I-4 lane closing tonight

LAKE MARY — The inside, left lane of eastbound Interstate 4 at Lake Mary Boulevard will be closed tonight from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m. Thursday.

Interchange construction crews will be resurfacing the roadway.

Launch date set for Atlantis

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA has set a March 23 launch date for the next shuttle flight, an atmospheric research mission by Atlantis.

Liftoff with a crew of seven astronauts is scheduled for 8:01 a.m. EST. The space agency announced the launch date Tuesday.

Atlantis' eight-day journey — the 48th shuttle flight and the second of the year — is part of a long-term NASA project to study the environment from space.

Scientific instruments aboard the spaceship will examine regions of the atmosphere ranging from six miles to more than 150 miles above Earth. Other instruments will measure solar energy and study ultraviolet radiation.

NASA's new shuttle, Endeavour, is scheduled to make its maiden voyage, a satellite-rescue mission, in early May.

Infants survive tornadoes

ZERO, Miss. — Thomas Moody thought he had lost his 3-month-old son after a tornado destroyed his mobile home. Then he heard crying from above, and found the child hanging upside down in a pine tree.

The baby, whose nightgown had caught on a branch 8 feet up, suffered a broken rib and bruises but escaped serious injury, said Dr. Phil Blevins, a surgeon at St. Dominic-Jackson Memorial Hospital.

"Children have a resiliency that is absolutely amazing," Blevins said.

Three people were killed, 47 people were injured and 100 homes were damaged or destroyed early Tuesday in and around this community 80 miles east of Jackson.

In Murphy, about 60 miles northwest of Jackson, an 8-month-old girl escaped injury when her family's mobile home was destroyed by a tornado.

"A mattress mashed her against the ceiling. There wasn't a scratch on her," said Anthony Glass, who said the child was with a family visiting his home.

Tsongas wins here

Bush, too; Buchanan, Brown stronger in Seminole

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Paul Tsongas edged out Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton among Seminole County voters on Super Tuesday, while a greater than average number of Republicans cast their ballots for conservative commentator Pat Buchanan over President George Bush.

And even Democrat Jerry Brown fared much better here than elsewhere in the state.

As might be expected, county Democrats and Republicans drew different conclusions from the same results.

"When I add all the numbers up, most people voted against President Bush," said a pleased Bill Gilmartin, chairman of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee. "It was a very good day for Democrats," he said this morning.

"There might of have been a tendency to send a message-type vote because it was the primary," Seminole County commissioner Fred Streetman, co-chairman of the county Bush campaign committee, said this morning.

"But apparently, there's really nobody the Democrats are really enamored with."

Elections supervisor Sandra Goard's prediction last week that 39 percent of the county's Republicans and Democrats would participate Tuesday was right on the nose. A total of 39,360 of the 100,835 eligible voters cast ballots Tuesday after polling at all 101 precincts and absentee votes were tallied.

Democrats proved more diligent voters than Republicans Tuesday as nearly 41 percent of the 41,408 Democrats participated compared to 22,228 votes from Republicans, representing about 37 percent of the eligible GOP residents.

Seminole County results did vary a bit from statewide voting. County Republicans gave Bush a resounding victory with 63.9 percent of their vote, but a higher percentage of county Republicans voted for Buchanan than elsewhere in the state. About 38 percent of the

New bed and breakfast inn proposed

By NICK PERIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford may have its second Bed and Breakfast establishment in the near future. A proposal has been made for such an establishment at 1011 Oak Avenue.

During Monday night's meeting, the Sanford City Commission authorized the property owner, Sica Nacu, to apply to the Planning and Zoning Commission for a Conditional Use hearing.

According to the National Register of Historic Places, the house was originally called the G.A. Radford House, and was constructed starting in 1920. It was first occupied in 1924. It has been classified as a single family dwelling.

Last year, the City Commission approved the establishment of the City's first Bed and Breakfast Inn, the Higgins House, at 420 S. Oak Avenue. It was built in 1894. Owners Walter and Roberta Padgett officially opened the house on Dec. 12.

Nacu appeared before the Planning and Zoning Commission as well as the City Commission several times in October of last year, seeking waivers to establish a Bed and Breakfast operation at Park Avenue and 13th Street. "Now," she says, "we want to turn our own home into that."

In her request for a change of use on the Oak Avenue property, Nacu said, "We trust that Sanford has a lot to offer to the type of tourists who, visiting Central Florida, are interested in staying in a historic house that has just been restored."

Nacu and her husband have been working on the restoration in keeping with the Victorian era architecture and design. "The restoration took about 18 months," she said, "and is expected to be finished by the end of 1992."

"We have really worked on this," she commented, "we practically put our very souls into the remodeling."

The home, as a private residence, was opened to the public during the tour of homes last year. "Almost everything in the house is original," she commented. The doors, woodwork, and crown moldings in the ceilings are original." She added, "We restored everything we possibly could, and only had to add a few things such as stained glass on the front of the house."

Nacu said she has spoken to her neighbors about the plan and they approved. "This is our dream," she said, "and I hope we can make the dream come true."

The matter will be brought before P&Z as soon as all of the applications are received by the City. According to City Planner Jay Marder, "With the Commission's approval to take the matter to P&Z, they would have the authority to grant final approval and it probably would not have to come back to the Commission."

Lake Mary water agreement extended

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

Delayed construction on Lake Mary Boulevard has forced extension of a city-county water agreement.

LAKE MARY — Delays in the widening of Lake Mary Boulevard have forced an extension of a wholesale water agreement between the city and county.

In 1985, Seminole County agreed to provide water for the city to the developing area south of Lake Mary Boulevard and west of Lake Emma Road. The city didn't have water lines in the area but the county could provide water from its nearby Greenwood Lakes facility, acquired in 1984.

The original five-year agreement was extended for two years in 1990 and will expire April 1.

But the widening of Lake Mary Boulevard from two to four and six lanes won't be completed until early next year. Originally planned to be completed next month to coincide with the Florida Department of Transportation's replacement of the Interstate 4 interchange, the boulevard was delayed by a year.

The city has asked the county to extend the agreement until October until it completes its lines to the area from the city's Rinehart Road

Inmate killed, cellmate charged

TALLAHASSEE — A Leon County Jail inmate awaiting trial on arson charges was killed as he slept, and his cellmate is charged with the murder.

A correctional officer found Anthony Farmer, 27, strangled with a pillowcase early Monday morning.

"I don't think there was a fight," said Dick Simpson, Leon County's Sheriff's Department spokesman. "He was probably killed while he was asleep."

John Calmes, 35, was charged with first-degree murder. Calmes was in jail on charges of skipping out on two restaurant tabs and had told police he was homeless and hungry and knew he couldn't pay for the meal.

Calmes told investigators that Farmer had asked him to perform oral sex on several occasions and had threatened to kill him, according to a police affidavit.

Calmes said he decided to kill Farmer before Farmer killed him, police said.

Kids set fire to historic church

HOBE SOUND — Three 9-year-olds set fire to the pages of hymn books, then ran away when the flames got out of hand and gutted a historic black church, fire officials said.

Twin brothers and a friend were taken into custody within an hour of the $30,000 fire Monday at Allen Temple African Methodist Episcopal Church. The second-graders were booked on felony arson charges and released to their parents.

Stephen Conc, a 16-year-old neighbor who talked to one of the brothers after the fire, said the child told him they had tried to put out the flames after they set the fire with matches.

The boys will be prosecuted through the juvenile court system, said Jon Pasqualone, deputy chief of fire prevention.

Gambling ships still exempt from taxes

TALLAHASSEE — Gambling ships would continue to get a sales-tax exemption for their "cruises to nowhere" under a bill that passed 30-2 in the Florida Senate.

The measure (CS-SB 1978) by Sen. James Scott, R-Fort Lauderdale, next goes to the House where similar legislation has been introduced but not taken up in committee. It passed on Tuesday in the Senate.

The ships that cruise into international waters where gambling is legal and then return to Florida have not been collecting sales tax on admissions under an exemption for transportation activities.

The Revenue Department, however, has ruled the cruises should not be considered transportation because passengers don't get off until they come back to where they got on the ships.

The Legislature last year passed a law to specifically exempt the cruises, but that exemption will expire July 1. Scott's bill would continue the exemption, indefinitely.

It would cost state and local governments about $4.5 million a year in revenues.

Voters: No tax for children's programs

HUDSON — For the second time in two years, Pasco voters defeated a plan to create a Children's Services Council to raise and distribute tax dollars for children's programs.

Two years ago, the plan lost by a margin of 53 to 47 percent. Tuesday, it lost by a 69-to-31 gap.

"I think the voters spoke — again," said Regina Mirabella of Hudson, the president of Pasco Right to Life, who worked to defeat the initiative. "The people educated themselves on the issue and they said no."

Judy Case, chairwoman of the Advocates for the Children's Services Council, said despite the failure of the referendum, they'll move ahead.

"We decided to form the board, get the people appointed by the governor, and to go into the community to get private donations," Case said.

Extortion charges thrown out

FORT LAUDERDALE — A federal judge threw out an extortion charge against Yahweh ben Yahweh, saying prosecutors failed to prove the spiritual leader threatened residents at a drug-riddled apartment complex.

Defense attorneys had argued the government didn't present enough evidence to convict Yahweh and co-defendant Judith Israel on charges they threatened tenants during the sect's takeover of the Opa-locka apartments.

The ruling Tuesday by U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger removes a third of the federal racketeering case against the black supremacist and Israel, who was born Linda Gaines, and reduces their potential sentences from 60 to 40 years in prison, if convicted.

They still face racketeering and conspiracy charges in the running of the Miami-based religious empire.

Attorneys for the two were pleased with the decision with Israel's attorney, Paul McKenna, saying outside the courtroom that the judge's ruling was a significant blow to the government's case against his client.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

First woman next chief justice

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A former nun who became a lawyer in an effort to find a better way to serve people will be Florida's next chief justice.

Justice Rosemary Barkett, 52, was unanimously chosen by her colleagues on the Florida Supreme Court to succeed outgoing Chief Justice Leander Shaw, the first black to hold the job.

Barkett is not only the first woman chief justice — she's the first woman to serve on the state's high court. Her term begins in July.

There could be no more meaningful time for a woman to head Florida's highest court than now, when women's most basic liberties are at stake.

—Gov. Lawton Chiles

There could be no more meaningful time for a woman to head Florida's highest court than now, when women's most basic liberties are at stake," said Gov. Lawton Chiles.

The position of chief justice is rotated every two years among the seven justices on the bench. The post is traditionally passed on by seniority.

As the chief administrative officer of the state's court system, Barkett will be in charge of its budget process and the assignment of judges.

The chief justice does not have any advantages over the other six members of the bench in terms of writing opinions or debating cases.

Noriega defense rests

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Prosecutors began taking their final shot at Manuel Noriega after his defense rested without pulling the ousted Panamanian leader on the witness stand.

On Tuesday, the first government rebuttal witness, Drug Enforcement Administration agent Charles Vopat, said Panama's cooperation in the secret money-laundering probe "Operation Negocio" all but disappeared by 1987.

Vopat said he was forced to end the operation. The agent was to continue on the stand today when testimony resumes.

Vopat was the first of eight witnesses the government has listed for the rebuttal case, which is expected to take through next week.

In a break in his testimony Tuesday, prosecutors took the unusual step of asking that U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler cut out parts of Noriega's indictment before giving it to jurors.

One count against Noriega was dropped without explanation when the trial began, and some sections appear to have been contradicted by the prosecution's own witnesses.

"You see numerous parts they haven't proven," said lead defense attorney Frank Rubino, who argued against tampering with the indictment. "Now they want to tear parts out."

House votes to limit children's smoking

Senate OKs appointing trial judges

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Legislation to crack down on illegal sales of tobacco products to minors has cleared the Florida House and next goes to the Senate.

The House passed the bill (CS-HB 2375) 113-1 Tuesday. It would license tobacco retailers and allow the state to suspend or revoke the licenses of those caught selling to children under 18.

The Senate Appropriations Committee was scheduled today to consider the upper chamber's version of the legislation.

The House removed a provision that would have banned cigarette vending machine sales except in businesses that sell alcoholic beverages. The Senate bill included an even more restrictive provision limiting the machines only to those establishments licensed to sell hard liquor.

The House bill still would require machines to be in sight of cashiers.

A House amendment that also would have penalized children who buy tobacco products was withdrawn.

The sponsor, Rep. Carol Hanson, R-Boca Raton, wanted to make it a misdemeanor for children under 18 to buy tobacco or for anyone to provide the money for the purchase.

Rep. Lois Frankel, D-West Palm Beach, sponsor of the bill, said that would have been impossible to pass and would have killed the legislation.

"We don't need to turn our kids into criminals. This bill is about adults being responsible," Frankel said.

The House approved amendments by Frankel to remove a prohibition on mail-order sales of tobacco that would have injured the cigar industry, and to take out a provision limiting cigarette machines to establishments that sell alcohol.

The Senate on Tuesday approved a proposed constitutional amendment for the appointment rather than election of trial judges and a bill that would allow witnesses to bring lawyers with them into grand jury rooms.

The judicial amendment (CS-SJR 18) passed 27-11 and next goes to the House, where a similar proposal (CS-HJR 23) has been bogged down for more than a month. It takes a three-fifths vote in each chamber for an amendment to get on the ballot.

POLICE BRIEFS

License violation brings arrest

Susan Marie VanMaasticht, 20, 3835 Elder Springs Circle, Sanford, was charged with driving with a suspended drivers license when she was arrested Friday.

She was transported to the Seminole County Jail where she was held in lieu of $100 bond.

Reported to sheriff's office

The following incidents were reported to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department:

• A bicycle was stolen Sunday night from the garage of Jim McGallin, 527 N. Sundance Drive, Lake Mary.

• Two separate incidents were reported to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department Friday morning by Betsy Kirby, manager of Reflections Park. At 11:42 a.m., she reported damage to floodlights at the entrance to the Lakewood at the Crossings area near Commercial Park. At 11:56 a.m., she reported the theft of a $495 water pump from Lakewood at the Crossings.

Man drinks evidence

Sanford police arrested Philip Cosby, of 3711 Washington Street Sunday. According to the report, police were called when Cosby was stopped by a clerk at the Lil Champ store, 1119 E. 25th Street. The report stated that he was seen taking a bottle of wine out of the store without paying for it. According to the police report, Cosby "drank most of it," while waiting for the officers to arrive.

Drug arrest made

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies were searching for a missing juvenile Saturday, and ended up making an arrest in a separate incident. Deputies checking a trailer at 3827 Elder Springs Circle, found Eric Nicholas Chicky, of 148 Bedford Court, in Sanford. After a check of the facility and as the results of testing, Chicky was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. The missing juvenile was not located.

Shoplifting charged

Thomas Wade Jr., 29, 131 Academy Ave., Sanford, was charged with shoplifting by Sanford police Monday.

An employee of the Winn-Dixie on South French Avenue reported seeing Wade place three packages of meat under his shirt and walk to the front of the store without paying for them.

Woman charged with drug possession

Elaine M. LeBar, 26, 409 W. First St., Apt. 3, Sanford, was charged with cocaine and drug paraphernalia possession by a Sanford policeman early Tuesday morning.

The policeman reported discovering LeBar in a car behind a closed First Street business at about 2:45 a.m. A search of her purse revealed a plastic bag containing cocaine and a smoking device, the policeman reported.

More burglary charges filed

Additional burglary charges were placed on John Lee Shepherd of Longwood Monday.

Shepherd, 21, who was being held at the Seminole County jail following his arrest March 4 on residential burglary charges, was charged Monday with the burglary of five vans at a Lake Mary air conditioning business. Air conditioning equipment and other tools valued at $2,900 were stolen during the Feb. 24 burglary.

Shepherd was questioned outside a Casselberry pawn shop after he pawned some of the stolen equipment, according to arrest reports. Shepherd was charged with five counts of vehicle burglary and four counts of grand theft.

Burglaries reported

The following burglaries have been reported to Seminole County deputies and Sanford police:

• $1,300 in stereo and video equipment were reported taken from a Michelle Lane residence Monday sometime between 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Deputies report a screen enclosure had been cut open and a pair of french doors had been pried open.

• an $800 air conditioner and two light fixtures were reported missing from a West Second Street apartment sometime between March 2 and 9 a.m. Monday.

• a $250 video recorder was reported stolen from a West 16th Street home sometime Monday between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Entry was apparently through a bathroom window, police report.

Warrant arrests made

The following wanted persons have been taken into custody:

• William Anthony Williams, 22, 2600 Georgia Ave., Sanford, was served with an arrest warrant at the Seminole County jail where he was being held on other charges. Williams was wanted for violating the terms of his probation for a drunken driving conviction.

• Donna Lee Wright, 35, 1509 Summerlin Ave., Sanford, turned herself in to deputies at the Seminole County Jail Monday. Wright was wanted to stand trial on charges of obtaining public assistance by fraud.

• Wilbur Williams, 36, 3731 Jesup Ave., Sanford, was arrested near the intersection of 13th Place and Oleander Drive by Sanford police Monday. Williams was wanted for failing to appear at a hearing to answer to charges of trespassing in an occupied structure and criminal mischief.

Watch on Old Sanford

Chase ends in arrest

The arrest of a Sanford man Monday night followed a high-speed chase on East State Road 46.

Christopher Eugene Goff, 18, 1909 Park Ave., was arrested by a Seminole County deputy who reported following Goff at 90 m.p.h. between State Road 415 and Mellonville Ave. The deputy reported joining the pursuit after an off-duty Winter Springs policeman radioed he was following Goff's vehicle east on SR 46 past SR 415.

After Goff was stopped, the deputy reported finding a plastic bottle labeled Ibuprofen 600 and containing 21 tablets of an unknown substance. Goff was charged with reckless driving and possession of a controlled substance.

Probation violation leads to arrest

Timothy Delnor Neighbors, 28, 2831 Grove Dr., Sanford, was arrested on Park Drive near Myrtle Avenue by Sanford police Monday afternoon. Neighbors was wanted for violating the terms of his probation for a drug possession conviction.

Computer reported stolen

A laptop computer was reported stolen from an auto parked at a Magnolia Avenue residence sometime between Feb. 27 and March 4.

Burglary reported

The offices of SEEDCO on Sanford Avenue were reported burglarized sometime between 7:30 p.m. March 6 and 1 p.m. March 7. An undisclosed amount of items was reported stolen. Police report a rear door had been forced open and the handle to a conference room had been forcibly unlocked.

Housing development annexation approved

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Efforts are underway in south Sanford to start what is considered an affordable housing development. The City Commission approved an application for property annexation during its meeting Monday night.

The property is located just west of South Sanford Avenue, and northwest of the Sanford Avenue and Lake Mary Boulevard intersection. It is owned by William and Marrian Blalock and is presently zoned A-1, agricultural.

William R. Miller, president of SUDA, Inc., represented the property owners during Monday night's City Commission meeting. "We are presently just in the preliminary stages," he commented, "we have no specific details ready to announce at this time." He added, "Much of the progress on this will depend on the state of the economy in the months ahead, plus the various costs that may be involved in setting this up."

In response to a question from the Commission regarding what price was considered to be "affordable housing", he commented, "The price will be subject to charges we may be faced with, but right now, we are planning to have homes priced at $60,000 or below."

The actual decision made by the City Commission Monday night was to authorize the City Attorney to prepare the proper ordinance to annex the property. It therefore will have to be brought up again for a formal decision.

Comprehensive Plan not in compliance

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The State has declared Lake Mary's Comprehensive Plan to be "not in compliance." So far, the City has not been informed of reasons for the decision.

The Lake Mary City Commission approved the most recent changes in the Comprehensive Plan during a February Commission meeting, and forwarded the document to the State for final approval.

"I haven't seen the specific reasons for their refusal yet," said City Planner Matt West, "but I feel certain it is not going to be anything serious. We should be able to resolve the problems in short order."

He observed, "The main issue, I suspect, is a difference between the County and City on the level of service standards for roads. The two are not the same, and we will probably have to alter ours to be compatible with the County plans."

Mayor Randy Morris also saw the difference in road standards as the probable cause for the decision. "If that is what the objection is," he commented, "it isn't something we are doing wrong and the County is doing right. It's just some minor differences." He added, "This is something we can clarify in short order."

Morris predicted, "With only a few minor administration changes I expect they will want, we should have this ready for Commission approval and re-submission within a couple of weeks."

The announcement of the rejection was made by the State Department of Community Affairs, which will forward the decision to the Division of Administrative Hearings for scheduling of an administrative hearing.

The purpose of the hearing will be to present evidence and testimony and forward a recommended order to the Administration Commission.

Inflation

The past few years have seen the popping of a lot of the bubbles of the 1980s: junk bonds, leveraged buyouts, art, commercial real estate. Now comes news of another collapse: baseball cards.

This may surprise those whose only acquaintance with baseball cards dates to the 1950s or '60s. In those days, kids stashed baseball cards in shoe boxes, took a few minutes in the schoolyard to swap a Lew Burdette for a Johnny Temple and an Elston Howard, or casually flipped cards: Willie Mays against Frank Robinson, winner take all.

In the 1980s, money and the marketplace took over. Baseball's growing popularity triggered a new interest in collecting memorabilia, including old baseball cards. Because only a small portion of the cards printed in earlier decades had survived, the value of older cards soared as interest increased.

Soon there were dozens of card shows around the country, baseball card shops in shopping centers and national publications with pricing information.

The soaring prices for old cards, scrounged out of basements and garages, were easy to understand: not so the simultaneous run-up in prices for recent new cards.

The number of companies printing cards increased from one in 1980 to five by the end of the decade, and the number of cards printed ran upward toward 10 billion a year, but still prices increased. Defying economic logic, collectors, many of them youngsters, were paying $10 or more for a top rookie's photograph on a piece of cardboard even as 2 million identical cards were still rolling off the printing presses.

Now the bubble has burst. Collectors who bought and stashed sets of recent baseball cards find themselves sitting on merchandise worth only one-third of its retail value, Baseball Weekly reports. Many card dealers have stopped buying cards from the 1980s and collectors have turned to memorabilia such as old uniforms and autographed bats.

The broken bubble has taught a hard lesson in economics, but it has its bright side. With any luck, kids can go back to putting their baseball cards into shoe boxes instead of vaults and learn the old-time skills of card swapping.

Loosening red tape

It's a good thing President Bush has decided to start relaxing the regulatory squeeze.

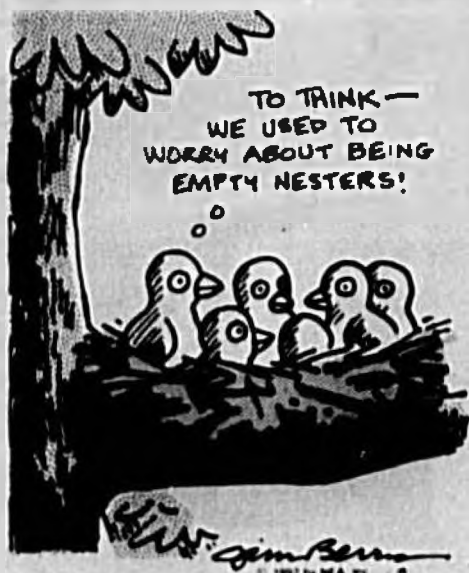

Plans were afoot to raise regulatory spending in fiscal 1992 to a record high of more than $13 billion.

More than 122,000 bureaucrats would have been devoting their efforts to regulating just about everything that anyone can imagine.

The red tape of regulation would have cost U.S. businesses nearly $185 billion. That is no way to treat a struggling economy.

A better way to treat a struggling economy is to loosen the regulations that stifle business activity. This was done in the early 1980s. What followed was the longest economic expansion in American history.

The real 'America First' debate

The front-page New York Times leak of an early draft of a Pentagon document has revealed that a serious "America First" candidate still may emerge. It is not Pat Buchanan. It is George Bush. Which should offer a creative challenge to Bill Clinton and Paul Tsongas: Can either of them be "First-ier Than Thou?"

Buchanan's version of "America First" has offered a scared, small-minded, whining, sniveling, wimpy view of America in the world. It is a "first" only in the sense of who can scramble to the head of the line to grab goodies.

The Department of Defense report goes the other way: It is about how to keep America in global first place. It offers a plan that affirmatively answers the popular question: Will America remain No. 1?

At issue is the forthcoming bi-annual edition of "Defense Planning Guidance," the first since the end of the Cold War. It is being prepared under the direction of DOD Undersecretary for Policy Paul Wolfowitz, one of America's serious geopolitical thinkers. (A real Clausewitz is Wolfowitz.)

The journalistic genesis of the story is interesting. As described in The New York Times, "the document was provided ... by an official who believes this post-cold-war strategy debate should be carried out in the public domain." Ahem. That is usually code describing a liberal leaker who doesn't approve of a hard-line position.

But this preliminary draft deserves to be vetted, even with the Times' breathless hype characterizing a sober document.

As the Times puts it: "The classified document makes the case for a world dominated by one superpower ... America's political and military mission in the post-cold-war era will be to insure that no rival superpower is allowed to emerge ... With its focus on this concept of benevolent domination by one power, the Pentagon document articulates the clearest rejection to date of collective internationalism."

There will be great consternation about the document. Foreign statesmen, who privately pray that America will remain the sole stabilizing superpower, will profess shock. How else could a diplomat respond to a newspaper story that the United States wants "benevolent dominance?"

The Bush administration will also express shock — at the very idea of the leak of a preliminary internal document. They will say the final document is what counts, and that the final language will be more moderate than the characterizations of the leaked version.

But President Bush should not overly moderate the philosophy of the document. We do indeed want "a one-superpower-world." It can offer a global democratic situation friendly to our values, and with less threat from nuclear weapons and terrorism. As the document makes clear, we want to work constructively with our allies, but we also want selective freedom of action. We can now cut defense spending, but we ought to do it cautiously.

Not to pursue No. 1 status would be to abandon a historic opportunity offered only rarely, and to few nations.

The Democrats will be tempted to get the wrong way. Liberals faint at the sight of power.

This is the election year debate we deserve: how to make America first — in the world.

Can either of them be 'First-ier Than Thou?'

ELLEN GOODMAN

The workplace fails people

BOSTON — Somewhere on the evening news, in between stories of various disasters and ads for various bodily dysfunctions, there appears the airline pilot.

Well-paid but discontented. Handsome as the anchor man himself, but weary with his working man's lot.

The pilot in this commercial vignette has come to his stockbroker to plan for the future before his horizons are reduced to Pollident and Serenity.

He is in a rut — if there are ruts in the sky — going back and forth between Detroit and Minneapolis. Together he and his attractive financial planner chart a new route for his life: an escape route.

The ad has intrigued me, and not only as a break from the bran flakes. It comes on the heels of an ad last year by a brokerage house that featured a cinema verite chat between well-heeled and burned-out executives. Only one had planned for what they all wished to buy: freedom.

I assume that businesses which deal with money for a living know what customers want to do with their greenbacks. In this case, the financial planners are not promoting Mercedes and mountain-top retreats. Their message about what many prosperous people in American want is simple. They want out.

Admittedly, this is hardly a sentiment limited to the working well-off. Nor is it entirely new. It's in the heart of many a lottery-ticket buyer. But when the American success story is an exit line, something is going on.

A few years ago, when broadcaster Susan Stamberg was asked what she wanted to do next, she answered in one word, "less." At the time I thought it was a wonderfully eccentric response. Now it is becoming the norm.

Blame it on the declining American work ethic if you like, a creeping laziness in the culture. That seems to be the favorite tack of the Japanese. Most of them, we are repeatedly told, work six days a week. Half of them don't take their allotted vacation. Thousands also drop dead at their desks, victims of karoshi, death from overwork.

But I attribute this longing for the door to an enervating combination of burnout and alienation, of overwork and underappreciation, a paralyzed economy and a gridlocked generation.

The case for exhaustion is made most persuasively in "The Overworked American" where Juliet Schor chronicles the rise of work hours in the past 20 years. The average employed person is now on the job an additional 163 hours or a full month. Indeed, our friendly pilot is an exception: his hours are regulated by law.

Overwork is due in large part to the economics of the workplace. Costs — pensions and health insurance — have made it cheaper to pay fewer workers overtime than to hire more workers. The growing gap between the poor and the rich is also a gap between those who are out of work and those who are overworked. Choose one of the above.

In part, overwork is due to the economy of the '80s. The long slide left Americans working more hours for the same lifestyle. The sense of getting somewhere was replaced by the sense of the treadmill.

But alienation is not just a matter of hours. In the last year, I have heard an extraordinary number of stories about the atmosphere and attitudes in the workplace. Stories about simple callous mistreatment.

A decade of take-overs, mergers, downsizings and restructuring has had a very personal cost. It's turned legions of blue- and white-collar workers into dislocated refugees, the boat people of economic upheaval. Neither they, nor the survivors and witnesses are likely to put their loyalty into a corporation that deals with people as interchangeable digits.

At the same time that the economy has gone down, the demography has grown up. The baby-boom generation has met the mid-life crisis. Some are frustrated trying to balance overwork and family. Others at 40 see the slots at the top occupied by 45-year-olds. Where do you go when you can't go up? Out?

The pilot of our commercial plotline isn't yearning to lie on a beach. He wants to buy his own plane and fly people from one beach to another. In the fantasy department this is an aviator's equivalent to owning a country inn.

But the alienation of even those who are making it in America is quite real. It's not their work ethic that's gone awry. It's the work, the overwork, the lack of respect and the deteriorating relationship between worker and workplace. Until we deal with the people problem, this languishing economy can't fly. It can't even get off the ground.

The alienation of even those who are making it in America is quite real.

Hospitals probed about staff perks

WASHINGTON — While patients are digging deeper into their pockets to pay their hospital bills, some of their doctors are getting Club Med treatment thanks to hospital employee perks.

Hospitals across the country keep their employees happy with Mexican vacations, fashion shows and golf tournaments. At the same time, those hospitals are increasing their patient fees and are lobbying for higher Medicare reimbursement rates from the taxpayers.

The hospitals say rewarding employees with special perks is a sound way to do business. But our sources say that the expenses worried the Department of Health and Human Services enough to send its inspector general to investigate the non-medical overhead costs of some health-care organizations.

The results of that investigation will be unveiled March 18 in a hearing before the House Energy and Commerce Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee. The committee will learn that, in one case, a hospital spent more than $15,000 to buy turkeys for its employees at Thanksgiving.

That is just one expense from one of only four health-care organizations that the inspector general looked at. Investigators had questions about at least a third of the expenses they reviewed. Since the investigation just looked at a few hospitals, sources say the Health and Human Services Department's next step will be to require that all hospitals complete a self-assessment of their overhead expenses. The inspector general will then check up on a random sample.

Our reporter Allison Hawes obtained documents detailing the findings from the four health-care organizations that have already been investigated.

Three hospitals in the San Antonio area, all managed by the Humana health management organization, sponsored a golf and tennis tournament for the doctors who use those hospitals. The day-long event at an exclusive San Antonio club cost $7,592.58, including tennis lessons, liquor, gift certificates and sport towels for the players.

The inspector general also looked at Allied Management Services of Scranton, Pa., which runs rehabilitation hospitals and a nursing home. The company spent more than $7,000 on a mountain retreat for its top 19 executives last year. Allied says it was a goal-planning session. Last year, Allied also spent $7,097.74 on sweatshirts. In 1990, the company bought 1,460 turkeys for its employees, costing $15,423.23.

The audit at the Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia turned up a $3,143.30 charge for moving one doctor's 7,000 pounds of books and furniture, $300 for a fashion show on Secretary's Day, and $880 to send an employee on vacation in Cancun, Mexico. In the case of the trip, the employee had submitted a suggestion that hospital officials said would save them $42,000.

Spokesmen at the hospitals defended their expenses as the normal cost of doing business in the private sector, and are only a fraction of the cost of running a hospital. "Employees are the strength of our organization," an Allied spokesman said, adding that only $40,000 of the company's $62 million budget last year went to these morale programs.

The idea that a business could operate without perks for its employees is "puritanical," the Humana spokesman told us.

But the patients who suffer sticker shock when they get their bills, may not agree. And neither may the federal government, which is picking up an increasing share of those bills.

A hospital spent $15,000 to buy turkeys for its employees at Thanksgiving.

water facility. City Public Works Director Bill Temby said the city has recently received bids on the project, expected to cost about $140,000.

Temby said the water line project has been delayed due to the delays in the county's widening of Lake Mary Boulevard. Temby said the water lines can't be installed until the city knows where utilities would be buried and until construction begins.

County Engineer Jerry McCollum said the widening was delayed a year while the county waited for a resolution to the litigation with Florida Power Corp. over the issue of whether the city and county can force a utility company to bury their power lines for aesthetic reasons. The Florida Supreme Court said they could not.

FPC sued the city and county in June 1990, saying such a requirement would cost them — and their customers — billions of dollars if similar requirements were imposed throughout the state. The supreme court ruled in May 1991, a year later, that such a requirement would force utility companies to raise rates, a power solely invested in the Florida Public Service Commission.

The PSC does not allow the entire customer base of a utility to pay for locally-imposed requirements. The city subsequently decided to pay for the $1.3 million burial as part of a $3 million bond issue.

Ergonomics: Making the workplace fit the worker

By KAREN SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Make the tool fit the worker. Ergonomics. It hardly sounds revolutionary, but it's revolutionizing the workplace.

Chairs for proper posture, adjustable computer stations, assembly lines at the right height, and tools that don't vibrate seem sensible. Yet, 5 million Americans have injuries that stem from improper ergonomics, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health said.

"An ergonomic problem is as likely to get you as everything else put together," said Roger Stephens, head of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's ergonomic division.

Ergonomics has become a major workplace concern of the 1990s. Labor is demanding it, companies are implementing it, and governments are regulating it. And some are making a profit from the problem. As in all fields, snake-oil salesmen exist, but work is under way to accredit experts.

Automation speeds the pace of work, and repetition of an awkward or overextended motion can stress the hands, arms, back or legs. By the next decade, half of all workers will have jobs with the potential for repetitive-motion injury, NIOSH said.

In the past, a person using an old-fashioned typewriter, for instance, stopped typing to make corrections, change paper, and look up the spelling of a word. A person on a word processor has none of those built-in breaks.

The consequences of poor ergonomics can be debilitating.

Sandra Peddie was an assistant editor at New York Newsday in Long Island when a repetitive strain injury in her forearms forced her to take disability leave in 1990, she said.

"At my worst I couldn't lift up a teacup. I couldn't dress myself," said Peddie, 37. She said pain still prevents her from driving or turning doorknobs. She tried to go back to work on a voice-activated computer, but found it too painful.

Her case is extreme, but repetitive injuries in 1982 accounted for 21 percent of occupational illnesses. By 1990, they accounted for 56 percent, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

As a result, "Ergonomics is becoming an integral part of an overall safety program within a number of large companies," said Marilyn Joyce, president of the Joyce Institute, a Seattle-based ergonomics consultant. "Just as safety people have to deal with fire hazards or chemical hazards ... they now are having to look at the tools that people are using."

Textron Inc. implemented ergonomic changes in 1989 in hopes of reducing back injuries at plants that built helicopters and fasteners, said company spokesman Raymond W. Caine Jr. Safety and production supervisors also were trained to look for potential ergonomic hazards, he said.

A year into the program, the number of back injuries was down 10 percent and productivity increased in some cases, Caine said.

Toymaker Milton Bradley Co., started an ergonomics program for its employees in 1990.

"We want it to be a good environment for our workers and it's not a good environment if you have aches and pains because of what you're doing," said spokesman Mark Morris.

through offices, schools and other institutions because it's a quick, cheap way of moving memos through a central network.

E-mail has already cut short the game of telephone tag. But it's not just for staid inquiries like "How's that project coming along?" Today these desktop-to-desktop wires are teeming with office gossip and small talk.

Kiesler, a communications researcher at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, said electronic messengers use rougher language than they'd use in speech because they don't see the other person.

And it's good to keep in mind that e-mail's not private. Messengers tend to reassure themselves their computer chitchat disappears, but their records are probably being recorded on a disk or a printer somewhere, Kiesler said.

When things get out of hand, like the scooter driver's tantrum, it's known to hackers as "flaming."

"Usually it's foul language, the computer equivalent of screaming and throwing things. They don't have to look into the face of someone they're doing it to," said Brian Reid, technical director of the Network Systems Laboratory at Digital Equipment Corp. in Palo Alto, Calif.

He knows what it's like to be burned. Reid started using Internet, the worldwide network of academia and industry, to contact other aquarium enthusiasts who collect the rare fresh-water killing fish. But he stopped when jokes from hecklers began out-numbering constructive comments about the species.

County saves money by turning over wellfield protection project

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County will save about $41,500 by turning a wellfield protection project over to the St. Johns River Water Management District.

After the county hired a consulting firm in 1988 to prepare a state-required wellfield protection ordinance, the water management district began a program to offer free aid to cities and counties in the district with preparations for the ordinance.

County commissioners voted Tuesday to cancel the remainder of their $83,000 contract with Camp, Dresser and McKee and to "hire" the district to complete the job. The county has already spent about $41,500 of the original $83,000 CDM contract.

In 1988, Seminole County hired CDM to study how to prevent drinking water wells from becoming contaminated from pollutants. The protection ordinances, which have already been in effect in south Florida for several years are controversial because they restrict the types of development near the drinking water supplies.

As part of the duties under the $83,000 contract, CDM was to craft the "zones of influence" for each of the major unincorporated public water supply wells. A zone of influence is the area near a drinking water well which if contaminated, can pollute the drinking water supply.

The study was tabled until CDM completed their groundwater model of the county under another contract, said county natural resources planner Colleen Logan. That study, released in August, showed much of Seminole County's drinking water could be threatened with saltwater intrusion within 15 years if conservation measures aren't taken immediately.

Logan said the groundwater study would provide details of the underground water movement that would be used in the wellfield ordinance.

But after the water management district began offering wellfield protection services free of charge to cities and counties, the county decided to switch to them.

State files complaint

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The state has resumed its battle against Seminole County in an effort to block a convenience store from being built south of Lower Wekiva River State Preserve.

"The county still doesn't quite understand what it takes to protect a conservation area," said Jennifer McMurray, a biologist with the Florida Department of Natural Resources.

Monday, McMurray hand-delivered a complaint from the governor and Cabinet and DNR to county officials stating their approval of a convenience store south of State Road 46 and west of Longwood-Markham Road road failed to protect the nearby preserve and failed to comply with the state's 1988 Wekiva River Protection Act.

If the county fails to comply with the complaint's demand that the convenience store be blocked, the complaint declares the state may file suit against the county in Seminole County Circuit Court.

"We believe the governor and Cabinet are wrong," said assistant county attorney Linda Grool. "We believe the county commission acted sensitively in approving the store with the gasoline pumps and the rustic design."

The battle began three years ago. In April 1989, the state Department of Community Affairs filed a complaint with then-Gov. Bob Martinez and the Cabinet stating the county's 1987 commercial land use designation for the site did not offer adequate protection to the preserve and comply with the river protection law.

In July 1991, the Fifth District Court of Appeals sided with the county and agreed it could offer adequate protections under a commercial land use.

When commissioners finally approved the rezoning for the store Dec. 10, they placed stringent restrictions on the convenience store, prohibiting gasoline pumps, requiring a 9 p.m. closing and requiring a "rustic" design.

McMurray said of the 70-odd commercial activities allowed under the county's commercial land-use designation, only a billboard would have the same or less impact than a home as required under the protection act.

county's Republicans voted for Buchanan, compared to a 32 percent showing statewide with 99 percent of the state's 4,750 precincts reporting.

Streetman said Seminole County residents tend to be more conservative than elsewhere in the state, which may account for the larger number of "message" votes for Buchanan.

"In November, they'll be voting for the president, so I think they'll be voting for Bush," he said.

Gilmartin said county voters are better educated than many other populations of the state which may account for the higher turnout for Tsongas than Clinton. National polls have shown Tsongas supporters tend to be better educated and have higher-paying jobs than Clinton supporters.

Tsongas received a total of 38.6 percent of Seminole County's Democratic vote, compared to 38.1 percent of the votes going for Clinton. Statewide, Clinton received 52 percent of the vote compared to 34 percent for Tsongas.

But Clinton apparently lost much of his Seminole County support to former California governor Brown. Nearly 22 percent of the county's Democrats

Presidential primary

Clinton wins state; Bush sweeps Buchanan

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Bill Clinton's Florida victory provides an immediate boost to his bid for the presidential nomination, while also raising some state Democratic leaders' hopes for November.

"Although Florida is geographically the southernmost state, in terms of who Florida is, it's a microcosm of the country," said U.S. Sen. Bob Graham, part of state Democratic leaders' strong push for Clinton. "The fact that he did so well in Florida is evidence that he is a national candidate. It's going to give him a strong surge."

President Bush also took Florida, easily vanquishing conservative rival Patrick Buchanan in a state that Buchanan had virtually conceded in advance of Tuesday's voting.

With 4,691 of 4,759 precincts, or 96 percent, reporting unofficial returns, Clinton had 562,547 votes, or 51 percent, to Tsongas' 379,472 votes, or 34 percent. Jerry Brown had 137,054 votes, or 12 percent, while dropouts Tom Harkin and Bob Kerrey were each polling about 1 percent.

In an unofficial delegate count, Clinton had 87 Florida delegates secured, Tsongas 58, and Brown three.

Bush was winning more than two-thirds of the vote, while sweeping the 97 delegates.

State GOP chairman Van Poole and Jeb Bush, the president's son and campaign head in the state, said Buchanan should end his challenge now.

"I think he (Buchanan) is unraveling," Poole said. "I think for the good of the party, Pat ought to step aside, particularly as he approaches the numbers where it's mathematically impossible."

Some Florida Republicans said they voted for Buchanan to send Bush a message, and Buchanan's backers said his showing was significant in a state that has been a Bush stronghold.

Tsongas had hoped to use diverse Florida to prevent a Clinton sweep of the South, and polls indicated the race was close in its final weeks.

But the Arkansas governor broke away in the final days and enjoyed strong support from a cross-section of voters, including blacks, conservative Democrats and retirees.

"Clinton had seized control of the debate in Florida," said Robert Joffe, Mason-Dixon's Florida poll director. Clinton had highlighted Tsongas' suggestion that entitlement cost-of-living adjustments be limited, and hinted Tsongas wasn't strong enough on Israel. "Tsongas was on the defensive in those final days."

Brown, who barely campaigned in Florida, captured crucial votes that may have gone to Tsongas, Joffe added.

Tsongas spokesman Todd Simmons noted that the former Massachusetts senator put together his Florida effort largely in the last weeks.

What keeps Buchanan going? Maybe he's having fun

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Mainstream Republican leaders are leaning on challenger Patrick Buchanan to abandon the race before his ideological crusade wounds the Grand Old Party.

President Bush has won every contest — eight on Super Tuesday — but Buchanan claims victory of a different sort. And he vows to stay put.

With his hard-line conservative crusade, Buchanan already has succeeded in pushing Bush to the right, even prompting the president to renounce the 1990 deficit-reduction agreement in which he gave up on his no-new-taxes pledge.

So, with no hope of winning the nomination, why doesn't Buchanan give up?

Buchanan supplied a defiant answer as he arrived in Dearborn, Mich., to challenge

Bush next Tuesday in that state and in Illinois.

"He (Bush) is winning votes, but we have been winning the hearts of the American people, and we're going to continue to do so," Buchanan said.

Making clear that he is waging an ideological battle for the heart of the GOP, Buchanan told cheering supporters. "We have torn away one third of the Republican Party from the national establishment for good."

Super Tuesday gave Bush convincing victories in eight states, mostly in the South, adding to the seven primary and caucus victories earlier.

"For all practical purposes, President Bush has won the nomination," White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater declared.

"We are winners again tonight," Bush said.

Can Clinton hang on? Can Bush sharpen up?

By JILL LAWRENCE
AP Political Writer

Analysis

WASHINGTON — Southern Democrats came through for Bill Clinton in a big way on Super Tuesday. And if he wins his party's nomination, they may even stick with him this fall instead of defecting, as usual, to the Republican candidate.

President Bush also won big in the South, keeping challenger Patrick Buchanan to less than a third of the vote in eight GOP contests. But Bush is still dogged by the impression he can't define his candidacy or control his party.

If Clinton can defeat Paul Tsongas in Illinois and Michigan next week, he'll be widely viewed as unstoppable — and Democrats will have party unity that Republicans can only dream about if Buchanan keeps his vow to stay in the race until the California primary in June.

Clinton, the Arkansas governor, started his campaign as an establishment centrist but sounded increasingly like a liberal populist as Super Tuesday drew near. The shift paid off with overwhelming support from whites, blacks and Hispanics; he also did well with union members and low-income voters.

Democrats haven't carried the South in a presidential election since Georgian Jimmy Carter swept the region in 1976, the last time the Democrats won the White House.

"Clinton brings the traditional Democratic coalition. He would make it significantly more difficult for Bush to win in the South," said Republican pollster Neil Newhouse.

Bush's 70-percent showings against an acerbic protest candidate came as a poll showed his approval rating at 39 percent and his chances against Clinton or Tsongas no better than even — a worrisome and unusual situation for an incumbent.

These aren't nameless

Democrats. They're individuals whose weaknesses and failings have been publicized for months, and the ABC-Washington Post poll suggests voters are starting to see them as viable alternatives to Bush.

Republicans are beginning to understand that Bush's real problem is neither Buchanan nor the lagging economy, but the way voters perceive him. Their task is to convince an electorate yearning for change that Bush can be the agent of change.

Tsongas, meanwhile, has a difficult week ahead. The former Massachusetts senator goes into Michigan and Illinois with scant money, organization or momentum despite victories Tuesday in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Delaware.

He'll find Rust Belt competition not only from Clinton but also from former California Gov. Jerry Brown, who didn't win any Super Tuesday contests but appeals to some liberals and labor voters.

And Tsongas faces another problem. He has to get his halo back.

His appeal in early contests stemmed largely from his image as an un-politician — someone who had specific ideas and stuck with them, even if they were not popular. But Tsongas attacked and counter-attacked Clinton as aggressively as any other politician in a bitter Super Tuesday finale.

Tsongas said he had to fight, and maybe he did. But in the process he lost his aura of purity, strayed from his economic themes and forgot to remind voters that probusiness doesn't have to mean anti-compassion.

Even if Tsongas had stuck with the formula that worked in New Hampshire, Maryland and a few other states, his mission in the South was near impossible.

KNOWING THIS SIMPLE MATH CAN BRING YOU CLOSER TO COLLEGE.

Officially, it's the Montgomery GI Bill Plus the Army College Fund.

What counts is that it's the way to earn $25,200 for college during a standard Army enlistment, if you qualify.

The first $1,200 is from you — $100 set aside each month during your first year in the Army.

The government adds another $9,600 and the Army contributes $14,400 more to give you a total of $25,200 for higher education — free and clear.

You'll also leave the Army with new self-confidence and the ability to handle responsibility — qualities that will give you an edge in school and for the rest of your life.

Oldest American site confirmed

MEDINA, Ohio — Carbon-dating showed that post holes and pits uncovered at a construction site are 12,000 years old, making them the oldest evidence of structures in North America, archeologists said.

The site is about five miles west of Akron in northeast Ohio. It was uncovered in 1990.

Carbon-dating put the structure at about 10,200 B.C., said David Brose, chief curator of archeology at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History.

Until the discovery, the oldest known structure in North America dated back 8,200 years. Those post holes were found in the Illinois River Valley in the 1960s, he said.

One congressman wrote 996 bad checks

WASHINGTON — Many account holders took advantage of a generous overdraft policy at the House bank, including the sergeant-at-arms who ran the facility and one lawmaker who wrote 996 bad checks, an ethics report says.

"The longstanding practice of the House bank in honoring overdrafts on members' accounts was unwise and should have been discontinued years ago," the House ethics committee said.

The committee's majority report, obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press, said the defunct bank's no-penalty policy for overdrafts was unknown to some House members.

But "many others knew about it and took full advantage" of the policy, the report said. "It ultimately brought discredit to all members and, most seriously, to the House as an institution."

Medicinal marijuana users dismayed

WASHINGTON — Jim Barnes and Tim Braun say they feel betrayed by a federal government that reneged on its promise to provide free, legal marijuana to ease their suffering from AIDS.

"We've gone through all the hoops," Barnes, 36, said Tuesday from his home on Michigan's upper peninsula, referring to his own efforts and those of his doctor. "We've acted in good faith."

The Food and Drug Administration, Barnes said, "agreed with our reasons. So where is the problem? They don't have any grounds to stand on."

In Minneapolis, 44-year-old Braun said the government's decision to deny the marijuana had been "made by some bozos that don't get their fat duffs out of the office and ask doctors who work with patients like this, talk to the patients who are using it, talk to the families and friends that see the difference."

Iraq wants U.N. sanctions removed

UNITED NATIONS — Iraq's top envoy is pleading for an easing of crippling U.N. sanctions but has found little sympathy from U.N. officials, who say their findings show that Baghdad continues to defy cease-fire accords.

Tariq Aziz, Iraq's deputy prime minister, was to appear before the Security Council today to answer charges that Iraq is hiding weapons and ignoring other provisions of the cease-fire that ended the Persian Gulf war.

But Aziz — the chief Iraqi spokesman during the Persian Gulf crisis — is expected to argue that the government of Saddam Hussein is making good faith efforts to meet U.N. demands and should be rewarded with at least a partial lifting of economic sanctions.

Iditarod front-runner nears finish

NOME, Alaska — Swiss-born musher Martin Buser pushed toward a record finish — and a $50,000 prize — in the grueling, 1,199-mile Iditarod Trail dog sled race today.

Buser, who finished second last year, raced along the frozen Bering Sea coast. Race officials expected him to reach Nome about 1 a.m. — or 5 a.m. EST — and become the first person to finish the Anchorage-to-Nome trek in under 11 days.

Buser, 33, of Big Lake, left the checkpoint at White Mountain, 77 miles from Nome, Tuesday afternoon after a mandatory eight-hour rest.

'60 Minutes' and CBS keep winning

LOS ANGELES — The derring-do of "The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles" failed to dislodge "60 Minutes" from the top ratings spot, but it did help ABC pull into second place behind CBS.

The ABC adventure series, based on the hit movie trilogy, placed 10th last week in the ratings, the A.C. Nielsen Co. reported Tuesday.

Overall, CBS had a 13 rating, ABC a 12.9 and NBC a 12. Each ratings point represents 921,000 homes.

CBS' "60 Minutes" was the most-watched show on television last week, followed by ABC's "Roseanne."

In network news, ABC scored another victory, this time with a 10.7 rating. CBS had a 9.1 and NBC an 8.8.

Cole wins Soul Train trophies

By YUMI L. WILSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Natalie Cole's tribute to her late father, "Unforgettable," and newcomers Color Me Badd won two honors each at Tuesday's sixth annual Soul Train Music Awards.

Miss Cole, who also was this year's top Grammy winner and won American Music and NAACP Image awards, added Soul Train trophies for best R&B-soul album of the year for a female artist and best jazz album.

The vocal quartet Color Me Badd's "I Wanna Sex You Up" garnered Soul Train honors for R&B-soul song of the year and best single by a group, band or duo.

Luther Vandross won R&B-soul album of the year for male artist with his "Power of Love," and gospel sensations BeBe and CeCe Winans won top gospel album for "Different Lives."

The hip-hop smash Boyz II Men was named best new R&B-soul artist on the strength of the group's single, "It's So Hard to Say Goodbye." The vocal quartet Jodeci's "Forever My Lady" won the Soul Train award for R&B-soul album of the year by a group, band or duo.

Keith Washington's "Kissing You" was named best male R&B-soul single. Debut artist Lisa Fischer had the best female single with "How Can I Ease the Pain."

"Public Enemy's 'Apocalypse 91... The Enemy Strikes Black' was voted best rap album of the year. Rapper Hammer's "Too Legit to Quit" was named best R&B blues-soul music video.

Singer-composer Prince received the Heritage Award for career achievement following a serenade tribute by Patti LaBelle, Stephanie Mills and Rosie Gaines.

"You know sometimes I'm criticized for going too fast and trying to say too much," the flashy Prince said. "But I try and speak when I'm spoken to and with your support I'll speak a little bit more."

Janel Jackson received the Sammy Davis Jr. Award an entertainer of the year. Her brother, Michael Jackson, was shut out for soul-R&B single by a male and best video for "Black or White."

The two-hour celebration of black-oriented music was broadcast from the Shrine Auditorium by Tribune Entertainment Co. on independent television stations nationwide. Some markets will broadcast the show later in the week.

"Unforgettable," which revived Miss Cole's career, was a change in styles for the singer, who has dabbled in rock, jazz and R&B in a career dating to the mid-1970s.

A tribute to her father, Nat "King" Cole, it is a collection of pop standards he recorded years ago. For the title cut, Miss Cole used modern-day recording wizardry to sing a duet with her father, who died in 1965.

The album also won seven Grammys and two American Music awards, and Miss Cole received three Image awards

Senators offer tax amendments, Bush veto seen

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON — Senators are lining up pet amendments to tack onto a Democratic middle-income tax cut that is destined to be vetoed by President Bush.

One amendment would substitute the president's version of a middle-income tax cut, even though he has asked that action on it be delayed until a short-term plan to stimulate the economy can be passed. Some Republicans are planning to offer Bush's proposed $500-per-child increase in the personal exemption.

The higher exemption would be less beneficial to lower-income families than would the $300-per-child tax credit that is in the heart of the Democratic plan. But the GOP amendment would use spending reductions rather than tax increases on the wealthy to pay for the tax cut.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., who chairs the Senate Aging Committee, was leading off the parade of amendments with one designed to slow the rise in drug prices. His plan, on which a vote was scheduled today, would reduce special tax benefits for drug manufacturers whose prices rise faster than the general rate of inflation.

Leaders hope the bill can be passed this week, clearing the way for Congress to find a compromise with a similar House-passed version and get it to Bush by the March 20 deadline he set for action.

But the president emphasized anew Tuesday that he will veto the Democratic bill, which would cut taxes for 31 million families, because it would raise taxes on the wealthiest 800,000 Americans.

FCCAA honors SCC's Nason

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — The honors just keep coming. If Seminole Community College basketball player Brian Nason collects many more awards, he's going to have to build a new trophy case.

The latest honor is the best yet as the sophomore guard was named the Florida Community College Athletic Association's Player of the Year in a vote of the state's junior college coaches during the state tournament in Bradenton last weekend.

Nason helped his own cause as he scored 15 points in just 20 minutes of play in the North South All-Star game last Saturday in front of the coaches. The all-star game was made up of other all-conference players whose teams did not make the state tournament field.

Saturday ended up being a big day for the Mid-Florida

Conference, of which SCC is a member, as Daytona Beach Community defeated Florida Community College at Jacksonville in the state finals to give the conference its first state championship since 1970.

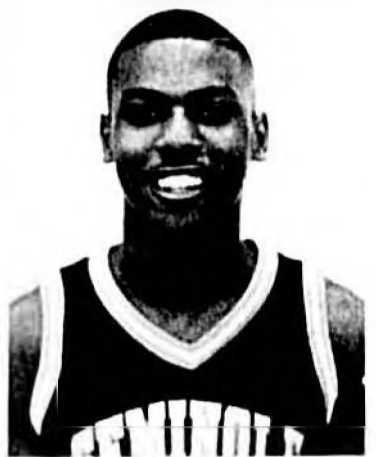

The FCCAA award gives Nason from Memphis, Tenn., a clean sweep of the coaches awards. Late last month, he was voted the Mid-Florida Conference Player of the Year.

Nason also received the Sanford-Seminole Jayvee's Junior College Scholar Athlete of the Year award Tuesday afternoon (see related story, Page 3B).

The 6-foot, 4-inch shooting guard should have at least one more honor coming his way as he will almost undoubtedly will be named a junior college All-American.

After leading the Raiders in scoring and being named to the Mid-Florida Conference All-Freshman team last year everyone knew Nason could score.

But this year he came back and proved he was an excellent all-around player as he averaged 23.7 points, 5.5 rebounds, 3.9 assists and 1.6 steals per game this year. He also took a team high 11 charges, blocked nine shots and averaged playing 37 of a possible 40 minutes per game.

Greyhounds upset Patriots

By TONY DeSORMIER

LONGWOOD — It may not have the same ring as "Tinkers to Evers to Chance," but the combination of Godkisz to Bishop to Acy was the difference in Lyman's 7-6 upset win over Lake Brantley in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' softball game Tuesday afternoon.

The Greyhounds, who crease a longjam atop the SAC standings, currently Lyman (4-3 overall) and Lake Brantley (8-3) are tied with Lake Mary and Lake Howell for first place with 2-1 conference marks. Oviedo is 1-2 in the SAC while Seminole is 0-3.

Trailing 7-4 entering the seventh inning, Lake Brantley's Julie Helmers drew a one-out walk and Marcy Bolton reached on an error. After a pinch hitter lined out to third baseman Anitra Campbell, Patriot

CASSELBERRY — Not a bad time to explode.

In search of the Seminole Athletic Conference championship, the Lake Howell girls softball team destroyed conference opponent Oviedo 14-0 Tuesday afternoon at Lake Howell.

"I hope this is the way we hit throughout the season," said Lake Howell head coach Jo Luciano. "We came out early and put our hits back to back. We've been knocking on the door, and today we came through. We need to hit this way to stay in contention for the conference championship."

The victory combined with Lyman's upset of Lake Brantley, put Lake Howell in a four way tie for first in the SAC with Lyman, Lake Brantley and Lake Mary.

Winning pitcher Dawn Lowe (7-2) continued to shine at the plate, going 3-for-3 with a double. Also

While Pam Davis was the only Lake Mary base runner to get thrown out (above) Tuesday against Seminole, coach Jeannie Fischer and assistant Kim Averill felt that the Rams didn't take full advantage of their opportunities.

LAKE MARY — Sometimes win isn't enough.

The Lake Mary High School varsity softball team edged Seminole 4-2 in a Seminole Athletic Conference contest at Lake Mary Tuesday afternoon. But Lake Mary head coach Jeannie Fischer and assistant Kim Averill were far from happy. In fact, from their expressions, you would have thought they had lost.

"Our base running wasn't real good," said Fischer.

"That's a mild understatement," added Averill.

The Rams only had one runner thrown out on the bases but the coaches felt that the girls should have been more aggressive.

"We were terrible on the basepaths," said Fischer. "We should have scored a lot more runs. Early in the game, we were getting

High-scoring games throw league into three-way tie

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Close, high scoring games were the story of the night in Sanford Recreation Department Men's Tuesday Night Polar Bear Softball League action at Chase Park.

The wild night found AAA Tree Service score four runs in the bottom of the seventh to edge Sanford Boat Works 12-11. Ripside score five runs in the bottom of the sixth to outscore E-Z GO 22-20 and Ameribull overcame a huge early deficit to defeat Russel Brothers Aluminum 13-11.

Ripside's victory threw the league into a three-way tie for the top spot at 5-3 among Ripside, E-Z GO and Ameribull with two make up weeks remaining. Russel Brothers Aluminum is just a game back at 4-4, followed by Sanford Boat Works (3-5) and AAA Tree Service (2-6).

Tuesday's games were supposed to conclude the regular season, but two weeks were rained out. A make up schedule will be announced today.

Pacing the AAA Tree Service offense were Curtis Baggett (triple, two singles, two runs), Steve Woodley (double, two singles), Wes Linksley (three singles, two runs), Harry Walker (Randy Rawlings and Lee Hood (two singles and two runs each), Brantley Brimley

Washingtons, Nason lauded by Jaycees

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Shawn and Niki Washington and Brian Nason were named Student-Athlete of the Year Award winners at the Second Annual Sanford-Seminole Jaycees Player of the Week Basketball Awards Banquet held at The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon.

The brother and sister duo earned the awards for Seminole High School's boys and girls teams while Nason was named for Seminole Community College's men's team.

The trio received the awards for their performance in the classroom as well as on the basketball court.

The Jaycees started sponsoring the weekly basketball award in the fall of 1990 to help promote the club and give special recognition to the accomplishments of the athletes at Seminole High School and Seminole Community College.

A group of 50 people, including players, coaches, family, friends and Jaycees officers packed the Chamber meeting room and were treated to a pizza dinner before Jaycees President Brent Adamson and Vice-President David Russel presented plaques to the winners of the weekly Sanford-Seminole Jaycees Player of the Week awards and the Student-Athlete Award winners.

After the awards ceremonies, the weekly winners and Jaycees officers went to the Denver Nuggets and Orlando Magic game at the Orlando Arena.

Among recipients of plaques were Shawn Washington, J.J. Wiggins, Robert Redding and Demetrius Lomax from head coach Bill Klein's Seminole boys team.

Nikki Washington (five weekly awards), Kayla Alexander (two weeks), Kay Kay Mullins, Kim Jones and Tannahia Eason (two) from head coach John McNamara's Seminole girls squad.

Lyman

lead-off hitter Tania Diaz ripped a shot that got past the Lyman left-centerfielder and rolled to the fence.

Helmers and Holton scored. While Lyman right-centerfielder Andrea Godzias retrieved the ball, Diaz, who wears the nickname "Blur" on her jersey, was waved on by Lake Brantley head coach Remy Betris. Godzias made the throw to shortstop Michelle Blahop, whose relay to catcher Wendi Acey, beat Diaz by two steps.

"This was a huge win for us," said an elated Christy Tibbits, Lyman's first-year head coach.

The win was particularly important for the Greyhounds after what Tibbits and the team considered a subpar performance against Lake Mary their last time out.

"The girls have stuck together really well," said Tibbits, who added that her team was a little more mentally prepared Tuesday. "When you play Lake Brantley, everybody's looking to knock them off. That and the girls felt that they had to redeem themselves, in their own minds, after the other day."

"The other day," Lyman committed 11 errors and only had eight hits in a loss to Lake Mary. On Tuesday, the Greyhounds made just four errors and had 11 hits, three for extra bases.

"We hit the ball really well," said Tibbits. "The funny thing is, we haven't been working on our hitting. After making that many errors in one game, we've been concentrating on our defense in practice."

According to Betris, the game was an example of what can happen in the SAC if a team, even the defending champion, doesn't come ready to play.

"We looked like the top of the world against Lake Howell last Thursday," said Betris. "Today, we made several errors and only had three people who hit the ball hard. A different day, a different game."

"Slowpitch softball is a hitter's game. You have to minimize walks and errors. You must not walk people and you must not make errors if your expect to win. Today, we made a couple errors and miscommunicated on defense twice, letting balls drop in."

Lake Mary

our leadoff batter on base and weren't able to score. We were brain-dead."

The coaching staff was also displeased with the fact that of the 26 Lake Mary hitters that came to the plate, 11 flew out.

Despite the problems, the Rams still had more than enough for the Tribe as pitcher Tiffany Deeb held Seminole scoreless until the seventh inning.

Lake Mary scored single runs in the first and fourth innings and added two runs in the fifth inning to lead 4-0.

The Tribe's runs came when Argie Walker, with a runner on first base, ripped a single to left that was misplayed for a three-base error, allowing both runners to score. It was the eighth time this season that Walker had circled the bases on a hit.

"That play was definitely an error," said Seminole head coach Greg Register of Walker's hit. "Argie has five legitimate home runs this year and three after errors."

Elizabeth Davidson went 3-for-3 with two triples, two runs scored and an RBI to lead the Rams' offense. Also contributing were Kelli Woodall (2-for-3, RBI), Diane Duber (1-for-3, RBI), Karen Pinkney, Robin Dazey, Jenny Longstaff and Laurel Meoli (all 1-for-2) and Angela Snow and Pamela Davis (both 1-for-3). Deeb was the winning pitcher, raising her record to 6-2 on the season.

Walker, Nakia Riggins and Rita Frison were all 2-for-3 for Seminole. Jill Jawewick suffered the loss, dropping her record to 6-6.

Lake Mary's win throws the Rams into a four-way tie for first place in the Seminole Athletic Conference at 2-1 with Lake Brantley, Lake Howell and Lyman. Overall, Lake Mary is 6-2. The Rams will play two more home games this week, hosting Mainland at 4 p.m. today before hosting Lake Brantley in a big SAC game Thursday, also at 4 p.m.

Seminole fell to 6-6 overall and 0-3 in the conference with the loss. The Tribe will also play a pair of home games today and Thursday as they host Bishop Moore at 3:30 p.m. today and SAC foe Lake Howell Thursday at 4 p.m. Both games will be played at Ft. Mellon Park.

Lake Howell

leading Lake Howell were Sherry Green (2-for-3, two triples, three RBIs), Shannon McDowell (2-for-2, home run, two RBIs), and Kristy York and Joy Joseph (2-for-3 each).

Lake Howell established the tone early by scoring nine first-inning runs on 12 hits. The Silver Hawks added two runs in the second and three in the third. After that, they relied on an error-free defense to end the game after five innings on the slaughter rule.

On Thursday, Lake Howell (7-2 overall, 2-1 in the SAC continues its quest by facing conference opponent Seminole at Sanford's Fort Mellon Park at 4 p.m.

"Seminole continues to improve," said Luciano. "They've got a great, knowledgeable, enthusiastic coach (Greg Register) who keeps them fired up. We're going to come in there and play as well as we can."

Thai cuisine boasts mix of flavors

By AILEEN CLAWE
NEA Food Editor

You may have seen a Thai restaurant in a city or a town somewhere in the United States. Or you may know about Thai cuisine from the experiences of vacationing friends and/or military relatives. But if not, you should get to know the food of Thailand, a southeastern Asian country, for it's fast becoming a familiar and popular choice of both young and old here in America.

It is an artful blending of sweet, sour, salty and spicy flavors, often in the same dish. Rice is a staple for accompanying a typical meal of soup, fish or meat, and a raw vegetable salad served with a spicy sauce. Fresh fruits, such as pineapple and mango, are served chilled as dessert; sweet snacks are also usually eaten after a meal.

Basic ingredients for a typical Thai dish include hot chilies, garlic, lime, lemon grass, mint, fish sauce, cilantro and ginger. In addition, a variety of curried dishes are favorites of the Thai. Stir-frying in a wok and grilling over a small charcoal stove are traditional methods of preparing hot dishes.

Chicken goes well with a blend of Thai-inspired seasonings to make a salad or stir-fry with intriguing flavors.

THAI CHICKEN SALAD

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cooked, skinned and cut into thin shreds
1 cucumber, peeled, seeded and shredded
2 cups fresh bean sprouts
2 fresh green chilies, seeded and shredded
1/2 small red onion, sliced thinly and broken into rings
1 tablespoon fresh ginger, shredded

ARTFUL BLENDING of seasonings gives chicken dishes a Thai touch.

Lime-mint dressing (recipe follows)
1/2 cup fresh cilantro (roots, stems, leaves), chopped
1/4 cup peanuts, chopped

Make Lime-Mint dressing first and set aside. In large bowl, mix together chicken and cucumber. In another bowl, mix together bean sprouts, chilies, onion and ginger. If not serving immediately, cover and refrigerate ingredients. At serving time, stir together Lime-Mint Dressing, chicken-cucumber mixture, bean sprout mixture and cilantro in large bowl. Sprinkle with chopped peanuts and serve. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4-6 servings.

*Lime-Mint Dressing: Mix together 1/4 cup fresh lime juice, 3 tablespoons fish sauce, 2 tablespoons vegetable oil, 5 teaspoons sugar, 1 tablespoon chopped mint leaves, 2 cloves garlic (minced) and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Stir until sugar dissolves.

MINT AND GINGER CHICKEN

1 1/2 pounds boneless chicken breast, cut into 1/2-inch cubes
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons fish sauce
2 tablespoons dark soy sauce, divided

Self-taught cook experiments

Wife, mom, linguist is reducing fat in recipes

By DEBORAH YIMLING
Herald Correspondent

GENEVA — Cook of the Week Debbie Cole is proficient in the kitchen now but when she and her husband first got married she confesses that he did most of the cooking.

"I really enjoy it (cooking) now. I have more time now," Cole, a Geneva resident, says.

She had worked for the Department of Defense as a Russian linguist until she resigned after the birth of their second child.

Cole says that she is mostly a self-taught cook who prefers Southern cooking. Home made biscuits, fried chicken, dumplings and gravy are some of her specialties.

She enjoys casual entertaining and likes to prepare buffet dishes in advance. She follows the same rule for meal preparation and makes dishes in batches and freezes them for future use.

"Even in everyday life I try to prepare things ahead of time because even though I like to cook there are many days when things are hectic and I don't have time to cook so I like to have something in the freezer to fall back on," she says. "It's just as easy to make five meatloaves as it is to one."

Cole experiments with recipes and different ingredients. She suggests trying fresh, sweet basil in potato salad.

She also likes to collect kitchen gadgets even though she often finds that they don't always work.

"I had a little meatball maker. I gave it to a friend. It was more trouble than it was worth."

Like so many concerned cooks today, Cole is trying to reduce the amount of fat in her family's meals.

"It's hard to realize how much fat there is in your diet until you start being concerned with it. You really have no idea. Like with a muffin. If you don't put butter on it you think you're being good but there's an awful lot of fat in it."

FOOD & NUTRITION

Cole has developed her own fat free muffin recipes. "I tried desperately to find some recipes for good fat free muffins. I thought there must be some way to make them at home."

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

1 1/2 cups flour
4 Tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1 cup nonfat yogurt, plain or blueberry flavored
3 Tbsp. reduced calorie margarine, melted
2 egg whites
1/2 cup fresh blueberries
1/2 tsp. cinnamon

Mix all ingredients by hand just until well blended. Spoon mixture into prepared muffin pans and bake at 400 degrees for 18 to 20 minutes. Each muffin contains less than two grams of fat.

Cole suggests the following variation on the above recipe for apple muffins: Eliminate yogurt and margarine. Add 1 cup applesauce and 1/2 cup chopped apples. Prepare and bake according to instructions for Blueberry Muffins. This variation has no fat.

Cole likes to prepare a large batch of muffins and freeze some for a quick breakfast.

CARROT CAKE MUFFINS

1 cup flour
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 cup quick oatmeal, not instant
1 Tbsp. baking powder

Debbie Cole enjoys fat-free muffins from an original recipe.

1/2 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup finely grated carrots
1 cup dark raisins
2 egg whites
1 cup skim milk
1/2 cup drained, crushed pineapple

1/4 cup applesauce
Stir by hand to mix well. Spoon into prepared muffin pans. Bake at 400 degrees for 18 to 20 minutes. These muffins are fat free.

Cole contributed the following recipe to the cookbook "When the Master Gardener Cooks." The recipe is a reflection of her Maryland heritage.

MOCK CRAB CAKES

1 lb. zucchini (2 medium) peeled, coarsely grated
2 tsp. Old Bay seasoning
1 Tbsp. chopped parsley
1 egg, beaten
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 Tbsp. mayonnaise
1 Tbsp. baking powder
2 slices bread

Squeeze juice from grated zucchini, drain well. Break bread into small pieces and just moisten with milk. Mix all ingredients, shape into cakes. Roll in fine dry bread crumbs if desired. Fry in butter until lightly browned. Serves four to six.

Join in on the Irish food fun this St. Patrick's Day

It's great to join in on the fun of St. Patrick's Day. The eating of corned beef and cabbage, which isn't Irish, green beer, and many other green foods. All add to the festivities.

Potatoes are a staple of the Irish diet. They have them every day, no matter what else they serve. Several weeks ago (Feb. 26) this column had recipes for potatoes, some were traditionally Irish. American food fare to celebrate can include this boiled dinner.

CORNEBEEF AND CABBAGE

2 1/2-3 lbs. corned beef round or brisket with seasoning packet
1 1/2 cups water
3 medium carrots, peeled and cut into thin strips
2 large unpeeled potatoes, cut into eighths
1 medium head of cabbage, cut into sixths

Place corned beef, contents of packet, water and carrots in 3-qt. casserole. Cover tightly. Microwave on 100 percent power 7-8 minutes or until water boils. Reduce power to 50 percent power. Microwave for 30 minutes. Turn meat over. Add potatoes and top with cabbage. Re-cover. Microwave 30-45 minutes or until vegetables are tender.

Let stand, covered, 10 minutes. To serve, carve corned beef diagonally across the grain in thin slices.

The fish that you will find served most often in Ireland is salmon. It is fresh, sweet and readily available. Continue to celebrate Ireland with this micro-steamed salmon served with a cucumber-dill sauce.

STEAMED SALMON

4 salmon steaks, about 1 pound
4 cup dry white wine
1 onion, thinly sliced
1 lemon, thinly sliced
Freshly ground pepper

Arrange salmon steaks in a single layer in a shallow 2-quart casserole, thinner portions toward the inside. Pour wine over the steaks, sprinkle with pepper, and layer the onion and lemon slices over the fish. Cover with wax paper and microwave on 100 percent power 6-8 minutes, or until salmon flakes easily. Serve hot or cold with Cucumber-Dill Sauce.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

CUCUMBER-DILL SAUCE

1 medium cucumber, peeled, seeded and thinly sliced
2 Tbsp. mayonnaise
1/2 cup sour cream
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 tsp. fresh dill, or 1/4 tsp. dill weed, dried
Salt, freshly ground pepper
Combine all ingredients in bowl and chill for at least 1 hour, allowing flavors to blend. Serve with poached salmon.

Try this vegetable dish that has the colors of the Irish flag and two of the country's favorite vegetables (orange, green and white Irish flag)

IRISH VEGETABLE DELIGHT

4 cups shredded green cabbage
1 medium onion, sliced
2-3 carrots, cut into 1/4 inch slices
1 medium potato, cut into 1/4 inch slices
3 Tbsp. water
1/2 tsp. freshly ground white pepper

Salt
2-3 Tbsp. unsalted butter or bacon drippings
Combine cabbage, onion, carrots, and potato in 1 1/2 qt. casserole. Add water, cover tightly with plastic wrap, vented. Microwave on 100 percent power 8-10 minutes. Stir in pepper, salt and butter. Let stand 3-5 minutes before serving.

Make those Irish eyes smile with these Irish Cream Truffles. A perfect ending to the celebration.

IRISH CREAM TRUFFLES

8 oz. white chocolate, grated
4 oz. milk chocolate chips
3 egg yolks
1/2 cup Irish cream liqueur
1 Tbsp. Irish whiskey
1 tsp. coconut flavoring
1 1/2 sticks unsalted butter, softened

Dipping chocolate
Microwave white and milk chocolates in 2-quart measure on 50 percent power 3-4 minutes, or until shiny and melted. Stir until smooth. Stir in egg yolks, then liqueur and whiskey. Microwave on 50 percent power 1 minute to thicken.

Transfer mixture to food processor or mixer and beat. With motor running, add coconut flavoring and then butter, one tablespoon at a time. Process 2-3 tablespoons on a baking sheet and chill. Form mixture into balls. Microwave the dipping chocolate on 50 percent power until melted (3-4 minutes per pound). Dip balls into the melted chocolate coating and place on wax paper to dry. Truffles will keep in tightly covered container in refrigerator up to two weeks.

Dipping chocolate is available in white, pastel and dark wafers. It is easier to use the real chocolate for dipping candies. Place 10 ounces of the coating in a 1-quart bowl or glass measure and microwave on 50 percent power 3-4 minutes. This will yield enough chocolate to dip 25-30 candy centers.

Happy St. Paddy's Day to you all!

Education is first defense against the spread of AIDS

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your rejection of Mr. Gilkison's suggestion to show kids horror films on sexually transmitted diseases like the kind the armed services used to show before a "big weekend."

Education, not scare tactics, is the best way to fight STDs and HIV/AIDS. I was concerned, however, at the rather high rate of condom failure you cited in your answer (11 percent to 19 percent). The failure rate can be lowered if the condom is used correctly.

Of course, the safest sex is no sex at all, but for many that is not realistic. When you choose to have sex with someone, you are taking a risk. Using a condom will lessen that risk, but it is still there. And don't let anyone tell you they "couldn't possibly have HIV." Only you know what you have done in your past, so protect yourself and your partner!

Many manufacturers now include instructions with their condoms — read them! And if the condoms do not have instructions, buy a brand that does have them. Never use an oil-based lubricant (such as Vaseline) with a condom — it will destroy the condom and neither person is protected. Always use a water-based lubricant (like K-Y Jelly). The spermicide Nonoxonyl-9 has been shown to kill HIV, so use it if possible. Never use two condoms at the same time, since they will rub together and both of them may break.

As I said before, education is our most important weapon against HIV/AIDS. Abby, I would like to thank you for your frank, open and compassionate response to this crisis. The most important message we can get out is that AIDS does not care who you are or where you live. We know that simple changes in behavior can keep you from getting HIV. Learn what those changes are and follow them.

AIDS education is very important to me. For the last two years, I have been an actor with HealthWorks Theatre (formerly AIDS Educational Theatre). We have two shows: "The Wizard of AIDS," which is for high school through adult audiences, and "What's So Big About AIDS," which is for fourth through eighth grades. These shows educate and entertain at the same time, helping people understand just what HIV and AIDS are, how HIV can be transmitted, and how to protect themselves. We travel the Chicago area and the Midwest bringing AIDS education wherever it is needed, but there are still many people who do not have even the most basic AIDS information — information that could save their lives.

I realize that parts of this letter may be to frank for publication in a family newspaper, but this is life-saving information. If you cannot publish this letter, then please find an appropriate way to get this information out to people. Many young people read your column, and they need this information more than anyone. Keep up the good work.

JAMES E. GROTE, CHICAGO
DEAR MR. GROTE: Your message is too important not to publish it in its entirety. My mail reflects the fact that many readers still believe they cannot get AIDS because their partners look healthy, and therefore they do not feel that protection is necessary.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, I shocked my friends and family when I broke my engagement to a well-educated (Rhodes Scholar) millionaire business executive to marry a construction worker. Why? Because he's kind, honest and totally lovable.

My high-school dropout can fix the plumbing, tune up a car, build a house and grow enough vegetables to feed an army. He can cook and clean like a pro, and comes home whistling every evening, without stopping at a bar.

The stories he tells me about his day at the construction site are far more interesting than my day on Wall Street. This man won't grow soft and flabby sitting behind a desk all day, and he won't get a stress-related illness, or have an affair with his secretary.

Ask M.D.'s advice about side effects

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from hypertension and have been prescribed Hytrin. Since I may have to use this medication for the rest of my life, I'm concerned about the possible side effects.

DEAR READER: Hytrin (terazosin) is a blood pressure drug that decreases peripheral resistance, meaning that it dilates arterial walls directly, without involving other organs, such as the kidneys. When taken as prescribed, the drug is safe.

The primary side effects, which are rare, include: headache, weakness, palpitations, nausea, fluid retention, muscle pain, dizziness, nervousness and nasal congestion. I suggest you address further issues of concern with your doctor, who is the best resource for explaining the purpose of treatment and the potential, long-term consequences of therapy. There are many effective drugs for this purpose.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've tried many drugs for vasomotor/allergic rhinitis yet continue to sneeze and cough. An allergist says I've simply got to learn to live with my condition. What do you think?

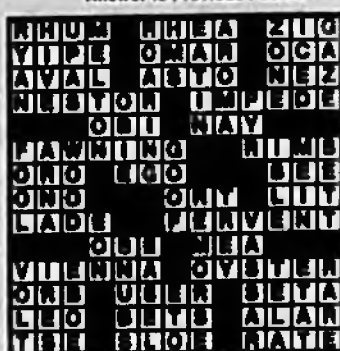

DEAR READER: I don't want to disagree with your allergist but, in my experience, many patients with chronic allergic rhinitis are helped by desensitization shots. These injections are compounded by allergists, based on the patient's allergic profile, and administered in increasing doses until the body's reactions (to the substances in the vaccine) have been neutralized.

Although your allergist probably has a valid reason for his "learn-to-live-with-it" position, ask him about the possibility of allergy shots. Remember that allergic rhinitis can be caused (or worsened) by many substances in the environment, including perfumes, scents, tobacco smoke, dust, wood smoke, animal dander and feathers.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Although only 28 years old, Englishman Andrew Robson has already won more major titles than most players collect in a lifetime.

In his Bols Bridge Tip, Robson offers some advice about preemptive bidding: If someone opens at the three-level or higher, you should expect him to have a singleton. If you buy the contract and he leads a side-suit, play for that lead to be a singleton. If he leads his own suit, play him to have a singleton in your trumpsuit.

Today's hand is the one Robson supplies. If you wish to test yourself, cover the East-West cards and plan the play in four hearts. West leads the club ace.

Doubling three no-trump would have worked better, but it is too late for that now. When West makes the potentially dangerous lead of the club ace, Robson says that you should play him for a singleton heart. Also, the bid of three no-trump means that East probably has the spade suit guarded. The winning line is to ruff the club ace, play a spade to dummy's king, cash the club king for a diamond discard and lead the spade jack.

If East doesn't cover, play a heart to the nine (hoping that West's singleton isn't the 10). If East does cover the spade jack, win with the ace and lead the heart king, removing West's trump before he can get a spade ruff. Later, cross to dummy with a spade to the 10 and then lead a heart to the nine.

This is a difficult hand, but the tip is singularly useful — if you will excuse the pun.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip Alder, in care of this newspaper.

They can be answered only through the column.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Osoi
YOUR BIRTHDAY

If you handle your opportunities properly in the year ahead, you may be able to develop several situations that will produce long-range benefits and enhance your material security.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Benefits are likely in your one-to-one relationships today. You have a gift for making good things happen for both you and those with whom you associate. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This could be a rewarding day for you materially, provided you develop your opportunities in the right manner. Friends and finance make a compatible mix. Blend both.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might have to contend with some frustrations early in the day but, later on, things in general should make a positive shift. Uncertainties about important matters will be diminished.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Patience, which is always a virtue, is your greatest asset today. Your successes might not be immediate, but you should emerge victorious in the long run.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Viable alternatives will become apparent today in an area where you were previously stymied. Don't be afraid to take a calculated risk in order to improve your position.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're now in an interesting cycle where things should work out to your ultimate advantage, provided you have the will to stay the course.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your first inclination when you encounter opposition today might be to meet force with force. Fortunately, however, you'll be wise enough to substitute tolerance with tact instead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your financial prospects are much better than you may realize at this time, so elevate your expectations. Victory is aided by well-defined targets, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're better equipped to manage a promising development than those you'll be involved with today. They might sense this even before you do, so they won't object to you taking charge.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The internal fortitude you possess might not be evident today — until you are put to the test. Your reaction to challenges may even surprise you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a fast study today, and it behooves you to expose your mind to some type of intellectual pursuit. What you learn can be adapted to your present requirements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're alert enough to recognize them, there are several ways you can add to your resources today. Be materialistic and pragmatic, but don't be greedy.
