

Writer Says U. S. Mainland Can Be Bombed By Axis

America's high Army authorities are convinced that Axis bombers can attack the United States mainland and Americans should understand the situation, according to Henry J. Taylor, war correspondent and radio commentator, in an article in the April issue of American Mercury magazine.

"Recently I visited vital U.S. Army Air Corps interceptor fields from Florida to New England. Previously, I had been aboard with many of the same American staff officers who now command these fields. We had been together during their training periods in England, and while they were taking our planes into action elsewhere. The settings on this side are different—no ack ack fire every night, no blazing shaft of wandering searchlights, no quick commands for fighter squadrons to take the air. But the men are the same. They know what to do in the United States what is not done any place in the world, namely, develop a shut-out against enemy attack. Their answers were specific enough. We can't do it. And the Nazis of course, know we can't. There simply is no way to stop a scattered air raid.

"And that's the central fact objective," Mr. Taylor wrote after talking to important top commanders who must stop the enemy in case of attack.

"An one who has seen Nazi bombers attack the British in the Mediterranean, over London, Gibraltar, Egypt and the Middle East," Mr. Taylor continued "I know that any frenzied shouts of 'Pearl Harbor' would be unfair to the Army and to the top officers involved. More important, it would be unfair to the American cause since it would play right into the enemy's hands.

which the public needs to know. It is impossible to mass enough interceptor planes and anti-aircraft batteries to keep off every Nazi attacker. To attempt to do that, all our fighting production would have to be retailed at home WHERE THE ENEMY WOULD LIKE TO HAVE US KEEP IT, and even then bombers would find a way to get through.

The Nazi cannot attack in force and they cannot maintain sustained raids. Hitler's Luftwaffe at this stage cannot really hurt our war effort. Yet there are several first-rate reasons why they may and probably will come. While the amount of physical damage they could do would be trifling in relation to the total set-up, they would hope to work an immense amount of moral havoc in our midst.

Nazi bombs could start a great hue and cry among us about inefficiency, lack of preparedness and vulnerability. Nazi bombs could pin down here more of our war equipment and fighting men than are actually needed. That would add up to significant military achievements by the Nazi mission. If the raid succeeded in getting our public sufficiently excited and worried, Hitler and Goering and Goebbels would consider it worth the heavy investment.

"Our air defense officers are good, their interceptors and detection apparatus are good, their anti-aircraft is good. They are fully prepared, on the alert, and entirely able to repulse any concerted attack and to make it far too expensive for the Nazis to stage large scale raids. But they can't stop them by scattered planes. It isn't possible and it isn't worth it.

"The role of the public is to avoid hysteria."

Dependency Does Not Count For Much In Britain

By BLAKE SULLIVAN
AP Features

LONDON—A man with a wife and ten children is as liable for military service in Britain as a single man.

The ministry of labor, which has shifted the nation's manpower repeatedly, calls up a family man as readily as any other unless he is in an essential industry. The war office does not even keep separate figures on the number of married men in the army but when such a man is inducted the government pays allowances according to the number of his dependents.

If a recruit is married but his wife receives $5 per week, the government pays $4.30 of this and the soldier is obliged to contribute 70 cents from his pay of $4.50 as a private.

Additional weekly allowances are made for children on this basis: First child, $1.90 second $1.70; third and subsequent, $1.50 each. If there were ten children the allowance would be $20.80.

Wives living in the London area receive an additional 70 cents a week to cover higher living expenses. Commissioned officers received family allowances direct and are expected to make their own arrangements for maintenance of their families. The allowance to a childless wife is $5.00 a week in all officer ranks. Allowances for children vary slightly according to the father's rank, but the scale is substantially this: Wife and one child, $9.80; wife and two children, $11.90, and for each additional child, $1.40.

If others are dependent upon a recruit, such as his mother and father living alone, they each receive $5 per week including the soldier's compulsory allotment of 70 cents. Unless they can trim their living expenses by doubling up, most wives find it impossible to live on service allowances, and must supplement their income by working. The government encourages this to ease the labor shortages.

Despite a slight increase in the birthrate the past year, it still is too low, in opinion of sociologists, who say there is nothing in the child allowances to encourage couples to have the babies which are necessary to keep up the population level.

CAN CARROTS

Tavares, Fla.—Intent on not allowing any food to go to waste and also aware of their high food value, a group of Lake County women recently gathered carrots from acreage owned by Lee A. Ransbottom after the main crop had been harvested and canned them in the home demonstration kitchen here. Mr. Ransbottom gave them permission to gather carrots that had been left in the field, and they canned 750 containers of them. Mrs. Lucie K. Miller, Lake home agent, reported.

10,000 GARDENS

Jacksonville, Fla.—More than 10,000 victory gardens were planted in Duval County in March, according to County Agent A. N. Lawton.

CITY COURT

Judge James G. Sharon, replacing Frank L. Miller, who recently resigned from the bench, presided at City Court Monday afternoon, the session starting at 4:00 P.M. instead of 8:00 P.M. as formerly.

N.W. Smith of Jacksonville, found guilty of driving while drunk, was given a fine of $100 or 60 days, and had his driver's license revoked. The case of Clarence W. Bellamy, accused of driving while drunk was continued. Bond of $25 was exacted for Willie W. Kinard, for being drunk and disorderly. Leroy Hickson, disorderly conduct, case dismissed. For drunkenness bond of $11 was exacted from J.B. Benedict, Ruth Shaw and J.D. Taylor. Leona C. Filliak, a W.A. AC who was absent without leave was transferred to Shore Patrol.

Negro cases included Hector driving who was given $25 and costs or 60 days; Floyd Morgan, larceny, dismissed; J.F. Jones, operating a gambling device, $51 bond exacted; Rosa Lee Collins, drunk and disorderly, $10 and costs or 30 days; Marilee Williams, drunkenness, $11 bond exacted; Charles Junior Handell, disorderly conduct, $11 bond exacted; Carolyn Wynn, disorderly conduct, $11 bond exacted.

FOOD CANNED

Clearwater, Fla.—A total of 2,144 quarts of foodstuffs was canned in the St. Petersburg canning kitchen during March, according to Miss Tillie Rowel, Pinellas County home agent.

Knotted cords, called "quipus" were the official ledger by means of which records were kept among the ancient Incas.

THEY'RE FIRING Telephone Wire at a ZERO!

These fighters with their anti-aircraft guns use up enough copper every minute to make several miles of telephone wire.

That's the right use for copper now—and it's the reason why your telephone company can't expand facilities to fully take care of the rapidly increasing demand for long distance service.

Right now lines are loaded as never before with war calls which must have right-of-way.

More than ever, we need your help in saving the wires that for our children and us do it by not making any but the longest long distance calls (and only as brief as possible) when you can.

Also bear in mind that when the long distance operator says "Thank you" in an hour or two delay of the line, it means the lines are overcrowded with urgent war business. When this happens, to avoid further crowding, it would help a lot if you recalled your call and tried again when the lines are less busy.

Toward Socialism

Indicating a trend toward a socialistic form of government in America faculty members of 135 Methodist colleges recently responded to a survey conducted by the Board of Education of the Methodist church...

The majority of faculty members expressed the feeling that state socialism and government control would be the most vital phase of American economic change at the war's end...

Many other important plans were discussed by members of the faculties. The following statements express the unanimous opinions of the professors...

1. The United States must maintain a large standing army and navy until an international police system is devised...

2. Falsifying in the United States Senate is an evil that must be abolished, in an effort to further the aims of a good democracy...

3. The need for church related colleges will be increased at the end of the war. These colleges should enlarge their program to give the student a wider knowledge of how to apply democracy to race and class...

4. Education in Christian institutions should be revised to include military, social and economic courses in preparing the student to deal with postwar problems...

5. Postwar planning must be based on the application of Christian principles and brotherhood. The structure must be set up to aid the poor as well as the rich, the lowly as well as the high...

Women's Land Army Leader Feels At Home On A Farm

By MARGARET KERNOLLE, Staff Features Writer

WASHINGTON—The Women's Land Army leader, Florence Hall, "feels like a farmer." She wasn't born on a farm, but her village family of Port Austin, Mich., owned a farm and spent a lot of time there...

Florence Hall doesn't mind admitting she's a hombody. Flitting up her capital apartment (she has worked here 21 years) is her hobby (the New York homemaker's bulletin features her living room as a covered photograph of early American antiques of cherry walnut or mahogany are her favorites...

Her clothes always are smart, but she insists farmers' wives are as smartly dressed as city women these days. Size 14, she wears a uniform herself but buttons up the two-toned blue uniforms designed by Charles J. Scott of the Bureau of Home Economics for Women's Land Army of 40,000. Her hair is wavy and blond, her eyes bright blue, she wears more lipstick than rouge and won't tell her age.

She never dived a tractor because there weren't any this summer because she has no spot of her own big enough to plant anything.

The women's Land Army will have two uniforms. Each girl will buy her own. Nobody yet knows how much they'll cost, but the leader says a girl should have two. The uniform includes light navy overalls (with straps that make the trousers fit ankles closely), a matching jacket and skirt, an almost-Flanora blue shirt and a smartly colored pair of the two blues.

Miss Hall was graduated from Michigan Agricultural College, specialized in nutrition at Columbia University, New York. She's been a government girl since the last war, when she was home demonstration agent for Allegheny county, Pennsylvania. She came to Washington in 1922 as assistant to Florence Ward, of the Agricultural Extension Service.

She spent six years persuading people to drink more milk, which she hopes will keep them healthy now that there isn't so much. She's traveled 40 states in farm or dairy work.

The Women's Land Army leader will have neither rank nor title, but she will have two assistants. She says there will be no more than April 25.

A MOTHER'S DAY MESSAGE

"When Jesus therefore saw His mother, and the disciple standing by whom He loved, He saith unto His mother, Woman, behold thy son! Then He saith to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour the disciple took her unto his own home." St. John 19:26-27.

Mother's Day in America is a comparatively recent institution. It should not be, however, for its origin is very ancient and the circumstances of its beginning are most sacred. Some of us believe that tributes to mothers began with Christ's consideration of Mary as He looked down upon her from Calvary. As we seek a faith "to live by" in these strenuous times it is worth remembering also that prior to Good Friday, it had been commanded: "honour thy father and thy mother." Christ reinforced this commandment and renewed its authority by His words from the Cross.

We see in the Holy Mother a pattern and example for all mothers. When Mary realized that she was to bring a new life into the world, and that this life was also to be the Light of mankind, she rejoiced so exceedingly her words have been preserved for us to this day: "My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour. For He hath regarded the lowliness of his hand-maiden. For behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed. For He that is mighty hath magnified me, and holy is His Name."

Every mother goes to Bethlehem in symbolical travail as did the Holy Mother. Every mother lives in Nazareth and observes with quiet pride as her son increases in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man. And where is the mother today, or any day, who does not treasure every toy and every tiny shoe used by her little ones, and who like Mary, does not keep all of her children's "sayings" in her heart? Yes, there are hours of waiting at Calvary, too. Note that Mary stood. She did not faint or sit or kneel or fall. She stood. While every dream vanished, while the sky grew ever darker, Mary stood, as all true mothers must. Though she had hoped He would become a King, she bowed in acquiescence to a Higher Will.

The will of God for mothers, and children too, is expressed in one word, Love. We may be very sure of God's one never-failing and everlasting purpose for us all, even though His love is so vast it passes man's understanding. Somewhere, and some time, our Christian faith insists, we shall find the "many mansions" and we shall see all tears dried.

A well-intentioned but ignorant critic of Nazareth once asked him, "Just what is your theory of relationship in a world? We feel as helpless as he did to express all our love for mothers even though we should write many pages. St. John realized his inadequacy when he closed his Gospel with this comment: "And there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written." The thought of mother if she be the thoughts of God, and who can express all our love to God?

Thomas W. Fessenden comes to our assistance with a tribute called "My Madonna":

I. You painted no Madonnas On shapeless walls in Rome; But with a lovelier divine, You lived one in your home.

II. You wrote no lofty poems But with a nobler vision, You lived one in your heart.

III. You carved no shapeless marble To some high soul-design;

One of the cardinal teachings of the Church is the sanctity of family life, and every individual in the family. Marriage is more than a legal and physical union, says the Church, it is also spiritual union. Christian marriage is intended to last forever. All personalities in sacred and especially are we obligated when children are added to our home. We are solemnly bound to foster and inspire in every child's heart a deep and abiding reverence for the presence of God. Mother's knee is the first university—and perhaps the best university—any of us ever attend. Napoleon once observed: "Let France have good mothers, and she will have good sons."

We are not guilty of over-statement if we say that the strength of this nation depends upon the character of its homes. The home is a small model or seed-bed of all society. Those who learn from this training-ground the principles of citizenship and the spirit of integrity go forth to serve and lead the nation. Too much cannot be said in behalf of the good that fathers and mothers can do in promoting the traditional virtues which in every age have produced victory for men and women. Love, honor, purity, loyalty and similar virtues are not only the best policy, they are also the rock-like cornerstones upon which all civilization is based.

War-time, with its anxiety and restrictions, shows new burdens of family morale on mothers. Our restrictions and duties for working themselves, and for others, thinking. However, after mothers with an ingenuousness have known what can be used to fashion home-centered recreation and to teach by example some of the holy principles of God and country.

We do not wish to stress our own part beyond its measure, but we do believe that in Christ's words from Calvary we have the deeper significance of any day. It is not for us to know how, but we do know that we have a duty to perform. We have been reminded of a woman being asked how she kept her home during the war. She replied: "I kept it by remembering that I was a mother." The Christian home, then, is not only a place of refuge, but a place of strength. It is a place where we should remember that we are all children of God, and that we should love one another as we love ourselves. We should remember that we are all children of God, and that we should love one another as we love ourselves. We should remember that we are all children of God, and that we should love one another as we love ourselves.

If my people which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. II Chron. 7:14

SANFORD BUICK COMPANY

Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time. I Peter 5:6

Franco Puts Out Feelers Of Peace From Spain Saying Neither Side Can Win

(By Associated Press) In Europe, the Axis was reported as hurrying desperately to build fortifications against invasion working in numerous spots with doubt as to where the next blow will fall. Martial law was declared in the Netherlands in an attempt to prevent any revolt or any assistance to the Allies if invasion comes in that direction.

General Franco in Spain, saying the war is now in a deadlock where neither side can win, put out another peace feeler. He told his own people that the Russian peace campaign "involved the heaviest suffering and heaviest burden" ever faced by the German soldiers.

Air raids continued to be made on Italian ports, with Palermo on Sicily blasted by 400 planes and Genoa reported under heavy attack.

"Germany's dream of world domination is beginning to crumble," Giraud said. "With the help of the workers of the United States and should to shoulder with the British and Americans we can no longer doubt the turn that the war will take."

Mrs. Marguerite Morris, principal of Clewiston High School, director of the Florida State Public Schools, and chairman of the Florida Education Committee, said that the chairmen of the Education Committee of the United States...

Only Insignificant Few Of Original 200,000 Have Any Chance To Get Away

Allied headquarters announced today the unconditional surrender of 25,000 Axis troops and the collapse of resistance in the northern pocket of Tunisia and clamped down a sea and air blockade on Cape Bon where the plight of the remaining estimated 80,000 enemy troops was described as "desperate."

Innumerable small boats bearing panic-stricken Nazis attempting to escape the Allied steamroller were reported blasted to the bottom and Allied officers said only an insignificant few of the original Tunisian Axis force of 200,000 had a chance to get away.

German generals were reported to have deserted their men or attempted to flee without thought of their followers as the Germans at home became frantic over the impending second phase of the invasion of the continent.

One American tank officer fighting near Cap Bon said he believes it will be only a matter of hours before the rest of the troops have to give up.

The War Department revealed that 700 American and British prisoners of the Axis at Tunis were aboard a vessel bombed by the Allies during the last drive on the island.
