

Uncle Sam A "Sissy" Tax Collector, John Bull Knows How To Get Mazama

Few Escape Income Levy In Tight Little Islands, While Three Times As Many Here Pay Only Half As Much

By FRED PASELY. LONDON, Oct. 1.—Just a year ago Uncle Sam was a tax collector compared with John Bull. The old beef-tion to the government would make anyone who gets $48. In Great Britain it would be $240. At $10,000 here would be $50,000 in Great Britain, including surtax; in Great Britain $1,000, at $25,000 here it would be $125,000; in Great Britain $5,000, at $125,000 here it would be $625,000.

Comparison Of U.S. And British Taxes

Comparative table showing basic income tax rates and proposed surtax rates of the United States and those now in effect in Great Britain.

Table with columns for Income Base, U.S. Tax Rate, U.S. Surtax Rate, U.S. Total Tax Rate, U.S. Tax Per Cent, U.S. Tax Per Cent, U.S. Tax Per Cent, U.S. Tax Per Cent, U.S. Tax Per Cent, U.S. Tax Per Cent.

Note that the surtax shown in the specific rate for the amount above the first figure and below the second figure in each case. The total tax is computed on the second figure, and includes all the various surtax rates American brackets were used as a base and English equivalents computed.

There were 219 persons in 1928 with incomes of $20,000 or more. By 1933 they had diminished to 452, a decrease of 45 percent. Their total income showed 50 percent increase from $315,000,000 to $470,000,000. On the other hand those in the $10,000 to $20,000 class have declined by 14 percent from 74,000 to 63,000.

Corporations as such pay no taxes in Great Britain. The theory is that the company is used by the government as a withholding agent for that purpose. That is to say, dividends and interest on stocks and bonds are taxed at the source at the basic income tax rate of 2 1/2 percent—considerably higher. It will be noted, that our present rate of 13.84 percent is dedicated to Jefferson, who made the Englishman purchase, and to later explorers and pioneers of the inland empire.

Working of the buildings along the river will remove out of the city's chief eyesores. Dirty, dilapidated, many of them unoccupied, the buildings are the remnants of a dead and bygone era. In the 75-acre site are several buildings of historic interest.

Among them are the 101-year-old Catholic cathedral and the "Old Rock House," built in 1810. In the city, had been successively beautified by a memorial wall, a city hall, a schoolhouse, a fur storehouse, a slave market, a tavern, a jail, and a restaurant. Florida are under way to preserve the two buildings.

A national competition is planned to select a design for the memorial. Civic leaders first conceived the improvement plan in 1907, but it was not until creation of President Roosevelt's "work relief" fund last spring that back of the project could obtain promises of federal aid.

Under present plan the government will pay three-fourths the cost of building the memorial and maintain it perpetually. The $1,000,000 bond issue will furnish the remaining fourth of the $3,000,000 it is estimated will be needed.

The answer, of course, is the broader tax base, and a scientifically graded scale. A single year earning as little as $500 a year is nicked to the tune of $2.25, and if the same individual should be raised to $1,000, he would pay $3.75.

A married man with no children earning $1,500 in 1934 would pay $1,500, $200, $95, and at $2,000, $200, $95, and at $2,500, $200, $95, and at $3,000, $200, $95, and at $3,500, $200, Bible Verse For Today

GOD NEVER WILL:—Now as when I am old and grey-headed, O God, forsake me not: until I have showed thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to every one that is to come. Psalm 71: 18.

We hear a great deal these days about "painless taxation," but we haven't seen much of it.

England appears determined to prevent war if she has to throw her entire army and navy against Italy to do it.

Harry K. Thaw, according to the newspapers, has been suffering with pneumonia. After the life he has led, he's lucky.

If Mussolini doesn't launch his attack on Ethiopia pretty soon, he will have to wait until after the football season is over.

According to the reports, Adolf Hitler banned a wrestling match between two Japs in Berlin the other night because they called it jiu jitsu.

If Sherlock Holmes were on the job in Europe today, we have no doubt he would be saying, "Quick, Watson, the floor!"

The Italians are like certain bootleggers better known in the prohibition days: They have their good pints.

Special war bulletin from the Ethiopian front: Haile Selassie launched a new lion last week. St. Petersburg Times. Sure you aren't lion?

At a late hour this afternoon people were still wondering whether we would fight our next war, to end wars or merely to make the world safe for Democracy?

It may have been "an act of God" the last time when hundreds of men were left on the Florida keys in the path of a hurricane, but the FERA saw to it that the keys were evacuated this time.

What a difference it made in the lives of most of us last week and that the hurricane which headed due north veered slightly to the northeast.

We wonder how long this unseemly practice of hitchhiking would continue if motorists simply refused to become a part of it.

If the government builds any of those small fast battleships for Gen. MacArthur, we'd like to borrow one some Sunday afternoon just to show some of these road hogs a thing or three.

It always struck us as rather inconsistent that the very people who believe the strongest in redistribution of wealth are the most determined to abolish the stock markets.

Most Sanford folks are back from their vacations now and getting ready for a big fall and winter season, both in the celery fields and the retail stores. It has been a long, slow summer, but the prospects are bright for the immediate future.

Sometimes it seems that Mussolini is going to wait until after the World Series is over before starting his Ethiopian campaign so as to get an even break, at least, in the headlines.

Merry-Go-Round insists that the Tamm bill hold the balance of power between Democratic and Republican organized members, wherever they may be, in the state of Florida at least.

Spending His Money

When George Vanderbilt recently inherited some fifteen or twenty million dollars from the estate of his father, the late Alfred Gwyne Vanderbilt, a victim of the Lusitania disaster, he announced to the world that he had no intention of going into business, would not look for a job, and as a matter of fact hoped to catch the next boat for India where he would hunt lions and tigers.

This is in marked contrast with certain other scions of great wealth who have taken $25-a-week jobs "in order to learn the business from the ground up." There's John Jacob Astor, for instance, Vincent Astor's brother, who has been putting in twelve hours a day in the offices of a New York shipping company. And then there are Lawrence and Winston Rockefeller, young sons of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who have declared their intention of following in their father's footsteps in starting at the bottom in the oil business.

All of which leaves one guessing as to what really is the proper procedure for a young man of great wealth. Should he prepare himself to engage further in business, and add to the untold accumulations of great wealth which he already has? Or should he devote himself exclusively to the spending of the money which his father and grandfather left him and try to get as much pleasure out of life as he can?

It can be said for this latter plan that at least he is not depriving someone else of a job which he probably needs to earn his bread and butter. Furthermore, if the rich, young man devotes his full time to spending his money, isn't that the best way in the world to put money into circulation and aid in the re-distribution of wealth?

However that may be, one cannot help but admire the engaging frankness of young Mr. Vanderbilt who admits he doesn't like to work, that he doesn't need a job and doesn't want one, that he likes to hunt and fish, and prefers travel to the monotony of remaining toiling in one place. Well, now as a matter of fact, who doesn't? How many of us, if we had just inherited twenty million dollars, would apply ourselves to an all day job just to earn $25 a week?

By all means let Mr. Vanderbilt neglect his opportunity to make more money. Let him spend what he has as fast as he can. Then maybe some of the rest of us can get some of it.

Grange On Football

The mental and physical discipline of college football is valuable advance preparation either for business or for a profession, according to Harold Red Grange, great star of the American gridiron for more than a decade.

"The player learns to compete," he says in the current Rotarian Magazine, "and business today is hard competition. He learns to take nothing for granted, virtually every youth who has participated in organized athletics has, at some time or other, been beaten, or his team has been faked, because he, or they, held the position too lightly.

"A defeat engendered by over-confidence is a soulless lesson, valuable long after the game has been forgotten by the fans. The player learns not to over-estimate the capacity of others. And I believe that any business man who reads this will agree that good, healthy respect for the other fellow's ability is a fundamental of business success.

"Red," who since his college days has reaped a golden reward as a professional gridiron player, cites another real advantage of college football for later use in life, in the training which a boy gets out of the game. That is the knowledge that accomplishment depends greatly upon organized effort by a group.

"Development of that kind of spirit has practical value. A boy learns to gear his own ability in with the abilities of others. In the case of a lineman he may get little newspaper credit. But his is the satisfaction of a good job well done and the appreciation of his such and teammates, to him that is ample reward for everything.

"College football," he continues, "has been called a character builder. I amend that by saying it develops character, if the character is there. It does develop one important trait: gameness. It is a sport of smashing impacts and continuous, hard body contacts, between boys of unequal size and strength. So hard and fierce is the competition that day that the player is frequently up against boys who are bigger and stronger. But he learns to fight back, to stay in there trying, striving to win.

"If he learns never to quit, against the toughest going, then I maintain he has received from football something which can't be measured in dollars and cents—and he is the big winner! I do not refer merely to physical courage but to mental courage, or a combination of both."

THE COMPASS

The Three Classes in America By Arthur Dunn

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 2.—Socrates was one of the wisest men of all times. He may not have been the pioneer in the use of slogans, but at least he gave them class.

Four centuries B. C. he hammered home, over and over again, "Know thyself"—Know thyself! His fellow Athenians, like many Americans, preferred fooling themselves. So they forced him to drink the hemlock—the then customary method of executing criminals.

If we understand that conditions today only represent the conflict between forces which have existed since man learned how to build a fire, we would understand our chief difficulty in making progress.

The control of fire gave man protection against other animals. Prior to that he had hidden and lived alone. This new found superiority over animals made group life possible. A collection of families became a tribe; several tribes became a clan; a few clans a principality; a number of principalities a state; and two or more states, a nation.

The major reason for the combination of men into groups, was for protection against similar hostile combinations. We are now witnessing at Geneva a peace loving group of nations combining to protect themselves from a war-willing group. It is the inexorable working of the first law of nature—self preservation. If we felt sufficiently menaced, we would be at Geneva too.

Quite naturally those of the group who afforded protection to the rest by fighting did the ruling. In time they became a very definite class—the few on top. They were the patriarch and the strong men of the tribe, or the chief and his warriors, the feudal baron and his knights; the king and his nobles.

Their successors in our country are described by the word capital. Whatever the name, they have always been on top, the ruling class since the beginning of our nation.

Those underneath through the ages have variously been slaves, serfs, peasants and laborers. In return for protection they have supported the warrior class.

The upper strata, however, have ceased to be warriors. As Secretary Hull said to me: "Things are now reversed; those on top no longer do the fighting, they make money out of the fighting."

This class, though in a small number, has as a matter of course prospered and conserved the best for so many thousands of years that it seems to be their portion, almost a matter of divine right, which is the important thing for us to remember if we are to understand them and our attitude toward them are not completely selfish or possessive of those in our society, it is simply incomprehensible to them that anyone but themselves should enjoy what is called "special privilege."

It is as odd as the hills this "special privilege." Alexander Hamilton recognized that if the thirteen states joined together by the Constitution were to be re-arranged into a nation, the upper class must be afforded the special opportunities for enrichment made possible solely because of a financial existence. It was more for that reason than for the "bullseye" of infant in distress that he protected the protective tariff.

The modern equivalent of slaves, serfs and workers are designated as farmer and labor. These with capital constitute the three great classes in our country, the existence of which has been brought into sharp relief by the depression.

When the history of our peaceful revolution is written, it will be recorded that the ruling class (capital), having failed in its job of ruling, was displaced by plutocrats; that this new leadership conferred something of special privilege on a farmer and labor.

It will be recorded that consumers had long been paying higher for manufactured products because of the tariff—a bonus to industry; that under the new dispensation consumers were compelled to pay a higher price to provide a bonus for labor, in the form of minimum wages, old age pensions and unemployment insurance, and to provide a bonus for farmers through a processing tax, etc.

That capital objected to all this because it interfered with its profits is not borne out by the balance sheets. No, the opposition was largely emotional. Capital had always been boss; its leaders resented being bossed by government, by labor, by anyone.

We cannot expect to reverse the powerful current of all history in 100 months. If labor and farmer combine, they can defeat capital, but let us hope that history will also record that the three classes acquired wisdom enough to know that in the Machine Age their interests were identical and demanded co-operation, not antagonism.

Local Red Cross To Play Part In Great Campaign

"Special home inspection forms have been prepared," Miss DeForest said, "and are to be introduced into the homes here through the children in our schools. Arrangements have been made with school superintendents, principals and teachers so that school children will receive these blanks, take them home and conduct an actual inspection of the home to eliminate accident causing hazards with the help of parents or relatives and return the blanks to the school, where they will be forwarded to the Red Cross for compilation of statistics to indicate what type of home accident hazard is most prevalent."

The local Red Cross states that the committee will be appointed at an early date.

This home safety campaign, it is understood, will also include farm safety and safety while at work on the farm. Because of the inaccessibility of farms and the difficulty of securing accident statistics pertaining to them, little safety pioneering has been done in this direction.

"Preventing unnecessary death and alleviating human misery," Miss DeForest pointed out, "is the charter obligation of the Red Cross and home safety," she said, "is a natural outgrowth of that duty."

The Red Cross service which has been in effect for some 25 years and is annually responsible for saving many lives.

"The accident prevention campaign," she said, "will be carried out on a nationwide scale and each of the newly 11,000 Red Cross chapters and branches will play a part."

Miss DeForest indicated that the campaign would not be an intensive affair of a few months' duration but, rather, would be a continuing year by year program to prevent unnecessary deaths and accidents in the home and on the farm.

The Red Cross believes that knowledge of first aid will do much to prevent home accidents. A person instructed in first aid is accident conscious; and certainly, when an accident does occur in the home, the practical application of first aid knowledge may prevent a minor injury from crippling, a serious injury from killing.

North Star Shifting Says One Astronomer

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—In another 2,500 years, the world will have a new North Star, for Vega will replace Polaris, so says Captain Stubbs, noted astronomer and master of the Cunarder Auraria.

He believes the Egyptian pyramids were built by the guidance of a north star other than the one the world now uses.

Captain Stubbs has been studying stars since he was a boy and has written several books on them. He believes that anyone with a knowledge of stars cannot get lost.

"If you know sixty-one stars, you can navigate anywhere," he says.

"You know the pyramids are supposed to have been built by the guidance of the stars," he declares, "and you can check their position, and from that, an astronomer can tell their age. It is believed that the pyramids did not use Polaris, our present star.

There are a series of them, a series of North Stars, if you will, and they take 34,500 years, or something like that, to go round their orbits and come back again.

"In 2,500 years, our North Star is going to be Vega. She is swinging gradually into position, and Polaris is moving out."

Search Is Made For Eternal Youth In 'She'

Legends, fanciful tales based upon ancient fragments of truth and elaborated by passing years, have always intrigued the adventurous spirits of the world.

According to the legend an ancient ruler, handed down from father to son for 500 years, served as the beginning of spectacular hazardous and strange events in RKO Radio's "SHE".

How he found the kingdom of X and its awesome, beautiful queen, and how he saw the life-giving fire, and stood upon the threshold to immortality is easily unfolded in the story of "SHE".

Dust Storm Ages Ago Placed Soil On Alaskan Isle

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Evidence, of dust storms 2,000 years ago in Alaska worse than those in the Mid-West last year has been uncovered by Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology at the Smithsonian Institution.

For four years Dr. Hrdlicka and a group of volunteer college students before, discovered an ancient land of Muscovy a fountain of life-giving fire, and whoever people there would have youth and then disappeared projected endlessly. His wife, after enduring untold terrors and hardships, managed to reach civilization and tell of the flame and a cruel, beautiful woman who died upon a strange tropical over the island surrounded by high glaciers and deposited large amounts of loose soil.

Apparently a change of climate brought a full growth of vegetation and no more dust storms, the archaeologists found. From that time, which was somewhat after the time of Christ, the island was inhabited until approximately the Russian occupation of Alaska, when, for some unknown reason, the island again was deserted.

Chicago: The first pitch by "Schoolboy" Rowe was a strike which was received with a great roar by a capacity crowd. Galan later doubled over the infield into center field with the count two and nothing. Galan scored as Rowe made a bad throw to first after picking up Hornan's slow roller toward third. Lindstrom bunted to second, scoring Hornan to second. Hartnett singled to right center, scoring Hornan. Demaree flied out to Rogell. Cavaretta flied out to second. Gehrig flied out to Rogell. Two runs, two hits, one error, both runs unearned.

Detroit: Fox went out, Warneke to Cavaretta. Rogell flied out to Jurges in left field foul territory. Owen drew a walk. Rowe flied out to center field, Lindstrom taking the ball with his back against the screen. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Chicago: Stanley Hack flied out to Gehrig in short center field. Bill Jurges singled through short into left field, to continue to second as Goose Goslin flied out to Fox in right center. Galan struck out. No runs, one hit, one error.

Railway Labor Act Upheld In Federal Court Decision

Ruling Given On Constitutionality Of Act As Amended By Government Last Year

WAYCROSS, Oct. 2. — In a sweeping decision involving the Virginian Railroad wherein the standard shop crafts organizations of the American Federation of Labor, acting through System Federation Number 40 had brought suit against the Virginian Railroad to compel the Management to cease intimidation, influence and coercion practiced by the officials of that railroad and to force the Management to recognize the officers of System Federation Number 40, Judge Luther B. Way of Norfolk, Virginia, handed down a twenty-nine page decision in which he completely upheld the contentions of the American Federation of Labor and ruled against every contention of the railroad lawyers.

The case has been pending for several weeks and it is expected that this opinion will have a far reaching effect and be of considerable value to the employees of other railroads, because of the apparent joint action on the part of the officers of various railroads where they are continuing to oppose the organization of the standard shop craft organization.

Judge Way's decision compels the Virginian officials to recognize the officers of System Federation Number 40 and discontinue their recognition of their company union. It also forces them to eliminate many other unlawful activities through which the company union secured their only support.

During the hearings in the Federal Court, the Judge did not hesitate to brand the literature used by the Railroad Company, which they claimed was not designed to intimidate or influence, as being of such a nature that he, the Judge, would have to satisfy his conscience to make himself believe that it was not coercion or intimidation.

He also differed with the opinion of the railroad lawyers who in their contention that each craft had to secure the affirmative vote of a majority of all eligible voters of that craft on the entire railroad in order to be recognized as the proper representative under the law.

The Judge stated very emphatically that the law did not say a majority of all eligible voters must vote the same way and he pointed out that the law said: "A majority of the eligible voters of any craft or class have the right to select their representative" and he interpreted that as meaning "that so long as a majority of any craft or class participated in the voting, that the law had been complied with and that the majority of the voters thus cast did legally represent the proper representation."

Prior to this it had been the policy of the various railroads to insist on a majority of all the eligible voters to vote for the same representative before they would recognize such representatives. That practice will, no doubt, be discontinued and representation will be based on the majority of the legal voters cast.

The Virginian Railroad had also contended that the Act as amended was unconstitutional and they set up as their basis for that claim the argument that men working in back shops or car yards on general repairs were not engaged in Interstate Commerce Employment.

They contend that only car inspectors and running repair men in the mechanical department could be classed as Interstate Commerce employees, but the Judge during his argument from the bench made it clear that it was not the source of employment, but that it was the effect of such employment that determined whether or not employees were intra or interstate employees.

This is the first case where any railroad has made such a contention and it is no surprise to find that the Judge has completely overruled that contention as it has been decided in many previous cases and the Interstate Commerce Commission has long since classed the employees in question as being engaged in Interstate Commerce.

This decision will, no doubt, be of much interest to employees of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad inasmuch as they, too, have a case pending in the United States Court involving the right of the National Mediation Board to take a new vote of the Shop Craft employees after the Mediation Board had investigated and found to their satisfaction that during a previous vote the railroad officials had used influence, intimidation, and coercion and in the prosecution of that case, the railroad lawyers and the Company Union lawyers had billed a Bill of Complaint contending that the Company Union was a bona fide organization against the individual members of the National Mediation Board and it was on the strength of those charges that the Judge granted a temporary injunction and the case was ordered to be tried on its merits.

However, the lawyers for the Company Union and the Railroad Company then filed motion to strike out the answer of the American Federation of Labor and the National Mediation Board in such a way that it would have eliminated all evidence from the trial except just the which pertained to the actual vote.

The Judge completely overruled their motions and insisted that the case be tried on its merits which now means that at the next hearing the Atlantic Coast Line employees will have an opportunity to present their evidence to show that the Shopmen's Association was organized by the railroad officials and its board members dictated to by the railroad officials, and for the treason of the Atlantic Coast Line employees, who, no doubt, are very much interested in the decision of Judge Way because of its complete and explicit support of the constitutionality of the Act.

Duval Co. Millage Rate Set At 44.276

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 2. The Duval county tax millage was fixed at 44.276 mills at a meeting of the Duval Board of County Commissioners yesterday afternoon.

The millage, it was estimated, will produce the amount necessary for operation of county departments as set up in the 1935-36 budget, which went into effect with the new fiscal year which opened yesterday. The budget total is $1,359,157.48, or approximately $108,000 less than last year, when the budget set up called for $1,468,044.

The tax roll dropped from $67,000,000 last year to $59,508,878 this year, with $10,520,280 in homestead exemptions subject to assessment only for bond interest and sinking fund requirements, it was said.

Army Aviators Will Seek Trophy Oct. 19

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. — (AP) — The War Department announced recently that the eleventh contest for the John L. Mitchell trophy will be held Oct. 19 at Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., home of the Army's 1st Pursuit Group.

The trophy was donated by General William Mitchell, one of the Air Service, in memory of his brother, who was killed in action during the World War. Army pilots compete for it in a speed event.

Mother's Advice "Take CARDUI" Has Helped Many

Thousands of women have avoided useless suffering because they knew about and used CARDUI—recommended by mothers to daughters for the relief of functional monthly pains for more than fifty years.

"I am glad to recommend a medicine that has been used by my mother with good results and then taken by me by her advice," writes Mrs. Annie Mae Powell, of Robertsdale, Ala. "I am glad to say it has helped me as she thought it would. I suffered with pain and cramping and irregular trouble. This would unfit me for work at times. I took CARDUI and it surely did help me."

Of course, if CARDUI does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.—adv.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs is one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal stimulants, thus cleaning the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic in action, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the system. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical, only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the individual package. (Adv.)

Laudonniere, who had accompanied Ribault to America in 1562, returned to the River May (St. Johns River) June 25, 1564, with three vessels and a number of soldiers, mariners and artisans for the purpose of establishing a Huguenot colony. After having built Fort Caroline at St. Johns Bluff, Laudonniere experienced so many misfortunes that in due time he prepared to leave Florida, when on August 28, 1565, Ribault arrived with seven vessels and 600 immigrants. Ribault sailed on Sept. 10, to attack Menendez, the Spaniard at St. Augustine, but the fleet encountered a storm and was wrecked. In the meantime the Spaniards under Menendez surprised, attacked, and destroyed the garrison at Fort Caroline. Few escaped, however, among them was Laudonniere, who was rescued by a small French vessel.

The AKEE, from Guinea, West Africa, thrives in frost-free sections of Florida. The fruit is a three-celled capsule, yellow to red in color, and ripens in summer. At maturity it splits open, exposing the shiny black seeds, one in each cell, to each of which is attached the edible white aril.

Tahiti Copra Market Dances To War Music

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Oct. 2. — (AP) — Recent quick rises and declines in prices offered here for copra have been so coincident with tension or relief in European affairs that South Sea islanders look upon the market as a barometer of the international situation.

The reason is that copra is one of the most valuable sources of high explosives.

When manufacturers of munitions is speeded up, the landing on the local market quickens. When things quiet down a bit, the buying slackens. Hence, no paper reports of the sayings and doings of European statesmen are interpreted in the light of market fluctuations.

Enrollment Of 400 At Rollins College

ORLANDO, Oct. 2. — With good prospects that the Rollins college student body will pass the 400 mark this fall, the educational institution at Winter Park is swinging into its most auspicious season, Dean Winslow Anderson told a joint meeting of the Winter Park and Orlando chambers of commerce yesterday.

The speaker revealed that enrollment last year totaled 286 and that now before registration period is up, the total stands at 296 with prospects that the figure will go past the 400 mark.

In addition the college has added 12 new members to the faculty, increased the teaching scope and raised the standards in many instances. Rollins is the only college in the country that has free resident beds for fraternities and sororities, the dean disclosed.

Worn-Out Farm Land In Need Of Vacation

MANHATTAN, Kan., Sept. 30. — (AP) — Back to the "grass roots" is not merely a political exhortation of farmers and agricultural experts of the dust-blown region of the Southwest.

E. A. Clevenger of Manhattan, crop specialist of Kansas State College, advocates grass as offering the best chance for rebuilding rundown farms and fields.

"It is nature's way of restoring worn-out, cultivated soils," he said, stating much land could be materially benefited by being "retired to pasture."

MAKE MARRIAGE LOANS

BERLIN Oct. 22. — (AP) — Related statistics show that 77,889 couples applied for marriage loans in the first quarter of 1935. Refusals were given to 2,205, mostly because of poor biological backgrounds.

state, to be called South Florida.

Paul C. Albritton, former circuit judge, and Frank Redd extended the invitation to the mass meeting to other counties of southern Florida.

They said that although the proposal involves a number of legal difficulties, proper impetus at the beginning of the movement could effect the division.

They said the area proposed for the new state has a population of approximately 1,180,000.

COLONEL CYCLIST VISIT LEGION MEET

"The Baby of the American Legion" was presented with a new Kentucky citizenship by T. H. Hayden, adjutant of the legion in Kentucky, on behalf of Governor Kirby Edson, during the American Legion convention at St. Louis. The baby is Keith Mackenzie (left), who was born to Mr. and Mrs. Vic Mackenzie of Salem, Ore., during the 1932 convention. Earl K. Austin (right), Los Angeles World War veteran, rode to the convention on a bicycle. After the meeting he will continue his nation-wide bicycle jaunt. (Associated Press Photo)

New Speed Record

She'd Rather Dive

Here we have little Mary Hoerger, 12-year-old women's national diving champion, trying her hand with a tricky algebra problem on her first day in the eighth grade at Miami Beach, Fla. "I'd love to rather be diving," Mary confided to the cameraman. (Associated Press Photo)

NO MORE "MONKEY BUSINESS"

Here's the answer for those who have been wondering why Prof. John Thomas Scops, the young school teacher who was the defendant in the famous "monkey" trial at Dalton, Tenn., ten years ago. Refusing to comment on evolutions, the teaching of which once brought him before the bar of justice, he is now with his wife and two year-old son at Houston, Tex., where he is employed by an oil company and lives a quiet life.
