Emergency Personnel In Stress Program After Gory Murder

Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Within 72 hours of a gory mutilation murder in Winter Springs July 9, seven emergency response personnel started participating in a program designed to help them cope with stress.

The program is part of a nationwide trend to help emergency personnel handle the trauma of their jobs and not let stress affect their private or professional lives, said Frank Kirk, Seminole County's manager of Emergency Medical Services.

Kirk said "critical incident stress debriefing" teams are being established nationwide because research shows that on-the-job stress, particularly for emergency response personnel, can impair a person's work performance and affect their private life. He said emergency response personnel have a higher than average suicide rate and that two Seminole County Emergency Medical Technicians have committed suicide within the past year.

In the Winter Springs incident, emergency personnel arrived at the McCollum home at 1046 Chokecherry Drive to witness a man drenched in blood and the dismembered body of a woman.

Twenty-one year old Sean McCollum has been charged with murder in that case. His mother was attacked with a hatchet, dismembered and mutilated. After an autopsy, veteran Seminole County medical examiner G.V. Garay said it was the most brutal killing he had ever seen.

Kirk said that to his knowledge, the McCollum case spurred the first debriefing in Seminole of emergency personnel — EMTs, paramedics and police officers. The debriefing was conducted by a team from Orange County.

Kirk said he hopes to have a Seminole County team operating by fall. He said to protect the privacy of the emergency personnel involved, he could not discuss the Winter Springs incident in depth. He did say, however, that the program is being well received and is helping the emergency personnel who were at the McCollum home. Participation in the program after a stressful incident is voluntary.

Different situations would also call for a critical incident team, Kirk said. It could be a shooting spree such as the Palm Bay massacre in which six people were killed and everyone involved, officers to hostages, were stressed. Or an incident in which the only victim is a child who happened to be wearing the same color shirt as one of the responding police officer's

Wastewater Plan Approved Over Geneva Protest

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Over the protest of Geneva area residents, the Sanford City Commission voted Monday night to proceed with plans to buy a 2,200-acre piece of property southeast of Sanford to dispose of treated wastewater. The approval came on a 3-2 vote, with commissioners Whitley Eckstein and John Mercer dissenting.

Mercer said he voted against the motion because "I approve of the plan to dispose of the treated water, but I just think there has to be a better place to do it than that location."

Eckstein voted against the plan after engineers could not answer questions about whether spraying water on the site would increase the flooding potential for 60 families who live in the area northeast of Lake Jesup and south of State Road 46.

The vote came after a 90-minute hearing in which several engineers and consultants and some Sanford residents spoke in favor of the purchase, and several Geneva residents and some Sanford residents spoke against it.

Estelle Bragdon, who read a statement against the proposal on behalf of the Geneva area residents who packed the commission chambers, said there were 60 families who live south of State Road 46 in the area who think putting more water on the property adjacent to them will increase the possibility that their property will flood when the land becomes saturated in heavy rains.

When Eckstein asked the city's consulting engineers on the project, Conklin, Porter & Holmes Engineers, Inc., Bristol Conklin, company president, said he couldn't specifically refute that statement without knowing exactly where those 60 homes are.

Estelle Bragdon reads a statement against the proposal.

Another expert who spoke in favor of the project, Herb Stangland of Ardaman & Associates, Inc., said more than 1,000 acres of the 2,200-acre site are acknowledged to be too low, and too wet to use for the spray irrigation. He said the spraying would only be done on areas of the site which are higher, and that there will be no runoff from those areas.

City Engineer Bill Simmons explained the plan and showed a videotape of a 1986 television program about St. Petersburg's use of treated

Residents Seek Prompt Payment For Property

By Ted Carter
Herald Staff Writer

By selecting Route 68 last week, Seminole County Expressway Authority members received a rousing round of cheers and calls of "re-elect 'em now" from several hundred people who were relieved the highway would be avoiding their homes and businesses.

But now the loud applause of last Wednesday has been replaced by protests from citizens who stayed away from the meeting. They, who live within the Route 68 right of way, had thought the prospect of saving $35 million would lead authority members to select Route 53, the lowest priced alignment and the one favored by engineering consultants.

They were wrong and now want to make the best of the situation. To that end, a grassroots protest effort is quickly gaining momentum, say Palmway Drive residents Sandy Donnelly and Jerri Small, who hope to force the expressway authority to promptly compensate them for their property.

The women say they and many others hope to know more about their options after an Aug. 25 gathering at the Sanford Civic Center, at which a lawyer will be on hand to answer questions about the state's condemnation law.

"If they have to put the highway in, okay," said Donnelly. "But how long do we have to sit here and wait. I would like to have my civil rights." Their objection is that once the right of way for the expressway is reserved, their property can remain in limbo from five to 10 years, while the authority decides whether there is enough money to build the highway.

"If they are free to condemn us, they are free to pay us," said Small, who said her home at 1305 Palmway Ave. will be "exactly under that monster."

The two women were at home last Thursday reading the Sanford Herald when a display advertisement purchased by local realtor A.B. Peterson Jr.

Mercer Motions Fail

Sanford Won't Fight Beltway Route

Sanford Commissioner John Mercer made two attempts to get his colleagues to commit the city to fighting the expressway route approved by the Seminole County Expressway Authority last week, but got no support for either.

After reading a statement criticizing the decision because of its higher cost and destruction of nearly as many homes as the proposed Route 53, plus much more business property, Mercer moved that the city file suit to stop construction of the expressway.

Mercer said the Expressway Commission's decision is "fiscally irresponsible," noting that Route 68, which the commission approved "only has four less homes in its path than Route 53, and it costs $35 million more, and destroys one of Sanford's biggest commercial areas. The expressway will tear down what this city has taken 20 years to build up." However, Commissioner A.A. McClanahan said the city certainly did not need to get involved in another lawsuit, and Mercer's motion to file suit

Shootouts Continue On L.A. Freeways

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two men were shot and killed by an angry motorist when one of the victims refused to move his car from a stop sign, police said, bringing the number of summer shooting incidents on roads and freeways to nine and the death toll to four.

Police said Monday that the latest incident occurred Sunday night when Manuel Brown Avila, 28, of suburban Sylmar, pulled up to a stop sign and refused to budge when another car came up behind him and started honking.

The driver of the second car got out, walked up to Avila and began slapping him around, witnesses said, then shouted "move your damn car" before going back to his car and pulling a gun from the back seat.

Witnesses who ducked behind trees when the gunfire started said the man shot Avila and then gunned down Angel Aguirre Barrera, 36, also of Sylmar, who apparently was sitting on a porch or walking by and attempted to help Avila.

The suspect sped off in a late '60s to early '70s model Buick.

"It appears to be a motorist getting upset with another motorist," Detective David Alfred said Monday. "I guess everybody figures they own the streets."

Several residents of the San Fernando Valley neighborhood witnessed the incident, which they said was over in about three minutes.

"Between this and the freeway shootings, I'm afraid to go out on the road," a resident said.

The double slaying came three hours after a shooting 30 miles south along the Pacific Coast Highway in Santa

Koop: Drug Use, Childhood AIDS Linked

NEW YORK (UPI) — The battle against AIDS, particularly among children, cannot be won "without turning drug abuse around," the surgeon general said in New York, where as many as 1,000 children could be born next year with the deadly disease.

Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, testifying before a congressional panel studying the links between drug abuse and pediatric AIDS cases, said infected children, who usually contract the disease from infected mothers, will extend the problem of AIDS for years.

"Even if the disease were able to be stopped tomorrow, there are still enough victims in the pipeline to carry it into the 21st century," Koop said.

AIDS among children is yet "another manifestation of the devastating effects of drug use," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control.

Although acquired immune deficiency syndrome among children is a national problem, most cases of the disease in victims under 13 have been reported in New York, New Jersey and Florida, Rangel said.

Mayor Edward Koch told the

Seminole Copes With Near 100-Degree Heat

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Rain and breezes from scattered thunderstorms Monday night brought relief to some areas of Seminole County, where temperatures have soared near the 100 mark for several days. Officially there was no rain reported by the National Weather Service in Orlando.

As hot and humid it may seem, area hospitals say there have not been any heat related emergency cases.

However, the Seminole County Fire Department responded to a call from the Heathrow area at 3:53 p.m. Monday, in which a 17-year-old male was complaining of the heat. The man reportedly stated he had also not eaten for three days. He was transported to South Seminole Community Hospital, Longwood.

Jim Poucher, hospital administrator, said the only 17 year-old male that came through the emergency room Monday had "fainted someplace." He said, "That case had nothing to do with the heat."

Poucher added the center has had no reported cases of heat exhaustion or heat stroke. "We have no trends, no runs, no hits and no errors in that department," he said.

Annie Richmond of the Central Florida Regional Nursing Department said there have been no heat-related cases in that hospital's emergency room over the last few days.

The Lake Mary and Longwood Fire Departments have reported no emergency medical calls in connection with the heat.

Sanford Parks and Recreation Department crews are starting earlier in the day on hot jobs, and knocking off during the hot afternoon hours, according to Jim Jernigan, department director.

For instance, Jernigan said, the city is resurfacing some tennis courts, but the crew has been starting work at 6 a.m. and quitting earlier in the afternoon.

Parks crews and Public Works Department crews are taking longer breaks in the afternoon when temperatures are highest, and are carrying plenty of water, according to Jernigan and Public Works Director Bob Kelly.

Susan Moore, executive director of the Central Florida Community Health Clinic, said today the clinic has not treated patients for heat-related medical emergencies the last couple days.

IN BRIEF

Now You See It, Now You Don't, Convenience Store Flim-Flammed

A south Seminole County convenience store was flim-flammed out of $18 following an incident Monday.

Around 11:47 a.m., a man entered the store and told the clerk at the cash register that a second clerk manning gas pumps outside needed a $20 bill for three $5 bills and five $1 bills. The clerk at the cash register was about to put $50 into a safe so she had no problem swapping one $20 bill for the four smaller bills.

After the exchange, the man said the clerk had given him a $2 bill rather than a $20. The clerk insisted that she had given him a $20. The man then reportedly became irate but the clerk insisted she gave him a $20. The manager offered to close down the cash register and audit the money in it.

A second man entered the store and asked what the delay was. The men however decided not to press the issue further when the sheriff's department was called. The first man then took back his $20, left the $2 bill, and with the second man left the store taking the $20 the clerk handed to him earlier.

Driving Under Influence Arrests

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol:

- Patrick C. Kirlaw, 34, of 186 Sun Drive Circle, Sanford, arrested Monday on Old Lake Mary Road near Airport Boulevard after his vehicle failed to maintain a single lane.
- Marion Aubrey Whiteide, 503 Plum Tree Court, Sanford, at 2:14 a.m. Saturday following an accident on County Road 15 near U.S. Highway 17-92.
- Donald H. Edwards, 64, of 757 Sabal Palm Drive, Casselberry, at 3:01 S. French Ave., in Sanford Thursday.
- David Thad Sisson, 21, of Orlando, Sunday at 3:59 a.m. at State Road 434 south of Sunshine Lane, after an accident. He was also charged with leaving the scene of an accident with damage.
- Paula Ramley Davis, 38, of 909-J Ballard St., Altamonte Springs, Thursday at 1:30 a.m. in the parking lot of apartments on Ballard Street after a minor accident.
- Michael Robin Walters, 31, of 120 Katies Cove, Sanford, Friday at 10:30 a.m. after an accident on State Road 46 one-half mile east of Interstate 4. He was also charged with driving the wrong way on a one-way road.

Man Arrested For Spouse Abuse

An Altamonte Springs man was arrested on a charge of spouse abuse following an argument Sunday.

A woman told police that her husband locked himself and her in their bedroom after they had been arguing for a time. She said he began to push her around and tried to choke her. She fled to the living room where he threw her on a couch and reportedly struck her in the mouth, breaking her teeth. The incident occurred around 4 p.m.

Charged with battery was Eugene Lubmer Konotopky, 29, of 185 Magnolia Ave. Bond was set at $500.

Sanford Burglaries, Thefts

Perry Frey, 1831A Landing Drive, reported his pickup was entered through the rear sliding window Tuesday night and $400 worth of property was stolen.

A window was broken in the Debra A. Jones residence, 133 Langston Drive, Wednesday and $40 in cash and a checkbook were stolen.

A mail box at 221 N. Palmetto Ave. was pushed over, causing an estimated $200 damage.

Monica.

In that incident, a man settled an argument in the hot afternoon sun over who had the right-of-way in the bumper-to-bumper beachfront traffic by taking a pistol from the trunk of his convertible and firing three shots at a pickup he had just cut off.

Two people in the pickup were slightly wounded, and the suspect took advantage of a sudden improvement in the traffic flow and drove away.

Authorities are warning drivers to stay cool in the face of traffic provocations and go to great lengths to avoid confrontations.

The series of freeway and highway shootings began June 18 and have left four people dead and several wounded. Only three suspects have been arrested, including Albert Carroll Morgan, 32, who pleaded innocent Monday to attempted murder and assault charges stemming from the shooting of Paul Gary Nussbaum, 28, of Rolling Hills Estates, on July 18.

Nussbaum was shot in the neck during an argument along the Newport-Costa Mesa Freeway, police said. His condition has been recently upgraded to stable.

Morgan was being held in lieu of $100,000 bail pending a preliminary hearing on Aug. 20.

Highway experts say the city's 850 miles of freeways may be just too congested, and the traffic tieups are straining the emotional limits of some drivers.

FAA Pledges Crackdown On Air Safety Violators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acknowledging public fear of flying and complaints of poor airline service, the new head of the Federal Aviation Administration is warning carriers and pilots to fly safely — or not at all.

T. Allan McArtor, sworn in Monday as the 10th administrator of the embattled agency, said. "The national airspace system is facing increased public concern."

He said the agency can even expect scrutiny of "our ability to fix things" when problems are uncovered.

In a tough speech delivered before a standing-room-only audience, McArtor, 45, said while the FAA is "doing an outstanding job" in maintaining a safe civil aviation system, "Let's continue developing stronger standards and better answers."

"The executive management of every air carrier certificate holder (airline) is hereby on notice. If you do not comply with your obligations to maintain your fleets and fulfill the obligations of your operating certificates, you will not operate in the national airspace," McArtor said. "This goes for large air carriers as well as small ones."

"Pilots, co-pilots, flight engineers and other crew members are also on notice," he said. "If you are not drug-free, if you are not technically proficient, if you cannot demonstrate your skills, you will not fly in the national airspace."

McArtor, who succeeded Donald Engen as administrator of the agency entrusted to keep the nation's skies safe, said the FAA will initiate a "top-to-bottom review of pilot training" and will require airlines to conduct internal audits of their compliance with all federal aviation safety and security rules.

In addition, McArtor said the agency will "accelerate recruitment and training" of new air traffic controllers to meet the demands of growing air traffic.

McArtor, a former senior vice president of telecommunications with Federal Express, based in Memphis, Tenn., said, "The American people should be confident of the safety and security of airports and aircraft."

"I get asked frequently by people everywhere — 'Is flying safe?' Of course, I can answer 'yes,' unequivocally."

Bork More Conservative Than Other Reagan Judges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork has shown himself to be outside the Republican judicial mainstream in his appeals court voting record, a Columbia University Law Review study says.

The study, released Monday and prepared for the next issue of the review, found Bork to be far more conservative than President Reagan's average choice for top federal court seats.

According to the study, Bork also demonstrated "an apparently inconsistent application of judicial restraint."

He consistently favored business challenges to federal regulations but also regularly supported the government position in suits brought by public interest groups, the study said.

The study determined that Bork, now a member of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, voted on the conservative side of the issue 90 percent of the time in cases with decisions that were not unani-

Oops, She's Gone

A Sanford woman was arrested June 18 and held in Seminole County on a charge of violating her sentence of probation for felony petty theft.

But she was wanted in Orange County for a few days in jail for failure to report to probation on a petty theft charge. So, on July 3 Seminole County shipped her to Orange with the provision that she be shipped back when her time was served.

Orange County jail workers did not see Seminole's request to send her back so they let the woman go July 6, time served. When Seminole checked Friday, Orange County said, "she's gone."

But freedom for Sharon Jackson, 29, was short lived. Sunday she was arrested on a shoplifting charge by Sanford police. Jackson, reportedly using an alias, allegedly left a store and did not pay for eight cartons of cigarettes.

Monday Jackson was being held at the Seminole County jail on a charge of retail theft and violating probation, said jail administrator Captain Jay Leman.

Whether any charges will be filed in connection with her Orange County release and departure has not been determined.

Dixie Heatwave Now In 9th Day

By United Press International

Residents of Dixie and the Plains remained locked in the grip of a deadly nine-day heat wave today while a languishing mass of cool Canadian air continued to provide relief from mid-summer heat along much of the East Coast.

"The heat will continue from South Dakota to Alabama and Mississippi, and from Georgia back into Arkansas and Kansas," said National Weather Service forecaster Lyle Alexander.

Temperatures in those areas were expected to remain between 90 and 100 degrees today, he said.

The heat wave has been blamed in the deaths of at least nine people in Indiana, Illinois, South Carolina, Georgia, Wyoming and Missouri.

The most recent heat-related death occurred Monday in St. Louis, where Kenneth Holt, 73, apparently died of heat stroke in his non-airconditioned apartment. Police said the temperature inside was 110 degrees.

While there were few indications that heat in these areas will dissipate over the next few days, the East Coast's cool front is also taking its time moving back north, Alexander said.

Cooler air is expected to remain in the region for much of the week, he said. "Probably by the end of this week it will begin to warm up again along the East Coast."

On Monday, storms that boiled up in the Great Lakes spread east and south from Minnesota to the Carolinas, bringing temporary relief from the heat to residents in those areas.

Powerful thunderstorms ripped through Georgia late Monday afternoon, uprooting trees, setting two houses afire by lightning and producing marble size hail. North Carolina and suburbs just south of Washington, D.C., were also hit hard.

Five and a quarter inches of rain fell over a 24-hour period ending early today in La Cross, Wis., exceeding all previous 24-hour rainfall amounts for the last 87 years. A flash flood watch was in effect for the area, and runoff from heavy rains in the western part of the state has swollen streams and rivers.

As of late Monday night, there had been no flooding of homes but a Trempealeau County Sheriff's Department dispatcher said a sandbagging effort was underway. "We have some flooding, we are sandbagging in Arcadia. The water is still rising," he said.

Although the recent rains have helped local crops, farmers in some parts of Wisconsin have seen only 61 percent of the normal amount of rainfall for this time of year, and are facing the worst drought conditions since 1936. As of late last week, 53 percent of the state's topsoil was rated short of moisture, while 46 was rated adequate and 1 percent with a surplus, officials said.

The drought was especially bad in Burnett County, in the northeast corner of the state hundreds of miles from the heaviest rainfall.

Several tornadoes touched down in Minnesota, yanking down power lines, toppling trees and damaging farm buildings. There were reports of some minor injuries, described as cuts and bruises, but these were unconfirmed and police could not say how many people were hurt.

Extended Forecast

The extended forecast, Thursday through Saturday, for Florida except northwest — Partly cloudy with a chance of afternoon and evening thunderstorms more likely north half. Lows from the low 70s north to near 80 extreme south. Highs from near 90 to the mid 90s.

Crimeline Seeks Information In Woman's Killing

A case of a woman found murdered a year ago just south of Casselberry has been added to the Crimeline reward program.

The body of Eve Aguilar, 38, was found July 14, 1986, in her home at the San Jose Apartments at Winter Woods Boulevard and State Road 436. Cause of death was asphyxiation, although Aguilar's throat had been slit as well. She had also been raped. Her body, nude and wrapped in a blanket, was discovered in her bedroom by a friend about 12 hours after the killing.

If you have any information concerning her homicide, or any information about any unsolved felony crime, you can call Crimeline in Orlando at 423-TIPS or 1-800-423-TIPS, toll free. You may be eligible for a reward of up to $1,000 and you don't have to give your name.

Crimeline, 10 years old this month, has helped solve 1,150 crimes and recover $5.5 million worth of property. The central Florida program has given over $55,000 in rewards.

Airport Remodeling Set

A remodeling project at the Sanford Airport Terminal is underway and expected to be completed in about 45 days, according to J.S. "Red" Cleveland, director of aviation.

The remodeling will double the size of the present waiting room and offices, he said. Included will be improvements to the pilots' lounge, a new lobby counter, and the building's electrical and air conditioning systems.

Cleveland said the $50,000 project has been planned for some time and is needed to handle the increased use of the terminal.

Computer Embezzlement Soars; Company Auditing Accounts

BRADENTON (UPI) — Investigators say it could take months to audit hundreds of accounts an accused embezzler had access to at Manatee Fruit Co., a multimillion-dollar wholesaler of citrus fruit, plants and flowers in Bradenton and Palmetto.

Edward A. Koehler, 27, was arrested July 10 and remained jailed today on charges of grand larceny, forgery and racketeering.

Arrest records show that after his arrest, Koehler admitted taking about $300,000 from the company where he earned about $25,000 a year as a computer operator billing customers and adjusting ledgers to show they had paid.

But Manatee County sheriff's spokesman Dave Bristow said the loss has passed $1 million and could go higher.

17 Lawmakers Said Millionaires

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Just over 10 percent of Florida's state legislators are millionaires, including 12 lawmakers who became millionaires after taking office, a newspaper reported Monday.

The Tampa Tribune studied the financial reports filed in the past 10 years by state legislators. Among the findings:

—Eight senators, 20 percent of the Senate, and nine representatives, or 7.5 percent of the House, are millionaires. Only five of the 17 were millionaires before joining the Legislature.

—Twenty-one of Florida's current 40 senators were in office in 1976, when financial disclosure was first required. Their average net worth has increased more than threefold, from $329,532 to $1.1 million.

—The average net worth of the 16 current House members who held office in 1976 has risen about 350 percent, from $124,161 to $432,677.

Swift Current Claims Youth

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The swift current of the Intracoastal Waterway proved too much for a 3-year-old boy who slipped out of his life preserver and drowned after his family's boat capsized, police said.

"I don't believe he could have swum to shore and made it out by himself," said Marine Patrol Lt. Jim Cory after the body of Sean Barret was found Monday afternoon by searchers who had been looking for the boy since Sunday.

Sean, his parents and six other people were on the Intracoastal about 4 p.m. Sunday when another vessel passed and created a strong wake, capsizing their 23-foot cruiser, Marine Patrol Lt. Jim Cory said.

Authorities rescued the other passengers, who were unharmed.

Shiite Terror German Law

Mohammad Ali Hamadei is a hero of Shiite Moslem extremists who call America "the Great Satan." Hamadei and a small band of terrorists hijacked a TWA airliner in 1985. The terrorists murdered a U.S. Navy diver, Robert D. Stethem. They held Jewish Americans hostage. And they forced Israel, under pressure from the United States, to release 700 Shittes from prison.

The young Shiite terrorists forced the most powerful country in the world to bend to their will. They humiliated "the Great Satan."

Hamadei escaped without punishment. But the hero of the TWA hijacking was not content. He wanted to bring Islamic Jihad to Europe.

He packed volatile explosives into wine bottles and took a flight to Germany. He was spotted by German customs officials and arrested. They now suspect that Hamadei's bombs were connected to a campaign of bombings in Paris carried out by Hezbollah, a Shiite extremist group.

The United States appealed for Hamadei's extradition to face charges of murder and kidnapping. But Shiite extremists in Lebanon, led by Hamadei's brother, kidnapped two Germans. They are being held as ransom for Hamadei.

After a long delay, Germany refused to extradite Hamadei to the United States. Bonn officials promised the American government that he would be prosecuted and the full force of West German law would be applied.

But a German official privately told an American newspaper reporter that he was certain Hamadei will be home in a year or two. The Germans, he said, will exchange him for the hostages.

The scenario is for Hamadei to be tried for murder and convicted. American witnesses have gone to Germany and identified him as one of the principal hijackers of the TWA plane. After his sentencing, the governor of Hesse state would pardon him.

This runs against Germany's successful policy of not dealing with terrorists for a decade.

The policy of not dealing with terrorists for hostages gave Germany a decade of freedom from hostage-taking. But Germany appears to be forgetting its lesson.

The United States is now taking a hard line against hostage deals. But the Iran-Contra revelations that America tried to trade arms for hostages in Iran reduces U.S. credibility with Germany.

"One of the reasons why we didn't extradite Hamadei is that some feared the U.S. would trade him for your hostages," the official said. "The (German) federal prosecutor is against any deal, but we don't control the foreign office or the state government."

Why are the Germans appeasing the terrorists?

"The problems with the Americans are easier than with the Arabs," the official said.

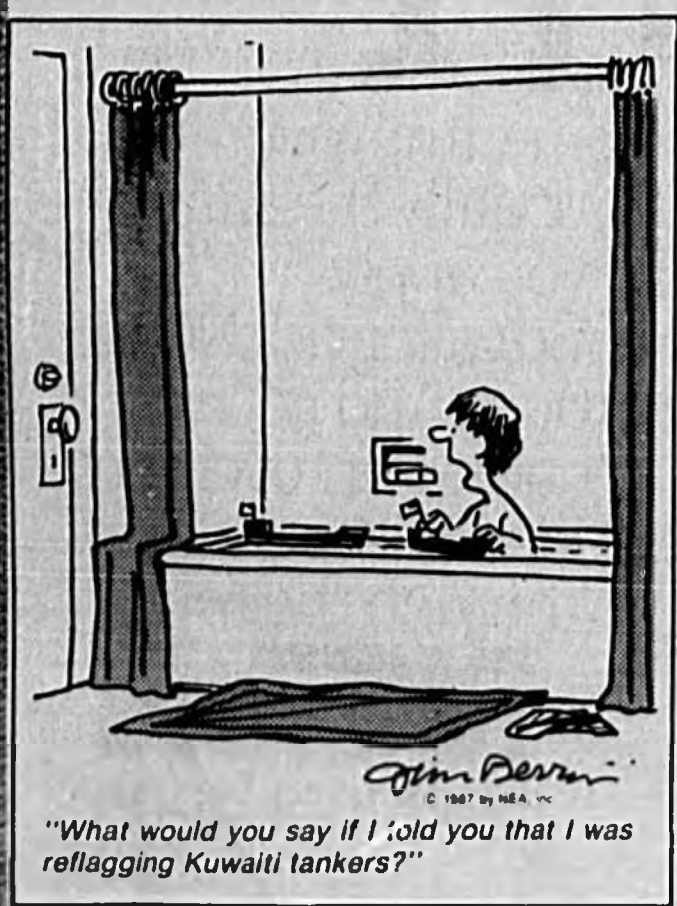

Tell that to the American soldiers stationed in Germany who may have to defend it with their lives. Tell them that the vicious killer of an American sailor should go back to Lebanon as a hero.

And then explain to the German terrorists lurking in the underground that the hypocritical policy of trading hostages only applies to Mideastern terrorists. Hamadei's release could trigger more hostage-taking inside and out of Germany.

Germany should try Hamadei under the law, as France recently did with a Lebanese terrorist. The state government should enforce the full sentence of the court.

If Germany lets Hamadei go home a hero, don't expect Americans to be heroes defending Germany.

Poindexter: The Press Is A Clear Danger

By Jim Anderson
WASHINGTON (UPI) — It became clear from the public testimony by Rear Adm. John Poindexter before the select committee investigating the Iran arms-Contra funding affair that he considered an inquiring press to be a clear and present danger to the government's ability to govern.

He justified his use of secrecy and concealment, even from Cabinet officers and the president, partly on the need to avoid news leaks.

That was an evident pattern of behavior from the very beginning when he was assigned to the White House, as deputy to national security adviser William Clark, in 1982.

President Reagan, apparently oblivious to the fact that most of the press leaks were coming from his own squabbling advisers in the White House, had announced that he was "up to his keister" in leaks, and he wanted them stopped.

Poindexter, who had just come from reorganizing the Chief of Naval Operations office in the Pentagon, was given the job.

He prepared a memo on "Contacts with the Media."

According to the draft regulation, every federal official involved with national security would have to follow strict regulations before having even casual contacts with any member of the press:

—Every contact would have to be approved by a high-ranking official, usually at the sub-cabinet level.

—Every word of the discussions would have to be recorded, and made part of a permanent record.

—After every interview, or even a casual contact with a reporter, the federal officials would have to make a report of the contact to his superiors.

The only exceptions to the rule in Poindexter's draft regulation were officials at Cabinet level, or their deputies. This was not only ironic, but also indicative of Poindexter's lack of understanding of the problem, since most of the leaks that Reagan was complaining about were coming from the higher levels of his administration. Clark's deputy for public affairs, Jeremiah O'Leary, now a correspondent with The Washington Times, tried to quash the memo, which would have had the effect of breaking off all contacts between the administration and the press, since no official in his right bureaucratic mind would ever discuss anything of importance with any reporter under the ground rules laid down by Poindexter.

O'Leary failed to kill the regulation outright, but he succeeded in persuading Clark to listen to some outside opinion. For comment, Clark called in three senior State Department correspondents: Don Oberdorfer of The Washington Post, Barrie Dunsmore of ABC News, and this reporter, from United Press International.

Clark showed us the draft memo and introduced us to Poindexter, who appeared to be pleased with his work. We looked at it and told Clark that the draft regulation was appalling, that it would put the Reagan administration in the ranks of the worst kind of press suppressors in the world.

The regulation was never heard of again.

Memos: North Leaked

WASHINGTON (NEA) — From the White House, Oliver North directed an obscure State Department office that regularly leaked classified information to the media, according to government memos. They were released by the joint congressional committees investigating the Iran-contra affair.

In his own testimony on Capitol Hill, North, the controversial Marine lieutenant colonel who was fired as a national security aide, had justified lying to Congress because he feared press leaks from Capitol Hill.

Ostensibly, the State Department's small Office of Public Diplomacy was under the jurisdiction of Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs Elliott Abrams. Its purpose was to influence Congress to vote support for the contras after Congress cut off aid in October 1984.

The newly released documents show that the Office of Public Diplomacy was actually under direct control of the National Security Council (for which North worked). They also show that a key to its strategy to gain support for the contras — and discredit the Sandinistas — was the leaking of classified information to the media.

At the heart of that campaign was the leaking of classified documents to selected media in the hopes that stories would be written that were critical of the Sandinistas and favorable to the contras.

Another memo shows that in 1985 North asked Casey to have the CIA leak classified reports unfavorable to the Sandinistas. During that period a number of such stories appeared in the press based on "intelligence sources."

Another memo shows that during 1985 and 1986, the public diplomacy office released booklets describing the arms Nicaragua was receiving from the Soviet Union and Cuba and detailing alliances the Sandinistas had made with Middle Eastern terrorist organizations. This information came from classified CIA reports.

Recently, Newsweek magazine identified North as the source of one of its major cover stories, which detailed the capture of the Achille Lauro hijackers.

Richard Smith, editor in chief of Newsweek, said the decision to reveal North as the source of the Achille Lauro story came only "after a great deal of soul-searching."

But it is now clear that North's use of press leaks was far more organized than an occasional personal leak.

Students Of Crime Rob Federal Aid

By Jack Anderson And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Just as a tiny minority of welfare cheaters gave ammunition to critics of the entire system, a few greedy students, parents and school officials have given a black eye to the federal student-aid program by flouting the eligibility requirements. And with only a limited amount of funds available for grants and low-cost loans, the crooks and chiselers are depriving honest applicants of help they deserve.

The Education Department has not been blind to abuses of the student-aid system. The department's inspector general pursues the cheaters and embezzlers with a vengeance, getting back the misdirected funds and turning in the worst offenders for criminal prosecution.

From a recent Education Department inspector general's report and from interviews with an official in the inspector general's office, our

Reflagging Is Option

Ideally, the best method for containing Iran in its latest attack on the free world would have been to place the Kuwaiti ships under United Nations command.

The second-best method would have been to use American ships to transport oil from Kuwait through the Persian Gulf.

Reflagging is probably the third-best option.

But being third best doesn't make it wrong or a sign of beligerence.

Reflagging reaffirms one of the oldest principles of international law, codified in the 17th century by Hugo Grotius — freedom of the seas for neutral nations.

Presidents Wilson, Roosevelt and Kennedy found it necessary to reflag ships — and their party supported them.

Reagan follows history and his own party swarms all over him.

Reagan may be faulted for not harnessing the full force and prestige of the international community to guarantee unimpeded passage of goods and commerce (translation: oil). But his novel strategy should not be condemned for upholding international law, despite its raising the hackles of both Congress and the ayatollah.

Various factions of the Senate oppose the reflagging for different reasons.

Democrats, still smarting from a good old-fashioned Olive-woodshedding, welcomed the political opportunity to stick it to their Republican nemesis in the White House.

The Republicans who supported the resolution sponsored by Sen. Frank Murkowski from Alaska, were massaging what he called, "the interests of the commercial fleet of the United States."

Republicans do have an uncommon historical predilection for reducing great moral issues to their mercantile common denominators. But when you think about it, reflagging does make good economic sense. Even if the United States commercial fleet doesn't reap any immediate rewards from the Reagan strategy, American industry, which depends on Kuwaiti oil, benefits.

Still, the senatorial rush to judgment suffers from political amnesia.

In 1962, when President Kennedy set up a U.S. air and naval quarantine in response to the Soviet missile buildup in Cuba, the nation applauded this first step in dismantling a Soviet beachhead so close to home.

In 1987 President Reagan seeks no beachhead in the Persian Gulf, but a means of facilitating commercial transit for an economically important ally.

Reflagging does three things: — It draws an overdue line of national exasperation against a capriciously terroristic foe and a fanatical exponent of international subversion.

— It follows historical precedent.

— It preserves the centuries-old principle of freedom of the seas. Nobody questions the Senate's sincerity in its opposition to reflagging. But senators apparently don't understand that when it comes to Iran the American people are just about ready, to quote Vice President Bush's famed sotto voce euphemism, to "kick a little ass."

Reagan's reflagging policy may be third best in application, but it is first-class in principle.

The Zero Option's Dangers

The "arms control" treaty currently under negotiation in Geneva between the United States and the Soviet Union is now taking a sufficiently well-defined shape to permit intelligent comment. A tremendous amount of ink has been wasted on proposals that got scrapped along the way, but some rational conclusions are at last becoming possible.

Ever since the Soviet Union acquired nuclear bombs and the means to deliver them, via missiles, to the major cities and defense installations of the Western powers, peace has been preserved only by letting the Russians know that, if they launched a nuclear attack, enough Western missiles and bombs would survive that attack to inflict, in turn, "unacceptable" damage on the Soviet Union.

This has had the effect of deterring a "conventional" (i.e. non-nuclear) Soviet attack as well, because, thanks to the West's refusal to pledge "no first use," Moscow could not be sure that a conventional attack wouldn't lead to nuclear retaliation. (Such retaliation might take the form of nuclear-tipped artillery shells, which are highly effective against the tanks that would spearhead any conventional Soviet attack. Or it might involve intercontinental missiles.)

That has been the state of affairs for years, while liberals and leftists on both sides of the Atlantic bellyached to high heaven, demanding a "no first use" pledge.

Gorbachev's first move was to accept our standing offer to eliminate the IRBMs on both sides — except for 100 that Moscow would retain in its Far Eastern territories and 100 that the United States could base at home (presumably in Alaska, whence they could reach Soviet Asian targets). Subsequently, in response to our objection that it would be harder to make sure that only 100 missiles have been produced than to be certain that none have been, Gorbachev modified his proposal and accepted the original plan suggested by Washington: the "zero option" — no IRBMs at all.

Oddly enough, Soviet acceptance of the zero option has thrown many Europeans, as well as some important Americans, like Henry Kissinger, into a panic — rather like the aging Casanova who couldn't take "Yes" for an answer. Without nuclear IRBMs under NATO command, they fear, Western Europe (and especially West Germany) will lose confidence in America's determination to defend Europe.

A woman in New York lied on a parental financial statement to make it appear that her daughter was eligible for thousands of dollars in federal assistance. The mother understated the family income and overstated the number of dependents. When confronted with the investigators' evidence against her, she returned the money.

Several students in Kentucky colleges are facing civil suits for lying about their financial status in order to get federal aid. They overstated their needs in applications to several grant programs and collected amounts ranging from $1,500 to $12,300.

Footnote: To their chagrin, Education Department investigators discovered that some of the chiselers are close to home. They recently nabbed a secretary in the department's Washington, D.C., headquarters who had been doctoring her time cards for extra pay. She was ordered to repay about $2,000.

Stark Officers To Leave Navy; Assume Responsibility For Loss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy's decision to reprimand the captain and weapons officer of the USS Stark instead of taking them to trial was "mitigated by the unique circumstance" of the fatal Iraqi attack on their ship — and by a desire not to extend the grief among families of the 37 American sailors who died.

Capt. Glenn Brindel and Lt. Basil Moncrief Jr. will leave the Navy having accepted responsibility for not responding adequately to the May 17 attack in the Persian Gulf. The announcement of their non-judicial reprimands was made Monday by Adm. Frank Kelso II, commander of the Atlantic Fleet in Norfolk, Va.

Brindel, 43, of Pittsburgh, will retire in the reduced rank of commander with a lifetime loss of more than $100,000 in retirement pay he would have received as a captain, officials said. Moncrief, 32, of Corpus Christi, Texas, agreed to resign after eight years of service.

"Both accepted responsibility and both volunteered significant personal sacrifice in acknowledgement of accountability," the Navy said in a statement.

Senate Panel Mulls Nominees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee had two important nominations before it today: Alan Greenspan as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and David Ruder as head of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The committee was expected to confirm the nominations of both men.

Greenspan, 61, an economist who headed the Council of Economic Advisers under President Ford, is respected in the nation's financial community and received little resistance during confirmation hearings last week.

He would replace the popular Paul Volcker, who will step down Aug. 6 after eight years at the helm of the nation's central bank.

Finance Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., predicted last week the conservative Greenspan would be confirmed easily by the Senate but indicated he might vote against the nominee because of philosophical differences.

Indian Doctor Cites AIDS Threat

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — AIDS is spreading rapidly through America's Indian tribes and could wipe out some of the smaller reservations, partly because the culture tolerates bisexual relationships, the chief physician for the nation's biggest tribe said.

Speaking at a gathering of Indian health officials, Dr. Ben Muneta, chief medical officer for the Navajo Nation Department of Health, said Monday that because the deadly disease is spreading so quickly among heterosexual Indians and can be passed on to children at birth — usually killing them before age 2 — it could wipe out entire tribes.

As of last December, the Navajos did not have a reported case of AIDS. Now, Muneta said, there are 39 cases, the last being reported last week.

The Navajos, whose 200,000 members make them the largest tribe in the United States, probably will not be as endangered, Muneta said.

If the disease spreads among Indians at the rate it does in the general population, the Indian population will have 200 cases by 1991. But if it follows projections for blacks, Hispanics and other minorities, the number of cases could reach 600, Muneta said — three times the per capita number of cases as the U.S. population as a whole.

Pirate Ship Beams Rock 'N' Roll

LONG BEACH, N.Y. (UPI) — A pirate radio station aboard a rusty freighter beamed rock 'n' roll music to shore from the Atlantic Monday in defiance of a government order, and promised to broadcast round-the-clock "as soon as we can get some advertisers."

The unlicensed station, which first went on the air at sea Thursday, continued to broadcast sporadically about 5 miles off Long Beach, a New York City suburb, from a 175-foot freighter of Honduran registry renamed "Sarah."

Jonathan Clarke, the station's assistant program director, said program testing would continue every evening between 7 p.m. and midnight in defiance of a Federal Communications Commission order to halt the broadcasts.

"We are a commercial station, and we plan to operate 24 hours a day as soon as we can get some advertisers," Clarke said. He said "several investors" are financing the station, but he declined to identify them.

Governors Discuss AIDS Battle

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (UPI) — The nation's governors are calling for a federally funded education and prevention program to halt the spread of AIDS but were unable to agree on whether mandatory testing should be required.

The National Governors Association, which was to end its annual convention today, was expected to approve a series of policy statements on AIDS and other issues today.

The group was wrapping up its three-day annual convention that has emphasized the need to make American products more competitive in world markets through cooperation between state and federal governments and among the states themselves.

Democratic governors planned to then repair to nearby Mackinac Island to meet all seven Democratic presidential candidates Wednesday.

UAW, Carmakers Open Talks

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers agree job security is the big issue in contract talks, and UAW President Owen Bieber says a strike is unlikely as long as "the so-called heartbeat of America keeps on beating here" and not abroad.

The No. 1 automaker already produces vehicles and parts in other countries, and it has announced plans to eliminate 35,000 American jobs within 2 1/2 years.

The formal handshake across the bargaining table at GM's headquarters Monday in Detroit was to be repeated today between the UAW and the nation's No. 2 carmaker, Ford Motor Co., as bargaining for a new labor accord begins there.

In all, about 335,000 GM workers and 104,000 Ford workers will be covered by new agreements that are expected to replace the current three-year pacts which simultaneously expire midnight Sept. 14. The International Union of Electronics workers are also set to begin talks with GM today to cover an additional 24,000 workers.

Both GM and the UAW said after an hourlong session Monday, in which the union began presenting its position to the automaker on what it called "a number of problem areas," that an agreement can be reached without a strike.

Northeast Dominates Poll Of Best Places To Live

NEW YORK (UPI) — The low crime rate, booming economy, and absence of state sales and income taxes helped boost Nashua, N.H., to the top spot on Money magazine's list of best places to live. Flint, Mich., came in last of 300.

Nashua, which also enjoys rustic New England charm, proximity to such desirable places as Atlantic Ocean resorts, Boston and the White Mountains, was selected as the best place to live in the United States in a survey published in the August edition of Money magazine.

"This confirms what we've known all along," said Mayor James W. Doncheff. "Nashua and New Hampshire are great places to live."

California's sunny weather boosted two areas in the state into Money's top 10, but the other eight all were north of the Sun Belt, seven in the Northeast.

According to the magazine survey, Norwalk, Conn., ranked second, and Wheeling, W.Va., was third, followed by fourth-place Beaver County, Pa., and fifth-place Danbury, Conn.

Long Island, N.Y., came in sixth, and Oxnard-Ventura, Calif., was seventh. Boston's North Shore suburbs, the Scranton Wilkes-Barre area of Pennsylvania and Anaheim-Santa Ana, Calif., completed the top 10.

There have been several best-city surveys in recent years, including Rand McNally's "Places Rated Almanac," which in 1985 selected Pittsburgh as No. 1. Pittsburgh rated 43rd in the Money magazine survey.

Also, an organization called Partners for Livable Places this year named 40 metropolitan areas as America's Most Livable Cities.

But previous studies were flawed, said Money, by failing "to give extra weight to the key characteristics — such as safety, the weather, the local economy — that are most important to the

After-Tax Income Falls In June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher taxes ate up Americans' 0.4 percent income gain in June, leaving them with 0.1 percent less after-tax income for the month, the Commerce Department said Monday.

The government estimated personal income nationwide last month at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $3.73 trillion. That rate shows what a year's worth of income would be if every month were like June and seasonal factors did not count.

June's 0.4 percent increase follows revised estimates of 0.5 percent income hikes in both April and May. The Commerce Department previously estimated April's gain at 0.4 percent and May's at just 0.2 percent.

It said $8 billion of June's $13.2 billion rise in the personal income rate came from higher wages and salaries. Farm proprietors' income, from subsidy payments and their own crop sales, went up $2.9 billion.

These gains were overwhelmed by a $16.9 billion increase in personal tax and non-tax payments, resulting in a $3.7 billion cut in disposable income, the Commerce Department said.

The department blamed the increase in large part on federal tax changes that resulted in higher taxes on the federal, state and local levels.

Americans spent at an annual rate of $3.05 trillion in June, up $20.6 billion from May's total. Durable goods — those that are meant to last several years — accounted for half of the increase. Autos were the chief durable good purchased, Commerce said.

After their purchases, Americans had $122.3 billion to save — a savings rate of 3.9 percent of their after-tax income, slightly higher than the average since March.

The government also revised its personal income estimates since 1984 to show Americans made slightly less money in 1984 and slightly more in 1985 and 1986 than had been estimated.

In 1984, people saw their personal income grow 9.5 percent instead of the previously reported 9.6 percent. The new 1985 estimate shows 7 percent growth in personal income, up from the previously estimated 6.6 percent, while the 1986 figure was raised to 6.2 percent, up from 5.2 percent.

public." Money magazine said these factors were weighted in its rankings (formulated from a poll of 226 readers. The representative sample respondents, on the average, were 42 years old with a household income of $58,000.

A low crime rate was the most important of 60 factors the poll cited, followed by the local economy, which included the appreciation of home value. Other prime factors were health care, climate, leisure activities, the arts, schools and transportation.

Nashua was chosen for its strong economy, first-rate schools and low crime rate, the magazine said, also noting that New Hampshire is the only state that has neither a sales nor an income tax.

Money readers said the least important factors were proximity to Amtrak and bus stations, and availability of household help.

The dominance of the Northeast was to be expected, Money said. But "since a strong local economy mattered enormously to our respondents," the high standing of Wheeling and Scranton, Penn., was considered a surprise.

Both cities have sluggish economies, but that negative was offset by low crime rates and inexpensive housing.

Pennsylvania placed the most cities in the top 100 with 13, and California was the runner-up with 12.

San Francisco ranked 12th, the highest of any major metropolitan area, followed by Los Angeles at 17th and San Diego at 22nd.

Of the 300 metropolitan areas rated in the Money poll, five of the bottom 10 are in Michigan.

The last 10 cities were Mansfield, Ohio; Saginaw, Mich.; Wilmington, N.C.; Jackson, Mich.; Odessa, Texas; Rockford, Ill.; Atlantic City, N.J.; Benton Harbor, Mich.; Muskegon, Mich., and — No. 300 — Flint, Mich.

These cities were hurt in the rankings, Money said, by high crime rates, weak economies, and few arts and leisure activities.

The places that ranked below the top 100 and above the bottom 10 were not listed by the magazine.

Epcot Pavilion To Feature 'Body Wars'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Monday announced plans to sponsor a human life and health pavilion at Walt Disney World's Epcot Center to be opened in October 1989.

The pavilion will be the most costly to be erected in Future World, an area of exhibits with themes of discovery and science at the 260-acre entertainment center at Walt Disney World southwest of Orlando.

The centerpiece of the pavilion will be "Body Wars" a simulated rollercoaster ride in which the theater itself moves.

Although neither Walt Disney nor Metropolitan Life would disclose the cost of the project, one analyst estimated the 100,000 square-foot pavilion would cost between $35 million and $50 million.

In addition to Body Wars, the exhibit will contain a 200-seat theater, where a cast of cartoon characters will take a humorous look at how the brain functions as the body's communications center.

IN BRIEF

Supertanker Readied To Sail, Helicopters May Sweep Mines

KUWAIT (UPI) — U.S. officials say they are determined to return the damaged supertanker Bridgeton to service by week's end and denied the mine that blew a gaping hole in the ship's hull demonstrated the ineffectiveness of President Reagan's Persian Gulf escort policy.

The Bridgeton was hit by a Soviet-manufactured mine on Friday while sailing about 18 miles west of Iran's Fars Island in the northern Persian Gulf, despite U.S. naval protection.

The explosion came on the Bridgeton's maiden voyage under President Reagan's re-registration agreement, which allows 11 Kuwaiti tankers to fly the American flag and receive U.S. naval escorts.

In Washington, Pentagon officials said the Bridgeton was being loaded with oil in Kuwaiti waters and its hull was being patched temporarily for a voyage south through the gulf later this week. The tanker will undergo more extensive repairs in drydock after the second voyage, they said.

Rear Adm. Harold Bernsen, commander of the U.S. Middle East Force said Sunday escorts could not resume without a mine-free path through the gulf.

The United States and Kuwait have no minesweepers in the gulf.

Pentagon officials said they were considering sending huge RH-53 Sikorsky choppers to the gulf to search for mines.

The major obstacle to sending U.S. minesweeper helicopters to the Persian Gulf has been the refusal of Arab states to serve as a base for the aircraft that could help clear shipping channels of underwater explosives.

Because of last week's mine damage to the supertanker Bridgeton, however, the Pentagon has studied alternative basing with renewed urgency, officials say — and the huge RH-53 Sikorsky choppers could end up on U.S. aircraft carriers.

Iraqis Down Syrian MIG

By United Press International

Iraqi anti-aircraft batteries today shot down a Syrian MIG-21 fighter over Iraqi territory, a military spokesman said. The pilot of the plane survived.

The spokesman, quoted by the official Iraqi News Agency, said the aircraft was downed by Iraqi anti-aircraft fire 4 miles from the Iraqi settlement of Al-Okashat at 10:39 a.m. after it flew over the border.

"It has been proved to us without doubt that the identity of the plane downed within Iraqi territory is a Syrian (Soviet-made) MIG-21," the spokesman told INA. "The pilot of the Syrian plane is alive."

Damascus Radio made no immediate mention of the incident near the Iraqi town of Al Qaim, some 150 miles northwest of Baghdad and 275 miles northeast of the Syrian capital of Damascus.

More Haitian Victims Found

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Haitian military officials estimate at least 100 peasant activists died in a bloody machete massacre believed carried out by opponents of land reform in an impoverished northwestern village.

Led by the smell of decaying flesh, rescue workers Monday found the bodies of more victims littering the rocky gullies and shrubland surrounding the village of Jean Rabel, about 145 miles from the capital.

Initial reports said more than 50 people died in the battle on Thursday and Friday, but army officers told reporters who accompanied them on a helicopter flight to the site of the killings Monday that they think at least 100 people died.

Residents of the remote area predicted the death toll could surpass 300, and said several hundred villagers are missing — either dead or gone into hiding.

Greek Death Toll Nears 900

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Greek authorities have run out of morgue space for victims of a weeklong heatwave that has killed nearly 900 people, forcing officials to store bodies in railway freezer cars or leave them cluttering hospital corridors and outdoor huts.

"People are dying like flies," said Athens undertaker Nikolaos Ladakis. "We've never seen anything like it before. We can't bury them fast enough."

In Salonica, in northern Greece, the bodies of people who were mostly elderly, overweight and ill were stored in freezer railway wagons until they could be buried.

Athens undertakers complained that the shortage of space was creating a "serious health hazard" with bodies left in hospital corridors and outdoor huts until their turn to be buried.

Demjanjuk Denies Ever Killing

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Former U.S. autoworker John Demjanjuk, accused of being the Nazi death camp guard "Ivan the Terrible," testified today he could "never even kill a chicken" when asked if he had ever killed a human being.

Demjanjuk, 67, was answering his attorney's last question during his second day of testimony in his war crimes trial.

"Have you ever killed a man in your life?" asked John Gill, his American defense attorney.

"I could never even kill a chicken, my wife always did that," Demjanjuk said as spectators began murmuring in the courtroom and Chief Justice Dov Levin called for order.

Aquino Coup Leader Arrested

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A renegade police colonel has been arrested in a series of failed attempts to overthrow President Corazon Aquino and bring back ousted ruler Ferdinand Marcos from Hawaiian exile, military authorities said today.

Col. Rolando Abadilla, 45, head of the Military Intelligence Service Group under the Marcos regime, and a police sergeant, were arrested Monday afternoon during a raid on his office by 100 soldiers.

National Police spokesman Lt. Col. Crisencio Maralit said military prosecutors were preparing charges against Abadilla, who was being held at an army camp.

Herrera Charged With Sedition

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Former military chief of staff Col. Roberto Diaz Herrera has been arrested and charged with sedition following a brief battle with government troops at his home.

Eighty lawyers from the opposition group National Civic Crusade were investigating the legality of the arrest, a source close to Diaz Herrera said.

Diaz Herrera's charges last month that military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega rigged presidential elections and was involved in the murder of political opponents touched off anti-government riots across the nation.

Troops using helicopters and tear gas raided Diaz Herrera's home Monday and arrested him along with 45 of his followers who resisted.

Tatars Given Kid-Glove Treatment

Red Square Protest Effective

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's liberal policies made possible the kid-glove treatment of Crimean Tatar demonstrators in Red Square and the apparent quick government response to their demands.

The Tatar's sit-in protest demanding to be returned to their pre-World War II homeland resulted in a promise of a meeting with Soviet President Andrei Gromyko Monday.

About 150 largely Sunni Moslem Tatars, who had camped out since Saturday night by the Kremlin wall and the onion-domed St. Basil's Cathedral, dispersed peacefully Sunday over a bridge leading away from Red Square.

The protesters are asking to be returned to the land from which Soviet dictator Josef Stalin deported them in 1944, when 250,000 Tatars were sent to Siberia and Central Asia or, charges they collaborated with the German Army in W W II.

Sofna Djemileva, 33, wife of long-time Crimean Tatar nationalist Mustafa Djemilev who was released this year from 15 years in prison for nationalist activities, said a delegation of Tatars will meet with Gromyko, 78, head of a commission announced last week to study the Crimean Tatar demands.

"We have won a meeting with Gromyko and the Government Commission that was set up to decide our national question, and that is why we decided to disperse," Djemileva said.

"If tomorrow our demands are not satisfied, we will continue our demands, and will express our intentions," she said.

The mostly peaceful sit-in, carried out under the watchful eye of hundreds of police, contrasted with the heavy beating dished out to 20 Soviet Jews who staged an unauthorized demonstration on the Arbat, one of Moscow's most fashionable shopping streets, last February.

Since the brutal disruption by the KGB secret police of the Arbat demonstration, there appears to have been a marked attitude change in police handling of unauthorized public demonstrations.

In Riga, capital of the Baltic republic of Latvia, about 4,000 demonstrators were permitted to march through the streets June 14 uninterrupted by police, and in Leningrad in March about 300 protesters demanding rethinking of government environmental policy also went off without incident.

Divers Retrieve Titanic's Dishes

PARIS (UPI) — A French Titanic expedition said today it had recovered a strongbox and plates from the "unsinkable" ship's deep icy north Atlantic grave during a nine-hour submarine dive.

Expedition officials said all objects retrieved from the site of the sunken luxury steamer will be placed in special cartons for safety because they may be extremely delicate after 75 years underwater.

"After decades below the surface they are fragile and have to be handled extremely carefully," said Daniel Puget, a Paris-based spokesman for Taurus International, technical consultants to the $2.25 million expedition.

During the nine-hour dive Sunday, a remote-controlled robot also took more than 300 photographs of the wreck, which was positively identified by a Franco-American expedition in September 1985, Puget said.

Puget pledged that nothing recovered from the wreck by the crew from the Institute for Research and Exploitation of the Sea would be put up for sale. He said the crew brought up one strongbox and several plates Sunday, but declined to disclose the contents of the safe or describe the plates.

"I spoke to the crew by radio and am still awaiting photographs of the strongbox and plates to see what they look like so I cannot yet tell you how big the strongbox is or how much it weighs," Puget said.

Officials did not say when they expected to have clear descriptions of the recovered articles.

The "unsinkable" Titanic sank April 14, 1912, 350 miles off the coast of Newfoundland after hitting an iceberg on her maiden voyage from Southampton, England, to New York.

In the worst peacetime maritime disaster ever, the Titanic went down with more than 1,500 passengers and crew, lending its name to history as an adjective to describe disasters of huge proportions.

Today, the ship is lying on its side in darkness at a depth of 12,467 feet — beyond the reach of light.

"The Nautilus submarine, using powerful headlamps, inspected first the front of the ship, then the rear about 1,989 feet away," Puget said. "Visibility at the site over the weekend averaged about 43 feet in fairly murky water which moved at a weak current."

The remote-controlled robot, which took the photographs of the wreck, is linked to the submarine by a 230-foot cord and can maneuver inside sections of the ship that would otherwise be too dangerous or difficult to enter.

"The crew took photographs and video images of good quality, which will help define zones of insecurity and to establish the cartography of the area for planning future dives," Puget said.

He said Pierre-Henri Nargeolet, head pilot for the first weekend dive Saturday, was "very impressed by the extraordinary wreck. It was very hard for him to put his feelings into words."

"The wreck is very large, very grand, and this is a very rare chance for a diver," Puget said. "This is a first for the crew, the absolute zenith of their careers so far."

He said the makeup of the crew will change daily because of the stresses on the body from diving to such depths in a submarine for long periods. "It would be much too strenuous for anyone to dive every day," Puget said.

The Titanic was positively identified in September 1985 by a joint Franco-American mission after decades of uncertainty about its location.

Sanford Crowns 3 National Champs

Martin, Webster, Pearson Win Golds

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

After accomplishing everything possible within the state, four members of the Seminole High girls track team journeyed to Provo, Utah last week to attempt to put Sanford on the national map.

Shownda Martin, Dorchelle Webster and Michelle Pearson all came away with gold medals in individual events while Yolanda Baker picked up a medal in the 400 relay as Sanford came to prominence at the Junior Olympic National Track and Field Championships.

Martin, who will be a senior at Seminole this school year, breezed to a 2:14.8 in the finals of the 800 meter run, her second Junior Olympic National title in the 800.

"I'm always nervous before a race but it turned out to be pretty easy," Martin said. "I just cruised to a 2:18 in the prelims and that was still the top seeded time. Nobody really pushed me."

Although there was not much competition at Provo, Martin did turn in her personal best in the 800 the previous week while competing for the U.S. Junior National team at Pullman, Wash. Webster ran a 2:09 in that race which was good for fifth place among many of the top athletes from the U.S., Canada and Cuba.

"I was in the race but it was real tough competition," Martin said. "At the point where I usually cruise, the other girls were still going strong."

"I was happy to win the race at Provo," Martin added. "But I was also happy to be coming home."

Webster, who will also be a senior this school year, took the gold medal in an event she ran for the first time only three months ago. In the 400 meter hurdle finals, Webster sailed to a time of 59.8 which was well ahead of the rest of the pack.

"I was out by myself the whole time," Webster said. "But I was pleased that I did run a personal record in the prelims."

Webster blazed to a time of 58.8 in the preliminaries (58.4 hand timed). Webster is still waiting to hear whether that time is good enough to get her to the U.S. Olympic team trials.

While she ran her personal best at Provo, Webster also competed as a member of the U.S. Junior National team. At Pullman, Wash., Webster ran third in the 400 hurdles but said she could have placed higher if she didn't clip the last hurdle.

"I was in second place off the curve and a Canadian girl came up on me," Webster said. "I looked up and hit the last hurdle and fell back a place."

"Pullman was a very interesting experience for me," Webster added. "I got my first drug test up there. I was scared but glad I got the experience."

Pearson, who will be a junior at Seminole in 1987-88, competed in Junior Olympic meets for her first time this summer and went all the way to nationals where she took first place in the 100 meter hurdles with a time of 14.58.

"I was surprised I could win it my first time out," Pearson said. "But I knew I could win after I ran the best time in the prelims. I plan on trying again next year."

Pearson, who ran a personal best 14.5 in the prelims, also competed in the 4 X 100 meter relay along with Seminole's

Baker, Diane Hodges of Orlando and Missicks of Titusville. The team finished fourth with a time of 48.54.

Baker, who anchored the relay, also competed in the open 400 meters but pulled a muscle during the finals and did not finish.

"I was just getting ready to make my move around the last turn," Baker said. "I was starting to sprint for the finish when I felt something pull."

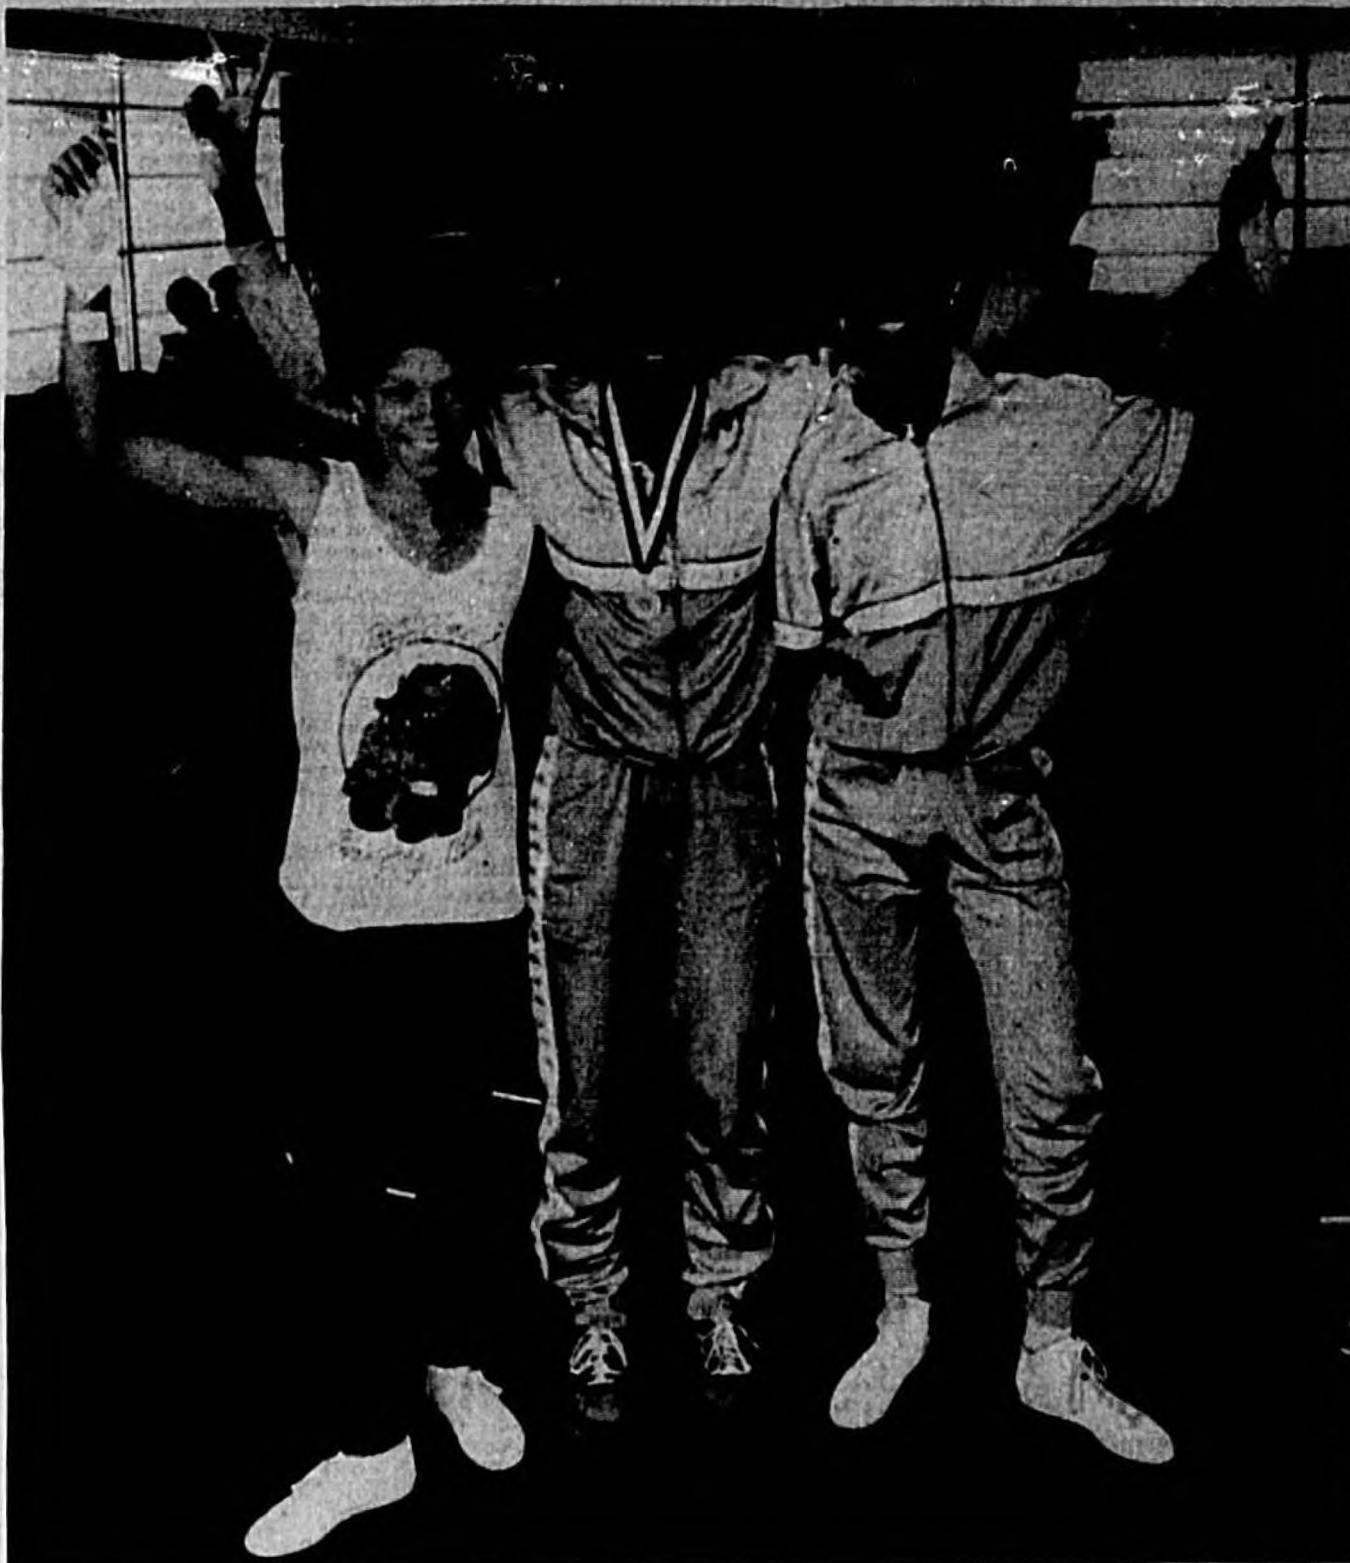

Because of her injury, Baker, who will be a sophomore at Seminole this year, was not allowed to run in the finals of the 4 X 400 relay where she had helped her team to the best time in the prelims.

"I was really proud when I heard what they accomplished," Seminole High girls track coach Emory Blake said. "When kids do stuff like this, they are giving up a lot of other things they could be doing over the summer. They gave of themselves to go out and compete on a national level. I hope everyone in our area recognizes the dedication these girls are showing."

KING GETS TWO MEDALS

Lake Mary's Cecil King also made the trip to Provo last week and he came away with medals in both the long jump and triple jump. In the long jump, King leaped 23-1/2 in his first attempt and that was good enough for fifth place. He went on to take fourth in the triple jump with a leap of 47-10.

Lake Mary also sent distance runners Brad Smith and Scott Plyler to the meet while Lake Howell distance standout Kavan Howell also competed. Lyman's Teddy Mitchell took fifth place in the 5,000 meters in his age group.

Team Central Florida Rips Indiana, 54-37

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

The offensive firepower of Vicky Smith and Jennifer Clark and the defensive spark of Brooke Burns enabled Team Central Florida to stay alive Monday with a 54-37 losers' bracket victory over Indiana in the AAU 16 and Under National Tournament at the University of Mississippi in Oxford.

Team Central Florida, which lost to Middle Atlantic (Philadelphia), 68-45, early Monday, returned to losers' bracket play Tuesday morning against Virginia in the double elimination tournament.

"We were not favored in the Indiana game but we had some people come off the bench and give us solid performances," Team Central coach Mike Averill said. "If we win tomorrow, we'll be in the top 12 in the tournament and I believe we can finish higher if we play our best."

Smith poured in 16 points to lead Team Central over Indiana while Clark pumped in 14.

Basketball

Maryhelen Shashy added five, Suzanne Hughes contributed four. Katrina Colleton collected three and Liz Long, Kathy Freeman, Burns, Pam Starks and Tracy Brandenburg netted two apiece. Renee Bellamy and Sanford's Tara Jackson added one point each.

"Smith did a good job filling in at point guard when Tracy (Brandenburg) was in foul trouble," Averill said. "And Brooke (Burns) did a tremendous job on defense when we need it the most."

Team Central had a one-point lead at halftime and pulled away early in the second half before Indiana stormed back within one. At that time, Averill said Colleton's rebounding and Burns' defense enabled Team Central to pull comfortably ahead.

In Monday's early game, the

powerful inside game of Middle Atlantic team was too much for Team Central Florida. Dana McDonald's 14 points and 12 each by Amy Wess and Jackie Donovan led Middle Atlantic while 6-4 Tina Henry was a terror on defense.

Starks' nine points were high for Team Central while Clark hit eight. Bridget Giles six, Colleton five, Smith and Bellamy four each and Brandenburg, Hughes, Freeman and Shashy contributed two apiece.

Middle Atlantic stormed to a 37-26 halftime lead and the closest Team Central got the rest of the way was eight points.

"They (Middle Atlantic) were very big and strong," Averill said. "And we didn't play anywhere near as well as we should have."

Playoff At Women's Open

EDISON, N.J. (UPI) — JoAnne Carner, Ayako Okamoto and Laura Davies — representing the past, present and future of women's golf — meet to decide in 90 holes what they failed to settle in 72 at the Women's U.S. Open.

The trio face off at 9 a.m. EDT today in the first three-way playoff in the 42-year history of the championship. The playoff and a thunderstorm that suspended play Sunday combined to make this the first Open to be decided as late as Tuesday.

Carner, who shot a 3-under 69 in Monday's fourth round, Okamoto (72) and Davies (71) finished 72 holes at 285. Four strokes back were Betsy King and Jody Rosenthal with Debbie Massey and Deedee Roberts at 290.

Nancy Lopez, looking for the only major championship title to elude her, was at 297 along with low amateur Michiko Hattori. Defending champion Jane Geddes withdrew Monday after injuring her back lifting luggage.

The three playoff participants each represent a different era of the sport.

Carner, at 48 the oldest player in the field, is a member of the LPGA Hall of Fame but has not won a tournament in two years. She is No. 2 on the all-time money list but 47th this year. Carner would become the oldest Open champion by eight years.

Okamoto, 36, is one of the top players on the LPGA Tour, having won three times this year and 10 in all. The Japanese star is third on the 1987 money list but has yet to win a major championship in her career.

Davies, 23, was the top money winner on the European women's tour the last two years. The stocky native of Coventry, England is known for her prodigious drives. Davies is excited about playing with Carner, 25 years her senior, in the playoff.

"She's always been one of my heroines, her and Nancy Lopez," Davies said. "It will be one of the highlights of my career, playing with her."

Taubensee's Homer Helps Snap Trappers' Win Streak

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The professional baseball record for consecutive victories now resides in the Pioneer League, where long bus trips to the likes of Pocatello, Idaho, and Butte, Mont., leave plenty of time for summer dreams.

The Salt Lake Trappers extended their streak to 28 Saturday night, routing Pocatello 13-3. The victory eclipsed the record set in 1902 by the Corsicana (Texas) Oilers and tied in 1921 by the Baltimore Orioles of the International League.

After winning again Sunday, the Trappers' streak was snapped at 29 games Monday night with a 7-5 loss to Billings in Billings, Mont.

Baseball

Lake Howell High graduate Ed Taubensee's three-run homer sparked the six-run outburst in the Pioneer League game at Billings, Salt Lake, which entered with a 16 1/2-game lead over Idaho Falls, dropped to 32-4 on the season.

"As a player, it's just a nice feeling, but it means a lot to us as a team because this record will do nothing but help every one of us turn some heads and maybe get a shot at the big leagues," said catcher Frank Colston, who leads the league in hitting.

Trappers Manager Jim Gilligan agreed the record could mean a better shot at the big leagues for his players. The league is made up of college players passed over by the big leagues.

"I'm sitting here with the L.A. Times on my lap and we're on the front page. Two of our players were (ABC) Wide World of Sports players of the week — Colston and Jimmy Ferguson," the manager said. "It's unreal for a minor-league team to get the exposure we're getting right now. It's been great publicity for the Pioneer League."

The Trappers, defending Pioneer League champs, struggled early in the season before beginning the streak.

Seminole Broncos Win Big

Baseball

Matt Freeman and Jason Crain each powered a home run in a big third inning Monday as the Seminole Pony Baseball Bronco All-Stars defeated Oxford, Alabama, 13-3, in the Bronco Southern Region Tournament at Marietta, Ga.

Seminole advances to the winners' bracket final of the four-team, double elimination tournament and will play one of two Georgia teams tonight at 8:30. The winner of the Southern Region goes on to the Southeastern Zone Tournament next week in Tampa.

Crain unloaded a three-run homer in the third inning for Seminole while Freeman blasted a two-run shot. Seminole took the early lead on a two-out, two-strike suitcase squeeze bunt by Charlie Chapman. Jay Black and Jason Bohrmann also contributed two hits each to the offense.

Freeman was also the winning pitcher for Seminole as he pitched the first three innings, allowed one run on one hit, struck out six and walked five. Nakia Roberts pitched the last two frames and gave up two runs, struck out three and walked two.

Lyman Downs Apopka For Legion District Title

By Mike Dame
Special to the Herald

Jim Lucas hurled five innings of one-hit ball, and reliever Matt Pedrotty tossed two and two thirds frames of no-hit ball as Lyman downed Apopka, 8-4, to clinch the American Legion Baseball District championship at Apopka High School Monday night.

The victory follows a 4-2 Lyman loss to Apopka on Sunday afternoon, which forced a deciding game Monday.

"We just came back, relaxed and played some good solid baseball," Lyman manager Bob McCollough said. "We played good all year and it was a good little leting on the cake."

With the win, Lyman will now go to the double-elimination State Tournament which begins this Monday. The tourney will be held at Boardwalk and Baseball.

Lyman jumped on Apopka early as Johnny Luce started a rally with a double, followed by a Chris Radcliff single. Kenny Jackson then knocked a sacrifice fly deep to score Luce, giving Lyman a 1-0 lead.

After a scoreless second, Lyman exploded for two more runs in the third. Luce started it off once again with a single, followed by a base-hit by Chris Brock which put runners on first and third. That's when the game temporarily entered the twilight zone.

While Mickey Helms was batting with two outs, Brock stole second when a wild pitch got away from the catcher and bounced out in front of the plate. Luce quickly darted home on the play and was followed by Brock who incredibly scored on the same pitch — all the way from first. That Apopka juggling act gave Lyman a 3-0 lead.

Lyman added two more in the fifth to give Lucas a 5-0 lead to work with. Radcliff started the rally with a walk and then stole second. Brock then belted an RBI double to score Radcliff, followed by another Lyman double by Helms.

That's when Lyman began to have pitching troubles. After giving up one run in the fifth which cut the lead to 5-1, Lucas began to have problems in the sixth and was replaced by Brock with one man on base. Bases were eventually loaded, but Brock got out of the inning without giving up a run.

Puckett Saves Twins, Reardon

United Press International That save next to Jeff Reardon's name in the box score rightfully belongs to Kirby Puckett.

Puckett preserved Minnesota's 4-3 victory over the Mariners Monday night by throwing out the potential tying run at the plate to end the game.

After Steve Lombardozzi and Gary Gaetti hit home runs in the ninth to put the Twins ahead, Reardon started the bottom of the inning and retired the first two batters. Needing only one more out for his 21st save, Reardon yielded a double off the left-center field wall to Dave Valle.

Rey Quinones then hit a sharp, one-hop single to center and Puckett, who was playing shallow, charged the ball and threw Valle out at the plate by a wide margin.

"I wanted to hit the cutoff man," said Puckett, who made a perfect throw to catcher Tim Louden. "That's my job."

Seattle Manager Dick Williams said he considered replacing Valle with a pinch runner.

"It would have been Mike Kingery and that could have made it two steps closer," Williams said. "He was out by what, four steps? The hit was rope and the throw was a strike."

Gaetti hit a strike for his game-winning homer on a 3-2 count from Nunez after fouling off seven pitches.

Stubbs Blasts Giants

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Those around Franklin Stubbs preach patience so much, one would think Stubbs would grow impatient listening to all the talk.

"I was pressing too hard and not relaxed enough," Stubbs said Monday night after he led off the 12th inning with his 14th home run of the season, lifting the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

"I was just trying to make contact and to stay relaxed."

Stubbs' blast, deep over the right-center field fence, came off Scott Garrelts, 9-7.

"I have complete confidence in Cadillac," Los Angeles Manager Tom LaSorda said of Stubbs. "I thought to myself, 'This guy is due to hit one out.'"

Garrelts had different thoughts.

"I threw Stubbs a slider," he said. "All you can do is keep coming at them."

Tim Leary, who pitched one inning, improved to 2-6.

The Dodgers had tied it 5-5 in the bottom of the 11th. Steve Sax led off with a single. Danny Heep sacrificed and was safe at first when first baseman Will Clark allowed Garrelts' throw to get past him. Sax took third on the play and scored when Dave Anderson lofted a sacrifice fly to right.

The Giants had gone ahead in top of the 11th when Joel Youngblood's two-out infield single scored Eddie Milner from third.

San Francisco tied it 4-4 in the ninth off Tim Crews, who was making his major league debut. With one out, Mike Aldrete singled and took second when left fielder Pedro Guerrero bobbled the ball. Kevin Mitchell singled through the shortstop hole to score pinch runner Mark Wasinger.

After Crews induced Leonard to fly out, Matt Young replaced him. Mitchell stole second with Will Clark batting. Young made a wild pitch and Mitchell tried to score from second, but catcher Mike Scioscia's throw to Young easily beat Mitchell to end the inning.

Hatcher had put Los Angeles ahead 4-3 with his sixth home run of the season, a solo shot in the eighth.

The Giants tied it 3-3 in the fifth on a double by Mike Aldrete and a two-out single to right by Jeffrey Leonard.

Dave Anderson opened a three-run Los Angeles first by reaching on third baseman Mitchell's error. Anderson took third on Ken Landreaux's single to left. Anderson scored and Landreaux advanced on a wild pitch by Kelly Downs.

After Pedro Guerrero walked and Franklin Stubbs popped out, Hatcher brought in Landreaux with a broken-bat single to right. John Shelby snapped a 1 for 31 streak by lining a single of Downs' right arm. Joe Price replaced Downs and retired the side.

San Francisco, which scored a run in the first on a fielder's choice, closed to 3-2 in the second when Chili Davis doubled, Robbie Thompson singled and Jose Uribe doubled.

With one out in the San Francisco first, Mitchell singled. One out later, Mitchell took third on Will Clark's single. Mitchell scored when Clark got caught in a rundown trying to steal.

The Giants said Downs suffered a bruised right forearm. The injury was not considered serious.

SPORTS

IN BRIEF

Festival Continues Growth, Attendance, Revenue Marks Set

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — The U.S. Olympic Festival continued its growth as an event of importance, surpassing standards for attendance and revenue during its two-week run in five North Carolina cities, Olympic committee officials said.

The eighth Olympic Festival, which concluded Sunday, drew 460,884 spectators, bettering the record 348,944 last year in Houston. The attendance mark furthers an upward trend interrupted only once — in Baton Rouge, La., in 1985 — as the event evolves from its beginnings as a virtually unnoticed gathering of amateur athletes in 1978.

"It's not equivalent to the Super Bowl yet, but it has national status," said Sheila Walker, the U.S. Olympic Committee's director of festivals and competition. "It's going to keep growing. It is no longer looked upon as a regional event."

"(The attendance) is a very, very significant factor to us. It means that the Festival is continuing to grow in visibility and in prestige. It has come of age."

However, questions remain about the Festival's ability to attract the nation's elite amateur athletes after several prominent performers skipped this year's event. The Festival, held during every non-Olympic year and set for Oklahoma City, Okla., in 1989, is designed as a developmental event showcasing the nation's amateur athletes and preparing them for international competition.

However, the USOC's Mike Moran said because his organization looks at the event as developmental, "There is no pressure to bring only elite athletes."

The Festival, with events concentrated in Durham, Chapel Hill, Raleigh, Greensboro and Cary, is expected to generate about $1 million in profit to be split by the USOC and North Carolina Amateur Sports, the local organizing committee, NCAS President H. Hill Carrow, Jr., said.

Total ticket revenue topped $3 million, about $600,000 more than last year.

Leonard: No Plans For Return

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Middleweight boxing champion Sugar Ray Leonard says his two most immediate goals are starting his own fight-management business and helping coach the Olympic team.

Leonard, in StateLine to participate in a celebrity tennis event at Caesars Palace, said he has teamed with brewing giant Coors Inc., of Golden, Colo., to form a stable of professional fighters. He also said he doesn't plan on returning to the ring as a fighter.

"I don't ever use the word retire when I talk about boxing," Leonard said. "I won't ever be away from the sport. Right now, I'm putting together a professional team with Coors. The team should be in place within the next six months to a year."

"I want to do this (manage boxers) because it gives the guys an alternative to what is already out there. I want to get into the managerial aspects — developing a guy's career. I'm not going to recruit amateur boxers, but if there are boxers out there who want me to represent them, then I'll accommodate them."

Leonard also said he wants to get involved with the Olympic boxing movement.

"There has been talk about working in some capacity with the Olympic team," the 1976 gold medalist said. "I've talked with Col. Don Hall, who is one of the heads of the Olympic boxing organization. I just feel with my expertise and experience as both an amateur and a professional, I can help the team."

Triathlete Killed By Car

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — A 15-year-old Los Angeles girl was killed Sunday when her bicycle was hit by a car as she competed in the eighth annual San Luis Obispo Triathlon, police said.

Casey Marie Stevenson was competing in the bicycle portion of the swimming, bicycling and running race when she cut across Orcutt Road just south of the city and apparently failed to check for oncoming cars.

She was struck and killed by a car driven by David Kaplan, 24, of San Luis Obispo, who received minor injuries, and was pronounced dead on arrival at French Hospital, police said.

Police said Kaplan will not be charged because investigators determined the girl was at fault for not looking before she crossed the highway.

The accident happened just before noon, and organizers cancelled the rest of the bicycle portion of the race.

Chris Hinshaw, 24, of San Luis Obispo, won the men's division of the abbreviated race. Lisa Goghnoor, 26, of San Luis Obispo, was the women's division winner.

Soviets Tour Seoul Facilities

SEOUL (UPI) — The first Olympic delegation from the Soviet Union arrived in South Korea Sunday to hold talks with Korean sports officials and tour the facilities for the 1988 Summer Games.

The nine-member delegation, led by Soviet National Olympic Committee vice-president Anatoli Kolessov, will be in Seoul for seven days.

It is the first visit by an official delegation of the Soviet National Olympic Committee to South Korea.

The Soviets have not revealed yet whether they plan to attend the Seoul Summer Olympic Games, which begin Sept. 17, 1988, but they have decided to attend the Winter Olympic Games in Calgary, Canada.

Volusia Rodeo Starts Aug. 14

The Volusia County Cattlemen's Open Championship Rodeo will be held Friday and Saturday, Aug. 14-15 at the Volusia County Cattlemen's Complex on State Road 44, five miles east of DeLand.

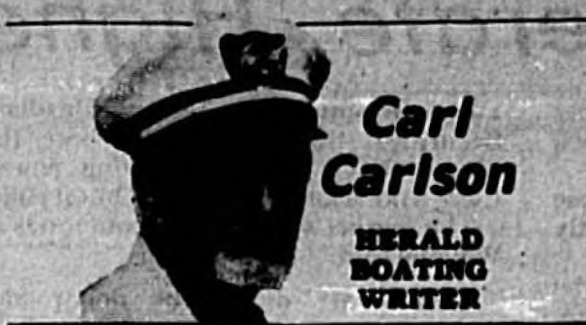

The rodeo begins at 8 p.m. and admission is $5 for adults and $3 for children under 12.

Those who wish to compete in the rodeo, which pays out $900 in prize money, should call in by Aug. 10 from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. The number to call is (904) 845-2485.

Electronics Becoming More Sophisticated

It was not too many years ago that the electronics aboard most boats consisted of a CB radio and possibly a flashing depth sounder. Today all sorts of gadgets are being found in even small vessels. In fact, the Federal Communications Commission lists some 14 categories of transmitters. One being sold in ever increasing numbers to offshore boaters is the EPIRB, an Electronic Position Indicating Beacon. While used primarily by aircraft and offshore boats, it is fast becoming an addition to trailerable boats.

While the advantages of the EPIRB are many, its signal has brought help to many a wrecked airplane as well as vessels at sea, far too many instances of false alarms are creating havoc with the Coast Guard. Air Force, FAA and Civil Air Patrol in their efforts to locate a distressed vessel or aircraft. In one instance the Coast Guard and Air Force searched for the source of the signal indicating someone in distress. All indications pinpointed a signal as emanating from a sailboat tied to a dock extending out from a private residence. Not finding anyone aboard the sailboat, the Coast Guard boarding officer walked up to the residence and discovered a plastic international orange airplane distress transmitter lying on its side. The switch was on. He secured the unit and ended an exasperating all-night search.

These false alarms tax the rescue facilities enormously and in increasing numbers as more and more EPIRBs and Electronic Locator Transmitters (ELTs) are being sold. In 1986 in California, the false alarm rate was 98% and in one month all 19 rescue missions were caused by beacons sending out a false distress alarm.

George Deukmejian, Governor of California, proclaimed the year 1987 as the "Year of Air and Maritime Safety" and urged "boaters, aviators and all citizens to learn and practice proper procedures in the use and handling of aircraft and boat electronic distress signaling equipment."

Florida also ranks high in usage of these signaling devices and consequently has its share of false alarms. Many boaters remove the EPIRBs and ELTs from their boats or aircraft after every trip to prevent theft of these expensive units. Signals have been detected from car trunks, garage shelves, closets and even from manufacturers' trucks shipping transmitters to dealers with their batteries installed.

BOATER'S TIP: The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary will be showing posters and setting up booths to highlight the importance of checking and maintaining these important lifesaving devices.

Freestyle Record Shattered

CLOVIS, Calif. (UPI) — Janet Evans, a 15-year-old from Placentia, broke the oldest competitive world swimming record Monday, winning the women's 800-meter freestyle in 8 minutes, 22.44 seconds in the opening day of the U.S. Swimming Long Course National Championships.

Evans surged ahead out of the blocks and quickly turned the distant event into a runaway. With much of the sparse crowd on its feet, Evans touched nearly 10 seconds ahead of Kim Brown of Mission Viejo, who finished in 8:31.98.

The teenager broke the world mark of 8:24.62, set in 1978 by Australia's Tracey Wickham.

Andrea Hayes, 18, of Pensacola, was third in 8:35.70 and Tammi Bruce, 18, of San Diego, was fourth in 8:36.86. On the strength of their finish, Evans and Brown will compose the U.S. women's 800-meter freestyle team for the Pan Pacific Games in Australia. Hayes and Bruce will be heading to the Pan American Games in Indianapolis.

"I feel great," the petite high-school junior said. "I really want to go to Australia."

Evans is also entered in the 400-meter individual medley, 400-meter freestyle and 1,500-meter freestyle.

"She loves to swim," Evans' coach, Bud McAllister, said. "She trains more than any other swimmer I've ever seen. I think she'll be around for a long, long time."

Monday marked the opening day of the five-day U.S. Nationals. At stake will be the U.S. Swimming team national championships in men's, women's and combined categories.

The event also serves as a key indicator of who will represent the United States in the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. The meet is being held at the Clovis Swim Center, site of the 1983 Long Course Nationals in which four world records and two American marks were set.

Among the scheduled competitors this week are 21-year-old Matt Blondi, a Moraga, Calif., native who holds world records in the 50- and 100-meter freestyle and American marks in the 200-meter freestyle and 50-, 100- and 200-yard freestyle. Tom Jager, 22, of Collinsville, Ill., who won the gold medal in the 50-meter freestyle at last year's World Championships in Madrid, is expected to battle Blondi in the freestyle sprints.

Rogers Wins 50-Lap Event

Racing

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — On Saturday night at New Smyrna Beach Speedway, David Rogers was not the fastest qualifier, but when the checkers fell on the 50-lap late model End of the Month Championship, he was in first place.

Finishing close second was Lee Faulk who turned fast time in the Champion TV Rentals Firebird. Faulk, a chassis expert, ran out of time and did not have the machine set up to his liking: "I couldn't get on the gas without getting sideways," he said.

But he did take the time to set up David Russell's limited late model, with Russell, a former World Series Champion, going on to win the 30-lapper for that division.

The street stock main turned out into a tough three-car war. The winner was young Jeff Moyer, in his "Sponsor Needed" Camaro, who gamely held off Ed Meridith's Ford for most of the race.

Billy Hooven, another gutsy young driver, turned the four-cylinder feature into another crowd-pleasing event, as he passed Gene Van Alstine for the win on the very last lap. Jerry Symons also nipped Van Alstine at the line to take the runner-up spot.

Wayne Marshall won the roadrunner feature. The Florida Modified finale went to Ted Hodgdon.

In "B" Bomber action, Mike Fritts held off Russell Thompson and early leader Donny Funk for the win.

missed chances to win the tournament outright Monday.

Carnar, who started the day three strokes behind third-round leader Okamoto and two behind Davies, had the best opportunity when she rolled in a 5-foot birdie putt at No. 17 to drop to 4-under and take a one-stroke lead.

But Carnar gave back the stroke at the par-4 18th. Her approach shot landed on the back of the green and rolled into the fringe. She knocked her 25-foot birdie putt about 10 feet past the hole and was just short on her attempt to save par.

"The longer I looked at the putt the more it appeared the grain was against me," Carnar said of the first putt. "I was undecided whether it was quick or slow. I should have just walked away and looked again."

Going into the par-4 ninth hole, Okamoto had a three-stroke lead over Davies and Carnar. Okamoto's approach shot landed about 35 feet below the hole and her birdie try went 10 feet past. Her putt to save par hit the cup and rolled by and she missed her bogey putt by a few inches. At the same time, Davies tapped in a 3-footer for birdie to pull even.

"I thought I might five-putt," Okamoto said through an interpreter. "The green was very fast and I didn't read it right."

Said Davies, who was paired with Okamoto: "I couldn't believe it. I really felt for her. It wasn't very pleasant for me standing there and watching her take four putts."

Okamoto's putter failed her again on No. 13. She had a chance to double a one-stroke lead when she knocked her second shot on the par-4 hole within 3 feet of the cup. Incredibly, she three-putted and fell back into a tie with Davies and Carnar.

Market Moderate, Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher Tuesday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 8.61 to 2493.94, was up 11.96 to 2505.90 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 632-270 among the 1,317 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 19,825,000 shares.

The stock market posted modest gains Monday, drawing support from steady bond prices and a firm dollar.

"The market oozed up and won ugly," said

Larry Wachtel, analyst at Prudential-Bache Securities. "Hardly anyone is here, the advance doesn't have any real staying power or flair, there's not a lot of conviction, but it still won."

"The market's resilience 'confounds everyone,'" Wachtel said.

"Bonds are dicey, the dollar has stopped climbing; by all definitions, the market should be going into a correction, and yet it continues to defy that reasoning," said Wachtel.

"We haven't had a major correction, but there's still a fair amount of skepticism," said Larry Greenwald, co-manager of equity trading at Sanford C. Bernstein & Co.

Dollar Up In Quiet Trading Gold, Silver Drift Higher

By United Press International

The dollar opened higher in relatively quiet trading Tuesday on major world money markets. Gold drifted higher.

In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly higher against key foreign currencies in what traders described as light trading.

Traders in New York said the dollar edged higher on technical buying and some concern over increased tension in the Persian Gulf.

Traders said they expected the dollar to remain steady until Thursday, when the Labor Department reports on the next key economic indicator, the composite indexes of leading, coincident and lagging indicators for June.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar closed higher against the Japanese yen at 150.95 yen, up 1.45 from Monday's close of 149.50 yen in moderate trading.

Traders in Japan said the dollar gained ground on buying by trading houses, securities firms and Japanese banks.

In European trading, in Frankfurt the dollar opened at 1.8565 German marks, up from Monday's close of 1.8505.

In Zurich, the dollar opened at 1.5415 Swiss francs, up from 1.5345, and in Paris, the dollar strengthened to 6.1805 French francs, up from 6.17.

wastewater and the high demand for it to irrigate lawns. The tape also included testimony from a health expert on the safety of applying the water in close proximity to people, such as on golf courses. Sanford plans to irrigate city parks and Mayfair Golf Course with the treated wastewater.

Stangland said the hydraulic capacity of 1,166 acres of the site is 3.5 million gallons per day. He said part of the plan is to plant grasses on the site and harvest them regularly, to allow new growth which will use more water. He said grass can use about 29 more inches of water annually than normally falls on the site each year as rain.

The grass will also use significant amounts of nutrients in the water, such as nitrogen and potassium, he said. The amount of nutrients in the treated water is the chief reason the DER has prohibited use of Lake Monroe for disposal of the water after 1989. The nutrients promote the growth of algae, which harms the quality of the lake.

Bo Bostwick of the Orlando office of the DER said the DER encourages re-use of water and congratulated Sanford on its plan.

Dick Levin, chief hydrologist for the St. Johns River Water Management District, said the district has approved more than 40 permits for such water re-use programs, and said by applying water to the area it could increase the drinkable water supply of that area because less drinkable water would be used for irrigation if another source of irrigation water were available.

Other speakers in favor of the plan included Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce; William Bush, Seminole County Engineer from 1962 to 1965; and Henry White, who said the property was part of his cattle ranch for many years.

Opponents of the plan from Sanford included William Balzer, 222 Bradshaw Drive, who said the city is paying too much money for the property; and Earl Jesse, 96 Exeter Court, who said the cost of the entire project, including the cost of laying pipe to the site and installing irrigation equipment, will mean higher water and sewer costs for Sanford residents. He said the money could be saved by using all the wastewater in the city.

children had on that day when he left for school.

Emergency personnel and hostages in the Palm Bay shooting participated in program conducted by teams from three Florida counties and a Maryland expert behind the concept, Dr. Jeffrey Mitchell. In other incidents, even spectators and media representatives have participated.

This is how the program works: Within 24 to 72 hours after a critical incident, the person who responded to the crisis meets with a peer — EMTs with an EMT, administrators with an administrator — and they talk about the incident. The responding person then meets with a specifically trained mental health professional and discusses the incident further, maybe several times, and "get's it off his chest." If that does not relieve the stress, Kirk said, further professional assistance may be recommended. The goal is to get rid of the stress to it does not permanently damage the person.

"A lot of people have stress, and stresses that have not been addressed because they didn't know there was a mechanism to do so and because they did not recognize the stress," Kirk said.

Signs of such stress, he said, could be loss of appetite, nightmares, changes in personality, irritability, drug abuse, long drives or walks alone or failure to talk.

If the tension is not relieved after a critical incident it can permanently affect a person.

Kirk said there was one documented incident outside of Florida in which a paramedic responded to an emergency involving children. It was his first call on-the-job. He tried to ignore the stress that situation created within him for two years but finally could not cope with the conflict. He sought help while a paramedic but has had to leave the profession and continue counseling.

"His ability to help other people is null and void," said Kirk.

Kirk said the program will be of little cost to the county because the team will be made up of volunteers. If an incident involved members of the critical incident team, a team from another county would be called in to handle the situation.

Seminole's team, likewise, would be on call to other counties in a similar situation.

Kirk said he hopes to have the 15- to 20-member team on call by October.

Mercer then noted that Mayor Betty Smith, a member of the expressway authority, had mistakenly voted for the route. He noted that Smith in the majority on the vote would allow Smith to bring up the vote for reconsideration at the next expressway authority meeting, and to get citizens who live in the path of the approved route to attend the meeting like residents who lived in the path of Route 53 did last week.

Bishop's column entitled, "Jim Bishop: Reporter," was syndicated in 200 newspapers. He wrote 21 books, the best-known of which were

Smith said the Sanford commission could vote however it wished, but she would not bring up a motion to reconsider Route 53 after hearing all the comments last week from people who opposed it. Sanford commissioners took no action to Mercer's request to ask the mayor to ask for reconsideration of the expressway vote.

Smith also said, contrary to earlier comments that she would not ask to have her "yes" vote for Route 68 changed to "no" as she intended to vote, she had changed her mind. She will ask that her vote be recorded as "no."

She said at the urging of several people she has decided to officially change her vote to record her disapproval of it, and with any route that cuts through Sanford.

...Heat

Physicians at the clinic, according to Moore, suggest that people who feel as though they are experiencing too much heat should go indoors, turn on an air conditioner or fan and lie down. They should also drink plenty of fluids, she said.

Symptoms of heat exhaustion include lethargy, sleepiness, elevated body temperatures, cramps, vomiting and decreased urine output. "If people have any of these symptoms, they need to get medical intervention," said Moore.

The Seminole County Health Department declined this morning to provide information about possible heat-related medical emergencies.

One seasonal problem related to the summer heat is animals suffering from inadequate care.

Bob Young, director of Seminole County's Animal Control division, said animals that are left outside need plenty of cool water and shade. He said one of the most common problems is people leaving a dog chained outside without a good source of water or shade.

He said some people leave a large bucket of water but it sits in the sun and becomes too hot for the animal to drink. Or, he said, they do not secure the water bowl and the dog knocks it over.

Young said another problem is animals left in cars in the sun. He said it only takes about five minutes in a sun-baked car to kill an animal, even if the windows are half-way down.

The Central Florida Zoo reports no problems with the heat.

Ed Albanesi, spokesman for the St. Johns Water Management District, said the heat is not expected to have much effect on the fish population of the river. He said there has been one fish kill reported in Brevard County. That was caused by an algae bloom, he said.

Vegetables, citrus, and livestock in Seminole County were fairing well in the heat, according to the Florida Department of Agriculture.

Harry Whittaker, an agricultural statistician, said, however, that groves just south of central Florida are reaching in-grove temperatures of 110 degrees. That means the trees are losing a lot of moisture through evaporation. Since summer is the growing season for citrus, the water loss can affect the size of the fruit, he said.

Cattle are fairing well in Seminole County and across the state, according to Shirley Zonner, another statistician for the department.

And atop the Lake Ashby fire tower that surveys the Sanford and Lake Monroe area, visibility is down to four or five miles because of haze. Haze has been hanging over Central Florida for the past week, according to Fire Tower spokesman Joan Gorman. Usual visibility is 20 miles, she said.

Gorman said this time of year, despite the heat, is a slow season for fires. Gorman views the area from an 85-foot tower without air conditioning.

Fiery Crash Closes I-75

BROOKSVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — An unidentified driver was killed and his tanker truck destroyed by fire this morning after he ran off I-75 southeast of Brooksville.

The Florida Highway Patrol said there were no witnesses to the 3 a.m. accident that closed the interstate highway to traffic for six hours. The highway was reopened at 9 a.m.

Troopers said the tanker was southbound when it drove into the median strip and burst into flames about 1 1/2 miles north of the Hernando-Pasco County line.

Fire fighting units from three area departments battled the intense fire, which sent flames shooting into sky.

In the ad, Peterson warned those whose property is within the transportation corridor that the county can tie-up their property with prohibitions against zoning, developing and most improvements and "is not obligated to pay for your property for five years. The ad continued with a call for establishment of a fund "to employ an attorney to challenge

Peterson, whose home of 35 years was within the path of the rejected Route 53, said he is merely helping those within the Route 68 right of way organize a legal challenge. That, he said, is why he reserved the city's civic center for Aug. 25 at 6:30 p.m.

Do Christians Wrongly Omit Mormons From Their Ranks?

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to you for saying that members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) are Christians. However, I will be very much surprised if you do not receive hundreds of letters telling you that you are wrong!

The experience of "L.D.S. in Ashland," who was told by a bus driver that she was not a Christian, was not that unusual. I am amazed at the number of people who have been told by their ministers and pastors that Mormons are not Christians. I am even more amazed when those misinformed people declare to those of us who are members of the L.D.S. church what we do and do not believe about Jesus Christ.

I count among my friends Protestants, Catholics, Jews, Baptists and evangelical Christians. I cannot imagine my ever presuming to tell any of them what they believe.

I had many misconceptions of the Roman Catholic Church, but they were clarified for me by a good friend who is a member of that church. I hope that if anyone wants to know what someone of another faith believes, that he or she will ask a member of that faith. We may all learn something very valuable that way — tolerance, understanding and, more important, the truth.

ERMA JEAN HANSON, KENT, WASH.

DEAR ERMA JEAN: Your estimate of the number of letters I received telling me that I was "wrong" to say that Mormons were Christians was conservative — to say the least. Read on:

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Please rush this into print before some Mormon dies believing that he is a Christian!

Although Joseph Smith (the founder of Mormonism) did say, "We believe in God and Jesus Christ." It is not the God and Jesus Christ Christians have believed in for 2,000 years. Let me explain: Mormons believe that God was once as we are now, with the body of flesh and bones — not a spirit God as the Bible teaches us. Mormons believe that if men obey the mandates of the Mormon Church, they can become gods themselves and rule over and populate other planets.

The Mormon Church used Christian terminology, but they have their own definitions of these terms.

For example, the Mormon Jesus had at least three wives and many children. The New Testament Jesus was neither married nor had children. Jesus, in Mormon theology, is the blood brother of Lucifer! Christianity has never professed such a notion.

Abby, the differences (between Christianity and Mormonism) are shocking and countless: The Mormon Church has an excellent reputation, one that carefully presents the positive aspects of this religion: good family values, no drinking, smoking, etc. The frightening part of this is that many of the members themselves do not know all the religion's beliefs. The religion has many levels of involvement. Only one deeply entrenched in the faith would know all the beliefs and secrets of the Mormon Church.

You owe it to your readers to acknowledge this.

A TRUE CHRISTIAN IN KANSAS

DEAR TRUE: I read your letter to two officials of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City, and they acknowledged that much of what you say is true. However, Mormons have never been taught that Jesus had many wives and children.

Are Mormons Christians? Samuel W. Taylor, noted Mormon author, addressed that question this way in American Weekly in 1955: "Yes, indeed — but neither Protestant nor Catholic. Mormons believe that there was a breaking away of the other churches from true Christianity and that their religion is the restored Gospel."

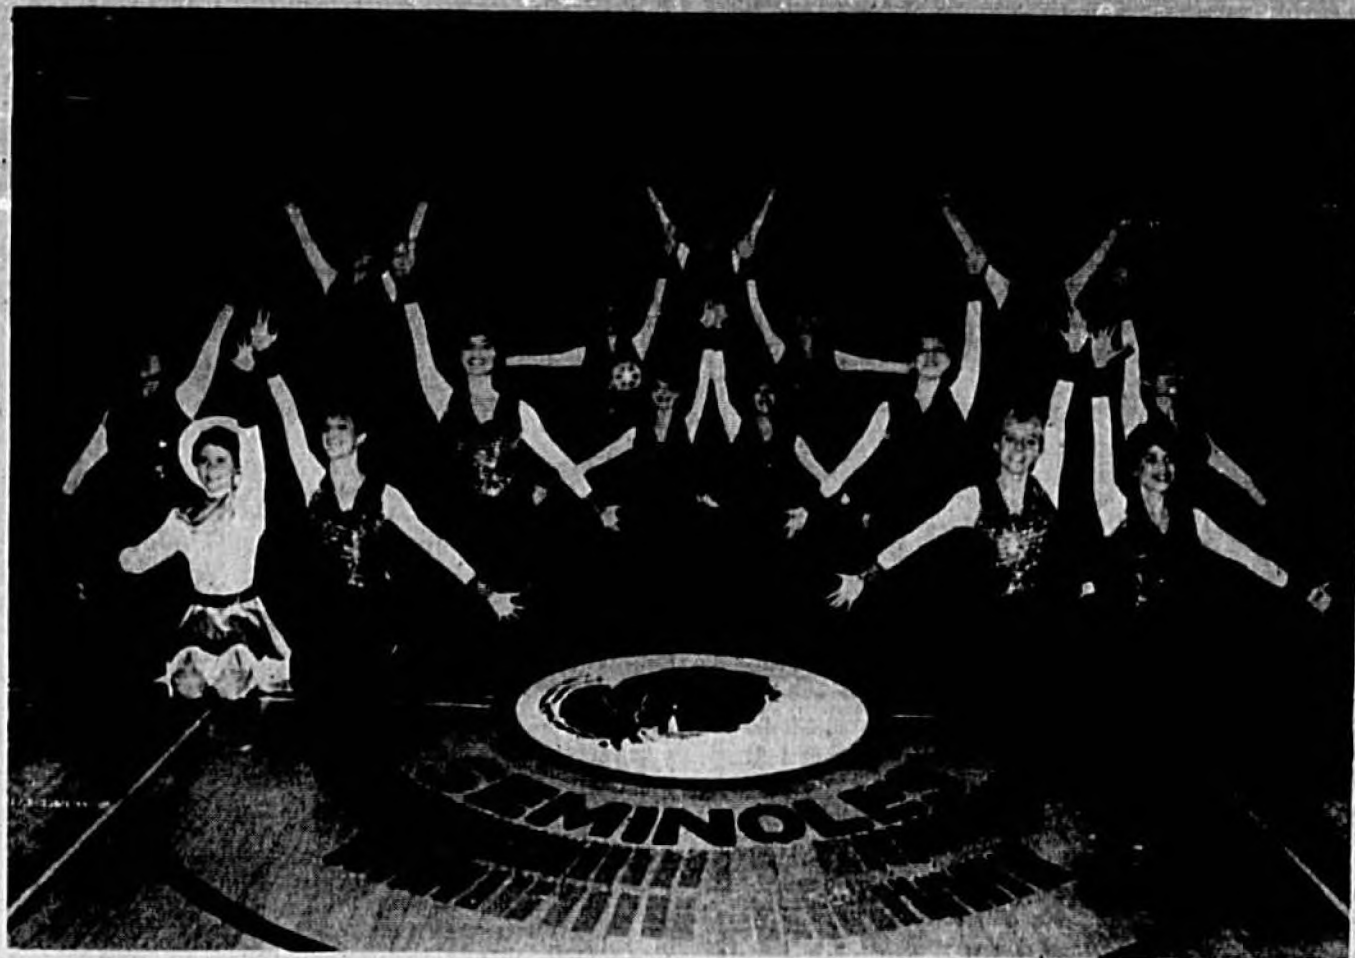

DEAR ABBY: I'm having a bridal shower for my daughter who is getting married. Must I invite all the people I am having at the shower to the wedding, too?

My sister says that everyone coming to the shower must be invited to the wedding, too. I say "Not so!" What do you say?

THE BRIDE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It's true. Score: sister, 1; you, 0.

And by the way, Mother, bridal showers should not be given by close family members. Friends, aunts, cousins, sisters, Mothers, no!

Paulucci Roastee Sept. 12

Jeno Paulucci, developer of the Heathrow community near Lake Mary, will be the roastee for the Florida Public Relations Association's 10th Annual Roast and Toast Saturday, Sept. 12.

Pat Williams, general manager of the Orlando Magic, will emcee the roast to be held at the Hilton, Lake Buena Vista. According to Bert Lacey, chairman of the Roast and Toast, the goal of the roast is to raise money for scholarships and graduate assistants for the Communications Department at University of Central Florida. Last year's roast contributed $17,000 for scholarships at the University.

As this year's roastee, Paulucci will find himself at the receiving end of some pointed repartee from a multitude of local luminaries including Orlando Sentinel writer Bob Morris and real estate developer E. Everett Huskey. Last year's roastee and other former roastees will also participate in the program.

Ticket prices for the 1987 Roast and Toast are $75 for individuals and $1,000 for corporate tables of 10. Another seating option unique to this year's roast is the Upper Crust section where tables in the front of the ballroom are available for $1,500.

For further information and reservations, call Lacey at 420-5595.

Maxwell Ends Battle To Buy Orlando's HBJ

United Press International

British publisher Robert Maxwell called a truce Monday in his bid to buy Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc. of Orlando.

Maxwell announced in New York that he will drop all litigation against the textbook publisher. A spokesman for Maxwell said he thought it unlikely that Maxwell would try again to buy Harcourt.

Maxwell launched his bid to buy Harcourt in May with a $44-per-share offer. Harcourt's directors then adopted a $3 billion recapitalization plan designed to thwart Maxwell's unsolicited offer.

On Friday, Maxwell's bid to block that plan suffered a setback when a federal judge in New York refused to grant an injunction against Harcourt.

A Harcourt spokesman said Monday the company had no comment on Maxwell's announcement.

Also Monday, the publishing company said it paid the special dividend of $40 cash and one share of 12 percent preferred share, valued at $10, to shareholders as part of its recapitalization plan.

Maxwell, in announcing his move, broadly hinted that his company, British Printing and Communication Corp., would seek to buy other businesses.

"The recently successfully completed rights issue raised approximately $1 billion in cash. This, together with the other liquid resources of the group, provides an excellent platform from which to pursue actively our goal of becoming, over the next two years, a global information and communications company with revenues of $5-8 billion."

A spokesman in New York said another acquisition would be in keeping with Maxwell's long-range plans, but declined to speculate on specific targets.

The spokesman, Jeffrey Taufield of Kekat and Co., said he doubted Maxwell would try again to buy Harcourt. Taufield said he could not estimate how much Maxwell spent on his bid to buy Harcourt, but noted that Maxwell holds a number of shares of Harcourt stock and that the stock increased in price following his offer.

"I'm sure he made out OK," Taufield said.

Maxwell's attempt to acquire Harcourt elicited a strongly personal response from Harcourt chairman William Jovanovich, who termed the offer "preposterous."

In one statement, Jovanovich said he considered Maxwell "entirely unfit" to control Harcourt.

"Mr. Maxwell has money but not enough. He has ambition but no standing. He ought to be sent packing," Jovanovich said.

Despite the personal rebuke from Jovanovich and the ultimate failure of his bid, Maxwell said the effort was not fruitless.

"Though BPCC did not achieve its ultimate goal of acquiring HBJ, we are pleased that our efforts have greatly benefited the shareholders of HBJ which included BPCC."

On the day Maxwell's bid was announced, the price of Harcourt share on the New York Stock Exchange rose by more than $16, to $46.63, outstripping Maxwell's $44 offer.

In trading late Monday afternoon on the New York Stock Exchange, Harcourt Brace gained 50 cents a share, rising to $63.

Angiograms Produce Various Side Effects

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT - My brother, age 55, had an angiogram due to constant headaches. After the test he was told to lie flat on his back for eight to 10 hours, which he did. Why was this necessary? For three weeks after the test, his voice was garbled and he lost the hearing in one ear. Is this a normal side-effect?

a bath in May. Cleanliness was relative and took a back seat to warmth. Our modern society has become preoccupied with cleanliness and body odor. The pendulum has swung to an extreme, in contrast to the medieval kings of France, who bathed a few times a year and relied on perfume at other times.

DEAR READER - By performing an angiogram (X-ray study of arteries), your brother's doctors probably were trying to discover if a tumor or malformed blood vessel was causing his headaches. This test involves placing a tube into an artery and injecting material, called contrast medium; therefore, patients often are required to remain supine for several hours after the procedure until the contrast medium has dispersed and the puncture wound in the artery has sealed off.

Unfortunately, angiograms of the head can sometimes cause strokes or temporary neurological events that resemble strokes. These are called transient ischemic attacks, or TIAs, and are among the most common complications of brain angiography. This apparently is what happened in your brother's case. Although your brother's TIA was hardly "normal," it was a recognized side-effect of the procedure.

Of course, his garbled speech and loss of hearing may have had another cause. For instance, certain forms of migraine headache can cause symptoms that mimic TIAs.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on HEADACHES.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Since I retired, I no longer take daily showers: no dirt, no sweat. How often do I need to bathe?

DEAR READER - The frequency with which one bathes is a highly individualized decision. Years ago, in rural New England, parents used to sew their children into long Johns in November and take them out for

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Even expert players have difficulty bidding when the opponents interfere. Suppose you have opened the bidding. Your left-hand opponent overcalls at the one-level and the bidding is passed around to you. What does it mean if you now double? Traditionally it means that you have a good hand but that you do not believe you can set your opponent without help from partner. You suggest to partner that your side can play in one of the unbid suits and that you may have extra values for your opening, but you do not want to defend against a low-level doubled contract unless your partner has length and strength in the overcaller's suit.

Suppose the bidding has zoomed to the stratosphere, as in today's deal. North, who opened one diamond, then doubled

East's four hearts. What should South do? The answer is based upon North's bidding tendencies at such high competitive levels. Suppose North had the same high cards, but with two or three little hearts replacing some of his other cards. Would he double? My answer is that he should not. With a balanced hand, even with extra values for his opening bid, North should pass and hope to make a small profit. What a double by North at this level should show is support for spades or clubs, the unbid suits, as well as a sound opening bid.

That was the bidding philosophy of South, and he believed that North shared that view, so he bid six clubs. His trust of partner was vindicated, since the contract came rolling in with an overtrick when the club finesse succeeded.

major factor, yet it will actually only have a minor role.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Before you involve others in your present plans, it is best to review them once again to be sure they are feasible. Otherwise, you could be embarrassed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today will be productive for you if you associate with people who take what they do seriously. Avoid arrangements with those who don't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually you're not a quitter, but today your aims may not be fulfilled because you might be more emotional than enterprising.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let a domineering associate dissuade you from using your own ideas today if you think they are better. Chances are you're right.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An offer by someone to do something for you today may be suddenly withdrawn owing to unforeseen circumstances. Be prepared.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If an important matter is negotiated too hastily today, the arrangement could deteriorate and end up being of no benefit to either party.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you didn't listen closely enough to instructions when they were given to you, you may have difficulties figuring something out when you attempt it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take a bit of extra cash with you today. Some unexpected expenses may surface, and you won't want to be caught embarrassingly short.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You tend to be a trifle indecisive today. This could induce you to start several assignments simultaneously and not finish any of them satisfactorily.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An interesting conclusion will be drawn today from something you may learn the hard way. Keep the lesson foremost in your thoughts all week.
