Longwood Man Says Deputies Brutalized Him; Files Complaint

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A Longwood man arrested outside an Orange County home claims two sheriff's deputies used unreasonable force in making the arrest. The deputies claim their actions were justified. And authorities say they are legally prohibited from saying whether the deputies' actions are under internal investigation.

Guy Hanley, 22, of 1002 Jamestown Road, was arrested outside the home of Shelia Kocher, 1913 Blossom Terrace, at about 1 a.m. Monday. Orange County sheriff's spokesman Randy Means said today.

Hanley has filed a formal complaint against the arresting officers, claiming that although he was not seriously hurt in the incident he was brutalized by the deputies. Hanley was charged with attempted burglary, disorderly intoxication, criminal mischief and resisting arrest with violence. Means said.

Hanley was released from the Orange County jail on $1,500 bond Monday. He reportedly had several welts and scrapes on his back, shoulder and arms and was treated at Humana Hospital Lucerne after his release.

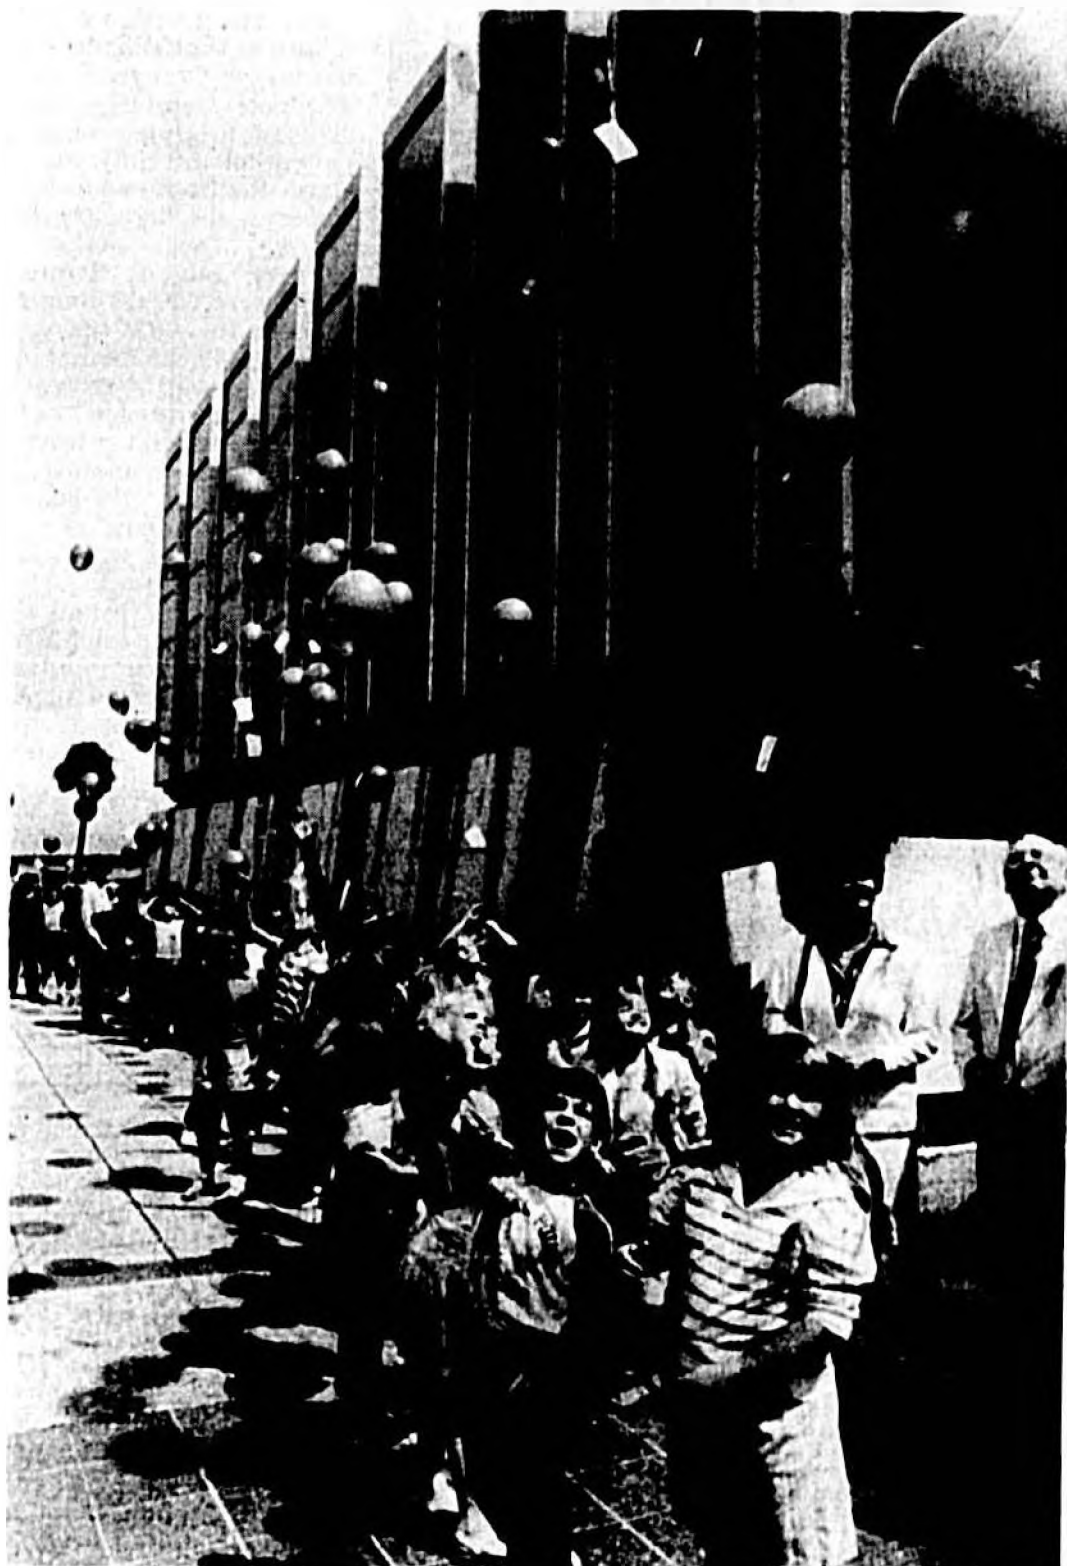

According to Means, Ms. Kocher called deputies to her home when Hanley reportedly began banging on a window outside her home, apparently wanting to see her 20-year-old daughter, Kim, Hanley's ex-girlfriend.

Means said when deputies Cpl. Jon Swanson and Earl Randell confronted Hanley he became loud and disorderly. Hanley claims he cooperated with the officers. However Means said that during the arrest Hanley kicked the officers and they subdued him, hitting him with a martial arts stick and hogtying him.

As the scuffle was going on, a neighbor called the 911 emergency number to complain that the disturbance had awakened him. He claimed the deputies were beating a man and he wanted them out of his yard.

Lake Mary Budget Up For Final Vote

Lake Mary's city commission is expected to pass a $1.37 million budget for fiscal year 1985-86 at a public hearing 7 p.m. Thursday at city hall, 158 N. Country Club Road.

City manager Kathy Rice said the proposed tax rate is $3.99 per $1,000 assessed property valuation, up from $3.75 for 1984-85. The 1984-85 budget is $974,344. Mrs. Rice said. Water and sewer services are enterprise funds and must be approved by an ordinance separate from the rest of the budget, she said, which will also be considered at tomorrow night's hearing. Proposed water funds total $510,561, up from $360,422 for the present year and proposed sewer funds total $77,381, up from $41,640.

The purpose of the public hearing is to receive comments from the public or the budget prior to its final acceptance by the commission.

United Way Goal Up $50,000

With a goal of $550,000, United Way of Seminole County will officially launch its month-long 1985 campaign Tuesday, although drives have already started in some companies. Last year's goal was $500,000.

A tri-county kick-off luncheon will feature Joe Kittinger, balloonist and adventurer as guest speaker. The theme this year will be "The Way to Help, Is to Become UNITED."

The luncheon will be held at noon at the Expo Centre in Orlando by United Way officials and Seminole's United Way Sweetheart and honorary chairman, 10-year-old Leigh Moncrief, daughter of Kirby and Linda Moncrief of Sanford.

Born with spina bifida, Leigh is active in the Junior Girl Scouts and was chosen by the Girl Scout Citrus Council, a United Way agency, to represent them as honorary chairman. Leigh attends Morning Star School in Orlando. She is featured in this year's Heart of Florida United Way promotional film, posters, and mailout materials.

She will be honored at the Seminole United Way Victory Dinner at the new Hyatt Hotel in Altamonte Springs on Oct. 24.

Earlier Tuesday, Seminole Campaign Chairman John C. Knapp and United Way President David Joswick will meet with division chairmen to map strategy at a breakfast at the Stromberg-Carlson plant in Lake Mary.

General Campaign Chairman for the Heart of Florida Campaign for Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties is A. Ray Miller, president of Hubbard Construction.

One-Night Stands On Decline: Survey

NEW YORK (UPI) — Instant sex and one-night stands appear to be on the decline, with young lovers in the 1980s amending the sexual revolution to include intimacy and companionship, a new survey shows.

The fear of sexually-transmitted diseases seems to have put a damper on casual sexual encounters, a Glamour magazine survey said Tuesday.

A 32-year-old Chicago stockbroker told the magazine. "The fear of contracting herpes gave people a reason for not indulging in the immediate sexual encounters that they had already grown tired and weary of."

Dr. Martin Goldberg, director of family studies at the University of Pennsylvania, told the magazine men

Few Complaints Greet Seminole Budget Approval

By Janie Gnat
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County commissioners unanimously approved a $128.2 million budget for fiscal year 1985-86 Tuesday with very little opposition or public interest expressed at a public hearing.

A $3.78 tax rate per $1,000 of assessed property valuation on all taxable property in the county was also set, representing a 12-cent decrease from 1984-85's rate of $3.90. However, a 17.7 cents tax for transportation will be assessed in 1985-86 that was not assessed this year. According to the resolution adopted by commissioners, the total value of property in the county subject to taxes is $4.89 billion.

Opposition came from four speakers in the audience whose complaints ranged from inefficiency and waste in county government, to unwarranted high salaries, taxes for transportation funds, and excessive amounts spent on the justice system. Although the commission listened to all complaints and answered questions, the comments did not produce an amended budget.

A few changes were made by the Office of Management and Budget between the first hearing on Sept. 3 and Tuesday night's hearing. Those changes were approved by the commission prior to adopting the budget. Most notable was an increase in capital construction funds for criminal justice facilities from $10 million to $12 million and for library facilities from $7.4 million to $8.8 million.

Other changes include an increase in funds for expressway authority from $134,400 to $138,406; a decrease in revenues for street lighting districts from $707,586 to $608,649 (that decrease is due to a lower tax rate for street lighting); and a decrease in a law enforcement trust of the trust-in-agency fund from $34,496 to $23,921.

In addition to the tax rate for general fund revenues, other countywide tax rates that were approved include the 17.7 cents for transportation; .04 cents for courthouse and jail and 17.6 cents for library construction.

In addition to those tax rates assessed on a countywide basis, some residents will be assessed additional tax rates for special districts based on where they live if they use certain county services not available to everyone. Those districts and their tax rates are fire protection district, $2, up 19 cents from last year; and Seminole County transportation district, 47.8 cents, down .019 from last year.

Street lighting districts are also special districts requiring their residents to pay an additional tax rate. The tax rate for street lighting districts was approved, but the amount assessed will depend on the area or district a resident is in and whether the millage is assessed on a per foot or per lot basis.

Total monies allotted for each county fund include:

General, $39.86 million; transportation related, $28.7 million; fire suppression and rescue, $8.0 million; road patrol, $370,733; debt service, $1.55 million; capital construction, $21.3 million; health special revenue, $4.4 million; street lighting districts, $608,649; trust-in-agency, $31,396; enterprise, $8.1 million (these are water and sewer funds approved at the Sept. 3 hearing); job training partnership, $16,008; intergovernmental, $9 mil-

French Military Bombed Greenpeace, Paper Says

PARIS (UPI) — A respected Paris newspaper said Tuesday the Greenpeace flagship Rainbow Warrior was bombed by a third French military team that was not mentioned in a government-ordered inquiry into the July attack in New Zealand.

A state-commissioned report acknowledged two French teams with a total of five agents were in New Zealand at the time of the July 10 bombing but said they were engaged only in surveillance. The report absolved the French military of official involvement in the attack, which killed a Dutch photographer.

French news reports have said the French secret service, the General Directorate for External Security, or DGSE, sank the Rainbow Warrior. The converted trawler was to lead a flotilla of ships to the Mururoa atoll to protest French nuclear testing there.

But the respected Le Monde newspaper said there were more French agents in New Zealand at the time of the attack.

"There was a third team of French military officers, along with the five members of the DGSE already identified," Le Monde said. The investigative weekly Canard Enchaîné was expected to publish a similar report Wednesday.

Sanford Development Group Reorganizes

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

"This is the time for going forward and building on the present project and modest beginning; it's not the time to sit and bask in the light of our accomplishments," B.C. "Cal" Conklin, newly elected chairman of the Greater Sanford Development Corporation, Inc., told the board of directors Tuesday.

"Most of the opposition has faded and some of the opponents have come around and accepted the idea," he said. "We have a positive opportunity to make this thing something we can be proud of. There are a lot of people and merchants who want us to proceed and go forward and that's a welcome change."

Working with the other members of the executive committee, Conklin said he intends to formulate programs and then bring them to the directors to approve and implement.

One thing he has in mind is to bring the membership of the organization up to date and get "dues paying, card carrying members and money in the treasury."

Other officers elected at the reorganizational meeting were Stanley Sandefur, Sandefur Properties, vice chairman; Sara Jacobson, owner of Geppetto Wholesale, secretary; and Jim Clements, CPA, treasurer.

"With a supportive city staff and administration behind us, I don't see how we can fail," said Conklin.

A spirit of optimism and faith in the future of the once dying downtown area pervaded the atmosphere of the meeting.

Architect Jerry Gross, whom Miss Jacobson said has had a big impact on downtown development, told of his plans to restore the original facade of the old two-story brick building on East First Street and convert it into a mini-mall. The lease held by the Dollar Store, the present occupant, will run out Dec. 31. He said he has already obtained a building permit and plans to begin work in 30 days.

'X-Rated' Bible Sells Out

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair is "absolutely stunned" her publication, "The X-Rated Bible," has sold more than 5,000 copies, the entire first printing.

"The American people apparently want to read this disgusting, filthy, degrading material excerpted from the Holy Bible and appreciate that 'sick minds' have put it together," O'Hair said Tuesday.

O'Hair, who operates the American Atheist Center, said the 428-page book which sells for $7.95, "sold out to the walls within 2 1/2 weeks of its being issued" in early August. A second printing is planned.

O'Hair said the American Atheist Press had been pressured by the Rev. Joseph Caruthers of Naples, Fla., president of the Fellowship of Southern Baptists, to drop the book.

"You ain't seen nothing yet," she responded. "Wait until our fall line gets off the press."

Black, Hispanic Children Becoming Better Readers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Black and Hispanic children are beginning to catch up to white children in reading skills, but the gap is still dramatic and the chance for more progress among all children is uncertain, a new study said today.

"The Reading Report Card: Progress Toward Excellence in Our Schools," released by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, showed American children overall were better readers in 1984 than in 1971.

The study was compiled from surveys of more than 250,000 students — ages 9, 13, and 17 — conducted in 1970-71, 1974-75, 1979-80, and 1983-84.

The study said the skills of all three age groups improved during the period. However, the 17-year-olds did not post their first gain until after 1980, while scores for the younger age groups leveled off after 1980.

"If the patterns of no further improvements for 9- and 13-year-olds are reflected in future assessments, we might expect to find that assessment results for 1988 and later will show that America's schools have ... failed to progress further," the report said.

Striking Teachers Jailed

United Press International

Striking Pawtucket, R.I., teachers went to jail rather than obey a judge's order to return to work, while Washington state officials called for a resumption of talks in Seattle, site of the nation's largest teacher walkout.

Teacher strikes in six states today affected nearly 102,000 students: 43,500 in Washington, 29,000 in Michigan, 18,000 in Pennsylvania, 8,500 in Rhode Island, 2,000 in Ohio and 600 in Illinois.

Teachers in two districts ended walkouts Tuesday. Instruction was set to begin today in Charleston, Ill., while a ratification vote that could take two weeks will delay the start of classes in Marquette, Mich., officials said.

In Providence, R.I., the Pawtucket Teachers Alliance and 34 striking teachers faced contempt of court citations for ignoring a judge's back to work order.

United Way Fund-Raising Golf Tournament Friday

With the official kickoff for the 1985 campaign set for Tuesday, the United Way of Seminole County will swing into action Friday with its major fund-raising event. The annual United Way golf tournament, which will be held at 12:30 p.m. Friday at Sabal Point Country Club off Wekiva Springs Road, is expected to raise more than $6,000.

A 1986 Dodge Omni will be awarded the first tournament player to make a hole-in-one on the course's challenging par 3 fourth hole, courtesy of Bob Dance Dodge.

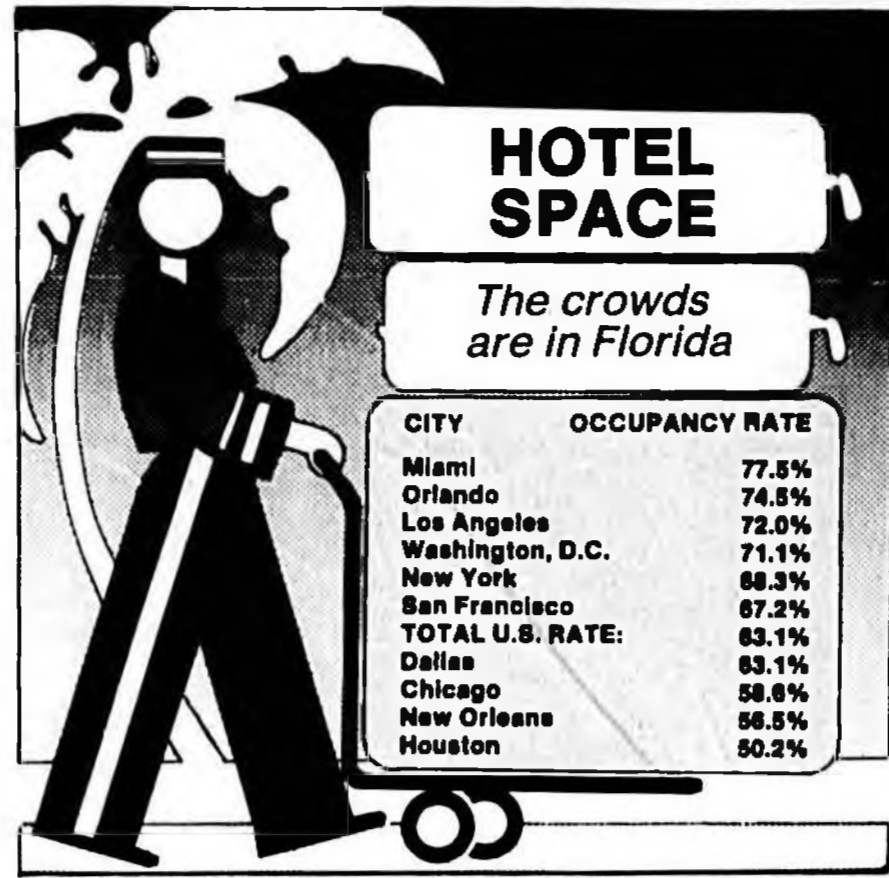

There are 16 sponsors already lined up for the tournament, almost twice the number last year, according to United Way executive director Bob Walko, who said he hopes to get sponsors for the other two holes by Friday.

A sponsor donation of $375 covers four players or a $45 fee will pay for an individual entry. Donations include green fees, golf carts, refreshments, and awards for each player.

There are still some openings for players. For more information, contact Walko at 834-3131.

Hotel Room Boom Going Bust?

There May Not Be Enough Tourists To Go Around

(Source: Laventhol & Horwath) NEA GRAPHIC
New York and Los Angeles are the largest U.S. cities, but the hotel business is healthiest in Miami and Orlando ... for now.

ORLANDO (UPI) — A hotel industry analyst says tourism has nearly kept pace with rapid room building in Central Florida, but 1985 may be the threshold into a weaker market.

New construction added 5,900 rooms to the Orlando-area hotel market — Orange, Osceola and Seminole counties — from December to July, according to Laventhol & Horwath analyst Gary Renfrow, who has been tracking the industry for nine years.

As of July 1, Renfrow said there were 52,500 rooms in the market. In 1983, the year after Disney's Epcot Center opened, there were 40,100 rooms.

"By year end of '87 or into '88 it'll be doubling from 1983. There is still a massive amount of projects on the board," Renfrow said, adding two planned facilities alone will add 3,000 rooms.

He said year round business traffic and the rise of hotels that can draw large conventions which once passed up Orlando were "positives for growth in the hotel market." But he questioned whether the visitors flocking to the state's No. 1 tourist destination can fill the hotels. "We obviously are not going to be naive and say it's rosy, because it's not," Renfrow said. "The increase in the supply of rooms is going to continue. So far in '85 demand is keeping up pretty well with supply, but in 1986 growth and supply will probably exceed demand."

Renfrow said the market averaged 74 percent occupancy through the first seven months of the year, compared with 76.6 percent in 1984. In July, the occupancy rate was 78.9 percent, down from 79.4 percent last year.

"A healthy market is generally 65 to 70 percent on a yearly average," said Renfrow. "These (Orlando area) numbers are through July, so it includes the strongest months. The yearly averages will probably be in the mid 60s."

The average room rate this year is $52.70, down from $53.93 through the same period last year, which Renfrow attributed to the number of economy hotels sprouting up.

"They're having to work to get their business now," Renfrow said. "It's not just falling out of the sky like it was in '83."

Reagan Won't Scrap 'Star Wars' For Soviet Missile Reductions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, two months away from his summit with the Soviet leader, is refusing to yield to Soviet demands that he trade an embryonic U.S. space defense system for deep reductions in nuclear missiles.

He also believes he and Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev should do "more than get acquainted" when they meet Nov. 19 and 20 in Geneva, Switzerland.

"I wasn't going to give him a friendship ring or anything," Reagan joked when asked Tuesday night if it was necessary that he and Gorbachev like each other before progress could be made.

In the 37-minute nationally broadcast session with reporters — his first in three months and the 32nd of his administration — Reagan addressed subjects ranging from AIDS to trade but concentrated most on the summit and its implication for superpower arms control.

Reagan spoke publicly for the first time about the growing problem of deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome and gave a muddled explanation of government statistics showing the United States has become a debtor nation for the first time since World War I.

He also repeated his warnings that trade legislation brewing on Capitol Hill could lead to "a mindless stampede toward protectionism (that) will be a one-way trip to economic disaster."

Reagan called AIDS research "a top priority with us" and defended criticism of the government's half-billion-dollar expenditure through next year as "something of a vital contribution" considering "our budgetary constraints."

On arms control, Reagan accused the Soviets of using public relations before the summit "to build an impression that we may be the villains in the piece and that they're the good guys."

He said the United States has offered six formulas for reducing offensive weapons and, "They have come back with nothing."

Reagan defended the principle of his proposed "Star Wars" program of building a space shield against Soviet missiles and ruled out negotiating it away in exchange for dramatic reductions in offensive weapons — as the Soviets have proposed publicly, although not at the arms bargaining table in Geneva.

He said he would negotiate the Strategic Defense Initiative — the formal name for "Star Wars" — only after the United States has tested a system.

By Any Other Name...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A rose is a rose is a rose — and it might become the national flower.

The Senate has approved legislation that would name the rose, of any color, as the country's floral emblem.

The bill now goes to the House and unless another flower — the camellia, the marigold, the petunia, the daffodil, the carnation or even the syringa — stages a comeback there, the lengthy horticultural race will be over.

In Senate debate Monday, there were kind words for the country's "cornucopia of beautiful flowers" and special mention of the camellia, the dogwood, the marigold, the sunflower, the violet — even the mistletoe.

But the rose was chosen with no formal challenge, something that would not have happened if the late Senate Republican leader Everett Dirksen were alive.

Dirksen, who loved to putter in his garden outside Washington, was a marigold man. In 1969, after 10 years of trying to persuade the Senate to make the marigold the national flower, Dirksen said:

"Some prefer the rose, a shrub, or the carnation, or the petunia, the violet, the daffodil or some other bloom — but the marigold is native to this hemisphere and grows in every one of the 50 states."

Florida Is South's Leading Farm State

LAKELAND (UPI) — Florida is the largest producer of agricultural products in the Southeast, carrying $15 billion in economic clout, said Art Darling, executive director of the Agri-business Institute.

"Florida is number one in the Southeast in total agricultural sales, and (agriculture) is the number one industry in the state, no question," Darling said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture "says 24.5 percent of all civilian jobs in Florida are related to agriculture," he said. "That is above the national average and twice the number of people (employed) in tourism."

He said nationally, Florida ranks 11th in agricultural dollars, with North Carolina a close second behind the Sunshine State in the Southeast.

Darling said agriculture yields an economic impact of more than $15 billion, despite being in a state which has been described as having "the most complex growing environment in the nation," with its diverse weather, diseases, pests and soil conditions.

Darling said many people don't consider Florida an agricultural exporter, but in 1982 — the latest figures available — the state had agricultural exports of $617 million.

He said the exports had a significant impact on the non-farm sector of the state's economy because exports of agricultural products exert a multiplier impact of an additional $1.05 on each dollar of export sales, with 75 cents of that going to the non-farm sector.

Darling said the 1982 figures reveal Florida agricultural exports generated an additional $493 million for the state's economy and created 14,000 non-farm jobs.

At the height of the Florida harvesting season — January to April — when the citrus and vegetable crops are at their highest level, more than 138,000 workers are employed in getting the crop to market.

Darling said eight of the top 10 agricultural products from Florida each had sales of more than $100 million in 1982.

As expected, oranges led the way with sales of more than $1 billion. He said cattle and calves and dairy products ran a close second and third, each at about $350 million.

The rest of the top 10 products, in order, were grapefruit, sugar cane, tomatoes, foliage plants, eggs, broilers and soybeans.

The largest agricultural money maker among the state's 67 counties is Palm Beach. Darling said, which will surprise many people who envision the wealthy mansions and shopping areas along the coastline. It ranks as the 14th most productive county in the nation.

'24.5 percent of all civilian jobs in Florida are related to agriculture. That is above the national average and twice the number of people (employed) in tourism.'

—Art Darling of the Agri-business Institute

But Darling said there are 640,793 acres of agricultural land in Palm Beach County — 39 percent of its land area — and 95 percent of it is in crops, primarily winter vegetables and sugar cane.

Osceola County, in the center of the state near Walt Disney World, has the most agricultural acreage in Florida, but Darling said one-third of it is in pasture, one-third in forest and one-third in crops.

Florida's citrus industry has been hard-hit by three killing freezes in the last four years, and an outbreak of citrus canker, a highly contagious bacteria which kills trees but is harmless to people. Darling said only time will tell what the impact of those natural disasters will have on the agricultural industry.

The state reported this week that in the 14 northern tier counties of the citrus belt the citrus acreage dropped from 277,536 acres in 1982 to just 58,973 acres last month, a loss of 78.8 percent.

Darling said most of those areas are economically suited from an agricultural standpoint only for growing citrus.

The state's total citrus acreage now stands at 642,856, a drop of 24 percent since 1982.

Administration: Health Care Bill For Kids Not Justified

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration opposes a bill that would require employer-provided insurance policies to pay preventive health care costs for children, saying it would create more problems than it would solve.

J. Roger Mentz, a deputy assistant treasury secretary, told a Senate Finance subcommittee Monday the administration believes the measure would, among other problems, hamper the flexibility of health care programs and interfere with existing state regulations.

"More specifically, we do not believe that substituting the view of the federal government, no matter how well intentioned, for the choices of employers and employees about the benefits to be provided ... will result in a more optimal allocation of compensation and health benefits," he told the taxation and debt management subcommittee.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., the subcommittee chairman, would require businesses to include coverage for such child preventive care as immunizations and other examinations in employee health insurance packages.

Chafee noted that studies had shown "for every dollar spent on measles vaccinations, $10 was saved and for every dollar spent on mumps vaccinations, $7.40 was saved."

Chafee argued that families with limited incomes cannot afford preventive care and may wait until a child develops serious symptoms before seeking proper treatment.

"The sad truth is that 24 percent of all pre-school age children are not immunized," he noted, and that in addition to the personal tragedy of a child left retarded by measles, "the cost of lifetime institutional care can be staggering. "Preventive care not only improves their overall health but it is also cost effective," Chafee said.

Robert Haggerty, president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, told the panel that "common sense is at the heart" of the bill because under the current system, "taxpayers today are being forced to subsidize group health insurance plans which adversely affect the health of children."

The United State Chamber of Commerce disputed that argument by saying such mandated coverage plans limit flexibility and raise costs.

But Chafee contended that more money for preventive care would cut costs and curtail a trend that was "running out of control."

Former Top Lawmaker's Friend Blamed For Helping Entrap Him

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The lawyer for former Florida House Speaker Mallory Horne says a trusted friend of his client helped the government press its case against the ex-lawmaker, accused of helping a smuggler conceal drug profits.

Lawyer Dexter Douglas said review of the 90 hours of secret FBI tape recordings would show that a trusted client and friend of Horne's helped the government entrap the one-time top state legislator.

"He wormed into Mallory like a worm into the core of an apple," Douglas said of FBI informant James Mark Stroud. "He became the central instrument of the government to get Mallory Horne to do the government's bidding."

A jury was seated Tuesday and opening arguments began in the trial of Horne, who was House Speaker in the 1960s and Senate President in 1973, and his nephew and former law partner, Melvin.

A federal prosecutor promised jurors he will prove the Hornes devised a finely detailed plot to help convicted smuggler Robert John Dugan hide drug money from the IRS.

The trial comes 4½ years after the government began its investigation. The Hornes were indicted June 6, 1984, on 13 counts each of conspiracy to impede collection of income taxes, mail and wire fraud and foreign travel in furtherance of marijuana smuggling.

If convicted on all counts, they could each face 65 years in prison and $76,000 in fines. Both have pleaded innocent.

Twin Tropical Storms Tracked

MIAMI (UPI) — As tropical storm Fabian whirled in open Atlantic waters toward its doom, forecasters tracked Gloria, a younger storm, to see whether it can survive a trip across the ocean.

Gloria was born Tuesday and by 6 a.m. today was centered about 1,700 miles east of the Caribbean's outer islands and about 700 miles west of the Cape Verde islands, or at latitude 15.0 north, longitude 35.0 west.

The National Hurricane Center said it was blowing west about 10 to 15 mph.

The storm's steady winds were up to 40 mph and could intensify today over the warm water in its path. But forecaster Bob Case said a frontal trough — a mass of cool northern air — could stop Gloria from reaching the Caribbean Sea.

He said a trough was sitting in Gloria's path now but may weaken.

Satellite Insurance Curtailed

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — In a bid to cut staggering losses, a leading aerospace underwriter says his company will no longer insure the performance of communications satellites until they are safely operating in orbit.

In the past year and a half, seven costly satellites have either broken down or been destroyed in launch accidents, prompting claims of more than $600 million.

Three of the losses came last week, stunning the aerospace insurance industry and prompting International Technology Underwriters of Washington — INTEC — to change the way it does business.

"What we're saying is we aren't taking those risks anymore," James Barrett, president of INTEC, said Tuesday. "Once a satellite owner gets his satellite delivered to him on orbit we'll talk to him about it."

Weinberger: Some Military Medicine Should Be Moved To Civilian Sector

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says health care for military dependents and retirees should be put in the civilian sector to ease the burden on the military medical system and improve its wartime readiness.

"I see no need to perpetuate any system that produces an oversupply of physicians whose specialties are not relevant for our fighting forces in their time of greatest need," he told a military medical officers' meeting in Springfield, Va., Monday.

Weinberger's assistant defense secretary for health affairs, Dr. William Mayer, told the group he is "beginning to examine ways to have some portion of that non-active duty work done in civilian settings, at potential savings to both the taxpayers and the beneficiaries."

Medical care for dependents of military personnel and retired military personnel and their families generally is administered at military hospitals and is paid for by the taxpayer.

Under the proposed switch to a civilian system, the taxpayer still would pay for medical care but it would be administered by civilian organizations under contract to the Pentagon.

Mayer said the military medical system handles 1 million hospital patients and 56 million outpatient visits a year — "a bustling peacetime business of family practice and pediatrics."

Weinberger indicated civilian use of the system strains the facilities and detracts from training for care of wartime wounded.

"I do not believe that we can afford such luxuries as fully staffing a military obstetrics unit for 10 deliveries a month or maintaining expensive training programs for medical specialties that are of little or no use in war," Weinberger said.

The military medical system caters to 9 million people and

has cost $9.5 billion so far this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, a Pentagon spokesman said. The entire military medical system is under review because of allegations of poor health care at military facilities that surfaced earlier this year.

On July 29, in an "unprecedented decision," the Pentagon announced it would have civilian doctors monitor procedures at military hospitals to ensure patients received proper care.

"In the future, this department will give even greater emphasis to quality assurance measures," Weinberger said.

He said the medical force now does not meet the wartime needs of the military because it is "seriously short of surgeons, nurses, psychiatrists and anesthesiologists who would be needed in wartime."

Several civilians programs could replace the military system, Weinberger said, including health maintenance organizations, provider groups, fixed price contracts and the use of outpatient centers.

Gas Trickling Into Florida Groundwater

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A tougher law may lead environmental officials to thousands of rusted underground storage tanks leaking gasoline into groundwater around Florida.

Some 266 petroleum contamination sites have been located around the state by environmental officials. At least 6,000 more are suspected of leaking gasoline containing at least one cancer-causing agent, and they may be found when a law requiring tougher monitoring goes into effect between 1986 and 1989, said officials from the state Department of Environmental Regulation.

"This is going to become a lot more serious than it is right now," said environmental specialist Doug White. "We suspect there are a lot more tanks out there we have not addressed yet that are leaking."

Sandy soil and Florida's high water table make leaking gasoline tanks a big problem across the state. Groundwater is the source of drinking water for about 90 percent of Florida's residents.

The tanks usually leak about 10 to 15 feet below the surface, oozing right into the groundwater in many parts of the state, White said.

Old steel tanks that have rusted are usually at fault. National statistics indicate that 50 percent of all steel tanks more than 14 years old leak.

Florida has 60,000 vehicular fuel tanks and two thirds of them are made of steel.

Gasoline contains the cancer-causing agent benzene. Some types of gasoline also contain poisons including ethylene dibromide and lead.

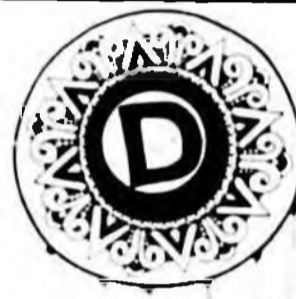

Bathing in water contaminated with gasoline can be more harmful than drinking it because of the increased intake of chemicals through the skin as gasoline is heated, said White.

The DER has been meeting with two House committees to develop a revolving fund to be used to clean up contaminated sites and supply residents with alternative water sources. The $200 million fund will probably be supplemented by increased petroleum taxes.

Yet Another Citrus Nursery Added To Canker Burn List

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — A 40-acre Coca-Cola Foods citrus nursery will fall victim to the state and federal government's scorched earth policy of citrus canker eradication.

Plant pathologists confirmed Monday that lesions found on leaves and twigs at the 40-acre Coca-Cola Foods citrus nursery near DeSoto City southeast of Sebring are citrus canker.

The Coca-Cola nursery is the 13th citrus nursery found infected with citrus canker in Florida since the first discovery was made at Ward's Nursery near Avon Park in August 1984.

Friday, pathologists confirmed citrus canker had been found in a 36,000-tree block in a Hancock Ranches grove near Arcadia southwest of Sebring.

It was the first discovery of canker in a commercial grove, but officials said the infected area involves new stock obtained from Adams Citrus Nursery Inc. near Haines City in June and no mature trees were exposed.

Citrus canker is a highly contagious bacteria that kills trees, but is harmless to humans. The only known means of eradication is to burn infected and exposed trees and seedlings.

More than 9 million young trees have been burned since the outbreak began, not counting about 3 million now being destroyed at Adams Citrus Nursery.

Canker eradication project officials said burning is scheduled to begin at the Hancock Ranches grove this week, and officials said the confirmation of canker in the Coca-Cola nursery means about about 750,000 citrus plants will have to be destroyed, along with all young trees from the nursery used as replacements in the company's 22,000 acres of groves.

Growers and nursery owners get some compensation for trees they have to destroy, but say the rate falls well below actual expenses.

Growers are paid $4.16 for replacement trees they have to destroy, but Doyle Durrance of Fort Meade recently told the Joint State-Federal Citrus Canker Technical Advisory Committee the trees cost him more like $15 to $20 each.

"Some of those trees have been in the groves for two years and it takes a tractor to get them out," he said. "My (irrigation) system gets damaged too."

Sheriff's Bike Auction Sept. 28

Shoppers looking for bicycle bargains will have 39 bikes to choose from in the Seminole County Sheriff's Department bicycle auction scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 28.

The bikes, recovered after being lost or stolen but unclaimed by their owners, will be offered to the highest bidder with cash in hand, sheriff's spokesman John Spolaki said.

Prior to the sale, the bikes can be viewed through the fence of a compound behind the sheriff's office, Bldg. 310 on 28th Street near the Sanford Airport.

Voter Rolls Being Purged

If you're registered to vote in Seminole County but haven't done so in the past two years you should be getting a card in the mail soon asking if you want to continue on the voter registration rolls.

Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard said she mailed 8,448 notices Monday to persons who have not voted in two years asking them if they want to remain on the voter list. Recipients have 30 days in which to respond.

If they fail to reply by Oct. 16 their names will be stricken from the voter rolls list and they will not be allowed to vote until re-registering, Mrs. Goard said.

Renewal And Reclamation

The start of yet another school year is a time for a new beginning and a renewed hope for this nation's public schools.

During the last two years, American education has experienced a tidal wave of reform. School days and school years have been lengthened. Nearly all of the states have raised their high-school graduation requirements. There is greater emphasis upon course content and instructional competence. The nation's largest teachers' unions have even endorsed a standardized test for beginning instructors.

These positive trends are a welcome contrast to the 1983 report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education that concluded the public schools were engulfed by a "rising tide of mediocrity." Much remains to be done, however, in order to repair the damage to American education during the last two decades and sustain the current renaissance in learning.

The obvious place to begin is to ensure that there are sufficient numbers of quality teachers in the years to come.

Nationwide, 1.3 million new teachers will be needed by 1990, and more money must be spent to fill these vacancies. Fortunately, progress is being made on this critical front. After a decade of losing ground economically, American teachers are finally beginning to regain some of the purchasing power that they lost during the last decade. The average teacher's salary is now $23,546. During each of the last two years, teachers' pay has increased more than 7 percent, twice the rate of inflation. Several states have enhanced starting salary scales in an effort to attract more qualified candidates to the classroom.

Although it is important to raise entry-level salaries, competitive salary structures are essential if public schools are to retain exceptional classroom instructors. Career ladders and merit-pay increases are effective incentives for those teachers who excel.

Nevertheless, money alone will not strengthen the teaching ranks. Schools of education must raise their standards. Yet the teacher certification process must be flexible enough to allow talented individuals to complete the requirements within a reasonable time.

Equally important are improved working conditions. A shortage of classrooms and supplies, combined with squalor, disrespect, and clerical and housekeeping burdens drive thousands of good teachers out of the profession each year. Thousands more who remain behind become progressively disillusioned by conditions that prevent them from doing their jobs.

Finally, teachers should be given greater responsibility in determining staff development and other factors that relate to their professional advancement. All too often, such decisions are made by bureaucrats who have no conception of what it's like in the classroom.

The teaching profession used to attract thousands of talented persons who were less interested in making money than in making a difference in American society. But changing times have taken their toll. Consequently, teacher-training schools tend to attract candidates who score poorly on the standardized tests. The result is that America's public schools are left with a steadily dwindling pool of dedicated professionals.

Donning Tank Tops In The Old Pagoda

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that Congress is back in session, I guess the tourist season is officially over.

Not all American vacationers took advantage of favorable exchange rates to visit Europe, apparently. Some went to the Far East instead and many others visited the U.S. Capital, which also had a favorable exchange rate.

A visitor could exchange a $5 bill for an 89-cent tank top imprinted with the words "Washington, D.C." That's how favorable the exchange rate was here this summer.

I read in one of the news magazines that Yankee tourists usually could be recognized by their costumes — unmatched shorts and tank tops. This, I think, was a bum rap.

It is true the majority wore shorts and tank tops. But I spend a lot of time nearly being run down by tour groups and I can report that most sightseers were color coordinated.

Some, alas, did wear checkered shorts with striped tops, but I always put that down to their having dressed in a dark room.

If the outfits of a few couples clashed, there were entire families that blended together in chromatic harmony. They were beautiful to see, and not just by tank top vendors.

I, for one, appreciated the effort made by most visitors to buy tank tops that went well with the shorts they had packed.

In the Far East, I'm told, the biggest tourist attraction was the Great Wall of China. Even Senate Republican leader Robert Dole and his wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, were photographed atop that historic structure.

While you're waiting for the color prints taken during your own vacation to be developed, perhaps you would like to know the reason for the Great Wall's popularity. It's because Far Eastern landmarks are not as well known as those in Europe.

Nearly everyone has heard of the Louvre in Paris, the Swiss Alps, the castles along the Rhine, the dikes in the Low Countries, the fjords in Norway, etc. But name me one art museum of Hong Kong. Or a mountain range in Japan.

By contrast, the Great Wall is familiar to most of us. Hence there is a strong desire to be photographed along its ramparts.

Running second to the Great Wall, I'm told, were pagodas — any pagoda. It didn't have to be a specific pagoda, like the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

You could take snapshots of towers that were somewhat out of plumb all day, but if it wasn't the real Leaning Tower, relatives back home would know the difference.

"Why didn't you go to Pisa?" Cousin Lobelia would demand. "Your Uncle Delbert discovered a wonderful pizza carry-out place near the Leaning Tower."

Not so with pagodas. Regardless of where you lived, if you happened to have a pagoda in your backyard you were assured of a fairly brisk tourist business, mostly by vacationers who wanted to use it as a backdrop for photographers.

Why you could even show the pictures to Cousin Lobelia and she would never suspect you didn't leave home.

Emotion And Some Hypocrisy

The emotionalism built into the process of opinion and policy formation in the United States should be a source of serious concern for thoughtful citizens. Vital national interests often are dismissed as lawmakers and members of the public are caught up in an emotional stampede.

That's what happened in the Vietnam War. The anti-war movement began with small cadres of New Left radicals who were determined to aid Ho Chi Minh. Untold numbers of Americans were swept up in the radical tide. Congress and the Johnson administration suffered a failure of nerve, and North Vietnam, a Soviet surrogate, gained control of South Vietnam.

A similar process is at work with respect to South Africa. The longtime campaign on the part of radicalized groups to treat South Africa as a pariah state began to catch fire on a few campuses last spring.

With ample cooperation from the electronic media, the campaign began to roll. Again, Congress, as in the Vietnam years, is embracing an item that's on the permanent agenda of the Left.

Ironically, sanctions won't do more than force South Africa into a siege position and create distress among black workers.

The respected Economist magazine notes that the siege economy will extend "to all of Southern Africa." If the sanctions hurt, they will hurt Zaire, Zimbabwe, Zambia and other black African states, for they are utterly dependent on South Africa's railroads.

The Economist says that South Africa will be in a very strong position even in a state of siege, presenting this scenario: "Mineral exports to America, Europe and Japan remain buoyant. Food shipments to the ever shambolic economies of the rest of Southern Africa actually increase. South Africa's growing insulation from world finance is welcomed by many Afrikaners because it reduces their dependence on imported capital."

Americans who are caught up in the emotional frenzy of the sanctions movement don't realize that South Africa is the superpower of Africa and that the U.S., the NATO countries and Japan are dependent on South Africa.

MIAs Held By Communist Captors

WASHINGTON — At the urging of anguished relatives, we've spent years investigating whether American prisoners are still alive in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. We're now prepared to announce our conclusion:

We are convinced that some Americans on the missing-in-action list have actually been held in bondage by their communist captors for more than a decade.

The latest top-secret reports identify one group of about two dozen who are believed to be doing "technical work" for the Vietnamese — repairing helicopters and other military hardware left behind by U.S. forces.

"Actually, there are more likely a hundred POWs still living there," said a key source in the Defense Intelligence Agency. He based this estimate on satellite photos, communications intercepts and human reports. "The evidence," he said,

Recovering The Past

In this tranquil summer of 1985, I detect two contrary movements in American culture, one lobotomized and one struggling to possess a kind of collective memory.

My entering students at elite Dartmouth are historically lobotomized. They have never heard of St. Paul or John Winthrop and they hardly know who Harry Truman was. Most of them could not begin to list his achievements as senator and president — except, perhaps, that he dropped the Bomb, a subject on which they have been propagandized. Many of them probably think that Roosevelt or Eisenhower dropped it.

But at the same time there exists in popular culture a reaching backward, an interest in the artifacts of the American past, and I sense that it is spreading.

A popular restaurant in my neighborhood called The Owl's Nest is graced by 210 antique lamps of the Tiffany type, several of them authentic Tiffany's. "The stained glass lamps and marble top sideboards that were the pride of your great grandmother's dining room are again someone's pride and joy. They are, in fact, our pride and joy. We offer our customers the pleasure of dining amid surroundings that once were the custom in fine houses." So begins the text on the back of the menu, which goes on to describe the antique lamps, windows, and furniture in great detail.

The word "antique," I find, has two distinct meanings: 1) something dating from before the industrial period, or 2) merely evocative of another era, such as the 1930s.

You can find antiques of both definitions available at another remarkable establishment in my neighborhood, Timber Village in Quechee, Vermont, which houses the booths of 160 dealers.

This spacious enterprise was just opened by a local entrepreneur named Edmund "Peanie" Goodwin, a remarkable local entrepreneur and self-made millionaire. Mr. Goodwin is the perfect illustration of all of George Gilder's theories on the creativity of enterprise. He has pushed ahead in real estate and countless other enterprises. He is a matter of fact started The Owl's Nest and collected the Tiffany lamps.

At his new project, Timber Village, you can visit his museum of Vermont logging, buy locally produced country hams, bacon, cheese. And encounter the past.

American country furniture, hand-made quilts, lamps used a century or more ago, plates and silverware and family portraits, table-cloths, children's toys, old guns, sword canes.

There is a taste for primitive furniture that I had never known about. An old country cabinet with fading blue paint, dating from, say 1800, is a valuable and sought-after item. Quilts are genuine folk art, anticipating indeed some of the motifs of modernist art. Patriotism and religion suffuse practically everything.

DON GRAFF

Problems With The Net

We were talking with Alan Pifer about the half-century-old American system of social programs.

Pifer, former president of the Carnegie Corp., one of the oldest and biggest philanthropic foundations, is chairman of the Project on the Federal Social Role, an ongoing study of the system's past, present and probable future.

The minor parts of the system, but the most obvious for most Americans, are the straight welfare programs that focus on the nation's poorest and least-advantaged citizens.

There is a pervasive misperception, according to Pifer, that these citizens are primarily black. The truth is that the majority of welfare recipients are white. Blacks are represented in greater proportions than they are in the total population, but in real numbers most of the people in trouble are white.

The programs in question are supposed to be the ultimate safety net, guaranteeing, at the very least, that those people unable to make it on their own will be able to survive at a subsistence level. But the net, says Pifer, is not doing the job it should. Too many people are falling through, becoming emergency cases for private charity.

"In a country that wastes as much as this country does, that spends as much on luxuries," he says, "it's a terrible indictment to have the numbers of people living in utter poverty that we do."

The primary responsibility for them cannot be left to the states and localities, although both have important roles to play. The solutions to many problems, says Pifer, can best be administered at the local level. But the problem remains national.

"There has to be," he says, "a strong federal presence, either at the regulatory level or in funding."

Nor can private interests, especially business, be expected to carry significantly more of the burden.

"The business sector is not a welfare agency," he says. "It can really only justify social expenditures to the degree that it feels necessary for the conduct of its own business." This, he says, can be for public relations purposes or because the business believes its contributions will ultimately improve the labor force or the market.

The premise of the Pifer project clearly runs counter to that of the Reagan administration in its efforts to restructure the federal social role.

paper through a shredder and forget the whole issue."

Sgt. Melvin C. McIntire, still on active duty, served in Korea with Smith and also made trips to Southeast Asia to gather information on POWs. "I learned of approximately 200 living Americans in Laos who were prisoners-of-war," McIntire's affidavit said. When he, too, reported on the POWs who could have been brought out in May 1984, he "was sent back to the United States six months early." He was later told that his and Smith's intelligence reports had been destroyed.

The Medal of Honor winner, Lt. Col. Robert Lewis Howard, now with the Special Forces in Germany, swore that he was told of live POW sightings in January 1984. In Thailand, when he "participated in a training exercise which I now believe was designed and intended to discredit the intelligence-gathering activity" of the Korea-based Special Forces unit.

POWs in Southeast Asia. The information was gathered "by talking with agents in the Thai military, the Lao resistance, the Pathet Lao, the free Vietnamese, gun smugglers, gold smugglers, drug smugglers and anyone who could provide information."

Smith said he cross-checked reports of about 50 agents, most of whom had no knowledge of each other but who corroborated the others' testimony.

In April 1984, Smith learned that three POWs could be rescued from Laos the following month. But when he took this information to a U.S. major general in Seoul, Smith's affidavit said, "I was told that if I wanted to be a Lt. Col. in the Army that I should forget about the POW/MIA information...."

Smith said when the general read the cover letters Smith had prepared, he "turned white, handed the briefing back to me and said, 'This is too hot for me to handle, big guy.'" Smith swore that the general advised him to "put the briefing

"is overwhelming."

This evidence may be forced into open court by a class-action lawsuit, which has been filed by a former prisoner-of-war and a Special Forces sergeant. They charge that federal officials have violated U.S. law by not aggressively seeking the release or rescue of live POWs still being held in Southeast Asia.

A tale of intrigue and betrayal rivaling the movie "Rambo" could unfold in a federal court in Fayetteville, N.C., the "company town" of the Green Berets.

Affidavits filed in the suit claim U.S. officials deliberately ignored or discredited reports of live POW sightings. One affidavit, by a Congressional Medal of Honor winner, even suggests that the Army tried to arrange the death or capture of the two plaintiffs in the suit.

A much-decorated former POW, retired Maj. Mark A. Smith, swears that while he was serving with the Special Forces in Korea he got information for the DIA from 1981 to 1984 proving that there were

On Death Row

Growing Number Of Inmates Near End Of Appeals Process

By Andrea Neal
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the routine of a military drill, Texas officials walked Charles Rumbaugh from his cell to the death chamber, strapped him to a stretcher and pumped poison into his veins.

The execution Sept. 11, the 16th this year and 48th since Gary Gilmore was shot to death by a firing squad in 1977, drew few front-page newspaper headlines — a sign that the quickening pace of executions is making them almost commonplace.

About 50 people held a candlelight vigil in Huntsville to protest Rumbaugh's Sept. 11 death by lethal injection. Said one of them, "More people were concerned about Pete Rose breaking a batting record than about this execution tonight."

Nearing The End
 Rumbaugh, convicted of killing a jeweler during a $54 robbery when he was 17 years old, spent 10½ years on death row until he ordered lawyers to end his appeals. He is part of a growing number of the nation's 1,540 death row inmates nearing the end of the legal ladder that allows them a trip through both state and federal courts and at least one appeal to the Supreme Court.

"The legal remedies, no matter how time-consuming, are not inexhaustible," said Henry Schwarzhild, head of the American Civil Liberties Union's anti-death penalty project. "We are now executing people in greater numbers than we have in a long time."

Said Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, "I believe it is going to gradually increase and build into a rather dramatic number of executions. Anybody that has deep feelings for humanity would be concerned about this."

The number of executed doesn't begin to approach the number of condemned, which is growing by 250 a year. Schwarzhild said the United States would have to execute between 400 and 500 people a year to get rid of the backlog.

Support for the death penalty is at a record high. A Gallup Poll in February showed 72 percent of Americans favor killing killers, compared to 45 percent 20 years ago.

"What we want to do is protect society from a repeat killing," said Dedi Streich, a Sherwood, Ore., housewife who spearheaded a successful four-year effort to reinstate the death penalty in her state following the brutal murders of several young children.

When appeals to the state legislature failed, Streich and 2,000 supporters gathered enough signatures for a referendum vote to restore the death penalty. It passed in November.

Out Of Fear
 It wasn't out of revenge that voters approved capital punishment, Streich said, but fear for their families. Statistics show 64 percent of willful murderers commit a new crime within four years of release from prison.

"We selected lethal injection. We did not select rusty razorblades or slitting throats with broken bottles or something comparable to the crime committed," Streich said. "There is no way to get even."

Oregon was the 38th state to approve the death penalty since the Supreme Court reinstated it in 1976. Most laws require the finding of "aggravating circumstances," such as commission of murder during a robbery, before a defendant can be sentenced to die.

So far, Florida has executed 13 people, more than any other state. Texas has had 10 executions, Louisiana seven and Georgia six.

On May 25, 1979, when John Spenklink became the first man to die in Florida's electric chair in 15 years, 300 people took over

Gov. Bob Graham's outer office chanting "bloodsuckers" while others chained themselves to the gates of his mansion.

Protests Dwindle
 When Marvin Francois became the 13th to die in Florida in May, only a handful of people attended the protest at the capitol rotunda.

Backers of the death penalty, such as Graham, say the dwindling protests are a sign of acceptance.

"I think there is public concern about violence in our society," Graham said. "There is, as a result of that, a desire to know something effective is being done to create a deterrent to that and a punishment for those who violate acceptable standards."

Schwarzhild said the lack of opposition to individual executions "simply means that our people figure they can't change the outcome by holding a candle in the middle of the night."

"When it becomes commonplace, unfortunately it becomes commonplace even for us," he said. "It doesn't lessen our commitment to fighting against it. It just means we do it in different ways."

Different ways already are being used in Florida, where activists decided during a meeting in Tampa last October to downplay protests and focus on politics.

Scharlette Holdman, executive director of the Florida Clearinghouse on Criminal Justice, said the group is lobbying lawmakers for changes in the administration of the death penalty.

"It was a conscious decision," Holdman said. "We have very limited resources and we also have reality staring us in our faces. It wasn't just decreasing numbers at the vigils but what was happening in the execution chamber in Starke, (Fla.)."

Holdman said the new approach seems to be winning friends in the legislature, citing passage of a law this year that creates a state agency to organize technical death row appeals.

There also is growing support, she said, for a bill to prohibit trial judges from overriding jury recommendations for life sentences in capital trials.

"The anti-death penalty movement has to deal with reform and restriction rather than a head-on campaign toward abolition," Holdman said. "We have to look at how the death penalty is applied and seek to restrict it."

The move toward restriction has made its way to the Supreme Court as well as the legislative arena. When the justices return in October for the 1985-86 term, they face several major appeals challenging the way the death penalty is used.

Racial Bias
 The court already has agreed to hear cases, one from Mississippi involving the death penalty as punishment for accomplices to murders. The other is an appeal by a Virginia inmate who will argue for the right of defendants to question prospective jurors about racial bias.

There is a good chance the court will accept two others. One from Arkansas challenges the constitutionality of striking death penalty opponents from juries for capital trials.

The other case is from Georgia, where a black man sentenced to die contends the death penalty unconstitutionally discriminates against blacks, especially those with white victims.

"In Georgia you are four times more likely to receive the death penalty if the assailant is black and the victim is white," said Pat Koester, director for the Clearinghouse on Georgia Prisons and Jails.

Koester said the pattern was documented in 1978 by Professor David Baldus of the University of Iowa. He studied all

The number of executed doesn't begin to approach the number of condemned, which is growing by 250 a year. ...The United States would have to execute between 400 and 500 people a year to get rid of the backlog.

Georgia murder convictions from 1973-78 and found that 22 percent of blacks who killed whites got the death penalty, compared to 1 percent of blacks who killed blacks, 3 percent of whites who killed blacks and 8 percent of whites who killed whites.

Similar findings were made in studies from Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina and Tennessee.

Of the 17 blacks who have been executed, 13 killed whites, even though police statistics show most black murderers kill other blacks. In 1983, for instance, blacks committed 5,511 murders but only 592 of their victims were white.

Anti-death penalty forces are watching the Georgia case closely, believing they can outlaw capital punishment altogether if they prove there is no way to make it fair.

A "Citizens Call to Halt Executions" rally was held on the steps of the Georgia Capitol this summer and attracted Corretta Scott King, the Rev. Joseph Lowery of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

Conyers, the chairman of a House subcommittee on criminal justice, said he soon may hold hearings on whether the death penalty is racially biased.

"It's being applied in a highly questionable fashion," he said. In recent years, the Supreme Court has been reluctant to further restrict use of the death penalty, despite the dozens of appeals that make their way to Washington each month.

Almost Routine
 The court ruled in 1983 that an inmate could be executed while a challenge to his sentence technically was still pending. As a result, executions are becoming almost routine. There were two in 1982, five in 1983, 21 last year, and 16 so far this year.

Also growing is the evidence available to legal experts trying to decide whether capital punishment deters capital crime.

Four of the five states with the highest homicide rates for 1984 have death penalty laws. No one is on death row in the five states with the lowest homicide rates, either because the states do not have statutes or they have never been imposed.

"There has never been a study that has shown the death penalty to be a deterrent," said Richard Brody of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund. "Take a look at Florida. In 1983, Florida had about three executions and their murder rate went down 5 percent. In 1984, Florida has the most executions since the 1920s and its murder rate went up approximately 15 percent."

In a recent speech, Attorney General Edwin Meese called capital punishment "a 100 percent deterrent upon everyone on whom it's been successfully imposed" and urged its restoration in all 50 states and federal courts as well.

Brody said Meese has "a tremendously cynical way of looking at things. That is certainly not the aim of the criminal justice system."

Dedi Streich said she believes the public agrees with Meese. Streich is disappointed her state so far has not sent a single person to death row in the eight months in which the death penalty has been in effect there.

Benny Lee Chaffin is one person she believes should be executed for the Dec. 7, 1984, murder of 9-year-old Glenda Pineda of Springfield, Ore. Chaffin kidnapped the girl, took her to his apartment and raped and beat her over a 24-hour period before strangling her with an electrical cord.

Health Effects Of Auto Emissions Discussed In Lung Assoc. Brochure

In the last three decades, usage of automobiles in the United States has increased three-fold, and the use of commercial vehicles four-fold. This has resulted in increased levels of auto-related air pollutants in many parts of the country, according to a brochure, Car Care and Clean Air, just published by the American Lung Association to observe National Car Care Month in October.

Auto emissions account for approximately 90 percent of the carbon monoxide (CO) and more than 50 percent of the hydrocarbons (HC) and nitrogen oxides (NO) in our nation's air, the brochure states.

Produced in cooperation with the American Automobile Association and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the pamphlet describes the public health effects of these auto emissions and makes recommendations to car owners on how to maintain their cars and keep air pollution to a minimum.

It discusses the importance of regular car maintenance and warns motorists against tampering with their emission control equipment and also against fuel switching (using leaded gas when their cars call for unleaded).

A copy of the brochure is available free from American Lung Association of Central Florida, 306/898-3401.

Teens Charged In Midway Shooting

A 17-year-old Altamonte Springs boy, the alleged gunman in the shooting of a 21-year-old Midway man, was arrested after his mother brought him to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department for questioning, deputies reported.

He was arrested Friday and turned over to juvenile authorities and that delayed the report of his arrest, Seminole County sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said.

The youth is accused of firing four shots at James Anthony Bradley as Bradley ran from the boy and another suspect who was carrying a stick at about 8 a.m. in Midway, deputies reported. Bradley was wounded twice in the back and remains in critical condition at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford.

The other suspect, Ed Howard Jr., 18, of Apt. #7, 555 North Lake Blvd., Altamonte Springs, was arrested at his home at about 3 p.m. Friday. Both he and the juvenile, whose identity was withheld because of his age, have been charged with attempted murder. Howard has been released on $10,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court Sept. 30.

Bradley reportedly helped identify suspects in the case, but no motive for the shooting was reported by deputies.

BROTHERS WITH POT

Two Longwood brothers were charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana after Seminole County drug task force agents reportedly saw them with the pot in the parking lot of a Fern Park bar.

The pair was arrested at about midnight Saturday at Fern Park Station, Fern Park Boulevard, Fern Park. Agents reportedly saw them with a marijuana cigarette and a plastic bag of pot outside their car, a sheriff's report said.

Victor Robert Torino, 25, of 220 Lake Gene Drive, and Alphonse Peter Torino, 27, of 104 Mowhawk Trail, were released without posting bond and are scheduled to appear in court Sept. 25.

ESCAPES ABDUCTOR

A Sanford woman reported she escaped an abductor early Saturday by jumping out of his car. Lisa G. Holt, 19, told sheriff's investigators that she was at the Deluxe Bar, 1921 Southwest Road, Sanford, and accepted a ride home from a man she had just met. She said when she realized they were going towards her home, she tried to jump out of the moving car but the man grabbed her by the arm.

She said she succeeded in escaping from the car on her second try but her foot was run over in the process. The car stopped and was backing up to her but then left when another car approached.

Her abductor was described as a male 5-foot-5 weighing 140 pounds. He has a beard and mustache and may go by the name of Jimmy. He was driving a burgundy two-door Pontiac.

TRIO ARRESTED

Two Apopka men were arrested after they interfered with the arrest of a Winter Springs man on a drug paraphernalia charge.

According to a sheriff's report, a deputy asked two men to get out of a car parked near a bar because he smelled marijuana smoke. While the deputy was investigating the situation, a third man who also apparently came from the bar started yelling at one of the men, his younger brother. The third time the deputy told the 6-foot-2, 202-pound man to butt out they got into a scuffle and fell to the ground. While on the ground, the man's brother, who's six feet tall and weighs 210 joined in the fight. After the deputy called for backup the men took his radio. With additional help, all three men were arrested.

Charged with battery on a law enforcement officer and depriving an officer of the means to protect himself were Joseph R. Read Jr., 25, of 942 Sharon Court, Oviedo, and Patrick Francis Read, 24, of 3046 Anastasia Court, Apopka. Also arrested was the driver of the vehicle, Vincent Joseph Fidel, 26, of 1429 Mr. Laurel Drive, Winter Springs. Both were released on $5,000 bond each. Fidel, who's 6-foot-4 and 235 pounds, did not join the fray and was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia. He was released on $500 bond.

BEDROOM BATTERY

A 10-year-old girl and her father reported to Longwood police that a man entered the girl's bedroom and began to untie her nightshirt. The girl screamed and the man fled. Police found and arrested a suspect near the girl's Pasadena Avenue home shortly after the 3:30 a.m. Saturday break-in.

The suspect was spotted pushing a motorcycle along Pasadena Avenue. He was questioned by police and was reportedly identified by the girl as the man she saw flee when she screamed, a police report said.

James Alan Burks, 25, of Orlando was charged with burglary to an occupied dwelling and battery. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

BREEZE SHOWS GUN

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy who reportedly saw the black handle of a handgun in the waistband of a man's pants when a breeze lifted the man's shirt searched the suspect, reported finding a handgun and arrested the man on a concealed weapons charge.

The man was spotted walking in the parking lot of the Delux Bar on Southwest Road, Sanford, at about 5:30 p.m. Saturday. The .22-caliber gun found after the man was stopped and searched held one live round and five empty shells, a sheriff's report said.

Hazelee McKinney, 43, of DeLand, was released without posting bond and is scheduled to appear in court Sept. 30.

GIRLS THREATENED

A 46-year-old drifter, who gave police no address, was charged with aggravated assault and resisting arrest by giving false information after he reportedly threatened three girls in the parking lot of a Sanford store.

The girls reported the alleged threats occurred at Fairway Market, U.S. Highway 17-92, at about 5 p.m. Monday and police reported finding man armed with a knife hiding in bushes behind Cargo gasoline station on 27th Street at U.S. Highway 17-92.

Thomas Hillary Virts, a unemployed meat cutter and cook, was arrested at about 5:19 p.m. He reportedly gave police false names and claims to live in the streets, a Sanford police report said.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Frank Kaiser, 49, of 121 Lake Rena Drive, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies that a thief took two rings, cash and an $80 stereo from his home between Sept. 11 and Sunday.

A thief broke into The Grove drug treatment center, 1670 U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, between Friday and Sunday and stole two guitars, a microphone, cord and an amplifier with a total value of $2,665. The items belong to James Wilson, 38, of 150 Olive Tree Circle, Altamonte Springs, a sheriff's report said.

Jay Bradley Coburn, 55, of 37 Sorrento Circle, Winter Park, reported to deputies his leased car, a 1980 Mercedes worth $18,000 was stolen Saturday or Sunday.

Frozen meat and two ice chests with a combined value of $245 were stolen from the garage of Jack Edward Spillane, 46, of 496 Ester Lane, Altamonte Springs, on Sept. 6, a sheriff's report said.

Jack Kalmper, 42, of 469 Meadows Blvd., Fern Park, gave deputies the name of a suspect who may have stolen a $500 mirror from his home on Saturday.

Stereo gear worth $264 was stolen from the home of Barbara Anne Ocker, 25, of 847 N. Jerico Drive, Casselberry, on Thursday or Friday, a sheriff's report said.

Gold jewelry with a combined value of $3,625 was stolen from the home of Jean K. Teasdale, 53, of 476 Rocky Roost Court, Casselberry, between Sept. 9 and 13, a sheriff's report said.

Russia On Vacation

Sulfur Baths Along With Sun And Sea

SOCHI, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — They stand to get their suntans, time their ocean dips to the minute and heed the advice of doctors patrolling the sand. Forget frying under a layer of Coppertone or skateboarding on the boardwalk. Beach vacations in the Soviet Union are an annual collective health cure.

During their yearly 24-day vacations, which can fall any time between July and October, millions of Russians are soaking in sulfur baths, lying in bubbling hydrogen sulfide springs, wallowing in mud or taking grape or mineral cures, as well as sun and sea.

Health improvement is officially what holidays are about in the Soviet Union. A poster in the Black Sea resort of Sochi spells it out: "The health of each is the wealth of all."

Millions take this seriously, streaming south and northwest to indulge their passion for all manner of health cures.

Even those whose health programs are not being rigorously overseen get the message. Glancing along the sardine-packed beaches it looks as though many people are standing because there is quite literally no room to sit.

But closer inspection of the serious looks on their faces as they stand, eyes closed and arms stretched towards the sun, reveals that they are obeying Soviet doctors' health instructions: sunbathing should be done standing up because it is more beneficial to health.

In Yalta on the Crimean coast the entrance to one beach carries a list of rules to be followed, including the amount of time that should be spent in the sea.

The first dip should be no longer than five minutes, it says, but the time can be gradually extended to 20 minutes on subsequent days. It also orders people not to swim after meals or "when drunk."

On special supervised beaches, doctors in white coats stroll among the bathers instructing when each has had enough sun or prescribing precise amounts of time in the sea.

The supervised beaches are for the luckiest, however.

Though article 41 of the Soviet constitution guarantees every citizen the right to rest, there are simply not enough places for everyone.

The state can only provide vacation accommodations for 50 million people and the demand is about three times that amount.

All holiday places — in sanitariums, hotels or camping grounds — are allocated by trade unions connected with a person's workplace. So it helps to be a diligent worker, communist party member or have good connections.

One journalist at a Moscow newspaper complained that only 10 percent of the journalists at

Because the state-subsidized places are allocated at work it is almost impossible for husbands and wives to take vacations together, but this seems to be the accepted way of life.

"Why would I want to go away with my husband — I have to see him all the rest of the year," said one Soviet woman in her early 40s.

Russians report that since so many people go on vacation singly, holiday romances are notoriously common. Children generally get packed off to pioneer holiday camps for the summer.

The most prized holiday places are in luxurious sanitariums — many of them the former estates of the aristocracy — which provide cures for all manner of disorders. In theory, sanitarium users are supposed to be suffering from some illness to get a spot, but in practice almost anyone who can wangle a place gets in.

Leonid S. Filarov, the chief doctor at the Odzhinikidze sanitarium in Sochi, showed off sophisticated equipment with which he tests arriving patients. He then prescribes different diets, exercise and sun periods.

Zinaida Mishayeva, a steamship engineer, said she was paying $76 for her subsidized four-week stay. She had been given a room to share with a younger woman from Moscow and had left her husband and two children at home.

Her carefully controlled day of massage, diet, exercise, sea and sun began at 7 a.m. and ended at 11 p.m., she said.

Down the road at the Matseta sulfur springs, director Diana F. Balashova said 2,000 patients a day have sulfur treatments, ranging from baths to localized cures — those who can stand the pungent smell, that is.

Young and old stood in lines outside doors in the cavernous marbled building, but looked rather glum as they waited for cures for rheumatism and a range of skin diseases.

New Lasers Offer Medical Promise

BOSTON (UPI) — Powerful new laser beams developed as part of the Pentagon's "Star Wars" missile defense research offer "tremendous promise" in treating cancer and other illnesses, doctors say.

The Defense Department announced this week it will give $10 million to four hospitals to begin research into the medical uses of free-electron lasers. Another $50 million may be spent during the next five years.

Free-electron lasers deliver extremely short pulses of high energy light. Doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital, one of the four institutions chosen, said they believe the lasers may be useful in medicine because they can produce a wide range of wavelengths.

"The results some years from now are likely to be ways of treating cancer and other problems that have ravaged humans — ways we can scarcely guess at now," said MGH director Dr. J. Robert Buchanan.

Ocean Floor Reveals Titanic Mysteries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The discovery of the stately Titanic resting deep below the ocean revealed the secrets of one of the greatest maritime disasters ever, allowing explorers to determine more of what happened that fateful night 73 years ago.

But the man who found the luxury liner nestled near a canyon nearly upright and undisturbed, wants to leave it that way.

"It's a memorial," said Robert Ballard, the 43-year-old leader of the U.S.-French expedition that found the wreck of the Titanic Sept. 1. "It belongs where it is and should remain where it is."

Last week he detailed his discovery with haunting black-and-white photos of the "unsinkable" luxury liner dusted lightly with sediment, remarkably intact and clear of silt and corrosion.

Aboard the U.S. Navy ship Knorr, Ballard was surprised by some objects that remained intact — French wine bottles, an upright flagpole — amid the wreckage of the great ship that hit an iceberg April 14, 1912, and sank 13,000 feet to the sea floor.

More than 1,500 died in the tragic accident, one of the worst maritime disasters of all time. Ballard found no human remains, although the freezing temperatures of the deep sea may have preserved some locked inside the wreck.

The 882-foot long ship, once an imposing 75 feet tall from her A deck to her waterline at G deck, was mostly intact. But scattered debris a half mile from the ship showed scientists for the first time that the entire stern end of the giant ocean liner had broken off and disintegrated in its sinking.

Videotapes obtained by the undersea robot Argo towed by the Knorr allowed viewers to look down the jagged hole where the forward stack broke off and see the damage inflicted on the port side of the bridge.

The Argo's sensitive cameras swung as low as 7 meters off the ocean floor to scan the wreckage, showing that almost all of the ship's hatches had been torn from the portals. Twice the Argo robot touched the Titanic, in one case bringing up a little paint — the only souvenir of the trip.

And despite eyewitness testimony generally accepted in the past, Ballard said he wasn't convinced that some of the liner's 26 massive boilers crashed through the front part of the ship's bulkheads, causing it to sink.

He found the boilers first, but they were with the remains of the ship's stern.

Scattered across the ocean floor were bottles of wine, chamber pots and a large silver tray — remnants of the maiden voyage of perhaps the era's grandest ship.

Some of the world's richest men, including John Jacob Astor and Benjamin Guggenheim, were among those who donned formal dress that night to go down like gentlemen as the orchestra played on.

One picture of the top deck showed where a giant skylight that had covered the liner's gracious ballroom collapsed. "You can see right down the grand staircase," Ballard said.

Ballard said his research convinced him that a second ship was close enough when the Titanic hit the iceberg to have rescued everyone aboard.

"People need not have died," said Ballard, a marine geologist with the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts.

Ballard's team found that the 46,000-ton Titanic was sitting nearly upright about 500 feet off the banks of Newfoundland, near where the fated ship's radio operator had sent a distress call — the world's first SOS from a sinking ship.

Because the second ship's captain didn't report his position correctly — it may have been as close as five miles away instead of the 19 he claimed — Ballard said searchers had long looked for the Titanic in the wrong place.

Still refusing to disclose the precise location of the ship, Ballard and his colleagues from the French Institute for Research and Exploration of the Sea pinpointed where the deadly ice had crumpled the iron hull like aluminum foil and gouged a 300-foot long gash on the starboard side.

The ship went straight down, Ballard said, about 2 1/4 miles, and landed gently on the ocean floor, leaving only a slight impact crater.

Charles Haas, president of the 2,300-member Titanic Historical Society, said as a result of all the findings, "All of us Titanic historians are going to have to sit down and relook at the whole thing."

Said Haas, a Randolph, N.J., schoolteacher: "History can't be rewritten in a moment."

Gold On Luxury Liner Called Myth

RANDOLPH, N.J. (UPI) — Common belief holds that the Titanic, the luxury ocean liner that sank on its maiden voyage, contained a treasure of gold bullion and jewelry that still lies intact under 13,000 feet of North Atlantic waters.

But a recent find "throws those myths right out the window," a noted expert said Sunday.

The pride of the White Star Line, preserved in its watery grave, did carry opium but never held the bullion and lost the jewels during rescue attempts, said Charles Haas, president of the national Titanic Historical Society.

Haas was given access to the ship's recently discovered cargo manifest and cargo diagrams by a source he would not identify.

"Contrary to what everyone believed, there was no bullion at all on the ship," Haas said. "The ship's cargo was basically a mundane, pedestrian commercial cargo."

The cargo included raw feathers, linen, straw, hatter's fur, tissue, auto parts, leather, rabbit hair, elastics, hair nets and refrigerating apparatus, he said.

"It's all like that — totally who-cares type material," Haas said.

Passengers' jewels listed with the purser may have amounted to a fortune, Haas said, but the entire purser's crew perished along with all records. "And ample historical documentation shows the first-class women were reclaiming their jewels for over an hour before the ship sank."

A survivor told Haas he saw "the purser's staff scooping safe material into mail bags" during the 2 a.m. sinking.

"The bags and people guarding them probably slid down into the water during the ship's final plunge. Who knows where they are now?" Haas said.

Teens Charged In Midway Shooting

A 17-year-old Altamonte Springs boy, the alleged gunman in the shooting of a 21-year-old Midway man, was arrested after his mother brought him to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department for questioning, deputies reported.

He was arrested Friday and turned over to juvenile authorities and that delayed the report of his arrest, Seminole County sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said.

The youth is accused of firing four shots at James Anthony Bradley as Bradley ran from the boy and another suspect who was carrying a stick at about 8 a.m. in Midway, deputies reported. Bradley was wounded twice in the back and remains in critical condition at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford.

The other suspect, Ed Howard Jr., 18, of Apt. #7, 555 North Lake Blvd., Altamonte Springs, was arrested at his home at about 3 p.m. Friday. Both he and the juvenile, whose identity was withheld because of his age, have been charged with attempted murder. Howard has been released on $10,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in court Sept. 30.

Bradley reportedly helped identify suspects in the case, but no motive for the shooting was reported by deputies.

BROTHERS WITH POT

Two Longwood brothers were charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana after Seminole County drug task force agents reportedly saw them with the pot in the parking lot of a Fern Park bar.

The pair was arrested at about midnight Saturday at Fern Park Station, Fern Park Boulevard, Fern Park. Agents reportedly saw them with a marijuana cigarette and a plastic bag of pot outside their car, a sheriff's report said.

Victor Robert Torino, 25, of 220 Lake Gene Drive, and Alphonse Peter Torino, 27, of 104 Mowhawk Trail, were released without posting bond and are scheduled to appear in court Sept. 25.

ESCAPES ABDUCTOR

A Sanford woman reported she escaped an abductor early Saturday by jumping out of his car. Lisa G. Holt, 19, told sheriff's Investigators that she was at the Deluxe Bar, 1921 Southwest Road, Sanford, and accepted a ride home from a man she had just met. She said when she realized they were going towards her home, she tried to jump out of the moving car but the man grabbed her by the arm.

She said she succeeded in escaping from the car on her second try but her foot was run over in the process. The car stopped and was backing up to her but then left when another car approached.

Her abductor was described as a male 5-foot-5 weighing 140 pounds. He has a beard and mustache and may go by the name of Jimmy. He was driving a burgundy two-door Pontiac.

TRIO ARRESTED

Two Apopka men were arrested after they interfered with the arrest of a Winter Springs man on a drug paraphernalia charge.

According to a sheriff's report, a deputy asked two men to get out of a car parked near a bar because he smelled marijuana smoke. While the deputy was investigating the situation, a third man who also apparently came from the bar started yelling at one of the men, his younger brother. The third time the deputy told the 6-foot-2, 202-pound man to butt out they got into a scuffle and fell to the ground. While on the ground, the man's brother, who's six feet tall and weighs 210 joined in the fight. After the deputy called for backup the men took his radio. With additional help, all three men were arrested.

Charged with battery on a law enforcement officer and depriving an officer of the means to protect himself were Joseph R. Read Jr., 25, of 942 Sharon Court, Oviedo, and Patrick Francis Read, 24, of 3046 Anastasia Court, Apopka. Also arrested was the driver of the vehicle, Vincent Joseph Fidel, 26, of 1429 Mr. Laurel Drive, Winter Springs. Both were released on $5,000 bond each. Fidel, who's 6-foot-4 and 235 pounds, did not join the fray and was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia. He was released on $500 bond.

BEDROOM BATTERY

A 10-year-old girl and her father reported to Longwood police that a man entered the girl's bedroom and began to untie her nightshirt. The girl screamed and the man fled. Police found and arrested a suspect near the girl's Pasadena Avenue home shortly after the 3:30 a.m. Saturday break-in.

The suspect was spotted pushing a motorcycle along Pasadena Avenue. He was questioned by police and was reportedly identified by the girl as the man she saw flee when she screamed, a police report said.

James Alan Burks, 25, of Orlando was charged with burglary to an occupied dwelling and battery. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

BREEZE SHOWS GUN

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy who reportedly saw the black handle of a handgun in the waistband of a man's pants when a breeze lifted the man's shirt searched the suspect, reported finding a handgun and arrested the man on a concealed weapons charge.

The man was spotted walking in the parking lot of the Delux Bar on Southwest Road, Sanford, at about 5:30 p.m. Saturday. The .22-caliber gun found after the man was stopped and searched held one live round and five empty shells, a sheriff's report said.

Hazelee McKinney, 43, of DeLand, was released without posting bond and is scheduled to appear in court Sept. 30.

GIRLS THREATENED

A 46-year-old drifter, who gave police no address, was charged with aggravated assault and resisting arrest by giving false information after he reportedly threatened three girls in the parking lot of a Sanford store.

The girls reported the alleged threats occurred at Fairway Market, U.S. Highway 17-92, at about 5 p.m. Monday and police reported finding man armed with a knife hiding in bushes behind Cargo gasoline station on 27th Street at U.S. Highway 17-92.

Thomas Hilleary Virts, an unemployed meat cutter and cook, was arrested at about 5:19 p.m. He reportedly gave police false names and claims to live in the streets, a Sanford police report said.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Frank Kaiser, 49, of 121 Lake Rena Drive, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies that a thief took two rings, cash and an $80 stereo from his home between Sept. 11 and Sunday.

A thief broke into The Grove drug treatment center, 1670 U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, between Friday and Sunday and stole two guitars, a microphone, cord and an amplifier with a total value of $2,665. The items belong to James Wilson, 38, of 150 Olive Tree Circle, Altamonte Springs, a sheriff's report said.

Jay Bradley Coburn, 55, of 37 Sorrento Circle, Winter Park, reported to deputies his leased car, a 1980 Mercedes worth $18,000 was stolen Saturday or Sunday.

Frozen meat and two ice chests with a combined value of $245 were stolen from the garage of Jack Edward Spillane, 46, of 496 Ester Lane, Altamonte Springs, on Sept. 6, a sheriff's report said.

Jack Kalmer, 42, of 469 Meadowoods Blvd., Fern Park, gave deputies the name of a suspect who may have stolen a $500 mirror from his home on Saturday.

Stereo gear worth $264 was stolen from the home of Barbara Anne Ocker, 25, of 847 N. Jerico Drive, Casselberry, on Thursday or Friday, a sheriff's report said.

Gold jewelry with a combined value of $3,625 was stolen from the home of Jean K. Teasdale, 53, of 476 Rocky Roost Court, Casselberry, between Sept. 9 and 13, a sheriff's report said.

Russia On Vacation

Sulfur Baths Along With Sun And Sea

SOCHI, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — They stand to get their suntans, time their ocean dips to the minute and heed the advice of doctors patrolling the sand. Forget frying under a layer of Coppertone or skateboarding on the boardwalk. Beach vacations in the Soviet Union are an annual collective health cure.

During their yearly 24-day vacations, which can fall any time between July and October, millions of Russians are soaking in sulfur baths, lying in bubbling hydrogen sulfide springs, wallowing in mud or taking grape or mineral cures, as well as sun and sea.

Health improvement is officially what holidays are about in the Soviet Union. A poster in the Black Sea resort of Sochi spells it out: "The health of each is the wealth of all."

Millions take this seriously, streaming south and northwest to indulge their passion for all manner of health cures.

Even those whose health programs are not being rigorously overseen get the message. Glancing along the sardine-packed beaches it looks as though many people are standing because there is quite literally no room to sit.

But closer inspection of the serious looks on their faces as they stand, eyes closed and arms stretched towards the sun, reveals that they are obeying Soviet doctors' health instructions: sunbathing should be done standing up because it is more beneficial to health.

In Yalta on the Crimean coast the entrance to one beach carries a list of rules to be followed, including the amount of time that should be spent in the sea.

The first dip should be no longer than five minutes, it says, but the time can be gradually extended to 20 minutes on subsequent days. It also orders people not to swim after meals or "when drunk."

On special supervised beaches, doctors in white coats stroll among the bathers instructing when each has had enough sun or prescribing precise amounts of time in the sea.

The supervised beaches are for the luckiest, however.

Though article 41 of the Soviet constitution guarantees every citizen the right to rest, there are simply not enough places for everyone.

The state can only provide vacation accommodations for 50 million people and the demand is about three times that amount.

All holiday places — in sanitariums, hotels or camping grounds — are allocated by trade unions connected with a person's workplace. So it helps to be a diligent worker, communist party member or have good connections.

One journalist at a Moscow newspaper complained that only 10 percent of the journalists at his newspaper are given places.

Because the state-subsidized places are allocated at work it is almost impossible for husbands and wives to take vacations together, but this seems to be the accepted way of life.

"Why would I want to go away with my husband — I have to see him all the rest of the year," said one Soviet woman in her early 40s.

Russians report that since so many people go on vacation singly, holiday romances are notoriously common. Children generally get packed off to pioneer holiday camps for the summer.

The most prized holiday places are in luxurious sanitariums — many of them the former estates of the aristocracy — which provide cures for all manner of disorders. In theory, sanitarium users are supposed to be suffering from some illness to get a spot, but in practice almost anyone who can wangle a place gets in.

Leonid S. Filarov, the chief doctor at the Odzhinkidze sanitarium in Sochi, showed off sophisticated equipment with which he tests arriving patients. He then prescribes different diets, exercise and sun periods.

Zinaida Mishayeva, a steamship engineer, said she was paying $76 for her subsidized four-week stay. She had been given a room to share with a younger woman from Moscow and had left her husband and two children at home.

Her carefully controlled day of massage, diet, exercise, sea and sun began at 7 a.m. and ended at 11 p.m., she said.

Down the road at the Matseta sulfur springs, director Diana F. Balashova said 2,000 patients a day have sulfur treatments, ranging from baths to localized cures — those who can stand the pungent smell, that is.

Young and old stood in lines outside doors in the cavernous marbled building, but looked rather glum as they waited for cures for rheumatism and a range of skin diseases.

New Lasers Offer Medical Promise

BOSTON (UPI) — Powerful new laser beams developed as part of the Pentagon's "Star Wars" missile defense research offer "tremendous promise" in treating cancer and other illnesses, doctors say.

The Defense Department announced this week it will give $10 million to four hospitals to begin research into the medical uses of free-electron lasers. Another $50 million may be spent during the next five years.

Free-electron lasers deliver

extremely short pulses of high energy light. Doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital, one of the four institutions chosen, said they believe the lasers may be useful in medicine because they can produce a wide range of wavelengths.

"The results some years from now are likely to be ways of treating cancer and other problems that have ravaged humans — ways we can scarcely guess at now," said MGH director Dr. J. Robert Buchanan.

'People Need Not Have Died'

Ocean Floor Reveals Titanic Mysteries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The discovery of the stately Titanic rearing deep below the ocean revealed the secrets of one of the greatest maritime disasters ever, allowing explorers to determine more of what happened that fateful night 73 years ago.

But the man who found the luxury liner nestled near a canyon nearly upright and undisturbed, wants to leave it that way.

"It's a memorial," said Robert Ballard, the 43-year-old leader of the U.S.-French expedition that found the wreck of the Titanic Sept. 1. "It belongs where it is and should remain where it is."

Last week he detailed his discovery with haunting black-and-white photos of the "unsinkable" luxury liner dusted lightly with sediment, remarkably intact and clear of silt and corrosion.

Aboard the U.S. Navy ship Knorr, Ballard was surprised by some objects that remained intact — French wine bottles, an upright flagpole — amid the wreckage of the great ship that hit an iceberg April 14, 1912, and sank 13,000 feet to the sea floor.

More than 1,500 died in the tragic accident, one of the worst maritime disasters of all time. Ballard found no human remains, although the freezing temperatures of the deep sea may have preserved some locked inside the wreck.

The 882-foot long ship, once an imposing 75 feet tall from her A deck to her waterline at G deck, was mostly intact. But scattered debris a half mile from the ship showed scientists for the first time that the entire stern end of the giant ocean liner had broken off and disintegrated in its sinking.

Videotapes obtained by the undersea robot Argo towed by the Knorr allowed viewers to look down the jagged hole where the forward stack broke off and see the damage inflicted on the port side of the bridge.

The Argo's sensitive cameras swung as low as 7 meters off the ocean floor to scan the wreckage, showing that almost all of the ship's hatches had been torn from the portals. Twice the Argo robot touched the Titanic, in one case bringing up a little paint — the only souvenir of the trip.

And despite eyewitness testimony generally accepted in the past, Ballard said he wasn't convinced that some of the liner's 26 massive boilers crashed through the front part of the ship's bulkheads, causing it to sink.

He found the boilers first, but they were with the remains of the ship's stern.

Scattered across the ocean floor were bottles of wine, chamber pots and a large silver tray — remnants of the maiden voyage of perhaps the era's grandest ship.

Some of the world's richest men, including John Jacob Astor and Benjamin Guggenheim, were among those who donned formal dress that night to go down like gentlemen as the orchestra played on.

One picture of the top deck showed where a giant skylight that had covered the liner's gracious ballroom collapsed. "You can see right down the grand staircase," Ballard said.

Ballard said his research convinced him that a second ship was close enough when the Titanic hit the iceberg to have rescued everyone aboard.

"People need not have died," said Ballard, a marine geologist with the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts.

Ballard's team found that the 46,000-ton Titanic was sitting nearly upright about 500 feet off the banks of Newfoundland, near where the fated ship's radio operator had sent a distress call — the world's first SOS from a sinking ship.

Because the second ship's captain didn't report his position correctly — it may have been as close as five miles away instead of the 19 he claimed — Ballard said searchers had long looked for the Titanic in the wrong place.

Still refusing to disclose the precise location of the ship, Ballard and his colleagues from the French Institute for Research and Exploration of the Sea pinpointed where the deadly ice had crumpled the iron hull like aluminum foil and gouged a 300-foot long gash on the starboard side.

The ship went straight down, Ballard said, about 2 1/2 miles, and landed gently on the ocean floor, leaving only a slight impact crater.

Charles Haas, president of the 2,300-member Titanic Historical Society, said as a result of all the findings, "All of us Titanic historians are going to have to sit down and relook at the whole thing."

Said Haas, a Randolph, N.J., schoolteacher: "History can't be rewritten in a moment."

Gold On Luxury Liner Called Myth

RANDOLPH, N.J. (UPI) — Common belief holds that the Titanic, the luxury ocean liner that sank on its maiden voyage, contained a treasure of gold bullion and jewelry that still lies intact under 13,000 feet of North Atlantic waters.

But a recent find "throws those myths right out the window," a noted expert said Sunday.

The pride of the White Star Line, preserved in its watery grave, did carry opium but never held the bullion and lost the jewels during rescue attempts, said Charles Haas, president of the national Titanic Historical Society.

Haas was given access to the ship's recently discovered cargo manifest and cargo diagrams by a source he would not identify.

"Contrary to what everyone believed, there was no bullion at all on the ship," Haas said. "The ship's cargo was basically a mundane, pedestrian commercial cargo."

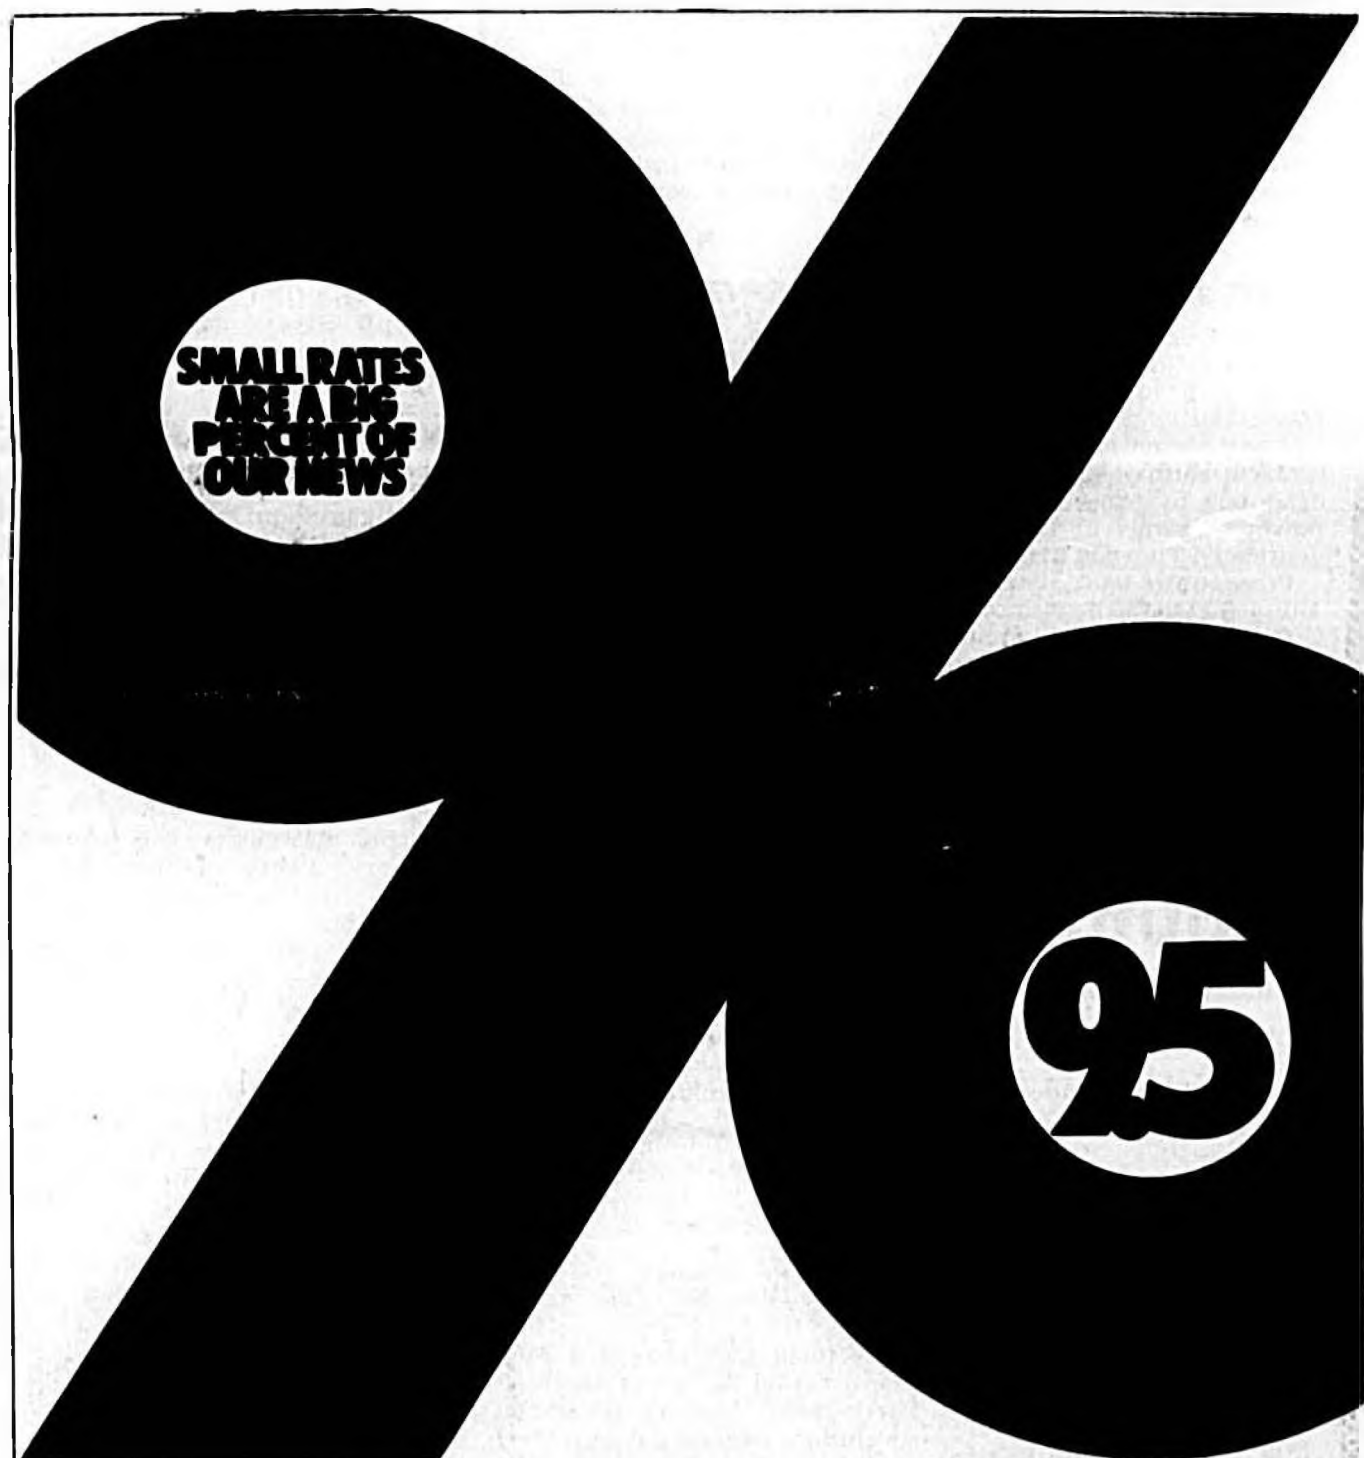

The cargo included raw feathers, linen, straw, hatter's fur, tissue, auto parts, leather, rabbit hair, elastics, hair nets and refrigerating apparatus, he said.

"It's all like that — totally who-cares type material," Haas said.

Passengers' jewels listed with the purser may have amounted to a fortune, Haas said, but the entire purser's crew perished along with all records. "And ample historical documentation shows the first-class women were reclaiming their jewels for over an hour before the ship sank."

A survivor told Haas he saw "the purser's staff scooping safe material into mail bags" during the 2 a.m. sinking.

"The bags and people guarding them probably slid down into the water during the ship's final plunge. Who knows where they are now?" Haas said.

Espionage Scandals Widen In Britain And West Germany

United Press International

A longtime secretary in West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's office defected to East Germany — marking the first time a 6-week-old spy scandal has touched the highest level of the Bonn government.

In London, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported that British government officials, locked in a spy war with the Soviet Union, expect Moscow to retaliate for the expulsion Monday of six more Soviets accused of spying.

Bonn's revelation of the latest defection to the East opened a new chapter in a six-week wave of defections, disappearances and espionage arrests. It was the first time the spy scandal has directly touched Kohl's office.

A government spokesman said Tuesday Herta-Astrid Willner, a secretary in the chancellery for 12 years, defected with her husband, Herbert, to East Berlin.

A government spokesman confirmed the secretary could have had access to sensitive reports on West Germany's nuclear program and the Western European nuclear program, Eureka.

But the spokesman denied she had seen information on President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative anti-missile project, popularly known as "Star Wars."

School Closings Spark Protest

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — White members of Parliament blamed the education minister of the separate, mixed race legislature for clashes between police and demonstrators protesting the closing of schools around Cape Town.

Police used shotguns, rubber bullets and tear gas to disperse some 4,000 protesters who gathered Tuesday in Athlone — a mixed-race "colored" suburb of Cape Town — to demand that "colored" schools be reopened.

Youths barricaded roads and hijacked buses to hamper police operations.

Police arrested 176 people — including parents, teachers and a school principal. They were released after paying $12 fines for attending an "unlawful gathering," authorities said.

Tiaan van der Merwe and Jan van Eck, of the opposition Progressive Federal Party, visited Athlone Tuesday and said the violence was triggered by the "high-handed closure of the schools" by Carter Ibrahim, education minister in the mixed-race chamber of Parliament.

Ibrahim closed schools in Cape Town's "colored" townships Sept. 6 in the wake of Cape Town's worst riots, which have claimed 47 lives in two weeks. He said schools would remain closed until order was restored and issued orders barring pupils, teachers and parents from school grounds.

Nun Jailed As Mob Messenger

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — A nun convicted of acting as a messenger for a Naples crime boss was sentenced to prison along with 136 other people in Italy's biggest organized crime trial.

Sister Aldina Murelli was convicted of passing notes for Raffaele Cutolo, kingpin of the New Organized Camorra, described by prosecutors as one of the most vicious and powerful gangs in Italy. The Roman Catholic nun was sentenced Tuesday to four years and two months in jail.

Prosecutors said Sister Murelli delivered messages from Cutolo to his top lieutenants.

Other defendants — including the one-time host of Italy's most popular television game show and a popular singer — were given prison sentences ranging from two years to 13 years by the six-judge Naples tribunal.

They were among 640 suspects indicted after sweeping police raids in June 1983. During the trial, 137 defendants were convicted and another 100 were cleared of charges.

and women "are beginning to think that they lose something, or abort a relationship if there's immediate sex."

Goldberg said relationships built on passion and physical contact fall apart faster than those starting with mutual interests or good conversation.

Edward Parnes, director of the Philadelphia Mental Health

"Women have always set the moral standards for our society," Parnes said. "During the sexual revolution, women gave up their traditional roles to have the same sexual 'liberties' as men. Women who are now holding back on instant sex may be sensing on an unconscious level. This isn't the way it's supposed to be."

Housing Starts Up, Builders Optimistic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Builders started 6.2 percent more housing units in August than in July, enough to keep the housing industry on track to another healthy year, the U.S. Census Bureau reported today.

The August gain followed a 3.2 percent decline in July and was the sixth increase in the first eight months of the year.

Builders have been encouraged by strong housing sales and lower construction loan and mortgage rates this year.

The bench mark annual rate of starts increased to 1.749 million units in August, after statistical adjustment for the season.

This 10 percent increase is above August of last year which was a weak month for housing.

The figure, however, contains other hints of a slowdown, showing that without seasonal adjustment, builders have fallen behind their pace at this time last year. They started 1.175 housing units in the first eight months of this year, 4.1 percent fewer than in the same period last year.

Starts of single family houses were up 1 percent while multi-family apartment starts jumped 15.6 percent.

Only southern states did not share in the month's increase, losing 4.1 percent in August of the starts accomplished in July.

Building permits went up 3.5 percent, suggesting more gains in housing starts to come in the next few months.

The rise in building permits will also provide the government's sensitive index of leading indicators with a plus factor when it is published at the end of the month.

Housing starts, as measured by the government, have shown large month-to-month swings this year, increasing as much as 14.7 percent in March and declining 13 percent in May.

But the trend has been for relatively solid performance this year without major improvement over last year. Compared to other sectors of the economy that has been enough to keep housing the brightest spot of the economy during a period of lackluster growth.

Most analysts do not see any major declines in mortgage rates later this year that could inspire buyers. But, if tax reform legislation begins to move through Congress developers may speed up their plans to take advantage of any threatened tax breaks.

"The number is actually lower than I expected but the overall eight-month performance is better than we thought," said economist Michael Sumichrast.

Gross also announced that construction is set to begin in six months by Beta Marine on retail and sporting goods shops to be built east of the Dock 'n' Shop store and north of the large building at the Sanford Marina. Gross is architect for the project.

Outgoing GSDC chairman Don Knight told the group the greatest need is for additional off-street parking in downtown Sanford.

He said the vacant lot at Second Street and Magnolia Avenue was designated as a parking lot in Phase I of the development plan, but it did not materialize. The city architect has been instructed to looking into possible solutions for the parking problem.

Other projects to be undertaken in the coming year, Knight said, include extending street improvements on First Street west of Park Avenue; installing attractive signs and new benches that fit into the downtown development atmosphere; preservation of the downtown historic district; and maintenance of the streetscape plantings.

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith said city officials are cognizant of what is going on downtown and plan to encourage the development group in every way possible. "The present administration is all for what you are doing," she said.

Other ways by which the city is helping is by including money for downtown development in the new budget, by hiring on a trial basis a horticulturist, Leslie Wilber, to maintain the streetscape and by establishing a proposed Historical District which has received preliminary approval and is coming up soon for a final vote, she said.

Mrs. Smith said Sanford is a unique town with great potential, but has been suffering from a poor image, which it has just begun to overcome. She said there will always be change and we must accept it and make it an asset.

Mrs. Smith cautioned the group not to limit themselves in scope and not to limit improvements to downtown.

Cosmonauts Set For Space Link-Up

MOSCOW (UPI) — Three Soviet cosmonauts aboard the Soyuz T-14 space capsule hurtled today toward a rendezvous with the Salyut-7 space station, recently repaired by two cosmonauts who have been in orbit for 101 days.

Lt. Col Vladimir Vasyutin, commander of the mission, and cosmonauts Georgy Grechko and Alexander Volkov were launched into orbit Tuesday afternoon from the Baikonur Cosmodrome, the official news agency Tass said.

They were expected to link up with the Salyut-7 space station within two days. Cosmonaut Vladimir Dzhanibekov and Viktor Savinykh have been aboard the orbiting station orbiting earth since June 6.

Tass said the two spacecraft are currently in orbit at different altitudes and have established a radio link-up.

Warrior was carried out by two military divers of the French army," the newspaper said. "Each one set a charge." New Zealand authorities have said the Rainbow Warrior was sunk by two limpet mines attached to its hull.

CBS News said Tuesday it had learned that several Western intelligence agencies, including the CIA and the British intelligence service MI6, got wind of the French plot beforehand, but not the time or place, and had warned the New Zealand authorities. The CIA had no comment on the CBS report.

The attack worsened France's already strained relations in the South Pacific nations and catalyzed the region's opposition to French nuclear testing.

Asked to comment on the Le Monde report, the Defense Ministry said it "had no knowledge" of a third French military team in New Zealand and reiterated the government's position in what the media has dubbed "The Greenpeace Affair."

"All means are and will be used to find out the truth (of the attack)," a spokesman said.

New Zealand police arrested two French officers, Alain Mafarge and Dominique Prieur, shortly after the bombing and charged them with murder and arson. The two were traveling under false Swiss passports as Alain and Sophie-Claire Turenge. They are scheduled to appear in court Nov. 4.

Three other French officers chartered the sailboat Ouvea in New Caledonia and sailed it to New Zealand, where the sloop was seen moored near the Rainbow Warrior hours before the explosion. New Zealand issued international warrants for the three, who surrendered to Paris police.

The government report, conducted by Bernard Tritot, a former advisor to President Charles De Gaulle, identified all five officers but made no mention of any other French agents in New Zealand at the time. Le

One woman mentioned to another woman that she was thinking of opening a business in Winter Park, she said. "But her friend replied, 'You don't want to go to Winter Park. Winter Park is a dying city. You want to go to Sanford.'"

Sara Jacobson, one of the driving forces behind the move to beautify and revitalize Sanford from the beginning, presented slides showing how the downtown area looked historically and prior to the streetscape and other improvements, how the corporation visualized it could look.

Miss Jacobson, said downtown Sanford was chosen as the logical place to begin efforts to change Sanford's and make it more attractive to visitors, new business and industry.

"From the marketing angle, the historical district was the best place to begin and we were successful in getting it listed in the National Registry of Historic Sites," she said. "We chose for a model area the portion of First Street between Palmetto and Park avenues, including the Magnolia Mall.

"The streetscape project was held up in the courts for two years when opponents brought lawsuits, but it finally got underway last year.

"We waited for two years until the timing and attitudes were right."

Now, she said, massive landscaping improvements are planned around city hall and the lake front and marina from Mellonville to French Avenue.

In addition to the officers, others elected to the GSDC board of directors include: developer and frozen-food entrepreneur Jeno Paulucci; Dr. Lurlene Sweeting, Seminole Community College; Don Knight, Knight's Shoes; Dot Painter, Colonial Room; Dr. Hortense Evans, Seminole County School Board; Bo Abernethy, architect; Shirley Schilke, Schilke Enterprises; Douglas Stenstrom, attorney; Mike Gray, attorney for Cardinal Industries; Rose Jacobson, Roy-Jay women's apparel; Jim Rowe, Jim Rowe's Pest Control; Bruce Berger, district manager, Florida Power & Light; Duke Adamson, president, Rich Plan; the Rev. Writer's Unfair Attack On Officials Has Castle Smoldering

I'm still smoldering over a recent article which appeared during the U.S. Open. One particular column in an area daily newspaper appeared on the sports page and was supposed to be about John McEnroe and his bad behavior on the tennis court. It proposed a boycott of McEnroe's matches and endorsements.

The story started out well enough but then pointed out the same tired, old facts that we all have known about for years. That McEnroe is a brat, a spoiled and often obnoxious person on the court. That something should be done to control him, etc. etc.

So what else is new? We all know that. Even the most casual tennis fan knows about John McEnroe and his antics. Most people also know that he gets fined a lot of money and often gets suspended for his behavior. We also know that he would be defaulted in many of his matches and kicked out of a lot of tournaments if the television sponsors and tournament promoters would let the officials do their job.

Oh well, if it isn't football or baseball some people shoot blanks.

The real problem I had with the story was not the attack on McEnroe, he deserves it and everyone in the world has already had at him, in print or on TV.

What I had trouble with were the slurs made on the United States Tennis Association (U.S.T.A.). They were called "wimps" and the implication was that they were gutless and spineless when it came to governing their sport.

All this sort of set me thinking ... remembering.

For a long time tennis had the image of a sissy, country-club, rich-person's game. Where I came from, back in

Larry Castle

TENNIS ANYONE?

Kentucky, if you even looked at a tennis court you'd get beaten up by someone. It was all football, basketball and baseball.

We had a couple of old clay courts in our town but only old people in all white dresses or all-white, long-sleeved shirts and long white pants even played. We all laughed at them and said what a "sissy" game that tennis was.

That was almost 40 years ago. Well, times have changed. Anyone who knows anything about the game knows that tennis is anything but a sissy game. Anyone that has ever been out on the court involved in a long, tough singles match, with the sun beating down on you knows what a struggle it is to keep your body moving and to get just one more ball back over the net.

They know the pressure of the big game or that big point. They know the anguish we feel when we miss the easy one or "blow" the big game. They know the inner struggle with our own mind and our own thoughts.

Not to mention the struggle with a worthy opponent. Anyone who has ever been through this knows that tennis, played on a competitive, high level is anything but sissy, anything but a "wimp."

Of course, there are still those around who feel that tennis is not a "manly" sport. That it is for only weaklings and the country club set. Most of those who think that way and talk that way are pseudo-athletes whose idea of a workout is to hoist another beer or get up from the couch long enough to get some popcorn during a TV time out at a Bucs' game.

They have never played tennis and probably lack the skills to be able to learn. So they refer to the greatest game of all as a "sissy" sport. If they only knew.

I've played almost every sport on a competition level. I've coached most of them on a competition level. Tennis is the hardest to play, the hardest to coach and takes more character than any sport I know of. It's not for the faint-hearted.

Serious Senior: Politowicz Runs The Lonely Trail

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Coach George Austin, the program builder, passed away two years ago. With him passed the best small school cross country and track and field program in the state.

Since Austin's untimely death, Trinity Prep, a name synonymous with IA state championships in cross country and track and field, has gone through five different cross country and track coaches.

After last year's spring track season, number two distance runner Katie Sams moved away. And, this fall, there is a general lack of interest in cross country at the IA school. Five girls make up the team.

All that is left is the best. But at times, being the best isn't consolation enough for Adrienne Politowicz. The Lady Saint senior feels pretty lonely. She is all that's left of what was for years upon years a IA dynasty, built and nurtured by Austin with his dedicated young runners.

The attractive senior could have found companionship elsewhere. Maybe even helped another school to a state title. She could have gone to Winter Park High for her senior year. But she felt special ties to Trinity Prep and decided to stay.

That something special was George Austin. Even though he's been gone two years, Politowicz said he is still the bond which keeps her at Trinity Prep, holding up the tradition which Austin developed.

"Coach Austin is still a big part of why I stayed at Trinity Prep," the 16-year-old senior said Tuesday night. "There was just some reason inside of me that I couldn't go to Winter Park. I guess it was coach, telling me to stay and stick it out."

She decided to run one time for her school. A school which has been good to her. Early fame came at Showalter Park at the state meet. She astounded the throngs at Showalter Park with her precociousness at age 12.

A former gymnast, the daughter of Matland's Dr. Edward and Lonnie Politowicz has a room full of medals. Her brother, David, ran for Austin at Trinity Prep. That's where the friendship with Austin was born. He was a frequent guest at the Politowicz house.

"Coach used to come over the house and ask me 'if I was going to run for him when I got older?'" Politowicz said. Then, she paused. "Well, I don't know if he asked me, I think he told me."

Austin was a disciplinarian with a golden touch for peaking his teams teams at the right time. He was also a master at bringing along young talent. And there was no one younger or more talented than Adrienne Politowicz.

She burst upon the sports scene as a seventh grader. Still looking more gymnast than distance runner, she placed 13th in the state cross country meet. In track, Trinity's seventh-grade bundle of energy made her presence felt with a third in the mile and two mile and a fourth in the 880 as the Lady Saints won the state title.

After the splendid debut, bigger and better things were expected. But they had to wait. During her eighth grade year, she pulled a hamstring and couldn't compete in the state cross country meet.

It was just a temporary setback. Undaunted, Politowicz proceeded to turn Showalter Field upside down with one of the greatest triples in Florida track history. Very simply, she won 880, mile and 2 mile. And did it all at the tender age of 12.

"That was just an incredible meet," she said. "Everything went right."

And, of course, Trinity again won the state championship. With all of the success so soon, however, there was the chance that Politowicz might get complacent. After all, what do you do after a state championship triple?

Politowicz, though, didn't see it that way. "Because of the kind of person I am, I think I needed the success or I wouldn't have stuck with it," she said. "It was the encouragement from the

Simmons Is Too Tough For No. 2

By Sam Cook

Bernell Simmons wears number 2. After his performance against the Lake Brantley Patriots Friday night, though, a promotion may be in order.

Oviedo's hard-hitting inside linebacker was just too tough for the Patriots. He collected 14 tackles and seven assists while leading the Lions to a 21-7 victory over Brantley in the Seminole Athletic Conference's first varsity football encounter.

"Bernell just had a tremendous game," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "He was all over the place. He had 12 tackles at halftime. You can't play much better than he did."

For Simmons' outstanding performance, he was voted as the Burger King Defensive Player of the Week. He joins teammate Andrew Smith who was named the Offensive Player of the Week Tuesday. Smith ran for 178 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Simmons' defensive excellence won out over several other strong efforts as the county opened its season. Oviedo's David Lockwood was right behind Simmons with eight tackles and 11 assists. Lyman sophomore Scott Radelliff picked off two passes and averaged 45 yards on seven punts.

Jones Blocks Frosh Past Lake Howell; Rams Blank Patriots

Football

Jared Jones may be just a freshman at Seminole High but terrorized opponents in the Seminole Youth Sports Association football league will attest he knows how to put one foot in front of the other in a hurry.

He ran effectively again Tuesday night as the Seminole frosh opened its season with a 20-6 victory over Lake Howell at Seminole High's Stadium. More impressive than his 109 yards on seven carries, however, was the speedy running back's crisp blocking.

Jones wiped out several Silver Hawks with authority Tuesday night, the most devastating coming when he unloaded on a Hawk and knocked him cleanly out of the way for quarterback Dwight Brinson's 47 yard TD run in the second quarter.

"Jared can do a lot of things," Seminole coach Mike Ferrell said about the younger brother of former Seminole Dexter Jones. "He's a great runner and he threw some tremendous blocks."

Jones opened the scoring in the first quarter when he broke away for 25 yards around end. A run for the two points failed but Seminole had a 6-0 lead.

Brinson, who collected 80 yards in six carries, added his 47 yard gallop later in the quarter and Jones strolled around the end for the two points and a 14-0 bulge.

Seminole added its final score in the second quarter when Jones scampered 52 yards for the score. The run again failed but the Tribe was firmly in control, 20-0, at halftime.

The Silver Hawks, who blocked three Seminole punts, finally hit paydirt at the end of the third period when Lake Howell's Mike Julian returned one of the those blocks 30 yards for the TD. The PAT run failed.

"Lake Howell came out the second half and played us tough," Ferrell said. "We had a lot of guys cramp up but our defense shut them down."

Ferrell cited linebacker Ronald Cox, David Willis, Reginald "Cheese" Bellamy and David Mann for strong defensive efforts. Cox led with an interception and eight tackles. Bellamy chipped in seven stops while Willis had five. Mann recovered a fumble when hard-hitting Leonard Richardson destroyed a Silver Hawk on kickoff return.

Seminole, which also had three TDs called back due to penalty, returns to action Tuesday at St. Cloud. Lake Howell, which beat St. Cloud last week, fell to 1-1. Coach Gee Knight's Hawks host Lake Mary Tuesday.

LAKE MARY KEEPS STREAK

A 60-yard scoring drive late in the first half and a tremendous goal-line stand in the third quarter boosted Lake Mary to a 7-0 victory over Lake Brantley in freshman football action Tuesday night at Lake Brantley High.

Lake Mary, which was unbeaten a year ago, returns to action Tuesday at Lake Howell. Coach Jim Hughes said the freshman Rams' winning streak is at 10 since they went unbeaten last season and won their last two in 1983.

After a scoreless first quarter, Lake Mary broke the scoreless tie late in the second as Arthur Bradford capped off a 60-yard drive with a four-yard touchdown run. Alex Birle added the conversion kick for a 7-0 lead.

Lake Brantley had its best scoring opportunity in the third quarter when it drove down to the Lake Mary five-yard-line where it had a first down. The Rams' defense then stiffened up and held off a fourth-down run at the one-yard line to turn the Patriots away.

"They (Brantley) had a first down on the five and we stopped them on the one yard line," Hughes said. "That made the difference. The defense turned in a great effort there. Brantley could have scored and possibly went for two."

Lake Brantley never threatened again after the third-quarter drive. "We held them down pretty well," Hughes said. "It was a super defensive effort."

Hughes said leading the way for the defense were tackles Jason Gay and Birle, end Gary Whack and nose guard David Swonger. Offensively, Hughes said the entire offensive line did well blocking for quarterback Mitch Shatto and running backs Bradford, Mike Raffner, Carlos Hartfield and Darcy Williams.

"Actually, it could have been 21-0," Hughes said. "We had more chances to score but we had about 100 yards of penalties. It was a really good team effort." — Chris Flister

Inexperienced Lady Rams Fall To DeLand

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary High's volleyball team showed its inexperience as it opened the season Tuesday with a 15-6, 15-6 loss to DeLand at Lake Mary High.

But, coach Cindy Henry said she saw some good points and that she was, "more pleased than disappointed," in the Lady Rams' performance.

"The serving and setting was very good," Henry said. "We only missed two serves in two games. And I was pleased with Betsy Perry's setting."

Only two of Lake Mary's starters Tuesday, Kathy Hodak and Aquenette Whack, played extensively a year ago. With four new starters, Henry expected the Lady Rams to be a little rough around the edges.

"We made some mistakes I figured we might make," she said. "We played very timid. There were times when we could have attacked but we played it safe. There were also times when we had poor positioning and lack of communication. Those are the kinds of things you only learn with experience."

Along with Perry's setting, Henry was also pleased with the play of Hodak and Misty Duncan.

The Lady Rams jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the first game of the match but couldn't hold on as DeLand outscored them, 15-1, the rest of the way. In game two, it was close most of the way until the Lady Bulldogs pulled away.

The Lady Rams will also have transfer Angie Capps for the Oviedo match. Capps, who Henry said could be the sparkplug of the team, had to sit out Tuesday because her transcripts had not arrived from her old school.

"Angle (Capps) is the kind of player we really could have used," Henry said. "She's really gutsy and hustles all the time. Not having her hurt us a little bit.

"I think the scores were a little deceiving," added Henry. "We didn't go out and get killed. Most of the points were really long. We're not going to lie down for anyone, we're going to give it everything we've got."

SAC OPENER: LYMAN VS. OVIEDO

Two teams expected to battle for the Seminole Athletic Conference title, Lyman and Oviedo, meet tonight at 5 at Oviedo in the first ever SAC volleyball match.

Lyman has 4 of 6 starters returning from last year's team which lost only twice in conference play and finished second in the district tournament. They include seniors Kim Forsyth, Sheila Mandy, Dawn Boyesen and Lori Helms.

Oviedo, which was unbeaten against Seminole County teams last season and also claimed conference, district and region titles, returns two starters from last year's championship team. Leading the way for the Lady Lions are Stephanie Nelson and Amy Busse.

Lake Mary's Brett Mollie collected eight tackles and seven assists. Seminole's Brian Brinson had nine solos and four assists. Lake Brantley's Steve Stark had an interception along with 11 total stops. Teammate Bobby Bodo had seven tackles and three assists. Lake Howell's Jeff Harris (five and three) and Jim Nutter (six and one) were also nominated for standout efforts.

Offensively, most of Smith's competition came from other running backs. Mark Schnitker, Howell's bruising fullback, had 177 yards and also scored two TDs. Cornelius Friendly, Brantley's swift tailback, turned in 99 yards along with a 60-yard TD jaunt. Howell's Terry Gammans ran for 28 yards and caught three passes for 55 yards.

In other awards Tuesday, the Optimist Club of Sanford feted Seminole's Brian Brinson and Dwayne Willis at its weekly luncheon at Western Sizzlin. Brinson and Willis were selected by the Tribe coaching staff as the outstanding defensive and offensive players in Friday's loss to Titusville Astronaut.

Ernie Butler, president of the Optimists, said this is the 11th year that Sanford's most sports-minded club has honored the players of the week.

Oviedo's Smith and Howell's Schnitker are 1-2 in the county in rushing in statistic released Tuesday by the county coaches. Smith has 178 yards while Schnitker is one behind. Smith and Schnitker led the scoring with two TDs each.

In the passing department, Howell's Mark Wainwright completed 7 of 10 for 95 yards.

Lyman Junior Robert Thomas leads the receivers with four catches for 34 yards. Lake Mary's Byron Washington and Oviedo's Mark Stewart are next with three each.

Lyman soph Scott Radcliff boomed seven punts for a 45.0 average against Boone. Brantley's Dave Deffiacco is second with 40 yards per boot.

Defensively, Bernell Simmons has 14 tackles and seven assists for 21 total to lead teammate David Lockwood who had eight solos and 11 assists for 19.

Oviedo's Pete Lingard has two fumble recoveries to pace that category.

Cook Of The Week

Gathering Of The Clan A Sentimental Journey Steeped In Tradition

By Dorothy Greene
Herald Correspondent

The role of motherhood suits her just fine, says Armillda Covington, our Cook of the Week, whose home and family are the most important part of her life. "Motherhood is still my first love, especially the infant stage," she says. "Nobody likes that stage because they cry a lot and have to be changed a lot, but I do."

Even though she has worked outside the home off and on over the years, Armillda now enjoys caring for an infant in her home and, she says, "I've just fallen for him. And the fact that I'm doing something to help his mother so that she can go to work with a free mind," Armillda says, "is comforting."

Armillda's memories begin all the way back in Pisgah, Ala., "not a town, just a little place in the Sand Mountain area," she says, "where Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama come together."

Armillda and her sisters were raised by their grandparents for several years and she fondly refers to them as Mama and Papa. "Mama had the most influence on us. I can't say enough about her. She had a recipe for Cinnamon Rolls with Custard Sauce that I have re-constructed from my memory of watching her do it. It's a recipe that means the most to me, sentimentally, because we lived with her. Even now, my daughter always requests these on her birthday instead of a birthday cake. My family really likes them," says Armillda.

Living in a rural area while growing up, Armillda recalls going to a one-room school house where "each row had a different grade." As the oldest child, Armillda remembers her grandmother calling her "the lead sheep. She said, 'If you train your lead sheep, then the others will follow,' and that's a responsibility I've sort of had all my life."

An early dream of Armillda's was to become a nurse. "I took the math courses, two years of Latin, and all the courses I needed to prepare me, but circumstances prevented me from going any further. There's a part of me that still wants to be a nurse and I haven't given up the idea yet. I don't think my brain is so mushy that I couldn't go back to school and be a nurse if I wanted to," she laughs. "And since my husband is retiring in December, I may do that."

Armillda's 32-year marriage to Harvey Covington, Sanford postmaster, has given them the joy of raising six children, three of whom are still living at home. "There's something I don't ever let him live down," says Armillda with a chuckle, "and that's the fact that he wanted to be a bachelor, live by himself, and have a big dog. But instead, he got married, had six children and has a little dog."

Armillda and Harvey met when she was working at the Wilson Furniture Co. in downtown Sanford and he was a fireman in the old firehouse just next door. "He was very shy," she says, "and he used to ride by and look at me all the time. He couldn't get up enough nerve to talk to me. Then one day one of the other firemen called to me and said there was someone he wanted me to meet. We started dating in March and were married in October of 1953."

The Covingtons are looking forward to Harvey's retirement in December after 36 years service with the U. S. Post Office, and holiday time this year will be something special when all the family will be together. "They'll all be home together for the first time in a while," says Armillda. Lynn, Jimmy and Scott along with their spouses and four lovely grandchildren will be joining Cathy, Dana and Caryn to complete the family circle.

"Dana is the traditional one in the family," says Armillda. "She wants everything the same way ever year. She gets very excited at Christmas time and she does all the cleaning, all the decorations, and she gets to put the first ornament on the tree. Our menu stays pretty much the same and baking is pretty much the same. They count on the same things every year. At Halloween time they still have a Jack-O-Lantern, and I don't care how old they get, they'll always want an Easter basket." Armillda confides that as old as the children are, they still like Daddy to read "Twas The Night Before Christmas" to them. "Dana lights all the candles, puts on Christmas music, and they gather 'round their Daddy and he reads to them," says Armillda. "We've very family-oriented, and I don't apologize for it."

Good things come from the kitchen all year 'round at the Covingtons', not only at holiday time. Armillda says she has worn out two good cookbooks and has accumulated scores of favorite recipes. Among her precious keepsakes is a cookbook which belonged to her grandmother and is more than likely a collector's item. It is a turn of the century edition of the "Home Comfort Cook Book," provided by the Wrought Iron Range Co., of St. Louis, to purchasers of their 'modern' cook stove, and dedicated to the 'greatest of all institutions' — the American Housewife. The recipes, household hints, old fashioned remedies, and 'formulary' for making soap, lard and paper hangers' paste are a delight to read.

Another family treasure which Armillda holds dear is a collection of original poems written by "Papa," her grandfather, which reveal the wisdom of his observations over a lifetime.

In the crafts department, Armillda confesses that she has tried several projects but not always with success. "I would love to say that I can do arts and crafts," she laughs, "but I tried making a stuffed, green velvet Christmas tree one year, and when I got through with it, it looked like a green velvet octopus! It didn't resemble a tree at all." Armillda does, however, have a talent for needlework and has made some lovely smocked pillows. "I've learned a little bit about quilting," she says, "but I haven't made a quilt on my own. A group of women at church get together and make quilts for our young brides, and we make lap robes for people at the nursing homes. We also make stuffed toys for children in the hospital."

An active member of the Church of Christ in Sanford, Armillda has taught Sunday School classes all her Christian life. "I feel that your religious convictions are your 'anchor' in life," says Armillda. "Without that to bank on, I may not have been able to cope with some problems. We are devoted to that conviction; it's part of our fiber."

'Other Woman' Willing To Wait Gets A Man Who Cheats On Wife

DEAR ABBY: A very dear friend of mine is having an affair with a married man. She divorced her husband of 14 years to be free for "Joe." Joe lived with my friend for a few months, then moved back home because his children "needed" him. Joe goes to my friend's place three or four mornings a week for coffee and sex. The rest of the time he is with his wife. Joe has given my friend some expensive gifts and takes her on some business trips, which is all she lives for. She's beautiful and smart and has everything going for her. I've tried to tell her she's wasting her time, but she says she loves Joe and he's worth waiting for.

I know you get lots of letters from women who are waiting for married men to leave their wives. Can you send me a few dozen? If I show them to my friend, she may see the light. Thanks.

ALL TALKED OUT IN DALLAS

DEAR TALKED OUT: A thousand letters wouldn't convince your friend. She's in love. And love is a mental condition; it doesn't respond to logic. A woman in love cannot learn from the experiences of others because she perceives her love as unique — unlike any other.

Occasionally a married man will divorce his wife and marry the other woman. So what does the other woman get? A man who cheats on his wife.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Please proclaim a day in the near future for people everywhere to check their cupboards and refrigerators for plates, platters, trays, bowls, dishes — for whatever doesn't belong to them. In appreciation of someone's thoughtfulness, I do think we should promptly return the dishes to whomever they belong.

In case some of us don't know any better, you tell 'em, Abby!

DINAH, WHO WILL FEEL MUCH FINER WHEN FOLKS IN CAROLINA RETURN MY CHINA

DEAR DINAH: All right, I'm telling 'em. Now if only they can remember where they got 'em.

DEAR ABBY: I hired a self-employed contractor to install a swimming pool in our back yard. He arrived on the job with two helpers. One was his son who had brought along his child, about 3 or 4 years old. Neither the contractor nor his son knew where the little boy was or what he was doing half the time, and they spent a lot of time looking for him. Meanwhile I was paying $40 an hour for services that I did not receive. I couldn't even go shopping because I was asked to lock up the house because the child needed access to the bathroom frequently.

A friend of mine had a similar experience. She called a plumber who arrived with a small child, who proceeded to take the house apart while the plumber was busy under her kitchen sink.

These men would not be able to take children with them if they worked in a factory or office, so why do they take them on jobs at homes? (The plumber's excuse: "I want to give my wife a break.")

Abby, what would you have done in my place?

TIMID IN LOUISIANA

DEAR TIMID: As soon as the contractor arrived with the child, I'd have told him to please take the child home and leave him there. He had no business bringing the boy in the first place — it was unfair to the child and unfair to you, but he had nothing to lose by trying. Moral: The timid will be taken advantage of unless they learn to speak up.

Southern Ballet Theatre Series Begins With 'Music In Motion'

Southern Ballet Theatre announces its 12th season as Central Florida's only professional ballet company.

The subscription series "Music In Motion" starts on Oct. 25 with SBT's vivid adaptation of Shakespeare's play "Midsummer Night's Dream." Lesley Brasseux's highly acclaimed "Bachanale" returns to the stage of the Bob Carr and resident choreographer Russell Sultzbach brings George Gershwin's "Piano Concerto in F" alive with Southern Ballet Theatre's professional dancers.

In December Southern Ballet Theatre returns from its statewide "Nuttercracker Tour" and presents to Central Florida the only professional "Nuttercracker Ballet" available in Orlando. All performances will be in the beautiful intimate Valencia Performing Arts Center on the East Campus right off East-West Expressway and East Colonial Drive. The dates are Dec. 11-15.

Southern Ballet Theatre plays host to "The Atlanta Ballet" on Feb. 14-15 at the Bob Carr. The Atlanta Ballet is the oldest regional ballet company in America and has been selected as the new resident dance company by the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Something new is going to happen at the Bob Carr on April 11 when Southern Ballet Theatre brings together the three official state touring companies of Florida: Southern Ballet Theatre, Florida Ballet at Jacksonville, Dance Alive of Gainesville. This will be the first time that the three companies have ever appeared in concert together.

The season closes with the Florida symphony in the orchestra pit with Maestro Alfred Savla conducting. The company will present George Balanchine's "Allegro Brillante," San Francisco's "Con Amore" and a world premiere of a new ballet. This performance will be at the Bob Carr on May 16.

Prices for subscribers are the following: section A, $68; section B, $55; and section C, $34.

Free Demo In Jazzercise At Penney's

J.C. Penney and Jazzercise Inc. will present a free demonstration Sept. 28 at 1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. at the Sanford Plaza J.C. Penney store.

Participants will be Claudia Almand (Jazzercise instructor), Cathy Bernosky, Linda Bishop, Carol Gillan, Mary Houck, Ginger LaMoso and Cheryl Ray.

In addition to the demonstration there will be free balloons for children, an information table about Jazzercise classes, free emery boards and a drawing for one pair of Ladies Athletic Shoes, as well as a discount on dance and exercise wear.

RECIPE CONVERSION STEPS

1. Check your oven cookbook for the category of foods in which your recipe falls (meats, vegetables, casseroles, desserts, etc.) to see if it is included as a suitable one for microwave ovens. Some foods (souffles, angel, sponge or chiffon cakes, fried items, puff pastries, pot pies, doughnuts, pancakes, etc.) don't cook well in the microwave oven. Recipes which use moist cooking and those that can be stirred or turned work best.

2. Find a recipe in the oven cookbook that is similar to the one you want to convert. Compare ingredients, proportions, quantities and cooking procedures. Use this as a guide for basic conversion.

3. Substitute microwave-safe glass, plastic or paper utensils for metal ones. To prevent overflow of foods with high liquid content or those that will rise, use a slightly larger or deeper container than the one called for in the conventional recipe.

4. Reduce major liquid in a recipe by about 1/4 and add toppings after the final stirring or turning.

5. Reduce cooking time to about 1/4 or 1/2 the conventional time specified.

Crossing the country as a media spokesperson for a Fortune 500 company sounds like an exciting job. "And it is," says Joy Schrage, consumer spokesperson and home economist for the Whirlpool Corporation in Benton Harbor, MI, one of the world's largest manufacturers of major home appliances. But, as with other jobs, even the most glamorous or challenging moments can be tiring.

For example, scheduling sometimes stretches beyond normal 8 to 5 hours. Consumers are always ready to listen or to question, whether during a 6 a.m. telecast of "Good Morning San Antonio" or an 11 p.m. consumer call-in program in Salt Lake City.

The time of day doesn't seem to matter, however. Ms. Schrage takes advantage of every opportunity to communicate with consumers. She is firmly convinced that home economists are uniquely qualified to represent consumer interests within a company and to serve as the communications connection between that corporation and the consumer.

Such a philosophy represents Ms. Schrage's own professional lifestyle. She is the national chairman of the Home Economists in Business (HEIB), a section of the 33,000 member American Home Economists Association. HEIB members work in the business community in positions from lab technician to corporate vice-president. While job titles may vary, Ms. Schrage notes that the primary goal of business home economists is singular: to help the company meet customer needs.

With 17 years at the Whirlpool Corporation behind her, Ms. Schrage helped cultivate that close relationship between company and consumer. She has been involved in consumer education and representation during product design and development, earned a U.S. patent for a permanent press cycle on a Whirlpool washer, and offered how-to information and solved performance problems on Whirlpool appliances.

Now, as Manager of Communications, Ms. Schrage has established the Whirlpool Appliance Information Service (AIS). Designed to accommodate changing consumer needs, the AIS program includes the research and development of generic materials for disabled consumers, latch-key kids, energy, service and new technology on appliances.

Ms. Schrage's connection to home economics actually began after Whirlpool. This Alabama native holds a B.S. degree in textiles from the University of Alabama, an M.S. degree in housing and equipment from Auburn University and an M.B.A. from Indiana University. In 1981, Ms. Schrage was one of 50 distinguished graduates named as honorary professors by the University of Alabama.

Professionally, she has worn many home economics "hats." Ms. Schrage has worked as a high school teacher, an extension specialist in management at Texas A&M University, a recreation specialist for the Department of the Army in Korea, a fabric designer and a home service specialist for the Georgia Power Company.

This home economist considers her relationship with HEIB as reciprocal. The office of national chairman requires personal as well as work time. Yet, Ms. Schrage feels her investment is small for the benefits she's received from HEIB.

Traveling takes about 60 percent of her schedule. No matter where she is, Ms. Schrage always finds new questions to answer. She prefers those inquiries outside her specialty area simply because they offer new opportunities for research and ideas.

Whether it's a microwave conversion formula or a request from one of her three grandsons, Ms. Schrage is always ready with her reply. She says her family has a difficult time keeping track of just where she is. Yet, both she and they know at least one shopping expedition is essential to answer the expected question. "Gramma, what did you bring me?"

Following are Ms. Schrage's basic steps for conversion from conventional to microwave cooking (a frequent consumer request) plus a few sample recipes to illustrate the process.

MEAT LOAF
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1/2 cup coarse cracker crumbs
(1/4) cup milk
2 eggs
1/4 cup chopped onion
(1) 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Dash dried thyme, crushed
Dash dried marjoram, crushed
1/4 cup catsup
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Conventional: Preheat oven

350° F. Combine eggs and milk; stir in crumbs, onion, salt, thyme, and marjoram. Add ground beef, mix well. Pat mixture into an 8x4x2-inch loaf pan. Bake uncovered for 1 1/4 hours. Spoon off excess fat. In small mixing bowl combine catsup, sugar, and mustard; spoon over meat. Return to oven; bake 10 minutes longer.

Microwave: Mix as shown. Pat mixture into a 5 1/2 cup glass ring mold or loaf dish. Cook 16 minutes at medium high Power (70%), rotating dish a quarter turn every 4 minutes. Spoon off any excess fat. Combine catsup, sugar and mustard in a small home include listening to classical music, which can be a soothing respite at the end of the day. "And Harvey spends his time growing orchids," says Armillda, as she points out a windowful of picture-perfect blossoms. "He grows them and I enjoy them," she says.

Proud of her family, Armillda says that whether she is working or away from home for any length of time, she can rest assured that they can run the household very well. "They all pitch in if they have to. They can grocery shop, they can cook, and they can do the laundry, so if I am not here, they know what and where and how, and they can manage," says Armillda.

Topping the list of nostalgic family favorites below is 'Mama's' Cinnamon Rolls with Custard Sauce recipe. In addition, Armillda is sharing some tasty dishes for everyone to enjoy!

CINNAMON ROLLS WITH CUSTARD SAUCE

Prepare any good biscuit recipe (except buttermilk). Roll out into fairly thin circle. Sprinkle generously with cinnamon and sugar, then dot with butter or margarine. Carefully roll dough in jellyroll fashion and cut into 1/2" slices. Place slices in a 13x9x2 inch glass baking dish. Bake at 450° about 20 minutes. Cool.

Custard Sauce:

2 cups milk, scalded
1/2 cup sugar
3 egg yolks
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Beat egg yolks, salt and sugar. Gradually add scalded milk. Cook in top of double boiler, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Pour over baked, cooled cinnamon rolls. Makes about one dozen rolls.

FINE BARK FISH STEW

6 slices bacon
6 medium sized onions
2 1/2 cups canned tomatoes
3 pounds fish, cut in pieces
Salt, black and red pepper to taste
2 pints water
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup catsup

Fry bacon crisp. Remove from pan. Fry onions in bacon drippings. Add tomatoes and boil until tomatoes are thoroughly cooked. Add water and butter, boil 10 minutes. Drop in fish pieces. Season with salt and pepper, Worcestershire sauce, and catsup. Simmer slowly until fish is tender. Break bacon into small pieces and drop into stew. Serve on bread or rice. Serves 6-8.

YORKSHIRE CHICKEN

2 1/2-3 pounds chicken, cut up
1/3 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 teaspoons sage or poultry seasoning
Mix dry ingredients and coat chicken well. Brown chicken pieces in small amount of shortening or cooking oil.

Make a pudding of:

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup parsley flakes
1 1/2 cups milk
1/4 cup margarine, melted
Pour over chicken in a large covered casserole dish and bake at 350° for 1 hour. Serves 6-8.

BEAN SALAD

Drain and arrange in large bowl:
1 can green beans
1 can wax beans
1 can lima beans
1 can kidney beans
1 medium green pepper, sliced
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
Mix together:
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup salad vinegar
1/2 cup salad oil
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon tarragon leaves
1/2 teaspoon basil leaves
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
Pour mixture over beans and let stand several hours or overnight.

SUNSHINE SALAD

1 pkg. lemon Jell-O (3 oz.)
1 pkg. orange Jell-O (3 oz.)
2 cups boiling water
40 miniature marshmallows (1/2 cup heaped)
2 bananas, diced
1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple, drained (reserve juice)
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add marshmallows and stir until melted. Add 1 1/2 cups cold water and pineapple. Add bananas; let set in refrigerator.

Topping:

1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup reserved pineapple juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup whipped cream or Cool Whip
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Combine first five ingredients and cook over low heat until thick. Place in refrigerator until cold. Fold 1 cup whipped cream or 1/2 of 9 oz. container Cool Whip into cold topping. Spread over congealed salad. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup shredded cheese. Chill. Serves 6-8.

SPLIT PEA SOUP

8 cups cold water
1 ham bone or ends of baked ham or ham butt
2 cups split peas
1 medium onion, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Wash peas in colander. Combine all ingredients in large pot, bring to a boil, then cook over low to medium heat until peas are very soft and soup is a lovely green color. Serves 6-8.

HEAVENLY HAMBURGER

2 pounds ground beef
1 can tomato soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1/2 box sea shell noodles
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
1/2 pint sour cream
6-8 green onions, chopped
Grated Cheddar cheese, to taste
Brown ground beef in skillet. Add both cans soup, undiluted. Cook sea shells according to package directions; drain. Mix cream cheese and sour cream together. Using a 13x9x2-inch baking pan, layer in the following order: noodles, meat mixture, cheese and sour cream mixture, green onions and grated cheese. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes. Serves 6-8.

All-American Apple Pie Colonial Cooks' Special

The All-American Apple Pie came from England with the early settlers. Because every colonial housewife knew how to make it, early American cookbooks seldom included a recipe for a basic apple pie.

APPLE PIE

2 pounds apples, cored, peeled, sliced (about 6 cups)

1 tablespoon lemon juice
3/4 cups sugar
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 tablespoon margarine

Roll out one-half of pastry on lightly floured surface to 11-inch circle. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry allowing 1-inch overhang. In large bowl, toss with apple slices and lemon juice. In small bowl, stir together sugar, corn starch and cinnamon. Spoon apple mixture into pastry-lined plate. Dot with margarine. Roll remaining pastry to 12-inch circle. Cover pie with pastry; seal and flute edge. If desired, re-roll excess pastry; cut out apple shape. Place in center of top crust. If desired, brush crust lightly with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Make several slits in top crust to permit steam to escape. Bake in 425° oven 50 minutes or until crust is golden and apples are tender. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Microwave Magic

Squash Family Offers Flavor, Color, Texture

The term "summer" and "winter" squash refers to the type of squash rather than when it is available. Some variety of either type is in the market at all times.

"Summer" squash are tender, very moist and the seeds are edible. The smaller ones are best. Zucchini, yellow crookneck and pattypan are the most common.

"Winter" squash are mature and have hard rinds. The seeds are tough and inedible. Hubbard, spaghetti, butternut, acorn and buttercup are just a few of these squashes, sometimes called Yankee squash.

This vegetable family offers a wide variety of flavor, color, and texture that is rich in Vitamin A. All of the squash varieties microwave well if a few rules are

MICRO-HELPS

Microwave on 100% power. Microwave with a cover, either a container cover or plastic wrap.

Recently a friend gave me a buttercup squash fresh from his garden. Knowing that it was fresh I chose to microwave it whole, then remove the seeds and stringy pulp and lightly season with butter, salt and pepper. The sweet delicate flavor and juicy content are kept in tact when cooked in the microwave oven. All the goodness was kept inside as it cooked. Try it that way the next time you get squash fresh from the garden. It is really a treat!

Acorn squash is always shaped like an acorn, but it may have dark green or yellow-orange rind. The inside is yellow and has a mild nut-like flavor.

ACORN SQUASH WITH APPLE AND PECANS

- 2 med. acorn squash, halved, seeds removed
 - 1/2 cup water
 - 1/4 cup butter, melted
 - 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 - 2 small apples, peeled, cored, cubed
 - 1/4 cup chopped pecans
- Place squash in a 12x8 baking dish with the cut side up. Pour water in the pan. Set aside. In medium bowl stir together all remaining ingredients, except pecans. Divide mixture evenly among squash halves. Cover. Microwave on 100% power 8-9 minutes or until tender. Let stand 5 minutes. Sprinkle with pecans.

This calorie-wise recipe makes good use of natural sweet orange concentrate and dill for unusual flavor.

SQUASH A LA ORANGE

- 1 medium acorn squash
 - salt
 - 1 tablespoon margarine
 - 1 tablespoon frozen orange juice concentrate
 - 1/4 teaspoon dill weed
- Pierce squash several times to allow steam to escape. Place squash on a paper plate in microwave oven. Microwave on 100% power, 8-10 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes. Cut in half crosswise. Remove seeds. Place cut side up on microwave-safe serving plate. Sprinkle with salt. Divide margarine, concentrate, and dill weed between halves. Microwave on 100% power 2-3 minutes or until squash is glazed.

I keep finding ways to use zucchini squash. This recipe for a round meat loaf with a vegetable filling is good as well as being a little unusual.

ZUCCHINI-FILLED MEAT LOAF

- 2 cups sliced zucchini
 - 1 small carrot, shredded
 - 1 small onion
 - 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
 - 1 pound ground beef
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 1/2 cup quick rolled oats
 - 3/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon
 - 1/4 cup sour cream
- Combine zucchini, carrot, and onion in a 4-cup measure. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on 100% power 3-4 minutes or until just about tender. Stir in garlic salt. Drain liquid, reserving 2 tablespoons.
- Combine beef, milk, oats, salt and pepper. Mix well. Divide mixture in two equal portions. Flatten one portion in an 8-inch round microwave-safe baking dish covering bottom of dish. Spoon zucchini mixture over spreading to within 1 inch of edge. Spoon remaining meat on top of zucchini. Using a fork, carefully pat and spread meat mixture to cover zucchini; seal edges. Cover with wax paper. Microwave on 100% power 10-11 minutes or until center bottom is no longer pink. Combine two tablespoons reserved liquid and sour cream and spread over meat. Garnish with parsley or chives and cut into wedges.

By combining several summer squash such as zucchini, yellow crookneck and patty pan you have a colorful vegetable dish that would please most taste buds. Because this type of squash is somewhat bland in flavor it lends itself to seasoning with herbs and stronger flavored vegetables.

SUMMER SQUASH ITALIAN

- 1 cup zucchini squash, sliced
 - 1 cup yellow crookneck squash, sliced
 - 1 cup pattypan squash, sliced
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 1/2 green pepper, chopped
 - 1/2 tablespoon oil
 - 1/2 teaspoon basil
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - Dash of pepper
- Combine all ingredients except tomatoes in 2-quart casserole. Cover. Microwave on 100% power 4-6 minutes or until squash is tender. Stir in tomatoes. Recover, microwave on 100% power 1-3 minutes, or until tomatoes are tender.

Pattypan squash is white, so keep that in mind when planning to serve it. Make the rest of the meal colorful to be appetizing.

SEASONED PATTYPAN

- 4 cups cubed patty pan squash
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1 tablespoon water
 - 1 teaspoon chopped chive
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
 - Dash nutmeg
 - Dash pepper
- In 1 1/2-quart casserole combine all ingredients. Microwave on 100% power 6-8 minutes, or until tender. Stir several times during the cooking. Let stand five minutes.

MICRO-HINT: The seeds of winter squash are like the seeds of a pumpkin (also a winter squash). They can be roasted and salted and eaten as a snack.

Cheesy Italiano Broil Is A Colorfully Robust Super Supper Sandwich

Hearty, spicy — and colorfully robust — cheesy Italiano Broil is an altogether sensational super supper sandwich that's ready to serve in minutes. The succulent open-face sandwich features broiled Italian sausage, topped with Velveeta extra thick slices pasteurized process cheese spread ... served on a crusty roll spread with pizza sauce. Sautéed green and red pepper rings add crisp, bright flavor and color to the melted golden cheesy topping.

Rich tasting, and up to 60& thicker, new extra thick slices are a blend of cheddar and Swiss natural cheese ... milk and other wholesome ingredients. They melt smoothly and easily and — individually wrapped for convenience — make quick work of sandwich preparation.

Because most sandwiches are best assembled and served immediately, last minute preparation for a crowd is easier with ready to use extra thick slices and a menu that features one big hero-style sandwich. Oriental Long Loaf — a Polynesian style big burger topped with slices of pineapple, green pepper and melted extra thick slices — serves eight.

ITALIANO BROIL

1 pound Italian sausage, split
1 green pepper, cut into rings
1 red pepper, cut into rings
1 tablespoon Parkay margarine

2 French bread rolls, cut in half lengthwise

1 8-oz. can pizza sauce

4 Velveeta extra thick slices pasteurized process cheese spread, cut in half

Place sausage on rack of broiler pan. Broil on both sides to desired doneness. Sauté peppers in margarine. Spread rolls with sauce. For each sandwich, top one roll half with sausage, pro-

ORIENTAL-STYLE LONG LOAF

1 pound ground beef

2 tablespoons soy sauce

1/2 teaspoon ground ginger

1 14x2-inch French bread loaf, cut in half lengthwise

1 green pepper, cut into rings

4 Velveeta extra thick slices pasteurized process cheese spread, cut in half

Drain pineapple, reserving 2 tablespoons liquid. Combine reserved liquid, meat, soy sauce and ginger; mix lightly. Cover

Bake 350°, 20 minutes. Top with remaining ingredients.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

(3) 4 tablespoons butter or margarine

(3) 4 tablespoons flour

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon pepper

(1 1/2) 2 cups milk

2 cups (8 ounces) shredded cheese

1 package (7 ounces) elbow macaroni, cooked and drained

1/2 cup crushed potato chips, or cracker crumbs

Conventional: Preheat oven to 350°F. In saucepan melt butter or margarine; blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually stir in milk and cook until thick and bubbly, stirring constantly. Mix in cheese and stir until melted. Add macaroni. Pour into 1 1/2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with crushed potato chips or cracker crumbs. Bake 30-35 minutes or until heated through.

Microwave: Put butter or margarine in 2 quart glass casserole and melt at high power for 30 seconds. Stir in flour and seasonings until smooth. Cook at high power for 30-45 seconds, until mixture bubbles. Gradually blend in milk. Cook at high power for 4-6 minutes (until thickened), stirring every minute. Mix in cheese, cook at high power for 15 seconds and stir until cheese is melted. Mix cooked macaroni and cheese sauce. Top with potato chips or cracker crumbs and cook at high power for 4-6 minutes (until heated thoroughly), rotating dish after half the cooking time.

CARROT CAKE

(3/4) 1 1/2 cups water

3 eggs

1/2 cup vegetable oil

2 teaspoons cinnamon

1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar

2 cups shredded carrots

1/2 cup raisins

1/2 cup chopped nuts

Conventional: Preheat oven to 350°F. Generously grease a 10-inch tube or fluted pan. Empty cake mix into large bowl; combine cake mix, water, eggs, cinnamon, brown sugar, oil; blend until moistened. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. If hand mixing, beat vigorously 300 strokes. Fold in carrots, raisins, and nuts. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake 45-55 minutes at 350°F, or until top springs back when lightly touched. Cool 25 minutes upright in pan on a baking rack before removing.

Microwave: Generously grease a

teaspoon granulated sugar. In a large bowl combine cake mix, eggs, oil, water, brown sugar and cinnamon. Mix thoroughly with a wire whisk. Fold carrots,

dish. Cook at medium power (50%) for 5 minutes and rotate dish one-quarter turn. Cook at high power for 5 minutes or until a toothpick inserted near the center comes out clean. Cool on rack or wooden board for 10

CAULIFLOWER SOUP IN SQUASH SHELLS

(1 1/2) 1/4 cup butter or margarine

(1/2) 1/4 cup flour

2 cans (13 1/2 ounces) chicken broth

1 small head cauliflower

(1/4) 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

2 acorn squash

Conventional: Preheat oven to 350°F. Melt butter or margarine in a 2 quart saucepan. Blend in flour; gradually add broth. Cook and stir until slightly thickened. Break raw cauliflower into buds and add to mixture with nutmeg. Cover and simmer 1 hour. Halve and seed squash; bake, cut side down in shallow pan, at 350°F, for 35-40 minutes. Turn cut side up. Bake about 20 minutes longer. Pour soup into squash halves and sprinkle with nutmeg.

Microwave: Rinse cauliflower in cold water; wrap in waxed paper and cook at high power for 7-8 minutes. Remove paper, cool and break into buds. Melt butter or margarine in a 2 quart glass casserole at high power for 45 seconds. Blend in flour and gradually add broth. Stir cooked buds and nutmeg into broth. Cover with waxed paper and cook at high power for 10 minutes, or until soup begins to boil. Reduce power to medium (50%) and cook for 10 minutes. Pierce whole, uncooked squash with a fork and cook on high power for 5-7 minutes re-arranging squash after about 4 minutes. After cooking, cut squash in half lengthwise. Remove seeds without puncturing shells. Ladle hot soup into squash shells and sprinkle with nutmeg.

AIDS Affecting Opportunities For Gay Actors

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Screen Actors Guild says the fear of AIDS may be keeping homosexual actors from getting hired, and is seeking a meeting with producers to discuss the issue.

In a letter released by the union Monday and sent to the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers, guild Executive Secretary Leonard Chassman said a meeting is needed to discuss potential discrimination against homosexual entertainers because of the deadly disease.

The guild wants a commitment from producers to treat performers fairly no matter what their sexual preference.

"The Screen Actors Guild intends to vigorously enforce its contract with the industry to ensure that there shall be no discrimination based on sexual preference," said the letter to J. Nicholas Counter III, president of the producers' group.

The letter said an early meeting is imperative to "quell unfounded fears which may be affecting the employability of performers who may be gay or even just suspected of being gay."

The guild's concern about possible unemployment discrimination of gay entertainers comes at a time when scores of celebrities are lending their names to and AIDS benefit dinner in Los Angeles which will be held Thursday night.

The benefit gained momentum with the recent disclosure that actor Rock Hudson is suffering from AIDS.

So far, the roster for the evening includes Sammy Davis Jr., Carol Burnett, Cyndi Lauper, Rod Stewart, Diahann Carroll, Sam Harris and Shirley MacLaine.

Bette Midler also had made a personal donation of $10,000 to the project to raise money for AIDS research.

No Link Between Fungus Medicine, Diverticulosis

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — For more than two years I have taken Gris-PEG for a fungus under my toenails. A recent proctoscopy detected diverticular disease in my colon. Could the Gris-PEG be a factor?

DEAR READER — No. Diverticulosis is an exceedingly common disease of middle and late adulthood. Gris-PEG is unlikely to have been a factor in causing your diverticular disease. However, two years is a long time to take such medicine. If it hasn't yet cleared up your fungus infection, ask your doctor if you should still be on Gris-PEG or whether some other form of therapy might be more appropriate.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Does gas in the colon cause diverticular disease? What is the recommended treatment for the disease?

DEAR READER — I think that outward pressure from chronic colonic gas may contribute to diverticulosis. That is not one of the current theories, of which there are many. To be honest, I must admit that no one really knows the cause of diverticulosis and, as evidenced by the millions of adults who have it, there is no cure. The present party line (watch out: it may change in a year or two) is that little weaknesses develop in our intestinal linings as we age and these weak areas permit herniation of bowel lining, causing the small pockets we call diverticula.

Bran and roughage in the diet are thought to help prevent infection (diverticulitis) from developing. About the only additional advice I can give you is to avoid fruits with small seeds (strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries and so forth). Some specialists are convinced that these little indigestible seeds can lodge in diverticular sacs, turning an -osis (non-infection) into an -itis (infection).

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have been a diabetic for 26 years and was on a long-acting NPH insulin. Just recently I was taken to the hospital with a diabetic reaction. I'm now on Humulin N and R insulin and follow a strict diet religiously, yet I've had several reactions — not bad, but reactions nevertheless. How can I prevent this from recurring?

DEAR READER — I cannot tell whether your diabetic reaction occurred because you had too much, not enough or the wrong kind of insulin.

If you had an insulin reaction — with sweating, weakness, rapid pulse and low blood sugar — you are obviously getting an improper amount or combination of insulin.

If you had a true diabetic reaction — thirst, dehydration, metabolic imbalance and high blood sugar — you are under-regulated and need careful attention to better glucose control.

If you had a pure allergic reaction to the insulin itself — with weakness, nausea, hives and normal blood sugar — you need a change in the type of insulin you take. Reactions to Humulin are rare because the product is a synthetic compound derived from recombinant DNA. Therefore, I assume from your question that your problem results from you being over- or under-medicated. See your doctor soon and work out a better insulin schedule.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

South's luck seemed to have run out. He won the opening lead in dummy and played a club to his jack, but it lost to West's queen. He later played a club to his king, which lost to West's ace. Then he attacked the diamond suit. A diamond to the nine lost to the 10, and when he next played a diamond to the queen — I'm sure you've got it figured out by now — that card lost to the king. Every card was wrong and declarer lost four tricks to go set in what was, in fact, a contract that could be made with absolute certainty.

It's fine to take flinches when there's nothing better to do, but a superior approach is to force the opponents to lead your suits for you. Declarer should win the opening lead with the ace of spades, play a heart to the ace and trump a heart. A spade is now led to the king and another heart trumped. Both the dummy and declarer's hand are now exhausted of hearts. The defenders have no more trumps left, and it is easy now for South to just play a low club from his hand. If East wins and plays a diamond, declarer puts in the nine. That will end play West. If East wins and plays another club, South plays the jack and West is end played once again.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

SEPT. 19, 1985

In the year ahead, you will be luckier than you have been in the past in arrangements or ventures you have with family members and relatives. All could do well materially.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't suffer in silence if you have a trying task to perform today. The help you need is available; all you have to do is ask.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't let self-doubts cause you to waste valuable time today. By facing up to challenges instead of trying to dodge them, you'll discover how to overcome.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your generous impulses today should be directed toward family members and relatives, not outsiders or strangers. Blood is thicker than water.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The best course of action for you today will be the one you set for yourself. Be a leader, instead of being led by others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against tendencies to create problems where none need exist. If you stay loose and let events run their course, you could be quite lucky.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Just because something didn't work out for a friend doesn't mean that you shouldn't give it a try. This person isn't as lucky as you are.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Diplomacy and tact will produce the type of results you desire today. Don't clench your fist in situations where you can extend a friendly hand.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Early in the day you might have some unexpected frustrations with which to contend. However, they're manageable and you'll be able to alter them into something opportune.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Personal endeavors may fizzle out today, but arrangements where you are striving with others for a common cause will have happy results.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be careful today not to let someone with whom you're closely associated jeopardize another relationship with one who is equally important to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you continue to use sound judgment regarding a speculative situation, the risks will be reduced but not totally eliminated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you have a little surplus cash on hand today, don't let it burn a hole in your pocket. Put it out of reach and pretend it doesn't exist.

Fall Festival

Gala Dinner Ushers In Season With An Inviting Italian Accent

According to a recent national restaurant survey, over 75 percent of Americans opt for "Italian" when they eat out. Now that fall is putting most of us in the mood for cooking and entertaining once again, why not delight family and friends with some special meals sua casa that conjure up the luscious, highly varied cuisine of Northern Italy. Columbus Day might be the perfect time to throw a party!

The recipes given here take advantage of a pair of native products, American lamb and almonds and, appropriately enough, a 100% pure Italian olive oil that is both produced and bottled in Italy, your assurance of consistent quality. Like so many proud Italian-Americans, these fine ingredients celebrate the best of two cultures.

What could be more impressive than a Crown Roast of Lamb with Italian Mushroom Stuffing and Chianti Glaze? Naturally tender with a delicate flavor, American lamb is available fresh year-round and is naturally lean, with little or no marbling of fat. Sumptuous as it looks and tastes, there are just 176 calories per 3-ounce serving. Almonds add rich, nutty flavor and a crisp crunch to the savory dressing that makes it really special.

If you've had a leg roast on Sunday, turn it into something sensational — like this Lamb Fettucine Peperonata — later in the week. and it takes only a few minutes to prepare: simply cook pasta, stir-fry and combine other ingredients, toss together and get ready for the bravas. Clear, golden Bertolli olive oil lends a distinctive yet subtle touch of flavor and light, pleasing fragrance, blending the various foods and enhancing their natural goodness.

In refreshing counterpoint is a sprightly Lamb and New Potato Salad Vinaigrette. It offers solid nutritive value since lamb is an important source of protein, zinc, niacin, iron and the B vitamins; almonds are chock-full of Vitamin E, riboflavin, calcium plus minerals — and they contain no cholesterol. Olive oil, by the way, is not only cholesterol-free but also very high in monounsaturates.

ALMONTOLLI LAMB CHOPS

¼ cup chopped sun dried tomatoes
¼ cup sliced green onions
2 teaspoons tarragon
1 large clove garlic, minced
¼ cup white wine
3 egg yolks
½ cup olive oil
½ cup diced roasted almonds
6 lamb shoulder chops (about 1½ pounds)
Combine tomatoes, green onions, tarragon, garlic and wine in saucepan. Cook over medium high heat until reduced to about 1 tablespoon liquid; cool. Place egg yolks in food processor bowl. Using metal blade, process until thick; about 1 minute. Continue processing, gradually adding oil through feed tube. Remove to small bowl. Stir in cooled wine mixture and diced almonds by hand. Cover and chill. Broil lamb chops 4-inches from heat; about 5 minutes on each side. To serve, spoon vegetable almond sauce onto lamb chops. Makes 6 servings.

ZUPPA INGLESE BERTOLLI

3 tablespoons olive oil
1 cup chopped, minced candied fruit
¼ cup almond-flavored liqueur or Marsala wine
4 egg yolks
¼ cup all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
2½ cup scalded milk
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
24 lady fingers, split
3 cups sweetened whipped cream
Chocolate curls
Candied cherries
(Angelica, cut in julienne strips)
In saucepan, brown almonds in olive oil, stirring often. Remove from heat and blend in candied fruit and ¼ cup liqueur. Set aside.
In large saucepan, combine egg yolks, flour and sugar. Beat with a wire whisk or electric mixer until smooth and light yellow in color. Gradually stir in milk while cooking over medium heat. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and smooth. (Stir in one direction only, to prevent curdling.) Mixture should coat the back of a metal spoon.
Add lemon peel and vanilla. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, until mixture is the consistency of pudding. Remove from heat. Place plastic wrap directly on the surface to prevent "skin" from forming. Cool to room temperature. (Mixture may be made ahead and stored in refrigerator, but return to room temperature to use.) Fold in 1 cup of whipped cream and almond mixture.

Line sides of a straight-sided large, deep serving bowl with lady fingers, placing several on bottom of bowl. Drizzle with liqueur. Spoon half of pudding mixture into bowl. Top with remaining lady fingers; drizzle with liqueur. Spoon 1 cup whipped cream over all. Top with remaining pudding mixture. Decorate top with remaining whipped cream, chocolate curls, candied cherries and, if desired, julienne strips of angelica. Chill until ready to serve. Makes 8 servings.

1 pound mushrooms, chopped
1 1/2 cups chopped onion
1 cup diced celery
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 cup water
1 package (7 oz.) seasoned cube stuffing
1 cup blanched slivered almonds, toasted
Chianti Glaze
Place crown roast on rack in shallow pan; set aside. Heat oil in large sautépan; remove sausage from skin and crumble into pan. Cook until brown. Add mushrooms, onions, celery and garlic; cook 5 minutes or until tender. Stir in 1/2 cup water; bring to boil. Add mushrooms, onions, celery and garlic; cook 5 minutes or until tender. Stir in 1/2 cup water; bring to boil. Add stuffing; toss well. Stir in almonds. Stuff center of crown roast without packing too tightly. Cover center and rib ends with foil to prevent excess browning. Place remainder of stuffing in 1 quart covered baking dish; set aside. Roast lamb at 325°F. 1 1/2 hours or until meat thermometer inserted into thickest portion of lamb registers 150°F for medium rare. The last 30 minutes, baste lamb with Chianti Glaze and heat remaining dish of stuffing. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Chianti Glaze:
1/2 cup Chianti (red wine)
1/2 cup dark brown sugar
1/2 cup ketchup
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
In medium saucepan, combine all ingredients. Stir over medium heat until smooth.

LAMB FETTUCINE PEPPERONATA
10 oz. fettucine noodles
2 pounds leg of lamb, cut into julienne strips
1/2 cup olive oil
1 red pepper, cut into julienne strips
1 green pepper, cut into julienne strips

1 red onion, chopped
1 1/2 cups sliced mushrooms
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup heavy cream
1 jar (6 oz.) marinated artichoke hearts
1/2 cup small, whole pitted ripe olives, drained
1 cup blanched slivered almonds, toasted
1 cup grated Parmesan Cheese
In large pan, cook fettucine in boiling salted water until al dente; rinse; drain; remove; set aside. In same pan, stir-fry lamb strips a few at a time in hot olive oil until browned — about 2 minutes. Remove from pan; set aside. Stir-fry peppers, onions, mushrooms and garlic until tender crisp, adding more olive oil if necessary. Stir in oregano, pepper, cream, marinated artichoke hearts with liquid and olives. Add fettucine, lamb, almonds and cheese; toss to mix well. Heat through. Sprinkle with additional Parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

LAMB AND NEW POTATO SALAD VINAIGRETTE
4 cups sliced new potatoes
1/2 cup olive oil
1 medium red pepper, cut into strips
1 medium green pepper, cut into strips
1 1/2 cups julienne strips of cooked lamb
1 medium purple onion, chopped
1/4 cup Balsamic or sherry vinegar
1 teaspoon Dijon-type mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
1/2 cup julienne strips cornichon or dill pickles
1 tablespoon capers
1/2 cup sliced almonds
In large skillet, cook potatoes in 1/4 cup of olive oil. Toss frequently. Add peppers and cook until just tender. Add lamb and purple onion. Cook several minutes, tossing frequently. Add remaining ingredients. Toss to blend and heat through. Serve warm, or refrigerate and serve chilled on a bed of crisp greens. Sprinkle with sliced almonds to garnish. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

TUSCAN MANICOTTI
1 1/2 cups sour cream
1 1/2 cups grated Parmesan cheese
1 cup heavy cream
1/2 cup ricotta cheese
1/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon olive oil
1 container (4 oz.) frozen pesto sauce, thawed
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 clove garlic, minced
2 cups chunked cooked lamb
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
3/4 cup toasted slivered almonds
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
12 manicotti noodles for stuffing
In medium saucepan, combine sour cream, Parmesan cheese, heavy cream, ricotta cheese and 1/4 cup olive oil. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until cheese melts — do not boil. Reserve 1 1/2 cups sauce. Add pesto to remaining sauce; mix well. Pour into a 9x13 inch baking dish and set aside. Sauté onions, mushrooms and garlic in remaining 1 tablespoon olive oil. Add lamb, bread crumbs, 1/2 cup almonds, pepper, nutmeg and 1/2 cup reserved white sauce; mix well; set aside. Cook manicotti five minutes in boiling water; drain. Stand manicotti on end and fill with lamb mixture. Arrange on pesto sauce. Cover with foil; bake at 375°F., 45 minutes or until heated through and pasta is tender. Heat remaining 1 cup cheese sauce. Pour over pasta. Garnish with remaining 1/2 cup almonds and sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Tandoori Salad served in a pineapple.

Tandoori Salad Is Extra Special

Tandoori Salad is a quick and easy meal that looks extra special served inside a fresh pineapple. Sweet-tart fresh pineapple teams with crisp, snappy apple slices and chunks of tender chicken. Remember that pineapple acts as a natural tenderizer — don't let chicken chunks sit too long with fresh pineapple and juices.

Cut one-third off side of pineapple lengthwise, leaving crown intact. Remove fruit from both sections with a curved knife, leaving shells intact. Core and dice fruit. Toss pineapple with chicken and apple just before serving. Spoon into large pineapple shell. Serve with Tandoori Dressing. Makes 4 servings.

TANDOORI SALAD
1 medium fresh pineapple
1 1/2 cups shredded cooked chicken
1 large red apple, cored and sliced
Tandoori Dressing

Tandoori Dressing:
1 carton (8 oz.) lemon yogurt
2 tablespoons chopped chutney
1/2 teaspoon mint flakes
1/4 teaspoon ground coriander
Combine all ingredients until blended.

Say 'Cheese'

Creamy, Tasty Tart Fast And Fabulous

If you're always on the lookout for "fast and fabulous" menu ideas, this recipe for Four Cheese Tart is certain to appeal to you and every other cook for whom time is a luxury. A creamy, rich blend of four cheeses baked in a flaky crust, it's one of several appetizer recipes which appear in the latest KitchenAid food processor brochure, GOURMET EXPRESS.

This new 20-page booklet offers an interesting selection of recipes which can be quickly prepared in your food processor. From appetizers to entrees; salads to desserts; almost every recipe can be put together in less than one-half hour.

Also included is a full page of homemade staples you can make ahead and store in the refrigerator or freezer. Ready to use when time is at a premium, they add a special touch to any recipe or dish at substantial savings. For a change of pace during this summer barbecue season, try one of the flavored butters. They can be refrigerated or frozen. To use frozen, simply slice off the amount desired and return the unused portion to the freezer. Pimiento Butter is especially good on fish, poultry and meat.

FOUR CHEESE TART
 3 1/2 cups flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 1/2 cups butter, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
 1/4 cup cold water
 8 ounces cream cheese, softened and cut into 1-inch pieces
 1/4 cup milk
 1/2 pound Brie cheese
 2 ounces blue cheese
 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
 1 large tomato, thinly sliced

1 1/2 teaspoons thyme
 1 1/2 teaspoons basil
 1 1/2 teaspoons vegetable oil
 Rolled anchovies (optional)

Position work blade in work bowl. Add flour, salt, and butter to bowl. Pulse 10 to 15 times to make a coarse meal. With machine running, add water and process 30 seconds. Remove mixture from bowl and knead to form a ball. Roll dough to 1/8-inch thickness between waxed paper. Place in a 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1-inch pan. Trim edges. Bake at 400°F. for 25 minutes or until lightly browned.

Add cream cheese and milk to work bowl. Process 30 seconds, until smooth. Remove from bowl and spread over warm pastry. Crumble Brie and blue cheeses evenly over cream cheese. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

Arrange tomato slices on top; sprinkle with thyme, basil, and oil. Garnish with anchovies, if desired. Bake at 450°F. for 15 minutes or until cheese is lightly browned.

Yield: Thirty 1 1/2 x 3 inch appetizers.

PIMIENTO BUTTER
 3-4 tablespoons pimiento
 1/2 cup butter, softened

Position work blade in work bowl. Add pimiento to bowl. Process 10 seconds. Add butter and process 10 seconds, until smooth. Remove from bowl and shape to a rectangular form. Cover and chill until firm. Freeze, if desired.

Pan Cookies A La Mode

Any cookie monster will agree that Toll House Cookies are just perfect all year round. This version — Pan Cookies A La Mode — is especially nice.

Made with toll house morsels for that tried and true great toll house taste, the recipe calls for spreading the batter in a baking pan (rather than dropping rounded teaspoonful). The results yield by 3" squares and of course topped with a scoop of ice cream.

Cookies and ice cream without hot fudge sauce, though, will never do for true chocolate aficionados. Though the recipe is optional, this is one fudge sauce that may well become "mandatory" in your house.

Here are the recipes as developed in the Nestle Kitchens.

PAN COOKIE A LA MODE
Pan Cookie:
 2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
 1 measuring teaspoon baking soda

1 measuring teaspoon salt
 1 cup butter, softened
 3/4 cup sugar
 3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar

1 measuring teaspoon vanilla extract
 2 eggs
 One 12-oz. pkg. (2 cups) semi-sweet chocolate morsels

1 cup chopped nuts
 Ice cream, softened
Hot Fudge Sauce (optional):
 1/2 cup heavy cream

One 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
 Dash salt
 1 measuring teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven to 375°F. In small bowl, combine flour, baking soda and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine butter, sugar, brown sugar and vanilla extract; beat until creamy. Beat in eggs. Gradually add flour mixture; mix well. Stir in semi-sweet chocolate morsels and nuts. Spread into greased 15" x 10" x 1" baking pan. Bake at 375°F. Time 20-25 minutes.

Cool; cut into 3" squares. Top each square with 1 scoop ice cream. Drizzle Hot Fudge Sauce on top, if desired.

HOT FUDGE SAUCE: In small saucepan, combine heavy cream, semi sweet chocolate morsels and salt. Cook over low heat until morsels melt and mixture is smooth, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; add vanilla extract. Makes about fifteen 3" squares and 1 cup sauce.
