Key States That He Covered Up To Help President Of Bank

Declares He Has Been Promised No Leniency In Return For His Pleas Of Guilty Shows No Sign Of Emotion In Trial

His face masking any emotion which he might feel, A. R. Key, vice-president and cashier of the defunct Seminole County Bank, today told how he had covered manipulation of the bank's funds for the benefit of its president, his former employer Harry F. Forrest Lake, who is on trial charged with aiding and abetting in the falsification of an entry made on the bank's books the day it failed to open.

Key testified under cross-examination that the state's attorney, Harold B. Smith, had promised him no leniency in exchange for his pleas of guilty in two cases and his testimony for the state and the bank cases. He said he had even talked to Mr. Smith about staying until he appeared in court Monday and entered his pleas of guilty. More than 400 persons overflowed the courtroom at night and half as many listened to Key's closing words this morning. The state rested its case at noon. The defense began its case at 2:30 p. m.

Key, in his testimony yesterday today, told how he had taken the steps leading up to the making of the false entry, ordered it made, and how he did it to cover shortages in various accounts in the bank by which Lake had benefited. He told his story calmly, in the face of the continuous objections of the defense counsel which interrupted the tale.

According to his testimony, various accounts in the bank, including city and county bond accounts, were short more than $400,000 the morning the bank failed to re-open, and false deposit entries of $694,046.11 was made to conceal it in place of a true entry of $234,714.86. He told how notes and checks totaling $467,027.94 deposited in these short accounts to bring them up to the proper amount. He said he had prepared the notes in the bank directors' room and that Lake, himself and Peter Schaal, another bank employee, had signed them. These notes were dated at various times, but were all made the day the bank failed to open. A list of them has been published in The Herald several times.

Key, on the stand, was again the banker. His speech was concise. He spoke the banker's language and clipped off figures taken from the various exhibits, in quick, clear words. He repeated many of his statements again and again for the benefit of the judge and jury. He did not become angry when the state harried him in cross examination. In fact he smiled most during W. H. Dickinson's examination for the defendant.

In several cases his replies were sharp and loud as he denied questions put him by Dickinson. During the direct examination Key said he had taken a number of ledger sheets from the bank's books and files for the purpose of concealing them. He said he and Lake discussed doing it and that Lake asked him if it was done before the bank president left for Philadelphia the afternoon of Aug. 6.

Dickinson, in his cross examination asked Key if he went to Philadelphia to meet Lake when he returned from Philadelphia. Key said he did. He said they talked in the smoker after he boarded the train. Dickinson asked him if in the smoker he hadn't told Lake for the (Continued on page 4)

WITNESS FAILS TO APPEAR AT SINCLAIR TRIAL

Harry Blackmer, Former American Oil Man, Declines To Answer Subpoena Issued By Lawyers For Government

Refuses To Return From French Lair

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11. (INS)—The name of Harry M. Blackmer, former American oil man, was called fully three times today at the criminal conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair, Blackmer is one of the three missing witnesses in the Teapot Dome case. At present he is in France with a subpoena in his pocket which he is ignoring.

The government would like to question him, James E. O'Neil, also in Europe, and Henry Smith O'Neil, last heard of in Africa about a peculiar oil deal which resulted in profits for them and Sinclair which were later turned into liberty bonds. Certain of these bonds, to the amount of $243,000, found their way into the hands of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and it is the government's contention they were a bribe to induce him to lease the Teapot Dome naval oil reserves to Sinclair.

Fall, named as a party to the alleged conspiracy, is on his way to stand trial. Federal prosecutor Owen J. Roberts had no expectation that Blackmer would answer to his name. He had called merely to let the jury know of his absence.

The business of "padding" Blackmer was done thoroughly, however. The clerk first called for his presence, and three deputy marshals were then sent through the court house corridors droning out "H. M. Blackmer" repeatedly.

Roberts called half a dozen Western bankers who produced Fall's accounts in 1922. These witnesses were on the stand only briefly and their testimony was merely for the purpose of further verifying the fact that Fall had the Sinclair liberty bonds in his possession. There was no cross examination.

Having completed the establishment of the liberty bond transaction, Roberts then reverted to the beginning of the oil negotiations and started the task of revealing to the jury what led up to the leasing of the Teapot Dome. First, he introduced in evidence a multitude of letters, telegrams and government files. This was tedious work, as the defense examined each document closely, objecting to some.

A telegram revealed that Sinclair and an attorney, the late J. W. Zevely, visited Fall at his New Mexico ranch Christmas week, 1921. Apology was made for intruding on the secretary's holiday, but it was explained the business "was urgent." The "business" in question was the first proposal to lease the naval oil reserve.

On Feb. 23, 1922, Sinclair made a formal offer to Fall for the reserve, agreeing to supply the navy with fuel oil in storage and build a 1,000 mile, $18,000,000 pipe line to the Atlantic Coast in exchange for the privilege of working the field.

Five days later, G. T. Stanford, Sinclair lawyer who was called to the stand, testified, Sinclair organized the mammoth oil company to handle the expected lease. A million shares of stock no par value were issued, and later an additional 1,000,000.

On Mar. 11, 1922, Sinclair wrote Fall and advised him of the birth of the mammoth oil company. Sinclair wrote that, as he "personally would own all the stock," he could guarantee fulfillment of any contract.

"It can't be denied that corruption has shown its snaky head in government some of the officials of the government, but against those who are guilty, great or small, the administration is pressing vigorous prosecution and we may be assured the guilty will suffer condign punishment," declared the O'Neil.

"It is altogether untrue" he contended, "that corruption or dishonesty has laid hold upon the federal government. In the demoralization which succeeds every great convulsion like the Civil War or the late colonial contest, widespread dishonesty develops itself in public and private life."

The speaker declared North Carolina's progress in recent years was the result of policies of the Republican Party, especially protective tariff.

Key Has Interview With Reporter In Which He Says He Wishes To Tell Truth

"I want to tell the truth about everything that happened in the Seminole County Bank." Thus A. R. Key, former vice-president and cashier of the bank who yesterday took the stand for the state against Forrest Lake, former president of the bank, - in one of the cases arising from the bank's failure, began an interview with The Herald today.

"I want to tell everything," he repeated. "I want the people of Sanford to know what I did, what I am to blame for and what I am not to blame for. Where I have done wrong, I want to admit it. Where I have not done wrong, I want to explain."

"I did or directed the work of covering up dealings within the Seminole County Bank which benefited Forrest Lake or, on few occasions, myself or someone else. Now I have tried to testify in court what I did and how Mr. Lake was benefited. When I have told my story my conscience will be clear. I will have done what I consider right."

"In two cases connected with the failure of the bank, I have entered pleas of guilty. I did that because I was guilty. I borrowed money in excess of the provisions of the law. Mr. Lake borrowed money in excess of the provisions of the law. I know it. That's why I entered pleas of guilty."

"I myself borrowed money from the bank. That was the effect of the real estate boom. I never dreamed I would owe so much. Before the boom I never owed over $6,000, or there about. Then the boom came and went and I found myself owing the bank a great deal more than I should. Now I've admitted I did wrong. There is nothing more I can do, except to tell the truth and let the law take its course."

In the installment today he tells how Senator Simon D. Fess was made the object of a plot because he had voted against a bill to abolish parochial schools by national legislation. Stephenson tells of other men and of how his life was threatened when he protested the killing of Tom Austin, Klan agent.

The affidavit continues: "Another instance was an attempt made to involve the name of Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio in a compromising way with a woman because Senator Fess (then Senator-elect but a member of the House of Representatives) while a member of the House, had voted against and opposed the Sterling-Towner bill. The bill had to do with the abolition of parochial schools. The bill was entirely un-American, an unjust, unwarranted thing, and sought to delegate to the states over 100 million dollars of the federal government."

"I understood that all members in the states over which I had control against the bill and succeeded in bringing up some sentiment against it."

"A Klan magazine published a series of articles violently attacking Senator Fess. I received a letter which said that the same man had been in the same way with a woman because Senator Fess (then Senator-elect but a member of the House of Representatives) while a member of the House, had voted against and opposed the Sterling-Towner bill. The bill had to do with the abolition of parochial schools. The bill was entirely un-American, an unjust, unwarranted thing, and sought to delegate to the states over 100 million dollars of the federal government."

"I understood that all members in the states over which I had control against the bill and succeeded in bringing up some sentiment against it."

"Another instance in which a woman was used for illegal purposes was the case of a woman who was used for illegal purposes."

"After the money was taken from the vault, the handlets headed for Jacksonville. They were arrested there later."

Mrs. Mamie Lee Todd, at whose home the crime was planned, and where the men found refuge afterward, will go on trial next, it was announced today. She is charged with being an accessory before and after the murder. Morrow will be tried for murder upon the conclusion of Mrs. Todd's trial.

Automobile Prices Will Be Reduced If Senate Waives Tax

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11. (INS)—The prices of all American made automobiles will be reduced as soon as Congress repeals the federal automobile tax, Roy D. Chapin, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, told the Senate Finance Committee today.

All automobile manufacturers, said Chapin, have taken a unanimous pledge to take the tax off the price of their cars to the consumer as soon as the tax is repealed. In this way, Chapin declared, the buying public will benefit at once from repeal of the tax.

The tax of 3 per cent was repealed by the House but the Treasury Department insisted that it be restored in the senate.

The charge that Henry Ford has collected $25,000,000 a year in "padding" freight rates was aired by Senator Reid (R) of Pennsylvania. Ford's practice, it was shown, was to collect "full rates" from Detroit, whereas a large proportion of his cars were shipped to dealers from assembling plants much nearer the point of sale. Chapin declined to comment on the charge but Senator Corona said Ford had to collect the full rate in order to meet the cost of his assembling plants.

One Time Grand Dragon Of The Hooded Order Says Women Were Used To Basmirch The Characters Of Famous Men

Makes Deposition In Federal Prison

CHICAGO, Apr. 11. (INS)—David C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, who made a lengthy deposition in an Indiana State Penitentiary where he is serving a life term for murder, told yesterday how the Klan was alleged to have used women to blemish the characters of honest men.

In the installment today he tells how Senator Simon D. Fess was made the object of a plot because he had voted against a bill to abolish parochial schools by national legislation. Stephenson tells of other men and of how his life was threatened when he protested the killing of Tom Austin, Klan agent.

Ohio Congressman Says Graft Is Not Confined To 1 Party

RALEIGH, N. C., April 11. (INS)—Graft and bribery are not limited to one party alone, Rep. Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, told some 3,000 North Carolina Republicans attending the party's state convention here today.

"It can't be denied that corruption has shown its snaky head in government some of the officials of the government, but against those who are guilty, great or small, the administration is pressing vigorous prosecution and we may be assured the guilty will suffer condign punishment," declared the O'Neil.

Thompson Faction Loses Election By Landslide Margin

SOLONSON REJOICE AT OUTCOME OF CHICAGO POLLING

Greatest Political Upheaval In History Results In Victory For Senator Deneen

CHICAGO, April 11. (INS)—In what is characterized as "the greatest political upheaval in the history of Illinois," the State Republican faction headed by Senator Charles S. Deneen has scored a landslide victory over the forces headed by Governor Len Small, Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, and Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of Cook County.

With a majority of 450,000 Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson, heading the U. S. Senator Charles S. Deneen faction, swept in Chicago's primary election, it was computed from returns received at noon today.

Judge John A. Swanson, marching in the wake of the Emmerson plurality over Governor Len Small in the gubernatorial race, defeated State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe by 200,000 for the Cook County prosecutor's office.

Frank O. Lowden won eight out of the twenty delegates to the national convention.

Otis F. Glenn, Deneen candidate for U. S. Senator, triumphed over Col. Frank L. Smith of Dwight by 110,000 votes in Cook County and added 150,000 more votes down state.

Emmerson carried to victory his running mates for lieutenant governor and secretary of state, Fred E. Sterling, incumbent, and the former banker, and William J. Stratton, the latter.

Oscar E. Carlstrom, attorney general, who sought renomination for the office under the Deneen banner, was successful over State Senator John Dalley of the "America first" combine. Ruth H. McCormick and Henry R. Rathbone won the nomination for Congressmen-at-large.

The outpouring of voters was the greatest in any primary election ever held. Upwards of 70 per cent of the total registration is believed to have gone to the polls. Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, and the state's "favorite son" in the race for the Republican nomination for President, polled an enormous preferential vote. He was the only name that appeared on the Republican ballot.

Lowden gained practically 30 delegates to the national convention from Illinois without contest as a result of yesterday's vote. He is assured of eleven more delegates at large when the Republican state convention meets Apr. 20.

Governor Al. Smith of New York added at least 52 delegates from Illinois in the Democratic primary. He is practically assured of eight additional delegates when the Democratic state convention meets.

Even before the count of the ballots was complete, machinery was set in motion today to prosecute those responsible for the widespread disorders that marked the balloting. The campaign reign of terror that made the primary the most bitterly contended in the history of Chicago reached a climax at the polls. Bloodshed and rioting were more or less general throughout the city.

Flyer's Body Washes Ashore Near Norfolk

WASHINGTON, Apr. 11. (INS)—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Commander T. G. Ellyson and two companions in a naval seaplane while enroute from Norfolk to Annapolis a month ago when the body of Commander Ellyson was washed ashore at Wiltoughby Spit, near Norfolk.

Ellyson and his companions left Norfolk before daylight for the comparatively short trip to Annapolis where the commander's young daughter was in the hospital.

Orlando Girl, Victim Of Automobile Wreck, Is Still Unconscious Today

Miss Margaret Kelsey, of Orlando, victim of an automobile smash-up Monday night near Maitland in which three cars were involved, was in a semi-unconscious condition today at the Fernand Loughton Hospital, according to Dr. C. P. Vincent, the physician who is attending her.

Dr. Vincent stated that the young woman showed only slight improvement and that her condition was very critical. Hospital authorities stated the young woman's condition only slightly improved if at all.

City Commission Will Meet Tonight In Effort To Solve City's Finances

The City Commissioners will meet at the City Hall tonight at seven-thirty with representatives of various bond houses who hold or have bought Sanford securities, in an effort to work out some plan of re-financing the City's indebtedness.

Firms which will be represented at this meeting include Pruden and Co. of Toledo, Halper-Stewart Co. of New York, Wright-Whitlow of Orlando, Barnett National Bank of Jacksonville and possibly several others.

A payment of principal and interest which matures on July 1 of this year will be one of the chief topics of discussion at this meeting. The small percentage of taxes collected is said to be the cause of the City's present financial straits. The time payment of City taxes has extended until April 15th, and indications are that unless collections are considerably better, drastic cuts in the operating expenses of the municipality will have to be made.

Dark although the day be Joy lies in the doubt, Hope is in the may be You can work things out. But the thrill is over When the fight is won, And you must discover New goals farther on.

If vigorous campaigning will get anything, John Martin and Jim Reed should go far. We don't know any of these Chicago candidates personally, but their pictures make them all look like a bunch of crooks.

After hearing the jackass, Catts, talk about bonds and bridges, a friend of ours remarked, "There ain't no such animal!" Dr. MacKenzie of Leesburg, another gubernatorial candidate, is unusual in Florida politics. He is neither bragging about himself nor saying anything unpleasant about his opponents.

Robert E. Lee IV was present at the Stone Mountain ceremonies in honor of his great grandfather the other day. Wonder if the five-year old boy realized what the original Robert E. Lee meant to the South.

Dr. Hathaway, in his Palatka speech, charged that Catts and Carlton had formed a coalition and he branded them as the Sinner Twins. It is hard to believe that anyone, particularly one of Mr. Carlton's standing, could join forces with Mr. Catts in an effort to gain second choice votes.

A Plan For Tax Reduction

Our observation of political platforms, in this campaign, as in others, has been that ordinarily they are about as useful as a walking stick to a strong man. Almost every candidate seems to have the idea that he must have a platform, but he must be extremely careful not to contain in that platform a single plank which might make anyone shre, and if he should find this unpleasantness necessary, he must counteract it by another plank on the other side of the fence.

We are apt to find in platforms much balderdash like this: I am in favor of the six-hour working day for labor, but if there should be any opposition to such a law on the part of capital, I would propose arbitration in settlement. I believe in the drainage of the Everglades, but in those places where they are now burning up, I would not advocate the digging of any more canals. I am in favor of babies, bigger and better babies, and I believe in women.

Such planks, to say the least, are not constructive. It is difficult to find anything in them to criticize. They are harmless enough, but they do not aid us materially in deciding who is the most suitable candidate. What we need in platforms is some definite statement as to what the candidate proposes to do should he be elected to office.

For this reason the Carson platform appeals to us. We find there such planks as these: "Early completion of main line roads," "Gradual repayment to the counties of money spent by them on main state roads," "No new public works edicts for some time to come." That sounds strangely as if that candidate had something in his head which might be for the welfare of the state although apt to be antagonistic to the ideas of some.

We can well imagine that the full explanation of these planks as given by Mr. Carson in his DeLand speech on Monday does not appeal particularly to everyone. He says he believes that with the completion of the main line roads Florida would have a highway system adequate for some time to come. He does not agree with Mr. Hathaway that road building should be continued for the next fifteen years at the same rate prevailing during the past two and a half.

Doubtless road contractors and employees of the state Road Department will not be pleased by this plank. Their jobs depend upon the continuation of the present road building program. Owners of rock quarries will not like it either. And others who have had it so drilled into them in recent years that good roads, in super-abundance are the only highways to wealth and prosperity, may regard this man Carson as a moss-back.

But there are some who see in his plan real constructive statesmanship. Without any question the most important matter for the consideration of our government officials at the present time is tax reduction. And, of course, every candidate for office, is in favor of tax reduction. But Mr. Carson is the only candidate for governor whom we have seen come forward with any definite and feasible plan for the relief of the tax-burdened public.

He is in favor of setting aside one fifth of the gasoline tax monies for the purpose of providing a sinking fund for the retirement of bonds voted by the counties to help build state roads. He proposes to use his influence to have an act passed by the legislature authorizing the state to use portions of the gasoline tax funds to aid cities and counties in reducing their public indebtedness. He declares that the remaining four-fifths of the gasoline tax funds will be sufficient to complete the construction of main line roads and to provide for the maintenance of roads already built.

We quite agree with Mr. Carson that it is of little value to the tax-burdened Floridian that the state does not have a dime of indebtedness, when he has to scrape every mickle he can find together in order to pay property and county taxes. We believe that the state should lend some assistance and use a part of that money, intended for further road construction, in reducing taxes in cities and counties.

The Zoning Law

Sanford has recently seen some controversy arising over the administration of its zoning law which establishes certain sections of the city for business and certain other sections for residences. The purpose is to prevent the depreciation of residential property by improper construction in the vicinity, and also to result ultimately in a more uniform and well planned city.

Our attention has been called to an editorial appearing in last Sunday's Times-Union which indicates the strength of the zoning law. At the solicitation of a friend, who says that many people do not believe these laws binding, we reproduce the editorial in full:

"Any zoning law enacted and put into operation must be fairly and impartially administered; the general welfare being the only consideration. Otherwise, city zoning is ineffective, and more or less of a farce. This not only is in accordance with common sense but, also, it conforms to the law fairly interpreted and honestly administered, as recently was made clear in a judicial decision by the New York court of appeals.

"This court decided that zoning resolutions, which have the force and effect of law, cannot be varied or modified by a local board, for the benefit of an individual property owner who does not want to comply with the zoning law, solely for his own advantage and to the detriment of the community in general. This New York case, contested in the courts for three years, originated in what is known as the Murray Hill section of the city of New York, a section in which a large number of individuals had established their homes under property restrictions that if complied with, would prevent the intrusion of commercial enterprises, as by the erection of buildings for business uses. It was desired that Murray Hill should continue as a purely residential community. However, an individual bought property in that restricted residential district and secured the permission of the board of standards and appeals to proceed with the erection of a twenty-one-story business building.

"Owners of Murray Hill residence properties protested against this invasion, the matter going first before the superintendent of buildings, who refused to issue a permit for the erection of this business building. The matter then was carried to the board of standards and appeals, which decided in favor of the building projector, and, ultimately from one court to another, the final court holding that 'the board (of standards and appeals) seems to have assumed that this modification of the zoning resolution for the benefit of a single owner,' saying further that 'The number of appeals to this court in this class of cases prompts us to restate that there is no power in the board of standards and appeals to vary zoning requirements for any such reason.'

"The ruling of the court in this instance, ought to establish definitely and permanently the common sense view that the owners of residence properties have some rights, and especially in cities where zoning has been established for the sort of legal protection property owners desire, and for the preservation of certain districts for residential purposes."

TICK-TOCKS AND POLITICS

But suppose Dr. Fona Hathaway finds along about June 9 that the roads he built only served to carry another candidate to the executive mansion at Tallahassee?—Orlando Reporter-Star.

Some men pave the way for others, but Dr. Hathaway is paving his own way to the governorship.—Florida State News. That's just what Carlton said. Sanford Herald. And what Hathaway has not successfully denied.—Florida Advocate.

When the cat's away the mice will play. In Florida's gubernatorial campaign, however, the situation is apparently reversed. The cat's presence seems actually to stimulate play.

If the estimable James M. Carson of Miami is in the gubernatorial race merely to "cook the goose" of Sidney J. Catts he should remember that too many cooks spoil the pie.

Mr. Carson advises us that he is in to win, and expects to win. This being the case, the only proper strategy for him would seem first to name other suitable candidates out of the running and then face the ex-governor. This is a big order and he has not yet established any good reason for filling it. Meanwhile the vast majority of the anti-Catts sentiment is behind Fona Hathaway and will remain there unless a sounder case than Mr. Carson has yet offered is entered.—Jacksonville Journal.

Wednesday Dr. W. A. MacKenzie opened his campaign for governor at Lake Wales, making a fine speech to those who had assembled to hear him. Thursday Senator Taylor qualified the secretary of state as a candidate and is now vigorously prosecuting his campaign. Both are fine men but they waited too long for the supreme court to fire the starting gun.—Ocala Star.

James M. Carson, candidate for Governor is making an impression in the west coast counties in which he is working and seems to be gaining headway toward the nomination. It is noted from some of our up-state exchanges that Carson is the only candidate who has announced a platform of what he believes in and who has stated just what he will do in meeting the various problems now in the public mind.—Dade County Times.

Wonder why Mr. Carlton doesn't mention his record as a state legislator?—Must not be worth mentioning.—Leesburg Commercial.

A good opportunity for several bright young men who desire to make a future for themselves in the state and forget much of their past would be to enter politics in this county. So far we have only one candidate from this matter with our bright young men, don't they know opportunity won't knock again for another four years?—Lake County Citizen.

CONRADI AND CATTS PALATKA NEWS

The News is printing today in another column the reply of Dr. Edw. Conradi, president of the Woman's College at Tallahassee, a state institution, to the charges made from the stump here recently by Sidney J. Catts, ex-governor, candidate for governor and minister of the gospel.

The nature of the charges—that "free love" and the intermarriage of the races were being taught at the Woman's College—was such as to arouse the just indignation of those whose daughters, sisters and friends have been educated there. Sam Conick, a Palatka merchant who attended the Catts speaking, flatly contradicted the assertion from the floor. He refuted the charges from information which had come to him first hand from a woman relative who had attended the school, and went further and addressed a letter to Dr. Conradi asking him for a candid statement of fact.

It is in answer to the interrogatory of Mr. Conick that Conradi has gone into the subject from every standpoint. He has shown not only that no such doctrines or theories are taught, but that, on the other hand, the school aspires to lay the foundation for Christian character. Its student body is being fashioned into a citizenship of which Florida may be proud.

It would scarcely be presumption upon the part of Dr. Conradi, who has held his present educational post for many years, to suggest that he is more familiar man's College than is a candidate with the curriculum at the Woman's college whose opportunities for observation have been somewhat limited and have extended over a comparatively short period of time.

Another factor in favor of the veracity of Dr. Conradi is that he has no incentive to play the role of demagogue. He has answered the charges with a refreshing frankness, unmarred by any tongue of mawkishness or squeamishness.

Those who would judge for themselves the merit of the issue are urged to read Dr. Conradi's statement.

Mrs. Hope Is Honored With Bridge Party

One of the most elaborate post-Lenten bridge parties which have been given was that of Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. G. Irving Loucks, Mrs. Robert John Holly Sr., and Mrs. Roy Frank Symes entertained at a morning glory bridge party at the Yacht Club honoring Mrs. Edna Fowler Hope of Dunedin, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Loucks.

The spacious Yacht Club was transformed into a veritable bower of beauty with quantities of cut flowers, bamboo ferns and pot plants. On the screened porch where the punch table had been arranged, the porch was entirely encircled with feathery bouquets of bamboo, which were also arranged about the columns and stairways.

forming a background for tall pedestals of Spring cut flowers in lavender, purple and pink. The punch table was spread with a handsome lace cover, the bowl embedded in a bed of asparagus ferns studded with lavender and purple morning glories. Here, throughout the afternoon coming fruit punch was served by Mrs. Lolland L. Dean.

The club lounge, where the card tables had been spread for play, was adorned with numerous baskets and bowls of potpourri, sun-drenched gladioli, asters and morning glories. Tall bouquets of bamboo were also used as a punch background for French wicker baskets filled with pink, lavender and purple cut flowers. The columns were entwined with myriads of heavenly morning glories. On the piano were bouquets of pink and lavender roses and lavender bouquets and baskets of white, carnations and purple larkspur.

As the guests arrived they were greeted by Mrs. W. Theodore Langley, and introduced to the receiving line by Mrs. Robert John Holly, Mrs. Roy Frank Symes, Mrs. G. Irving Loucks, and Mrs. Edna Fowler Hope.

Tallies done in spring time suggestions were distributed by Mrs. Mildred Holly and Miss Ann Wright. The guests were then shown to their places by Mrs. F. M. Keene, Mrs. John Meisch Jr., Mrs. Robert J. Holly Jr., and Mrs. Reginald Holly.

The colors of purple, lavender and pink were further carried out in the bridge accessories. The pencils were topped with morning glories and the card pads were in keeping with the color note. When the tally progression had been played, scores were tallied by Mrs. Ernest Galloway, Mrs. E. E. Whitner and Mrs. H. C. Lewis. The first prize, a gorgeous cut side of glazed ivory, consisting of the four card suits, supported by eopods and the large glazed ivory bowl adorned with eopods, was won by Mrs. C. E. Myers. Mrs. Ernest Galloway, who made second highest score, received a Spanish wine pitcher in red, blue, yellow and green. The cut glass and silver pitcher, which went to Mrs. Roy C. Bower, while the low score prize, a pair of brass candlesticks in Japanese designs, was awarded Mrs. Edward Higgins. The guest of honor was presented with a gift of a pair of white and lavender flowers salted nuts, and dainty pastel tinted Easter eggs were served by Mrs. Lolland Dean. Mrs. Clyde Byrd, Mrs. F. M. Keene, Mrs. Edna Fowler Hope, Mrs. Mildred Holly, Mrs. Ann Wright, Mrs. Walter Wright, Mrs. Robert J. Holly Jr., and Mrs. Reginald Holly. The refreshments plates were made in the forms of Easter baskets fashioned of pink and lavender, the hand-entwined with pink and lavender morning glories.

About 25 tables of bridge players enjoyed this unusual lovely social courtesy, the guests including a number of out of town guests.

NEW BAKERY OPENED
Carl Simons announces that his new establishment, Simons' Bakery, is now doing business with about fifteen stores in Sanford where his products "Mother Bread" can be purchased. The Bakery on Floral Heights, although opened only two weeks ago, is now doing fine business, and can be expected shortly to be handling cakes, cookies, pies, and other forms of delicacies.

Church Circle Holds Interesting Session

The Mary Lambeth Circle of the Methodist Church held an interesting meeting Monday afternoon at the lovely home of Mrs. Vance E. Douglass in Rose Court, with Mrs. Douglass, Mrs. Frank Adams, Mrs. Stewart and Miss Bobbie Chapman as hostesses.

Mrs. W. C. Hill, the chairman presided over the business session. A number of pledges were paid and visits to the sick reported. Reports were also given by the standing committee chairman, Mrs. Grover Sperring, who was appointed by the chairman to see subscriptions for the "Missionary Voice." The cooked food sale held last Saturday was reported and a good total realized. Many helpful suggestions were given and splendid plans for further work decided upon.

After the business session, a social hour was enjoyed when the hostesses served delicious sandwiches and coffee. Those present were Mrs. Grover C. Sperring, Mrs. W. E. White, Mrs. Calvin Teague, Mrs. W. C. Hill, Mrs. Ed Laney, Mrs. J. Olin Laney, Mrs. Ben D. Caswell, Mrs. Byron Stephens, Mrs. Tom Holt, Mrs. M. L. Wright, Mrs. Herman Middleton, Mrs. L. M. Stephenson, Mrs. Braxton B. Baggett, Mrs. E. C. Smith, Mrs. W. W. C. Smith, Mrs. C. E. Jennings, Mrs. Stewart Dutton, Mrs. Frank Adams, Mrs. Vance Douglass, and Miss Bobbie Chapman.

BRIDGE CLUB MEETS
On Monday afternoon Circle Number Five of the Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. James Huff on Sanford Avenue for the regular business and social meeting. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Huff and Mrs. S. A. Huff.

Masses of vari-colored Spring flowers were used with pleasing effect about the rooms where the members assembled. The meeting opened with the devotional exercises led by Mrs. G. H. Brown after which routine business was carried out. This was followed by the Bible lesson conducted by Mrs. J. N. Whitner.

Late in the afternoon a social hour was enjoyed, during which time the hostesses served pineapple salad, doughnuts and coffee.

Members in attendance were Mrs. G. H. Brown, Mrs. J. N. Whitner, Mrs. S. L. Andrews, Mrs. C. B. Hambley, Mrs. E. J. South, Mrs. J. E. Baker, Mrs. W. J. Hartley, Mrs. Arthur Moore, Mrs. Boyce Bell, Mrs. J. W. Mero, Mrs. M. Nelson, Mrs. George E. Elliott, Mrs. S. A. Lewis and Mrs. James Huff.

CHURCH CIRCLE MEETS
Circle number six of the First Methodist Church held a most interesting meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. R. Gray on West First Street with Mrs. Gray and Mrs. J. G. Watt as hostesses.

The only home was adorned with quantities of lovely Spring flowers and ferns, which were arranged in baskets and bowls. Mrs. M. M. McShank, chairman of the circle, presided over the meeting which opened with the usual devotional exercises. Unusually good reports were given by the standing of officers and committee chairmen. It was announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. R. R. Eldredge at Paola.

During the social hour the hostesses served cake and fruited jelly topped with whipped cream. There were 12 members in attendance.

According to an announcement given by Dr. Burrman this morning to The Herald, the Methodist Men's Club will meet at 12:15 o'clock Friday noon, instead of at formerly 1:15 o'clock in the evening. The meeting will be held in the annex and a chicken luncheon will be served. Members are requested to make their reservations at once.

Evans Children Give Party At Their Home

One of the jolliest of the many children's parties given this season was that of Saturday afternoon when Billie, Claire and Jack Evans, the youngest children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans entertained about 50 of their friends at an Easter Party at their home in Lake Mary.

The rooms of this spacious home were decorated with an attractive assortment of early spring flowers in the pastel tints. The refreshment table was overlaid with a lace cover and centered with a large nest of green moss, in which was a large Easter rabbit and numbers of smaller bunnies as well as all kinds of gay colored Easter eggs.

Games of all kinds were enjoyed throughout the afternoon on the lawn, and the features of the afternoon were a donkey contest and an Easter Egg Hunt. Louis Stephens, popular mascot, Tommie, the winner of the prizes for the donkey contest, while Eddie Tappin and Roy Howell Jr., found the most eggs winning large Easter baskets filled with candies.

When the games had been concluded the grand march was formed and the children marched into the dining room where refreshments of ice cream, cakes, candies and nuts were served by Mrs. Frank Evans assisted by Mary Miller, Helen Tamm and Helen Dunn. The afternoon proved exceptionally delightful and will long be remembered by each and every child who attended.

The Mystic Mardoni, Noted Magician, at Redpath Tent

Behold the man of magic and mystery! His fascination never dies. He has a universal appeal, and when he comes to the big Redpath tent here the children will have a hard time keeping the grown-ups off the front seats.

The mystic Mardoni and his attractive assistant present a spectacular show of magic that is one thrill from start to finish. Here are some of the things they offer:
Blind Turlon Trick—mystifying, exciting.
The Trick Escape—makes you doubt your own eyes.
Chinese Water Mystery—An Oriental novelty.
The Magic Cabinet—a master illusion.
Mardoni features clever acts of mind reading also, and ventriloquist sketches. Violin selections vary the entertainment delightfully.

Chautauqua Week To Begin Tomorrow With Big Program

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Sanford's big 1928 Redpath Week will open here. It will be held in the Redpath tent auditorium erected on the big level lot just back of the Court House.

At a meeting of the guarantors held in the home of Mrs. L. N. Hansell, exceptionally good reports were given for the advance season ticket sale this year, and after the $125 tax has been paid, the proceeds will go towards paying for the stage scenery in the auditorium in the Seminole High School.

The Lake Mary School gave a play several weeks ago in order to pay for tickets for those who could not afford to buy them. The proceeds were great enough to enable every student in the Junior High to attend the entire season. Mr. Drost has made arrangements to enable every student to have transportation to and from all performances.

The Redpath management is offering this season one of the best programs ever presented on any Redpath circuit. Beautiful musical productions, popular instrumental ensembles, magic and mystery, comedy, drama, challenging and authoritatively lectures and excellent entertainment are featured on this brilliant program.

Among the many splendid features are two great plays, the hilarious Broadway comedy "Tommy" and the great romantic drama "Smilin' Through."

Tomorrow afternoon the Arcadian Novelty Company will fire the opening gun of Redpath Week. The program for the entire five days:
FIRST AFTERNOON
Popular Concert, Arcadia Novelty Company. Admission 50c—Children 25c.
FIRST NIGHT
Concert, Arcadian Novelty Company. Lecture, "Self Management," Dr. Hilton In Jones. Admission 50c—Children 25c.
SECOND AFTERNOON
Concert, Metropolitan Singers.

Miss Mildred Holly and Miss Maude Lake left Wednesday morning for Eustis where they will spend several days as the guests of Mrs. Robert J. Holly Jr.

Miss Hattie Belle Byer of Ocala was among the out of town guests attending the bridge party given Tuesday afternoon at the Yacht Club given by Mrs. Robert John Holly, Mrs. G. Irving Loucks and Mrs. Roy Frank Symes.

Mrs. George Camden Conger, who has been delightfully entertained here as the guest of Mrs. Walter S. Coleman left Wednesday for her home at Oklawaha City, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey Driver and son Wilfred of Auburndale spent the day here Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Driver.

Jack Dempsey Will Arrive In Gotham Today To Make Arrangements For Future

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service—Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Apr. 11.—Jack Dempsey, the well known ex-fighter, will arrive in the town where the critical money flourishes about noon today and, if he follows the script faithfully, he will hasten to re-affirm his several denials of the canard, freely circulated by those of an unethical trend of mind, that sooner or later he means to retire from retirement. This part of it probably will be simple enough. The difficulty will come in explaining the purport of those personal messages he has been sending, from time to time, to friends in the East.

The last of these asked Jimmy Johnston to meet him at the Ambassador Hotel at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and, unless you assume that he wishes to talk to James about the high cost of roman candles, you naturally would connect the conference with boxing. Anyhow, Johnston has taken the message to mean that he will be asked to manage Dempsey and all I can say is that I hope James is enough of a philosopher not to go jumping promiscuously off tall buildings later in the day and injuring a lot of people he really wouldn't wish to know socially.

For one of Dempsey's intimates assured me today that, if Johnston ever had a chance with the boy friend, he has almost none now. The idea is that Dempsey isn't likely to consider that managerial pecunien or any other kind has been copiously displayed by a man who rushes into the streets to read a confidential telegram in a loud, firm tone.

However, as far as the writer is concerned, it is all so much gum arabic that he refuses to commit himself on Dempsey, beyond saying that if he doesn't fight this year he is very likely to be back in 1929. The many contradictions between the young man's public and private declarations clearly indicate that much.

He, for example, is known to have messaged Billy Duffy, his second in the Sharkey and Tunney fights, not to pay too much attention to what he saw in the newspapers "for the next few weeks." The message was received "a few weeks" in advance of Rickard's announcement that Dempsey was through.

Dempsey, at or about the same time, asked Leo P. Flynn to be ready to take charge of him in June at the Orangeburg, N. Y., camp of Gus Wilson, a staunch Dempsey man. And to another friend, who said he had "stall" certain parties about Dempsey's retirement and wanted to know the answer, Dempsey is said to have replied in effect, "stall them a bit longer."

As I say, I don't profess to know Dempsey's mind. There isn't a man in this world who does, not even excepting our John himself. The observations above recorded merely are offered for what they may be worth, so, to is the evidence, showing the irreconcilable calm and resignation with which the situation they not only admit Rickard and Tunney are accepting that Dempsey is out; they insist to be so highly pleased about.

Somehow, I am unable to view the retirement of Dempsey as anything for Rickard and Tunney that he is here.

PHYSICIANS WILL RESULTS SEEN IN CURE FOR CANCER

Fluid Discovered By Los Angeles Chemist Through His Experiments With Radium Has Proved Great Success

LOS ANGELES, Apr. 11.—Physicians described today beneficial results which they have observed through the treatment of cancer with a fluid discovered by Professor Robert A. Armstrong, a Los Angeles chemist, through his experiments with radium.

Dr. Charles M. Timney, of Hilly medical corps of the United States, said that he had personally seen to Armstrong fluid used in from 25 to 35 cancer cases.

"Only the discoverer, Professor Armstrong, knows all the ingredients of the fluid," Dr. Timney said. "While I have used it with remarkable success in several instances, it is too soon to predict that it is positive cure for cancer makes no such claims for it."

Physicians have learned to be very cautious in their acceptance of cancer cures, but I can say without qualification that it looks like Professor Armstrong has come upon a remarkable treatment. My qualifications, however, is that, at least five years should elapse before we will know whether or not the Armstrong fluid is a cure for cancer.

"Some months ago the husband of a woman who was apparently dying of cancer called on me for help. My examination would have convinced me, under ordinary circumstances, that treatment was not possible for her. I gave her an injection Tuesday, never expecting her to live three or four days later. On Saturday, however, all pain had ceased, the patient was drinking milk and even received a dozen or so friends to celebrate her recovery.

"The Armstrong fluid is usually given in three injections, 21 days apart. It is injected directly into the veins.

Key Takes Stand As Star Witness Against Banker

THE COURT: What is the materiality of it, I haven't seen the paper I don't know what it is.

MR. PALMER: I will pass it to your honor.

MR. FABINSKI: It is the difference between two hundred thirty thousand, and six hundred and ninety four odd thousands as shown by the day book of the bank.

MR. PALMER: Supposed to be notes, but the position we are taking is...

THE COURT: Supposed to be deposit slips, are they not?

MR. PALMER: Represented by notes. The objection we are making now if your honor please is that you can not prosecute a man or a set of men for violating the banking laws after the bank has closed; it must be done while the bank is open, or otherwise there is no basis for a prosecution. What ever may occur after...

THE COURT: I understand, but I disagree with you on these statutes. I give you all exception to that.

MR. PALMER: That is our objection too.

THE COURT: This statute is for making false entries.

MR. PALMER: Yes.

THE COURT: Objection overruled, exception noted.

Q. (By Mr. Fabinski) Have these papers, state's exhibit E that you have just identified and have been admitted in evidence any connection with the entries which you directed Mr. Phillips to make upon the day book No. 7 at page 625 of the records of that bank, Mr. Key?

has testified that he put on the books, but those items are not in issue before the jury. The item before the jury as to a false entry is a certain six hundred thousand dollars entry there that Mr. Schaal says he made, not Mr. Phillips at all.

THE COURT: Well, let me see if I get it clear; see if I don't understand this correctly. The item of $694,046.11 is made up—false—and it is made up of the preceding entries.

MR. PALMER: That is the claim of the state.

THE COURT: Now, these other items of Phillips' are false entries also, and the combination of these false entries make up the grand total—is that correct?

MR. FABINSKI: The admission of the state, and the claim of the state that the true entry was $130,014.81.

THE COURT: I understand, but these items are put on the books to make up the item of six hundred ninety four thousand.

MR. FABINSKI: That is it exactly.

THE COURT: I think I understand it. Objection overruled, exception noted. I don't believe there is an objection.

MR. PALMER: Yes, there is an objection. I don't believe the court understands the force of my objection. We are not contending that Mr. Phillips did not make certain entries which these papers cover. He says he did. We are not contending that Mr. Schaal did not erase those, because Mr. Schaal says he did, but the specific charge in this indictment is not the making of those different entries in there, but specifically the making of the entry of six hundred thousand dollars, which Mr. Schaal says he made himself.

THE COURT: I understand he is showing the falsity of the entry by showing these items that make up false entry.

MR. PALMER: That is true, but get away from the fact that the item is not in accordance with the indictment, which says that Mr. Key did that very thing.

THE COURT: Well I suppose we'll get to that later.

MR. PALMER: There is no evidence here by Mr. Schaal that Mr. Key told him to do that.

MR. FABINSKI: If it was done by the clerks of the bank under the direction of Mr. Key, that is equivalent to Mr. Key having done it himself; that is our view.

MR. PALMER: That is true, according to the state's evidence, but what is worth that is the fact as to the items that make up the entry, that is what we are charged with, and if this indictment here charged Mr. Key with making these false entries, that is to make up that, I would not be making this objection now, because I understand under the banking law if a man tells a clerk to enter something, under the banking law he is construed to we have in testimony here by the man that is doing it, but state's own witness that nobody on earth ever told him to make these six hundred thousand dollar entries, that is what he simply wanted them up himself and put them on the book, and that is the entry that we now have tried for.

MR. FABINSKI: He testified on cross examination Mr. Key directed him to, Mr. Schaal did him self.

MR. PALMER: Told him to put the totals together, but he himself made the calculation, made the entry.

THE COURT: Objection overruled.

MR. PALMER: All right, on the question raised by the reporter Mr. Key, have these papers which you have identified, and which have been admitted in evidence as state's exhibit E any connection with the entries which you directed Mr. Phillips to make up on day book No. 7 at page 625?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. Will you explain to the jury what you directed Mr. Phillips to enter upon that book where the entries were made—that is, the physical location in the bank and under what circumstances and in whose presence these entries were made by Mr. Key?

MR. PALMER: What entries were you inquiring about? On these papers on the book.

MR. FABINSKI: Entries made by his direction to Mr. Phillips on page 625 in day book No. 7.

Q. I will ask some preliminary questions Mr. Key so as to go along. Do you know of your own knowledge whether on the fifth day of August there was a deposit by a customer of the bank, $694,046.11?

MR. PALMER: Not by individual depositors, No sir.

Q. That entry is not a correct statement of the deposits by individual depositors or that bank on that day?

MR. PALMER: Objection to the entry itself is the best evidence. He says there wasn't that.

by thousand and the figure as shown on the book $694,046.11?

A. Our deposit tickets are $467,027.04. That represents five deposit tickets covering credits for "deposits"—not to individuals but to deposits.

Q. You mean that to deposit account?

A. Deposit, general ledger account, under head of deposits.

Q. Does that $467,027.11 represent any deposits on that day by any individual depositors of the bank?

A. No sir.

Q. Will you state to the jury the Mr. Key—I will ask you a question preliminary to that in order to keep your books in balance—bank books in balance, books of account in balance, is it not necessary to make a corresponding entry on the other side of the column, when you make an entry on one side?

A. It is.

Q. Will you state to the jury what entries were made on the opposite side of the book from that on which this four hundred sixty seven thousand was entered to take care of that item?

MR. PALMER: Objection to be made, the books are in evidence, and that is the best evidence before the jury.

MR. FABINSKI: I withdraw the question, if objected to. I thought it helped the defendant's case more than mine.

Q. I will ask this Mr. Key, as I started to ask you before. Just state to the jury now the circumstances under which you directed Mr. Phillips to make this entry—what these deposit slips represent, where the entries were made, and who was present—state first, who was present?

A. I was sitting in the back room of the bank, directors' room of the bank, Mr. Lake and the morning of the 6th and as county bond trustees of the City of Sanford were short in the respect that there was $200,000 worth of items made up of a number of people, including Mr. Lake, some of mine, and a number of other individuals, had been deducted from that account; also $600,000. And there were some other items that had been deducted from the city accounts, vouchers, account also; and the ledger sheets then in the bank had been corrected to correspond with the accounts of the bond trustees of the City of Sanford, that is the books of the bond trustees, and the original ledger sheets of the bank, and this difference had to be accounted for on the last day. Therefore the various items were gotten out, and whoever owned the money paid it, that is by either charging the check for or signing a note for it, at that time Mr. Lake signed various notes. I signed some notes, and there were two or three other notes, balance of the checks were charged up to the various accounts. I prepared all of this in the back room with Mr. Lake, running a roll on the adding machine, and I called Raymond, Hutton, and said "Ray, Raymond, here are these notes."

Q. Raymond who?

A. Raymond Phillips, officer of the bank I say. "Raymond here are these notes signed by Mr. Lake and myself and one or two others, Peters Schaal was one, and also some checks on various accounts of the bank, and said "Ray, Raymond, here are these notes."

Q. Raymond who?

A. Raymond Phillips, officer of the bank I say. "Raymond here are these notes signed by Mr. Lake and myself and one or two others, Peters Schaal was one, and also some checks on various accounts of the bank, and said "Ray, Raymond, here are these notes."

Q. I wish you would place this on this day book here, and include it in the business of August 5th, and after you have balanced it, take it in to Mr. Schaal the other fellow, who was in the habit of writing on the general ledger, and had his own book.

THE COURT: After which time you put all of the items that are to be posted on the individual ledgers, turn them over to the individual bookkeepers, to be posted on the ledgers, which he did and these credits, these bulk credits, here, $467,000.00 on round figures go to make up the deficit of $267,000.00 in one account, and various deposits in others; and these are represented on the other side by notes and checks. In other words, the assets, that was put in were notes of Mr. Lake, notes of mine, note of Mr. Schaal, a number of checks, various number of checks, and some items charged to profit and loss.

MR. PALMER: The checks are in the back room, and the only evidence of it I ask the court to strike his testimony as to all those things, those checks should be brought over here and the notes, and the checks? They ought to be here, or I will have to strike the testimony with reference to the checks.

MR. FABINSKI: I have the notes, I will get as much of it as we go along as we can.

THE COURT: All right, you can send and get those checks.

MR. FABINSKI: I don't think he has recollection at all of what they were.

Q. Find any of the papers in that you have there that refer to transactions that you have been speaking about Mr. Key, (Handing papers.)

A. (Witness examining papers.)

Q. If there are any books or papers which you need in order to refresh your memory on to give a clear explanation to the jury at what you want to tell Mr. Key, just call and we will get them from the bank, or wherever they are.

A. These notes in my hand are notes that went into the business as part of this credit.

those notes Mr. Key?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What signature is that?

A. Mr. Lake, Forest Lake.

Q. Are these the books that you spoke of that you turned over to Mr. Phillips?

A. They are.

Q. When were those notes signed?

A. Morning of the 6th of August.

Q. They are dated varying dates from July 2nd to August 1st when were they made?

A. Dated back.

Q. They were dated back. They were actually made and signed on the 6th of August, 1927?

A. They were.

Q. And placed in the bank's books on that day as August the 5th, 1927?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. FABINSKI: I offer in evidence the papers identified by the witness as state's exhibits, F, G, H, I, and J.

THE COURT: Any objections?

MR. PALMER: No, on condition they be properly connected later.

MR. FABINSKI: They are called for at the request of the defendant. The defendant asked for them, and asked that they be introduced.

THE COURT: I don't understand that there is any objection.

MR. FABINSKI: He said on the grounds that they are connected up later.

MR. PALMER: They have got to be connected with the case of course, otherwise they are not material. (The papers referred to were thoroughly received in evidence and marked state's exhibits F, G, H, I, and J, and were handed to the jury for examination by the jury.)

THE COURT: All right proceed Mr. Fabinski.

Q. Were these notes made by Mr. Lake, Mr. Key?

A. They were drawn up by me, signed by Mr. Lake.

Q. Were they used for the purpose that you have indicated?

A. Yes, sir, to take care of his items that he owed the bank.

Q. Some of them are marked "account items"?

Q. You mean by that it was to take up cash items in the bank?

A. To take up cash items that had been charged to these various accounts.

Q. Mr. Key, what do you mean by "cash items"?

A. Well, I mean checks or MR. PALMER: I submit if you honor please that if they have got cash items here in the form of any kind of paper that that is the best evidence. As I understand a cash item is an unpaid check or unpaid note, or unpaid debit that is carried by the bank. They are the proper thing to have.

THE COURT: He is asking what it is. Counsel, now, that is the only question now. I think he can answer that if he knows what a cash item is. If you are going into the question why of course we will have to have the cash items or account books. But, the only question now is what is a cash item?

MR. PALMER: I did not exactly understand the question. All right, I will state it is an item, that ordinarily is an obligation of one individual that is carried in the debit each. These particular notes, I think it says the kind of items.

Q. You mean they represent cash?

A. I mean the items in other words it means checks, in cash, or in items transfers from bond trustees.

THE COURT: I will have the books here. I am trying to get him to explain about the thing, to get it clear in my mind. If you want the books, we will have the books produced.

MR. PALMER: The books are the best evidence of those transactions.

THE COURT: Do you want the books here? You can get them.

Q. (By Mr. Fabinski) What account are you speaking of now?

A. Speaking of the coupon account City of Sanford transferred from that I think of $1,000—$21,000.

MR. DICKENSON: Object to the question as to amounts, and date.

THE COURT: Just so we get the books here.

MR. DICKENSON: Done object if they are going to get the books.

Q. (By the Court) You said $20,000 savings account?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. FABINSKI: We will take each one up separately. The ramifications of this are pretty bad, and I would like to check them up at the time.

THE COURT: All right, take up just the way you want it.

Q. (By Mr. Fabinski) What is that I hand you?

A. That is deposit ticket of Sanford Coupon account $57,610.

MR. DICKENSON: Move to strike the witness' answer as the amount of the ticket is the best evidence of it.

MR. FABINSKI: It is in evidence, part of State's Exhibit D.

MR. PALMER: That has already been accounted for.

THE COURT: That is a deposit slip.

MR. FABINSKI: That is a deposit slip, State's Exhibit D.

MR. PALMER: Effect of these papers, state's exhibit D, that is what it means by item.

Q. You might cover checks that you had in the cash, or it might cover transfers from bond trustees account or some other account to account of Mr. Lake, or checks that had been deducted from the bond trustee account as bank.

Q. Where are the cash items represented by the amount of these notes Mr. Key?

A. The cash items—well, there is no—Mr. Lake took a good portion of them, and other portions of them were not represented by individual items but by transfers from that date. For instance, there is one $60,000 transfer from the savings account of the bond trustees that was taken care of in this.

Q. Forty odd thousand dollars from city of Sanford coupon account was in that item. Those two I recall.

THE COURT: Now I guess you had better explain so that we will all understand you. You see we are not bankers, and better explain what you mean. You said $60,000 item.

THE WITNESS: All right.

THE COURT: Taken from the savings account. Now explain what you mean by that.

A. (Continued.) City of Sanford had a savings account; bond trustees of the City of Sanford.

MR. DICKENSON: If your Honor please, we want to interpose an objection to that testimony because if any such thing was done, the books of the bank should show that, and the books are the best evidence.

Phillips, concluding testimony showed that the individual deposit ledgers kept for every customer of the bank, totaled $250,000 odd while the entry in the ledger, the state charges is false, showed $60,000 odd.

On the cross-examination of Phillips which was conducted by Dickenson, Phillips testified that the day book of the bank balanced. He denied repeated assertions by the defense counsel that there might have been other deposit slips to make up the difference between $250,000 and $230,000 which would not be credited to individual ledger accounts. Under fire as Phillips testified that the alleged false balance did not represent a true entry of deposits, Phillips replied that he did not represent a true entry of deposits in individual ledger accounts.

Peter Schaal, another employee of the bank, testified the entry of $200,000 was in his handwriting. He said he erased the figure which Phillips testified had been changed and put the total of the three in their place. He showed the court where the erasures had been made on the day book page. He said he added both credit and debit sides of the book and that they balanced. He said he could not tell if the balance was correct, but that he told him to do it. He said he and key were in the teller's cage and that other employees were near when the instructions were given.

The high point of the defense's cross examination of the former bank cashier was when they tried to prove through him that the entry on which Lake is being tried was a technically true entry. The court said that while the entry might be mechanically correct, it did not represent the true condition of the bank when it closed and was therefore false.

Tom Palmer, co-lead with Dickenson of the banker's defense, attempted again and again to have Key's testimony on the alleged falsity of the entry stricken, but he was overruled by Judge DeWitt T. Gray, who himself took the witness stand on numerous occasions when the state and defense quarreled over some point, or when he thought the jury did not understand the testimony.

Key testified that the city bond trustee fund was short over $300,000 when the bank closed and that he and Lake had deducted amounts from that account so that notes and checks had been used to replace the shortage the day the bank failed to open. He told of an item of $21,000 charged to the city's coupon account and credited to Lake, which with two other made $46,000 odd. He told of a number of other transactions including the manipulation of $35,000 in Valdez Hotel bonds of which Lake owed only $15,000. He said another sheet had been substituted for the original Sanford Bond Trustee ledger sheet, and that he directed the making of the new sheet. In another manipulation, $50,000 was charged against the Fireburns, Inc., account and a credit made to Lake.

He said at the time this Pinehurst transfer was made, Lake came to him and said his account was overdrawn and to take it out of some other account. Key said the money transferred in this case was the property of the bank's and not Lake's personal property.

The amounts of notes signed the last day to cover shortages was described by Key as follows: Schaal signed papers amounting to $8,406.78; Key signed papers amounting to $10,932.24 and that left Lake's notes and other items to make up $284,281.81.

INVENTOR MAKES NEW LIGHT BULB OF BRIGHT TYPE

Incandescent Lamp Produced At General Electric Co. Is To Be Great Advantage To Aviators Making Landings

CLEVELAND, April 11. (INS)—The largest and brightest electric light bulb has been produced by Daniel K. Knight of the incandescent lamp department of the General Electric Company laboratory at Nela Park here. It is a 50-kilowatt lamp.

This incandescent lamp produces non-day light it is claimed. Aviators long have been seeking a lamp of this type. Lamps on aviation landing fields used at the present time produce many sources of light instead of one. This prevents an easy and accurate landing. Wright's lamp will enable flyers to make night landings without danger it is said.

Wright's lamp may be used extensively in the making of moving pictures. Here it will save cost and time. Actors would not have to use "make-up" under such a light and it is said to prevent shadows.

Therefore 30 kilowatt lamps have been guaranteed for only 70 hours. Although still in the development stage the new lamp will burn fourteen and one-half hours with no indication of bulb blackening, it is claimed.

Has Cooling Chimney

In order to prevent the heat produced from causing the glass front melting, cooling arrangements have been made. A sort of chimney is on top of the lamp. The strength of the lamp can be better than any other lamp. It is said to be five times as strong as the light being now in Wright field.

The lamp is three feet in diameter. It is the largest lamp ever made. It is the largest lamp ever made.

A committee of flying headed by Captain Stinson and Lieutenant Gus DeWitt, making specifications for a light on the field. The lamp may be used first at the field in Dayton, Ohio.

A New Principle

The lamp is made under principles. The large bulb "chimney," and a series of one over the other. It called first inside is a glass through which the light from the filament issues. The copper surface of the inside "chimney."

Investment Wave Sets New Record In Sweep Of Pacific

By G. N. Alexander
International News Service
SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—The great wave of investment enthusiasm, now sweeping over the Pacific coast is establishing new records almost daily on the San Francisco stock exchange.

In the first half of March, 1928, the market value of securities traded on this exchange, exceeded $103,000,000, or nearly 2 1/2 times the value of securities traded on the floor of the same exchange in March, 1927.

The San Francisco exchange today ranks as the largest exchange in the United States outside of New York City, according to Sidney L. Spartz, its president. This position has been attained in less than a year.

In the first 2 1/2 months of 1928, the business on the San Francisco exchange was more than 50 percent of the volume of business transacted during the entire year of 1927 and exceeded by a wide margin the volume of business transacted in 1925. The total value of transactions was more than $46,000,000.

In 1927, the San Francisco stock exchange traded securities with a total market value of more than $63,000,000.

The story of the remarkable growth of this exchange, really dates from September, 1927, prior to that time, the market value of the securities traded averaged about $20,000,000 a month.

In September, the market value jumped to $24,000,000. In December, the value rose to $27,000,000. In January, it fell to $24,000,000, but in February it rose to $27,000,000.

The volume of securities traded in March will exceed $200,000,000. Transactions are averaging more than $9,000,000 a day.
