ATHLETICS AND CUBS READY TO BEGIN BATTLE

Root Or Malone Will Hurl Opening Game For Bruins; Mack's Choice Is Uncertain

By Davis J. Walsh
Sports Editor of I. N. S.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—As Sheridan gained on Winchester at the end of each stanza, an old time riddle made around the clock today and, with each tick a veritable pulse beat of the nation's fan army, the minutes and the hours sped by, bringing the 1929 World Series inevitably nearer.

The premiere of the great series between the Cubs and Athletics was only 24 hours away when the clock struck 1:30 this afternoon and the waiting populace the intervening minutes seem to be a day over 24 years.

Fifty-one thousand people, the greatest baseball crowd Chicago has known, will see the opening game at Wrigley Field tomorrow but, unfortunately, today won't be tomorrow until immediately after midnight and this meant that 51,000 people have nothing to do and all day long which to do it. Meant me, I have it on the tip of authority that speculation is rife.

It is rife, they say, on the question of the starting pitchers. One cannot speak with any degree of certainty for Connie Mack, who is acting as Detroit for his ball club somewhere in Indiana at this hour, but the Chicago choice has been made. It will be Charley Root in the first game and Phil Malone in the second, if each pitches a nine-inning, instead of a nine and a half game.

Gay Bush will start the (N-I) game in Philadelphia and Hal Carlson the fourth, provided all goes well in the first two here. If all does not, Bush will definitely enter the remains of the ball game that Root or Malone don't finish and Carlson will be moved up to No. 3 in the batting order.

However, there are three kind of speculation—mental, financial and real. As far as the latter has been concerned, speculation is neither rife nor profitable. This ball club here has a fully equipped all attempts to corner the ticket market and some of the indulgent readers are said to be thinking of appealing in the Department of Labor, it being their idea that anybody who has anything to do with real labor must be a spy at heart.

Los Angeles Police Fear Religious Cult May Have Slain Girl, 19, As Sacrifice

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7. (INS)—Mystic records of a strange, medieval religious cult today were under scrutiny of police working on the theory that "Princess" Wilma Florida, 19-year-old beauty, whose death as a human sacrifice, was found in the girl's body in a bath the floor of her parents' Venice residence. She had been dead four years, her body buried in a hidden under floor compartment, according to the cult's belief, written for 14 years by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rhoads, according to police. There were no indications of violence.

Rhoads, a carpenter, admitted he and another member buried the body, and helped police investigate the cult. The body of the "Princess" was wrapped in a white sheet and blanket and was almost perfectly preserved, due to spices and embalming fluids.

Tickets To Milan Given Tillis, Dumas In Football Contest

M. L. Tillis, 1100 Elm Avenue, and T. J. Dumas, 823 Park Avenue, today were awarded two tickets each to the Milan Theater as winners of The Herald's weekly football guessing contest. Each turned in 12 correct selections out of a possible 14. The contest has been discontinued in determining the winners because efforts to learn the victor have been unavailing.

Six other fans turned in 12 winners but since only two awards are made they were given to Mr. Tillis and Mr. Dumas because their selections were in ahead of the other 5. Mr. Tillis' list was number 23 and Mr. Dumas had number 32. Others who had 12 winners included A. V. Norton, Herbert Moses, A. E. Young, E. J. Freeman, George Steele and B. C. Steele.

Blah of the winners, of course, missed on the game between Nebraska and Southern Methodist which resulted in a scoreless tie. Each also lost on the Southern Georgia Aggie contest, which was won by the latter.

BRIBERY CASE OPENS AGAINST ALBERT B. FALL

Fermer Secretary Of Interior Goes Into Court Weakened By His Recent Illness

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (INS)—Supported into the courtroom by his physician and his daughter, and apparently weak from the loss of his recent recovery, the Hon. Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, went on trial today on the charge of having accepted a bribe of $100,000 from the U. S. Fish and Game Commission to influence the award of a contract for a post-shipment license of the fish of the north of east coast of Alaska.

When a few moments after court opened Justice William H. Taft denied the motion that he should be excused from trial on the ground of his illness and the trial began.

The government's case against Fall was presented by the chief of the interior, J. P. C. O'Connell, who called the evidence against Fall as follows: In 1925, the U. S. Fish and Game Commission awarded a contract for a post-shipment license of the fish of the north of east coast of Alaska to the U. S. Fish and Game Commission. The contract was awarded to the U. S. Fish and Game Commission.

REPUTATION OF Premier Says War Between U. S. And Britain Is Impossible

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(INS)—For the first time in history, a British prime minister addressed the American senate today when Ramsay MacDonald, fresh from concluding an agreement with President Hoover concerning the calling of a London disarmament conference set forth his aims for international peace from the dais beside the Vice President.

The Premier in a ringing, eloquent plea pledged cooperation between Great Britain and the United States, asserting that his country would never enter another alliance with any other country and declared that there could never be any war between the two great English-speaking nations.

"There can never be another war between Great Britain and the United States," MacDonald said, while the senate and gallery applauded wildly. "Such a war is absolutely impossible."

The Prime Minister praised the Kellogg-Briand peace pact and declared that the signing of it was the greatest step toward the creation of a new world psychology. He said that the pact had not only ended the era of international armaments but also had stopped the "shattering address" declared that the spirit of war and that "this spirit must be eradicated."

MacDonald And Hoover

For the first time in history a British prime minister has come to these shores on a mission of state. Shattering a traditional precedent, Premier MacDonald has crossed the Atlantic to confer with an American president about matters that are of vital concern to both nations and of tremendous importance to the whole world. Face to face, and with open minds, Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover will thrash out the questions over which England and the United States have differed, and attempt to agree upon a basis for the future adjustment of that perplexing and irritating problem of naval parity.

World peace, of course, is the chief purpose of this meeting between two great leaders of the English speaking peoples. A mutual understanding between Great Britain and America, both Premier MacDonald and President Hoover believe, will ultimately lead to a better and closer relationship between all nations, and therefore, result in the common accord which will guarantee permanent peace and good will throughout the world.

The visit of the Prime Minister constitutes a commendable gesture of fratricinity, and indicates a most profound desire to lend every effort to the attainment of a noble purpose. America, through its President, could ill afford to show any less a degree of interest and willingness to cooperate to the fullest extent in this great undertaking. In upon that point, Mr. MacDonald, already has received happy assurances. New York's warm-hearted reception expressed the nation's appreciation of the honor of entertaining the Premier, and official Washington's welcome was made less cordial and enthusiastic. For the Prime Minister, by his personal conference with Mr. Hoover in the peaceful seclusion of the presidential retreat on the Republic, may feel certain of the great spirit of friendship with which Americans regard his visit.

That success may attend every effort of these two statesmen to bring England and America closer together is the sincere wish of every citizen. That their meeting may lay the foundation for a great structure of international friendship, making "understanding" impossible, as Premier MacDonald has expressed it, is the prayer of all civilized nations.

Lardner's Baseball Story Provides Fun For Milane Movie

"Fast Company" was on view yesterday and will doubtless be packing them in today and tomorrow at the Milane Theatre. "Fast Company" has to do with a "bush league" ball player, Jack Oakie, who plays baseball so well that he is signed by the Yankees. He leaves his little old home town and is played into the next company of civilized girls and big league players. He becomes the lover of at least one of the Yankees and they win the pennant. Then comes the "war" series with Pittsburgh. With the deciding game to be played on the morning, a number of upsetting events project themselves into the pathway of success for Oakie. His girl turns him down, and a gang of smart gamblers nags him their whitening days. All seems dark when a very happy twist of fate saves the days for the boastful but lovable hero.

All the advantages of sound pictures are brought into the production. You hear the fans cheering as you hear the players raising the other party you hear the crack of bat on ball. You hear the American "language as she is spoke." Evelyn Brent is well as the most beautiful manager of the team, and George Lee is the best and comeliest friend who helps him up the progress of the love plot.

Old and tired, her eyes watched with contempt the parade of robbery victims before her. There was some but one in point, an accusing finger at Costa and that was Mrs. Rebecca E. Dege. The alleged victim said she saw Costa in her room with a toy pistol and a bottle of chloroform.

TUNG OIL [CHINA WOOD OIL] from FLORIDA

Dick Brown

CHINA exports to this country $15,000,000 worth of Tung Oil each year. Florida, seeking in ancient China another productive source of income, has borrowed the tung tree and is seriously going about the business of developing this new industry; which, of course, will add millions of dollars to the wealth of the State.

After twenty years of growth and experimentation, Tung Oil is being produced here in commercial quantities. The first oil extracting plant began operating in Alachua county this year and its modern machinery is said to have a working capacity equal to that of one hundred Chinese laborers.

For centuries the Chinese have laboriously extracted the oil from tung nuts by crude wooden presses, carried it in baskets on their backs and floated it down the river in perilous journeys to seaboard markets. Since history began they have used it as a varnish for water craft, for lacquering furniture and waterproofing silk and paper. In recent years tung oil has become indispensable in the manufacture of water-resistant paints and varnishes. It is employed as a first coat in painting automobiles, in the insulating of electric wires and in dozens of other modern industrial processes.

Florida tung oil is said to be far superior in quality to the adulterated product imported from China and will find a ready market as fast as it can be supplied. Full grown tung trees yield a much greater money value per acre than other oil-bearing crops such as cottonseed, peanuts or flaxseed. Due to the fact that cut-over pine land can be economically utilized, the possibilities in Florida are particularly brilliant.

Competent authorities state that it is possible for the tung oil industry in Florida to develop into an annual production of forty to fifty million dollars and that this will increase with the growth of the paint and varnish industries.

Florida, with its great opportunity as the tung oil center of the country, will attract many allied industries—increasing the wealth and prosperity of its people many-fold.
