Wife Acquitted In Murder Of Husband

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — A 38-year-old mother who killed her husband after he reportedly beat and sexually abused her and molested a daughter has been acquitted by a judge who said the shooting was justified.

Shasta County Superior Court Judge Richard Abbe Friday found Wanda Sue Carr of Burney innocent of a manslaughter charge in the killing of her husband of 22 years, Vallearn Carr, 43, last July 7.

"I don't believe she had a viable alternative," Abbe said.

Deputy District Attorney William Lund, who had reduced the charge from murder to manslaughter, said after the trial, "It's the first time I felt I didn't care whether I won or lost."

Humphrey Gets Wish

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Carter, leaving an aide to meet with farmers converging on the capital, took Sen. Hubert Humphrey to the presidential retreat for the weekend, fulfilling yet another dream for the cancer-stricken Democrat.

Humphrey, a candidate or factor in every presidential election since 1960, never had visited the retreat in the Maryland mountains, not even during the years he was Lyndon Johnson's vice president.

Navy Inquiry Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressman, citing the deaths of two Navy recruits, has told Navy officials a pattern of recruit abuse may exist and a service-wide investigation may be needed.

In a letter to Navy Secretary W. Graham Clayer released Friday, Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., detailed a number of alleged abuses.

Mountain Name Causes Stir

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The battle over whether to rename Mount McKinley its Indian name of Denali — "great one" — at first involved only the U.S. Geological Survey's Board of Geographic Names. Now it has extended to Congress.

Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, whose district includes the former president's home, has introduced a resolution to retain the mountain's present name in perpetuity "as a tribute to the service of William McKinley."

Strike Violence Spreads

United Press International

Vandalism and violence spread into Indiana and Virginia Friday and judges intervened to curb hostilities in the strife-torn Utah and Ohio coalfields as the nationwide soft coal strike passed the five-day mark today.

President Carter announced formation of a task force to study "critical" health care problems of miners and their families, whose medical benefits were cut off when the walkout began Tuesday. Contract negotiators talked in Washington for four hours in the absence of UMW President Arnold Miller, who arrived in West Virginia Friday night to be with strikers.

Lake Mary Moves To Protect Grant

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Mary City Council Friday afternoon decided to extend water lines a total of 1,400 feet more than planned on Lake Mary Boulevard to protect $20,000 of the federal grant for the work approved by the U.S. Economic Development Administration (EDA).

The board, on Councilman Harry Terry's suggestion, unanimously voted to extend the water lines on Lake Mary Boulevard from Crystal Drive west past the entrance to the Forest mobile home park.

Terry said it is estimated that the system extensions and improvements will leave some $20,000 unused of the more than $60,000 received by the city in an EDA grant and a loan from the Federal Home Administration. The additional work will use up the remainder of the federal money and require an expenditure from water department revenues of about $2,000 for engineering and inspection fees.

Money unspent from the project would have to be refunded to EDA, Terry said.

He added that the line voted unanimously to be extended to serve the Rinehart Road industrial area.

Consulting Engineer Paul Porter, of Clark, Dietz and Associates, agreed that without the extension $20,000 would probably remain unspent and automatically be returned to the federal government.

Clerk Threatened, Warned

Knife-Wielder Steals Cash From 7-11

By SCOTT ABRAMIAS
Herald Staff Writer

A man who threatened to jab a clerk with a two-and-a-half-inch pocketknife escaped with an undetermined amount of cash in a south Seminole County convenience store robbery early Saturday.

Seminole County Sheriff's Department authorities said the clerk argued with the man, approximately 20, before placing a quantity of $10, $5 and $1 bills on the counter.

The man was described as having blue eyes, long blond hair. He was wearing a white, full-face helmet over a ski mask and may have fled on a motorcycle, according to reports.

Reports said the man entered the 7-11 store at Howell Branch Road and Eastbrook Blvd. about 1:20 a.m., threatening the clerk with the pocketknife in a jabbing manner, stating, "I want the money, hurry up. I want the money," and "Stop arguing, just give me the money."

INMATE TRIES HANGING
A Seminole County jail inmate reportedly tried to hang himself in his cell at 11:30 p.m. Friday.

Eveart Carline Jr., 25, was found hanging from his cell bars with his bed sheet tied to his neck, and his feet touching the bunk during a check of the jail.

Carline was reportedly taken to a holding cell, semi-conscious, where he was found to have no visible signs of injury. Vital signs also were found to be normal, according to reports.

COUPLE HELD
Sheriff's deputies have arrested an Apopka couple and arrested both on drug possession charges.

Gary Michael Herndon, 28, and Karen Gail Herndon, 25, Route 1, Box 506, Apopka, Wekiva-Piedmont Road, were arrested 11:15 p.m. Friday at SR 434 and Wekiva Springs suite and a breakfast set, according to reports.

Alphonso Deluca, 487 Jergo Rd., Maitland, reported the theft of cash and stereo equipment valued at $745 from his residence.

The couple had been under surveillance after leaving the Orlando airport on a flight from Las Vegas, jail records indicated.

Askew Orders Investigation In Sinkhole Murders

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Reubin Askew has appointed his top troubleshooter to investigate charges by a Bay County grand jury that agents for the FBI and state could have prevented the sinkhole murders.

State Attorney Ed Austin of Jacksonville was put on six months special assignment Friday to conduct a full probe of the allegations by the grand jury and State Attorney Leo Jones of Panama City.

The FBI and Florida Department of Criminal Law Enforcement, according to the charges, could have prevented the deaths of four Springfield residents apparently murdered when they stumbled onto a marijuana unloading operation at Sandy Creek last January.

Trio Sentenced In Scheme

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Two men were sentenced to prison and a third was placed on probation Friday for their part in what the government called a fraudulent scheme to sell distributorships in a snack food called "puffettes."

U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman sentenced James F. Toney, 44, of Jacksonville, to five years in federal prison and John H. Stewart Jr., 55, of Newport News, Va., to three years. William B. Rice, 57, of Ponte Vedra, received a suspended three-year sentence.

Families Forced From Homes

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — Gas company crews worked late into the night Friday rekindling pilot lights while 2,000 families camped in a shopping mall converted into a temporary shelter.

A gas supply valve was accidentally turned off Thursday snuffing out pilot lights for 9,000 homes. West Florida Gas Co. was forced to turn the gas back on by sections, relighting the pilot lights as they went to avoid an explosion.

Gas supplies for the remaining 2,000 homes were to be restored to normal today.

Farmer Protest Nears Capital

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A tractorcade of north Florida farmers spent the night at a farm 15 miles east of Tallahassee Friday before continuing their protest journey to the state capital today.

More than 100 tractors, driven by farmers from Columbia, Suwannee, Hamilton, Lafayette and Jefferson counties, were parked on a 132-acre spread owned by part-time farmer Julian Bilingsley.

Mom Told: Kids Stay If Dogs Go

SORRENTO (UPI) State officials say they hope to return Loretta Stark's children if the woman can straighten out her priorities between her family and stray animals.

Bob Wear, district intake supervisor for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said Friday that Mrs. Stark spent money on dogs and cats while she and her two children lived in squalor.

"She had spent quite a bit of money on stray animals," Wear said. "She had spent $20 as of the latter part of August to reclaim them when they were picked up by the dog pound."

"There were some confused priorities on the part of the mother," he said.

"The children — a 2-year-old boy and a 9-year-old girl — were taken into custody and placed in an emergency shelter Wednesday.

Wear said they had lived in a house without electricity, plumbing or heat and that the funds spent on animals "were not spent on the kids or trying to keep the house up. The kids were not getting what they needed as far as care."

He said Mrs. Stark had "roughly 17 dogs. I don't know how many cats and two they can return Loretta Stark's children if the woman can straighten out her priorities between her family and stray animals."

He said dog pound officials picked them up, then Mrs. Stark would pay to reclaim them.

"The state is not trying to impose our standards on Mrs. Stark," Wear said. "The simple fact is we were concerned about the welfare of the children."

He said the state hopes to get Mrs. Stark to make the necessary changes in her priorities so she can get the children back.

"Our intention is to try and help her out and get the kids back home again," he said. But he added that Mrs. Stark "is reluctant to make changes, this is what we're picking up. Understandably, she's angry."

"She's still fairly upset," he said. "We're working on that."

He said the children probably were getting enough to eat. "One of our procedures when we remove children from the home is to get medical care. We had them examined and the doctor could find no problems. They were receiving the basic sustenance of life."

DEPUTIES PREPARE TO LAUNCH PATROL BOAT AT LINDSEY'S CAMP

Sheriff's Off Road Patrol

Littleton said he and Trombly often undergo kidding around the sheriff's department from other deputies, who claim the two do little more than ride around, admire the wildlife and fish.

Littleton said one deputy rode with him once during a shift, but never asked again for a sample day's work.

"If you take chances in this job, you can get killed," he noted, pointing to a compass he carries with him even though he says he has a good sense of direction.

"These deer poachers know what they face if caught hunting on private property," Trombly said, noting that there is no public hunting acreage in Seminole County.

Armed trespassing is a third degree felony, which can bring a five year maximum sentence, he said.

"Everyone we talk to is armed," Trombly noted, and just because he has a gun doesn't mean we can draw ours."

Both said they feel the most apprehensive about their work when training persons who are hunting illegally.

Another difficult situation is tracking those who are "firehunting" or using powerful flashlight beams to attract deer at night. The deer, transfixed by the light, unknowingly stare directly at the hunters who can then shoot between the two glowing eyes, Trombly said.

During the winter months, Trombly and Littleton find they must concentrate on preventing cattle rustling and illegal hunting. They have two four-wheel drive vehicles at their disposal.

In the summer, the two concentrate on preventing boating accidents. The Sheriff's Department has four boats, one of them an airboat, for their use.

All the equipment is constantly in use. Our recent day, Trombly patrolled several cattle ranches in eastern Seminole County while Littleton launched a 15-foot patrol boat at Lindsey's Camp, where a public launching facility is available and cruised down the St. Johns River through Purple Lake.

The two men rendezvoused near Lee's Dike at a point where the flat prairie of a cattle ranch reaches the shallow waters of Purple Lake.

The distant echo of a duck hunter's rifle sounded through the later afternoon stillness.

Moments earlier, Littleton had pointed out to a visitor an eagle resting quietly on a fence post.

He recalled an incident earlier in the year when someone shot two eagles during the mating season. The eagles were shot so close they the hunters broke just about everywhere in the eagle's bodies.

"Things like that run it for everybody," he said.

Both men agreed that seeing wildlife was one of the fringe benefits of their job.

The wildlife, Littleton noted, is also attractive to more and more hunters, who are being squeezed into fewer woods because residential growth consumes more land in Seminole County.

Senate To Decide Fate Of Five Members

By SAM MILLER
TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — Under pressure from Gov. Reubin Askew, the press and public, the Senate may vote this week to expel five members defying the Sunshine Amendment. It may include an escape clause, however, allowing them to obey the financial disclosure law and stay in the Senate if their lawsuit against the proposal is unsuccessful.

Sen. Ed Dunn, D-Daytona Beach, introduced an expansion resolution with no escape clause. Sen. Dan Scarborough, D-Jacksonville, is sponsoring a proposal with a way out.

The Legislature held a one-day special session Tuesday so the Senate can consider misconduct charges against Miami Sen. Ralph Potts and action against the defiant senators. The House has nothing to do, but must convene for at least a few minutes because one chamber cannot meet without the other.

It is the first time in Florida history the Legislature has called itself into session. The governor has called the previous special sessions.

Lawmakers may try to override some of Gov. Reubin Askew's 23 vetoes of bills passed by the 1977 Legislature, but the leadership will try to quash those moves to keep from getting into a full-blown session.

Senate President Lew Brantley arranged the meeting after the Judiciary-Civil Committee found Potts guilty of abuse of office and said he should be reprimanded and fined $500. The Potts charges were almost forgotten, however, when Brantley included action against the other senators in the call.

The five are some of the Senate's most popular and powerful members. Phil Lewis, D-West Palm Beach, has been nominated president for 1979-80 by the Democratic caucus. Dempsey Barron, D-Panama City, was president in 1975-76. Ken Plante of Winter Park is Republican leader. Jack Gordon, D-Miami Beach, and Jon Thomas, D-Fort Lauderdale, have closed as committee chairmen.

They refused to comply with the new disclosure requirements imposed when the Sunshine Amendment was ratified last November and filed suit in federal court contending the demand was an unconstitutional invasion of privacy.

Two county school board members — James Clayton of DeLand and Dr. Joseph Iley of Fort Myers — also refused to comply and they were suspended by Askew.

Under Dunn's resolution, the five senators would be expelled, but the effective date of their expulsion put off until the U.S. Supreme Court rules on the Sunshine Amendment. They would be automatically removed from the Senate if the court upheld the amendment and they had not complied with it when the ruling came down.

Their suit will be heard by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans next week.

Scarborough introduced late last week a resolution giving the legislators 15 days after the Supreme Court ruling to file the appropriate reports and stay in the Senate.

Although Askew has said the five senators should resign or be expelled, he has conceded that only the Senate has the power to decide what, if any, punishment to impose upon its members. It's a different story with Clayton and Iley, however.

If they refuse to remove the school board members, simply because the senators are in the bind they are in, in my opinion, they would have suspended the constitution," the governor said last week.

Brantley appointed former Supreme Court Justice Stephen O'Connell as special master to recommend whether the Senate should remove Clayton and Iley from office permanently. O'Connell conducts his hearings Monday, but is not expected to have a recommendation until the regular session in April.

Brantley doesn't expect the cases of the school board members to come up during the special session, but Dunn wants to bring them up.

"Whatever we do with respect to my colleagues in terms of permitting them to care at the final determination of the case should be applied in an equal manner to the school board members," Dunn said.

Iley and Clayton should have a chance to comply and stay in office if the Sunshine Amendment is upheld with their suspension held in abeyance until the Supreme Court rules, Dunn said.

"We really shouldn't get into it until we get the special master's report," Brantley said. "I'm not going to push it, but some of the members might."

Potts was found guilty by the Judiciary-Civil Committee of abusing his office to pressure government officials into doing Medicaid business with Central Medi-Care Inc., a non-emergency ambulance service he operated in Orlando.

Sadat's Plan For Mideast

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt continued his extraordinary personal mission toward peace in the Middle East with his surprising arrangement of a preliminary conference in Cairo.

Inevitably, the conference of lower-echelon officials will be less dramatic than Sadat's peace pilgrimage to Jerusalem. But it is more evident that Sadat does not intend to rest on his laurels and wait for others to follow through on his visit.

Sadat might have chosen a conference as his second step because Israel cannot yet agree on the concessions that it eventually must make to achieve peace. Or Sadat may believe that his best strategy against militant "rejectionist" Arabs is to attack.

In either case, Israel, the United States and the West in general have no choice but to support the inspired Egyptian President.

To do less would be to undermine Sadat during a period that is critical to the success of his plan. One likely result of the Cairo meeting will be to shatter another rigid illusion in the Middle East — that the Palestinian Liberation Organization is the sole custodian of the rights and aspirations of the Palestinian people.

Sadat is taking first things first by recognizing that the PLO represents that largest single procedural obstacle to a Geneva conference. Consequently he expelled the PLO from Egypt and invited Palestinians living in Israel to come to Cairo to talk about peace. All the while Sadat also is making it clear that the Cairo meeting is something less than a summit so that expectations are not inflated.

Sadat has given the Palestinian moderates from Israel and the West bank recognition and status, further undermining the PLO. It now will be easier for moderate Arab nations to follow his lead.

The rejectionist Arab nations would not come to Cairo. To do so would have to undermine their own "refusal summit" in Tripoli or Baghdad. By the same token the moderate Arab states were not represented at Sadat's meeting either. But that is hardly ominous. Of the moderate nations, Saudi Arabia and Jordan are Western-oriented and strongly anti-Communist, just as Sadat is. We are persuaded that they will be constructive forces in a Middle East peace settlement when the political circumstances permit them to be.

Even Syria, for all its anti-Sadat militancy, is leaving doors open to join Sadat. Conversely, Syria and Iraq have not toned down their bitter rhetoric against each other. Nor has Syrian President Hafez Assad withdrawn his criticism of Libyan President Muammar Khadafi, who he considers unstable and unreliable.

Thus, the Sadat initiative, for all its momentum, remains a tenuous thing. Sadat could win Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Syria over if he believes that he has a chance of success. And to succeed Sadat needs help from the United States.

President Carter, through Press Secretary Jody Powell, said that he would maintain a "low profile" and also "work quietly behind the scenes to accentuate positive developments and minimize the difficulties."

The first positive development was the announcement that the United States will be represented, along with Israel, in Cairo.

And, quietly or otherwise, the United States should make it clear to the Soviet Union that trade, progress in strategic arms talks and a great many other United States-Soviet ventures related to détente could suffer if Russia continues to block Sadat's forward progress.

Less than two weeks ago at a meeting of concerned, single, working mothers, who use the services provided by state subsidized day care centers in Seminole County, Florida, Sen. Kenneth Plante (R-Winter Park), Senate minority leader, assured that the program wouldn't be cut.

He gave his word to that effect. It was obvious that many of those at the meeting held at the Park Lake Presbyterian Church, Orlando, particularly those women who have become cynical while fighting for their own and their children's survival, thought Plante's remarks were a typical politician's empty promises.

Well, Plante, the father of seven children himself, is one of those few politicians, who, although in elective office 10 years, doesn't make empty promises and doesn't give his word lightly.

This week, State Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) Secretary William Page revealed on his prior plan to cut the child-care funding statewide. The planned savings was to be used for new programs and to make up a deficit created by HRS when contracts for childcare statewide were executed totaling $20 million when only $17.5 million existed to fund the program.

The answer to the deficit as Community Coordinated Child Care (4-C) of Central Florida Administrator Phoebe Carpenter had said all the time was finally agreed to by Carpenter was to plug $2.5 million in recently committed federal money to make up the deficit.

Anyway, the fact remains that Ken Plante said the program would not be cut despite Page's plans, and it wasn't. Providing a lot of assistance as well as Rep. Dick Hatchelor of Orange County.

Now, 4-C is looking for some free office space in Seminole County. So, if anyone out there knows of any free space available, please call Mrs. Carpenter at the 4-C office in Orlando, or Sandy Giff at The Baby World child care center in Sanford.

Right after the Winter Springs election, I suggested in a column that Winter Springs Mayor Troy Piland, by winning re-election, may have won the battle and lost the war. It was pointed out that while winter election himself, the two council candidates he had supported lost to the opposition.

Monday night, the two new councilmen were sworn in and the war began.

Wednesday night, Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Harry Jacobs did a fine job of attempting to make recommendations to the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County for Mayor Norman Floyd.

The problem Jacobs faced was that he was asked at 5 p.m. to represent Floyd at a 7:30 p.m. meeting in Oviedo and thus had no time or little time for preparation and background research.

Oviedo's Mayor Ben Beasley, elected in September, attended his first Council of Governments meeting.

Since Oviedo holds the chairmanship of the council and the meeting was scheduled for Oviedo, Beasley had no choice but to attend and did a good job of representing his community to the meeting.

In scheduling the site of its January meeting, the city representatives, following the same method they usually use, designated Casselberry. The method used is whoever is not present gets to host the next meeting. Casselberry's Mayor Gerald Christensen was absent and had not sent a representative.

UNESCO: A Red Front?

When the United States resigned its membership in the International Labor Organization recently, about the only years that were shed came from the well-paid bureaucrats of that United Nations subsidiary.

Organized labor in this country knew the ILO for what it had become: a propaganda vehicle for the Soviet Union and its allies. When George Meany was told that U.S. resignation from the organization would be a success, he paid a large proportion of its budget, he said, in effect, so what?

By following through on an intention to resign from the ILO that was first made by the Ford administration, President Carter was sending this UN unit a clear message: play by the rules and maybe we'll come back, but keep on twisting them for propaganda purposes and you will not be back.

A familiar face seen throughout the election was that of former Council Chairman Charles Glascock. He was actively supporting both Grier and Sheppard.

The Longwood election had many interesting aspects:

1. Control of the city government for the first time passed to the new areas of the city — areas built within the past five years or so.

The majority of the city council — Larry Grier, Mike the mayor-elect, and three other men — were elected, and that all he expected from them was that they do a good job for the city.

2. For the first time, the voters in the new areas did what they could have done for years — vote.

3. Rather than just having their bedrooms in Longwood while earning their livings outside the immediate area, they got involved in the city government.

The issue was whether school buses should be permitted to traverse the streets of Devenish and Winsor Manor to get to the school. The subdivision streets are admittedly sub-standard in size and construction and the people there felt the school buses would

Elections... Now That They're Over

City hall employees in Casselberry breathed a sigh of relief when the elections were all over with Tuesday night.

At least two persons, who had done their work not too politically wisely but perhaps too well, had been receiving for months very broad hints that their days were numbered.

The two have the habit, it's said, of assisting that city regulations be adhered to the letter regardless of who the persons involved are.

A week or so before the election, Bill Grier, the mayor-elect, made it clear to the two and others that their jobs were secure, if he was elected, and that all he expected from them was that they do a good job for the city.

The election there made one thing obvious and that is that Councilman-elect Owen Sheppard, a close friend of Grier's, holds the balance of power on the city council. Generally speaking, the philosophy practiced by Councilman Carl Robert Jr. and Den Wilson is identical while that practiced by Councilman Frank Schutte and re-elected John Leighty is similar.

Many will be watching Sheppard to see which way he swings.

A familiar face seen throughout the election was that of former Council Chairman Charles Glascock. He was actively supporting both Grier and Sheppard.

The issue was whether school buses should be permitted to traverse the streets of Devenish and Winsor Manor to get to the school. The subdivision streets are admittedly sub-standard in size and construction and the people there felt the school buses would longer a party to the dispute.

But when other federal agencies such as the revenue sharing office and labor department checked EEOC files on the revenues, they found the EEOC determination of discrimination. Other federal agencies are likely to question the county's affirmative action efforts as a result of the EEOC determination.

There is no single federal office which rules on the adequacy of affirmative action plans. Each federal agency makes its own determination, which means a patchwork of paper work for county officials as well as visits by federal officials representing several federal agencies.

Eventually the federal government's plan to reduce the duplication of effort caused by the current system in which each federal agency deals with the county individually. One way to solve the problem would be to establish a federal affirmative action office, which would review the plans annually for all federal agencies.

Once the affirmative action office approved the plans and yearly updates, the revenues, they found the EEOC determination of discrimination. Other federal agencies are likely to question the county's affirmative action efforts as a result of the EEOC determination.

present a hazard as well as destroy the streets.

3. And, the old-timers in the city did not vote to the same degree as they have in the past.

Surprising as it may seem, the skill displayed by Goldberg's organization, slopped over to help Councilman June Lorman's total and that of Councilman-elect Leisenberger, rather than vice versa.

Leisenberger, running unopposed, received eight fewer votes than did Goldberg, but the margin was not as wide as the margin between the two other men. Mrs. Lorman received only 25 votes more than Goldberg.

B.L. Helms, a city council candidate and a longtime resident of the city, who had previously served a total of 10 years on the city council from the late '50s through the early and mid '70s received a total of 73 votes. There was a time when Helms would have had a name placed on the ballot and then go about his everyday business to win. That day has obviously passed.

J. North, long-time city poll marshal, a former councilman and an octogenarian, sat in his chair near the city hall polling place floor as usual and enforced the rules for the election.

Mayor Gerald Christensen, defeated in his bid for re-election, and Mrs. Christensen have to be very proud of their run for re-election. He stood by in the lobby at city hall for nearly 40 minutes waiting for the news that told him despite how hard he worked for his father, his bid was not destined to be returned to office. That must be a tough thing for a son to hear.

The most exciting election for those who are buffs of the democratic way had to be the one-vote victory of Harry Terry in Lake Mary.

A friend pointed out after the election results were announced in the cities Tuesday that the voting machine is a great equalizer. — Once the voting lever is pulled, the vote of a poor man and a rich man are equal in importance, dignity and value.

Speaking of voting machines, the Longwood election officials were plagued all day with machine problems.

Another sidelight in Lake Mary was that the vote of a poor man and a rich man are equal in importance, dignity and value.

Those three who didn't vote in the Terry-Richard contest could have been the deciding factor in Terry's victory or Richard's loss.

County's Minorities Hiring Intent Will Show In Future

governments and private employers in recruiting black talent for the courthouse, Allison said.

The federal official added that Seminole was not under the gun from the federal government on affirmative action at this time, which gives Seminole an excellent opportunity to improve its minority and female hiring performance.

White county officials maintain they are moving forward on affirmative action, statistics on the number of blacks and women employed by the county indicate the county has a long way to go.

The Department of County Development, which has 50 employees, has two blacks and 14 women on the payroll.

The Department of Administrative Services, with 46 employees, has six blacks, and all six hold service or maintenance positions.

The Public Works Department, which has 10 employees, has two blacks and 11 women.

The overall work force of the county has 407 employees — excluding the manpower program — of which 27.9 percent are blacks and 89.21 percent are women. Blacks comprise 16.4 percent of the county work force, and women account for 28 percent of the county work force.

The sheriff's department has 184 employees, and 14.7 percent are black, while 28.2 percent are women.

The federal officials who were in town last week emphasize that goals and timetables are negotiable and that a small county such as Seminole will have problems competing for black graduates of universities and graduate schools. The process of increasing minority and female participation in county jobs will be a slow one, they say.

But they said they expect progress in affirmative action. The sincerity of the county's effort in the coming years will be shown by whether there are increases in the percentages of women and minorities who work for the county.

The 'Myth' Of Pension Right$

WASHINGTON — The professional investment managers who control $45 billion worth of pension funds in this country have become the unwilling targets of a pair of little-publicized congressional investigations.

The notion that having vested rights to pension funds makes workers true owners of industry who hold, control and direct vast amounts of investment capital is "a major, notorious myth," says Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.

Metcalf and Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., are conducting an independent investigation already has raised serious questions about the philosophy and practices of pension fund managers.

In theory, pension funds usually are controlled either by officials of the company whose money is contributed to the pension plan or by a committee composed of both management and employee representatives.

But they invariably delegate the task of managing the money to bank trust departments, insurance companies or independent financial consultants, and the concentration of economic power within that field is truly mind-boggling.

Bentsen notes that although more than 4,000 bank trust departments handle pension funds, the 13 largest banks in the field control 80 percent of the lucrative business.

Similarly, 1,800 insurance companies manage pension fund assets, but 12 of the biggest firms control almost 80 percent of the business. And a few dozen independent managers have responsibility for another $20 billion worth of pension funds.

Thus, only about 50 institutions and individuals control more than two-thirds of all pension funds.

One example cited by Metcalf involves the retirement plan for members of the United Auto Workers employed by the Ford Motor Co. Its assets totaled more than $1.5 billion at the end of the last year, with almost $873 million invested in corporate stock.

That stock portfolio included investments of $10 million or more in two dozen major companies. But 11 of the 24 firms favored by the investment managers — all major bank trust departments — were among the corporations classified by the AFL-CIO as being anti-union or non-union firms.

A committee hearing co-chaired by Bentsen earlier this year produced testimony showing that the trust department of one New York bank, the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., controls $15 billion worth of pension fund assets and has invested that money in a highly concentrated manner.

Roy Schotland, a pension fund expert and professor at the Georgetown University Law School in Washington, told the committee that Morgan held more than 5 percent of the outstanding stock of Alcoa, Mead Corp., Allied Stores, United Airlines, Southern Railway, Goodyear, Consolidated Freightways, Burlington Industries and other companies.

Jimmy Looks Ahead

By HELEN THOMAS

LPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has a good feeling about 1978 and he expects that most of the initiatives he undertook in his first year in office will come to fruition.

To hear him tell it, the outlook is rosy both on the domestic front and in the foreign policy field. He says he expects to have a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union and also a comprehensive nuclear test ban next year.

He also forecasts ratification of the controversial Panama Canal treaty — despite heavy opposition — and he is predicting major progress toward peace in the Middle East.

At home, Carter says there will be good progress in the recovery from the 1974-75 recession and although economic growth will not be as great as this year, it will be one of the best in the world.

As for unemployment, now at a steady 7 percent — Carter says the rate will come down next year but he sees some upward swing in inflation.

He believes he also will have enough success with his programs to give Democratic candidates a good launch in the November congressional elections.

Carter believes he has grounds for his optimism. He feels that he has laid the groundwork this year for a brighter future.

The president marches to his own drum and does not appear fazed by criticism of the way he has handled his programs and of the way he runs the White House.

Although there is an apparent puzzlement in the nation over the administration and where Carter is going, the president feels he has set a stride that will bring much progress next year.

He also believes that he has set a tone in the country that is helping to restore confidence in government.

But still he says the battle to bring the people back to faith in government has not yet been won.

Carter believes that some of the questions that remain concerning his presidency are due to the fact that he was not an insider when he reached the White House, that he did not win the presidency by the Capitol Hill route and he was not well known to the media.

Carter made mistakes at the start of his administration and alienated members of Congress. He antagonized the Soviet Union with major news reports on SALT which caught the Soviets off guard.

He also aroused the hostility of the Russians when he unveiled his worldwide human rights campaign at the start of his administration which the Soviets felt was aimed only at them.

At home, Carter believes he has moved to keep campaign promises with the blacks, labor, farm groups and the poor.

But as far as those groups are concerned, he has not been as responsive as they had expected. As a result, his popularity has dropped in the polls and few are counting on Carter administration as a success story.

But Carter believes that his constituency — the American people — are calling in the chips too soon, that he is being judged too early and that his report card next year will show good marks in most of his endeavors.

There is an irony in talking with Paul Hickson, Seminole Community College chemistry instructor right now. Just as 'Florida's Commissioner of Education Ralph Turfington places limits on the celebration of Christmas in schools, Hickson has the moral, ethical and spiritual strength to say he finds absolutely no conflict between his science and religion.

The song that says the most exactly what I feel," Hickson says, "is called 'I Believe'."

The lyrics to that song stress the direct involvement of God in daily life, even in its tiniest details. And Hickson is a man used to dealing in minute details — like the chemical makeup of a liquid, or the various parts of an atom, or the human measure, which has powerful bipartisan support, would set up stiff penalties for computer crimes and make it a federal offense to tamper with any government computer.

Interestingly, Ribicoff's proposed bill would include computers in Leavenworth penitentiary where inmates are being trained on machines that distribute payments to the soil bank program, the Commodity Credit Corporation and approximately 20 projects involved in disaster relief funds.

A spokesman for Federal Prison Industries told us security at Leavenworth is excellent. He said there have been no instances of a graduate from the federal prison using his newly acquired craft to commit a computer crime. Indeed, a number of ex-convicts have been hired by large private firms.

The great debate has begun: who is responsible for so many Florida students "failing the Functional Literacy Test?"

The only realistic answer probably is the one given by Wallace Orr, president of the Florida Teaching Profession-National Education Association: "There is enough blame for everybody," he said.

True enough. Parents, students, teachers, textbook authors, school administrators and school boards probably all bear part of the blame for the low scores. All of us undoubtedly shirked part of our responsibility for the education of these students.

But Florida, at least, is doing something to measure the progress of our students. In other states, students may not be so lucky. While the low scores on the Functional Literacy Test are a sad thing, they represent the first real attempt to pinpoint weaknesses in Florida Education and better prepare students to deal in the "real" world, away from the support of parents.

It seems obvious that no standard of education is going to equally measure the education and potential of all students from all cultures and backgrounds — and some minimum must be set if all this country's young people are not to slowly find themselves slipping into lower and lower standards of education.

The Functional Literacy Test provides that minimum, and all the uproar over the test results must not be allowed to get in the way of that fact.

I'm leaving you, because — because — I've fallen in love with the Avon lady!

WASHINGTON — Just as he has dedicated 67 zesty years of living to the bettering of the American people, Hubert Humphrey is devoting the days of his cancer treatment to the medical benefit of mankind.

The undaunted "Happy Warrior" is quietly permitting cancer experts to use experimental therapy techniques on his incurable ailment.

The ultimate story of courage has gone mostly unmentioned by the Minnesota and discreetly withheld from the public by his doctors. Humphrey makes the rounds of public tributes, drawing tears and affectionate admiration with the trademarks of his career — ebullience, humor, optimism and courage.

But out of the public limelight the former vice president is quietly reporting to the National Cancer Institute to undergo uncomfortable and novel therapy.

After removal of a cancerous bladder in October 1976, Humphrey could have opted for a plush VIP suite at Walter Reed Army Medical Center or Bethesda Naval Hospital and been spared anguish by shots of morphine and similar pain-killers.

Instead, Humphrey deliberately chose to become a sort of guinea pig for researchers at the National Cancer Institute. He was aware that his far of bladder cancer and how it spreads is less understood than the more prevalent lung and prostate cancers.

The primary purpose of the doctors at the institute is assuredly to prolong Humphrey's life. But they can also study the course of bladder cancer in a living victim and how the disease responds to two innovative chemotherapy treatments. Both treatments are still highly experimental.

One requires the taking of an oral chemotherapy agent, Hexamethylamine. As a side effect, it causes fatigue, nausea and severe loss of appetite but Humphrey gamely reports for his treatments. The treatment has been more widely used in Europe than in the United States.

By an unusual coincidence, Humphrey once sponsored and helped get through the Senate an aid program to help Hexamethylamine to be tested in Egypt.

Humphrey also takes another experimental drug known in the laboratories as "8-TU." It must be injected directly into an artery and one researcher told us "it hurts." The unpleasant and painful treatment was rarely used in cancer cases such as Humphrey's and one scientist predicted the data he is providing unquestionably will be useful in helping future victims of bladder cancer.

At a dinner in his honor recently, Humphrey

FAMU Too Much For Outclassed Saints In 1A State Title Tilt

By DAN RUTLEDGE
Herald Correspondent

Florida A&M University High simply had too much and too many for Trinity Prep's Saints to handle Friday night at Lake Howell Stadium, as the defending small school (Class 1A) state champions successfully defended their title, to the tune of 59-7.

The Baby Rattlers simply socked it to the undermanned and exhausted Saints in the second half — with the game getting more and more one-sided as it wore on.

But the Saints made a game of it for almost a half — and one judgment call by the offensive with two minutes left in the first half was the final straw that smashed Trinity's momentum — and hopes for a state championship.

"I still can't believe that call," said tight end-linebacker-fallback player Charlie Johnson after the game. "I don't guess it matters now, but I never saw the defender. He just ran in front of me."

The ball was over both of our heads, and he was in the way — so I ran into him. I couldn't believe it when it went their way."

Johnson may be right — the play, either way probably wouldn't have changed the final outcome of the contest, considering the victory margin.

But there is a shadow of a doubt. The play in question came with 2:01 left in the second quarter. Trinity trailed 21-7 at this point — but was definitely not out of the ball game, with a second-and-ten on the FAMU 18-yard line.

A 43-yard Brock Behrens-to-Brent Matthews pass had moved the ball to the 18 — and hopes for a state championship.

KELLEY, SAINTS IN HOPEFUL MOMENT

after the game. "If we could have been one or two touch-downs down at half, we might have come back."

But when they went by three TDs, we had to pass — they knew it, and could just sit back and wait. For all practical purposes, it was all over then.

In the second half, Trinity's lack of depth finally had a telling effect — it has cost the Saints this year at various times, but never enough to make the difference between victory and defeat.

By mid-fourth period, five of the other two — and all three went down in a heap — right on the goal line.

When the yellow flag fluttered to the ground, the Trinity stands erupted with a loud cheer — because it did appear that Johnson had been interfered with as the ball passed overhead — which would have been a first-and-goal for the Saints.

But Johnson was called for pushing — he threw up his arms in front of him, when he turned after the ball and found himself on top of Marshall.

Offensive pass interference is 15 yards, plus loss of down — thus the Saints then faced a third and 25 at the 34-yard line.

On third, Behrens was sacked for a 10-yard loss under a furious Rattler rush.

On fourth down, a half mile to go, with 1:42 left in the half, the Saints probably should have punted — but they didn't.

Behrens was sacked again, giving the visitors from Tallahassee the ball at mid-field, with 1:30 to go before intermission.

It was all downhill for the Rattlers from this point on — as the Trinity spirits visibly sagged. FAMU marched the 50 yards in just three plays, opening TD from three yards out. Gary Watson added the PAT.

Carter had 200 yards on 22 carries in the game. Early in the second quarter, the Saints struck back. Matthews picking off a Wilkerson pass at midfield, returning it to the Rattler nine — the FAMU quarterback catching the Saints' first touchdown.

On second down, Matthews ripped to the one, and fumbled into the end zone — where the Saints recovered for the score by junior split end Frank Eidson. Johnson added the extra point — and with 5:45 left to play before intermission, the score was tied, and the Saints were looking pretty good.

But FAMU, as if the TD had stung them, struck back quickly — twice.

An eight play, 64-yard, drive netted six — quarterback Wilkerson sneaking from the one for the score. Trinity's Johnson blocked the PAT.

The Rattlers kicked off. The Saints received, three three incomplete passes — then gave FAMU good field position at the Trinity 43 with a short punt.

The Rattlers took advantage, adding another TD in two plays — Wilkerson passing 24 yards to wingback Marshall. Carter ran the two-point conversion.

With just 2:42 to play, the Rattlers kicked off again — and on first down, Behrens hit Matthews with the bomb that placed the ball at the nine — setting up the already discussed interference call.

In the second half, it was simply a question of how much — not who was to win.

"I'm just glad they didn't score. It was bad enough as it was," said a disgruntled Kelley after the game.

"But we better to feel ashamed," he brightened. "They were better and that's that. But we are good, too."

"We are the best football team in the south half of the state — and No. 2 in the whole state."

"It's been a good season for Trinity football."

The Saints finished their best season ever with an 8-4 mark. FAMU ended its season one better, fittingly, at 9-4.

Weaver Quits, Refused

HONOLULU (UPI) — Nobody's saying anything for the record today because that would be tampering, and you know how Bowie Kuhn gets his back up about that, but you can put it down in your book, had Earl Weaver stuck to that resignation of his with Baltimore, he would have a new job five minutes later with Milwaukee.

Harry Dalton, the Brewers' head man, won't say a word about being completely aware of the fact Weaver is under a three-year managerial contract with the Orioles. Weaver's agreement with them is only a verbal one, not anything in writing, but that wouldn't matter to Kuhn if he felt there had been any overt tampering.

It's no secret Dalton would have liked Weaver as his manager when Dalton was still with the California Angels, but the Orioles refused to let Weaver go. Dalton and Weaver have been close friends 20 years and when he was the player personnel director with the Orioles, it was Dalton who brought Weaver in from Rochester and made him one of Baltimore's coaches at the start of 1968. Then in the middle of that same season, Dalton fired Hank Bauer as the Orioles' manager and named Weaver as his replacement.

Weaver has been with Baltimore since, winning one World Championship, three American League pennants and five Eastern Division titles in that time. If he isn't the best manager in baseball, I'll wait while you think about it and try to come up with one better.

Among Weaver's many virtues is a long memory. His biggest liability though, is a short fuse. Too short, sometimes.

Weaver got all fired up Wednesday evening at these winter baseball meetings. He left the Orioles had made a bum deal with the Expos, which was bad enough, but the fact they hadn't notified him beforehand, he thought was worse.

The trade that upset him so much was the one in which the Orioles sent left-hander Rudy May and reliever Randy Miller plus minor league pitcher Brian Smith to Montreal for relievers Don Stanhouse and Joe Kerrigan and minor league outfielder Gary Bonicke.

"I've had it," he fumed. "I quit. I'm going right upstairs and tell Hank Peters (Baltimore's General Manager) he can have the job."

So he went directly to Peters' room and told him he was resigning. Wisely, Peters, a much calmer individual, refused to accept the resignation. He talked with Weaver patiently, explained a number of things to him, including how he and other members of the Orioles had tried to reach him but couldn't.

Weaver eventually cooled off and said okay, he wouldn't quit. Later, he explained his feelings about the whole thing.

"My becoming disturbed is very uncharacteristic to my nature because I trust the people who are working for Mr. Peters. I've sat in on all the meetings we've had to this point and voiced my opinion. I'm certainly not against any deal we would make to help ourselves."

"What I want to do most was call Rudy May," Weaver went on. "Some managers like to shirk that responsibility but I feel a personal obligation because I get close to the guys who work for me. I don't like for a ballplayer to say 'I had to read about my trade in the paper.' I would've liked to explain to Rudy myself. I'll still write him a letter."

The entire episode possibly resulted from a feeling that exists between Weaver and Jim Russo, the Orioles' special assistant to Peters. Russo is an uncommonly good judge of ballplayers but his opinion of them doesn't always coincide with Weaver's.

An hour or so before the Orioles made their six-player deal with the Expos, Weaver called up to the room in which they were discussing trades and Russo answered.

"What's happening?" Weaver asked.

"Not much," replied Russo. "You can come up if you want." Weaver decided not to. The trade then was made while he was off somewhere else.

There's an old saying: Never submit your resignation because it may be accepted. Earl Weaver wasn't overly worried about that, though. He knew he could get another job in five minutes, and he was right.

Finley Gets In His Word

Finley Gets In His Word

HONOLULU (UPI) — Even though he wasn't at the winter baseball meetings, Oakland owner Charlie Finley made his presence felt on the final day by peddling his last remaining prestige player, Vida Blue, to Cincinnati for $1.5 million in a deal bound to result in another head-to-head confrontation with his arch antagonist, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Eighteen months ago Kuhn voided an attempt by Finley to sell Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million, resulting in a court suit which is still being appealed.

This time Finley got a player, 24-year-old first baseman Dave Levering, thrown in with the cash. But, once again Kuhn has seen fit to question the deal.

"I am advising Cincinnati and Oakland that I am calling a hearing relative to the Blue-Levering deal," Kuhn said in a prepared statement. "I believe the deal raises substantial questions as to whether it should be approved or not. I would expect to have the hearing in the next seven to 10 days."

Kuhn's announcement shocked the Reds, who feel they have landed the left-handed starting pitcher they need to regain the National League West title next year. But they were optimistic the commissioner would ultimately okay the transaction.

"We feel that there is no reason why it shouldn't be approved," said Reds' President Bob Howsam.

If Kuhn allows the deal to go through, it certainly makes the Reds favorites to win the NL pennant next year. The 28-year-old Blue still is one of the premier left-handers in the game and coupled with Tom Seaver would give the Reds the most formidable lefty-righty punch in the majors.

Blue's trade also marks the departure of the last of the all-star performers who helped bring the A's three consecutive world championships from 1972-74. In the last three years the A's also have lost Reggie Jackson, Bert Campaneris, Joe Rudi, Rolie Fingers, Sal Bando, Ken Holtzman and Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

Besides the Blue trade, there were six other transactions completed Friday — the most significant of which was the New York Yankees' signing of free agent relief pitcher Rawly Eastwick to a $1.5 million, five-year contract.

Eastwick's acquisition gives the world champions three of the majors' top relief specialists. Last month they signed free-agent Rich Gossage and they already had Cy Young award winner Sparky Lyle, which indicated Eastwick may be heading to another club next spring.

"You can never have too much pitching," said Cincinnati general manager Tom Postell. "This affords us the opportunity next spring to utilize one of our pitchers to obtain a player who might fill a void should one come up."

In other deals, Detroit sent shortstop Tom Verzer to the Cleveland Indians for outfielder Charlie Spikes. Milwaukee dealt pitchers Jim Slaton and Rich Fohlkers to Detroit for outfielder Ben Odjive. Seattle traded outfielder Dave Collins to Cincinnati for pitcher Shane Rawley and St. Louis sent catcher Buck Martinez, acquired earlier in the day from Kansas City, to Milwaukee for minor-league pitcher George Frazier.

Overall, there were 20 trades involving 31 major league players during the weeklong meetings. Only four clubs — the Phillies, Dodgers, Twins and Padres — did not make a deal.

Christmas Benefits Bring Yule Cheer

About the Casselberry Women's Club combination bazaar and rummage sale, Mrs. Ruth Johnson said, "It was most successful, one of the best things we have ever done."

She added that this was the first time in ten years that the club combined a bazaar with a rummage sale.

There were many hand-crafted items, as well as plants and baked goods for sale.

Mrs. Barbara Bakala was a bedspread and a slow cooker were won by Mrs. Gordon Perce.

Mrs. Johnson said the money made from the event would be donated to needy organizations.

In the past the club has made donations to Seminole Youth Boys Ranch, Girl's Villa, Sanford Zoo, Casselberry Volunteer Fire Department and the Police Benevolent Fund.

She said they also give "special" donations to needy families in the area.

The Women's Club has 34 active members and was chartered approximately 28 years ago.

The Women's Guild of St. Augustine Catholic Church have held their annual Christmas Bazaar.

President Betty O'Brien said the women began making Christmas gifts and decorations in September.

The craft committee, Mrs. Sharon, Lil Baker, Myrtle Jeanan, Agnes Jones and Gay Zakowski, Mrs. Ruzneck was in charge of the children's display.

Betty said she is especially grateful to Ellie Clark who made the ceramic dolls, and to Marianne Wicks who was in charge of the baked goods section and made dozens of beautiful Christmas cookies.

Profits from the bazaar will be used to buy altar vestments and pay for the annual communion.

A Special Kind Of Comfort

It's been a great year, as marks the start of my fifth year as a columnist. I also celebrated my 74th birthday and the 4th year of Nikka's marriage to me, and as these things go, it's a mine to her.

"You'll understand, I'm sure, that such a combination of events calls for an essay full of deep, abstract, philosophical life. Little shall I have of my little white beard, so that I may look handsome and young! Or shall I let the beard grow down to my belly button, so that I may look handsome and impressive."

Nikka thinks neither action will help. She does agree that a longer beard might save money on the purchase of ties. That's as far as she goes.

The point of dissonance here is that Nikka and I are not married. We have never agreed the great ideals of our generation. The "togetherness" bit, which was so popular 25 years ago, didn't make it in our house.

Not at all. We always believed that living together was all right. It was even legal. Eating together, talking together, going to concerts together were also okay.

But the truth is that the differences between Nikka and me are what make our marriage great. We march separately to a variety of drum beats.

We respect each other's opinions. We allow for, we encourage the diversity of each other's private and individual interests.

Here we are then. It is a half-century from the days of our courtship. One of us, we know, will die first. The spouse who lives will know sorrow. But whichever one of us bears the loss will continue to be a whole person in his or her own right.

In our old age, this mutual respect for our differences assures a special kind of comfort. What belongs specifically to our marriage are the details. There are the daily doings in the house. There are the goings and comings to and from, the house. In these matters we are one.

Put it in the simplest terms. The medication we take are treatments for different ailments. The medications in which we indulge offer sustenance for our different personalities. In the quiet of the evenings, we dream together happily — as strangers.

Does all this seem vague and insubstantial? Well, see how well it works now that we're in our 70s. Nikka reads 19th century classics and biographies.

I read detective books, economic treatises, reports on aging from anywhere and everywhere. Miles apart, right? Wrong, we're still sharing.

Reading from a biography of Chaucer, Nikka passed on the following: "The bad Parliament of 1377, not exactly packed, but certainly manipulated, had been reactionary to the bone." The book explains further that:

"The problem at the time was the poll tax." Chaucer had always pictured the poor as amusing creatures, but always potentially dangerous.

How right he was. In 1381 came the Peasants Revolt, a vast storm that swept the country with the violence of a typhoon. The book describes it as "an ignorant riot against a harsh and unpopular tax."

I finally got the idea that he was talking to me. I couldn't get him alone to talk things over. He was always "too busy" or had somebody with him. Yesterday his manager told me that business was "slow," they were cutting back on their help and I was finished after next payday. Abby, business here is not slow — it's fantastic!

I got the boss alone long enough to ask him what was coming off, and he said he couldn't go against his manager's decision. He owns the place, and his manager will do whatever he tells him to do, so how do you figure it?

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 23-year-old divorced woman with two kids to support. All I can do is waitress work. Last year I started working at a very busy cocktail lounge and was immediately noticed by the owner, who's older and married.

I'm not generally that easy, but he was so persuasive that I went to bed with him the first night he took me home. Pretty soon it got to be a nightly thing, then all of a sudden he said we had to cool it.

Somebody had tipped off his wife, and he kept making excuses why he couldn't take me home after work.

Put it in the simplest terms. The medication we take are treatments for different ailments. The medications in which we indulge offer sustenance for our different personalities. In the quiet of the evenings, we dream together happily — as strangers.

Does all this seem vague and insubstantial? Well, see how well it works now that we're in our 70s. Nikka reads 19th century classics and biographies.

I read detective books, economic treatises, reports on aging from anywhere and everywhere. Miles apart, right? Wrong, we're still sharing.

Reading from a biography of Chaucer, Nikka passed on the following: "The bad Parliament of 1377, not exactly packed, but certainly manipulated, had been reactionary to the bone." The book explains further that:

"The problem at the time was the poll tax." Chaucer had always pictured the poor as amusing creatures, but always potentially dangerous.

How right he was. In 1381 came the Peasants Revolt, a vast storm that swept the country with the violence of a typhoon. The book describes it as "an ignorant riot against a harsh and unpopular tax."

WIN AT BRIDGE
 By OSWALD and JAMES J. MOY

So South won that first spade and promptly placed the jack of hearts on the table.

Now put yourself in West's place. He could rise with the ace of hearts, play his king, jack and eight of spades whereupon East could overtake with the last spade.

Would you rise with that ace? In any event, this West didn't and South quickly ran off the nine tricks he needed.

ASK THE GOODIES
 A New Hampshire reader wants to know if it is true that Ely Culbertson never became a life master.

Yes, it is true. When the Life Master category was established Ely had not played enough to qualify as one of the original 10. Since he never played in tournaments after that he never made the list.

He is one of the six members of our Hall of Fame and has our vote for a posthumous award of life mastery.

HOROSCOPE
 By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, Dec. 11, 1977

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Dec. 11, 1977

A steady, but slow, financial growth pattern is in store for you this coming year. You should refrain from trying to speed up progress lest you stall.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to leave well enough alone today. Fools rush in where angels fear to tread and you just might sound off enough to get yourself in trouble. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each sign desired and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Should you be tempted to change a considered opinion because of a heated companion, count to 10 first. Your way will probably be the wisest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you put your foot in your mouth today, let it be. Trying to clarify things will make it worse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's not cricket to change partners in the middle of the dance. Adhere to original intentions if you want to sidestep sticky situations today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Discipline breaks down rather

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You do a little and expect a lot today. Your rewards are going to be commensurate with the services you render.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid the crowds today if you can. Somehow you seem to come off better in a small group - and you're perfectly right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be very meticulous about the guest list if entertaining at home today. You wouldn't fit in.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're not too well attuned to your audience today. Unless you're careful, you could offend someone by being too self-serving.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If you're asked to do a favor for a person you aren't attracted to, you'll be reluctant. However, you'll go all-out for one who turns you on.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Romance is a much-better bet for you than business today. It looks as though Dan Cupid likes you, but the commercial world may not.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should your mate come up with a long list of chores today, you'll be perturbed. The lure of bigger and better things beckons.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't seek solace in front of the TV if you're asked to do a favor for a person you aren't attracted to, you'll be reluctant. However, you'll go all-out for one who turns you on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If possible steer clear of people who measure your worth by what you have in the bank. Associate with those who like you for yourself. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Members of the opposite sex are likely to fawn over you today. This may not be true of persons of your own gender, particularly in business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually you keep things in proportion, but today you're liable to accept much more than you intend to return. It happens inadvertently.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A pessimistic pal could sour you with his attitude today. Don't heed him. Chart your own course.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An old relationship will be put in jeopardy today if you give the impression you care more for someone new. Don't wear your feelings on your sleeve.

SPIDER-MAN by Stan Lee and John Romita

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Coral Routon, Kenneth Childrey Exchange Vows

Coral Anne Routon and Kenneth Lee Childrey were married Nov. 26, in a garden, double ring ceremony at the Andre Smith Memorial Chapel. Rev. Franklin Dorton, pastor of the Messiah Lutheran Church, Casselberry, performed the 10:30 a.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Routon, 2453 Worthington Road, Maitland. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charmaine Childrey of Central Avenue, Apopka, and the late Robert Lee Childrey.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a Victorian-inspired gown fashioned of crinkled muslin. Bands of lace adorned the three-tiered skirt, long full sleeves and wide ruffle outlining the lace yoke.

She wore an arrangement of baby's breath in her up-swept hair and carried a bridal bouquet of carnations, mums and daisies.

Mary Elaine Ballard, maid of honor, wore a floral print gown and carried an umbrella shaped basket filled with mixed garden flowers.

Donnie Houchins served the bridegroom as best man. Nikki Prevatt was the flower girl. The ring bearer was Timmy Long.

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH L. CHILDREY
The bride's parents entertained at a reception in their home after the ceremony. Following a wedding trip, the couple is making their home on Shorthorn Drive, Apopka.

Gardeners Active In World Program

The World Gardening program of The Sanford Garden Club is that of the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs and of the National Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. Much of this program is carried out by co-operating with "CARE."

After the earthquake in Guatemala (called the Highland Agricultural Restoration Project) CARE supplied tools so that the people from a poverty level were able to raise enough crops so that they had a surplus.

Many other countries have benefited from CARE's programs such as the Philippines, Dominican Republic, Colombia, Panama, Belize, Honduras and Costa Rica.

Projects to increase food production, improve the land and develop sanitary water systems are under way in many parts of the world.

Mildred McMahon (left to right), Minnie Macklin, Violet Paulus, and Katherine Rober, residents of Lakeview Nursing Center, have filled 1,000 boxes of candy to be distributed to Goodwill Industries Inc., the Salvation Army, Head Start, the Good Samaritan Home, Sandford Convalescent and Nursing Center and Lakeview. Several years before Mrs. Paulus became a Lakeview resident, she filled the candy boxes alone.

DEAR HELOISE:
I had a large combination family room and porch. I had a large window in the room and I found that the floor beneath the window was at times too strong. We didn't want to hang heavy draperies as they would hang over the window and make the room look cluttered. However, this problem at the time was all solved. When we considered putting in a window blind, we found that the expense would have been too high.

DEAR HELOISE:
I don't doubt that for a man, the "big" comes in a many attractive colors and patterns. Please add my compliments to your "big".

Peppi Finds Home

When Nancy Dusing of Winter Springs, saw Peppi's picture in the Evening Herald recently, she decided she would like to give him a real home.

Peppi's original owner, who travels, decided it would be better for the dog to be adopted, after living for several years in the Carter Country Club Kennel in Longwood.

Now Peppi is a member of the Dusing household that includes Mr. and Mrs. Dusing, three youngsters and a small black poodle.

"I love him and the kids love him," said Nancy, who is a school Divided Volunteer at Winter Springs Elementary School.

Peppi eats very well and I believe he feels like he's home now. When I let him out in the back yard, he gives a bark when he wants back," she said.

Laughing, she added, "He's so happy when I come in from the school in the afternoons. He really gives me a greeting!"

Nancy works every day in the Media Center at the school, saying, "I have asthma, and feel so much better being with the school children and helping out. Her unselfishness extended to making Peppi my own."

Christmas Suggestions For Others

DEAR READERS: Christmas will soon be here, so take a tip from me and do your Christmas shopping early.

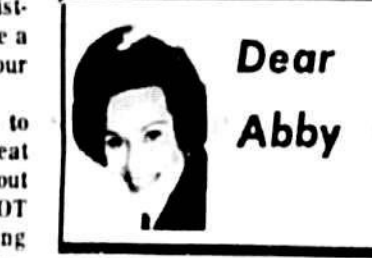

If you're wondering what to give Aunt Matilda or Great Grandpa, who don't get out much, let me tell you what NOT to give them: no dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.

Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Grandma doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets.

With the price of groceries up so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income would probably be delighted to receive a basket of assorted groceries. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mix.

Old folks can always use lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. (And enclose some new felt-tip pens, too.)

Projects to increase food production, improve the land and develop sanitary water systems are under way in many parts of the world.

Dear Abby

Don't give anyone a pet unless you're absolutely sure he wants one and is able to care for it properly.

Don't give gifts of wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting their calories, but have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than THEY are. And parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the right age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "take it back and exchange it if it's not what you want," why not save yourself and them much time and effort by giving them a gift certificate in the first place.
