County supplements non-emergency transport

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

There are going to be a few changes in the EMS non-emergency transport services in Seminole County.

"We're all one big happy family," EMS Manager Frank Kirk said Tuesday night after getting a thumbs up from the County Board of Commissioners for the supplemental transport plans.

Those affected by the changes are patients who are usually located in hospitals, nursing homes or other health care facilities. During the first month of service by the county division, there have been an average of 41 such non-emergency transports a day.

The EMS/Fire/Rescue Division

has provided this service since July 15, without compromising its operation. However, the original intent of the division was not to provide non-emergency ambulance service - the intent being to allow other agencies (either public or private) to help.

As a result, Rural/Metro Corporation, Florida Hospital and Orlando Regional Health Care System are going to be given limited franchise to provide services. Rural/Metro will provide non-emergency transport throughout the county.

Rural/Metro might transport a patient from a convalescent facility to the patient's home, of from a physician's office to a facility or from a home to a care facility. See Transport, Page 3A

Passport caper lands Crossley in county clink

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

The strange case of the Rev. George Crossley became even stranger on Wednesday.

Crossley, 56, went back in jail. It was all because of a passport caper - in his case, a passport to the John E. Folk Correctional Facility.

George Crossley

Crossley, an ordained Baptist minister and former radio/TV evangelist, is charged with attempting to hire a hitman to kill a man whose ex-wife was Crossley's lover. An undercover federal agent caught Crossley on tape last year. Crossley says he was entrapped.

When he was arrested in July, 1996, Crossley was ordered to surrender his passport and his pilot's license.

Having found out Crossley, who lives in Deltona, flew to Mexico six months after his arrest, prosecutors asked a judge to order Crossley to stay in the country until his October trial.

Last month, Crossley filed for another passport, and wrote that

As he awaited his murder-for-hire trial on Oct. 6, Crossley was under court orders to stay put. He was out of jail on $50,000 bail - and any attempt to leave the country would violate terms of his bail.

Getting rain to drain

Utility relocations have facilitated the widening of several roads, including portions of CR 46 A SR 46.

Sanford undertakes major utility projects

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

The City of Sanford will be witnessing some major utility projects within the next few months, including downtown drainage improvements.

Paul Porter, of Conklin, Porter and Holmes Engineers Inc., on Monday presented to city commissioners aerial photographs outlining utility relocations in the city and new utility lines in the Orlando-Sanford Airport area.

Porter said the planned downtown improvements will help drainage on First Street. In the past, he explained, water from that area drained north through a network of combined sewers. That network was replaced by a vacuum collection system leaving the old sewers in place, however water runoff was still not draining properly. A new proposed water line located across from Second Street would redirect the flow through the use of baffle boxes (small treatment lines), which would reduce the amount of sediment and debris attached to the main line.

The problem now, he said, is See Utility, Page 3A

JetSki donated to aid fire fighters on water patrol

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

Surrounding waterways will be a little safer this Labor Day weekend thanks to the Seminole County Fire Department.

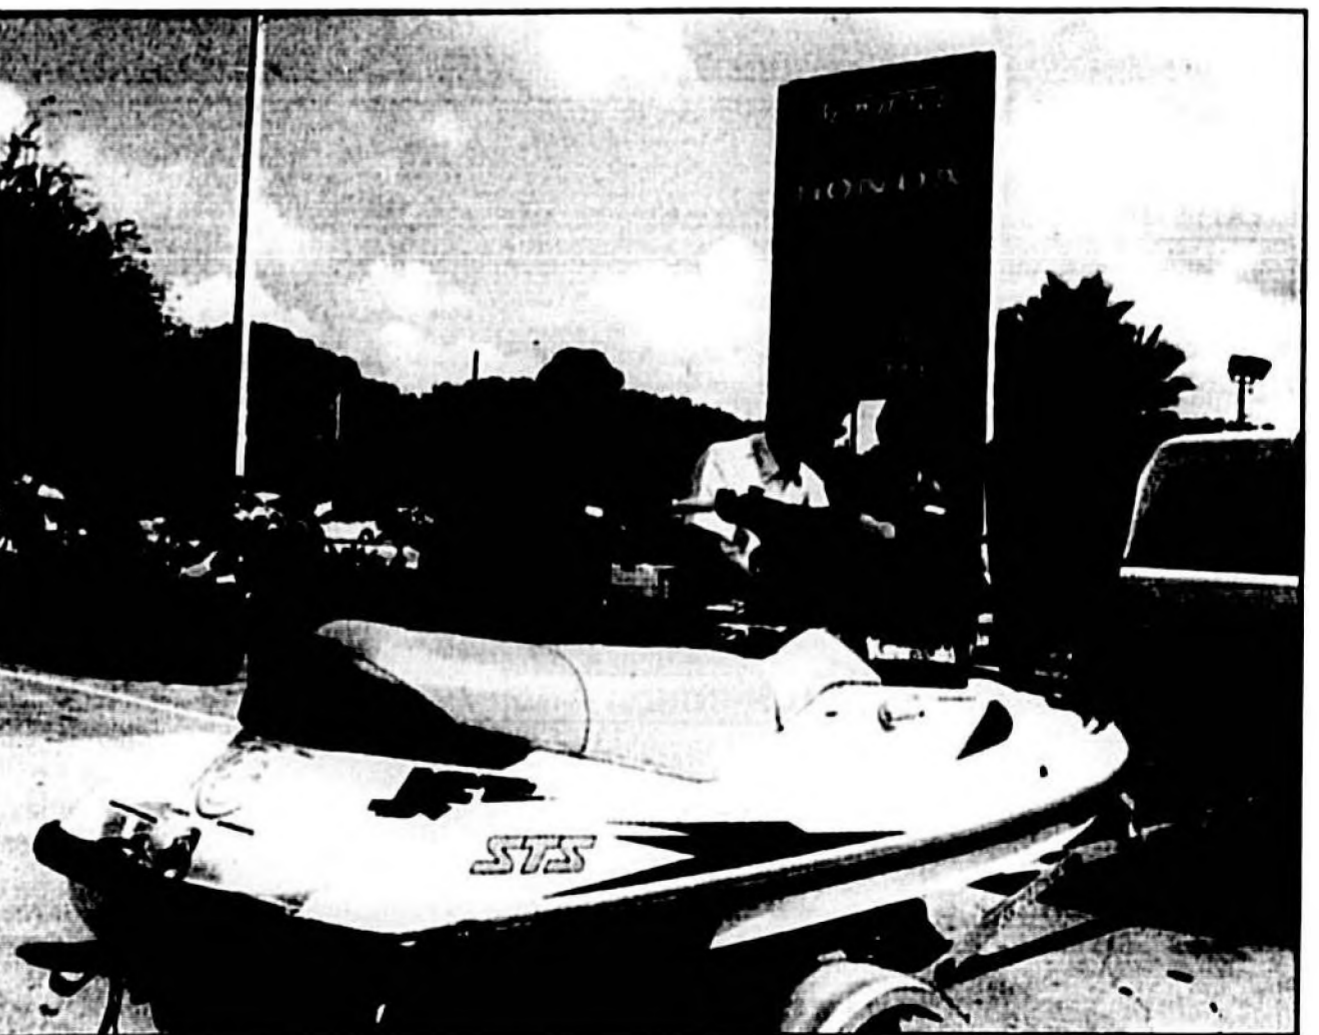

A personal watercraft was donated earlier this week to the agency by Seminole Power Sports in Longwood through the Kawasaki JetSki Corporation. Including a trailer that was donated by South Sports Trailer in Sanford, the value of the gift and the savings to the taxpayer is about $6,500 according to Battalion Chief Kent Castleman of the Seminole County Department of Public Safety.

This will be the first JetSki for the fire department, which will join the Seminole County Sheriff's Office in river patrols during weekends.

Castleman said with the constant influx of boaters, particularly on the waters of the Little Econ, Wekiva, and St. Johns rivers, there is a need for more patrols. The recent opening of the Seminole State Forest is drawing in more canoeists and the Rails to Trails is bringing more people to the Wekiva area, he said.

"We felt it (the JetSki) was necessary because the craft currently used does not have the maneuverability of a small watercraft for the narrower channels of water in the Wekiva and Little Econ," he said.

Castleman noted that Florida See Patrol, Page 3A

Homestead act saves mother's home

Brenda K. Holstad wants nothing more than to keep the house on 105th Avenue where her children came of age and where she and her new husband can grow old together.

My youngest son is a junior in high school and we're hoping he can get a baseball scholarship next year. The 46-year-old mother of three said "It's really sad that if we have to move, it could hurt his chances. I'd hate to see that happen."

Until recently, Holstad's hope of keeping her home of six years seemed slim at best. Faced with more than $25,000 in debt most of it incurred by her ex-husband, Holstad has spent the last three years fighting off credit card companies, lawyers and other creditors who have threatened to take the house if she doesn't pay up.

After a messy divorce with her first husband of 29 years, Holstad won a contentious court fight ordering him to make monthly alimony and child support payments. But her ex-husband, a mechanical superintendent, refused to obey the court order, stopping payments and putting Holstad's house at risk, she said.

He became untraceable that all of his creditors turned to me to make his payments, she said.

Even Holstad's own attorney has sued her, seeking the money she would have earned if Holstad's ex-husband made his mandated payments, she said. Besides the more than $20,000 her ex-husband still owes, Holstad has built up more than $6,000 in credit card debts. To get their money, creditors have threatened to place liens on the house.

So it came as a great relief when, last month, a representative from State Recording Service offered to file the paperwork needed to protect her house from her creditors.

The paperwork, which is about to take effect, is legally binding through a little-known and often misunderstood Florida statute. Under the terms of the law, homeowners can designate their property as a homestead, immune from forcible sale and from judgments levied to satisfy debts to most creditors.

The law is often confused with the Homestead Tax Exemption, which lowers the property tax for homeowners and is based on the value of the home and property. The Designation of Homestead document preparation and filing services provided by State Recording Service does not apply to the Homestead Tax Exemption also found under the Homestead Act of the Florida State Constitution and Revised Statutes.

Instead, it serves to protect property owners such as Holstad from losing their homes. And while Florida homeowners are free to file the Designation of Homestead paperwork on their own or have an attorney do it, Holstad and hundreds of other property owners said they are happy to let State Recording Service do it for them.

Getting back to your roots

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

Many families are interested in tracing their family tree.

For Tom Prevost, this interest has become a career.

About thirteen years ago, Prevost started tracing her husband's family background. She knew that her husband was of Indian descent, though not American Indian as he is French Canadian.

Through the Catholic church and many other sources of information, Prevost tracked her husband's family history all the way back to the 16th century and to two tribes: the Sioux and the Chippewa (Ojibwa).

What started out as just an interest became so intriguing to me, Prevost said. The more information I found the more I wanted to research.

Some of the more interesting things that Prevost learned about her husband's family included the fact that one of the Prevost ancestors was the first French Canadian Indian to marry a native Canadian woman.

Also, the Prevost family is still enrolled with the tribe even though none of the family members have lived on the reservation for over three generations.

Although a lot of time is spent going over tedious documents like tax rolls, census reports, marriage licenses and death certificates, Prevost said that there are surprising details about families that are unearthed through the research that makes it all worth while.

Prevost gained so much enjoyment from tracking her family history that she decided to do two things: earn accreditation as a genealogist and help others to research their own family histories.

Her first step was to earn her accreditation from Brigham Young University. Once that was accomplished, Prevost began teaching genealogy at both Seminole and Daytona Beach Community Colleges.

There was a lot of response to my class, Prevost said. So many people told me that they had always wanted to research their family history but either didn't know where to start or they figured they didn't have the time. I just told all of my students that this isn't something that will be or has to be done overnight. This is one of those things that can be done at any pace.

In her limited spare time, Prevost began putting together indexes of names from different tribes. The more research she did, the more she realized that the wealth of information should be catalogued so others could use it.

Prevost began compiling all of the information she had gathered relating to tribes in Sanford, Fla. (Herald Staff Writer) - A woman who has spent the last 13 years tracing her husband's family history back to the 16th century and to two tribes: the Sioux and the Chippewa (Ojibwa) is now helping others do the same.

Tom Prevost, author of "Getting Back to Your Roots" is now helping others do the same. She has shared her knowledge of Indian history with many people who are interested in tracing their family histories.

Prevost said that she has been able to help many people who are interested in tracing their family histories. She has shared her knowledge of Indian history with many people who are interested in tracing their family histories.

In addition to her three evening work and her time, Prevost also donated an index of 90,000 people who applied for Cherokee enrollment around 1900. At the Family History Library, there is also a list of about 250 million names from 50 countries where people can trace their ancestors through births, deaths and christenings.

These lists are good weapons for people to begin doing their own family histories, Prevost said. And the librarians at both the Lake Mary and Orange County libraries are very knowledgeable about doing genealogical research and can help anyone who is just starting.

So many people tell me that they cannot trace their families because there isn't any information out there, Prevost said. Although it sometimes takes a lot of work and patience, the information is out there. The hardest part is just learning where to look. The librarians at the libraries are a great place to start asking questions.

As of today, Prevost has published six books, including a guide for people to use when doing their own research. She continues to volunteer her time at the Family History Library and also at the Orange County Library system.

Doing research, however, is usually where you can find her. And not because she has to Prevost does it because she thoroughly enjoys the work and because she believes it is very important for a family to know their roots.

That's why she will continue to help anyone who is interested in tracking their own family history.

"Everyone should give it a try," Prevost said. "There are lots of great stories out there just waiting to be uncovered."

Faulty ads can be fatal to business

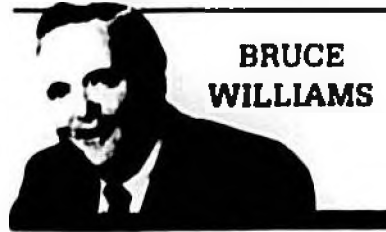

DEAR BRUCE: I am going to speak in very general terms for obvious reasons.

I am in a business that services people who have a particular problem. The overwhelming majority of my customers come from the yellow pages — the first place people go when they have this problem. I have been in business for a little over 10 years, and I have never had any difficulty. I have tracked my advertising, and because of the nature of the service provided, the yellow pages are an absolute must. I buy two half pages in each directory that services my area. The two smaller directories are not a problem. The ads appear as written and as contracted for. However, the bread and butter directory not only printed the wrong ad — but worse yet, they put my competitor's telephone number.

The folks at the telephone company have been apologetic and even offered to give me next year's ad free. However, there is a good possibility that I am not going to be here next year, given that my leads and my name are being forwarded to a competitor. I stand to lose tens of thousands of dollars. I proofread the ad carefully and it was exactly what I wanted. Where do I go from here? — A Reader

DEAR READER: You go to your lawyer's office. It is difficult to understand how an error of this magnitude could pass through the system. It is understandable that there will be errors, but usually they are small ones. That is what proofreading and checks and balances are all about.

In many circumstances, when a yellow page ad gets messed up, the consequences are not particularly severe, you are upset, but that's the end of it. In your case, you can demonstrate that a substantial portion of your entire business is the result of this advertisement (and I would love to hear the yellow pages publisher argue, "Well, not that many people read our stuff" — wouldn't that be a treat). The fact is, you have sustained — and will continue to sustain — real damages, and I wouldn't settle for just a free ad.

DEAR BRUCE: Several of my friends are jumping into gold investments, saying that the price of gold is plummeting and that eventually they're going to reap the profits when gold goes back up. That sounds awfully simple to me. What are your thoughts? — H.C., Claremont, Fla.

The NYFUM Program is a partnership among the Sheriff's Office, the Seminole YMCA and the Seminole County Police Athletic League. Under the program, Florida would donate 10 minibikes to be used by at-risk children between the ages of 10 and 15. But Eslinger said that the program is not just for at-risk kids. It will also be for kids in our school system. Eslinger said, "The program is to everyone's benefit." Approximately 40 boys and girls would be enrolled in the program at a time.

The children would be trained in minibike riding by volunteer instructors from the Sheriff's Office and the YMCA. The minibike riding sessions would be scheduled every other Saturday at the track at the Seminole County landfill. There is no cost for the children enrolled in NYFUM. The Seminole County Schools would refer the children to the program.

The goal of NYFUM is to give children a sense of responsibility. Each child and his or her parents sign a contract agreeing that the child will adhere to certain standards such as good behavior, school attendance and passing grades.

The child is allowed to participate in NYFUM as long as they adhere to their contract. If the child does not abide by the contract, the minibike riding privileges are suspended.

Pledging allegiance to the Constitution

Thirty-four years ago, Justice Robert Jackson, writing for the Supreme Court, ruled that public school students cannot be punished for refusing to salute the flag. Americans, said the Court, may not be forced "to confess by word or act" their allegiance to any "orthodox" nationalism, religion or other matters of opinion (West Virginia Board of Education vs. Barnette).

Since then, there has been a series of federal court decisions reaffirming the First Amendment rights of students to ignore the flag salute and to sit while others stand for the Pledge of Allegiance. Nonetheless, there are still public school teachers, principals and school boards who are either ignorant of these constitutional rights -- or defy them.

As Roger Baldwin, founder of the American Civil Liberties Union, once told me -- as he had many others -- "no civil liberties battle is ever entirely won." Certain fundamental liberties have to be fought for again and again, especially when Congress and public schools are in session.

A case in point this year is Tisha Byars vs. City of Waterbury Board of Education. As Chief Federal Judge Peter Dorsey of New Haven set the scene in his ruling on the case: "Plaintiff is a 17-year-old African American girl who has sat during the Pledge of Allegiance" because

There are still school boards that are ignorant of these constitutional rights or defy them.

she "does not believe that there is 'liberty and justice' for African Americans in America."

From first grade on, she was instructed to remain seated during the pledge by her father, Dennis, and she herself has become firmly committed to that form of witnessing.

Tisha Byars, through the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union, has sued the school board for denying her both her First Amendment rights and equal protection of the laws. The latter because the school prevented her from entering the National Honor Society. The law suit has been accompanied by fierce reactions from some war veterans and others. One angry American recommended that the Byars family move to Africa. When a local Waterbury paper put Tisha Byars on its front page, some businesses threatened to take away their ads. The First Amendment is not exactly cherished by many citizens.

Judge Peter Dorsey, after hearing testimony and reading the briefs, showed little respect for the school officials. "You're dead wrong," he said to one of them.

In his ruling on a motion for a preliminary injunction, Dorsey pointed out that for many weeks while she was in high school, Byars was banished from her homeroom and segregated in the principal's office as a punishment for refusing to stand for the pledge. That, said the judge, was a violation of First Amendment rights, and must stop.

He also addressed her disqualification by school officials from becoming a member of the National Honor Society. She claimed that was an additional punishment for her alleged lack of patriotism.

The school administrators and teachers denied this, charging that she had once eaten corn chips in class and at first "defied" the teacher when asked to stop, and left the room without permission.

But, said Judge Dorsey, there was no other misconduct on her record. Furthermore, she had apologized to the teacher and no further action had been taken. The judge added that the refusal to qualify Tisha Byars for the National Honor Society did not appear to him to have anything to do with corn chips, but rather with her refusal to pledge allegiance. Later this year, there will be a trial on permanent injunction relief and damages.

In his ruling, the judge made the mordant point that another student, Ira Sykes, had been denied admission to the National Honor Society because of an "intemperate" essay he wrote while serving an in-school suspension for not standing for the pledge. That "intemperate essay," noted Judge Dorsey, was about Sykes' constitutional right to stay seated during the pledge.

The Waterbury, Conn., school system has now learned a great deal about the First Amendment. Students are no longer to be forced to pledge allegiance to the flag nor will they be removed from their homerooms if they refuse.

Tisha Byars has effectively taught the school officials there that educators, as Justice Robert Jackson said, must not "strangle the free mind at its source and teach youth to discount important principles of our government as platitudes."

But Congress is again on the way to attach a constitutional amendment to the First Amendment to punish "desecration" of the flag

MORTON KONDRACK

Why diabetes plan is not enough

Thanks to House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., the U.S. government is stepping up its fight against diabetes, but his effort only illustrates what's wrong with federal health-research funding overall.

What's wrong is that it takes a Hollywood star -- in this case Mary Tyler Moore -- or a powerful politician to make sure the government devotes adequate research dollars to fighting a disease.

Prior to Aug. 5, when President Clinton signed the bipartisan budget deal, diabetes received fewer research dollars per victim -- $19.75 -- than any other major disease.

Because of Gingrich, the budget deal contained $300 million in added research funds over the next five years, $150 million each for juvenile diabetes and American Indian victims, plus $1.8 billion to cover preventive diabetes testing for Medicare recipients.

Even with the add-on, though, diabetes funding at the National Institutes of Health will be only $346 million a year, or $21.65 for each of the 16 million persons suffering from the disease.

By comparison, AIDS is funded at $2,143 per victim; cancer, $338; breast cancer, $200; Alzheimer's disease, $81; heart disease, $74; Parkinson's disease, $34.

As the husband of a Parkinson's victim, I'm eager to get that funding level up -- to $100 per victim if a bill named after former Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., could pass Congress -- but the effort lacks the energetic support of anyone as powerful as Gingrich. Other underfunded diseases -- strokes and cervical cancer, for instance -- face the same disadvantage.

Gingrich became interested in diabetes because his wife's mother suffers from the disease and because his former GOPAC director, Gay Gaines, has a child with juvenile diabetes.

Later, he discovered that prevention and early treatment could stop severe complications such as blindness, loss of limbs, and kidney disease -- and save the government hundreds of millions in Medicare and Medicaid expenses.

Gingrich became an advocate for Medicare funding of disease screening and for diabetes research. In June, he received an award from the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, whose Washington lobbyist is former White House chief of staff Ken Duberstein, a Gingrich adviser.

Last month, after House and Senate conferees had finished their work on the balanced budget deal, Gingrich proposed to White House budget director Franklin Raines that extra money be put in at the last minute for diabetes research. Raines agreed.

But on July 29, after the White House and congressional Republicans had held their separate victory parties celebrating the budget pact, a glitch developed.

Outgoing Gingrich health staffer Ed Kutler got a call from White House aide Chris Jennings to check Raines' recollection that the diabetes research figure would be $100 million over five years for both juvenile diabetes and the Indian Health Service.

Looking at Gingrich's notes from the Raines meeting, Kutler and Gingrich aide Missy

What's wrong is that it takes a Hollywood star or powerful politician to make sure the government devotes adequate research dollars.

Jenkins thought the deal was for $300 million. They took the question to Gingrich, who was having a wrap-up session with top White House aides in the so-called "dinosaur room" of the speaker's office.

Gingrich said he thought the right number was $300 million. He turned to White House chief of staff Erskine Bowles, whose son happens to suffer from juvenile diabetes. Bowles agreed to $300 million and that amount was written into the deal.

On Aug. 5, President Clinton unveiled the diabetes initiative at Georgetown University Hospital. Gingrich couldn't be there -- Mary Tyler Moore was -- but Clinton praised him as "a tireless advocate for greater investments and research, prevention and care."

This would be a happy story of politicians doing the right thing were it not for the fact that the current system of health research funding is skewed toward diseases with politically potent advocates. AIDS, with the gay community, Hollywood, Clinton and most of Congress behind it, is the best example, but there are others. NIH has an institute on hearing loss, for instance, because Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, former chairman of the Senate health appropriations subcommittee, has a deaf brother.

Also, spinal cord research will get an extra $10 million over the next two fiscal years because actor Christopher Reeve is a friend of Clinton's and went to the top when NIH bureaucrats tried to hold up money promised by the president.

It shouldn't work this way, with every disease group struggling with all others in a zero-sum game. What's called for, as Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., proposes, is a doubling of the NIH budget over a five-year period.

Also needed is reform of NIH's research priorities to emphasize conquering specific diseases as well as pure science and to give underfunded diseases the largest add-ons that are scientifically justified.

President Clinton, who's happy to preside over a ceremony after someone like Gingrich has done the heavy lifting, has a dismal record on NIH funding.

He recommended a mere 2.6 percent NIH funding increase for this year -- and only 2 percent for the institute that oversees diabetes -- which Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., is determined to raise to 7.5 percent in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Such annual increases, like Gingrich's rifle-shot at diabetes, aren't a substitute for a major push on biomedical research. That's worth bipartisan action next year.

Soon, they'll be in spacesuits

A couple of years ago, when the Miss America officials let the public vote on whether it wanted a swimsuit competition, 79 percent of the voting public answered, "Keep it."

So the girls kept their suits on, and took their shoes off. No more spike heels.

On her way to the 1997 Miss America title, Tara Dawn Holland from Longwood (Lake Mary High) walked barefooted in the swimsuit competition. Naturally, she wore a one-piece swimsuit.

This year - for the first time - Miss America contestants have a choice to wear one-piece or two-piece swimsuits.

What will they think of next? The latest TV Guide has a cover (how apt) story on the controversy about what a Miss America should or should not wear. Bikinis! Belly buttons!

Former Wonderbra model Madison Michele is pictured on the cover and identified as "Madison Michele as Miss Congeniality."

"The Miss America contest doesn't have a Miss Congeniality," said Dianne Holland, Tara Dawn Holland's mom.

Momma of Miss America said she never had any trouble with the swimsuit competition. "It only counts 15 percent," she said, "and apparently most people liked it."

Tara Dawn Holland told TV Guide's reporter that she was in support of the women being able to make a choice this year in what suit they wore. "But I would hope the two-piece suits are extremely modest."

"The way I look at it," Holland said, "it's not so much a physical competition but whether a woman is confident. For the most part, the judges are looking from the neck up."

Leanza Cornett, Miss America 1993 and a former student at Rollins College, said she thought the swimsuits up to this year have been awful and welcomes the change.

"If they're not going to get rid of it, they should make it a real swimsuit competition," Cornett said.

There are rules, of course: All swimsuits must be purchased off-the-rack, not custom made.

- All swimsuits must be either a solid color or a simple two-tone of the contestant's choice.
 - The waistband can be no more than 1 1/2 inches below the navel.
 - Shoulder straps or halter straps must be no less than 1/2 inch wide.
 - Tattoos or piercings are optional - but not encouraged.
 - Sandal heels can be no more than 2 inches high.
- No one is sure where the Miss America contest is headed in the future. Space suits may replace the swimsuits. Perhaps the contestants will have to shave their heads so no one knows who's blonde or brunette. (that will be determined during interviews).
- Once Bert Parks was trashed as emcee, a half dozen or more people vowed they'd never watch another pageant. Or scholarship competition as the MA officials want to call their shindig at Atlantic City.
- ABC will televise this year's event beginning at 9 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 13.
- By that time, America will be up to its ears in one-piece vs. two-piece swimsuit hype.
- Just be glad tattoos aren't encouraged.

Husband's Empty Promise Leaves Wife Full of Hurt

DEAR ABBY: "Mel" and I married two years ago. He was 67 and retired, a widower after 30-plus years of marriage, with two children and four grandchildren. I'm 54, stopped working when I married him, have three children and one grandchild. Mel and I now live in the same house he lived in with his wife.

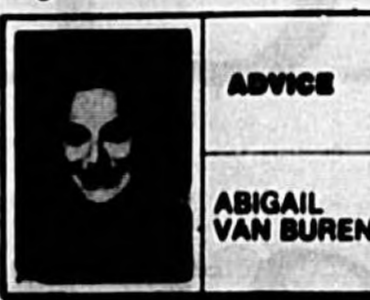

Before the wedding I asked Mel if we were going to move. I made it clear that I didn't want to stay in his house. He promised we would move. Bottom line: It's been two years and now he says we're not moving. He's happy in this house, comfortable, etc. I once suggested that he let me change things around the house a little. His response: "What for? Everything is in its place. Besides, we're moving anyway."

What shall I do? He does not see things the way I do because he is not hurting emotionally. I have become very frustrated because even if we talk it out the whole day, he'll conveniently "forget" and not do anything about it. Abby, I'm not getting any younger and if I need to get a job, I should try to get one right now.

One other thing: He thinks money is everything. But I have proven to him that money is not everything to me by signing a prenuptial agreement wherein I get nothing. However, he always says he will provide for me when he's gone, that I will not go hungry, etc. How can I believe him when he cannot even make good on his word regarding moving?

UNHAPPY IN ORANGE COUNTY, CALIF.

DEAR UNHAPPY: I am unable to determine from your letter if your husband is "forgetting" because he is selfish or whether it could be the beginning of senile dementia. But I urgs you to protect yourself. By all means, find a job. You may need the income. Also, consult an attorney to find out how your husband will provide for you, should anything happen to him, in the aftermath of that prenuptial agreement you signed. I, too, wonder how you can believe his promise to take care of you, since he refuses to follow through about moving.

DEAR ABBY: I thought the letter from Ruth A. Davis of the U.S. State Department regarding consular officers at embassies abroad was both interesting and informative.

Several years ago, my husband and I were in Italy with another couple when our trunk was broken into. Everything was taken - including my friend's purse containing her and her husband's passports.

Needless to say, it caused us untold problems. We had to change our travel plans to include a visit to the U.S. consulate in Milan. Fortunately, the hotel we had stayed at the prior evening had recorded our passport numbers so we were able to call and obtain the much-needed information. Only then could the embassy quickly issue new passports.

We learned a valuable lesson that you might like to pass on to your readers, Abby. Make a copy of your passport before you leave home and carry it with you while abroad, separate from your original passport.

INFORMED TRAVELER, ATLANTA

DEAR INFORMED TRAVELER: Thank you for a helpful reminder. Another worthwhile safety measure: Record the numbers of your traveler's checks and keep them separate from the checks, in case of theft.

DEAR ABBY: Our dad, age 60, divorced our mom five years ago, after 26 years of marriage. There are six children. Dad is soon to be married to a divorced woman with three grown children and grandchildren. Shortly after our parents' divorce, Dad inherited a substantial amount of money because of the death of his mother and his aunt. Both his mother (our grandmother) and his aunt had intended that the six of us would be remembered through our father.

Would it be appropriate for us to ask Dad to make a prenuptial agreement to ensure our grandmother's and aunt's wishes are honored?

THE WONDERING SIX

DEAR WONDERING SIX: I have said many times that a prenuptial agreement is a good idea for couples with property and children from previous marriages. However, the person to discuss that subject with your father should be his attorney, because although it shouldn't be, the issue is often emotionally charged.

Call your dad's attorney and suggest he (or she) talk to your father about prenuptial agreements.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69408, Los Angeles, Calif. 90068. All correspondence is confidential.)

What's next for Seminole County, an NFL team?

If you're a sports fan, 1997 has been a pretty good time to be in Seminole County. Quick, name any county in the state, in fact, any county in the entire country, that has experienced the kind of success as Seminole County athletes in 1997.

Think about it. Tiny Seminole County, one of the smaller ones in the state, has produced the U.S. Amateur champion in golf, the American Legion baseball champion, a state champion in baseball, two state finalists in basketball, a state champion in track and field, and three new major league baseball players.

All that to go with a member of the world champion New York Yankees.

Let's start with golf. To the rest of the country, Matt Kuchar is a young golfer who just joined Tiger Woods, Phil Mickelson, Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer as a U.S. Amateur champion.

To the folks at Heathrow and Seminole High Schools, he is still the kid who lugged his bag up and down the fairways of Heathrow and Sabal Point with big time dreams.

Who woulda thunk he'd end up with his name on the Wannamaker Trophy signifying the best amateur golfer in the country?

One day later, Seminole, Lake Mary and Oviedo High School celebrated a national baseball championship, signifying the best amateur baseball team in the country. It will be a long time before anyone who was at the Orlando International Airport last night forgets the smiles on the faces of the kids who traveled to South Dakota and came home with a title. Chris Louwama, C3 Williams, Chaz Lytle, Andy Neufeld, Aaron Black and Tim Raines did the county proud with a big comeback in the final inning of the final game.

Amazingly, the Sanford Post 53 team that won it didn't include anyone from Lake Brantley, the pitching powerhouse that left Tampa with a state championship in June. Robbie Sitz, Tanner Brock and the boys were rarely threatened and fired no-hitters as often as any team in state history.

Rewind back to March when the Oviedo boys and Lake Mary girls came one win away from a state championship. Oviedo got hot and played smart basketball before a tough loss in the finals, and the Lake Mary girls lost only once before a three-point loss in the finals. The Lady Rams have just about everybody back this fall and have been in the gym almost non-stop since then.

Tamara Gilchrist of Seminole went out and got herself a state title in the shot put in May while the Seminole boys track team won districts for about the 100th straight year.

Let's not forget a few other achievements, some on the academic level.

Tam Hopkins of Lake Howell, maybe the best lineman in the history of the county, signed on with Ohio State and Silver Hawks' coach Mike Buscaglia said Hopkins is already number two on the Buckeye depth chart.

Shaun St. Dennis and Donnie Casey of Lake Mary are headed for Connecticut to join Recollen and Ronel Jumpp, forming possibly an all-Lake Mary backfield for the Huskies.

Of course, there were plenty of other Seminole County athletes who signed on with colleges to continue their athletic careers.

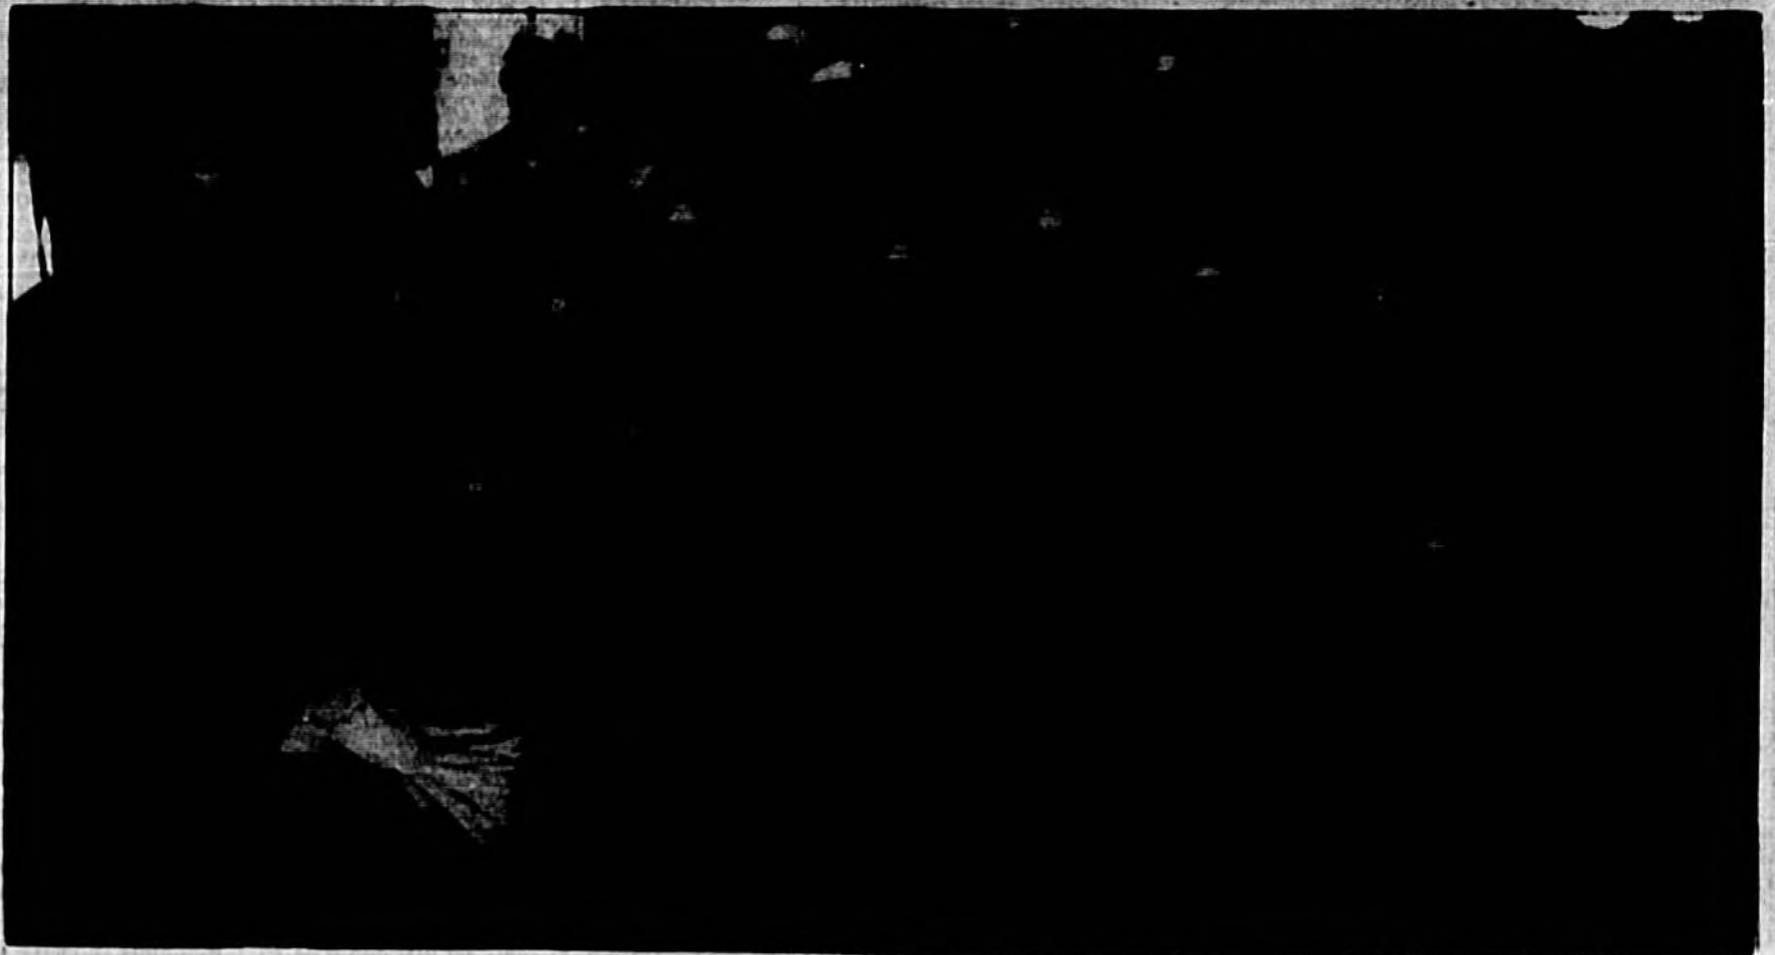

Then, there were the Lake Howell cheerleaders who recently won the national championship on ESPN. Don't forget the Seminole and Lake Mary dance teams who once again achieved national success.

Then, there are the kids. Both Altamonte springs Babe Ruth teams went on to the Babe Ruth World Series to meet the best teams in the country.

Ad don't forget Lake Mary's Pam Davis who just completed her third season with the Colorado Silver Bullets professional women's baseball team. She put together a winning record and was the ace of the team which has toured the country since its inception.

Welcome home, champs

Members of the Sanford Post 53 team posed for one final picture after bringing home the world championship from South Dakota. The team arrived at Orlando International Airport last night to a welcoming party of about 50 friends and family members.

After a long day in the sky, the Sanford Post 53 national champs finally came home

By JEFF BERLINICKE
Herald Staff Writer

It was a tired, haggard-looking bunch that came off the airplane at Orlando International Airport last night.

All they wanted to do was go home and get ready for their school classes which started early this morning.

But that would have to wait. Last night, a contingent of about 50 people greeted the national champions Sanford Post 53 baseball team upon its return from South Dakota.

The players spent nearly 12 hours getting home, flying first to Denver, then non-stop to Orlando but the trip was well worth it.

"This is an amazing group of kids," said Seminole coach Mike Powers as he waited for his players to disembark. "We had some tough times but we were able to put three schools together and it's a group I'll remember forever."

His smile said more than his words ever could.

Finally, the plane landed and the players came off, all wearing their red and blue American Legion shirts along with matching caps which said "World Champs" on the back. They were immediately cheered and mobbed by friends, family members and the media as several television cameras filmed the homecoming.

Chris Louwama, one of several Sanford heroes, was one of the first ones off the plane. It was his opposite field three-run homer that broke an 8-8 tie in the bottom of the six to clinch the championship. Louwama is a quiet third baseman but, on the way around the bases, he threw his arm into the air several times as his teammates swarmed out of the dugout.

"I just waited on the pitch I wanted," Louwama said. "I was just looking to drive in some runs. It hasn't hit me yet but, with all these people here, it's starting to sink in."

Like everyone on the Post 53 team, Louwama said he never lost confidence, even after Sanford fell down, 8-2 early in the championship game.

"We were down, but we've been down before," Louwama said. "It's the same situation we've been in all year and we had plenty of pitching left."

Philip Eubanks agreed. "We just forgot about it," Eubanks said. "We were down 8-2 and we've been in that situation before. It was de ja vu."

One of the many unsung heroes for Sanford was pitcher and outfielder Chaz Lytle, but it was his relief pitching that held Medford, Oregon at bay and gave Sanford a chance to come back. He was also the pitcher unlucky enough to be at the bottom of the pile when Sanford recorded the final out.

"All at once I got smashed by our catcher Jeremy Frost. He picked me up and threw me in the air and then the whole team jumped on me," Lytle remembered. "I couldn't breathe."

The team was made up of several players from Lake Mary and Oviedo, but predominately Seminole High. The 'Noles have most of their team returning next year and Lytle said he feels pretty confident now that he and his teammates have experienced such success.

"I think we have a squad that will be tournament tough next year," he said.

Of all the heroes that came off the plane, it was coach Rod Ferguson that had the biggest smile. Ferguson is an assistant for the Seminole baseball team but he was greeted with a big hug from Powers last night.

"I never knew if it would all come together," Ferguson said. "We think we're the most balanced team in the country and I'm just so happy for the kids."

Instead of taking credit for a big motivational speech that may have sparked the winning rally, Ferguson said simply, "We didn't come this far to lose."

Today everyone on the team headed for class, some back to high school, others for their first day of college. It's been a long summer of baseball and memories for Sanford, the Amateur Baseball Capital of the World.

Lyman bowler Kelly McCandless has overcome adversity to become an outstanding scholar athlete.

Striking out adversity

By COURTNEY LEFFEW
Herald Correspondent

Lyman senior, Kelly McCandless is making a striking difference.

Wednesday afternoon, the county schools bowling teams began the season with their annual pre-season bowling tournament.

McCandless started her freshman year with no bowling experience and a hearing impairment. She wanted to be involved in an activity but was not an athlete. A friend convinced McCandless to try out for the team and with her average only a 75, a lot of hard work was ahead of her.

Practice is what she did, increasing her best score to 245. McCandless has also been on the Aloma Bowling Center League for three years. The league practices every Saturday morning. After a father of a teammate saw her bowling, he asked if she would like to play on his league too. Her mom said, "Doing this has really boosted her self-esteem."

Moving to Seminole County

13 years ago from Pennsylvania, McCandless has adjusted well. She takes piano lessons and is playing at a nursing home next week. McCandless also takes a ceramics and aerobics class. As a young girl she was actively involved in the girl scouts for seven years and gymnastics for 12 years.

Even with being so involved in all of her extra curricular activities McCandless still makes the honor roll and spends about two hours each day studying in that little time she has free. She has also taken Child Care classes throughout high school and said Lyman has the best program in the county for that area of study.

Graduating in May, McCandless plans on a career in art but really isn't sure yet. Seminole Community College is one college she has in mind for next fall. Her advice to her peers is to never give up. Looking at her accomplishments will hopefully provide a positive role model for other students and hearing impaired children.

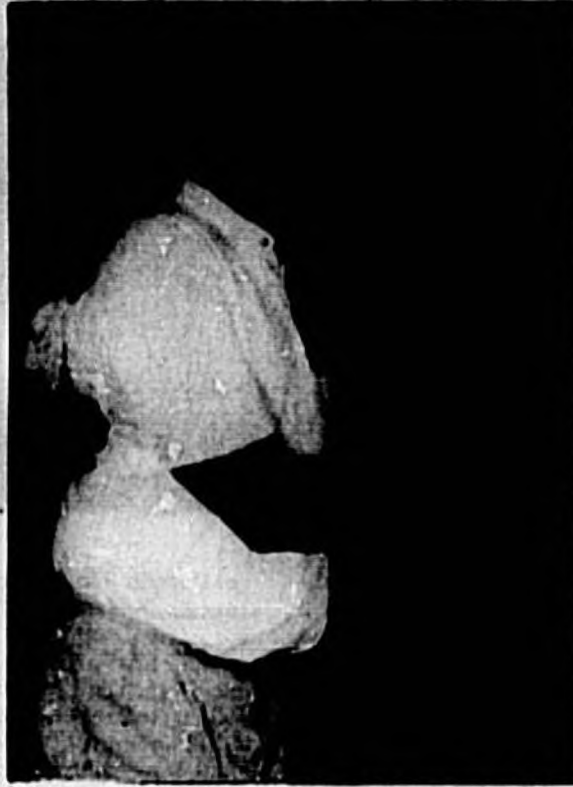

Winter Springs High School starts today

Winter Springs High School will host its first event since students started attending two weeks ago. A girls volleyball tournament will begin at 4 p.m. this afternoon featuring all six of Seminole County's varsity teams. Here, Jeannie Manz of Lake Mary, a Final Four state participant last season, returns a shot during the Rams run through qualifying.

Champs come home

Members of the Sanford Post 53 baseball team came home last night after a stunning run to the world championship in South Dakota. Among the

How serious is myelofibrosis?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has to receive 2 pints of blood every two to three weeks because of myelofibrosis. How prevalent is this disease and what is the prognosis?

DEAR READER: Idiopathic myelofibrosis (IMF) is a chronic disease, usually of unknown cause, marked by fibrosis (withering) of the bone marrow, anemia and enlargement of the spleen. Probably as a reaction to bone-marrow failure, alternative sites of blood-cell formation appear in the liver and spleen.

IMF is often called agnogenic myeloid metaplasia; it can be a consequence of tuberculosis, X-ray poisoning, polycythemia vera (excess red blood cells), leukemia and other cancers. The disease is unusual but not rare.

Prognosis is guarded; although treatment of the underlying disease (infection, cancer, etc.) may arrest the symptoms of fatigue and weight loss, many cases of IMF do not respond satisfactorily to therapy. Blood transfusions may temporarily alleviate the anemia. However, there is no standard treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My pediatrician has just told us that our 6-month old daughter has a slight heart murmur. He assures us that this is quite common in newborns and that we shouldn't worry about it. But can this lead to serious heart problems later in life? Are there certain things we should watch for in her development?

DEAR READER: Heart murmurs in children are extremely common. Although some childhood murmurs may reflect underlying cardiac disease (your pediatrician is the best judge of that), most murmurs are entirely harmless. Doctors call them "functional" and they are heard as "shhh" sounds between the "lub" and "dub" of the normal heart tones.

Functional murmurs may persist until youngsters enter their late teens; then, as young people attain full growth, the murmurs disappear. As a general rule, murmurs of infancy do not represent or lead to heart disease. They do not alter normal development, but obviously, you and your pediatrician will want to monitor your daughter's growth pattern. Such monitoring is appropriate for all children, whether or not they have murmurs.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is the difference between colitis and a spastic colon? How are they treated?
DEAR READER: Colitis means

diagnosis and careful medical supervision.

Spastic colon, on the other hand, is more a nuisance than a disease. It is caused by unexplained contractions of the intestine's muscular walls. These spasms may result from excessive nervous stimulation arising in the brain. For example, some people develop diarrhea when under stress. For certain individuals, this seems to be an unpleasant but predictable reaction. Anti-spasmodic, psychological counseling, biofeedback and medication are methods by which spastic colon can be treated and sometimes cured.

Where does that name come from?

By Phillip Alder

It can be easy to misinterpret the derivation of a place's name. For example, where does the name Buenos Aires come from?

In many sports, when you did something that worked out well but might have backfired, it can be said that you had a favorable wind behind you. Here, South was in four spades. West led the diamond eight. East won with the queen, cashed the ace, and continued with the king, which West ruffed with the spade jack. A heart to East's ace gave the defenders the first four tricks. Did East defend perfectly, or did he have a warm wind wafting behind him? North's advance of three spades invited game. This interpretation is out of favor in the modern tournament game, where three spades would be pre-emptive and North would have to cue-bid two diamonds to invite game in spades. Yet this deal was played some 20 years ago in Anaheim. East was lucky. Suppose South has the spade jack and West the heart king. Then, declarer ruffs the third diamond in the dummy, draws trumps, and runs the clubs, claiming an over-trick.

At trick three, East should cash the heart ace and watch West's signal. If West has the king, he plays a high heart, asking for a continuation. But with the given layout, West drops his lowest heart. East reverts to diamonds to defeat the contract. Buenos Aires isn't so-named because it is full of good air. When the first Spaniards arrived, they paid tribute to the patron saint of seamen, Santa Maria de los Buenos Aires (Saint Mary of the Good Winds), by naming the area for her.

Lake Mary's Friday Night Fever

It takes a village to make a Friday night a reality

By JEFF BERENICK
10/1/95

The lights go on two Fridays a year at Don Reynolds Stadium on the campus of Lake Mary, most like they go on at thousands of others all over the country.

The next day, the scores and factors are in the paper.

What is it in the paper, or the hundreds of pages who make it all possible? The players have it the easiest.

Glory comes to them, scholarship offers are placed before them and they fight off the fans after each game.

No one sees the student trainer picking up tape that the star tackle just flung to the ground.

No one sees the cheerleader with a sprained ankle.

No one sees the concession stand workers wiping the sweat from their faces.

But they are the ones who make Friday nights possible.

'Never seen a play'

The game is over and Mary football players are walking away from the field.

For 12, 40 years, the game has been played on the campus of Lake Mary High School, but home football games have been there for seasons that led to a Rotary Bowl trophy and seasons that led to a championship.

It's a labor of love, and Sue Croll loves every minute of it.

She is the lady that dishes out the hamburgers and hot dogs and blow pops and makes sure that everybody wants to come back for more.

Sue Croll is the person who runs the concessions stands at Lake Mary football games and she is just as important to the program as Doug Peters or anyone else

Big game during a football game at Lake Mary when the crowd is in full swing.

Seminoles: Where are they now

By COURTNEY LEFTEW
Herald Staff Writer

Every day you hear about the big-shot football stars with names like Aikman, Sanders and Favre. Just to name a few.

But what about the guys who passed on going professional, former Seminole standouts like Tipton, Whigham and Gray?

The guys who chose a normal life-style and those to be involved with their Sanford community instead of the million dollar salaries?

What ever happen to them?

If you ever need a lawyer...

This man may seem familiar to Sanford residents if you've ever needed a lawyer.

Mike Gray was born in North Alabama but moved with his family to Sanford as a child. He graduated from Seminole High in 1966. Seminole's football coach at the time was Duck Metts who Gray says was a big influence. When asked about why he chose football out of all the other sports to play he simply replied it was the "in" thing to do.

Playing football has changed for the better he feels saying, "Today you don't just be an athlete. You have to also be a good student. Back then athletes were given extra privileges and accepted to schools on athletic ability alone."

Gray didn't move far to go to college, choosing Florida State University while in college. Gray majored in criminology.

Married in 1970, Gray went into the navy for six years and got to travel around the world which he enjoyed.

Still in Sanford, Gray owns his own law firm. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the St. Johns Water Management governing board, and does private charity work. Being involved is important to him but he understands how difficult it is in today's mobile society.

Still a fan of the Seminoles
Frank Whigham was born in Opp,

Ala. in 1948 and graduated from Seminole in 1966. Whigham started playing football when he was in the seventh grade and he said his whole family has always been involved in the game but that he had no aspirations to pursue it professionally.

Whigham was always a fan of Florida State, and, since his wife also attended the school, the decision to attend FSU was not difficult. He registered with the football team and played for the Seminoles three years. His undergraduate major was Business, but he went on to law school.

"I just liked law and decided to go for it," said Whigham.

Not wanting to be far from home Whigham and his wife moved back to Sanford.

After graduating from FSU, Whigham was brought into Stenstrom, McIntosh, Whigham, and Simmons Law Firm. Now a partner of the

"They must take something away with them in order for me to feel like I've done my job as coach."
-Lake Brantley coach George Clayton

It's a whole new ballgame at 4 schools

By KELLIE WERNER
 Herald Staff Writer

Tradition.
 It is perhaps the biggest part of Seminole County football.

This year, however, a little of that tradition has been replaced with new talent, strategies and styles.

Four schools will have new coaches patrolling their sidelines starting this Friday. Lake Brantley, Oviedo and Seminole are under new management, so to speak, and the transitions appear to be going very smoothly. And the brand new Winter Springs High School, although the varsity program won't be off and running for at least a year, has more than just a new football coach.

Under unfortunate circumstances, George Clayton has taken over the driver's seat for the Patriots. Lake Brantley's long time coach, Fred Almon suffered a heart attack last season and decided to retire from coaching. Clayton has been an assistant to Almon for the past 10 years and is ready to carry on his winning tradition.

"Last year, I took over in the middle of the season for a few games until Almon came back to finish out the remainder of the games, so it's not like this is exactly brand new," Clayton said. "I was hoping that Coach Almon would be returning for at least another year, but things just didn't work out that way. I am very happy about getting the head coaching position, but I would have liked it to happen under better circumstances."

The players will not have any trouble adapting to Clayton's style, however. Having been an assistant for so long, he is very familiar with the program and plans to only add some of his own experiences to what he knows already works.

That experience comes from over 25 years of teaching and coaching.

Born in Houston, Texas, Clayton played football in high school and really never wanted to do anything except teach and coach. After graduating from Buchell University (in Texas) with a degree in Education, Clayton began doing what he always wanted. In fact, he did it in Texas, Ohio and Pennsylvania before moving to Florida 10 years ago.

"I had gotten out of teaching for a little while," Clayton explained, "although I didn't stop coaching. I missed teaching and when I decided to get back into it, I decided to move to Florida. I had a couple of job offers and decided that Lake Brantley best fit my wants and needs."

And he fit into Lake Brantley. Clayton spends as much time away from Lake Brantley as with his family as possible. He is married and has three children, all boys. The oldest is a sophomore at Florida State University, the middle is a sophomore at Lake Brantley and his youngest is a student at Teague Middle School.

When he's not on the field or with his family, Clayton is in the classroom exposing students to the wonderful world of math. He has also taught English but now sticks to numbers. Teaching is what he always wanted to do for a profession while coaching is what he's always wanted to do for fun.

Fun, however, isn't all that the players get out of football. In fact, there's a lot of hard work going on at Lake Brantley in the heat of the afternoons. Clayton is very intent on continuing the winning tradition at Lake Brantley and believes that good things come through hard work.

"Although our demeanors may not be the same," Clayton said, "Coach Almon and I have the same philosophies. We want each and every player who comes through the Lake Brantley program to be better in some way. Either as an athlete, a student or a person, they must take something away with them in order for me to feel like I've done my job as a coach."

With the transition period basically over and practice under way, Clayton is doing just that, his job. He's ready to meet the other coaches in the county...on the field.

One of the coaches that Clayton will meet is also a new head coach, although he is not new to the area.

Greg Register has also been an assistant coach at Oviedo for several years so he is familiar with the competition he will face.

Born and raised in Sanford, Register graduated from Seminole High School in 1982, earning varsity letters in both baseball and football. He attended Seminole Community College and then a university in Kentucky where he played baseball. Register transferred back to UCF as Kentucky was not for him, and completed his degree in Math Education in 1987. In 1992, he completed his Masters Degree in Administration from Nova.

"My father was a college professor," Register explained. "I think that's probably where I got my desire to teach. And because I played sports, I knew that if I was going to be teaching, I also wanted to coach."

Register's first teaching and coaching jobs were at his Alma Mater. There he went from varsity defensive line coach to head freshmen coach and back to varsity defensive coordinator. Once back with the varsity squad, Register helped lead the Seminoles to their last district title.

About five years ago, Register transferred to Oviedo High School where he still teaches Pre-Calculus and Algebra I. He was the head freshmen coach for two years before again moving to the varsity level to become the defensive coordinator.

Then Register got a big break. With the retirement of long-time Oviedo head coach Jack Blanton, Register was named head coach of the varsity squad.

"I am very lucky that I was selected to be the new head coach," Register said. "And I'm very excited. The transition hasn't been too difficult because I don't want to make huge

Staying involved

Clifford Martin, came to Seminole from Crooms High School when he was in the 10th grade. Desegregation had just started, so Martin was able to play for the Seminole football team his remaining three years although his mother wanted him to focus more on his education.

Martin always had a love for the game and admired the great Eddie Robinson, the winningest coach in NCAA history. He graduated from Seminole in 1970 and decided to continue his education at Grambling University, where he played football and got his degree in Business Administration. He played semi-pro ball for three years and practiced with the New England Patriots.

Keeping focused is the advice he gives to younger generations and old. He stays involved in the community working with the Boys and Girls Club along with his own business.

Ramming away the question marks

By JEFF BERLINICKE
 Herald Staff Writer

The scene around coach Doug Peters' office around 2:30 p.m. is one of unorganized chaos.

That's because, with a week left before opening night, there are still question marks surrounding the Rams, not to mention an awful lot of new faces.

After losing most of his offensive weapons from last season, Peters still has a confident feeling but it's probable that he won't feel great until he sees what the newcomers can actually do.

The players gone from last season read like a Who's Who of Lake Mary football history. Quarterback Shaun St. Dennis, running backs Drew Young and transfer Shane Oliver and Danny Johnson are among those gone from the offense. Brian Pinckney, Jason Wyse and Richard Badger are gone from the defense and Peters won't be able to depend on the always reliable Kris Kessler for his kicking game.

Last season, the Rams slipped to a 5-5 record but never lost by more than seven points. Included in the heart-breaking season were overtime losses to Lake Brantley and Lake Howell, both decided by two-point conversions, one by Lake Howell which worked and one by the Rams that didn't.

Still, things aren't completely bleak, especially on the defensive side of the ball this season.

Offense

Cory Cooper is the new quarterback in town and has never taken a varsity snap. Peters, a former quarterback at Lyman, debated going with an option offense but, for now, Cooper is the man.

"He's very catchable and he has a great arm," Peters said.

Robbie Randall and Lawrence Rudolph will be carrying the load at running back this season and Randall can be the difference between winning and losing. He is a track star who never played organized football until last season. He's a little bit raw fundamentally, but Peters knows that if Randall can touch the ball 30 times per game, he's bound to break a few.

Cooper will be looking downfield at Tim Spivey, a newcomer to Lake Mary, and last year's backup Richard Quinones, along with Nick Bailey and Matt Fanning who are battling for the starting job at tight end.

Tremaine Gaines and Jason Boehm lead a big offensive line.

Defense

This is where the Rams will sink or swim. Cam Carter and newcomer Kyle Cocita are the anchors at linebacker and Matt Stevenson has left to move to defensive end after spending the off-season bulking up.

At defensive back, Justin Wright is as good as anyone in the Seminole Athletic Conference and hauled in eight interceptions last season, including three in one game against Lyman.

Dustin Lord and Shawn Gray, both returnees from last season, will join Stevenson on the line and Ryan Dichiera is making a bid for more playing time up front.

In the defensive backfield, Tony Martin returns along with Ryan Adamson and backup quarterback Adonis Smith.

The kicking game is the big question. Cooper will probably get the nod at punter but, after eight years of Kessler, Peters is in a bind he has never experienced. That includes pitching Lake Mary football to the soccer team.

Coach Peter said:

"I see us as a contender. Robbie should get the ball 25 times a game

Matt Stevenson bulked up during the off-season and will move from linebacker to defensive end for the Rams.

and I think we'll turn out a lot better last year, at least in the top three or four in the county."

Everything going for Good
 Mike Good a graduate of Seminole in 1976 started playing football in the ninth grade, encouraged by his mother who loved the game. After many people had told him to go to college where you are going to work and live, Good decided Florida State was the right choice. At the time just getting a degree was important and Good did not know his life plans therefore Criminology sounded like a great major.

An opportunity to play professional football came Good's way. He signed with the Miami Dolphins as a free agent, but was released. Going home gave him the opportunity to work at his dad's business, a small paving company. While working for his dad the Los Angeles Rams approached him for a tryout but Good replied, "no thanks."

Good says now, "I saw what a numbers game it was and that was not for me."

He remembers as a child he had two things going for him which helped: being an athlete and working at Mayfair Country Club where he got to meet a lot of people. Good continued working with his dad for three years and then bought the company.

With a growing business Good also managed to have three children, two girls and one boy. He is involved in the Lake Mary Pop Warner Football League, on the Board of Christian Sharing Center, and the Board of Sanford Rescue Mission.

"It's a great opportunity to shape these boys. It is also a family event with my wife coaching the cheerleaders," said Good.

His daughter is on the cheerleader squad, his son on the football team, and his other little girl, just a spectator for now, is six.

Good has everything going for him, a major construction business of 250 people; Briar Corporation, a loving family, and a wonderful community that he enjoys being involved in. Who could ask for much more?

From Seminole to the Super Bowl

Anyone who keeps up with football should know this man.

Reggie Branch has made a name for himself in the NFL, but does all the fame pay off in the long run?

Before graduating from Seminole in 1980, Branch watched New England Patriot running back Tony Collins play football as a child and said to himself, "If he can do it so can I."

And that's actually what he did.

After finishing at Seminole, he was influenced to attend West Virginia State University. Since he was not offered a scholarship, he first looked toward the marines, which he said many of his friends did then. But after one year at the university as a walk-on and a broken ankle, he decided West Virginia State was not the right place for him. Transferring to East Carolina - Collins' alma mater - to continue his education was Branch's next move.

Branch decide on majoring in Criminology instead of Business Management. No matter what his choice Branch knew whatever God had planned for him is what he was going to do and still lives by that philosophy today.

After using his eligibility at East Carolina, Branch was signed by the Washington Redskins where he participated in two Super Bowls.

His time is still limited with flying from different cities across the country to do charity engagements, although one day he would like to come back home to Sanford.

Laying down the law

Carl Tipton got involved in football at a very young age with the encouragement of his father, who also happen to be his role model. He remembers playing flag football with the Sanford Recreational Department as a boy. Tipton then went on to play with Pop Warner Football.

A graduate of Seminole in 1986, Tipton decided to head for Kentucky Wesleyan University, where current Seminole baseball coach Mike Powers had gone. With the help and inspiration of Powers, Tipton studied Criminal Justice and played in the NCAA Division III for his four years. Missing Florida while at college, Tipton moved back to Sanford to start his career.

"I always knew I wanted to do something that involved law enforcement," said Tipton.

Tipton is a deputy for the Seminole County Sheriff's Department now.

Remembering what a great experience he had had as a child with Pop Warner, Tipton took up coaching. He feels being involved in the community is important and Sanford needs good role models. For the last six years Tipton has been coaching, he sees many boys without fathers and says he really tries to be there for them. On Friday nights he tries to take them for pizza, rolling skating, and so forth. Although with a wife and son now, his spare time is limited but he still coaches the boys.

In the future, Tipton hopes to advance Seminole County Sheriff's Department and work with his son at football.

These former graduates are prime examples of giving a little something back to the community that supported them. The gentlemen don't have millions...but to some they have something more precious than money.

"If you expect to win, you have a much better chance of winning."
-Seminole football coach Jim Worthington

New-look Seminoles are loaded

Confidence.

A lack of it can devastate a football team.

Having it can take a team almost anywhere they want to go.

This year, a very confident Seminole team will hit the field and quite possibly still be on it long after the regular season is over.

At least that's where new head coach Jim Worthington is hoping to be after the end of season brawl with cross town rival Lake Mary.

After playing football in high school and then attending Duke University, where he played his senior year under Steve Spurrier, Worthington began coaching high school football.

Worthington comes to Seminole with three winning seasons at Pine Ridge under his belt. He also brings the years of playing and coaching which have molded his coaching style.

More importantly, he brings confidence.

"I am a firm believer in positive thinking. If you expect to win, you have a much better chance of winning. I have set very high expectations for the players and set simple rules. All of the kids have a really good attitude and have responded to the system. I truly believe in and like all of my players."

Whether or not the kids like Worthington, they respect him. And he has taught them to respect themselves.

Last year, a lack of confidence coupled with too many players switching back and forth from offense to defense led to a 3-7 season record.

Seminole's Garrett Goldsmith is one of six new quarterbacks expected to start this fall. He handled the freshman team last season.

This season, that same team is composed of two very powerful units who believe that they are good, that they can win and that they can achieve their goals of a district championship and post season play.

Offense

Every team needs a strong offensive line in order to put points on the board.

With that in mind, Seminole High School should hit triple digits in every game.

That's not exactly true. What is true, however, is that the offensive line is the strength of the unit.

Last year, the offense was hardly able to complete a pass and the running game was fairly successful until too many players had to play both offense and defense. The offensive unit just wore out by the third quarter of the game and was unable to execute. The line couldn't hardly stand up, much less protect anyone.

That is the first thing that Worthington changed this year.

"If we can stay healthy, we can score," Worthington said. "Forcing kids to play on both sides of the ball so that they're on the field without a break will not keep us healthy. There are a few players who will need to do a little double duty. But as little as possible."

The offensive line is composed of six very large and very tough players.

Dryan Roberts (6'1, 200) is returning at the guard position, joined by junior Jeremy Taylor (5'11, 200) on the opposite side. Youngest on the line is the middle man, sophomore center Kelvin Rushing (6' , 235). Tackles Rob Legenhansen (6'2, 293) and Jeff Faine (6'3, 300) also return to the line-up. Rounding out the offensive line is tight end Clint Murray (6'2, 235).

Protecting sophomore quarterback Garrett Goldsmith (5'10, 163) will be the main focus of the line. Goldsmith had a very impressive season last year at the junior varsity level and Worthington is very happy with his summer and pre-season workouts.

For the running attack, Joe Knight (5'8, 190) will be the key back. He had a tremendous performance in the spring jamboree before being removed from the game with a twisted ankle. Knight could possibly have a 1,000 yard season if he remains healthy.

Joining him in the back field will be Deon Howard (5'9, 175) and Landon Carden (5'8, 170).

If Goldsmith chooses an air attack, Erick Smith (6'0, 170) and Ned Raines (5'8, 150) will be rotating the position. Both seniors are returning this year are looking forward to having a winning season.

If the line can protect Goldsmith and make holes big enough for Knight to get through, this Seminole offense should be doing a lot of dances in the end zone.

The 'Noles won't have to worry about coming away with only six points with kicker Jason Armstrong in the line up. Armstrong is primed to beat the record for the longest field goal in the district and is already being heavily recruited by some of the top Division I schools in the country.

Defense

Seven seniors are returning to the defense this year. Last year, the unit kept the Seminoles in every game, making up for the inabilities of the offense.

This year should only find the defense a little stronger, a little more experienced, and a little more determined.

Sophomore Johnnie McKinnon (5'10, 242) and senior Therrell Dilligard (6'1, 190) will fill the defensive end positions. At tackle, seniors Marlowe Alexander (5'8, 225) and Marcus Durr

'Noles try to block out losing seasons

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

After practice, the offensive line was tired.

They fell into the grass, in a semi-circle, trying to catch their breath.

As soon as they were asked how they expected the season to go and how they were going to win, they suddenly found their second wind and six teenagers started grinning like children on Christmas morning.

"We're going to stick together this season and win because we are a team," senior guard Bryan Roberts said.

"When we feel like things are getting tough and we want to give up, we feed off of each other," right tackle Jeff Faine said. "We push each other to go on because we want to win and we want to be playing when the regular season is over."

If these guys can keep that energy level and continue to work hard, they could become one of the most feared offensive lines in the county.

Seniors Rob Legenhausen and Roberts have already taken leadership roles on this very powerful line. In just a few short months, they have learned a lot from their new coach, Jim Worthington, on how to motivate

"Last year when we felt that the guys weren't working hard enough, we would yell at them and put them down," Legenhausen said. "But we've learned that yelling at someone only discourages them. Now we try to explain what the guys can do to improve and pep them up to do better."

The strategy appears to be working. Joining the seniors on the line are juniors Jeremy Taylor (right guard) and Clint Murray (left end) and sophomore center Kelvin Rushing.

This line takes their job very seriously. They would take it personally if their running back didn't have a hole to run through. And they would feel terrible if first time starting quarterback Garrett Goldsmith wasn't able to get a pass off or was sacked.

Their belief is that if they think of the game like it's personal, they will work harder to protect each other and not give up even if they are so tired they want to quit.

"This line has to stick together," Taylor said. "We are the only protection that the quarterback and the back field have. When one of us is having a hard time, we feed off of each other and give each other the motivation to go on."

And the unit sticks together both on and off of the field. Even in school, they meet between classes and plan after school activities that they can all do together. They spend time with each other on the weekends and support each other with school work and problems.

Most of the reason for the change is offensive line coach Joe Rago. The players have nothing but nice things to say about the man that drives them to exhaustion at practice and constantly urges them to do better.

"Coach Rago is such an important influence on us," Murray said. "He's the one who taught us to pull together and not get down on each other if something went wrong."

"And he's also given us the confidence to know that we can do anything if we work hard enough for it and want it bad enough," Rushing added.

In all, as the players made their way to the locker room, together, it was obvious that this unit was going to accomplish a lot this season.

And they're going to accomplish it the same way...together.

Secondary to none

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

The Fearsome Foursome?

If the Seminole defensive secondary has anything to say about it, they just could be.

Ned Raines (corner back), Bobby Williams (free safety), Erick Smith (corner back) and Arnick Footman (free safety) are hoping to be the talk of the county before this season is over.

"We honestly believe that we are some of the best backs in the state."

Smith said. "We have worked really hard and we have stepped up our play. We intend to go out onto the field for every game and give 110 percent."

There's a little bit of confidence on this secondary.

And it's well deserved.

Each of the four players can run the 40 in under 45 seconds. Their speed allows them to get to receivers before the ball can and position themselves to intercept. And they're hoping to do a lot of that this season.

 - Lake Brantley football coach George Clayton

Lake Brantley goes on the defensive

By KELLIE WERNER
 Herald Staff Writer

There are a lot of new faces on the Lake Brantley football team this year. Eighteen players are gone from the team that tied for the district championship title just a few short months ago.

In the final game of last season, Lake Brantley ceded by Lake Mary, thanks to a foiled fake kick. With seconds left on the clock, Lake Mary scored a surprising 63 yard touch-down to cut their deficit to one. The call came in, fake the field goal and toss the ball to kicker Kris Kesler (now at Louisiana State University) for the two point conversion.

Kesler ended up a few yards short and Lake Brantley ended up in a three way play-off for the district. The Patriots traveled to Winter Park to play a "Kansas Tie-Breaker" and defeated Oviedo before falling to Lake Howell.

Although many seniors are returning this year, the Patriots will still be a young team.

First year head coach (just one of the new faces in the crowd) George Clayton isn't going to let that be any type of an excuse.

Clayton has had a little experience as the lead man on the side line. After an unfortunate heart attack kept long time head coach Fred Almon at home resting for a few Frklay nights, Clayton kept things rolling until Almon returned. He did return, however but only until the end of the season, much to the surprise of everyone.

"I thought Fred would be around for at least a few more years," Clayton said. "But after a lot of thought, he decided that he wanted to retire. I was very happy to be named as the head coach. I just wish it would have happened under better circumstances."

Quarterback Brian Criswell is set to take the reins for the Patriots this fall.

Regardless of the circumstances, Clayton has a team to ready for the coming season. He has a lot of talent on his team despite losing some of the best players in the county.

"Obviously you cannot just replace 18 players," Clayton said. "However, there is a winning tradition here that has been building for 10 years. The underclassmen are anxious to start the season and the seniors know that it is their turn to step up and lead the way to success."

Offense, along with those seniors, will be leading the way for this young team.

New defensive coordinator, Bill Cogel, who was at Seminole last year, will be making sure, however, that his defense is able to hold up their end of the bargain.

In all, this team is taking its strength from tradition...and a few good sized new faces.

Offense

This is the definite strong point of the team. Lead by first year starter, Brian Criswell at the quarterback position, the rest of the team will build around the strong unit. Criswell (6'3, 180) has a very good arm and should be able to easily find wide receivers Danny Criswell, Kyle Landry, Shane Beaver, Trey Keeley and James Russ. Landry is coming off of a big spring game against Seminole and although throwing is not a large part of Lake Brantley's offense, he will definitely be the go to guy.

Criswell will not have to rely on his strong arm much, however, with running backs like full back Ryan Pegan in his back field.

One of the seniors on the team, Pegan will be looked to for leadership as well as ball carrying. In the district playoff games last year, Pegan carried the ball three times on the Patriot's final drive, giving them the win over Oviedo and the chance to play Lake Howell for the district championship.

Along with the losses to graduation last year were five out of the six starting offensive linemen, two of whom were All-Staters. Anton Shealy (6'3, 280) will have the difficult task of replacing Jimmy Herndon, last year's second best offensive lineman in the county who is expected to play as a true freshman this year at the University of Central Florida. Right tackle, Mark Perry (6'1, 220) will also be looked to as a key offensive player.

"It's been a little bit harder for me to coach the offense," Clayton explained, "because I really haven't had to coach them for two years. I had the same guys for two years and I could just tell them to 'sick em' and they would. These guys are making great improvements and have a strong base of talent to build off of."

Defense

A whole new system of defense has hit Lake Brantley. With the addition of Bill Cogel to the staff, the name of the game is swarm.

A very important part of the Cogel defense is to watch the ball at all times and swarm to it if it happens to get loose. There will be some pretty big players swarming for any loose object.

"Our defense has always been focused on turning the ball over," Clayton said. "Any defense wants to get the ball back to the offense as often and as soon as possible. Coach Cogel, however, is instilling in them the importance of watching the ball at all times and getting to it as quickly as possible."

Senior Marcus Hawkins (6'2, 220) will be returning this year at the line-backer position. His work will be cut out for him in trying to be the next Daryl Bush. Bush is in his senior year at Florida State and is a leading candidate for defensive player of the year as well as a possible Heisman Trophy candidate. In addition to his superior play on the field, Bush is a star in the classroom, maintaining a 4.0 grade point average. He is truly an example of how to do football the right way for the Lake Brantley players that will follow him.

Williams (5'10, 185) and Tony Deavers (5'0, 185) will once again team up to wreak havoc on any team that dares infringe on their side of the line.

Williams was a very important member of the defense last year and made several key interceptions. This season, he will be looked to for a leadership role on the Patriot defense. His ability to be right where the pass is fits in nicely with the new "swarm" defense.

The defensive tackling duo of seniors Greg Springer (6'3, 236) and Robbie Beck (6'0, 220) will also be back in full force. Experience is abundant for the Oviedo defense. Joining the line up is also nose guard Bill Frisch (6'1, 230, sophomore) and free safety Michael Jackson (6'3, 175, junior) who will no doubt learn a lot from their experienced teammates and step up to the task.

Defense has always been a dominating force for Lake Brantley football. Last year to the Lake Mary game alone, the defense was responsible for the one point win by stopping the faked extra point attempt.

This season won't be any different.

Coach Clayton says:

"We will pull our strength from three places this year, our running backs, our secondary and our tradition. We have a solid program here at Lake Brantley that is centered around a good offense and our defense is quickly improving. Our goal is to be right there in the district playoffs and anything past that is icing on the cake."

(5'9, 230) will pass on their experience to junior Ed Herald (5'10, 231)

Several linebackers will be rotated throughout the season. Nate Williams (5'10, 185), Gary Rivera (5'9, 155), and Fred Stplin (5'8, 170) will be on the field a majority of the time. All three linemen are returning after a fairly successful season defensively.

Sophomore Steve Brown (6'1, 270) has been used as both a defensive lineman and a full back. In the spring game, Brown was racking up the yards for the offense before he slipped in a hole on the field and broke his ankle. Brown is attending practice and is expected to return in time for the first regular season game for the defense. Worthington said he would rather keep Brown on the defense instead of playing him on both sides, but he would have to wait and see what the season brings.

In Brown's absence, sophomore Mike Bradley (5'11, 180) will gain some playing time.

"It's a whole new ball game and we like having the tradition."
-Lake Howell coach Mike Busceglia

Lake Howell stuck in a rut

By JEFF BERLINICK
Herald Staff Writer

It may be Seminole County's best football program but it's also in a bit of a rut.

Mike Busceglia has been at the helm at Lake Howell for 17 seasons, only two of which have been sub-.500. The winning is great.

Not getting out of the second round of the state playoffs isn't.

"We're kind of stuck there, in the second round," Busceglia said. "It takes a lot of luck to get past that and we keep running out of luck in the second round."

It was the same old story last season as the Silver Hawks earned a berth in the Class 6A playoffs with a win over Oviedo in their final game and emerged with Lake Brantley after a three-way playoff after the end of the regular season.

Deland went down in the opening round of the playoffs, 21-10 behind the strong running of Lucious Cooper. The next week, however, the Silver Hawks fell at home to Pensacola, 21-6.

With the loss, Lake Howell said goodbye to lineman Tam Hopkins, arguably the best lineman in the history of Seminole County. Busceglia said Hopkins is already number two on the depth chart at Ohio State as a true freshman and may even play some defense for the Buckeyes this fall.

Cooper is also gone and isn't expected to suit up for anyone this fall, but he still has a promising career ahead of him.

As for this year, Busceglia is relying on a strong defense and winning tradition. He's also relying on a home field advantage that the Silver Hawks didn't have last year. The team played their games at the Lake Howell stadium but the students attended what is now Winter Springs High School while their own was being renovated. It meant a lot of bus rides to and from practice, but if anything, when it came to loading the bus, the Silver Hawks were best in the county.

"We spent so much time loading and unloading the buses with uniforms and equipment, it's been nice to move back into our own stadium," Busceglia said. "It's been a little tough moving back in but the kids responded very well last year. We were pretty good at getting on and off the bus."

As usual, Lake Howell is loaded and a favorite to win the Seminole Athletic Conference, but that's nothing new.

"It's all about our total program and the coaching staff," Busceglia explained about his team's tradition of success. "We coach well and run a year-round program and that makes a difference every year."

Offense

Last season's quarterback Matt Mara is gone but the Silver Hawks have some quality to take over. Junior Jesse Hannon is poised to take over the starting job and got in some minutes as a sophomore.

"He's a big strong kid," Busceglia said. "He can run the option if we need him to and he's picking up the offense really well."

Backing him up is Christian DeJesus who doubles as a running back. DeJesus also played in the backfield with Cooper and Mara last season and is a versatile athlete. He'll team with Travis Vincent in the Silver Hawks' backfield.

Receivers are one of Lake Howell's many strengths. Victor Nespeca, who doubles as kicker, was a member of Lake Howell's 4x100 track team last year, is one of the fastest guy on the team and is ready to take one side. Mike Sullivan, a backup last season is slated to take over on the other side with Thomas Carlson also set to see some duty.

"We have four or five that can really catch the ball," Busceglia said.

He also has Tim Kuhn and Jeff Starna battling it out for the starting job at tight end.

Along the line, there are two returnees - Chris Campbell (6'0, 235) and Ryan Ely (6'3, 285) and three other question marks.

The Silver Hawks have a major challenge in equaling last year's outcome, especially on offense, but Busceglia said this is a new team and a new year.

"We don't even look at last year," Busceglia said. "We throw that in the trash can. It's a whole new ball game and we like having the tradition, but this is a new team."

Defense

While Cooper and Hopkins made the headlines last year, the Lake Howell defense got the job done without a lot of attention. That should change this season since the Silver Hawks are loaded with six returnees.

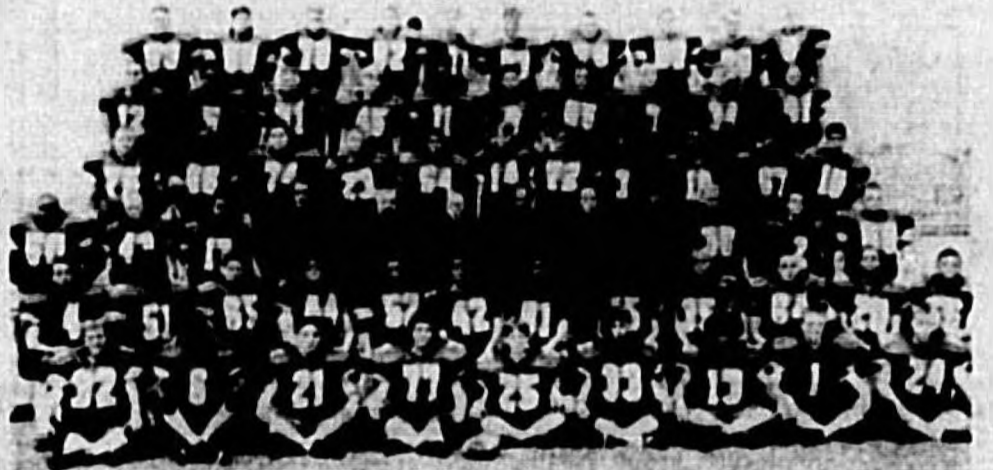

The line will feature Curtis Husselman and Robert Ely (no relation to Ryan) and both started last season.

Another lineman, Brian Middleton, has jumped to linebacker and Busceglia has him pegged to start along with Kawika Mitchell. In the defensive backfield, Larry Cummings should take over at free safety and Bo Hickman at strong safety. The rest of the slots will go to newcomers but six returning starters is a rarity that Busceglia should enjoy this year.

David Lantigua has a strong leg and will start as punter this season.

Coch Busceglia says:

"They have exceeded my expectations with their work ethic. Our practices have been miserable with all the heat this summer but everyone is still buckling down. Everything is very positive."

Lake Howell won the Seminole Athletic Conference with a win in the Kansas Tiebreaker last season and is looking to uphold a tradition of dominance.

Lions wait for another chance

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

There's a lot to prove at Oviado high school.

Last year, Oviado was one game away from an outright district championship.

And then they met Lake Howell. The same Lake Howell they beat soundly in a half of the pre-season "Classic" by a score of 16-0.

Lake Howell turned the tables on the Lions with a 34-0 shut out. Although Oviado had given up points all season, no one had shut them out.

That placed the Lions in a three way playoff with Lake Brantley and Lake Howell for the district title.

Oviado faced Lake Brantley in the first game of the "Kansas Tie-Breaker" held in Winter Park. With the score tied, Lake Brantley dashed Oviado's post season hopes almost in slow motion as a two point conversion by the Patriots to win the game was almost stopped at the one yard line before the defense allowed the ball carrier to slip through for the win.

An invitation to the Rotary Bowl did keep Oviado in post season play, however, and Oviado squared off against a team from Parkland High School in Pennsylvania. Oviado would come out of the bowl game victorious although they still felt the sting of the district turn out.

This year, however, should be different.

To start with, there's a new coach at Oviado.

With two years left until retirement, head coach Jack Blanton decided to hand over the reins a little early.

They were handed to defensive coordinator, Greg Register.

"I am very excited about the coming season," Register said. "We had a great summer program and the kids are working really hard. Coach Blanton has been a great help to me, also, and that has made my transition to the head position very smooth."

With many key players returning, there will be a lot of experience and leadership to build on. The rest of the team is composed of juniors and only three sophomores, making Oviado one of the most seasoned teams in the county.

With all that experience, however, these players are not huge studs, they are simply good ball players with good work habits who really want a shot at the district championship.

The road to districts is paved with smart play, the will to win and a few breaks. Oviado will need all three to compete in one of the toughest districts in Central Florida.

Offense

Oviado runs the Wing-T formation, but plans to mix up the passing and running games. Led by first year senior quarterback Josh Cullen (5'1, 185), the offense will rely heavily on both its wide receivers and running backs almost equally. Cullen played at the free safety position last year and seems to be adjusting quickly to his new and very different duties.

Heading up a talented set of wide receivers is senior Chad Garrett (5'10, 185). Playing at the junior varsity level last year, Garrett has really developed his skills and is expected to be an important addition to the varsity passing game this year. Joining him on the field will be Jorge Monroe, Sean Bennett, Mauricio Castillo, Chris Marimon, Mike Enriquez and Jim Costa. Oviado passes the ball more than any other team in the county and isn't expected to change that tactic anytime soon.

Senior returning running backs Leroy Jackson (5'7, 180), Jamie Scott (5'0, 190) and Erik Wilson (5'10, 210) are hoping to create a triangle of power that few defenses will be able to stop.

Last season, Jackson and Scott were big play makers for the Lions. In their sloppy yet effective win over DeLand last season which put the Lions in the district race, Jackson rushed for 150 yards on 17 carries and Scott backed his teammate up with an addition 37 yards on 15 carries. Jackson was again a key player in the district playoff loss to Lake Howell, scoring a touchdown off of a one yard shuttle pass to keep the Lions alive on the first drive. Jackson serves double duty as a line backer and has great potential at both positions.

Wilson missed last year with a knee injury that required surgery. He has been working very hard over summer and has gained good strength and speed. Wilson was able to return in time for the spring jamboree where he showed Register what can be expected of him this season.

Joining the trio in the back field are sophomore Larry Grayson (5'9, 175) and junior Kevin Quintero (5'8, 175). Grayson and Quintero probably won't see a lot of playing time this year, but will have three good examples to learn from. See Lions, Page 27

Lyman: It's time for a change

By JEFF BERLINICKE
Herald Staff Writer

For the seniors at Lyman, enough is enough.

It's been awhile since the last winning season, 1992, and coach Larry Baker said it's about time for a change.

"I feel really good about this team," Baker said. "It's a real positive team and they have a great attitude. They know they want to be a successful team."

There were some bright spots last season. Despite the 3-7 record which ended with a 32-3 thumping by Dr. Phillips, the Greyhounds stayed in almost every game, losing five times by seven points or less.

Those points shouldn't be tough to make up this season. Quarterback Ryan Aring is gone, taking his act to Florida State where he hopes to make the Seminoles as a walk-on and starting running back Alvin Cummings has also graduated, but the Greyhounds have just about everyone else coming back.

Defense will be a different story. There, almost everyone is gone and that's where games will be won and lost.

Offense

Clearly the strength of the team. Baker has plenty of options and one of the better receiving corps in the Seminole Athletic Conference.

At quarterback, Baker has a tight competition going on between junior Brian Krause and senior Tarik McCall.

Krause played last season for the junior varsity team and McCall split his time at running back and wide receiver. Working in Krause's favor is that McCall is such a great athlete. Baker may choose to use him on defense instead of behind center.

"Tarik may play in the defensive secondary," Baker said. "He's too good an athlete not to be on the field. He's one of those kids who's a team player and he'll do anything for the betterment of the team."

Whoever gets the nod will have the benefit of a strong group of receivers. Randy Jonda stole the show during Lyman's spring jamboree against

The Lyman football team is out to prove they of the current players has experienced a can compete with the rest of the SAC. None winning season at Lyman.

Oviedo, hauling in several long passes, and Joe Giola has been moved from running back.

"They both have great hands," Baker said. "We feel good about all of our kids back there."

They will be joined by Todd Radcliffe and Eddie Brown, a jayvee riser.

Across the line, the Greyhounds will start three seniors - Adam Tilbury, Steve Roman and Chris Rankin, along with Russ Feist and Ryan Snider.

Jose Gonzalez will line up at tight end. Baker had to go recruiting to fill the whole in the kicking game. He found Mark Lewis on the soccer team but Lewis will be playing football for the first time.

"We have a senior-laden team and that's where our strength is - with the seniors," Baker said. "They are tired of losing. They're very hungry."

Defense

This is where things can get tricky. In the spring game, the Greyhounds were torched by 28 points in just one half against an Oviedo team without a returning quarterback. It is a young unit that has several positions up for grabs. Lyman had some inspired efforts but also got burned several times last season.

Baker said the defense is full of question marks, especially with only three returning starters.

Linebacker is probably the strength of the Greyhound defense. Chad Baker and Ricky Bennett return and cornerback Julian Johnson may move to linebacker as well.

After that, it's a matter of depending on players who made an impact during the spring. Joe Copeland is one of those players and he will probably get a look at defensive end. McCall might get a shot in the defensive backfield.

Except for that, everything else should be decided after Baker and his assistants check out film of the Kickoff Classic when Lyman hosts Lake Howell, August 29.

Coach Baker says:

"We certainly hope to go better than 3-7 this season. We need to improve a lot on last year but we're doing a lot of hard work and we have a good attitude."

Secondary

Also, the reaction time for this unit is very high. In the spring and at practice, these guys have had the ability to almost know right where the ball is at all times and get there immediately. Their awareness should prove to allow them to make big plays this year.

"We're fast and we react fast," Williams said. "That's what will separate us from the other units in the county. I know it sounds cocky, but we have to believe in ourselves and each other or we won't be able to accomplish anything."

New head coach Jim Worthington is making sure these boys accomplish a lot this season. Part of his coaching philosophy includes encouraging the players on his team to become a family. The secondary has listened to his advise and they are a team both on and off the field.

"We are committed to this team and to each other," Rames said. "And we know that without good communication, we will miss a lot of plays. So we work on our communication skills at practice and when we're just hanging out. We are friends and teammates and that strong relationship goes with us onto the field."

Part of this family is having to sit out a few practices. Footman is injured but is expected to return to practice by the first of the week. He continues to come to practice and watch his teammates from the side lines. When he sees room for improvement, he tells the guys and encourages them to do better.

It would seem that the others wouldn't like being criticized. But that isn't the case. They welcome suggestions from anyone, especially someone from their unit. They understand and truly believe that the only way for them to improve is to have someone tell them what they're doing wrong.

"We have been working very hard," Rames said. "We worked over the entire summer, trying to improve our skills, increase our running speed and lifting the weightroom. We don't intend to take any half steps. The only way we are going to have a successful season is by taking full steps and by pushing ourselves to the limit."

If there is a limit to what these guys can accomplish, they haven't hit it yet. Anyone who attends a practice can see that this unit means business. They are the first ones on the field and the last ones to leave. They truly want to see some post season play and intend to work for it.

Cheers to Lake Howell cheerleaders

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

Every Friday night during football season, a row of peppy high schoolers line each side of the field to cheer on their school's team.

However, the cheerleaders of today are far removed from the cheerleaders of just a few short years ago.

And the Lake Howell cheerleaders are even farther removed.

Last season the Silver Hawks sent their competition squad all the way to the NCAA national cheerleading competition.

And they came home with a first place finish.

"Our competition squad is composed of the best cheerleaders from all four grade levels," said team captain, Nicole Griffis. "The varsity squad practices three times a week and then the competition squad practices another three times a week. It's a lot of work and dedication, but it is certainly all worth it."

A national championship certainly was.

Lake Howell competes in the small coed division of the tournaments, as they added their first male cheerleader to the squad only three years ago. Although everyone had to get used to the idea, all of the girls say that they really like having a male on the squad and it has helped their stunt level.

Another factor that helps their stunts and routines is the fact that a lot of the girls belong to a private gym outside of the school. There they are able to practice harder routines, learn more complicated stunts and the cheerleaders on an all girls squad are able to practice with boys in order to ready themselves for the college level.

In addition, summer camps are also attended by the cheerleaders. This is where they start to formulate the coming year's routines and learn new cheers.

All of this practice was well rewarded for the Lake Howell squad.

The first step toward their national championship was the state competition held at the Florida State Fairgrounds in Tampa. From there, the girls (and guy) competed in the regionals at the University of Central Florida. Then they were off to Epcot for the national tournament which was televised on ESPN.

"Competing is so much fun," Griffis said. "We all enjoy being on the sidelines and cheering on our friends, but the competitions are different. There is a totally different atmosphere and the traveling brings the squad closer together. It is really nerve racking to step out onto that stage with all of those eyes on you. But when you see your friends and family, it just all goes away and all you think about is the routine and doing the best job possible."

Lake Howell did the best job possible in their division, and they came home with a first place trophy and a national title.

This year, things will be a little different for the Silver Hawks. Their director, Gina Monterrieff has taken a leave of absence to have a baby. Terri Lewis has taken over for Monterrieff and allowed the girls to do a lot of the decision making for themselves.

Also, with the opening of Winter Springs High School, a lot of the girls who would have tried out for the squad are now at the new school. Therefore, the selection process for making the team was so stringent that all of the best girls are on the varsity squad. This doesn't leave any extras for a competition squad. The team has decided though that if they choose to compete again this year, they will just compete as a varsity unit.

In the mean time, the Silver Hawks are concentrating on cheering their football team to victory. After that, then they'll think about defending their national title.

"We try to make school spirit cool again."
-Lake Mary Cheerleading Director Didi Berry

Friday

Organized fun

If you think making the Lake Mary football team is tough, check out the Marionettes.

The Rams only have to earn their helmets during pre-season. For the Marionettes, it's a week-to-week struggle.

Stacie Goldstein, an English teacher and former Marionette herself, is the leader of the squad and makes sure she has the best 20 dancers each week, regardless of past performance.

"It's a healthy competition," Goldstein said. "Everybody tends to perform at least once in a season."

Over 30 girls are members of the dance team but only 20 get to perform on Friday nights. The ones that get to perform aren't quickly forgotten by the crowd that packs the football stadium. A crowd favorite is the jump split and Goldstein is pretty proud of it.

"No one does a jump split like a Lake Mary Marionette," she said.

Some of the best athletes are off the field

You know their names as well as the players. If you want to know them better, try to tell them they aren't athletes.

Cheerleaders, especially those at Lake Mary, have spent years trying to get rid of the "ditzzy dingbat" reputation. No longer do they spend their days working on their hair or fighting off the star quarterback. Now, they are more inclined to prepare for a nationally televised competition.

The girls (Lake Mary doesn't have any boy cheerleaders, but they do have their Rams' mascot), do more than just the popular "Oigalo" cheer. They spend Fridays preparing for the games by hanging posters around campus and preparing the giant banner the Rams run through during pre-game introductions.

There are the cheerleaders on the sidelines who get the crowd going and more in the stands to perk things up.

"For a while, having fun at school wasn't considered cool," said

Didi Berry, the Director of the Rams cheerleaders. "We try to make school spirit cool again."

The Voice of the Rams

If you go to a game at Lake Mary, you know who Larry Jones is. He's talked to you plenty of time, maybe even about your children and friends.

He is the public address announcer as well as the unofficial team cheerleader.

Jones has been The Voice for three years now, calling out each play of every home game. He also announces the cheerleaders, gets the fans fired up when they need firing up and, in addition, is probably the team's number one fan. Jones last year sponsored the Ronald M. Peters Scholarship in memory of the late father of Doug Peters.

He also has a good time and makes sure the fans do too.

"I don't know when I became Voice of the Rams but I love doing it," Jones said. "I love to get the crowd into it and the kids are always great."

As the crowds empty the Lake Mary stadium on Friday nights, the players are usually congratulated or consoled by their parents, friends, faculty and everyone else. Meanwhile, there are an awful lot of people who leave alone or in small pairs, knowing that Friday night couldn't have happened without them.

Ballgame

changes in the program and the kids already know me from being the defensive coordinator. My job so far has been really easy."

Credited with a large contribution to making that job easy is Register's assistant coaches. He said that he is absolutely thrilled with each and everyone of them and that they are phenomenal assets to his program.

With football season starting within days, Register is trying to get in a few of his favorite activities away from school. He still enjoys weight lifting to try and keep in shape. Also, Register has had many jeeps and really enjoys being out in his latest with the top off. Finally, although he has no sons or daughters, Register does have one child who he loves very much...his dog. He spends as much time with his kid as possible.

Actually, there's little time for anything other than football right now, but Register said he likes to think he might be able to do some of those things.

With his new position and the strength of what's facing him in the county, Register doesn't mind putting those activities on hold (except for his dog) for a few months.

Jim Worthington will also be putting some of his favorite extra-curricular activities on hold, although he's getting pretty used to that.

His first year as Seminole's head football coach comes right off of a successful season at Pine Ridge High School. Worthington said that the decision to leave Pine Ridge was a good one, but not an easy one. He and his wife, Kristen had a lot to think about.

"I really had some thinking to do when I was approached with the Seminole opportunity," Worthington said. "What I was most impressed with at Seminole were the facilities, the stadium, lights, weight room. The boosters here are wonderful and have made sure that the athletic department has everything it needs. After a lot of consideration, I decided that Seminole was the right environment for me."

No one expected head coach Ernie MacPherson to retire. However, this left a spot in the football department that needed to be filled. As much as Worthington thought the environment was right for him, the environment thought he was right as well.

And he's fit right in. Seminole was in need of his talent, and there is certainly a lot of that in the young coach.

After playing high school ball for four years at Pierson-Taylor, located on the west coast of Florida, Worthington then attended Duke University where he played linebacker for four more years. In his senior year, a new coach came to town. His name was Steve Spurrier.

"Spurrier was a very positive influence on me," Worthington said. "I learned a lot from him about having a 'can do' attitude. He also taught me about not letting something that happens get you too high or too low and trying to maintain an even keel. He was a great influence on me but my coaching style is really a combination of all of the coaches I have played for."

Worthington graduated from Duke with a degree in Political Science. When he decided that he wanted to teach, he attended Stetson University to attain his certification.

Worthington was at Pine Ridge for three years before transferring to Seminole, where he teaches Exceptional Education math. He began teaching at his new location in January, which is a little unusual.

"I knew that if I wanted to get a hold of the team and have time to actually work with them, I needed to start immediately," Worthington said. "You can't just walk into a new team and a new school and expect to have the program under control in a few short summer months."

Control is something that Worthington has definitely been able to achieve. Not because he demands it, but because he encourages it and the players respond.

There is an entirely new attitude and genuine confidence among the Seminole football players this year. The reason for that is Worthington.

Mike Harris, who was the head coach of the freshman team and a social studies instructor at Lyman High School, is getting what he calls a once in a lifetime chance.

Harris was named the head football coach for Winter Springs High School, which will open its doors for the first time in August.

Winter Springs Bears enter the SAC

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

Since Winter Springs High School opened its doors in August, the halls have been a little less than crowded.

Classrooms have been a little less than full.

And the athletic programs will have less bodies on the field and in the gym.

The newest high school in the county began classes with only ninth and tenth graders in attendance. As each of those classes moves up, a new freshman class will enter to fill the void and in three years, all grades will be represented.

This will have a profound impact for the athletic programs in particular.

With no varsity level players, only the freshman and jayvee clubs will be manned. Therefore, for at least the first year, there will be no post season activity, especially for the football program.

This is fine with the new head coach at Winter Springs, Mike Harris.

"There is a three year process that we will go through to get established," Harris explained. "We will be building for success, however, not only athletically but academically as well. That just gives us the opportunity to build a top shelf program."

All of the coaching staff took a while to compile, as the number of teachers that were hired was dependent on enrollment.

Harris has a plan for his program, and that includes working closely with his assistants. He said that he is a strong believer in the fact that a successful program is built only when the entire coaching staff is on the same page.

"I feel confident in my abilities. But I cannot coach alone. I need a good staff around me so I can do my job correctly. We will all learn from each other and grow together."

Support from the community, in addition to other coaches on staff, is the other ingredient for a successful program.

Lions

from and emulate when they start next year.

Defense

Last year's unit was very tough. They caused a lot of turnovers, recovered a lot of fumbles and stopped a lot of drives.

However, they also gave up a lot of points.

Bringing that under control is top

"We will need the cooperation of everyone, from the coaches to the students to the parents, to get the program where it needs to be. Positive feedback from everyone will make all the difference."

"We want to reassure the parents that our main concern is the welfare of the student athlete."

"No one likes to lose, and that might happen along the way as we're building. But we didn't just walk into this without knowing that we would need a solid five year plan to be competitive."

The first step in that plan was to find out who would be on the field this year.

Once the actual list of students who would be attending was started, Harris and his staff began to contact all of the prospective players. These students were invited to a non-contact spring camp just to get all of the kids familiar with each other and the coaches to ease their anxiety.

The first two seasons will have an eight-game schedule for both the freshman and jayvee teams. The following year they will have a varsity schedule, mostly out of fairness to the then junior players.

Harris says, though, that none of this is carved in stone. The determining factor in every decision, he said, will be what is best for the kids.

It will certainly be interesting to keep an eye on the Winter Springs football program and watch them grow as the school does. With the sound philosophy that Harris has, the Bears program should be top notch in the coming years.

priority this year.

Helping with that initiative will be returning defensive lineman senior David Burley (6'2, 190) and junior Brandon Clark (6'3, 230).

Both players missed last season with knee injuries. Burley had ACL surgery but is looking very good at practice and has increased his strong ability to move the ball. Clark has recovered from recurring knee problems and is improving daily. He'll add power to the strongman support side.

Coach Bagshaw says:

"Our summer program went well and the players have good attitudes mixed with a great work ethic as we have goals of repeating the winning ways of last season and winning the district title."
