Honored for service

Longwood educator R.T. Milwee, left, receives the "Key to the City" award from Mayor Bill Winston Monday night for a lifetime of service to the community, particularly the education of youth in Longwood and Seminole County. Milwee taught at Lyman High School from 1939 through 1949 and was principal from 1949 through 1952. He served as Superintendent of Seminole County Schools from 1952 through 1967. When a new Lyman High School was built, the original high school was converted into a middle school and named in honor of Milwee. From 1967 until 1989, he was an assistant to the president of Seminole Community College.

Make up day set

SANFORD — Hurricane Erin's damage was not limited to downed tree limbs and power outages. The schedule of year round students in Seminole county schools was also thrown into disarray.

The make up day for students who were unable to attend class due to the hurricane on Aug. 2, had been scheduled for Oct. 12. This caused a problem for some students in the multi-track schools as the logistics of housing all the students in school on the same day was difficult.

So, the school board has decided to have the make up day for blue track students and teachers will be on Oct. 9. All students and teachers on green, yellow and orange tracks will make up the missed day on Oct. 12.

P and Z meeting

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Planning and Zoning Commission meeting will be held at 7 p.m. today at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road. Among items to be discussed include a preliminary PUD review for 32.6 acres of land on Rinehart Road, and a change of zoning for 2.04 acres of property at the northeast corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Rinehart Road.

Ex-trooper sentenced in wife's murder

TAMPA — A former Florida Highway Patrol trooper was sentenced to life in prison without parole in the death of his wife.

Charles L. Trice, 41, received two consecutive life sentences Monday for the first-degree murder of his wife, Darla Trice, and the burglary of a dwelling with battery.

The life sentence for murder was mandatory because Trice was convicted of a slaying that occurred before May 1, 1994. But it carried the possibility of release after 25 years.

By ordering the consecutive life sentence for burglary, Hillsborough Circuit Judge Barbara Fleischer ensured Trice will never get out of prison. Under state law, a life sentence on that charge means he won't be released.

Trice was convicted of shooting his 28-year-old estranged wife at her home near Plant City on April 24, 1994. A jury rejected his claim that he shot in self-defense after she attacked him with a paring knife.

The victim had filed for divorce, and Trice was under a domestic restraining order at the time of her death. The jury found him guilty of a misdemeanor violation of the injunction, and Fleischer sentenced him to time already served.

Trice stood stoically in a prisoner's blue dungarees and handcuffs, never changing expression during the hourlong hearing.

"I'm sorry I had to take someone's life, especially my wife's," he told the judge Monday. "But I had no choice. I'll have to live with it. Every day I think about it."

Don't dump the Gatorade

WAUCHULA — In five years of inspecting drainage pipes, Paula Noblitt has spotted some pretty slimy stuff gushing from Florida's factories, like pea-green algae and metallic rust.

But the cherry-red stream she recently saw flowing from a pipe during an annual inspection at CF Industries' phosphate plant near Wauchula was a new one — the company was dumping Gatorade Fruit Punch.

"We all kind of laughed about it," Noblitt, an environmental specialist in the Department of Environmental Protection's industrial wastewater section, told The Tampa Tribune for a story today. "But then we said, 'You can't do that.'"

Inspectors caught workers pouring about 60 gallons of a fruity-smelling concoction, including monopotassium phosphate and sodium citrate, directly into a loading dock stormwater drain. CF had been mixing too much of the stuff for about 150 workers on a temporary construction job at the plant.

Noblitt notified the company this month that the plant passed its annual inspection with flying colors — except for the stain of the Gatorade incident. The state wants a written response.

CF and regulators differ on where the fruit punch flowed. Noblitt said the Gatorade ran through a stormwater ditch and ultimately into the Peace River.

Arson suspected at abortion clinic fire

ST. PETERSBURG — Investigators suspect arson in a fire at an abortion clinic. No one was injured.

"We had an arson dog in there sniffing around and he hit a couple of hot spots," Deputy Fire Marshal Tom Young said after the Monday night fire at All Women's Health Center.

The clinic's entryway was consumed by the fire. The interior, where medical exams and abortions are performed, sustained only minor smoke damage.

"I'm sure we'll be open," said a clinic spokeswoman who declined to give her name.

She said there had been no increase in activity by abortion protesters nor any recent threats. But fire officials said they believed accelerants, such as gasoline, were used to torch the building.

The spokeswoman said protesters were an almost daily occurrence, but there had been no large-scale disruptions seen since 1989 when Operation Rescue protesters chained themselves to the clinic's doors.

"There have been no threats, no reasons for us to think this would happen," she said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Health Care Chiles: State faces loss of 68,000 jobs

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles, promoting a special session on health care, warned Monday that Florida will lose more than 68,000 jobs if the Legislature doesn't enact his plan to save federal Medicaid dollars.

Chiles, at a stop in St. Petersburg, released estimates from his budget office that the state would lose 68,265 jobs and $2.3 billion in worker earnings in the year 2001 based on Medicaid reductions being considered by Congress.

Sounding an economic alarm was the latest attempt by the governor to build support for his proposal to use a waiver that would allow Florida to spend billions of federal dollars on health care for the working poor rather than welfare recipients.

Chiles contends the state would lose $8 billion over seven years if it does not act this year on his proposed health care reform.

Republican lawmakers have accused the Democratic governor of playing "shell games" with the health care issue. They say his plan would entail a hefty tax increase and create a new welfare program, a characterization that makes the governor bristle.

"This is not a Democrat versus Republican issue. It's a Florida issue," Chiles said. "It's not a matter of which party wins. It's a matter of making sure Florida's taxpayers and our communities don't lose."

Aides have advised the governor to wait at least until the week of Sept. 18 to call lawmakers into session. Chiles had originally planned to bring them back in August but postponed that until September.

Lawmakers will be in the capital for committee meetings the week of Sept. 18 and the latest tax collection forecast will be completed, giving the Legislature a better grasp of the state's fiscal condition.

Former lawmaker Mallory Horne, spearheading the governor's health care drive, said the gulf between governor and Republican lawmakers remains wide, particularly in the GOP-led Senate. But he said the governor didn't intend to drop his plan for a special legislative session.

"I'd hate to say there was no momentum," said Horne, a former House speaker and Senate president. "It's a long way from there to triggering the waiver."

Medicaid is the joint federal-state health care program that provides basic health care to people on welfare. It also is used to pay many of the state's nursing home bills. The federal government pays 56 cents of every dollar spent on Medicaid in Florida.

Regents and university leaders agree on higher tuitions, fees

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — From north to south, Florida's 10 university presidents on Monday agreed they'll need at least a 10 percent annual tuition hike, plus special fees, to deal with a burgeoning student population.

The college heads told the Florida Board of Regents that lower state funding and the rising enrollment mean students will have to pay more for their education in the 1996-97 school year, and beyond.

The Regents, in turn, plan to seek legislative authority for new fee structures, spending reallocations, more televised classes and other new ways of coping with soaring enrollment. State universities have more than 200,000 students now, and another 100,000 are expected over the next decade.

"Things are fundamentally different today in Florida than they have been in the past 25 years or so," university system Chancellor Charles Reed told a workshop meeting of the Regents with all 10 of the state's university presidents in Orlando.

"We are in a relatively good economic time, but the tax structure can't keep up with fundamental net growth; and the budget can't keep up with pre-asures," Reed said. He cited a $1.2 billion "structural deficit" for the state university system next year.

The chancellor also noted Florida has 165,000 new public school pupils each year, and that the Florida Legislature this year appropriated billions of tax dollars for prisons, at the expense of education. Also being felt is a drop in lottery money going to universities. The Florida Lottery now has competition from lotteries in other states, and its once dramatic growth has leveled off, resulting in a reduction of about $15 million in state schools this year.

Another public hearing about Oviedo Crossing

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Land use changes, blustery weather and a public hearing, as a general rule, might not have much in common. But when a controversial commercial development is part of the mix, county officials want to insure everyone has the opportunity to voice their opinion.

Another public hearing will be conducted Aug. 30 by the Local Planning Agency/Planning and Zoning Commission (LPA/P&Z) on the Viera Company Oviedo Crossing Development on about 435 acres. The development of regional impact (DRI) is a substantial deviation from the Planned Unit Development final master plan. The property in question is near the Central Florida GreeneWay (State Road 417)/Red Bug Lake Road interchange.

Members will also conduct another hearing on an administrative amendment to the comprehensive plan from Higher Intensity Planned Development to Higher Intensity Planned Development-Target Industries.

Generally the area affected is in the northwest portion of the county.

Many county residents were bawling down their homes Aug. 2 during the first LPA/P&Z hearing on the two changes of zoning regulations, when Hurricane Erin blew through the county.

"As a result of the county's response to the threat of Hurricane Erin, this matter is being remanded back to the LPA/P&Z," notes John Dwyer, manager of current planning. "This effort is being made by the county in an effort to insure that all public participation that is desired relative to the matter can occur and to insure that any person who may have been deterred from participating at the Aug. 2 hearing, as a result of the storm conditions resulting from Hurricane Erin or the county's response to the threat of Hurricane Erin, will have the full opportunity to participate in the LPA/P&Z processes."

The public hearing will be Wednesday, Aug. 30 at 7 p.m. in room 1028 of the County Services Building, 1101 E. First Street, Sanford.

SANFORD — On a clear night, you can look up into the darkened sky and see a bunch of twinkly things.

Or, you could look up and see Ursa Major, Ursa Minor, Orion and more.

The night sky is alive with legendary tales of heroes and beasts, beautiful goddesses and powerful gods.

The planetarium at Seminole Community College is offering a course in "back yard astronomy" that is sure to make a look above more exciting for those who take part.

"It's a fun class," said instructor Laurent Pellerin. "But there's a lot of important information you can learn."

The class, which Pellerin describes as hands-on and "eyes-on" combines instruction in the planetarium with trips out onto the lawn to gaze at the stars, both with the naked eye and through telescopes.

"We have the star maps in the planetarium where we can project the night sky and point out the constellations before we go outside," the instructor said. "That also comes in handy if the weather's bad."

The class is geared at the average person who wants to know a little more about the stars. Pellerin said the course has been particularly popular with senior citizens and scout leaders.

"I had one scout leader who took the class so he could have something to tell the scouts at night around the campfire," he said.

Of course, Pellerin said, no scout leader should do without the class.

"No scout leader should be out there without being able to find north at night," he said.

There will be two sections of the class offered this fall. The first will take place from Sept. 14 through Oct. 19; the second will go from Oct. 28 through Dec. 7.

The classes meet on Thursdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

"We need to have a minimum of 15 students, but the planetarium will hold as many as 60 students," Pellerin said.

He noted that the class costs $35 per person and registration can be done through the continuing education department.

County airs trail system

SANFORD — Walking, biking, riding, hiking are all activities envisioned with the development of a countywide trail system discussed by Seminole County Commissioners at a morning workshop today.

County staff members presented an action plan detailing the opportunities for developing a multi-use trail program and identify ways to pay for it.

The action plan includes allocation of $55,000 from the FY 1995/96 general fund for the Seminole Wekiva Trail design and county sponsorship of the Cross Seminole Trail. Aggressive pursuit of grant funds and existing state acquisition funds to initiate a corridor master plan is recommended.

Dubbed "Making Tracks," the trails plan would become part of network connecting several cen-

On the merger of SHDWA and Main Street

It appears as though Sanford Historical Downtown Waterfront Association, SHDWA, will be disbanding and becoming part of Sanford Main Street, SMS. If a scheduled vote on the proposal next week is in favor, the unification may take place effective Sept. 1.

It is similar to a father/son or mother/daughter partnership. SHDWA, after all, parented the SMS.

SHDWA must be given credit for undertaking a major project of preparing documents required to have Sanford accepted as an official Main Street city. Members led the drive to promote the approval, and were extremely active in all aspects of getting the project off and running.

Since the Main Street designation was approved, however, there has been some confusion over who has been doing the best job in promoting the redevelopment of downtown Sanford. Why has Sanford recently become the home of antique and collectible stores? Did SHDWA bring this about or was it SMS? Was it perhaps the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce or even the Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee?

Every one of these organizations has been actively involved in promoting downtown Sanford. The city government has been, as well, but it must work with the entire city, and not just focus on the downtown area. Unfortunately, we believe there has been a great deal of duplication of effort.

As a result, there has also been duplication of funding efforts, especially involving the public sector.

If SHDWA disbands and becomes part of SMS, we will have reduced the number of organizations down to three. Will we then consider merging SMS with the chamber of commerce and waterfront committee? With the combined top-level leadership in the membership of these organizations, and the fund-raising capabilities, it would be an organization capable of performing miracles for the city of Sanford.

Such a mass merger, however, is not practical nor do we suggest it. The chamber, as well as the waterfront committee, have more responsibilities than just the promotion and redevelopment of downtown Sanford. These must be continued and supported to the fullest.

But with this SMS/SHDWA merger, we will be trimming down the number of organizations. In doing so, we believe they will be able to undertake more active projects in this particular area of interest, and thus accomplish more.

SHDWA must be highly commended for the work it has accomplished during its years of operation. Now, however, we believe it's time for them to combine their energy and projects with SMS.

We support this suggestion and urge the membership of SHDWA to vote in favor of the proposed merger of these two organizations.

Legalized beating is child abuse

A police sergeant in upstate New York, having read some of my reporting on corporal punishment in public schools around the country, sent me a set of color photographs from a police lab. They were of his son, a third-grader.

The boy had inadvertently yelled out when another student kicked him. Having thereby violated the school rule against noise-making in class, he was paddled 12 times on the buttocks by the principal wielding a heavy paddle. That afternoon, the same incorrigible boy tripped over a desk and again made noise. The principal whacked the kid vigorously again.

His father took those photographs -- which disclosed, as he noted, "raw flesh showing blood" -- to court. But his lawsuit against the principal was dismissed. At the time, New York state law said that public school educators could administer corporal punishment -- short of "deadly force." Had his son died, the police sergeant would have had a case.

Corporal punishment has finally been abolished in New York state, but legalized beating of public schoolchildren remains in force in 24 states.

I have interviewed children and parents in a number of towns and cities, and while the Supreme Court has refused to find corporal punishment "cruel and unusual punishment" in even the most egregious cases before it, teachers and principals do sometimes lose control. And children sometimes are hospitalized.

The sovereign state of Alabama has now relieved its teachers of any fear of being sued for over-enthusiastic punishment. This is the same state which has recently made it possible for tourists to see shackled prisoners in chain gangs along the roads -- the only state to return to the golden age of convict punishment.

The Alabama legislature has also passed a punishment law giving teachers who hit students immunity from civil and criminal liability -- provided they whack the kids within the policy of their local school board (only nine of the 121 school systems in Alabama do not allow paddling).

As for some of the results of those guidelines, Ann James -- past president of the Alabama Parent Teachers Association -- told Debbie Elliott of National Public Radio:

"There are parents who have come to me over the years with pictures of their children's behinds that were black and blue. We feel they had been excessively paddled and abused."

At the city pool in Orange Beach, Ala., a mother said on National Public Radio: "What is a kid going to say? 'Well, if they can hit me and they can hurt me, then I can go out and hurt and hit somebody else.' All (Alabama) is doing is feeding the biggest problem we have in the United States right now."

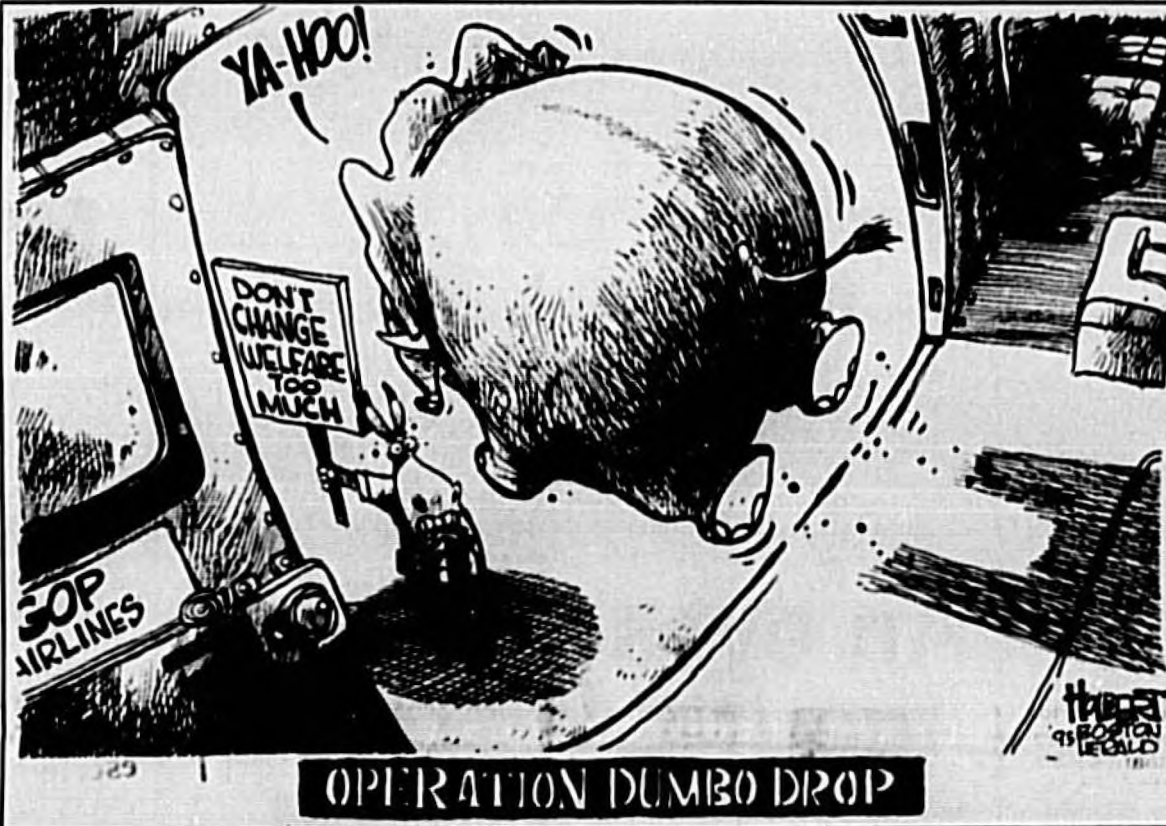

In those states that continue to nurture the old-fashioned discipline of beating children, most of the victims are black, Latino, Chicano or poor whites. Middle-class parents might take to the law -- although they won't be able to now in Alabama, at least against teachers.

In its condemnation of corporal punishment, the American Bar Association has pointed out that beating kids in school is "a form of child abuse."

But the beat goes on.

Public school educators could administer corporal punishment -- short of "deadly force."

Women who changed the world

Although women of every color who broke sports records, led protests and founded cities, newspapers and colleges are in the book "Susan B. Anthony Slept Here: A Guide to American Women's Landmarks," only four women of color are described in the companion TV special. They include a blues singer, an Indian guide and a businesswoman whose wealth came from straightening black folks' hair.

Not that Beale Smith, Sacajawea and Madam C.J. Walker aren't admirable. But my first reaction to an early screening of "Slept" was to wish that the ABC documentary -- which will air Aug. 26 -- was as diverse as the book's too-rarely explored subjects. I yearned to know more about what inspired these brave females to challenge a woman-limiting world.

Which may not be a bad thing. Women's history isn't always appreciated -- even by other women. I realized that when a descendant of Madam Walker's revealed that even she had to learn to admire her legendary ancestor, the nation's first black millionaire. For years, women were ignored by so many "mainstream" historians that some folks assumed they did little worth remembering.

"Slept" hints at what we've missed. The special is based on the 579-page travel guide-history tome by ABC correspondent Lynn Sherr and author Jurate Kazickas. Like the book, the documentary -- hosted by Sherr, actress Blair Brown and astronaut Mae Jemison -- lists myriad American women's landmarks and offers brief biographies of female history-makers, including Babe Didrickson Zaharias and Georgia O'Keefe.

Surprisingly, women cited in the book seem more interesting than most of those in the special, perhaps because many are much less well-known.

The Nancy Astor House in Albemarle County, Va., belonged to the Richmond woman who married a rich British parliamentarian, moved to England and in 1919 ran for the House of Commons seat vacated by her husband. After her victory, Winston Churchill said he felt "as though a woman had burst into my bathroom and I had nothing to defend myself with but my sponge." Replied Astor, "don't worry, Winston, you're not handsome enough to have (such) worries."

The Elizabeth W. Peratrovich Gallery in the Juneau, Alaska, statehouse was named after the Tlingit Indian activist whose impassioned words helped pass the 1945 bill outlawing racial discrimination in the state. When a state senator belittled "these people, barely out of savagery," for demanding equality with "whites with 5,000 years of civilization" behind them, Peratrovich expressed surprise that "I who am barely out of savagery would have to remind (such gentlemen ... of our Bill of Rights."

Like many African Americans, I'd heard of Madam Walker, whose turn-of-the-century hair products empire made her America's first self-made woman millionaire, according to the Guinness Book of World Records.

Although many admired her business acumen, some blacks -- including her great-great-granddaughter -- weren't thrilled that Walker's fortune resulted from many blacks' desire for straighter hair.

As a child A'Lelia Bundles was mesmerized by her ancestor's belongings: a baby grand piano; hand-painted fans from which Shalimar perfume still wafted. Even in death, the woman whom everyone called "Madam" was imposing.

Madam, who was born Sarah Breedlove in 1867 to ex-slaves on a Louisiana plantation, "gave me a totally different sense of mothers and grandmothers," says Bundles, 43, a producer at ABC's "World News Tonight." Bundles' mother, vice president of the Walker Company, sometimes brought her daughter with her to the immense Indianapolis building still permeated by the spirit of the entrepreneur who, Bundles says, "represented to me that all women didn't do traditional things."

In the '60s, Bundles embraced her African American heritage -- and realized that "people like (noted Sociologist) E. Franklin Frazier had denigrated Madam as ... an uneducated woman who'd embraced conspicuous consumption.

Then, while perusing old magazines at her college library, Bundles ran across the July 1919 issue of W.E.B. DuBois' Crisis magazine. In it, "DuBois -- My intellectual hero -- had written an obit of Madam, praising her. ... I began to see Madam Walker beyond the definitions others had given her."

Bundles learned that when Madam founded her oasislike urban salons, "nobody was saying, 'Let's pamper black women, give them someplace where they can sit with other women getting sustenance.'" She also helped fund the anti-lynching movement and preached black economic independence.

Bundles' discovery reminded me of what I sometimes forget: Heroes should be measured not just by the wonders they accomplish but by the times in which they accomplish them.

Women's history isn't always appreciated -- even by other women.

Jesse Brown defends VA's turf

WASHINGTON -- Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jesse Brown, a former Marine whose right arm was shattered by a bullet in Vietnam, is taking some friendly fire from Cabinet colleagues in the Clinton administration.

Brown has earned a combination of envy and enmity from officials who believe the VA gets a blank check, while their budgets get cut to the bone, administration sources say. At times, these policy differences have spilled over into personal relationships. One Cabinet secretary has refused to speak to Brown, according to a second senior administration official. Others have snubbed him as well.

"In the (White House) budget discussions everyone is taking cuts, but Jesse Brown said he's not going to take them," said one irate Cabinet official. "It's like we're all in this together, and then there's veterans."

By this official's own admission, some of the hard feelings toward Brown are misplaced. If there's a fault to be assigned, it rests with President Clinton -- who has done Brown's bidding and has protected the VA budget while other domestic spending is slashed. Officials speculate that Clinton is guilty of over-compensating for his record of draft-dodging during the Vietnam War by exempting the VA from a long-overdue federal belt-tightening.

Under Clinton's plan, the VA would receive a $1.3 billion increase in its $37 billion budget for fiscal year 1996. While not nearly as generous, Republican budget-cutters in Congress are treating the issue gingerly -- even to the point of complaining to administration officials that they must rein in Brown. Many Republicans remain mindful of how the veterans' lobby revolted against President Bush in 1992 after he proposed a plan to consolidate underutilized VA hospitals. In Cabinet meetings, sources say Brown often raises the subject of why it's important "to keep the veterans happy."

"Over the past 20 years the VA's share of the federal budget has been cut in half from about 5 percent to 2 1/2 percent," says Brown. "VA is as much a cost for the nation in terms of the national defense as the defense budget itself. We can't spend $270 billion sending our best and brightest in harm's way, and when they return home they suffer and we turn our backs on them."

Budget Director Alice Rivlin has privately sympathized with those who have protested the VA's budget. According to a source close to Rivlin, who did not return our phone calls, she has explained that the VA budget cannot be cut without President Clinton's approval and personal intervention with Brown.

"It's not going to happen," one senior administration official told us. "Do you think the president can tell Jesse Brown to stop?"

Although Brown has been an outspoken advocate since joining the Disabled American Veterans in 1967 (including five years as executive director), he has also become an effective bureaucratic in-fighter who has outflanked the Office of Management and Budget. Brown has appealed personally to Clinton since 1993 through telephone calls and private meetings in the Oval Office. According to a senior administration official, the VA would never have won its recent increase ($747 million of which is for medical care) without Brown's personal appeals to Clinton.

Some Cabinet officials question budget hikes on grounds that veterans are dwindling as a percentage of the population.

Brown has earned a combination of envy and enmity from officials who believe the VA gets a blank check.

Efforts are continuing toward developing the riverwalk, which has been tentatively planned to travel along the Lake Monroe waterfront from Mellonville Avenue to Interstate 4. During last month's meeting, however, it was reported that the plan did not appear to be as high as would be desired on the list of projects with funds to be allocated by the regional Bicycle Pedestrian Committee.

According to Sanford's Director of Planning and Development, Jay Marder, two other proposed projects appeared to be higher on the committee's list for the allocation of funds. He said an Orange County project is seeking $4.2 million, while the other is an Orlando project.

One of the waterfront committee's primary goals has been to expand promotion of development potentials. Efforts continue in this area with both the city of Sanford and Seminole County now involved. The waterfront committee is seeking ways to have the two entities involved in some type of joint approach.

On the courthouse matter, efforts are continuing toward working to keep the courthouse facilities in the downtown Sanford area, through possible redesigns of existing facilities and development of new ideas.

The Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee meeting will be held this Wednesday, beginning at 4 p.m. in the city manager's conference room of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

Overhauling taxes

By WALTER R. BEARS
An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter used to heft volumes of the federal tax laws as visual aids in campaigning for a total rewrite of a system he said was a disgrace to the human race. That was two decades ago, and it hasn't happened yet.

Now there's another push on, with powerful backing in the Republican Congress, this time for a flat tax to replace the current income tax system. An idea originated in libertarian and conservative circles, the flat tax has a populist appeal, evidenced when Democrat Jerry Brown, the former California governor, promoted it during his 1992 presidential campaign.

Such a drastic change won't come any time soon. The topic surely will still be on the political table during the 1996 campaign.

Overhauling taxes, not for more money but to reform a complicated, intricate system, is easy to talk about and very hard to do. For all of Carter's emphasis on the issue in his campaign for the White House, he didn't get anything done about it once he got there. Indeed, during his term, new wrinkles were added to the old system — for example, tax deductions for energy conservation.

Tax breaks for a purpose, a region or, in some cases, a constituent, are how the system got that way in the first place. The flat tax would strike such politically favored features as the breaks for home mortgage interest and property taxes. The National Association of Realtors already has issued a study saying that would have dire consequences for housing and the entire economy. Advocates say a simplified tax system would bring economic growth, lower interest rates, and savings that would offset any negative impact.

The American Enterprise, a journal published by the Institute of that name, tracks the income tax system back to Abraham Lincoln and a Civil War levy of 3 percent on incomes over $600 a year that continued, with variations, until 1872.

When a 2 percent tax on upper-income Americans was imposed in 1894, the Supreme Court rejected it. The dispute over constitutionality wasn't settled until the 16th Amendment was adopted in 1913, empowering Congress to levy graduated income taxes, the percentage tax increasing with income.

Flat tax proposals date back more than 30 years; the Enterprise credits economist Milton Friedman and his wife, Rose, with writing the earliest proposal in 1962.

While the idea has been discussed ever since, the mainstream political emphasis generally was on lowering rates and limiting deductions. That was the thrust of the Ronald Reagan era: tax cuts first, then a 1986 reform and simplification act that eliminated deductions while reducing rates to keep the total tax burden roughly the same.

But in subsequent administrations, rates increased again, and deductions erased by reform were not restored.

I should be and I'm not sure the city residents are being represented at CALNO the way we should be represented."

Winston then called for Benson's removal and immediate replacement on CALNO.

Commissioner Annamaria Vacca noted Winston could not make a motion while controlling the gavel. When that was confirmed, Vacca made the motion to remove Benson. Commissioner Ron Sargent seconded for purposes of discussion.

Claiming the move was a political maneuver connected with the 1996 election, Benson angrily responded to the threat, stating if she is removed from CALNO, she would contact the state attorney's office regarding a violation of the Sunshine Law. Benson claimed she learned from a third party that Winston and commissioner Jim Carriaco discussed the CALNO representation during a golf game, violating the open government meeting law.

"I will not stand by and allow you to disparage me," Benson said in a loud voice that sometimes reached shouting level. During the fracas, Benson stood up and struck the dais to make her point with an emphatic pop, leaving shocked spectators with mouths agape at the display.

Benson launched into a personal attack on Winston, stating she was an elected official doing her job. She claimed Winston, who entered office unopposed was not elected and has no constituency.

"You have greed and avarice in every bone of your body," Benson lashed out at Winston. A perplexed Winston said after the meeting the only reason he could ponder for the verbal attack was that he was chosen to replace Benson as mayor.

Carriaco noted Benson's allegation was purely conjecture and that "she's completely emotional about being removed as mayor." After her Monday night outburst, Carriaco said he was appalled at her behavior, calling it completely out of order. He added although he voted to have her remain the city's CALNO representative four months ago, he would not vote that way again.

When Benson noted Vacca is a member of the Spirit of 17-92 Task Force but has not reported on those meetings, Vacca explained the meeting was conducted while her two children had chikpox and she would not attend.

"You should resign," Benson countered, "you can't do anything. You're an immoral person and so is deputy mayor Carriaco." She added she has done her job well.

City attorney Richard Taylor advised board appointments should be handled as agenda items rather than during commissioners reports.

A special meeting may be called to remove Benson from CALNO and appoint a replacement.

All of the commissioners requested typed transcripts of the meeting, which is recorded on audiotape. They allege they were slandered by Benson during the trade and vice versa.

She counted Winston's contention that she had not reported about CALNO meetings to the commission by stating only two meetings have been conducted since April and the meeting minutes are placed in each commissioners' mailbox at city hall. She also said she showed a video from the June meeting.

The issue will be handled at the next regular meeting, Sept. 5 or at a special meeting. The commission is scheduled to conduct a work session Aug. 28 and a special meeting could be called at that time.

tral Florida counties known as the Central Florida Loop as well as part of the Florida National Scenic Trail which crosses Seminole County.

The loop is a planned 200 mile greenway and trail system connecting several central Florida counties. The national scenic trail stretches the entire length of the state.

Bike trails, hiking paths and similar multi-use recreation facilities topped the list of the most desired amenities among home buyers in Florida, Georgia and North Carolina, according to a recent real estate industry survey.

Colleen Rotella, senior planner with the comprehensive planning division, notes in a report to the commission, the multi-use facilities provide recreation benefits, serve as neighborhood connectors to schools, parks and nearby business and can serve as an alternative transportation option.

"On a larger scale," the report continues, "trail projects which connect to regional networks enhance local economies and tourism. According to the State Office of Greenways and Trails, on average, trails generate $1.2 annually benefiting area bed and breakfasts, hotels, motels, restaurants and local shops."

The mid-morning workshop was scheduled prior to the regular afternoon and evening commission in room 1028 of the County Services Building.

New traffic light

LAKE MARY — The Seminole County Traffic and Engineering Department has announced a new traffic light will be officially operating starting tomorrow. The light, located on Longwood/Lake Mary Road, at Lakeway Road, has been on flashers since this past week.

Merge

The merger has been discussed for several months during SHDWA meetings. In June, the organization's board of directors unanimously approved the proposal. Since that time, a letter reporting both pros and cons (for SHDWA) of the merger, has been circulated for consideration by members.

It is expected that a formal vote on the merger will be taken at the next regular meeting of SHDWA scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 29.

SMS President Chris Cranias has submitted a letter to SHDWA members regarding the matter. "Because Sanford Main Street was started by SHDWA," he wrote, "it seems logical that our two groups would eventually become one. Your membership has always supported our mission and downtown revitalization projects, and you have initiated and accomplished many important projects to improve downtown."

Cranias said with a strong merchants' committee which would be carried into SMS from SHDWA, a strong partnership would result and go far in revitalizing downtown Sanford.

Cranias knows the operations of both organizations, having served as president of SHDWA during the time applications for admission to the Florida and national Main Street programs were compiled and subsequently approved.

SHDWA President Jere Moore also wrote to her members. "As near as I can see," she said, "there is very little reason not to merge with Sanford Main Street."

"We are only as strong as our membership," she wrote, "and there is much we can accomplish together."

Both Moore and Cranias noted that there is a large number of individuals who are members of both organizations.

The vote on the proposed merger is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 29, during a meeting of SHDWA to be held at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, 300 E. First St. in Sanford.

McGwire No. 3

DAVIE — Quarterback Dan McGwire won the No. 3 job with the Miami Dolphins on Monday when the team waived Doug Pederson.

Pederson has been with the Dolphins off and on since 1991 and played in seven games.

McGwire, 27, was drafted in the first round by Seattle in 1991 and signed with Miami as a free agent in April. The 6-foot-8 QB will back up Dan Marino and Bernie Kosar.

Also released were: defensive tackle Mark Caesar, safety Melvin Crawford, tackle Seth Dittman, center Jason James, receiver Burt Thornton and linebacker Rodney Wilkerson.

Receiver Scott Miller was placed on the reserve physically unable to perform list.

Dolphins' walking wounded

DAVIE — The Miami Dolphins aren't as banged up as they appeared following their preseason game against Washington.

Linebacker Bryan Cox suffered a sprained right knee but wasn't expected to be out long.

The most significant injuries were to backup fullback Robert Wilson and reserve running back Irving Spikes.

Wilson, the starter during Keith Byars' absence, sprained his left knee. He will have an MRI exam and miss at least one week.

Spikes, the team's No. 3 running back, suffered bruised left quadriceps and also will miss at least one week.

Collins gets 'Canes nod

CORAL GABLES — Coach Butch Davis has named Ryan Collins as the Miami Hurricanes' starting quarterback.

Collins, a fifth-year senior, will start the season opener Sept. 2 at UCLA. He beat out sophomore Ryan Clement and second-year freshman Scott Covington.

ELSEWHERE

Marlins swept

PITTSBURGH — Carlos Garcia's two-run double in the seventh inning broke a tie as the Pittsburgh Pirates completed a five-game sweep of the Florida Marlins with a 5-3 victory.

With the score tied at 3 in the seventh, Jacob Brumfield and Al Martin singled off Mark Gardner (5-5). Garcia then hit an O-2 pitch that bounced off the warning track in left-center field to score both runs. Garcia also extended his hitting streak to 13 games.

Mike Dyer (4-2) earned the victory, the fourth for the Pirates' bullpen in the series. Paul Wagner pitched the ninth for his first save this season and third of his career.

The Pirates took a 3-0 lead in the first on one hit against Willie Banks. Orlando Merced was safe on shortstop Kurt Abbott's throwing error and Banks walked the next three batters to force in a run. Kevin Young followed with a double that scored two runs.

Terry Pendleton hit a solo homer in the sixth for the Marlins, his 10th, and Florida tied the score in the seventh on Abbott's two-out, two-run single off John Ericks.

Longwood Preps romp 10-0

Special to the Herald

KINSTON, North Carolina — Announcing one's presence with authority.

The Longwood All-Stars showed the rest of the field that it has to be one of the favorites to win the whole thing as it opened play in the Babe Ruth Baseball Prep World Series with a 10-0, five-innings whitewashing of Ohio Valley (Taylor, Indiana) Sunday night.

A trio of pitchers combined on a two-hitter and the offense came up with 12 hits as the Southeast Regional champions won for the 14th time in 15 All-Star contests.

"Our bats are going to be our saving grace," said Longwood manager Andy Westervelt by phone Monday night. "We've seen everyone play and it looks like we hit better than anyone else in the tournament. If our bats stay alive we should be okay."

Kevin Graves was again outstanding on the mound for Longwood, throwing a perfect game through three innings and striking out six of the nine batters he faced. Graves had now allowed just one earned run in 37 innings of all-star work, an earned run average of 0.19.

Mike Pagozaizski and Mickey Kalin finished up by throwing one shutout inning each.

After a scoreless first inning, the 13 year old stars jumped on the Hoosiers for two runs in the second inning and then kind of sealed matters with five runs in the third inning. The Floridians

Providing the offense for the locals were Kevin Mellillo (3-for-4, three RBI), Jose Rosado (2-for-3, two runs, three RBI), Matt Main (2-for-3, RBI), Eric Schmoak (1-for-2, double, two runs), Graves (1-for-2, two runs, RBI), Chris Westervelt (1-for-2, three runs), Jeff Epperson (1-for-4, run) and Justin Hawarah (1-for-4).

Longwood will play the Mid-Atlantic Regional champion (Upper Darby, Pennsylvania) in today's quarterfinals. Upper Darby has already won two games in the event, pounding host Kinston 7-2 on Saturday and edging New Orleans 4-3 on Monday.

If Longwood should win, it already knows who its opponent be in the winner's bracket finals. Trumble, Connecticut, defeated Kennewick, Washington Monday night to advance to the winner's bracket finals on Thursday.

Freshman Culpepper named UCF starting QB

By JOHN MARINI
 Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — University of Central Florida head football coach Gene McDowell announced Monday that freshman Daunte Culpepper, the state's "Mr. Football" last season at Ocala Vanguard High School, has won the starting quarterback job for the Knights.

Culpepper edged out junior Kevin Reid from Palm Harbor and will start in the season opener against Eastern Kentucky on Thursday, August 31, at the Orlando Citrus Bowl.

"There's not a whole lot of difference between them right now," McDowell said. "I have reason to believe, though, that Daunte is going to be a great quarterback immediately. He's a big quarterback who runs fast and has a strong arm."

Culpepper will hopefully fill the void left by the graduation of Oviedo's Darin Hinshaw, who graduated after becoming Central Florida's all-time passing leader. Hinshaw passed for 9,000 yards and 82 touchdowns during his career.

"I'm excited, filled with joy," Culpepper said.

"I'm ready to step in and try my best to get the job done."

Reid was a backup to Hinshaw last season, completing six of 14 passes for 132 yards and one touchdown.

Culpepper passed for 31 touchdowns last year while leading Vanguard to the Class 5-A championship game.

Is a hysterectomy answer to problem?

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 43-year-old with breakthrough bleeding. Three years ago my gynecologist put me on Megace to alleviate the bleeding. On my last visit to a different doctor, he indicated I never should have been on Megace because it's too strong. I stopped at once and immediately began bleeding very heavily. Now he says I should be on birth control pills. Are my doctors making the real problem. Should a hysterectomy be done?

DEAR READER: Breakthrough bleeding, the presence of vaginal bleeding at times other than menstruation, is usually caused by a hormone imbalance. Evidently, your first gynecologist chose to suppress the bleeding using Megace, a progestin-like drug that resembles one of the two natural female hormones. The second doctor disagreed with this choice, preferring to give you both hormones in a cyclic dose that will not suppress bleeding but will regulate it.

You see, birth control pills, which contain varying amounts of progestin and estrogen, regulate menstruation (and inhibit ovulation) by stabilizing and over-riding the body's own hormone balance.

I don't agree with the second doctor's position that Megace is "too strong," because the prescription drug is available in different strengths. However, he may be correct that combination therapy (birth control pills) is more healthful in that it more closely approximates your natural cycle, unlike Megace, which is a single compound.

In my view, your doctors may well be missing the boat on your bleeding for two reasons.

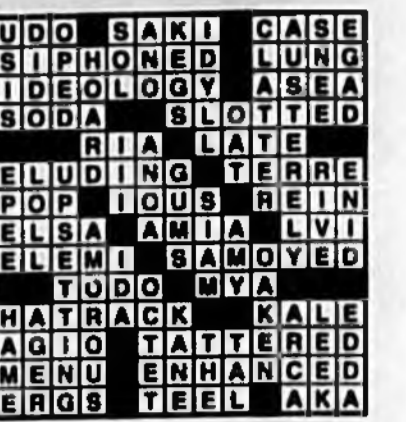

First, you may be entering early menopause. The normal hormonal imbalance that comes with age often causes irregular bleeding that can be severe. Therefore, one of your options is to discontinue all medicines for several months to see what happens.

Second, I worry about any breakthrough bleeding in a woman your age because it could reflect a dangerous gynecological condition, such as a growth in your uterus. In my

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Yesterday's deal was shown to me by Englishman Tony Friday. He is one of the best bridge players ever, but since he is a reserved person, he is not as well-known or highly rated as some more extroverted but less able players.

Following that write-up, no doubt you are expecting a deal where Friday played or defended brilliantly. Wrong! Friday also showed me this deal, which he misplayed during a rubber-bridge game in London's Cafe Royal. But he spotted immediately how he should have made the contract.

Aggressive bidding led to three no-trump, which West doubled because he had the hearts held and it was potentially the end of the rubber.

West led the spade queen: five, 10, king. Friday finessed the club queen, which held. Then declarer optimistically played a diamond toward the dummy, covered by the jack, king and ace. East returned a diamond to his partner's queen, and a second spade gave East four tricks in that suit. The contract was two down: 500 to East-West.

Friday had overlooked the inference about the heart suit. If West had five or six hearts, the winning line, after the club queen held trick two, was to play a heart to dummy's queen and continue with the ace and jack of clubs.

Unless willing to sacrifice a club trick, East must give the lead to the dummy in either spades or diamonds. South's nine tricks are four hearts, three clubs and either two spades or one spade and one diamond.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osof
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Aug. 23, 1995

The year ahead could be an extremely busy one for you with a number of new irons in the fire. Success is indicated after you sort out the productive projects from the unproductive ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not make comparisons today between a friend you're with and a friend who is not present. No matter how hard you try, what you say could seem unfair and unflattering. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Make an effort to help others today, but be sensible regarding whom you help. Avoid assuming the burdens of goldbricker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are likely to get your fair share of opportunities today, but you might not recognize their true worth and fail to capitalize on them properly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Half measures won't count for much today if you're faced with a challenging development. The only way to score a true success will be to go all out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against seeing situations today as you would like them to be instead of as they are. Wishful thinking will distort the picture and work against you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conditions will be unusual today and you could be held accountable for the mistakes of others if you're not careful. Do not allow yourself to be misused.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Progress is indicated today if you serve as your own counselor. If you bring in outside advisers, the quality of your decisions will drop.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Extra responsibilities might be foisted upon you today. If you have a negative attitude, it may cause them to appear awesome and unmanageable.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) For the sake of your image and relationship with close friends, stay on your best behavior today. Thoughtless actions could wound several pals at once.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you launch an endeavor only to let it fend for itself later, the results will be undesirable. Instead, see it through to a satisfactory conclusion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Remain realistic today. If you view matters from a distorted perspective, it could cause you to take actions that don't serve your best interests.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You must exercise practically and discipline in your financial affairs today. If you get careless, you may wipe out a portion of your accumulation.
