Hammerstein Among Exhibitors To Attend Heathrow Event

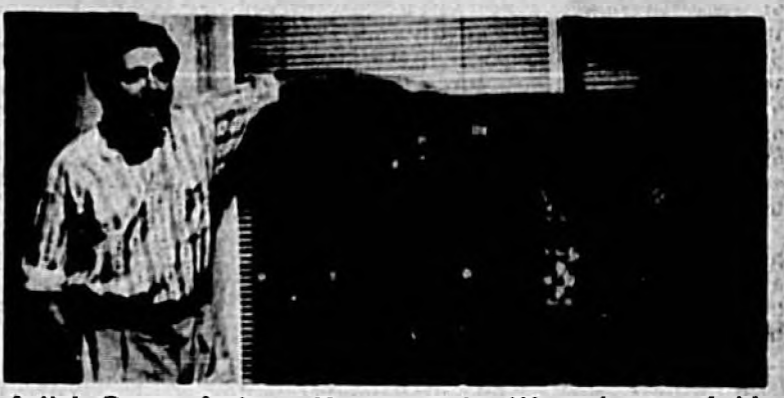

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A small personal tug of war pulls at the life of artist Oscar Andrew Hammerstein III, featured painter and one of 110 artists whose works are on display at the Lake Mary — Heathrow Festival Of The Arts from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The festival is free to the public, and proceeds from the events will go to benefit Seminole and Lake Mary scholarship funds as well as an endowment fund for the festival's continuation. There is Hammerstein, independent, successful artist.

And there is Hammerstein, grandson of the Oscar Hammerstein of the (Richard) Rodgers and Hammerstein musical hall of fame. But patrons of the arts will also see, if they want, the two sides of artist Hammerstein: the painter of Impressionistic New York City landscapes, and the painter of emotions on canvas, figurative expressionist style. And the tug continues beyond artist and name, landscaper and expressionist. There's the man of pen and lyrics, and the cold-water apartment bachelor turned husband thinking of little

Adviser: Wekiva Plan Out

Seminole County has won the first battle in its effort to keep the western part of the county free from high density development, and the Florida Cabinet is expected to make a final decision early next year.

State Hearing Officer Diane Tremor has recommended that Gov. Martinez and the cabinet uphold the county's decision to reject a Phoenix developer's request to build 1,240 housing units on 573 acres between Markham Woods Road and the Wekiva River. County commissioners denied the request to rezone the property from agricultural to planned unit development in April of 1986.

Tremor heard six days of testimony last March and April in the developer's appeal of the denial.

The commissioners voted 4-1 to uphold the county zoning commission's decision to deny the rezoning based on the county's land use plan, which calls for low density development of one home per acre in that part of the county.

AMCOR Investments Corp., which proposed the development, to include a small commercial area and a school site, was able to appeal the denial because the proposed project is considered to have regional impact. The hearing officer's recommendation is expected to be

Cockatiel's Clock Appeal

Changing our clocks back an hour at 2 a.m. Sunday may be the birds, like Max the cockatiel perched atop the one 3-year-old Mikey Balo is changing, but we've got no choice in the matter. Sunday's when we get an extra hour of sleep with the return of standard time. Balo, a pre-schooler at Momma Jean's Pre-School and Day Care Center in Sanford, says we won't change back until next spring when clocks will be pushed forward an hour April 3 to return to daylight-saving time.

Howell Place Files For Chapter 11

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

Owners of a Sanford retirement facility avoided possible foreclosure by filing a petition for reorganization in order to restructure their debt as a result of low occupancy rates at the facility, a spokesman said today.

G. Rhea Bucy, attorney for Howell Place of Sanford, said that by filing for a Chapter 11 status Wednesday all debts related to the retirement home were frozen. Bucy said if the petition had not been filed, the Howell Place facility might have been sold as a result of a pending state court foreclosure action. The courts gave the owners until next Saturday to answer the foreclosure action. At that time the court would have scheduled a hearing that might or might not have ordered foreclosure on the property. The filing for Chapter 11 halted that process.

Bucy, who is a partner in the Nashville, Tenn., law firm of Gullett, Sanford, Robinson & Martin, said that financing of the project was obtained in 1983 by the issue of industrial development bonds. The trustee of the bonds is Barnett Bank of Jacksonville. Bucy added that Howell Place expects to file with the court in the near future a plan for resolving the partnership's problem on a basis that is fair and equitable to all bondholders and creditors.

Howell Place, 200 W. Airport Blvd., is an adult congregate living facility with 94 units. Licensed by the state, the complex provides meals, housekeeping services and a van for transportation to its tenants.

The facility was opened in June 1984, and Bob Little, the general partner of Howell Place, said current occupancy is 70 tenants. The facility has 94 apartments. However, Little said the occupancy rate was slow to build during the first few years

Longwood Commission Candidates Give Philosophies

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood voters will go to the polls Nov. 3 to elect city commissioners in Districts 1, 2 and 4 and vote on changes to the charter. City Clerk Don Terry is predicting a 35 percent voter turnout due to the number of candidates, the charter amendment referendum and the referendum on the county's proposed one-cent local option tax.

As of Oct. 3, there were 4,184 registered voters in the city. According to the latest official figures released by the University of Florida, Longwood has a population of 13,298 persons. Longwood residents will cast their ballots in the city election at the precinct indicated on their voter registration card instead of at city hall. City Commissioners serve two-year terms and receive $4,200 annually. Candidates must live in the district they are running for, but they are elected by the city at large. There is no longer any run-off provision in the charter unless there is a tie. The candidate receiving the most votes in each race wins. Due to a change in the charter, this is the first year the city election has been held in November. In the past, Longwood elections were held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in December.

Occupational License Policy Rules Sought

Some Issued In Improperly Zoned Areas

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's code enforcement board thinks the county should use a little discretion in issuing occupational licenses instead of issuing one to virtually anyone who applies for one.

Specifically, the board would like to see a requirement that the business for which a license is being applied for is located in the properly zoned area. A letter asking county commissioners to consider such a requirement will be sent to commissioners under the signature of Sara Jacobson, code enforcement board chairman.

The board also is requesting commissioners to consider contacting the county's legislative delegation to request a change in the state law prohibiting the foreclosure of property that has a homestead tax exemption.

The occupational license issue came up during discussion of a citation against Kathryn L. Downer for operating a land clearing business in an agriculturally-zoned area. Downer and her husband, Lamar, claim their land clearing business operates wherever they are clearing land at the time. However, county land management staff members insist that the base of operations, as advertised in telephone book yellow pages and listed on the business's occupational license is 6022 Feather Lane, Sanford, property that is zoned A-1.

Jacobson said the county should have not issued an occupational license to a business which was not located in proper zoning to operate. "The fact that this business was issued a county license to operate at that location, then was cited by the county for operating in an improperly zoned location indicates to me that the county ought to clean up its act," she said.

However, Lonnie Groot, assistant county attorney, said occupational licenses are issued only as a method of collecting taxes, and not to license a business to operate.

John Dwyer, county land management coordinator, told the board that when a person is issued an occupational license he signs a statement agreeing not to operate in an improperly zoned area. He also pointed out that the license application includes a notice to the applicant to check with county zoning officials to make sure the location of the business is properly zoned.

Occupational licenses are issued by the county tax collector under policies established by the county commissioners.

However, Jacobson said regardless of those printed warnings, the issuing of a license to a person whose business is not located in proper zoning is misleading. Board member Hugh Harling said requiring tax office staff to check the location and zoning of every license application would probably require additional staff, and county commissioners would most likely look at it from that point of view. However, board members voted to send a letter to commissioners asking that the policy be reviewed.

In the Downer case, the Downers agreed to remove their ad from the yellow pages, although that won't be possible for another year; to not advertise their business as being at the Feather Lane address anywhere else; and to change the business address listed on the occupational license.

The state law prohibiting foreclosure of a homestead makes the code enforcement board feel "impatient and frustrated," said Jacobson.

Longwood Contractors Still Want Pay

Occupancy Paper Issued At Last

By Jesse Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood's controversial Building Department has finally issued a certificate of occupancy for the city's new police department occupied since March 20, but there are minor items to be completed and the contractor and subcontractors are still waiting for their money.

City Attorney Michael Kramer brought up the subject at the last city commission meeting, stirring up bad feelings that remain from 1986. That year was marked by official snafus, lawsuits and a reluctant agreement that cost the city money and loss of face.

The certificate of occupancy was forthcoming after City Attorney Michael Kramer told the city commission. "The building needs a CO. If any other building in the city was occupied without one, we would be after them."

"Although there are some minor things that still need to be done, it's a step toward moving the whole thing forward," Kramer said of the CO, issued Wednesday. "I asked the contractor last week to request another inspection, which was done earlier this week, but it took several days to complete the paper work."

Kramer said the contractor, H&R Builder, is owed $23,500, less liquidity damages (late penalty) estimated at $15,800.

The builder is required to put up two bonds — one to make sure the subcontractors, who cannot take a lien against the city, are paid and the other to warranty work on the building not otherwise covered.

To determine what needs to be done to complete everything, Kramer met last week with the H&R Builders officials and architects from Architects Design of Florida, who designed the facility and did the construction inspection, and with Police Chief Greg Manning and Lt. Jack Hisland.

Some of the items that need to be taken care of include the broken glass in the holding cell door, which has prevented the cell from being used, stains on the brick and sewer taps installed incorrectly.

The construction was funded with a $1-million bond issue. Kramer said he found the problem while closing on the amended agreement on the $3 million sewer and water revenue bond issue with the bond holder, Sun Bank. The bank wanted to make sure the funds left over would be used for a municipal purpose such as paying off the payments promised to the Episcopal Diocese for a quit claim deed on the building site or the purchase of a new police car.

Kramer said that at about the same time he learned of trouble with the insurance company because the police building only had a temporary CO.

Groundbreaking in the city's Peppermint Park for the 9,482-square-foot (enclosed space) police station was held June 19, 1986 with an estimated completion date of Dec. 1. Facing a $200 a day penalty for every day over the completion date, the contractor was given a 30-day extension. It was not enough, and the building was not substantially completed until March 20.

Problems developed when it was pointed out by a former commissioner that the deed for part of the property on which the facility was being built had a reverter clause, which was either overlooked or ignored by the city attorney, staff and commissioners. The clause called for ownership to go back to the previous owner, the Episcopal Diocese, should it be used for something other than a park.

Although then-city attorney Ann Colby said she was certain the 30-year statute of limitations would void the reverter clause, in order to obtain a fee simple absolute title and avoid litigation to quiet the title, the city negotiated an agreement that called for payment of $125,000 to the diocese over four years.

A group of residents headed by Dave Gunter, now on the city commissioner himself brought suit in August to try and stop construction and cancel the agreement.

The suit, which was later dropped, held up closing on the $1-million Sun Bank loan to finance construction and equip the building. Any delay caused by an injunction would have required the city to pay the contractor $800 a day.

The bitterness felt by the three present city commissioners against Gunter erupted at Monday night's meeting.

Smerilson said it was Gunter who caused the city to pay the $125,000 because of his suit, but Gunter said his suit was not against the city, but the commissioners. Smerilson said Gunter was lying.

Deputy Mayor June Lormann, who was presiding Monday night in the absence of Mayor Ed Myers, exploded after Gunter pointed out that all of the commissioners had voted in favor of the out-of-court settlement, and made statements admitting that they violated the charter and that each paid the required $1 to the city. Lormann said the statements were prepared by Gunter's attorney, Gary Masey, and didn't reflect the feelings of the commissioners.

She declared, "It was the worst thing I've ever done. You impugned my integrity and hurt my family. I never would have voted to pay the city a dollar except to save the city money and settle the suit."

Five-Day Forecast

Nights So Chilly; Winter Be A Dilly?

By Staff And Wire Reports
OK, OK, stop with the elbow. Our ribs are sore enough. The time change Sunday from 2 a.m. to 1 a.m. will gain us an hour, so that we'll actually be able to catch 60 more minutes of sleep every morning. To err is human and even prognosticators can be human. Enjoy your extra winks.

The signs of winter are upon us (ouch!). The feisty nip in the air ... the rah-rahs of homecoming games ... only 61 more shopaholic days until Christmas ... the return of long-lost sweaters. And it seems as if love bug season is officially over with. Haven't seen them splat on the windshield for days now. Question: Do love bugs fly further south for the winter?

According to Ye Olde Farmer's Almanac, we're to have even "cooler" temperatures and cloudy skies through Halloween. Also according to that noblest of prognosticators, Florida is to have no snow this winter. Learn something every day, eh?

Things may be rotten in Denmark and mornings cold in Gatorland, but everything is pretty soggy in Texas. Heavy rains that caused flood warnings there and road closings ended Saturday. But those showers and thunderstorms throughout the state, dumping 5 inches of rain in a six-hour period in the southern part of Corpus Christi, ended late Friday. A flash flood warning was posted Friday afternoon as many roads and intersections were impassable due to flooding.

Even the Corpus Christi Naval Station was closed Friday afternoon after the roads leading into the station were flooded. And when the Navy gets flooded, you know it's bad.

Snowflakes continued to lay blanket layers on portions of the upper Midwest. Light snow fell over northern Minnesota Friday night and early Saturday with 5 inches of snow reported in the northeastern part of the state, causing the forecasters to post an advisory for the area, meteorologist Hugh Crowther said.

Snow advisories have also been posted Saturday for the northern third of Wisconsin and across upper Michigan.

Snow accumulations of 3 to 5 inches were possible for northwest Wisconsin by morning with an additional 1 to 3 inches possible for north central and northeast Wisconsin also by this morning. Upper Michigan is expecting up to 4 inches of new snow before ending this morning.

The rest of the nation was experiencing mild temperatures, said Crowther, adding that no record low temperatures were expected Saturday in the southeast where record lows were either broken or tied Friday morning in at least 13 cities across Georgia, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Alabama and Virginia.

"It is moderating in the southeastern part of the U.S. where they have been experiencing record cold," Crowther said.

Storms were forecast to continue for a sopping Southern California. Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over northern California while more rain was expected over the central Pacific states Saturday, the National Weather Service said. Amounts of rain reaching 1 to 3 inches were expected over the weekend in the mountains of Southern California, including the Palomar Burn area and Pauma Valley.

The Palomar Burn area remained soaked from rainfall Thursday and more rain was expected to cause additional flooding problems and mudslides in the area over the weekend, forecasters said.

Forecasters said Los Angeles received 1.6 inches of rain Thursday, breaking a 46-year-old record for the date.

NATION IN BRIEF

Stocks End Mixed In Week Of Record Losses

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones Industrial average rose less than a point in a shortened session Friday but most stocks retreated as Wall Street voiced skepticism that the Reagan administration will be able to prolong the economic recovery.

The Dow inched up 0.33 to 1950.76. The blue-chip index had risen 211.69 points since Monday's 506-point crash, but for the week the Dow plunged 296 points.

The Dow's 13 percent drop this week exceeded a record weekly loss set one week earlier, when the Dow fell 235 points for a 9.5 percent decline.

Broad-market indexes slipped. The New York Stock Exchange index fell 0.23 to 130.22. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 0.03 to 248.22. The price of an average share lost 5 cents.

Leading exchanges announced Thursday they would close two hours early Friday, Monday and Tuesday to let the financial community catch up on massive backlogs of paperwork.

Bork Nomination Defeated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the controversial Supreme Court nomination of Robert Bork behind them, Senate Democratic leaders say they are prepared to work with President Reagan to confirm a mutually acceptable conservative nominee.

The issue of the next high court nominee moved off the back-burner Friday as the Senate rejected Bork's nomination 58-42, with six Republicans joining the majority to defeat him. Only two Democrats joined 40 Republicans in voting for Bork. Three senators undeclared until Friday — William Proxmire, D-Wis., John Stennis, D-Miss., and John Warner, R-Va. — all voted against Bork.

"I have no doubt he'll send a conservative nominee up," Senate Judiciary Committee chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., said after the vote Friday. "It is my hope the president will submit a name the vast majority of us can agree on."

"I'm prepared to vote for a conservative," said assistant Senate Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California. But he also warned that Reagan would "have a fight on his hands" if he nominated a conservative "not in the mainstream of American judicial thought."

Social Security Checks Uped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty-eight million Americans will get a 4.2 percent increase in Social Security benefits next year, the biggest cost-of-living increase in more than 5 1/2 years, government officials say.

Social Security Administration officials said Friday 23 million retired workers will receive $513 a month, a $21 increase over the current $492 payment. The maximum Social Security benefit, for workers retiring this year at age 65, will be $822, $33 more than the current $789.

The 4.2 percent cost-of-living increase is the largest in 5 1/2 years and follows last year's 1.3 percent hike. The extra money will be included in Social Security and Supplemental Security Income checks delivered Dec. 31, officials said.

Social Security spokesman Phil Gambino said the large increase is good news for recipients in light of the stock market drop, the budget deficit and other troubling economic activities.

Jessica May Keep Her Foot

MIDLAND, Texas (UPI) — Jessica McClure will lose the tips of two toes, but doctors say they may save the toddler's foot from amputation with the help of treatments this weekend to speed healing of tissue damaged while she was trapped in an abandoned well.

Orthopedic surgeon Charles Younger trimmed away dead tissue on the 18-month-old's right foot Friday, which was bent awkwardly and lost circulation during her 58-hour ordeal. Midland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman Sue Riston said.

"The outside of her foot will need skin grafts and they are still concerned about the little and big toes," Riston said. "She will be losing the tips of those toes at some point, although the doctors haven't decided when."

The skin grafts will be needed to replace the skin that was cut during a fasciotomy last week to relieve swelling in the foot. Jessica also faces plastic surgery to repair dead skin on her forehead. No dates have been set for the skin grafts or plastic surgery, Riston said.

Wants Better Communications With City

Postal Service Apologizes For Neglect

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The U.S. Postal Service said it was sorry for neglecting to present Lake Mary officials with plans for the new city post office building and that it wanted to establish good communications and a working relationship with the city.

In a prepared statement to the city commission during its regular meeting George Martin, director of customer service for the postal service's Orlando division, said that while showing building plans to the city staffs is not required by law, the agency still thinks that doing it is a good business practice and starts the new facilities off on the right foot with the community it's going into.

Last Wednesday, City Planner Matthew West issued a stopwork order on the clearing of land for the new post office building, to be located at 800 West Lake Mary Blvd. West said that without contacting the city, Rubin Excavating Inc., Winter Springs, began bulldozing the 6.4 acres the $2.8 million building will set on.

In clearing the land, the subcontractor also violated the city's arbor ordinance by destroying 31 trees without city permission. West said. City Attorney Frank Kruppenbacher informed West the city had no chance of making the postal service adhere to local zoning codes because they are exempt from them. He did, however, tell West to go ahead with plans to fine the project's general contractor, Swain Company, Longwood, $28,700 for the destruction of the trees.

Martin told the commission the postal service is planning on landscaping that will make the new building very attractive to city residents and visitors, but would not commit to a specific number of trees to be replanted on the property, when asked to do so by the commission.

Commissioner Paul Tremel said that postal service apologies were nice, but they were nothing. "He said that if they (postal service) really wanted to correct the damage done to the trees, they would put in trees that will be bigger than the toothpicks they'll probably have out there."

Mayor Dick Fess called the recent conflict between the city and post office a "glitch." "We're very sorry it happened," Fess said. "It left a bad taste in all of our mouths."

Commissioner Randall Morris said he thought West did a good job in his handling of the situation, but that the postal service had made some mistakes in dealing with the press during the friction between the town and the agency. "I think comments made to the press by the postal service were irresponsible," Morris said. West was acting without having Fess or City Manager Bob Norris in town.

Fess ended the discussion on the matter, telling Martin the postal service should be very careful not to let the same thing to happen again when they start to work on the proposed regional office on Rinehart Road. Fess explained to Martin that he feels Lake Mary residents are good people. "But if you get their dander up, they'll fight you," Fess said.

Lake Mary Puts Off Picking New Public Works Head

The Lake Mary City Commission voted unanimously to delay selecting a new superintendent of Public Works until the commission can meet with City Manager Bob Norris, who was absent from Thursday night's meeting due to illness.

The commission, which had already delayed the decision once before, will now wait until its Nov. 19 meeting to select a person for the position. Stanley Welling has been filling the position on an interim basis since Jim Oriole left the position to work for a private laboratory.

Commissioner George Duryea said he was surprised at Norris' final recommendation of Welling for the job considering that the people who made it to the final cut six applicants for the position. "I think his (Norris) recommendation was poor," Duryea said.

The decision to ask the commission to delay the selection until Norris' return was based on a desire to be fair to the city manager about the situation. Duryea said. "I don't want to talk about the man behind his back," he said.

During the time it takes for the city to select a superintendent, the commission authorized Welling to continue acting as the interim head of public works. The commission voted unanimously to grant Welling a one-step pay increase, retroactive from Oct. 4, while he holds the temporary position for the city.

The superintendent's position will pay $24,700, according to the money the commission has budgeted for the person who gets the job.

AFL-CIO Meeting To Consider Taking In The Teamsters

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Top leaders of the AFL-CIO gathered Saturday to decide whether the International Brotherhood of Teamsters should be allowed to rejoin the labor federation and heal a 30-year rift in the trade union movement.

Several labor officials said Friday the AFL-CIO appeared ready to readmit the Teamsters.

"I would say it is very positive. My reading is that they would be welcomed back," said Richard Kilroy, a member of the AFL-CIO's 35-member executive council and the president of the Transportation-Communications Union.

But the rapprochement, if accomplished, could prove controversial.

One independent, pro-labor group — the Association for Union Democracy in New York — issued a statement late Friday saying the Teamsters' return was cause for concern.

"Any hasty reinstatement of the Teamsters union in the AFL-CIO would represent the end of any attempt within the labor movement to combat corruption," AUD executive director Herman Benson said.

Stripper Trial Continues

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — The third husband of a mother charged with provoking her teenage daughter's suicide said the woman threatened to murder him and warned him several times while they were married to not go to sleep.

Alan Jackson, the third divorced husband of Theresa Jackson, 40, said Jackson threatened to shoot him with her .357 Magnum "once or twice" when she was experiencing severe mood swings.

The Jacksons were married 10 years, but separated five months before Jackson's daughter, Tina Mancini, 17, killed herself with the pistol on March 24, 1986.

Theresa Jackson is charged with aggravated child abuse, procuring sexual performances by a child and forging Mancini's birth certificate so she could work in nightclubs. The state claims the teenager was forced by her mother to work as a stripper.

"Most of the time, (Jackson) just told me, 'don't go to sleep,'" the ex-husband said.

Martinez Looks For Staff Chief

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Top Florida Republicans have advised Gov. Bob Martinez to hire a less visible chief of staff who can work with the Legislature but mainly "run the shop" inside the governor's office.

Martinez has plenty of time to find the right person and should not be rushed by the approaching second special session on the services tax, said the leaders who huddled with Martinez Friday over lunch at the governor's mansion.

The advisers did not rule out the need for additional staff changes. But mostly they suggested the governor wait until his new chief of staff climbs onboard, so he or she can restructure the office.

The private luncheon meeting came as Republicans across Florida flooded the governor's office with candidates for the job being vacated by J.M. "Mac" Stipanovich, who resigned this week effective Nov. 5.

The board's maximum penalty against code violators is filing a lien against a property in the amount of the accumulated fine imposed. If the violation has not been corrected and the fine has not been paid within six months of the filing of the lien, foreclosure proceedings can be started in circuit court.

However, board members point out that the majority of code violators live in their own homes and have homestead tax exemptions, which means they cannot be foreclosed upon. Without that threat of foreclosure, violators have little incentive to pay the fine, or to comply with the code, board members said.

An example of how it frustrates the board, Jacobson said, is the case filed against R.G. Kondracki for parking tractor trailers on his property east of Sanford. The violation was corrected, but not until a lien against the property was filed in the amount of the $10,000 in accumulated fines. The board wanted to begin foreclosure proceedings when the fine wasn't paid, but was told that the court would throw out such proceedings because the property has a homestead exemption.

Jacobson said after going through years of trying to get Kondracki to comply with county code, with no apparent effort being made by Kondracki to do so, it is frustrating to not be able to force compliance.

The board was offered $450 as a settlement of the case last month, and Thursday Groot said the offer had been increased to $650. The board did not accept either offer and decided to let the lien remain on the property, even though it can't foreclose. Although Kondracki's mailing address is on Baywood Drive, he does not live there and the property where the violation occurred is located northwest of Lake Jesup. Last month Dwyer said county inspectors didn't think anyone lived on that property, even though it has a homestead exemption. However, Dwyer said Thursday that Kondracki's attorney had informed him that his client does live on the property.

County inspectors say the same property now has junk and junked cars on it, which is another violation of county code, but no citation for that violation has yet been filed.

heard by the governor and cabinet next January.

It is the first time the governor and cabinet have been asked to rule in such a case and is seen by county officials as a battle to uphold the county's ability to set its own zoning regulations and growth policies.

A county advisory committee is currently drawing up a proposal for a new zoning ordinance for that part of the county, which would allow a higher housing density. County Planning Director Tony VanDerworp said it is too early to tell whether the proposed new ordinance would affect proposals such as AMCOR's proposed Plantation development.

VanDerworp said the proposed Suburban Estates Planned Development is still in planning stages and no recommendation has been formulated yet. The committee envisions the classification as allowing three housing units per two acres of land, and possibly even higher density in clusters of a development, as long as the overall density remains three units per two acres. It is not expected to include any provisions for commercial development.

The committee is now working on specific provisions of the proposed zoning classification, which will set requirements for allowing the higher density.

County officials and environmentalists hailed the hearing officer's decision and expressed hope that the governor and cabinet will uphold it.

Residents of the western part of the county have consistently fought higher density development in their areas and oppose the county's current investigations into establishing a new zoning classification which would allow higher density.

AMCOR's attorneys argued at the hearing that the county had no real land-use plan for the northwest part of the county. The attorneys said the company's plan for central utilities, stormwater treatment and road improvements would minimize the development's impact on the environment.

● Precinct 58 — South Seminole VFW Post 8207, County Road 427, Longwood.

● Precinct 72 — Longwood Elementary School, 830 E. Orange Ave.

All three incumbents are seeking re-election. Candidates include: District 1 — incumbent Harvey Smerilison, 45, and Richard Bullington, 31; District 2 — incumbent June Lormann, 63, and Henry Hardy III, 31; District 4 — incumbent Harold "Ed" Myers, 69, and Ted Poelking, 70.

District 1

Smerilison lives at 315 Heather Ave. and has lived in Longwood for 14 years. He and his wife, Lois, have two daughters, Lori, 24, and Judi, 20. He has a Bachelor of Science degree in engineering and a Master's degree in Business Administration. He is employed by Martin-Marietta, Orlando. He has served four years as a city commissioner, one of these as mayor; three years on the Land Planning Agency and one on the Code Enforcement Board.

Bullington lives at 340 Tartan St. He and his wife, Shatauka, have one daughter, Lacey, 3. Originally from this area, they moved to Longwood four years ago. He works in the construction business. This is the first time he has run for office, but he has served on the charter advisory committee, the city's Land Planning Agency and the Seminole County Comprehensive Planning Committee.

Lormann lives at 402 Wildmere Ave. and became a resident of Longwood in 1957. She is the widow of former Longwood Mayor Allen R. Lormann and mother of former Longwood Mayor James R. Lormann and daughters, Lynda and Sandee. Her education and business experience are in real estate and banking. She is retired from Sun Bank. Currently deputy mayor and commissioner, she is seeking her eighth term on the commission. She also has served as mayor and is on the Historical Commission.

Hardy lives at 278 Reider Ave. and has been a city resident for 21 years. A single parent, he has a 3-year-old son, Christopher. He graduated from Lyman High School and is self-employed in the family business. He is a veteran of the U.S. Navy. This is his first try at political office.

District 4

Myers lives at 1323 Hunt Road and is a 27-year resident of Longwood. He and his wife of 45 years, Nannette, have two daughters, Melanie, 42, and Sharon, 41, and a son, Patrick, 35. Myers is an alumnus of Indiana University and a retired tool and die maker. He has served four years on the city commission and this year has served as mayor.

Poelking, who lives at 601 Pleasant Ave., moved to Longwood nine years ago. He is married, and he and his wife Dorothy have three adult children — Joseph, 41, Theodore, 36, and Patricia, 25. A high school graduate, he is retired from the U.S. Navy and U.S. Post Office. He is a newcomer to politics.

The following questions were submitted to each candidate:

1. Why do you want to be a commissioner?

● Smerilison: To provide representation to all equally.

● Bullington: I am concerned with the current political complexion of Longwood. I want to attempt to return a professional, business-oriented atmosphere to our city.

● Lormann: Longwood has been very good to me and my family, and I believe that I have a responsibility to contribute whatever I can to the city. I believe that civic duty is a responsibility.

● Hardy: I want to be a commissioner because I believe I can make a constructive contribution to the city. In addition, I want to be a commissioner because the incumbent I oppose offers no leadership or solutions to our many problems.

● Myers: I feel that it is my civic duty now that I have the time to serve my community to the best of my ability.

● Ted Poelking: Bring leadership back to city government.

2. What do you think is the city's number one priority in the future?

● Smerilison: Control growth, improve efficiency and cut costs (all three are related).

● Bullington: The top priority is the return of responsible fiscal decisions and a stronger emphasis on professional management.

● Lormann: To manage growth in such a way as to protect the lifestyles that we now enjoy.

● Hardy: I believe that the city's number one priority for the future is restoration of faith in local government.

● Myers: Streets and drainage.

● Poelking: Restore the faith of the citizens and promote better relations not only with the residents, but also businesses.

3. How would you rate the performance of the city staff?

● Smerilison: City staff is rated by their supervisors, not commissioners, except for three members.

● Bullington: I cannot rate the individual performance of our staff until I have an opportunity to observe some. However, I do have concerns and intend to make these determinations a high priority for me if I am fortunate enough to be elected.

● Lormann: We have an excellent staff. They are completely loyal and dedicated to serving the citizens of Longwood.

● Hardy: The performance of the city staff leaves much to be desired. Consider the staff not being aware of deed restrictions on the park where the police station was built, missing public funds from the Police Department and the need to spend $18,000 to train some employees.

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

By Dr. John Lyons D.C.
 CERVICAL SPONDYLOSIS

The neck is a wonderfully mobile structure, which can move about 100 to 110 degrees when it is healthy and supple.

Cervical spondylosis is the end result of a slow process of degeneration that may begin at about age 20. Over time, the spongy and flexible tissue of the disc is replaced with fibrous cartilage-like material, and the normal ball-bearing action of the vertebrae in the neck become abnormal.

Conservative treatment is usually best, and includes gentle chiropractic adjustment to remove any nerve pressure on the spinal column. A comfortable soft cervical collar may be prescribed, as well as physical therapy.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Shultz Briefs NATO On Failed Moscow Trip

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz, after two days of talks in Moscow, was frustrated in his hopes to reach a nuclear missile accord and a superpower summit by an unexpected Soviet demand that has stalemated earlier talks between the two nations.

Shultz, who was to brief NATO allies in Belgium today, left Moscow Friday saying Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev had refused to agree to a summit date because of concern over President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative.

SDI, the space-based defense system commonly known as the "Star Wars," was the same stumbling block that caused a stalemate at the summit between Reagan and Gorbachev one year ago this month in Reykjavik, Iceland.

"General Secretary Gorbachev said he is writing a letter to President Reagan, so we are waiting for the mailman," Shultz said of the summit prospects. "In the general secretary's view ... he is not prepared to set a date about a visit to Washington."

Despite the stalemate, Shultz emerged from a four-hour meeting with Gorbachev Friday saying progress had been made on "some of the stickiest issues" of an intermediate-range missile treaty.

Iranians Attack Greek Tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — An Iranian gunboat attacked a Greek tanker anchored off the coast of Dubai Saturday with machine-gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades, setting the vessel ablaze, shipping sources said.

No injuries were reported among the vessel's 38-member crew, the sources said. The Iranian gunboat struck at 3 a.m. local time while the Panamanian-registered tanker Prosper Venture was at anchor off Dubai in the United Arab Emirates, leaving three holes in the vessel's starboard side.

Fire spread from the engine room of the 27,000-ton vessel and engulfed some of its tanks, the sources said. By mid-morning, the crew was still battling the fire.

The sources said the Prosper Venture had taken on oil at Rastannurah on the eastern coast of Saudi Arabia before the incident and was headed toward Australia.

Iran Denies Buying Weapons

BEIJING (UPI) — Iranian Ambassador Alaeddin Broujerdi said his country does not "acquire any kinds of weapons" from Beijing, including the Chinese-made Silkworm missiles used against U.S. and Kuwaiti targets in the Persian Gulf.

Speaking at a new conference Friday called by the Iranian Embassy in Beijing, Broujerdi also said Iran has more U.S.-made Stinger anti-aircraft missiles than previously reported, but he declined to say exactly how many.

"The number is much more than has been stated so far," he said, referring to news accounts that said Iran has 16 of the sophisticated, shoulder-fired Stingers.

U.S. officials have indicated Iran obtained Stingers intended for U.S.-backed Afghan rebels, but Broujerdi declined to say where Iran obtained either the Stingers or the Silkworms.

Information, Simulation: Education On Elderly

"Parenting Your Parents," a seminar to help individuals and business personnel understand and meet the needs of the elderly, is part of a two-pronged program to be presented from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday at Seminole Community College.

The seminar, free of charge, is the last in a series sponsored by Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sun Bank and Seminole Community College.

To set the stage, Ann Hamilton, a social worker, will explain briefly the aging process so that adult children can be alert to the changing of roles — when parents become dependents. She will explore how to determine the extent of an adult child's responsibility and how that should be balanced with their own individual needs as well as their own family requirements.

The emotional as well as the physical/medical and economical aspects of caring for aging parents will be covered. Guilt feelings will be explored and how to deal with related emotions in the selection of care. Hamilton will elicit participation from the audience as she explains the options and resources for help. Handouts will be available.

Jeane Kirkpatrick To Seek The Republican Nomination

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Friends of former U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick said she has decided to seek the Republican nomination for president, the Los Angeles Times reported Saturday.

A close associate of Kirkpatrick, 60, told the newspaper that the Georgetown University professor and nationally syndicated columnist plans "to go for it."

"She will be sacrificing a lot of income and she's getting in very late, but I think she wants to prove that she can outpoll some of the lesser candidates," the source explained, speaking on condition of anonymity.

A Democrat until she left the U.N. post in 1985, frustrated at not being chosen by President Reagan to be his third secretary of state, Kirkpatrick remains a "favorite daughter" of U.S. conservatives, the Times said.

With closeness to Reagan considered an important qualification for a Republican candidate, she can claim first-class credentials. The president was first attracted to her views in a Commentary magazine article on the need to recognize that "authoritarian" right wing governments may be more worthy of U.S. support than Marxist totalitarian regimes.

The movement to draft Kirkpatrick began in September in New Hampshire, where the nation's first primary takes place in February, with a series of front-page editorials in the conservative Manchester Union Leader.

...Festival

Hammersteins down the road. His living is earned with New York scenes, the bulk of the festival fare. The emotional canvases are towards a higher calling, self-expression and maybe, just maybe, a niche in art history. Hammerstein has shown his works throughout the United States and England. His works hang in several private collections and were in exhibitions commemorating the Statue of Liberty Centennial.

Hammerstein is at the festival via invitation and through his cousin and her husband, Michele and Philip Ritson. Hammerstein has volunteered to donate half his proceeds to Chuck Suggs, the 14-year-old Lake Mary youth who is in England for a possible life-saving heart-lung transplant.

Hammerstein, 31, believes that Lake Mary and Heathrow are on the right road to creating a festival that will draw top-of-the-nation artists, a field of talent with which he is familiar. "Heathrow could make a national splash," he said, "maybe international."

As a gallery-shown artist, he said he recognizes there are two currents in art, the representative works such as his landscapes — "which I enjoy doing" — and his other style, leading-edge works for connoisseurs. He said the festival could become one of featuring selective top-flight artists. Would Hammerstein be among them? His works were recently featured in a solo exhibit at the Southampton Gallery in Long Island.

Hammerstein, who lives in Brooklyn, said it used to bother him that his name prompted people to think of his grandfather rather than himself. But that has changed.

"If I don't use the name, who will?" Hammerstein said what he remembers of his famous grandfather is what most young children remember and that he didn't realize the extent of his grandfather's reputation until he was older.

Though talent for the pen runs in the family — "My father writes lyrics, and he's as good as my grandfather" — Hammerstein was not pushed into writing. "I picked up a paint brush at 5."

He said he works quickly and produces several landscapes a week. The emotional works usually are worked for short periods over several weeks. "They are more subject to revision. They are more questions than answers," he said.

Spy Satellite Launch Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret Air Force launch of a spy satellite this weekend could determine whether the U.S. can monitor Soviet compliance with an upcoming nuclear arms agreement, a military space expert says.

John Pike of the Federation of American Scientists said Friday experts believe a KH-11 reconnaissance satellite was scheduled to be launched by a Titan 34D space booster this weekend, probably Sunday, from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

In telephone interview, Pike said the normal, three-year effective life of the KH-11 currently orbiting in space is due to end in December.

A gap in the U.S. ability to monitor Soviet destruction of their medium-range and short-range missiles as called for in the proposed intermediate nuclear forces agreement could therefore develop during 1988, Pike said.

An Air Force spokesman declined to confirm or deny the launch schedule, saying it was service policy not to comment on secret Vandenberg missions.

If the currently orbiting satellite fails, Pike said the KH-11 satellite, dubbed "Big Bird," could be crucial to monitoring in 1988 whether the Soviets abide by the terms of the agreement.

"We are virtually there as far as an INF agreement is concerned," Secretary of State George Shultz told a Moscow press conference Friday after meeting for four and a half hours with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

An earlier attempt to orbit a KH-11 in August 1985 ended in a Titan 34D exploding on its Vandenberg launch pad. The spy satellite due to be rocketed aloft this weekend, weather permitting, is the last KH-11 the Air Force has in stock.

Myers: I think that we have an outstanding city staff consisting of our city hall staff, our Police and Fire departments. Why else would all the surrounding governments be hiring all our people.

Poolking: I have not had the opportunity to observe their working habits.

4. How would you change the way commission meetings are now run?

Merilison: Educate the public as to what is really going on.

Bullington: Simply — I would insert professionalism.

Lermann: I would encourage practicing the Golden Rule so that everyone is treated with respect and dignity. Longwood is one of the few cities that permit open discussion and participation by the citizens. Longwood can be proud of the excellent turnout for commission meetings. I would streamline meetings to shorten the length of meetings.

Hardy: The first thing I would do is demand that the practice of permitting people to stand before the microphone and attack others be stopped. Government — yes. People — no. Next, I would insist that people lower their voices and speak in a respectful manner. This applies to commissioners, as well as citizens. I would rule out of line any comment by anybody on any subject that the commission could not take action on.

Myers: Probably the only change I would make would be to hold the public participation period at the start of the agenda and do away with a roll call vote on each item and have a consensus vote.

Poolking: Follow parliamentary procedure with conducting city meetings, with no circus atmosphere.

5. What are your views on new development within the city?

Merilison: Most has been within the plan.

Bullington: Growth properly managed is an asset.

Lermann: I know that growth and development are unavoidable and it is the responsibility of the city commission to adopt a Comprehensive Plan that will safeguard the interests of all residents by ensuring orderly growth and ensuring that the city can provide the services required.

Hardy: My views on development within the city are that all development must proceed in accordance with strict zoning and provided that the city can furnish required services.

Myers: We are about out of land in Longwood for new development, so we must adhere to our Comprehensive Land Use Plan when completed.

Poolking: Controlled development for business and residential.

6. Are you satisfied with city services and facilities? If not, how would you expand and fund them?

Merilison: Parks and Recreation needs expansion at the user's expense.

Bullington: No, I would expand and fund with responsible decisions based on the best fiscal advice I could possibly obtain.

Lermann: I am not satisfied with present facilities. Longwood needs a new city hall, a new community building and additional parks and recreational facilities. The most economical way to fund these facilities would be through the issue of a long term bond. I believe that the city provides excellent services. Our Police and Fire departments are outstanding and we receive many letters commending those departments. We are improving the quality of our lakes and our Codes Enforcement Officer is working hard to clean up the city.

Hardy: I am not satisfied with city services and facilities. I'm not sure I would expand any service, but I would first insist that present services be improved. For example, the city's staff needs to be improved as stated in the above. Many of our streets are full of holes making us "Pothole City." I think improvements can and must be made within present budgets.

We pay some members of our staff far more than they're worth and waste money on parties and overnight stays in local hotels.

Myers: No, I want to expand both city services and facilities. I would like to hire more people in Public Works for the sole purpose of trimming right of ways and keeping our byways clean and neat. We have opted to use the one-cent sales tax to fund these improvements.

Poolking: No. Better management of personnel.

7. Should the city annex more property from the county?

Merilison: Only if it serves a useful purpose and benefits the majority.

Bullington: Until the city of Longwood can balance annexation with properly managed services — no.

Lermann: I believe the city should consider any request for annexation received to determine if the city can provide the required services. I believe the city should attempt to square off its boundaries and eliminate islands of unincorporated areas within the city — if they are requested by the owners.

Hardy: I am personally not in favor of annexing per se, because we cannot now provide good service to our present citizens. Until we can provide good service to our present citizens, I'll be apt not to go along with a lot of annexing.

Myers: We should annex any county property that the owners petition the city for annexation.

Poolking: Yes, straighten the city boundaries, at the present time you do not know when you are in the city of Longwood.

8. Should the mayor be elected by the people or selected from the commission, and should the term be changed to four years for commissioners and mayor?

Merilison: Elected by the people. Terms of two years unless we adopt a recall.

Bullington: The mayor should be elected by the people for a two-year term. An election for mayor presents the opportunity for drawing interest to the office.

Lermann: Many people have suggested that the mayor be elected directly by the people and if that is the will of the people, they will let us know in November and I will be happy to accept their decision. I do believe that a longer term of office would add stability to the commission.

Hardy: The mayor should be selected from the commission via a firm rotation system. We don't need another paid elected official.

Myers: I think the mayor should be elected by the people for a four-year term. Also, the commission should be elected for a four-year term. This would give the elected officials time to get familiar with the operation of city government.

Poolking: The mayor at the present time should be elected by the commissioners. The voters of Longwood should decide on four-year terms also. If the mayor has voting privileges.

9. Do you favor a charter change to provide for recall of city commissioners in accordance with state law?

Merilison: Yes.

Bullington: Yes. Florida statute provides that the majority has a voice. I submit that.

Lermann: Longwood has never had a need for a recall provision. If the voters believe that a recall provision is desirable, then I would not question their wisdom.

Hardy: I favor a change to the charter that will provide for recall of city commissioners.

Myers: I don't believe that Longwood has ever had the need for a recall provision but I am not opposed to adding this provision in our charter if the voters request it.

Poolking: The cost and time involved in removing a commissioner from office and justifying the removal possibly his or her term of office would be close to expiring.

10. What is the thing you like best about Longwood?

Merilison: The people.

Bullington: The enormous potential of quality growth while maintaining the flavor of the traditional "small town."

Lermann: I like everything about Longwood.

Hardy: I like the schools of Longwood more than anything else, because I'm a product of them. They reflect our youths' desire for a good education and are great assets to our community.

Myers: ... I like best about Longwood is that Longwood to me is home.

Poolking: Longwood is a small city and still has a small city air about it even though it is growing and has many problems to be solved.

Twins: Cards Can Run, But Cannot Hide

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A line used by former heavyweight champion Joe Louis to describe one of his ill-fated opponents is apropos to the situation facing the St. Louis Cardinals entering the sixth game of the World Series.

They can run, but they can't hide.

Although the Cardinals need only one more victory to win their 10th World Series championship, the Minnesota Twins would appear to have the upper hand as the Series switches back to the Metrodome Saturday. Orlando's WFTV-9 begins its coverage at 3:30 p.m.

Speed ruled in St. Louis; power rules in Minneapolis. The Twins have power; the Cardinals don't. Minnesota pounded the Cardinals at the Metrodome in the first two games of the Series and St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog realizes that championship ring is still a million miles away.

"I'd rather not be back here," Herzog said. "I wanted to split here and win three games in St. Louis. (Twins Manager) Tom Kelly said we were going for four in a row, but we wanted it to be the first four. I'd rather be up 3 to 2 than down 3 to 2, but it's still going to be tough."

The Twins did more than play the Cardinals tough in the first two games of the Series. They crushed them by scores of 10-1 and 8-4. It appeared after those two games this Series would be one of the most one-sided in history.

The Twins proved, however, they are a different club outdoors and not as menacing. At least not in a park like Busch Stadium with big dimensions.

They're more at home in the comfy confines of the Metrodome where routine fly balls outdoors become long home runs.

"Thankfully, we are going home," Minnesota pitcher Bert Blyleven said. "We need the fans cheering us and I know they'll be there. You know they are going to play a big part."

John Tudor, a left-hander who won Game 3, will start for the Cardinals today and Les Straker, a rookie right-hander who threw six shutout innings in Game 3, goes for the Twins.

Tudor admittedly does not like to pitch under such pressure, yet he performed admirably in the Game 3, which was a "must" win for the Cardinals.

"As I've mentioned before, a pitcher would have to be crazy when his team was on the brink of elimination. I'd much rather be pitching ahead. Either way it's not going to change how I approach the game. Everything I do will be the same regardless of how we stood going into the game."

Straker is trying to take a low key approach to what is the biggest start of his professional pitching career.

"I'll just try to pitch my ballgame," he said. "If we lose, we lose. If we win, we win. I'm not going to put pressure on myself. In St. Louis, I threw all three of my pitches for strikes. That's the key. Throwing strikes."

Although Straker pitched well against the Cardinals in his first outing, Kelly was quick to yank him after six innings. He said Straker's history indicated he was not a good pitcher after six innings. However, he never gave him the opportunity to disprove that assessment.

"What we will do with Les will depend on the score," Kelly said. "If we are ahead 9-0, I'm not going to take him out."

Herzog thinks Straker is a better pitcher than his record (8-10, 4.37 ERA during the season).

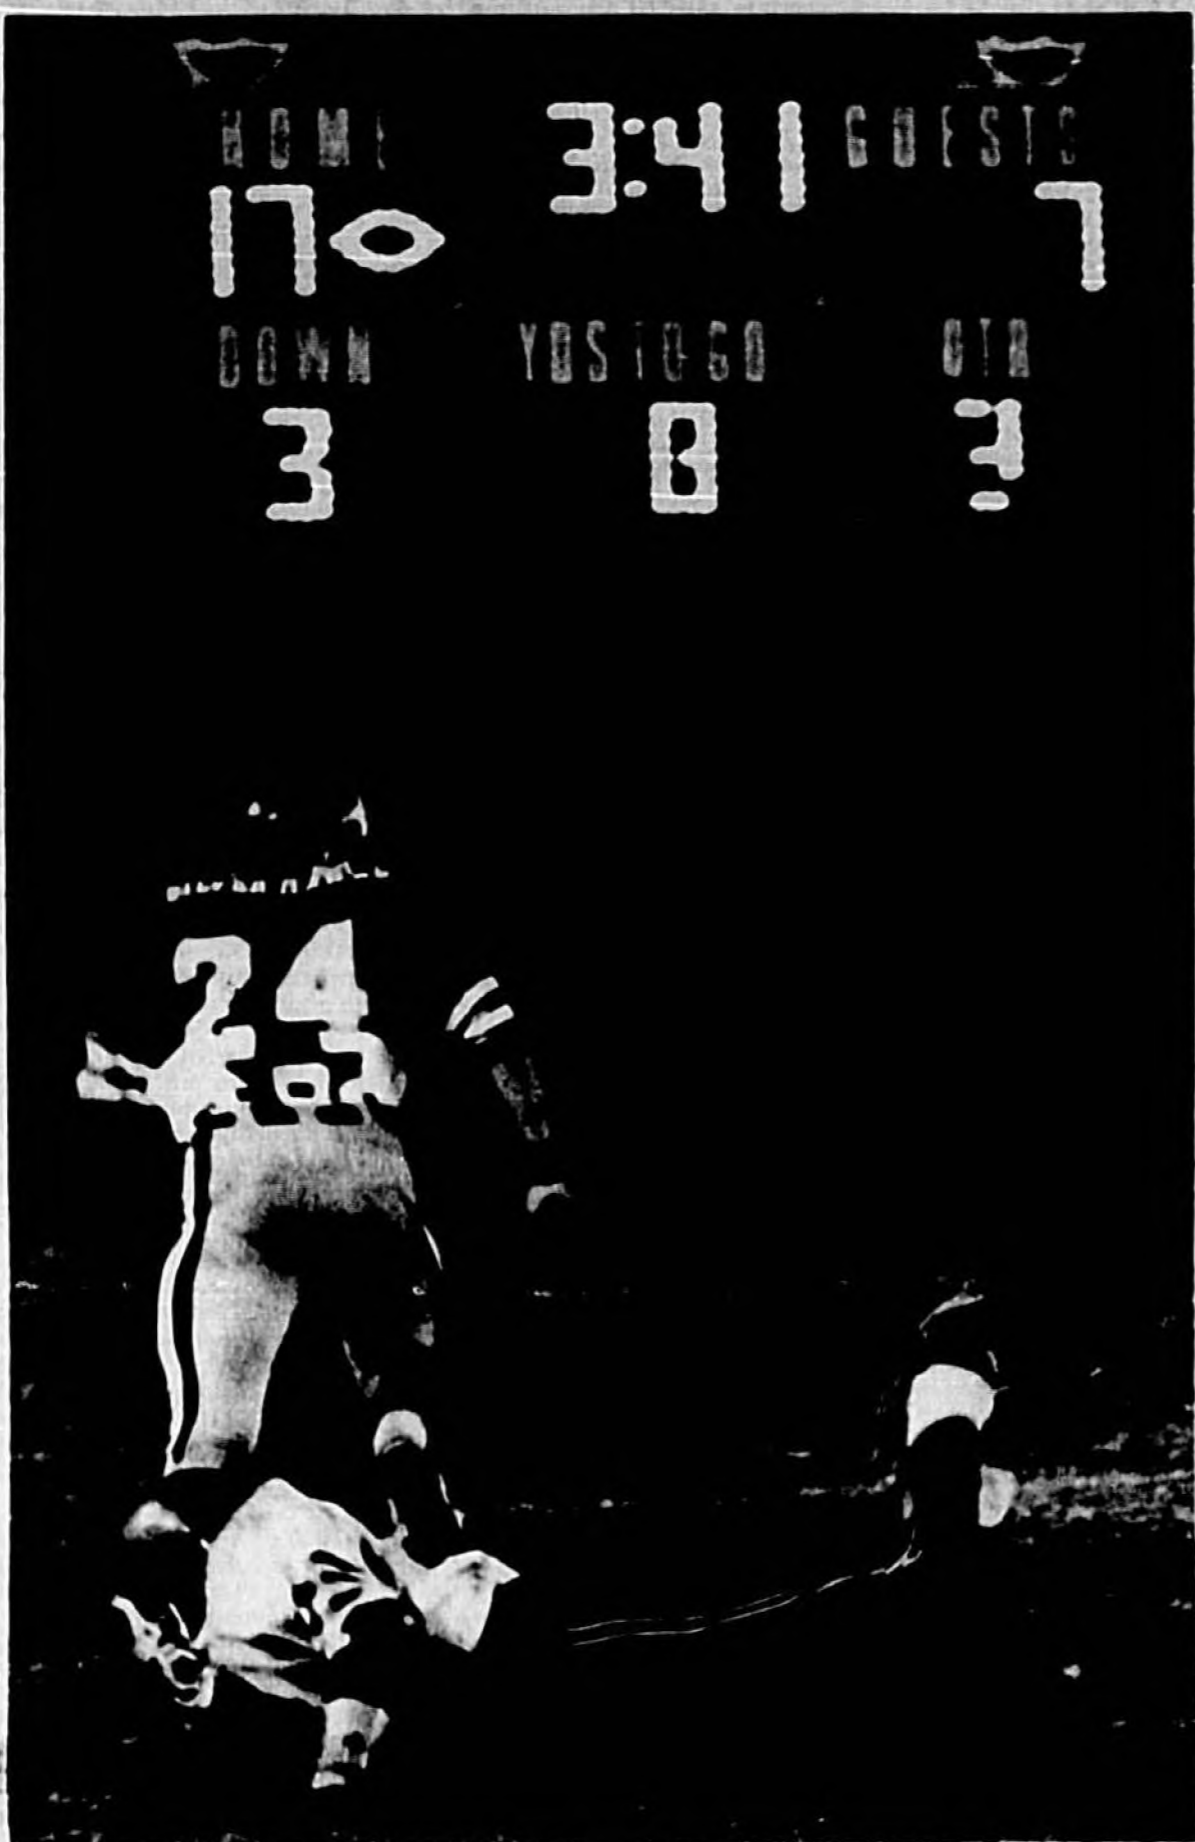

"He has a good change-up and a better than average major league fastball," Herzog said. "He's got a chance to be a pretty good big league pitcher."

Since the designated hitter will be used at the American League park, Herzog believes the Cardinals are at a disadvantage.

"I'd rather not have the DH," he said. "Not having it helped us in St. Louis. We got (Don) Baylor out of the lineup against Tudor and (Randy) Bush out against (Danny) Cox. It will definitely be a plus for them here."

Herzog is also worried about the opposite field power the Twins possess. At Busch Stadium that power was negated by the dimensions of the park. At the Metrodome, it's a different CASSELBERRY — Don't count out that defending conference and district champion just yet.

Lake Howell, which took a mandatory eight count after losing its first two games of the season, continued to bounce off the canvas Friday night, knocking out frontrunner Lake Mary, 24-15, in a crucial District 5A-4/Seminole Athletic Conference football game before 4,501 fans at Lake Howell High School.

"We're finally putting it together," Lake Howell quarterback Jeff Neace said. "I think we're going to win the rest of our games and the conference and district, too."

Neace put it together himself, completing 4 of 7 passes for 106 yards for two touchdowns without an interception.

Friday's victory was a step in the right direction. Lake Howell, which posted a 9-1 record last year en route to SAC and 5A-5 (3-way tie) titles, evened its overall record at 3-3. The Silver Hawks are 3-1 in District 5A-4 and 3-1 in the SAC. The victory also extended coach Mike Biacigla's hex over Rams' coach Harry Nelson to four wins in five confrontations. Lake Howell hosts Port Orange Spruce Creek next Friday.

The setback was Lake Mary's first in district/conference play and dropped the Rams to 3-1 in each. They are 4-2 overall with a big showdown against DeLand looming next Friday.

DeLand, 5-1 overall, squeaked past Lake Brantley, 14-13, in overtime Friday night to improve to 3-0 in the district and SAC. The Bulldogs lead the Rams and Hawks by one-half game.

"We could have done it the easy way (with a victory tonight)," Nelson said about his team's district/conference fortunes. "But we haven't done anything easy since I've been here."

The Rams adhered to that "never easy" philosophy Friday night. Lake Howell jumped to 10-0 and 17-7 (halftime) leads before extending the margin to 24-7 late in the third quarter. Lake Mary came back with a fourth-quarter touchdown and a two-point conversion to make it respectable.

The Hawks outrushed the usually ground-dominant Rams, 197-95. They also had a big edge in the kicking game where Erik Bird averaged 42.5 yards on two punts and continually sailed the ball into the end zone on his kickoffs, taking away the Rams' strong return game.

"I had worse butterflies before this game than any football or soccer game," Bird said. "But our offense and the defense were the reason we won. They played a great game."

Nelson begged to differ. "Their kicking game was fantastic," he said. "They had great kicks and great coverage. They kept putting us in the hole and we couldn't get ourselves out."

Bird, Neace and wide receiver Craig Derington put the Rams in the 10-0 hole. Bird drilled a 25-yard field goal with 6:50 left in the first quarter for a 3-0 edge.

Just over a quarter later, Neace found his favorite receiver Derington with a 48-yard scoring pass with 6:08 left in the first half. Bird's PAT pushed the lead to 10-0.

DELAND — Billy Knight's eight-yard overtime bootleg touchdown run and Greg Smith's PAT propelled DeLand to an exciting 14-13 Seminole Athletic Conference/District 5A-4 victory over Lake Brantley before 4,501 fans at Spec Martin Stadium.

"We had been running the dive inside all night," Knight, a gritty senior, said. "We figured that a good fake to the fullback would suck their defense in, and it did."

The victory was extremely important for the Bulldogs. The triumph boosts DeLand's record to 5-1 overall and 3-0 in the SAC and 5A-4.

The Lake Howell Silver Hawks gave the Bulldogs some help on Friday night as Howell upset Lake Mary, 24-15. Howell's victory has jammed up the district. DeLand is in the drivers' seat with a 3-0 district mark. Lake Mary and Lake Howell are both 3-1 in the district.

DeLand will play another crucial game next week when it travels to Lake Mary.

DeLand coach Dave Hiss, who is always quick to find faults with his team, was pleased with his team's effort. "This was the first game that we have played well for all four quarters," Hiss said. "This was undoubtedly the best performance of the season, and if we continue to play like this, we might just go somewhere."

The Patriots played well again, only to lose in the final moments. The heartbreaking setback drops Lake Brantley to 3-4 overall, 1-4 in the SAC, and 1-3 in 5A-4. The setback eliminated the Pats from any post-season competition. The loss also diminishes their bowl chances.

"We have nothing to be ashamed about," Lake Brantley assistant coach Gary Smith said. "Our kids played their hearts out, but we dropped another tough one. We'll be back, though. I'll guarantee it."

After Mark Sepe's one-yard touchdown plunge early in the third quarter tied the game at 7, the two teams played a hard-fought but scoreless fourth quarter.

Both teams had a chance to end the game in regulation, but DeLand's Smith missed field goals of 45 and 44 yards while Brantley's Bill Langston hooked a 35-yard field goal try with only 15 seconds left to play.

Brantley got the ball first in the Kansas Tiebreaker System. The Patriots didn't waste any time putting the ball in the end zone.

Halfback Johnnie Griffin darted up the middle for eight yards on first down. Sepe then bulled his way to the one. He scored on third down on a dive. But holder Scott Meredith and kicker Langston got their signals crossed on the PAT, and Langston's kick never got off the ground.

DeLand then got the ball and ran two straight dive plays that got them a yard each. On third-and-goal from the eight, Knight made a superb fake to fullback Neiko Pate. He rolled to his right and dove into the corner of the end zone for the score. Smith atoned for his missed field goals as he booted the winning PAT.

"We had been setting the play up (Knight's bootleg) all night," Hiss said. "We kept running our dive and I wanted to run it again. But the kids talked me out of it."

"Billy (Knight) said that the bootleg would work and I went with it," Hiss explained. "Maybe I should listen to the kids more often."

The game was a defensive struggle for the most part. The Bulldog defense held Brantley's offense, which had averaged over 300 yards a game, to 22 total yards.

"They have one of the best offenses that I have ever seen," Hiss said. "But our defense finally came around tonight."

Billy Martin, displaying the brashness of his four previous tours of duty, is confident his fifth time as Yankee manager will be a charm.

Combative Billy: Last Laugh Will Be Mine

N.L. Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three days after being named manager of the New York Yankees for a fifth time, Billy Martin Thursday displayed the combative attitudes that contributed to his previous dismissals.

Martin Monday was named to replace Lou Piniella, the man who took his job after the 1985 season. Piniella was named general manager and in their first public appearance since the move, both spoke about what has become a familiar theme: bringing the Yankees back to the form that made them the most successful team in the history of baseball.

Along with the confidence, however, Martin displayed the embattled stance that has characterized turbulent careers as both a player and a manager, and created a legacy of brawls and outbursts.

"I know Billy Martin, and I know every time I've been here we've been a winner, and the last laugh is going to be mine," he said Thursday.

Martin accused the media of "hashing things out that happened five or 10 years ago," and, asked if he had learned something from his previous dismissals, said he had not.

"I was fired and accepted it," he said. "I never complained about it; I took it like a man."

Martin first became Yankees manager in the middle of the 1975 season. The team won the American League pennant the following year and the World Series in 1977. He resigned in the middle of the 1978 season after saying that owner George Steinbrenner and then Yankee Reggie Jackson "deserve each other. One's a born liar, the other's convicted."

In 1979, Martin replaced Bob Lemon, who like Piniella had replaced him. Lemon, like Piniella, was made general manager and Martin was fired in October after fighting with a marshmallow salesman.

Martin managed the team again for the 1983 season and was fired after the team finished third in the AL East. Early in the 1985 season, he again replaced the man who had last taken his job, Yogi Berra. Martin, who Steinbrenner then said was brought in to restore discipline, was fired after the team finished second and he was involved in a late-season brawl with Yankees pitcher Ed Whitson.

"I feel real good again; I feel healthy again," said Martin, who also has managed Minnesota, Detroit, Texas and Oakland and compiled a 1213-988 managerial record. "I love the game and I think we're going to bring the world championship here."

Martin has won division titles with every team he has managed except for the Rangers. Piniella, the first man to manage the Yankees for two successive full seasons without bringing the team a pennant, said he was happy with his new job.

"I'm excited about my new responsibilities," said Piniella, whose club finished fourth after leading the AL East for most of the first half of the season. "I served as a field manager for a couple of years and that's going to pay big dividends — I'm familiar with the talent in the AL."

Both the manager and general manager said the team would look to make trades. However, Rickey Henderson, the team's explosive leadoff hitter who was at the center of much of the controversy between Steinbrenner and Piniella, probably will stay with the team.

"I'm not back to motivate Rickey Henderson," said Martin, who managed Henderson at Oakland and New York. "Rickey Henderson is a great ballplayer. He was hurt last year and he'll do what the other 24 players do — play hard for me."

IN BRIEF

Fast-Starting Devils Drop Islanders For Patrick Lead

United Press International

The New Jersey Devils have mastered fast starts, now they must learn to sustain the effort.

Their 5-3 victory over the New York Islanders Friday night put them atop the Patrick Division with their fastest start ever, and the home victory was a team record fourth straight. Still, only their first playoff appearance will make the fast beginning a success.

"I think it's a big factor for us to have a good home record," Devils captain Kirk Muller said. "It's a chance for everyone to have a lot more confidence and build up some wins right now. Now we're working on the road record."

Claude Loiselle scored a pair of goals and Bruce Driver had a goal and two assists to spark the Devils.

"We looked at the stats before the game and the Islanders have always scored the first goal," Driver said. "We took it to them and tried to jump on them right away. They haven't played from behind all year."

In other games, the New York Rangers whipped Chicago 7-3, Buffalo downed Montreal 5-3, Detroit stomped Pittsburgh 5-2, Winnipeg edged Los Angeles 4-3, and Edmonton nipped Vancouver 5-4 in overtime.

Bucks Tip Jittery Milan, 123-111

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Jittery over the prospects of playing an NBA team, Italy's Tracer Milan lost a chance at an upset in the first game of the McDonald's Basketball Open.

The Milwaukee Bucks took advantage of a nervous Tracer club Friday night to grab a 37-12 first-quarter lead. The Italian club then outscored the Bucks in each of the final three quarters to drop a 123-111 decision.

The Bucks' largest lead was 56-26 midway through the second quarter when Charles Davis scored on a layup. After that, Tracer outscored Milwaukee 85-67 to close within 109-100 with 4:29 remaining in the game.

Tracer was led by three-time NBA scoring leader Bob McAdoo, who contributed 37 points.

"I think it was a nervous factor with some of the Italians, probably at the beginning," McAdoo said of Tracer's slow start. "The whole celebration, just being in America for the first time for a lot of the players, plus a lot of the players in awe of the NBA players" made them nervous.

Sutton's Sizzling 62 Tops Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Hal Sutton may be a true believer in interpreting dreams Friday after his second round at the $600,000 Tucson Open.

"My girlfriend had a dream last night," Sutton said. "She was in a fitness center and I came in and told her I shot a round so low that she didn't believe me. Boy, is she going to be surprised when I tell her what I shot today."

That's because Sutton broke the course record with a sizzling 10-under-par 62 at the 7,010-yard, par-72 Tournament Players Club at StarPass, eclipsing the old mark set hours earlier by Payne Stewart.

Sutton finished with a two-day total of 13-under-par 131, good for a one-stroke lead over Bill Sander, who had a second-round 64 to finish at 132.

Shriver Ousts Maleeva 6-2, 6-1

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Top seed Pam Shriver advanced to the semifinals of a $200,000 women's tennis tournament Friday, ousting Bulgaria's Katerina Maleeva 6-2, 6-1.

Shriver, of Lutherville, Md., is scheduled to lead the U.S. Wightman Cup team against Britain next week in Williamsburg, Va. In the semifinals, she faces Kathy Jordan. Jordan Friday beat Italian Sandra Cecchini 6-1, 6-3 in the quarterfinals.

Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova grabbed a semifinal berth with a 6-3, 5-7, 6-1 victory over West German left-hander Sylvia Hanika. Sukova will face Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, whose opponent, West German Bettina Bunge, retired with a pulled thigh muscle.

Daggett Stable After Fracture

ROTTERDAM, Holland (UPI) — American Olympic gold medalist Tim Daggett will be hospitalized at least 10 days after fracturing his leg Thursday night at the World Gymnastics Championships, U.S. officials said today.

Daggett, 25, suffered the injury with a bad dismount from the vaulting horse as he finished his free-style exercise. The gymnast was taken to Dijkzigt hospital where doctors said he suffered fractures in both bones of the lower left leg and a rupture of a major artery.

Daggett was reported in stable condition after undergoing surgery, but U.S. Assistant Coach Jim Howard said the Olympian would remain immobilized for about 10 days.

Romania Wins Gymnastics Title

ROTTERDAM, Holland (UPI) — Romania edged the Soviet Union to capture the overall women's title Friday at the World Gymnastics Championships, while the United States finished sixth.

Romania, paced by three 10's by Aurelia Dobre, finished with 395.400 points to edge the Soviets, who ended with 394.950. East Germany was third, followed by China, Bulgaria and the United States.

The U.S. team was sixth after the compulsory competition following a disappointing performance by Kristie Phillips, the overall winner at the Pan American Games in August.

Kalambay Decisions Barkley

LIVORNO, Italy (UPI) — Sumbu Kalambay, a naturalized Italian, saved strength for late rounds and claimed the vacant World Boxing Association middleweight title Friday night with a 15-round unanimous decision over Iran Barkley.

Judges scored the fight 147-140, 147-140 and 147-142, giving Kalambay the title left vacant when Ray Leonard retired.

Kalambay, 159 pounds, improved to 43-3-1. Barkley, of New York, weighed 153 and spent much of the day attempting to add weight. He fell to 22-4.

Charles' 67 Grabs Vegas Lead

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Left-hander Bob Charles fired a 5-under-par 67 Friday to grab the first-round lead over a tightly bunched field in the $250,000 Las Vegas Senior Classic.

TOKYO (UPI) — Canadian Tom Walther died Friday in a six-motorcycle pileup during a practice run for an international race at Fuji International Speedway, police reported.

'Cardinal Baseball' Tag Irks Ozzie

By Richard L. Sheek
UPI Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS Who would believe in St. Louis that Ozzie Smith might be a little too defensive?

It seems as though "The Wizard of Oz" has taken more time during the "World Series" expressing irritation at Cardinal critics than he has making those excellent plays for which he is so well known.

Smith is irked by all the references to "Cardinal Baseball" and "Cardinal Runs" he keeps hearing and reading about every time St. Louis or Minnesota scratches out a run.

"It's like people think we're the only team that scores runs this way," Smith said Thursday night after St. Louis' 4-2 triumph in Game 5. "Oops, here I go again. It's like having to apologize for it."

"It's not Cardinal baseball. It's baseball. It really irks me. It's just baseball."

Why Smith should be so sensitive about the St. Louis offense is a little hard to fathom. As the shortstop himself points out it's the way the Los Angeles Dodgers used to win back in the mid-1960s, during the days of Don Drysdale, Sandy Koufax, Maury Wills and Lou Johnson.

Those were the days of 1-0, 2-1 and 3-2 games. Nobody is going to confuse John Tudor with Koufax or Danny Cox with Drysdale, yet St. Louis wins. So often, in fact, that Manager Whitey Herzog has had a dugout view of three World Series' in six seasons.

"If you look at our RBIs," Herzog says, "you'll see we score runs."

So many, in fact, the Cardinals led the league at mid-season and still finished second with Jack Clark missing most of the last month.

"Tommy (Herr) missed three weeks and he still drove in 83 runs," Herzog said. "Jack had 106, Willie (McGee) 106 and Terry (Pendleton) drove in 86 runs. So we score runs."

St. Louis leads the Series 3-2 after posting three straight triumphs at home and is only one victory away from a World Series title baseball fans deemed impossible only four days ago. And four weeks before that.

The Cardinals went back to the Metrodome Friday needing only one win in two games to steal their second World Series title in those six years.

And for this Ozzie Smith feels he's always apologizing?

"Is it bad because we have more speed than other people?" Smith asks. "Speed means the defense has to execute perfectly. Against speed, I have to cheat in a little defensively."

"We're just trying to do what we do. In doing what we do, people get flustered."

A... one of those people. It would appear, is Ozzie Smith.

The St. Louis speed and pro-creation offense is a Herzog creation. It is a byproduct of Busch Stadium and artificial turf.

But here is something as surprising as a changeup from Nolan Ryan on a 3-2 pitch — Herzog could just as easily play power baseball.

"I wouldn't be in favor of speed if I was managing in Fenway Park, the Metrodome or Tiger Stadium," he said. "In a small park, you can't win with speed. You've got to have the bombers."

But Busch Stadium with its big power alleys and billboard-like playing surface demand greyhounds to chase down balls the slower slugging outfielders would watch ricochet around the pool table until they finally went in the corner pocket.

So Herzog goes for the rabbits. And not too many World Class sprinters who fly down fly balls are built like Bo Jackson.

So the rabbits run. And run. And run until the hound drops. The Cardinals have stolen more than 200 bases in each of the last six seasons to make up for the fewer than 100 home runs the club is going to hit.

story. "Basically, in our park we take away the opposite field power," Herzog said. "I worry about that here. We pitch them a little bit different here. Twenty years ago I thought I'd like to be reincarnated as a woman. Now I'd like to be a Twins' outfielder after seeing the Dome. I think it's a pretty good place to be."

Thrift Move Forces Prine Resignation

N.L. Baseball

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Pirates President and chief executive officer Malcolm "Mac" Prine resigned Friday in the wake of a contract battle with General Manager Syd Thrift.

Prine announced his resignation at a news conference at Three Rivers Stadium.

"My primary interest is, and has been, the health and well-being of the Pittsburgh Pirates," Prine said. "The board of directors has determined that it is in the best interest of the Pittsburgh Pirates to retain Syd Thrift on the terms he requested. I accept that decision."

Thrift earlier in the week asked the board for permission to negotiate with other major-league teams because of a contract dispute with Prine. The dispute reportedly was over contract language that would have forced Thrift to seek Prine's permission to make many decisions, including any personnel moves.

Prine denied Thrift's proposed contract was different than the one he had been working under and said a newspaper article was instrumental in his decision to resign.

"The working arrangement proposed in the rehiring of Syd Thrift for the next two years was the same arrangement that had been in existence in the last two years," Prine said. "Every major-league trade recommendation made in the past two years by Syd Thrift was enthusiastically supported and approved by me. I want to make this point abundantly clear. I did not in the past and did not propose in the future to impose my influence on the makeup of the roster, including player trades." "Given the level of animosity openly expressed by Syd Thrift to (Pittsburgh Post-Gazette sports editor and columnist) Bruce Keldan and enhanced by his article, it is obvious that the necessary harmonious relationship cannot be achieved. I therefore will not be continuing with the Pittsburgh Pirates."

Oddly enough, a player once led the national Football League in BOTH being the best passer AND in intercepting the most passes the same season...Hall of Famer Sammy Baugh, active when players played both offense and defense, led the NFL in passing in 1943, playing quarterback on offense; and he led the league in intercepting the most passes that same year, playing safety on defense!

Ever wonder how many college football teams there are in the nation...There are 600 colleges that field football teams, and of those, 154 are classified as major-college teams.
One of the most amazing groups of brothers ever to play college football were the 3 Wister Brothers — Francis, Albert and Alvin — who played for the University of Michigan...ALL 3 were voted first-team All-Americans, an accomplishment never duplicated by 3 brothers on any level of collegiate competition...The 3 Wisters all played tackle, and all wore the number 11...They played at Michigan between 1931 and 1949.

Lyman Controls Spruce Creek, 20-7

Farrier's 199 Yards Rush Toward 1,000

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer
LONGWOOD — Lyman's Greyhounds controlled both lines of scrimmage Friday night en route to a 20-7 victory over Port Orange Spruce Creek's Hawks in District 5A-4 action before 2,101 fans at Lyman High.

The 'Hounds picked up 291 yards total offense, including 258 on the ground, while the defense had another solid game as it held the Creek to just 137 total yards.

"We felt this was a big game because Volusia County schools always play us tough," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "We had to go out and dominate some things and the kids did a good job."

It was the second victory in a row for the Greyhounds who improved to 4-2 overall and 1-2 in the district. Lyman is at Daytona Beach Mainland this Friday, Spruce Creek, which has lost four in a row, now stands at 3-4 overall and 1-2 in the district.

"I think we're in good shape now for the rest of the season," Scott said. "I don't think there's anyone remaining on our schedule who we can't beat."

Lyman turned a pair of Spruce Creek mistakes into an early 14-0 lead Friday night. The Hawks took the opening kickoff and got into Lyman territory when a clipping penalty backed them up 15 yards. On the next play, quarterback Paul Tomazin threw to a wide open Hugo Jeremia but Jeremia bobbled the ball and Dave Anderson intercepted for Lyman. Anderson returned the interception 16 yards for a first down at the Spruce Creek 16.

Steven Jerry picked up 11 yards on two carries for first and goal at the four and, two plays later, quarterback Mike McNamee followed center Shawn Martinson on a sneak for a two-yard touchdown. Greg Fulsang's extra point gave Lyman a 7-0 lead with 6:45 left in the first quarter.

The second big Spruce Creek mistake came early in the second period. The Creek's defense had just held Lyman short of a first down and Scott Radcliff punted the ball away. Spruce Creek, however, was called for roughing the kicker and the 15-yard penalty gave Lyman a first down at the Spruce Creek 39.

Four plays after the penalty, on a fourth-and-two, senior tailback Victor Farrier shot through a hole opened by the left side of the line and rambled 31 yards for the touchdown. Fulsang's kick gave Lyman a 14-0 lead with 7:30 left in the half.

"That was a quick counter dive and the line did an excellent job opening it up," Farrier said. "Spruce Creek had a pretty decent defense and they hit hard, but they also overpursued at times and we took advantage of it."

While Lyman scored its touchdowns after Spruce Creek mistakes, the Hawks took advantage of Lyman's first miscue of the night to pull within 14-7 late in the half.

Rushing — Lyman: Farrier 20/127, Jerry 9/41, Fulsang 2/16, Morse 4/4, McNamee 1/2, Luce 2/0. Spruce Creek: Tiller 19/114, Jackson 5/14, Anthony 1/0, Tomazin 5/minus 1.

Receiving — Lyman: Luce 1/14, Farrier 1/16, Lamb 1/5, Jerry 1/4; Spruce Creek: Garcia 1/10.

Lyman had a first down on its own 15 and Jerry picked up 12 yards up the middle but he fumbled at the end of the play and Eric Williams recovered for the Creek. Two plays later, Clarence Tiller bolted 29 yards for a touchdown and James Hilton added the PAT with 3:33 left in the half.

Farrier put Lyman in scoring position late in the half when he ran for 13 yards and took a shovel pass from McNamee and picked up 10 more. Lyman tried two long passes in the last six seconds but both were incomplete.

"We capitalized on a few mistakes they made to take the early lead," Scott said. "But we had a couple breakdowns that let them back in it. We came out and played solid football all-around in the second half."

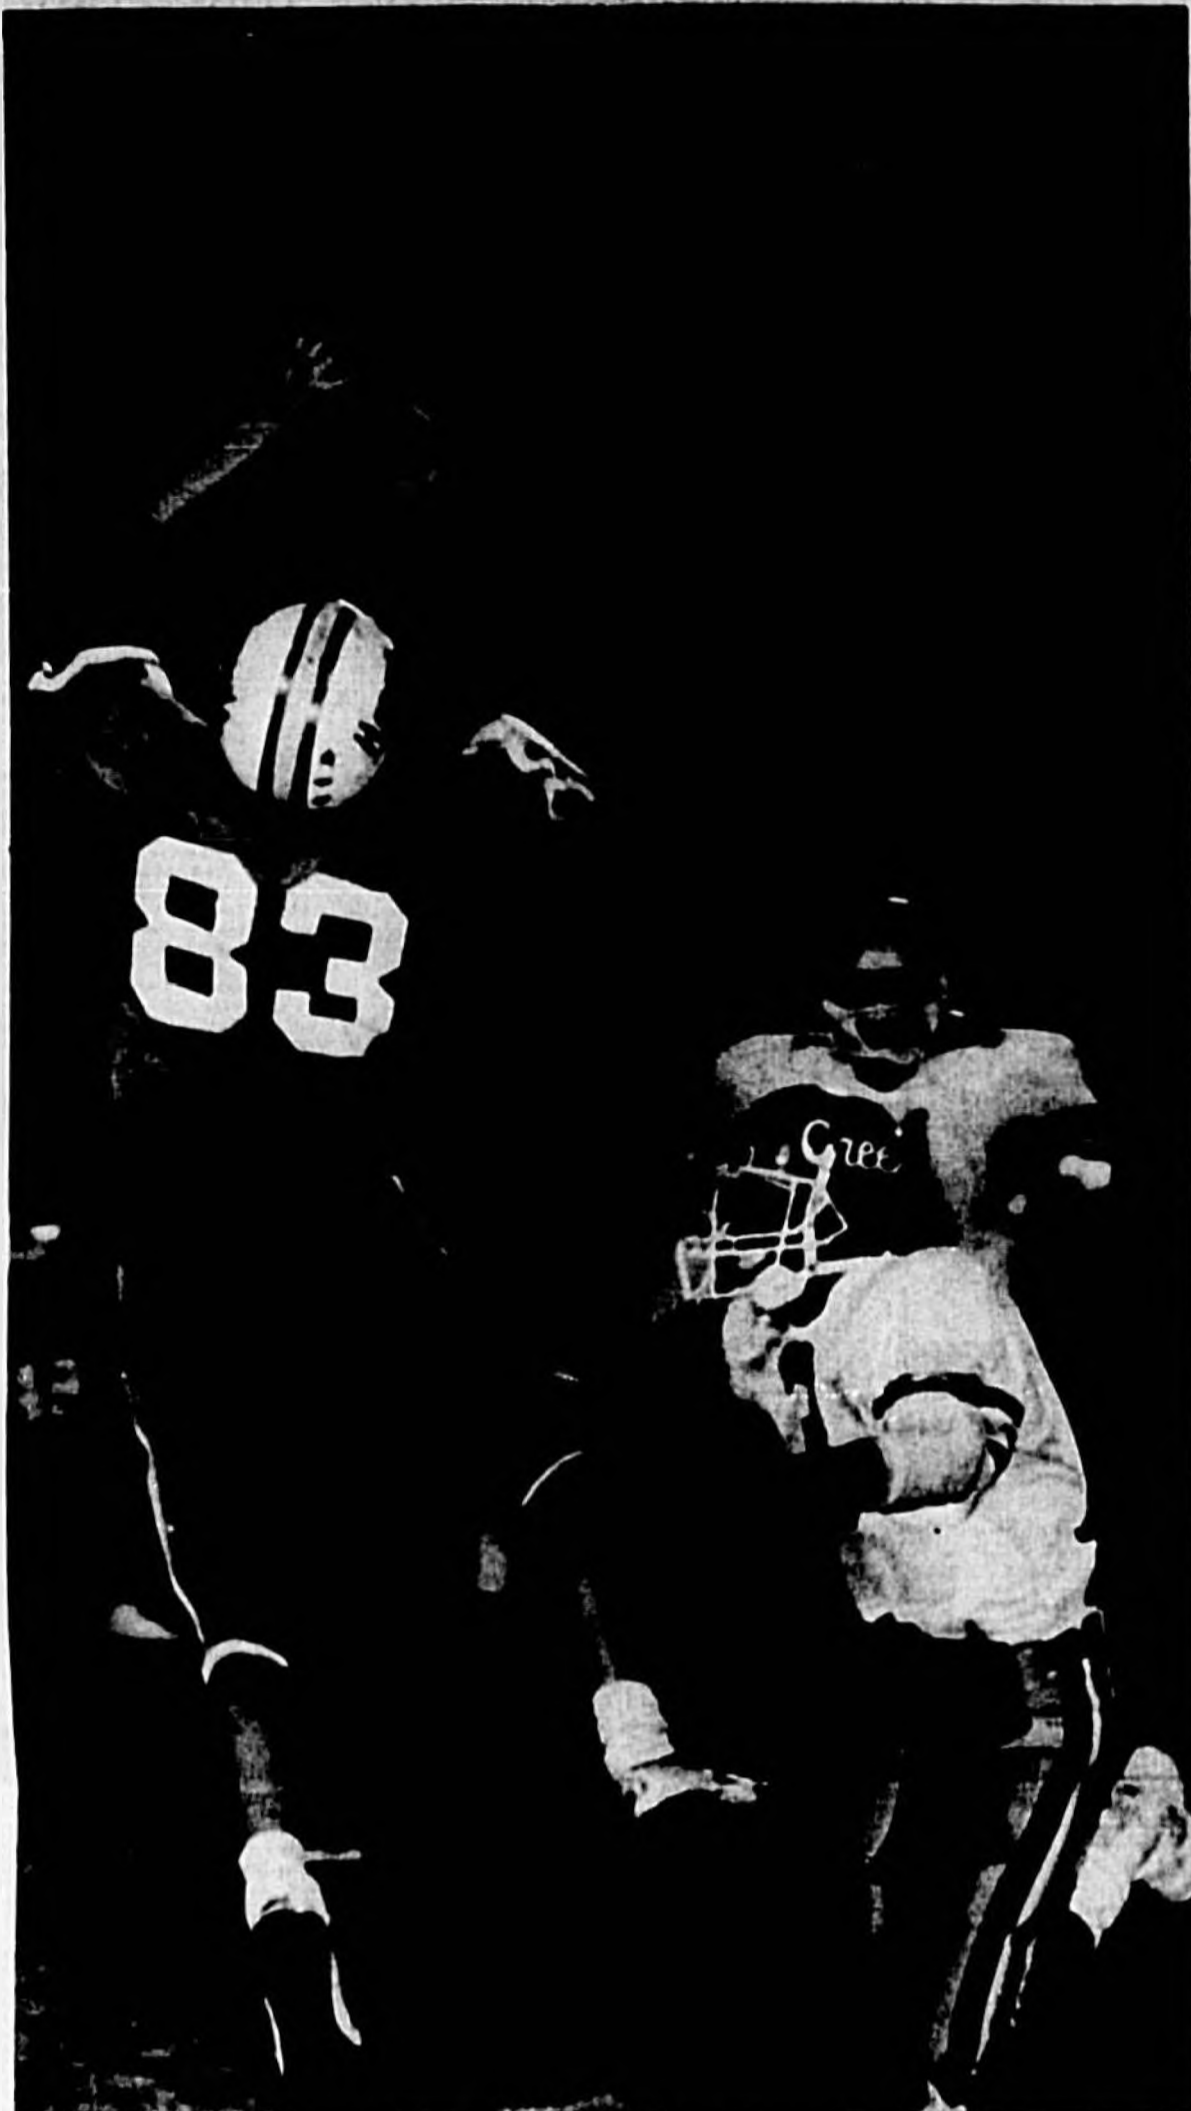

The Greyhounds dominated the second half as Spruce Creek had possession of the ball only six of the last 24 minutes and managed only three first downs in the half, one by penalty.

Lyman took the second half kickoff, marched 67 yards on 14 plays and took over nine minutes off the clock but the impressive drive ended in disappointment when Farrier, who had 11 carries for 55 yards on the drive, fumbled at the one-yard line and Wayne Moore recovered for Spruce Creek.

Spruce Creek got out of the hole via a Lyman facemask penalty, the Greyhounds' only penalty of the game, but the Lyman defense held the Creek without another first down. Lyman got the ball back with 44 seconds left in the third quarter and immediately mounted another scoring drive.

The drive started at the Lyman 31 and was ignited by Jerry's run of 18 yards and runs of 12 and eight yards by Farrier. Farrier capped off the drive and made up for his earlier fumble when he got good blocking up the middle, shook off several arm tackles and went 24 yards for his second TD. The conversion was no good when the holder mishandled the snap, but Lyman was in command, 20-7, with 9:29 left to play.

Spruce Creek's next drive ended when David Kendrick stopped Harris Anthony on a fourth-down reverse and Lyman then ran the clock down to 38 seconds before the Hawks got the ball again. Kendrick capped off another strong defensive effort by sacking Tomazin on the next play and the game ended with Tomazin throwing an interception to Lyman's Johnny Luce.

Lyman almost completely shut out the Creek's passing game as Tomazing was 0 for 6 with two interceptions and two others were 1 for 4 for 10 yards. Lyman also held the Creek to 127 yards rushing with Tiller's 114 yards the only bright spot on offense for the Hawks.

With his 199 yards, Farrier took over the Seminole County rushing lead as he now had 766 yards for the season. He also leads in the scoring department with 11 touchdowns. Behind Farrier for the 'Hounds, Jerry had 43 yards rushing and McNamee completed 4 of 7 passes for 33 yards and no interceptions.

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer
LONGWOOD — Lyman High's Victor Farrier may be a long way off his preseason personal goal of 2,000 yards rushing, but he took a big step toward the always-respectable 1,000-yard plateau Friday night.

Farrier, a 5-10, 180-pound senior tailback, slashed through Port Orange Spruce Creek's defense for 199 yards on 30 carries and scored two touchdowns in the Greyhounds' 20-7 victory at Lyman High. Farrier now has 766 yards rushing in six games (127.7 yards per game) and has scored 11 touchdowns.

"I may wind up a little short of the 2,000 I was looking for, but I'm closing in on 1,000 and I'll take that," Farrier said. "I have to give a lot of credit to the offensive line, they did an awesome job tonight."

Among Farrier's 30 carries Friday night were touchdown jaunts of 31 and 24 yards. The first TD, coming midway through the second quarter was a counter dive to the left side and Farrier exploded through a big hole opened by the line and ran untouched for the score.

"The line did a spectacular job on that play," Farrier said. "Once they opened the hole I had nothing but open field the rest of the way."

The Lyman offensive line played superbly all night as the Greyhounds practically ran at will on the Creek. Leading the offensive line charge were center Shawn Martinson, guards Jeff Croston and Matt Anderson, tackles John Spolaki and Dan McNeal and tight end Matt Lamb.

"The offensive line had a very good night," Lyman coach Bill Scott said. "And Victory (Farrier) did an excellent job running the ball. It took him 5 or 6 carries to get going, but he came on and did what he does best. He's not the quickest back around, but he's a good, slashing type runner."

Farrier's second score came with 9:29 left in the game and pretty much sealed the victory for the 'Hounds. This time, Farrier busted up the middle then shed several arm tackles by Spruce Creek en route to the end zone. It was also an important score for Farrier since the Greyhounds' first drive of the second half ended at the Spruce Creek one-yard line when Farrier fumbled.

"I was pretty upset at the fumble because we were ready to score," Farrier said.

Farrier, if he stays healthy and consistent, has an excellent shot at the 1,000-yard plateau. And, if the 'Hounds can move the ball the rest of the season like they did Friday night, they could very well end the season with an 8-2 record.

"I think we have the momentum now and we have a chance to win the rest of our games," Farrier said. "We'd definitely like to get into a bowl game."

Victor Farrier (48) struggles for an extra yard against Fulsang looks for someone else to block. Farrier rolled up Spruce Creek's David Nelson as Lyman teammates Greg Fulsang rushed 199 yards as the 'Hounds whipped Spruce Creek, 20-7, Friday.

ers in Central Florida. "I got underneath and Jeff threw it," Derrington said. "Sheldon just overran it and I beat (Carlos) Hartsfield to the end zone."

The Rams were down, but not out. After Bird kicked into the end zone, Hartsfield found Calvin Davis five yards behind the secondary for an 80-yard scoring bomb. Alex Birle's PAT pulled Lake Mary within 10-7 with 5:53 left in the first half.

Lake Howell, nevertheless, wasn't fazed by the 12-second flurry. The Hawks, running the 1-2 combination of Marquette Smith (19 rushes/80 yards) and Cornel Rigby (13 rushes/72 yards), marched 74 yards in 5:43.

On a third-and-goal at the Lake Mary 1-yard line, Smith was stacked up but extended his arms with the football to break the plane for the big score. Bird's PAT with 10 seconds left sent Howell into halftime with a 17-7 lead.

"I jumped up and somebody stopped me," Smith, a freshman, said. "I just reached the ball over the goal line."

"He's a little dynamo," senior guard Ken Joseph said about Smith. "We worked a lot on 5-3 and 4-4 defenses. We weren't surprised by anything they played."

Along with the offensive exploits, Howell's rugged defense — led by linebackers Todd Shockley and Jason Kotar along with defensive ends John Schultz and Greg Astle and defensive back David Dees — held Curry to 38 yards in eight attempts in the first half. The senior tailback finished with 85 yards on 17 attempts, most of the yards coming on Lake Mary's last drive.

"We were gang-tackling Curry. We had everybody on the ball," Kotar, who spelled injured LB Steve Ryan, said. "We knew we still had to play tough in the second half because they are a comeback team."

The comeback, however, never came. Neace found Bobby Lieflander for a 45-yard scoring loss, which once again caught Richards going the wrong way. Bird's PAT pushed the advantage to 24-7 with 3:36 left in the third quarter.

"He (Richards) just barely missed it with his finger tips," Lieflander said. "They're a good team, but we were better tonight."

Lake Mary marched 80 yards for its final touchdown. Hartsfield located Richards (5 receptions/49 yards) three times for 28 yards and Terry "The Cat" Miller once for 18 yards. The pass to Miller set up a 22-yard dash around the right end by Curry to the Lake Howell 8-yard line. Curry ran the same route for the touchdown on the next play. He also ran across the two-point conversion to pull the Rams within 24-15.

Lake Mary's last gasp came with 1:04 to play when Dees picked off Hartsfield for the second time at the Lake Howell 9. "The first interception we were in basic cover one and he just rolled away and I followed the ball," Dees, a three-year starter, said. "The second interception we were in a prevent defense. They only run one receiver long (Davis) and I just outjumped him."

And jumped back into the district/conference race.

Brantley Swallows Another Heartbreaker

By Scott Bander

DELAND — The Lake Brantley Patriots may be one of the best 5A football teams in state.

Brantley has swallowed more than its share of tough losses over the years, but none was tougher to digest than Friday night's heartbreaking 14-13 Seminole Athletic Conference/District 5A-4 overtime decision to DeLand.

The overtime loss was the second of the season for mixed up on the PAT, and Langston's kick never left the ball. It appeared as though the ball was falling forward when Langston kicked it.

DeLand won the game on quarterback Billy Knight's eight-yard touchdown run and Greg Smith's PAT gave the Bulldogs a 14-13 decision.

"Lake Brantley is probably one of the best football teams that I have seen in quite awhile," DeLand coach Dave Hiss said. "They are tough."

DeLand Nabs Lead As District 5A-4 Readies For Finish

By Sam Cook

CASSELBERRY — District 5A-4 is in for a dandy finish.

Three teams — DeLand, Lake Mary and Lake Howell — webbed tighter together Friday night as the battle for a state playoff spot opposite Jacksonville Sandalwood or Lake City Columbia intensified.

Lake Mary lost to Lake Howell, 24-15, and DeLand slipped past Lake Brantley, 14-13, in overtime.

DeLand resurfaced in first place with a 3-0 mark. Lake Mary and Lake Howell are just one-half game behind with 3-1 records.

DeLand is the defending 5A-4 champion. Lake Howell, which lost the 5A-5 title in a tiebreaker playoff to Apopka last year, was realigned with 5A-4 this year. Lake Mary won the district two years ago.

The 5A-4 winner has beaten the supposedly superior 5A-3 champion the past two years. This year, Sandalwood is ranked No. 8 and Columbia, coached by former Oviedo menter Joe Montgomery, is ranked No. 9 in the Class 5A State Prep Rankings. Columbia slipped past Jacksonville Raines, 17-14, Friday while Sandalwood had an open date.

Lake Howell has the easiest schedule of the three contenders.

Football

The Hawks host Port Orange Spruce Creek (2-5), a 20-7 loser to Lyman, next Friday. They conclude the district slate with hapless Daytona Beach Mainland (0-6) Friday, Nov. 6.

Combined, Creek and Mainland have lost their last 11 games and the Hawks are pretty much assured of a 5-1 district record.

"We need somebody to beat DeLand," Bisceglia said. "That would force a three-way tie."

That somebody could be Lake Mary. The Rams host the Bulldogs Friday. A Lake Mary victory could pave the way for a playoff tiebreaker among the three teams. A DeLand victory moves coach Dave Hiss' Dawgs closer to a second successive title.

Lake Mary concludes 5A-4 competition against Mainland Friday (Nov. 13). Coach Harry Nelson's Rams are assured of a 5-1 mark if they beat DeLand. The Bulldogs, though, still must face Spruce Creek (Thursday, Nov. 5) and a tough Lyman club (Friday, Nov. 13). DeLand easily has the toughest row to hoe.

"DeLand got a big win against Lake Howell," Nelson said. "If they beat us, too, they deserve the district championship."

The Brantley defense played well as it bent, but didn't break. DeLand accumulated 213 rushing yards, but the Patriot defense was stingy. "I have no complaints about the way that our defense played," Smith said. "They did everything that we asked of them, and more."

Sepe, who came into the game with 445 yards, led the way for Brantley as the bulldozing fullback picked up 79 yards on 17 carries. Griffin added 24 while halfback Jeff Bynum chipped in with 20.

Fullback Pete led the DeLand's offense as the junior chalked up 84 yards on 12 carries. Lenard Shaw, a speedy senior, helped out with 79 yards on nine tries, including a 45-yard touchdown jaunt.

Neither quarterback was very effective. Brantley quarterback Clint Johnson went 7 for 22 for 82 yards. The maturing sophomore threw one touchdown pass and an interception. Knight, a southpaw, was 8 for 12 for 56 yards and an interception.

The Patriots had more than their share of chances to score. After taking the ball at their own 43 and moving to the DeLand 7 late in the first quarter, Bynum was hit behind the line and coughed up the ball. Johnny Gilbert recovered the loose pigskin for the Bulldogs.

The Patriots also had another opportunity to score before halftime. They marched from their own 45 to the DeLand 10, but Johnson was picked off by Reggie Bryan in the end zone.

"We did have a lot of good chances," Smith said. "But we just couldn't put it in."

After a scoreless first quarter, DeLand got on the board first. Bynum's fumble gave the Bulldogs the ball at their own 1. DeLand slowly moved the ball upfield until Shaw broke loose on a 45-yard touchdown run, capping a 99-yard drive.

"They caught us in a blitz," Smith said. "Our guy got caught, and the kid (Shaw) broke free."

"I couldn't believe how open it was," Shaw said. "My eyes just lit up." Smith's PAT made the halftime score 7-0.

The Patriots took the second half kickoff and marched 85 yards in seven plays to tie the game at 7. The drive was aided by a DeLand facemask penalty. Griffin culminated the drive when Johnson hit him with a 13-yard touchdown strike. Langston's PAT tied the score.

After Smith missed a pair of field goals, it appeared that the Patriots had a chance to win the game in the final moments. After Smith's miss, Brantley got the ball at its 20 with six minutes to play.

The Patriots moved the ball to the DeLand 20. With 15 seconds left, Brantley coach Fred Almon decided to go for the winning field goal on first down. But Langston's kick sailed well wide to the left.

"We easily could have won several of the games that we have lost this season," Smith said. "But things just haven't gone our way."

Judge To Hear Final Highsmith Arguments

MIAMI (UPI) — A Dade County Circuit judge will hear final arguments Saturday in a case to determine whether fullback Alonzo Highsmith is a free agent and eligible to conduct negotiations with all 28 NFL teams.

An attorney for Highsmith, who was a star running back for the Miami Hurricanes and the No. 1 draft pick of the Houston Oilers, argued before Judge George Orr that the collective bargaining agreement between the league and the NFL Players Association does not pertain to his client.

Attorney Bruce Greer also said NFL clubs conspire to fix salaries paid to rookies through the development of a pay scale based on their position in the draft.

Paul Tagliabue, an attorney for the NFL, said Friday previous challenges to collective bargaining agreements have led federal courts to rule labor unions have the right to negotiate on the behalf of future employees. Another attorney for the NFL, Hugo Black, said the anti-trust issues raised by Greer do not apply in this case, and the Dade County Circuit Court has no jurisdiction in the case.

Dade County Circuit Court Judge John Gale issued a temporary injunction last Saturday making Highsmith a free agent. Orr will hear closing arguments today, then decide whether the injunction should stay in effect.

Greer accused Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg of fraud because he twice met with Highsmith, the third player selected in last spring's NFL draft, without the presence of agent Robert Fraley. Herzeg met with Highsmith once in Houston, and once in Tallahassee with Highsmith's father, Walter. Highsmith is the defensive coordinator at Florida A&M in Tallahassee.

Football

and Riley is the head coach.

Highsmith and the Oilers have been unable to come to a contract agreement. Testimony from Herzeg and Fraley showed at one point, the sides were about $200,000 apart, but Highsmith has since increased his price by $500,000.

Greer said Highsmith is not covered by the league's collective bargaining agreement. He based his argument on a clause in the preamble to the contract between the league and the NFL Players Association saying the NFLPA represents all present and future players, excluding "all players, under contract or not, who have not reported to official preseason training camps."

Highsmith has not reported to the Oilers training camp since it opened in July. Under that interpretation, all college players would become free agents if they failed to report to training camp. Highsmith said he is not challenging the legality of the draft, and the injunction covers only this particular case.

However, if Highsmith is successful in obtaining free agency, other unsigned No. 1 picks, including Cornelius Bennett of the Colts and quarterback Chris Miller of Atlanta, could follow suit.

Greer also argued the Oilers were not fairly bargaining with Highsmith, and there was an effort among NFL owners to pay draftees according to a pre-set scale, and not on an individual basis.

DICKERSON WANTS OUT OF LA

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Rams running back Eric Dickerson, disgruntled over a final contract offer, says he no longer cares about the money and wants to be traded.

Dickerson is making $682,000 a season under the terms of a contract that expires at the end of the 1989 season. He is unhappy that the Rams will not meet his demands for $1.1 million over three years or $1.6 million over four.

The Rams have offered $957,000 a season over three years and nearly $1.1 million over four.

"You know how I feel about it," Dickerson said Thursday. "My feelings are that I want out, that's it. I don't want any more money. I just want out."

Working out on the practice field with the second team in the rain, Dickerson said he probably will play "some" against the Browns in Cleveland Monday night. Rams Coach John Robinson declined to say whether Dickerson or tailback Charles White would start.

"We'll make an announcement on that," Robinson said.

Dickerson said he wants to be traded "to where I can have fun again, and feel appreciated." The running back has mentioned Buffalo, Chicago, Denver and Washington as teams for which he would like to play.

Bobby Beathard, the Redskins general manager, said Thursday he had not contacted the Rams about a trade.

"I won't even say we'd be interested because I think this is a contract matter (between Dickerson and the Rams)," Beathard said.

'Tiptoe Through The Tulips'

Tiny Tim Falls From Top In Showbiz To Performing Under The Big Top

By Susan Leden
Herald Staff Writer

Tiny Tim, the perennial troubadour who tiptoed through the tulips to national fame and fortune in the late 1960s with his falsetto, revival rendition of "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," is still tramping along.

Although his tulip-stained toes now tread on the bottom of the showbiz ladder as he sings for his supper with a traveling circus, Tiny Tim, who is scheduled to perform in Sanford on Monday, is sharply attune to the ups and downs of show business. And he always holds hope that the executives who control the business may someday again see him as a potential money-maker and take him on a heady trip to the top.

Despite his fantasy character image, including long, dark, stringy hair and white-face makeup, Tiny Tim is surprisingly realistic and down to earth when he admits in a gravelly voice, "I'm not Madonna," and calls himself a "has been."

Although his career has bottomed out, Tiny Tim said he takes pride in the fact that he was the trend setter as early as 1954 for later arrivals, Kiss, Alice Cooper and Boy George who all copied his white makeup and long dark hair. Tiny Tim said his hair was long even before the Beatles came on the scene to establish the style of long hair for Western men and boys.

It was a steep fall from the top and his path through the tulip patch has been anything but rosy since his career peaked Dec. 17, 1969, when Tiny Tim, before "The Johnny Carson Show" audience of 40 million married his teenage bride "Miss Vicki." The Los Angeles Times reported that downtown traffic stopped at the moment Tiny Tim said "I do."

It was the equivalent of an America "royal" wedding with more than a bit of camp added. On his wedding day Tiny Tim was riding the crest of fame won with his 1968 Warner-Reprise Records contract that gave the world his first album "God Bless Tiny Tim," featuring his top hit "Tiptoe Through the Tulips."

"The World Almanac" gives April 12, 1925 as Tiny Tim's birth date. He was born in New York City and adopted Tiny Tim as his stage name.

As a youngster, he was enthralled with the scratchy early recordings of Rudy Vallee whom he learned to emulate. Tiny Tim also perfected the unique sounds of Bing Crosby, Elvis Presley and Bob Dylan, and made their songs his own while he transformed his own voice into an image of theirs.

After decades as a small time performer, accompanying himself by strumming on a ukulele, Tiny Tim was spotted performing in a small New York City club in 1968 and offered a recording contract which led first to an appearance on Rowan and Martin's "Laugh In," and on to numerous appearances with Johnny Carson as well as on other talk and variety shows. He was a headliner in Las Vegas where Tiny Tim performed nightly at Caesar's Palace to a standing room only crowd.

But shortly after his marriage, the novelty wore off. The honeymoon with Miss Vicki was over and although she became the mother of Tiny Tim's daughter, Tulp, who is now 16,

Tiny Tim to 'Tiptoe Through the Tulips' with circus in Sanford Monday

Tiny Tim tiptoed on through the tulips leaving behind Miss Vicki who was no longer enamored with this fading star.

Tiny Tim was back to his humble beginnings, performing in small clubs. In 1976 he made his first visit to Sanford to perform in a theater. "I had a good 50 people there," he said. Tiny Tim added that he is looking forward to his return to Sanford for performances scheduled with Allan C. Hill's Great American Circus.

The circus will set up on showgrounds on W. State Road 46 at Bever Road, Sanford, with shows scheduled for 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Monday. Tickets, which include Tiny Tim's performance along with other circus acts, are $5 for children and $7 for adults.

"I never had no desire to see the circus or to run away and join the circus," Tiny Tim said. "I went to one in the 1930s and that was it. Now, I've seen the great life and the tough life circus people live. I'm glad to have done this."

Tiny Tim joined the circus in 1984 but has to take three-year breaks in his travels with the circus so he won't play to the same audience year after year, he said. "This is a rare thing," he said of his tour. "I've made more than 6,000 new fans who don't know who I am. I've shown you don't have to be an elephant trainer to join the circus. Singers can join the circus. I can't complain."

"The new audience is a little curious. If the show goes over good, kids come up and shake my hand. Some say, 'You need singing lessons.' Some say, 'I never heard of you.' I say, 'You never heard of me?'"

From March to November, Tiny Tim treks along with the circus hitting 250 cities playing two shows each day, seven days a week.

It's a grueling pace, and at every stop Tiny Tim sings out "Tiptoe Through the Tulips." It's a song he never tires of, after all. "It's my bread and butter," he said.

Tiny Tim said his success was sweet, but it's a bitter experience to fall. "It's hard to fall. Absolutely anyone who tells you it's not is lying. The minute you fall, Walter Winchell said, 'You're cold a long, long time.'"

It's a hard lesson many performers, such as Suzanne Sommers and Valerie Harper, learn when they ask for a raise, Tiny Tim said.

No matter how big the star, the millionaires who control show business can always replace them, Tiny Tim said.

He does have hopes of a comeback with the debut in 1988 of his first feature film, "Blood Harvest," directed by Bill Rebane, whom Tiny Tim said had a $20 million smash hit in the 1970s with "Invasion of the Giant Spiders." Rebane also directed "Capture of Bigfoot," he said.

In "Blood Harvest," Tiny Tim plays an insane clown. He's the only name star in the film, but said that it just may be a road back to fame and fortune.

His family life, too, took a sad turn. Tiny Tim said he last saw his daughter, Tulp, when she was about two years old. Although he said he has heard that she has seen him perform, she doesn't communicate with him. Tiny Tim said that he heard that early this year Tulp gave birth to his grandchild, but he has had no real news of that event. He said Miss Vicki recently married for a third time. Tiny Tim remains single.

He said he worries that Tulp doesn't get the parental attention she needs, and said she is quiet and shy.

Tiny Tim said that he too was once quiet and shy. "I think beer is how I broke out of that. After four beers I lose my shyness."

As for his greatest ambition, Tiny Tim said, "I'd like to go into outer space. I've always wanted to see the moon. It's always fascinated me."

It feels good he said to be a part of American history. And it feels even better to hear the applause of an audience that appreciates his unique act.

The show must go on, be it under the big top or in a tiny club. Tiny Tim just can't make it out of the tulip patch and doesn't want to. He only wishes that once again the spotlight might shine a bit brighter for him.

Race Tracks Owner Collins Gives $600,000 For Uf Chair

Jerry Collins of Sarasota and Maitland, owner of two greyhound race tracks in Central Florida, has donated $600,000 to establish an Eminent Scholar Chair at the University of Florida College of Veterinary Medicine.

UF President Marshall Criser announced the gift at the recent inaugural meeting of the university's National Campaign Council, which will oversee a five-year, $200 million capital drive for the university.

Dr. Kirk Gelatt, dean of the veterinary medical college, said Collins is a strong supporter of higher education and a man with a long history of philanthropic interests.

"Collins has been a friend for a long time and a strong supporter of our college programs," Gelatt said. "He also felt this gift would be a good way to enhance the greyhound racing industry."

A state representative from 1943 to 1949, Collins serves as a member of the College of Veterinary Medicine's Advisory Council and has promoted the college among both his colleagues in the greyhound industry and friends in state government.

Gelatt said the college's involvement in greyhound research also is being strengthened with the opening of a newly completed quarter-mile greyhound research track, located immediately east of UF's Veterinary Medical Teaching Hospital. The track is the first research dog track in the world. It will be used to investigate the effects of different track surfaces on the greyhound's legs and joints, as well as to study the physiological and biochemical effects of racing.

Collins' donation is being matched with $420,000 from the state's Eminent Scholar Trust Fund, to establish an endowment of $1.02 million, one of the largest gifts received by the College of Veterinary Medicine.

The college is the only veterinary school in Florida and one of 27 in the nation. Now in its 11th year, the college has made a major impact statewide and nationally, on improving the diagnosis and treatment of diseases affecting livestock, horses, small animals, wildlife and marine animals.

In And Around Lake Mary-Longwood Star Strutters Show Corps Available To Entertain

"Star Strutters Show Corps," a newly formed non-profit Baton and Dance team, is the latest addition to the Lake Mary Dance Academy in Driftwood Village.

The Corps was created and established so that organizations, fund raisers and parades could have available, eager entertainers to perform for them.

Karen Capoun, owner and director of the dance academy and director of the dance team, has a lengthy list of credentials to be proud of.

Among those, she was a dance major at the University of Nebraska, dance instructor at Palmer School of Dance, in Lincoln, Neb., for eight years, owner of her own studio in Schuyler, and instructed dance at Doane College, also Platte College, all in Nebraska.

Karen was also an assistant choreographer and danced in shows with George Burns, Bob Hope, Donny and Marie Osmond, Captain and Tenille and Jack Jones.

Barb Davis, baton specialist, teaches classes from ages 4-15. She was a member of two majorette and drum corps from the Baltimore, Md. area. The Arbutus Sallorettes and the Landsdowne Stardettes were a principal part of her life over eight years.

The combination of these two experienced instructors, along with the talented students, will offer a great deal to their audience.

You can catch a glimpse of Karen and members of the Dance Academy Oct. 25 at Heathrow. They plan to entertain the festival crowds with dances from her '86 recital. Join them at 4:30 p.m., Stage B, for a real treat.

Jean Young Sessions, M.D., has joined the Medical Staff of HCA West Lake Hospital in Longwood. The regular meeting of the Civic Improvement Association will be 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26 at the CIA building on Country Club Road in Lake Mary. Election of officers will take place. All members are encouraged to attend, as well as the public.

The Greenwood Lakes Middle School PTA has begun its annual fund-raiser. The students will be selling the "Gourmet Buffet" and "European Old World Treasures," a crystal collection. The profits from this sale will be reverted back into the school for band uniforms and landscaping which were two of last year's projects. All orders and monies will be turned in on Oct. 26. Product delivery will be the week of Nov. 9.

Also at Greenwood Lakes is a new group of seventh and eighth graders who have formed the "Young Astronauts Club." Meeting every other week to do various activities related to the NASA program, they now are excited about being able to attend "Space Camp." This program is held each year in Huntsville, Ala., and is a week full of adventure, and portrays the real life work of "today astronauts." It is truly the experience of a lifetime for these kids and they will begin trying to raise funds on Oct. 31, by having a car wash at the Burger King on Lake Mary Boulevard.

Burger King will offer a free French fry order to all car wash recipients.

Young Astronauts will also begin selling tickets today for their big car wash and bake sale, at the school, to be held on Nov. 14. Cost is $2.50 for a wash and $5 for an additional vacuum, clean up and window wash. Any support for this group would be greatly appreciated as these youngsters are hoping for the opportunity that comes only once.

Please call Debbie Roberts at 321-7560 ext. 113 between the hours of 8:30-3:30 for more information, or if you'd care to help in any way.

Lake Mary Elementary has incorporated two important special programs within the classroom in music, media and even physical education to benefit our children.

The first, "Just Say No," will help them learn the short and long ramifications of drug habits. Also to identify positive alternatives to drugs and develop patterns for saying no. "Kids will be learning how to make wise decisions about their own lives," says Elizabeth Paul, school principal. Having started on Oct. 19th, it continues through Oct. 29.

Another project, already in the works, called "Book It," will last until the end of February. The children set their own goals, to read on their own, as many books as they can during a month's time.

Pizza Hut will award a free Pan Pizza to that child, upon reaching their goal at the end of the month. If a full classroom secures its goal, four out of the five months of the program, a full-scale Pizza Party, again from Pizza Hut, will be the prize.

Tangible results as incentives may just be the motivation that creates as desire for our children to choose reading over other types of recreation.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

DR. A.W. WOODALL CHIROPRACTOR

NECK STRAIN

You may take your neck for granted, but you shouldn't. It is one of the most important parts of your body. Composed of seven small bones or vertebrae and supported by muscles and ligaments, your neck must hold and balance a head that weighs approximately 10 pounds.

This makes the neck susceptible to stresses and strains from many sources. It may react traumatically to seemingly minor accidents or falls. Some authorities say the neck is strained more frequently than any other part of the body.

Any misalignments in your neck may cause pain and discomfort because of an interference with the normal functioning of your body's nervous system. The neck is next to the brain, the source of your body's nerve impulses. They travel from the brain through the neck and spinal cord to all parts of your body.

Through gentle manipulation and other therapies, the doctor of chiropractic works to correct any misalignments, restoring your body's structural balance and allowing your nervous system to function unimpeded.

Breast Check

WHAT IS SCREENING MAMMOGRAPHY?

Mammography is a simple X-ray examination of the breast to detect breast cancer before it can be detected by your own examination or your doctor's examination. With breast self examination it affords you the best chance to detect breast cancer early, while it's still curable.

The Breast/Check network understands the needs of ladies to have a place to feel secure and private while having a mammogram. You'll find that our facilities meet these needs, if not surpassing. For a Breast/Check, you don't need a physician's order. But remember, the Breast/Check isn't for everyone, only those ladies who need a baseline or routine examination. If you have a new lump or other problem, check with your doctor or ask for a diagnostic examination, also available from the Breast/Check network.

The Breast/Check screening examination... $45.

Betty and Bill Jack have returned from an exciting 10 days in the Hong Kong area. The Jacks were the lucky recipients of the trip from Rheem for excelling in sales.

The couple had a choice of two other locations to visit—Australia and Portugal. But they selected Hong-Kong.

Out of all their travels Betty said, "This is the best time we ever had. The people in China are friendly to Americans. We went into Red China, and they were friendly, too. Red China is a beautiful place to visit."

She mentioned visiting poverty-stricken "boat people" (who seem perfectly content with their lot) as well as the so-called rich, who, by American standards, are not that well off.

About the food, Betty said it was "fairly good but not anything to write home about."

She told about dining in a revolving restaurant in the highest building in Hong Kong—68 floors—that took one and one-half hours to make a complete circle around the city. With the city all lit up, Betty said, "It was the most beautiful sight I ever saw."

The Jacks traveled with a party of about 75 from various states. They saw the usual sights and shopped in the exciting markets offered in the bustling metropolis.

Americans rejoice, Betty said that in Red China, bicycles are the mode of travel. One bicycle is allotted to every two adults. Also, parents are limited to government expenses for only one child.

Congratulations are in order to John Mercer, the recipient of the Sanford Kiwanis Club's Randall Chase Award for his outstanding achievements in the community.

According to Lewis Dellarco, John will be presented the award at the regular club luncheon meeting on Nov. 18 at the Sanford Civic Center. Mr. Chase's widow, Julia, will make the presentation.

All Kiwanis Club wives are invited to the luncheon.

Shirley and Clifford Wolfe will entertain friends of their daughter, Noelle, 8, at a Halloween party at their home in Mayfair on Oct. 30. This will be an old-fashioned party, complete with apple-bobbing, apples on strings, a charming skit and other delightful surprises.

According to Mary Laurendine, the decorations are "just gorgeous."

A family reunion was held recently for the descendants of Elias and Kristina Bengtson who were brought from Sweden by General Henry Shelton Sanford, founder of the city, in 1871 to settle in Sanford.

The reunion was held at the Lakeland home of Lewis and Dorothy Leland for 130 relatives who attended from four states and 17 cities.

The oldest descendant attending was Eunice Martin, 87, of Sanford. Eunice said, "I've never seen such food." She added that she had not seen some of her relatives for 40 years.

Although the family has scattered, Eunice said, they were all "born and raised in Sanford." The youngest descendant attending was Sommers Hope, 6 weeks old, daughter of Gregg and Pamela Hope. The largest family present included 10 of the children of the late Mabel and Fred Krell.

Seminole High School band is in Tallahassee this weekend participating for championship honors at Beatrice Music Bowl V-Florida at the University of Florida's Florida Field. About 30 high school bands from all-Florida are in the competition.

For about 30 years now, Loris Boutwell, formerly of Sanford, has been collecting used postage stamps to be given to worthy causes such as the Alliance Church of Sanford for missionary projects.

Those wishing to donate used stamps to Courts may mail them to her at 765 Ortona Court, Winter Springs, 32708. Please leave about one-half inch of paper around stamp.

Married Man's Former Girlfriend Should Let This Sleeping Dog Lie

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about a married man's former girlfriend sending the man's wife all the intimate love letters he wrote to that girlfriend during a long-distance affair?

The married man lied to the girlfriend during the whole affair—saying he was not married. Would it be too harsh to notify the wife in this manner? The evidence is overwhelming. The man could never talk his way out of it in a million years.

CONSIDERING IT

DEAR CONSIDERING: Although the man doesn't deserve to be let off lightly, I would not send his wife the damning evidence. It would punish her more cruelly than him—and she didn't wrong you.

Let the good Lord do the judging and handle the punishment.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns a 25-year-old man who wears a partial plate consisting of a retainer and two front teeth. Regardless of where he eats, he takes this retainer out of his mouth and places it on the table in front of him—then proceeds to eat. Needless to say, I think this is disgusting, and it ruins my appetite.

Granted, he probably can't eat with this retainer in his mouth, but why should the rest of us have to put up with his bad manners? Since he eats at my table quite often, would it be proper to suggest that he put it out of sight during the meal? I am embarrassed having friends for meals when he is here.

He is my daughter's boyfriend. Abby, I have asked her to speak to him about this, but she says she can't hurt his feelings.

REPULSED IN CANADA

DEAR REPULSED: Feelings, schmeeelings, this is no job for you. Assign it to your daughter; he's her boyfriend. It's time he learned that this is not acceptable, and she's the one to teach him.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two small children and am separated from my husband. I was very lonely after I got on my own, and I entered into a relationship with a man who became so possessive and jealous that I stopped seeing him. Then he started circling the block around my house and slowing up when he passed my place to get a good look. After a while, he started to pull into my driveway and park there, waiting for me to come out. If I didn't come out, he'd sleep in his car all night! Abby, he doesn't leave me alone.

I feel like a prisoner in my own home, as I don't want to come out while he's there. I went down to the police station and made out a report, but they said there is nothing they can do until this man commits some kind of crime.

I am afraid of him. Can you help me?

DESPERATE IN DETROIT

DEAR DESPERATE: This man is harassing you. Furthermore, when he drives into your driveway and stays there for hours, he is invading your privacy. Call the police again when he is parked in the driveway and let them deal with him.

DEAR ABBY: Didn't you once compare people who dominate every conversation with pigs? And if so, what was the exact quote?

D.J. IN TULSA

DEAR D.J.: "The person who makes a habit of hogging every conversation is no better than a pig who comes to the table and eats all the food."

DEAR ABBY: I met this guy;

he's cute, smart, a law student at Stanford, and he has everything a girl could dream of. He's Prince Charming. But this prince has the worst breath I have ever smelled. It turned me off completely.

Now he can't figure out why I'm too busy to go out with him all of a sudden. This is a tragedy—what a waste! I know it shouldn't matter, but it does—and that's what is killing me. I really like this guy, and I hate to just drop him, but I don't want to smell his breath again, either.

I tried giving him breath mints, but even that didn't help.

CALIFORNIA GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Do Prince Charming an enormous favor and level with him. It could be his teeth, his diet, his stomach—even "nerves." If he isn't aware that his breath turns you off, he'll never seek a solution to what could be a medical or dental problem.

Vatican Radio Says Coretta King Asked Soviets To Release Priest

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Coretta King, the widow of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., has appealed to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to release a Lithuanian Catholic priest sentenced to a Siberian labor camp 20 years ago, according to Vatican Radio.

Rev. Alfonsas Svarinskas has been detained for the past 20 years at the Perm labor camp in Siberia because he celebrated mass despite official pressure to curb the Roman Catholic faith in the Soviet Republic of Lithuania, the radio reported.

"Presently he (Svarinskas) is in the Perm camp in Siberia, one of the harshest, he is in bad health and would like to receive medical treatment outside the Soviet Union," Vatican Radio said.

"For three months there has been no news despite an attempt by his brother to get in contact with him two weeks ago," it said. The widow of the Nobel Peace Prize winner King appealed three weeks ago to Gorbachev for Svarinskas' release, the radio said.

It said there were no information about Svarinskas' current status.

The Soviets recently released an ailing Lithuanian Roman Catholic priest who was also detained in a labor camp and reduced the long sentence that another one was serving.

The Rev. Jonas Kastytis Matulionis was recently released from a camp in Siberia "where he was maltreated," the radio said.

Matulionis was arrested in 1964 and sentenced to three years in a labor camp for celebrating a mass without authorization. He was released last summer under an amnesty but arrested again two days later and sent to Siberia.

"He is very ill and weighs only 88 pounds," the radio said.

Authorities also reduced by half the remaining sentence of the Rev. Sigitas Tamkevicius, who was sentenced for a similar offense, Vatican Radio said. The priest was sentenced in 1983 to six years in a labor camp plus four years in confinement.

Vatican Radio, which broadcasts in Lithuanian, said 48,000 Lithuanian Catholics this year signed a petition asking for the release of the three priests who were given stiff sentences solely because of a crackdown on religion.

The Baltic republic of Lithuania was annexed by the Soviet Union in 1945 and remained staunchly Catholic, a sign Moscow feared would encourage dissidents.

Altar Girls Get Bishops' Informal O.K.

By Brendan Murphy

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A synod of Roman Catholic bishops has agreed informally to permit girls, as well as boys, to serve at the altar during mass, a U.S. bishop speaking on behalf of the assembly said.

Moreover, most bishops think that women should be admitted to all liturgical offices not requiring ordination, Archbishop John May of St. Louis said Tuesday.

"In general, there was strong consensus that all non-ordained ministries be open to all Catholics," said May, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Some controversy has developed over the general nature of lay ministries, May said, but this has not clouded the collective synod opinion that "children of both sexes should be permitted to serve at the altar."

Although traditional church practice has held that only boys could assist priests at the altar, many churches, particularly in the United States, have in recent years allowed girls to serve.

May and three other synod bishops representing Africa, Asia and Latin America appeared at a news conference to report on progress in the synod, which ends Oct. 30.

The synod on the "vocation and mission of the laity" will issue recommendations to Pope John Paul II.

May said the expanded women's role as envisioned by the synod could extend to the lay ministries of acolyte and lector — but cautioned that the bishops may call for these to be overhauled.

He said many bishops noted a "growing gray area" between the roles of priests and deacons, who are ordained, and those of acolytes and lectors, who are not.

Permanent deacons, often married men, may officiate at marriages and funerals and adopt other priestly roles. Acolytes, or altar servers, assist in church rites and lectors read Scripture.

May said the current "lack of canonical and theological precision" as to the precise position of acolytes and lectors in the church "needs correction and then development."

He said the approximately 230 synod members "generally agreed" that the ministries of lector and acolyte should be "refashioned as steps" to the diaconate and priesthood.

"If they are retained," May said, "they should be open to both men and women."

Honduran Bishop Oscar Rodriguez Maradiaga confirmed synod support for greater liturgical roles for women. "There are no theological reasons why women shouldn't be granted the ministries available to lay people in general," he said.

However, he said, major theological barriers remain to the ordination of women — even as deaconesses.

Haunting Question, Are Ghosts Real?

Halloween may not be just kid stuff. Ghosts and haunted houses could be for real.

Most educated people are inclined to put ghost stories in the category of superstitions. Yet "ghosts do appear to a great many people in a great many places," says Susy Smith, author of the book "Prominent American Ghosts." "They have brought true information too many times to be attributable to mere hallucination."

Archie Mason, a retired Methodist minister, is an ex-skeptic. He changed his mind after studying experiences involving ghosts in the lives of people "whose integrity is beyond question and who also have a reputation for sound judgment."

In his book "The Waiting World," Mason comes to the conclusion that ghosts "demonstrate that the deceased are very much alive, still care for friends and relatives, know what is happening to their loved ones and want to help.

As for haunted houses, Smith says ghosts appear occasionally at the places where they were the happiest or unhappiest, or at the scene of a great crime in which they participated.

Parapsychologist Hans Holzer tells of employing a medium to search out a ghost who was terrifying the occupants of a house. The medium went into a trance and held a conversation with a woman who, it appeared, had been a servant in the house around the time of the Civil War.

She had had a baby who died. So she could be near the child, she had remained in the house after her own death. Holzer told the unseen ghost, "You must go from here and join your husband and baby. They are waiting for you on the Other Side. Go — and leave these people in peace."

That, says Holzer, put an end to the strange occurrences.

Monsignor Leonard Fick, who taught for many years at a Roman Catholic seminary, defined a ghost as "a spirit without the body it once had. It can sometimes intrude or impinge on this world. It is possible for ghosts to reappear in areas they had been known to inhabit while they were alive."

The priest cautions against mistaking a ghost for a poltergeist. Poltergeists are mischievous spirits, he says, who inhabit people's bodies for a short period of time.

As I sat with him in his seminary office, he showed me a lamp and bookstand that once, he said, traveled through the air before his eyes and came to rest 6 or 8 feet away. At the time, he was counseling an 18-year-old youth who reported that objects were levitating regularly in his presence.

"I told him to go home and that before long the phenomena would cease," said Fick. "Three months later, things were staying put again when the young man was around."

Concert Pianist Featured In People To People Series

Internationally acclaimed concert pianist Robert MacDonald will be in concert, Nov. 8 at 7 p.m. in the next People for People concert at First United Methodist Church, Winter Park. The admission is free, but donations will be received to benefit the United Methodist Campus Ministries in Florida.

MacDonald is artist-in-residence and chairman of the music department at Florida Southern College, Lakeland. In 1985, he was named first recipient of that institution's Distinguished Academic Chair in Music. Three years before he was cited by the Florida Legislature for his "outstanding contributions to the fine arts in Florida."

He holds degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Indiana University and the Austrian Academy of Music in Vienna, Austria. It was in Vienna that he met his Austrian-born wife Ingrid, with whom he tours both nationally and internationally in programs of drama and music. After critically praised European solo debuts and a successful New York debut in Carnegie Recital Hall, he began concert-piano tours throughout the United States.

Robert MacDonald

with one such tour bringing him to Florida Southern.

During his tours for the U.S. State Department in Europe, he gained initial experience both as recitalist and lecture-recitalist. In ensuing years with the college as home base, he has successfully combined teaching with concert touring and arts administration.

The church is located at 125 N. Interlachen Ave., Winter Park.

Jewish Community Center Holds Annual Childfest

The Jewish Community Center is sponsoring its third annual weeklong Childfest '87, Nov. 1-7. This holiday season event will occur at the center located at 851 N. Maitland Ave., Maitland. The purpose is to raise scholarship funds for the JCC preschool program.

It will begin Nov. 1, 1:15 p.m., with a Family Day, which includes a Book Fair by Just For Kids bookstore and toy demonstration by Discovery Toys. Activities for children will include an obstacle course in the gym, a music room, an arts and crafts room and playground play. Snacks will be available for purchase.

The Book Fair, toy display and silent auction will continue throughout the week, Monday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Tuesday, 7:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.; Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Childfest will conclude with "It's A Small World", a children's auction on Nov. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the JCC auditorium. Children's merchandise and services and evening out packages for parents, toys, birthday parties, furniture and other items will be offered.

Pat Yankowich and Lynn Berger, chairpersons for the children's auction expect to raise $10,000 to provide scholarships so that no family is turned away from the nursery school because of financial reasons. The auction is open to the public. Admission is $5 and includes desserts and door prizes.

Gutenberg Bible Brings $4.9 Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 500-year-old Gutenberg Bible was bought by Japan's largest bookseller for a record $4.9 million, the most ever for a printed book and more than double the expected price at a Christie's auction house sale of 15th-century books.

The leather-bound Bible, one of 48 in existence, was sold Thursday to Maruzen Co. Ltd. of Tokyo for $4.9 million plus a 10 percent commission of $490,000. Christie's spokeswoman Lily Zimmerman said.

The winning bid was more than twice the $1.5 million to $2 million Christie's predicted, and the sum set a record for a printed book, Zimmerman said.

Part of the Estelle Doherty Collection, the Gutenberg was offered by the Park Avenue auction house on behalf of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Los Angeles, Zimmerman said.

The nation's largest archdiocese is selling a collection of about 8,000 books to raise money for a foundation to increase seminary enrollment, Zimmerman said. The collection had been donated to a seminary in the archdiocese.

Johan Gutenberg, who lived in the German town of Mainz, printed 185 Bibles around 1455 and they represent the first printed books in existence. The German craftsman originated a method of printing from movable type that was used without important change until the 20th century.

Before the introduction of movable type, texts had to be laboriously copied by hand.

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bode Cool YOUR BIRTHDAY OCTOBER 25, 1987

A career opportunity will develop for you in the year ahead. But it will only be a door opener. What you make of it will depend on how competently you respond and how well you've prepared yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Financial conditions are a mixed bag for you today. It's likely more will go out than comes in because of your extravagance or poor management.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your sense of timing may not be up to par today. There's a chance you might be pushing when you should be still.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against tendencies today to prejudice events or conditions negatively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your checkbook will have to be treated with respect, or it won't tally in the black at the end of the day.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take care today — you're a trifle too vulnerable when your ego is concerned.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're not the type of person who lets others do your thinking for you, but today could be an exception.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A considerate friend who is usually quite helpful may resent being imposed upon today if you try to burden her with your problems.

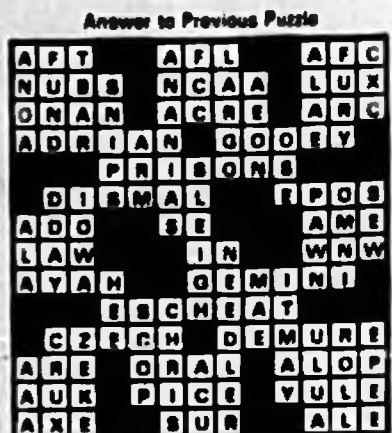

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Stick with decisions today that you have previously taken time

You could put a friend in a very awkward position if she feels that she has to choose a side. It would be a shame to water down good ideas. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before farming out work today to costly repair people, re-examine the problem to see if it's something you can do yourself and save the expense. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Financial conditions are rather unusual today. Your earning potential is quite good, but, on the other hand, your extravagant impulses are equally strong. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Early in the day there's a possibility you might have a disagreement with someone you like. Patch it up promptly so it doesn't have a chance to fester. WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby North was silly to open one no-trump. Since all his points except for one jack were bunched in the minor suits, he should have opened one of a minor. A one-diamond bid and a rebid in clubs would get the ball rolling. Over North's one no-trump, East bid three hearts only because of the favorable vulnerability. South then bid what he thought he could make — four spades. He ruffed the opening lead, played a diamond to the ace and a spade to his nine. West casually played low. Declarer next played a club to dummy's nine, and another spade. When the jack appeared, he put in the queen. West now won and continued hearts. Declarer discarded on a heart, then ruffed, hoping that West had started with only three hearts. West ruffed in on the third club to beat the contract one trick. Had West taken the first spade with the king, declarer would have succeeded by simply discarding on the next two hearts. The fourth heart could then be ruffed in dummy, and declarer could return to his hand with a diamond to pull trumps. After West ducks the spade, declarer can still succeed if he refuses to take a second spade finesse. He should play the spade ace and then run his minor-suit winners. Eventually West will win a small spade and the king, but that will be all. Although this play loses two overtricks when East started with K-J-2 of spades, declarer should realize that West may be setting a trap. Need I point out that it's easier to make game (with an overtrick) in either minor?

'Bride' Full-Length Fractured Fairy Tale

IN MOVIE THEATERS THE PRINCESS BRIDE (PG) Director Rob Reiner continues to reveal a fondness for childhood narratives. As a follow-up to his ruefully nostalgic "Stand By Me," Reiner has now come up with a full-length fractured fairy tale.

"The Princess Bride" introduces us to a contemporary kid who is sick in bed and being read to by his grandfather (Peter Falk). We see the boy's bedtime story — a romantic tale involving a breathtakingly pretty blond princess (Robin Wright) and a breathtakingly pretty blond hero (Cary Elwes), who must survive countless obstacles before living happily ever after.

Reiner, by way of William Goldman's screenplay and novel, has given this fairy tale a comic spin. The result is the Brothers Grimm as told by a Borscht Belt comic. Albert a gentle one.

The casting is canny. Chris Sarandon makes a dashing arrogant evil prince, and Mandy Patinkin hams it up as a swordsman with a not-always-decipherable Spanish accent.

When they, with all its pleasantries, doesn't the movie add up to more? If Mel Brooks — the old Mel Brooks, not the tired director of "Spaceballs" — had helmed this movie, it might have had a little zest and bite, and maybe a little visual wildness.

Michael Caine plays a wealthy writer whose ex-wives have taken him to the cleaners; consequently, he's become a misogynist. Sally Field is a struggling artist who's been fooling herself about her boyfriend (Steve Guttenberg), largely because of his bankroll.

Brought together during a robbery (they're literally tied together naked), Caine and Field fall in love. Meanwhile, Caine pretends to be a pauper to make sure Field isn't after his money.

The plot, scripted by director Jerry Belson, moves its characters through a series of improbable situations to illustrate the almighty dollar's ability to ruin a good thing.

Probably only the Johnny Carsons of this world can fully appreciate the marital puranola of Caine's character. But he is such a charlatan-actor that he ends up seeming sympathetic. Field doesn't fare so well. Half the time she might be playing a typical warmhearted heroine. Then, suddenly, the script has her behaving in uncharacteristically greedy fashion in order to make its point.

The film's best moment is a simple visual gag. Two elevator doors open. One elevator contains a curvy, flirtatious blonde; the other holds a man and a fierce-looking barking dog. Caine chooses the elevator with the dog. GRADE: 2 1/2 stars.

HOOSIERS (PG) HBO Video, $49.95. Imagine "Rocky" directed by Norman Rockwell, and you have a sense of this inspirational antique set in small-town Indiana in 1951.

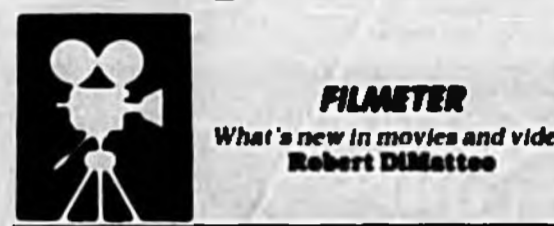

Wynette and Peter Cetera. The TDK/Billboard Song Contest offers $100,000 in prizes and a possible publishing contract for the winners.

Capitol Records will choose one winning song from the various categories (rock, pop, jazz, R&B, gospel, country and Latin) to record.

And there is even talk of a television special. No experience in songwriting is required, although your demo tape or sheet music must be accompanied by a $15 entry fee when submitted.

Entries must be postmarked by Feb. 1, 1988; winners will be chosen by May of that year. Aspiring composers and lyricists can get entry blanks in TDK tape packages, or write to: TDK/Billboard Song Contest, P.O. Box 69200, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

(BU) Rick Nelson will be memorialized by his real-life and TV brother David in a Disney Channel cable special called simply "Rick Nelson: A Brother Remembers," airing Nov. 16 at 8 p.m. EST.

'The Cure In Orange' To Be Released Next Spring

Video director Tim Pope, veteran of more than 200 clips, has tackled the long-form rock concert with "The Cure In Orange."

The 60-minute film by The Cure is scheduled for imminent theatrical distribution nationwide, and for videocassette release next spring.

Best known for quirky, left-of-center videos, Pope has created a lush, straight-ahead performance piece, highlighted by an unusual stage setting (the Theatre Antique d'Orange in Provence, France — the oldest amphitheater in that country), deep-drenched colors and perfect acoustics.

Technically, "The Cure In Orange" is the best concert film since Jonathan Demme's "Stop Making Sense." Unfortunately, The Cure is hardly in the same league as Talking Heads.

But for those who are enthralled by the lugubrious sounds of the British quintet, these 23 songs are performed as well as you'll ever find them.

And even those who don't care for the band's droning interpretations of "Boys Don't Cry," "A Night Like This" or "The Walk" can watch front man Robert Smith's makeup melt and appreciate the ambience.

(BU) Amateur songwriters now have the chance to get their efforts judged by such luminaries as Quincy Jones, David Foster, George Benson, Eddie Van Halen, Tammy

Video Beat Ethlie Ann Vare

The show will include home movies, concert footage of the late pop and rockabilly star, and interviews with family and friends.

Rick Nelson sold more than 60 million records in his abbreviated lifetime. He was a harbinger of the MTV generation, performing his songs on "The Adventures of Ozzie & Harriet" as early as 1957.

Never a critically acclaimed performer, Nelson also lost his hold on commercial success later in his career.

Handling Family Problems

Seeking Help When There is None

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford father says he doesn't want to take the law into his own hands and use his shotgun to protect his 18-year-old daughter from men in their early 20s who are taking sexual advantage of her and other girls; men who are involving the girls in the use of drugs and alcohol after taking them from Seminole High School to neighboring apartment complexes.

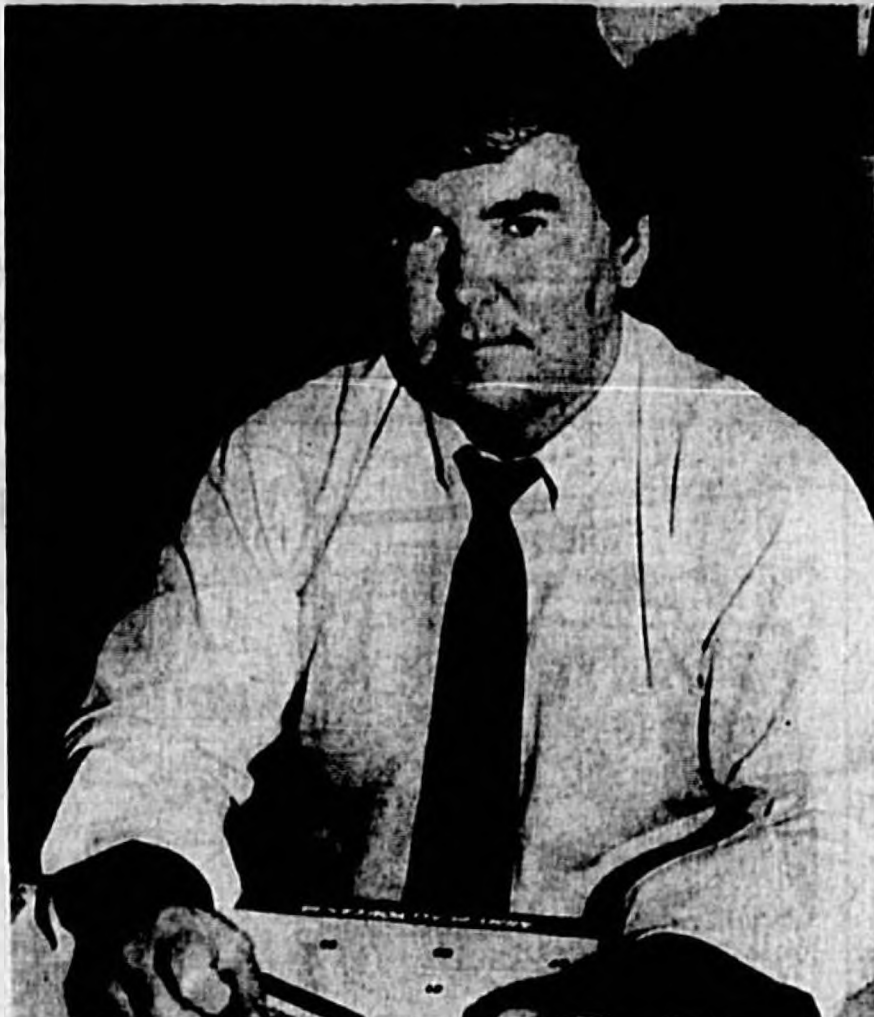

The father said his daughter has been involved in this type of activity for about one year and he can't find help to break the cycle.

"A 15-year-old girl has no chance against a 25-year-old guy who has $15 to $20 to blow on her. Once we find we've got a problem we should be able to call someone for help. There should be an agency to call. I've got a problem. I don't want to take the law into my own hands. I need help," the father said.

He said he has taken his story to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department and to the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. He said a local HRS official talked to him for 10 minutes and told him his only recourse was to hire a lawyer "and take papers out against the guys." School officials, he claims, failed to report to him that his daughter had 10 days of unexcused absence from school.

Ray Wise, spokesman for HRS in Tallahassee, said that there is little HRS can do in such a case, other than to advise the parent to seek private counseling for his family. HRS, Wise said, would make referral to such counseling. He said the abusive actions of the men involved should be reported to law enforcement officials, but if the girl refused to testify against the men lawmen couldn't make a case, he said.

The father doesn't want his daughter to be taken through the court system and declared delinquent and put under the control of the court, which might order her to obey her parents or might order her to be sent to a juvenile jail.

Seminole County Sheriff's Captain Roy Hughey

Instead, the father wants Seminole County sheriff's deputies to arrest the men involved. The father said he would take his shotgun and deal with his problem himself, but he knows that's not a reasonable solution and is one that would severely compound his problem instead of solving it.

Seminole County sheriff's Capt. Roy Hughey said that if such an allegation as the father is making against the young men were formally reported to the sheriff's department that would spur an investigation. Hughey said he can find no record of a formal complaint filed in this case.

However, Hughey said, unless sheriff's deputies caught the men in the act of having sex with a juvenile, or giving drugs or alcohol to girls, investigators could not make a case that would stand up in court, unless the girl was willing to testify against the suspects.

The man said his daughter is not complaining about her treatment by the men, so Hughey said, she would be considered a "hostile victim," who would not testify against the men. Sheriff's investigators, he said, cannot make a case based on the father's belief that these things are happening to his daughter and other girls.

Hughey also said, that in investigating the case, if sheriff's deputies found that the girls involved were using drugs and alcohol they too would be subject to arrest.

"So many want something done. There is a solution. The man can't control his daughter. He wants the law to work his way. If he can't control the child he can have her adjudicated ungovernable where the state steps in. He wants to circumvent the law. He has not seen the drugs or sex. The daughter won't testify. So who's going to tell us anything?" Hughey said.

"There is a solution, but they don't like the law. Police are bound by the same law they enforce and can't break the law to enforce the law, even if it's child abuse or statutory rape.

"We can't charge anybody because so-and-so believes a crime has been committed. Again, look at child abuse — the girl is not complaining. We're going to go by state law. It's all conjecture. We have to go into court and prove it. The girl will say nothing, so there is no case. The father knows there are options. He simply doesn't like the law and that it has to be enforced as it is written.

"We deal with people who don't like the law. We give them options and they don't like that. Cop can't go outside the law or the cop becomes a criminal too," Hughey said.

What are the options for this man, and other parents in similar situations?

Greichen Gross of the volunteer Seminole County Guardian Ad Litem Program, which offers support to children involved in court cases, said that the man has two problems. One is the legal problem associated

Football Players Up Against Stacked Deck

You have to feel sorry for football players. By professional standards, they don't make very much — they earn less than half what their counterparts in baseball and basketball make in a season, and they have fewer seasons. A football player lasts only about three seasons on average; baseball players last more than twice as long. Football players don't even strike very well. This most recent ignominious episode ended with the players straggling back a day late and a lot of dollars short, having accomplished nothing.

In an effort to find out why football players do so badly in the marketplace, I talked to Marvin Spade, the president of Deck Stacking, Inc. Mr. Spade's firm specializes in stacking the deck against various enterprises. I figured that if anyone has the deck stacked against them it is football players, and that Marvin must be behind it.

"Well, I guess you could say we played a small role," he said. "Of course, we didn't have to do much; the deck was already pretty well stacked when we were called in."

I asked Mr. Spade to explain. "Well, for starters look at three games: a football game, a baseball game and a basketball game. The first big difference you'll notice is how many football players it takes to produce a game."

"You'll see 90 guys suited up, plus an assortment of banged up hangers-on. In baseball you'll see just a few good old boys sitting around chewing. In basketball you'll see even fewer."

I told Mr. Spade that attendance at football games was generally greater.

"Of course, but how many games do they play? That's another problem with football. Guys get so beat up they can only play once a week. Baseball players draw fewer people to a single game, but they play a lot more games. So, over the course of a season, they wind up with about three times as many folks in the stands. And you know what George Steinbrenner says."

"I didn't." "You measure the value of a ballplayer by how many fannies he puts in the seats. Baseball players play a lot more games, so they produce a lot more fannies. Basketball games don't draw as well as baseball, but they still manage to produce about as many fans as football over the course of a season."

I was beginning to get Mr. Spade's point. I asked what additional deck-stacking his firm had done.

"Well, as you can see, there really wasn't much we had to do. A football player already has the deck stacked against him pretty well. But we did add a few extra touches."

"The Rozelle rule, of course, was a nice piece of work. If a player finishes his contract with one team and then tries to get a better job with a new team, the new team can only hire the player if it compensates the old team. The compensation required is so high that for all practical purposes a player simply can't switch teams. So you're drafted by one team, and then stuck with that team for your entire career — unless, of course, the team decides to sell you."

I told Mr. Spade that that tidy little arrangement was likely to be declared illegal by the courts.

"Of course, of course. It's been declared illegal over and over again, so we've done a little extra deck-stacking."

"As you know, professional football teams divide television revenues equally. And they split the gate receipts for each game 60-40: the home team gets 60 percent and the visiting team gets 40."

"That means an individual team has no incentive to pay a lot of money for a player who will bring in more fans. Whatever revenues it gets, it splits with the other teams. So even with free agency, you won't find teams paying much for players."

I told Mr. Spade that that sounded a little like socialism.

I had to admit that the deck seemed pretty well-stacked. Mr. Spade smiled happily.

"We like to think so," he said, playing with a toy cash register. "Now you'll have to excuse me. I'm on a retainer for the U.S. Postal Service, and some upstart competitor is trying to break in with better service and lower prices. That deck is pretty well-stacked already, but we think we can do even better."

Science Update:

Space Station Contract Rejuvenates NASA

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA's space station project is poised to take the leap from drawing board to reality with the release of construction contracts next month after five years of uncertain presidential support, congressional squabbling and ballooning budgets.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, locked in a bitter struggle to maintain its identity amid work to rebuild its shattered shuttle program, has hitched its wagon to the space station project to ensure the future of the nation's civilian space program.

"If this country wants to regain any leadership in manned exploration, then the space station is absolutely essential," said program director Andrew Stefan. "Otherwise, we're going to turn this over to the rest of the world."

And so, for the third time in NASA's 25-year history, the nation is being asked to commit itself to a multibillion-dollar project that, if successful, is expected to re-establish America's reputation as the leader in space technology.

But at what cost? Therein lies NASA's most pressing problem: how to "sell" the program to the American people and to skeptical politicians who are no longer willing to give the agency carte blanche, thanks to the disillusionment that followed the Challenger disaster.

Questions about NASA's ability to deliver are especially acute since development of the 320-ton space station dwarfs the shuttle's development and even the Apollo moon program when it comes to sheer managerial complexity.

It also dwarfs the Soviet Mir space station in both size and capability and while Mir is functioning in orbit now and while the Russians will surely expand and improve their orbital platform, few doubt that NASA's space station will represent the state of the art when — and if — it becomes operational in the mid 1990s.

"Developing the space station, deploying and assembling it in space and operating it as a multipurpose international research, development and operational facility must surely rank as the most ambitious and lengthy task NASA has ever undertaken," a National Research Council panel said in September. "These tasks will absorb much of NASA's energies for the next two to three decades.

"In pursuing the space station program, the United States is committing itself to a major national project that will of necessity require tens of billions of dollars and take a decade to bring to operational status."

NASA and the White House originally advertised an $8 billion price tag for the station project, but that figure was in 1984 dollars and did not include the cost of carrying the components into orbit.

NASA officials now admit the costs were sharply underestimated and merely a guess. Figuring in transportation and other factors, such as resupply flights and logistics, the total bill is now estimated to be around $23 billion in 1988 dollars.

The National Research Council says the final price tag will be on the order of $25 billion to $30 billion when such factors as a yet-to-be-approved crew escape vehicle are figured in.

"This is a bill we simply cannot pay," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., said during an attempt to eliminate space station funding in the fiscal 1988 budget. "We should realize continued space station funding may cripple other NASA programs. In fact, we may end up bankrupting the rest of NASA's space programs."

The space station will survive the fiscal 1988 budget but the often bitter battle over the $767 million NASA had requested prompted agency Administrator James Fletcher to threaten terminating the contract competition if certain cuts were implemented. He said he wanted to avoid a repeat of the compromises in the 1970s that ultimately contributed to the Challenger disaster.

In uncharacteristically strident language, Fletcher, who also served as NASA's administrator during the shuttle's formative years, said "chopping the front end of the development activity threatens the planning and system analysis activities, the careful engineering and testing that are critical to getting started on the right track."

"We have had unfortunate experience with this kind of thing before — we cannot afford to do it again."

Fletcher, in essence, drew a line that said "this is as far as I go." It remains to be seen whether Congress believes him but NASA will not have long to wait. In the fiscal 1989

"Kyd Wyz" walked out Monday while his owner, Jack Rynsky, was cooking the 14-year-old chimp's supper of spaghetti and meatballs.

Police in Nassau County cornered the wayward chimp Tuesday after a chase that took them over fences and through backyards in Hicksville.

The chimp, who performs tricks at fairs, trade shows and on television, was appropriately dressed for his jaunt — maroon shirt, blue pants, white socks and special size double EE boots for roller skating.

Officer Rick Hannagen captured the 4-foot-tall brown monkey in a garden plot behind a home. The toothless monkey, which had lost its sneakers and socks, struggled weakly while Hannagen held him until the owner arrived.

"We didn't cite him for resisting arrest. He showed me a Miranda card and refused to make any statement, because he didn't have an attorney," Hannagen joked.

Handling Family Problems

Seeking Help When There is None

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford father says he doesn't want to take the law into his own hands and use his shotgun to protect his 18-year-old daughter from men in their early 20s who are taking sexual advantage of her and other girls; men who are involving the girls in the use of drugs and alcohol after taking them from Seminole High School to neighboring apartment complexes.

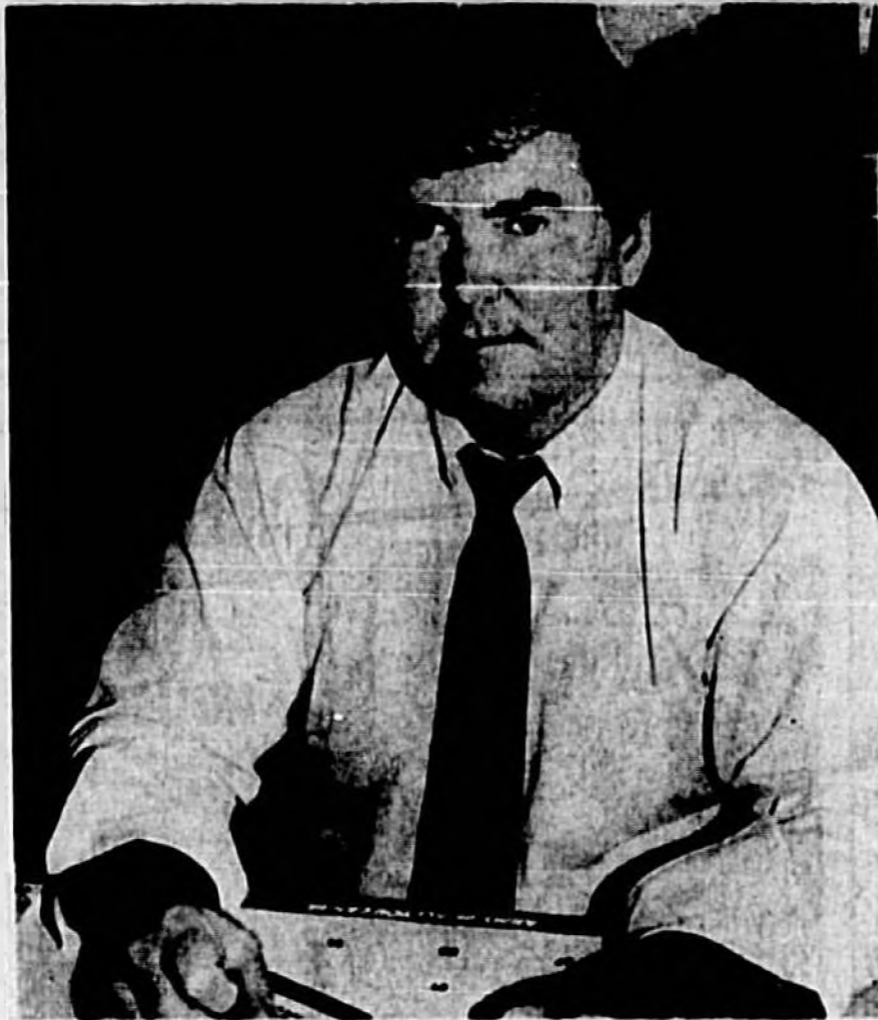

The father said his daughter has been involved in this type of activity for about one year and he can't find help to break the cycle.

"A 15-year-old girl has no chance against a 25-year-old guy who has $15 to $20 to blow on her. Once we find we've got a problem we should be able to call someone for help. There should be an agency to call. I've got a problem. I don't want to take the law into my own hands. I need help," the father said.

He said he has taken his story to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department and to the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. He said a local HRS official talked to him for 10 minutes and told him his only recourse was to hire a lawyer "and take papers out against the guys." School officials, he claims, failed to report to him that his daughter had 10 days of unexcused absence from school.

Ray Wise, spokesman for HRS in Tallahassee, said that there is little HRS can do in such a case, other than to advise the parent to seek private counseling for his family. HRS, Wise said, would make referral to such counseling. He said the abusive actions of the men involved should be reported to law enforcement officials, but if the girl refused to testify against the men lawmen couldn't make a case, he said.

The father doesn't want his daughter to be taken through the court system and declared delinquent and put under the control of the court, which might order her to obey her parents or might order her to be sent to a juvenile jail.

Seminole County Sheriff's Captain Roy Hughey

Instead, the father wants Seminole County sheriff's deputies to arrest the men involved. The father said he would take his shotgun and deal with his problem himself, but he knows that's not a reasonable solution and is one that would severely compound his problem instead of solving it.

Seminole County sheriff's Capt. Roy Hughey said that if such an allegation as the father is making against the young men were formally reported to the sheriff's department that would spur an investigation. Hughey said he can find no record of a formal complaint filed in this case.

However, Hughey said, unless sheriff's deputies caught the men in the act of having sex with a juvenile, or giving drugs or alcohol to girls, investigators could not make a case that would stand up in court, unless the girl was willing to testify against the suspects.

The man said his daughter is not complaining about her treatment by the men, so Hughey said, she would be considered a "hostile victim," who would not testify against the men. Sheriff's investigators, he said, cannot make a case based on the father's belief that these things are happening to his daughter and other girls.

Hughey also said, that in investigating the case, if sheriff's deputies found that the girls involved were using drugs and alcohol they too would be subject to arrest.

"So many want something done. There is a solution. The man can't control his daughter. He wants the law to work his way. If he can't control the child he can have her adjudicated ungovernable where the state steps in. He wants to circumvent the law. He has not seen the drugs or sex. The daughter won't testify. So who's going to tell us anything?" Hughey said.

"There is a solution, but they don't like the law. Police are bound by the same law they enforce and can't break the law to enforce the law, even if it's child abuse or statutory rape.

"We can't charge anybody because so-and-so believes a crime has been committed. Again, look at child abuse — the girl is not complaining. We're going to go by state law. It's all conjecture. We have to go into court and prove it. The girl will say nothing, so there is no case. The father knows there are options. He simply doesn't like the law and that it has to be enforced as it is written.

"We deal with people who don't like the law. We give them options and they don't like that. Cops can't go outside the law or the cop becomes a criminal too," Hughey said.

What are the options for this man, and other parents in similar situations?

Gretchen Gross of the volunteer Seminole County Guardian Ad Litem Program, which offers support to children involved in court cases, said that the man has two problems. One is the legal problem associated

Space Station Contract Rejuvenates NASA

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA's space station project is poised to take the leap from drawing board to reality with the release of construction contracts next month after five years of uncertain presidential support, congressional squabbling and ballooning budgets.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, locked in a bitter struggle to maintain its identity amid work to rebuild its shattered shuttle program, has hitched its wagon to the space station project to ensure the future of the nation's civilian space program.

"If this country wants to regain any leadership in manned exploration, then the space station is absolutely essential," said program director Andrew Siofan. "Otherwise, we're going to turn this over to the rest of the world."

And so, for the third time in NASA's 25-year history, the nation is being asked to commit itself to a multibillion-dollar project that, if successful, is expected to re-establish America's reputation as the leader in space technology.

But at what cost? Therein lies NASA's most pressing problem: how

My Weekly Reader, 59 Years Of News

Eleanor M. Johnson passed away a few days ago in a nursing home in Gaithersburg, Md. Although her name may not be familiar, her works were read by an estimated two thirds of all the adults living in the United States today. She was the founder of My Weekly Reader, the brightly colored periodical that's been helping to put generations of American elementary school children in touch with the news for almost six decades.

An elementary school-teacher herself, she first conceived of the Weekly Reader as an alternative to the fairy tales and fantasy that children in those days read in abundance. Her genius, as the current editor of the paper observes, consisted in the fact that, "She knew how to connect kids to the world."

She knew some other things as well. The first issue, published Sept. 21, 1928, perfectly encapsulated Johnson's sense of how current events could be translated into terms that she thought would interest young people. It also illustrated the relentlessly upbeat approach that successfully insulated the Weekly Reader from controversy and thereby ensured its acceptance by school administrators across the country. The cover story that first time out dealt with the presidential campaigns of Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith by focusing on their childhood under the heading, "Two Poor Boys Who Made Good Are Now Running for the Highest Office in the World."

As the years passed and the paper's circulation swelled to a high of 13 million at the crest of the baby boom in the late 1960s, Johnson continued to explain in simple prose the ebb and flow of wars around the world, the Great Depression, assassinations, break-throughs in science and sports and the struggle for civil rights. The objective of the Weekly Reader, according to its publisher, is the same today as when Johnson created it: "To present selected, well-written news of interest and value to children with accuracy and fairness, colorful but uncolored."

Johnson pursued that objective for half a century until her retirement at the age of 85. And she leaves behind an institution that's drawn numerous competitors but still is striving to open the eyes and expand the horizons of 9 million children every week, and all for only $2 a year.

Soup Kitchen Snoop

Someone in the Social Security Administration found out the hard way that America isn't about to let the grinch steal Christmas from a poverty-stricken blind man.

That someone — we don't know who, since no one is exactly jumping up to take credit — wrote a new rule designed to save a few dollars at the expense of some of the poorest and most vulnerable people in the country.

As of Oct. 1, it decreed, the 4.3 million elderly, blind and disabled people in the Supplemental Security Income program would have to report their soup kitchen meals and the used clothes or a night at an emergency shelter they'd been given. Any charity received in excess of $20 a month would have been deducted dollar for dollar. Considering the maximum SSI benefit is $340 a month for individuals and $510 for a couple, the deductions would have been painful indeed.

Once exposed to publicity recently, the rule died a sudden, well-deserved death. And it sparked a political furor among charitable groups and on Capitol Hill, where Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said of it, "As the hand of private charity gives, the hand of an insensitive government takes away."

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis Bowen, who rescinded the order, said it was all a mistake. Perhaps. But this administration has a history of stinginess toward the people who are least able to defend themselves.

The outcry that killed this short-lived charity order is a sign, perhaps, that the public does not support mean-spirited policies that take bread from the mouths of the blind and the mentally and physically disabled. We need a federal government that cares.

President Optimistic During Troubled Week

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — What a week at White House: first lady Nancy Reagan's breast cancer operation, retaliation in the Persian Gulf and a roller-coaster stock market.

Through it all the president kept his sense of humor. He appeared upbeat most of the time, despite the burdens, which reflected his natural optimism. But spokesman Marlin Fitzwater attributed some of his good spirits to his happiness that Mrs. Reagan sailed through her breast cancer surgery with no complications and no further sign of any malignancy.

The shoe was on the other foot this time. Reagan has undergone two major operations since he has been president — colon cancer surgery in July 1985 and prostate surgery last January — with the first lady being the one holding the fort at the White House.

Mrs. Reagan is expected to take a few weeks to get back in stride, taking it easy at the White House. But she is very organized and had made most of her plans for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays before she entered the hospital.

As traditional, the Reagans plan to spend Christmas in the White House. They also are planning to hold their customary yuletide parties in the full splendor of decorations Mrs. Reagan has chosen.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was not unequivocal in denying reports that he may leave the Cabinet before the end of the Reagan administration, basically saying that he will let it be known when and if he leaves the Pentagon.

Should he decide to quit, only Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce will remain as the last member of the original Reagan Cabinet that was selected in 1981.

The president had to cancel a pep rally with all the Republican presidential candidates when the stock market plunge became more urgent business. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said it will be rescheduled, but even that appeared doubtful in view of the candidates' busy primary schedule.

Aides acknowledged it would have been "bad politics" to gather with the GOP hopefuls when Wall Street was having a meltdown. The Republicans took a drubbing for many years because of the 1929 crash and start of the "Great Depression" in the Hoover era.

Clearly, the 76-year-old president remembered those days since in reassuring questions about the possibility of a recession, he spoke of "hard times."

Columnist George Will and Nancy Reagan are "good friends" and often go out to lunch in out-of-way places in nearby Virginia and West Virginia, said Elaine Crispin, the first lady's press secretary.

Crispin said that Will "takes her sightseeing" in the countryside during their outings together.

Will visited Mrs. Reagan at the hospital, one of the few friends accorded the privilege. It is understood that he has asked her advice and she has done the same in seeking his views.

Fighting Contras At Home

LONG BEACH, N.Y. (NEA) — Despite the blustery autumn weather, scores of people pause at a shopping center here to protest this country's military involvement in Central America.

"Vote no on contra aid" or "vote against contra aid," implore many of the brief but pointed letters they write to Rep. Raymond J. McGrath, R-N.Y., whose House district includes Long Beach and other communities on Long Island.

Other notes destined for McGrath are even more forceful: "If you vote for Contra aid, I will not vote for you."

Soliciting those letters is an unlikely trio — a college student, a high school principal and an elderly widow — operating under the banner of Neighbor to Neighbor. That organization promotes letter-writing campaigns aimed at a dozen members of the House and Senate from throughout the country.

Although shoppers at the Long Beach Plaza are asked to write a letter to McGrath rather than merely sign a petition, the response rate is strikingly high. Within a few hours, dozens of passersby have penned notes that Neighbor to Neighbor later will mail to McGrath.

The representative has been targeted as a likely swing vote on the issue because he is a centrist, non-ideological Republican. Last spring, he voted against providing financial assistance to the Nicaraguan contras after consistently supporting contra aid in earlier votes.

The objects of Neighbor to Neighbor's current grass-roots lobbying efforts are two representatives apiece in Oklahoma, Michigan and New York and one each in Maine, Nevada and Hawaii, as well as senators from Kansas, Illinois and Maine.

With a paid staff of 70 (30 at its San Francisco headquarters and 40 field organizers) Neighbor to Neighbor has become a major participant in the debate over contra aid.

"We're now able to conduct sophisticated campaigns in many congressional districts at the same time," says spokeswoman Kit Miller. "That's a far cry from holding meetings in church basements and handing out leaflets on street corners."

Nuclear Waste Piles Up, Nowhere To Go

WASHINGTON — Nuclear power may not be the wave of the American energy future, as its enthusiastic advocates once hoped. It may even be withering away because of astronomical costs and continuing concerns about safety, as its critics hope.

But whatever the future holds for nuclear power — dynamic expansion or slow demise — it has already created a serious problem that won't go away for centuries: safe disposal of the radioactive wastes produced by the nuclear plants. Yet the federal government and the nuclear industry continue to dither as time goes by and deadly wastes pile up all over the country.

Under the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, the Department of Energy was ordered to provide a permanent, underground disposal facility, paid for by industry, no later than 1998. No one seriously expects the DOE to meet this deadline, and everyone seems to have a different solution for the problem.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Pat Robertson's Funding

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Perhaps the hottest document in Washington these days is GOP presidential candidate Pat Robertson's 4,922-page financial filing with the Federal Election Committee.

Political insiders are reading it with some degree of amazement, trying to figure out how any candidate could have spent as much money as Robertson has this early in a primary season. Opponents, and the FEC staff, are poring over the report looking for evidence of any illegal financial transactions.

The filing shows that through the end of September Robertson had spent a staggering $11 million.

By contrast, Vice President George Bush spent a little under $8 million; Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, about $6 million; and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic fundraising leader, about $4 million.

The filing also shows that Robertson has outspent all his rivals in New Hampshire by a 2-to-1 ratio, and he has spent only slightly less than Bush and Dole in Iowa.

The filing also shows that despite raising $11.7 million, second only to Bush's $12.7 million, the Robertson campaign is not in robust financial health. In fact, as of Sept. 30, Robertson was in debt.

On the filing date, Robertson had only $233,000 in the bank and $814,000 in debts. By contrast, Bush had $4.8 million and only $325,000 in debts; and Dole had $2.2 million in cash and less than $500,000 in debts.

Robertson's filing has raised new questions about his campaign's financial relationship with the Christian Broadcasting Network (CBN), the evangelized organization he founded and headed until he recently announced his candidacy.

The filing shows, for instance, the CBN apparently has made thousands of dollars in payments for the rental of a campaign airplane.

Also, the Robertson campaign had said it never used CBN's vast contributor list to raise funds. But the filing shows that the campaign has used a Scottsdale, Ariz., consulting firm, Victory Communications, for fund-raising activities and that Victory had used the CBN donor lists.

Even more important are questions being raised about the financial relationship between CBN and two non-profit organizations that layed the groundwork for Robertson's candidacy.

It is reported that CBN funneled as much as $8.5 million into the Freedom Council and the National Freedom Institute. The money was provided over the last three years and is not part of the $11 million reported in Robertson's FEC filing.

The Freedom Council was founded by Robertson in 1981 to encourage participation of fundamentalist Christians in politics. It did considerable grass-roots organizing to create a network of activists who have become the backbone of Robertson's campaign. The second organization, the Freedom Council, did most of the work for Robertson's 1986 Michigan campaign.

It now appears that most of the two organizations' combined $11.7 million budgets over the past three years came from CBN. This might be a violation of federal tax laws since CBN, as a tax-exempt religious organization, is forbidden from using funds for political purposes.

Plastics Pollute Ocean

The North Atlantic Ocean is becoming increasingly polluted with plastics that wash up on shorelines and beaches in amounts three times greater than 15 years ago, researchers say.

A report in the journal of The Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution said most of the plastic garbage, including bags, cups and disposable containers, is probably dumped by commercial ships operating offshore.

But much of the plastic pollution is composed of tiny pellets of polyethylene, called nibs, that are the raw material from which plastic goods are manufactured.

Handled like grain, the nibs apparently spill into the ocean from coastal manufacturing and shipping sites, according to researcher R. Jude Wilber, who wrote the report.

Wilber, a staff scientist at the Sea Education Association, said beaches from Cape Cod to the Bahamas have been littered with the tiny plastic pellets.

He said fish can be killed or harmed by eating nibs and said larger pieces of plastic have been known to strangle birds and seals.

There is one advantage, however. He said floating plastic provides a haven for some barnacles and other marine creatures that cling to floats.

Doctors Fear AIDS

The vast majority of 200,000 health care workers surveyed recently sided with a controversial surgeon who refused to perform open heart surgery on a patient who had AIDS.

Surgeon General C. Everett Koop recently referred to physicians who refuse to treat AIDS patients as a "fearful and irrational minority," but the survey showed 91 percent of health care workers believed doctors have a right to refuse to perform surgery on patients with AIDS.

Another 74 percent said surgical patients should be routinely tested for AIDS and only 32 percent found Centers for Disease Control guidelines for infection control in AIDS patients adequate.

The random, national survey of the surgeons, internists and pharmacists was conducted by Surgical Practice News magazine and the results reported in a recent issue.

dump are situated in the Yucca Mountains of Nevada; Deaf Smith County, Texas; and Hanford, Wash.

The GAO report notes that 1988 is a crucial year for site determination if contractors are to meet the 1995 deadline for the building application permit for the permanent dump. Because of delays and more stringent testing standards, the GAO concludes, the cost of testing all three sites has soared from the original 1981 estimate of $240 million to $4.8 billion.

Public Citizen's unreleased report charges that the fee paid by utilities to cover the dump's eventual cost — one-tenth of a cent per kilowatt generated — is too low. The report says future rate-payers will have to make up the difference.

Public Citizen also faults the DOE for drastically reducing its estimates of the amount of nuclear waste the future dump must hold, and basing its cost calculations on more efficient fuel consumption, a zero inflation rate and only a 3 percent real increase in interest rates.

Halloween Visitors Cause Cassadaga Problems

By Jane Button
UPI Feature Writer

Cassadaga, in western Volusia county, was settled by mediums who came to talk to the dead and that has created an image problem that has turned Halloween into an annual nightmare for the tiny retirement town and forced police to post guards at the graveyard.

The curious and the mischievous flock to Cassadaga every Oct. 31, drawn by an otherworldly mystique that the residents want nothing to do with.

The unincorporated town of about 500 people sits on a high bluff near Lake Helen. Its numbers swell during the winter with elderly retirees from the North.

Cassadaga was founded as a winter camp for members of the Cassadaga Free Lake Association in western New York. Several such camps sprang up around the spiritualist movement in the latter part of the 19th century, and believers gathered to hold seances and compare notes.

Cassadaga's first resident, a medium named

George Colby, said he was led there from Lake Mills, Iowa, by an Indian spirit guide named Seneca.

Today, about half of Cassadaga's residents are practicing spiritualists and live in cottages on the 35-acre plot Colby deeded to the Southern Cassadaga Spiritualist Camp Meeting Association.

Members believe that the dead survive as spirits that communicate with the living, usually through the help of people trained as mediums. Approximately 30 or 40 are mediums certified by the church and give psychic readings to the public.

Halloween is not a spiritualist holiday, nor is there any connection with witchcraft, sorcery and the like.

But the town attracts so much attention that some residents are reluctant to discuss Halloween, wary that any comment at all will only fuel the hoopla. Telephone inquiries to the camp association are answered with a polite invitation to "Call us back November 1st."

"They are very devoutly religious people and this is their religion. They're awfully good people and they're subject to a lot of badmouthing from people who don't understand," said Tom Ling, police chief in neighboring Lake Helen.

"Cassadaga jokes in this area are as prevalent as Polish jokes anywhere else. It's a shame."

The Cassadaga mystique has attracted a few charlatans and rip-off artists posing as mediums and a steady stream of visitors who go to the town for psychic readings and advice. It has also made the Cassadaga Cemetery a popular year-round curiosity.

The cemetery, where about 500 people are buried, is actually within the Lake Helen city limits. Lake Helen policemen and volunteer firemen stand guard at the graveyard on Halloween.

"We have to. We'd have mass desecration of graves if we didn't," Ling said.

Three years ago on Halloween, three students from nearby Stetson University broke into a crypt and stole a woman's skull. They were charged with disfiguring a tomb after police found the skull rolling around in the trunk of one student's car.

One tomb with a headstone that resembles a chair has drawn particular attention.

"The kids locally call it the devil's chair. They believe that if you sit in it during a full moon you'll see the devil," Ling said.

The city recently fenced in the graveyard and posted No Trespassing signs, threatening to arrest anyone found on the premises after the cemetery closed at 7:30 p.m.

It didn't help. Although arrest totals were unavailable, police arrested 10 people, including several tourists from Michigan, in a single night two months ago.

"When they hear about the cemetery they like to go down there and see it," said Ling. "A lot of people are fascinated because of the mystique of Cassadaga."

Checking Up On Preachers

Fresh from watching the PTL scandal unfold in daily reports, we've just been treated to ministerial pleadings before Congress to let them police themselves instead of letting the IRS do it.

Fellows, this wasn't the best time to argue your case.

After decades of watching these well-dressed men beg for money on TV and build empires to themselves, I wonder why we're still tippy-toeing around them. And after seeing what happened to the PTL "partners" — thousands of them being offered only a pittance of what they were promised for their dollar, as a way to atone for what the Hackers frittered away — the idea of a group of Congress members still listening politely to these guys seems ludicrous.

If PTL were a business — say, a health spa that sold lifetime memberships and then threw away money until the company declared bankruptcy — the IRS would be on them like a pack of dogs on a dead opossum. But since these fellows prefaced their actions by tacking "Rev." in front of their names, the Congress of the United States is supposed to consider — prayerfully, I assume — their request to let their own financial foxes guard their henhouses. If the hens get less hay and fewer pellets for their buck, we're all just supposed to look the other way and let them peck it out 'til the best rooster wins.

Saying that ministries should be subject to the same rules the rest of us are has always been difficult, especially to those of us who go to church and know what great good churches can do. Churches build hospitals, feed the poor and bring education to third world countries. They bring joy in places of the earth where there is little but hardship and desolation.

The question always arises that if we tax churches, or if we even let the IRS regulate them, we will be placing undue affliction on churches who use their money to help people. And that's exactly what these charlatans want us to think, that by regulating them we'd be throwing the baby out with the bathwater. I don't think so.

There's a world of difference between giving anyone who invokes the name of God carte blanche to take money and do with it as he pleases, and monitoring the actions and expenditures of churches. A wise study of church activities, undertaken perhaps by a panel of Congress members and church leaders, could formulate a set of rules that gives churches the same accountability as Joe Citizen is expected to live by. We don't have tax rules to punish the good, but to save the rest of us from the bad. Some of these ministers have proven bad in living Technicolor, and the rest of us need protection from them.

Jerry Falwell argues that the PTL scandal has left churches "naked before the public now," and that this somehow will prevent ministries from bliking the public again. That makes as much sense as saying that once we've caught the mayor's hand in the city till, the embarrassment will be enough to make him quit if we'll all just quit looking at him.

It used to be that ministers and other church leaders could use their tax-exempt status to squander money and few of us knew about it. Since they've taken their acts to television, they can't hide it anymore. If we look the other way now, we're as gully as those who let contractors cheat little old ladies out of their life savings and do nothing about it.

Phobia Awareness Month Legislation Needed

National studies indicate that approximately one person in 10 has a phobia, and some of those people have several phobias that interfere with their lives in significant ways. Phobic disorders rank as the number one mental health problem in the United States. They are three times more common than depression and it is estimated that 30 percent of alcohol abusers are "closet" phobics.

Phobic disorders involve an irrational fear of some specific stimulus—driving, bridges, being in a crowd or being in a confined area such as an elevator. Other people are afraid of heights, darkness, spiders, snakes, and even such mundane objects as the telephone.

But by far the most serious and debilitating of these disorders is agoraphobia, because frequently and at worst it makes the sufferer totally housebound, absolutely terrified to venture forth on the most ordinary errand.

To call attention to this matter, U.S. Rep. Michael Bilirakis, a Republican from the Clearwater-St. Petersburg area, has tried ardently to introduce legislation to designate October as Phobia Awareness Month.

Unfortunately and curiously, Congress has shown little interest. The idea was to launch an education program to increase public awareness of this huge health problem and the steps that can and should be taken to combat it.

Phobias have received little attention because they are neither infectious nor especially life-threatening such as AIDS is. They are, however, seriously disabling afflictions that too often go untreated because of a lack of knowledge about available therapies and medications. Even members of the medical community lack the needed education about the symptoms and treatment of phobic disorders. Billions of dollars in direct and indirect medical costs are wasted each year due to misunderstanding, misdiagnosis and improper treatment, according to a recent NIMH study.

A Phobia Awareness Month would provide a special opportunity to help afflicted individuals get the proper help. And such people need help desperately. Their bouts with terror are only part of their burden. Severe phobias can ruin careers, marriages and lives. Obviously, phobic disorders are a form of torment that is unique, and deserve the government's attention.

I applaud Mike Bilirakis for pressing for such enlightened legislation and urge his colleagues to take a second look and this bill (HR Res 241). The indifference of Congressional members is itself a proof that the subject is gravely misunderstood.

and it is because of that generally faulty understanding that I am writing this long letter to the editor of this paper. Another reason, more importantly, is that I want you readers who are phobic, and especially those who are agoraphobic, to know that your secret affliction in unashamed and highly treatable.

Praise For Lake Mary's Police Chief

In a recent article the Herald described a press tour of Lake Mary conducted by the city's police chief, Charles Lauderdale, in which he pointed out the needs of some low income families and the problems experienced by the unemployed and homeless who are occasionally stranded in the city.

The chief's subsequent appeal to organize community support has resulted in the city's recognition of the problem and community organization to respond to the needs.

Since his arrival in Lake Mary, Chief Lauderdale has stirred up some controversy with respect to the manner of his conduct of investigations of city government. However, his dedication to the enforcement of the law and his concern for his officers' safety and efficiency has resulted in a fine police department.

Chief Lauderdale has settled into our community not only as a respected public official, but as a good neighbor as well. His determination to help those in need has been reflected in his officers as well. A police force that tempers enforcement with service and human concern is one well-deserving of public support and confidence.

Congratulations, Chief Lauderdale—glad to have you here.

Wants Warnings On Alcohol Containers

I have recently heard of an important movement worthy of our support.

We all know about the dangers of cigarettes and smoking. We also know about the serious health problems caused by crack cocaine and other illegal drugs. There is, however, an addictive, easily available drug in our society. This drug can cause heart and brain damage, it can also complicate pregnancy, cause liver disease, and impair normal body functions of thought, memory and perception. Prolonged use can result in the death. All too often excessive use can cause not only the death of the user, but the death of innocent men, women and children who may be at the wrong place at the wrong time.

The drug is alcohol. It is almost as readily available as water. It can be as addictive as cocaine and it kills more people than all illegal drugs combined.

ADAM, Inc., is an organization seeking legislation which would require warning labels be printed on containers of any alcoholic beverage; warning labels, like those on cigarettes, telling of the potential dangers of alcohol.

I believe this to be a sound idea and nothing short of just plain common sense.

I hope readers will give some thought to this proposal and contact their elected representatives. Encourage them to enact laws to require health warning labels on alcoholic beverage containers.

Applauds Story About Contractors

On behalf of the Florida Construction Industry Licensing Board, Mr. Fred Seely and myself, we wish to thank the Herald and Deane Jordan for the article on disciplined contractors.

This is the kind of coverage that the construction industry needs, as well as the public. So many times we receive calls from people who have been taken advantage of by these so-called professionals who have no idea that we even exist until after the damage had been wrought. We really appreciate this article and your taking the time to call and get information about these contractors.

Criticizes Networks For Not Carrying Reagan Speech

I am shocked and angry at the behavior of the major television networks. Were they afraid that their liberal accusations against Judge Bork would collapse if the president could talk to the people?

The President of the United States on Oct. 15 was not allowed to defend Judge Bork's record on ABC, CBS or NBC. He could only be heard on cable television.

Television is too powerful. Many of our people don't go to the trouble to read two sides in a newspaper any more. They get their opinions from television news. Reporters complain that the president doesn't hold news conferences often enough. I would much rather hear the president than the reporters telling me what he meant.

I disagree with Judge Bork on two points but I was hoping he would be confirmed. For one reason, I don't think he is soft on murderers and rapists.

When I read about the little Orlando girl's cruel death recently I wondered how officers have the heart to go on trying to catch the fiends who murder little girls and policemen. They can be sure of a long expensive trial and, if there is a conviction and the rapist-murderer is condemned to death, the officers can be sure that the Federal Court of Appeals will stop the execution over and over as they have for Bundy.

What's New In Health

The Pros And Cons Of Joining An HMO

By E.D. Coles

"What HMO are you going to choose?" read the message that greeted me one recent morning as I logged on to the newspaper's computer system.

That may be the leading macro-topic of conversation in the newsroom these days — behind such macro-topics as what Bill Casey did or didn't say to Bob Woodward, and whether Jessica Hahn did or didn't before she did.

The HMO question is a pressing one for many of us. After years of having only a standard, fee-for-service-based health insurance program, we are being offered not one, but two Health Maintenance Organizations as alternatives.

We have a relatively short time in which to make this potentially crucial decision — the "open" period ends at the end of this month. So in the next two weeks we must weigh the benefits — and risks — of one plan over another.

The first question is not which HMO one will choose, but whether one wants an HMO at all.

From a monetary standpoint, HMOs offer a potentially enormous advantage over conventional medical insurance. There are no annual deductibles. If there are co-payments, they are so small — between $2 and $5 — as to be meaningless to someone with even a modest income. HMO plans usually offer a free annual physical. They usually cover 100 percent of pediatric care — including immunizations and over preventive care. And they cover 100 percent of hospitalization costs and connected services and fees.

Even if HMO coverage costs more on a monthly basis — and such plans usually do — when you consider what the HMO may save you, the initial investment is extremely appealing. After all, most standard insurance plans pay 80 percent of usual and customary fees charged by surgeons and other specialists. When you consider that a surgeon might well send you a $5,000 to $10,000 bill for major surgery, and his bill may not fall into the insurance company's "usual and customary" range, you realize that a medical emergency could leave you several thousand dollars in the red.

Add to that an annual deductible of several hundred dollars and, if you have young children, the 20 percent of the fees charged by your pediatrician, and you realize that an HMO may well be a financial bargain. But....

An HMO is a health care delivery system built on the premise that by providing health counseling and health maintenance, it can control health costs because you are less likely to become ill and rack up bills.

Oh, there's one other thing: No matter what the brochures say, HMOs also control costs by controlling access to health care. You want to see a specialist? Fine, the HMO will pay for it — if your "primary" physician OKs it. You want your open heart surgery performed by the top heart surgeon in your state? Fine, if he's on the HMO's list of approved surgeons and the hospital at which he practices is one with which the HMO has agreements. You have a bad cold and want to see the doctor? Fine. The doctor can see you one week from today. (Of course, if what you have is really a cold the odds are it will be gone by then.) And so it goes.

Now there is nothing inherently wrong with this. We do need to control health costs in this country, and one way to do that is for us to start waiting for colds to cure themselves rather than going to the doctor to be told to blow our noses.

But before joining an HMO you should consider, in addition to the fact that the HMO limits your choice of physician, that there are no free lunches — even in the waiting rooms of HMOs.

budget, the agency is asking for $1.8 billion for space station development alone.

"I think every year is going to be a very, very hard struggle with the budget and I think the tendency will be to try to do to us what they did to the shuttle, and that's every year cutting way back and saying you can get along with less, which forces you to compromise," Stofan said in an interview.

"1989 is going to be a very crucial year to say do we have the support of this administration or do we not."

For the admittedly-biased astronaut corps, the men and women who will have to build the station and live aboard it, the question is clear.

"I don't think we should have to sell the station. To me, people should have to tell me why not," says veteran shuttle pilot David Walker, in charge of a 10-member astronaut team studying space station requirements. "Gosh all mighty, this is the spirit of Columbus we're talking about."

"We're not talking about just building some sort of a factory to go up there and make microchips. We're talking about getting ready to go to Mars and beyond. If we lose that sense of vision, then we're going to lose it all as a human species and we'll be dinosaurs."

President Reagan called for the permanently manned space station in his 1984 State of the Union address to serve as a base for scientific investigations and to support industrial ventures expected to stimulate growth of new technologies and strengthen international cooperation in space.

He also called for international participation and the agency is in the final stages of hammering out agreements with Japan, Canada and Western Europe that will result in two additional laboratory modules and crucial construction equipment.

But Pentagon interest in the station for possible use in military experiments has been a difficult issue in the negotiations. The U.S. position, which does not appear flexible, reserves the right of "peaceful" use of the station for military experiments.

"I am optimistic," said Margaret Finarelli, who has been leading the NASA negotiations.

"We've spent two years in really tough negotiations and we've all learned a lot. All three of the partners have significantly impacted the whole structure of the program."

The president's endorsement followed more than a year of conceptual studies by NASA engineers to define a realistic space station design. The most significant step yet in the station's evolution is the awarding of four construction contracts in early November.

At the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Rockwell International and McDonnell Douglas Corp. lead teams vying for a $3.7 billion "work package" that includes development of the station's truss-like framework, airlocks, control systems, fittings for attached payloads and other subsystems.

Martin Marietta Corp. and Boeing Aerospace Co. head teams competing for a $2.1 billion work package to be managed by the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., that includes building the station's laboratory and living modules where crews of up to eight astronauts will work for up to 180 days at a time.

The contract also covers development of the hub-like "resource nodes" that will connect the habitable modules and house critical control equipment.

The Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., will manage a $700 million contract that covers development of an unmanned station component that will orbit Earth's poles. General Electric Co. and its subsidiary, RCA Corp., represent the only bidder.

And finally, Rockwell's Rocketdyne Division is the sole bidder on a $1 billion contract to be managed by the Lewis Research Center in Cleveland for development of the station's electrical power system.

"Once these contracts are signed, we essentially have full authority to go ahead and start constructing the space station," Stofan said. "There are no other major contracts after that that are anticipated in the near future."

"Hopefully, by that time we'll have our international partners signed up and on board."

The contracts represent billions of dollars and thousands of jobs.

Baby Boomers Slipping Into Middle Age

An American Childhood, by Annie Dillard. (Harper & Row, 255 pp., $17.95)
Baby boomers are dipping a collective toe into the pool of middle age, and they do not like the water. The generation that unlike few others clung to childhood is discovering, to its horror, that time will claim them, too.

Annie Dillard apparently feels that tingle. The Pulitzer Prize winner presents in her latest, "An American Childhood," her Pittsburgh youth — a blooming idyll of rocks, insects and books.

Dillard is a wonderful writer and her best work comes out of her powerful description of the beautiful unity of all the world. In "Pilgrim at Tinker Creek," a Thoreau-esque remembrance of a year alone with nature, she wrote of the world's simple majesty with lyricism and grace.

"Passages of 'An American Childhood' have that same grace. The book rejects chronology, resting instead on the water of memory. With Pittsburgh's rivers and the Mississippi figuring prominently, it's a nice motif making a nice point: memory erodes — but it also softens and shines.

The primary weakness in the book arises, ironically, from Dillard's strength — she's a describer, not a storyteller. When she remembers the tactile things — the rocks, the insects, whole shelves of books — she recalls them in masterfully rendered detail. But her memories of people get subjected to the same scrutiny, and that drains all the blood away — a shame, since the few glimpses Dillard gives of her parents, sisters and friends are tantalizing.

Dillard marks off her life's milestones with volumes and trips to the library, a refreshing notion in an age of television. At the same time, Dillard seems oblivious to the sea change in American culture brought in large measure by the box. The sole reference to TV is a throwaway line about Sid Caesar.

Dillard herself apparently was a good kid until that amusing age, adolescence, when, "livid with rage by breakfast," she decided she'd had just about enough of youth and Pittsburgh. She doodled through the last years of high school, made her parents crazy, even got in trouble with the cops.

Disappointingly, all that upheaval, indeed most of her feelings and thoughts as she grows up, gets short shrift, as if Dillard suddenly realizes the passage from childhood is not a rock collection but a story, and throws up her hands.

"An American Childhood," sadly, falls short because Dillard resists remembering and writing about herself — admittedly a writer's most difficult duty but the most necessary for a book about growing up.

Woman in the Mists, by Farley Mowat (Warner, 380 pp., $19.95)

Dian Fossey, who devoted 18 years to the study of Africa's mountain gorillas, was a strong-minded and contradictory woman. Her life ended two years ago when someone killed her in her mountain cabin in Rwanda, Africa, a crime local authorities blamed on an American student.

"Woman in the Mists" by Canadian naturalist Farley Mowat is the first biography of Fossey. Unfortunately, Mowat makes no attempt to evaluate her life and work.

Mowat says he decided to serve as Fossey's "editorial collaborator," relying heavily on her diary and letters. Her enemies — and she had many — became his enemies, and her point of view his.

Fossey was 34 in 1968 when she abandoned her job as an occupational therapist in Louisville, Ky., for central Africa's Virunga mountain range, the home of the few remaining mountain gorillas. Although she had little experience with Africa, the wilderness or animals, she was sponsored by anthropologist Louis Leakey.

Fossey eventually established herself in the Parc des Volcans in Rwanda. Except for brief trips to the United States and Europe and two academic interludes at Cambridge University and Cornell, Fossey spent the rest of her life at her Karisoke Research Center.

With Leakey and the National Geographic Society backing her, Fossey got off to a good start. But her last years were embittered by territorial disputes about the control of Karisoke, lack of funds and what she saw as the betrayal of former students.

Behind the flights was a real problem — the survival of the 200 or so remaining mountain gorillas, which range over a territory that includes parts of Rwanda, Zaire and Uganda. They are threatened by poachers, loss of their habitat to farming, and possibly by human diseases and parasites.

Fossey observed several extended family groups of gorillas for several years, and came to love them. Then her favorite, Dight, a silverback male, died horribly at the hands of poachers. His death, along with that of others, enraged Fossey, and increased her bitterness towards most Rwandan officials and anyone who opposed her views on conservation.

Mowat's attempt to pay tribute to Fossey backfires, with far too much space devoted to her love affairs, heavy drinking and descriptions of feuds with students.

In his description of her battles with other conservationists, Mowat simply assumes that she was right. And since Mowat does not evaluate Fossey's scientific work, he leaves the reader wondering if her detractors were correct when they said she was no scientist.

with the alleged abuse by the men of his daughter. The second is a family problem, revolving around the girl and her involvement with sex, drugs, alcohol and truancy.

The family problem is the one Gross said the father should focus on. The girl's involvement in sex and the use of alcohol and drug and truancy are only symptoms of her real problem, which is rooted in her development into adulthood and her testing of family standards.

The first step, Gross said, would be to get a professional assessment of the girl to determine how serious her involvement is with drug and alcohol use. After that evaluation has been made, if it has been determined that the substance abuse is significant, then the girl should be treated for substance dependency.

That should be followed by family counseling, Gross said, she doesn't know of a Seminole County location where such assessments are offered for free, although they are available through The Grove center in Winter Springs on a sliding scale fee, or through private facilities and counselors.

"The goal is to keep out of court and get help to address the problem," Gross said.

She said that parents who cannot control their children can consult with HRS. HRS officials, she said, should evaluate the case and refer the family to counseling. In extreme cases, after talking with both the parent and child and evaluating the situation which is in an apparent stalemate, Gross said, HRS can petition a court to have the juvenile declared dependent. That means the child might be ordered by a judge to obey the parents. If the child persisted in negative behavior he or she might be sent to juvenile jail.

That's what the Sanford father said he doesn't want for his daughter.

He said he had a similar problem about three years ago when his older daughter was 17. He said he backed off and let her move in with a man, so she wouldn't drop out of school. She completed high school and is still living with that same man, so the father said, that problem eventually solved itself. But, he said, he can't continue to take such a risk with his younger daughter, who is in a less stable situation than the older daughter was.

Vickie Fusco, a treatment coordinator and counselor at The Grove, said that the problems this father is facing are fairly common and are rooted in the desire of youngsters to test parental rules.

Each child finds his or her own way to test the rules, Fusco said. Some try drugs or alcohol. Others experiment with sex or break curfew of skip school.

The key to dealing with these problems is for the parent to admit that these actions by youngsters are symptoms of a family problem, which can be effectively dealt with and modified through professional family counseling and treatment for substance abuse, if called for.

"The first thing, before the child can be held accountable, they have to take responsibility. They can't blame their friends. They can't blame their parents. The child has to look at his or her own decision to do whatever they have done. The parent has to look objectively at why the child has done whatever it is. The child made a decision to do something inappropriate. It's hard for parents. They want to look for others to blame or they want to blame themselves, but it is the child who has done something wrong, while checking out the validity of information parents have given them while establishing rules."

Symptoms of such testing of parental authority may manifest in symptoms such as a sexual activity and drug abuse, which indicate underlying family problems, which Fusco said can be dealt with.

"The first thing is to get every bit of information the parents can find, about what's going on at school and at home. What one parent knows is different than what the other parent knows. Next talk with a professional counselor or a school counselor and evaluate the information.
