Visiting New Tribes Missionary Recalls His Brush With Death

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

It was nearly midnight in the Bolivian jungle, but tired though he was, Wallace Pouncy lay awake going over the exciting events of the day in his mind. After two years of trying to contact an elusive group of primitive Yuqui Indians suddenly a peaceful contact had been made.

Communicating through their four Christian Yuqui guides, the Pouncy, a New Tribes missionary, and his three companions, also missionaries, were encouraged by a promise that the small tribesman would be back the next day.

But as he lay on the ground peering through the mosquito netting draped above his head, Pouncy's heart stood still. He saw silhouetted in the moonlight four shadowy figures armed with primitive bows and arrows. Sensing the danger, he drew his body up in a ball to make a smaller target.

As he reached out to alert the sleeping man next to him, a stick snapped. In an instant reaction — one of the tribesman shot a bamboo arrow in the direction of the sound. The missile found its unseen target and embedded itself in Pouncy's thigh. This was followed by a barrage of arrows two of which struck Leo and Alex, two of the guides, in the leg, evoking loud cries of pain and terror from the two frightened men. The crudely fashioned arrowheads were mounted on the end of bamboo shafts six to nine feet long.

Pouncy reached for his rifle and fired it into the air to scare the attackers away, he said. Rifles are used by New Tribes missionaries to kill game to eat and are not intended for self-defense or to harm anyone, he explained.

The midnight attack came as a complete surprise to the group, he said, because the Indians, who live in fear of evil spirits, are not prone to wander about the jungle in the dark.

"Why did they do it?" the Yuqui guides asked. "They are our own people and they turned on us," Pouncy said. But to the closely knit kinship group living in isolation as they roam the jungle in search of food everyone is an outsider, he said.

Although the Christian Yuqui guides discarded their civilized clothing to be more like the natives, the Indians still regarded them as outsiders.

The few contacts with the outside world which the Stone Age-like tribes experience too often involve their being shot at, killed or wounded or their women and children kidnapped into what amounts to slavery.

Their fear and distrust was evidenced as they had run into the jungle as they were surprised by the missionaries earlier that day.

"You're not going to steal my children," they had said. Later the missionaries tried to explain through the interpreters that they were there to help, to give them food and medical supplies, Pouncy said.

The missionaries thought they had calmed the fear of the tribesmen after Indians said they would come to the missionaries' camp the next day to get a cooking pot, bananas or other gifts.

Apparently, however, a few of the Yuquis did not share this trust, however, and decided to sneak into the camp in the dark and attack them while they slept.

If he had not fired his rifle in the air, Pouncy said, or if the missionaries and guides had further exposed themselves by coming out from under the mosquito netting to make a run for it, they would have been slaughtered, the guides told them.

In case the attackers decided to return to the scene the nervous group fired an occasional shot into the air or shined the beam from their flashlights into the darkness.

After a sleepless night a radio contact was made with their base. To get to their location in search of the tribe, the party had walked for six days through rough terrain. With three men with painful leg wounds in need of treatment and the danger of another attack another way out had to be found, Pouncy said.

So in spite of the cost — $600 an hour or a total of $3,000 a charter helicopter was called in from a base two hours away. From the air they were hidden by the thick jungle foliage so to signal the rescue craft it was necessary to send up a smoke signal, Pouncy explained. The pilot spotted them and reluctantly landed in a small clearing. They were flown to a small airstrip 30 or 40 minutes away by air where the wounded were transferred to a small mission airplane to get medical treatment.

A typical day in the life of a New Tribes Missionary? Fortunately not. The last time one of the New Tribes was shot at, Pouncy said, was back in 1977. But physical danger has never been a deterrent to those who feel called to take the gospel to remote tribes hidden away in the jungles of the world. This is evidenced by the growth of the international non-denominational New Tribes Mission, headquartered in Sanford since five of the group's missionaries were slain in contact work in South America in 1953.

Nor has danger quelled the fervor of the five families involved in the efforts to contact the Yuquis. Back in the U.S. for a year's leave, Pouncy, with his wife, Barbara and their 13-year-old son, Joe Ed, are in Sanford visiting the headquarters and speaking at area churches. They will return to their home state of Alabama for a visit.

The family has found the culture shock just as difficult coming back to civilization "American-style" as it was going to the jungle from here," he said.

They can't wait to get back to Bolivia and all the inconveniences of home.

New Tribes missionaries spend years establishing a friendly contact with Indian groups, living with them to learn their language, put it into writing and then translating the scriptures into their language. The people must then be taught to read their own language.

Titillating FSU Catalogue Has Large Following Among State Legislators

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Legislators left town last week but not before they had a chance to consider "future sex," "boomeranging" and "gay farm workers in solidarity with the people of El Salvador."

A bit more interesting than education capital outlays and the due-on-sale clause, the unusual topics drew attention not as proposed legislation but rather in the Summer 1981 catalogue of Florida State University's controversial Center for Participant Education (CPE).

As always, the new edition of the catalogue was distributed throughout the Capitol and was quickly grabbed up by lawmakers, state workers and others who have come to view it more as a quarterly magazine than a mere listing of tuition-free courses.

The center is student-controlled and funded by the FSU Student Government Association from student activity and service fees. No tax dollars are involved and university

Haig Pledges Military Buildup In Viet Area

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig today called Vietnam the greatest threat to the well-being of Southeast Asia and said the United States will withhold diplomatic recognition from Hanoi until it pulls its troops out of Cambodia.

Calling Vietnam a proxy of the Soviet Union, Haig said the United States "is determined to challenge active Soviet interventionism wherever it occurs."

He said, "Actions by the Soviets or their proxies remain the greatest threat to international peace."

Speaking at the opening of a "five-on-one dialogue" with the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, Haig said security and development were intimately related and the United States was equally committed to both.

"We cannot sit idly by and permit the Soviet Union and its proxies actively to undermine and threaten the prospects for development," he said.

Haig said, "The United States will not normalize relations with a Vietnam that occupies Kampuchea (Cambodia) and remains a source of trouble to the entire region."

In his remarks, Haig said the United States will continue "to question seriously any economic assistance to Vietnam — whatever the source — so long as Vietnam continues to squander its scarce resources for aggressive purposes."

The United States gives Vietnam no direct economic assistance and has raised objections in international financial institutions, such as the Asian Development Bank to loans to Vietnam.

Haig said the United States will continue to accept "large numbers of refugees" but it was time "for a more concerted effort to deal with this longstanding and anguishing human problem at its source."

The United States will take in up to 12,000 refugees per month in the next fiscal year compared to the quota of 14,000 per month in this year. U.S. officials explained the drop by saying the United States had expected the flow of "boat people" from Vietnam would have diminished by now.

Haig said Vietnam has given the Soviet Union an increased military presence in the region with facilities at the former U.S. naval base at Cam Ranh Bay on Vietnam's southeastern coast.

He pledged the United States will increase its military capability in the Pacific and Asia and to increase military assistance to the ASEAN countries wherever needed.

The Reagan administration plans to extend $638.6 million in security assistance to the five ASEAN countries in 1982, an increase of $50 million from the current year.

However, some of America's allies in Asia were critical of the Reagan administration's decision to sell arms and high technology items to China without consulting them first.

Haig announced the decision during his visit to Peking, his previous stop.

U.S. diplomats said some Asian allies had warned the United States excessively rapid and dramatic changes in U.S. policy, such as the decision to sell China arms announced earlier this week, could have an unsettling impact on Asia.

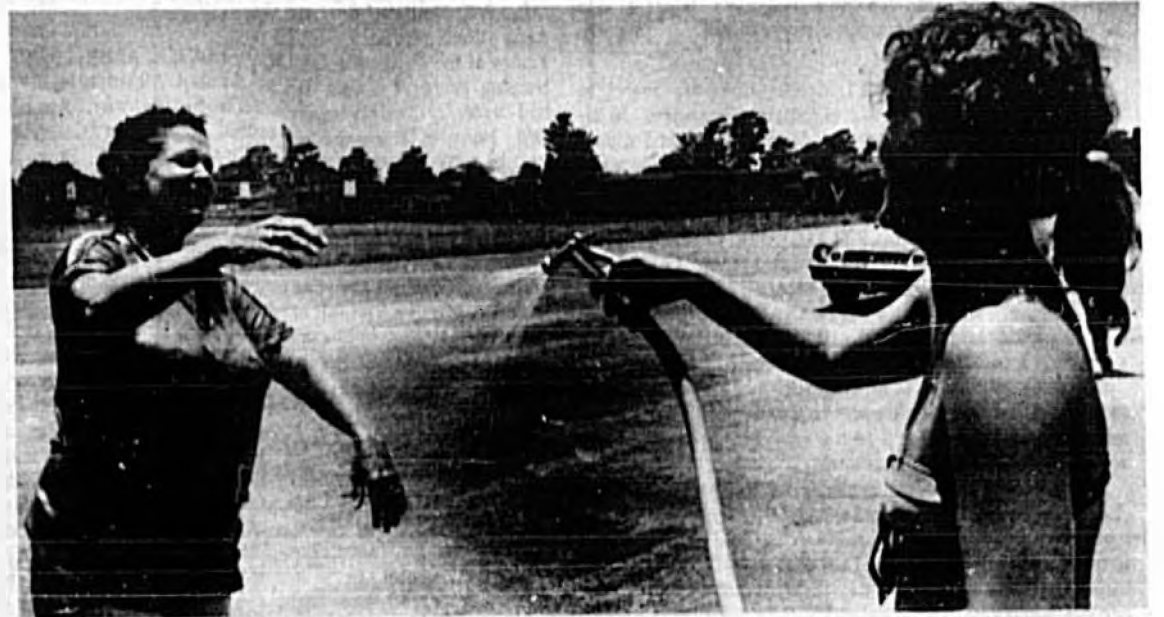

The United States should move slowly, they said.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Mochtar Kusumaatmadja told reporters the prospect of China buying advanced arms from the United States made his nation uneasy.

The ASEAN members are Malaysia, Thailand, Singapore, the Philippines and Indonesia.

As Haig met with the ASEAN officials and Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, about 100 students demonstrated outside the U.S. Embassy, chanting, "Down with the U.S. Marcos dictatorship."

Haig will meet with the ASEAN foreign ministers today and issue a joint communique before flying to New Zealand for a meeting with Australian and New Zealand officials.

BUS DRIVERS HAVE MORE FUN

No, this isn't a wet T-shirt contest, just Seminole County School bus driver Doris Langford (left) and Jan Rowell cooling off on their summer job of cleaning buses in storage at Pine Crest Elementary School. With 200 buses to clean inside and out, they predict it will take them and other bus drivers until the end of July to complete the job.

'Why Have You Stayed So Long...?'

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (UPI) — The teenage girl who wrote Justice Potter Stewart, asking why he didn't retire from the Supreme Court, blames herself for his decision to step down.

Stewart, who surprised his fellow justices by announcing his retirement, referred to a letter he received last February from Donna Gallus, 19, of St. Cloud, in his farewell news conference Friday.

Miss Gallus asked him: "I would like to know why you have stayed on the Supreme Court so long ... I am not saying you need to retire, but I am asking why you stay on the court longer than you need to."

"I can't remember why I picked him," Miss Gallus said. "Maybe it was because we had been talking about him in class ... as to why older judges didn't retire when they were able to."

Transportation Secretary Enters Talks

Air Traffic Controllers' Strike Could Paralyze Nation's Airways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the prospects of a paralyzing strike looming over the nation's airways, Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis has entered negotiations aimed at obtaining a new contract for 17,000 air traffic controllers.

Lewis stepped into the dispute between the Federal Aviation Administration and its air traffic controllers late Friday. Both sides agreed to resume talks today.

Controllers have threatened to strike Monday. A strike would force airlines to slash flights and trigger rippling effects — such as causing crowded buses and trains and leaving many travelers stranded.

Lewis and Robert Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, met at the offices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service for about three hours Friday and emerged with cautious statements about the resumption of talks.

The two sides had gathered to wait for the arrival of federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, who was mediating the professional baseball negotiations in New York. Ironically, his arrival was delayed by crowded planes to Washington as travelers hurried to avoid the potential strike, a mediation service spokeswoman said.

"The fact that we're talking at least is progress," said Lewis. "We are trying to work the package out so it accommodates his needs and at same time meets needs of the federal government and the traveling public."

Poli said there was a possibility the strike could be averted or delayed if the talks were continuing "in good faith." He defined "good faith" as "a willingness to discuss issues on the table."

The two sides had not met since PATCO, whose members guide aircraft in and out of airports and among cities, rejected a contract offer Wednesday by the FAA. Lewis's agency oversees the FAA.

Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., chairman of the House Public Works Committee, offered to set up the meeting earlier Friday during a hearing at which Poli was testifying. Poli immediately accepted, then Howard reached Lewis by telephone.

Meanwhile, travelers jammed airline switchboards as carriers began booking seats based on a severely curtailed route schedule to be used by the FAA during a walkout.

Travel agents were deluged with clients wanting backup reservations on buses, trains and rental cars. Several smaller airlines said they planned to shut down during a strike.

Earl Butz To Serve 30 Days In Prison For Tax Evasion

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — Both a previously clean record and advanced age were considered, but a federal judge still decided ex-Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz deserved to serve 30 days of a five-year prison term for evading taxes.

U.S. District Judge Jesse Eachbach and three other members of a sentencing council voted to sentence Butz to five years' probation following the 30-day incarceration for failing to report $164,114 of taxable income in 1978.

The sentence, plus a $10,000 fine, was set Friday by Eachbach.

Butz, 71, pleaded guilty to the charge May 22. In return for the guilty plea, the Internal Revenue Service dropped charges relating to 1977 taxes.

For 1978, Butz reported taxable income of $67,814, with $39,921 due in taxes. His actual taxable income was $245,928 and he owed taxes of $113,678. The unreported taxes came mostly from speeches Butz gave to agricultural and political groups.

No Guarantees For Woman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is considering nominating a woman to the Supreme Court, but the White House offers "no guarantee" he will use this chance to fulfill a campaign pledge by naming one.

Reagan said Friday aides are compiling a list of potential candidates to succeed retiring Justice Potter Stewart and several women are among the possible nominees.

Administration aides stressed, however, the search is not limited to women.

White House counsel Fred Fielding said Reagan's only order was that the candidate "be the most-qualified person."

Refinery Workers Injured

NORCO, La. (UPI) — More than 20 workers were injured in an explosion that ripped through a "cat cracker" at the Good Hope refinery in southeast Louisiana at 11 p.m. Friday, authorities said.

"We think there were 22 total injuries, mostly burns" said Jim Hritz, assistant executive director of East Jefferson Hospital. "Ten were brought here and the rest were taken to other hospitals. We have one in the intensive care unit with burns over about 70 percent of his body."

Hritz said it appeared all the injured workers would survive.

Koch: 'A Different World'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Edward Koch says a representative of the British government called his press office and asked that statements about Prince Charles' position on Northern Ireland be retracted.

"They must live in a different world. . . in the United States we have something you call freedom of the press," Koch said Friday.

Meanwhile, the British press stepped up its criticism of Koch Friday, accusing him of hypocrisy and vote-peddling by divulging the Prince Charles' comments. The Sun, accusing Koch of "exploiting the tragedy of Ireland," said he "would be better off solving the horrifying problems of violence and squalor in New York than crucifying our royalty."

Coptics Are Convicted On Drug Ring Charges

MIAMI (UPI) — A six-man, six-woman federal jury deliberated five hours Friday before convicting nine members of the Ethiopian Zion Coptic church on charges of running a large-scale marijuana smuggling ring under the guise of religion.

Church leader Thomas "Brother Louv" Reilly, who faces a later trial on similar charges, called the jury decision "a verdict against the entire church. It's not just against each brother anymore, it's against the whole church."

The Coptics, all dressed in flowing robes, remained silent and showed no emotion when the verdict was read.

Racketeers Face Trial

MIAMI (UPI) — Two reputed underworld figures — Santos Trafficante and Anthony "Big Tuna" Accardo — and 14 other people will face trial next month on federal racketeering charges.

The charges stem from a three-year probe into kickbacks involving the Laborers' International Union of North America.

At an arraignment Friday before U.S. Magistrate Charlene Sorrentino, all but one pleaded innocent to the charges that they either gave or received unlawful kickbacks for granting union-related business stemming from the union pension fund and insurance including life, vision and dental. The magistrate set a July 27 trial date before U.S. District Judge Alice Hastings.

Fugitive Evades Lawmen

LAKE CITY, Fla. (UPI) — Lawmen led by tracking dogs combed a stretch of wood Saturday north of White Springs for the second straight day in search of a van driver who fled on foot after firing a gun at Florida Agricultural Inspector Richard Swope who attempted to check the vehicle Thursday night.

An aerial and foot search by 25 officers of the area between U.S. Highway 41 and Interstate 75 proved fruitless Friday.

Early Saturday, the Hamilton County sheriff's office reported a limited search continued in the dense woods.

'Mistakes' Caused Shuttle Deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bevy of mistakes, including improper use of equipment and lack of communication, contributed to the death of two technicians aboard the space shuttle Columbia when their working area filled with nitrogen gas.

In a 400-page report released Friday, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the two men, who died of asphyxiation, were not kept fully informed during the deliberate release of nitrogen.

John G. Bjornstad and Forrest G. Cole were killed in March 19 accident during a launch pad test of the Columbia, which later made a historic flight into space. The two, employees of Rockwell International — one of the major contractors of the craft — were asphyxiated in the aft compartment of the orbiter Columbia when their working area filled with nitrogen gas.

NASA said there was "no formal coordination" among the test conductors and the NASA test director, and that contributed to the accident that occurred on the launch pad.

The "purging" of nitrogen was a normal part of operations when the space shuttle was loaded with fuel. However, the "flow time" of the gas was extended as part of a "special test," which the report said was not adequately discussed among the pad crew beforehand.

Also, the report said there was no adequate steps for clearing the vehicle or pad complex during hazardous operations or for resuming normal work. The men in the shuttle were unable to hear announcements over the loud speakers because of "localized noise and the wearing of headphones."

There was an announcement while the men were working, the report said, but it was not a call to clear the area. It was announced the pad was open for work.

Bomb Exploded On Busy Miami Highway

MIAMI (UPI) — A dynamite bomb discovered under a late model luxury car in a busy North Miami thoroughfare was exploded on the spot by the Dade County Police bomb squad under tight security Friday, causing no damages.

The bomb, wrapped in a paper bag and consisting of six sticks of dynamite and a detonator activated by some kind of timing device, was found by a woman customer leaving a popular Biscayne Boulevard restaurant.

Police spokesman Dave Graveline said the woman spotted the bag under the front wheel of a white, two-door Mercedes parked in front of the dining spot and picked it up "because she thought it looked like someone's lost property.

"She opened it and when she saw what it was she called the police," Graveline said.

Because the bomb had already been moved and the timing mechanism in its detonating device disturbed, the bomb squad decided it was too dangerous to be moved from the area and had to be exploded on the spot.

Traffic was blocked on busy U.S. 1 and on North Miami Boulevard, a heavily traveled street leading to the Broad Causeway across Biscayne Bay.

'For Real' Dairy Farmers Concerned About Imitations

Concerned about the rapid growth of imitation dairy products, Florida dairy farmers and industry leaders from throughout the state will gather Tuesday and Wednesday for the annual meeting of Dairy Farmers, Inc. (DFI) at the Sheraton Sand Key, Clearwater Beach.

DFI is a statewide dairy communications organization comprised of Florida's five major milk marketing cooperatives. It represents about 450 Florida dairy farmers.

Under the theme "We're For REAL", dairy farmers will analyze the rapid growth of imitation and ersatz dairy products which are presently eroding the market for real milk products.

At the morning session June 24, key individuals representing the dairy farmer, dairy processor, retail grocer, foodservice and nutrition segments of the industry will each offer a perspective of the situation under the heading, "A 'REAL' Look At Imitations". The session will begin at 9:15 a.m. following the annual business meeting of DFI.

Following this session, the keynote luncheon speaker is Victoria J. Tachinckel, assistant secretary of the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation, (D.E.R.), Tallahassee.

Tachinckel's remarks will focus on upgrading the Florida environment through mutual understanding and cooperation.

Other annual features of the meeting are the state "Dairy Days" recipe cookoff contest and the crowning of the 1981-82 Florida Dairy Princess.

Save $ By Combining Business With Pleasure

The need to get away from everyday pressures and routine makes a lot of us look on vacations as necessities, rather than luxuries. Although it may be difficult to fit vacation expenses into the family budget, considering rising costs of hotels and airplane tickets, you can cut vacation costs by combining your excursions with business, job interviews or even house-hunting. Some of the expenses may be deductible on your federal income tax return, according to the Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Combine your business trip with a vacation in the same general location, CPAs say and you can deduct your transportation and any other business-related expenses you incur. For example, when you attend eight days of meetings in Washington, DC, you and your family can plan a two-week vacation around it. You can deduct your own (not your family's) round-trip air fare and your lodging expenses during the time you were conducting business. If the hotel's room rate is $80 and the single room rate is $60 you can only deduct the single rate for the nights you stay in town for business. You can also deduct taxi or bus fare, meals, tips and other expenses you alone incurred during the business portion of the trip.

The key to claiming business deductions is to keep the records required by the IRS. Note the cost of your transportation, meals, lodging and incidental expenses; the dates of departure and return; the number of days you're away from home; destinations, and the business purpose for the trip, CPAs say. Keep receipts for expenditures of $25 or more.

If you decide to conduct some business while on vacation, you cannot deduct your transportation costs to and from your destination, say CPAs, because the primary purpose of the trip is your personal pleasure. However, if you meet with several of your company's suppliers while you and your family are visiting Washington, these business-related costs at the place where you're vacationing are deductible, say CPAs.

If you rent a car for the trip, and one-quarter of the car's use was for business, deduct one-quarter of the rental cost. If you use your own car, keep records of the mileage. You can claim the standard mileage rate (20 cents a mile for the first 13,000 miles and 11 cents a mile for additional mileage or for fully depreciated cars) for business use of the car.

You can plan your vacation around a job search, deducting some or all of your travel expenses and living costs, depending upon the amount of time spent searching for employment in relation to personal time on the trip. You must be looking for a job in the same line of work you're in now.

For example, you want to find a job in Washington, DC and you take your family with you. As long as the majority of your time is related to your job hunt, you can deduct your round-trip transportation and all of your living expenses (but not those of your family members). Even if most of your time is spent on sight-seeing and other personal activities, you can deduct your living expenses on days when you primarily looked for a job. In either case, CPAs say, you can deduct expenses that relate directly to the job search, such as taxi fares to and from interviews and phone calls from your hotel to potential employers.

Site development and stone security wall have already been completed at Wekiva Glen.

$20 Million Project Announced

The Babcock Company, the home building subsidiary of Weyerhaeuser and one of the state's development giants, has unveiled plans for its first major residential single-family development in Central Florida.

Called Wekiva Glen, the project will consist of 192 luxury single-family homes on heavily wooded one-third acre lots and will border Wekiva Springs State Park, notes Howard Pomp of Orlando's First Southern Realty Group, exclusive marketing and sales agents for Babcock.

The 65-acre, $20 million project located on Welch Road and overlooking Lake Prevatt will be the first major Central Florida community that Babcock will be developing entirely for outside builders.

Lot prices will start under $20,000 and will be sold to participating builders, with completed homes expected to range from $85,000 to more than $150,000 in price, says Pomp.

Site development has already been completed, including a private security wall that surrounds the property, and construction is expected to begin shortly on a rustic-styled sales and information center that will complement the natural surroundings.

Over the past five years, the 46-year-old firm has been one of Florida's most attractive home builders and residential planners, building more than 16,000 residential units worth more than $1 billion.

Children's Film Fest Set

ORLANDO — Plans are set for a colorful opening Gala in connection with the forthcoming International Children's Film and Video Festival in Orlando, according to Daniel P. Skouras, Festival's founder and organizer. The Festival, scheduled for July 22 - 26 at the Hyatt Orlando, will begin Wednesday evening with a welcoming gala featuring several of Central Florida's most popular family vacation attractions.

Jack T. Larkin, Vice President of Circus World, is coordinating an evening of entertainment that includes participation by the Southern Belles and Flop the Rabbit from Cypress Gardens, artists from Stars Hall of Fame and Big Top performers from Circus World.

A buffet dinner will also be served to festival guests in the main ballroom. Gala attendees are expected to include 5-day festival participants, as well as members of the general public as space permits.

The International Children's Film and Video Festival has captured the attention of film, video and audio-visual producers, distributors and buyers from across the country and overseas.

In addition to exhibit booths representing all segments of the film and video industry, a full agenda of seminars and entertainment is being opened to members of the community on a space-available basis.

Vegetable Crop Sets Record

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's vegetable harvest is rapidly falling off for the season, Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner reported, but not before setting a new record of shipments despite a January freeze.

The spring harvest is dwindling down to nothing or is finished for a few commodities, Conner said. Heavy shipments of watermelons, sweet corn and tomatoes are boosting total volume at this time.

The Florida season is over for growers of lettuce, cauliflower, escarole-endeive and radishes, according to reports from the Florida Crop & Livestock Reporting Service. The season is practically over for cabbage, carrots and Chinese cabbage, and is nearing completion for the Hastings potato growers.

Florida watermelons should be available in good volume through the July 4 holiday, and the sweet corn harvest in Central Florida will continue into July.

Shipments out of state by truck and piggyback to date exceed last year by approximately 203 million pounds on total volume of 3.62 billion (B) pounds thus far. Last year's shipments totaled 3.62 billion (B) pounds, including minor amounts shipped as late as August 1980.

Parade Of Homes Extended

ORLANDO — Because of the many homes to see and the large crowds during the opening days of the Parade of Homes, the Home Builders Association (HBA) of Mid-Florida has decided to extend its 1981 Parade by one week.

The extension will push the closing date to Sunday, June 28. Homes will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. each day. The Parade was scheduled to end June 21.

"The Parade of Homes Committee realized that with 138 homes to view, and with the large crowds touring the Parade, we should give the public an additional week to see as much as they can," said Committee Chairman Betsy Godfrey.

The largest in its 25-year history, the 1981 Central Florida Parade also is the third largest in the nation.

Sterchi's Sales Increase

Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc., the Knoxville, Tenn. based home-furnishings chain, reports strong retail sales for the month of May and the first quarter. New sales of $4,372,933 for May were $375,028 or 9.38 percent over sales of $3,997,907 for the month last year, according to C.A. Terrell, chairman and president.

Sales for the first quarter of the company's fiscal year were at a record level and volume of $11,650,451 represented a 6.69 percent increase over sales of $10,920,198 reported for the period last year.

Pump Efficiency Shown

A team of agricultural engineers from the University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences will demonstrate a pump efficiency test, explain testing methods discuss equipment and calculations Thursday at the Agricultural Research and Education Center at 2700 E. Celery Ave., Sanford. Sponsored by the Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service, the program is open to the public.

A. Donald Tabor of 1811 Sanford Ave., Sanford, celebrated his 20th anniversary recently as an agent in Sanford for New York Life Insurance Company, according to Joseph J. Gurtis, manager of the company's Orlando General Office. During those years, Don Tabor has insured more than 800 clients for more than $20 million. He was honored in Orlando at a meeting of all the New York Life agents from Central Florida.

Florida Power & Light Co. has enlisted the aid of TV and movie star Flipper to help promote its new energy conservation program for residential pool owners. In an effort to help reduce power plant oil consumption and on-peak energy use, FPL is asking that pool pumps be limited to eight hours of summer operation — 9 a.m. — 3 p.m. and 9-11 p.m. — and six hours in the winter. Flipper and other Seaquarium animals will be used in the campaign, designed to help save 100,000 barrels of oil each year by the end of the decade and nearly a quarter million dollars in fuel costs in 1981. Pool owners interested in program details are asked to call their local FPL office.

Capt. John C. Lucarell, shown aboard the 33-foot Pacemaker yacht, "Florida Cracker", launched Luke's Yacht Charters this week offering day and night cruises on the St. Johns River out of the Monroe Harbour Holiday Inn, Sanford, including a Thursday cruise to Blue Springs for Holiday Inn guests. The yacht owned by Little Plumbing Co., Longwood, is air-conditioned and has a ship to shore radio. The company plans to add a yacht at Pompano Beach for ocean charters in the fall. Future plans call for addition of a 100-passenger cruise boat on the St. Johns.

Willie Pegram, owner-manager, and his wife, Carole (on left) held a grand opening ribbon cutting Tuesday for Church's Fried Chicken at 2561 S. French Ave., Sanford. During Armed Forces Days, June 27-August 2, active duty and reserve personnel and their families will be admitted to the theme park for $2.50 off the regular admission. Throughout Armed Forces Days, equipment and exhibits provided by the active services, reserve components and other support organizations will be displayed on the grounds and across the street at Sea World's Florida Festival.

Kathy Malloy and Lila Thompson shared Teller of the Month honors this month at Flagship Bank of Seminole. Malloy and Thompson, employed at Flagship's Central Office, received $50 cash and a Flagship lapel pin. Both have won this award twice.

Rare In Animal World, Fatherly Love Tops In Penguins

By MADELEINE JACOBS
Smithsonian News Service

"It's a wise father that knows his own child."
— William Shakespeare

Fathers of the world, unite! Enough about motherly love! It's your turn to stand up and claim credit for all the hours you've devoted to the care and feeding of the little ones. Not just the time and energy you've spent providing food and shelter, but all those hours invested in midnight bottle feedings, diaper changings, back-to-school nights, endless piano and dance recitals, refereeing at soccer games and providing unlimited chauffeur service.

It's enough to make you feel like a proud papa, especially when you stop and realize that fatherly love is rather rare in the animal kingdom, says Dr. Devra G. Kleiman, a zoologist at the Smithsonian's National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C.

More often than not, she says, the father shows almost no interest in his off-spring, other than perhaps defending a territory against intruders. Even among paternal types, there is wide variation in how much fathers invest in their young, she notes, with male mammals investing less than birds and fishes, though more than reptiles and some amphibians.

Still, there are dedicated daddies throughout the animal kingdom — from the beaver to the bush dog, from the phalarope to the penguin. Here's a Father's Day salute to them.

Top honors for paternal provisioning must surely go to the Emperor Penguin, the largest of the penguins, which makes its home on the inhospitable shelf ice of Antarctica. While we are in the Northern Hemisphere are enjoying summer, it is winter in Antarctica and perpetually dark. Even as you read this, each papa penguin is standing alone with a single egg in the dark, bitter cold, abandoned by his mate after a two-month whirlwind courtship.

During their late fall fling, the male and female, apparently occupied with better things to do, entirely forgo eating and engage instead in an elaborate series of displays which culminate in mating. The female lays one egg, then promptly vanishes off to sea to feast, leaving her hapless, hungry helpmate holding the egg.

The male penguin does not build a nest but holds the egg on his feet, covering it with a fold of his bellyskin throughout the entire incubation period. Since he does not dare abandon his potential offspring in order to eat, by the time the chick hatches some 60 days later, the male has lost 35 to 45 percent of his weight during his four-month fast.

If the vacationing momma has not returned by the time baby hatches, daddy also caters the first meal for the chick. The story has a happy ending, though, since mom eventually returns and both parents share the brooding and feeding responsibilities for the next five months. While much is known about this extraordinary example of fatherhood, no one has carried out studies on marital bliss among the peripatetic penguin.

The usual parental roles are even more reversed in the red phalarope, a slim-necked shorebird that breeds on the Arctic tundra and winters at sea, south of the equator. The small, subdued-color males are ardently pursued by the larger, more gaily dressed females until the male succumbs to her charms and builds a nest, usually on a low bank covered with short grass. The female duly deposits as many as four eggs, then takes off for the open tundra, perhaps to flirt with other males, leaving the would-be father to incubate the eggs and raise the chicks on his own. Such unseemly maternal behavior led one naturalist to observe that the female red phalarope is a "poor mother at best."

Moving on from feathered fathers to the watery world of fishes, there are a number of species in which the male guards the eggs laid by the female, but only a few fish can compete with the curious case of the seahorse, a small, warm-water creature in which the male literally gives birth.

The female seahorse dumps her eggs in a specialized brood pouch located beneath the male's tail and swims away — forever. At birth, the male contorts his body and expels the young through the single opening in the pouch. It's a labor of seahorse, for example, breeds nine months of the year and is capable of giving birth every 10 days to a whole new batch of fish fry.

Sad to say, such fatherly devotion is rare among mammals, zoologist Kleiman points out, but to be perfectly fair, there are sound biological reasons which partly explain this fatherly neglect. After all, among mammals, only the female can "incubate" the egg since it is fertilized internally, and only the mother has the ability & and equipment — to nurse the young. This rules out two roles for male mammals that male birds and fishes can perform as well as their female mates.

But if you disregard these sex differences, Kleiman says, male mammals do have the same potential to care for the young as females. They can provide food, shelter, defense, cleaning, carrying and grooming. They can also socialize, play and babysit with the youngsters.

Yet, in an extensive survey carried out by Kleiman and a colleague, Dr. James R. Malcolm, on male paternal investment in mammals, only a few prize-winning poppas turned up.

One candidate for Father of the Year is the busy beaver. Not only does the male beaver build and maintain the lodge and stock the larder with food for the winter, but when the babies are born, he provides food for them, cleans and carries them, babysits and huddles with the tykes, all the while maintaining a constant vigil against predators.

Then there's the South American bush dog, a relative of the common household dog. In what is probably unique behavior among male mammals, the short, squat bush dog actively participates in raising the young from the moment of birth, according to biologist Ingrid Porton, a student of Kleiman's who is studying bush dog behavior at the Zoo's Conservation and Research Center in Front Royal, Va.

"The father's role is incredible," an admiring Porton says. "In one instance, we saw a male help pull the pup from the female during birth, and in each of the births we've witnessed, the male pulls out and consumes much of the afterbirth."

"As soon as the pups are born, the father aids the mother in licking the pups dry and from then on takes a nearly equal role in caring for the young. The mother nurses the infants for about 10 weeks, but during this time the father continues to clean them and sleeps with the pups, which helps regulate their temperature and protects them. It's a very close knit family."

Other model mammal fathers include the golden lion marmoset, which plays the predominant role in infant care after the baby reaches three weeks of age, and the African wild dog, which not only provides the majority of child care but is helped out by related males living in his pack.

So the next times you're feeling the burdens of fatherhood, remember you're in good — but limited — company. Think about the poor lonely seahorse and count yourself a lucky pop.

Top honors for paternal provisioning go to the Emperor Penguin of Antarctica. Papa Penguin not only incubates the egg by himself but helps raise the chick. This Proud Papa is showing off his one-month-old chick at San Diego's Sea World, where the first Emperor chicks ever born in captivity were hatched.

A Nose For $37,000

RJP's Tony had a nose for $37,000 Friday night at the $100,000 Grand National at the Seminole Greyhound Park.

The streamlined greyhound owned by Antone R. Sims and Bob Parsons turned in a brilliant stretch run to overtake early leader GE's El Greco 10 yards from the finish and then just nip K's Spirit at the wire. The 4-5-8 trifecta paid $167.20.

The victory capped a Cinderella story for Sims and Parsons who purchased the dog and two others through a discarded newspaper advertisement while working in New England.

It was RJP's Tony's sixth win in 11 starts at Super Seminole ($4,000) into RJP's Tony a few years ago. It paid a pretty good dividend Friday night. Parsons sunk their life savings

Stevens Named Most Valuable

Seminole Girls Grab Tourney

Denise Stevens slammed two home runs and drove in 17 runs as the Seminole girls softball team swept its own tournament at the Five Points Complex for ages 13-15.
 Stevens onslaught helped Kathy Richardson pick up all five wins for Seminole. The daughter of Coach Roger Richardson walked just four hitters in the five games. In the last three contests, Richardson was perfect—no walks.
 In Seminole's championship game victory over Conway, Richardson spaced three hits. Seminole edged Conway 3-1.
 Along with Stevens two homers, came five doubles, a triple and two singles. For her awesome performance, she was named the tourney's most valuable performer.

 In addition to Richardson's stellar mound effort, she laced four singles, a double and walked five times.
 Seminole stomped Serronan 8-1 to open the series. In game two they whipped Rockledge 7-4 and then belted Conway 9-1 in game number three.
 In the semifinal contest, Seminole downed Merritt Island 5-3 before nipping Conway 2-1 for the top spot.
 Other outstanding performances came from Kim Averill, who had six singles and turned in two double plays. Shella Dixon, a fine performer for Lake Howell, rapped seven singles and a double.

 Susan Rogers, who was an excellent pitcher for Jim Lewis' State Bank of Forest City, socked two doubles and three singles. Lisa Simkins whacked five singles, while Michelle Brown had four base hits. Jill Lewis had a double and two singles. Tami Hankins was the tournament's defensive standout.
 For the tournament, Seminole out hit the opposition 49-36. Richardson was assisted on the sidelines by Lewis and Mossy Helms.

George 'Burns' Field For Open Lead

ARDMORE, Pa. (UPI) — The U.S. Open has topped its introduction of a first-round leader with the name of Jim Thorpe by coming up with a second-round leader named George Burns.
 On Friday, this George Burns, who doesn't crack too many jokes and at 31 is more than a half-century younger than America's beloved comedian, put on his own show with seven birdies for a 4-under-par 66 and a one-stroke lead going into the third round of the 81st Open at the Merion Golf Club.
 Burns' 36-hole score of 3-under-par 135 over Merion's 6,544-yard East course was one stroke better than former PGA titlist David Graham and two ahead of defending champion Jack Nicklaus and Tommy Valentine.

 Australian Greg Norman shot a 67 to join a quartet at 130, while Tom Watson, looking for that elusive first Open title, carded a 69 to stand with first round leader Thorpe (73), and five others, at one-under 139.
 Burns, struggling this year after winning nearly $200,000 in 1980, isn't accustomed to this position in the Open, his best finish in this tournament being a tie for 27th last year at Baltusrol. As a result, he has no idea of what to expect the next two days.

"I've never had much success in an Open," Burns said after finishing his round in the suburban Philadelphia twilight. "I have a tendency to get wild with the driver and here it's a two-shot mistake, not a one-shot mistake."
 "I've never been in this position and I don't know what to expect. All I can do is go out and try to catch the feeling I've had the last two days and not make any mistakes."
 Graham, who left the tour because of fatigue a month ago and just returned this week, shot his second consecutive 68.

'Dick And Jane' Textbook Author Dead At 91

FRANKFORT, Ind. (UPI) — Zerna A. Sharp, who taught herself to read at 5 and later taught millions of American children to read with her "Dick and Jane" textbooks, died following a long illness. She was 91.

Miss Sharp, a native of Hillisburg, Ind., died late Wednesday.

The famous book generations of Americans grew up on, first were written by Miss Sharp out of frustration.

A nephew, Robert Sharp of Frankfort, said Thursday she kept writing notes to Scott Foresman & Co., publishers in Chicago, saying, "You have to write a better primer for children."

"They figured they'd let her try it" and asked her to write her own primer in 1924.

Miss Sharp worked as a primary school teacher and principal at LaPorte, Ind., from 1906 to 1924 and traveled to Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota before writing the first Elson Readers in Chicago in 1930.

They were the first four-color illustrated basic readers, and introduced millions of readers to the characters Dick and Jane; their little sister, Baby, who later became Sally; their dog, Spot, and kitten, Puff.

"She was so happy when she got that offer from Chicago," Sharp said. "She loved working with the school children, but she saw this as a way to really help a lot of children across the country."

Sharp said his aunt taught herself how to read at the age of 5.

"She never did marry, she just devoted her life to education and to children," he said.

Miss Sharp wrote her books based on speech patterns she had heard children use over and over again. Her short, declarative sentences became a trademark.

"In the late 1920s, she lived on the South Side of Chicago, and she used to go down to the beach at Lake Michigan and sit there and listen to the children playing," he said. "The 'Dick and Jane' books were born right there on that beach, because she patterned those books after the way those children talked."

"For instance, she heard them saying, 'Look, look,' or 'See, see,' instead of saying the word just once, and she used that in her books," Sharp said.

"And she used simple words — I understand the first 'Dick and Jane' book only had 17 words in it, and they were words that children could understand," he said.

Sharp said his aunt attended a teachers' college in Marion, Ind., but never received a degree and didn't feel she needed one. "She was a self-taught woman who read a lot."

"She was a very active person — you just knew she was in charge," Sharp said. "We always looked up to her."

Miss Sharp also is survived by a brother, Rush B. Sharp of Hamilton, Ohio; another nephew, and three nieces. She will be buried at Whiteman Cemetery in Michigantown.

State Wants Blackburn Off Streets

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The state has asked the federal government to revoke the probation of reputed central Florida organized crime figure Harlan Blackburn, a Florida Department of Law Enforcement agent said today.

FDLE agent John Barr said law enforcement officials asked for the revocation, "because of the actions of the probation officer.

"Here we arrested him twice (on drug charges) and he was involved in a shootout at a tire store — and nothing was mentioned about that by the probation officer."

"This guy (Blackburn) needs to be off the streets."

Blackburn, 62, is on probation from a 22-year gambling tax evasion sentence.

Democratic Budget Cuts Called 'Wishful Thinking'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration says budget cuts offered by House committees consist of "wishful thinking" and "gimmicks" that fall far short of what is needed to control federal spending.

Therefore, President Reagan Friday endorsed a substitute proposal offered by his Capitol Hill allies, which would trim food stamps, welfare and several other federal programs.

Budget director David

Stockman said that on paper the plan, a scaled down version of earlier House proposals, would still be $4 billion to $5 billion short of Reagan's goal of balancing the budget by 1984.

But Stockman said the shortfall could be made up when budgets for the next two years are considered.

He said the committee proposals, if completely implemented, would save $137 billion over three years, which is not far from the $139.7 billion saving claimed by House Democrats.

But he said the spending-cut plan put together by Democrat controlled House committees is laden with "accounting gimmicks," "unrealistic proposals" and "wishful thinking."

For example, Stockman told reporters, the Democratic plan calls for reducing overall foodstamp outlays but does nothing to change eligibility or benefit levels. It would, he said, raise dairy price supports, through "an accounting artifice," and list this as a saving.

Stockman said the House committees actually have made only a third of the cuts needed to achieve the administration's goal to reduce federal spending.

Local 'Hams' To Host Field Day

Members of the Lake Monroe Amateur Radio Society (LMARS) will participate in the annual American Relay League Field Day emergency preparedness test on June 27-28 from 2 p.m. Saturday to 2 p.m. Sunday at the Sanford Airport.

On this weekend thousands of amateur radio operators (Hams) in the United States and Canada will set up their stations in the open using only emergency power and portable antennas. During the 24 hours of Field Day, the "Hams" will attempt to contact as many other amateur stations as possible.

This Field Day exercise is designed as a test to help "Hams" refine the operating skills necessary during disasters and times of emergency when normal channels of communication are disrupted or unavailable.

The most recent example of this emergency service came during Hurricane David when Orange and Seminole County Hams provided organized communication facilities for evacuee centers set up by the Red Cross.

In last year's Field Day, the LMARS placed first in its class in the Southeastern Division and third in the United States in the number of contacts made.

Field Day is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, a membership society headquartered in Newington, Conn., consisting of U.S. and Canadian amateur radio operators.

The public is invited to observe the Field Day activities.

Home Eye Test Available To Check Pre-Schoolers

To help find the one in 20 pre-schoolers who have eye disorders — before it's too late — the National Society to Prevent Blindness has just issued a Home Eye Test Program Guide.

The Guide is packed with suggestions on how community groups can bring the Society's Home Eye Test for Preschoolers to families in their area.

The Home Eye Test is a reliable, do-it-yourself way for parents to check their youngsters for possible vision problems. A simple, self-contained kit, the test includes an eye chart and instructions for screening vision. It has been endorsed by eye specialists and health professionals.

"A home eye test program can make a vital contribution to the lives of our children," says Raymond Burns, vice president of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, Central Florida Chapter.

The guide is for any group or organization committed to a community service on behalf of children.

The guide is available at $2 a copy from the National Society to Prevent Blindness, Orlando Chapter, 720 E. Colonial Drive, Orlando 32803

George Palmer and his wife (Eula) of 37 years are the parents of eight children. As The Herald's Outstanding Dad, George said, 'Receiving this is very much of a surprise. I'm not on that plane. I don't expect these things.'

'A Father Above All Fathers' Outstanding Dad Shows Selfless Devotion

By DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

Father's Day, 1961—57 years after President Calvin Coolidge proclaimed the first national observance in honor of the men in the family.

Fathers come in all sizes, shapes and temperments—but, without a doubt, Seminole has the "greatest dadda" of all. The Herald embarked on a search for "Outstanding Dad" nominees, and readers submitted letters telling about their favorite dadda.

The flow of mail was outstanding as were all of the nominations — the world's greatest fathers. Making the decision for top dad was difficult.

Selected as the "Outstanding Dad" was George Palmer, 106 Brown Drive, Sanford. Incidentally, George was born the same year that Father's Day was inaugurated.

"Receiving this is very much of a surprise," George said. "I'm not on that plane. I don't expect these things." But George said he is real happy about it all.

George Palmer and his wife, Eula, are the parents of eight children—and it might be said that eight is enough.

The winning letter nominating his father for Outstanding Dad was submitted by the couple's second eldest son, Martin, who makes his home in the Tampa area.

Martin's letter is as follows: George Palmer is my father—a man I deeply love and respect. He is a father above all fathers, I feel, because of his selfless devotion to his wife and eight children.

In the early years, he eased my mother's burden of caring for eight small children by helping with every conceivable household task plus assisting in every facet of child care.

This was also a time when he would give up conveniences such as shaving cream and use hand soap to shave with so that the children could wear nicer clothes.

Being a partner in a business in New York State was very time-consuming, but every spare minute he had at home was given to spending time with his family. Old photographs and pleasant memories are two reminders of the moments we spent together as a family enjoying outdoor sports such as swimming in the summer and tobogganing in the winter.

During our early teen years we were encouraged to work for our money with which to buy school clothes. I thank my father for helping me to learn the value of money and how to invest it wisely at an early age.

We were taught and shown the importance of being responsible, being independent, and being a hard worker by the example of my father.

Today, my father can be found helping build his children houses with the help of my brothers. He is more than willing to give a helping hand to anyone in need, and is more than generous when giving, especially to his children.

His hobbies include gardening and yard work, and his roses excel any I have ever seen. He is presently learning how to play golf.

I would describe my father as being highly intelligent and hard-working with fine leadership qualities. I can always rely on his timely advice drawn from years of life experience. He is always interested in his children.

I am truly thankful that I have been raised in a fine Christian home under the authority of my father. He has always been active in his church, and has seen to it that his children were involved in church.

I pray my father is blessed in the years to come with happiness, health and the return in various ways of the love, time and material goods that he has bestowed to us all.

Sincerely,
Martin Palmer

The Palmer family moved to Sanford in 1969 from Canastota, N.Y., where he was in the freezer business. He met his wife, who is from Winter Garden, during World War II when he was stationed at Gotha, then a branch of Orlando Air Force Base. They later moved to New York where they remained 25 years before returning to her home state. George is employed as processing manager by the United Home Food Services, Sanford, formerly the Rich Plan. He said he knew Keith Bauder in New York.

IMF, Aristocrat Of Musical Festivals, Held At SCC

Hawaiian Troupe Takes 3 Gold Medals

In colorful costumes, the charming females in Kamehameha's Ensemble charmed and lulled their way into the hearts of Performing Arts Abroad judges who saw to it that the group took three gold medals for excellence back to the islands.

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

They danced and played and sang their hearts out, dazzling the International Music Festival judges with their haunting beat of native Hawaii... they walked away with three Performing Arts Abroad gold medals.

"We'll have to check our past festival records," said James Dash, coordinator for this last Spring IMF. "But I don't think any group has ever captured three golds," he added.

From the scenically tropical island of Hawaii, the Director Dale Noble and his multi-talented troupe of 60 from the Kamehameha High School staged everything from pop to classical and everything in between.

They joined hundreds of other musicians from all over the country who came together for this aristocrat of festivals at Seminole Community College on June 13.

Jim Dash described this past music showcase as spotlighting some of the best young group talent in the world.

Set in 60 major cities around the world, these festivals feature the top bands, choirs, orchestras and other ensembles who have attained creative excellence in the performing arts.

That's the uniqueness of this competition. All the groups are champions. Competing before its distinguished panel of judges is an honor in itself.

"The IMF was organized by 12 professional musicians whose main office is in Kalamazoo, Mich. We wanted to help in developing young talent and encouraging greater achievement in the music and performing arts field," Dash said.

But the entrants don't compete against each other. They compete against a standard of excellence set by the founding board of musicians.

Auditions are done with taped presentations of group performances. IMF principals wade through endless stacks of tape every year to choose their festival participants.

And they picked real winners with the Kamehameha School this time. Gold medals signifying the highest possible rating from the judges. To capture three is next to impossible.

The Men's Glee Club took one gold; the Shoe Choir with their contagious rhythm of swing, pop song routines took another

Diane Johnson, C.S. Madden Exchange Vows

Diane Victoria Johnson and Charles Sherman Madden were married June 20, at 2 p.m., at the First United Methodist Church, Asheboro, N. C. The Rev. Dr. Philip L. Shore performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Lt. Col. (USAF, ret.) and Mrs. Robert E. Johnson Jr., 225 Main St., Asheboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Theron Madden, 299 Lakeshore Drive, Lake Mary.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows, a formal gown of candlelight Qiana fashioned along the empire silhouette with a high lace collar and chapel length train. Lace insets, lace appliques and clusters of seed pearls lavishly embellished the bodice and long sleeves. Her candlelight veil terminated in a floor-length mantilla.

Susan Johnson attended the bride as matron of honor. She was attired in an apricot colored floor-length sleeveless gown, blouson style, with a lace bodice and accordeon pleated skirt. Bridesmaids were Jean Luann Madden, sister of the bridegroom; Janet McCauley, Katherine Bliss and Wendy Umholtz. Their attire was identical to the honor attendant's.

Todd Gentry served the bridegroom as best man. Usher groomsmen were David Wright III, Scott Love, Nicky Macropoulos and Ralph Fortune.

The reception was held at the home of C. C. Cranford, Rt. 1, Seagrave, N. C.

Following a wedding trip to St. Croix, Virgin Islands, the newlyweds will make their home at B-1 Camelot Apts., Chapel Hill, N. C.

The bride is employed as a medical technician in hematology at North Carolina Memorial Hospital, Chapel Hill. The bridegroom is a student at the University of North Carolina where he is pursuing a B.S. degree in chemistry.

Spouse's Brief Encounter Provokes Wife To Brawl

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to this man for six years and I don't think he loves me anymore. I came home early from work one morning and I found my husband and this woman together. She was wearing my best nightgown. I lost my temper and tore into her, until the police came and broke it up. They took her away to the emergency hospital to repair some cuts and bruises I had given her, as she was in a pretty bad way.

Dear Abby

The next day when I was straightening up the house I found all her underwear on top of the TV. I still have it. What should I do with her underwear?

Portland Oregonian I don't know how many years ago. Twenty, maybe. As you can see, it is yellowed with age and falling apart. I am 81 years old and live alone. My children live close by and are very good to me. How I wish all older people would try to follow what this article says! Please print it again. Thank you.

DEAR BERNICE: Hang on to it. She may be back.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing an article that I cut out of your column in the day be old. "Keep me from getting talkative, and particularly from the fatal habit of thinking I must say something on every occasion."

"Release me from craving to try to straighten out everybody's affairs."

"Keep my mind free from the recital of endless details — give me wings to get to the point."

"I ask for grace enough to listen to the tales of others' pains. Help me to endure them with patience."

"But seal my lips on my own aches and pains — they are increasing and my love of rebearing them is becoming sweeter as the years go by."

"Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally it is possible that I may be mistaken."

"Keep me reasonably sweet; I do not want to be a saint — some of them are so hard to live with — but a sour old person is one of the crowning works of the devil."

"Make me thoughtful, but not moody; helpful, but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom, it seems a pity not to use it all — but Thou knowest, Lord that I want a few friends at the end."

AUTHOR UNKNOWN

DEAR ABBY: The fact that too-tight jeans may cause male sterility is nothing new. I wrote this little jingle back in 1970:

"If your jeans are too tight in the crotch
"Your parental potential is bad.
"Better let out your seams just a notch
"If you hope to be somebody's dad!"

Former Resident Honored By Broadcast Industry

Former Sanfordite Dr. F. Leslie Smith, a member of the radio-television-film faculty at North Texas State University, was honored for his book, "Perspectives on Radio and Television" at the 30th annual Broadcast Industry Conference hosted by San Francisco University.

Dr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Smith, Crystal River, formerly of Sanford. His wife, Cynthia, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Canning of St. Petersburg.

Smith received his B.S. degree from the University of Florida and his doctorate from Florida State University.

The Broadcast Industry presented Smith a Broadcast Preceptor Award for making outstanding contributions to the broadcast industry.

Among others honored at the same event were Alan Alda, Muppet creator Jim Henson and Fred Rogers.

Smith worked for radio stations in Florida and Ohio while attending college and taught in Florida colleges and universities before joining North Texas State University in 1972.

He has received numerous awards for his efforts including the Danforth grant, which he and his wife share.

Two popular Sanford couples (all educators) celebrated 24th wedding anniversaries on June 15. For the past 10 years, the couples have been going out on the town together.

Ann and Don Reynolds were married June 14, 1957 in Sanford, N.C. On the same day, Lucy and Bud Layer exchanged wedding vows in Sanford, Fla. Go ahead and say, "It's a small world."

Speaking of the Reynolds, they were cutting some mighty fancy dance steps at the Schilke-Feudner wedding reception Sunday at Maisen & Jardin, Altamonte Springs.

When the band struck up music for jitterbugging, the dance floor was soon overly crowded with swingers including Bob Besserer and Mims Persons, Lawanda and Ken Sandon and Mimi and Jack Greene — among others.

The mother of the bride, Shirley Schilke, also showed her dance expertise. More on the event later.

And speaking of Lawanda and Ken Sandon, they are proud grandparents of a son, Kenneth Merle III born on June 2, to the junior Ken Sandona in Orlando.

Tom H. McDonald, son of Mary Lou and Tom McDonald, graduated from the University of Florida Law College on June 13.

Congratulations are in order to Martha Arzarello for serving 25 years with the Seminole Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The following Sanford students have achieved dean's list or class honors at Duke University during the 1980-81 academic year:

Laura Lynn Layer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Layer; Long Anh Doan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bang V. Doan; Daniel Freeman McIntosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McIntosh; and John Vincent Parker, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. Vann Parker.

Mrs. Berthea Kader, mother of John Kader of Sanford, Raymond Kader of Clearwater, and Dot Berthea of Orlando, celebrated her 91st birthday on June 17.

Mrs. Kader is a resident of Life Care, Altamonte Springs. She was showered with cards, gifts and a birthday cake.

Remember that Roaring Twenties hop to benefit Seminole Work Opportunity Program (SWOP), a program for retarded adults?

Well, chairman Jackie Goodman says she is happy to report the event netted $800 to help these handicapped persons. Isn't that super?

Bob Daehn has announced that July 8 is Ladies Day at the Sanford Kiwanis Club's Award Luncheon, at noon, at the Sanford Civic Center.

At this time, the Roberta Gatchel Woman of the Year award will be presented to a deserving area woman.

What a thrill at being one of these winners. All of the winners, including this columnist, are so appreciative of this community honor.

Other women-of-the year include: Irene Laney, Val Colbert, Charlotte Smith, Maria Perez, M.D., Rosamond Chapman, "Bill" Gielow, Myrtle Gradick, Peggy Hattaway, Vivian Buck and Ruth Swinney.

Four area students graduated with honors from the University of Central Florida on June 12.

Charla M. Waters, the daughter of Irene and Carroll Shattuck, received her degree, summa cum laude, in psychology. She is a 1976 graduate of DeLand high school.

Vicky J. Lambert, daughter of Dorman and JoAnne Marsh, graduated magna cum laude in music education. She is a 1977 graduate of Seminole high school.

Cathy Jo Capko, daughter of Michael and Lillian Capko, graduated with a degree in elementary education (math specialization), magna cum laude. She is a 1976 graduate of Lyman high school.

Margie M. Mercer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Y. Mercer, received a degree in management, cum laude. She graduated in 1976 from Seminole high school.

while the Kamehameha Concert Choir completed the set. Gold signifies the very best... these dazzling ensembles rank in the top 5 percent categories among performing groups worldwide.

Seminole Community College was just one of many stops for the touring students who are appearing this summer throughout the United States.

The school's Concert Glee Club first captured the attention of International Music Festival coordinators at a 1975 Mexico City festival when they took the only gold medal award.

Other competitors in this past weekend festival included: The Merritt College Swing Choir of Oakland, Calif., taking a silver medal; and the Emory High School Symphonic Band from Emory County in Utah, awarded a bronze medal.

Dash explained that gold represents the highest standard of excellence. Silver is next in line, followed by the bronze.

A "medal of merit" and a certificate festival award comprises other rating standards.

The SCC festival was judged by locally known musicians including Jerry Gardner, University of Central Florida director of bands; Dr. Ralph Appleman, formerly of the Indiana State University music department; and Dr. Wyke Housewright of Florida State University.

Youngsters in the Kamehameha School in addition to festival performances were featured this past Tuesday night at the First United Methodist Church in Orlando.

Their performing excellence is a 93 year old tradition, as long as the high school of 1,500 student population has stood.

Among audiences that have been entertained by the singing, chanting hula dancers are President Gerald Ford, Queen Elizabeth, Prince Phillip, and the Emperor Hirohito.

Known the world over for their dynamic stage presence and musical excellence, the Kamehameha Schools have more than 600 students enrolled in music courses of study and performance.

Eight Glee Clubs comprise the choral department, two of which are concert ensembles. As the groups are in constant demand, extensive tours throughout America and around the world spread the fame of this college prep institution.

The scenic Kapahama Heights campus stretches across 600 acres.

Weight Control Class Plans Follow-Up

A "Natural Way To Weight Control" class was recently concluded at the Sanford Seventh-day Adventist Church, 700 Elm Avenue. Combined with a sister class at the DeLand church, over 90 people participated in the highly motivated four-week community service program conducted by the pastor of the two churches, Ken Bryant.

No diets are offered, but weight management is a total life style approach of lowering weight by eating-habit modification. The reason most diets don't work is an unrealistic approach to long term, life time eating habits, says Bryant.

Benefits reported by participants include better sleep, increased energy, more alertness, less depression, more optimism and just a good over-all sense of well being.

Pastor Bryant has successfully held programs for the Naval Training Center, Disney World, and the city employees of Orlando. A follow-up class will be conducted Wednesday, June 24 at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited. Another program is scheduled for the fall.

For information and registration call the pastor at (305) 869-8106.

Women's Ordination Issue Lives On

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Although the Vatican has repeatedly restated the Roman Catholic Church's teaching that women are to be excluded from the priesthood, a small band of U.S. bishops continues to keep the issue alive.

In a report to the church by the joint National Conference of Catholic Bishops' Committee on Women in Society and in the Church and the Women's Ordination Conference, representatives of the two groups agree the issue of women priests requires "much further exploration."

"A fuller sharing of information, knowledge and experience among various sectors of the church — women, pastors, bishops, male and female theologians and biblical scholars — is needed," the two groups said in their report.

Underscoring the two group's decision to keep the matter open was the recognition that while the Magisterium, or teaching authority of the church, excludes the possibility of women's ordination, "the matter continues to be one of public debate, discussion and ongoing writing and study in the church and the world."

In the United States, the issue of women's ordination — and the Vatican's steadfast opposition — has sharply divided Catholics and led to reports of deep alienation from the church on part of some women. The two-year dialogue between representatives of the Women's Ordination Conference and the bishops' committee is an attempt to address that alienation.

So far, participants on both sides say the result has been positive and has not resulted in the confrontation and conflict many expected.

"The dialogue has been characterized by a mutual good will on the part of all those engaged in this very significant experience," the report said.

Although the question of ordination of women as priest stood as a shadow behind all the discussions, the question of other forms of women's exclusion from the full life of the church were frequently at the forefront of the meetings.

"The many levels of exclusion of women from full participation in the church raises serious questions for women regarding the extent to which the Roman Catholic Church effectively acknowledges the full human personhood of women," the report said.

It singled out the use of male language in worship, "where not only God but also Christians are referred to in exclusively male terms," and the exclusion of female children to participate as altar servers as practices that lead to women's alienation from the church.

"Some women feel that the unwillingness of the Roman Catholic bishops to endorse the Equal Rights Amendment means that the hierarchy does not, in fact, promote the equality of women in society," the report noted.

The result, according to the report, is that "for an increasing number of women, the Eucharist (Holy Communion) itself has become problematic."

"These women are not found simply among marginal Catholics, but also among women who have pursued religious vocations, who at present are members of religious congregations, who have engaged in extensive theological studies and who desire a fuller participation in the ministry of the church," it said.

Both sides agreed to continue the dialogue.

BIBLE SCHOOL FUN

"Homer" the clown (alias Mary Moncrief) explains the joys of Vacation Bible School at First Baptist Church of Longwood to (from left) Kimberly Hammock, Kim, Tiffany, Sheila and Eric Hardman and Julie Zimmer. The church will hold its Bible school Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. for children 4-12 years. Closing program will be Friday at 7 p.m. The church is located on State Road 131.

Teams Play Together, Pray Together

Professional football teams had been having chapel services before their games for several years when a former Detroit News baseball writer, Watson Spoelstra, went to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in 1973 with a plan.

He said he would coordinate weekly chapel services for the 12 major league baseball teams that would be on the road every Sunday during the baseball season.

As Spoelstra conceived it, the services would follow a simple format. The players would meet after breakfast in a room in the hotel where the road team was staying or in the clubhouse before pre-game practice.

There would be a low-key devotional message by a guest speaker lined up by Spoelstra, followed by a closing prayer. Kuhn said fine and Spoelstra went to work. The chapel program started in April 1973 with two teams — the Minnesota Twins and the Chicago Cubs. That number grew as the season progressed.

The Baseball Chapel is now beginning its ninth season. All 24 big league teams now have pre-game chapel services regularly — or almost regularly. Last year more than 1,000 players, managers, coaches, stadium personnel, radio-TV broadcasters and baseball writers attended the Sunday services.

Waddy Spoelstra still coordinates the program he started from his home in Madeira Beach, Fla. Spoelstra's interest in the Baseball Chapel is a story in itself.

A former hard-drinking sportswriter who covered the Detroit Tigers and the Detroit Lions for his newspaper, Waddy "seemed dedicated to keeping the distilleries of America on overtime," as one fellow sportswriter put it.

Then an experience occurred that turned Spoelstra's life around. After covering the Lions' victory in the championship game of 1957, Waddy learned that his daughter Ann, a freshman at the University of Michigan, was critically ill with a brain hemorrhage. The best neurosurgeon was called but he said that Ann's chances of pulling through were very slim. Waddy and his wife went together to the hospital chapel.

"I grew up with a Bible-believing mother but I had given up going to church years before," says Waddy. "So there in the chapel I just said, 'God, my mother believed in you. If you are here, I'll make a deal with you. You do something about Ann and I'll let you do something about me.'"

Miraculously Ann got better. She completely recovered — without surgery.

Saints And Sinners

George Plagenz

Waddy was left there standing with his vow in his throat. He put down the bottle and turned out the room lights that led him around at night and went to work for the Lord.

Spoelstra wasn't sure at first what he was supposed to do. He began attending church and reading the Bible. He considered giving up his newspaper career, reasoning that the companions a sportswriter would be likely to have — while likeable and in some ways harmless enough — weren't the kind who could be expected to provide reinforcement and encouragement for his new-found faith.

Then he read a passage in Corinthians in the Bible where Paul said, "Usually a person should keep on with the work he was doing when God called him."

Waddy decided to remain with the Detroit News. He is glad he did, for the next season — 1958 — a player joined the Lions who would make a further change in Spoelstra's life. It was Bill Glass.

While still with the Lions, where he was an outstanding defensive end for four seasons, Glass began attending Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Ft. Worth, Texas, during the off-season. He received his bachelor of divinity degree in 1963.

Having decided to become an evangelist when his playing days were over, Glass began his evangelistic crusades on a part-time basis while still with the Cleveland Browns, for whom he played from 1962 to 1968. After the '68 season he quit to become a full-time evangelist.

Glass had become Spoelstra's religious mentor while he was with the Lions. When Waddy gave up sports writing in 1973 after 40 years, he formed his own public relations firm. His major client was the Bill Glass Evangelistic Association.

He co-authored two tracts with Glass, "Hit to Win, Not to Hurt" and "Life With Christ Is Life at Its Best."

The two are still close friends, although Waddy now devotes all his time to the Baseball Chapel.

RECEPTION FOR MINISTERS

The United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford, held a reception for the pastors following the 11 a.m. service Sunday. The congregation welcomed back the Rev. Leu King and his wife, Ruby, beginning their ninth year at the church. The Rev. Richard S. Vitolo (right) of Fort Lauderdale, a recent graduate of Asbury Theological Seminary, Wilmore, Ky., joins the Rev. King as associate pastor.

NEW PASTORS WELCOMED

The Rev. and Mrs. David Hodges (left) and the Rev. and Mrs. Wight Kirtley were welcomed to Community United Methodist Church of Casselberry Sunday at a reception held in the fellowship hall by the United Methodist Women. Hodges, who will serve as associate pastor, is a recent graduate of Asbury Theological Seminary and is from Winter Park. Former Sanford residents, the Kirtleys served in Deltona and Miami before coming to Casselberry.

Investing In The Future

Pastor's Corner

By REV. PAUL E. MURPHY JR.
First Baptist Church
Sanford

Recently my daughter and I were browsing in a toy store in Fort Worth Texas, when I overheard the parents of an older child talking to the salesclerk. It was apparent the parents were having great difficulty in finding toys that would satisfy the child who was approximately 10 years of age.

The parents explained to the clerk that they had to find some toys to occupy their child because they would be working a lot of overtime to have additional funds to invest for their future, and the child would be left alone a large part of the time. I found the clerks response most interesting; she boldly told the parents that the greatest investment was not in financial wealth, but was that of the life of their child.

The Bible teaches that investments in the life of our child shall pay great dividends. There are some very important principles that are set forth in scriptures.

The home should be an environment of love. "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it," Ephesians 5:25 and "Many waters cannot quench love neither can the floods drown it; if a man would give all the sustenance of his house for love, it would utterly be condemned." Song of Solomon 8:7. A devoted love between husband, wife and children is in proportion to the love we have for our creator.

The home should be given to worship. "And All Judah Stood Before The Lord, with their little ones, their wives, and their children," 2 Chronicles 20:13.

The parents should be a living example. "Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life; but teach them thy sons, and thy sons' sons," Deuteronomy 4:9, and "And if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked in integrity of heart, and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded thee, and will keep my statutes and my judgments, I Kings 9:4.

Soon we honor and remember our fathers. May we use this occasion to rededicate ourselves to be what God wants us to be, so that our homes are healthy and our nation strong. Let us devote proper time and energy to the investment that yields the greatest return for our family.

DRAMAS HIGHLIGHT EVENT

Two Bible-based dramas will be presented at the four-day "Kingdom Loyalty" District Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses in Lakeland at the Civic Center Arena, June 25-28. 200 Witnesses from the Sanford area are expected to attend.

WIN AT BRIDGE

South ducks the first spade and wins the second one. He checks for a way to collect nine tricks. He can attack clubs. If West holds the king, a finesse produces four club tricks plus three hearts and two spades. But if the finesse loses, South can only come to eight. South can attack diamonds first and finesse against the queen. If West holds that queen, South won't need a club finesse. If East produces the queen, then South can still try the club finesse. He goes down two, but he is trying for game and does not worry about an extra 50-point loss. So South leads his eight of diamonds and lets it ride. East takes his ace and clears the spades, but South repeats the diamond finesse and scores three diamonds, three hearts, two spades and a club for his nine tricks. Why did we say this hand has appeared in many forms? Suppose that East held ace-queen of diamonds and West the king of clubs. East could win the first diamond with the ace. The unfortunate declarer would take the supposedly proven diamond finesse and go down on a makable contract. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL For Sunday, June 21, 1981

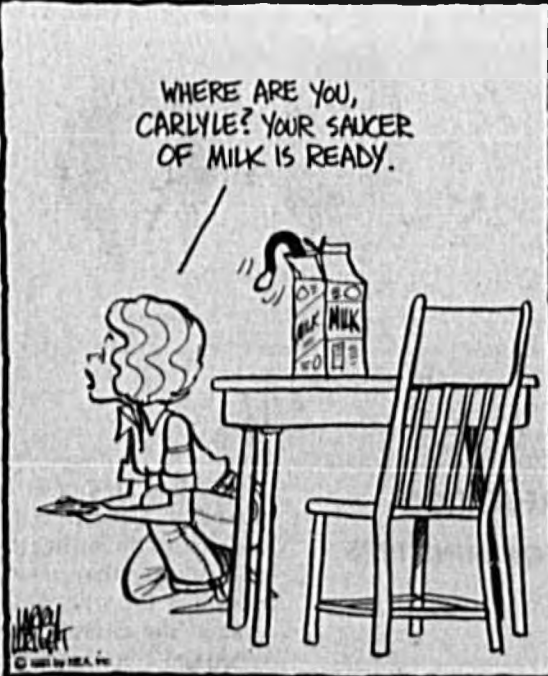

YOUR BIRTHDAY June 21, 1981 Although your fortunes should be on the rise in the year ahead, it won't pay you to be impatient. It may be late autumn before an upturn becomes evident to you. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you could find just the right opportunity you've been looking for to change something so that it will be more beneficial to you and your family. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Play it by instinct today in important one-to-one relationships. Your hunches will help guide you to say and do the right things. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a good day to talk over business matters with contemporaries in a relaxed atmosphere. Each may have ideas that could be fruitful for one another. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your chances for fulfilling your ambitions today are quite good. You'll know what you want. You'll convince others to play supportive roles. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Things should work out quite well in the long run today, but events may not unfold exactly as you had them mapped out.

For Monday, June 22, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY June 22, 1981 This coming year you should do quite well in areas where you are materially motivated. The more you see in it for yourself, the harder you'll try and the more likely you are to succeed. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some petty but frustrating situations could develop today, yet they will be manageable if you treat them philosophically. Hang loose, Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In joint ventures today you may find yourself relegated to a minor role. Swallow your pride rather than speak out and cause more difficulties. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Steer clear of situations with friends today where you have to borrow or lend something of value. Unforeseen complications are possible. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Matters deemed to be important should be taken care of as early as possible today. As time wears on, you tend to coast. You might not get things done. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your organizational skills are likely to be better than those of your peers today, but you may have a hard time convincing them of this. What you bind together they might un-
