

BIG DAY CAME TO CLOSE IN BLAZE OF GLORY CARNIVAL AND DANCE

Wound Up One of The Most Successful "Big Shows" of Season

EVERYONE PLEAS'D

RACES, FOOTBALL, ATHLETIC STUNTS, BIG DANCE LAST NIGHT, BIG DOINGS

It took several applications of "reveille" this morning to arouse the tired ex-service men and get them back on the job after a strenuous time of three days and nights of carnival, parades and dance last night. There is probably no city in Florida that had as big a celebration as Sanford regardless of size. There was such a varied and such a large program that it seemed stupendous when looked at after it is all over for from the tap of the bell to the last sound of the orchestra last night there was something doing all the time.

The parade yesterday was the biggest and best that has ever been attempted and it is a source of gratification to the Legion boys and the Auxiliary that the people responded with such a whole-hearted spirit and entered the lists with the feeling that it was all for the boys and nothing is too good for the boys—our boys.

It was a difficult matter to settle the question of the prettiest, the best decorated and the most appropriate car and float in the parade and there were to be three prizes awarded all of them being fine silver cups given by the three banks of Sanford. The judges were strangers in the city and knew none of the people owning the cars or floats and they made their decision only after mature deliberation and after taking about ten of the cars and floats and then by a process of elimination bringing them down to three.

The first prize went to the Welfare Dept. car of the Woman's Club, driven by Mrs. A. E. Hill and decorated in purple and white, the purple being furnished by wisterias, making a perfect combination, the color scheme being carried out in detail.

The second prize went to the car that held the graves and crosses of those who gave their lives for their country and whose memory will be kept green by such devotion as that exhibited yesterday. The float represented the crosses of Flanders field and the poppies of France waved over the graves bringing tears to the eyes of the people in the big crowd and even to the eyes of the judges of the cars. It might have been sentiment on their part that governed their decision and some may say it was but the float was very prettily arranged, was as true to life as it was possible to make it and it took the second prize. The idea of this float was advanced by Mrs. R. J. Holly at the Auxiliary meeting and was taken from the American Legion Weekly.

The third prize was won by the Lloyd Shoe Store which had a white float upon which the Walkover and the Princess Pat shoes were symbolized by young men and young ladies walking over the shoes and the Cinderella idea as exemplified by the girl in the throne chair and was a beautiful float in every detail.

There were so many beautiful floats that should have received prizes that it was too bad there were not about ten prizes in order that many others could have favorable mention. The judges were puzzled over the decision and said that they had never seen so many pretty cars and floats and it was difficult to place the prizes for some time but their decision will give general satisfaction inasmuch as it was a fair one.

Catts Indicted Again at Pensacola By the Grand Jury

Question of Law Recently Arose Which Might Weaken Case

(By The Associated Press)
PENSACOLA, Nov. 12.—Ex-Governor Catts was reindicted at a special sitting of federal grand jury here last night on the charge of peonage. Reindictment was ordered because of question of law which recently arose and which in official quarters was regarded as possibly having weakened the government's case by reason of the fact that Catts had been arrested in one federal court district and would be tried in another. The trial is expected to begin here next week.

PRESIDENT HARDING GAVE IT TO THEM TODAY AS PER SCHEDULE

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Gathered with chosen representatives of the nations about him, President Harding today opened the conference on limitation of armament, pronouncing the keynote in an address which he read slowly and deliberately from the small printed pages which he held in his left hand. With his right, he punctuated his statements with driving gestures. Secretary Hughes called the conference to order Secretary Hughes for chairman.

EDWARD HIGGINS WON FORD.

It was the frivolities of fate that gave Edward Higgins the lucky number that drew the Ford car given away by the American Legion. The car was put up by the Legion in order that some money could be raised for expenses without striking the business men of the city, who have been worked to death. The car was purchased from Edward Higgins, the Ford agent here, and strange to say, he purchased number one, the ticket that drew the car, and bought the ticket after being bantofed by one of the Legion members to purchase a ticket and get a Ford. He had only one ticket and as it only took one to draw the car, he happened to be the holder of Ticket No. 1, and drew the Ford. Ed. was not present at the drawing, and knew nothing of it until this morning, and we opine he is happy over the fact that he now has a Ford car.

HARDING'S ADDRESS TODAY TO DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE ON THE LIMITATION OF ARMAMENTS

Bids Delegates Welcome to Confer on Common Cause for Humanity

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The text of President Harding's address at the opening of conference of limitation of armament follows:

"It is a great and happy privilege to bid the delegates to this conference a cordial welcome to the capital of the United States of America. It is not only a satisfaction to greet you because we were lately participants in a common cause, in which we shared the sacrifices and sorrows and triumphs which brought our nations more closely together, but it is gratifying to address you as the spokesmen for nations whose convictions and attending actions have so much to do with the weal or woe of all mankind.

"It is not possible to overappraise the importance of such a conference. It is no unseemly boast, no disparagement of other nations which, though not represented, are held in high respect, to declare that the conclusions of this body will have a signal influence on all human progress—on the fortunes of the world.

"Here is a meeting, I can well believe, which is an earnest of the awakened conscience of twentieth century civilization. It is not a convention of remorse, nor a session of sorrow. It is not the conference of victors to define terms of settlement. Nor is it a council of nations seeking to remake the human mind. It is rather a coming together from all parts of the earth to apply the better attributes of mankind to minimize the faults in our international relations.

"Speaking as official sponsor for the invitation, I think I may say the call is not of the United States of America alone, it is rather the spoken words of a war weary world, struggling for restoration, hungering and thirsting for better relationship; of humanity crying for relief and craving assurance of lasting peace.

"It is easy to understand this world wide aspiration. The glory of triumph, the rejoicing in achievement, the love of liberty, the devotion to country, the pangs of sorrow, the burdens of debt, the desolation of ruin—all these are appraised alike in all lands. Here in the United States we are but freshly turned from the burial of an unknown American soldier, while a nation sorrowed while paying him tribute. Whether it was spoken or not, a hundred millions of our people were summing the incalculable cost, the unutterable sorrows, and there was the ever impelling question: how can humanity justify or God forgive? Human hate demands no such toll; ambition and greed must be denied it. If misunderstanding must take the blame, then let us banish it, and let understanding rule and make good will reign everywhere. All of us demand liberty and justice. There cannot be one without the other, and they must be held the unquestioned possession of all peoples. Inherent rights are of God, and the tragedies of the world originate in their attempted denial. The world today is infringing their enjoyment by arming to defend or deny, where simple sanity calls for their recognition through common understanding.

"Out of the cataclysm of the world war came new fellowships, new convictions, new aspirations. It is ours to make the most of them. A world staggering with debt needs its burden lifted. Humanity, which has been shocked by wanton destruction, would minimize the agencies of that destruction. Contemplating the measureless cost of war and the continuing burden of armament, all thoughtful peoples wish for real limitation of armament and would like war outlawed. In soberest reflection the world's hundreds of millions who pay in peace and die in war, wish their statements to turn the expenditures for destruction into means of construction, aimed at a higher state for those who live and follow after.

"It is not alone that the world cannot readjust itself and cast aside the excess burdens without relief from the leaders of men. War has grown progressively cruel and more destructive from the first recorded conflict to this present day, and the reverse order would more become out boasted civilization.

"Gentlemen of the conference, the United States welcomes you with unselfish hands. We harbor no fears, we have no sordid ends to serve; we suspect no enemy; we contemplate or apprehend no conquests. Content with what we have, we seek nothing which is another. We only wish to do with you that finer, nobler thing, which no nation can do alone.

"We wish to sit with you at the table of international understanding and good will. In good conscience we are eager to meet you frankly and invite an offer of co-operation. The world demands a sober contemplation of the existing order and the realization that there can be no cure without sacrifice, not by one of us, but by all of us.

"I do not mean surrendered rights or narrowed freedom, or denied aspirations, or ignored national necessities. Our republic would no more ask for these than it would give. No pride need be humbled, no nationality submerged, but I would have a mergence of minds, committing all of us to less preparation for war and more enjoyment of fortunate peace.

"The higher hopes come of the spirit of our coming together. It is but just to recognize varying needs and peculiar positions. Nothing can be accomplished in this regard of national apprehensions. Rather, we should act together to remove the causes of apprehensions. This is not to be done in intrigue. Greater assurance is found in the exchanges of simple honesty and directness among men resolved to accomplish as becomes leaders among nations when civilization itself has come to its crucial tests.

"It is not to be challenged that government falls when the excess of its costs robs the people of the way to happiness and the opportunity to achieve. If the finer sentiments were not urging, the cold, hard facts of excessive cost and the eloquence of economies would urge us to reduce our armaments. If the concept of a better order does not appeal, then let us ponder the burden and the blight of continued competition.

"It is not to be denied that the world has swung along throughout the ages without heeding this call from the kindlier hearts of men. But the same world never before was so tragically brought to realization of the utter futility of passion's sawy, when reason and conscience and fellowship point a nobler way.

"I can speak officially only for our United States. Our hundred millions frankly want less of armament and none of war. Wholly free from guile, sure in our own minds that we harbor no unworthy design, we accredit the world with the same good intent. So I welcome you, not alone in good will and high purpose, but with high faith.

"We are met for a service to mankind. In all simplicity, in all honesty and all honor, there may be written here the avowals of a world conscience, refined by the consuming fires of war, and made more sensitive by the anxious aftermath, I hope for that understanding which will emphasize the guarantees of peace, and for commitments to less burdens and better order which will tranquilize the

America's Concrete Proposal for Limitation of Armament

All Capital Ship Building Programs Should Be Abandoned

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—America's concrete proposals for limitation of naval armaments, Crux of Arms conference, was presented today by Secretary Hughes at very opening of the first session. Briefly it follows that all capital ship building programs either actual or projected should be abandoned. That further reduction should be made through scrapping of certain older ships. That in general regard should be had to existing naval strength of powers concerned; that capital ship tonnage should be used as measurements of strength for navies and proportionate allowance of auxiliary combatant craft preserved. For United States program would scrap all capital ships under construction, fifteen in number, and fifteen older battleships. Great Britain would stop construction on her four new ships of that type and scrap all her second and first line battleships up to the King George V class. Japan would abandon plans for two battleships and four battle cruisers not yet laid down and in addition would scrap three capital ships and four battle cruisers in process of construction and all ten of pre-readnaughts and battleships of second line. As replacement program America proposed no more ships be laid down for the next ten years and that maximum replacement tonnage figure be fixed providing eventually for half million tons for the United States, half million for Great Britain and 300,000 tons for Japan.

Fraught With Untold Possibilities the Con- ference Begins

CHOSEN DELEGATES REPRESENT EVERY NATION COMPRISING THE FIVE GREAT POWERS

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Fraught with untold possibilities, the armament conference assembled today. Gathered about the table were the chosen representatives of the five great world powers—the United States, Great Britain, Italy, France and Japan. Seated with them were representatives of the nations which will participate in the discussions of the Far Eastern and Pacific questions—China, Belgium, Netherlands and Portugal. In the background were the many technical advisers who accompanied each group—several hundred in all—representing the army and the navy as well as the fiscal and economic aspects.

In world importance, the gathering ranks with the Peace Conference of Versailles, the conferences for disarmament at the Hague, and going farther back the congress of Vienna which thought it was working to preserve the peace of Europe.

The work of the Washington Conference naturally divides into two principal phases: the limitation of armaments and the settlement of questions in the Far East and the Pacific which statesmen fear may have in them the makings of war. Which will be considered first, the conference alone can determine, but there seems to be little disagreement over a statement that the two questions are indissolubly linked, and that neither can be disposed of without relation to the others.

In the viewpoint of the American government, an agreement on the Pacific and Far Eastern questions will point the way to a solution of the armament question because with probable causes for war out of the way the need of heavy armaments will disappear.

Japan, however, leans to the feeling that the armament question should be first disposed of, and that some of the subjects contained in the program of discussion of Far Eastern and Pacific affairs should not come before the conference but rather should be disposed of in negotiations between Japan and the countries concerned. No one can forecast how that part of the program will be worked out. And upon how it is worked out depends much of what will come of the conference.

The American viewpoint, as it had been expressed by those with authority to speak for the government, is that the United States enters the conference asking absolutely nothing for itself and seeking only to relieve a tax-burdened world, now making a great economic waste in fear of war. The American government, it should be said, denies no nation its "place in the sun," or its opportunity for expansion; neither does it have any notion of asking any nation to dispense with the means by which it assures its reasonable safety.

It seeks only, it may be said by the same authority, to remove troubles, which although now little might in the future grow great, and by doing that make heavy preparations for war unnecessary. Having done that, if it can be accomplished, America hopes to point the way to a reduction of armaments which will be fair and just to all.

BETTER SPEECH WEEK OBSERVED AT OUR SCHOOLS

CLOSED YESTERDAY WITH READINGS, TALKS AND PLAYS.

This week was observed by Sanford as Better Speech Week. The schools took a very lively interest, also the Woman's Club, in this work. Many interesting talks have been delivered at high school during the week. Among these was a reading given by Mae Holly, on Thursday morning. The poem was very appropriate as the subject was "Words." Pattye Lyles made an interesting talk to the students on the origin of some of our words, such as, "fantasize, fad, holiday and a few others. This talk was followed by a speech on, "How to Convert the Family to Good English," by Edward Henderson. He mentioned the necessity of good English in society and business, and he suggested the reading of good books and the use of a dictionary as two main helps in the training of our people in the use of correct language.

Not only the students of Sanford high, but several interested visitors, were entertained Thursday afternoon by two delightful plays given near the close of the school day. A play, "The Magic Voice," was acted very nicely by several of the pupils who have done much to promote better English. Frederick Rines took one of the leading parts as the Professor of Good English. Anna Dubose, as Efficiency, and Edward Henderson took equally important parts in trying to help the Professor to carry out his dream of Good English in all of America. Florence Henry, as Poor Speech, took the lead against the three, mentioned above, and tried to ruin all of their hopes and plans. Others that helped to make this play a success for us all, were as follows: William Flitts and Mae Holly, "Little Sam and Young Columbia."

Byron Stevens, "A Foreigner." Gayle McAlexander, "A Soldier." Harold Christensen, "A Sailor." George Mobley, Anna Kanner, Tilly Benjamin, Olive Newman and Florence Mero represented the "Vowels," while Joe Caldwell, John Schirard and J. W. Barrett as the "Imps I. N. G." Margaret Zachery represented, "Slovenly Language."

Patty Lyles, as "Mispronunciation." Arthur Moore, "Inarticulation." William Mallem, "Vulgar Slang." This play was followed by one written by a member of the Senior Class, Zillah Welsh. The play was called "The Perfect Kingdom of Good Speech." This was written and carried out in a most charming manner. The play told of a visit by the fairies from the Kingdom of Perfect Speech to the Mortal World, where four Mortals, His Excellency, Jumbler, Slang and Omission, tried to corrupt their language and just as they were in danger the Queen Rose, Marie Stimpser, rescued them and took them back to their fairy land. The ones helping to carry out this delightful play were:

"Fairy Guard," Elizabeth Flowers. "First Fairy," Bernice Austin. "Second Fairy," Lucille Pope. "Third Fairy," Mary Stanley. "Fourth Fairy," Demarius Musson.

After the plays, prizes were awarded to the winners of the three contests that took place in the high school this week. The winners each received two dollars ($2.00) awarded by the Welfare Department of the Woman's Club: Zillah Welsh, for

MAYOR MARTIN HERE.

Mayor John Martin, of Jacksonville, was the guest of the city today, and made a fine address to the Legion boys and the citizens generally just after "chow time" today. Mayor Martin is a prospective candidate for governor, and has many friends over the State, and Sanford is especially fond of this upstanding young Floridian. He has been here several times, and each visit strengthens his existing friendships and makes him many new friends. He is one of the coming men of Florida, and Sanford is proud to have the chance of entertaining him today. He had to leave in the afternoon train on account of press of business in Jacksonville but promises to return at some time in the future.

AVIATOR JOHNSON HERE

Aviator Johnson is here today from Lakeland where he is making headquarters and has been doing all kinds of stunts over the city this morning and afternoon. He will also take up passengers and many of those here will take advantage of the occasion and take a flyer with Johnson. He was here several years ago and has many friends here who are always glad to see this daredevil of the air. The airplanes are only one of the many stunts being pulled off this afternoon and add greatly to the big day.

STORES CLOSED TODAY

Most of the stores closed today, some of them keeping open a few hours this morning to allow the people to buy the necessities of life. The Daily Herald office had to run full time as usual and the editor was forced to work ten hours to keep up with the many events. The city will be closed tonight and the business men will take in the sights. Tomorrow promises to be a busy Saturday. Watch the Daily Herald for the big events and the special prices.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL

Folks are here from all over the State.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Aulin, of Oviedo, are here today, enjoying the sights.

Messrs. Hart and Holder, of Geneva, were among the Confederate veterans attending the exercises here today.

Mayor John Martin, of Jacksonville, was among the prominent visitors to the city today.

It was rumored that an Essex car was stolen on the lake front last night during the festivities.

"DUDS" FOR ARMISTICE DAY

The old veterans of other wars were not forgotten.

Card on the county jail says, "Welcome home to our boys." It no doubt means well enough but it sounds funny, doesn't it?

General Pershing looked so much younger and better today than when we saw him last and he has shaved off his little mustache.

Weather man was freaking and had us all scared to death at times this morning but finally hit his stride and "got right."

The parade was a thousand miles long it seemed to the man who was trying to get all the cars and if we leave out any of them charge it up to the credit side of the ledger.

W. Pearman, Sanford Battery and many other floats were all good.

The "Hunter's" car in which Tom Williams and Billy Parker represented the hunting season with their dogs and guns and game in a camp scene and the Bel-Jar Coffee Co., with a huge coffee pot all attracted attention and favorable comment.

The Zachary-Tyler Crate Co., had a realistic float, the car being filled with crates which many farmerette girls were making crates and filling them, the girls being Gladys Wilson, May Holly, Margaret Zachary, Lillian Shinholser and Arthur Zachary, Jr., and Kinchen Powers.

A pathetic note was added to the parade by the old veterans of the G. A. R. and the Confederate Veterans.

The Confederate Veterans organized the Jos. Finnegan Post here just after the war and today only three of them were left to ride in the parade with them were Messrs. Hart and Holder, of Geneva, and they were under the care of the N. DeV. Howard Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy. They had a smoker after the parade at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George DeCottas and the chapter was their hostess for dinner at the Welaka Cafe and attended to their wants during the day and making their stay a most pleasant one.

There were many and varied floats and cars and autos and everything. The parade was the longest and the best that has ever been carried out in Sanford in later years. So many cars came in at the last minute that they could not be classified properly and some of them may have escaped the eye of the reporter. It was some job to get them all in the limited time allowed for the parade for when the head of it was marching down First street the last of it was just starting over a mile away.

The prizes had not been awarded at the time of going to press and if any of the cars have been left out let this paper know and we will pick them up with the winners in tomorrow's issue.

After the parade had disbanded in front of the court house Mayor Stevens, upon behalf of the city, presented the fine lot on the lake front to Post Commander I. F. Roper of the Campbell-Lossing Post of the American Legion. This lot is on the corner of the lake front near the old fibre factory and at the foot of Myrtle avenue. It will be in the heart of the city ere long and will be graced by a fine Legion building as soon as possible.

Mayor John Martin, of Jacksonville made the address of the day to a large crowd immediately after dinner that was well received and as we go to press the carnival is on full blast and the athletic stunts and football and all the canoe races and other stunts are being pulled off. All the details of these events will be given in tomorrow's issue.

The colored people had some very creditable cars and floats in the rear of the procession. They represented the schools, churches and societies and the boys who had taken part in the world war.

BRIDGE TEA

Mrs. Ben Gaswell entertained at a delightful bridge tea Thursday afternoon at her home, 901 Magnolia avenue, in compliment to Miss Norma Herndon, a bride-elect of December and Miss Anna Lou Hoff, of Atlanta, her house guest.

The house was artistically decorated with wild flowers and autumn leaves. The rooms where progressive auction bridge was played were made festive by tall wicker baskets holding yellow cosmos. The card tables were marked by miniature airplanes bearing the numbers and each table held a large yellow rose filled with candies. The tallies were unique as they had the airplane and an aviatrix on them.

After several interesting games were played, high score prize, an Oriental incense burner, was awarded to Miss Thelma Frazer. Misses Herndon and Huff were given silk lingerie as honor guest prizes.

The beautiful color motif of yellow and white was carried through. The dainty refreshments consisted of Waldorf salad served in a yellow rose bud, cream cheese sandwiches, heart shaped, saltines, olives, stuffed dates and coffee.

Among those enjoying this delightful occasion were: Misses Norma Herndon, Miss Anna Lou Huff, Miss Marjorie Clay, Miss Thelma Frazer, Miss Esther Miller, Miss Sara Wright, Miss Adelaide Higgins, Miss Marie Toague, Miss Daphne Wimblish, Miss Florence Henry, Mrs. B. Mr. and Mrs. David Speer leave this evening for Jacksonville where they will spend several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lyman, of Winter Haven, were here yesterday to take in the big doings. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Marks, of Winter Haven, and their many friends were glad to see them again. Howard Lyman, of Altamonte, was with the party, and all of them took in the dance last night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Dinkle, of Longwood, are in the city today.

HAD FINE FLOAT IN PARADE.

The Sanford Paint & Wall Paper Co., is one of the most enterprising firms in the city, and always right up to the minute, they found it extremely gratifying to have their business represented in the parade yesterday with a fine float representing their growing business in the paint and wall paper line. Among the new wrinkles put on by this firm, is the framing of pictures, one of their specialties, and a visit to their store will convince you that they are right up to the minute in every line they handle.

MANAGER RYAN HELPED US.

The editor of the Herald threw down all chances to march in the parade yesterday, to ride in a car or to have a car in the parade for duty to the paper came first and we had no one to take the news of the big doings first hand and it was up to us. Had not been for Manager C. J. Ryan with his trusty Ford we would never have covered the ground we did in such a short time and by heading the parade on several side streets and parking at convenient spots to check it up we managed to give a fairly accurate account of the parade. The Herald would have liked to take the day off and enjoyed the festivities and especially would the editor have enjoyed it as well as all the ex-service men in the office but a daily paper is a daily paper and our subscribers expect it every afternoon and they shall have it even if we have to break a leg to get it.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS WERE THERE.

The Spanish war veterans were there with the goods yesterday, and had two cars in the parade, making a fine showing. The writer mentioned this fact but somehow or other the item was missed from the general description of the parade, and as we have no wish to miss any of those participating, this special mention is made because all of us know what the Spanish war meant and know that many of those boys went through as much "hell and brimstone" in a short space of time as the veterans of any other war, and they volunteered by so many millions that President McKinley was obliged to call off enlistments because they could not be placed. Sanford boasts of quite a number of Spanish war veterans, and they should form a good live post and keep their memories alive—this is the only way to perpetuate their memory and their deeds.

Some people hope to inherit money, and some hope that kind Fortune will bring them an opportunity to sue somebody for damages.

The Life of Lena Clarke

From Her Own Pen

How credulity, a big heart and over-ambition outweighed the better senses of her proportion and brought her to grief and disaster at the most important stage of a hard earned career.

The life of the West Palm Beach Postmistress spent in Vermont, her childhood days; then that tranquil period which intervened before this girl blossomed into full womanhood; her one and only tragic love affair; her acquaintance with Joseph Elwell, the New York millionaire who was murdered in a New York hotel; the perplexing circumstances which preceded the Clarke murder tragedy; these and many more interesting incidents are told in a graphically described and interesting story written by Lena Clarke for the Orlando Evening Reporter-Star. This is truly a wonderful story, and so much has been said in the public press about Miss Clarke you will want to hear what she has to say about herself.

This life story of Lena Clarke will begin Monday, November 14th in the Evening Reporter-Star and will appear in serial form. The paper will be mailed to you during the running of this story for 25c.

THE CLARKE-MILTIMORE MURDER TRIAL.

will be covered by the Evening Reporter-Star in a most thorough manner. Every word spoken in the court room relative to the case will be taken down by a corps of expert stenographers. This is one of the most tragic cases on record in the annals of Florida. The evening Reporter-Star will be mailed to you during the trial for 25c or you may secure a subscription containing the life story of Lena Clarke and the trial for 50c.

Only 42 more days till Christmas—Take the Herald.

Yes, it was some big day—the biggest in the State of Florida.

It only goes to show that a live organization like the American Legion can do anything.

Now for that building that will give the boys a nice home of their own. They deserve it, and should have it.

Armistice Day has supplanted all other holidays in the hearts of the boys and the people generally. It has a distinct feeling all its own, and something that grips the heart strings as nothing else.

THE LIBRARY LOCATION.

The location of the Sanford library is causing much discussion at present as it seems to be the intention of those in charge of affairs, to place it at the northwest corner of the park, and a petition has already been circulated by the property owners facing the park, and many who do not reside near the park, protesting against placing a building on any of the corners of the park.

We believe that if the library building is to be placed in the park that it should be placed in the center, and not on any of the sides. To place it on the sides or corners, would certainly spoil the effect of the open park and would, in time, mean placing other public buildings on the corners that would eventually ruin the location for a park. In the very center of the park would not be conflicting with the property rights of the citizens, and would spoil the contour of the park as a park, and would conform with all landscape in every particular. We do not believe that there would be any objection to placing the library in the very center of the park where the bandstand now stands. It would be much better if the library building could be erected at some other point, but this seems impossible, as no property owner feels like donating space for the library, and the association could not afford to purchase high priced land and build the building. If the site could be donated, as the park site would be, the sum now on hand could all be utilized in building the first unit of a library that would be commensurate with the growing and progressive city of Sanford, and in time, this building could be added to until it would be one of the finest buildings in the city, and one that would give the people the greatest service and the greatest enjoyment and the greatest education. No city can ever expect to be great in arts and sciences and education that is denied the right and privileges of a free library. No city can talk about educating the young unless the young have access to a real library and it is one of those prime necessities that must be figured among the expenses and in the budget of a city that expects to give its people all that is rightfully their own. It behooves all of us then to get together on a good plan to build a library and there is no time like the present to start this great movement.

Only, let us not fall out about the HEINZ FIG PUDDING. Heat a can of Heinz Fig Pudding in boiling water for 30 minutes. The following makes a good sauce to serve with the pudding: 1 tablespoon butter; 1 scant tablespoon flour; 3 tablespoons sugar; Cinnamon to taste. When blended add slowly 1-2 cup milk and 1 cup of water. Cook until smooth. When cool pour into beaten egg.

Deane Turner, Phones 497-494, WELAKA BLOCK

site when it can be settled satisfactorily by adhering to the wishes of the people and building the library where it will be easily accessible and yet detract in no way from our beautiful Central Park.

CAPITAL REMOVAL AGAIN.

Like Banquo's ghost, the capital removal question "will not down," and bores up regularly in Florida in some spot or other. Palatka is the most persistent and consistent aspirant for capitol honors and we will keep on reading Goodo Guerry's stuff about removal until some time we will begin to think that capitol removal is the real thing, and especially as far as Palatka is concerned. The Palatka News even rings in the Governor's visit on the removal question as follows:

The coming of Governor Cary A. Hardee to Palatka for the Armistice Day celebration has inspired many with new thought of Palatka as the Capitol of our State.

Many arguments have been advanced why Palatka in the logical location for the Capitol, and a remarkable measure of sound logic has been poured into most every community of any size in all Florida. There are bound to be differences of opinion. Local communities are constrained to advance preferences from a selfish viewpoint, with which no particular fault can be found. As we hark back to all the logic advanced in favor of the location of the Capitol here we are unable to find one selfish motive in urging Palatka as the location of the Capitol, and unquestionably the great strength of the support of the movement has come through fair dealing.

Palatka business men, to a man, recognizing the advantages that would accrue to them through long established trade, and being on the ground ahead of the great influx that will be incident to the removal of the Capitol, have lined up energetically to make it possible.

TUESDAY'S ELECTION SHOW REGAINED DEMOCRATIC STRENGTH.

Returns from Tuesday's elections show the Democratic party has come back. Or maybe it would be better to say that it has never been away. The overwhelming majority by which President Harding was elected last year was due to the fact that the Democratic party refused to stray off after leaders who were trying to rewrite its principles.

We do not mean to say the Democrats have won in the majority of the States. Returns are not abundant enough to show whether they did or did not. But the figures so far as given look like old times—the times when it was nip and tuck between the Democrats and Republicans when struggling for the control of the country.

Kentucky has come back into the Democratic fold. It cast its electoral vote last year for the Democratic ticket, but in state matters the Republicans were in control. Now they have lost control.

The Republicans hoped to carry Virginia, and made a desperate effort to do so. About the only immortal thing we know is the Republicans hope to carry the South, and when that party does win a Southern State now and then because of a departure from the principles of the Democratic party and a fight on new issues not connected with its historic principles, the Republicans are happy and doubly hopeful. When the issue settles down to the old lines, the straying Southern State comes back. The South will never break up as long as the Republicans stick to high protection.

In New York city the Democratic candidate won by a larger percentage of the vote than President Harding received throughout the nation last year. He received rather less than a two-thirds plurality, while Mayor Hylan received rather more. Nearly all the papers of New York were fighting the Mayor, but it is doubtful whether this fact cost him half a dozen votes. The people have more sense than leaders generally give them credit for, and they can tell honesty from dishonesty. They know that the opposition to Tammany in that city were not Republicans in pharisaical. The Republicans are in the minority in New York city, and the pharisees there are not generally successful on election day.

A great deal is said against Tammany—so much that a number of people outside of the big city are deceived by what they see in print, but the people of New York know that, however far short of perfection Tammany may be, it is vastly better than the mixed element that opposes it in the name of better government. The so-called reformers have won a few times, and never failed to give the big city a worse government than it had when Tammany was in charge. The two parties are facing each other again on old lines, and on these lines the Democratic party was nearly always the plurality party. Congressmen will be elected next year, and if the Democrats prove true to principle, it is very probable that they will capture the House and make inroads on the Republican majority in the Senate. Two years later they will stand a good chance of electing a President. It all depends on which party is the more foolish during the next three years.—Times-Union.

WHAT ARMISTICE DAY REALLY MEANS.

The real significance of Armistice Day seem to be lost on so many people who go in for a big time like the Fourth of July and Christmas and New Years and other holidays. While it is a holiday, it is something more sacred, and we quite agree with Quimby Melton, of the Jacksonville Metropolis, who has the following about it:

Somewhere in this land today a mother will steal away from the family circle and, like a little girl who takes her favorite doll to a familiar shadow to crumple it, will embrace a dear memory and rock it to and fro in the arms of affection.

Likely the scene will be before an old trunk, the vault of family treasures, which holds bundles of letters, written Somewhere in France, to "My Mother." There will be a picture of him near, maybe more, but certainly one of him in the uniform of which he was so proud.

All the emotions and the scenes of the past will come back, golden now in the light of reconciliation, beautifully sad, tenderly precious in a diamond-lined cradle of sorrow.

The day he enlisted will come back. How buoyant he was in his youthful patriotism! She'll hear his feet touch the front steps again—feet fired with the elasticity of youthful enthusiasm—and the mother, sitting in the present dreaming of yesterday, will hear again the announcement, "Mother, I've enlisted!" How her heart leaped up, how it was saddened! Today it will leap up, today it will be sad; and tears of the same thought that streamed down her cheeks then, these tears will glisten in the eyes of the mother sitting before the trunk of treasures today, living once more in the fantasmagorical surges of hope and pride.

Then the days he was in training camp will flare up in recollection and she'll read the history of his experiences there in the tear stained letters held in her lap. She will smile over his description of the duties of a K. P., wonder if he won't "catch his death of cold" sleeping in his underwear in "those cold barracks," laugh, at least within her heart, over his disgust at guarding mules at night; and a thousand other emotions will come flooding to remind her of the "days that are no more."

Then she'll find the cablegram, "Arrived safely. Love." She will follow him in France again. Red-checked children in wooden shoes; long, gray, winding roads; old chateaux and dilapidated barns; the mademoiselles, the soldiers of many nations, friendly faces in dingy doors—the front ahead, these, through her eyes of his eyes, will pass before that mother sitting under the eaves of her own heart.

The front! He has been there and back—and safely. Hedged by censorship he could not tell everything—but what mother is there who cannot read between the lines! The front again. Safely back. The front. On the working loom of time hours are woven into days, days into weeks, the candle of hope burning high overhead, shaded by the darkest fears. At last the official word. Sleep. The mother sits before the trunk and dreams. Ex-service men parade. The statesmen gather in Washington to make wars less probable. On a French hillside the leaves rustle over a small mound. This is Armistice Day. FLORIDA HAS FIRST PLACE— In diversity of food products. In value per acre of farm products. In untilled area that is tillable. In number of growing days. In phosphate mining. In naval stores production. In Fuller's earth output. In fishing industries. In area of standing timber. In muck soils. In length of coast line. In variety of trees. In variety of fish. In variety of birds. In variety of hay crops. In winter-grown truck products. In coconuts. In camphor. In sisal. FLORIDA IS— The orchardist's lotus-land. The trucker's opportunity. The farmer's three chances a year. The stockman's living world. The fisherman's Galilee. The dairyman's flowing bowl. The beekeeper's land of milk and honey. The lumberman's last stand. The tourist's land of promise. The sportsman's rendezvous. The yachtsman's paradise. The film maker's dream. The home-seeker's goal. The manufacturer's future. The citizen's cornucopia. —St. Augustine Record. TO EX-SERVICE MEN. The U. S. Veterans, Bureau wishes to announce that all ex-service men who desire to reinstate their insurance can do so upon the payment of two monthly premiums before January 1, 1922, with a full and complete medical examination. By authority contained in Act of Congress, approved August 9, 1921, all medical examiners of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau on duty in the cities throughout this district, are authorized to make physical examinations for ex-service men who wish to reinstate their insurance without expense to the applicant. Ex-service men are urged to take advantage of the opportunity to reinstate their insurance, especially, since the expense involved in making the physical examination has not been eliminated.
