down the mountain — and spent a day in the quaint mountain village at the foot of the pass while the local service station's parts runner went to the "big city" for a new brake master cylinder. Repairs completed, we made another 400 miles before the wiring caught fire.

Yep, that car had plenty of personality.

New Type Of Competition For Car Fanatics

By Richard Harris
 "But is it art?" my companion asked as we tried to appreciate a minor sculpture by avant-garde artist Man Ray in a recent Smithsonian Institute touring exhibition at our local fine-arts center.
 There, mounted on board and painted with bright yellow glossy enamel, was a gearshift lever from a late-'40s Ford.
 "Who knows what art is?" I answered.
 "I know what I wouldn't have in my living room," she said.
 "Well, once at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, I saw a sculpture made out of hundreds of car parts welded together. It was 7 feet high and must have weighed more than a jeep. It wouldn't even fit in your living room. But it must have been art or it wouldn't be in the museum, right?"

 "Well..."
 "A few years ago in Amarillo, Texas, I saw a touring exhibit of two dozen life-sized dinosaurs built entirely out of old car parts. The biggest was nearly 30 feet long, and between museums they'd drive them down the highway on big flatbed semi trucks. Who'd do something like that if it wasn't art?"
 "Well, I wouldn't have one of those in my living room, either," she said.
 But what if you had an assemblage of car parts, welded together into a coffee table? Would that be art?
 We're talking about something loftier and more sophisticated than car repair here. We're talking about imagery in worn-out components and aesthetics in salvage-yard scrounging.

Not just keeping your car alive, but making bits of it immortal!
 That's why I started the nation's first Auto Parts in the Living Room Artist Award Competition in order to encourage little-known young artists struggling for recognition in this neglected art medium.
 The 1985 competition was tough. Entries included a fireplace screen made from the grille of a '60 Chevy; a corner table built entirely from headlights; television remote controls hooked up to the switches on a Fiat Spyder's hardwood dashboard (which was hung on the wall).
 But the winner, hands-down, was the work of Sherry Stein and Jody Norskog of Santa Fe, N.M. They built a couch from the back end of a 1959 Cadillac. They cut the back end off a salvage-yard wreck, used the rocket-fin fenders and massive chrome bumper (complete with multiple flame-shaped tail lights and huge back-up light mountings shaped like jet engines) to frame a leather couch where the trunk used to be. The couch looks as if someone had parked a vintage Caddy next door — but it needed a little more room.

 Ms. Stein and Mr. Norskog have built three other Cadillac couches — a '59 and two '60s — and they're awaiting commissions for more. Their goal? To build couches from every Cadillac body style from 1950 through 1960, photograph them in remote settings and make a series of postcards.
 So the next time you visit a junkyard searching for parts to keep your car alive, why not look around for aesthetic forms as well? Detroit designers poured a lot of creative energy into those bizarre fins and chrome strips. You could be the first to think up a practical use for an Edsel grille? Or how about that row of holes in the side of an old Buick?

 "This guy can't be serious," you may be saying to yourself. Find out. Send a photograph of your Art from Parts masterpiece to me, c/o John Muir Publications, P.O. Box 613, Santa Fe, NM 87504.
 But please, folks, don't send the original. I still have the engine block, painted day-glo orange, that somebody delivered here last year. It holds as many flowers as four vases. When people ask what it's doing in the middle of the room, I explain that it's my "writer's block."

Wipers Are First To Go

What is the first part likely to be replaced on a new car? If you think windshield wiper blades, you're right. The rubber part of the blade, which is natural rubber and vulnerable to attack from the elements and from air pollutants, is deteriorating to some extent even before you take delivery of a new car.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — With more than 60 percent of all automobile accidents occurring at night, maintenance of headlights — a car's greatest nighttime safety feature — can help reduce the risk of a mishap.
 Motorists should inspect their headlights regularly to make sure they are properly adjusted, says a lighting expert at General Electric.
 "When adjusting headlights, remember headlights that are aimed just one-half degree too low will reduce viewing distance 50 percent," says Jim Jensen, a GE technical lighting specialist.

 "Headlights set a full degree too low cut the viewing distance 75 percent," he added.
 "Likewise, headlights directed too high are less effective and can blind approaching drivers."
 Checking headlight adjustment is an easy task that requires only 35 to 40 feet of flat (or constantly sloping) driveway in front of a garage door or wall.

Jensen offers the following tips:
 —At dusk, shine the low beams onto a garage door or wall two or three feet away.
 —Make horizontal marks with a soft pencil or tape on the top edges of the bright spot on the door.
 —Move the car door about 25 feet straight back. The top of the low beams should shine no higher than the marks on the door or wall.
 —Make the necessary adjustments. On most cars, each headlight has two screws that move the beam up or down and left or right. These are visible without removing any hardware.

 —If your car has two headlights, the high beams are automatically adjusted when you adjust the low beams. If the car has four headlights, adjust the low beams first (the outer or upper of the sets). Then adjust the high beams so that the centers of those beams are at the top edge of the low beams.

Avoid Car Theft By Following These Easy Steps

By WARREN PERLEY
 A determined car thief isn't likely to be thwarted, but there are ways to make it more difficult to steal your car or its accessories and contents.
 The National Automobile Theft Bureau, a Chicago-based institute which represents 600 insurance companies in the United States, offers the following tips to car owners:
 1) Lock your car and pocket the key.
 2) Park with your front

the right or to the left because this makes it more difficult to tow the car away.
 3) If the car has front-wheel-drive, put on the emergency brake when you park.
 4) If the car has standard transmission, put on the emergency brake and put the car in forward or reverse. This locks all four wheels.
 5) Keep packages out of sight.
 6) Install an alarm system, which can at least delay a thief.

area.
 8) If you park in a commercial lot, leave only the ignition key with the attendant and make sure the key number is punched out so no copies can be made.
 9) Keep your license and registration on you at all times so thieves can't escape with documents that would make it easier for them to pass themselves off as the vehicle's owner.
 10) Put identification in a secret place on your recovery should it be stolen. For example, use a China marker or vibrator pencil to etch your vehicle identification number in places such as the trunk or inside the hood. Place a business card down the window channel or elsewhere.

 11) A sticker in the window saying you have a vehicle alarm could discourage amateurs. But if it's a professional thief, it will just tell him what tools he needs to do

A Stitch Is Timely Whether For Fun Or Profit

Needlework Knows No Gender Gap

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A stitch in time may save nine but skillful needle work can also produce artistic designs as well as the practical.

The women of the Central Florida Embroiders' Guild are prepared to show just how sharp they are with their needles in their Tenth Annual Members Exhibit, which opens at the Cornell Fine Arts Center of Rollins College in Winter Park on Nov. 2.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Friday and 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

On show will be samples of the past year's needle work of about 200 local women, members of the Embroider's Guild of America, Inc.

There will also be demonstrations of various needlework techniques.

Although all the members of the group, which has sub units: the Needlers, Woolgathers, Nite Stitchers, and Sew 'N Sews, in Seminole, Orange, Volusia and Polk counties, all are women, President Ozzie Gaines, of Longwood, said that hasn't always been the case.

In the past, among those carrying on this traditional woman's work of crewel, needlepoint, lace making, quilting and work with silk and metal thread on fabric and canvas have been a handful of men.

Mrs. Gaines said the men have mainly been interested in geometric-design needlepoint. Although men are among the 30,000 guild members in America, locally, Mrs. Gaines said, they seem to keep their needlework in the closet.

However, she said, coming out and joining the guild, which meets monthly as a complete unit, with sub groups meeting separately once a week, both men and women can improve their stitching skills.

She should know, because that's what happened to her. She had tried to figure out stitchery kits on her own. When she took her rough work in to a framer he suggested she join the guild, where she could get top notch instruction from needleworkers who know the in's and out's of needling.

These women share expertise with each other and often work together on projects including wall hangings for churches and quilts.

Although stitchery has been considered a woman's craft, Mrs. Gaines said, in the beginnings it was the duty of churchmen, who were the only ones qualified to do "holy" needlework.

Local men may shun going public with needlework, but not so for boys as well as girls. Guild members this summer assisted 92 children in the making of a Bayeux-type tapestry, which has been on display at the Orlando Museum of Art and which is scheduled for showing at the Rollins exhibit.

That "Summer Bayeux Tapestry," which is based on the children's study of the "Bayeux Tapestry," which contains 79 panels and is 230 feet long and 30-inches long tells the story of the Battle of Hastings, which in England brought the defeat of the British by the Normans in 1066.

The children, using slides of the original tapestry, which is on exhibit in Bayeux, France, and with the help of guild members, produced their own tapestry. The result is a work that reflects that era in the mode of dress, weapons, ships, and even Halley's Comet that made an appearance in 1066.

The youngsters, ages 7 to 13, many of whom had never held a needle before, used critical thinking to

The 10- to 13-year-olds stitched portraits of kings, knights, horses, ships and the comet, while younger children sewed imaginary animals like those that border the authentic Bayeux Tapestry.

Guild members Becky Savill, Dorothy Trindel and Margaret DeVore worked closely with Muriel Klein, coordinator of the project and a teacher in the museum's summer program. They guided the work and also pieced together the children's art to blend the design into a history-telling tapestry.

In addition to the Rollins' exhibit, those interested in stitchery are also invited to attend a guild meeting, scheduled for the second Friday of the month from September through May at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, 1603 E. Winter Park Road, Orlando. Membership dues are $26 a year.

Information on the guild may be obtained by writing: Central Florida Chapter, EGA, Membership Chairman, P.O. Box 4098, Winter Park, Fl 32793.

Don't Blame The Writers

By Vernon Scott

UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Screenwriters are the most maligned of all Hollywood craftsmen or artists or whatever you want to call them.

When a much-heralded movie falls critically and/or at the box office, almost inevitably the finger is pointed at the terrible script.

It's safe to blame the wretched writer who is almost always anonymous except for the brief flash of credit on the screen preceding the film.

No one is about to say a movie fell on its ear because of Spielberg's direction or De Niro's acting. Any shortcomings in other departments are often explained away by the rotten script.

The role of the screenwriter in movies is entertainingly presented by writer-director-producer Sam Thomas in a new book, "Best American Screenplays."

Thomas, an engaging, bearded man with a somewhat pedantic manner, teaches creative writing and cinema at UCLA and USC. He believes screenplays should be considered an important form of literature.

Of course, screenplays are not. Excepting movie buffs, Americans would be hard pressed to recall the name of a single screenwriter, save perhaps Sylvester Stallone, who is better known for other talents.

In his informative book Thomas presents his choice of the dozen best screenplays ever written:

—"All Quiet on the Western Front" (George Abbott, Maxwell Anderson, Dell Andrews);

—"Meet John Doe" (Robert Riskin);

—"Casablanca" (Julius Epstein, Phillip Epstein, Howard Koch);

—"Miracle on 34th Street" (George Seaton);

—"Rebel Without a Cause" (Stewart Stern);

—"Bonnie and Clyde" (David Newman, Robert Benton);

—"The Graduate" (Calder Willingham, Buck Henry);

—"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" (William Goldman);

—"Sounder" (Lonne Elder III);

—"On Golden Pond" (Ernest Thompson);

—"Arthur" (Steve Gordon); and

—"The Candidate" (Jeremy Lerner).

"I selected these screenplays for content and the comment they make on the times they cover," Thomas said.

"They cover a lot of American history from World War I, through the Depression to the innocence of the '50s, through the revolt of the '60s and '70s to the present.

"There are many considerations in measuring the merits of a screenplay: dialogue, character development, style and most importantly the story structure itself.

"To bring these elements together successfully is a true art form. Unfortunately, few screenwriters become known to the public. Playwrights are a different matter. People hurry to see a play by a particular author. That's not the case with screenwriters."

Because movies are such a collaborative art involving producers, directors and actors — not to mention special effects, sound, camera and all the rest — the writer is seldom singled out.

The individual most often associated with a hit film and praised for creative accomplishment is the director. The director, however, would be unemployed were it not for the anonymous successor.

(4) SCARY TALES A young woman's (Justine Bateman) obsession with gaining material riches takes a deceitful and murderous turn.

ALL MY CHILDREN:

Amy ran out into the street after Cliff told her he's calling off their wedding. Amy was hospitalized in a coma after she was struck by a drunk driver, Vince. Erica leveled with Jeremy that she's been keeping her brother Mark, not her lover as Matt suggested, in the attic to protect him from Earl. Earl agreed to cancel out a big bucks loan Matt owes him if Matt tells him Mark's whereabouts. Matt admitted to Erica that Earl questioned him about Mark. Tad was jealous to learn that Roy said he loves Hillary. Skye dumped Tad out on his ear after realizing that he still cares for Hillary, even though he's romping in the sack with Skye. Erica ruined her wedding dress when she spilled a Bloody Mary on it. Matt had fantasies of making love with Erica. Palmer's convinced that Natalie's nursing has improved his health. Natalie accepted money from Palmer. Mark bought more crack from a street dealer.

ANOTHER WORLD:

Mitch comforted Rachel, who was upset that Reginald was the only buyer at her art show. Reginald surprised the Love clan by taking over the family mansion in the middle of the night. Kathleen was surprised to hear from her brother, Ben McKinnon, who phoned to say he's coming home. Felicia kept Mac from seeing Mitch and Rachel in a tender clinch. Jamie and M.J. renewed their old friendship. Greg's mother took an instant dislike to Nancy. Mary (Marissa) was shocked when Michael told her that Reginald had taken Donna's twins away from her at birth. To protect Michael, Donna lied that she doesn't love him. Rachel fumed to overhear Mitch suggest that Brittany kidnap Peter Reginald. Brittany later took the baby and left the Love mansion, but she realized she's being watched. Scott and Cheryl continued to secretly keep their "friendship" alive despite the feud between their families.

AS THE WORLD TURNS:

Sierra went to Paris after Tonio said that he knows she's pregnant, then reminded her that Craig loves her. A relieved Dusty told Lily that Meg isn't pregnant. Tonio gloated to Craig that Sierra is carrying Tonio's baby, even though Sierra thinks the child is Craig's. Casey was upset to see Frankie smooching with Seth. Henaley jealously watched as Duncan and Barbara kissed after deciding not to keep their romance a secret any longer. Brian comforted Beatrice, who still thinks he's her dead fiance. Thomas, Iva underwent surgery that restored the feeling in her paralyzed legs. Nick tailed Jester, who was released from jail. Jester met with another thug, Lucky, and later Jester put the make on Meg. Henaley's making and receiving mysterious phone calls. Lucky remembered Nella was drug pusher Frankie's girlfriend. Ellen was hurt that David said he needs his independence.

CAPITOL:

The Clegg's were shocked when Trey announced he'd married Angelica Stimac, who is 18 years old. D.J. convinced Dylan, who had quit his job with D.J., to work the sound for Wally's first concert. Wally and Dylan got into a fight over Brenda. Trey and Angelica agreed to keep mum about their marriage during Trey's re-election campaign. Mark comforted Clarissa, who admitted "Baxter's" an impostor. Kelly snorted cocaine after learning that Trey's married. All told Sloane that he's marrying Yaameen. Zed learned that Jenny's dead.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES:

Liz moved to Hollywood, leaving Neil and Noel behind in Salem. Savannah also left town after confessing her part in Tod's death and admitting that she tried to split up Neil and Liz. Melissa admitted that she loves Lars, then rushed off to be with Pete, who was paralyzed in an accident while transporting stolen goods. Jennifer cheered on Glenn, who received an award from his school. Sylvie reminded Glenn that he'll never measure up to his dead brother. Marlena learned that her kidnappers have taken her to Stockholm. Roman found a photo of Orpheus in a tattoo parlor and believes that Orpheus killed Lana and Britta. Victor arranged to meet Orpheus, who's in Salem. Kayla and Patch were ecstatic when Max spoke the first words he's uttered in years. Mike flipped when he learned that Mitch had proposed to Robin. Vaughn warned Gillian that Roman must not learn that Orpheus didn't really kidnap Marlena.

GENERAL HOSPITAL:

Still working undercover, Frisco overheard Damon, Philip and David talking about their proposed takeover of Port Charles. Robert found out it was Damon who Robin overheard threaten to kill Anna. Monica realized that Alan (Simon) is faking his amnesia. Felicia was cleared of embezzlement/theft charges when Marco, one of Duke's thugs, confessed he had set her up. Frisco is still suspended from the police force because he helped Felicia flee Port Charles. Bobbi was flattered that Tony and Tania named their daughter, Barbara Jean Jones, after Bobbi. Alan told Jimmy Lee that he's committed to his new life with Charly and Jonah. Edward arranged for Monica to find a scantily clad Tiffany at Sean's pad. Jack's plans for a romantic evening with Yank went awry. Anna and Duke's engagement is on again. Monica testified against Sean at his preliminary hearing for fraud. Edward pressured Sean to return his fortune.

GUIDING LIGHT:

Iva returned from her visit with Tony and Annabelle, who are having marital troubles. Vanessa received a letter from Gordon, who gave her the name and address of the founding home where he left her baby. Dinah kept mum that she's attracted to her schoolmate, Cameron. Reva and Kyle renewed their romance during a trip to New York City. Philip went to New York City to publish his novel and said he might look up his step-brother, Alan Michael. Maeve's newspaper is in financial trouble. Ed refused to give Maeve sleeping pills. Maeve secretly retrieved Ben's birth certificate from among Kyle's business papers. Dinah and Dorie learned their pal, Kelly, was selling their designer T-shirts behind their backs. Kelly offered to get Jesse a date with her bully of a brother, Cat. Maeve learned that a fire destroyed the founding home's records on her daughter. Alan has involved India in an art scam.

LOVING:

Curtis kissed Lottie, who talked about leaving Corinth after she said she loves him. Lorna admitted that she still loves Zach. Even under hypnosis, Jim was unable to remember his past. Lottie tore up a note someone from her past had left with her parole officer. As planned by Nick, Harry lost big in a poker game after he borrowed money from Nick. Ann is convinced that Trisha still loves Steve. Ava is still trying to snare Judd into marriage. Nick told Harry that he knows Harry's spying on him for Gwyneth.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE:

Tina warned Charles and Judith's daughter, Kate Sanders, to keep away from Cord. Dorian's missed that Jonathan refuses to make a romantic commitment to her. Pamela told Pete that Asa refuses to give her a divorce. Dorian let Dimitri crash at her pad because he had nowhere else to go and feared being caught by the police. Viki reluctantly agreed to undergo hypnosis to bring her Niki personality back to find out if Niki had kidnapped Jessica. Jamie lied to Jonathan that he never knew Jeannie. Jonathan realized that Dimitri gave Dorian a jewel from the Mendorra crown jewels, which Dimitri had stolen. Charles asked Jonathan to do a dangerous undercover job for him. Judith bristled when Dorian suggested that Jamie was somehow involved with Susan's murder. Ruth refused to let Allison take Nancy (Jessica) out of her care.

Breaking Away From 'Gloria'

By Frank Sanello

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Eight years after she left "All in the Family," one of the most influential TV shows of all time, Sally Struthers found herself at home, the divorced mother of a small daughter, ill, unemployed and broke.

So when she was offered a job playing a dizzy secretary on the syndicated sitcom "9 to 5," Struthers says she screamed. "I didn't come off the ceiling for days," she says. "I floated around for the next couple of months."

The upfront actress who found fame as Gloria Stivic, Archie Bunker's feisty daughter, says she would love to be able to say she had been perusing many scripts. "But that would be a lie," she says.

"I was home sick after being in 'The Odd Couple' (on Broadway) for a year and a half," Struthers says, "and I was going broke supporting two households — an apartment in New York and a home in Brentwood, Calif."

Struthers also was paying tuition at two pricey private schools, one on each coast, for Samantha, her 7-year-old daughter Samantha from her marriage to local Los Angeles TV psychiatrist Dr. William Rader.

People think Struthers must be rich, she says, because "All in the Family" seems to be in perpetual reruns. But she only received residuals for the first five airings of each show. "I don't get a dime anymore," she

A sunny and spirited person whose optimism is infectious, Struthers says she prefers to view the glass as half full.

"If I were getting all those residuals, I wouldn't be motivated to work anymore. Bill Murray once said in an interview that once you're successful you turn into a fat-cat, and you never do work as great as you did during your lean years. Well, this keeps me streamlined," she says.

There are practical disadvantages of being famous and not-so-rich. "As soon as they see me walk on the car lot, the salesmen automatically raise the price. You have to make them understand you're not sitting on a fat bank account."

No one told Struthers that starring in a syndicated series would be a fatal step down from network stardom. Her agent, manager and friends all knew how much she wanted and needed to work. And syndication offers security. Twenty-six episodes of "9 to 5" have been ordered by Twentieth Century Fox-TV, which is producing the show as part of its much-touted fourth network.

"Some network shows have orders for only three or four episodes. That's a scary way to start a job," says Struthers. "And since network shows now cost so much, it tends to make the producers very cautious artistically."

Ex's, Or Are They Just Good Friends?

Dear Debra — Help! I have a very important $1 wager with a very stubborn male regarding the following question: At any time in the past story line of "Cheers," have Diane (Shelley Long) and Sam (Ted Danson) been married to each other? I say "no." Please hurry a printed answer if you can as he needs a big slice of humble pie. — M.F., Humble, Texas.

It sounds as if you and your male friend have a relationship a little like Sam and Diane, no? Well, you win the big bet ($1). They've never been married, though they have been, of course, a romantically involved twosome for at least part of the series.

Dear Debra — I have watched "Miami Vice" and I think Don Johnson as Crockett is so handsome. I would like to know if he has played on any other shows or movies. — L.D., Mobile, Ala.

Johnson has many other roles to his credit. On film, he was in "The Harrad Experiment," "Return to Macon County" and "Zacharias." He was in the TV miniseries "The Rebels" and "The Long Hot Summer." His TV movies include "Elvis and Me," "Revenge of the Stepford Wives," "Beulah Land" and "The Two Lives of Carol Leitner."

Celebrity Corner
Debra Katz

Dear Debra — How old is Daniel Massey? Is he related to Raymond Massey? What nationality is he? — D.K., Houston, Texas.

Raymond and Daniel are father and son (Raymond died in 1983). The elder Massey was born in Toronto; the younger was born in London in 1933, making him 53 years old.

Dear Debra — Can you tell me if the actress who played Carol on "Maude" ever played on "The Guiding Light" as Hillary Bauer? — C.S. Beaver Falls, Pa.

Adrienne Barbeau, who played Maude's daughter, Carol, never appeared on "The Guiding Light." The role of Hillary was played first by Linda McCullough and then by Marsha Clark.

Dear Debra — Are Mike Connors of "Mannix" fame and Chuck Connors of "The Rifleman" brothers or are they related in some way? They both seem to talk alike. — Connors' fan.

No relation. Mike Connors was born Krcker Ohanian and Chuck was born Kevin Joseph Connors.

Dear Debra — Where can I write to the cast of "General Hospital"? I watch it daily. — K.D., Michigan.

The ABC soap opera is one of the few soaps filmed on the West Coast. You can write to your favorite daytime stars in care of the show at 1438 North Gower Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90028.
