CCIB find drugs worth $55,000

LONGWOOD — Two city residents and a Deltona man were jailed Wednesday after drug agents found about $55,000 worth of drugs including marijuana and hallucinogens during a search of a Longwood home.

Melina Robertson, 21, and Harold Sharp, 23, who live at 1065 Second Place were arrested for possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of more than 20 grams and possession of hallucinogenic mushrooms by City-County Investigative Bureau agents.

The agents received a tip last week that the suspects were selling drugs from the house off County Road 427, said sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough.

While agents were executing a search warrant, David Lambert, 22, Deltona arrived with 1,000 hits of LSD and 23 hits of ecstasy. He was arrested for possession of both drugs.

Agents found 39 pounds of pot packaged in brick-form and three mushrooms in the house, he added.

All three suspects were release from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility after posting $3,000 bond each.

Affordable housing clinic

An Affordable Housing Awareness Clinic will be presented tomorrow beginning at 6 p.m., at the Bookertown Community Improvement Association.

Goldenrule Housing and Community Development Corporation, Inc., is the host, with Executive Director Amelia Geuka as featured speaker. The clinic concerns home buying, and various means for financing and/or qualifying for home ownership.

The Bookertown meeting is one of a series of similar clinics to be held with one set for the Midway Community Center on June 16 and the Eastmont Civic Center in Altamonte Springs on June 21.

Play it again, Sam - Louder!

NEW YORK — Does your boogie-woogie fever give your neighbors the blues? The solution is now at your fingertips: The silent — ssshhhh! — piano is here.

The latest in keyboard technology was unveiled Wednesday by Yamaha, which has created a piano that only the player can hear. The instrument is a hybrid of a traditional piano and a digital piano.

So what does that mean, other than no complaints from the rough audience in the next apartment? The piano has a system that can be turned on to prevent the hammers from hitting the strings.

The player listens to the music through headphones plugged into the piano.

With the system off, the "Silent Series" piano performs like a normal instrument.

Downtown up to code?

City struggles to keep up with violations

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Old Sanford Regulations (nicknamed the "Duany Codes" for the planner who developed the codes) have been on the books in Sanford since December, but are still a source of grief to some of the people who live in the historic district.

It's not the people who would defy the codes who are up in arms. Rather, it is those who want them enforced.

"It is very frustrating," said historic district resident Bob Cassels. "I get the feeling that no one is in charge down there. There is no one really who is making sure the codes are enforced."

Citizens have complained vociferously that code officers are lax in their duties. Cassels complained that he and other citizens are unable

Old bones: Human or animal?

Indian mound to be preserved

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The bones fragments found on the surface of a historic Indian mound have been returned to their resting place but there is a disagreement over whether the bones were animal or human. Regardless of the bones' origins, steps will be taken to preserve the mound.

State archaeologist James Miller said the bones found by Sanford resident Karen Prince a few weeks ago in a mound off Cameron Avenue are animal. Prince showed the bones to a friend who is a medical doctor.

"He said the bones were definitely human," Prince said. Prince did not send the bones she found to Miller for inspection. She added that one of the fragments was jointed, like a finger. Prince and her friend, Darla Calone, are researching information about the mound.

Karen Prince and Darla Calone have reburied the bones they display. They say the bones are human, the state claims they are animal.

Teen moms and welfare

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Taxpayers are spending $34 billion a year to support the growing number of poor families begun by teen-age mothers. A new study says these women are the least likely to earn their way off welfare.

In the Teen Age Parent Program (TAPP) at the Crooms School of Choice in Sanford, however, there is an effort to ensure that the young families use welfare only as a temporary bridge to financial independence.

The emphasis at Crooms is on finishing high school, going on to college and getting a decent job.

Garbage plan prompts petition drive

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A group fighting Seminole County's new unincorporated garbage program have started a petition drive seeking to force county commissioners to repeal the month-old plan.

But the drive suffers from a limited schedule that may derail a referendum until 1996.

Elections supervisor Sandra Goard approved petition materials proposed by Seminole Taxpayers United which seeks to repeal the May 10 ordinance. The proposed revisions leave intact the commission's mandatory garbage collection requirement, optional service levels and exemptions from collection, but eliminates the county's billing program in favor of garbage hauler billing.

By eliminating the county's billing on November property tax bills, the threat that someone could lose their home over an unpaid garbage bill is also eliminated, say group leaders.

Under the petition requirements of the county's Home Rule Charter, the group must collect 6,900 names of voters living in at least three county commission districts. Goard then has 60 days to confirm the names are valid before submitting them to the county commission. The commission then has 60 days to act on the ordinance. If they vote it down, then they must place the issue on the next general election occurring no less than 45 days.

Crackdown targets auto repair shops

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A state-wide inspection has been underway since January to determine how many automobile repair shops have been registered with the state. So far, none have been reported as being without registrations in Sanford.

About 17,000 of an estimated 28,000 repair shops, 60 percent, have registered.

The registration requirements are meeting a mixed response.

"It looks as though they're picking on auto dealerships," said Don Bales, owner of Sanford Motor Co., 3418 S. Orlando Drive. "This is another in an ever-growing series of licenses and requirements we are forced to follow," he commented.

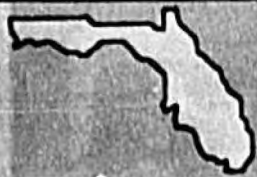

Bales isn't against this repair registration however. "Certainly there are some unscrupulous repair shops operating, which give the rest of us a bad name, and if this will help get rid of them, then it's a good move."

Mr. G's Complete Automotive Service at 201 N. Maple Avenue in Sanford, proudly displays its certificate of registration in the customer lounge. Mike Greanya, service manager commented, "A TV channel tried their own type of sitting operation on some of us, and came in here thinking they might catch a shop without the registration," he

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Jones sued for Clinton harassment suit

TAMPA — Two Floridians are suing Paula Corbin Jones, trying to delay her sexual harassment suit against President Clinton and prevent her from profiting from it.

Daniel Schramek of St. Petersburg, a longtime critic of the Florida Bar, and Thomas Delor of Clearwater Beach have asked for an injunction against the former Arkansas state employee, who contends Clinton demanded sexual favors from her in 1991 while he was governor.

Clinton has denied the charges.

The complaint filed last week at federal court in Tampa seeks $27 million in punitive damages to discourage Jones from a "malicious act" that interferes in the business of the federal government.

Jones' suit interferes with Clinton's contract to serve the American people, the complaint states.

"This is novel," said Joseph Cammarata of Fairfax, Va., who represents Jones. He said he hopes the suit is withdrawn.

"This is really a lawsuit for every American who believes their contract with the president is going to be interfered with," Schramek said. "We're trying to make a point."

Welfare

"We want to make it possible for our young women to succeed," said Barbara Kirby, principal at Crooms. "We aren't teaching them to just survive."

The General Accounting Office, in a series of reports that profile the nation's mushrooming welfare population, said nearly half of all mothers on the rolls today had their first child as a teen-ager.

The costs are staggering. Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders, in congressional testimony last week, said the government spent $34 billion in 1992 on Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Medicaid and food stamps for families begun by adolescent parents.

In 1990, according to a separate estimate by the Center for Population Options, the costs totaled $25 billion.

GAO, the congressional watchdog agency, said teen-ager mothers tend to have more children and less education than other welfare recipients. They are also much poorer.

Crooms offers assistance in helping young mothers sign up for social programs while they are trying to get on their feet, but they do not encourage them to sit back and collect a check each month. There is much emphasis on the importance of completing one's education and providing a better life for themselves and their children, Kirby said.

GAO's findings this week are the latest word in the debate over illegitimacy and teenage pregnancy. Conservative Republicans say the problem is one of the most serious threats to American society and that while welfare may not cause illegitimacy, it is its "economic lifeline."

The Clinton administration's welfare reform proposal, due to be released in mid-June, will single out the youngest of the 5 million parents on AFDC, the principal welfare program.

The plan would give young mothers two years of cash benefits and the education, day care and training they need to get a job. Those still unemployed after two years would be required to enroll in a work program.

"Our approach will include both sanctions and rewards to encourage them to stay in school, live at home, go to job training as appropriate, and to take parenting class to help them deal with the demands of single parenthood," a senior administration official said Wednesday.

"Clearly, teen-agers are the most at risk for long-term welfare dependency and have the most to gain from welfare reform. The focus of the administration's plan will be these young mothers, many of whom do not have high school diplomas," the official said.

The reports from the GAO, the investigative arm of Congress, underscore the tough problems facing the White House as it confronts teen pregnancy, concluding that women who had their first child when they were teen-agers may have the toughest time earning their way off welfare.

For example, 18 percent of women on AFDC who gave birth as teen-agers had four or more children, compared with 9 percent of recipients who waited until they were at least 20 to have their first baby.

And fewer than half the AFDC mothers who gave birth as teen-agers had a diploma, compared with about two-thirds of the older mothers.

Women who gave birth as teen-agers were also more likely to have incomes below 50 percent of the poverty line — about $14,300 in 1992 for a family of four, GAO said.

Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of a Senate subcommittee on children, said GAO's study documents "the terrible toll of teen pregnancy on children, both mothers and babies."

"It makes sense that welfare reform focus on these families, encouraging the mothers to complete high school and get training to qualify for better paying jobs," Dodd said.

Information from the Associated Press was included in this report.

Dillard's first on board at mall

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Dillard's, one of five major stores to be located at the Seminole Towne Center Mall, has achieved a first. It is the first of the five to submit a site plan to the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission.

The plan will be considered at tonight's meeting.

While several changes may have been made since original plans were revealed, Dillard's is expected to be the largest store in square footage of any at the new mall.

Original plans call for Dillard's to occupy 206,288 square feet of space in a two-level store. The second largest is Hurdlines with 160,000 square feet.

Others planned for the mall include J.C. Penney at 148,656 square feet, Parisian at 140,000 s.f., and Sears at 133,278.

There is an indication that Sears may also propose an outparcel building to handle automotive service. It would not be located in the actual major mall facility.

Since the original planned spaces were revealed, several changes have been made to the overall size of the mall, which may change some of the retail sizes.

The preliminary plan for the overall Seminole Towne Center Subdivision was approved by P&Z back in April of 1993. Since that time, several other plans have been approved.

"This is the first of the major stores to bring their site plans to the P&Z said Land Development Coordinator Betty Sonnenberg.

Sonnenberg said each of the five major tenants will be required to bring their site plans to the P&Z but the expected 130 specialty stores will be included in the overall master plan for the mall.

The Seminole Towne Center Mall is scheduled for grand opening on Sept. 7, 1995.

Other items on the agenda for tonight's P&Z meeting include the following:

- Consideration of a request for conditional use for property at 610 W. P Street. In a GC-2 General Commercial Zoning District, for the purpose of antique furniture and gift shop. Thomas and Joanne R. Dragoo owners/representatives.

• Consideration of the site plan for Sanford House, Inc. (as above, 616 W. P Street).

• Consideration of a master plan for Sanford Central Park, Ph. 2, Bauerle Place north of Upsala Road between Smith and Upsala Road. In a restricted industrial zoning district.

• Consideration of an extension of the approval of site engineering plan for Jet Aire Corporation office and hangar complex at 100 Jett-Aire Court.

• Additional business from the floor of commission members.

The P&Z meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. this evening, in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

STOP signatures needed for August

By Associated Press

CLEARWATER — A grassroots group says it has collected more than 200,000 signatures for a November ballot initiative that would constitutionally require prisoners to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences.

Stop Turning Out Prisoners must have 430,000 validated signatures by August to get the issue on the ballot. The group is organizing meetings around the state to hear early release horror stories and drum up support.

On the average, Florida inmates serve only about 40 percent of their sentences because of prison overcrowding. And more than half of those released early commit crimes and return to prison.

Manatee County Sheriff Charlie Wells, the founder of STOP, said the true aim of the petition drive is to force the Legislature to provide funding for additional prison beds.

Petition

Allowing for county public notice requirements and the maximum time allowed under the charter, the names probably should have been submitted in mid-April.

Petition author Robert Morris said even if the issue can't be placed on the ballot until 1996, the 6,900 names should serve notice to commissioners change is wanted by a substantial number of constituents.

"We don't have a problem with mandatory garbage collection," Morris said. "None of us working on this feels one person should lose their home to this. Our ordinance would do very little except remove the billing from the non-ad valorem tax statement."

STU was formed last month in Geneva to challenge the county's new garbage collection program, set to begin Jan. 1. It has grown to include members from unincorporated neighborhoods throughout the county. STU member Ernie Whitaker has retained Apopka lawyer Johnie McLeod to sue the county over the program, which he says is illegal.

In May, commissioners enacted their latest incarnation of a garbage collection program requiring mandatory collection from every unincorporated residence, structured collection service, exemptions and annual billing. The program follows four years of elective collection service.

About a quarter of the 48,000 homes outside of cities do not subscribe to garbage collection service, according to county records.

It is possible to lose your home because of an unpaid garbage bill. County Attorney Robert McMillan said the garbage billing is included on the tax bill as a "non-ad valorem special assessment." The state permits tax certificates to be sold to collect unpaid debts. If the debts continue unpaid, the property may be sold to reimburse the certificate holder.

The STU garbage ordinance requires all unincorporated residents to subscribe to garbage service, unless exempted, but billing is done by the county's contracted hauler. If someone fails to pay their bill, Morris says the company can seek collection of the debt through small claims court.

"We believe it is unbelievable the county can collect money for private enterprise," commented Morris.

The STU ordinance, as does the county's, calls for Code Enforcement Board and court-room penalties if garbage builds up on property or other sanitation regulations are violated.

The STU ordinance calls for a revision of one exemption. The county's ordinance permits a collection fee exemption for folks living on an agriculturally-zoned property 2 1/2 acres in size or greater. The STU ordinance would allow the exemption on property as small as three-quarters of an acre in size. Morris said the 2 1/2-acre limit was arbitrary and does not address many residents living on smaller agriculturally-zoned lots subdivided from larger properties.

Employee of the Month Jeff Wall, center, was named Employee of the Month for June, by the City of Sanford. Wall is a Cross Connection Control Technician for the Water Distribution Division of the Utility Department. He also handles utility inspections. Making the presentation Tuesday was Sanford Mayor Bill Simmons, left, and City Manager Betty Smith and City Manager Bill Simmons.

POLICE BRIEFS

Tailgate trouble

Brandon Hayes Noell, 20, of Cassberry, with his permanent address listed on Birdbay Court, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies early Wednesday. Deputies said he reportedly broke into a car lot in the 4000 block of S. Highway 17-92, and removed the tailgate from a 1994 pickup truck. The item was said to be valued at $300. According to the arrest report, Noell told deputies he had been paid $50 by another man to obtain the tailgate. Noell has been charged with burglary and grand theft.

Fourth Street burglaries

Three separate residential burglaries were reported to Sanford police Tuesday on 4th Street in Sanford. In the 400 block of E. 4th, the caretaker of a home told police all of the furniture had been stolen.

In the 500 block, a .22 caliber pistol valued at $50 was reported stolen.

In the 1900 block, two TV sets and jewelry with a total value of $1,400 was reportedly stolen.

Warrants served

John Benjamin Byrd III, 32, 2370 Granby Street, Sanford, turned himself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday. He was wanted on a Lee County writ of bodily attachment.

James Arnold Mason, 43, 3525 Sipes Avenue, was located by deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on a Volusia County warrant for violation of probation on a conviction of aggravated assault.

Steven Wayne Angle, 20, 93 Exeter Court, Sanford, was located at the jail by deputies Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on a conviction for dealing in stolen property.

Floyd Lee Aikens, 22, 224 W. 19th Street, Sanford, was located at his residence by deputies Tuesday. He was wanted for failing to pay a fine for driving with a suspended/revoked license, and failure to appear for sentencing.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

A radio and other items with a total value of $435 were reportedly stolen Tuesday from a vehicle parked in the 2000 block of Brisson Avenue.

A radio valued at $500 was reportedly stolen from a pickup truck Monday, parked in the 2600 block of Sanford Avenue.

A woman told deputies a lawn ornament in the shape of a duck had been removed during the past weekend from her mother's residence on Spinnaker Way in Lakeview Village near Lake Mary.

Domestic violence

Leander Shuler, 59, 1804 E. Peach St., Sanford, was arrested on a domestic violence battery charge by Seminole County deputies Monday night. A woman reported Shuler shoved her and slapped her face several times.

Crimes reported to Sanford police

Violence
A woman reported seeing a man attempt to push a burning object into the window at a residence in the 4200 block of South Orlando Drive at 1 a.m. Monday. Police found the object was a bottle filled with gasoline.

A woman reported a man attempted to abduct her from the front of a business at 3802 S. Orlando Drive at 9:19 a.m. last Friday. The woman reported the man asked her for directions and after she told him, he grabbed her arm and tried to drag her into his car, a brown Audi. The woman said she broke free and fled. The man was described as white, with blonde hair, about six feet tall, and wearing a white shirt and tan pants. The man also had a partially missing index finger, the woman reported.

A woman reported seven juveniles "jumped" her at 3:30 p.m. Friday as she walked in the 1000 block of West 12th Street. The woman reported they punched and kicked her and left her with a scraped knee. Police report they could find no suspects.

Memories of D-Day

Senate GOP leader visits site of WWII wounding in Italy

By GURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Ten months after D-Day, in the chilly spring air of Italy, an Army lieutenant from Kansas named Bob Dole fought in a little-known battle that left him permanently scarred but determined to succeed.

While the headlines were filled with Allied victories in France, Dole and others in the 10th Mountain Division were scrapping for yards of rugged terrain around the village of Castel d'Alano.

On April 14, 1945 — two days after Franklin Roosevelt's death and with Nazi surrender just weeks away — Dole's right shoulder was shattered by withering German machine-gun fire near a small, flat-topped rise called Hill 913.

"Whatever it was, it crushed my collarbone, punctured a lung and damaged vertebrae, leaving me paralyzed from the neck down," Dole recalled in the book "Unlimited Partners," co-written with his wife Elizabeth, who is president of the American Red Cross.

World War II is a daily fact of life for Dole. He can barely use his right arm, and characteristically clutches a pen or rolled paper in his right hand to discourage people from shaking it.

Forty-nine years later, Dole returns Friday to the same Italian village and hill as the Senate minority leader, the nation's highest-ranking Republican and a potential presidential candidate in 1996.

Dole, now 70, will take part in the series of commemorations marking the 50th anniversary of the Allied invasion of Normandy. But for him, the visit to Italy is much more personal.

"Getting dressed each morning is a time-consuming process, and I rarely loosen my tie in public, given the effort it requires to knot it back again," Dole wrote. "I still have trouble looking in the mirror."

After he was hit that April day, Dole nearly died from infections but slowly regained feeling in his arms and legs. Once a star athlete who dreamed of playing basketball at the University of Kansas, he arrived back in Topeka in a body cast. His weight dropped from 194 pounds to 122.

"In moments of self-pity, I saw myself going through life unmarried, selling pencils on street corners and living off a disability pension," Dole wrote.

He was transferred in November 1945 to Percy Jones Army Medical Center in Battle Creek, Mich., which specialized in orthopedics and neurosurgery. The hospital was to be his home for 2½ years.

Among the other patients was Daniel Inouye, who lost his right arm to a German grenade in Italy in April 1945 and who now is a senator from Hawaii. Another patient was the future Sen. Philip Hart, who now has a Senate office building named in his memory.

Sudden drop in milk price alarms producers, no help for consumers

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — The nation's dairy farmers are bracing for a steep drop in milk prices this month, but don't expect the decrease to show up at the dairy counter.

Prices paid to farmers are falling in part because they had risen unexpectedly earlier this year. And more cows are producing more milk.

Why? Well, Midwestern farmers didn't cut back on their herds as much as expected. And nice spring weather made cows more contented, and more productive, than usual.

Then there's a little extra push to the market from a genetically engineered hormone, recombinant bovine somatotropin, that came on the market in February.

Even though dairy farmers will feel the decrease, shoppers may notice little. Retailers simply don't pass their lower milk costs on to consumers as quickly as they do price increases, the Agriculture Department says.

"It's far more typical for a retailer in a period of declining wholesale prices to just hold the retail price steady, or maybe to run a special," said Andrew Novakovic, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Research and Managerial Economics at Cornell University.

As a whole, dairy prices have been rising at about half the rate of other food prices in the last 10 years.

Besides, farmer prices account for about a third of what consumers pay for dairy products, the Agriculture Department says. For milk, the farmer share is slightly higher — about 42 cents out of each dollar the shopper spends.

But the milk industry and dairy state lawmakers say another consumer cost may come sooner: The government may soon be buying more surplus milk because wholesale prices are getting so low.

The industry and its congressional supporters want the Agriculture Department to make advance purchases of dairy food for schools and nutrition program, step up export subsidies and use more dairy products in foreign aid.

Members of the National Milk Producers Federation, which represents dairy cooperatives, planned to meet with Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy today.

Economists such as Novakovic at Cornell say government intervention would help for a while, but "those kinds of activities are not large enough to completely forestall some kind of drop in price."

Simply put, there aren't enough milk drinkers, butter spreaders and even pizza munchers to keep up with what dairy farmers in this country can produce. And global competition is so fierce that trade pacts, such as the recent General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, offer little help.

Practice beach safety

What happens is news. Some stories however also become words of warning.

The news that five people were drown in undercurrents in Nassau County on Memorial Day was tragic. To some beach goers, it may have been frightening. If the story makes people more aware of the dangers of these tides however, it will have a life saving affect.

Fire and rescue personnel and experienced lifeguards say they have never seen the undertow pull so violently. Yet there was no storm in the area and no immediate indication that something was wrong.

What have we learned?
It should prove that no matter how often we visit the beach, there are always dangers. No one knows exactly what tragedy may occur at any given moment.

As such, each of us must stay constantly alert to any dangers. This is especially true when small children are involved.

One of the best approaches is never to swim at the beach unless there is a lifeguard nearby. Sitting on top of their towers, they can see much farther into the ocean or Gulf, and identify dangers much more quickly than swimmers.

When a horn sounds or a danger flag is seen, get out of the water immediately. Don't stand out there and try to see what the problem is. A wasted few moments in doing so could result in you becoming the problem.

Also, don't bother the lifeguards. They are on duty to protect everyone from danger, and rescue those who have problems. They are not there to pass the time of day or suggest which restaurant has the best pizza.

Never, ever, allow small children to play in the ocean or Gulf waters without being within a few seconds from them. Leaving them to fend for themselves while you walk the beach could be courting disaster.

Most Central Florida residents don't believe they need this advice. They may believe this is only for visitors or new residents.

Wrong. The people who were drown in Nassau County lived in beach communities. They however, were hit unexpectedly. This should serve as a warning to everyone.

Have fun at the beach, but stay near lifeguards, and follow their directions. If there is even a hint of a problem, get out of the water fast and stay out until the all-clear is confirmed.

Real Republicans

For years now I have been listening to the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee tout "The Government that Governs Least Governs Best" and, as most Republicans, I have subscribed to this philosophy; however, after reading in your paper that "an estimated 300 people attended last night's meeting (county commissioners), most to oppose the mandatory collection program" I was appalled to read that our elected commissioners voted 3-2 in favor of this unpopular mandate, with the three, yes, three, Republicans casting their approval.

I think the time has come for the real Republicans in county government to stand up, don't you?

How important is Clinton's character?

The civil lawsuit for sexual harassment filed against President Clinton by Paula Jones raises a number of issues that cannot be ignored, however much the fastidious would like to ignore them.

Mr. Clinton's defenders often begin by deploring the fact that sexual peccadillos are discussed so freely these days. It is tempting, and relevant, to point out that it was the liberals who were in the forefront of the decades-long campaign to destroy public reticence in the matter of open references to sex, and that they haven't hesitated to raise the issue of sexual misconduct themselves, whenever (as in the case of Clarence Thomas) it seemed to serve their political purposes.

But it is also relevant to note that not since John F. Kennedy (if then) has the White House sheltered quite such a sexual alley cat as Bill Clinton. In JFK's day the rules were different, and a friendly press (who knew exactly what was going on) cheerfully covered up for its hero. But that was then, and this is now. And Clinton, heaven help us, is Clinton.

Interestingly enough, Mr. Clinton's defenders waste very little breath trying to deny his sexual athleticism. As Joseph Sobran recently observed, Bill Clinton has a lot of friends but not many character witnesses. Instead, his supporters have developed two serviceable fall-back positions.

First, whenever a particular set of charges swims into focus -- whether those of a longtime mistress like Gennifer Flowers or of a woman who allegedly rejected his first advance, like Mrs. Jones -- the first effort is to discredit the woman. Mr. Clinton may not be a paragon of virtue, we are told, but this particular woman is lying, after money, and/or being manipulated by right-wing Clinton haters.

Simultaneously, a second defense is launched on a broader front. We are reminded that Gennifer Flowers told her story right in the middle of Mr. Clinton's campaign for the Democratic nomination, and that Bill and Hillary went on "60 Minutes" soon thereafter. They admitted that their marriage had had its ups and downs (nudge, wink), but insisted that together they had worked through the problems and now everything was hunky-dory.

Not since John F. Kennedy (if then) has the White House sheltered quite such a sexual alley cat as Bill Clinton.

Despite this (or because of it), the Democrats nominated Mr. Clinton anyway, and the American people elected him president. From this, it is argued (most recently by Mary McGoroy on "Meet the Press"), we are entitled to infer that the American people knew about Mr. Clinton's sexual antics when they elected him, and consciously decided they didn't matter.

One may question whether the American people, in being treated to that endearing admission of marital difficulties on "60 Minutes," were thereby sufficiently put on notice of the gaudy record of sexual misconduct that has subsequently come to light. But even if they were, one cannot assume that they regarded it as wholly irrelevant.

But I have no doubt at all that the ongoing revelations concerning Mr. Clinton's sexual behavior have damaged him, and will continue to damage him, severely. Don't count character out.

Diary undermines Nixon gush

Richard Nixon's secret plan to infiltrate and incite opponents of his Vietnam War policy -- to make them appear violent, unpatriotic, even anti-American radicals -- reached its pique in California on the night of Oct. 29, 1970.

Dateline, San Jose: Rocks Smash Windows of President's Motorcade; Anti-War Protest Turns Ugly. Now we are learning a big chunk of the real story. It comes from "The Haldeman Diaries," meticulously recorded and posthumously published by Nixon's chief of staff, H.R. (Bob) Haldeman.

I actually heard the rest of the story the night it happened, in 1970. Richard Nixon told me. (He didn't mean to, but he did.) Today, a mere quarter-century late, we can finally piece together what really happened in that confrontational finale to a midterm election campaign that divided our nation.

First, we must note Nixon's mindset: He worried that moderate Americans, increasingly disillusioned with the war, would sympathize with anti-war efforts. So, Haldeman reveals, Nixon plotted his politics-of-division -- an insight overlooked in the recent eulogy gush about a Nixon who vowed to "Bring Us Together."

"Sept. 12, 1970: At Camp David... (The president) has several plots he wants hatched. One to infiltrate... Common Cause (the recently formed public interest group), deal and needle them and try to push them to left...."

"Next, (create) a front that sounds like SDS (the radical Students for a Democratic Society) to support the Democratic candidates and praise their liberal records, etc., publicize their 'bad' quotes in guise of praise. Give the senators a 'radiclib' rating."

In San Jose, Nixon took matters into his own hands -- literally. From "The Haldeman Diaries":

"Oct. 29, 1970: San Jose turned into the real blockbuster. Very tough demonstrators shouting... on the way into the auditorium.... We wanted some confrontation and there were no hecklers in the hall, so we stalled departure a little so they could zero in outside, and they sure did.... Made a huge incident and we worked hard to crank it up, should make really major story and might be effective."

Now the rest of the story:
Nixon aides conferred agitatedly during the San Jose speech, which I covered as Newsday's White House correspondent. Something was up. Afterwards, I headed toward Nixon's limousine and stood next to Haldeman and domestic adviser John Ehrlichman, opting to miss the motorcade to the airport.

The crowd chanted as Nixon and Gov. Ronald Reagan approached. Nixon, seeming strangely pleased, climbed atop the limo trunk, thrust his arms skyward, flashed his famous V-signs. Holding that taunting pose, he growled to his confidants (and me) through a clenched-teeth smile: "That's what they hate to see!"

As Nixon's motorcade departed, now-enraged demonstrators threw debris. Rocks dented Nixon's limo, smashed car and press bus windows. Haldeman noted: "Rock hit my car, driver hit brakes, car stalled, car behind hit us, rather scary...."

At the airport, reporters telephoned bulletins that anti-war protesters attacked the president, quoting White House officials saying Nixon had been waving friendly "V-signs" to supporters. From an auditorium phone, I dictated the real story to my New York newspaper, describing Nixon's taunt and his quote. Helpful editors read to me wire service bulletins; the misleading White House spin was accepted as gospel. So I hailed the first car I saw, paid the driver $50, and arrived at the airport barely before the press plane door closed. On board, I borrowed the stewardess' microphone and shared my "exclusive" with my colleagues (as presidential aides fumed) -- complete with Nixon's "That's what they hate to see!"

Have ensued, Nixon aides called for the plane to take off; but the reporters jumped up, raced to the phones and changed their reports.

For all their anger, White House officials never denied that Nixon uttered that revealing quote. Perhaps they'd seen that I was clever enough to be carrying my trusty tape recorder in my hand.

What Nixon aides didn't know (and I never bothered to mention) was that I hadn't been clever enough to turn on my trusty machine.

I actually heard the rest of the story the night it happened, in 1970. Richard Nixon told me. (He didn't mean to, but he did.)

Never dull moment on planet USA

Random thoughts and observations. The Curmudgeon has a lot on his mind today, but it's all a jumble. He'll do his best to leave you with some provocative things to chew on, but forgive him if his thoughts stray....

Did you read where cable television executives are upset about sagging profits brought on by the cable re-regulation bill Congress passed in 1992? Since 1986, these modern robber barons have been operating as an unregulated monopoly and pocketing outrageous earnings at the expense of hapless consumers, whose bills shot up 10 to 20 percent a year. Now the Federal Communications Commission is limiting their profits to reasonable levels and they are teed-off.

Cable executives recently had their annual convention in New Orleans and judging from news reports, they believe the industry is on the verge of ruin. Profits are down, investment in new technology is off, the channel system has been delayed. You're going to have to live with 60 channels a little longer, folks. Hope you can hack it.

Should we be crying for cable TV? Before answering, let's review a 1993 memo written by an officer of TCI Cable Management Corp., a subsidiary of the nation's largest cable operator:

"I want to remind each of you that the transaction charges for upgrades, downgrades, customer-caused service calls, VCR hookups, etc., are vital new revenue sources for us. By charging for these functions, we can recover almost half of what we're losing from rate adjustments.... We cannot be dissuaded from these charges simply because customers object. It will take awhile, but they'll get used to it.... The best news of all is now we can blame the charges on regulation and the government. Let's take advantage of it."

Should we cry for cable? When polar bears prwl hell....

We've been hearing a lot about "Generation X," the disillusioned twentysomethings whose minds were molded by "The Simpsons" and who are now entering an economy and a social structure they view as inferior to those enjoyed by their parents. But what about Generation Y, or whatever you want to call the population bulge behind the X's? How will a bunch of kids raised on "Beavis and Butt-Head" rule the world?

No way to know, but here's a hint: High school students in North Carolina and New York state recently filed lawsuits to force their school districts to quit making them participate in community volunteer programs. Such practices are tantamount to involuntary servitude, they say. Another hint: According to a recent Washington Post article, many schoolteachers have quit assigning homework because their students refuse to do it.

From Woe-is-Us to Don't-Bother-Us in a few short years....

Just thought you'd like to know -- June is National Accordion Awareness Month. Also National Dreamwork Month. You are encouraged to keep a "dream journal" to help you recognize how the conscious mind is influenced by the subconscious....

Do you know that the federal government spent a mere $277,000 on pickle research in 1993? Thomas Jefferson would be appalled. "On a hot day in Virginia," he once wrote, "I know of nothing more comforting than a fine spiced pickle, brought up trout-like from the sparkling depths of that aromatic jar below stairs in Aunt Sally's cellar...."

Should we cry for cable? When polar bears prwl hell....

Codes

to get the code officials "to even look for" the violations.
Dan Florian, one of three building inspectors employed by the city, is charged with code enforcement. He said there are enough code violations in Sanford to keep a whole department of code inspectors and secretaries busy full time. At this time, there is only one person going out into the field to check on complaints of violations.
"We really don't even have a real department," he said. "We are acting on a complaint basis and we are barely equipped to even keep up with those."

Florian said that the city takes complaints from residents and goes to check out the validity. While the inspector is going to check out one complaint, they might find another violation along the way.
He said the amount of paperwork generated by one code violation is "tremendous." The workload just keeping up with the complaints is as much as the inspectors can handle.
"We are supposed to be able to patrol our area, to familiarize ourselves with the work being done in our area, but there just isn't the time," he said.

Casels said he has called with complaints of city code violations (such as abandoned cars, high weeds or trash in yards) and has gotten the run-around.
"I call City Hall, they tell me to call the police. I call the police, they tell me to call City Hall," he said.
Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell said the police are not charged with enforcing code violations. Florian said his department deals with the complaints as they come in. Though they are sometimes behind schedule, they never refer complaints to the police department.

"What can they do?" he asked.
Florian said "things do not look good" on the inspectors' request that the city hire another inspector to help lessen the load on those who are trying to enforce the codes.
"I doubt the city will approve that request," he noted.
Casels said Mayor Bettye Smith has turned her back on the historic district and on the promises she made during her re-election campaign.
"During the election, she promised us the world," he said. "Recently when she spoke to us at the Historic Trust, she said 'I hope your neighborhood will be better.' I don't want to wait ten years."
Smith could not be reached for comment.
Casels said he has lived in and renovated homes in historic districts in Atlanta and in Orlando.
"I've never seen anything like this," he said. "There is just no interest by the city in enforcing its own codes."
Florian said there has been some difficulty enforcing the Duany Codes because the public is not sure of all the intricacies of the codes.
Russ Gibson, a planner with the city of Sanford, is also a member of the Sanford Historic Preservation Board. He has been serving as a liaison between the two bodies.
"We are trying to focus on making the preservation issues more at the forefront," Gibson said. "We are starting to coordinate things."

Bones

At Miller's request, Dick Boyer of the Seminole County Planning and Development Department sent him some bone fragments he collected at the site. After a specialist examined the fragments and a picture accompanying the Indian mound story in the Sanford Herald, Miller said the bones are animal.
"I have had them (bones) examined by a physical anthropologist," Miller said, "and they are not human. Keep in mind it is not possible to say with absolute certainty that none of these bones are human but in general it is easy to say they all appear to be animal bones."
He said the bones were from a bird, a turtle, a deer and the others were from middle to large size mammals.
"Nothing on them indicate they are human," Miller said. He added the mound itself is made of shell midden, basically a garbage dump for people who lived hundreds of years ago along the St. Johns River. Shells, bones and other refuse from the Indians' daily lives make up midden.
"Even though the mound is made out of shell and bones in a midden," Miller explained, "there are also probably humans buried in there. But none of those burial locations of the humans are exposed at the surface. So what is visible on the surface, and caused Karen so much trouble was really animal bones. But it wouldn't be fair to say that this is not a burial mound. It is probably a burial mound and there are probably human remains in there but they are pretty deeply buried."
The mound was purposely constructed as a burial site using shell midden rather than clay, sand or soil, he explained.

"Much of her concern, I think, goes away when it turns out that these are not human bones," Miller explained, "and I must say that probably, some of the people, at least, that she talked to suspected that they were not human bones and didn't take her as seriously as she cared to be taken."
Miller's second concern is Prince seemed to imply no one responded to her calls about the bones.
"I talked with her on the telephone. I tried to call her back a couple of times and got no answer. I wrote her a letter," Miller explained. "She talked with other people in my office. The city responded to her call. I talked with an archeologist who had been on the site. Many of us took this very seriously but couldn't really go too far without understanding whether these were human remains or not."
Florida law spells out the final disposition of human remains, Miller said.
Miller and Boyer discussed ways to preserve the site. An archeologist and two teams of county workers inspected the site and found there is not an erosion problem.
"We've already worked very closely with native Americans across Florida and other relevant parties to build a law that protects human remains in mounds like this just as they have already been protected in cemeteries," Miller said, "and also sets up some procedures to be followed whenever human remains are encountered so we make sure they are treated with respect and that the sites are protected if possible. If not, the bones are removed and then we consult with native Americans to determine what should happen to the bones. Usually, they are reburied."
Miller said he has worked closely with native Americans to build a good working relationship.
Although erosion does not appear to be a problem on the local mound, steps will be taken to preserve the site.
"He (Boyer) recommended that perhaps the signage could be changed and a small fence could be put up on the mound to keep people from walking up the side of it and to keep kids from riding bikes up the side of it," Miller said, "so we are going to work together to change the language on the sign a little bit and to install some facilities that will make this look a little more like somebody cares about it."
Boyer said visiting the mounds give individuals the opportunity to quietly reflect about how long people have lived along the river. The mounds, thought to be over 1,000 years old, show Indians inhabited the region long before Europeans arrived in the Americas.

Auto

said, "but Mr. G's has one, and we've had it for many months. They didn't find anything wrong here."
Greeny said having the registration statement has not made much difference. "We haven't had any complaints filed against us before we put up the sign, and none since then either," he said.
Statewide however, customer complaints about automobile repairs have declined sharply since July, when the state law to curb fraud took effect, officials say.
The drop comes as auto repair shops are being required to register with the state under a law that took effect on July 1 of last year. The law gives the department administrative authority to fine or shut down auto shops that defraud the public.
The number of written complaints about motor vehicle repairs declined from 4,125 in 1992-93 to less than 1,900 through the 11 months ended May 30, according to figures released Wednesday by the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, which regulates auto repair shops.
"It's a deterrent effect of the new law," said Karen MacFarland, director of the state Division of Consumer Services. "It appears to be that."
The number of written complaints is expected to end up slightly more than 2,000 by June 30 - a 50 percent reduction from the previous fiscal year.
The law was adopted in response to increasing complaints about shoddy or illegal auto repair practices. Some shop owners also wanted to clean up the industry's image.
"We've tried to implement this for 10 years to upgrade the industry," said Charlie Elder, owner of Ray Gordon Brake Service in Tallahassee and a past president of the Automotive Service Association, which represents 15,000 independent repair shops nationwide.
Florida joined a growing number of states to regulate auto repair shops, including California, Hawaii, New York, New Jersey, Michigan and Pennsylvania, MacFarland said.
Dade and Broward counties already have their own local ordinances that include licensing requirements stricter than the state law.
Auto repair has been one of the top consumer complaints in Florida with most customers gripping about overcharges and unsatisfactory or unnecessary repairs, officials said.

After the law took effect, the number of calls about auto repairs soared to more than 27,000, the department said. Most of the calls were inquiries or were resolved over the phone and did not result in written complaints, officials said.
"We need better communication between the mechanic and consumer," MacFarland said. "A lot of time it's not fraud. It's not enough communications."
A surge of customer inquiries is expected in the coming weeks because of a new public awareness campaign unveiled Wednesday by state Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford and the American Automobile Association.
To alert consumers and auto repair shops about the new law, the campaign will televise statewide a 30-second television public service announcement and offer auto owners a free "consumer protection kit." That includes a brochure about auto repair fraud and customer rights and car window stickers.
"When mechanics know that consumers are armed with this information, and will report fraud and fraudulent practices, they will be less likely to rip off consumers," Crawford said at a news conference.
Consumers can obtain the kit by calling the department's toll-free phone number at 1-800-435-7352 or from any of AAA's 40 offices statewide. Consumers also can call the same phone number with a complaint or inquiry.

Lake Mary golf tournament

LAKE MARY — This year's Lake Mary High School golf tournament will be played Saturday, June 4, at the Ekana Golf and Country Club.

The tournament, which will tee off with a shotgun start at 1:30 p.m., will follow a four-person scramble format. Teams are limited to a combined team handicap of 40.

Tournament highlights include a hole-in-one and closest-to-the-pin contests; Rams gift packets; refreshments on the course during the tournament; raffles, awards, and prizes; and a post-tournament buffet dinner.

Entry fee is $60 per player. Proceeds will benefit the boys' and girls' golf teams and the Lake Mary Athletic Booster Club.

Also, hole sponsorships are available for $50, which includes a laminated sign with the sponsor's name at the tee box and special acknowledgement of the sponsor during registration and at the awards dinner.

Call 323-2110, ext. 279, for information.

AROUND THE STATE

Vincent, Bowens, Marino show

DAVIE — Cornerback Troy Vincent, working on a comeback from reconstructive knee surgery, showed up for Dolphins pre-camp Wednesday without even a knee brace.

Vincent, 23, suffered torn ligaments and cartilage in his right knee while returning a punt against Pittsburgh last Dec. 13.

Also, first-round draft pick Tim Bowens showed up in time to join the afternoon practice. The 317-pound defensive tackle is still negotiating a contract, but he reached agreement on an injury-waiver clause to pay him an undisclosed amount if he is injured while working out without a contract.

Recovering quarterback Dan Marino practiced for the first time since tearing his Achilles' tendon last October.

Arnold leaving Florida

GAINESVILLE — Florida coach Joe Arnold called it quits Wednesday after 11 years, saying it was time for new direction both in his life and the baseball program.

"I have learned that it is important to always examine your life and what you have done," said Arnold. "I have taken the Florida program to a new level of success, but someone else is needed to take it higher."

The Gators made their first trip to the College World Series with Arnold but missed the championship series this year by losing Monday to top-seeded Miami in the Atlantic 1 regional.

Heat to decide on Loughery

MIAMI — Miami Heat coach Kevin Loughery's wait to be rehired appears to be nearing an end.

Loughery, whose three-year contract expires July 14, has been immersed in closed-door meetings with Heat co-partners Lewis Schaffel and Billy Cunningham on-and-off since Miami's season ended with its disappointing first-round playoff loss to Atlanta.

Loughery's Atlanta-based agent Lonnie Cooper met with Miami officials for an eight-hour meeting Tuesday and a contract has reportedly been tendered to the 19-year coach.

AROUND THE NATION

Conine sparks Marlin win

HOUSTON — Jeff Conine hit a two-run double during a three-run fifth inning Wednesday and the Florida Marlins beat the Houston Astros 3-2.

Dave Weathers (8-3) pitched six innings, giving up two runs on six hits. Robb Nen pitched three scoreless innings for his third save.

Greenville overtakes O-Cubs

GREENVILLE, S.C. — After trailing for the entire game the Greenville Braves rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to beat the Orlando Cubs in Southern League action Wednesday night.

After singling home Aubrey Waggoner with the game-tying run, Ramon Caraballo then stole second and scored on Tony Graffanino's long single.

Nashville gets by Suns

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Adell Davenport's three-run homer in the fourth inning led the Nashville Xpress past the Jacksonville Suns 6-5 Wednesday in the Southern League.

Nashville added two runs in the sixth off RBI singles by Mitch Simons and Anthony Byrd. Fredi McNeil's RBI double in the ninth highlighted Jacksonville scoring.

State champions highlight Lyman scholarship winners

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — Five members of Lyman High School's state champion girls' soccer team and the four seniors from Lyman's state semifinalist fastpitch softball team top a group of 18 graduating Greyhounds who will continue their athletic careers in college.

Leading the group is Danielle Garrett, one of the most versatile and accomplished athletes, male or female, in Seminole County history.

In her career, Garrett played on three state championship soccer teams, appeared in the state championship events of three other sports (swimming, track and field, and cross country), played on the tennis team, and played several games with the varsity basketball team as a junior (after the soccer season ended).

A member of the United States Soccer Federation's Under-20 women's national team, Garrett has committed to Dallas' Southern Methodist University.

Four other members of the state championship soccer team — Sara Kane, Theresa Bontempo, and the Roberts sisters, Cheryl and Caryn — also are headed to college.

Kane has signed on with the University of Central Florida while Kane is headed to NAIA national champion Berry College in Rome, Ga. According to Lyman coach Gary Barnett, the Roberts sisters are considering UCF and Berry.

From the Lyman fastpitch softball team, the Beland sisters, Jodie and Jamie Beland, will join older brother Chad at Seminole Community College while catcher Wendy Avey is headed to Brevard Community College.

Pitcher Michelle Bishop has had offers from both Stanford and Florida State, but appears to be headed to FSU.

Mike Ek, who won two individual state titles and swam on two state champion relays to lead Lyman to a second-place finish in the Class 5A state swim meet last fall, has accepted a scholarship from the University of South Carolina.

Nicole Freda, who was fifth in the 50 freestyle and seventh in the 100 freestyle at the state swim meet, will swim for Indian River Community College next fall.

Two members of the Lyman boys' soccer team have been signed to scholarships, goalkeeper Chris Lewis heading to the University of South Florida in Tampa while midfielder Steve Robinson has decided on Brevard (N.C.) College. Striker Brian Young also has been invited to walk on at USF.

Brad Lokey is headed to Central Methodist College in Fayette, Mo., on a football scholarship. LaShawn Ready has committed to Miles College in Birmingham, Ala., where he will play basketball.

Carrie Seranton has accepted a volleyball scholarship to attend Bradenton's Manatee Community College while Mark Thiens has taken a baseball scholarship offer from St. John's River Community College in Palatka.

Danielle Garrett, who participated in six different varsity sports at Lyman, will attend Southern Methodist University on a soccer scholarship.

Wells, Wrecking Crew split doubledips

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Both Wells Contracting and the Wrecking Crew split doubleheaders last night at Chase Park in the Sanford Recreation Wednesday Men's Slowpitch Softball League.

Wells Contracting opened the night with an 11-6 win over Sportsmart/Crazy Wings before losing to the Wrecking Crew 13-1. The Wrecking Crew then turned around and lost to Dee's Nuts, 15-10.

The two doubleheaders were made necessary because of the withdrawal of one of the league's five teams.

Wells Contracting (6-2) continues to lead the pack. The Wrecking Crew (4-4) is second in front of Sportsmart/Crazy Wings (3-4) and Dee's Nuts (2-5).

Bill Marino led Wells Contracting in the win over Sportsmart/Crazy Wings by driving in three runs with a double and two singles. John Scott contributed a double, single, one run scored, and three RBI. Randy Smathers had a double, one run, and two RBI while

Randy Brown added a double, run, and one RBI. Rick Wells singled twice, scored twice, and had an RBI. Roger Beathard had two singles, a run, and an RBI. John Gilmore, Tony Mann, and Bob Wells Sr. each singled and scored a run. George Porzig also singled. Jim Dawson scored two runs. George Davidson paced Sportsmart/Crazy Wings with three singles, two runs, and three RBI. Paul Rodriguez chipped in with three singles and two RBI. Don Macher had two singles and a run. Don Miller, Gary Miller, and Darryl Miller each singled and scored a run. Don Basti

WINTER PARK — Lake Brantley may have won the first game and Winter Park the second, but Mother Nature earned credit for a sweep of the two-game National Amateur Baseball Federation summer league series between the two squads.

On Tuesday night at Lake Brantley High School, the Patriots picked up a 7-1 win over the visiting Wildcats in a game stopped by rain after five innings. Winter Park did the same at home Wednesday night, claiming a 10-1 win over Lake Brantley in another game shortened by rain to five innings.

Now 2-3, Lake Brantley is scheduled to host the American Legion Sanford Post 53 B team tonight at 7 p.m.

Matt Desart and Walt Wheatley keyed a five-run rally in the bottom of third inning for the Patriots Tuesday night. Desart slashing a bases-loaded triple and Wheatley following with a two-run home run over the left field wall.

Matt Krot was 2-for-2 with two runs scored and an RBI in Tuesday's game. Juan Rojas also scored two runs. Jeff Hall contributed a single, one run, and an RBI. Neil Castaldo singled and scored a run.

That was more than enough. See Sweep, Page 2B

Casselberry's Stevens continues 'feud' with Frosh

By PAUL MARSEGLIA Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Bomber drivers Bobby Stevens and Gary Frosh celebrated their first full year of racing by finishing first and second, respectively, in their feature event last Saturday night, May 28, at New Smyrna Speedway.

Despite their first-year status, first and second-place finishes are not unusual for these two speed merchants.

Stevens, from Casselberry, was 16 feature wins and 11 second-place finishes. Frosh, who hails from Melbourne, has posted 11 feature wins and 14 seconds on the season.

"Tonight, our car was really hooked up good," said Stevens, 37. "For the past two weeks, we worked real hard and just went over everything. The bad thing is Gary (Frosh) has been doing a lot of homework too."

"I really like to race against him. He always races hard but he races you clean." Frosh, who will be 41 in July, added, "We have a lot in common. We each started racing in our later years, we both work hard on our cars, and we race to win.

"The good thing, though, is that no matter how hard we race, we have a lot of respect for each other."

Chasing the lead pair to the winner's circle were Chuck Vola, Jeremy Fitch, and Brian Schlimmer.

Tampa's Daniel Keene, driving the Victor Powell Ferneries Late Model mount, blew the doors off the competition to win the 50-lap Late Model championship race.

Keene, who led every lap in the caution-free race, set the evening's second fastest qualifying time and, by a slip of the coin, started the race on the outside pole alongside top qualifier David Russell.

When the green flag dropped, Keene was gone. By lap five, Keene had pulled away to a five-car lead over Russell. By the midway point, Keene had lapped the entire field except for Russell and David Rogers, opening up a half-track advantage over the second-place car.

Despite his comfortable lead, Keene never backed off the throttle and raced uncontested to victory lane.

"I raced hard just to see if the car could take it and it did," said Keene, who has four feature wins on the season. "This is one excellent race car. Mike Fritts and the guys did a heck of a job putting it together."

"I know that after tonight's race, a lot of people will be scratching their heads, wondering what we have in it."

Russell wasn't scratching his head, but he realized early that barring a caution or engine failure, Keene would dominate the race.

"At the end of five laps, I knew that Daniel had too much for me," said three-time FASCAR champion Russell. "Whatever he had, I wish I had five of. I just settled back and raced David (Rogers) for second."

"If we had a caution, we could have had a different race. Everybody's tires would have cooled down and it would have been a new race again."

Rogers, a former NASCAR Sunbelt champion, said the race followed an unusual pattern.

"It was unreal," said Rogers. "I'm pretty sure I could have gotten around David (Russell) except for the fact that we were both out of control in the See Auto racing, Page 2B

New methods for gallbladder surgery

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What would you recommend for an 88-year-old woman with gallstones? I'm constantly fatigued, dizzy, sick to my stomach, have chills and hot flashes. I've lost 30 pounds in less than three years, and my doctor feels I'm too old for surgery. Do you?

be continued for up to a year and patients must be monitored regularly with ultrasound examinations.

Finally, some types of gallstones may be pulverized using electromagnetic waves (lithotripsy).

In general, the method of treatment depends on the type and number of stones, their location, the seriousness of the symptoms, the patient's state of health and preferences, and other factors.

DEAR READER: Gallstones, which often prevent the flow of bile from the liver to the intestine, characteristically cause recurring abdominal pain ("colic"), gas, bloating, and digestive disturbances. On occasion, gallstones may completely block the bile duct, resulting in jaundice and liver inflammation.

In addition, the stones can irritate the lining of the gallbladder, leading to chronic indigestion and abdominal discomfort. In some instances, gallstones are "silent," meaning that they're not associated with any symptoms and are discovered, by accident, during routine X-rays.

In the past, the only effective method of treating gallstones was abdominal surgery to remove the gallbladder (and its stones). This was uncomfortable surgery requiring an extended convalescence.

Today, however, three newer methods have largely supplanted traditional gallbladder surgery.

In the first, called laparoscopic cholecystectomy, a small tube is put into the abdominal cavity through a tiny incision. Using various devices introduced through the tube, doctors can remove the gallbladder and stones. This operation is much less unpleasant than traditional surgery, and the convalescence is far less lengthy.

Gallstones can also be dissolved, using a drug called Actigall. The prescribed pills are taken three times a day. This treatment, which is not effective for all types of gallstones, must

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Last year's world bridge championships, held in Santiago, Chile, and sponsored by NEC, produced many instructive deals. The one in today's diagram was my favorite. The declarer, Wubbo de Boer from the Netherlands, found a line of play that guaranteed his contract. It wasn't complicated, yet it would be overlooked by many.

North, Bauke Muller, responded three no-trump because he judged that West wouldn't have bid three hearts with a solid suit. West led the heart king, East discarded a low diamond and declarer won with his ace. It looked natural to play a club to dummy's jack. But if East had queen-fourth -- not unlikely given West's bid -- and switched to a spade, the contract would surely fail.

That was the key question. To find out, de Boer played a club to dummy's king, returned to hand with a diamond and led his second club. If West had followed low, declarer would have finessed dummy's jack. But West discarded a spade.

Now de Boer won with dummy's ace and cashed his other three diamond tricks, closely watching West's discards. If West had retained two spades and four hearts, a heart exit would have endplayed him to lead into South's A-Q of spades at the end. When West actually kept one spade and five hearts, declarer cashed the spade ace. Here it dropped the king and de Boer had an overtrick. But if West had played a low spade, de Boer would have continued with the spade queen, establishing the jack as his ninth trick.

Simple yet effective, from a winner of the gold medal. Copyright 1994, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 3, 1994

Your feelings of self-worth could be quite strong in the year ahead, and this may produce subtle advantages for you in dealing with others. Because you'll believe in yourself, they will as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today an important endeavor in which you're involved might be more complicated than you initially anticipated. However, there is every reason to remain hopeful regarding the outcome of events. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An important objective can be achieved today, but your path to success might be littered with obstacles that you'll have to brush aside.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be open and frank today with a close friend who is always very candid when he/she talks with you. This person believes everything you say.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Joint ventures could hold both promise and problems for you today. If everything isn't managed with extreme skill, bits and pieces might come apart at the seams.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Rather than make an independent judgment today, you might yield, to peer pressure and go along with the consensus of opinion. This is not a constructive way to use your vote.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you'll be well aware of your priorities today, you could be easily sidetracked and accomplish only a portion of what you intend to do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to be unduly critical of companions today, even if they do things that displease you. Focus instead on their virtues, not their faults.

19) Be extremely tactful today with persons whose help you now need to accomplish something you cannot do unaided. Poor behavior could lose their support.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your judgment in career matters might not be up to par today, so be careful how you handle yourself in situations that have competitive elements.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Financial conditions could be a mixed bag for you today. You have good earning abilities, but you may also have strong streaks of extravagance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have the ability to size up situations quickly and accurately today. However, you must be patient and tolerant with persons with whom you're involved who lack this attribute.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to focus your efforts on your financial affairs today, because this is the area that could yield the largest rewards. Begin by searching for ways to save money.
