

THE BOSS OF BROKEN SPUR

By Nick Summer

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

THERE was a sudden turning of heads in the direction of the bathing doors. The girl Margie, with a joyful cry, "Rusty!" darted through the crowd to throw her arms around a tall, red-haired man and pull his head down to hers. A lot of other heads turned the same way, most of them wearing expressions of sympathy, if not envy, good-humor. But when Margie's eyes happened to light on Calder, he was startled. The gambler's features were too well trained to betray emotion, but he couldn't control the draining away of color, made all the more conspicuous by the scar that stood out in ugly relief against his suddenly white cheeks.

So she's none of your business, Kerry thought, with a flash of sympathy. But you sure wish she was, don't you? It must be tough for a man to have his face marked up so he'd be no woman's word look at him, except for the sake of what was in his pockets.

Margie and the redhead were making their way back through the room, hailed by everyone they passed, with friendliness, and something else that mildly puzzled Kerry—a sort of anticipation of excitement.

They paused by Calder's table, and the gambler introduced the redhead to Kerry as Rusty Baines.

An ordinary-looking cowpoke, in his late twenties, seemingly long and lanky in rather shabby, well-dusted clothes, with a lean brown face crinkled around friendly grey eyes, and a slow, good-humored smile that kindled an instant liking in Kerry.

Fiddle-footed Calder had called him. Kerry had seen a lot of his kind drift on and off Broken Spur—good hands, good company, apt to have a way with horses and a gift for singing or yarn-spinning, but incapable of staying put. They'd do their own man's work, draw their time, blow it all at the nearest saloon or dance-hall, and be on their way, empty-pocketed and cheerful, looking for a new stage. In fact, Kerry reflected with a very inward sneer, there were for the grace of God and Nick Mallory, goes a fellow named Kerry Rioridan.

"Feeling lucky tonight, Rusty?" Calder asked.

Rusty grinned. "Well Margie here to bring me luck—how can I lose?" He looked at Calder to the table with a boot-heel and set down.

Flint growled, "Oh, no! Some-thing told me I shoulda stayed home tonight!"

"Shut 'em, Flint!" Wharton growled. "Maybe a new hand in the game'll change my luck."

"Folks 'round here has the funniest notions 'bout me," Rusty confided to Kerry. "Anybody knows me'll tell you I'm a peaceable kind of feller—friendly as a hound pup—but to hear 'em talk, you'd think I was pure hell on wheels! Think I just went round lookin' for trouble," he added in a mildly aggrieved tone.

"You don't have to look, honey," Margie chuckled. "You just attract trouble, the way a lightning-rod attracts lightning. Things can be just as quiet and peaceful as a Sunday-school house on a week-day, and then this bean-pole just shows that red head of his, and trouble naturally starts happening all around him!"

Now luck seemed to have shifted Kerry's way. The handful of chips in front of him grew steadily, Wharton's luck wasn't improving, and neither was his temper. He was drinking steadily as he played, and every time he slapped down money for a new stack of chips, his red face grew darker and his expression uglier.

Calder was dealing. "Draw," he announced, "deuce, wild," and dealt out five face-down cards apiece. Kerry picked up his hand, ace, king, ten of spades, and a worthless heart and club.

He glanced around the table. Wharton's eyes were gleaming as he shoved ten dollars' worth of chips to the center of the table.

Flint, with a "Too rich for my blood," threw his hand in. Rusty and Jennings stayed.

"I'll ride along," Kerry decided recklessly. It was a million-to-one shot, but sometimes a man had to crowd his luck.

Calder stayed. He dealt Wharton two cards, and the man tried to keep his face straight, but satisfaction fairly oozed out of him. Rusty took one; Jennings took two, and threw his hand down with a curse. Kerry called for two, and controlled his expression with a violent effort as he picked up first the Jack of spades, and then the Queen.

"That washes me up," Calder said calmly. "It's up to you, Wharton."

"Out you twenty more to see these," Wharton's thick voice sizzled.

"And ten more," Rusty put in impulsively.

Kerry drewled, "I'll raise you ten."

"See you, an' raise you ten more," Wharton's stubby fingers were almost shaking as he counted out the chips.

"That's enough for me," Rusty decided. "I'm callin'."

Kerry shoved in his ten, and Wharton triumphantly laid down three aces and a deuce. "Awright, he's see you beat that."

Rusty shrugged philosophically.

"You must live right, Wharton. An' me with a full house."

"Sorry, Wharton," Slowly, Kerry spread his hand.

Jennings' eyes bugged. "A royal flush!"

"I never seen one of them things but once," Rusty remarked dreamily. "That was when a feller was showin' us how you could stack the cards."

Kerry reached for his pot. "Just a minute!" Wharton's voice leaped out. "I got a hunch maybe this makes twice Rusty's been shown how you can stack the cards."

"Now looks here, Wharton!" Rusty protested. "I want's hintin'." "Maybe you want's," Wharton grated. "I am! None of us ever seen this hombre before, 'ceptin' Calder here—"

"Mr. Rioridan's a stranger to me," Mr. Rioridan's voice was cool and untrifled.

"So you say," Wharton retorted with heavy irony. "You rung him into the game—an' you an' him have had all the luck. I don't like strangers that are too lucky."

"You just don't like anybody that's lucky—except you. Funny thing—I don't like rotten losers."

Wharton surged to his feet with a bull-bellow of rage, showing the table over. Kerry rolled out of the way, landed on the floor, and came up fighting. His fist connected with Wharton's midriff at the same moment that Wharton's big knuckles smashed into his face. Wharton crowded in, landing another crushing blow to his jaw. He reeled back, stumbling over a chair, and went sprawling, but as he fell, one boot-heel lashed out and caught Wharton on the shin. The big man doubled over with a howl of pain. Kerry disentangled himself from the chair and scrambled to his feet. Something landed on his back, and he felt his arms grabbed from behind. Twisting furiously, he got a glimpse of the man who was holding him—Jennings. As Kerry struggled to wrench himself free, a sledge-hammer fist landed on his temple. Through the black mist before his eyes, he could just make out Wharton's face, and his fist drawn back to strike again.

"My honor's a soft voice drawled, "I don't like to see a man hit while another man's holdin' his arms," and a lean red-haired shadow moved in between him and Wharton.

After that, it was all confusion. He managed to jam an elbow into Jennings' belly and thrust him off. His fist smashed into a face and drew blood; a couple of other fists pounded into him. Another table crashed over and a woman screamed. Then there was a noise of shattering glass, and he was plunged in darkness.

What Said Becoming 'Economic Prisoner'

WASHINGTON (AP)—An exchange and other difficulties. Some importing countries offer domestic growers higher prices than that charged by exporting nations. In these countries production is not nearly as efficient as it is in such big producing areas as the United States, Canada or Australia.

These importing countries are afraid to lean too heavily on outside sources, even though the latter offer grain cheaper than domestic growers can produce it. They recall past periods of emergency, principally wars, when import supplies were shut off and critical shortages developed.

Because of the tension between Western and Soviet bloc powers, few countries which can produce wheat are inclined to put full dependence on imports.

After the end of World War II, about 30 of the world's major wheat exporting and importing countries got together and set up an international agreement designed to stabilize world supplies and prices of wheat. One of the aims was ultimate centering of wheat production in countries which could produce it most efficiently. Those countries are the United States, Canada, Australia and France.

But the agreement is not working out that way. Twenty of the 44 importing countries which signed the agreement are using a variety of economic plans designed to encourage greater production at home so that they will be able to hold imports to a minimum.

The big wheat exporting nations are supporting wheat prices mainly for the purpose of assuring their producers a degree of prosperity. Without such supports, grower prices and incomes would be down sharply from war and postwar levels.

In reporting on the world wide wheat support activities, the department said the result is higher prices to consumers than otherwise would exist.

Hubby Cuts Hair To Hurt Feelings Of Proud Spouse

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—James Milton Waters, 31, mentioned to his wife that he planned to move to Oklahoma City and she, of course, should come along.

No, said Mrs. Waters, she wasn't going.

Then, according to Mrs. Waters' testimony yesterday in court: Waters grabbed her and started whacking at her hair with a butcher knife.

She, petite and 22, was proud of her hair. It was red and wavy-length. (It's sort of crew-cut now).

The butcher knife was dull and Waters switched to a razor blade, said Mrs. Waters. "He cut it a curl at a time and dropped it on the floor."

Waters, a tile-setter, admitted he cut her hair but said, "I just wanted to hurt her feelings."

Anyhow, he said offhand in court her hair is really blonde; she dyed it red.

"My hair," snapped Mrs. Waters, "is not dyed. It is naturally red."

Waters was fined $250 on aggravated assault charges. Mrs. Waters also is asking a divorce.

Tournament Opens Without Top Stars

ATLANTA (AP)—The week-long National Clay Courts tennis championship opened today without Tony Trabert and Ham Richardson — top seeded entries in the men's division.

Trabert, Wimbledon champ from Cincinnati and the nation's No. 2 amateur, and Richardson, Rhodes scholar from Baton Rouge, La., and third-ranked nationally, are scheduled to arrive in time for their matches tomorrow. Both received first round byes.

Richardson is flying in from Sweden, where he won the Swedish International Tournament yesterday. Trabert is in Washington to attend a luncheon of sports dignitaries at the invitation of President Eisenhower.

All other seeded performers in the 110-player field of the men's singles division were to play today.

Dr. Harry Warner Principal Speaker

Dr. Harry S. Warner, Columbus, Ohio, will be a principal speaker at two July workshops for Floridians on beverage alcohol and narcotics education.

Plans announced by the General Extension Division of Florida call for the first workshop to be held at the University of Florida, July 25-27; the second workshop is scheduled for July 28-30, at the University of Miami.

The workshops are designed to train leaders for a more effective educational program in home, church, school and community concerning the alcohol problem, according to Troy M. Wakefield, workshop coordinator for the Division.

Working with the universities in the program are the Florida Cooperative Committee on Beverage Alcohol and Narcotics Education, United Christian Action, Inc., and the Florida Council of Churches.

Dr. Warner is general secretary of the Inter-Collegiate Association for the Study of the Alcohol Problem, with headquarters in Columbus.

Reds Applaud Nehru, But Ignore His Recipe

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians may applaud Indian Prime Minister Nehru but they haven't gotten around to practicing his recipe for easing international tension.

"Write kind and friendly things about other nations and people," Nehru advised a Soviet newsmen here recently.

But there has been no letup in anti-American or anti-Western criticism in the Russian press.

The latest issue of Krokodil, satirical weekly, has its usual complement of four anti-U.S. cartoons picturing Americans as arms profiteers, H-bomb wavers and FBI fingerprinters of peaceful citizens.

The attacks continued even as the Communist party chief, Nikita Khrushchev, told diplomats and correspondents at a U.S. Embassy Fourth of July party that Russia and the United States should be friends. An article in the government newspaper Izvestia next day accused the United States of seeking to bribe Asians with what it termed "so-called aid."

The current issue of the bi-monthly English-language News also charged the United States was using West Germany and most of Western Europe as an atom base to attack the Soviet Union. News also contended Secretary of State Dulles was trying to sabotage the Geneva summit conference in advance and put the blame on the Soviet Union.

One of the most constant sources of criticism is the great Soviet Encyclopedia, which has published its 32nd volume and is roaring through the P's. Under the heading of "political parties" and "parliaments," the encyclopedia denounces the British, French and U.S. governmental organs as reactionary, aiming at the "suppression of the revolutionary, liberating movements of workers."

It describes both the Republican and Democratic parties in the United States as "Fascist" and accuses them of preparing for a new war.

Asserting that in "all bourgeois states the majority of members of parliament are capitalists, landowners, bourgeois lawyers, professional politicians," the encyclopedia says that "in the U.S. Congress there is not a single representative of the workers or the farmers."

"In the course of preparing for a new war," it adds, "the Republican and Democratic parties of the United States are leading the country along the path of fascism, along the path of establishing an open dictatorship of the most reactionary, chauvinist, imperialist elements of financial capital."

California Grocer Is Tough Cookie

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Grocer Charles Siciotos gave two robbers a hard time.

Siciotos, 45, grabbed a gun from one as they were marching him to a back room.

"I held the gun to his stomach and pulled the trigger, but nothing happened," Siciotos said. "So I beat him with it."

The gun broke, the bandits started throwing tin cans. Siciotos fired back with empty bottles and more canned goods. The men fled. A parking lot owner captured one suspect. The other escaped.

Authorities Claim Coroner Held Back Evidence In Fatal Shooting

LA JARA, Colo. (AP)—County authorities said Coroner Walker E. Lowe concealed evidence and withheld information from them in the fatal shooting of the wife of a district attorney's investigator.

Lowe was described by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gordon Rowe as a close friend of the investigator, Jerry Armijo, 32, who took his own life two days after his wife's death.

Dist. Atty. John I. Green and Rowe yesterday filed a charge of accessory after the fact against Lowe in the June 18 shooting of Mrs. Virginia Armijo, 33.

Rowe said: "It is my own personal opinion he (Lowe) thought he could cover the thing up."

Mrs. Armijo was struck near her right eye by one of a volley of .38 caliber bullets fired as she and her husband returned to their home from a dance.

Armijo told authorities immediately after the shooting that his wife was hit by a bullet fired from ambush.

Rowe said Lowe "was there probably at the time or shortly after" the shooting.

However, the assistant district attorney said Lowe told him he didn't arrive until 15 or 20 minutes after the shooting.

Lowe and the Armijos had gone to the dance together, Rowe said, and he was taking them home.

Police Chief George Lippencott said he became "suspicious of Lowe" when he did not call an inquest into the death of Mrs. Armijo or "when Armijo shot himself."

Rowe said Armijo shot his wife "apparently in a flash of passion," and then killed himself "in remorse."

Lowe, who was elected in 1934, was unavailable for comment. He is free on $1,500 bond.

The British railways operate a number of firefighting trains.

YOU'RE TELLING ME!

GENTLEMEN, it is revealed by an Agriculture department booklet that it is the FEMALE mosquito which puts the bite on you.

The department says if you use a repellent, you will smell bad to them and they will stay away. Females are like that.

Next time you see a female coming down to you, look out it probably means you don't smell bad.

The lesson is, if you don't repel these females, you may wind up with an itch.

So why not let well enough alone?

The male mosquito feeds on flower nectar. Probably stays around home making the opposite, while the female goes around from plant to plant.

You can get rid of female mosquitoes the same way you can get rid of some other females. See that they don't have any liquid refreshments.

Burmese Beauty Knows Posture; Will Be In Movie

AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor
If you don't believe posture can be made beautiful by walking with a look on your head, just take a look at some Burmese beauties, and in particular heed the words of Miss Win Min Than, who got a starring role in her first Hollywood movie.

Win Min says that of course most Burmese girls start off with good straight backs, the heritage of their ancestors "who balanced big weights on their heads." But the girls practice their walk just like our New York fashion models do. Says she:

"A beautiful walk is an important asset for a woman. It is the difference between looking like a lady and not."

Win Min who is 5 feet 6, has a lovely stride, lithe body, and a charming voice that spills out like the melodious rhythm of a rippling stream.

"These are the beauty assets, no artificial ones, that are considered important in Burma and at the convent schools she attended in Rangoon, she says.

Burmese girls use no makeup. They clean their skins with sandalwood paste made from grinding the wood and mixing it with water. There are no beauty salons, but still most girls have husbands at 18, says Win Min.

American girls who overdo their makeup might enjoy this tip. Win Min Than says:

"We can't use makeup very well in Burma because bright sunshine would give us a hard appearance. Besides, makeup ruins the skin. We wash our hair with soapy herbs, and use coconut oil as hair dressing. Hair is usually worn upward."

Body measurements are not known by the average Burmese girl, because clothes are usually homemade, she says. Win Min knows that she takes 1 3/4 yards of skirt cloth. (The fabric is wound around the body so that is no clue.) Fat girls take 2 1/2 yards, she says.

The movie studio lists her, she thinks, as "about 23 waistline, 33 chest and 34 hips, which are quite ordinary."

Most American girls are striving for those "ordinary hips," however, and Win Min Than manages to keep slim in spite of eating curry and rice at every meal, although breakfast includes orange juice, eggs and fresh fruit.

Her current good fortune in being selected to star with Gregory Peck in "The Purple Plain," made in Ceylon, was the result of a contest to find a Burmese girl. A friend sent her photograph, she read the script, and the rest was simple.

Twenty-one-year-old Miss Than won't need Hollywood massagers or voice teachers. As a matter of fact she probably could teach them something.

Miss Sylvia Hayes, July Bride-Elect, Honored At Shower

Miss Sylvia Hayes, popular July 15 bride-elect, was honored by Mrs. J. W. Brown at her home Friday night with a linen shower on the Old Lake Monroe Road at 8 p. m.

Miss Bobbye Morton created the artistic flower arrangements which were placed appropriately about the rooms.

Large bouquets of yellow and white gladioli carried out the summer theme. One creation of yellow gladioli was placed in a brown earthen vase on the table at the entrance and another arrangement on the television.

On the large center table in the living room, where the honoree's gifts were placed, was a beautiful arrangement of gladioli, hibiscus and other spring flowers varying from pure white to pale pink, adding a spark of color.

As the guests arrived each was presented with a tiny corsage of a miniature carnation in pale pink tied with pink net and framed with sprigs of lily-of-the-valley and a pale pink ribbon.

Games were directed by Miss Sandra Dunn during the course of the evening, with prizes going to Mrs. W. L. Carter and Miss Betsy Anne Carter.

Just before the honoree opened her gifts a unique idea was carried out in using balloons with printed messages inside to be read aloud by the guests. Each verse was in honor of the bride-elect and her future.

In the dining room, where the refreshments were served, additional white gladioli were used. The table was covered with a pure Irish linen cloth and bore a crystal punch bowl and matching crystal dishes. On each side of the bowl were crystal candelabra bearing burning white tapers and surrounding the bottom of the bowl were gladioli forming runners to the ends of the table. Individual cakes, mints, nuts and ice cream were served also. Candlelight illuminated the whole room with other candles being placed on the buffet and china closet.

Miss Lewis Barley and Miss Bobbye Morton were co-hostesses with Mrs. Brown and assisting them were Miss Ruby Stenstrom, Mrs. H. E. Long and Miss Margie Morrison.

Those present with Miss Hayes were, Mrs. W. M. Musselwhite, her mother, Mrs. Charlie Thomas, Miss Patty Rutigan, Mrs. Clara Matheson, Mrs. W. J. Vance, Mrs. Watson Wallace, Miss Sally Wallace, Mrs. Don Stowell, Mrs. A. J. Peterson, Mrs. C. E. Benton, Miss Betsy Anne Carter, Mrs. W. L. Carter, Miss Pat Smith, Mrs. R. U. Hutchison, Mrs. W. A. Morrison, Mrs. Margaret Morrison, Mrs. H. E. Long, Miss Ruby Stenstrom, Mrs. Harold Gray, Miss Beverly Gray, Miss Sandra Dunn, Mrs. Lewis Barley, Miss Bobbye Morton, Mrs. O. R. Smith, and the hostesses.

It's fun to give a Hawaiian supper! For a first course you might serve a cool drink with toasted coconut chips. Curried chicken with rice would be a fine choice for the main course accompanied by Macadamia nuts and chutney. A green salad and a dessert of sponge cake, pineapple and whipped cream will top off a delectable meal.

Handsoms Bob's Fans May Get Great Shock

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — The youthful following of handsome Robert Wagner is in for a shock.

Until now, the bright young actor has titillated female hearts by playing the all-American boy on the screen. Or, as in "Prince Valiant," the all-Norse boy.

Whatever the nationality, Bob has nearly always been the clean-cut, clean-living, clean-faced lad girls dream about.

Look at him now. He's working in a chiller called "A Kiss Before Dying." He looks as clean-cut as ever, but he's up to dirty work. He plays a conniving lad who leads a gay life with a copper heiress.

She falls pregnant and insists upon marriage. He takes her to the roof of a building, says he'll marry her, kisses her and pushes her over the side. He has arranged it to look like suicide, but a friend doubts it. So our Rob shoots the nosy fellows brains out. He is about to bring a speedy end to the dead girl's suspicious sister when something goes awry and he meets stern justice.

"But I don't think the roll will be entirely unsympathetic," he commented on the set. "In the boy's twisted mind, he thinks he is doing what is right."

He added that he wasn't worried about how this departure from type would affect his fans.

"Four years ago I was voted the most promising newcomer," he explained. "At that time, the girls who liked me were in their mid-teens. By now many of them have grown up, married and have families of their own."

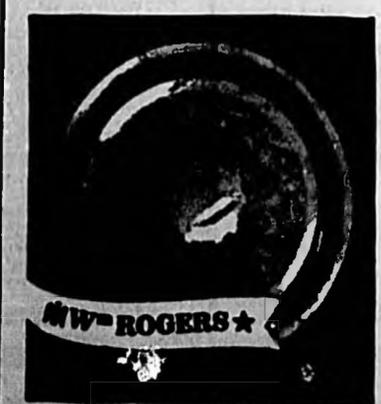

"My roles have to mature with them, too. I've been very lucky. The pictures I've had have all been top-budget productions. Nobody could ask for a better build-up. But the rules I've played have been pretty much surface characters. They haven't had much depth.

"The boy-next-door buildup is all right. But eventually you've got to mature. I think it happens with a lot of actors. Like Frank Sinatra. He tried doing something different and it did wonders for him."

"Bob, who is now 25, has been sensitive to the need for a boost to his career. He soared to fame quickly reaching the top in popularity on the fan magazine polls-

Summer-Way Sunday Dinner

Time now to pull out the picnic basket, pack a sumptuous meal, and eat Sunday dinner in the open. The all-meat, easy-to-cut canned ham and the mouth-watering Pineapple Skillet Cake may be baked on Saturday. Cans or jars of baked beans or pork and beans, ripe olives, pickles and mustard are ready to go. Add bread or rolls for the sandwiches, a crisp salad and cool drinks.

Pineapple Skillet Cake
1 can (9 oz.) sliced pineapple
4 cup butter, or margarine
Drain syrup from pineapple into a deep 9-inch skillet. Add butter and brown sugar and cook until thickened. Arrange pineapple slices and cherries in a design in skillet. Prepare cake mix following directions on package. Pour carefully over pineapple. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 1 hour. Remove from oven and allow to stand about 5 minutes. Turn out on serving plate. One 9-inch cake.

The Worlds And Whirls Of Youth Are Real 'Cool'

Let's take a spin around other backyards and see what gives in the world and whirls of youth. . . Philadelphia. . . Come on you are parties are popular again. A recent host called at a guest's house with his baggy for a come-as-you-are breakfast. Sure enough — he bagged a couple of kids in pajamas and one walking a dog, another playing basketball in the local gym. They ate doughnuts, buns and fruit. Afterwards the boys lounged around playing games and the girls played some new records.

San Diego. . . A high school principal reports one of the newest slang terms used by teenagers is: "I wish I had a 10-foot pole to use for not touching him."

Kansas City. . . Boys wearing charcoal suits for dress-up wear with pink accessories—shirt, tie, socks, cufflinks. Black shoes are de rigueur. Girls are wearing high heels and have picked up the trend to seamless nylon. Slow tunes are popular and an intermission juke box number is the old British ditty "Hooky-toke."

Akron. . . The end here is to dance in your stocking feet, not to save the floor but because it is more fun, young timers say. Steady daters wear matching sports shirts with blue jeans, park their shoes at the gym's entry way in a neat row. The polka is the dance of the moment.

San Antonio. . . Celina Izola, a student at Our Lady of Lake College, claims loveless students are no different than in her native Uruguay. "They use the same tactics," she says, "first they pass notes in class and then they follow up with soft drinks at the corner store."

Charlotte. . . Girls are wearing blouses over sweaters, boys wear sweaters over tee shirts and a suede jacket over all.

Hilens. . . Young people wear cowboy boots and Western fringed jackets to church.

New York. . . One way to test whether you have selective hearing when it comes to music according to Hazard (Buzz) Reeves, the engineer who developed the Cinema Sound is to put a good hi-fi record on a good hi-fi machine.

That would indicate that his greatest following is among teenage girls. He needs to corral the older audience, especially males. A suspense story such as "A Kiss Before Dying" could help.

Sunday an ice cream freeze chline and listen. Can you hear the low notes on the piano or bass? If you can without the thump-thump you're getting good low-note results. Listen to the clarinet or violin. Do the high notes screech? They should be clear and lovely. You should keep the set in a room with a good rug and draperies to stop echoes from bouncing around and check the needle often because of looseness or wear which play havoc with reproduction.

Brown Is Held In Questioning Of Miami Case

MIAMI (AP)—The Miami Herald said today that Robert Brown, 31, held for investigation in the Judith Ann Roberts kidnap-slaying a year ago, was given injections of "truth serum" during psychiatric examination.

The Herald said the injections were given Saturday and that of Jackson Memorial Hospital confirmed that fact.

Police have not announced results of extensive psychiatric tests on Brown since he was picked up at Judith Ann's grave in Mount Nebo Cemetery Friday.

Brown denied the crime and said he never harmed or bothered anybody.

The prisoner was placed in a psychopathic ward yesterday for Chester Eldredge and Detectives Charles Sapp and Paul Nichols.

While being taken from his cell in the Dade County Jail to be fingerprinted, Brown faced a swarm of police and newsmen. He snatched at flashlight bulbs.

"Why do I have to suffer like this?" the unshaven, barefooted man sobbed. "I've suffered since I was 4 months old. They all think I'm guilty but I'm not."

Judith Ann was taken from the home of her grandfather, Harry Rosenberg, in the Rosenberg, automobile and her body was found several hours later. The car was found abandoned near the spot where the body was found.

Strolling In Sanford

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce will hold their regular monthly meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at City Hall. Subjects for discussion include plans for welcoming new Naval officials to Sanford.

The Sanford Theatre Guild will hold the second in a series of workshop meetings tonight in the City Hall auditorium. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock. Bill Fegan, assistant manager of the Vagabond Players, Flat Rock, N. C., will be the guest speaker.

A young man and a lady (we don't know where she hails from) happened to be walking from opposite directions in the park, each with a canine on the leash. As the dogs met, they rubbed noses affectionally. "Ah, me," said the young man, "that is what I'd like to do." "Well, go ahead," said the girl, "it's your dog."

9 P. M. Curfew Ordered For Men At Sheppard Base

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—Sheppard Air Force Base ordered a 9 p.m. curfew for the 16,000 airmen and officers at the base after gang fights and near-fights broke out during the weekend between civilian teen-agers and military men.

It was not clear what the fighting was about.

Only one casualty has resulted—an airman was slashed and beaten at a city park a week ago. But the Wichita Falls Record News said no single incident set off the tension, which began building up about 10 days ago.

Authorities said they were tipped that both airmen and civilian teen-agers began carrying weapons, including pistols, Sunday.

Col. Melvin S. Hollidge, deputy base commander, said the latest incident occurred Sunday night behind a baseball park and 50 airmen were "apprehended."

Authorities say they discovered that another gang fight was set for next Friday.

Woman Must Make $64,000 Decision

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Mrs. Catherine Krutler headed for New York with her Bible today, still keeping mum about her money plans.

And big money it is too. The 64-year-old grandmother from nearby Camp Hill, Pa., has won $22,000 on a CBS television program.

"Tonight, she'll tell viewers whether she'll keep her $22,000 or try for The $64,000 Question which is the name of the program."

The jackpot question, as have all other questions answered by the woman on the program, will be based on the Bible.

"I have always turned to it for guidance," Mrs. Krutler said. And she'll do the same tonight, she said, when she must make the big decision. She said she won't make that decision until she steps out on the stage.

Typhoon Spares Okinawa Station

TOKYO (AP)—The biggest typhoon of the season smashed right into the southern half of the Ryukyu archipelago but spared the mighty U.S. island base on Okinawa.

U.S. Air Force weather posters said the typhoon, the seventh of the season, was just off the coast of Okinawa, some 200 miles from the island.

THREE FORMER American soldiers, who changed their minds about living in Red China, smile happily after reaching Hong Kong. The ex-GIs, who refused repatriation after the Korean war, were released at the border of the British crown colony by Chinese Communist officials and immediately turned over to the U. S. Consulate who had arranged for their quick return home on the "President Cleveland." They are (l. to r.): William A. Cowart, of Dalton, Ga.; Otto G. Bell, Olympia, Wash., and Lewis W. Griggs, Jacksonville, Tex. During an interview they denounced Communism as a force that kills men's souls, and said they were ready to face any charges against them. (International)

Couple Sentenced For Smuggling Gun To George Heroux

LAKE BUTLER (AP)—Raymond and Ruth Staffa were sentenced yesterday to 10 years for smuggling a pistol to desperado George A. Heroux in state prison. Heroux shot and killed Asst. Supl. J. Patten and wounded two guards April 4.

The couple—the Heroux' former wife—pleaded for leniency and showed surprise when Circuit Judge George T. Patten pronounced sentence. They said they had been model prisoners, had testified against Heroux, and already had spent 3 1/2 months in jail.

Judge Patten ordered that the sentence begin upon their delivery to state prison in Raiford. Officers immediately took them there.

Mrs. Staffa, 25, testified at Heroux' trial that he tried to get her to slip three .45 automatics to him for a break and that she smuggled in a .25 Italian automatic as a sign of her "good faith." She said she was afraid Heroux' friends on the outside might harm her if she didn't help.

Sheppard Is Denied First Trial Appeal

CLEVELAND (AP)—A three-judge Appellate Court today refused Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, 31, a new trial on the basis of error in the 10-week trial which ended Dec. 21 with his conviction for second degree murder in the bludgeoned death of his wife, Marilyn, July 4, 1954.

"The defendant in this case has been afforded a fair trial by an impartial jury, and in this court's opinion substantial justice has been done," the Appellate Court ruling said.

The action ruled groundless a contention by the osteopath's attorneys there were 37 assignments of error in his long trial.

The three judges, Lee E. Skel, Julius M. Kovachy and Joy Beth Hurd, indicated they would not rule until next week on a second motion by Sheppard for a new trial.

The second motion is based on defense claims of "newly discovered evidence" which centers on testimony by Dr. Paul L. Kirk, professor of criminalistics at the University of California, Berkeley, Calif.

Should the Court of Appeals uphold against Sheppard on his appeal and final motion, he would be removed from Cuyahoga County Jail to Ohio Penitentiary to begin serving a life term in which he was sentenced. Since last July 30 he has been in the County Jail, and the time served has not counted toward the life sentence.

Blonde Scheduled To Hang Tomorrow

LONDON (AP)—Ruth Ellis waited calm and resigned in death row at Holloway Jail today, apparently unconcerned with last-minute efforts to save her from the gallows.

The blonde, 28-year-old divorcee is scheduled to be hanged tomorrow for the Easter Sunday slaying of a lover who had spurned her.

Opponents of the death penalty were expected to raise the issue in the House of Commons tonight in hopes that a vote might be obtained urging clemency.

Only a direct command from Queen Elizabeth II could halt the execution. The monarch traditionally acts in such cases only on the recommendation of the home secretary—Gwylm Lloyd-George—who yesterday rejected clemency appeals and petitions containing more than 25,000 signatures.

Air Force Academy Has Opened Doors For First Class

DENVER (AP)—The U. S. Air Force Academy opened its doors today for the first class of 306 cadets serving a life term in which he was sentenced. Since last July 30 he has been in the County Jail, and the time served has not counted toward the life sentence.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbot told the cadets and 3,000 invited guests at Lowry Air Base that "it is in the human element that the Air Force Academy is dedicated, and especially, to the leadership we must have if our country is to survive."

Householder Opens Two-Week Term

County Judge Ernest Householder today opened a two-week term of court. Approximately 27 cases, most of them involving traffic and liquor violations, are scheduled to be heard. No jury had been selected this morning.

Co. 1 Leaving For Alabama Camp

Co. 1, 124th Inf. Florida National Guard, Sanford's own unit will leave for summer field training exercises at Fort McClellan, Ala., Aug. 13th it was announced by Capt. Joseph D. Bryant, commanding officer of the local unit.

Sanford's unit along with other elements of the 48th Inf. Division will spend two weeks at the north Alabama military installation undergoing the annual field-training that, combined with the other training received at the local armory and on weekends in the field, makes the National Guard the nation's best trained mobilization day force.

This will mark the last year that Co. 1 will train as a rifle company in the 124th Inf. The 124th, with a history of over 70 years will be disbanded following the encampment and by Nov. 1 will be converted to armored units.

In place of the 124th Inf. Regiment in Florida will be one tank battalion and two armored infantry battalions with the various supporting units. The other tank and infantry battalions will come from Georgia units, according to Col. Albert Durrell, division administrative assistant.

Conversion of the 48th will be the fourth such change in a year and brings to six the number of Guard armored divisions.

The change-over continues the program of reshuffling the Guard's divisional structure to bring it in line with modern warfare's requirements for speed and mobility.

Major Gen. Joseph B. Fraser of Hinesville, Ga., will continue as division commander and Brig. Gen. Maxwell C. Snyder of Jacksonville will continue as assistant division commander.

The division headquarters will remain in Macon, Ga.

Organizational studies are still being made and it is not known at this time what type armored unit will be located in Sanford, although it is expected to either be a modern tank company or an armored infantry company.

Future training exercises for the motorized unit will be conducted at Camp Stewart, Georgia.

Sanford Memorial Action Postponed By Commissioners

Collins Is Next To Take Action In Controversy

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The next move in the long and bitter battle over reappropriating the Senate was up to Gov. Collins today.

A bill he criticized as unfair cleared the Legislature yesterday with 17 to 9 Senate passage, and a resolution was being prepared calling for immediate adjournment.

Collins declined to comment on the possibility he will ask the Florida Supreme Court for an advisory opinion on his authority to veto the measure.

"I am sick about it," he said. "They have failed to perform a duty which the Constitution makes so clear. I will announce my next move by the time the messenger gets down here with the bill."

Collins has said previously he would veto a bill which didn't do away with reappropriation of the Senate. Some legislators, however, have contended reappropriation was a legislative matter under the Constitution and the governor couldn't lawfully veto a reappropriation bill.

Structure Beginning Discussed

Excursion Boat Franchise Okayed

City Commission, in a busy session last night, postponed action on the proposed General Sanford Memorial Library and Museum and voted to again take up at the next meeting a plea for an immediate start on part of the structure.

Tabling of the appeal highlighted a meeting which saw the Commission approve an excursion boat franchise, hire Robert Kelly as a sewer foreman, and approve a sewer line from the city limits to the South Pinecrest subdivision. The city will pay for the lines with revenues they bring in.

The subdivision, where 123 houses will be erected, is being developed by Bralley Odham, who said he has let a $110,000 contract for streets, sewers and water lines there.

The Commission awarded an exclusive franchise to operate an excursion boat from the city pier to W. R. Kemp and Richard Soderstrom, Orlando and Winter Park businessmen. Speaking on behalf of the promoters was Forrest Breckenridge, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Breckenridge, who said Soderstrom is now in New York looking over boats for sale, said the men plan to use a boat capable of carrying 400 passengers. Construction would be brought by bus from Orlando for excursions down the St. Johns River.

Kemp and Soderstrom recently figured in a proposal to build an open-air amusement center on Lake Monroe in the vicinity of the bandshell and the new boat basin. This idea is still being studied.

The two men have also gone into the harness horse training business at Casselberry. They leased the Azalea Driving Park last week for a 35-year period and announced plans to operate on a year-round basis.

Kelly, the sewer foreman, was formerly an inspector for Angus & Associates, which carried out the city sewer project.

Evidence Is Heard For Mother Of 3 In Federal Case

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (AP)—A jury of seven women and five men today began hearing evidence in the federal case against Isabelle Miller, 41, mother of three who is charged with abducting nine young men to evade military draft calls.

Last May Mrs. Miller's husband Manuel, 47, Bethel civil leader, held off authorities with a rifle for 12 hours when they tried to take his wife away for commitment to a mental institution. He is under indictment for resisting a U.S. marshal.

The Millers surrendered only after tear gas was fired into their home. Mrs. Miller was committed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Washington, D.C. She was released on a mentally competent last month.

Mrs. Miller is accused in 13 counts of knowingly counseling nine young men to refuse service in the armed forces and to turn over to her, in violation of law, their registration certificates or draft cards.

Chubby Donna Sue Alongside Ditch; Killer Still Sought

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP)—A chubby 3-year-old girl plucked from her crib by an apparent sex deviate, was found raped and slain in a farm field yesterday.

Police said they were without clues in the abduction-slaying of curly-haired Donna Sue Davis, described by neighbors as "the darling of the neighborhood."

The pajama-clad daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Davis was lifted from her crib within minutes after her mother had tucked her in for the night Sunday.

About this time neighbors reported seeing a young man prowling about the Davis' modest duplex home.

The crumpled body, savagely beaten about the head, was found alongside a ditch at the edge of a cornfield on the Ernest Oehrling farm near South Sioux City, Neb., just across the Missouri River from here.

Former Policeman Ready For Safari

ST. PETERSBURG (AP)—It's a long way from directing traffic in St. Petersburg to directing a lion hunting expedition in Africa but a former policeman is all set to make the big jump.

He is Richard Rohrbaugh, 26, a former Marine combat sergeant. Rohrbaugh read about a safari to Africa about a year ago and the idea of heading one himself kept cropping up in his thoughts. Finally he resigned from the police force July 1 to go into it.

In the venture with him is Bob Dillon, 30, a former military pilot and salesman. They hope to enlist about 10 persons for the expedition.

Governor Slates Good Will Tour

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Gov. Collins and a group of leading businessmen are scheduled to leave July 23 for a week's good will tour of the East.

Members of the party will "express Florida's appreciation for the confidence shown by investors in our state's future," Collins said.

He will be accompanied by members of the State Development Commission—newly created to coordinate Florida's efforts to promote itself and attract new industries—and by representatives of the State Council for Industry and Commerce.

Lunches and dinners in Boston, Philadelphia and New York will be attended by the group which also will appear on television programs.

Real Estate Dealer Journeys To Illinois

TAMPA (AP)—H. R. Van Ness, Tampa real estate dealer sought during an investigation of his financial transactions, is in Evansville, Ill.

His attorney has advised authorities here that Van Ness was called to Illinois by illness in his family.

William C. McLean Jr., assistant county solicitor who is heading an investigation into complaints from a score of Van Ness clients, said the case is highly complex.

No criminal charge has been preferred but several persons have filed civil suits to recover down payments they said they made on homes not built. More than $15,000 is involved in suits filed here and other complaints have been registered in Lakeland.

Contract Virtually Dead Letter Issue; Spark Of Life Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Dixey-Van contract was virtually a dead letter today. But triumphant foes in Congress indicated they planned to keep the issue alive—into the 1956 presidential campaign, if possible.

President Eisenhower ordered the contract canceled yesterday after Mayor Frank Tobey of Memphis convinced him in a conference that the city intends to build its own power plant.

Coming out of that meeting, Atty. Gen. Brownell announced the government "will immediately take steps to terminate the private power contract."

But Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), who heads an anti-atomic energy committee which has been investigating negotiations which led to the contract, announced the cancellation "will have no effect on our hearings."

"We expect to get to the bottom of this entire matter," he said.

Wilcox To Return To Raiford Prison

TAMPA (AP)—A man paroled June 30 will be returned to State Prison at Raiford as mentally deranged and dangerous, authorities said today.

W. B. Wilcox, county parole supervisor, said he is Wilcox R. Anderson, 30, convicted in 1945 of second degree murder in the death of Deputy Sheriff Haygood Ellyer at Otter Creek and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Anderson was paroled in an incident in Tampa but the uncle told Wilcox that Anderson was unable to work and was sent to a hospital.

A doctor indicated Anderson is "so we are sending him back to Raiford as a dangerous inmate, Wilcox said, Raiford and will let them take care of him from there."

Anderson apparently was all right when he was examined by prison physicians before leaving on parole, said Francis Bridges, parole commission chairman.

Legal Battle Looms Over Judge's Order

MIAMI (AP)—A legal battle loomed today over a circuit judge's order that the AFL Hotel Employees Union refrain from referring to a strike at the San Marino Hotel in any publications "either in this jurisdiction or elsewhere."

Judge William A. Herin signed the order yesterday when he called an election of San Marino employees to determine if the union represents a majority of eligible employees.
