

T.B. Chairman Asks Citizens To Aid War Bond Drive

Tribute to the medical branches of the armed forces was paid today by A. B. Peterson, president of the Seminole County Tuberculosis Association, who urged support of the Sixth War Loan Drive "in order that our boys may be granted every safeguard against the ravages of war."

"On the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor, each one of us, I am sure, has resolved that 'it shall not happen again,'" he said in a statement issued for publication today. "We have resolved, too, to embark with renewed effort upon the tasks which we,

and our children, must perform to speed the day of final victory."

Whatever the task, for which we are responsible, there is an additional obligation upon us all, one that calls for no extra physical effort. It is the obligation to buy War Bonds. Our government needs the money you loan in purchasing Bonds to keep our boys supplied with the finest equipment modern science can devise.

"This equipment consists not only of instruments of warfare—guns, airplanes, tanks and ships—but also of implements of protection. When I speak of implements of protection, I am thinking particularly of our medical units. Never before have our soldiers, sailors and marines left our shores so well fortified against the hazards of disease and infection as they have our medical services, the incidence of disease in the armed forces has been drastically reduced, and mortalities among the wounded in Army hospitals are not more than three per cent, as compared with eight per cent in the last war.

"Mothers, fathers, and wives of our fighting men owe a deep debt of gratitude to the scientists, physicians, surgeons and nurses who, with the aid of the best supplies and equipment available, today, are waging a winning medical battle for the lives of our boys.

"Let us not forget that the purchase of War Bonds is an investment that will pay finan-

Patton's Third Army Puts Bridge-Heads Across Saar

Russian armored columns plunged within 40 miles of Austria past the lower end of Lake Balaton in western Hungary. The Reds sliced deeply into the confused Nazi flank behind Nagykanizsa, a rail junction 10 miles from the northern Yugoslav border.

Herlin said the Russians had established a new bridgehead west of the Danube River below Budapest.

In Italy, British and Polish troops smashed across the Lamo River southwest of Faenza and established a bridgehead. The British cleared out isolated German pockets in captured Ravenna.

"Battlefront dispatches said the Ninety-Fifth Division of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army sent troops across the Saar south of Saarlautern and into the outposts of the Siegfried Line. Other units of the same division stabbed beyond Saarlautern and expanded their original bridgehead, which now is at least 2 1/2 miles wide at its base. Special details continued mopping up operations in Saarlautern itself.

The wheeling operation all along the Third Army front south of Saarlautern continued. Associated Press Correspondent Lewis Hawkins said the doughboys made advance of up to three miles, pressing within six miles of the great industrial city of Saarbrücken and within three miles of Sarreguemines.

Tenight Patton's 1st and 3rd Army had thrust inside Germany on a solid 40-mile front extending from a point east of Luxembourg so southwest of the blackened industrial city of Saarbrücken. Those factories and rail yards are being pounded incessantly by heavy American artillery from a distance of only six miles.

An American troops plunged through Saarlautern and into the enemy's concrete defense belt beyond the city in the new focal assault of the Winter offensive, it appeared probable that the road toll now was surpassing almost anything in the long and arduous war history of western Europe.

Casualties Mounting

Drawing back just a little the cost of the great operation. Allied headquarters disclosed that the previously estimated figure of 4,000 German casualties had risen considerably. It seemed probable that American armies now bearing the brunt of the assault, might be suffering at least as heavily.

To the north the American First Army battled into the village of Bergstein at the extreme right end of the almost-deadlocked Aachen front, with German troops clinging stubbornly only to the eastern outskirts of the shattered Duren. Other First Army units beat back two tank-led Nazi counter-attacks and retained their hold on Lutzerath, between Duren and Julich.

Otherwise the First Army front, which had blazed with almost continuous action for 19 days, was described in a field dispatch as "generally quiet."

A similar lull hung over the U. S. Ninth Army's front along the Roer River north and south of Julich, though waves of American fighter-bombers lashed German fortified villages east of the Roer.

(The German High Command announcing that the American attack east of Aachen had subsided, declared "the enemy had in his vain attempts to squash our front suffered such severe losses that he was forced to regroup his forces in a major extent.")

The Germans breached dikes of the Waal Rhine River in the Arnhem-Nijmegen sector of Holland and flooded a large area northwest of Nijmegen to a depth of foot by more, effectively blocking any immediate advance of British forces in that sector.

In eastern Holland the British were raising the last few pockets of enemy resistance on the west bank of the Maas River near Venlo.

Even as the Third Army advanced elements hammered beyond Saarlautern's eastern limits, other elements fought to secure the east bank section of the city against German regulars manning Siegfried Line emplacements and "Peoples Army" forces firing from houses and street barricades.

cial dividends, but more important, it is an easy way for each of us to get behind our fighting men - to see that there is no break in their supply lines, which are life lines.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

IT IS SILLY TO ASSUME THAT WE CAN IMPRESS OTHERS BY A FALSE FRONT. UNTRUTH IS A SHABBY MASK OF PRETENSE: Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbor.—Zech. 8:16.

Japan is said to have undergone violent tremors, recently resembling an earthquake. Rumors the Marines must have landed.

We recommend for suits to the best reading of the year Washington Merry-Go-Round's "inside dope" on the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Clara Booth Luce fired a howler at the Germans in France the other day, but well be it was as nothing compared with some of the broadsides she fired during the recent campaign.

Someone left a bottle in the middle of the street the other day. A car came along and a perfectly good tire was ruined. But the person who left the bottle there would probably be defended if you accused him of being a traitor.

The chances of winning the peace after we win the war grow slimmer daily as civil strife breaks out in Greece between the communists and the established government, with signs that the same situation prevailing in other European countries, and as the "Big Three" Allies begin to take sides opposite one another.

The Senate does not seem to like the new Roosevelt appointments to the State Department. Some of them are too radical and some of them are too conservative. But may be that they are meant to deal with the leftists in foreign nations, and some with the rightists. It takes all kinds of people to make a world.

There isn't any danger, we are told by Senator Boyle, of Florida's Constitution being re-written while the boys are away, no matter how much of a hullabaloo is raised about it. In order to call a Constitutional convention, a resolution to that effect would have to be adopted by the next session of the Legislature meeting in 1945, and this resolution would have to be approved by popular vote at the general election in 1946. Then the next Legislative session which convenes in the Spring of 1947 would have to set up the necessary machinery for holding the convention and electing the delegates. So it would be some time in the middle or late 1947 before the Constitution could possibly be revised.

As if it did not already have enough to do with munitions production falling off, with manpower shortages becoming shorter with the muddled tax situation still hopelessly muddled, Congress has decided to investigate the cigarette shortage. If its probe is conducted honestly and fairly it may ultimately affect millions of manhours and millions of taxpayers' dollars have been wasted, arrive at the conclusion where most of the rest of us have arrived already, namely, that there is a cigarette shortage because too many people are smoking too many cigarettes. If every smoker in this country would give up just one cigarette a day, Congress would have to find something else to investigate and it might even launch an inquiry into gasoline black markets.

According to Dr. J.H. Therrell, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Gainesville, "The aged constitute our biggest problem. They are sending them up here in spite of the fact that the hospital is not supposed to be used by people merely because they are old, infirm or suffering from senility alone." The primary responsibility for old-people rest-homes, their children, who should care for their fathers and mothers, and take care of them, even if they are a little queer, irritable, or somewhat senile, and then upon occasions in which they have to be sent to the hospital, their lives should be comfortable and safe. There is the place for old people who have no children, and no other means of support.

Popular Notions Wrong

Simply because you've heard for years that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, or that the ostrich hides its head in the sand when it's pursued, or that snoring a red rag at a bull will make him mad, it doesn't necessarily follow that such statements are true. In fact, Albert Edward Wiggam, in an article in Your Life magazine, goes so far as to say that, from the scientific standpoint, they're untrue. "Popular notions are always wrong," is the way he puts it.

To prove his points, Dr. Wiggam goes on to say that he has seen lightning strike the Empire State Building a New York fifteen times in fifteen seconds. "Nearly every time there is an electrical storm in Washington," he adds "lightning strikes the Washington Monument."

As for the ostrich: "An ostrich does not hide its head in the sand. It runs from the hunter until it get so tired it cannot hold its head up, and it falls to the ground. The poor ostrich does not have enough strength left to dig a hole to put its head in!"

"Shaking a red rag at a bull will not make him any madder than shaking a blue, green, yellow, or any other colored rag at him. Animals have no sense of color. To them the whole world looks a dull gray, about as it looks to us at dusk."

In similar vein the writer goes on to explode more than twenty common beliefs or superstitions.

"Science, and science alone," he concludes, "has partially explained the physical world in which we live, and so far as helpfulness in our daily lives: And I hope you will discard the superstitions I have listed, and many others, and cultivate the scientific way of looking at things, a better world—physically, morally and spiritually; and the laws of Nature discovered by science are bringing us nearer day by day to that better world of beauty, health and happiness, simply because they are the laws of that high unknown purpose of the world which we call God."

Learning To Read

The government of Ecuador has found a new way to spread literacy. There is a clause in the Ecuador constitution providing that no one has a right to claim citizenship unless he can read and write, and it is now being enforced. Accordingly, a drive for literacy is being conducted by radio stations, magazines and organizations of many kinds. The biggest response is said to be in the age group from 20 to 30 years.

It is a very cooperative undertaking. Whoever has learned to read is expected to start right out and teach somebody else. In this way literacy rolls up like a snowball. Old people as well as young are getting into the game, and there seems to be a real "kick" in it. One young man, for example, goes around bragging how he has taught his 60-year-old father to read, and others are boasting about learning to write letters after 20 days' study.

This is obviously a fine enterprise to start in any country, or any state or section. It wouldn't be a bad idea here, among those who have never learned to read. There could be no finer gift to illiterates of any age than to open such a new world to them.

Two Thousand Years

Regarding the French problem, Walter Lippmann the other day told an illuminating story which has a bearing on the present war and its outcome. An American diplomat was telling General de Gaulle what he thought the French would do when they were liberated, and the general couldn't see it that way. Said the diplomat: "I know I'm right. I know France well. I have lived there 15 years."

Whereupon the French general replied calmly: "Ah, you forget that I have lived in France 2,000 years."

That probably settled the argument. How could an American argue with a race which has all that history and experience behind it, and which in broad essentials has "lived so little," it is well to remember the story when dealing with Frenchmen, especially when the time comes for France to settle her account with Nazi Germany.

The federal reserve board estimates that almost 70 per cent of non-government bank deposits in the United States in 1943 were owned by business and financial concerns and only a little more than 25 per cent by individuals.

An ordinary goat gives a quart of milk daily, and lives ten years.

Dear Mr. Kay: It's all his fault. There ought to be a law against anybody holding a convention on Monday. Especially a Florida State Chamber of Commerce convention.

I came down to the office this morning full of vim, vigor and self-confidence to turn out a solid and inspiring column, get myself bumped over my dusty typewriter and then it came to my attention that the first session of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce is on Monday, December 11th, at 10:00 a.m. in the grand ballroom of the Commodore Hotel. Right behind me is Coleman Rogers, Secretary of the Florida Ice Association. Under ordinary circumstances Coleman is a right nice guy, but when he is conventioning he is a nuisance.

I have seen so many White Flashes in the same place at the same time with nothing to do but annoy guys who contend that "life is REAL, life is EARNEST" and conscientiously try to earn an honest living.

Nature didn't build me for resistance and while I can withstand anything but temptation, I found myself out-talked, out-maneuvered and out of luck by far as all my good intentions were concerned. So here I am bang smack in the middle of the darnest convention that anybody ever inflicted upon an orderly and peaceful community. Thanks to the sympathetic understanding of a friendly room clerk I am now hiding out in one of these well known rooms that no self-respecting hotel has had since the war but smart hotel clerks keep up their sleep for just such emergencies. I bribed the maid to hang a sign on the door "Sick, Head-ache, Quiet" and so far I have not been disturbed and maybe I will be able to finish this rave and get it in the mail.

Having slipped at room 697, 698, 699, 700, 701 and 702 on the way here, I have gathered enough material for a dozen columns providing I were willing to sniff and sneer at the "Postal Rules and Regulations" but forty years of experience tells me that all that is "off the record."

All I can do is attempt to give you the highlights. I have missed around hotel lobbies for weeks but this one at the Tampa Terrace has got 'em all beat, even the best that Tallahassee can offer.

Farm Bureau in your town? As "unemployed" is gathered in Tampa this week to celebrate Florida's 100th Anniversary. Again I take off my hat to Harold Cole and the Florida State Chamber of Commerce. Under Harold's able guidance the organization has grown from a poor step-child to become Florida's dominant civic force, the hub and center of the state's progress standing leaders, from every walk of life. Such united leadership is Florida's best assurance of continued progress and prosperity. Bifocals — with one portion higher power than the remainder, are said to have been first made for Benjamin Franklin about 1760. The Yellow River in China dubbed "China's Sorrow" because of the many floods it has loosed on the rich adjacent farmlands.

A/C Ernest A. Brotherson, Jr. left this morning for Valdosta after spending a 15 day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brotherson.

Mrs. Frank D. Carpenter has arrived from Harvard, Neb. to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wathen for sometime. She was accompanied as far as Chicago, Ill. by her husband, Sgt. Carpenter, who has returned to his base at Harvard.

Lorraine Yarborough To Wed Dinty Whiting

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Yarborough of Geneva announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lorraine, to Dinty Whiting, United States Army, son of Mrs. Grant M. Webster of Chicago, Ill. and Montreal, Quebec, Canada, and L.L. Whiting of Washington, D.C. and Chicago, Ill.

The wedding will be an event of Dec 23 in Holy Cross Episcopal Church at 5:00 P.M.

Miss Yarborough attended Appalachian State Teachers' College in Boone, N.C. and Florida State College for Women. She was formerly employed by the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Washington, D.C. and has taught in the public schools of Seminole County.

Cadet Whiting attended Northwestern University, Chicago and was a foreign service student at Georgetown University. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha Social fraternity.

At present, he is attending officers' candidate school at Camp Lee, Va. and previously was stationed at Fort Riley, Kas. where he served in Cavalry.

No formal invitations are being mailed, but friends of the couple are invited to the wedding.

Christmas Program Planned By Church

The Presbyterian Church, which in the past has given many interesting Christmas programs, will present a special service at the church at 7:30 P.M. Dec 17, the Rev. E.D. Brownlee, pastor of the church, announced today.

The general chairman and director of the program is Mrs. George Touhy, who said others serving with her to make the program a memorable evening are Mrs. R.F. Moore, Miss Rebecca Stevens, Mrs. V.M. Greene, Mrs. D.C. Howard and Mrs. S.E. Andrews who will have charge of the cast and costumes; Mrs. Helen Vermy, music; D.C. Howard, lighting effects; Mrs. J.A. Harold, properties; and Mrs. John Eick, church decorations.

Also on the committee are Mrs. E.D. Brownlee, Miss Mary Wilkes, V.M. Greene and J.A. Bixtime.

Special emphasis will be placed on music as the story of the birth of Christ is unfolded in several tableaux, and there will be songs by the choir as well as solos, duets, trios, and a picked octette to of mixed voices from the high school glee club, Mrs. Touhy said.

The public is invited to attend the service.

WPB Chairman Asks For Teeth In Labor Laws

Klug Says Country Ought To Have National Service Law

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8, (AP)—Chairman J. A. Krug of the War Production Board called upon Congress yesterday for penalties against employers and employees who ignore decrees channeling labor toward key war jobs.

A present shortage of 311,000 workers will be overcome this month by voluntary methods, he told the Senate War Investigating Committee, but cautioned:

If recurring shortages are to be prevented in key industries—the War Manpower Commission must have statutory backing for its regulations preventing workers from leaving key industries and prohibiting civilian employers from hiring above fixed quotas.

In a spirited exchange with Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) Krug testified that only 59 workers (not) had been added in tire manufacturing plants since last Spring because the commission needed "more teeth."

"Why haven't they the teeth to do the job?" Ferguson demanded.

"Primarily because Congress refused to pass a national service law," he said.

If the war agencies had control over workers as they have had over the flow of materials, he said, the manpower problem would have been solved.

The immediate deficiencies, Krug said, are being solved by such means as:

1. Nationwide recruiting by organized labor.
2. Scaling down of civilian production in critical labor areas.
3. Plant-to-plant surveys, looking to the establishment of financial and other "incentives" to workers to keep them on the job.
4. Constant consultations among key war agencies.

Under Secretary of War Paterson told a news conference that Secretary Stimson's call last January for a national service act "remains the firm policy of the War Department."

A special war production report stated that new crises will develop as long as fighting continues on any front.

"The Japanese campaign may bring forth an entirely new set of musts," said the report prepared by Vice Chairman H. G. Dorschner, WPB's chief of operations.

"The Army and Navy both have their secret projects, any one of which may yield a critical item in the months to come."

The report analyzed such major shortages as: airplane engines and ammunition, trucks and tires, assault ships, communication wire, Superfortresses and A-20 "Invader" planes.

Nation Is Facing Coal Shortage In Coming Winter

The nation, according to the Solid Fuels Administration, faces a possible shortage of 10 million tons of anthracite and 16 million tons of bituminous, most of the latter being in the grade Southern Appalachian vital to such war industries as steel and metals.

Supply For Six Weeks

On October 1

Mr. Don paid tribute to the coal industry which is producing a record output despite the fact that available reserves in 12 consecutive months have been reduced by 12 per cent. This is being increased through joint industry and government efforts. He declared that conservation, in and around mines, is being practiced. Dealers, despite handicaps of lack of motorized trucks, tires and gasoline, are trying to meet demand.

Tokyo Admits Some Damage From Quake

(Continued From Page One) States had over 226,000, Britain 78,000. Tokyo claimed her air men sank 12 and damaged nine American ships in the last three days in the Philippines.

The Navy announced that about 10 Japanese twin engine bombers attacked the superfort base on Saipan yesterday and that six of them were shot down by ship and ground guns. One man was killed in the raid, one was seriously wounded and several were slightly wounded. One superfort was destroyed and two were damaged. The attacking planes dropped only a few bombs and made strafing runs across the base.

Daylight Attack

A communique issued by Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of Army Air Forces and commander in chief of the Twentieth (Superfortress) Air Force, described the first which attacked Manila as large. Japan admitted that the fleet, from Major Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's Twentieth Bomber Command, numbered 70 planes.

The Manchuria attack was made by daylight, Tokyo said 10 A. M.—and most of the bomb raiders saw their targets clearly.

Also issued a number of reports of bombs on them. Other planes used precision instruments to bomb through clouds.

Gang Rule In Greece Seen By Churchill

In Washington Secretary of State Stettinius, in stating American views on the Greek situation, went back to Churchill's speech in the House of Commons last week. He quoted Churchill as having said:

"Whether the Greek people form themselves into a monarchy or republic is for their decision. Whether they form a government of the right or left is for their decision. These are entirely matters for them."

"With this statement," Stettinius said, "I am in full agreement."

"It is also our earnest hope," he added, "that the people and authorities of Greece and our British Allies will work together in rebuilding that ravaged country."

The British Prime Minister had also said that if necessary to prevent creation of a Communist dictatorship in Greece he would put the British army into action. Stettinius was asked whether by endorsing one part he intended to apply an endorsement of the whole speech. He declined to comment.

At another point he was asked whether he condoned the use of British tanks and planes against the former Greek resistance forces which have refused to give up their arms at the order of the British supported Papandreou government. Stettinius said that his statement speaks for itself and he would not amplify.

The view of American diplomatic officials is that the Papandreou government is extremely unpopular in Greece. They do not share Britain's apprehension over a Communist dictatorship.

Indian A W O L 4 Days Seeking Sniper's Scalp

Chief Chukima Leaves 90th Division In Ger- many, Joins Tanks

WITH GENERAL PATTON'S ARMY, Dec. 8.—Carl Chukima, known as "Chief," a thirty-eight-year-old Hopi Indian from the Oraibi Reservation near Flagstaff, Ariz., has just returned from a four day hunting trip.

A sniper had wounded one of the Chief's white American friends, and Chukima, who is a private in Company B, 815th Engineers, of the 90th Division, appointed himself a one-man war party to avenge the attack.

Captain Clarence Symes, of Lubbock, Tex., the company commander, was about to list Chukima as missing in action on the unit's morning report on the day the Indian stoically resumed his place on the engineer road gang.

"He comes and goes," explained Captain Symes, "it's very difficult on occasion."

Angered by Sniper

The last time Captain Symes saw Chukima was in the German town of Butzdorf, which the 368th Infantry and the engineers were attempting to clean up. A sniper winged a man standing next to the Chief as the two were leaving a house.

"It start making me mad," explained the stone-faced Hopi, "I go house—one from one. That evening I still in town looking for sniper. Next day I stay. In afternoon I keep looking for sniper but no find. I ask boy and he say infantry have pull out and that evening I joined the tanks."

Chukima decided to fight the war for a while with the armor, and stayed two days with the 10th Armored Division, going out on duty and a guard trick.

"After three days," continued the Hopi, "I ask boys where infantry is. I told one tank going out of town I go with him. I hitch hike to where I find 90th Division M.P. He tell me where headquarters are. I come back."

Chukima pulled two white feathers from his pocket.

"I wear them in helmet," he explained, "but I nearly lose them in tank so put them in pocket. One feather is to keep me strong. Other to take care of 90th Division."

The Hopi tribe had as on all night conducting ceremonial rites over the feathers before presenting them to his warrior.

Back with his outfit, the Chief took a couple of days to track down a group of Germans, estimated to have been fifteen in number. The trail terminated in a house in a small village, where one of the residents told him that the enemy had changed clothes and disappeared.

Ran Sixty Miles in Day

Chukima has the stamina of a well-oiled machine. When he was sixteen years old he ran sixty miles one day, carrying his ceremonial mask and costume to join his tribesmen in a traditional Hopi dance to ask the gods for rain.

"I stopped once at a spring to eat my little lunch," Chukima said "but only rest short time. I arrived before sundown."

The dance, which lasted all night, was followed by rain the next day.

For relaxation during pre-war days the Indian chased horses. It's easy, according to Chukima, "just chase 'em all day over the hills, he explained in his guttural monotone. "They lay down when they get tired."

Of course, there's the element of time.

"You start early in the morning. They give out some time in the afternoon," the Hopi declared.

The 90th Division's chief likes his work, but he misses his tribe. "Would like to see friends," Chukima mumbled wishfully. "No talk my language for long time."

Before sunrise every morning "Chief" Chukima usually sows a few grains of crushed corn into the French soil as a petition to the maize goddess to look with favor on the activities of the 90th Division. It has worked like a charm, for the 90th has fought its way all across France and is still going strong at the German frontier.

Former NMB Chairman Urges Action To Avoid Increasing Labor Strife

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 8. (Special)—An immediate conference of labor, business and government representatives to adopt a co-operative national labor policy is imperative to avoid an outbreak of ruinous labor disputes, declares William M. Leiserson, former chairman of the National Mediation Board, who outlines in the January issue of The American Magazine a formula for dealing with a situation he says is "now approaching the explosive stage."

Failure of the Roosevelt administration to develop a definite labor policy has resulted in a system of handling disputes which "drifts from bad to worse" and has given the War Labor Board the split personality of mutual friend and judge in addition to that of cop in enforcing wage controls against workers and employers, states Mr. Leiserson.

This recognized authority on labor problems contends that the right of the Director of Economic Stabilization to reject a wage raise approved by the WLB "has seriously undermined confidence in the independence of the board."

"Most of our current strikes," asserts Mr. Leiserson, "are directed against confusions and delay in the government machinery for settling disputes. Sometimes they are directed against the workers' own labor leaders for failure to get action from government agencies."

"Three years after Pearl Harbor we still have no definite policy toward labor during the war, or plan for labor after the war. We have met each labor crisis with an improvisation which, while patching the immediate breach, has generated new misunderstandings of its own."

Mr. Leiserson says "both labor and industry dread what may happen as the war draws to an end" because "if strikes then get out of control it will not merely cripple industry, it will damage the labor movement itself, disgust our returning soldiers and sailors and harm every single one of us. Public opinion can be induced to bring labor and management to the point of mutual agreement on the fundamentals of a national labor policy if the President will put this squarely up to a Labor conference" as did Woodrow Wilson during World War I.

Unlike Mr. Wilson, President Roosevelt, he states, permitted a labor conference called shortly after Pearl Harbor to adjourn without establishing definite policies to guide the War Labor Board.

"It dodged or evaded the two basic issues, wages and union shop, which have bedeviled the labor situation ever since," charges Mr. Leiserson.

"The employer representatives (to such a conference) should not be hand-picked by the government, but should stand for the views of industry as a whole. The labor representatives should include, besides CIO and AFL, representatives of the Railroads Brotherhoods and other recognized independent unions.

"Such a conference, it seems to me, might well agree on some such policies as these: That works and employers, in any labor dispute, first make a serious, bona-fide effort to resolve their differences by collective bargaining and mutual agreement within a fixed time limit.

"Next, that government mediation machinery, no scattered through many agencies, be reorganized and centralized. That arbitration be recognized as a separate function, to be encouraged on a voluntary basis if mediation fails. Any top labor board that is set up should confine it-

Army Assigns Two Crews For Most Bombers

Marshall Calls Move Plan To Demoralize By Sustained Power

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, has revealed that most of America's war planes have been provided with two crews as part of the technique of demoralizing the Germans with a "flood of sustained power."

Writing in the "United States at War" edition of the "Army and Navy Journal" to be issued

Thursday, the top man of the United States Army observed: "Wars are the great tragedies of the human race and every effort should be made to avoid their prolongation by simple means."

Yet it probably has been a good thing to have the great military power of the United States fully demonstrated in the battle field, as demonstrated that the world must know for the future that the democracy can and will create a military force sufficient to overwhelm prospective aggressors of the world to come.

Recommending the reasons for American success, General Marshall said that "the 'Haw'—carefully trained replacement and all of material has been maintained that divisional losses were replaced almost overnight and all our units continued in action with full ranks, stimulated by the presence of new men in their winning the approval of their veteran brothers in arms. Applying the same principle to the air forces in the form of two crews for nearly every airplane of the staff to be kept in constant operation until they are ready for the operators."

The fact that most of the Army corps and divisions in the great breakthrough carried out by General Patton's Third Army had the precision and accuracy of whatever was a high degree of efficiency in the use of the great training units of the Army was totally demonstrated by the great training units of the Army and the Southern States Army were thus "Haw"ed.

Sgt. Jesse Howell Takes Two Germans

WITH THE FOUR ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Dec. 6. (Special)—Staff Sergeant Jesse Howell of Alamo Springs, Fla., captured two Germans and then used their machinegun until his own could be brought forward in a last action in Italy.

A machinegun section leader of the 1st Powder River Division of the 1st Army, Sgt. Howell was in the line for a week when he found about 100 yards ahead of his own troops.

He was an already prepared to be the ideal spot. He was surprised, however, to find the hole manning a machine gun and a pair of his approach had them up their hands and the sergeant advanced for them to come. Then he turned their machinegun around to fire in the other direction and escorted the prisoners to the rear.

The machinegun section members of his section and told them to use the new found gun until their own was ready.

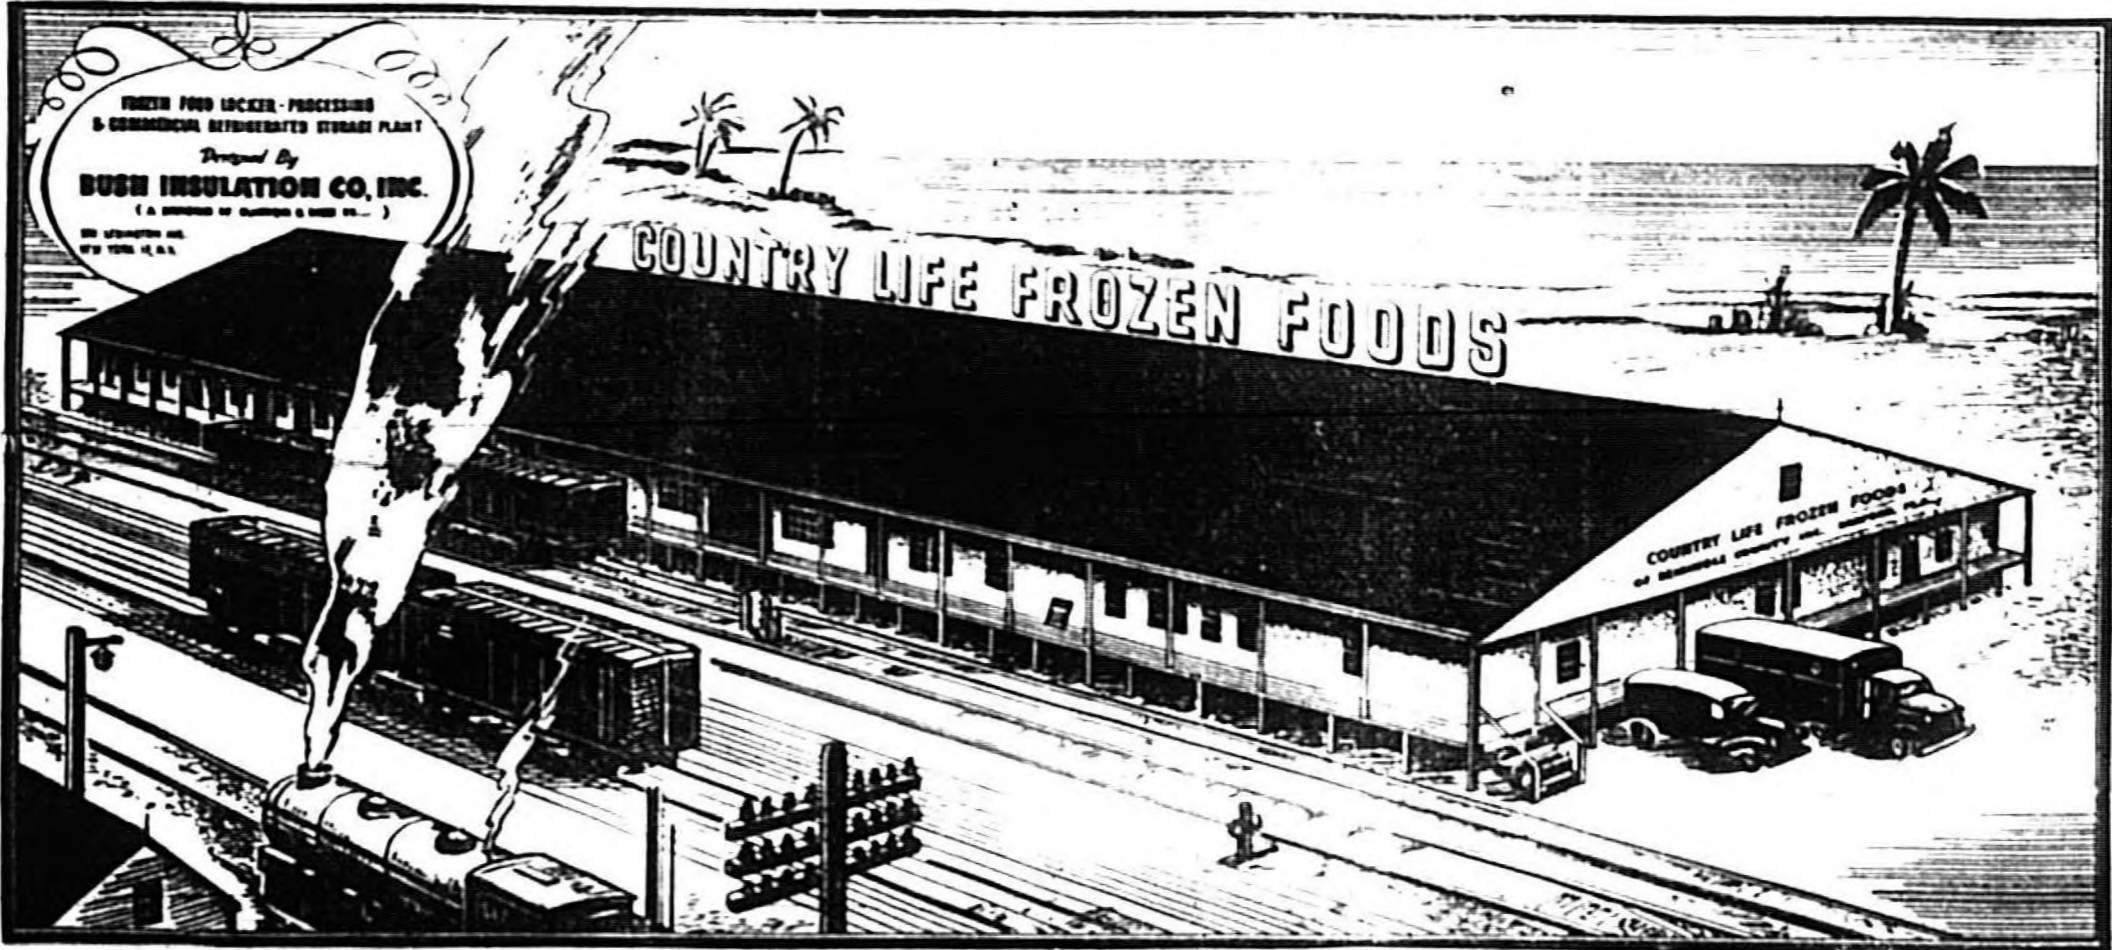

Sgt. Howell is a member of the 1st Infantry Regiment.

The average flight instructor on American aerobics increased from 100 to 150 miles in the period from 1925 to 1931, equal to a 50 per cent increase.
