Join the Zoo Crew, become a docent

The Central Florida Zoological Park is looking for animal-loving individuals interested in wild and exciting volunteer opportunities.

Teaching volunteers, referred to as Docents, assist the zoo's Education Department by teaching thousands of zoo visitors about the wonders of wildlife. Docents share their knowledge about animals and the environment to both children and adults.

To educate new volunteers, the zoo is hosting its Docent Training Program beginning Wednesday, Feb. 21 and Saturday, Feb. 24 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Two classes run concurrently, one on Wednesdays and one on Saturdays. Applications are to be submitted by Feb. 7 and orientation will be held on Feb. 13. This seven-week course is open to anyone 18 years of age and older. Tuition for the class is $35 which includes class materials and a zoo T-shirt.

Upon graduation from the Docent Training Program, Docents are qualified to conduct zoo tours and provide exhibit interpretation as well as many other types of educational adventures. New Docents may also participate in the animal handling class and upon completion provide animal encounters and outreach programs. The zoo is especially looking for volunteers to present programs to school children on the weekdays.

For more information on the Docent Training Program and other volunteer opportunities at the zoo, phone 407-323-4450, ext. 120, or visit the zoo at 3755 Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

County antes up $100,000 to join arts board

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Facing potential budget hits from the State Legislature, Seminole County Commissioners took the payment plan route to a seat on the United Arts of Central Florida's (UACF) Board of Trustees Tuesday.

By a 4-1 vote commissioners approved funding in the amount of $100,000 to the agency based on a discretionary payment timetable by the county and based on a full years' membership running from February 1 of this year until February 2002. Commissioner Grant Maloy was the dissenting vote.

The decision came after lengthy debate and followed an initial November 2000 appeal by UACF's chairman Harvey Massey, who labeled Seminole County's participation of arts and cultural programs critical.

Following the November request the board directed County Manager Kevin Grace to review the proposal and make recommendations. From a fiscal standpoint Grace recommended against the expenditure.

"It's something we should look at in the future," Grace told the board. "We are outside of the budget process now and the request addresses just a single item among many. We're going in with shortfalls and facing potential funding hits from the State Legislature. Our discretionary resources may be in short supply."

Grace also cited the recent quarter-million impact on the County's contingency

Sanford may offer incentives to maintain downtown buildings

By Dan Ping
Editor

SANFORD — In an effort to preserve historic buildings, the Sanford City Commission is considering a comprehensive program that would encourage downtown property owners to maintain their buildings.

The program would offer incentives through tax credits, grants, loans, exemption of a portion of city property taxes and waiving specific permitting fees and building codes. There could also be disincentives in the program including strict code enforcement, fines and liens placed on property where the city steps in to make repairs on buildings the owner has allowed to deteriorate.

"This comes as a result of the Paulucci building falling down," said City Manager Tony VanDerworp. "I've asked staff to work on a building maintenance incentive program to see if we can prevent this in the future."

While receptive to the idea, commissioners questioned whether the program could be abused.

"How are the taxpayers going to feel if we start fixing up Paulucci's buildings for him?" asked Commissioner Whitey Eckstein.

Mayor Larry Dale agreed, noting that problems could arise under a disincentive program where the city would do

Central Floridians turn out for 24th annual Scottish celebration

By Michelle Jeria

CASSELBERRY — Sounds of bagpipes and drums filled the air Saturday at the Seminole Greyhound Park during the 24th annual Central Florida Scottish Highland Games and Festival.

Hundreds of spectators, dancers and athletes gathered to celebrate everything Scottish during the event sponsored by the Scottish American Society of Central Florida.

Various Scottish clans, including the honored clan of Ross, were on hand to tell the history of their ancestors. Even Mother Nature got into the spirit of things, offering festival goers the ambiance of a Scottish moor. Most people didn't seem to mind the cold, drizzly weather, though conditions were not conducive to some of the events.

"The wind did create some havoc," Games Athletic Coordinator Carlton Cook said.

"When you take a 16-pound bag and throw it 23 feet into the air, you are going to have some problems."

The 16-pound bag was part of the Sheaf Toss, which is a game where a burlap sack filled with hay is tossed with a three-pronged pitchfork over a suspended bar.

It was one of six events, including the Caber Toss, Stone Toss, Weight Throws, Hammer Throw and Clachneart, that was included in the Highland Games.

It's take two for Lake Mary movie theater

By Michelle Jeria
Managing Editor

LAKE MARY — Movie fans once again can head to Lake Emma Plaza to see Hollywood's latest offerings.

Lake Mary 8 Theaters reopened Friday under the new ownership of SunStar Theatres. Even with very little advertising, loyal patrons are already heading back to their favorite movie venue.

"Everybody is excited to see us open again," Lake Mary 8 Theaters Manager Linda Germaey said. "While we were cleaning up, people recognized me and said how nice it was to have us back."

It's not surprising people recognized Germaey. Before General Cinemas announced in September it was closing Lake Mary 8 — along with 10 other movie complexes — the manager had worked at the local theater for more than seven years.

Saturday night chase leads to carjacking arrest

By Nick Pfeiffauf
Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Sanford man is being held in the Seminole County Jail following a car chase Saturday night.

Daryl Stephon Walker, 35, of Sanford was captured after the chase and is being held in connection with a carjacking earlier this month. Police recovered a gun they believe may have been used during the carjacking.

Sanford police were notified Saturday that a suspicious person was seen at Seminole Towne Center Mall. Police located the man in a 1998 Cadillac, and when they checked the license number, they determined it was involved in a carjacking at Massey Cadillac in Seminole County on Jan. 9.

At that time, a salesman was left on the side of the road after a man, whom he thought was a prospective customer, turned out to be a carjacker. The salesman was reportedly forced out of the

Dale: Sanford's trash and litter is an 'embarrassment'

By Dan Ping
Editor

SANFORD — Four years ago Larry Dale declared war on the midges, those blind mosquitoes that infested Sanford's waterfront. The Sanford mayor wanted the city rid of the flying pests and embarked on a program to eliminate them from the city.

With that battle seemingly won, Dale has now aimed his sights on another Sanford pest — trash.

"It's an embarrassment to see the amount of trash and litter along our city streets," Dale said during Monday's City Commission work session.

Dale says the city needs to do a better job eliminating litter bugs, particularly those who dump trash in their own front yard.

"I don't know why we want to get tough on historic preservation and code enforcement if we allow people to have trash heaps in their front yard," Dale said.

For decades, the city has allowed residents four bulk-trash pick-ups per year. At a resident's request, city employees remove everything from yard waste and old furniture to broken water heaters and building materials.

As Dale sees it, there are two problems with the current system: There is no scheduled times for pick-ups, and certain residents abuse the privilege by requesting the city haul off trash that should be the responsibility of the home owner.

"Some residents keep piling trash in their front yards for weeks on end before they call the city to come pick it up," Dale said. "We're just encouraging people to use their front

SEMINOLE SUMMARY

A GLANCE AROUND OUR COUNTY

Observe National Compliment Day

Looking through my history book, today, Jan. 24, has had many outstanding events. First of all, it's the Chinese New Year, 4699, on the ancient Chinese calendar, the Year of the Snake.

John Sutter accidentally found gold in California on this date in 1848, which

..... was a big event in the nation's history. And of course, a big event in many lives — today is the anniversary of the introduction of canned beer in 1935 in Richmond, Va. There is another observance, however, that deserves mention. Today, January 24, 2001, has been declared National Compliment Day. According to the people who set this up many years ago, each of us is to compliment at least five people today. Not only are the compliments appreciated by their receivers, they lift the spirit of the giver. Compliments provide a quick and easy way to connect positively with those with whom you come in contact.

Debbly Hoffman, who conducts "Positive Results" seminars in Concord, N.H., says giving compliments forges bonds, dispels loneliness, and just plain feels good.

Knowing this, it is now our responsibility to determine — who do we compliment? It could be anyone; family members, former teachers, co-workers, community leaders, government leaders, people who lead or are involved in charitable work, someone who has done us a personal favor?

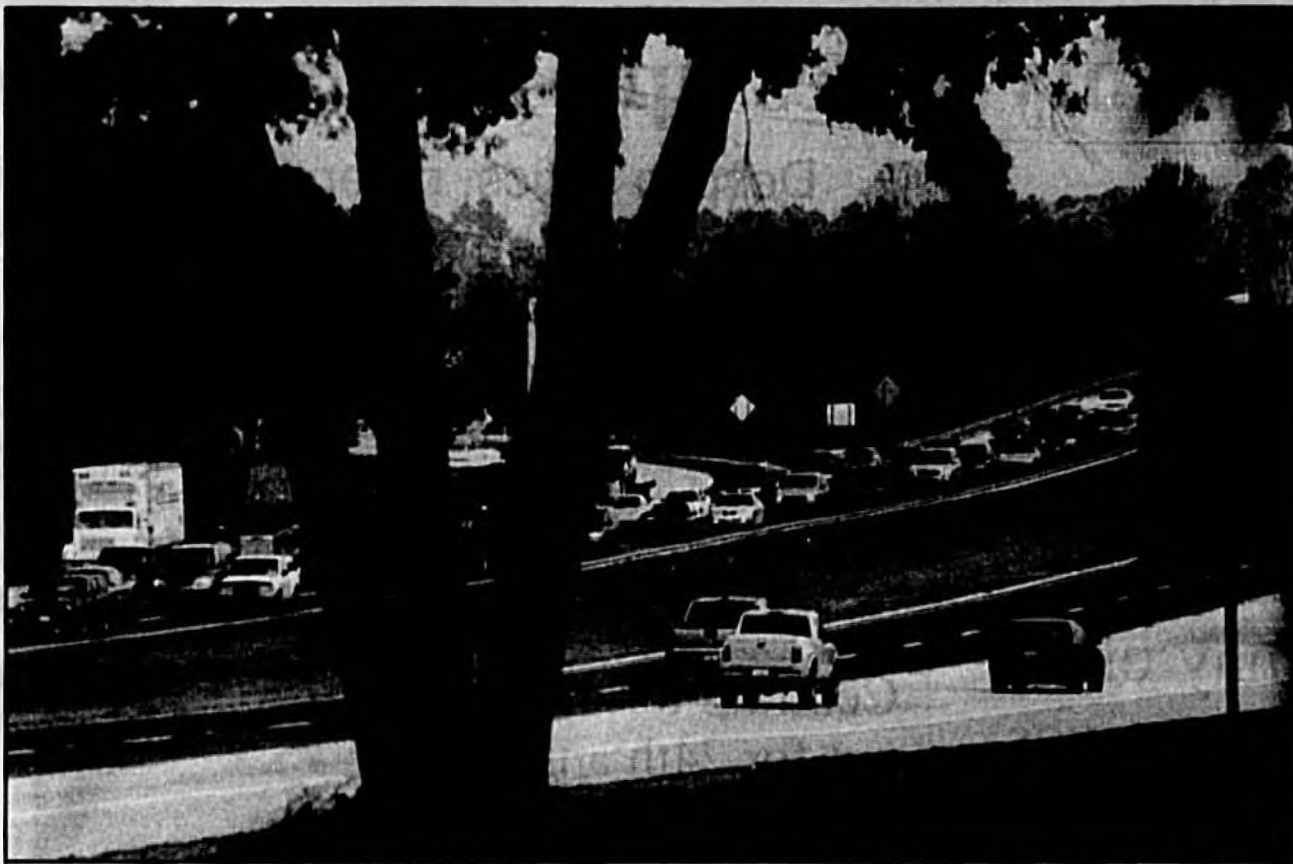

Ask someone. There will be those who rattle off a dozen names at the drop of a hat. Others may have difficulty in coming up with five people they believe deserve compliments.

I must be included with those who can give compliments to many people in almost all of the above listed categories. I'll do that personally.

But perhaps one name that pops out of my past would be Wallace R. Leslie. He was not only my high school principal, but my shop teacher who taught wood-working, newspaper printing, and several other subjects. He's in his 90s now. Last year I had the opportunity to talk with him for the first time in almost 50 years. I told him how much he had helped in the formation of my life, and thanked him for his efforts. He responded that very few of his former students ever thanked him. "The only thanks I ever get is when I learn of one of them who has made a success of themselves," he said. He was most appreciative that I bothered to give him a phone call.

And I will always think of his words of encouragement at my graduation. He remembered saying it. "Pfeifauf, keep your head together and you'll have it made in the shade — that is, if no one cuts down the trees."

Take me out to the ballgame

I've been noticing that a lot of sports stadiums are being torn down these days because they're too small or whatever, and that got me to thinking that before they tear down an old domed stadium, I'd like them to consider turning it into a seniors' home.

A lot of them have an attached hotel, which would be an ideal residence section. There's certainly plenty of seating. Plus you have built-in walker access to a whole bunch of snack bars and even more bathrooms. Pull up the football field, and lay down a nine-hole golf course. Set the thermostat on high, and you've got Florida without the fire ants. And plenty of parking for the relatives.

Sounds like a winner to me. You could call it the Wrinkle Dome. You could probably scalp tickets.

Nothing Succeeds Like Failure

While you're growing up and going to school, a great deal of emphasis is put on success. For you to have success at whatever you try is presented as the most pivotal aspect of your life.

I disagree. I don't think success is nearly as important as failure. I don't mean total failure where you lose everything and live in a cardboard box under a bridge. I'm talking about manageable failure. Being temporarily out of work or losing the car keys or buying something you saw on TV that's "not available in stores."

Now don't get me wrong. Success is good, but it doesn't happen to most of us. If it did, they'd change it.

So rather than spending your life feeling bad because you never achieved success, I think for us normal people it's better to spend our lives feeling confident that we can manage failure.

So take some harmless challenge and fail at it, and then get over it and get on with your life. Over time you'll get to where you're not afraid of failing and might even have a fluke success. At the very least, you'll be a happy failure and will certainly give your friends a lot of laughs.

Asleep At The Wheel

One of the biggest fears that faces men my age is losing our driving skills. We're desperately afraid of turning into the geezers we make fun of. So here are a few warning signs that indicate you're turning into an old guy driver:

- Do you think the new Cadillacs are too small?
- Do your hands always stay on the sides of the steering wheel, even when you're turning a corner?

— Does it take you more than four minutes to get out of your car?

— When you parallel park, do you just back up until you hear something?

— Does it scare you to get your car up to the speed limit?

— Have you passed another vehicle in the last three years?

— Do you use cruise control because your leg fell asleep?

— Did you try to buy a motor home with a prescription windshield?

— Does your bumper sticker mention Eisenhower?

— When the police pull you over, are they amazed to find out you're sober?

Let Me Call You Sweetheart

I tried out a new pub last night. It's always good to shop around for a better deal, especially if you're a steady customer. The waitress came over and called me "sweetheart." I thought that was a little odd. Considering we'd never seen each other before, I found that a little presumptuous. I might even have charged her with sexual harassment, but it was happy hour. Then she called the guy next to me "darling," and she didn't know him either. Well, now I'm upset. We only met 30 seconds ago, and she's already cheating on me.

Brain power How intelligent really is George W. Bush?

One of the less endearing qualities of our liberal friends is their tendency to believe that conservatives are stupid. They are perfectly sincere about this, and the belief is one of the principal foundations of their self-esteem. (In fact, many students of the subject date the beginning of the liberals' downfall to their painful realization, in the late 1950s, that William F. Buckley Jr. was at least as bright as they were.)

William Rusher

So naturally every Republican presidential candidate is swiftly dismissed by the liberals as little short of a cretin. It probably began with Warren Harding, whose alleged invention of the word "normalcy" was a guaranteed knee-slapper for decades (although the Oxford English Dictionary cites two uses of it in the 19th century).

It was Dwight Eisenhower, however, who first got the full treatment. Liberal publications regularly depicted Ike as an amiable dunce who enjoyed presiding over the United States but had little taste for governing it. Golf was allegedly more in his line, and the White House was renamed, during his two terms, "the Tomb of the Well-Known Soldier." It took research by the late liberal columnist Murray Kempton to establish that Ike was foxy beyond the wildest imaginings of his detractors.

Nixon escaped the full treatment because depicting him as stupid would have collided with another liberal project: to demonize him as a malignant Machiavelli. But poor Gerald Ford, perhaps the best athlete to occupy the Oval Office in modern times, was pictured as a witless, head-bumping stumblebum who couldn't "walk and chew gum at the same time."

Then came Ronald Reagan, and the liberal propaganda machine went into overdrive: He was nothing but an actor, mouthing lines written by others and totally at a loss without his three-by-five cue cards. The economic boom he launched and his central role in winning the Cold War have already thoroughly demolished this caricature, but anyone wanting further proof would do well to read "Reagan, In His Own Hand," edited by Martin and Annelise Anderson and Kiron Skinner and just published this month. A trove of 670 radio talks, written and revised by Reagan himself in the late 1970s, prove Reagan to have been a masterly communicator with ordinary Americans. His editing of his own first drafts would have done justice to any professional editor. (And I was once told by one of his White House speechwriters that his changes to their work invariably simplified and clarified it.)

The elder Bush, in turn, was a heaven-sent gift to the liberals, because he was not naturally highly articulate, being given to such locutions as "the vision thing." His son, our new president, seems to have inherited that particular problem, and on this basis the liberals have confidently constructed a demeaning caricature: Mr. Bush is just an aging preppie, wholly dependent on his father and his father's cronies and devoid of any ideas of his own.

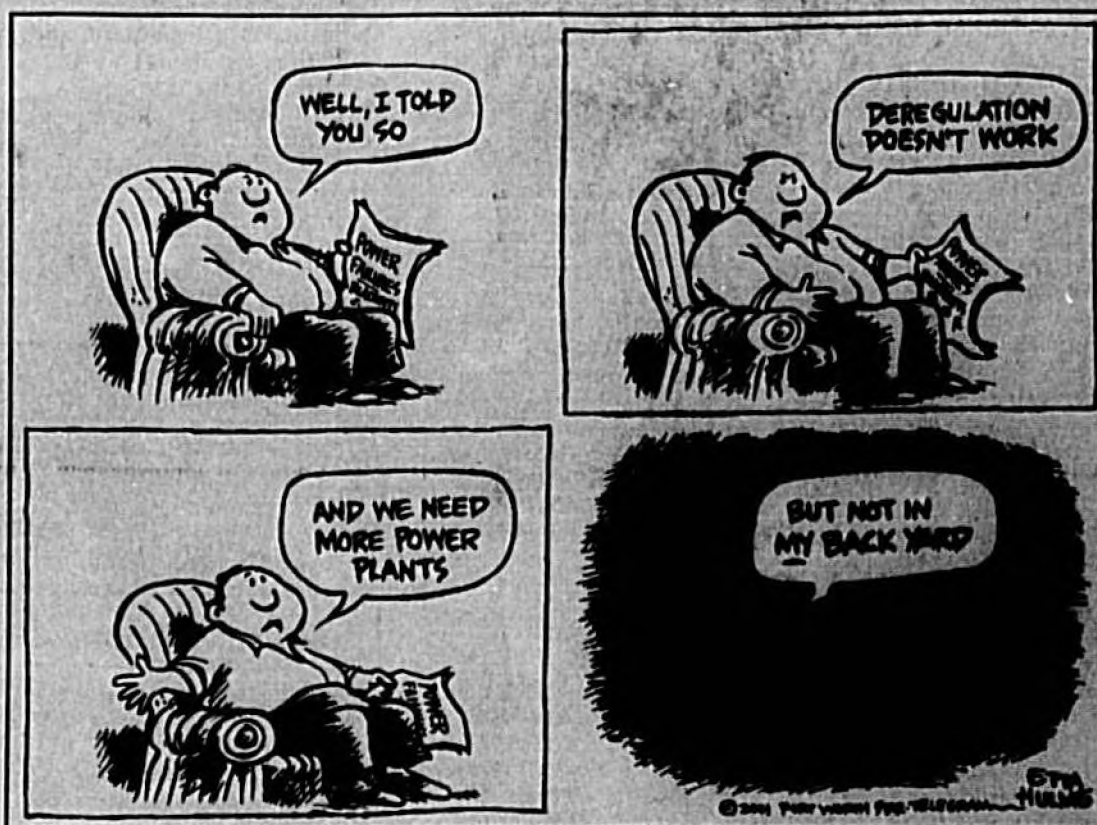

In fairness, the liberals believe their own propaganda. To them, being "smart" means having the mindset of an intellectual: being mesmerized by life's dualities. To such people, the perfect candidate was Adlai Stevenson (whom James Burnham once brilliantly dismissed in an article entitled, "Do We Want Hamlet for President?"). Conservatives, on the other hand, tend to look for other qualities in a president: integrity, determination, persistence, character.

But conservatives have no need whatever to apologize for George W. Bush's intelligence. The next time some liberal questions it in your presence, try this: "Well, he graduated from Yale and Harvard Business School. Where did you go to college?"

Conceivably one might, three decades ago, have gotten through Yale on the basis of his or her family connections (although I doubt it). But neither then nor now has anyone made it through Harvard Business School on the basis of anything but sheer ability. I attended Harvard Law School, and even had to live in a "Busy School" dorm for a term because of a shortage of space, and I have nothing but awe, tinged with fear, for the challenge presented by Harvard Business School. George W. Bush sailed through it, while Al Gore was dropping out of both divinity school and law school.

On top of everything else, after the lawyers' long monopoly of America's high offices, it will be fun to watch the performance of the first business school graduate ever to hold the presidency.

Jackson has lost right to claim moral high road

Oh, Jesse, how you have let us down.

Just when progressive activists need a charismatic spokesman for the cause of voting rights, civil rights crusader Jesse Jackson is caught up in a scandal that threatens his public career. After admitting an adulterous affair that produced a child who is now 20 months old, Jackson first announced a hiatus from public life but then reversed himself, saying after just a few days that he is ready to return to the spotlight.

Cynthia Tucker

That's a mistake. He currently lacks the moral authority with which to confront his critics or persuade the skeptics.

Not surprisingly, some of Jackson's closest friends and allies came to his defense, they urged him not to take a break from his various crusades — including highlighting the voting irregularities that tainted Florida's presidential election.

Those supporters include the Rev. Joseph Lowery, retired head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Atlanta-based civil rights organization that was founded by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. On Thursday, Lowery excused Jackson's behavior with a reference to "human frailty" and said he had "discouraged him from withdrawing from public life."

Lowery fails to understand the significance of Jackson's troubling moral lapse to those who most need to hear his message. Despite his admission of adultery after 38 years of marriage, Jackson's crusade to buttress voting rights would not be rejected by those Floridians who believe they were denied their right to vote; with them, he is preaching to the choir.

But Jackson has severely compromised his ability to persuade those skeptics who have not yet understood the significance of antiquated voting machines that reject ballots legally cast, of voter lists that omit the names of properly registered voters, and, worst of all, a U.S. Supreme Court that turns civil rights law on its head to deny the franchise to Democratic voters. Jackson's message, after all, depends on moral suasion — the ability to cast the principle of "one man, one vote" in terms of right vs. wrong, democracy vs. tyranny, good vs. evil.

The revelation that Jackson fathered a child with 39-year-old former University of Georgia college professor Karin Stanford — who was then a staffer in the Washington office of Jackson's Rainbow-PUSH Coalition — is troubling in other ways, as well. It highlights the hubris of power and the hypocrisy that governs the lives of so many public figures, from President Clinton to former House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

Let's remember that Jackson is an ordained Baptist minister, a man whose life should conform to high standards of morality, honesty and integrity. His obligation to those standards was of a higher order than that of Clinton or Gingrich.

Can a man of the cloth have a moral lapse? Certainly. But a sense of shame — a recognition of his sin, if you will — should have kicked in well before Jackson accepted the public spotlight as Clinton's "counselor."

Instead, Jackson was apparently conducting the affair at the very time that he was making a great public show of his new role as spiritual adviser to Clinton, then engulfed in his own adultery scandal. Indeed, Jackson's lack of shame was such that he appears to have proudly paraded the pregnant Stanford around the White House. That's outrageous.

With that conduct, Jackson has not only damaged his credibility as a civil rights activist but also compromised his standing as a role model for black youngsters. Well-known for his "I Am Somebody" speeches, in which he urges kids to claim a powerful sense of self-esteem, Jackson has now offered them a model as out-of-wedlock father. That's the last thing black kids need.

Last Wednesday, Jackson announced he would use an indefinite hiatus from public affairs to "revive my spirit and reconnect with my family." That should have required not days but rather years of prayer and penance away from the spotlight. He has much to atone for.

Creating a place for nightly grace at the dinner table

The forks in the grip of my husband and son were moving like missiles toward the pan-fried chicken when I asked them to wait.

"I'd like to say grace," I said.

"What?" my son asked in that lovely preteen tone, as if I had just proposed we grind our faces into the angel-hair pasta.

Saying grace has not been a practice around my dinner table, at least not since I was a child. My brothers and sisters and I recited a prayer every night that, as I say it aloud now, still has no punctuation: "Bless us O Lord for these thy gifts which we are about to receive from thy bounty through Christ our Lord amen."

The prayer came from my mother, who was made to recite it every day at lunchtime at the insistence of the nuns at St.

Nicholas of Tolentine Church in the Bronx. By the time it had been handed down to her six children, the meaning had been worn as thin as an old summer dress. We recited it mindlessly, as we did our ABCs and jump-rope sing-songs.

Yet saying grace drew a line across time and space. It marked the end of the day's hustle and the beginning of the evening's relative quiet. It was, in a subtle, ritualistic kind of way, like washing off the mud from Out There and wrapping ourselves in the clean familiarity of our table, our dishes, each other.

As I think back on it, saying grace also seemed to signal a delineation between antics permissible in other rooms and what was permissible in the dining room. We were quieter at the table, less grabby, slightly more dignified than we were elsewhere in the house. Saying grace was like the bell for Pavlov's dogs, triggering our minds toward less medieval behavior.

A friend had given me a book of poems and prayers that she used each night to say grace with her family. I wanted to create a similar ritual for my son, who now was appealing to his father to make me stop. I pretended not to hear and launched into grace.

This wasn't going over the way I had hoped. Later, a friend told me I should not have been so up-front with my family. She began saying grace without her children knowing that was what she was doing. She called it "Appreciations and Compliments." Every night before dinner, family members share a gesture or experience they appreciated or acknowledge someone they wanted to compliment.

It accomplishes much of what saying grace should, things that are easily mocked and therefore rarely discussed. Saying grace, it seems, allows us to pause long enough to think about the food on our plates, the roof over our heads, the people with us at the table.

I'm not sure why so many families, like mine, don't say grace regularly, or why so many families stopped. Maybe it is just too corny. Maybe we're reluctant to be too God-ish, for fear that people will mistake us for someone who keeps crystals under her pillow or is about to picket a women's clinic.

My too-cool son will roll his eyes, but I'll outlast him. I have a prayer from St. Thomas Aquinas picked out for tonight, chosen especially for him.

"Give us, O Lord, grateful hearts, which do not waste time complaining."

"IS THIS OK FOR DRESS DOWN FRIDAYS?"

From A to Z

Art Zielinski asks people what they think ...

People are using their personal computers and the Internet to replace the traditional way of accomplishing many day-to-day tasks. So it's not surprising to hear grocery stores want us to use the computer to do our grocery shopping. Today our question is, "Do you think using your computer to shop for groceries is a good idea — would you use it if it were available?"

I think it's a wonderful idea, especially for a person like my mother, she's 65. It's great for people who can't get out and do their own shopping.
Theresa Tate, Sanford

I personally wouldn't use it. I enjoy talking to people. I would rather do my own grocery shopping.
Patti Locke, Sanford

It wouldn't be for me. But possibly for people working a full-time job. If you are shopping for the lowest price, it wouldn't be very convenient.
Laura Sharp, Sanford

I don't think it's a good idea. I wouldn't do it just for the safety factor. Can you trust that person with your groceries? Would you want that person coming into your house?
Tom Freeman, Sanford

I think it's a great idea. I would use it if it were available. Grocery shopping isn't my favorite job.

yards as a trash heap. In the meantime, their neighbors have to look at it until the city comes and picks it up."

Dale said building materials, furniture and appliances should not be hauled away by city crews.

"Responsible home owners should not expect the city to haul off that kind of refuse," he said. "If I've got that kind of trash, I should be expected to take it to the dump myself."

Dale even suggested police officers should cite home owners who have trash heaps in their yards. But City Commissioner Whitley Eckstein believes that's an impractical solution.

"Larry, take it from me and my years of experience, our cops are not going to write tickets for this," Eckstein said. "They're worried about public safety issues. You're going to have to beef up code enforcement. That's where this belongs."

City staff has proposed scheduling pick-ups during March, June, September and November. Each resident would be entitled to a free pick-up during the week scheduled for their quadrant. Dale says that's too many and suggests the city provide only two.

"There is no other city in the state, in the country for that matter, that provides four free pick-ups a year," Dale said.

"Most only have one. I'm willing to propose we have two."

Not all residents agree. Doreen Freeman said during the regular City Commission meeting the city has an obligation to maintain the same level of service it has always provided.

"When you privatized the garbage pick-up, residents were told the services would remain the same," Freeman said. "Now you're wanting to cut it back. We've always had four pick-ups."

New agreement aims to prevent early morning wake-ups on trash day

By Dan Ping Editor

SANFORD — Residents living near commercial or industrial areas in Sanford have had a rude awakening in recent months — loud banging from trucks emptying trash dumpsters.

Under an agreement between the city and its waste collector, Florida Recycling Services Inc., commercial trash pick-up was supposed to be limited to the hours of 5 a.m. to 8 a.m. Complaints from residents, however, indicated FRS violated the contract by picking up trash as early as 3 a.m.

"When we contacted FRS about the problem and told them there would be fines, the initial response from certain employees was 'She's got to catch me first,'" said Jo Ann Legge, solid waste coordinator for the city. "So that's what I did. I got up at 2:30 a.m. and by 3:30 a.m. had caught both drivers."

Legge told City Commission during Monday's meeting the company was fined $2,750 for the violations.

"Quite honestly we had some drivers that were pretty blatantly insubordinate to Jo Ann and the city staff," said Sid Vihlen, a spokesman for the company.

Vihlen said drivers are now adhering to the pick-up schedule, but he asked City Commission if the contract could be amended to allow pick-ups to begin at 3 a.m. for commercial customers at Seminole Towne Center Mall, the airport, Northstar Industrial Park, and along U.S. Highway 17/92 from Flea World to 27th Street.

Vihlen said a 3 a.m. start time is better suited to those customers because parking lots are empty and traffic conditions allow front-load trucks to negotiate forward and backward movements necessary to empty trash containers. He also said front-load trucks are the largest and heaviest vehicles in the industry and are the most dangerous in early morning rush-hour traffic.

Legge said she was concerned about altering the contract because the city was unsure if there were enough pick-ups in nonresidential areas to occupy two hours worth of work.

"If they get finished at 4:30 a.m., are they going to sit there until 5 o'clock when they can begin picking up in other areas?" Legge asked.

Vihlen said the company would not begin picking up near residential areas until 5 a.m.

"If our people abuse it, then we will stop (the 3 a.m. pick-up) and go back to 5 a.m.," he said.

City Commission directed FRS and city staff to conduct a pilot program for the 3 a.m. start time and report back on the results.

Commissioners took no action on the issue during the work session but directed staff to bring back a plan and schedule for two pick-ups per year to be discussed at a later meeting.

Central Florida. He participated in all six Highland events.

"At 54, it's something you can do on a regular basis without killing yourself — except during competition," Essex said. "I plan on doing this until I can't do it anymore."

Andy Campbell of Chulouta wore his family's tartan for the first time during Saturday's event.

"I've wanted to do this for four years," Campbell said. "It's part of our family heritage."

For those who weren't interested in the heavy athletics of the games, there was plenty of Highland dancing to watch. Girls and boys participated in the various dance events, including the Highland Fling, Sword Dance, Seann Truibhas and the Scottish Lilt.

Grace Couchman of Durham, N.C., brought several dancers to the event, including 8-year-old Helen Oddone.

"I like dancing because I like going to the competitions,"

Oddone said. "I also like wearing the outfits."

fund for legal fees defending the Supervisor of Elections office in a law suit brought by Harry Jacobs as another example of unforeseen County expenses.

Commission Grant Maloy sided with Grace's recommendation prior to a compromise motion by fellow board member Carlton Henley.

"The County Manager speaks with a prudent voice," said Maloy. "We've been stretched with other needs in our budget."

Henley said he initially was against the funding measure but found it more palatable if the County were allowed to be full trustees, could pay over time, and make only a one year commitment.

"There are people involved in arts in Seminole County who are against this," said Henley. "They feel the money should directly benefit the residents of Seminole County."

Commission Randy Morris said the County could protect its interest and bring an equal voice to the table about the expenditure of funds if it were a full trustee. Commission Dick Van Der Weide sided with the funding based on a one-year trial period.

"A one year commitment gives us a release valve," he said.

Massy assured the board that UACF would accept any payment schedule the commission might consider.

"We could certainly work out a payment plan. It could be monthly, or quarterly, that's purely a business decision," Massy said.

When police discovered the stolen Cadillac at approximately 8 p.m. Saturday, they gave chase. The vehicle went from the mall down Rinehart Road to Lake Mary Boulevard, then west to Interstate-4, east to SR-46A, and back to Rinehart Road.

At that point, a Seminole County Sheriff's Deputy used a precision immobilization technique (PIT) to stop the vehicle and apprehend Walker. During the execution of a PIT, an officer uses the front end of a patrol car to bump one of the rear corners of the fleeing car, causing the driver to lose control of the vehicle.

During the pursuit, a sheriff's vehicle, Sanford patrol car and a citizen's car were damaged when they were struck by the fleeing Cadillac.

Walker now faces charges of aggravated battery on a police officer, aggravated battery with a motor vehicle, aggravated fleeing, carrying a concealed weapon, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, and carjacking.

Incentives

the work. He said well-financed owners could essentially have their buildings repaired at the expense of taxpayers.

"You can place a lien on the property, but how are you going to collect it if the owner never sells?" Dale asked. "You've got to be careful when you talk about the city going in and doing the work, especially with some owners who have enough money and the personality to fight it tooth and nail. It could end up costing the city hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Scott Singeise, chairman of the Historic Preservation Board, said the city should create an aggressive plan to maintain historic buildings. Such a plan would include disincentives, but Singeise admitted, "You can't enforce preservation." Instead, Singeise said the focus should be on incentives promoting preservation.

"These people are millionaires because they know how to use money," Singeise said.

Most likely the money for those incentives would come from Community Redevelopment Agency (CRA) funds generated from downtown businesses. Eckstein in particular stressed the need for not dipping into the city's general fund to pay for incentives.

"It's important that we keep our historic buildings downtown, but there are other parts of the city, the 17/92 corridor for example, that would like money to improve their areas," Eckstein said.

"I tend to agree with Whitey," said Commissioner Brady Lessard. "That's what the CRA money is there for."

Among the recommendations city staff made to the commissioners are:

- Expedite the approval of permits for historic buildings, as well as the process to cite owners whose buildings have code violations.

- Prepare an ordinance to establish local tax incentives under Florida Statute 196, Tax Exemptions, which allow three options: One, allow property tax exemptions of up to 50 percent of the assessed value of property, which must meet specific criteria; two, allow a 10-year property tax exemption for up to 100 percent of the assessed value of the improvements; and three, allow a 100 percent exemption of property taxes of the assessed value for a building used for a nonprofit or governmental use, so long as the improvements equal at least 50 percent of the assessed value of the property.

- Work with lenders in the historic district to establish a low-interest loan program for rehabilitating structures in the district.

- Establish and fund a revolving loan program out of CRA money to preserve, rehabilitate or renovate buildings in the downtown historic district.

Commission took no action on the recommendations, but asked staff to provide more information on how incentive programs work in other cities.

Theater

said. "I was on vacation when they called me and said they were closing the theater."

Gernaey, along with her husband who also worked for General Cinemas, was out of a job. But, that changed when SunStar Theaters President Mark Clement called and asked her to once again manage Lake Mary 8.

"I was really surprised," Gernaey said. "I thought once the theater closed, it would stay closed."

However, Clement had other plans for the Lake Mary theater. Even before General Cinemas filed for bankruptcy, he was in discussions with the company to purchase its Florida circuit. When the local movie complex closed, he continued negotiations with the facility's landlord.

Clement, who is a second-generation theater owner, plans on giving Lake Mary 8 a state-of-the-art facility that will include digital sound, stadium seating and a new concession stand. However, the theater will continue to provide "a great family environment for enjoying the movie-going experience the old-fashioned way."

Based out of Coral Springs, SunStar Theaters' mission is to acquire and renovate first-run theaters which have closed at sites from Miami to Orlando. Currently, the company owns three theaters with a total of 28 screens.

Clement, who along with his wife, Amy, and four children recently relocated to Florida from New York, said he is in negotiations to acquire several more theaters in Orlando.

Renovations to Lake Mary 8 are scheduled to be completed by summer, and the theater will remain open during construction. The theater offers daily matinees and Bargain Tuesdays, where shows are $4. The facility also serves real butter, "which is not common in Florida," Clement said.

For information on kids' camps, gift certificates and season passes, Clement encourages people to stop by the theater, located at 3851 Lake Emma Drive. For show times, call 407-444-4861.

The Way We Were: Memories from Seminole High School Class of 1945

The majority of the items in this column are from the May 31, 1945 edition of the Seminole High School Celery Fed.

Sally Staff Enjoys Boat Picnic
On May 23, 1945, the Salmandi staff enjoyed a boat trip to Lemon Bluff and a picnic supper while there. Fourteen staff members plus Miss Rebecca Stevens, Saidee Williams, Mr. and Mrs. H.E. Morris attended.

Grace Marie Stinecpher

The boat trip on Mr. Roumfillat's boat took two hours. Activities aboard included sun bathing, bridge games and visiting.

After landing at 7 p.m. preparations were begun for supper. Beaufie Robson and Saidee gathered wood, Sonny Raborn and Sylvia Melach cut sticks for hot dogs, Camille Baigten and Mary Ann Whelchel fixed the plates. In addition to hot dogs, there was plenty of other food plus RC Colas.

The boat was homeward bound by 8:30 p.m. Most sat on the deck singing, but a few were below writing letters and studying.

The boat landed at the boat works at 11 p.m., and most were able to return home. A few went to Miss Stevens' home to read the Sally proof. They arrived home at 1:30 a.m.

May Day Ball

The King and Queen of May were crowned during the May Day Ball given by the PAKs on May 23 at the Celery Craie.

Those receiving this honor were Sylvia Meisch and Fouts Brumley. Their crowns were carried by little Miss Kay Ivey and Butch Anderson. Presenting the crowns to the king and queen was Billy Gray, master of ceremonies. Other attendants were Beaufie Robson and Gerald Lossing, Camille Batten and Sonny Raborn, Audrey Bach and Tommy Vaughn, Mary Ann Whelchel and Troy Ray, Martha Page and Bill Shoemaker, Janet Hetzel and Pete Buker.

The court was entertained by a floor show consisting of an adagio dance by Steve Hodgins and Mona Jobe, a difficult acrobatic solo by Anita Aiken and two numbers by Shirley Cameron.

Senior Picnic

The annual senior picnic was held Monday, May 28. The seniors traveled to Daytona Beach on a Greyhound Bus that morning, and while there enjoyed swimming, sun bathing and a delicious lunch. "Chief Chef" Kettles expertly fried the fish while Mr. Morris boiled the corn. There were also lots of salads and desserts along with cold drinks, so no one would go hungry.

Chaperones were class sponsors, Mrs. Elmina Bisbee, Miss Rebecca Stevens and Mrs. Ruth Jackson.

Al Phillips Deceased
On Jan. 11, 2001, I received word that a classmate of mine, Al Phillips, had died the previous day of a heart attack. I thought that his friends in the area would like to know this so I am reporting it here. I don't know many details of his life after he left here, but will tell you what I know.

Lyman Alfred Phillips, Jr., was born in 1937 in Sanford, the son of Lyman and Reva Phillips. He was very active at both First Baptist Church and Seminole High School.

At SHS he was a member of the Glee Club, Latin Club and Key Club among others. In his junior year he was vice president of the student council and its president during his senior year.

He graduated with honors in 1955.

When I transferred to Stetson University as a sophomore, Al was there as a sophomore. We would see each other occasionally on campus, and I caught a ride home with him a couple of times. He was a pre-med student, and graduated in 1959.

Even though we were at Stetson, we kept our ties to First Baptist Church of Sanford. During Youth Week 1958, he was selected as Youth Pastor, and I was Youth Minister of Education. I recall very vividly that we had to accept the keys to the church at both morning worship services on Easter Sunday. (As an aside, I well-remember what I wore — a white sleeveless dress trimmed in orange. It had a flared skirt under which I proba-ly had two or three crinolines. And there was the orange hat — the height of 1950's fashion.)

Al and I were in charge of that evening's service as well as the next Sunday morning's. I also believe that we drove over for other functions during the week. This was only the third Youth Week at the church.

Upon graduation from Stetson, Al went to medical school. I believe it was at Emory University. He practiced medicine in the Atlanta area until a few years ago.

I last saw Al when his father died a couple of years ago. He was not well at that time, with multiple health problems. We had a good visit at the funeral home, for which I am grateful. His last address was Hull, Georgia.

LIFE STYLE

Chinese hibiscus most popular Central Florida shrub

The Chinese hibiscus, is one of the most popular and widely planted shrubs of the tropics.

This plant is believed to be native to China and most of the varieties grown in Florida are probably hybrids. Most hibiscus varieties have one-day flowers, which typically open early in the morning and will last late that afternoon. Flowers of a few varieties remain open for two days.

Most hibiscus are odorless, but a few varieties are slightly fragrant. Hibiscus flowers can be red, orange, yellow, white, lavender and brown in color with a broad range of color combinations, color shades and flower forms.

Climate

The use of hibiscus as an evergreen shrub in Florida is limited to the southern half of the peninsula. The limiting factor for growing hibiscus in north Florida is low temperatures. Plants will be killed to the ground by temperatures near the freezing point (28-30 degrees). Established plants may come out in the spring and bloom on new growth that summer.

The minimum amount of sun required by hibiscus generally is considered to be half a day of direct sunlight.

Al Ferrer

Soils

Hibiscus will grow in a wide range of well-drained soils if proper fertilization is provided. A soil pH of 5.5 to 6.5 is preferred.

Hibiscus grown on alkaline soils may suffer from micronutrient deficiencies, especially iron and manganese.

Fertilization

Three to four applications of fertilizer per year are recommended for hibiscus. The amount of fertilizer per application depends on frequency of fertilization and size of the plants. Use one-half ounce of 15-5-10 or 15-5-15 fertilizer for small plants and up to one-half or 1 pound of the same fertilizer for mature plants each application.

Another approach is to fertilize once a month, applying a small handful to one-half cup of fertilizer per plant, depending upon the size of the plants. Water immediately after applying the fertilizer to prevent fertilizer burn.

Planting And Transplanting

Container grown hibiscus can be planted anytime during the year, but transplanting in the yard is best done during the cooler months. Hibiscus should be planted at the same depth as they were in the container or field.

Plants should be watered thoroughly immediately after planting and frequently enough to prevent wilting until they are well established. An organic mulch will conserve water, reduce weed problems, and help control nematodes.

Irrigation

Hibiscus requires well-drained soils and do not tolerate wet soils, but will require regular irrigation during periods of drought.

Hibiscus should be watered heavily about once a week during dry periods, applying enough water to wet the soil to a depth of 12 to 18 inches.

Pruning

Spring is the best time of the year to prune Hibiscus. Pruning late in the fall or in the winter should be avoided.

Light maintenance pruning may be done any time of the year to remove diseased or dead wood, rubbing branches, and weak or droopy growth. Freeze damaged plants shouldn't be pruned until new growth appears, but dead leaves can be removed anytime.

Hibiscus blooms are produced on new growth, therefore do not prune during the active growing season.

Propagation

Hibiscus can be propagated from seed, cuttings, by air layering, budding or grafting. Seedlings are quite variable and are never identical to the parents.

Grafting or budding is used primarily to propagate varieties that are highly susceptible to nematodes or do not produce strong plants on their own roots.

Cuttings are used commercially to propagate hibiscus. Cuttings are taken from new growth in the spring and summer and placed in a well-drained medium, usually containing equal volumes of fibrous peat and coarse builders sand. A rooting hormone may be applied to the cuttings to promote root formation.

Pests And Diseases

Scale insects, mealybugs, spider mites, aphids, and thrips are common pests of hibiscus. Control of these pests can be difficult if large populations are allowed to develop.

Leaf spot, canker and mushroom root rot are some of the most important diseases of hibiscus.

Bud drop, which can be caused by nutritional deficiencies, overfertilization, or environmental factors, can also be a problem with hibiscus. Some varieties seem to be more susceptible to bud-drop than other varieties.

Al Ferrer is Seminole County Urban Horticulturist. Inquiries may be directed to him at the Cooperative Extension Service, 500 W. County House Road, Sanford, FL 32772 or phone 905-2200. All Seminole County Cooperative Extension activities are open to all regardless of race, color, sex, handicap or national origin.

The deadline to sign up for the Florida Prepaid College Program is Friday, Jan. 26.

Glass show returns to Sanford Friday

The Sanlando Glass Show is gearing up for another week-end of shopping and browsing for that special piece of glass needed to complete a collection.

Top quality and very knowledgeable dealers, 27 in all, will be bringing their wares of Depression Glass, Heisey, Cambridge, Fostoria, china and pottery of the Depression Era to Sanford. All dealers will be eager to help, sell or answer any questions.

Depression Era glass was made during the 1930s during the Great Depression. Two types of glass were produced — machine- and hand-made pieces.

The machine-made glass was mass produced and usually inexpensive. It was even given away at movie houses or appliance stores.

Hand-made glassware made during the 1930s, however, was sold in jewelry stores and fine department stores. It was not unusual for 32 people to work on one glass plicher from the beginning to the end of its creation.

A collection of Cambridge Apple blossom will also be on display. It is a striking pattern and can be found in several colors.

Gene Florence, well known author of many glassware books, will be appearing as the special guest for the weekend, and his books will be on sale.

Door prizes will be drawn and given away every hour on the hour.

Many of the prizes have been donated by the dealers.

A snack bar, featuring home-style food, will be available the entire weekend. The refreshments will be managed by The Colonial Room Restaurant.

The annual January Sanlando Glass Show is scheduled for Jan. 26 through Jan. 28, in the Sanford Civic Center, located at 401 East Seminole Boulevard.

On Friday, the doors open at 6 p.m. and close at 9 p.m. Admission is $5 and is good for all three days of the event.

Saturday, the doors open at 9 a.m. and close at 5 p.m., and on Sunday, the show opens at 10 a.m. and closes at 4 p.m. Admission is $3 on Saturday and Sunday, and people can receive a discount by presenting a show flyer or an ad from a newspaper or magazine.

UNITED STATES ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY INVITES THE PUBLIC TO COMMENT ON THE PROPOSED CLEAN-UP PLAN FOR OPERABLE UNIT No. 2 (GROUNDWATER) OF THE

SANFORD GASIFICATION PLANT SITE SANFORD, FLORIDA

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announces the opening of a 30-day comment period on the Proposed Plan and preferred alternative in response to the risk posed by groundwater contamination at the Sanford Gasification Plant Site located in Sanford, Florida. As part of the public comment period, EPA will hold a public meeting on February 7, 2001, at 7:00 p.m. at the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club located at 919 South Persimmon Avenue in Sanford.

Prior to final selection of a remedy, EPA will consider oral and written comments from the public and provide responses to those comments. The comment period begins on January 24, 2001, and ends on February 24, 2001. Interested citizens are encouraged to attend the public meeting and to review the Administrative Record in the information repository located at the North Branch Library, 150 North Palmetto Avenue, Sanford, Florida, and at EPA's Superfund Records Center, 61 Forsyth Street SW, Atlanta, Georgia. The Administrative Record contains documents supporting EPA's proposed plan and the information repository has other documents relevant to the site and the Superfund Program.

As the lead agency for the site, EPA oversaw a remedial investigation (RI) to assess the nature and extent of contamination at the site, a baseline risk assessment and a feasibility study (FS) conducted by the Sanford Group. The results of these studies are summarized in the Remedial Investigation Report, the Baseline Risk Assessment Report, and the Operable Unit 2 Feasibility Study Report.

Based upon the results of the RI/FS report, EPA prepared a Proposed Plan, which describes the cleanup alternatives and provides EPA's rationale for recommending a single alternative for this cleanup. EPA evaluated the following alternatives:

Alternative 1: No Action

The National Oil and Hazardous Substances Contingency Plan requires EPA to evaluate a No Action Alternative to establish a baseline for comparison with other remedial alternatives. Under this alternative, no further remedial action would be taken to address the source areas.

Alternative 2: Institutional Controls

A number of institutional controls could be implemented such as: Restricting unauthorized excavation on property above impacted groundwater, and restricting the installation of groundwater wells. Annual inspections to observe and document site conditions would be conducted to confirm compliance.

Alternative 3: Monitored Natural Attenuation

The natural attenuation of groundwater contamination would be monitored by groundwater sample collection from designated wells. In addition to existing wells, new wells would be constructed after Operable Unit No. 1 Remedial Action is completed. All wells would be used to monitor geochemical, field parameters, and contaminants of concern. It is expected that the groundwater attenuation process will take approximately 33 years. This alternative will also include the implementation of institutional controls as described in Alternative 2.

Alternative 4: Air Sparging and Soil Vapor Extraction

This alternative would enhance biodegradation and volatilization of impacts in the subsurface by the addition of air. Air would be injected into the subsurface and would be recovered by a vacuum system. To ensure effectiveness of the remedy a pilot test would be designed. It is expected this alternative would take approximately 17 years to clean the groundwater to clean-up goals.

Alternative 5: Groundwater Pump and Treat

This alternative would involve pumping and treating groundwater downgradient from soils removed as part of Operable Unit No. 1 area (former plant site) up to the confluence of the unnamed tributary and Cloud Branch Creek. Approximately six recovery wells would be used to recover impacted groundwater. Then, groundwater would be discharged to the City of Sanford Waste Water Treatment Plant for treatment. A pilot test would be necessary to select the number and location of recovery wells and to determine the groundwater recovery rate. It is expected this alternative would take approximately 24 years to clean the groundwater to the clean-up goals.

EPA recommends Alternative 3, Monitored Natural Attenuation. This alternative would be the most effective remedial strategy taking into consideration effectiveness versus cost and attempting to minimize the impact to residents.

EPA encourages interested citizens to review the Proposed Plan and other materials in the information repository and to attend the public meeting on February 7, 2001, to provide EPA with your input. Based on public comment, EPA, in consultation with the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, will select the remedy for the site after considering all public comment.

Written comments on the Proposed Plan and preferred remedy should be postmarked on or before February 24, 2001, and mailed to:

Funeral doesn't stop family feud

DEAR ABBY: My husband and two sons had a family business. One son got married 13 years ago. Six years ago, the business split up. The business survived, thanks to my husband and older son.

Words were said at that time, and our younger son and his family have not visited us since. They live nearby, and I try to maintain contact. They have two children, 7 and 3. I was never asked to baby-sit even when the relationship was good, although I often did so for our other grandchildren. Our gifts of checks for Christmas and birthdays have never been cashed.

Our daughter was married three years ago, and our younger son and his wife never acknowledged the invitation, showed up or sent a gift.

Recently our daughter-in-law's mother passed on, and we sent flowers and cards, but to spare her feelings in an awkward situation, we did not attend the calling hours, for which we are being severely criticized. Should we have gone?

HURTING IN NEW YORK

DEAR HURTING: No. Considering the circumstances,

you did the right thing to stay away. People pay condolence calls to comfort the grieving family. Had you gone in spite of the rift, you would have risked causing turmoil at an already emotional time. In light of the situation, you did the considerate thing.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Anxious in Niagara Falls," in which the writer asked how to deal with a false rumor in her workplace, prompted my favorite memory about such rumors. Twenty-one years ago, I worked as secretary to a highly placed military officer. One day, "Col. Smith" came into my office and said he had something personal to tell me — a rumor was circulating in the barracks that he and I were having an affair. The colonel went on to say that he wanted me to hear about the rumor from him so I wouldn't be upset by hearing it elsewhere.

He was (and, I assume, still is) happily married to a lovely woman. I was, and still am, happily married to the finest man I know, whom I love dearly. Of course, the rumor was completely untrue. The closest we came to an off-duty relationship was living two blocks apart in the same neighborhood on post. We socialized in separate circles except once, when the colonel held a promotion party at his home and invited my husband and me.

I asked him how Mrs. Smith had taken it. He replied that she understood completely and was fine. I told the colonel that if she were fine, so was I. We mutually agreed that all was well, and felt confident that the rumor would die in a short time, which it did.

As he turned to leave, I couldn't resist playing the devil's advocate by asking, "By the way, Colonel, did we have a good time?" My ability to joke about it set his mind at ease immediately.

Abby, your advice to "Anxious" was right on the money. The rumor will die a natural death when the gossips in the workplace see no evidence to keep it alive.

NOTHING CHANGES, CHESTER, VA.

DEAR N.C.: I'm sure your sense of humor has carried you through on many occasions. I'm also sure the colonel was sorry when your professional relationship ended. You're the kind of employee an employer hates to lose.

Cold water temperatures threatening marine life

A popular Florida game fish known for its exceptional fighting ability is being challenged to fight the water temperatures of our coldest winter since 1994.

Jim Shepe

Biologists at the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) say that the adult common snook may die when the water temperature drops to 54 degrees, while juveniles and small adults may lose equilibrium and die at temperatures between 54.5 and 54.8 degrees.

Snook in central Florida are already at the extreme northern limits of their range, so our current conditions, while not as severe as those of some past cold snaps, are putting the fishery at risk.

The FWC's Florida Marine Research Institute (FMRI) has received over 100 phone calls since January 1 reporting sightings of fish kills. The number of species involved has risen to 18, with the most affected being jack crevalle, pompano, permit and snook.

The first significant drop in water temperatures came in November 2000, and the final two weeks of December brought freezing temperatures that have continued into January. If water temperatures remain around their current reading — low 50s as of this writing — and the sun shines, small snook probably will die while juvenile and adult snook will become lethargic and swim into open areas to receive warmth from the sun. It's also possible that some of the larger snook will exhibit erratic behavior.

FMRI urges anyone who finds snook or other fish in this condition to simply leave them alone, since they can recover better on their own than with any human interference. It is also important to remember that it is illegal to possess snook not within legal size limits, or to land snook by illegal means.

Unfortunately, nothing can be done to prevent fish kills due to cold water temperatures, but FMRI biologists will make the best possible use of any deaths by collecting information for scientific purposes, which can benefit their understanding of the entire population. Persons finding dead fish or other marine species should call the FMRI Fish Kill Hotline at 1-800-636-0511.

Many other marine creatures are feeling the effects of the cold, such as in Pinellas County and in the panhandle, where hundreds of cold-stunned sea turtles have washed ashore. The pelican is particularly susceptible to freezing temperatures, and can easily get frostbite on its feet and neck.

Manatees start having problems when the water temperature is less than 68 degrees, and temperatures in many parts of the state have been well below that.

According to Dr. James Powell of the FMRI, scientists may have to wait to confirm any cold-water-

Lions make bid for top seed in district

By Tony DeSormier
Herald Correspondent

OVIDO — This year, the objective is avoiding the Lake Brantley Patriots for as long as possible.

In the short history of high school boys' soccer in Seminole County, some of the fiercest competition local teams have faced has been against each other. Every year, it seems there are at least three state-caliber teams in the group.

This year is no different. Last Friday night, the Lake Mary Rams visited Oviedo High School's John Courier Field to take on the Lions with the top seed in next week's Class 4A-District 3 tournament on the line. Since the two top-seeded teams have a first round bye and will get to play their semifinal game at home, the only real advantage to being the top seed is avoiding a game with the No. 3-seed. This year, that's the Lake Brantley Patriots, who have pretty much played the Rams and Lions even.

Powered by a pair of goals from Dennis Pinos, the Lions registered a 2-0 win over the Rams Friday night, the first defeat in a non-tournament game this season for Lake Mary, and hoped it would be enough to leapfrog them into the top spot.

"We knew that if we beat them 3-0, we'd get the No. 1 seed based on goal differential in head-to-head matches," said Oviedo coach Joe Avalone, whose team suffered a 2-0 loss to Lake Mary earlier in the season. "Now, I'm not sure what the next tie-breaker is."

After Friday night's decision, both Lake Mary (16-3-3 overall) and Oviedo (15-6-4) have 7-1-2 district records. The two teams split their district series, each winning at home 2-0.

"We're just hitting our stride," said Avalone. "We've had teams here that have won 30-plus games that haven't been as much of a team as this group is."

"These guys have really come together as a team. Of course, this team has had to. We don't have some of the national-level players we've had in the past. This year, we need everyone to contribute in every game if we're going to be competitive."

One big question mark for the Lions going into the season was finding a replacement for goalie Nick Ascenzo. Against Lake Mary, Mike Sasso came up with three saves on four shots to register the shutout.

"He came up with a couple of big saves" See Boys, Page 3B

Girls carry own weight

Oviedo wins SAC title in Weightlifting

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

SANFORD — It's often been said that to be successful, everyone must carry their own weight.

Saturday at Seminole High School's Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium, the girls weightlifting teams proved that they can do just that in the Seminole Athletic Conference Championships.

Oviedo came out on top with 49 points, edging Winter Springs (46 points) and host Seminole (45 points).

Individual champions were also decided in nine weight classes and all will advance to the Florida State Weightlifting Competition at Belleview High School on January 27.

In girls soccer action, Lake Brantley and Winter Springs picked up huge wins on Friday, with the Patriots blanking an 18-3-1 DeLand squad, 1-0, and the Bears routing 14-3-1 Gateway, 7-1.

But things did not go as well on Monday, as Winter Springs (11-7-5) battled to a 1-1 tie with a very good Seabreeze team (15-4-2), while Lake Brantley (14-9-1) fell to highly-ranked Bishop Moore (21-4-1), 3-1, and Lyman (3-15-2) continued its struggles, being white-washed 2-0 by New Smyrna Beach (10-6).

Raiders split Mid-Florida Conference home openers

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

SANFORD — Well, they tried to quit while they were ahead.

During halftime of Saturday's Mid-Florida Conference opener for the Seminole Community College women's basketball team, the scorekeeper for visiting Santa Fe Community College kidded that the Saints were going to go ahead and head back to Gainesville because they liked the score, which saw SFCC leading 33-32.

But the Raiders were not about to drop their M-FC opener, especially at home, outscoring the visitors 45-25 over the final 20 minutes to crush the Saints, 77-58.

The SCC men could not follow suit in the nightcap of the doubleheader, falling 80-67 to an extremely talented SFCC squad which included former Seminole High School standout Cornelius Blue.

Coach Ken Patrick's Raider women played the first half like a team that had not played in a week...very sluggish and no timing on offense. But things began to click early in the second half as freshman point guard Narie Berggren popped in three 3-pointers and sophomore forward Sheketa "Kiki" Kindred (11 second half points) dominated the inside.

The play of those two, plus a smothering half-court trapping defense kept the Saints at bay as SCC improved to 17-5 overall and 1-0 in the conference.

The Saints dropped their second M-FC game of the week to fall to 12-7 overall and 0-2 in the conference.

SFCC had been whipped by Central Florida Community College in Ocala, 101-66, on Wednesday and the Patriots followed that victory up with an even more impressive one on Saturday, knocking off nationally-ranked Daytona Beach Community College 78-60, in Daytona, to move to the head of the M-FC standings with a 2-0 record.

The Raiders will be in Jacksonville tonight (Wednesday) to battle Florida Community College in a conference doubleheader. The women are set to tip off at 6 p.m., followed by the men at 8 p.m.

Both teams will be idle this Saturday before heading to Ocala to take on CFCC in a crucial conference doubleheader next Wednesday (Jan. 31).

SCC's teams will finally return home on Saturday, February 3rd, hosting rival Daytona Beach Community College. The M-FC doubleheader begins with the women at 6 p.m. All Raider home games are free of charge.

Kindred led all scorers with 21 points, while Berggren and fellow freshman Gabrielle Blankenfeld scored 14 points each, and a third

Harris leaves Winter Springs

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

WINTER SPRINGS — Winter Springs High School joined Seminole in the search for a new head football coach for the 2001 season when Mick Harris resigned for personal reasons on Friday.

Harris, the only coach in the four-year history of Winter Springs, was a highly successful coach in Pennsylvania before coming to Florida and running up an unbelievable winning percentage as the freshman coach at Lyman. Harris led the Bears to an 8-22 record in three years of varsity play, but in 1998 and 1999 Winter Springs was in the district race until the final game of the season and very nearly made the playoffs.

Injuries to key offensive players really thwarted the Bears' hopes this season as they fell to a 2-8 mark.

Quintets continue to shine

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

SANFORD — It was a good weekend for the top basketball teams in the Seminole Athletic Conference.

Laqueena Grayson scored 17 points, and Jamala and Matia Mitchell added 13 and 12 points, respectively, as the Seminole High School girls improved to 18-6 with a 72-51 victory over Merritt Island (13-6) at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Friday night.

The home hardwood was also good for the boys as Marcus Robinson and Robbie Dupre scored 11 points each and Derrick Oliver added 10 to lead Arrow Force IX (13-7) to a come-from-behind, 49-45, victory over Eau Gallie on Saturday.

The No. 1 state-ranked Oviedo boys team picked up two more victories to improve to 22-0 on the season, but this time it was not easy.

On Friday, Marcus Hayes and Shawn Witherspoon combined for 45 points as the Lions ripped Lake Mary, 97-43.

On Saturday, however, Oviedo got one of its few scares of the season. The Lions raced to their usual early lead, 24-12 after one quarter and 43-26 at halftime, but had to withstand a 29-point fourth quarter to hold off Gainesville, 70-68, in the Diamondback Challenge at Belleview High School.

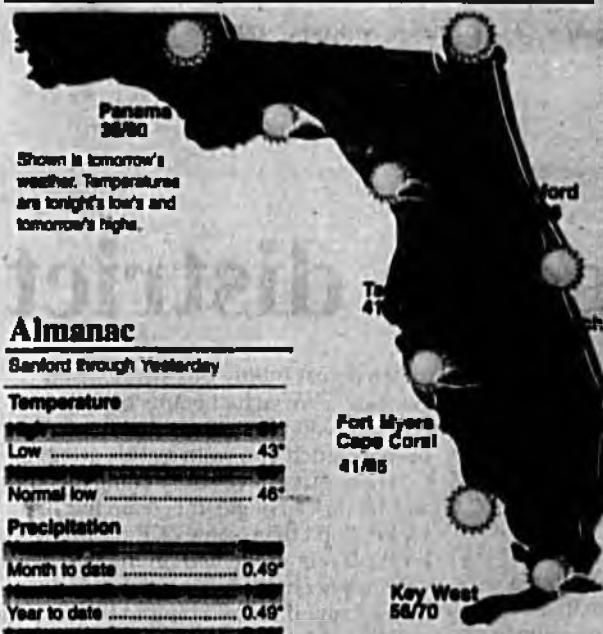

Winter Springs' boys also continued their good play, especially senior guard Tony Bell, who scored 21 points as the Bears (12-6) edged Lake Brantley, 50-

Outdoors — Continued from page 1B related manatee deaths, because a manatee will sink when it dies, and it can be several weeks before a dead animal comes to the surface. Anyone who sees a dead or injured manatee should report it immediately to the Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission's Division of Law Enforcement at 1 800-DIAL-FMP or *FMP on a mobile phone. SHUPE'S SCOOP Warm water discharges at power plants become havens for marine life during cold snaps. FISHING FORECAST The weather may be cold, but river action is hot. Low water levels make fish very easy to find, especially bass. Deep bends, steep banks, sand bars, and other irregular features will draw and hold bass. Tiny rapalas and ultralight spinning tackle are deadly this time of year, as bass tend to feed on tiny ditch minnows that are forced out into the main channel. Big flounder are still the main attraction at Ponce Inlet. Anglers bouncing finger mullet across the bottom are catching flounder in excess of 10 pounds. Some redfish and trout are also mixed in. Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports slow offshore action due to high seas. A cold front this weekend will keep things churned up. Inside the Port, look for flounder and sheepshead. Trout and redfish are slow in the Banana and Indian rivers. Huge sheepshead are hitting live shrimp and finger mullet at Ponce Inlet. Drum, redfish, bluefish, and a few flounder are also being caught. Sheepshead prefer live shrimp or fiddler crabs. Trout and redfish are slow to fair in Mosquito Lagoon.

when the game was still scoreless," said Avalone. "That's critical. If one gets by him before we get a goal, that's the game."

The Lions, who out-shot Lake Mary 9-4, finally got one past Ram keeper Bart Creasman. Victor Panos ripped a shot that Creasman parried with his feet, only to see Dennis Panos come in from the left side and tap home the rebound.

Ryan Zarbaugh created the second goal, sending a long through ball in from the right side. Dennis Panos ran on to the ball, got around Creasman, and scored.

"We have to regroup for districts," said Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle, who was visibly displeased with his team's effort. "We have two games next week to get ourselves together."

Lake Brantley kept pressure on the lead duo, posting shutout over Winter Springs (1-0) on Friday, DeLtona (7-0) on Saturday and University (4-0) on Monday to raise its record to 14-4-4.

Lyman (14-7-1) and Lake Howell (9-9-3) also readied

Nicholson ready

SANFORD — For the first time in 27 years there will be a new face in the third base coaches box for the Seminole Community College baseball team when the Raiders open the 2001 season this Saturday.

Mike Nicholson, who was hired to replace Jack Pantelias when the veteran head-man retired after last season, has put together a very demanding 56-game schedule.

He will send his squad onto the field against an always tough Indian River Community College team in Ft. Pierce starting at 1 p.m. on Saturday.

SCC will stay on the road on Sunday, heading into the central part of the state to take on South Florida Community College in Avon Park at noon.

The Raiders will then play their first home game on Monday (Jan. 29) hosting St. Petersburg Junior College starting at 3 p.m. at freshman, Yolanda "Yo" Johnson, was also in double figures with 13 points.

Also scoring for the winner's were Sue Gyarfas (seven points), Sherri Harrison (six points), and Brandi Davis and Linda Cazeau (one point each).

For SFCC, Andrea Lee was the only player in double figures with 15 points.

The men's game was a very good one most of the way.

SCC led early, but the Saints began to take control behind 13 points from Burton, building a lead of over 10 points.

The Raiders started to climb back into the contest before halftime, running off a big string of points behind the shooting of freshman Jason Currington (14 first half points) and sophomore Matt Story (10 first half points).

Story hit a long three-pointer with less than five-seconds left in the half to cut the lead to six points, 39-33, but Idlett drove the length of the court with a three-point answer of his own to give SFCC a nine-point bulge, 42-33, and momentum heading into the lockerroom.

The two teams battled on even ground for the first 10 minutes of the second half, but Santa Fe's head coach, Monte Lowe, the former North Carolina State All-American guard and assistant coach at the University of Florida, put his team in a press and forced three straight turnovers to build a lead of over 20 points.

SCC again made a late charge, behind Story and Dennis Williams, cutting the deficit to 10 points in the final minute.

The Saints improved to 18-4 overall and 2-0 in the conference, while the Raiders fell to 8-14 and 0-2.

Burton led SFCC with 21 points, while Idlett added 11 points and Jenkins and Martin 10 points each. Blue got into early foul trouble and finished with six points.

Story was the game's high scorer with 22 points, but Currington was held scoreless over the final 20 minutes and finished with 14.

Other scorers for SCC were Cedric McHaney (nine points), Dennis Williams (eight points), Che Morgan and Joe Williams (five points each), and Walter Green (four points).
