Soviet Takes Up Baseball, Plans National League

Four Moscow Teams Begin Training; Provinces Organize

MOSCOW, Mar. 6.—With baseball rapidly gaining headway in the Soviet Union, the first steps are being taken toward organization of a Soviet national league. Four of the eight Moscow teams which will compete this season already have begun indoor "spring training," since snow will prevent them from lumbering up outdoors for a month or six weeks. Nine provincial cities have organized teams which will be included in the prospective league.

Nikolai Mantsev, new chairman of the Supreme Physical Culture Council, who is enthusiastic about the great American pastime, has succeeded in having a "baseball department" established in his council.

Plans are afoot for introduction of the game in the Red Army. The rapid spread of baseball throughout the country is retarded only by the death of American-made equipment and the difficulty which the Soviets have experienced in their efforts to produce baseballs in the American model.

The Supreme Council now is planning to buy at least a gross or so of baseballs in the United States and may import an American baseball machine. The Soviet sports equipment factories are turning out mitts, bats, masks, bases and the like on a small scale and are preparing to expand operations.

A stir was caused in Soviet baseball circles when Eugene Peterson, American sports writer on "The Moscow Daily News," added to the meager equipment supply by the discovery of four bats, ten fielders' gloves, two catchers' mitts, five masks and two chest protectors, stored in the Moscow institute. This equipment, which was in good condition, had been left behind by American Y. M. C. A. representatives following their sojourn here in the early '20s.

Last summer William C. Bullitt, American ambassador, presented equipment for two teams to Moscow's Park of Culture and Rest.

In the inter-city games played last summer American workers here outnumbered the Russians on the teams. The Russian players are expected to be in the majority.

Finnish-Americans who migrated to the province of Karelia northeast of Leningrad, following the Revolution, have made baseball especially popular in that region.

Japan Frowns On Mixed Marriages Of Its Diplomats

Pacts Said To Cause Suspicion To Fall On Military Men

By GLENN BASS
TOKYO, Mar. 6.—(AP)—Marriages of Japanese diplomats to women of other races has been sternly discouraged by the government.

Kiiri Hirota, foreign minister, expressed the official doctrine recently in replying to a questioner in the House of Representatives.

"The foreign office will not in principle interfere in marriages contracted between our diplomats and foreign women, but we hold such alliances to be undesirable. They may cause suspicion to fall on officials whose duty it is to deal with state secrets."

Such marriages became a matter of public discussion recently because of the romance of Toshiro Katsube, a foreign service junior, and Miss Lillian Greene, daughter of a Scottish clergyman, whom Katsube met while attached to the London embassy.

When news reached Tokyo of the intended marriage, opposition was aroused both in the foreign office and in Katsube's family.

The harassed diplomat hurried home, his bride-to-be following. In the presence of his mother and of the stern Hirota, there were months of indecision, with the newspapers following each movement of the unhappy couple, until at last both Mother Katsube and Hirota relented.

There were weddings by both Christian and Shinto rites and the couple were glad to escape from Tokyo and its newspapers to the less inquisitive atmosphere of Bogota, where Katsube was sent. Such assignment, it should be added, was no indication of favor.

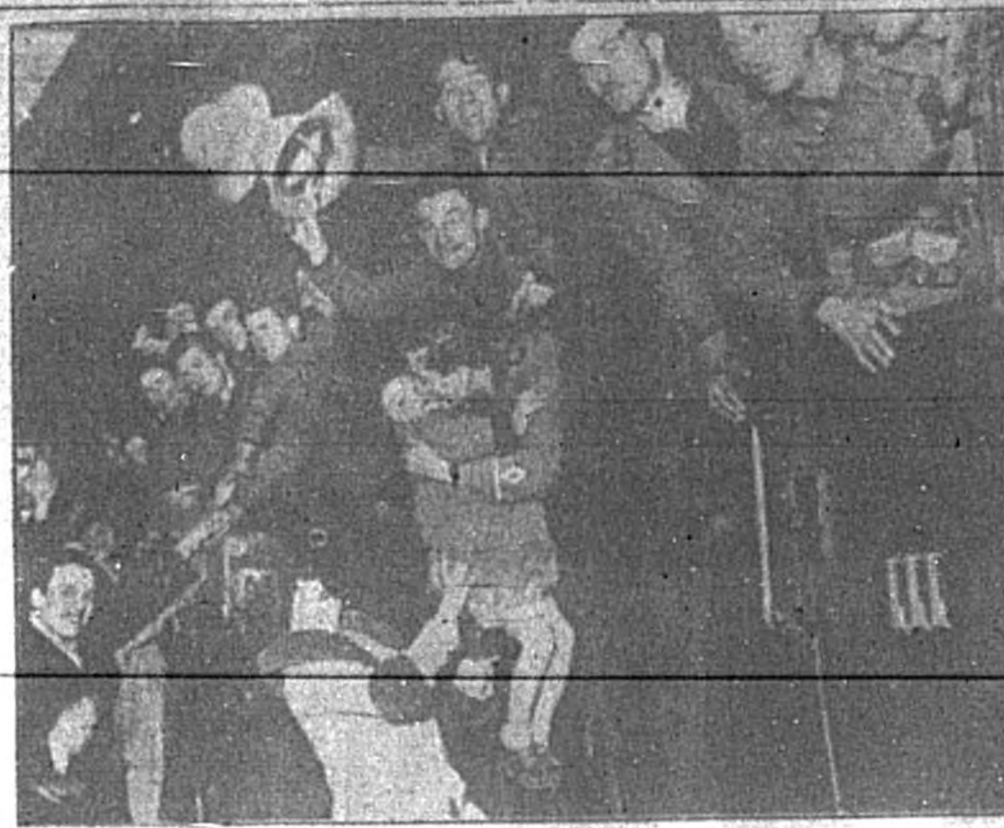

This opposition to mixed foreign service marriages has been pronounced in recent years.

Just now there are several diplomats with American wives who have risen to places just below ambassadorial rank, and there is speculation as to whether they will attain the highest prize of their service.

Strong Tone In U.S. Government Issues Brightens Market

NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—(AP)—A strong tone in U. S. government issues featured an otherwise dull bond market yesterday.

Popularity of federal obligations, both as a trading and investment medium, advanced another step upon publication of the Treasury's quarterly financing plans which involved exchanging operations in the called 4 1/4 Liberty and refunding of Treasury notes at interest rates unprecedented for comparable securities.

In the outside market, the volume of trading expanded as banks and traders switched from one issue to another in quest of small profits or gains in yield. This was particularly so in the Treasury 2 1/8 percent notes of June, 1933 which were switched into the 2 1/2s due Mar. 15 as a medium for acquiring the new 2 5/8 percent notes. On the listed market advances in all types of government securities ranged from minor fractions to nearly 3/4 of a point.

Domestic corporate loans remained in a dull and hesitant tone with small advances, notwithstanding advances. American Smelting lost 1-8 point at 105 3/8. National Dairy 5 1/4s were 1-4 higher at 104 3/4, and Texas Corporation 5s were 1-4 lower at 104.

A number of weak spots were uncovered in the foreign section, believed due to weakness in the British pound sterling. Transfers aggregated $18,296,000 in value, compared with $14,187,000.

Tragedy Averted As 120 Strikers Return To Plant

EL PASO, Tex., Mar. 6.—(AP)—Community leaders were relieved yesterday when 120 striking employees of the El Paso Electric Company agreed to return to work after 12 hours of complete electrical paralysis in El Paso & Juarez, Mexico.

Residents of the two cities had a foretaste of that tragedy, however, when hospitals were deprived of current and light in their operating rooms, in children's wards, and in laboratories. Not an X-ray machine could be used. Sterilizing equipment was put out of business. Children, frightened, cried in the darkness until nurses brought them small flash lights.

For more than 12 hours, not a street car was running, there was no power for factories, and no electric light for homes. Lamps, candles and improvised lights made from vaseline and kerosene wicks, were used in many households.

The strike not only menaced the city but threatened the water supply and endangered a district fire hazard. County Judge Joseph McGill and Mayor E. E. Sherman, the two officials chiefly responsible for the compromise, described the threat to life and safety that was created by the strike.

McGill said the three patients in the Hotel Ueno, a Catholic hospital, living in squalor beds, faced death if power to operate the equipment was not restored at once.

1 Dead In Brutal Attack As Liquor Truck Is Hijacked

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Mar. 6.—(AP)—Reported hijacking of a liquor truck in which one man was killed and his companion handcuffed to a tree during a ransom was under investigation by city and county police here yesterday.

The dead man was listed by his companion as Joe Martin, 24, of Washington. The companion said he was Carl Stegmann, 28, also of Washington.

George J. D. Baldwin quoted Stegmann as saying he and Martin had stopped on the road Tuesday night to check the tires of the truck, carrying a cargo of whiskey, when four white men appeared. Stegmann, the companion said, told him Martin realized the situation and started the truck, when one of the strangers opened fire.

Two of them then seized Stegmann and handcuffed him to a tree, took the truck and started north. The other two, Baldwin said he was told, placed Martin's body in their automobile and headed toward Brunswick.

A residence of the rural area six miles north of here, where the hijacking took place, heard Stegmann's screams, and sought to rescue him. The resident notified police, L. O. Gledits, county police chief, went to the tree and

Labor Dissatisfied With Decision On NRA Labor Clause

Green Says Workers Cannot Accept Judge's Ruling

WASHINGTON, Mar. 6.—Cases involving disputes over the interpretation of Section 7-A of the Recovery Act will continue to be submitted to the National Labor Relations Board despite the Weirton decision, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said last night. "Labor cannot accept the decision of Federal Judge Nields," he added. "The decision is very disappointing and is evidently based upon either a misunderstanding or a misinterpretation of the facts. There are grave social economic and industrial implications involved in this important decision."

"Public opinion will insist and demand that labor must be free to organize and utilize its economic strength in the promotion of its social, economic and industrial welfare. If the decision of Judge Nields means that corporation power may be extended so far as to establish complete domination and control over the economic lives of the workers through the establishment of the company union—labor will be reduced to a basis of industrial servitude, subject to the will, control and exploitation of employers' organizations and powerful corporations."

Senate Democratic Leader Joe T. Robinson supported Green's contention and said Congress has the power to "prevent obstruction and interference with commerce and to employ all means appropriate to that end."

"Sentiment in Congress," Robinson said, "overwhelmingly supports Section 7-A which has designed to secure to laborers the right of collective bargaining without restraint, interference or coercion on the part of employers."

Other comment: Sen. Gerald P. Nye, co-author of a resolution to investigate NRA—"Another New Deal problem for the supreme court. Double reason for the most deliberate consideration of any NRA renewal program to the end that labor can share fairly in the results of governmental efforts to accomplish business recovery."

Sen. James Coreson (R. Mich.)—"The government, through its three branches, is making for more public confusion than I think ever existed in the country since the war."

Sen. Royal S. Copeland (D. N. Y.)—"I'm satisfied there has got to be some very radical changes in NRA and I doubt if Congress will be in a mood to extend its operations until some of these things are straightened out."

Hopkins Moves To Force States To Help With Relief

FERA Funds Held Up In 3 States Until Share Is Matched

WASHINGTON, Mar. 6.—The Federal Emergency Relief Administration last night resorted to drastic means— withholding government aid temporarily from 750,000 persons— to enforce its demand that individual states pay their share of unemployment costs. Administrator Hopkins is holding up March allotments from Minnesota, Washington and Idaho, insisting their legislatures appropriate funds to help their own needy. The three states have combined relief rolls of almost 750,000.

Hopkins made only partial grants to Ohio, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Missouri, Kansas and South Dakota, holding back money for the last half of the month unless they raise funds locally to augment federal contributions.

"I must insist," Hopkins notified Governor Berry, "that South Dakota make available state funds to an amount that may be reduced as its fair share of relief costs. Federal aid must be conditioned upon state co-operation in accordance with its ability." Ultimatums of the same tenor were sent other executives.

Hopkins' goal, it was learned, is to have states increase their contributions this year by $200,000,000. They supplied $248,247,773 during the 21 months FERA has been in operation, compared to $258,911,165 raised by communities and $1,187,690,362 spent by the federal government.

Physician Describes Every Detail Of Rare Operation

Actions Of Next Few Days Will Reveal If Child Can Develop Normally In Future

The Associated Press was reported in the operating room of Dr. J. H. McHenry, Jr., at the hospital of the medical profession of the New York University of Medicine, the attending physician to the patient, who is a child, a complete and successful operation of the abdominal cavity.

LAGO GARDINER, M. D., ALL RIVER, Mass., Mar. 6.—The "upside down" stomach of a child, which was removed by Dr. J. H. McHenry, Jr., and replaced in its normal position in the abdominal cavity, resulting in a precise language, an operation for the correction of her congenital diaphragmatic hernia was completed.

The operation, which was begun at 10:30 Monday morning, and was completed at approximately 12:45 consisted in the first of an opening into the chest on the left side, the ribs were cut and removed, and this opening it was seen the chest space on the left contained not only the lung, but also the small intestines, the large intestines including appendix except for a distance of the so-called descent of the large intestine, the spleen was also in the chest.

Because of the presence of these organs in the chest the lung was shriveled and cold and the heart was shifted to a position from the left over to the right side.

The second phase of the operation consisted in the reduction of the hernia. This meant, first, the space through which the organs had entered the chest from the abdomen there were cut.

Next, the other adhesions of the small and large intestines, the stomach and the heart covering were removed.

Dr. McHenry, Dr. Philemon E. McHenry, was now in a position to place the displaced organs in the abdominal cavity.

The third step of the operation was clearing the opening in the diaphragm of all the fat, the opening was cleared by sticking the fingers together along its entire length.

The opening extended half the thickness of the body wall from the center to the wall on the left side. The opening was five inches in length and measured three inches wide.

The nerve which controls the diaphragm on the left half of the diaphragm was paralyzed by the injection of alcohol. This will limit the movement of the diaphragm and facilitate healing. This paralysis is not permanent. Its effect may last for several weeks.

The operation of necessary the digestive organs and the child was in constant fear of intestinal obstruction, what is more serious of stricture of the bowel. In addition, the child was continuously suffering from embarrassment of respiration and of circulation and of digestion.

The operation, space has been made available in the left side of the chest and normal position of the left lung. The child has been freed of the burden of the hernia and is in a position to take its proper place. It should be possible for the various organs of the gastro-intestinal tract to re-establish themselves in normal relationship.

There was some question in the mind of the physician as to whether the abdominal space was large enough to contain all of the organs. The finding a congenital type diaphragmatic hernia, the diaphragm has been out of normal place for years. In addition, the abdominal space has been shrunk to such an extent that the return of the organs was a problem.

The child was taken to the operating room. The operation was completed at 12:45. The child is now in the hospital and is recovering from the operation.

Robinson Rebukes Long For Attack On Hugh Johnson

Robinson rebuked Long for his attack on Hugh Johnson, who is a member of Long's body guard.

Robinson was unimpressed. His frequent presence in the distinguished visitors' gallery has got on the nerves of some senators.

Persons who have encountered the Long guardmen describe it as a three-man detail, the Louisiana state policeman and a member of the State Bureau of Investigation, "George," the principal guard.

Robinson carried a sawed-off, double-barreled 20-gauge shotgun. This weapon is stowed in a paper bag such as is used to envelope hats retained from the cleaners. The paper is twisted fairly tightly around the shotgun and, on occasion, "George" will sit with that weapon dangled in his lap, his fingers around the pistol type grip and one finger near a hole punched in the paper to give quick access to the trigger, in emergency.

Jarney said no one had given him specific orders to search for Long.

Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, called Long a liar, but in the soft words of parliamentary procedure.

Robinson rebuked Long for "egotism, ignorance and arrogance" seldom equalled.

"I'm utterly unwilling to take your word for that of anything else," was Bailey's comment when Long invited the Senate to take his word for the fact that millions are starving in the United States.

"Unnecessary insult," shouted Long.

Senator Dietrich, Democrat, Illinois, tried to make a point of order against Long but it did not prevail.

Long derided Johnson as the "hired man" of Bernard M. Baruch and of the latter said he was a member of the Long family.

Baruch and Johnson came down here and established a headquarters and Johnson was in the office before the NRA bill passed through Congress. Baruch knows the government, before Mr. Baruch put Johnson in there, said.

"Here, boy! This is your part of the government."

Long said Baruch had been a party to a plan to settle the German reparations problem by selling $5,000,000,000 of German bonds in America, charged that by the advice of Baruch, Johnson and his associates, the New Deal had become the old Deal.

Robinson spoke after Long had played the Administration and President Roosevelt in reply to Johnson's blistering remarks Monday night. The general linked Long and Father Coughlin as "good pipers" whistling the music of demagoguery for the declension of $1,000,000,000,000 Americans.

Warning Robinson that unless conditions improved Arkansas would send another to the Senate next year, Long turned to Roosevelt.

Grimacing emphasis to the scoffing accents of his voice, Long swept the Senate with a gesture, leaned far across his desk and slowly said:

"Franklin D-Ram Roosevelt!"

The Senate after the words, Long said the New Deal had broken faith with him; that Postmaster General Farley had asked permission to keep him in trouble with the Senate investigation of Louisiana politics "so we can handle him when the time comes."

HOLMES WILL BE ENTOMBED AT ARLINGTON

He read his beloved woman and wrote the epitaph that were said to have made the supreme court reports literature.

Even in the prime of his life, he apparently had little personal need or desire for the companionship of other men. While traditional supreme court isolation, of necessity, kept him away from lawyers and men in politics, he remained aloof even from his colleagues of the bench.

Justice Brandeis, who often saw eye to eye with him in "human" interpretation of the law, could be called a close associate.

At his summer home at Haverhill, Mass., where he worked hard on court cases during vacation periods, he made frequent trips to the station to visit an old crowd, the station master.

With him he discussed affairs of state as well as local cases.

Even at 80 it seemed he never would grow old. At that age the man, who had conversed with Emerson and was three times wounded in the Civil War, appeared to be more vitally youthful than many men 50 years his junior.

The son of the author of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," he was considered the perfect symbol of supreme court dignity and learning.

Typhoon Hazards On Pacific Air Route Reduced

That, he said, it would not be necessary to inquire into their administration.

In another quarter, it was asserted that Administration plans for extending NRA control over shipping about 85 percent of the existing tonnage, including virtually all those not primarily concerned with interstate commerce.

This was interpreted in Senate quarters as meaning many of the retail code and codes dealing with the service industries. Thus, naturally the codes for the big basic industries would be retained, it was said.

Almost simultaneous with these disclosures, Clay Williams, chairman of the board of NRA, accompanied with President Roosevelt for his so that they can be circumvented, in based primarily upon reports from ships at sea. While they are the counterpart of the storm which is termed "a hurricane" in this country, they usually have a narrow diameter.
