Probe of remains continues

SANFORD — The Seminole County medical examiner has concluded that human remains found in Goldenrod Sunday are those of a white female, under the age of 40 years, sheriff's Lt. Al Sanchez said.

The remains continue to be examined, and Sanchez said it has not been determined if they are those of Debbie Poe, 28, a convenience store clerk who disappeared Feb. 4 from an Orange County Circle K store about two miles from the scene of the find off State Road 426, Goldenrod.

Sanchez said the medical examiner said the victim whose remains were found could have been dead from three weeks to six months. A cause of death has not been established, he said. If the remains are Poe the case will be turned over to Orange County investigators who have been probing her disappearance, Sanchez said.

Suit filed alleging censorship

BUFFALO, N.Y. — An artist filed a federal lawsuit Wednesday against a state-sponsored arts center, alleging censorship and free speech violations because it canceled a weekend performance that includes Bible burning.

Mark Pauline filed the lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Buffalo, seeking an injunction against Artpark in Lewiston so his group can perform Saturday.

Artpark officials canceled the appearance of Survival Research Laboratory of San Francisco saying the troupe violated a performance contract by refusing to provide details of its presentation.

In his court papers, Pauline said the cancellation amounted to censorship and a violation of the artists' First Amendment right to free speech.

"As one small part of the performance, plaintiff had planned to cover a large, mechanized Mother Earth figure with Bibles, in a fashion similar to the ceramic tiles that protect a space capsule from disintegration upon reentry to the Earth's atmosphere.

"These Bibles were to be peeled off by incinerating them as a way of expressing liberation from religious fundamental restraints on human freedom," the court papers said.

TaxWatch turkey eyes Volusia County children

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The counties that benefited most from local interest "turkeys" in this year's $27.6 billion state budget lost out on badly needed programs for children and others in need, according to Florida TaxWatch.

A report released Wednesday by TaxWatch said taxpayers in Volusia, Dade, Hillsborough, Escambia, and Leon counties all appeared to benefit by the distribution of local interest projects, paying less than $1 for each $1 received for such projects.

The report said that together, those counties accounted for $67 million in turkeys, or 60 percent of total turkey spending.

Yet in those same counties, 8,415 children were on waiting lists for subsidized day care, 5,550 children lacked access to drug treatment programs and 4,440 children lacked space in mental health treatment centers, the report said.

Additionally, adequate funding for prenatal care could have reduced by 75 percent the number of low birthweight babies.

Supplying all those services in those five counties would have cost $33.4 million, or about half the cost of the turkeys snared by those counties, the report said.

Colleges add cops' protection

The University of Central Florida, Rollins College and Stetson University all have beefed up student security following the brutal killings of five students in Gainesville.

The Central Florida institutions are among those statewide that have moved this week to provide additional protection for students; area officials confirmed today.

In DeLand, Stetson University has added a pair of police officers to their patrols of the campus. School officials feel that recent security upgrades, combined with the additional officers and continuing educational programs will make the campus safer.

Killer versed in weapons, crime

By RENE STUTSMAN
United Press International

GAINESVILLE — The serial killer who stabbed and bludgeoned five college students in possibly a security guard or hospital orderly and has knowledge of weapons and crime scenes, a psychological profile reportedly shows.

The Miami Herald, quoting sources, reported Thursday that the profile prepared for investigators shows the killer who has terrified the University of Florida community probably is in his late 20s or early 30s.

The Herald report did not indicate what the profile was based on but said the killer probably is not a sworn police officer or a doctor, but works more along the lines of a security guard or a hospital orderly.

The report said authorities believe the five slayings are the work of one person who is knowledgeable of weapons and crime scenes and who frequents places where students congregate — bars or clubs. See Killer, Page 2A

It could take at least a week to process exit visas for foreign women and children trapped by the invasion of Kuwait, diplomats said, while the U.N. secretary-general prepared to meet Iraq's foreign minister in Jordan.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar met in Paris with French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas today and said his mission was "to obtain the implementation of the (U.N.) resolutions."

The resolutions call for the withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait, re-establishment of the deposed government and release of all foreigners held hostage after Baghdad's Aug. 2 invasion. The U.N. Security Council also approved the use of force, if necessary, to enforce a U.N.-sanctioned embargo against Iraq.

"I do not want to give the impression that we have a solution at hand," Perez de Cuellar told French television in advance of his meeting with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz. He described his mission as "extremely delicate and delicate." The U.N. chief's meeting with Aziz was scheduled for Thursday but unconfirmed reports said it had been postponed until Friday.

Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al Faisal arrived in Cairo for Thursday's meeting.

The 18th Judicial Circuit

There are 19 Circuit Judges in the 18th Judicial Circuit which includes Seminole and Brevard Counties.

Of the 13 seats up for election this year, 10 already have been decided with only one candidate qualifying for each seat.

With the circuit including two counties, some judges hold court in Seminole County while the others are seated in Brevard area.

The four divisions are felony criminal, civil cases over $10,000 and divorces, wills to probate and juvenile matters.

The position pays $96,046 per year. Of the four seats in Seminole County, two are already decided.

Group 11 pits McGregor against newcomer Deen

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

The race for the group 11 circuit judge seat between political newcomer Jeff Deen and incumbent Robert B. McGregor will be decided Sept. 4. Group 11 has been assigned as a criminal court.

Deen says he "wants to be a judge that makes a difference, and not one who is satisfied with just keeping his job." Deen lists his five years experience as Assistant State Attorney as "real experience" in dealing with criminal and juvenile law. Deen points to a number of achievements during his tenure with the State Attorney's office, including a program that became a model for the State dealing with delivery of cocaine from See Circuit, Page 2A advocate and judge. The judgeship was as the City Judge for Winter Springs in the mid-1970s.

"A Circuit Judge should meet the highest judicial and ethical standards," Brock said. "He must be a man of quality and experience. Those are the main things to look for in a Circuit Judge."

He is proud of receiving the highest rating, (A-V) issued by the Martindale-Hubbell Law Directory, and similarly proud of his certification as a Civil Trial Lawyer by both the Florida Bar and the National Board of Trial Advocacy. "Only 680 attorneys out of 44,000 in Florida are Board Certified," he said, and I'm proud to be one of them."

Brock feels the need to more than sit on the bench and hear testimony. "Judges get lost on the bench. They have a duty to remain active in the community. I have always been active and I plan to stay that way."

He said he does not classify himself as either law enforcement or defendant oriented. "It would be a shame to be classed as either," he said. "I believe it's best to be in the middle ground and be as fair and impartial as possible."

Brock would select the Criminal Division, but said he would feel comfortable in civil, juvenile or probate courts as well.

Ned Julian, 48, has logged over 23 years of practice in Sanford including 10 years as Seminole County School Board Attorney, over five years as Longwood City Attorney and three years as City Attorney for Lake Mary. "You don't just go to meetings and answer questions," Julian said, "you become involved in labor law, civil rights matters, personal injury cases and even cases that take you into the Federal District Court. These are litigation tasks that most lawyers don't have the opportunity to do."

Julian believes he has many attributes that would serve the Circuit Court. "You have to have the proper temperament, you have to have patience and be a good listener," he said, "and you've got to have respect."

In his years of practice in Seminole County, Julian says he has always had the respect of the judges before whom he has presided. "We have always had good judges with good respect in Seminole County," he said. "And I fully realize sitting on the bench isn't any vacation - it requires long and hard work and is very demanding." Julian says he is ready to meet that challenge.

In addition to his membership in the Florida Bar, Julian is also admitted to the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the 11th Circuit and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Julian said while he would prefer the Civil Court division, he would have no problems in the other branches, especially juvenile, as he says he has maintained a strong leadership in juvenile activities in the community.

George Kelley, 47, says his practice is divided equally to courtrooms in Sanford, Orlando and the Lake County area. "I may have practiced before more judges than any of my opponents," he said, "and I've learned a lot. I've seen judges who have stayed too long on the bench. They start to lose patience."

Kelley's 24 years as a member of the Florida Bar Association includes five years of service as Municipal Judge for the City of Apopka. He says he gave up handling major felony cases in 1978. "They were emotionally tough," he said. He presently maintains a general practice mostly centered on civil cases, and spends a great deal of his time working with juveniles. He said in juvenile cases, he believes parents should hold some of the responsibility and should be part of the court process. "As a judge," he said, "I would be upset with parents who don't care about their children. But," he added, "in many cases parents should not necessarily be punished for the acts of their children."

Kelley believes it is important for a judge to be involved in civic matters, saying, "The more activities you are involved in, the more you can give back to the people."

He sees several areas where improvements can be made in the Circuit Court to help reduce the heavy work load, including starting court earlier in the morning and reducing the amount of paperwork required prior to many cases.

Robert E. Miller, 37, has been a practicing attorney for 10 years, the last five of which have been in Seminole County. He says, "I have always represented citizens, not boards or cities; and as a judge, I believe that would help me have a better impartial view on making rulings." He also believes that when a decision is handed down, it must be one that is thoroughly understood by everyone involved.

In his campaigning, Miller stresses his "5-C's" which he says will be his major goals as a judge. The five are: Concern, Compassion, Commitment, Consistency and Communication. He says he is even tempered and a good listener, and he believes that "Everyone in court deserves respect."

His present practice in Altamonte Springs deals with tax matters, real estate planning and commercial litigation.

As an adjunct professor at Valencia Community College and UCF, Miller believes strongly in education. He said as a judge, he would work with school children, both in the court and classroom, in helping them learn about the problems associated with drug abuse. He said he could also help in showing law enforcement officers ways in which they could improve their work; and prevent some loopholes which often allow criminals to escape justice.

"I believe in the stiffest penalties for career criminals," he said, "but for some first or second offenders, if jail is nothing more than punishment, it does nothing for the victims or public. It just turns that person into a more hardened criminal."

mother to unborn child through the umbilical cord, a model program dealing with the improved handling of sex crimes and juvenile abuse cases and a saving of 200 man hours through modernization of summons issuing procedures.

Deen says, "The public doesn't seem to care about judges any more. One reason," he said, "is because the community doesn't know what they think."

Deen says sentencing must be designed to help. "Sentencing doesn't necessarily mean jail," he said, "that won't help some people. The court must offer an opportunity for people to change, not just be punished."

During his campaign, Deen says he has refused to take campaign money from attorneys. "It's not illegal or unethical," he said, "it's just not proper." Deen claims support from local law enforcement agencies throughout the county as well as from the sheriff of Brevard County.

Deen says he offers a "new generation of leadership."

Robert B. McGregor is the only incumbent who has opposition in his reelection attempt. McGregor has spent 30 of his 38-year legal career as a judge in city, county and circuit courts including the past 17 years as circuit judge. "I've worked my way up, I've paid my dues," he said.

Over the years, McGregor said he has seen the number of criminal cases grow from 80 per docket to the present 250. "Criminal (court) is an all-consuming docket," he said, "and I'm handling 70 to 80 jury trials per year, which is more than the average of many other judges in the state. It's a daily business and I haven't allowed it to snowball."

Regarding handing out sentences in his court, McGregor said, "I take my time in sentencing. It's the most difficult, but most important part of a trial. I take time to study each case closely, and try to be flexible enough to hear from both sides before I hand down the sentence. Thus, I'm not always on schedule as I'd like to be."

"I think you'll find Robert McGregor is a law and order person," he said. "I'm an independent judge, but I've found times when law enforcement is not fully truthful and I don't think law enforcement has a right to try to make their case better than it is. That's why my opponent received their endorsement."

McGregor, who has never been opposed for re-election, says he offers "Judicial experience and proven integrity."

Students return to classes at Stetson on Sept. 5.

"We have about 1,400 students who attend Rollins, 1,088 of whom live on campus," he said. "When someone doesn't belong on campus, we know about it quickly."

He said that the Rollins security officers know students on a first name basis and keep a careful eye "on who comes and goes on campus."

Some of Florida's major universities beefed up security and encouraged safer habits following the murders of four young women and a man living near the University of Florida campus, officials said Tuesday.

"I think that probably right now every campus in the Southeast is probably very concerned and keenly aware of safety," said Maj. Max Bromley with the University of South Florida Police Department.

He is charged with armed robbery, false imprisonment, use of a firearm in a felony, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, and resisting arrest with violence.

Williams allegedly fought police when arrested and another man at his house was also arrested for allegedly trying to interfere with police by fighting.

Manager search resumes; man rejects second offer

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners will resume their search for a new county manager in mid-October after county officials failed to reach terms with a candidate who first turned the job down in June but expressed renewed interest in it a month later.

Commissioners considered delaying the search until after the Nov. 6 elections, but decided waiting until then might delay the start of a new manager until the holidays.

Commissioners have sought a new manager since Oct. 24 last year when former county manager Ken Hooper resigned and the two deputy county managers and budget director resigned in his wake. Hooper resigned after commission chairman Sandra Glenn told him he had fallen from favor by the majority of the commission, including herself and commissioners Jennifer Kelley and Pat Warren.

Commissioners hired an Atlanta executive search firm, MSN Inc., to recruit a new manager. Following the first round of interviews in April, commissioners unanimously offerred the job to the dynamic city administrator of New Brunswick, N.J., Gregory Fehrenbach. But Fehrenbach turned down the job about a week later, citing a change of heart about leaving his current position.

Commissioners interviewed another round of candidates in June and offered the job to Michael Bryant, county administrator of Hall County, Ga. Two days later, Bryant turned the job down, citing personal reasons that prevented him from leaving his job.

Bryant has been administrator of the Atlanta suburban county for nine years. He serves as president of the National Association of County Administrators.

In a strange twist to the county's job search effort, Bryant expressed renewed interest in the job again in mid-July and negotiated with county officials and MSN Inc. for about three weeks. At one point, acting county manager Bob McMillan announced to county department directors an agreement was imminent.

Then on Aug. 14, Bryant decided against pursuing negotiations again citing personal reasons, Neiswender said.

Rumors about any Florida National Guard units already being called to active duty are unfounded, officials reiterated this week.

"No Florida guard unit has been alerted or called up," said Colonel Ken Forrester at the State National Guard Headquarters in St. Augustine.

Forrester said, "We are being swamped with calls from guardsmen and their families who have heard rumors that a particular unit has been called, but as of today, there has been no such call up."

The Colonel explained that some of the mix-up is caused by people not realizing the difference between reserve units and the guard. "Reserves have been called in Ocala, Jacksonville and West Palm Beach," he said, "but no guardsmen, and that includes the Army National Guard as well as the Air National Guard."

Forrester said should any units be called it would begin with an alert being issued first, "from then it could be 72 hours before an official call up. It could be several days, even a couple of weeks. But no alert has been issued anywhere in the State."

Bailing out students

Against the backdrop of the savings and loan boom, the increasing volume of the nation's largest banks of students has become a major problem. The Federal Reserve Board's recent decision to bail out the insolvent Higher Education Assistance Foundation underlines the need for federal officials to reform the $50 billion student loan industry.

HEAF's rescue could cost taxpayers as much as $1 billion in the short run. With a loan portfolio amounting to $2.2 billion, the figure could be even higher in the long run, especially if, as the Department of Education officials fear, HEAF's financial crunch becomes so acute that it fails for bankruptcy.

Like many of the insolvent S&Ls, HEAF's problems resulted from varying degrees of greed, imprudence, lax oversight, and the use of funds for purposes other than those for which they were intended. HEAF's activities included investments in real estate, many of which were created specifically for the purpose of attracting investment funds. The recipients of HEAF's portfolio had defaulted, forcing the agency to write off more than $1 billion in bad loans.

The rescue plan calls for HEAF to be liquidated and its assets sold. The proceeds from the sale of HEAF's assets are expected to be used to pay off the loans that HEAF had guaranteed. The remaining assets are expected to be sold to pay off the loans that HEAF had guaranteed.

The sale of all this to a third party will be a major step in the liquidation of HEAF. The sale will be conducted by a third party, and the proceeds from the sale will be used to pay off the loans that HEAF had guaranteed.

ROBERT WALTERS

Micropolises are best of two worlds

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. — Because Chip Cherry is president of the local Chamber of Commerce, his penmanship on behalf of the Fredericksburg area is hardly surprising, but his exhortation of his in this community includes a number of legitimate boasts.

"We have a city big enough to provide most of the goods and services available in larger metropolitan areas — but we are small enough to enjoy a sense of community typical of small towns," he says. "It's just a neat place to live."

The Rappahannock River, which flows past the city's business district is so clean and clear that local residents regularly swim and raft in it — things that no longer can be done in many of the waterways that traverse other urban areas in the East.

A 15-minute drive in almost any direction brings motorists to Virginia's gently rolling countryside, much of it still uncultivated and farmed by families that have lived in the area for generations.

At the same time, however, Fredericksburg's almost 30,000 residents have access to six schools and an equal number of social facilities. Retail establishments sell everything from quilts to railroad ties, while professionals and craftspersons range from plastic surgeons to piano tuners.

These characteristics are not unique to Fredericksburg, indeed, there are scores of what urban-demographers call "micropolises" scattered throughout the country, combining the virtues of big cities and small towns.

"In a new book, 'The Rising Tide to Life in America's Small Cities,' Thomas defines these communities as cities situated outside of major metropolitan areas but containing at least 15,000 people and located in counties whose population is at least 50,000.

"They're not backwaters but they're not centers of commerce either," notes American Demographics magazine.

In his book, Thomas rates 319 of these on the basis of health care, economic education, housing, public safety, transportation, recreation, entertainment, shopping and various other factors.

San Luis Obispo-Atascadero, Calif. ranks first, with Corvallis, Ore. second and Frederickburg third. Following them are Fairbanks, Alaska; Wenatchee, Wash.; Hattiesburg, Miss.; Ames, Iowa; Port Angeles, Wash.; Bushong, Minn.; Aberdeen, Wash.; Brunswick, Ga.; and Vero Beach, Fla.

Among the top 50 are Longview, Wash.; Everett, Wash.; Ocala, Fla.; Olathe, Kan.; Rome, Ga.; Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Bay West, Fla.; Carson City, Nev.; and Fairbank, Alaska.

At the opposite end of the scale from these superior "micropolitan" areas, however, Thomas lists communities he ranks as inferior, including North Collins, N.Y.; Rancho, N.M.; N.C.; Rio Rancho, N.M.; Gallup, N.M.; and Minden, La.

The decisions people make on where to live are based on personal choice and individual style. An individual's preference in climate, for example, is obviously crucial in selecting between Hattiesburg and Fairbanks.

Professionals and craftspersons range from plastic surgeons to piano tuners.

At the same time, however, Fredericksburg's almost 30,000 residents have access to six schools and an equal number of social facilities. Retail establishments sell everything from quilts to railroad ties, while professionals and craftspersons range from plastic surgeons to piano tuners.

Waking up to the Mideast crisis

WASHINGTON — Every night now the world is awoken by the news that a nuclear war is being fought between Israel and the Arab states. The news is so shocking that it is hard to believe that the United States is not doing more to prevent this crisis from escalating.

Two sets of questions now come to mind. One is: Why is the United States not doing more to prevent this crisis from escalating? The other is: What can be done to prevent this crisis from escalating?

How that the whole world has taken an interest in the Middle East crisis is a sign that the United States is not doing enough to prevent this crisis from escalating.

Here at home, the long career over energy policy has been ended in an increasingly interconnected world. It makes no sense for the United States to price oil and gas for the benefit of other nations.

The Persian Gulf crisis has provided a wake-up call for a government and a citizenry that have been wallowing in unbridled complacency. It also has shattered a dangerous myth and opened our eyes to a neglected issue.

The myth is that the need for a strong military ended with the Cold War. If the Persian Gulf crisis has proved anything, it is that we bought a lot more in the military buildup of the 1950s than the conventional oil and gas resources that we have.

The Persian Gulf crisis has provided a wake-up call for a government and a citizenry that have been wallowing in unbridled complacency. It also has shattered a dangerous myth and opened our eyes to a neglected issue.

That needs to be done in order to prevent this crisis from escalating. The United States must do more to prevent this crisis from escalating.

Bus system in 'time warp'

The city of Orlando along with Orange and Seminole County operate what amounts to a glorified "plantation" bus system with Tri-County Transit.

The city's bus system seems suspended in a time warp, using basically the same old routes that were developed in the 1940s and '50s. It was developed during a period to provide only the most minimal, low-priority type transportation for people at the bottom of Orlando's socio-economic ladder.

Tri-County Transit's main mission was (and today remains) to transport domestic and other day laborers from the Orlando area's poorest neighborhoods to the city's swank, exclusive, upscale neighborhoods where they work. And in recent years Tri-County has expanded its routes to provide the same plantation type transit service for low-wage labor in the tourist and hotel industry in Southwest Orange County.

It is troubling that the bus system is so under utilized in the nearby areas and that the management of the system has been inhibited. Greater use of the system would help ease our traffic congestion and somewhat reduce our addiction to foreign oil to keep all our private vehicles on the road.

Unfortunately the political leadership of the tri-county area has not been able to bring the will to push for expansion of the bus system, which could contribute significantly to improving the quality of life in the community.

Association. According to Deaton, he is an active member of the Hospital Board of Trustees. Parker has represented the Seminole County Medical Society in the Florida Association and has been chairman of the county association's Scholarship Committee to raise money from physician members to help pay for the college education of needy and deserving Seminole County teenagers.

Deaton wrote that one of Parker's greatest contributions has been as a role model to young physicians.

"His obvious character, gentlemanly behavior, dedication and love for his patients has been an inspiration to the younger physicians," Deaton wrote.

Parker has done extensive volunteer work, donating his time to the local health care system. He has been a member of the Seminole County Health Department, for which he received little or no payment.

For many years he conducted free physical examinations on children participating in the local Head Start program. He also performed free exams on Seminoles High School students who wanted to participate in sports activities.

Parker served as a member of the Seminole County Children's Commission to determine the needs of indigent children.

In addition to his professional contributions, Parker served as a member of the Board of Directors of the Friends of the St. Johns. Parker is an active member of the First Presbyterian Church in Sanford.

Deaton said Parker was heartened about his nomination for the honor.

"This is the response I expected from this quiet, reserved and modest man who will rarely be seen or mentioned in the local newspapers," Deaton said.

Awards Chairman Bill Prassa commended.

"Some people are flamboyant about their volunteer efforts but Dr. Parker is humble and does not seek publicity. I could tell he was overwhelmed by the award," Prassa said.

"We were looking for someone who paralleled Randal Chase in his quiet and tireless dedication to his community. Everybody was pleased with the selection of Dr. Parker," Prassa said.

Deaton said that if Parker had not been selected, it still was an honor to nominate him.

Five seek group one Seminole County Judgeship

By Steve Kramers
Herald Staff Writer

Five candidates will seek the group one Seminole County Judge seat in the Sept. 4 primary.

The candidates seeking election as county judge in group one are Ken Bevan, Michael A. Kramer, Chris Ray, John Sloop and Richard B. Taylor. The seat became available when County Judge Alan A. Dickey resigned to seek the position of Circuit Judge.

The race is a non partisan election, which means all registered voters in Seminole County will have the opportunity to make their selection in the primary. To win, one candidate must receive more than 50 percent of all votes cast. If no one receives the majority, the two with the largest number of votes will appear in a runoff on the Nov. 6 general election ballot.

The job presently pays $76,651 per year, but as of January, 1991, the salary increases to $90,354. The term of office is four years.

In all, Seminole County has four county judgeships, which are responsible for hearing and judging cases that include misdemeanors, traffic, small claims and civil cases. While each candidate has had at least some experience in most of these areas, Bevan, Kramer, Sloop and Taylor reported the majority of their cases have been of a civil nature, while Ray reported 75 percent of his cases have been criminal.

In a number of instances, all five candidates are in agreement. Each sees a need to improve scheduling of court cases to prevent witnesses and others involved in a particular case from having to sit and wait, at times for several hours, before their cases are heard.

Each has also expressed concern for the proper handling of persons who appear in court without the benefit of an attorney, and each would like to strive for improved communications between the bench and local law enforcement agencies.

Bevan, 48, Altamonte Springs, is a fifth-generation Floridian and is president-elect of the Seminole County Bar Association. He is also a member of the Brevard, Seminole and Orange Bar Associations.

Bevan says he is very sensitive about alcohol abuse, especially in cases of driving under the influence of alcohol.

"People must learn to be responsible for their own actions," he said, adding, "The most dangerous part of a vehicle is the driver."

Bevan sees the position of county court judge as "an opportunity to be a problem solver." He said he has always enjoyed working with people, and considers himself a mediator.

Kramer, 39, Longwood, points not only to his legal career, but his educational background. He is a registered professional engineer and certified contractor, holding a bachelor's degree in engineering from Tulane University.

Kramer also has an MBA from Tulane in addition to his degree from the University of Miami Law School.

Kramer said, "A judge must also be known for efficiency. He deals with more than legal cases, he must also handle employees and budgets." Kramer says he enjoys the practice of law and community involvement. "I'm involved. I have roots here," he said. "I intend to stay. Not just live here, but be involved here as well."

Kramer had previous experience in the Dade/Broward County area as well as in Atlanta before moving to Central Florida.

Ray, 48, Sanford, has spent his entire life in Central Florida, and feels he has the best barometer to determine Seminole County community standards. Ray says he is the only one of the candidates who has handled capital punishment cases from both the prosecution and defense sides. Ray said he doesn't like conflict.

"As a judge, I would be a mediator of conflicts. I like to be considered more as a counselor than an attorney."

He says he enjoys practice in this area, and "would like to continue in the tradition of Seminole County Court Judges over the past years. I've spent 20 years as an attorney," he said, "now I'm ready to give that time back by being a firm but fair judge."

Sloop, 41, Wekiiva, was an assistant state attorney in Lee and Orange counties before opening his own practice and going almost exclusively into civil law. While he maintains an office in Orange County, he lives in the Wekiiva area of Seminole County. Sloop says his goal is to be a county judge.

"I am not looking to become a circuit court judge," he said. "My background as a prosecutor and a civil litigator, as well as my experience in working with my clients in the Seminole County and Central Florida area, is ideally suited for service as a county judge."

Taylor, 40, Longwood, is a past president of the Seminole County Bar Association. He also serves as a federal arbitrator and was recently named arbitration chairman in a federal case. During the past four years, Taylor says he has been involved in at least 300 cases in Seminole County Court, both jury and non-jury trials. If elected, he plans to visit one school per month, to lecture on alcohol and drug abuse.

"As a judge," he said, "I would hopefully have a greater impact on the youth." Taylor says he likes being treated with respect and wants to treat others that way.

Regarding jury duty, Taylor would like to see jury lists taken from driver's license lists rather than voter registration lists. "Lots of people say they won't register to vote because they don't want to serve on a jury," he said. "But with a drivers license list, there would be a much bigger pool from which to draw, and a better chance of a person ending up with a jury of his peers."

Settlement between SCEA, Zayre's Plaza falls through

By J. Edgar ...
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - A $3 million settlement in the Zayre's Plaza lawsuit against the Seminole County Expressway Authority fell through this morning over a hangup over whether the terms of the settlement will be public.

"We're not going to accept that," said SCEA director Gerald Brinton. "We don't want there to be any public perception that we're trying to hide anything. The settlement's off. I guess we go to trial."

A hearing scheduled this Monday had cancelled because of the pending settlement.

In a draft settlement sent to SCEA attorney Lonnie Groot Monday, lawyers for Brenda Properties Inc., owners of the shopping center at the northwest corner of U.S. 17-98 and Airport Boulevard, included a clause would require both parties to agree the terms of the settlement will remain confidential.

Officials of SCEA, a government agency created by the state, cannot under state laws keep records confidential.

Brinton conferred with SCEA attorneys over the provision this morning before taking the position to refuse the settlement over the confidentiality clause.

Groot said $3 million fell within the range of appraisals for the 15-acre site and buildings. Florida Department of Transportation officials notified Brinton last week the money would be available by Jan. 31, 1991. Brenda Properties had agreed to stop pursuit of the lawsuit until receiving the money, then they would drop the lawsuit altogether.

Griffey's make history again

SEATTLE — Ken Griffey Sr. signed with the Seattle Mariners Wednesday, becoming the first major leaguer in history to play on the same team with his son.

The 40-year-old veteran was in uniform and took batting practice before Wednesday night's game against Detroit. He was not expected to play until Friday or Saturday.

The Griffey's became the first father and son to play in the majors at the same time when Ken Griffey Jr. made the Mariners out of spring training in 1989.

A's add Baines, McGee

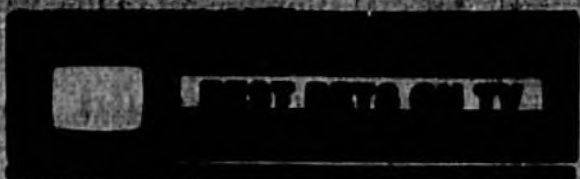

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Oakland Athletics acquired designated hitter Harold Baines and outfielder Willie McGee in separate deals Wednesday, two days before the Sept. 1 trading deadline.

RMC claims 'D' crown

Slowpitch softball is generally considered to be a hitter's game. But on Wednesday night at Chase Park, RMC pitcher James Ledford was tough when he needed to be, holding the Killer Bees and Crazy Wings at bay while his teammates provided the necessary offensive and defensive support.

Wins over Bees, Wings earn title

From staff reports

SANFORD — They needed two wins and they got two wins.

Starting the night a half-game out of first, RMC defeated the Killer Bees 7-6 at Chase Park in the regular-season finale of the Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night "D" Slowpitch Softball League.

RMC then turned around and knocked off co-first place finisher Crazy Wings 7-3 in a one-game playoff to claim the league championship.

With the playoff win, RMC finishes the summer season at 9-2 while Crazy Wings came in at 8-3. The Killer Bees and Sanford Police Benevolent Association both had 6-4 marks while Harcor Aluminum Products went 3-3 and Waddles B/W Market finished 0-10.

In last night's championship game, Dan Ott singled and scored a run in the top of the first to give RMC a 1-0 lead. But the advantage was short-lived as the first three

Wildcats finish in style with a shutout victory

From staff reports

SANFORD — Ending their season in fine fashion, the Wildcats got at least one hit from everyone in the line-up as they hammered the Bushwackers 12-0 in play in the Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night "C" Slowpitch Softball League.

In Wednesday night's other game at Pinhurst Park, Hall's Stucco edged H.D. Realty 6-4.

The win caps the Wildcats' 8-1 season and wraps up their league championship, which they clinched last week. Trailing the Wildcats in the final standings are the Bushwackers and H.D. Realty (both 4-3) and Hall's Stucco (3-7).

It didn't take the Wildcats long to get things started last night, scoring six runs in the bottom of the first inning. Consecutive doubles by Lee Jenkins, Tony Hengberg, Billy Gibbons and Kevin Welch highlighted the first-inning explosion.

Things only got worse for the short-handed Bushwackers, who had only nine players. While they couldn't get a runner past second base, the Wildcats seemed to be able to score at will, adding three runs in both the second and third innings. The game was stopped by the mercy rule after the Bushwackers batted in the top of the fourth.

Jenkins led the Wildcats with a double, single and two runs. Also chipping in were Steve Lewis (two singles, two runs scored), Kevin Welch (double, two runs scored) and Bob Tavelli (triple, run scored).

Other contributors were Hengberg and Gibbons (each with a double and a run scored), Ken Brown (single, two runs scored), David Voeks (single, run scored) and Tom Gibbons, Mike McArdie and Mark Keenan (one single each).

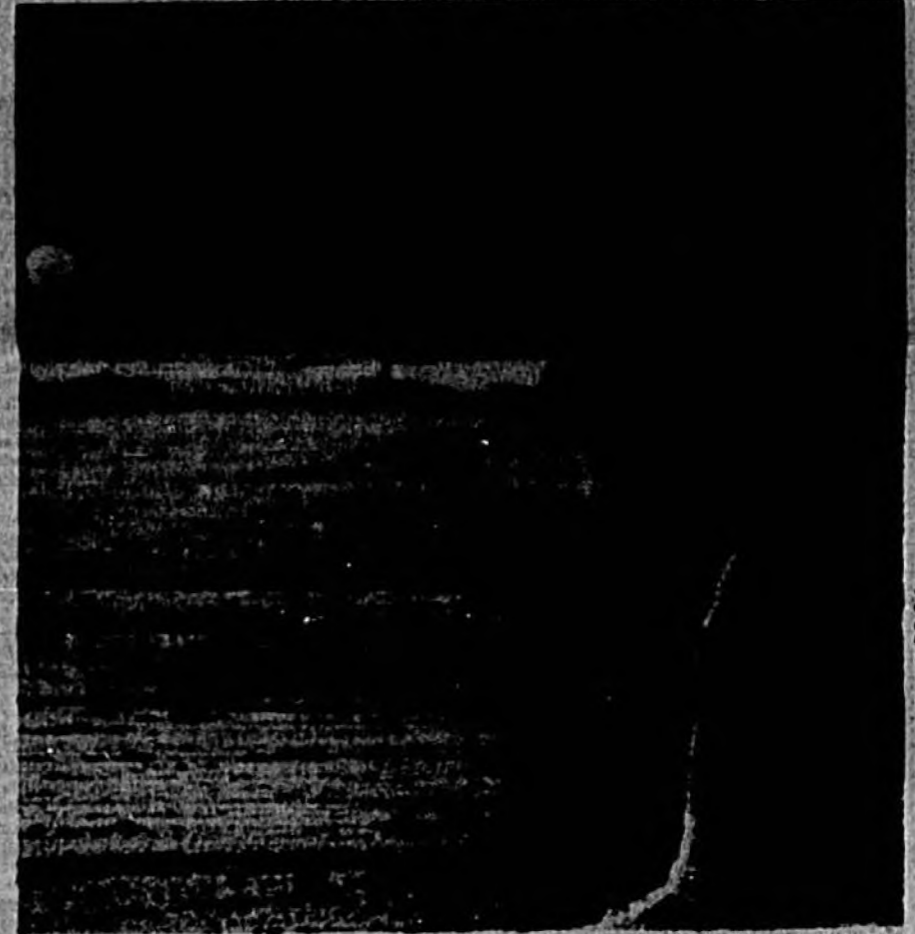

For the Bushwackers, A.W. Ives singled twice and Jim Jenkins singled once.

The second game was considerably closer. Ron Prager, Chris Depore and Charles Hatcher, the first three hitters in the H.D. Realty line-up, reached base and scored to open the contest.

The lead didn't last long as Hall's Stucco rallied for four runs with two out in the home half of the first. Lee Marshall, Tom Olliam, Jimmy Hall and Jim Campbell scored the runs for Hall's.

Lendl wins, Gomez beat at Open

United Press International

NEW YORK — Ivan Lendl, undoubtedly the only Grand Slam champion this year still in contention at the U.S. Open, climbed into the third round Wednesday with a testing four-set victory over West German Michael Stich.

Lendl, the Australian Open champion and a three-time winner at Flushing Meadows, defeated Stich 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.

Earlier, French Open champion Andre Agassi lost his first-round match to Brazilian Luis Limer 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3. Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg was ousted Tuesday.

This marks the first time during the open era that two Grand Slam champions were eliminated in the first round of the U.S. championship.

Meantime, very quietly, John McEnroe reached the third round of the Open for the first time in three years by beating Sweden's David Engel 6-3, 6-3, 7-5. This is the first time since 1977 that McEnroe has not been seeded.

"At this point I'd have to say I'm a real longshot for this particular tournament and maybe as long as I play, but I think it would be great to

But that would be all the runs Crazy Wings would score as RMC pitcher James Ledford shut them out the rest of the way.

Meanwhile, Tom Tews singled and scored in the top of the third to pull RMC within a run. Then, in the top of the fifth, Tews, Gill and Mike D'Amico, all scored runs to give the lead back to RMC.

Rich Covell and Danny Casey added insurance runs in the sixth inning.

Providing the offense for RMC were Gill (three singles, two runs scored), Tews (two singles, two runs scored), Casey (double, single, run scored), Mike D'Amico (two singles, one run scored), Brian Burgess and Randy Boyd (both with two singles), Rich Covell (single, run scored) and John D'Amico, Danny Grayson and Ledford (one single each).

For Crazy Wings, Schneider doubled, singled twice and scored once, Hendley doubled, singled and scored a run, Kelly singled twice and scored once, Jerry Herman hit three singles, Tom Tews and Micky West each singled twice, and Jim Smith and Craig Apple each hit a single.

To have the one-game playoff, RMC first had to get past the Killer Bees in Wednesday's first game.

But RMC came right back with four runs in the home half of the first. Mike D'Amico's base-loaded triple bringing in Tews, Gill and Burgess helped. D'Amico delivered the win with a single.

Given a lead to protect, Ledford shut out the Killer Bees over the next four innings. Tews and Mike D'Amico singled and scored in the third before Tews singled and scored in the fourth to put RMC up 7-3.

The Killer Bees threw one last score into RMC in the sixth inning. Oriacoll singled and Weaver walked before Mitch Burke scored moments later to cut the gap to 7-6. Ledford was up to the challenge, retiring the last six Killer Bees batters.

Tews led the RMC attack with six singles and two runs scored. Other contributors included Burgess (three singles, two runs scored), Mike D'Amico (single, two runs scored), Gill (two singles, one run scored), John D'Amico (two singles) and Grayson and Casey (one single each).

The summer softball season ended on a good note for John Weaver (left) and his team's backup pitcher, who beat M.D. Tews 5-4 last night.

The same couldn't be said for A.W. Tews (No. 73) and the buschmen, who got shut out by the league winners 13-0 in three and a half innings.

Are modern women dressing for rape?

DEAR ALBY: My mother always has been something of a mother with her. It's either a "splitting headache" or "daddy's girl" or "cutting something that didn't agree" with her.

She once said to me, "I wouldn't believe if the directions say to take two, she takes four. She buys every kind of medicine you can get without a prescription. I've tried to tell her this is dangerous, but she won't listen to me. She reads your column and she'd think you know everything, so maybe you can help her out."

I'm not exaggerating, and I'm not a child. I'm a 30-year-old married woman who loves her mother and is worried sick about her.

WRITE ME MY NAME: DEAR WRITE ME: Tell your mother that Alby said a pain in Nature's signal that something is wrong. And to tell the pain and wear the warning instead of using a physician is not only foolish, it could be fatal.

DEAR ALBY: For five years now, I have been a therapist in a rehabilitation clinic. In my work, I see drug addicts, alcoholics, and all kinds of men who can't work due to problems they've brought on themselves. I'm amazed to find that most of them have loyal wives and girlfriends to back them up.

I am a hardworking man of good character with no bad habits and I'm still alone and lonely.

Alby, why would a woman leave a man with my qualifications?

Medicines, antacids, TUMS help indigestion

PHYSICIAN

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 16-year-old female with acid reflux. I'm on Tagamet, which helps a great deal. My problem is that I can't drink milk because of the calcium irritation, and I am very worried I'm not getting enough calcium in my system for my bones and teeth.

DEAR READER: Acid reflux, indigestion caused by backwash of stomach acid into the esophagus, can be helped by medicines, such as Tagamet, that decrease the production of stomach acid. The symptoms can also be relieved by antacids—or milk, which acts as an antacid.

I'm unclear what you mean by "calcium irritation." Ordinarily, calcium-containing compounds do not cause gastric irritation. In fact, the reverse is true; some commercially available antacids—calcium-containing TUMS, for instance—are quite effective as acid neutralizers. If, for some reason, you are unable to drink milk to help your reflux, consider using TUMS. One or two of these tablets, or the equivalent in the form of liquid TUMS, taken several times a day will not only reduce symptoms of reflux but will also provide the calcium you require for strong bones and teeth.

Because people with acid reflux often have a weakness of the muscular ring supporting the esophagus from the stomach.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you provide information on primary thrombocythemia?

DEAR READER: Thrombocythemia is an increase in the number of circulating blood platelets, the tiny cells that are vital to clotting.

Paradoxically, an overabundance of platelets often causes a bleeding tendency. Thus, symptoms of the condition include easy bruising, nosebleeds and intestinal bleeding. Patients may also experience weakness, headache and dizziness.

Thrombocythemia can be secondary to other diseases, such as anemia, acute infection, hemorrhage, chronic inflammation (rheumatoid arthritis, inflammatory bowel disease and sarcoidosis) and certain cancers (carcinoma, lymphoma and Hodgkin's disease). A primary form of thrombocythemia (unrelated to any other disease) produces the same symptoms. It is often seen in conjunction with other blood-cell abnormalities, such as leukemia and myelofibrosis. Treatment depends on the underlying disease. If one is present. The primary goal is to lower the platelet count. This can be accomplished with chemotherapy, such as hydroxyurea, or by removing platelets from the bloodstream.

North's jump to three hearts was just a hint, showing 10-15 in support points for the one-heart opening, and South could have passed with a dead minimum opening. But South had more than enough to bid on. Unfortunately South did not play the hand as well as he bid it, succumbing to "Snooze mania." On the opening lead, declarer put in dummy's queen of spades. Perhaps the king was with West, in which case it would be easy to make an overtrick by forcing out the king and ace of diamonds. That way the queen of diamonds in dummy could be used as a parking place for the losing club. Even when the spade queen lost is East's king, the contract was safe, provided East returned a spade. But East, who was uncooperative, led the club jack to the second trick. Declarer won, drew trumps and played a diamond. West won the king and continued with a club. So declarer's losers were a spade, two diamonds and a club. The contract will succeed if declarer looks for a guarantee. With a little foresight he should realize that a losing spade finesse can lead to disaster. So declarer should win trick one with dummy's spade ace, draw the trumps as before and then play on diamonds. The tempo is thus preserved so that South cannot be prevented from taking 10 tricks.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 21, 1958

Before moving onto any new endeavors in the year ahead, make sure the ones in which you are presently involved have nothing left to offer. I think you'll be pleasantly surprised.

VENUS (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Others will find you compatible and easy to get along with today, but you can also be serious and dedicated if situations warrant it. Your managerial skills function well at all levels. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Oh 44101-3428. Be sure to state your public sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) This is a rather unusual day and you should be able to find appropriate openings to consider several matters that are of importance to you. Each will be related.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Fight with whom you'll have dealings today will tenaciously seize you are not one who makes idle promises. Your intentions to deliver will be focused on your commitments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your financial prospects look rather promising today. It's possible you may receive gains through your own efforts or through an arrangement set up by someone else.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Taking situations at face value is not likely to be one of your final points today. In fact, you're apt to be more interested in what is behind the facade than what's in front of it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're in a good achievement cycle today. But you might not get what you go after on the first try. If you fall short of your mark, it's merely a signal to regroup and try again.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) A bright idea might flash through your mind today as to how you can constructively revitalize a relationship that is presently devoid of vitality. Try it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your possibilities for achieving significant objectives are good today. You are easily motivated, especially if there is something of a material nature you can gain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Present demands dictate you should be concerned with the immediate, but it is also wise at this time to project ahead a bit. Plan now for future action.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not suffer in silence today if there is something you feel can be changed for the better. Make the adjustments yourself, instead of waiting for others to take the initiative.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) It's no use trying to elude a difficult decision today, because they won't be resolved by ignoring them. Look problems in the eye and take appropriate measures to remedy them.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) You might have a few additional responsibilities to dispose of today, but they won't beyond your capabilities. Successful results will give a sense of pride.
