GOP Chief Executives: Democrat Legislatures

Chade Kirk of Florida.

Both are Republican chief executives. Each has to contend with legislatures which are in Desceration hands. And is either case the President-elect and the Governor have goals which attract much favorable support but, as is also usually the case, sold enermous some of money to bring about.

We would direct our readers attention to the column we are printing by Helen Fuller, a very well informed, experienced and accurate portrayer of the Washington scene. Today she looks at the Nixon cabinat

Here in Florida, however, there are some signs that the upcoming two years of the Kirk administra-tion will be considerably different from his freshman and sophomore terms.

rushes in without doing his homework-witness his premature declaration that he would appoint a Houtenant-governor authorised by the new revised state constitution and only now seeks state supreme court or otherwise on the Kirk proposal. But it does seem that the acknowledged flair of our governor to force an issue with headline treatment which could more easily be solved by quieter, more mature approach is hereby illustrated. As for the legislature, the discussion already underway which will only take open and definitive form when the regular session opens in April, has caused the fear of a spendthrift policy with inevitable tax boosts to arise in many circles. There are inescapable needs in our state which must be carefully weighed and wisely decided by the legislators. We are convinced that there exists both the capacities and abilities to do this in the ranks of could hand-pick, the Florida cabinet is created by the

Yet laws must be passed and credit sought and plame put on the legislators who pushed to success or block such actions. And there now is a two-party representation in Tallahassee which should have nothing but good results so far as Floridian taxpayers are concerned.

Florida taxpayers, we are sure, will remember in 1970 what is done by the legislature in 1969. This also will be a state election (1970) which both the Democrats and Republican gubernatorial hopefuls will use as a guideline.

This is, therefore, a political factor which Governor Kirk may weigh in the balance as he produces an executive record in the intervening years to make his re-election attractive to all. The Democrats have other factors to consider.

Thus, when a gubernatorial election rolls around tradition would demand that one or more of the Democrats who has been exposed to the public by his ac-tions in one of the key cabinet posts would benefit from the large Democratic majority in our state.

Yet it was intra-party feuding which allowed the Republicans to elect—with dissatisfied Democrat help, Mr. Kirk—and started the Republican party on the road to state power which the Nixon victory has given a major boost. We believe that both the President-elect and our Governor are in positions where great achievements are possible and where great achievements can be looked for with hope.

Especially is this so at this season where "good-will" should predominate and when all face a New Year where co-operation and unity must be sought!

Post Officing!

Mr. Nixon favors private enterprise as a better agent of up-to-st-'em employment truining than the Job Corps or other what-not been doggles of the Poverty War, but he's make an even bigger name for himself if he proved to be the President who took the Post Office out of the red and made the mails arrive on time.

Poverty is an affliction of the few, but the Poverty is an affliction of the few. but the mails are the despair of everybody. "A failure," says President Johnson's Commission on Postal organization, headed by a retired telephone executive. The Commission wants to de-bureaucratise the service and remake it into a government-owned corporation. That should appeal to the President-elect, though Congress, unaccountably, ian't supposed to be enchanted with the

The Post Office is. It is one public agency that does its level best. But more employes, more mechanization, higher postal rates, and in-creased private-carrier deliveries aloft and alow haven't combined to hit the target the Post Office sets for itself: two day delivery, coast to coast and border to border.

With the mails increasing as they are (10 billion more pieces than in 1958) and the growth-rate pointing skyward, it's probably un-fair to cry failure at the Department or to point to the billion-dollar deficit. By the test of deficits and goals missed other governmental departments fare worse and come in behind the P.O. in the employee-enthusiasm scale.

But the Post Office is more public-related than any other government service, and that's why really solid reform would stamp the reforming President as one for the ages. Mr. Nixon leans naturally toward private enterprise and the recommendation that the postal service be made a corporation ought to reach his idea-box with none of the delays that beset normal deliv-ery.—Shreveport (La.) Times.

Dern. 32, is one of the leads in a football movie, "Pro," starring Charlton Heston. The New Orleans Saints have co-operated with the studio and set location was there. Dern is also a long distance runner, competitively and pleasurably. He is the American champion in the 40-mile and 42-mile runs but is quite humble about his accomplishments. When 0 asked his times, he lowers a lid and says, "Times are really unimportant because there are not many other nuts who run 2 that distance."

As a New Trier High School track star, primarily in the half-mile, he made the Illinois High School Hall of Fame. At the University of Pennsylvania he never lost a race. He still does not lose many races, but his track record against dogs and cops is not so sterling. When he suits up for a biff across hill and dale, he arms himself with stones. "To discourage dogs from getting too riendly," he said. "Sometimes they will follow me, yipping and snapping for miles But they usually turn back before they get too far from home."
