Florida Motor Accident Record Good When Number of Cars Is Considered

proportion to the number of automobiles on the highways Florida's motor accident record probably is better than that of any state in the South, says the Florida State Chamber of Commerce. One of the press association reports began to issue a weekly table showing the number of persons killed and injured in motor accidents in each of the Southern States while Florida's weekly totals frequently have been greater than any other state in the list. It is believed that in proportion to the number of cars on the road the record actually is better.

Florida's Law Permitting

During 1925 Florida led every state in the country in the number of automobiles. With one exception it possessed the finest highway system of all the Southern states and since its roads are hard surfaced and are used in all kinds of weather, it is reasonable to assume that there are more automobiles in Florida at this time, including so-called foreign cars, than in any other Southern state. In other sections of the South highways are inadequate, and this feature, coupled with cold weather, and bad road conditions due to rain or snow, reduces considerably the volume of traffic. In Florida thousands of cars are on the road day and night.

WALSH URGES FULL PROBE OF MELLON FIRM

Democrat Of Montana Recommends Inquiry Because Of Doubts Aroused As To Good Faith Of Justice Bureau

Federal Trade Body Asked For Evidence

Attorney-General Sargent Is Assailed For The Manner In Which Probe Was Conducted

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Senate investigation of the Aluminum Company of America in which Secretary Mellon is a large stockholder is recommended in a report submitted to the Judiciary Committee by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana.

This proposal is made, the Senator says, because "doubts aroused as to the vigor and the good faith of the Department of Justice" in the conduct of its inquiry to establish whether the Aluminum Company has violated a federal court consent decree entered against it in 1912.

Besides recommending what would be a third government investigation of the Mellon Company within four years, Senator Walsh asked that the Senate direct the Federal Trade Commission to turn over to it all of the evidence furnished by the Aluminum Company and which the commission withheld from the Justice Department on the ground that it is "confidential."

Describing this action of the commission as "sneaky," Senator Walsh takes the position that since the Senate ordered the commission to make the investigation in the first instance, it can compel production of the evidence.

Department Is Assailed
Attorney-General Sargent and other officials of the Justice Department are sharply assailed by Senator Walsh for the manner in which the inquiry was prosecuted after the trade commission had reported to the department in October, 1924, that the Aluminum Company had violated the consent decree.

Calling attention to the evidence adduced at the Judiciary Commission hearing on the subject showed that months elapsed before any move was made, the Senator declares that had the department moved with celerity it could have obtained the "confidential" evidence subsequently withheld from it.

The report emphasized that while an agent of the department was finding from a field inquiry that the aluminum industry was well satisfied with the existing conditions, an investigator of the trade commission found much complaint against the Aluminum Company of America and ordered evidence on which the commission issued a complaint last summer. This complaint is to be brought to trial on Feb. 15.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 1, (AP)—The Southern basketball tournament in Atlanta, February 25 to March 2, will be confined to the sixteen leading teams of the conference, according to rules adopted by the basketball committee of which H. J. Stegeman, athletic director of the University of Georgia is chairman. These teams will be selected on a percentage basis of eight Conference games and where eight Conference games and not played the selection will be by a committee.

A new rule applicable this year relates to the drawings for the various brackets. Heretofore, it has happened that strong teams have survived on account of the pairings. To avoid this each coach will be requested to vote for four "best leaders" when he replies to the application to enter the tournament; the votes to be cast for the four outstanding teams of the Conference.
By this method it is hoped to keep at least four leading teams in the tournament until the semifinals. The other pairing would be by lot.

Five teams in the Conference cannot participate in the tournament on account of the sixteen teams ruling, there being twenty-two colleges, supporting inter-collegiate athletic members of the Conference.

Palm Beach Woman Is Killed By Auto

Feb. 2—(AP)—Automobiles added WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., another name to their toll of dead last night when Mrs. Ulderick Dumont of this city, was knocked down and almost instantly killed.

Thus the automobile toll in Palm Beach county for the year is eight lives. Seven were lost during the first three weeks in the new year. Mrs. Dumont with three other women had just stepped from a bus at Thirteenth Avenue shortly after 11 o'clock, according to the report to Motorcycle Policeman McLean. Two of the women had already crossed the street and she was following when the car shot around another which was standing on the east side of the thoroughfare. She died from a fractured neck a few minutes after she was admitted to the hospital.

Seven women will sit in the next general assembly of New Jersey.

DANGER BRINGS HUMILITY
 "And Jacob said, O God of my father, I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the goodness, which thou hast showed unto thy servant. . . . Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of Esau. Gen. 32:9-11.
PRAYER—Our Father God, for the assurance that when the poor man cries unto Thee Thou dost deliver him from all his fears, we thank Thee.

TO NIGHT
 Mysterious night! When our first parent knew
 These from report divine, and heard
 His voice, which thou hast showed unto thy servant.
 Did he not tremble for this lovely frame,
 This glorious canopy of light and dew,
 Bathed in the rays of the great setting flame,
 Hesperus with the host of heaven came,
 And lo! Creation widened in man's view.
 Who could have thought such dark ideas lay in that first Within thy beams, O Sun! or who could find
 What thy stars and host of stood revealed.
 That to such common orb
 made us blind!
 Why do we then shun death with anxious strife?
 If light can thus deceive, where fore not Life!

"No woman is worth fighting for," observes Rudolph Valentino. Again we are compelled to remind you of how extremely soon the women are at this time of the season.

Bank deposits have passed the six million dollar mark with prospects for them to continue to increase steadily during the coming year. January sales in real estate were nearly two and a half million dollars, showing a tremendous gain over the corresponding month of last year. Yes, in every way, Sanford is growing larger and larger.

Sanford was host today to prominent newspapermen representing the press association in the United States. That this city made an excellent impression upon the visitors is shown by the number of favorable remarks expressed during their stay here. Among the distinguished members of the party was Josephus Daniels, former secretary of navy during the Wilson administration, who had many fine things to say about this city.

Reading plenty of rolls of newspaper in the water, about the biggest job confronting newspapermen today. Either we haven't enough, or else we begin to run short. We note the Miami Herald had a special paper consisting of fifty-cent paper or over one thousand blank pages for the front of the paper to "make a few days." The Miami Herald had a special paper consisting of fifty-cent paper or over one thousand blank pages for the front of the paper to "make a few days." Daylight Service To Jacksonville

Plans of a newly formed corporation of local men seeking to establish a luxurious, daylight service between Jacksonville and Sanford have a direct bearing on the future development of this community, and as a community measure, should receive the co-operation and endorsement of Sanford citizens. Too long have we secretly nourished the idea that Sanford is not a tourist city, and therefore not called upon to supply tourist needs and accommodations. Sanford and any other city is what its people make it. Despite the rapidly increasing evidence of Sanford's ability to capitalize on its natural attractions to good advantage along tourist lines, there are some who are still apparently laboring under the delusion that commerce and industry and agriculture is the trinity that should be fostered to the exclusion of tourist activity.

While it is true that Sanford has always prided itself on the wealth and solidity of its fields, and its independence from tourist patronage, there is certainly no reason why this city should not make the most of its natural endowments and develop its tourist popularity along with its other phases of community life.

Located at the headwaters of a stream praised by artists and authors as one of the most tropically beautiful in North America, Sanford could easily be made the doorway of thousands of tourists who would journey up this wonderful stream annually if the scenery lining its banks were sufficiently advertised and facilities for its enjoyment provided.

Present plans of the corporation, known as the Lake Monroe Transportation Company, call for the early inauguration of a well appointed luxurious yacht, catering primarily to sight-seers, and running on regular schedule so arranged that a full appreciation of the scenery lining the river banks for the 200 miles may be obtained by crowding it all into a two-day trip.

Simultaneously with the announcement of this service, The Herald would like to see the glories of the tropical St. Johns featured more extensively in our advertising. Few of the tourists who are now in Florida know of the beauties to be seen on this river and by the exploitation of the scenery with which this section has been blessed, hundreds of worth-while visitors could be attracted to Sanford and manifold advantages obtained.

With three river lines, two of which will cater to passenger travel, Sanford will take on greater proportions as an important port and will within a short time take its rightful place as the Albany of Florida.

Give The Tourist A Taste

A novel scheme for advertising Sanford was brought to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce last Friday when Sandy Anderson, representing the Lions Club, suggested that celery be given away to tourists passing through the town, and be served without charge at the hotels and restaurants.

It seems to us that this is a good method of making friends. At comparatively little expense this giving away of a few dollars' worth of our great product would do more to call attention to our celery and to our city than any other thing that could be done for the money expended. The opportunity comes to our doors, and without much trouble or inconvenience we may cash in upon it to good advantage.

Put yourself in the place of a tourist; tired from a long dusty train trip, who, upon arriving at the Sanford railroad station, is presented with a bunch of crisp, fresh celery and a little package of salt, along with a word of greeting from Sanford with a cordial invitation to stop with us.

As has frequently been pointed out by The Herald, Sanford should see to it that those persons who come to this city and those who pass through have the opportunity of securing good celery, the kind we ship away. We have seen in some of the stores a mighty poor grade of this product and have often wondered what the impression of tourists who come to the Celery City must be when they buy some of this poor stuff. If the restaurants served without charge the best obtainable, and then if our stores carried nothing but the best grade, a better impression would be given.

The scheme as suggested by Mr. Anderson is one of great merit and The Herald hopes it will be put into operation at once. Sanford grows the best celery in the world. Let's give the tourists a taste and make them agree with us.

As Brisbane Sees It

Extra! Preservers Use Resin. Model and John D. Jr. Give Hints To Think Yes, We Are Conservatives. By ARTHUR BRISBANE copyright 1924, by Star Co.

ENCOURAGING INFORMATION
 Eidel B. Ford, son of the original Eidel B. Ford, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., son of the original John D., are jointly interested in sending Richard E. Byrd on a flight to the Arctic—each contributed cash. This particular flight is interesting and important. But definitely more important is the hope that these sons of the two richest men on earth will become jointly interested in aircraft promotion in the United States.

NEITHER OF these young men needs money. But both, being normal Americans, want a record of public service and the glory that goes with it. They possess knowledge of building, financial power, intelligence and ambition, everything necessary to put this nation as overwhelmingly in the lead in the air as it is now on the ground.

POULTNEY BIGELOW asks, "Who is H. H. Wells? The answer is H. H. Wells. He made millions of other men think along new lines, thus annoying many of the millions. Men hate thinking as much as a dog hates to walk on his hind legs—for any length of time.

WHAT IS the most important to at least twenty million Americans, old and young, in the news of today? It does not concern the world war, coal strike, league of nations, coal strike, or at the latest advice on "how to make your first million." The real news is this: The joint baseball committee approves the use of resin by pitchers.

HEREAFTER PITCHERS may smear resin, pronounced by fans as "control," on their hands, and thus increase "control." They must not smear the resin on the ball. That's bad news for Babe Ruth and the other outsters.

AS HITHERTO predicted, mine owners probably will win the coal strike although the victory may be camouflaged as a "compromise." The workers made no mistake in their original absolute rejection of arbitration.

PUBLIC OPINION would condemn the mine owners if they refused arbitration in a matter of starvation for workmen's families. Public opinion condemns workers when they reject arbitration in a matter that involves starvation for their families.

YOU REALIZE how conservative this nation has become when you hear that Judge Wallace M. Cameron, nominated by President Coolidge as the ninth judicial circuit judge in the public trust, cannot be considered a "good American" because he is "not a native born citizen."

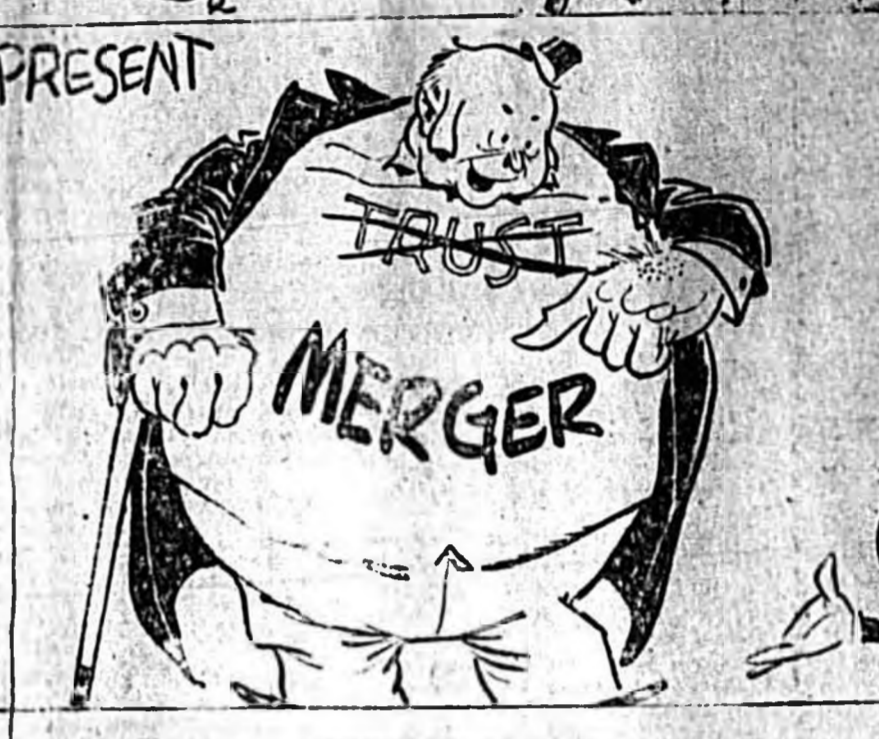

ANY MAN, judge or juror, who believes that the people of the United States have not the right to do whatever they choose to do, is not a native born citizen. He is a constitutional amendment. He traveled a long way from 1776.

SOLOMON LEVITAN, able financier and statesman of Wisconsin, broadcast the information that the farmers of his state "are being held in prison." If all the "prisoners" had a cash value, the farmers' income tax would pay the national debt, says Mr. Levitan.

AN AGED Serbian nobleman ambassador to London, marries a second British wife at the age of 83. He says: "I have lived long because I married very young a good woman who took great care of me." "It would be a good thing for 'sober women' if it didn't take so many men eighty-three years to realize what they owe their wives. Most husbands die without ever realizing it."

A POST OFFICE airplane left Chicago on Friday night, delivered the mail in New York seven hours later, average speed: 124 miles an hour for the 726 miles to the city. That seems fast. In a few years it will seem a snail's pace.

WH-THAT'S DIFFERENT

BANDITS ARE WORKING
 FLORIDA TIMES-UNION

Police reports indicate that bandits are not confining their efforts to out-of-the-way places or foreign lands. A daring hold-up on Forsyth street, Jacksonville, in a comparatively early hour in the evening, recently, show the presence in Florida of bad men who are taking to the without doing any legitimate work. It was well understood that crooks would follow the crowd of decent people into Florida. They go where there seems to be a chance for good pickings, and a band-up would probably show a very large number of men in Jacksonville who have no visible means of support. There is work for everybody of course in many of the trades and occupations the highest wages and areas are being paid. But thieves and thugs are loafers and crooks do not incline toward honest toil.

Jacksonville's police department is no doubt doing as well as it could be expected to do, with a short force at the site of the place and the conditions existing, but occurrences such as the hold-up of the treasurer of a theater, on the most prominent retail street, at a corner in the middle of the activity and at a time of night when thousands of people are moving about, proves that there are altogether too many crooks here. They can be herded up, at times, and a general overlooking of the neighborhood would be a good thing. Men who cannot explain how and why they are here can well be asked to move on or go to work. Incidentally the people of the city, residents and visitors, can also be in their guard.

THE SUPERFLUOUS MR. NESSLER
 ASHEVILLE-CITIZEN

The Honorable Master Charles Nessler, President of the American Master Hairdressers' Association, has separated himself from an initial donation of $5,000 toward the establishment of a college of hair research, which is to be in fact, a laboratory wherein cause of baldness and other shortcomings of the human hair will be investigated.

But the Honorable Master Hairdresser is centuries behind the times. He sets out to discover what has already been discovered. He attempts to ascertain that which everybody in the trade, from the apprentice barber to the owner of the spritely beauty parlor on earth, not only has ascertained but also promises to cure.

There is not a bald-headed barber living, we are convinced, who cannot tell a customer that baldness is caused by dandruff, lack of circulation, too much circulation, tight cap, loose scalp or any one of these other scientific and indisputable conditions. And why to cure baldness? They are legion. Electrical devices, massages, brushings, poultices, balmings, liniments, pastes, ointments, oils, cream shaving, shinglings, wax, are in no hidden or so dead that it cannot be made to flower forth or come to life under the urge of a judicious mixture of all these remedies and methods that can be obtained from any first-class hair shop.

MANY LATE HAT CREATIONS ARE ON DISPLAY AT MILADY'S SHOPPE

Presenting one of the most gorgeous array of hats ever placed on display in Sanford, the Milady's Shoppe today holds its annual Spring opening, with scores of Sanford shoppers viewing the latest hats of every description for use on all occasions.

The lovely windows present beautiful pictures with their artistic decorations. One is softly draped with baby blue and orchid tulle touches of silver. At one end is a basket filled with pink Radiance roses. Placed opposite this is a French importation of peach pink horsehair braid, an off face model, faced with Love bird blue georgette embroidered in silk and velvet, with flowers of shaded rose metallic ribbons.

In the other window, pink and green maline, entwined, forms a soft setting for an exquisite party hat of pink and orchid georgette with overlapped brim, the crown being embroidered in matching tones atchery, and hand made flowers of pink, orchid and yellow georgette. Around the crown is a blue metallic ribbon band and bow. At each side of this "Dream" hat is a large basket filled with pink gladiolus and handles tied with butterfly bows of tulle.

Upon entering the shop, one is bewildered, so numerous are the hats, each one prettier than its neighbor. One particularly admired is of Love bird blue taffeta, with fancy braid edge brim, faced with Marye Antiole taffeta. The crown is covered with large hand made ribbons flowers.

An imported tanzal straw is a large model of white, embroidered with self tones. The crown is rounded with large, white, hand-made taffeta daisies centered with yellow.

Of Mary Antiole horse hair straw, with taffeta cut out motifs on the crown with facing of Love bird straw, is a smart, small model.

For the lovers of black, is a large, stunning hat of black Milan straw, with velvet motifs of Edna black edged with silver.

A handsome creation is of a large model of Indian Orange georgette, with white felt cut out pliqued on the brim. The crown is of deeper-tone duvetyne.

A sport model was of acid green taffeta, with white felt cut out trimmings, painted in gold, and faced with white taffeta.

Another sport hat show is a close-fitting model of shirred white taffeta, on one side of the crown is a large white taffeta cone.

One stunning large model is of brown horse hair, with high trim across the back in bandeau effect, massed with flowers in self and matching tones. Across the front, lace in self tones is softly cascaded over the brim.

A small model of orchid with hand-painted velvet faced with taffeta flowers, is faced with Love Bird blue taffeta.

Of pervance blue and raspberry taffeta with hemstitched brim, and trimmings of hand-made ribbon flowers is another French importation on display.

Physical Sacrifices Made By Composer To Record Indian Songs

The personality of the composer, Thurlow Lieurance with his strong features offset by heavy iron-gray hair, his clear-cut wording, his naturally dramatic manner and whimsical interplay, wins his audiences. His exposition of the process of taking an apparently unmusical aggregation of cries, the form in which the red man utters his songs, and by the alchemy of genius transforming them into tender lullabies, stirring war chants and winning love melodies is a revelation.

Mr. Lieurance has made several physical sacrifices, in order to record songs of the American Indians. At Neosho Falls, Kan., he met with an accident which rendered him a cripple for life. In 1912, he received a second serious injury, while traveling between the Crow and Cheyenne Indian Reservations. During his convalescence, he wrote many compositions. His most popular composition is "By the Waters of Minnetonka."

Mrs. Norma F. Hyattine, as matron of honor, was crowned in baby blue georgette over pink tulle.

The groom was attended by his best man, Mr. Arthur Johnston.

Immediately following the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner of six courses was served.

At a late hour, the couple left on a short wedding trip, keeping their destination a secret. Before leaving the bride threw her bouquet, which was caught by Miss Ethel Hyattine.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. W. B. Conner of Alton, O., Miss Margaret Snook of Wierdale, Fla., and Mrs. Howling of DeLand.

My dear Mr. Whitney,

I wonder if you will think that I am giving up before the battle is over if I ask you to excuse me from my personal appearance at the Orthopedic Hospital tomorrow. I might as well tell you that talking to strangers twice a day for the last week has been the hardest work I have ever done and as you know we take that most particular sequence in "Hot Steel" on Monday morning I feel I owe it to myself to rest today and Sunday, seeing on one, not even my best and closest friend, Sally Atherton.

However, I want to express to you, Mr. Whitney, that I will not mind the fatigue many way if I have contributed to the cause of crippled children in any way.

The saddest thing in my life has been that my work has blotted romantic love from my heart and consequently a child was not for me.

Will you let me send you my check for ten thousand dollars? And, because I do not think my appearance on Saturday afternoon at the auditorium would be worth that much to you, I am congratulating myself that the hospital is making money by my staying away.

Again I want to thank you for allowing me to be some help to you in your great philanthropy, and believe me I am always ready to help in any way I can.

Sincerely yours,
PAULA PERIER.

Telephone Conversation Between Leslie Prescott and Karl Whitney

"Is that you, Karl?"
"Yes, Leslie, what's the matter?"
"Nothing particularly. What made you think so?"
"Your voice sounds so strange."
"I just called you up, Karl, dear to ask you if you will excuse me from coming to the hospital on Saturday. Little sick, is not feeling well and he wants his 'mover' all the time. I've neglected him a good deal of late and after this excitement, which seems to have around the picture which is to be taken at the mill on Monday, I think I shall hide myself away from everyone for a while."
"Of course, dear Leslie, don't come over if you don't want to. But I'm going to lose all my stars, you know. Miss Perier just sent me a night letter asking me to excuse her also."
"I don't blame her, Karl. She was looking very pale the last time I saw her. Paula Perier has all the responsibility for the world hard and leads a very lonely life. I'm going straight to bed now, Karl, and I shall spend tomorrow and Sunday in the nursery with the children. Good-bye and thank you."

The Value of Herbs!

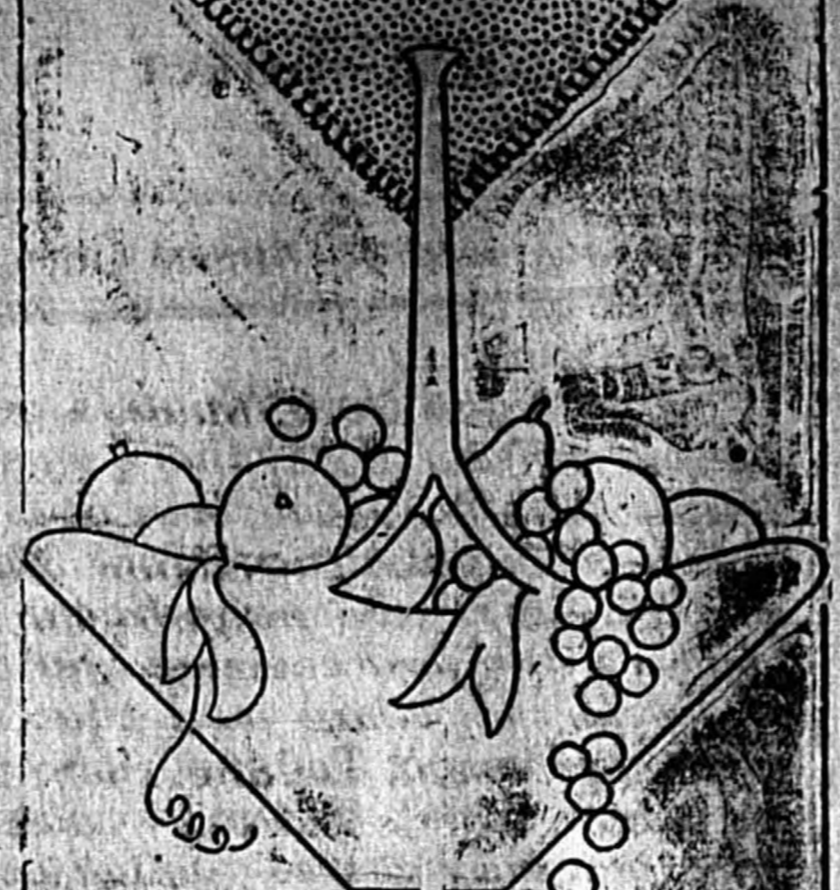

Mary, the mother of George Washington, lived in Fredericksburg, Va., where her beautiful garden was her pride and pleasure. In one part of this garden she raised herbs and from them made a tonic medicine which she freely gave to all who asked for it. Mary Washington's tonic was a boon to many weak people—built them up, made them strong. Today we have practically the same remedy in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made of herbs and skillfully prepared by competent chemists. Sold by druggists. If you need a tonic, try it!

MUFFETS
FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

For A Lunch Cloth

One of the most practical and attractive ways to fashion a lunch cloth is to use a center square of linen that harmonizes in color with your tea set, finished with a wide border of oyster white of exact texture. Such a border may be from four to six inches wide finished. It should be mitred at the corners and joined to the center square with blanket stitch or machine hemstitching.
The pattern here given is exact size to transfer direct through a carbon paper and is designed especially to use in a corner. The fruits are worked solid in long, vertical stitches, red, buff and orange with purple grapes and green leaves. The basket may be brown or blue, and either an applique patch or long running stitches that alternate, about twice the thickness of the floor between stitches.

AVERAGE MAN SPENDS MORE FOR CLOTHES THAN HIS WIFE

By CYNTHIA GREY
Instinct. If women aren't born with it and I think they are, they are forced to acquire it. A wife and mother is in closer contact with the needs of her home and family than is the husband. She knows the million demands made upon the family wallet.
Besides, she carries more. No one will deny that the spirit of unselfish love and devotion to those about her is much stronger in women than men.
Few fathers would sacrifice, and economize as do mothers, even if the acute need for such sacrifice and economy were brought home to them.

This budget totals $149.65. That's for a year, not a month! The budget allows only one hat a year. The hat costs $4.42, according to this governmental expert. The wool coat costs $23.61.
But, in fine deference to the modern woman's demand for all-inclusive, the budget permits one silk vest, one silk chemise, one silk nightgown, and one silk kimono.
One pair of silk stockings at $1.22!
One union suit and one woolen undershirt (chances of our forefathers) are enumerated in this illuminating budget!
But I did not especially set forth to quibble about either the amount of the budget or the various items permitted.
The thing which really intrigued me was this belated governmental recognition that a husband spends more money for his clothes than a woman!
This is only what every wife, every woman, has known for these long and weary years!
Yes, yes, we know all the old arguments! Papa must dress well in his work. It's a matter of business. A man out in the world must look successful in order to be successful.
Some truth in this theory, of course. But also there's a lot of bunk in it.
The truth of the matter is that men do not have, never have had and never will have the economy

THE YOUNG HERCULES By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lumox",
"Humoresque"

It was said of Monte Carr, the great moving picture actor, that all of the really daring feats in his plays were performed by a dummy.

The night that Monte's picture "The Young Hercules" opened in New York, there was a line waiting at the box office longer than had ever been at a Caruso opening at the opera. It was a triumphant occasion. Monte had achieved a millenium in pictures, a really magnificent flight of the imagination done with darling and courage and beauty.

And the young man that sat in the second-row balcony, freckled Joseph Delaney, who for sixty dollars a week worked as Monte Carr's dummy---who put the daring and the courage into Monte's pictures---what were his feelings as he watched the picture---watched it with a sardonic smile curling over his freckled face!

of Monte Carr, who was supposed to be a greater amount of fan-mail than any other motion picture star on two continents. All of the really daring feats in his pictures were performed by a dummy, or by some other person in the profession as "a stunt man". As it may be, the fact remained that so far as his public was concerned, Carr was a hero of daring, agility, athletic prowess, a kind of inherent daredevilry. Carr rescued maidens from incredibly high cliffs by scaling walls and sliding down them. He carried a fair one limp over his shoulder. He was on the side of moving steamers that were being attacked by office buildings. He rode bronchos, and parachutes, did nose-dives in the water, and wrote the name of his motion-picture in smoke, against a motion-picture background.

At the top of all this, Monte Carr had the reputation of being the Young Hercules. One of those swift, eager-eyed fellows with laid-back ears and sensitive nostrils.

It was the face of a star. The sure-fire motion-picture face that brought him in two hundred dollars a week.

Monte Carr, in the various poses of buccannery, Lancelot, Romeo, D'Artagnan, poses in the pages of magazines, popular weeklies and in the gravure sections, must have graced a hundred mirrors as there were young girls in the audience.

A new Monte Carr picture made its appearance in Piccadilly or Broadway, was the equivalent of any other distinguished picture.

That night that Monte Carr's picture, "The Young Hercules," opened at the Rocco Theatre, there was, it must be recorded, a line waiting at the box office that had never been at a Caruso opening at the Opera. It was a gala, a superlative, a triumphant occasion. Monte Carr had achieved a millenium in pictures, a really magnificent flight of the imagination done with daring and courage and beauty. A fantasy that gave him opportunity to scale seemingly unscalable walls, to dip, to soar, to dive in aeroplanes with every agility of performance that took one's breath away. To plunge from ships, the size of the Leviathan, into the foam of surf beneath.

"The Young Hercules." Literally he was just that. A young god. A young god with rippling muscles and flexuosity of motion, now lithe as a bird through air, now taut as a young leopard.

Literally the night of the opening of "The Young Hercules" the house rose to Monte Carr. Rose in applause, rose in admiration, rose even in adoration.

And in that house, second row balcony, there sat a young man with absolutely no outstanding characteristics, except perhaps that his head if you looked twice, which you probably wouldn't, seemed slightly too large for his body. A slender, nervous young man with a good-humored face splattered with freckles and an Adam's apple that ticked like a clock. His name was Delaney. Joseph Delaney. Known on the books of the motion picture concern that made the picture, "The Young Hercules," as Monte Carr's dummy.

Joe Delaney, sitting there beholding the house rise to the performance of Monte Carr, feeling the house thrill to the courage of Monte Carr, hearing the house applaud the daredevilry of Monte Carr, which was actually the daredevilry of Joe Delaney. Joe Delaney with his wiry little body and his freckle-splattered face had been the one to take the name gives to the aeroplane-swoops that took three thousand breaths away from an audience of three thousand persons. Joe Delaney, with his flexible little body poised on the rail of a giant steamship had been the one to plunge into the hold of a hundred feet below. Not Monte Carr, with his careful features and his shining, rippling body.

The trick of the camera had seen to that. Had seen to the cunning doubling-up of Joe Delaney at those moments when daring and even heroism were required. For sixty dollars Joe Delaney did what Monte Carr appeared to do for two thousand dollars a week, and did it fearlessly and did it with his tongue in his cheek, and stood on the rail of a steamship with the blood singing in his ears and dipped to the nose-dive of an aeroplane with the wind singing in his heart, and secretly and privately and passionately despised Monte Carr who had the head of a young Hercules and the heart of a goat.

And yet, when Joe Delaney was logical about it, and most of the time he was, there was nothing to be bitter about. In fact Joe Delaney wasn't bitter. He was proud of his job; liked it; gloried in it; and was grateful for it. More than that it gave him the opportunity, at sixty dollars a week, to do the things he loved. To feel the wind in his teeth. There wasn't, Joe Delaney argued to his wife who used to tremble for him, anything heroic in leaping from a moving steamship into a crash of surf when you loved it, when your blood sang for it, when your body cut through the air like the flight of a bird. There wasn't, Joe Delaney used to argue to his wife, who used to cry sometimes with fear for him, anything heroic in scaling a seemingly impassable wall when you loved to shinnny up perpendicular surfaces, shinnny up quickly and cleverly and lithely, like a mountain llama up a crag.

When Joe Delaney leaped a cliff his heart leaped with him, lifting him, buoying him, intoxicating him. He loved to climb steeples, walk copings around the tops of skyscrapers, swim channels and scale cliffs. There wasn't, Joe Delaney argued time and time and time again to pretty Mary Delaney as he kissed her salt-bitten eyes, danger in doing what you loved. There was only the joy of assurance; the joy of elasticity of your body and your heart and your spirit.

And yet, if you looked at it a certain way, and most people would look at it that way, there was something pathetic, a little tragic and a little cruel in the spectacle of Joe Delaney, there in the second row balcony, the night that Monte Carr opened in "The Young Hercules," sitting in the silent little hunch of his body, while the house, stunned and then delighted and then thrilled by the courage and the daring and the daredevilry of their star, rose to acclaim him.

Joe Delaney's face. In the darkness it was all curled. A sardonic face. A face as curved as a scimitar, with contempt, secret contempt, deep-rooted contempt. Contempt for the sham of Monte Carr, shimmering there in all of his body beauty.

How well Joe Delaney knew the moment for the faking of the picture when Monte Carr went back to his dressing room to a couch and a cigarette, while Joe Delaney was strapped into an aeroplane or hoisted by a derrick to the top of a steamship rail. Small wonder, that sitting there in the perfumed darkness of the theatre, unconsciously Joe Delaney's face took on the curving kind of contempt it wore.

There was to be a party afterward, a party composed of the members of the cast of "The Young Hercules." Joe Delaney was invited, because, after all, Joe Delaney was an essential, an important part of the cast of "The Young Hercules." Monte Carr himself was the first sheepishly to admit it. But Joe Delaney did not go.

At eleven-thirty that night, as members of the cast were assembling for the party to be given on the roof of a Broadway hotel, Joe Delaney was standing in a ferry house on the East River, waiting for a boat to carry him across to his home in Staten Island.

"Poor Joe," said the members of the cast, "don't blame him. He's sore. Rotten luck. Does all of the dirty work and gets none of the glory. There's a tragedy of a vocation for you. He takes all of the chances and someone else gets all the glory. Enough to make a man bitter."

Poor Joe. When poor Joe arrived at his little house in Staten Island that night, there was a light in the sitting room window and cold lamb and cold ale and rye bread and dill pickles and a particular kind of head cheese that Mary Delaney had to walk four blocks off her regular market beat to obtain, laid out for him on the center table. When Joe came in he threw his hat down on the victrola and kissed his wife and drew up to the table and sighed out long and luxuriously and a little wearily, "Good Lord, it's good to be home."

Championship Honors Are Captured By Four Who Then Fail To Cash In

By ART CARLSON

Four unfortunate individuals of sportdom! Name them—Eugene Criqui, Wayne Munn, Jimmy Goodrich and Edouard Horemans.

All reached the top heights leading to fame and glory, only to find competition too tough to establish anything but temporary quarters.

Obviously, all failed to cash in to any extent on their titles. They were champions for too brief a time.

It was back in 1923 Eugene Criqui met Johnny Kilbane, long holder of the featherweight crown. Criqui not only met Kilbane but knocked him into positive retirement. Criqui was the world champ. But not for long.

For less than two months later he clashed with Johnny Dundee. And went back to Franco minus the title. In January of last year a big collegian from Nebraska, rather than the wrestling world (if such a thing be possible) by picking up "Strangler" Lewis and tossing the lion-hearted one clean out of the ring. The effort won the championship for Wayne Munn, a football player of note during his campus career.

Shortly afterwards Munn risked his newly won laurels in a match with Stanislaus Zyzako, the middle-aged Pole. Before the guests departed that night a new king had been crowned.

Last summer Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo boy, came into the light-weight boxing wreath by finishing ahead of the field in a tournament staged to find a successor (in name only) to Benny Leonard, retired. The affairs were loud and long.

Goodrich after virtually getting the honors on a platter, didn't remain with the title. The so-called rickracker, but his much-cherished though rather joke crown, in jeopardy by tackling the veteran Rocky Kansas. And, when the Rock got through with him, Goodrich was a title short.

Last November Edouard Horemans, the bushy-haired Belgian billiardist, gave Europe its first cue crown in all these many years. He beat the champion Jack Schaefer, there was much trumpeting and hilarity across the sea.

Six weeks later Horemans was once more just a bushy-haired Belgian billiardist, thought justified in scribbling "no champion" after his name, if that be any added honor. For your information, Schaefer easily trounced the foreigner in their return meeting.

There you have the tales of the four unfortunate. Our old friend, Dame Fortune, didn't smile very strongly on this quartet of sportive characters. They didn't even get past the cocktail at the titular banquet table. Moreover, none is likely to get another chance to perch with the highbrows, unless it be Horemans. And even his prospects are far from bright.

Worth Knowing. In Sports

Frankie Frisch of the Giants has hung up quite a notable record as a world series performer. Frisch has been in four full classes. In every one of them he hit .300 or better. In 1922 he set up a mark of .471, one of the best on record. He got 10 safeties twice, nine another time and eight once. He scored a total of 11 runs, and stole five sticks.

THIS TOUCHING SCENE SHOWS A TITLE HOLDER SUDDENLY STRICKEN WITH THREE TERRIBLE AFFLICTIONS JUST BEFORE A BIG CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT IN WHICH THE FANS SHOW NO INTEREST.

BILLY EVANS Says

In these days of non-fighting champions, the names of Harry Greb and Paul Berlenbach stand out in bold relief. It takes mighty big purses to lure a majority of the champions into the ring. At all other times they have more stipulations in their contract than a Grand Opera prima donna. No-decision bouts are most favored by the title-holders. If the bout is to be a decision affair, they insist the challenger comes in overweight so the championship will not be at stake. Some of the safety first champions are even more careful, they reserve the right to name the referee.

Not so many years ago one of these hand-picked referees gave three different decisions in the same bout and after leaving town hurriedly wired in a fourth verdict, that retained the crown for the champion.

It is just such things as these that have kept any number of the modern champions from being idolized after the manner of the old-timers.

The champion in any sport event is supposed to be supreme. If so, he should have no timidity about defending his honors. That doesn't go for the fight game.

Harry Greb and Paul Berlenbach are in striking contrast to the run-of-the-mine champions in the other classes. Greb is the marvel of the prize ring. He has been fighting for 13 years. Before he won any boxing titles he was known as the "Fighting Fool."

Never too busy to fight, he didn't fuss much about the weight of his opponents. He took them on from the middleweight through the light heavy division to the full grown heavies and in most cases gave away weight.

His biggest year was in 1919 when he almost averaged a bout a week, most of his opponents being fighters of class.

Winning a title didn't change his views on the fight game. He has kept right on meeting every one dug up by the promoters. Paul Berlenbach after scoring 23 knockouts was stopped by Jack Delaney in four rounds. Paul started right over again. Fifteen months later he was the light heavyweight champion of the world as a result of his victory over Mike McTigue.

Both these fighters recently visited the coast and found the going mightily tough out there. Only the fact that they took every precaution made it possible for them to return with their titles. Rocky Kansas, who won the light-weight title from Jimmy Goodrich, is awaiting for the summer to roll around and with it a fancy purse. Perhaps Rocky is more than wise, it may be his only opportunity to cash in on his championship.

LAYMAN GETS TAFT'S THANKS FOR SERVICES

Michigan Timber King Aided Justices Place Supreme Court On Business Like Basis

Also Lauded By By Other Courts

Founded Judicature Society In 1912 For Benefit Of Judges

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—A chief justice of the United States has written thanking a layman, unlettered in the law and unknown to many lawyers, for his service to the courts.

The letter, made public today, was from William Howard Taft to Charles P. Ruggles, Manistee, Mich., timber and salt king, with large interests on the Pacific Coast. The chief justice congratulated Mr. Ruggles on having made possible the application of business principles to courts.

Mr. Ruggles also was lauded by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Chicago Municipal Court, who said "no individual has contributed more to a court reform in the last fifty years than Mr. Ruggles."

Judge Olson had received a letter from Ellhu Root, similar to that from Chief Justice Taft, which he forwarded to Mr. Ruggles. Appended was a declaration by officers and directors of the American Judicature Society, of which disclosed additionally that Mr. Ruggles founded the society and has financed it since its inception in 1912.

Mr. Ruggles' chief purpose in sponsoring the society was to eliminate the delays of the law.

Delay Hurts Poor

"In maintaining the equality between the rich and the poor in the courts," said the Taft letter in part, "the greatest difficulty is the delay. A rich man can stand the delay and profit by it, but the poor man always suffers."

"A judicial force of judges ought to be under the executive direction of somebody, so that the number of judges needed to meet the arrears of business at a particular place should be under the control of one who knows what the need is. They have worked out this plan in the city of Chicago where Chief Justice Olson, as chief justice of the Municipal Court, assigns the judges of that court to the work we ought to apply best business principles to the use of our judicial force.

"It is along these lines as I understand that the American Judicature Society is working, and I write to felicitate you or your having made this possible. You could do no more important work for the body social and political than this. As one in the community, I write to thank you.

Besides doing directly many admirable things, wrote Ellhu Root, the Judicature Society has served as a model for a vast amount of research.

In 1912, Mr. Ruggles employed a Manistee editor, Herbert Harley, to investigate the courts of

IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK.—As the newspaper reading world now known by heart, Irving Berlin, got his start as a singing waiter at Nigger Mike's on New York's East Side.

But Berlin "got there"—and so the world follows each step of his romance.

Now Berlin wasn't the only singing waiter in town by a long shot, and some of his singing pals of yesteryear are still singing waiters.

There's Jo-Jo, for instance, who was Berlin's singing partner. Jo-Jo still sings around town. And some of the "gang" included names like Mike the Harp, and Jack the Mutt.

And the tale is told on Broadway of how, after trying to dodge reporters for two hours after his wedding to Ellin Mackay, Berlin decided that one of the old Bowery haunts would be a good place to hide out.

What reporter would suspect a million dollar groom of taking his forty-million dollar heiress bride to a Bowery Chinese restaurant?

Through Mr. Harley he discovered in Judge Olson a judge who kept books on his court, impressed by the Chicago system of records, audits, organization and procedure, he organized the American Judicature Society and asked Judge Olson to head it. Mr. Harley remained in Chicago as secretary of the society.

Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago, has agreed to finance the Judicature Society when Mr. Ruggles' appointment shall have been exhausted.

The place mentioned in Farthing's and it is further guessed that the news spread rapidly and members of the "old gang" felt they should give Berlin and his bride a send-off.

The story goes of how they all appeared at the cafe, just as the wedding dinner was arriving in the form of appetizers and sauerkraut.

Micky the Harp, who holds down a job as doorkeeper at a Chinatown theater, is pictured as making a toastmaster of high order, and Ellin Mackay is said to have had the time of her life.

So much for a round-up of the varying reports.

There still is Jo-Jo—the other singing waiter.

He also married—quite a long time ago. And it may be that when he hears of Berlin's fame and millions he stops to ponder how such things come about.

But Jo-Jo has six kids, healthy, lively youngsters, each one. He has a fond wife and probably is buying her a fur coat. And his goings and comings are not trailed by reporters and cameramen.

And he wouldn't trade places with anyone.

A doughnut maker in a populous section of New York tells me he sells more cruellers between 1 and 4 o'clock in the morning than at any other time.

Frank O. Lowden Is Demonstrating New And Practical Farm Methods

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, the man who overturned precedent by declining the vice-presidential nomination after he had been formally chosen by his party and who is leading a movement for an export corporation for disposal of crop surpluses, actually is a dirt farmer.

Sinissippi Farm, which spreads its broad expanse of 4,500 acres along the Rock River near Oregon, Ill., 59 miles northwest of Chicago, is his only home and has been for a quarter of a century. The farm is divided into eleven units, ten of them tilled by share crop-terms, partners. The eleventh unit, a full section of 640 acres, is the "home place" and it is there that Mr. Lowden actually puts into practice his theories of practical farming, while, at the same time, acting as general overseer of the other ten units.

Has Office Building
There is a four-room office building with two clerks on the "home place" but management of the property finds the former governor most every day in the open, usually astride a rather spirited horse as he directs the harvesting, planting, feeding and milking.

One-third the acreage is under cultivation; a second 1,500 acres is devoted to pastures and the remainder is in wooded upland.

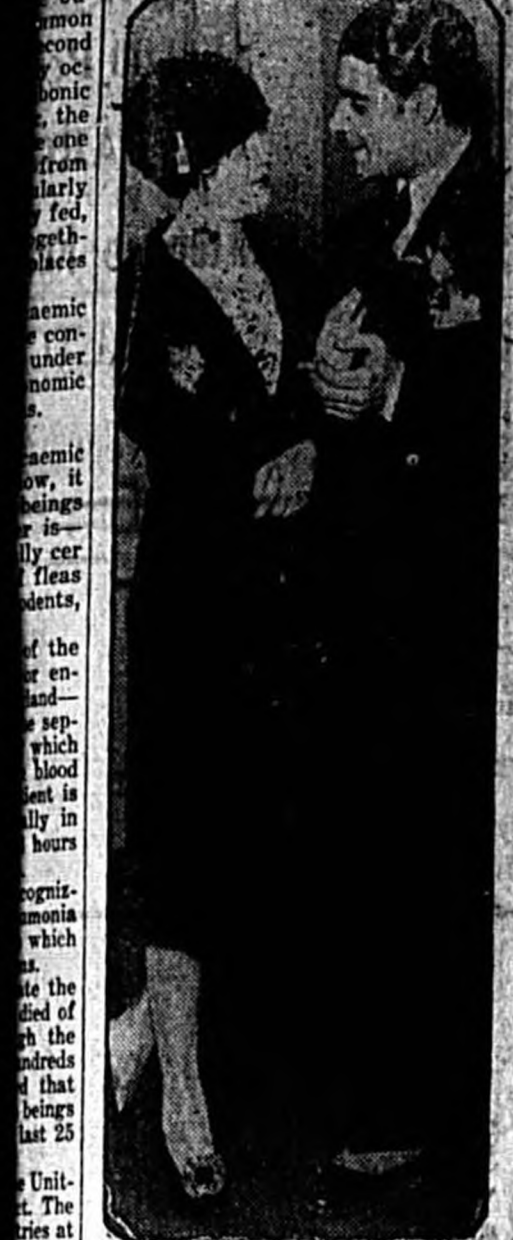

Corn, oats, barley, rye and alfalfa make up the Sinissippi crops, but because of development of the farm's dairy herds little is left for marketing.

Distributed among the eleven farm units are 350 Holstein-Friesian milk cows. Six of the units are stocked with full blooded, registered cows, while the other five

Proximity To Things Desired ...makes values at SANFORD MANOR

Comfortable enjoyment of the best Florida has to offer is the keynote at Sanford Manor. Facilities for a pleasant living, made financially secure by the protecting environment of substantial industry, form the backbone of Sanford's foremost community of homes.

To the right, left, top and bottom, of each of these localities, completely surrounding the City of Sanford and all outlying sections for miles around, lie ten thousand of the richest truck gardening acres in the world. Celery, chiefly, combined with every other garden product imaginable, bring home each year millions of dollars in profits to this section.

Study the map presented here. The black, platted portion represents Sanford Manor. Directly above and adjoining is the City of Sanford, on Lake Monroe at the head of navigation on the St. Johns River. Sanford is one of the six cities in south Florida having direct passenger steamship service to principal Eastern ports. Further, it has steamship freighting service by direct route to the sea. These two facts, alone, are of tremendous import.

Add to these features Florida's climate and scenic beauty plus the extensive improvements now going in at Sanford Manor, and the picture of happiness is complete.

Sanford Manor was created to fill the need of this section for a community of homes of the character it deserves. It has been opened for sale only ten days. Prices, now at early-development levels, present almost unbelievable opportunity both to investors and avowed residents, seeking to build.

Pullman coaches leave Sanford daily, at 10:45 A. M., and 3 P. M., from the Valdez Hotel, for Sanford Manor. A demonstration of our development and tour of the surrounding territory will be a pleasure to us and a revelation to you.

Information Concerning Days of Confederacy Now Revealed In Lost Papers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—Much new information on the activities and personnel of the confederate navy and marine corps has been found in two chests of official records, probably brought to Washington from Richmond in 1865, recently examined at the navy department here.

The chests were stored for years in the attic of the state war and navy building, were moved several years ago to the new navy building, and never had been studied until a few weeks ago, as it was thought they contained papers pertaining to financial matters which were of little naval interest. In all the years they had been awaiting the time when some one would find opportunity to examine them they are now being filed in the navy archives where they will be available for students.

The papers have been found to consist of financial accounts, such as authorizations for the purchase and supplies for the confederate navy as well as orders for travel and pay rolls of ships and stations.

To Aid Registry

Already, however, it has been disclosed that they will make possible numerous additions to the register of officers and of the enlisted men and employees at shipyards and industrial plants. A revision of the confederate naval register made by the navy department 25 years ago, is accordingly to be made. This will be of importance to the southern states many of which have granted pensions to the widows of men who served in the confederate forces. Often, when asked for information as to officers or men who might be available for such pension, the navy department heretofore has been forced to reply that no information on the subject was available.

Authorizations for the purchase of building materials to be used in the construction of ships have been found," said a navy department statement today. "From these papers, as well as from the lists showing supplies purchased in the outfitting of the ships, the lists of known ships of the confederate navy is being enlarged. These papers in some cases throw new light on movements and activities of their ships, as much of this information has never been compiled.

Original orders and letters, some of them signed by the secretary of the navy, Hon. S. R. Mallory, were found in the chests. These give information on the regulations of the naval service and the rates of pay, etc.

"The list of supplies bought for the ships and the prices of clothing purchased for the men show the difference in price paid by the confederate navy during the four years of the war and the steady increase of cost from 1861 to 1865.

Bread 91 Per Loaf

"One list of supplies, dated 1861, shows that then bread cost five cents a loaf, but the price increased until in July 1863 bread cost $1 a loaf. The bills for the purchase of beef show a greater increase. Beef cost ten cents a pound in 1861, but by July, 1864, cost $3. The same price was paid for a pound of pork and of lard. These were for large quantities of supplies, and were wholesale prices.

"Another bill listed cabbage at 75 cents a head, a sock for $20 and a team of mules, with wagon and harness at $1,000. Meal at $7 a bushel, corn at $46 a barrel, and wheat at $18 a bushel are among the items receipted for in 1864. Apple brandy at $60 a gallon was among the supplies bought. Salt cost 40 cents a pound in 1864, soap $3 a pound, and bills dated July 1864, show that flour cost the confederate navy $160 a sack.

"The cost of clothing, shoes especially is shown as steadily increasing during the war. In 1861 a contract was signed for shoes at $1.70 a pair. In June 1862, 'cot-ton shoes' were listed at $6 a pair, and in 1864 'English shoes' were purchased at $35 a pair. A later bill shows that the price rose to $38 in August, 1864.

"One officer's bill of expenses incurred while traveling from Henderson to Oxford, which was paid by an officer at Halifax, N. C., contained the item 'board one day at Henderson, $30.' Similar

GREAT DISCOVERY

Hon. Ed Walthall, c-o Sammie Hudson-Essex Co., Sanford Fla. Dear Ed:

I am on the West Coast of Florida doing my bit to keep the fish in the Gulf of Mexico from getting so thick that the boats can't operate. Every year I go to the Gulf and thin 'em out for the benefit of navigation.

On the present expedition in behalf of commerce, I have made a great discovery that will be hailed by all disciples of Isaac Walton the world over.

As every fisherman knows, there are certain species of fish whose mothers were very careless in the matter of their education. They have never been taught to bite. They are not washed until so late in life that they contract a habit which they never throw off. They go through life sucking to the end.

They never bite. Among these fish are the mullet, the red horse, and the common, or garden variety of sucker. The only way men have been able to catch these fish is in net. And every fisherman knows that netting is not sportmanship.

A great idea occurred to me on this trip, and I have tried it out with amazing results. I have perfected a system by which you can catch suckers, even if they won't bite. You can catch them sucking. And it's so simple, I wonder somebody didn't think of it before. That's the way with many great discoveries.

My system is as simple as a rap-die, and there is no static. You simply go to a drug store and get a baby pacifier, conceal a hook in it, tie it on the end of your line, and give the suckers a chance at it. The first time I tried it I caught 44 sucklings, and the wind was in the wrong direction, and the moon wasn't just right for sucking, either. The next time, with conditions just right I caught so many I didn't have time to count 'em before it was time to go again.

I claim this is the greatest contribution to the pleasure of man-kind since the perfection of the Essex Coach.

Yours,
BILL.

Prince Carol's Rebellion To Throne Called Similar To Other Royal Episodes

BUDAPEST, Feb. 1 (AP)—Prince Carol's row with Queen Marie and repudiation of the succession to the Rumanian throne is no novelty in European royal families, to most of whom Carol is related either by blood or marriage.

The king business has palled on a good many heirs to important European thrones. Even Frederick the Great made an effort in his youth to escape from Prussia and the harsh treatment of his father, King Frederick William I. His effort to get away to England was frustrated by his father who had two of his son's accomplices executed.

But Frederick the Great's affair with Berberine, the Italian dancer, after he had ascended the throne of Prussia, was kept under far better control than the love affairs of Prince Carol. When Frederick suspected the dancer was mixing in politics he dismissed her from the court.

Ludwig I. of Bavaria, told his cabinet he would rather give up his throne than break off his relations with Lola Montez, the dancer. One of Ludwig's ministries was called the "Lolaministerium," because Lola Montez had named it and directed affairs of state at will. She finally lost her political hold and had to flee. A little later, Ludwig had to surrender his throne to his son because of the scandal.

Became Wanderer
Lola Montez became a wanderer, appearing on the stage in most world capitals. Her notoriety, however, soon lost drawing power and she died in obscurity and was buried in Brooklyn.

Princess Louise, of Saxony, tired of life at the Dresden court, eloped with the French tutor of her sons, M. Girou, in December, 1902. Two years later, her husband succeeded to the throne of Saxony as King Frederick Augustus III. Like Prince Carol, of Rumania, she apparently was not constant in her love. She divorced the Frenchman and married an Italian musician, whom she also divorced. She now is living in straightened circumstances in Belgium.

Princess Louise of Belgium who died at Wiesbaden in 1924, married Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, but deserted him in favor of an Austrian cavalry officer.

This apparently was a true love affair, as Princess Louise endured poverty with Captain Mattiasch and nursed him during his final illness in Paris, a short time before her own death. She tried without success to break the will of her father, Leopold II, who left much of his property to his mistress, the Baroness Vaughan.

Grand Duke Divorced
Grand Duke Cyril, the Roumanoff who holds court at Coburg and has solemnly been proclaimed Czar of all the Russians by his faithful White Russian followers, figured in a divorce case which his opponents insist would disqualify him for the Russian throne should the Soviet government be replaced by a monarchy. The Grand Duke that he is still alive. At one time he was reported to have been seen in Denver.

TOO WILLING
"My dear, I think I shall spend the night at my sister's," came his wife's voice over the phone, "do you care?"
"Not at all," he replied heartily. "Then I had better take the first train home," she decided.

Is this your BIRTHDAY

TUESDAY, FEB. 2.

If so, you are born with a sympathetic character. This is your strongest point, inasmuch as your sympathies are most for the unfortunate.

Charity interests you and all through life you will have great pleasure in doing for others. You will seek to do your humanitarian acts on the quiet and not for personal gain through publicity or for social benefits.

Cruelty is a horror to you and you always will have a good word or act for human beings and animals. This alone is enough to assure you happiness.

ALL OUT OF SORTS?

So Was This Sanford Woman Who Tells Her Experience

Do you often feel that you are all out of sorts? Do you often feel that you are all out of sorts?

All too often women accept their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fail to realize that weak kidneys are often to blame for that backache, those headaches, dizzy spells and that tired, depressed feeling. Thousands have found new health and strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills - a stimulant diuretic. This Sanford case is one of many:

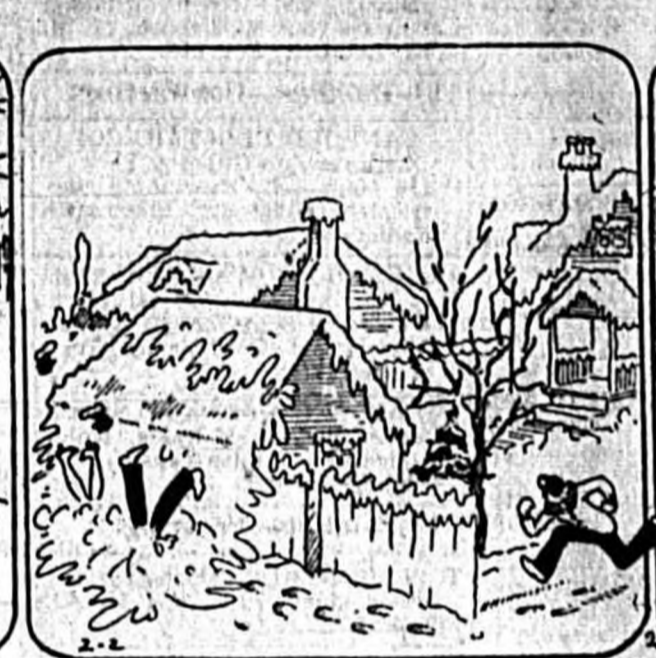

Mrs. J. W. Barrett, 318 Palm-street, Ave., says: "I had attacks of kidney trouble when I suffered from severe pains through the small of my back. I tired easily and felt out of sorts and not a bit like myself. My kidneys acted irregularly but I used Doan's Pills and they soon relieved me. I have great faith in Doan's."

Price 20¢ at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy - get Doan's Pills - the same that Mrs. Barrett had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

What a paradise this is for the sportsman

In the SOLID CENTRAL SECTION of Florida

Swimming

The farthest house in Mount Plymouth will be only a minute, or two, or three from this beautiful lake where bathing facilities will be provided for those who desire in this marvelous pleasure.

Boating

With 4 1/2 miles of shore line gliding this natural lake, fed from springs underground, boating will be a charming diversion for every member of the family as fascinating as to own a house in this borough of sportiness.

Fishing

With rod and reel the angler with his canoe will find all the thrill in Plymouth lake the enthusiast could desire. Stocked with gamey black bass, he will not likely be disappointed any day with his catch.

Hunting

Stocked deer in the Wekiva River forest; wild turkey, quail and other game native to this region, are plentiful enough to give any sportsman all the shooting he can desire in season. It is only 3 miles from Mount Plymouth to this happy hunting grounds.

Tennis

Tennis courts near the club house will be one of the features of this marvelous playground where among the hills and lakes of sunny Florida. It is never too cold in Mount Plymouth to judge in outdoor sports of any kind.

Florida!

THE man who would come with his family to live in Florida will find no place more inviting than Mount Plymouth. Men who selected this highland-lake region for a pleasure city and invested their own money in its development, are regarded as foremost in business and financial circles in Orange county, Orlando, and the state of Florida.

This is not a promoter's dream nor manipulator's scheme to lure the unwary into a speculator's trap. It is sound to the core.

Your investment in Mount Plymouth lots is not solicited on promise of a fabulous fortune to be made overnight. To be sure, there will be profits—big profits, no doubt—but what is really wanted most is the substantial man of family who will buy here, . . . and build.

This entire region is so very substantial, the country surrounding it so fertile and prolific of fruits, ferns and garden truck that it always has and always will be the "Solid Central Section of Florida."

Lots—both business and residence—are offered now at such surprisingly low prices that rapid enhancement is assured.

The devotees of sports—golfing, tennis, rowing, swimming, motoring, angling, hunting—all will find at Mount Plymouth the veritable outdoor club which Florida has no champion in the whole of these United States.

The men whose wisdom and vision developed in Mount Plymouth a pleasure city of the first rank, have opened to sports the widest latitude for those whose proclivities lead them to the open hills and dells the whole year round.

They are building now (and will complete) a magnificent club house surmounting the highest land in this expansive arena of beautiful homes—to be, that will provide for the sportsman the widest latitude for those whose proclivities lead them to the open hills and dells the whole year round.

Not in some remote section miles away, but right at your doorway is the sporty golf course of 18 holes that will afford you the fullest enjoyment of such a game. Engineered by one of the foremost golf architects and maintained by a special reserve fund for that purpose.

From your front or back piazza, in sound of your voice, is a lake as picturesque and alluring as one will see in this state. Swimming, canoeing or motor boating in these waters will furnish residents of Mount Plymouth a rendezvous as select as one could wish for in a private estate. The nimrod who angles for bass will count his day's catch a treasure seldom experienced outside of Florida waters. For several years this lake has been stocked with small and big-mouth black bass, and fished but little.

Free to Property Owners

No fees or dues are assessed the property owners. The privilege of the clubhouse, the golf links, the lakes, the tennis courts, is extended freely to every resident here. A special maintenance fund for the upkeep of house, grounds and waters is set aside from the sale of lots, hence no assessments.

Hunting 3 Miles Distant

The Wekiva River forest is only 3 miles from Mount Plymouth, which very soon will be reached by a paved boulevard right from your doorway. Deer, wild turkey, quail, possum, squirrel and other native game provide shooting for any huntsman properly armed.
