High School's Drug Contracts Near Ready

Herald Staff Writer

Contracts in which students will promise to abstain from the use of illegal drugs and alcohol and agree to submit to a urinalysis test if suspected of violation of the agreement, are expected to be distributed to Lake Mary High School atudents and parents this week.

The contracts will be mandatory for students wishing to participate in extracurricular activities. They will be handed out Wednesday and Thursday, apparently with the support of most people involved in extracurricular activities at the school, but with the threat of a court challenge by

Lake Mary's proposed tests are covered by an implementation procedure. There is a plan of action to follow a positive drug test, and they will be done only "for cause," not randomly.

Ex-Lake Mary Commissioner's Trial To Begin

A circuit judge Friday declined to hear an unscheduled request by a former Lake Mary city commissioner to have a stand-by counsel appointed for a grand theft trial starting Monday in which the excommissioner is acting as his own lawyer.

Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor declined to hear the request by Colin Keogh, 30, of 115 W. Lake Mary Drive, who is charged with grand theft. Keogh's trial is scheduled to begin Monday with jury selection.

Keogh, who has no legal training but has been acting in his own behalf, is charged with grand theft of $21,340 from the Lake Mary Cemetery Association, which Keogh

Shevardnadze Tells Reagan Resolution Of Standoff Possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The United States and the Soviet Union, moving back on the track to a summit meeting this year, met again Saturday in an atmosphere that may have cleared slightly with a forceful U.S. presentation of its case.

After a day of talks that included an unscheduled 45-minute meeting with President Reagan, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Friday "there is a possibility" of resolving the superpower standoff over the detention in Moscow of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff.

Shevardnadze, who gave Reagan a letter from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev dealing with arms control, met with Secretary of State George Shultz for nearly six hours in the first day of high-level negotiations expected to pave the way for a Reagan-Gorbachev summit later this year.

Little Tested AIDS Drug Gets OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A drug originally aimed at cancer has become the first effective AIDS treatment and will be offered to thousands of patients despite limited testing because the government left it could no longer withhold a medicine with such "great promise for prolonging life."

Federal health officials announced Friday that as many as 6,000 patients may be eligible to receive the drug, azidothymidine or AZT, as early as Sept. 29 under an expanded government testing program.

They said capsules may be approved for sale by prescription in drug stores in December or January, but until then AZT will be offered free of charge.

Dr. Robert Windom, assistant secretary of health, called AZT "the first therapeutic agent that seems to hold promise for some AIDS patients." but he cautioned that the drug is not a cure for acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

First Drug Test Case In Boston

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Reagan administration has chosen a plan to randomly test all Boston police department employees for drug use as its first defense in court of the legality of such testing.

State Plans To Counsel AIDS-Risk Pregnant Women

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Florida is planning to expand its testing program for AIDS and include counseling of pregnant women who have been exposed to the disease to consider abortions.

"We will let them know there are options, that continuing the pregnancy carries a risk, and that they should consider the option of terminating the pregnancy." Dr. Michael H. Wilder, acting state epidemiologist, told The Miami Herald in an interview Thursday.

Wilder said the counseling will be part of an expanded program of testing for exposure to acquired immune deficiency syndrome. By Jan. 1, he said, county health departments statewide will offer confidential testing through their maternity, family planning and sexually transmitted disease clinics.

Although it has not been proven, experts believe pregnant women appear to have an increased risk of both developing AIDS and passing it on to their children during childbirth.

But like her mother, she had never attempted to ride one on her own.

"A couple of years ago Randy encouraged me to try," Valorie said. "He asked, 'Don't you think you'd like to ride yourself?' and it got me thinking. I thought about it for awhile and decided I would like to try so took a motorcycle course at Seminole Community College.

"When I finished the course Randy took me motorcyle shopping. He said 'You'll look at a lot of motorcycles, but you will know the right one for you when you see it."

They spent many Saturdays making the rounds of the bike shops, and she sat on and felt all kinds of motorcyles. "Finally I said. "I knew it was the one for me. Fortunately it was a used

My husband had a new pride in me I hadn't seen before and that was neat," Valorie said. "For me just opening the door of learning to ride and having the opportunity to do it has made me more aware of myself. It has shown me parts of me I didn't know were there. If nothing else, it has given me confidence in myself and I praise the Lord for it. For a time I was going through a difficult time personally. I was asking myself, 'Who is Valorie and what all has God made me to be, what potential has he given me?"

It was three years ago, when Randy and Valorie first got involved with the Christian Motorcycle Association. That woman also alleges the man is the father of her preschool age child. The woman told Seminole County sheriff's investigators that the man had threatened to kill her if she didn't submit to his sexual demands or if she reported them. She said she also feared for the safety of her mother.

The last alleged sexual contact between the two reportedly occurred about two months ago. Over the six year period the woman alleges the man forced her to have sex about once a week at a home where he was the caretaker.

The inmates were protesting overcrowded cells (what else?) and other neglects. And they spoke thus for prisoners everywhere. Thirty-five states are under court orders to terminate the squeeze in their jails, and there is scarcely a lockup in the land that is completely free of

Check that. There is a prison amid the back bayous of Louisiana that comes close to being tolerable. It is the Oakdale Federal Detention Center, here where the dragontlies parade in the magnolias. The prison is brand new, squeaking clean, and it's operating comfortably at 300 prisoners below capacity.

The trouble is the Oakdale lockup does nothing to alleviate the situation in the American prison system. Because it's not meant to accommodate Ameri-

'Several Million' Illegal Aliens...

Precise figures are impossible to compile, but the federal government believes "several million" people enter the nation illegally each year. One million people are caught at the southern border, and deported immediately: but at least that many escape detection and set up housekeeping.

The government says as may as 5 million to 10 million undocumented allens are now living permanently in the country. They included Mexicans, Central Americans, Africans and Orientals.

The Bureau of Prisons reports that 4,000 illegals are presently incarcerated in federal detention centers.

That means that the government in this instance takes better care of strangers than it does its own. The Oakdale Detention Center is a model of its kind. There are no bars, no guns and no brutalities; some officials say it's quite like a resort, and It's been called the "Biltmore on the Bayous."

That may be excessive. Then again, not by a whole lot. The government spent $17 million to erect the facility, on 200 pastoral coordinated, they are positioned around a courtyard of flowers, regimentation of an ordinary system.

Indeed, the 740 prisoners more or less have the run of the place. They aren't scrutinized by a battalion of monitors. Raymond Rowe is the assistant warden at Oakdale, by way of times, two years. the Bureau of Prisons, and he says the prisoners can cat what they want, sleep when they will and spend time as they wish.

After all, Rowe says the prisoners are not really prisoners. They are classified officially as "detainces." Their only offense has been to enter the United come to our country to live." States without apparent permission, and so, as Rowe puts it, they must be confined while immigration and other authorities carry out due pro-

The judges conduct hearings and there is none of the lock-step five days a week at Oakdale. The prisoners may retain attorneys for their part. Warden Rowe says the hearings can take up to six months, and negative decisions are appealed to Washington. The whole process may run a year before completion and, some-

The ACLU is particularly disturbed about Oakdale. The group believes it was built in rural Louisiana so that the detainees would be isolated from hope. It says Oakdale is a That is to say the aliens have a deportation factory that, since its opening last spring, has sent more than 2,300 aliens back to their countries of origin.

Warden Rowe doesn't dispute eration, and Rowe insists that, compared to places like Africa and South America, the detention center is the best room and board many of the prisoners have had in their lives.

The dormitories are split-level and soft lit, no less. And the sleeping quarters have no doors. There are four television rooms, one of which is reserved for non-smokers, there are banks of telephones, which may be used at any time, and there are soda pop, candy, table tennis and billiard facilities.

There is also a gymnasium, a soccer field, a baseball diamond and basketball court. There is a library, a cantina, a chapel and a barbershop next to the cafeteria. The cafeteria, by the way, is so fastidious that cooks who do not shave must wear sanitary nets to cover their beards.

In short, Oakdale may be the finest prison in the nation today. Certainly it's a far cry from Lorton and the like. And don't forget, adds Ray Rowe, the ultimate amenity is that prisoners can leave the place anytime they want; all they have to do is nations, many of which are signed for efficiency. FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — Three hitchinkers who left the southern point of South America 15 months ago ended their journey near the top of the northern continent and said they hope they thumbed a ride into the record books.

Skliarevsky, 20, and his companions, Horacio Rua, 23, and Fernando Gil, 32, seemed as amazed at how they ended their journey as that they made it at all. It took just 67 rides, but the last two became the most memorable and were the only two needed to cross the nation's biggest state.

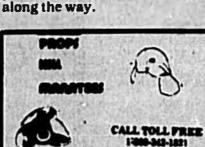

Last week, as the men shivered in British Columbia's early snow, an oil pipeline worker from Anchorage, John Weisler, gave the men a four-day ride to Anchorage in his new motorhome, their longest single hitch. Weisler said he usually never picked up hitchhikers, but felt there was something special about the three young men with huge packs thumbing a ride by the side of the road.

He put them up for two days with his family and early Thursday drove them 30 miles to reach the only road to Fairbanks. There, the men saw how desclate Alaskan roads can be when it is not tourist season. But. WASHINGTON (UPI) - The government will order the nation's airlines to install collision avoidance systems aboard their planes in a move that could make flying safer. Federal Aviation Administration chief Donald Engen said Friday.

Engen told a group of reporters the Traffic Alert and Collision Avoidance System -TCAS - would reduce the chances of in-flight collisions.

"We will require the airlines to install a TCAS II system," Engen

The system can alert the pilot of an impending collision and advise whether the plane should go up or down to avoid it. It is estimated to cost between $50,000 and $75,000 for each

Engen said he plans to issue a formal proposal next year and the airlines are expected to have the system installed within three

'It takes time," he said. "We're going to make that happen."

The FAA chief said although details still must be worked out the system would be required for larger planes such as those having 100 seats or more.

Industry sources estimate about 3,000 planes would be involved.

The shift in policy came less than three weeks after an Aeromexico jet and a small plane collided over Cerritos. Calif., killing all 67 people aboard the two planes and 15 others on the ground.

Blake Dresses Out But Stays Under 'Wraps'

Jeff Blake, a.k.a "The Franchise" around Seminole High School, was dressed out for Friday night's game with Titusville but coach Dave Mosure is still keeping the junior signal caller under wraps.

Jeff, who suffered a compound fracture of his right leg in an accident last spring, is raring to go. Unfortunately, his leg isn't. The pin was removed two weeks ago but the wait involves the settling and hardening of calcium, according to Mosure.

"Jeff can do everything he could before the accident and he's faster than he was last year." Mosure said about his future blue-chipper. "He won't play, though, until he's completely healed. We're going to be very careful with Jeff's playing time."

Blake is the type of player which doesn't come around very often. Blessed with good size, a strong arm and quick feet, the 6-0, 165-pounder would have been quite a force this year.

He still might be a force for a half year. That all depends on what the X-rays divulge next week. "I'm not going to even speculate until the doctor takes a look at it," Mosure said.

Blake said at the fall jamboree that he was hoping to get back for homecoming — the last game of the year against DeLand. In the same breath, though, the likeable junior said its "possible I might be able to play the last three." He told some friends this week that Lyman (Oct. 24) might be a possibility.

One can understand Blake's optimism. It must be unbearable to be close to 100 percent in the workouts, but unable to play because the calcification, which is the rehardening of the bone, has not run its course.

Mosure said Blake is in pretty good shape but needs to work on a couple things before he's sound. "He needs to restrengthen the quadraceps and hamstring in the right leg," Mosure said. "As those are strengthened, he needs to restrengthen the knee joint and make it more secure."

Mosure said the most remarkable thing about Blake is his attitude. "He's never negative," Mosure said. "He's an upbeat person. He's got a strong will. That attitude is very important to the healing.

"Everyone can rationalize what they want, but if he could will his leg 100 percent, he could play tomorrow. He's got a lot of determination."

Speaking of Blakes, Jeff's uncle, Roh, is steadily gaining a reputation for having a nose for the ball. Against Astronaut, Roh picked up a fumble and raced 35 yards to the Astronaut 2 to set up a TD.

Against Titusville, the Seminole safety blocked a punt and recovered another fumble.

"He's coming along real good." Linebacker coach Greg Register said about the talented junior. "For only playing football since the spring, he's doing a good job."

Opposing coaches continue to be amazed by Seminole's Earnie "Sackman" Lewis' sideline-to-sideline coverage at linebacker. Lewis, a 6-2 195-pound junior, drew raves from Astronaut's Jay Donnelly and Titusville's Mike Dickey after his performances the past two weeks.

"I want to take a look at the film to be sure," Donnelly said.
"But it seems like that No. 55 (Lewis) spent a lot of time in our backfield."

Dickey agreed. "We ran most of our sprint options to the short side of the field," he said. "We stayed away from that strong side linebacker (Lewis).

On two occasions Lewis chased down Titusville's elusive sophomore Lamar Campbell, once forcing him to unload a pass and another time forcing him out of bounds.

"I sure wouldn't want to be running away from Earnie," Mosure said. "He's got that kind of speed you can't measure on a clock. He gets that adrenaline going at linebacker he chases you down."

DeLand Stuns Rams, 13-6

victory. Grady controlled the ball for an interception and DeLand ran out the clock for a 13-6 victory over the Rams.

Cowley Warms Up Lousy, Hurls No-Hitter

Five months after shuffling off to Buffalo, Joe Cowley waitzed into the record book.

Cowley, who spent from April 15 to May 22 at Buffalo of the American Association, pitched the 178th no-hitter in major-league history Friday night when he led the Chicago White Sox to a 7-1 victory over the first-place California

"The whole world knows I was in Buffalo earlier this year," said Cowley, who walked seven, including the bases loaded in the sixth. "I've come a long way from spring training. My warmups were real lousy, but I felt good throughout the

California first baseman Wally Joyner said Cowley's control was pretty lousy

the entire game — which ironically accounted for the first no-hitter since Mike Witt's perfect game closed the 1984 season.

"If you looked up at the scoreboard, you'd thought that we'd have gotten eight or nine hits because of his walks and wildness — and that's what made him so good tonight." Joyner said. "He wasn't even close to the plate. He either walked you or you swung at bad pitches. I'm not even frustrated because it wasn't impressive. I mean it wasn't. In my eyes he got 27 outs before any of our guys got a hit."

Reggie Jackson, who participated in his ninth no-hitter in 20 years, gave Cowley his due despite the seven walks.

"It's a no-hitter," said Jackson, who lined out hard to left in the second and hit a long sacrifice fly in the sixth. "I don't know how strange it was, so give the guy credit. It doesn't matter (how many walks). No sense saying we played bad, we hit the ball

"What matters is he pitched a no-hitter and he deserves the credit. I could have had a bases-loaded triple (in the sixth), but it's a no-hitter. That's the way it'll go down in the record books.

down in the record books.

Cowley was nearly lifted from the game when he walked the first three batters of the sixth inning. After Bob Boone, Gary Pettis and Wally Joyner walked, pitching coach Dick Bosman visited Cowley and settled him down.

Brian Downing popped out to second and Jackson flied out to deep center to score Boone. Doug DeCinces popped out to second to end the inning.

Grady Theft Clinches Big Win For Hiss

LAKE MARY — The past three years, DeLand's Buildogs played Lake Mary tough only to lose to the big-play Rams all three times. Friday night, the Buildogs were decisive underdogs but still held their own against the bigger, stronger Lake Mary squad.

And this time. DeLand stopped Lake Mary's capacity for the big play.

In what coach Dave Hiss called the "biggest win since I've been at DeLand and one of the biggest in the school's history." the gutty Bulldogs pulled off a 13-6 upset of the Rams in the District 5A-4 opener for both teams before 5,501 fans at Lake Mary High School.

DeLand, usually known for starting slow and coming on like gangbusters, ran its record to 2-0 and jumped right into the district race with the win. The Dogs dropped their first three last year and then won the final seven. Lake Mary now stands at 1-1 and practically must win all of its remaining district games to repeat as champions.

After the shaking of hands after the game, Hiss went to the DeLand side of the field and scooped up a chunk of turf as a memento of his greatest coaching triumpn.

"We played them tough every year but always got beat in the fourth quarter," Hiss said. "This time we didn't give up the big plays. We stopped what beat us in the past."

Lake Mary's fortunes were the complete opposite of a week ago when they got most of the breaks in a 19-7 win over Apopka. DeLand made few mistakes and the ones they made Lake Mary did not capital-

"Everything that went our way last week didn't go our way tonight." Lake Mary-coach Harry Nelson said. "DeLand executed well and we didn't take away their strengths."

DeLand had success both on the ground and in the air. The rushing attack rolled up 159 yards with Eric Gibson picking up 62 yards on 16 carries and Raymond Green running five times for 56 yards. Quarterback David Hogue completed 7 of 9 passes for 74 yards and he also ran for a touchdown.

Lake Mary also had success on offense but could only convert one of its possessions into points. The Rams had 163 yards rushing with John Curry gaining 65, Anthony Hartsfield 51 and Dennis Barnes 46. Senior quarterback Shane Letterio completed 8 of 15 passes for 61 yards and was intercepted twice.

The Rams gobbled up a good number of their yards on their first possession. Lake Mary took the opening kickoff and deep into DeLand territory. The Rams ran 15 plays on the opening drive and took almost six minutes off the clock but the drive fizzled on two incomplete passes and DeLand took over.

DeLand then put together an impressive scoring drive as it started on the 23 with 6:47 left in the first quarter, and finally punched it into the end zone with 10:53 remaining in the Key plays in the drive included Hogue's pass to Rick O'Neil for 11 yards, a 10-yard completion from Hogue to John Schmid and Green's 14-yard run that put the Bulldogs inside the Lake Mary 20. With a third down at the eight-yard-line, Hogue faked a handoff up the middle and dashed around left end for an eight-yard touchdown. Brian Roney added the conversion for a 7-0 DeLand lead.

On the ensuing kickoff, Roney, one of the best placekickers in Central Florida, went down with an injury to his kicking leg. The injury was costly as DeLand's second-string kicker missed one extra point and a 24-yard field

Unbalanced Bucs Confuse Lyman, Grab District Win

LONGWOOD — Sometimes the best balance for a football team is unbalanced. Confused? So was the Lyman defense for one half Friday night against Daytona Beach Mainland.

And one half was long enough for Mainland to push across two touchdowns en route to a 14-0 victory in District 5A-4 prep football before 2.501 fans Friday night at Lyman High School.

Leasor, who resigned last week following a bizarre transfer situation and re-signed a day later, said he hoped the shift would confuse Lyman. "My offensive linemen are our position people." he said. "I told them I wanted them to grade out higher than ever tonight."

All received high marks for the first drive. After Johnson returned the kickoff 45 yards to the Lyman 43-yard line, the Bucs went to work off tackle.

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) - Bill O'Donnell joined a select group Friday, and Barberry Spur moved one step closer to doing

O'Donnell, guiding Barberry Spur to a straight-heat victory in the rain delayed 41st Little Brown Jug for 3-year-old pacers, became only the fourth driver in history to win the middle jewel of pacing's triple crown in consecutive years.

Barberry Spur, meanwhile, moved into position to become the first pacer since Ralph Hanover in 1983 to capture all three legs of the triple crown.

The Niatross colt also won the Cane Pace at Yonkers Raceway last month. A victory in the Messenger Stake at Roosevelt Raceway on Oct. 4 would give Barberry Spur the sweep.

O'Donnell, who captured his first Jug behind Nihilator, joined John Simpson Sr., Stanley Dancer, and Bill Haughton as drivers who have won the back-to-back LBJ's.

Haughton, who earlier this year killed after a racing accident at Yonkers, also won a

"But thanks to the great track crew, we were able to race, and thanks to Barberry Spur, I'm in the winner's circle again."

Heavy rains muddled the track Thursday, forcing officials to postpone the Jug for only the fifth time in its 41-year history. The last was in 1975.

But workmen began "peeling" the mud off the track shortly after 8 a.m. Friday, and by 1:30 p.m., when the racing program began, it was rated as last.

In fact, seven of the first eight races before the first division of the Jug were run in less than two minutes.

'The track was just as good and fast as last year," O'Donneil said. "This (Barberry Spur) is a great horse. He's come back week after week and responded each time. I'm very happy because it's always the greatest thrill to wip in Delaware.

After coasting to a 4 14-length victory in 1:53 1-5 in the second elimination heat, Barberry Spur fell behind briefly in the final.

Laughs quickly took the lead, but O'Donnell and Barberry Spur moved ahead just before the quarter poll and were in

Phils Maintain Hex On Mets

United Press International

The Philadelphia Phillies should have played the rest of the National League the same way they have played the New York Mets.

Extending their winning streak against New York to four games, the Phils beat the NL East champs 4-3 Friday night, and they did it with a sandlot

"That's the second time we've worked that against them this year," Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt said. "The last time, I think (first baseman Keith) Hernandez threw the ball over the third baseman's head."

Leading 3-1 in the ninth inn-ing, the Phils pulled a basepath trick. With Glenn Wilson on first and Schmidt on third, Schmidt broke for the plate. Wilson faked a steal of second, intentionally falling down to draw a pickoff throw from left-hander Randy Niemann. The Mets tagged out Wilson only after Schmidt acored.

"Mike broke at the right time. and Glenn should get the Academy 'Award," Phillies Manager John Felske said. "Our team is very happy to beat the Mets four in a row. We feel we can challenge them next year."

The run proved significant because the Mets rebounded for two runs in the ninth off Kevin Gross, 11-11. Danny Heep and Howard Johnson singled home Angeles trailing 7-6, pinch hitter runs before reliever Steve Larry See singled with one out Bedrosian retired Darryl Strawberry to register his 27th save. It was the first meeting lineup," Gross said. "I was tired and reaching back in the ninth, but still couldn't get it done. Schmidt's steal won the game."

In other games, Chicago topped Pittsburgh 8-2, San Francisco downed Atlanta 4-0, Los Angeles overtook Cincinnati 9-7. Houston shaded San Diego 5-4, and Montreal shaded St. Louis 3-2 in 11 innings. In the American League, it

Dan Petry's long wait is over.

"I told my wife at dinner the other day I had to get that old feeling back," Petry said. "That feeling of, 'The game's over ... I'm going to win."

Petry, who underwent elbow surgery in June and had not recorded a victory since May 28, did just that Friday night. allowing seven hits in 7 2-3 innings to help the Detroit Tigers to an 8-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

Alan Trammeli hit a two-run homer as Petry improved his record to 5-8. Eric King went 1 1-3 innings for his second save. Dennis Rasinussen, 15-6, took the loss.

Dooley Sues Virginia Tech

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) - Virginia Tech President William Lavery says a breach-of-contract suit filed against the university by football coach and athletic director Bill Dooley will not affect plans to remove Dooley from the AD's position as of Jan. 1, 1987.

"In view of the fact that it was a unanimous decision, I'd certainly believe that it is," Lavery said Friday when asked whether the decision, approved three weeks ago by Tech's board of visitors, was irrevocable.

When asked whether it was safe to assume that Tech would proceed with its plans despite the $3.5 million lawsuit filed by Dooley on Monday in Montgomery County Circuit Court, Lavery said, "That is a correct assumption."

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Mancil Davis added to his professional record this week by firing the 48th hole-in-one of his career, on Willie Nelson's private course.

"This was a good shot. The ball hit; the divot was 3 to 4 feet to the right of the flag, and (the ball) just spun left. dead into the hole," Davis said Friday.

Davis, a pro at River Place Country Club in Austin, was playing with seven members of Asleep at the Wheel, a western swing band.

'it's nice to turn 50 and have a better job waiting for you. I have to make my money fast on the senior tour, though, before Lee and Jack get out here.'

Within earshot of Arnold Palmer: "Arnie's still my hero. When I die I want to be reincarnated as him. He may have all those tractors at home, but I stole the hubcaps."

Gunning a golf cart past Palmer, a passionate advocate of walking on the senior tour: "Don't be upset, Arnie - I'm using Pennzoil.

"The best wood in most amateurs' bag is a pencil.

Ben Crenshaw wears red on weekends so the TV cameras can find him in the woods."

"On the regular tour my caddle has the castest job in the world. He only has to work two days a week. When I finally made a cut he said he already had plans for the weckend.

"I was on the dance floor but I couldn't hear the band. I asked my caddle how to play that putt and he told me just to keep the ball low."

The greens were faster than Jerry Falwell walking through Harlem." 'My name used to be O'Connor, but I was written...(This is the song that starts out "Cheer, Cheer For Old Notre Dame")...It has become the best known football tune of all time — and, actually, it was written by a priest, in 1909...One day at a game that season, Father Michael Shea decided Notre Dame should have an appropriate song...At the time, they didn't have one...After the game, Father Shea went to a plano in a nearby building, but someone was using the plano...5o, Father Shea then went to the Secred Heart Church on campus and composed the song on the organ at the church!...His brother, John Shee, then wrote the words...And thus, football's most famous fight song was written on a church organ.

Here's a hard-to-believe fact about the great Jim Brown who played in the National Football league from 1957 through 1965 and once held the record for gaining more yards rushing than anyone else in the history of pro footbail...Despite gaining all those yards, Brown NEVER missed a game because of injuries in ANY of his 9 full seasons in the NFL1...That's amazing when you consider the beating Brown took from tacklers game after game,

Glickman Pulls Out Marking Pen For Announcers

CHICAGO (UPI) - Grading has become a major element of professional football in the 1980s with coaches checking every detail and assigning a number to assess the player's performance each Sunday.

The same thing has come to pass for football announcers. thanks to NBC's decision to have veteran sportscaster Marty Glickman review, critique and assess work done each Sunday.

The assessments apply to everyone - from network heavyweights like Dick Enberg or Merlin Olson - right down to the bottom of the totem pole.

NBC also has Glickman reviewing the other sports, but it is clear football, with its high network profile and advertising dollars at stake, is a major concern for the network.

Olickman comes into the office on Monday and reviews three or four football broadcasters a week, watching parts of three or four games. He calls the broadcasters by midweek, discussing the game and specific things that were said or not said.

"I'm not really concerned so much with the mechanics of the sport for a broadcaster as I am with him painting the picture," Glickman said. "The announcer supplements the picture but has to emit the emotion of the game as much in football as anywhere."

Dealing with announcers many of whom have been in the business for decades - isn't a snap for Glickman. Egos are involved.

"Probably so, which explains maybe why this concept of review hasn't been done sooner by the networks," Glickman said.

"It depends on the individual. It pleases me when a Dick Enberg or a Charlie Jones is so eager to hear a colleague, a disinterested colleague, critique their work," he said. "Too often friends just tell them how great they are. I tell them how good they are, but I also tell them the mistakes or deletions they make. That's how they get better,"

Jones, for example, was guilty of not giving the score of a football game.

"I'll take that example because it proved a point. I told him that five or six minutes went by and he hadn't given the score of the game," Glickman said. "It's abourd, especially on a national telecast. He said he used to give the score when the yardsticks were moved, I thought it was a good idea and suggested he go back to it." Glickman had just finished auditioning two former NFL players and found a knowledge of playing the game doesn't always translate to success on the tube.

"I did the auditions with two very bright young men. One of them asked a good question, 'When do I talk?' No one had ever told him that," he said. "We set down ground rules when they do talk, It's as elementary as that. How close you get to the microphone. simple things like that."

The biggest problem Glickman has discovered is the tendency of announcers, even seasoned veterans, to talk "off picture."

"A problem that doesn't seem to go away (is) talking about what the viewer doesn't see. It's hard for a viewer to watch a picture and listen to something else," Glickman explained. "Talking off picture is a common problem. Too often, the picture and the audio do not relate." Glickman doesn't want a dry broadcast. He doesn't want the announcers to be so concerned with the mechanics they forget to inject personality.

"They may be too concerned with crossing the 't's and dotting the 'l's'," Glickman noted. "They can get involved with things that don't have a lot to do with the immediate part of the game."

The main thing, according to Olickman, is that network announcers should not lose sight that the game is the thing - talk about what is going on, explain it, analyze it but remember the action, rather than the announcer, is what people are watching. They were so involved with what they were saying, they lost sight of what they were saying." Glickman said the critiques have helped NBC's product. "I know certain individual broadcasters improved through all of this." he said.

Can Young Start Revive Bucs?

Bennett Remembers Rookie's Victory Debut Against Detroit

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) - All the signs point to a close game Sunday when the Tampa Bay Buccaneers visit the Detroit Lions.

Winless Tampa Bay has lost 19 road games in a row. Detroit is 1-1 overall but 0-1 at home after going 6-2 in the Silverdome a year ago. Bucs' tailback James Wilder can barely breathe. And Steve Young may start at quarterback.

Tampa Bay is 0-2 this season with quarterback Steve DeBerg throwing seven interceptions in the first game and two in the second. He also is nursing a sore elbow.

And Coach Leeman Bennett may not have to be pushed to remember it was Young who guided Tampa Bay to one of the 10 games the Bucs have won of the last 50 they have

Young scrambled and passed Tampa Bay to a 16-13 overtime victory over Detroit the last time the two met, on the Bucs' field. Detroit won 30-9 earlier in the Silverdome. Young completed 16-of-27 passes for 167 that he throws a soft ball that can be easily intercepted and does not have a deep arm.

DeBerg, who has a history of interceptions, has been fleeing for his life behind the so-so Tampa Bay line. Young could work rollouts, which would subject him to hits but would also give him more time to find the mark.

Bennett may have to tinker with his game plan, too, because Wilder is extremely doubtful with a bruised sternum, which is giving him breathing problems. If Wilder is out, the Bucs may use a lot of one-back offense with Ron Springs and rookie Nathan Wonsley sharing the load.

Detroit has problems of its own. Receivers get overthrown when they're open and drop balls that come to them.

Coach Darryl Rogers' club is near the bottom of the league in passing already. The coach was moved last week at halftime to bench Eric Hipple, who was 10-for-16 passing, in favor of Joe Ferguson, who had a few dropped and thus missed eight of his first nine throws. The reason for the change was production. Despite the 91 yards by Hippie's passing, the Lions had scored no

Lions' fullback James Jones is not running full speed because of a painful turf toe injury. He is going against a Bucs' defense that has allowed no runner a gain of more than 10 yards this season. Jones also has not gained more than 69 yards in a game against Tampa Bay. Additionally. Detroit's offensive line is missing its season-opening guards. Kelth Dorney and Chris Dieterich. Dieterich may play if his knee is okay but he came out after a few plays last Sunday in Detroit's loss at home to Dallas.

Detroit defensive coordinator Wayne Fontes is no stranger to Tampa Bay since he held the same position for the Bucs for nine years (1976-84).

David Logan will start his 90th consecutive game for Tampa Bay when he opens at nose tackle on defense. Wide receiver Kevin House has started 75 in a row.

Tampa Bay has not won in the Pontiac Silverdome since 1981, when it clinched the NFC Central Division title.

WEEKS Easy Pickins? Marino Zeroes In On Jet Lags

EAST RUTHERFORD. N.J. (UPI) - The New York Jets confront familiar problems in their game Sunday against the Miami Dolphins — a backfield without Freeman McNeil and an injured secondary that must contend with Dan Marino.

The game will represent the 19th McNeil has missed in his six-year Jet career. The creative running back suffered a dislocated right elbow in last week's 20-6 loss to New England and was placed on the injuredreserve list.

In games McNeil has missed over the last three campaigns the Jets are 4.9. McNell has rushed for more than 100 yards in the Jets' last four games against Miami, including 173 in New York's 23-7 triumph in October at Giants Stadium. It the Dolphins in their last nine meetings.

But the real test for the Jets. 1-1, will come in stopping Marino with a defensive backfield beset by injuries for the third straight year. The Jets will open Sunday with their third different secondary combination of the season. Dave Raffo's NFL Picks

By DAVE RAFFO/UPI Sports Withor NEW YORK (UPI) - Selections of this reek's NFL games:

Miami (minus 2) over NY Jets — Jets are without running back Freeman McNell and are banged up at cornerback - a disastrous combination against the Dolphins, who can be run against but are tough to stop in the air. Miami St. NY Jets 17.

LA Raiders (minus 4) over NY Glants — No team in the NFL would trade places with the Glants this week. The Raiders are 0-2 and playing at home for the first time this season. LA Raiders 34, NY Glants 14.

New England (minus 5) over Seattle -Both learns are running on all cylinders, but Patriots have nine days rest and home field. New England 27, Seattle 21,
Philadelphia (plus 4) over Denver —
Broncos have big enough edge in falent to win, but it will be tough. Denver is playing on road after a Monday night game, and Eagles are encouraged by last week's near-miss in Chicago.

Denver 17, Philadelphia 14, Atlanta (plus 9 1/2) over Dallas - Falcons are 20 but still get no respect. They can get some this week, just by playing Cowboys close on road. That's probably exactly what they'll do: slay close and lose. Dallas 20, Atlanta 17, San Diego (minus 2 1/2) over Washington -Don't expect everybody to defense the Chargers as successfully as the Glants did last week. Den Fouts should be ready to bust loose this week, and Redskins might not be ready after bruising victory over Raiders. San Diego 31, Washington 27. LA Rams (minus 7) over Indianapolis -Rams see chance to run away and hide in NFC West race and their defense is tough unit for Jack Trudeau to break in against. LA Rams 27, Indianapolis 13.

Vikings showed last week at Tampa Bay they can handle teams on the bottom of the NFL with wase, and the Steelers are on the boltom. Minnesota 20, Pittsburgh 10.

New Orleans (plus 9 1/2) over San Francisco

- Saints are 1-1 under Coach Jim Mora:

Hers are 0-1 with Jeff Kemp at quarterback. San Francisco has to beat the losing teams if it is to make playoffs without Joe Montana. but every game will be tough - at least until Kemp settles in. San Francisco 16, New Orleans 10. Houston (plus 3 1/2) over Kansas City - If not for furnovers last week, both Oilers and Chiefs would be 2-0. Home field should make difference for Chiefs, but only by a field goal Kansas City 20, Houston 17.

Buffalo (minus 3) over St. Louis - Bills. playing at home in game they are favored to win, should get over the top after two near-misses. Cardinals are playing more like they did last season than in 1984, which means Jim Kelly should have field day.

Detroit (minus 8) over Tampa Bay -Despite loss to Dallas, Lions are a strong home team. Buccaneers haven't come close yel and are unsettled at quarterback.

Detroit 27, Tampa Bay 16.

Green Bay (plus 10 19) over Chicago --Bears are still adjusting to Vince Tobin's defense and Mike Tomczak at quarterback. Packers have shown little so far, but they always are ready against Chicago and should keep II close. Chicago 20, Green Bay 10.

Best bet - Atlanta. Last week - B & Season record — 14-14 Best bets - 2-0

First Rank (18th) Cranks Up UCF For Valdosta

By Scott Sander Herald Sports Writer

If there is one thing that can motivate a college football team, it is when the players' efforts are recognized in a nationwide poll.

For the first time in the history of the school, the University of Central Florida has been ranked in a national poll. The Knights were ranked 18th in this week's NCAA Division II poll.

The Knights (2-0) will get a chance to prove that their ranking is no fluke as they host Valdosta State Saturday night at 8 in Orlando Stadium.

The Blazers, a 17-0 winner over Ft. Valley State in their opening game, are ranked 19th in the same poll.

Incidentally, UCF has won its last four games dating back to last season. The four consecutive victories give the Knights the longest winning streak in the state.

"The kids got really fired up when they heard of the ranking," an elated UCF coach Gene McDowell said. "I think that this ranking will motivate and inspire our players tremendously.'

McDowell said that he expects this game to be very tough. "They are a very hard-nosed football team," McDowell said. "We are going to have to play at our absolute best in order to beat them."

Since spring practice. Tony Lanham and ex-Lake Howell High standout Darin Slack have been battling it out for the starting quarterback job. Slack and Lanham both played well in UCF's opening game victory over Bethune-Cookman. But in last week's game against West Georgia, Slack stepped Torward and cemented the starting job as threw for 205 yards and three touchdowns.

Football

"I think that I knew all along that Darin was our man," McDowell said. "In the first few games Darin had to prove that he worthy of starting. He

McDowell said that Valdosta State runs out of the "I" formation, but sends a man in motion and runs out of a one back set about three-fourths of the time. "They have a really good tailback (Donnie Harrell) ," McDowell said. "Their quarterback (Mark Dace) can also throw the ball very well."

The one aspect of his team that concerns McDowell most is its penchant for fumbles. The Knights have coughed the ball eight times in their opening two games.

"That (the fumbles) is the only major problem that I can find with our team right now," McDowell said. "We have worked on holding on to the ball quite a bit in practice this week. We have gotten away with the fumbles in the first two games, but we can't afford to keep on fumbling or it will really hurty us in the long

In their first game, the Knights primarly kept the ball on the ground while in their second game UCF aired it out. McDowell said that he is looking for a better run-pass mixture.

We would like to run the football more than we did last week." McDowell said. "But if we can't we have the quarterback and the receivers that can do the job."

The series between the two teams is deadlocked at 1-1. In 1982, the Blazers edged the Knights, 13-7, in Valdosta. In 1983, the Knights hosted the Blazers and evened the series with a 20-0 victory.

"This is the best week of practice that we have had." McDowell said. "Now that we are ranked, we feel a little more pressure. But I think that it will help our players. We are all very excited about this football

Crabs' Defense Puts The Bite On Lions, 14-2

By Scott Sander Herald Sports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH - Prior to the start of Friday night's District 4A-5 prep football between Oviedo and Seabreeze, Oviedo Friday. coack Jack Blanton knew that his club would have a tough time handling the defending district champs.

"They are great on defense," Blanton said. "We are going to have our hands full."

As it turned out, Blanton made the correct assessment as might take awhile." Scabreeze turned in another superb defensive effort to shackle Oviedo. 14-2, before 3.501 fans at Memorial Stadium.

"I am very happy with the way that our defense performed." Scabreeze coach Rocky Yocum said about his stingy Sand Crab unit. "We have not had a touchdown scored against us in our first two games (the Crabs blanked Spruce Creek in their opener 13-0) and we haven't given up a touchdown in 11 quarters dating back to last scason.

Oviedo tailback Willie Gainey found out how tough. The Seabreeze defense held the Lions to 89 total yards. Meal-ticket running back Willie Gainey was held in check with 45 yards on

"They just simply beat our butts." Blanton said. "Our offensive line didn't come off the ball. If they don't start to come off the ball, we will be in trouble." Even though the Sand Crabs are a defensive-oriented club, the offense certainly didn't take a back seat. Quarterback Jeff Parker passed for 131 yards and a touchdown. Parker also rushed for 18 yards.

Tallback Hoover Owens led all rushers as he ran for 92 yards on 18 carries. Gene Gainey chipped in nicely as he jolted for 21 yards on five carries including a fiveyard touchdown jaunt.

Although the offense had its moments, it was the play of the Scabreeze linebackers that was the difference in the game. John "Jr." Morrell and John Miles simply dominated the line of scrimmage and put the Oviedo offense to rest.

"They are as fine a pair of linebackers that you will find on any team in the state," Yocum said of his dynamic duo. "They are the captains of this team and our leaders in every sense of the word."

Oviedo (1-1) was so puzzled and outplayed offensively that the Lions didn't register a first down until midway through the third quarter. "We just didn't play well," center Gordon King said. "We have got a really long way to

Oviedo will have an open date next Friday and will return to district action in its home opener against New Smyrna Beach on Oct. 3. Seabreeze will play host to Titusville Astronaut next Blanton rotated Mike McCurdy and John Petitt at the Lion quarterback position but neither could find success as they completed just 2 of 8 passes for only 20 yards. "We need to start getting better," McCurdy said.

After the two teams exchanged punts in the first quarter, Seabreeze took possession and executed a 12play, 67-yard drive entirely on the ground. The big play of the drive was a personal foul against Oviedo that enabled the Crabs to keep the drive alive.

Gene Gainey capped the drive when the Crabs lined up in the Power-I and Gainey followed fullback Morrell into the end zone from five yards out. Matt Kelly added the PAT to make the first half.

After an Oviedo drive stalled, Seabreeze got the ball back with 4:01 left in the half. A 20-yard pass from Parker to wide reclever Robbie Prince brought the ball to the Oviedo 45. Parker then threw a screen pass to halfback James Gore who weaved his way down the right sideline and slithered into the end zone for a 45-yard touchdown. Kelly added the PAT to give the Sand Crabs a 14-0 buige at the intermission.

The Lions scored their only points in the third quarter thanks to their defense. With the ball resting on its own one-yard line. Seabreeze elected to punt on third down. Oviedo Linebacker Jeff Joyce charged through the middle of the line and blocked punter Brad Twigg's kick. The ball sailed out of the end zone giving the Lions a safety and making the score 14-2 with one minute left to play in the third quarter.

The Lions had a few more chances to score late in the game, but couldn't capitalize.

'We were sluggish in the second half," Yocum said. "We played well in the first half but fell asleep offensively in the second half."

Blanton said that his team is rusty. "We have got a lot of young kids out there that haven't played that much.' Blanton said. "It is going to take us some time. I think that this off week is going to help us a lot. We will be able to get a lot of work done.'

Oviedo split end Jerrett Kinnaird took a hit late in the fourth quarter and had to be removed from the field on a stretcher. Kinnaird was taken to Halifax Hospital for tests. Oviedo assistant coaches said that Kinnaird was complaining of back pains.

Wainwright Finds Wasson As Howell Tops West Orange

Special to the Herald

WINTER GARDEN - Lake Howell's Silver Hawks used the near-perfect passing of quarterback Mark Wainwright and a bruising defense against the run to wear down the Winter Garden West Orange Warriors, 19-10. in District 5A-5 prep football before 4,301 fans at Ray Screws Warrior Field.

Wainwright passed for 100 yards and two touchdowns in leading the Hawks to their second victory in as many games. Lake Howeli travels to Sanford next Friday for its Seminole Athletic Conference opener against the Seminoles.

Wainwright, a 5-11, 160pound senior, connected with senior Bill Wasson for a pair of 10-yard scoring strikes. Wasson, a sure-handed slotback, and Wainwright worked their magic for four scoring plays last year.

Wainwright, who had a dismal · 1 of 8 performance last week, was quick to point out the strong effort he received from his of-

'Our offensive line was just great tonight," Wainwright said. "They gave me time to look for the open reciever, and opened holes for the backs."

Wasson, Lake Howell's leading receiver of a year ago, hauled in three passes for 34 yards, and the two scores. Despite the success and the familiarity of the two. Wainwright said he doesn't always look to throw to Wasson:

"I'm not picky about who I throw to," he said. "Coach Bisceglia doesn't like for me to choose just one receiver."

On the night, Wainwright was 10 for 12 with no interceptions, and once again received a lot of help from the Hawk defense. Lake Howell gave up just 153 yards of total offense, 118 of which came through the air. In two games, the Hawks' defense has allowed only nine points. West Orange's only TD Friday came on a blocked punt.

West Orange came into the game with a highly touted rushing offense, led by senior Leroy Kinard. Lake Howell, though, held the Warriors to only 35 yards on the ground.

Leading the attack tonight was a trio of seniors. Linebackers Steve Trier and Jeff Harris both turned in quality efforts along with tackle Marty Golloher. The 6-2, 211-pound Golloher felt the defense keyed the Howell win. "Our defense was unstoppable tonight," he said. "We played smart defense, not overpenetrating, or charging in with our heads down. It feels good to know we played a smart. heads-up ballgame, and came out of here with a win."

West Orange hurt itself with penalties in key situations. Orange coach Mark Hodge said after the game he felt that a few officials' decisions affected the

"It's a shame you have to decide a good this good by penalties," Hodge said.

After Lake Howell had opened the scoring with an eight-play. 37-yard drive for a TD, Kinard took the ensuing kickoff, and raced 89 yards for an apparent score. A clipping penalty, how-ever, nullified the return and brought the ball back to the Orange 49-yard line. The Warriors did mount a drive, but when kicker Paul Moore missed on a 30-yard field goal attempt, they came out of the quarter trailing, 7-0.

Penalties also cost the Orange and Blue another good opportunity when, with just 38 seconds remaining in the half. Linebacker Pete Rubin intercepted Wainwright and returned the ball all the way to the Lake Howell 7. Deondri Člark, a 8-4 241-pound defensive tackle. was tagged with a roughing the passer infraction, though, returning the ball to the Hawks. Lake Howell was able to run out the half, and went into the locker room leading, 10-0.

Lake Howell took the second-half kick and moved the ball to the West Orange 14 before Jeff Philips added his second yarder. Philips, who nailed a 24-yard attempt in the second quarter, is now 4 for 4 on the

With just a little over a minute remaining in the third stanza. Howell was forced to punt deep in the own territory. Erik Bird, filling in for an injured Steve Sheppard, got off a fairly good kick under heavy pressure, but was forced to punt a second time when the Hawks were flagged with a 15-yard clipping penalty. On the second attempt. Bird was not as fortunate as Carl Latimer crashed through the middle to snuff the kick, and Pete Rubin scooped up the ball and headed into the end zone from 12 yards away for six points. Moore's PAT closed the gap to 13-10.

Wainwright, nevertheless, led Howell to another score after the Orange TD, and in doing so used up more than six minutes off the clock to stifle any Warrior comeback hopes.

Bisceglia, whose team opened the season with three consecutive wins a year ago, said he was happy with the way his offensive line controlled the Warriors' defense. "Our kids played a great game, against a very good West Orange team." he said. "Our offense was able to control the line of scrimmage, and the defense was just great again.".

Lake Brantley, 27-0 By Mark Blythe Herald Sports Writer ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The combination of a stingy defense and a potent offense enabled third-ranked (5A) Orlando Evans to rout Lake

Brantley, 27-0, in District 5A-5 prep football before 4,001 fans Friday night at Tom Storey Field. The Patriots fell to 0-2 for the season while Evans improved to 2-0. Lake Brantley hosts Lyman in a Seminole Athletic Conference game

Friday. Evans travels to Boone. "We looked like a good football team tonight" Evans coach Bill Gierke said."If we continue to play together we can be even better. Shane Booth, Tony White and Prentis Wright came through big for us tonight. They're good athletes

The third-ranked Trojans should look even better to Gierke on Tuesday. Bradenton Manatee. the state's top-ranked team, lost to Miami Killian. 13-7, and Brandon, the second-ranked squad, dropped a 21-12 decision to Plant City. With the natural progression, Gierke's Trojans should sit on top of the state when the Florida Sports Writers Association rankings are released Evans ran up 425 yards of total offense without turning the ball over but penalties hurt the Trojans greatly as two scores were called back as well as three big gainers. White displayed his ability at quarterback, running for 58 yards and a score while connecting on 5 of 12 throws for 107 yards. Booth had five catches for 136 yards to complement White's talent. None guard Wright was everywhere defensively, continually shutting down

Lake Brantley's efforts. Wright finished the night with seven tackles and two assists. The Patriots could only crack the Evans' 15-yard line twice and came up empty both times, once thwarted by an interception and another time by a missed field goal.

Despite the final outcome, the Patriots played well in the first half, giving Evans all it wanted.

and work hard."

The Trojans could muster just a 6-0 halftime lead and one Evans' 10-minute excursion came away with nothing. The Patriots' offense, though, could get nothing moving successfully. Brantley coach Fred Almon said Patriot quarterback Greg Ebbert, starting in place of injured Jason Lanham, was a bright spot for the Brantley offense. Ebbert completed 5 of 14 passes for 106 yards and threw one interception. "He played great for his first time starting," Almon said. "He was

Evans wasted no time scoring its first touchdown as quarterback White kept the ball on an option, switched directions and went 56 yards for the score. Trojan kicker was moved out of range on two illegal motion calls Evans took a 6-0

The Patriots came close to scoring late in the second quarter after Ebbert hooked up with Nigel Hinds on a 43-yard pass play to the Evans 12. Johnnie Griffin ran twice up the middle to get to the Evans 8 and Clegg Ivey took it to the Evans 5 on the next play. Kicker Ryan Rulan, however, just missed a 23-yard field goal on the following play to end the Patriot drive.

Although the game was just 6-0 at halftime, Evans exploded in the third quarter with 21 points to put the game out of reach. The Trojans took the ball on the opening drive and marched 73 yards for the score. Wright did double duty for the Trojans as he ran the first two plays of the drive, picking up 14 yards. Evans had a 39-yard completion called back, followed by a personal foul that appeared to have stalled the White, nevertheless, found top receiver Shane Booth for a 32-yard pickup, and running back James Chappel did the rest of the work capping it off with a two-yard touchdown run. Evans took its second possesion in the second half and marched in behind the second-team quarterback Rudy Cole. Cole quickly went to the air, hitting Richie Fort for a 58 yard gainer to the Brantley 2. Alfred Simpson then put on the finishing touch with a one-yard scoring run with 3:21 to play in the third period.

then scooped the ball up and went 33 yards into the end zone untouched. "We can play much better," Almon said."The kids can turn things around and know they can play better."

Ten seconds later came the backbreaker for the Patriots as Griffin took the first play up the middle from the Brantley 25 and was tackled at the 32 where he fumbled. Linebacker Steve Ellis

In Search Of Help For TYKE

Teaching Young Kids Effectively is what mothers do every day, 365 days a year, morning, noon and night. By the time a mother has completed her first ten years of "on the job training," she has a treasure chest of knowledge in parenting skills. Most mothers are unaware of the rare commodity they have developed as they concentrate on moving on to their child's next phase. The TYKE Program is looking for these mothers to assist young, first-time mothers who desperately need the sage wisdom in appropriate parenting skills.

TYKE stands for Teaching Young Kids Effectively and is totally manned by volunteers who give of their time and talentsto help impart the knowledge they have acquired over the years in parenting skills. Won't you consider giving of yourself and some time. Please call Betsy Summers at 831-2411 today. Training is provided all volunteers beforehand.

Tiny Minority Learns To Overcome Oddity And Enjoy Life In A Right-Handed World

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

One tiny minority throughout the ages has overcome oddity and learned. as left-handers, to live in a right-handed world.

Some have even been forced by parents or educators to go against their instincts and consciously transfer dominance from their left hand to the right.

Left-handers are quick to say they aren't odd at all. They're just a little different. About the only time you'll notice the difference is when a lefty is writing and has his or her hand twisted back while pushing instead of pulling the pen along.

You you might find yourself bumping elbows with a lefty at the dinner table, if they haven't been able to get a corner seat. That they say is their biggest problem. Other than that they try to blend in.

Even in language, lefties have been singled out for abuse, with the left being linked to the bad, while, right is, well, always right.

The Latin word for left is sinister, while right means correct. The French have another word for left, gauche, meaning awkward, from which we get the word gawky. In English left is derrived from a word meaning weak or worthless, while right means straight or just.

But perhaps lefties got the last laugh when eventually scientists determined that in most cases right-handed people function primarily using the left, or so-called sinister side of the brain. While, as lefty Matt Stewart of Lake Mary said, lefties are the ones who are really in their right minds.

For the 11 percent or so of the population who, through some quirk of fate, were born with right-brain dominance, with the major outward sign of that being left-handedness, one thing has to be said, they're adapt-

Until recent years, when items began being produced to accommodate southpaws, even if they hadn't been forced into right-handedness. lefties had to struggle to use right-handed gear.

Even with left-handed items on the market. Richard Keogh, who along with his left-handed wife. Ettle Jane, and his left-handed mother-in-law, Lena Gleason, runs a Lake Mary shop that caters to the lefties, said it's not usually the lefties who buy the items.

The left-handed pens, can openers, knives, keyrings, cups, spiral notebooks, scissors and other common-place items are usually first bought as a joke gift from a righty to a lefty.

But once lefties get their left hands on these devices. better," Mrs. Glesson said. "Don't say there's any of these items that a left-handed person can't live without. That's threatening us," she said. "I'm over 80 and I've lived many years without a lot of things. I like it better since we have left-handed things. I like the pen the best.

The pen has a tip slanted to accommodate the push instead of pull writing action of a lefty. It also has smudge proof ink that keeps the writing from smearing as the lefty with backhanded writing habits drage his or her hand across the writing.

And Mrs. Keogh even has a technique that camouflages the backhanded style of left-handed writing. If you turn the lower right corner of the paper toward your "bellybutton," she said, the paper will be slanted, while your hand will remain straight. It's a tip she, as a teacher at Lake Mary Elementary, passes along to left-handed pupils.

Mrs. Gleason said she has never had any problems being a lefty in a right-handed world. "I've never thought of people thinking of it negatively, but maybe they do," she said. "I think life is what you make it.'

For about 60 years Mrs. Gleason and her husband ran a general store on the site of today's left-hander's shop on Country Club Road. "I can't think of anything way out yonder that ever happened because I was left-handed. It was a busy time. It was a good time. As far as being lest-handed. I could pump those gas pumps and wait on the customers just as good. I can't think of anything I could have done any different."

Although Mrs. Gleason is left-handed she said she's never offered her left hand in a handshake. "I may be left-handed," she said, "but I do know right from wrong."

No one ever tried to change Mrs. Gleason from a southpaw into a righthander. She thought it was okay for her daughter, Mrs. Keogh, to be a lefty, too. But Mrs. Keogh said when she started to school her teacher tried to force her into using her right hand.

It was taken to extreme and in first and second grade Mrs. Keogh's left hand was tied behind her back. She didn't learn to read. She memorized and recited her lessons until third grade when she had a more understanding teacher, she said.

Matt Stewart, a Seminole County sheriff's lieutenant. said he, too, ran into pro-

Parenting Matters

Introduce Child To Quality Music, Art Early

Introducing children to fine art and music at a tender age gives them the advantage and opportunity to develop a desire to savor the genuine and truly beautiful. The earlier the exposure occurs, the more likely that appreciation will become a part of the child. As Dr. Montessori would remind us, "The things a child sees are not just remembered, they form a part of

Adults and children learn in profoundly different methods. Young children gain knowledge effortlessly and with extraordinary enthusiasm. To illustrate, consider how learning a foreign language differs. Almost unconsciously, a 2-year-old child absorbs any language heard as he goes about his everyday play. In contrast, compare an adult's tedious attempt to acquire accents, memorization and vocabulary, and we grasp the immense dissimilarity in how enlightenment transpires.

Art responsiveness cannot be specifically taught or suddenly obtained. Rather, it evolves subtly as a result of frequent exposure. Lovely prints of paintings hung throughout the home at child's eye level will become as common as crayons and coloring books. Appropriate prints or postcards could be enclosed in zip-lock bags for showing to infants. The bags could be sewn or tied together to form books for pre-schoolers. They are just as fascinated by the gorgeous blue-green garden scenes as they are with the beloved picture books usually shown.

The Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra recently experimented with 2,500 pre-schoolers by introducing classical music to their day care curriculum. "My First Concert" is the first in a group titled the "Tiny Tot Series." The concert was exceedingly effective in sparking the children's interest in discriminating music. Comenius, a 17th century educational reformer. would have lauded their efforts as he believed. "a child must be opened up for it in the first years of his life when his industriousness is still burning. his mind is malleable and his memory still

The impression we impart to children regarding music will last for a lifetime. They need to know that there are musical instruments besides the electric guiter and drums, and that there is music other than rock. They deserve to know that Beethoven existed and that he wrote some of the world's most elegant music. When children are exposed to such music they are influenced as the following anecdote depicts: recently, a parent whose child attends a center with which I am associated, chanted a tune in order to resolve what her toddler was humming at home. As it turned out, Joy was enjoying one of Beethoven's symphonies heard during daily naptime!

It is significant to a child's appreciation of beauty that his home and school environment consists of quality art and music, it is not necessary for parents and teachers to be connoisseurs of these arts in order to provide for their communication. For starters, a few prints and tapes are all that are needed. Bringing exemplary art and music into the milieu from a child's first few weeks of life will expand his capacities for happiness and self-expression.

Florida Deputy Insurance Commissioner Candice Crawford will share her insight as a state regulator on the thorny liability insurance crisis and tort reform when she addresses the monthly meeting of the Longwood/Winter Springs Area Chamber of Commerce on Monday, Sept. 22.

Earlier this year, the Florida Legislature passed the "Tort Reform Act of 1986," a comprehensive act covering both the insurance and tort systems of our state. As a result, massive statutory changes such as caps on punitive damages, a redefinition of joint and several liability, and revisions of insurance provisions have had some effect on nearly every business person and citizen Chamber President Darrell Carte, vice president of the Florida National Bank located in Winter Springs, expects Ms. Crawford's presentation will bring above average turnout at this month's meeting. "In her role as a regulator, Ms. Crawford has surely spent a great deal of time and energy researching and discussing the effects of the liability insurance situation and tort reform," she said. "I'm personally looking forward to drawing on her pool of knowl-edge to get the answers I've been unable to get elsewhere."

The luncheon will be held on Monday. Sept. 22, beginning at 11:45 a.m. at the Quality Inn North on State Road 434, in Longwood. Cost for the luncheon is $5 and

First Birthday Party At 50 Calls For Festivity

About 100 guests gathered at the Sanford Woman's Club on Sept. 12 to help Nell Arp observe her 50th birthday. The big celebration was unique since Nell is now at the half-century mark and she claims this is the first birthday party she has ever had.

Maybe it was well worth waiting for with all the camaraderie in Nell's honor being spearheaded by her husband, Boyd. Helping with the decoratinterest any and all articles I can find about abused wives and children. I've read literally hundreds of them, and they all have one thing in common, a total disregard for the other party involved - namely, the abuser. Men who physically abuse their families are in dire need of help and support.

Men Who Abuse Families In Dire Need Of Support

The abused wife and kids have shelters, financial support, counseling, support groups and sympathy. What does the abuserhave? Nothing but public scorn. He is made to feel ashamed. hated and less than human. He is locked up and kept away from his family. How do I know how an abuser feels? I am one. For three years I beat on my wife, but never without provocation. I never enjoyed hitting her, but I couldn't help myself. Afterward, I felt sick to my stomach.

I need as much help as my wife, but there is no help for me. We are now separated and a divorce is pending. I love her and them because of a few violent attacks on them. I am begging you for your help, Abby. I can't afford professional help, but I know I need it real bad.

DEAR HURTING: The person who admits that he needs professional help has taken a giant step in the right direction. You're wrong to say that you can't afford it - you can't afford available for both the abused and the abuser in some shelters for battered women. If it's not offered where you live, contact your local mental health facility. Counseling is available for everyone, and it's as near as your telephone book — at a price you can afford.

DEAR ABBY: First, let me say that I love my daughter-in-law as would my own daughter. Now the problem: Some years ago, my son and his wife were given a lovely sterling silver heirloom tea service by a family member. It was complete with coffeepot, teapot, cream pitcher, sugar bowl, tray, etc. Over the years, it has become tarnished. I doubt if it has never been polished. It is every time I go to their home and see that lovely set so badly tarnished.

I do not want to tell my son privately to tell his wife to polish it. She is a good homemaker, and I want to keep it that way: however, this oversight bothers

Last year I brought a jar of silver polish to her saying I had extra jars, but she didn't get the

Stewart also had trouble learning to read, he said. because as a lefty his natural tendency was to want to read from right to left instead of left to right. He had touble concentrating and wanted to skip words and jump lines.

Today Stewart dosen't enjoy reading and he said if lefties ruled we'd probably all be reading from right to left. But as things are, if lefties had a language of their own, he said, "That would isolate us even more." Lefties don't want to call attention to themselves in this right-handed world.

He first realized, he said, that about him when as a small child he would try to eat with his left finally realized it was a lost cause," Stewart said.

According to Mary Dunn. founder of Longwood's PACE School for children with learning disabilities, Stewart, 36, was in school at the time educators seemed to be most determined to make lefties into righties.

"Probably 25 to 30 years ago they were doing that," said Mrs. Dunn, who has been an educator 37 years. "That's the worst thing you can possibly do. I hope and pray no one is doing that anymore."

Stewart said he hasn't been issued a gun with left-handed grips. That means he has no special space for his thumb when shooting with his strong hand.

Since he wears his gun on the out in the open, and I cringe left it is against the car door when he is on patrol and gets caught in the scatbelt, which is geared to the convenience of a right-hander.

Stewart, who has been a sheriff's deputy 15 years, said he was in trouble in the early days when he was issued a righthanded holster and when he had to cross-draw. He now has a left-handed holster and deputies no longer cross-draw. He really had to practice to become skilled in shooting and drawing a pistol. Now, he said, "I could snap it out of there. "He'll say, 'There's the quirk,' just to kid me. There's no quirk in my mind. The only quirk is in that man's mind.

"It's a right-handed world. You get used to it." Stewart said. "I'm used to it now."

Good Marriages

Some years ago a young woman, struggling with her marriage and the demands of family life, asked me. "Do you really think there are any good marriages and healthy families today?

After more than three decades counseling people with marriage and family problems—and being married 30 years—I have some observations if not conclusions. If you mean by GOOD MARRIAGES and FAMILIES that there

If you mean families in which there are no misgivings (at times) about having married each other, about having had children, or wanting to run from it all; no, I know of none are no cross words, disagreements, and verbal fights; no. I don't

If you mean families in which the mates and children have never wanted to change each other, make each other over, and felt at times like hurting one another; no. I know of no good marriages and families.

But if you mean by GOOD FAMILIES that there are creative tensions, heartaches that bring them closer, disagreements that are realistically dealt with; yes, I know of many.

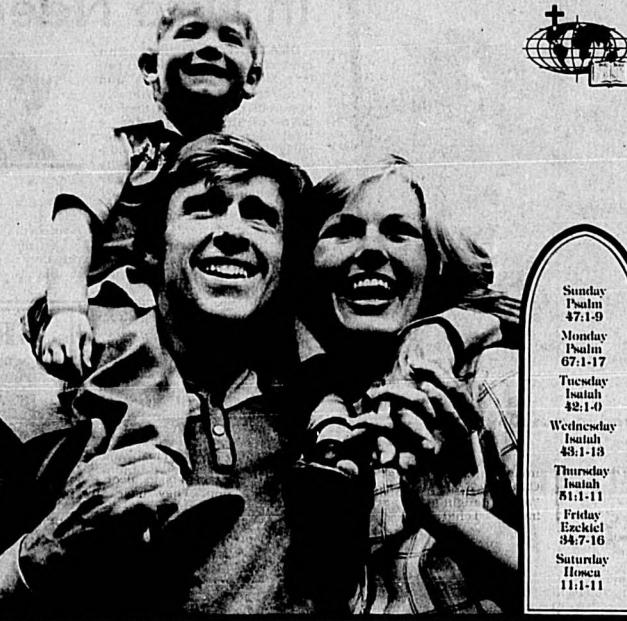

If you mean by GOOD FAMILIES those who are pulling together in the same direction without losing individuality, and willing to allow each other to develop their own special gifts even though risks are involved; yes, I know of many.

Pornography Plague

It is A Public Safety Issue As Well As Religious Issue

When the FBI assigned Bill Kelly to obscenity cases in 1962 he didn't have much to do. It wasn't long, however, before "the floodgates broke" and pornography washed over the country with increasing momentum and devastating impact.

Even before the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography released its condemning report, the $9-billion-a-year pornography industry had been coming under increasing condemnation by community leaders and other concerned citizens everywhere. Kelly is one of them.

Explicit magazines then began to proliferate in the late sixtles, he says, and "the floodgates broke in January of 1972 when streets." From there, h: says, things went from bad to worse until today, particularly with the advent of home video recorders and cassettes, pornography has become a literal plague.

'The media made that movie a financial success for the Mafia," Kelly said, referring to the extensive publicity it received. And, according to the Attorney General's Commission report, organized crime is still deeply involved in the industry.

Some call pornography a "victimless crime" but Fordham University Dean Arthur Taylor, a former president of CBS, disagrees. He says there are, indeed, victims, especially women and children, but he thinks an informed and aroused citizenry can successful combat the problem.

"Look at the case against pornography," Taylor says. "The case is that individuals profit by hurting women and children. My goodness, if you can't win that case, you can't win any case."

Echoing Taylor's feelings about the socalled "victimless crime" is Samuel Currin, a U.S. Attorney in North Carolina.

"Society generally is victimized by obscenity." Currin says. "Life is degraded. Human sexuality is degraded. And this leads to more incidents of sexual assaults, rape, child abuse and the like. Families are broken. Children are harmed.'

Opponents of pornography say it has led society to become promiscuous and has led to sexually transmitted diseases of epidemic proportions. But its contribution to the disintegration of family stability seems to be the major concern of religious leaders such as Cardinal John Krol, the Catholic archbishop of Philadelphia.

"Pornography is shaming the national image and corroding family life," says Cardinal Krol. Men, women and children 'are all caught in the advancing tide of rape. incest and chid abuse."

Agreeing that the family is the institution that suffers most directly from the incredible spread of foul materials is the Rev. Paul J. Murphy, a Catholic priest and president of Morality in Media.

"The family's integrity, its wholesomeness, its ability to protect and to train and to nurture children into responsible maturity' is hindered by "the incursion of incredible poisons of thought and emotion which the pornography industry is constantly trying to bring about," he says.

Elder David B. Haight, a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, laments the abuse of new technologies in disseminating obscenity.

"New technologies that can bless our lives in so many positive ways are also being used to spread pornographic corruption," he

"Video recorders now can bring to homes great classics of music, history, art and drama," Elder Haight says, "but they also bring into some of these same homes lurid portrayals of debauchery that contaminate those who view them and extend their the motion picture Deep Throat hit the corrupting influence to our communities and society."

> It is estimated that pornographic videocassettes are now being rented or sold in more than 22,000 stores throughout the U.S., Haight said.

> Police reports indicate that some 80 percent of those who molest young boys and girls admit to modeling their attacks on pornography they have viewed.

> Former FBI man Kelly cites such instances as two young boys sexually abusing and ultimately killing an 8-month-old baby because, as they explained to authorities. "We saw it" in a magazine they found in their mother's pornography collection.

> The Rev. Jerry Kirk, a Presbyterian minister in Ohio and president of the National Coalition Against Pornography. tells of countless case histories, including one where a 4-year-old girl and several other children were raped at a summer camp after being shown pornographic movies.

> The University of Utah's Victor B. Cline, who has treated hundreds of men afflicted with what he calls "pornography addiction," tells of a situation where two boys, ages 11 and 12, found their parents' video cassettes. They played the material over and over and then went out and sexually abused younger children in the neighborhood, copying the acts depicted in the videos.

> When parents have pornography in the home, Dr. Cline says, "the kids always find it. Then they begin to use this as a model of sexual activity.

Dr. Cline cites four stages of pornographic corruption of the individual, beginning with addiction.

"When they get into it, they really get addicted to it and they go back to it again and again to get their sexual highs. I find it analogous to alcohol or hard drugs addichey have this very, very strong, powerful need for it.

"The second thing that happens is escalation," Dr. Cline says. "After a while they have to have more perverse, meaner kinds of material to get their turn-ons."

Then there is the desensitization stage. where what was at first inappropriate, immoral and improper, after a while becomes acceptable."

The final stage is "acting out," he says. 'This is when one begins to act out some of the fantasies seen in the film or in the magazine.

"When that happens it creates all kinds of disastrous problems in relationships with wives or girlfriends, with families or whoever they're with."

All pornography is not of the hard-core variety. Some is more subtle. Many R-rated movies and even "soaps." some "sitcoms" and other commercial television programs have had an impact.

'The growing presence of obscenity." Elder Haight said, "has been aided by the lowering of media standards for advertising. by relaxed movie ratings, by television soap operas and situation comedies that use their powerful voices to justify, glamorize and encourage sexual relations outside of mar-

Music videos and even rock music lyrics are also contributing to the pornographic malady afflicting the country.

'Tipper" Gore, the wife of U.S. Sen. Albert Gore Jr., of Tennessee, is among those leading out in the crusade against the more gross forms of rock music which promote, on MTV and records, promiscuity and all kinds of deviant sexual activity.

Mrs. Gore and others who have studied the problem say there is the potential for fans of the more inappropriate rock music to adapt the values heard on the recordings and seen and heard in the videos.

Some say pornography is strictly a religious or moral issue, but Dr. Kirk contends that "for everybody it has become a public safety issue and I think that has to be faced."

The thread running from pornography to violence against women and children to broken families and to AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases pretty well shoots down the religious-issue-only argu-

Mormons Produce Programs On Porn

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has produced half-hour radio and television documentaries on the plague of pornography and plans to distribute them widely as free public affairs programs.

"We have produced these programs because of the Church's longstanding concern about the growing deluge of pornographic material pouring across the world." said Dr. Richard P. Lindsay, managing director of public communications and special affairs.

The programs are part of a radio and television series titled "Times and Seasons," dealing with topics of public

The documentaries feature comments on the pornography issue from a variety of experts, including a clinical psychologist, a former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, a U.S. attorney and clergy of various religious denominations. They will be distributed to commercial television stations, cable tv systems and radio stations throughout the country.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) -Southern Baptist officials said officials of Southland Corp. are losing the goodwill they obtained by taking adult magazines out of 7-Eleven stores by supporting two state lottery campaigns.

"Southland was willing to take the bows and look socially responsible when they pulled the adult magazines, but now they've turned around and are getting behind lotteries." Larry Braidfoot, general counsel for the Christian Life Commission, sald Monday. Southland has channeled about $140,000 into pro-lottery efforts in Florida and Texas and sells lottery tickets in 17 of the 23 states that have stateoperated lotteries, according to officials of the Southern Baptist

Swearing Not Even Good For Shock Value

The Supreme Court found the wrong person guilty.

The high court this summer upheld the school suspension meted out to Matthew Fraser, a student in Washington state who used vulgar language while speaking before a high-school assembly in 1983.

Matthew got a bum rap.

He had undoubtedly seen said - was used by adults and teenagers alike. These were movies his parents may have gone to. If not his parents, then other parents.

Nobody seemed to object.

He may even have had the opportunity to see Eddie Murphy, the foulest mouth in the entertainment world, draw riotous laughter from adults and teenagers in his pornographic stand-up comic routines.

All around him people adults and teens, men and women - were using foul lanfront of young people, young people in front of adults, men in front of women (and vice versa). parents in front of children (and vice versal, teachers in front of students (and vice versa).

movies where vulgar language dirty books and dirty magazines. - worse than anything he had but in best-sellers by noted authors and magazines such as Esquire.

> It would have been unusual if Matthew, having grown up in an atmosphere where such talk is common, hadn't appropriated some of this language and used it himself. So what was the big deal about using it in a school assembly in front of his peers? All of them had heard such language and most of them used it themselves. To say nothing of the teachers.

For the Supreme Court to take guage. Adults were using it in it out on the kid who wasn't any different from the majority was to give a mixed and unclear message on this matter of profanity. Is it all right or isn't it?

If sexual innuendo and obscenity don't violate commu-He had seen such language in nity standards - and they don't books and magazines - not seem to these days - why get uptight about it in Matthew's case?

The court should have found itself guilty for letting free speech get as out of hand as It has. In Los Angeles, dirty-word graffiti is such a problem that the city council is proposing to slap a 10-cent tax on every can of spray paint sold. The money would go into a fund for cleaning up the obscene scrawls of the free-lance painters.

The demographics of swearing have changed markedly in the last 50 years. It doesn't seem to me that men swear any more today than they used to. What is relatively new is that men swear freely now in front of women and women swear more.

And adults are less careful about swearing in front of children - even in home and in school. The thing wrong with adults swearing in front of children is not that they will teach the youngsters words they didn't know before, but that the young people will come to think there is nothing wrong with using those words.

The movies offer the worst examples to our young people. When a child today sees on cable TV a highly acclaimed movie like "All the President's Men" in which all the good guys use gutter language, what is he to think except that such language Is acceptable?

Michael Novak, a respected social commentator, has observed how "men of education and class seem to have a fascination for language of the ghetto." Those people may be right who say they see "nothing awfully wrong" with swearing. But can't the decline of standards and the virtual disappearance of taste in our society be traced to this habit of ours to accept anything so long as there is "nothing awfully wrong" with-

The fact that there is nothing awfully wrong with something doesn't mean it is elevating and until we are more concerned than we are with elevating our speech and manners, our civilization will continue to decline.

Man's greatest need, said author Harry Gaze, is a "thoroughly vital, life-giving vocabulary." He felt that wholesome words impress the cells of the body with vibrant power. They add something to a man's being and stature. Isn't that, after all, the reason swearing stands condemned that it "adds nothing," not even emphasis or shock value, any longer?

Combating Drugs

Sanford Mayor Chairs New Anti-Drug Abuse Group

By Karen Talley Herald Staff Writer

While law enforcement agencies have developed strategies to combat the criminal elements of drug abuse. measures to address its effects on users should include actions on the part of Seminole County's public officials, according to Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith.

Mobilization of 'the county's elected representatives, to combat drug abuse through education and carry this information to their communities, will be provided at a Tuesday night seminar sponsored by the professional counselors of the Seminole Chemical Awareness Network (SCAN) and the group's chairman, Mayor Smith.

Mayor Smith views the public officials seminar as providing an avenue for enhanced drug abuse prevention efforts throughout the county. "It will be a necessary adjunct to law enforcement efforts, she said.

Tuesday night's seminar, at the Sanford Civic Center, "will be the first step in hopefully continued efforts on the part of local governments to combat the effect drug abuse is having on individuals in their communities," she said. "I want us all to walk out of there with a definite plan of action. And I hope the plan will include the intentions of each city to have a municipal drug resource team."

The team would act in its respective community to offer citizen seminars, and its members would be a combination of governmental representatives and concerned private citizens, she said.

Sanford already has such a task force, Sanford Citizens Against Drugs (SCAD), which Mayor Smith helped found last summer. The proliferation of drug abuse, especially the use of crack cocaine, prompted formation of this grassroots group. Its members include city police, parks and recreation department staffers and congregants of the Grace Apostolic Church. Consideration of employee testing. however, "is definitely not our priority right now," Mayor Smith said. "I think commissioners agree education and awareness is what we're concentrating on."

Indicitative of this tact is Tuesday's SCAN seminar, which has received endorsements from Sanford city commissioners as well as all Seminole County's mayors, she said. The seminar will be attended by Seminole government commissioners and their police, fire and parks and recreation department heads.

Seminole County School Board officials will also attend and the county commission will be sending a representative because it has a regular meeting that night.

SCAN's core membership consists of drug abuse counsellors from both the public and private sectors.

The mayor's political clout as well as her involvement with drug abuse prevention in Sanford propmted SCAN's request that she serve as chairman, said member Larry Visser, director of the Grove Counselling Center.

The request come last month and was accepted after a meeting between the mayor and SCAN representatives.

'They not only know the problems, but also the best ways to deal with them, and their efforts focus on all manners of substance abuse," Mayor Smith said. "They have my full support."

my language? Do sit down and have a glass of bubbly. Oh, what must you think of your little cuddlykins?"

I told Lillian I was surprised to see her grappling with a foreign language.

"One must do what one must do," she said, raising a limp hand rather dramatically to her forehead. "People of our sort are just going to have make adjustments."

I was still confused.

"Don't you see, lambiepoo? My husband Throckmorton says the new tax bill is going to hit us pretty hard. We're going to have to take in boarders to make ends meet.

Her hand, now even limper, returned to her

I told Lillian I could understand her need for more money, but still didn't understand the language lesson.

'Throckie says our best bet will be renting to foreigners. Actually, darling, I'm getting pretty excited about it. Maybe we'll ge a count or something! Imagine! I wonder how you say 'the rent is due' to a count?"

I asked Lillian if she and Throckmorton were planning to start a bed and breakfast for tourists.

'Oh, heavens no!" she exclaimed, turning pale at the thought. "Tourists would be positively the wrong sort. Most of them are so, so ... common. You know how it is with these dreadfully low air fares. It's getting so simply anyone can affort to travel. Oh, nol Tourists would be positively out of the question!

"Throckie and I plan to take in, what do you call them, entrepreneurs, you know, capitalists that kind of thing.

"Of course, your little pudding had to object at first. You know how tiresome that sort of person can be. People who haven't grown into money seem ever so preoccupied with making it. But Throckie says they'll have lots of it. And I suppose if one has really a lot of money, even if it is rather new..."

I told Lillian I was still confused. Why were foreign capitalists going to come knocking?

"Well, that's exactly the question your little sweetiekins asked Throckmorton. He said it's because the new tax bill will make us a 'tax heaven' or something."

Tax haven?

"Whatever. We're going to have the lowest tax rates of practically anywhere. Throckie says the rate here will be less than half the top rate in France, Italy, Japan — all those foreign places.

"I suppose you might find a lower rate in one of those cute little countries where they make bananas, but those places are just too awfully erratic, don't you think? Well, anyway, I do. Throckie thinks foreign money is going to come pouring in, along with foreign money-makers. And we want to be ready.

"We thought we'd rent out the west wing. It only has 16 rooms, but I think it'll do for a small family. And we hardly ever use it. I don't think I've been in the solarium in years. Any way, I think when you live in a tax haven like we do you have a responsibility to provide shelter for those seeking shelter, if you get my drift."

I asked Lillian if having all these foreigners come here to make money will be good for the country.

"Are you kidding? Of course. It'll increase investment, increase employment, and increase incomes. Look at it this way, dearest. Would it be good for us if everyone picked up and went somewhere else to make money?"

"I've never seen anything," he begins again. "A lot of it's just tourist promotion. You'll see people rigging up truck tires in the water and taking pictures of them. The next thing you know, you're reading in the newspapers about a new Ogopogo sighting."

Legend holds that a kindly old Indian once lived by the lake but was killed by an evil wanderer. As punishment, the Gods turned the killer into a giant lake serpent so he would spend eternity at the scene of his crime.

Sightings of "the remorseful one" date back centuries. Indians who used to hunt and fish the area carried small animals to feed to the monster-god they called "Naitaka."

The first known sighting by a white settler was in 1872, and since then hundreds have claimed to have seen something huge and mysterious rise out of the water.

been submitted as proof that a cousin of Scotland's Loch Ness monster resides in the 80-mile-long, mile-wide lake. British Columbia authorities were once so convinced of Ogopogo's existence that in 1926 they considered arming lake ferries to protect them from the creature. They were never able to decide, however, what weapon would be effective.

There is no record of the demon ever attacking humans, although in the 1880s a team of horses was said to have mysteriously been pulled under water, never to be seen again.

Another Indian legend holds that a brave named Timbasket refused to heed warnings of the elders and paddled his canoe too near Ogopogo's home - Rattlesnake Island - and disappeared. His canoe was found later high on a nearby cliff.

Ogopogo's biographer, Arlene Gaal, has spent the past five years meeting people who swear they've seen the creature. She has made three sightings herself.

motel owner. When I asked him to sign an affidavit, he admitted to drawing the figure on a piece of glass and holding it infront of his camera.' Gaal has written books on

Ogopogo, but her most prized possession is a scratchy 8-milimeter film showing a large figure surface and submerge three times. The lake is a seven-hour drive east of Vancouver. Framed by mountains, the Okanagan Valley is one of the most scenic areas in western Canada. It is so ready-made for tourists that it's not surprising that people think Ogopogo is a Chamber of Commerce gimmick a notion enhanced by the fact that many sightings have been made by chamber employees.

Last year the chamber offered a $1 million to anyone who caught Ogopogo alive. Earlier it had offered $5,000 for valid pictures. The New York Times once offered $1,000 for a photograph.

Women's Primary Wins Heartening

The outcome of the recent primaries in nine states and District of Columbia is heartening proof that women are emerging as a potent political force in this country.

Nationwide, no fewer than 98 women are vying for elective offices for various statehouses to the U.S. Senate. Most of the candidates are tough-minded professionals who are less identified with feminist causes than with the specific issues of their constituencies. The candidates' chances in the November elections are enhanced by the surge of voter registrations among women. who themselves have become increasingly interested in state and national issues.

Maryland is a case in point. There, Democratic Rep. Barbara Mikulski and Republican Linda Chavez swamped their respective rivals for the right to succeed retiring GOP Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr. The contest between the two women promises to be a donnybrook. Rep. Mikulski is a liberal activist and a tough campaigner. Mrs. Chavez, who won high marks as a Reagan administration aide, has come out swinging, scoring her opponent as a "left-of-center liberal who represents the failed policies of Maryland's Democratic primary also initiated the political career of Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, the daughter of the late Robert F. Kennedy, who will now challenge GOP incumbent Rep. Helen Delich Bentley. And yes, Bella Abzug is back. The former congresswoman and self-proclaimed godmother of the feminist political movement will be the Democratic standard-bearer for a House seat from New York City.

At the state level, Vermont Gov. Madeline M. Kunin was nominated in the Democratic primary for another term. Meanwhile, Connecticut Republicans selected state Rep. Julie Belaga to run for governor. Her stunning victory was all the more impressive, inasmuch as the state GOP had endorsed her primary opponent. Similarly, Carolyn Warner will be the Democratic nominee for governor in Arizona, even though Bruce Babbitt, the outgoing governor, supported her opponent in

The results of those primaries assure the some highly competent women from both political parties will emerge as new leaders. That represents a vital renewal in the democratic process — one of the most encouraging of political developments in the

Need Still Present

We Americans are notorious for our short attention spans, though we're not the only ones whose attention — and concern — tends to drift. Less than a year ago, the eyes of the world were focused on Africa, where millions of people faced starvation. TV images and newspaper photographs from Ethiopia and the southern Sudan brought us heart-rending scenes of skeletal, fly-specked children and their dying parents. We responded.

Today in Africa, the threat of starvation is still imminent for millions of people, but our attention has waned; consequently, there has been a drastic drop in private and government contributions to Africa emergency relief

The New York Times reports that Save the Children received $6.7 million in private contributions for Africa in 1985, but has taken in only $368,000 this year. Monthly donations to World Visions' Africa programs have dropped to about 40 percent of last year's level. Contributions to Oxfam America's African program are expected to drop from $16 million raised in the 12 minths before October 1985 to about $8 million this year.

Many relief officials attribute the drop in contributions to a widespread public misperception that the crisis is over. Others say the very success of the relief effort is responsible for what they call "donor fatigue." Still others blame news organizations r paying less attention to the emergency.

Billboards Won't Go Away

GEORGETOWN, Colo. (NEA) -As Interstate 70 slices through the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains, the spectacular view is marred by a seemingly endless array of billboards promoting every imaginable brand of gasoline and chain of motels.

The gaudy signs - many of them mounted on poles that jut skyward 100 feet or more - advertise the purported virtues of Holiday Inns. Ramada Inns. Comfort Inns and Quality Inns as well as Texaco. Amoco and Conoco.

It wasn't supposed to be this way. In the mid-1960s, Lady Bird Johnson, the first lady, led a campaign to eliminate unsightly billboards from the nation's 42,000 miles of interstate highways and 260,000 miles of federally funded primary roads. It was widely assumed to have been successful.

Specifically, the Highway Beautification Act of 1965 required the removal of all billboards within 660 feet of the right-of-way of all roads in the federal highway system unless the area along the road was zoned for industrial or commercial development.

Three-fourths of the reimbursement paid to billboard owners for loss of their signs was to come from the federal government, with the remainder provided by state

But the law was riddled with loopholes. No billboards were removed for the first five years following its enactment because federal funding was unavailable. Wyoming circumvented the entire statute by zoning as commercial most land within 660 feet of its

In other states, the industry devised a way to comply with law and still make sure its signs were visible from the highways: In place of the standard 672-square-foot billboard it began producing monstrous "jumbos" that were as large as 2,500 square feet.

President Reagan has not sought funding for the program since 1981.

To date only 115,000 of the 235,000 non-conforming billboards that stood when the law was enacted have been removed.

The ultimate outrage under the current system is a practice euphemistically known as "vegetation control" or "vegetation main-tenance." under which the federal government allows the billboard industry to saw down trees that block motorists' view of a sign.

Media Led By Nose

The Nation magazine, which began publishing in 1865, is not widely read in the United States, but it should be. Its blunt dissenting views are especially needed at a time when we have a media star in the White House who is getting a free ride from most of the press.

The Sept. 13 issue of The Nation is devoted largely to its cover story. "The Rise and Decline of Accuracy effort to intimidate the press, but in Media." It is must reading for those who are concerned about preserving the integrity of our free American press and creating a better balance in our national politics.

Ten years ago most thoughtful Americans regarded Ronald Reagan's views as so off the wall that he could never be nominated let alone elected - to the pre-

After the first few years of Reagan rule, Clark Clifford, former secretary of defense and esteemed Washington lawyer, described the president as "an amiable dunce."

But in Ronald Reagan's world of acting and media management he is perceived as embodying the most admirable values of the nation. For example, the successful invasion of Grenada is seen as a symbol of American power and presidential courage. The earlier blundering in Lebanon that led to the death of well over 200 American soldiers was quickly crased by the "victory" over

A president who, two years into office, did not know that nuclear missiles launched from submarines cannot be recalled, is seen as "strong" on national defense simply because he is willing to run up unprecedented deficits by backing such costly and needless boondoggles as Star Wars.

One man who has worked hard to discourage any public or press perception that might damage Reagan's popular image is Reed irvine, chairman of the painfully misnamed Accuracy in Media. Michael Massing, a former editor of the Columbia Journalism Review: Alan Wolfe, a member of The Nation's editorial board: and other Nation editors offer a valuable in-depth look, not only at Irvine's also at the tendency of much of the press to go along uncritically with the Reagan view of events.

Since the start of his organization . in 1969. Irvine's strategy has been to monitor the press in the name of accuracy for any sign of liberal bias. In practice this means encouraging news executives, advertisers and the general public to boycott or punish any journalist who does not agree with Irvine's view of the world.

Massing believes that Irvine's influence is declining as a result of his own folly, but looking at the weird behavior of this self-styled guardian of the press one is inclined to agree with Wolfe's observation that "the real story... is not that Irvine has lost influence but that he ever gained it.'

As The Nation's editors see it: "What is amazing in this country is the speed and the enthusiasm with which the national media adopt official values and promote the consensus almost before it is put forth by the authorities. Whether the issue is terrorism, drugs, the Statue of Liberty, Nicaragua, Libya or the Philippines, there is an urgent imperative to spout the line. It is almost impossible to find significant, principled dissent in the mainstream press and on the networks at anywhere near the quality and quantity that was common during the time of the Vietnam War and Watergate."

RUSTY BROWN Idea's

Time Has Come

Time was when "job sharing" was as far out as punk haircuts and toothpaste pumps. Now, we have all three, and, in the case of job sharing. I hope it's here to stay.

Companies that would have slammed the door on the idea a few years ago now see it as a win/win situation — good for them, good for employees.

Unlike most dead-end part-time jobs, job sharing has several distinct advantages. It is a full-time, fullsalaried job shared by two people. It provides ongoing benefits, such as medical insurance, for both and it keeps employees on a rung of the career ladder. It is usually a situation created for persons considered valuable to the

A good example is at Public Service Company of New Mexico. where two young women persuaded management to give them a trial run at job sharing when both returned from maternity leaves 20 months ago. Cindy McGill, 29, was already an accounting supervisor, and Linda Cheshire, 33, had already, logged 10 years at PNM as an auditor. They got the nod to share a job as rate analysts, each working 21/2 days a week. A year into the pllot study, the two women and PNM were equally pleased, and now job sharing is a company-wide option.

Martha McDonald, PNM vice president for human resources, says job sharing has turned out to be an advantage: "We have maximum continuity, because there is always someone knowledgeable on the job. We get two creative minds instead of one and two employees fresh and focused when they're at work."

Cheshire agrees that the split job makes her more productive both at home and at work. "I know I've got to get things rolling in 21/2 days, so I set up meetings and appointments ahead of time, and it's all in place when I come in."

Both women agree that job sharing wouldn't work in some situations. It depends on the type of job. in part, and the people, who have to be equally competent and compati-

Feds Ignore Lumber Barons' Bid-Rigging Two rangers overheard four

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON - Smokey the Bear is not only blind to the cost of preferential treatment given to umber barons who buy timber from our national forests, but he's deaf to the most blatant evidence of bid-rigging and conspiracy by the industry.

Forest Service brass hats' cozy relationship with their corporate customers includes providing unparalleled subsidies for the comfort and convenience of the timber industry, and bailing out lumber companies that bid too high prices through their own cupidity and stupidity.

Now we've learned that the bureaucratic guardians of the nation's timber resources have for years ignored reports from conscientious Forest Service employees that some logging companies have conspired to keep down the price they pay to harvest the public's trees. The rangers report what they know, but

and a second of the second of somehow the charges of wrongdoing always seem to get lost in the paper shuffe.

In fact, Forest Service management is so notorious that one ranger told Agriculture Department auditors he doesn't even bother to report apparent violations because he figures his bosses would leave him out on a limb instead of backing up his charges.

This ranger witnessed one incident, for example, in which a timber buyer threatened his competitors, but it was not reported. Collusion among rival bidders, however, is more common than threats.

The auditors' report, obtained by our associate Stewart Harris under the Freedom of Information Act. was based on records from 80 national forests in the Pacific Northwest and Georgia. It cites 18 cases of possible antitrust activities between 1981 and 1983: the Forest Service pursued only three. Here are some of the discouraging highlights of the report:

propriety of recessing an auction. the two buyers left the room. When they returned, one withdrew from the bidding. The case was referred to the agency headquarters in Washington, D.C., but officials there let the matter die. • The Forest Service dropped an investigation of alleged bid-rigging simply on the basis of dentals by the three accused buyers, even though a witness submitted an affidavit charging that one of the suspects had admitted the plot. Agency officials also failed to interview another witness who had evidence of collusion among the three buyers.

Rangers in one national forest missed altogether a clear pattern of non-competitive bidding among four companies. Twenty out of 26 timber sales between January 1981 and June 1984 either had only one bidder, token competitive bids or a winning bid that was exactly the same as the lowest price the Forest Service would take for the timber.

According to the National Forest

Management Act of 1976, all 18 cases studied by the auditors should have been referred to the Justice Department for investigation. Only three were: the Forest Service lost the paperwork on two other cases. Footnote: Beginning Oct. 1. Forest Service officials will use scaled bids in timber sales to cut down on collusion among timber companies

'Most Remarkable Work Known To Modern Men'

By Sen. Orrin G. Hatch (R-Utah)

This September, the United States celebrates the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. The bicentennial celebration provides a rare opportunity for the American people to reflect upon those principles which have nobly governed the nation and which serve as a beacon for free people throughout the world.

Truly the Constitution is a marvelous work. On the Occasion of the Constitution's Centennial celebration, Britain's former Prime Minister William Gladstone remarked: "I have always regarded the Constitution as the most remarkable work known to men in modern times to have been produced by the human intellect."

As we approach the 200th anniversary of our charter of liberty, it is appropriate to ask: "How familiar are Americans with the formation and principles of the Constitution?"

Richard B. Morris, emeritus professor answered this question when he appeared before the Senate Subcommittee on the Constitution during the 97th Congress. "Granted the Constitution's central place in American political life," he said. "It is hardly disputable that the public's understanding of the Constitution is at a low ebb, and that young people completing high school take with them an abysmal sum of ignorance about the constitutional system of this Nation...We are not...effectively teaching the Constitution in our

The Bicentennial celebration offers the nation an opportunity to correct this educational dilemma. Thomas Jefferson once wrote that "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be.

The future of the Constitution depends upon the level of understanding of the American people and their

of the framers. If we are to remain a free people, we need an informed electorate.

One way in which Americans of all ages can educate themselves concerning the Constitution is to read The Federalist Papers. This classic in political science was written by Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and John Jay. It is a brilliant elucidation of the Constitution. The Federalist Papers explains the unique characteristics of a republican government, the principles upon which it is built and the natural rights of man.

book was "the best commentary on the essential if we are to understand what principles of government...ever writ-

The message of The Federalist Papers reads, in the words of Clinton Rossiter: 'no happiness without liberty, no liberty without self-government, no tionalism, no constitutionalism without the Subcommittee on the Constitution.

of history at Columbia University willingness to uphold it in the tradition morality - and none of these great goods without stability and order.'

Another excellent volume which I recommend is Democracy in America by Alexis de Tocqueville. This masterpiece was written after de Tocqueville toured America and became deeply impressed with our institutions.

'The Constitution of the United States," de Tocqueville wrote, "is like one of those beautiful creations of human diligence which give their inventors glory and riches but remains sterile in other hands.'

A thorough reading of The Federalist Thomas Jeffereson stated that the Papers and Democracy in America is has been bequeathed to us. With this understanding, we can expect the Constitution to serve a flourishing nation for many years after the Bicentennial celebration is over.

Retirement Plans Often Unrealistic

"Prime Lifers" — people aged 50 to 64 — are facing retirement with confidence and optimism, according to a recent survey. However, the survey also notes that their retirement preparation might not be realistic.

The study of Prime Lifers was sponsored by the American Council of Life Insurance and the Health Insurance Association of America, in cooperation with the National Council of Senior Citizens and the National Council on the Aging.

In 1984, as part of the study, 1,000 Prime Lifers were surveyed about their attitudes toward health, finances, values and lifestyles.

The study found that most Prime Lifers feel financially comfortable and expect to remain so. They believe that feel their financial situation will remain secure in 10 years and say they're better off financially than their parents were at the same age.

However, a majority (51 percent) are worried that inflation will reduce their standard of living during retirement. Thirty-nine percent worry about becoming financially dependent on others, and 40 percent worry about not being financially able to meet their basic expenses.

Prime Lifers believe that the federal government and the individual should have the major responsibility for ensuring that people have enough income to live on after retirement. However, they aren't exceedingly confident that the Social Security system will be able to pay them full benefits during their retirement. And 55 percent aren't confident that Medicare benefits will continue.

The respondents also were asked to evaluate several potential solutions to the problem of financing Medicare. An overwhelming majority (83 percent) favored keeping benefits and taxes the same, but limiting the cost of medical Thirty-five percent believe that individuals are primarily responsible for paying the nursing-care costs for those 65 and older, while 31 percent feel government has the major responsibility. Only 6 percent feel that children have the major responsibility; this is interesting, since members of this age group might become responsible for a parent's long-term care needs, or might have to depend on their children for such needs.

The study found that two out of three Prime Lifers have built up their financial resources and planned for their medical needs but are doing little else to plan for their retirement.

Most are preparing a will and intend to learn more about pensions and Social Security benefits. However, they don't plan to use professional or educational resources to help them prepare for retirement. This could certainly determine whether or not their planning is realistic.

There are other reasons to doubt that these Prime Lifers know what they're facing - and, therefore, whether they'll be able to cope with the unknown.

The study found that although they claim they've been planning for health care in retirement and are concerned about being financially depleted due to a catastrophic illness, they are not well informed about Medicare or the cost of long-term care. Only 22 percent correctly estimated that Medicare covers less than half of medical expenses. When asked to estimate the average monthly fee for long-term care (which is $1,900), 37 percent could not given an answer. Most of the others underestimated the cost.

This group also tended to underestimate how long they're likely to live. They estimated an average life expectancy of 77 years; however, today's 60-year-olds are expected to live to 80.4. Because of longer lives and trends toward early retirement, they need to know more about it.

Responsible Citizenship Key To Keeping Republic

By Robert W. Miller

This month marks the beginning of the bicentennial year of the Constitution of the United States. Miracle at Philadelphia it has been called by some - indeed miracle it was!

Fifty-five representatives from the feuding, dis-united colonies met of the 25th of May in 1787 and in four short months, over that hot Philadelphia summer, the miracle occurred - a Constitution was born, the likes of which the world had never seen.

Under this Constitution, citizens voiuntarily gave up certain freedoms. realizing that only by so doing would they in fact be free. These men realized that man was, by design of his Creator, fully capable of self-government with the power rising from the bottom. rather than, as had always been, being directed from the top down.

The key ingredient that was to make this miracle a reality was responsible citizenship. A free people remain free only so long as the citizens exercise government they have created.

Our founding fathers were concerned with rights: regaining rights as free men under the English Crown. They seldom talked about responsibilities, as to them, this was given. They were responsible citizens and most of their contemporaries were

Those remarkable men who, on battlesields from Bunker Hill to Yorktown, through that terrible winter at Valley Forge, and in the halls of the Continental Congress, forged this nation in blood and toil, created a standard by which we define the responsibilities of American citizenship. While Americans, again and again in times of crisis, have been called upon to pledge their very lives to the task of preserving freedom, the responsibilitires most of us as asked to assume take on a less dramatic but no less important form. These are obligations, owed not so responsibilities to one another and the much to our country as to our. The Bill is being distributed throughout countrymen, which stand at the very the United States to teachers and core of our society and constitute the glue that holds it together.

That miracle at Philadelphia is in danger, however, two hundred years later, because the citizens who benefit the balance between rights and reby it today seem often times to have lost the concept of responsible citizenship. All too often our fellow citizens are concerned totally with their rights. with little understanding of the correlary responsibilities that undergird every right.

As one attempt to redirect the public's agenda away from a preoccupation solely with rights to an understanding and acceptance of the delicate balance between rights and responsibilities, the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge has developed a Bill of Responsibilities as a companion to our cherished Bill of Rights. This document clearly and succinctly states the responsibilities that a citizen owes to his fellow citizens and to his nation. Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

students and thought-leaders in communities everywhere. Teaching materials, for levels K-12, are being developed to help teachers teach the young sponsibilities.

Benjamin Franklin, upon leaving the Pennsylvania State House following the completion of the drafting of the Constitution, was asked what kind of a government had been created. His response was, as we all know, "A Republic - if you can keep it."

Can we keep It?

The answer of course lies within each of us. The answer is, I'm sure, a resounding "yes" if Americans once again recapture the sense of responsible citizenship upon which this nation was built and through which it has grown and developed.

Exemption Change Should Be Passed

I would like to call to the attention of all Florida property taxpayers. some of the un-truths that are being spread by Mr. George Sheldon. President of the Florida Consumers Action Network and Chairman of the Anti-Revision Coalition.

This gang is attempting to get voters to defeat proposed constitutional Amendment 3, which will be on the November ballot, by publishing some ridiculous statements, such as, quote "This proposed ammendment would increase the current regressive nature of our tax structure, by shifting the property tax burden to low and middle income families.

I do not know where Mr. Sheldon is from, but it is obvious he has not been paying property taxes in the state of Florida or he would know that property tax is not and never has been based upon a person's income or his ability to pay, but strictly upon the arbitrary value of any house that he happens to own, and it makes no difference how he came to own it.

I have lived in and paid taxes in the state of Florida for more than 35 years, and I have yet to have a property appraiser ask me if I had enough income, or could afford to pay his exorbitant tax bill.

It is this feature alone that makes the real estate tax, as it is presently administered in the state of Florida. the most unfair tax ever conceived.

Mr. Sheldon's group further states, The proposed amendment to Florida's homestead exemption would hurt the poor and elderly without guaranteeing lower taxes." Apparently it is OK with these people for those poor and elderly who are now being taxed to death to continue to be squeezed, and who is asking for guarantees? There is one thing that is guaranteed, especially if you happen to live in Seminole County, and that is that the county commissioners are going to raise your taxes, whether they need it or not or whether you can afford to pay them or not. No one has gotten through to them that it is also possible to lower taxes. (Perhaps the voters can do something about those Jokers in November also).

Passage of Amendment 3 may or may not lower our taxes, but one thing is for certain, if it doesn't pass, they are certainly going up, but the most important thing is it will make the system fairer than it is now, and at least some of th affluent ones deliberately living in shacks to avoid paying taxes, and having their children educated, and partaking of tax supported services for free, will be forced to contribute. I cannot imagine any person, having the privilege of owning a home, and using city and courty tax supported services, would not be willing to contribute his fair share.

So, I say to every voter in the State of Florida, and especially those who are paying property taxes, vote and pass Amendment 3, and then Mr. Sheldon can join another rather exclusive club. The Florida Real Estate Taxpayers Club.

Drug Testing Bandwagon Speeds To A Blur

Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin

If a corporation said a condition of employment was random or periodic searches of employee homes to make sure no stolen company property was hidden there, the ordinary American citizen might cry out "invasion of privacy." Why then, does turning over something at one's body fluids, whether that be blood or urine, go so unquestioned? Certainly, it is a mark of President Reagan's effectiveness as a leader that so many people seem now to be enamoured of drug testing. Indeed, submitting to drug tests has been cast as almost a patriotic duty - which it decidedly is

The drug-testing bandwagon is moving so fast that it's begun to blur. We are surely falling down on our jobs as citizens if we fail ... to at least ponder the potential for abuse. If we permit our justifiable concerns about drug abuse to destroy our capacity for reflection, we might well end up creating a new set of problems that could strike at the very heart of everyone's civil liberties.

Perhaps the ambush that killed five persons in the entourage of Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet was what it seemed to be: an assassination attempt by an extreme left-wing group. Yet, it could not have been more smoothly exploited by Pinochet if it had been planned and staged as an inside job.

The attack gave Pinochet the justification he has sought to crush moderate political opponents by reimposing a state of siege. Within hours, Pinochet exploited that opening with TV appearances, arrests, staged rallies and a crackdown on the opposition press. Death squads identified with Pinochet's armed forces swung into action, killing an opposition journalist....

There will be pressures to ease off Pinochet in his moment of crisis. To the contrary, this is the time for Americans to bring maximum pressure to bear against this notorious enemy of democracy. To waver would waste an opportunity to redress the wrong committed when President Nixon and Henry Kissinger helped bring Pinochet to power 13 years ago.

about whether the Pan Am flight crew did the right thing when they escaped from the cockpit after terrorists boarded their plane in Karachi, Pakistan.

They did the right thing.

Such decisions necessarily have to be judged situtation by situation, but it is probably best in most instances to reduce the number of hostages if that is possible. In the Kararchi case, the crew's quick-thinking exit reduced options available to the terrorists. They could not order the plane to take off until another flight crew was brought in. That allowed time for negotiations and for rescue planning.

Airplanes are not ships and skyjackers are not storms. Glib analogies of captains going down with their ships fail. The Pan Am crew did not so much abandon a "sinking" plane as keep one from being taken dangerously aloft again.

Shortages, Bribes—Standard Fare For Soviet Car Owner

MOSCOW (UPI) - Russians say there are two moments of happiness for a Soviet car owner — the day he buys it and the day he sells it.

In between are years of lining up for gasoline, looking for non-existent spare parts, bribing repairmen and discovering that state mechanics have stolen the best parts of your engine.

Just getting to the garage is a formidable problem. Moscow, with nearly 9 million people and half a million private cars, has a total of 22 tow trucks - two of them available at night.

In fact, a Russian's problems begin the moment he starts thinking about buying a car. Auto shortages are not as severe as in years past, but the Soviet Union is a long way from being a nation on wheels.

Subliminal Message Industry Growing Quietly

By Bob Tripi

DETROIT (UPI) - Teddy Zydor's mother thought he was an intelligent kid, but his distaste for study carned him a D-average in school and failures on nearly every test he took.

Diana Zydor sought an answer to her son's problem in the form of a 60-minute cassette tape entitled "I Like to Study." During study time at his Rockford, Mich., home and while dozing off at night, Teddy, then 13, would listen.

"Within six weeks after he got the tape, he took a D up to an A in English and his other grades improved to Bs and Cs," Diana Zydor said. "One time he even made the Honor Roll.'

The secret? Subliminals visual or auditory hidden messages designed to be unheard by the conscious mind but directed and received by a more powerful sub-conscious mind. As in Teddy's case, messages such as "I like to study, I relax for tests and I want success," are masked in music.

Like it or not - and there are vociferous critics — it is a big business and getting bigger.

With six companies currently making subliminal tapes, the Grand Rapids-based Mind Communication Inc. is among the leaders.

While subliminal messages are relatively new to the consumer market, Mind Communication founder Paul Tuthill said they have existed "for at least 100 years, but until the 1970s the technology wasn't available to make subliminals correctly follow the music pattern."

The first known experiment occurred in 1956, when a special projector was installed in a Fort Lee, N.J., movie theater by Subliminal Projection Co., of New York City. During a sixweek period, patrons reportedly were exposed to two advertising messages - "Drink Coca-Cola" and "Hungry? Eat Popcorn" - flashing on the screen every five peers. seconds for a mere 1-3,000th of a second while they watched the movie "Picnic."

The Subliminal Projection Co. reported sales of popcorn and Coca-Cola increased as a result of the stimulation, but refused to divulge actual-statistical data. Several experiments and three decades later subliminals are being used freely for self improvement, theft prevention and perhaps even to curb anti-social behavior in prisons.

Some psychologists are beginning to use the hidden messages as a therapeutic tool.

T've got two or three patients using the tapes," said Grand Rapids psychologist Thomas Wilkinson said, "I'm open to the idea (of using subliminals), but I don't have any solid data on their effectiveness. If the data can be substantlated I think subliminals can be useful."

not universally endorsed by his not convinced.

"The reaction is pretty mixed." he said. "There are some groups (in the medical field) that are strongly against it. On the other hand, there is a group in the profession that says we should use all the tools that are available. I tend more to that side."

One of the more outspoken disbelievers is psychologist Ivan Ross of Minneapolis.

"It's really a ridiculous subject matter," Ross said. "It has no practical value that I can imagine. Subliminals are not the best way to change a person's behavior. I really don't understand how anyone can use them on their patients."

Psychologist Joseph Smith. president of Oxtoby-Smith Inc. in New York City - one of the nation's leading consumer re-Wilkinson said the tapes are search organizations - also is

Future Cars Friendlier

RADNOR, Pa. (UPI) - If you talk to yourself when driving. you may have to watch what you say in the future: by the year 2000, your car may be listening, according to projections by auto experts.

Based on a review of changes in automotive structure' since 1932, Automotive Industries magazine recently made educated predictions about changes in car construction and design over the next 14 years.

Editor John McElroy reports that turn-of-the-century motorists will probably tool around in "friendlier" cars vehicles with more space, less emphasis on traditional materials like carpeting and more emphasis on molded forms and unusual textures.

Many designers believe that all cars will feature lightweight, replaceable body components placed over some type of subframe and good aerodynamics will become routine.

They also foresee the replacement of traditional wire harness with fiber optics. along with a greater number of controls - many electronic and some voice-controlled located in the steering wheel

In fact, some experts think that more people will use their cars as an extension of their offices in the future and that on-board digital communications links and printers will be available.

"I'd be willing to guess that as much will happen during the next 14 years in automobile design evolution as happened from the beginning of automobiles to today," says Jerry Hirshberg, design director of Nissan International. "It's going to be that dramatic."

In "Sweet Success: How to Understand the Men in Your Business Life — and Win With Your Own Rules," Ms. Stechert argues that male-female differences in behavior, language and values too often work against women in the work place. Consequently, she says many women experience feelings of being out sync when dealing with men.

For example, she points out that women find self-deprecation funny, but men often think women's making fun of themselves reflects a lack of confidence and wit. Men's humor, she says, tends to be more hostile.

Besides an examination of male humor, Ma. Stechert makes many potent "points." Though these contentions will make some people uncomfortable, Ms. Steehert backs them with solid research:

•Men revere justice; women value

•Among men, blame is the norm: among women, praise is.

• Women don't really understand competition, and men don't really understand cooperation. olt's a myth that women are more social than men. Male bonding is a powerful behavior: it excludes women, often without their knowing it. To a man, failure gives impetus for future success. To a woman, it is a catastrophe.

Ms. Stechert advises women to understand men, and to adjust behavior to this understanding, without trying to be like men. But there is a thin line between fitting into a work world dominated by men and acting like men.

Yet, if this book can lessen the tension many women feel trying to keep their balance on this thin line, its contribution far outweighs the risk of its being misconstrued.

ON SEX AND HUMAN LOVING. By William H. Masters and Virginia E. Johnson. Little Brown. 598 pages. $24.95.

The names Masters and Johnson are so widely respected that it's hard to recall a time when discussion of the study of sexuality elicited snickers. It is a telling comment on how far society has come that the authors' latest, "On Sex and Human Loving." will find a home on family bookshelves.

Much of the material was previously published in the textbook "Human Sexuality." Because "On Sex and Human Loving" includes so much information, it sometimes reads like a textbook. Further, the scope of this general-public version makes it more suitable for reference than for a cozy read.

Master and Johnson answer almost any question one might have about any aspect of sexuality. They discuss various aspects of adult sex, as well as adolescent sexual development. They point out that too often books on sexuality leave the impression that the subject is closed in young adulthood.

An extensive index and many illustrations - including scientific diagrams as well as tasteful drawings - make this book particularly accessible.

Some readers may find certain sections too frank and specific. To them, the authors reply. "Learning accurate information about sexuality can help prevent sexual problems."
