Telephone service disrupted

LAKE MARY — Southern Bell telephone service in the Lake Mary area was disrupted this morning when cables apparently were cut during the Lake Mary Boulevard road widening project.

According to Southern Bell manager Larry Strickler, "Two 600-pair cables were apparently cut this morning. The breaks occurred in front of the Lake Mary Elementary School, just south of Lake Mary Boulevard."

Strickler said he could not immediately determine how many customers might have been affected. Southern Bell crews arrived at the scene shortly after 10 a.m., and Strickler said he expected the service to be restored by late this afternoon.

The outage only affects Southern Bell telephone users, mostly in the residential area south of Lake Mary Boulevard.

Atlas takes satellite to space

CAPE CANAVERAL — Another Intelsat communications satellite, this one simpler, smaller and less expensive than the $187 million craft saved by spacewalking astronauts in May, took a ride into space aboard a rocket.

The Intelsat-K is to join 18 other Intelsat crafts in orbit 22,300 miles above Earth. The 3-ton, $102 million craft is designed to transmit TV broadcasts, telephone calls and business data in North America, Europe and South America.

On May 13, three shuttle astronauts had to catch a 4½-ton Intelsat-6 satellite with their hands and attach a motor to carry it higher. It had been left in a uselessly low orbit by a miswired Titan rocket.

Intelsat, a 123-nation consortium, hopes to have both satellites working in time for the Olympics this summer in Barcelona, Spain.

June 25 launch set for Columbia

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA said Tuesday it will try to launch space shuttle Columbia on June 25 for a 13-day research mission.

Mission managers set the date following a daylong flight readiness review at Kennedy Space Center. Liftoff time is 12:07 p.m.

The seven astronauts assigned to the round-the-clock mission will spend more time in orbit than any other shuttle crew. The longest shuttle flight to date lasted just under 11 days.

While in orbit, the astronauts will grow crystals, study drops of fluids and set small, contained fires. Their blood pressures and heart rates will be monitored so NASA can learn more about human adaptation to weightlessness and, after a lengthy absence, gravity.

Lake Mary high crowds O-rena

ORLANDO — The move to downtown Orlando did not discourage family and friends from attending commencement exercises Tuesday evening for Lake Mary High School.

More than 5,000 people nearly filled the lower level of the Orlando Arena as the 534 graduates bid their final farewells to one another and to their childhoods.

"We have to learn one more lesson," student government president Allison Slater said to the graduates. "We have to learn how to say goodbye."

As last night's 8 p.m. starting time approached, the lights dimmed in the arena and overhead on large screens, the first LMHS senior class video debuted featuring film snippets taken throughout the school year and narration by student leaders.

From the corners of the arena, young men in black caps and gowns and young women dressed in red peered at the screens. Some giggled and pointed, others were more vocal in their reactions, cheering and calling out at their favorite parts.

The house lights remained off throughout the ceremony. Dramatic lighting emphasized the speakers and the graduates in their moments of glory.

SANFORD — Under this morning's blazing sun, 283 seniors crossed the stage at midfield in Seminole High School's Thomas E. Whigham stadium to become graduates.

The school had thought they would graduate 332 students, but some did not complete their graduation requirements in time.

Temperatures were already pushing the 90 degree mark at 8 a.m. as the seniors, robed in dazzling white caps and gowns marched across the field to their seats.

Families and friends squeezed into every seat on the east side of the stadium, spilled onto the stairs and pushed against the fence to get a better view of the activities. They fanned themselves with the ecru programs that had been handed to them at the gate and applauded politely for each speaker.

Those who were the center of the pomp and circumstance this morning were represented by three students, selected by their peers from among the top ten academicians in the class.

Jennifer Campbell, Vashaun Williams and Sara Winkler spoke of the changes they had seen in their personal lives as well as in the whole world during their high school careers.

Probe of brutality charges underway

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Seminole County grand jury heard from two former City-County Investigative Bureau agents Monday in a probe of allegations of police brutality by past and present members of the drug enforcement team.

Seminole County sheriff's Sgt. Mike Messer and Oviedo policeman Gene Taylor said they appeared before the panel in a closed-door meeting Monday. Neither would comment on the topic of the inquiry, citing state grand jury confidentiality laws as explained to them by state attorney's assistants.

The grand jury review follows interrogations conducted in late 1991 and early 1992 by the State Attorney's Office and Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Although Sheriff Don Ealinger said he has not been subpoenaed, he said he has asked State Attorney Norm Wolfinger to make a statement to the grand jury.

"I am looking forward to addressing the residents of Seminole County on this issue of excessive force and operations of the Sheriff's Office," said Ealinger.

Ealinger said he may be called today. State Attorney Norm Wolfinger did not return telephone calls.

Messer said he first learned of the investigation when he was questioned by state attorney's investigator Phil Sellers Sept. 9, 1991. Although he declined to discuss specific allegations, Messer said Sellers' questions were about "any incidents

LAKE MARY — Public Safety Director Charles Lauderdale, who says fatigue has hampered his judgment, began a series of medical examinations yesterday. In the meantime, he said, he continues to supervise the operation of the Lake Mary Police Department.

"It'll take several weeks before all of the tests are completed," he said. "but it will be the most extensive tests I've ever had." He added, "If there are any problems, I am confident they'll be found."

On May 30, Lauderdale told City Manager John Litton, "my judgment is in question and could very easily result in injury or other serious consequences for the men and women I have sworn to lead and protect."

Yesterday, Lauderdale commented, "Right now, I feel good, but I have to be certain." He added, "I've had a physical exam every year about this time, but this time, I have a different doctor, a retired See Lauderdale, Page 5A

Friendly City proposing signs to tell about accomplishments

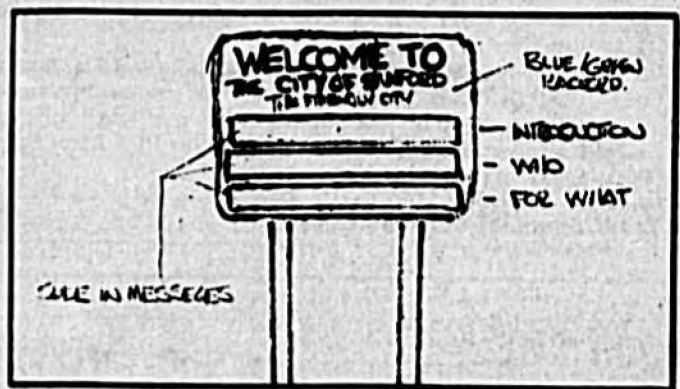

By MICK PFENAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — New welcome signs have been proposed for the entrances to Sanford. The signs could be used to recognize youth athletic accomplishments.

The proposal was brought up during the workshop meeting of the Sanford City Commission Monday night. City Manager Bill Simmons explained, "I'm very pleased to report that the drawings for these signs came from one of our own people, Bill Spivey, who works for our Engineering Department."

Simmons added, "We have thrown this idea back and forth for several weeks, and while some of this is Spivey's idea, the Commissioners and staff gave him some input in what the signs might look like, so it's actually a collective design."

Spivey made two drawings which were distributed to the Commissioners for consideration. One would start with the words, "Welcome to The City of Sanford, the Friendly City." The second proposal includes the city seal, with the wording to say, "City of Sanford, The Friendly City."

Designer's rough sketch of one alternative.

The signs would contain possibly three lines for slide-in changeable messages. Examples of what could be included on the signs were listed in the presentations given to the Commissioners. One might read, "We See Signs, Page 5A

911 phone-bill fee to increase

Obsolete units to be replaced

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The monthly 9-1-1 fee on telephones in Seminole County will rise by three cents in October.

Tuesday, Seminole County commissioners unanimously approved the increase from 33 to 36 cents to finance increased costs and equipment replacement. The increase will take effect Oct. 1 for all telephone service — city and unincorporated. Businesses pay the fee on the first 25 lines serving them.

County emergency 9-1-1 coordinator Roanne Tall said the increase will raise an extra $67,000 to pay for increased costs of maintaining 9-1-1 answering equipment throughout the county. Tall said the answering units at seven of the locations are now obsolete and must be replaced soon. Parts are increasingly more difficult to locate and repair costs are climbing, she said.

The county supplies and maintains emergency answering equipment at eight locations, the county Public Safety Emergency Operations Center, the county Sheriff's Office, and at police departments in each city except Longwood. The Sheriff's Office answers emergency calls for Longwood. Salaries of emergency operators are paid by funds of county and each city, not the 9-1-1 fee.

Tall said the system cost $643,912 to operate during the current fiscal year ending Sept. 30. The fee increase will boost the annual budget to $711,000 next year, Tall said. The additional money will be used to replace answering equipment in Lake Mary and Casselberry later this year of early next year, said Tall. The other equipment will be replaced a year later.

In other action, commissioners approved a $2,000 emergency grant to patch a leaky roof at Zayre Plaza for the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program. TEFAP volunteer coordinator Jean Metts said the roof has leaked since they opened their free food distribution program in January.

Metts said no food has been damaged as a result of the leaks, but TEFAP volunteers and clients have to move around dripping buckets.

Metts said she has found one roofer who can repair the leak as soon as she receives the money from the county.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Chiles, lawmakers test strength

By BILL GIBSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles promised to veto any budget lawmakers enact without approving property tax relief, preempting talk among legislators about whether they can override a veto.

Legislative leaders said progress depended on how well lawmakers agreed today on no-new-tax budgets up for votes in both the House and Senate.

If these versions are close, both chambers can see where the holes are and talk about where to spend more. House Appropriations Chairman Ron Saunders, D-Key West, said Tuesday.

The Senate could pass a supplemental budget Thursday or Friday and begin conference committee meetings Friday with the House on added spending. Senate President Owen Margolis, D-North Miami Beach, said Appropriations leaders lunched in his office.

"It's just a matter of getting to a number," Margolis said. "I think it'll be somewhere around $400 million, maybe more."

Chiles showed some flexibility in the $1.55 billion he wants to raise to ease school, social services and other budget cuts, as long as he gets his proposed property tax rollback and "lottery buyback" — general funds for education to free lottery dollars for extras like computers or band gear.

"If y'all send me a budget without the lottery buyback it'll be back to you as fast as I can get it back," Chiles told lawmakers in his conference room.

He said a no-new-tax budget means $546.8 million in budget cuts, slashing $249.3 for education, $213 million for social services and $84.5 for corrections and criminal justice, including money to open 2,773 already constructed prison beds.

Without them Florida faces prison gridlock in May 1983, he said. "We will have to give gain time to every person that's in there whether they are a rapist, whether they're a murderer, whether they're an armed robber, whatever they are ... because to put one in the front door you'll have to let one out the back."

If lawmakers find enough revenue for basic education, social services and corrections needs, the lottery buyback and property tax relief, Chiles said. "We're getting closer to where we can talk."

"But we're a long, long way from there," he said. "If you start with a $546.8 million hole and you say we're going to add $500 million, well look at that, we're still in the hole."

Senate Minority Leader Ander Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville, stuck with his no-new-tax stand when asked in Margolis' meeting how much he'd agree to raise taxes. "It looks a lot like a donut," he replied.

Lawmakers disagreed on whether they could get the two-thirds vote both the House and Senate would need to enact a budget over Chiles' veto.

Sen. Helen Gordon Davis, D-Tampa, said those wanting more spending might vote to override if Chiles vetoes a plan with $500 million in new revenues.

Noriega's wife may OK plea bargain

MIAMI — Defense attorneys for Felicidad Noriega, the wife of former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega, want to dispose of her button theft case quickly and may accept a plea agreement, a prosecutor said.

"It is clear that she will accept a deal," Assistant State Attorney Anne Lyons told The Miami Herald for Wednesday's edition.

Mrs. Noriega, charged with stealing 27 buttons valued at $305 from dresses at a Burdines department store, won't have to plead guilty or no contest to criminal mischief and petty theft, the Herald said.

Instead, the charges will be dropped if she complies with the agreement.

Under the deal, Mrs. Noriega would have to pay Burdines $1,320.94, the estimated damage done to 10 high-fashion jackets, plus do an unspecified number of hours of community service and sign a release promising she will not sue Burdines for detaining her on shoplifting charges.

Rolling pleads innocent

STARKE — The public defender for the man charged with the killings of five Gainesville college students says he'll need about a million dollars to defend his client, and he wants the state to foot the bill.

Rick Parker said he wants the case tried in Gainesville and expects to be ready in 18 months to two years. That would depend, he said, on how much funding and help he gets.

"I would need at least two lawyers, an investigator and a staff assistant, salary dollars," he said. "And you would need expert witnesses and deposition transcripts, and it sounds like about a million dollars to me."

Parker said he already has requested special funding from the state, but will not know whether he will get it until the end of the legislature's current special session in Tallahassee.

Rolling, 37, pleaded innocent in the 1980 killings Tuesday.

Evacuation plan could cause gridlock

FORT LAUDERDALE — A state plan to turn South Florida highways into one-way hurricane evacuation routes could cause gridlock, some officials say.

State Emergency Management Director Bob Nave said Monday he is considering plans to switch the direction of the southbound lanes on Interstate 95 and Florida's Turnpike to help evacuation.

"As Florida continues to grow and concentrate populations in the coastal areas, the roadway improvements haven't kept up with growth," Nave said. "It's pretty common sense that if you have four lanes going north instead of two lanes, you'd have a lot more people moving quicker."

Not everyone agrees, however.

Making I-95 one-way northbound would jam things up even more, said Philip Weinfeld, Broward County's emergency planning program manager.

Courthouse closes for repairs

BARTOW — After years of complaints that the Polk County Courthouse was making people sick, employees have started relocating so workers can make $17 million in repairs.

"It's a mess, it's a disaster, it's a tragedy," said Polk County Administrator C. Ray Jackson.

When the $37 million courthouse opened five years ago, the shimmering nine-story structure was the pride of Polk County. But now it leaks, it smells, and it's making people sick. Mold has permeated the walls and floors. About half of the 536 employees there sniffle, rub their eyes and cough non-stop. Two have been diagnosed with the lung disease emphysema.

School says no to purple hair

JACKSONVILLE — Forrest High School officials wouldn't let honor roll student Danita Tyree take part in commencement ceremonies with her hair dyed purple, and Miss Tyree's mother says she'll get a lawyer.

Miss Tyree, 18, said she wanted to look special for last Thursday's graduation, and the change to purple wasn't that drastic. She said she attended classes with purple streaks in her naturally blonde hair.

"I don't know anyone who doesn't like my hair," she said. "I don't see why your hair color should matter."

Man dies saving brother

KISSIMEE — A man lost his life when he pushed his brother from the path of an oncoming train, police say.

John Harold Frederick, 21, and his brother, Joseph, 24, were drinking with three other friends Monday night, said police Sgt. Greg Stephens.

When the five headed across the tracks toward a convenience store, Joseph Frederick sat down on the tracks, Stephens said. Witnesses reported he was playing "chicken" with the train.

John Frederick ran and knocked his brother from the tracks but was hit by the train, Stephens said.

Insurance industry against tax

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The way Gov. Lawton Chiles "fair share" tax plan relies on insurance taxes doesn't seem fair to insurance industry lobbyists swarming around the Capitol.

To lobbyist Harry Landrum, it's like taxing food and medicine. "It's a necessity," Landrum said of insurance.

Chiles proposal to end sales tax breaks on insurance would generate $600 million a year, or 40 percent of the new revenue he seeks, state economists estimate.

"We just kind of feel like they've loaded insurance up," said lobbyist Paul Sanford. "It's kind of been treated like a cash cow, and we're afraid the old cow may be on its last legs."

Chiles wants to boost state spending by $1.55 billion this year and $2.5 billion in following years for schools, health care and social programs.

He proposes to wipe out a sales tax break on insurance premiums. They'd be subject to a 6 percent tax under today's rate and 5 percent if Chiles gets lawmakers to roll back the tax. The rate is higher in counties with local-option sales taxes.

Chiles would repeal a 1.75 percent tax currently assessed on insurance premiums.

Under Chiles' plan, health insurance would be exempt from the tax, but anyone who insures a car or home would have to pay.

"You're still bothering the little guy," Sanford said.

Backers of Chiles' plan say insurance companies make millions of dollars in Florida and some of that wealth should help pay for government services.

"If we're going to pass taxes, the insurance industry is going to pull its weight," said Senate Tax Chairman Ken Jenne, D-Fort Lauderdale.

Even Chiles' backers are wary about taxing premium payments, however.

Senate panel abolishes fee caps

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A planned fee cap on health services provided at centers owned by doctors and others would be revoked under a bill approved by a Senate committee.

Instead, the issue of regulating rates charged for such services would be studied until Jan. 1, 1984, under the bill (CS-85 50H) that cleared the Professional Regulation Committee 8-0 on Tuesday.

"We're going to study whether to put a rate cap on everybody," said Sen. Tom Jennings, an Orlando Republican who sponsored the main amendment. "If the study shows they don't need fees, they won't go into effect."

The move was opposed by the main sponsor, Sen. Eleanor Weinstein, who said the fee cap could help corral runaway health care costs. "The fee schedule is not going to fix our problem with health care costs, but I think it's going to be significant," said the West Palm Beach Democrat.

The bill also moves the effective date from October 1985 to July 1984 for the ban on physicians from making referrals to four types of health centers they own: clinical laboratories, physical rehabilitation facilities, diagnostic imaging centers and radiation therapy centers.

The law was sparked by a state study finding that patients referred to clinics owned by their doctors often paid bigger bills for testing.

The fee cap, set at 115 percent of the federal reimbursement for Medicare, was added at the last minute to a new law that passed during this year's regular session. It would take effect in July and would also include centers not owned by physicians.

A House committee Monday delayed the startup date of the fee cap for physician-owned joint ventures and exempted centers not affiliated with doctors. The two versions will have to be reconciled for the change to be made before the end of this month's special session.

The Senate panel also carved out an exemption for St. Joseph's Hospital in Tampa, where a diagnostic imaging center is co-owned by the hospital and its doctors.

"We're not one of the bad guys," said Lee Moffitt, the former House speaker who is now a lobbyist representing St. Joseph's. "Nobody else can come along and do it."

Weinstock again objected, saying other health care providers would probably beseech the Legislature to save their one project from the ban on physician-owned ventures.

Grinder here, gobbles yard waste

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

GENEVA — Like a giant one-armed, open-mouthed monster, the county's new yard waste "tub grinder" has been delivered to the county dump on Ocala Road.

The $181,200 machine can gobble 20 tons mixed yard waste per hour, reducing it into a fine mulch material for use around landscaping or as a soil enhancement. It can even devour limbs up to 12 inches in diameter and 10 feet long, spitting them out into chips.

Crews are paving a section at a six-acre site at the dump for an unloading area, said county recycling coordinator Sherry Newkirk. The site work and grinder operation training will continue through the summer, she said. The entire $1.3 million facility will be fully operational by October, said Newkirk.

The county decided to chop up and reuse the grass clippings, leaves and branches from residential yards to meet the 1988 state requirement that all plant debris must be separated from household garbage by Jan. 1, 1992. The county complied with the law and has been piling the stuff into a pile large enough to cover two football fields 10 feet deep.

The tub grinder has a grappling arm that can lift up to one ton of waste and dump it into the grinder at the rear of the machine. The resulting mulch will be used on public facilities, but county officials haven't ruled out offering the material to the public in the future if the supply exceeds the county's needs.

More than 28 percent of all garbage produced in the county is in the form of yard waste. The state requires counties to reduce their garbage disposal by 30 percent by 1994. Yard waste may account for only half that goal.

City's July 4 celebration still growing

SANFORD — July 4th Independence Day festivities in Sanford are taking shape. Fort Melon Park will be the focal point for activities leading up to the fireworks display.

The Sanford City Commission approved a request from the Sanford Jaycees for the use of the park and required road blocks during its Monday night meeting.

The area of the park and Seminole Blvd. along the lakefront, will house a car show and kiddie carnival. Other events such as a Civil War reenactment, 1860s tours are also being planned.

All arrangements for the fireworks display have now been made. They will be held in a barge on Lake Monroe, offshore near the eastern end of Seminole Blvd.

Through efforts by the Sanford Jaycees and Steven Alford, over $5,000 was raised for the display, known as the "People's Fireworks".

Judge: Sheriff was wrong for forcing out gay deputy

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Gay-rights activists have won a major victory in a ruling by an Orlando judge that Sheriff Walt Gallagher violated the Florida Constitution by forcing out a deputy who admitted he was homosexual.

Circuit Judge William Gridley cited the privacy provisions of the constitution in ordering the Orange County Sheriff Tuesday to reinstate deputy Tom Woodard and pay him for lost wages.

The judge did not award any punitive damages to Woodard, who lost his job in 1989 and filed suit after failing to get reinstated.

Woodard contended that the right to privacy granted by the state constitution protected him from government intrusion into his off-duty sex life. The judge agreed.

Constitutional lawyers and gay-rights activists assert that government employers have no business hiring or firing based on sexual orientation.

Sheriff Gallagher had argued that gay or lesbian deputies could get AIDS, be subject to blackmail or upset heterosexual suspects.

The sheriff, who planned to confer with sheriff's office attorneys before deciding whether to appeal, said in a statement that he was perplexed by the judge's ruling.

"It will be difficult for the residents of our community to understand how Judge Gridley ruled the way he did when he made a specific finding in his order on page 7 that: 'the majority's heterosexual orientation is biologically, psychologically and morally ingrained in our culture to the extent that most persons don't want to even try and understand, much less accept the homosexual's outlook,'" according to Gallagher's statement.

The ruling is expected to have an impact on job discrimination cases involving homosexuals around the state, although it is limited to the Orange-Osceola judicial circuit unless there is an appeal.

"The practical ramifications of the ruling are that employers will have to think twice before they discriminate on the basis of sexual preference," said one Bill Sheaffer, one of Woodard's lawyers.

Congratulations

Cheers to the crew of the space shuttle Endeavour for capturing that elusive satellite. It may have been the highest of high-tech performances, but the basic drama was composed of elements that almost anyone can identify with — anyone, that is, who has ever tried to fix their own plumbing or put together a complicated toy on Christmas Eve, or undertaken some other project where the parts don't seem to fit together the way the instructions say they should.

After 14 unsuccessful attempts with the $7 million tool that NASA had provided for the purpose of securing the satellite, the astronauts decided simply to grab the thing with their hands. That worked just fine, a victory for low-tech and the virtues of the opposable thumb.

But the risks involved in trying to catch a piece of machinery as big as a city bus in midflight were enormous. One false move, either by the three astronauts outside the shuttle or by mission commander Daniel Brandenstein, who was piloting the ship, could either have slashed open a spacewalker's suit or damaged the shuttle itself so badly that it could not have returned from orbit.

Fortunately, everything turned out OK, and with the gorgeous pictures on television, it was the best, or at least the most riveting, show that NASA has put on in years.

But the most important audience may be the fiscal committees in Congress, who have to decide on the space agency's budget. For them, this drama carries conflicting messages with respect to the future of America's space program.

Some will cite this success as proof of the value to manned flight and the utility of the shuttle as a repair vehicle. Others will say that three days of bumbling and the enormous expenditure of taxpayers' dollars to complete what was supposed to be a simple task on behalf of a commercial consortium only underscore the need to rethink NASA's even more complicated plans for building a space station.

But for now, those pithy debates can be put aside while people all over the world give a sigh of relief and a tip of the hat to the crew of the Endeavour for a job that was, finally, well done.

Long live truth

Truth, Soviet-style, is dead. Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper whose name in Russian means truth, has fallen victim to rampant, heartless capitalism in Moscow.

The end was bitter. Pravda, founded by Lenin, expired with only one-tenth of its 11 million once-loyal readers still in touch with the communist interpretation of reality. Echoing its earliest editions during the days of the czar, Pravda's final words charged that unnamed plotters had censored its pages and cut out its heart.

In truth, Pravda failed because it did not do as its rival, Izvestia, had done: it did not adjust to the changing times. Blinded by their own ideology, Pravda's editors refused to accept that communism is a has-been.

Pravda is dead; long live truth in Russia.

Wisely mortgaging our kids' future

H. Ross Perot, growling and sometimes snarling, has put the budget deficit back on the front burner. It is said — by most everyone — that we are undisciplined, irresponsible, and that "we are mortgaging the future of our children."

That ought to be rethought. Without endorsing big deficits, it should be noted that a mortgage may be unpleasant, but it also typically helps buy something useful, like a house. A good part of the mortgage owed by our children will likely have bought the best bargain in history, namely "peace and freedom through strength."

Oddly, at this anti-governmental, anti-partisan moment, the credit for this goes to Democrats and Republicans. And the potential villain — maybe — we don't know yet because he's not talking, is the anti-governmental H. Ross Perot.

The proximate causes for such musings are three: 1) the leak of the Pentagon's first post-Cold War "Defense Policy Guidance" 2) the passage of the first post-Cold War defense budget by the House of Representatives, and 3) a statement by Perot that sounds bonkers.

There is a flap about the leaked DPG. In March, The New York Times published excerpts from a document in its "final drafting stage," and characterized it as endorsing "a one-superpower world," under the "benevolent domination" of the United States, and "rejecting" collective internationalism.

Then, in May, the Times published excerpts of a revised DPG draft, admiring its "striking change in tone."

Pentagon officials say that the early draft was nowhere near final, and that the final version maintains all that was essential in the earlier draft. What is important now is what the document actually says, which is powerful, and roughly this: Twice in this century Americans made catastrophic decisions about defense. We disarmed after winning World War I and after winning World War II. Each time totalitarians took advantage of weakness; the result was tragedy for us and the world.

Now (says the DPG) we have won the Cold War. There is a democratic "zone of peace" that should be maintained, and expanded. Collective security is fine, but it usually occurs only when there is credible American leadership, witness the Gulf War. America, the only superpower, must remain strong and involved, able to act on its own if necessary to prevent other Iraq-like situations. We have to be strong enough to deal with threats that we see, as well as threats that we don't see, because unseen threats tend to emerge if they are unopposed.

The House passed a $270 billion defense budget. It's not perfect. It has some pork in it. It's about $10 billion less than President Bush's request. But it's big money for a time when big enemies aren't apparent. More important than the amount is that our legislators have (at least for now) learned the lesson of history.

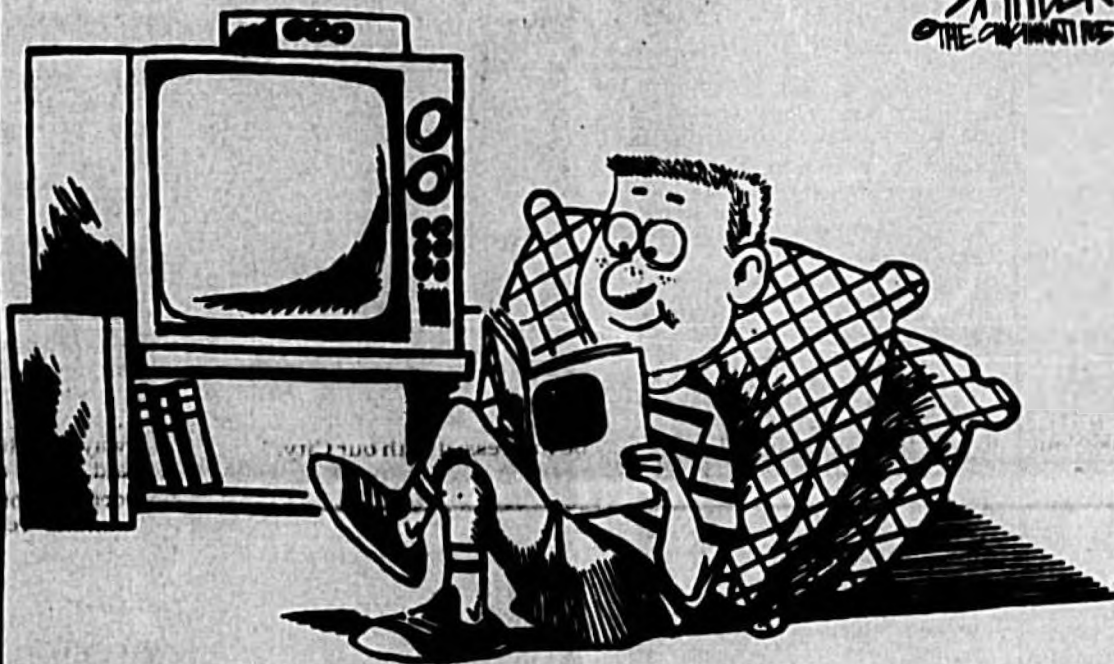

After much chatter this year about a return to isolationism, it is now clear that this time there will be no pell-mell retreat from the world. Our children will pay some of the monetary costs for that. But it is our mortgaged children who will likely live unthreatened by cataclysmic war, a gift greater than any our parents gave to us.

Into this semi-serene picture strides H. Ross Perot. He indicates that the Gulf War was an exercise by George Bush to prove his "manhood." If it's true, Bush ought to be impeached. If it's false, is Ross Perot a scandal-monger? Worse, is he an isolationist? What are his principles?

Twice this century Americans made catastrophic defense decisions.

A proper signal about life

When I first heard that Mary Sue and Junior Davis were headed for divorce court, I knew this was going to be more than your everyday, nasty fight over marital remains. The Tennessee twosome weren't wrestling for possession of the house or Grandpa's wedding gift. They were fighting over seven frozen and fertilized eggs stored in their local IVF clinic.

They couldn't split what they had joined together. He couldn't take back his sperm. She couldn't retrieve her ovum. Nor could they share custody of the pre-embryos: one week in her freezer, the next week in his.

She wanted custody to become a mother. And he wanted custody to NOT become a father. Mary Sue was suing to become the first woman with rights to her ex-husband's reproductive system. Junior was suing to be the first man with the post-fertilization right to say no.

For three long years, this case gestated in the legal system. One judge said the fertilized eggs were "human beings" and gave Mary Sue custody, "in their best interests." Another judge called them "marital property" and awarded them jointly to the disjointed Davises.

Meanwhile, Junior and Mary Sue each remarried. Mary Sue, who once called herself the "mother" of the seven pre-embryos, decided that she no longer wanted them implanted in her womb but wanted to donate them to an anonymous childless couple. Junior, an orphan himself, rejected this notion with the same fervor. The pre-embryos, each the size of a period at the end of this sentence, remained frozen in liquid nitrogen.

Now finally, the Tennessee Supreme Court has delivered an opinion. On Monday (June 1), the highest state court rightly sidestepped the question of whether these cells were "human beings" or "property" by saying simply and accurately that they "occupy an interim category" with "potential" for human life.

The real conflict is between two rights to "procreational autonomy." The right to have children and the right to avoid having children.

The justices' answer was unanimous: "Ordinarily, the party wishing to avoid procreation should prevail." In short and in this case, the state couldn't make Junior Davis become a father against his will. He hadn't given up his rights when his sperm fertilized her egg.

This raises all sorts of questions that were made for tabloids. Is Junior Davis now the first man in America to win the right to an abortion?

Last week, there was a story on the wires about the first man — OK, a hermaphrodite — to get pregnant. This week a court says a man can't be forced into fatherhood.

There is something just a touch spooky here.

As women's reproductive rights are contracting, men's rights seem to be expanding. In the Pennsylvania case now before the U.S. Supreme Court, one piece of the law would make women notify their husbands before having an abortion.

But if a husband has the right to know about an abortion, why shouldn't any potential father, married or not? If men have the right to be notified when a woman is going to abort, why not when she's going to have his baby? If "ordinarily, the party wishing to avoid procreation should prevail" what are a man's rights to insist that a woman either have an abortion or free him of child support obligations?

Of course, these scenarios go well beyond the Tennessee high court's careful decision. Indeed in that court's wording, a man's right to privacy seems to reinforce a woman's. If he can't be forced into fatherhood by the state, surely she can't be forced into motherhood.

In fairness, too, Junior Davis won in part because Mary Sue didn't want the pre-embryos for herself. If one party is just going to donate the eggs, wrote the court, "the objecting party, has the greater interest and should prevail."

Moreover, this conception took place in a petri dish, not in a woman's body. It's one thing to contest an organism in a freezer. Quite something else to contest it in a womb.

Nevertheless, in a case of great complexity, the Tennessee court sent up a proper signal at the intersection of technology and morality, men and women. For the moment, the Davis divorce has taught us to stop worrying about pre-marital agreements. These days, it's the pre-conceptual agreement that counts.

They couldn't split what they had joined together.

Cameras roll for stars of congress

WASHINGTON — Beyond the peeling yellow paint and dirty cement floors of a dark corridor of the Capitol basement lies Tinsel Town on the Potomac. It's called the Senate Recording Studio.

"It's the mother of all perks," one press secretary confessed.

Room ST-71 hosts a matinee each day in which the stars are U.S. senators, the audience is voters and the plot is decidedly political. Lights, cameras and "video press releases."

Pulling it off requires a mini-production company. A supporting cast of 50 includes 11 camera operators and supervisors, six video operators and technicians, six radio technicians and four production directors.

No expense is too big — or too small. Since last year, the studio has purchased 5,480 video tapes ($22,589), 40,250 audio tapes ($25,751) and 57 earpieces ($1,653). Then there's four combs ($5.68), nine bottles of hair spray ($13.58), one make-up remover ($8.82) and 14 compact ($54.82).

Since 1985, taxpayers have shelled out more than $2.5 million for assorted equipment, and more than $10 million for the recording studio's payroll. It pays dividends to the users.

Some political strategists estimate that congressional radio and television studios, TV satellite feeds, big staffs and free mail — all enjoyed exclusively by incumbents — are the equivalent of nearly $600,000 in campaign contributions per member of Congress.

This is one perk not reserved for the upper chamber. The House has its own recording studio, which made news several years ago after employees registered more than 4,000 hours of overtime keeping up with members' demands. It finally settled on beefing up its staff to accommodate not only the volume of requests but also Rocky Mountain and West Coast legislators whose live broadcasts to home stations come after normal working hours in Washington.

A Senate source conducted a rare tour of the Senate facility for our associate Ed Henry. Once he crossed the barrier into the studio, the plush green carpet stood in sharp contrast to the dirty cement floors in the hallway. Potted plants, brass lamps and comfortable leather chairs adorn the high-tech radio and television studios. There's a powder room stocked with those compacts, combs, mirrors, hair spray, and even an electric shaver. When they film a spot, senators can choose between a homey fireplace or a cerebral library as backdrop.

Members are prohibited from using the studio facilities within 60 days of a primary or general election challenge. But in the months leading up to that 60-day period the studio is an invaluable resource for a candidate's re-election effort. A Senate staffer explained that members target video messages to constituencies whose support they're courting when the polling data show weaknesses.

Most of the material that is shipped back to voters is seemingly mundane, and includes floor statements that are culled for sound-bites. Public service announcements are cut there too, along with interviews via satellite with anchorpersons back home. The studio also provides the tape of Senate floor proceedings to C-SPAN.

Sometimes when the studio has gone on location, the unblinking camera has been cruel. Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., was caught napping during a meeting with King Fahd of Saudi Arabia by a recording studio cameraman several years ago.

This is one perk not reserved for the upper chamber.

Son 'divorces' father

By Associated Press

TAVARES — The biological father of a Lake County boy who sued his parents for "divorce" has signed an agreement giving his permission for the 11-year-old to be adopted by his foster parents.

However, the biological mother and the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services remain as defendants, attorneys said.

In court documents filed Tuesday, the father — identified only as Ralph K., a 34-year-old air conditioning and heating repairman from St. Louis — signed away parental rights to his son.

"I did it because I love him," the father said in a Tuesday telephone interview with The Orlando Sentinel.

"I came down there to see it for myself," he said. "I saw my boy in really good health, doing great in school and playing baseball. I met the (foster) family and I really liked them."

The document filed Tuesday in Lake County Circuit Court was part of an amended lawsuit aimed at freeing the boy from his parents. Gregory K. contends in the suit that he was neglected and abandoned by his mother and father and also abused by his father.

The "divorce" case is actually a civil lawsuit asking a judge to rule that the boy has the constitutional right to decide whom his parents will be. Legal experts have said the case might be the first of its type in the United States.

The full names of the boy, his foster parents and his biological parents aren't being released because of the nature of the case. Gregory and his foster parents were unavailable for comment Tuesday.

The fifth-grader, who has spent most of his life in foster care or with his admittedly alcoholic father, said in the suit that he has learned to love his foster parents and their children, so he wants to stay.

He also alleges in the suit that while in HRS-supervised foster care in 1990, he was sexually and physically abused.

The accusation that HRS failed to protect him is the reason the state agency is opposing the adoption, said Jerri Blair, the boy's attorney. HRS officials refused to comment on the allegation or the case.

The mother, whom the newspaper couldn't reach Tuesday, also lives in St. Louis.

Williams, the senior class president, encouraged his fellow graduates to continue to pursue their educations to better prepare themselves for the workplace in the next century. He told them, also, to never lose sight of their dreams.

"Stick to the fight," he told them. "Go forth and make a difference."

Winkler applauded the teachers and administrators who had helped the students focus their attentions to things outside the classroom as well as on their studies.

She spoke of world events that had helped shape the last four years: the fall of the Berlin Wall, the Gulf War, the San Francisco earthquake and others. And she praised the teachers for a job well done.

"We learned that despite budget cuts we were still able to get a good education," she said.

The senior class offered as their gift to the school two computers that are compatible with a system the school is beginning to put into place. He said that the students had chosen the gift because they believe that computer literacy will continue to be extremely vital to future students.

Maintaining their sense of humor, the students presented a gift to principal Gretchen Schaper of a vase of marbles in the school colors of black, white and orange.

"When you think you've lost all of your marbles," the inscription read. "Remember the class of '92."

guests and the speakers flashed larger than life. The Ram's concert band and the Senior Class Singers provided musical entertainment.

Cheers, jeers and enthusiastic applause punctuated the evening's events, including the speeches by some of the top students from the class of 1992.

Honor student Aimee Tharp and Tomer Seifan expressed a confidence in their fellow students and an appeal that they not lose their hope for the future.

"You are the best," Tharp said. "You will be successful."

Seifan brought thunderous applause from the graduates when he encouraged them to not forget they are individuals who should never lose sight of their dreams.

"We have a chance to succeed," he said. "Follow your dreams. Do things because they make sense. Do not take our freedoms for granted."

While the audience, surrounding the graduates in the darkened arena, applauded and occasionally called out loudly, it was the graduates themselves who exhibited the most enthusiastic responses.

Senior class president Jodi Young, said goodbye to her peers but said the friendships made in high school could last a lifetime.

"A lifetime is not too long to live as friends," she said.

Lauderdale explained, "I'm in the process of going through a series of tests now, and have to report back to him in several more weeks before I find out the final results."

In an earlier memorandum, Lauderdale has identified several "personal" problems that may result in his retirement. "One of my big concerns is that I have a very sick mother at the family horse ranch in Texas," he explained, "and there is no one left in the family who will take care of her." His mother is 76 years of age, and has already had one stroke.

"If she has any more serious problems," he commented, "just like any other son would do, I'll be out of here as soon as possible, to help her."

As Public Safety Director, Lauderdale has had supervision over both the Police and Fire departments. "When the City hired Chief Stoddard to run the fire department," he said, "I gave him full control, and he has been doing an excellent job."

Regarding the police department Lauderdale said, "Capt. Sam Belfiore has been operating every aspect of it except for crime prevention, planning and policy making. I have been handling that, and will continue to do so."

"Right now," he added, "Belfiore is away because of a serious illness in his family, so I am operating the entire force, but when he returns, he will resume the regular day-to-day operation as usual."

Pending any serious findings in the medical exam, Lauderdale intends to remain on the job in Lake Mary. "I've promised that I will continue working on the budget for this coming fiscal year, as well as planning and brutality, malfeasance of duty or abuse of authority" in the investigations unit, comprised of city and county law enforcement officers.

Messer, now in the sheriff's criminal investigations division, was assigned to CCIB from January 1989 to March 1990, when, he said, he asked Ealinger, then CCIB commander under Sheriff John Polk, to be released from the assignment.

"I told him in general that the way things were being done were not my way of doing things," said Messer. "I requested out. I could not stand it."

Messer said he was interviewed again in February by Sellers and a Florida Department of Law Enforcement investigator at the Seminole County Juvenile Justice Center. Messer said he was again questioned regarding excessive force by members of the CCIB unit.

In February, Taylor said he had first been interviewed by Sellers in late 1991. He would only say then the questions involved allegations of excessive force used by CCIB agents during early 1991 and before. Taylor, who lives in Geneva, was assigned to the unit from November 1989 to October 1990.

Although he would not discuss specific allegations in February, Taylor said "If I am deposed, I will testify." Taylor was subsequently interviewed by Sellers and the FDLE agent at the JJC Feb. 18.

Taylor declined to talk about the investigation this morning.

congratulate Seminole High School Class of 1992 Graduates. Another was suggested, "Seminole High School, 1992 State Baseball Champions."

Both suggested designs were projected to include symbols such as a football, graduation cap, baseball player, or others.

During the discussion, Commissioner Whitey Eckstein commented, "I would certainly like to see these signs promoting Seminole High School sports teams. I think anyone driving around and seeing them would be impressed with our City."

Mayor Bettye Smith suggested, "Maybe we should consider commending groups or people other than sports at times." She added, "But we can let that wait until we bring it up for a commission decision."

No cost estimate has been made for the signs, Simmons projected. "We will have to determine the size of the signs and determine how many of them we will need before we begin to consider what they may cost."

Eckstein was interested in the placement. "We have many gateways leading into Sanford," he said. "These only be at a few locations on all over the city." Simmons responded, "That's the next step, to determine sites where these signs could be installed."

This morning, Simmons projected, "It looks as though we'll need four signs for the present.

One each at the north and south entrances of Highway 17-92, and one each on the east and west sides of S.R. 46." He added, "We may eventually need a fifth sign when the Expressway is finished, but that will depend on where the 17-92 sign is at the southern side of the City."

While the matter was only discussed during the workshop meeting, and not presented during the regular City Commission meeting, no decision was made on the signs. Mayor Smith, however, observed that the general consensus of the members of the Commission was to proceed with looking into sites, designs and costs.

Lauderdale commented, "I have told the city leaders, if I leave, I will give them at least 60 to 90 days notice, which should be enough time for them to find a replacement."

As for the next step, other than finding out the results of his medical evaluation he commented, "Any final determination will be up to the desire of the City Commission."

Summer seasons crank up

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Let the summer begin.

With Seminole County High Schools finishing the 1991-92 school year today, the summer baseball leagues will swing into full schedule by next week.

While most teams use the summer games to look at new players who will play varsity next year or move players into new positions to take the place of graduating seniors, Seminole High School will be in a unique situation.

With 13 players returning for the Class 3A State Champions, coaches Kenne Brown and Rod Ferguson (who head coach Mike Powers turned the team over to this summer) will use the summer to develop depth for next year.

Among the players getting a long look from Brown and Ferguson are pitchers Robbie Morgan, who is trying to comeback from an arm problem this year, Deion Daniels, Terry Tillis and Brian Dwyer and outfielders Jason Wildermuth, Craig Stevens and Jeremy Labit, who will be looked on to help replace SCC-signees, Anthony Roberts and Demy Beamon.

Seminole will play this summer as the Cyclones under the sponsorship of Sanford American Legion Post 55. The Cyclones are off to a 1-0 start already and will play a doubleheader against DeLand Post 6 at Conrad Park this afternoon starting at 5:30 p.m.

The Cyclones will also be in action this Friday and Saturday. Friday at 7 p.m. they will travel to Daytona's Jackie Robinson Stadium for a game with Bellmeade before heading Deltona in a doubleheader at Seminole Field Saturday morning starting at 10 a.m.

The other Seminole County schools will also be in action this week.

Lyman will at Lake Brantley at 7 p.m. today, at Deltona for a doubleheader starting at 3:30 p.m. Friday and at Oviedo for a 7 p.m. game Saturday.

Lake Mary will play four games this week, hosting Bishop Moore tonight and Oak Ridge Friday, both games starting at 7 p.m., before traveling to Lake Howell for a 5:30 p.m. game Saturday and to Oak Ridge for a game Sunday.

Hopkins clinches tie

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It took a while, but Hopkins Meat Packing finally pulled out its seventh win and, with a little help, clinched a tie for the championship of the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Spring Softball League at Pinehurst Park Tuesday night.

Beer:30 looked like it might hand Hopkins Meat Packing its first as it led 1-0 until the fourth inning and was tied 6-6 entering the sixth. But Hopkins rallied to pull out the 12-6 victory.

Hopkins claimed a tie for the title when Lake Mary Veterinary Clinic came up with three runs in the seventh inning to edge Greenleaf Landscaping (the closest team to Hopkins) 18-16.

The first game of the evening never came off as Mid-Fl OB-GYN failed to have enough players show up, handing "D" Outcast a 7-0 forfeit win.

Hopkins improves to 7-0, giving it a three-game lead over "D" Outcast and Greenleaf Landscaping (both 4-3) with three games to play. Beer:30 and Lake Mary Veterinary Clinic (both 3-4) and Mid-Fl OB-GYN (0-7) complete the standings.

Pacing the Hopkins offense Eileen Thiebaut (four singles, three runs, RBI), Sharon Baker (home run, two singles, two runs, three RBI), Michelle Allman (triple, two singles, run, two RBI), Gena Bukur (three singles, run, two RBI), Cindy Perry (two singles, run, RBI) and Gena Sarver (two singles).

Also hitting were Renee Lanza and Kelly Bartholomew (one single, one run and one RBI each), Vicki Miller and Robin Brown (one single and one run each) and Terry Hirt (single, RBI).

Providing the offense for Beer:30 were Sharon Glass (two singles, two runs, RBI), Theresa Walburger (two singles, RBI), Bobbie Mosley (two singles) and Sandy Adams and Amy

When the other team doesn't have enough players show up to start the game, there's nothing to do except wait until either the game's declared a forfeit or the other team has enough bodies to field a team. On Tuesday night, "D" Outcast teammates (above, left to right) Cris Gollman, Edith Chester and Kandice Grooms hung out until Mid-Florida OB-GYN finally forfeited. Lashonda Bryant (right) and her grandmothers Dorothy Holmes (sitting, left) and Lucy Bryant (sitting right) came out to watch Lashonda's mother, who is also a member of the "D" Outcasts, play but were disappointed.

Fast qualifier Symons scores Open-Wheeled Modified victory

Special to the Herald

SANBULA — New Smyrna Beach driver Jerry Symons beat the veterans Saturday night in the 35-lap Florida Open-Wheeled Modified Championship Race at New Smyrna Speedway.

Symons, driving the team car of G & W Racing of New Smyrna Beach, started the evening by setting the fastest qualifying time of 19.953, one-thousandth of a second faster than teammate Mike Fitch.

By virtue of the draw, Symons started the race from the sixth position with Fitch drawing the seventh position.

At the drop of the green flag, Butch Yoakam charged to the early lead followed by Wayne Heckle. Coming out of turn four on the second lap, Fitch faltered, climbed the wall and was eliminated from competition.

On the restart, Symons, Heckle and Dave Dunkin bunched up behind race leader Yoakam in a close quarters battle for second place. The wheel-to-wheel racing lasted for 11 laps with Symons finally gaining the advantage and moving into second place.

During the 19th lap, after a persistent charge, Symons overtook and passed Yoakam for the point. Heckle moved into second place and started to close in on Symons. Symons held off repeated attempts by Heckle to take the lead and cross the stripe several car lengths ahead of the runner-up pilot.

"The car was perfect tonight, but I wasn't," said Symons, a two-time FASCAR Mini-Stock champion. "Getting to the front, I hit everything, first the wall, then Heckle, but best of all, I hit the checkered flag at the end."

out affair, but in the end, it was Wayne Heckle leading the way for a $750 payday.

David Indiveri led the early laps until tangling with second-running Butch Yoakam on lap seven. Dave Dunkin inherited the lead until a lap 12 restart, when Heckle was able to get by and roll unchecked to his seventh win on the year.

Following Heckle to the stripe were Dunkin, Yoakam, Donnie Narmore and Glenn Carter.

Limited Late Model laurels went to Jeff Moyer, who posed his first win on the year. Timmy Todd, Jason Burkett, John Wills and Tank Tucker completed the top five.

The Mini Stock win for Richard Newton was his sixth on the year. Bill Martin outmaneuvered Bobby Sears for second with Earl Mark finishing fourth ahead of Dave Barnett.

Sportman honors again went to Paul Colgan, who led Sanford's John Ripley to the line with Barbara Pierce, Rick Johns and Jimmy Johns coming in third through fifth.

John Smith took his first ever Bomber win at SpeedWorld, just edging Darren Gould for the top spot. Dave Waddell, Walt Loggins and Glenn Castro rounded out the top spots.

The Run-About winner was George Parrow while Spectator race honors went to Steve Schwender and Jimbo Rosenc.

"With Mike (Fitch) in the pits, it was up to me to win for the team. They are the ones that deserve all the credit."

Crossing the finish line behind Symons were Heckle, Dunkin and Yoakam, who have a combined 77 years of racing experience behind them. In fifth place was Irv Sutphin.

"Jerry (Symons) really deserves this win," said teammate Fitch, who presently leads the FASCAR Modifieds point standings. "My car was also in tip top shape tonight, but we just ran out of driver. Coming out of turn four, I let the car get away from me and before I could bring it back, I hit the wall."

David Rogers dominated the Super Late Model racing action as he picked up his sixth win of the season.

"We're getting back on track again," said Rogers, a three-time New Smyrna Speedway Late Model champion. "It takes time to rebuild your program. What we need more than anything is some consistency."

Consistency is something Roger's Racing knows about. In 1991, Rogers was the NASCAR Sunbelt racing champion. In the 1985 season, they won 37 out of 41 races and in 1986, notched 35 victories in 45 starts.

Ronnie Burkett, Guy Thomas, Joe Middleton and Junior Simmons rounded out the top five.

Dale Howard took the lead at the end of the first lap and then raced unchallenged to his sixth Sportsman feature win of the year.

"I have to thank my brother Doug and the people at DeLand Hi-Performance for this win," said Howard. "Two weeks ago, I left my car in turn one after a real bad wreck."

"I didn't have time to work on the car, so Doug and the guys at the shop did all the work. They put together almost a whole new car. When I got on the track tonight, this car ran just as well as it did before."

Behind Howard were Ted Head, Rick Johns, Barbara Pierce and Bill Loomis.

The top five finishers in the Mini-Stock main event were, in order, Bobby Sears, Tommy Symons, Ted Vulpus, Dick Owens and Bill Martin.

Robert Douglas Jr. won the Bomber main event, followed by Darren Gould, Bob Richardson, Jon Harney and Bill Fallon.

In Limited Late Model action, the top five finishers in the feature event were Ron McCreary, Dave Savicki, Tank Turner, Don Roberts and Jason Burkett.

Orr first in End of the Month race

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Pete Orr gunned his Horses' Around Farms Special to victory in Friday night's FASCAR 50-lap End of the Month Championship race for Late Models at Orlando SpeedWorld.

"I have to thank my crew and my sponsors for this win," said Orr, who is the 1992 World Series champion. "Everything was just perfect."

"I want to dedicate this win to my co-sponsor, Gary Kohler, who is hospitalized."

Dennis Schoenfeld set the early pace as Orr, up from fifth on the starting grid, moved into second when the caution flag flew on lap 14.

On the restart, Schoenfeld's car momentarily lost power as Orr blasted through to take the lead followed by Daniel Keene and Ronnie Burkett. Once on the point, Orr cruised to victory lane.

Following another restart on lap 28, Schoenfeld coasted into the infield and out of the race. Two laps later, Von Crews, Mack Hanbury and Billy Pratt crashed on turn one, but were able to continue.

During lap 43, something broke on Keene's car, sending him into a spin and out of the race. On the restart, second and third runners Ronnie Roach and Ronnie Burkett tangled, sending

The special 35-lap Modified main event was a long, drawn-

Six drivers top NASCAR points chase

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — Six drivers are within one race of the NASCAR stock car racing national points lead after Sunday's 300-mile race at Sears Point International Raceway in California.

Davey Allison kept his lead in the chase for the $1.3 million Winston Cup championship, as he has since winning the season-opening Daytona 500 12 races ago. But his 28th-place finish Sunday let the rest of the pack catch up.

"You're going to have some bad luck every once in awhile. It happens to everybody and it happened to us at Sears Point," said Allison, who crashed early and spent much of the race working to stay in the lead lap.

"I've been saying all along that it's going to go down to the last race of the season," Allison said in a Monday release. "So we'll head on to the next race and maybe things will go our way there."

Allison has 1,773 points and a 28-point lead over new second-place driver Dale Earnhardt, a five-time national champion and motorsports' all-time leading money-winner. Earnhardt, who was third in the standings before Sunday, has 1,745 points.

Bill Elliott, the 1986 national champion, is third with 1,742 points, just 31 out of the lead. Harry Gant is 32 points behind with 1,741 points, while Alan Kulwicki is fifth with 1,690 points, 83 points back. Sixth-place Terry Labonte has 1,656 points and is 115 points behind.

With a possible 143-point difference between first and 40th in a single race, any of those six could take the lead by the end of the next NASCAR cup race, Sunday's 500-miler at the 2.5-mile Pocono (Pa.) International Raceway.

Morgan Shepherd is seventh with 1,546 points, followed by Ricky Rudd, 1,511; Geoff Bodine, 1,494; and Sunday Sears Point winner Ernie Ivan, 1,488.

Allison also continues to lead the circuit in money-winnings with $984,306. Elliott is second with $788,755, followed by Earnhardt, $514,390; Kulwicki, $428,395; Gant, $420,220; Ivan, $407,445; Kyle Petty, $382,450; Mark Martin, $337,680.

Ward wins Late Model doubleheader

Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Greg Ward of Ormond celebrated double victories during Saturday's Kinco Window and Doors night at Volusia County Speedway this past weekend.

In both of the Late Model Stock 20-lap twin main events, Ward grabbed the lead in the second half of the race and stayed just ahead of St. Augustine's David Showers to score his first and second main event wins of the year.

"We ran as hard as we could and took advantage of every opportunity," exclaimed Ward in victory lane.

Ken West of Jacksonville was the early leader in the first of two 20-lappers. West was running strong until his No. 43 got loose in turn four just prior to reaching the halfway point, enabling a charging Ward to take him on the high side for the lead.

As the laps wound down, Showers began to reel in Ward, but it was too late as Ward went on to register the victory.

The second 20-lap feature was almost a carbon copy of the first. This time, Hank Baker of New Smyrna Beach went out to the lead but was overcome by Mount Dora's Cam Gibson. West worked his way to the front and challenged before taking the lead on lap 11.

West's lead was short-lived, however, as he and Gibson came together in turn two. Ward inherited the lead and ran nose-to-tail with Showers right up to the checkers.

David Clegg of Bunnell ran strong in the 20-lap Sportsman feature, holding the lead for more than half the race. A late race caution tightened the gap between Clegg and Edgewater's Jim Winks, who had charged to the front of the pack after starting in the eighth position.

With only two laps to go, Winks dove inside of Clegg and held on for the win.

After starting 10th, Scott LeCates of Ormond won the 15-lap Street Stock main. Ocoee's Benny Gibson held the early lead but was soon overtaken by Roger Wren of Orange City.

By the sixth circuit, Wren and LeCates were battling side by side. LeCates eventually had enough of an edge to grab the point. Once out front, LeCates was invincible, holding on for the win.

Jerry Gilliard of Apopka was the early leader in the Mini Stock feature. However, Rick Fairbanks of Inverness showed his championship skills, taking the lead by the fifth circuit.

BLUEBERRY COBBLER is a great old-time treat.

Pack a basket, indulge in blueberry pickin'

It's blueberry "pickin" time in Florida. A great time to spend a day outdoors picking your own. I like to pack a basket and drive to the area a little north of Ocala. There are several farms there that have the berries for picking or already picked. They are sold by the pound, are very easy to pick (no bending over) and no better can be found. If picking berries doesn't appeal to you, most local markets have an abundant supply in the weeks ahead. Make use of the availability...enjoy them in many different ways and freeze some for future use.

Lower sugar jams, like this one, need to be frozen or sealed with vacuum lids. Combinations of berries make flavorful jam.

BERRY JAM

- 2 cups sliced strawberries
- 2 cups raspberries
- 2 cups blueberries
- 1 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 2 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin

Combine berries in food processor or blender container. Process until smooth. Transfer to 2-qt. batter bowl. Stir in lemon juice and sugar. # Career, scratch cooking mix

By BERNARD VIELING
Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — Loraine Scheider defies the Madison Avenue stereotype single career woman. Although she has a full time position as an administrative assistant for a manager at a major insurance company, plays tennis four times a week and has a part time job at a cheese shop, she still manages to cook her own meals from scratch.

"I don't think they (frozen convenience meals) have any flavor," she says.

Scheider started to cook when she was a teenager and has never stopped or even slowed down since for that matter. Her mother, who loves to bake, taught her much of what she knows. Scheider continues to expand her culinary capabilities by experimenting with new recipes and making creative substitutions when she cooks.

Scheider's five children have benefited from their mother's kitchen skills. "My children didn't know what store bought bread was until they left home...or store bought cookies either," she says.

Scheider is a proficient cook but her favorite kitchen activity is baking. Anyone lucky enough to know her is very happy about that. She regularly treats friends and co-workers to homemade goodies. Cookies, beautifully decorated cakes and hand-made candies are just some of the delights she produces.

A native of St. Louis, Scheider has lived in Florida for 23 years. She loves cooking for her family when they visit. The size of her household has shrunk considerably but she has adroitly handled this change. She acknowledges that it wasn't easy. "I went from cooking for seven people down to one. It was hard to scale down," she muses.

Scheider advises beginning cooks to forget their fear of failure and try new things. She also has some good advice for Central Florida cookie bakers. She makes the dough for her cookies using half butter flavor shortening and half butter which she creams together with the sugar by hand instead of an electric mixer. She refrigerates the dough in long rolls to be sliced and baked as needed.

Scheider makes this lasagna and cuts it into individual portions which she stores in her freezer as a homemade convenience food. It is low in fat and calories.

CREAMY SPINACH LASAGNA

- One half 16 oz. package lasagne noodles, about nine noodles
- 1 large onion, chopped
- One 8 oz. package sliced mushrooms
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- Two 10 oz. packages frozen, chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry
- 1 tsp. dried oregano leaves
- 1 tsp. dried basil leaves
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- One 16 oz. container 1 percent, low-fat cottage cheese
- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 cup flour
- One 8 oz. package low-fat mozzarella cheese, shredded
- Three 8 oz. cans tomato sauce
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

About 1 1/2 hours before serving, prepare noodles as label directs. Meanwhile, cook onion, mushrooms and garlic in 10-inch nonstick skillet over medium heat for five minutes. Remove from heat and stir in spinach, oregano, basil and pepper. Set aside. In a food processor, blend cottage cheese, egg whites, flour and 1 cup mozzarella cheese until smooth. Preheat oven to 375°. In 13" x 9" baking dish, arrange 3 noodles. Next, layer half of spinach mixture, half of cheese mixture and half of tomato sauce. Repeat layers and top with remaining 3 noodles. Sprinkle with remaining mozzarella and Parmesan cheeses. Bake for 45 minutes or until bubbly. Remove from oven and let stand for 5 minutes. Makes 12 servings. Each serving has approximately 200 calories, 4 grams fat, 10 milligrams cholesterol and 740 milligrams sodium.

Scheider likes to serve this dish on Easter and Christmas mornings. She makes it ahead of time so that she can enjoy spending time with her company.

BREAKFAST CASSEROLES

- 1 lb. hot sausage
  - 3 slices bread, cubed
  - 1 cup grated New York sharp cheddar cheese
  - 6 eggs
  - 2 cups milk
  - 1 tsp. salt
  - 1 tsp. dry mustard
- Cook sausage, crumble and drain. In a greased 13" x 9" baking dish, layer bread, sausage and cheese. Beat eggs, milk, salt and mustard. Pour over top of layered mixture. Refrigerate 2 to 12 hours (or overnight). Bake at 350° or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Serves 6 to 8.

Loraine Scheider's fellow employees are often treated to her baked goods and homemade candy.

Scheider also prepares this dish the night before and suggests that it would be good to take to a covered dish supper.

POT LUCK POTATOES

- One 2 lb. pkg. frozen hash brown potatoes, completely thawed
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- 2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup melted butter
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 pint sour cream
- 2 cups crushed corn flakes

Combine all ingredients except for crumbs and butter. Pour into buttered 13" x 9" baking dish. Combine crumbs and melted butter and sprinkle over top. Bake for 45 minutes at 350°.

Scheider makes this candy as a special occasion treat. After the chocolate covered cherries ripen they form a liquid center.

CHOCOLATE COVERED CHERRIES

- 60 maraschino cherries with stems (about 3 - 10 oz. jars)
- 3 Tbsp. butter or margarine, softened
- 3 Tbsp. light corn syrup
- 1 Tbsp. pink creme d'almoid liqueur
- 2 1/2 cups sifted powdered sugar
- 1 lb. chocolate flavored confectioners' coating

Drain cherries thoroughly on paper towels for several hours. In a small bowl combine butter, syrup, and creme d'almoid. Stir in powdered sugar and knead until smooth. For easier shaping, cover and chill one hour. Shape about 1/4 tsp. of the powdered sugar mixture around each cherry. Place coated cherries on a baking sheet lined with waxed paper.

In a double boiler melt about 1/4 of the confectioners' coating over hot but not boiling water. Add remaining coating, 1/4 at a time, stirring until melted after each addition. Holding the cherries by the stems, dip one at a time into the melted coating. Spoon coating over the cherries to cover completely to prevent any cherry juice from leaking out once the chocolate sets. Let excess coating drip off cherries. Place dipped cherries stem side up, on baking sheet lined with waxed paper.

Let stand in a cool (between 65 and 70 degrees) dry place until coating is firm. Place cherries in a covered container. Let stand to ripen in a cool, dry place for one to two weeks.

Give chicken stew a Spanish flair

By ALLEN CLARK
NEA Food Editor

A Spanish chicken stew is a homey dish that fits into today's cooking trend as many Americans, due to tight economic times, return to the hearth for home-cooked meals. This dish smacks of robustness.

Actually, this recipe is a light version of a peasant dish developed by Sheila Lukins, cookbook author and food editor for Parade magazine.

Lukins' goal is to utilize foods commonly used in Spain -- such as dates, olives and raisins -- to add special flavoring to the stew. Since people are cooking in a healthier way, she has turned to the use of olive oil rather than scads of butter for sauteing chicken parts. In this way, there is a reduction in calories and cholesterol.

A variety of spices, including cinnamon, help turn this meal into an elegant party dish, as well as one the family will enjoy as a different approach to preparing everyday chicken.

In Spain, both the olive and olive oil are highly regarded. In fact, the Spanish hold fall harvesting festivities, which are often part of worship.

Furthermore, romerias, or processions from towns to small churches in the countryside, are conducted year-round throughout the country. In San Marti de Riucorb and Cazorla, olive oil and the olive are offered to the Virgin Mary as gifts during special romerias.

HEARTY CHICKEN STEW WITH DATES AND MANZANILLA OLIVES

- 2 chickens, about 2 1/2 pounds

SPANISH VERSION of a light chicken stew smacks of robustness.

- total, cut into serving pieces
- 1/4 cup pure olive oil
- 2 cups yellow onions, diced
- 6 cloves garlic, coarsely chopped
- 8 cups chicken broth
- 2 cinnamon sticks, 3 inches long
- 2 teaspoons curry powder
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon powdered saffron threads

salt and pepper, to taste

- 2 carrots, peeled and cut into 1/4-inch dice
- 2 zucchini, cut into 1/4-inch dice
- 1 large red bell pepper, seeded and cut into 1/4-inch dice
- 1 white boiling potato, peeled and cut into 1/4-inch dice
- 6 ripe plum tomatoes, seeded and cut into 1/2-inch dice
- 1 1/2 cups pitted dates, halved
- 1 cup pitted manzanilla olives, rinsed in water
- 1 cup raisins
- 6 cups cooked rice, barley or angel hair pasta
- 1/4 cup fresh cilantro leaves, chopped

Clean the chicken well and remove the skin. Pat dry. Heat the oil in a heavy casserole over low heat. Add the chicken, a few pieces at a time, and cook until it is just opaque and lightly golden on both sides. Do not overcook. Remove chicken to a dish and reserve.

Add the onions and garlic to the casserole and cook over low heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add the broth, cinnamon, curry powder, cumin, saffron, and salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes.

Add the chicken legs and thighs, carrots, zucchini, red pepper and potato. Continue to simmer another 10 minutes. Add the chicken breasts, tomatoes, dates, olives and raisins. Simmer an additional 10 minutes. Remove the cinnamon sticks.

Divide the rice, barley or pasta between 8 large soup bowls and spoon the stew on top, spooning plenty of broth over all. Garnish the bowls with chopped cilantro and serve immediately. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

How to care for an Immune deficiency

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please explain selective IgA deficiency. My 34-year-old husband is always sick.

DEAR READER: IgA is an immune globulin -- an antibody -- that is part of a larger family of immune globulins. In humans, there are five major classes: IgG, IgA, IgD and IgE. Each class has a different molecular weight and serves a different function.

For example, IgA (which is present in most of the body's secretions) acts as an early anti-viral and anti-bacterial defense. Patients with an IgA deficiency are more susceptible to infection because the body is unable to identify and control infection literally before it begins.

Immunoglobulins are measured using complex blood tests, such as immunoelectrophoresis.

In some cases, immune globulin deficiency is inherited; in others, it may result from serious infections, such as AIDS.

With respect to IgA deficiency, this condition is the commonest and mildest of all immunodeficiencies. It is usually inherited and needs no treatment (such as administration of supplemental immune globulins). Although many patients with this deficiency have recurrent infections, treatment with antibiotics, as the need arises, ordinarily clears up any problem. I suggest you return to your doctor to discuss additional treatment options, including supplemental immune globulins.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read a recent article about your condemnation of KM products. My entire family takes KM and has done so for over a year. We all have much more energy and a calmness of the mind that spreads to the rest of our bodies. I suspect the gentleman who wrote to you has a problem and enjoys his ailments.

DEAR READER: I am delighted your family is enjoying good health and a "calmness of the mind." However, I stick to my original proposition that KM Matol products, which are basically simple mineral supplements, are a get-rich scheme of no scientifically documented health benefit.

Have you heard of the "placebo effect"? Any inactive

By Phillip Alder

Rixi Markus, who died in April, was the first woman to receive the rank of Grand Master from the World Bridge Federation. She won five world titles: the Women's Teams in 1937 and 1964, the Women's Pairs in 1962 and 1974 (she was second in 1970), and the Mixed Teams in 1962. She also won nine European Championships.

At the bridge table, she was renowned for her so-called Rixi bids. She would make outrageous calls that always seemed to push her opponents into errors. As I can verify, having been her partner on some of these occasions, she always seemed to know how the opponents would destroy themselves.

Today's deal was Rixi's favorite. The normal action in the fourth position would be to make a take-out double, but Rixi knew where she wanted to go. East expressed the opinion that Rixi had slipped on a banana skin.

Rixi won trick one with dummy's diamond queen and ran the spade eight, East making a fatal mistake when he ducked. East won the second spade lead with the ace and returned a heart to declarer's ace. Rixi led the club king, which East ducked. Now declarer cashed her two top diamonds before playing a second club to the queen and ace. East returned a club to dummy's 10. On the next club lead, East ruffed low and South overruffed.

Everyone had three cards left. Rixi exited with the diamond seven, forcing East to ruff and lead away from his Q-10 of spades into South's K-J.

"I wouldn't have believed it," said East, an eminent surgeon. "But at least I have a story to tell everyone."

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 11, 1992

Your material prospects look very encouraging for the year ahead. There are indications you might generate income from at least three sources.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Ways can be found today to resolve a situation that has been disturbing you. Lady Luck could be instrumental in helping to orchestrate a happy ending. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something opportune could develop for you at this time through a prominent social contact. This individual might make it possible for you to effectively expand upon your present plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in a favorable cycle for adding to your resources -- either through your usual channels or through something new with another that has profitable potential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Beginning today, you should have more direct control over situations that can help fulfill your personal ambitions. Don't delegate important matters to others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Patience is a virtue, a principle that you should put to work in your favor today. There could be a major adjustment in events that will shift things around to your ultimate benefit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're starting to sense something opportunistic is about to break for you, there is justification for your feelings. What you've been hoping for might finally be realized.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your better qualities aren't likely to emerge today -- until you are confronted by challenge. Once aroused, your will to win will be dynamic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

This should be a rewarding day for you because of your ability to treat whatever occurs philosophically. It's your attitude that makes you a winner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you've been unable to change could begin to shift today, owing to forces over which you have no control. It might end up better for you than if you had engineered things yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone who was not originally supportive of you could end up becoming one of your closest friends. This is a relationship worth cultivating.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take time to think each step through before tackling a complicated project today. You'll be a productive performer, provided you're properly organized.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) What you can't accomplish on your own today can be achieved with a competent partner. You shouldn't have problems finding someone to fit the bill.
