Kids rate Dukakis. Poe Weo Herman even

SANFORD — (By J.P.) Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis may have clinched the Democratic presidential nomination for the kids of America as Poe Weo Herman equally qualified for the presidency, according to recent surveys.

Waldenbooks, the nation's largest bookstore, said Wednesday that its kids club members, who range in age from 9 to 14, gave both Dukakis and Herman 8 percent of their vote for the person best qualified to be president.

From a list of names including Captain Kenan, Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy, the children gave President Reagan 13 percent, George Bush 13 percent, Jesse Jackson 13 percent and Jimmy Carter 10 percent.

Goldenrod plans Flag Day ceremony

GOLDENROD — The Winter Park Lakes Lodge 2899 and members of the lodge will observe Flag Day ceremony at 2 p.m. Sunday at 477 Howell Drive. The Navy Flag Drill Team will participate and the American Legion will hold a flag burning ceremony for disposal of worn-out flags.

Gen. William F. Garrison, U.S. Army Ret., will be guest speaker.

Following the ceremony, barbeque, hot dogs and soft drinks will be served. A $2000 contest will be held to award the best flag burning ceremony. Entries should be submitted to the contest by June 15. Entries should be mailed to the contest by June 15.

Father Day special at zoo

WINTER — Father's Day special at the Zoo for half price admission. June 19 is the first 290 fathers admitted will receive a free Father's Day key chain. A Zoo science station stand will offer fathers the special 1/2 price for hot dogs, soft drinks and soft drink for $2. Children fathers may want to see their fathers take a walk with the resident.

Legislature approves grant for Sanford Civic Center

SANFORD — The city's aging Civic Center got a much needed grant reallocation from the Legislature before its close of business Tuesday night when lawmakers allocated $150,000 to help with refurbishing.

"Great, great, great," said City Manager Frank Eason after learning of the allocation. "It is something that we've been pushing and waiting for."

Eason said that the $150,000 would be used to help update the aging building and combined with the $175,000 already earmarked from the city's general fund to build the Senior Citizen Center addition.

What is even more important is that we think we can get even more next year," said Mayor Bettye Smith. "We will begin shortly to submit an application to get that."

Smith said Rep. Art Grindle had originally helped get the $150,000 allocated by the Legislature last year to build a band shell.

"We had a ceremony with me accepting the check and everything," said Smith. "Then we started to think that it might be better put to the civic center."

"We found out that it was allocated for cultural affairs and could not be used for the civic center."

Smith said that the city had to reapply for the grant funds and that she made several trips to Tallahassee to lobby for its approval.

"We had some help from a lot of people to pull this off," said Smith. "We really need to redo the civic center."

According to Bill Simmons, director for the city's engineering and planning department, the $150,000 could be used for several areas of the Civic Center that need immediate attention.

Simmons mentioned the poor acoustics of the center and that better sound absorption is needed, along with a modern climate control system. Heating, lighting and seating problems also need to be addressed.

"The Civic Center has not had a whole lot of updates since it was built in 1958," said Simmons.

Simmons indicated that the next step would be to hire a contractor to determine exactly what is needed and how much each item will cost. The resulting would then be a prioritized list of items to be added to the city's budget.

Chamber backs plan to save Sanford Plaza from beltway

WINTER — The city's roads and bridges subcommittee Tuesday night approved a plan to save Sanford Plaza, Center Mall and other buildings from destruction for the expressway.

Gerald Britton, executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority, said that the northbound expressway entrance and exit ramps from U.S. Highway 17-92 from the Sanford Plaza site to vacant land behind it will save all of the shopping center, except for the First and Auto Parts store, where a bridge over U.S. 17-92 will be built.

Center Mall and several other businesses could be saved by allowing northbound U.S. 17-92 traffic to enter the southbound expressway lanes from Airport Boulevard instead of a ramp passing through the Center Mall, Britton said.

The proposed revisions will not save the Zavors Plaza or the Howell Place retirement home. Under both proposals, southbound traffic on U.S. 17-92 enters the southbound expressway lanes by a ramp, going through the Zavors site.

Committee member David Knickerbocker, Oviedo Realtor, suggested the ramp be widened to 100 feet. Art Grindle, Oviedo Realtor, said that the widening would be a major improvement. He said that U.S. 17-92, merging with the highway, would be a major improvement.

In general, the committee members were pleased with the road sign suggestions.

The expressway authority seems very receptive to the comments from the community, said Mike Gaud, committee member and president of Linear Construction, a Longwood road building company.

Britton said those plans could not be changed because the southbound traffic flow on U.S. 17-92 was north to south. To make a left turn onto Airport Boulevard to join the northbound traffic entering the southbound expressway lanes.

Sanford may waive fees for regatta

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith and City Manager Frank Eason say they may recommend some sort of exception for special events to the proposed ordinance that imposes a $6 fee for non-residents and regulates boat launching and parking at the Lake Monroe Harbor Marina.

Under the ordinance, as now proposed, participants in special events, such as the Florida Citrus Bowl Sailing Regatta, the world's largest inland boating event, would be treated as non-residents and would be required to pay the $6 daily fee to be imposed during weekends and holidays at the marina.

The ordinance may force citrus Bowl regatta organizers to look elsewhere for a suitable site for this year's December event.

John W. Gardner, Jr., executive director of the regatta, said that the regatta is a major economic stimulus for Sanford.

"When you put $100,000 into a city's economy, you should get some kind of exception," Gardner said. "An impact survey done after last year's event, in which nearly 400 boaters participated, indicated that the regatta contributed $100,000 to the Sanford economy."

"I don't know what we would do if they passed it. Hopefully, we can work something out if we lose Sanford and I don't want to get someone else," said Gardner, an Orlando resident.

"I think it would be a real loss to Sanford if we have to leave," Mayor Bettye Smith said Wednesday. "She feels very strongly about keeping the regatta in Sanford."

"I'm sure there will not be a problem," Smith said. "It will come up on Monday and we will either discuss an exception or a reduction in fees. We don't want to lose them."

City Manager Frank Eason said he will recommend some type of consideration be given to special events. Eason will recommend a reduction of special event organizers provide the main power for the launching and absorption is needed, along with a modern climate control system. Heating, lighting and seating problems also need to be addressed.

The city commission will consider the ordinance at its May 24 meeting. The ordinance was not adopted at the meeting and was brought back to the commission at the meeting.

City Commissioner Bill Simmons said that the ordinance would be a real loss to Sanford if we have to leave.

"I don't know what we would do if they passed it. Hopefully, we can work something out if we lose Sanford and I don't want to get someone else," said Gardner, an Orlando resident.

"I think it would be a real loss to Sanford if we have to leave," Mayor Bettye Smith said Wednesday. "She feels very strongly about keeping the regatta in Sanford."

"I'm sure there will not be a problem," Smith said. "It will come up on Monday and we will either discuss an exception or a reduction in fees. We don't want to lose them."

Longwood recall petitions filed

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Recall petitions filed against Mayor Dave Genter and Deputy Mayor Lynette Dennis have been certified by Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Sandra Gaudier and even though some signatures were disqualified there were more than the required number of 419 on both petitions.

The minimum number required was based on 10 percent of the city's 4,184 registered voters. The petitions were submitted to Gaudier for certification on May 17 and she had 30 days to complete the task.

Today Gaudier certified 467 names of the original 518 for Dennis, recall and 460 of the original 521 on Genter's recall petition.

Gentry said he received the results from the supervisor's office Tuesday and he has written letters informing Genter and Dennis, but as of this morning they had not yet been picked up at city hall. He said he informed Dennis by phone and left a message with Genter's wife Terry.

Both have five days from the day they receive the letters in which to respond to the charges on the petitions with a defensive statement of not more than 200 words.

Wilson declares for state senate

COCOA BEACH — Former state senator Lori Wilson of Cocoa Beach has announced that she will run on the Republican ticket for the District 17 State Senate seat.

The District 17 seat, which encompasses parts of Seminole, Orange, Brevard and Osceola counties, is currently held by Senate President John Voigt, who will not run for reelection.

A secretary during the 1980s, Wilson, 41, parlayed her Independent status and stand on environmental issues into two consecutive terms as the District 17 Senator from 1987-88. During those six years in office, Wilson was the only woman and only Independent in the Senate.

In a released statement, Wilson said "Dozens of people problems come before a senator every day. I have a track record and

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Man robbed at knife point

SANFORD — A Sanford man was attacked and robbed in front of the Cumberland Farms store, 710 Lake Mary Blvd., late Wednesday afternoon by two men, one brandishing a razor-blade knife.

Morris Harmon, 33, of 2000 Lake Mary Blvd., was approached by two males in front of the convenience store at approximately 5:50 p.m. According to the police report, one of the suspects struck Harmon in the head with his flat and then cut Harmon's left forearm with a razor-blade knife, while the other grabbed a folder containing $106 in cash.

Both men then fled on foot. The money belonged to Central Florida Cablevision, Orlando, where Harmon works as a cable installer. Police are still investigating.

In other police action: ● A pager and bracelet, total value $400, was reported stolen from the residence of John Elias, 2000 Lake Mary Blvd., sometime Tuesday. Police are looking for a known suspect.

● A television, valued at $300, was reported stolen from the residence of Constance Clark, 400 Palmetto Ave., sometime Wednesday. Police are looking for a known suspect.

Police arrest 13-year-olds

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary police arrested and charged two 13 year-old girls in connection with a vandalism incident reported at 2:41 a.m. Wednesday morning by residents at 171 Grand Bend Avenue.

According to Lake Mary Police Captain Samuel Belfiore, vandals removed a screen from a bedroom window and began to throw rocks, a lawn sprinkler, and other debris at a boy sleeping in the room.

When officers responded to the call, they spotted two girls running from the area. When approached by the police, one ducked behind a garage, the other stopped.

Later, the boy identified the girls. Belfiore said the girls explained that they knew the boy and it was a joke. Their names were not released because they are juveniles.

Officially, the punksters were charged with loitering and prowling. The girls were released to the custody of their parents.

Driving under the influence

SANFORD — The following person has been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Michael James McClellan, 27, of 43 Shenandoah Village, Sanford, was arrested at 9:27 p.m. Wednesday, two minutes after a Sanford policeman saw his car allegedly hit a parked car in the lot of Seminole Gardens Apartments, Sanford. McClellan allegedly didn't stop at the scene, but drove on to park at 5 Seminole Gardens. The policeman confronted him there and told him he was under arrest. He reportedly had to be "removed" from his car by the officer. He also allegedly struggled when being handcuffed. McClellan has also been charged with resisting arrest with violence and leaving the scene of an accident. Bond was set at $1,000 and he remained jailed.

Burglaries, thefts reported

SANFORD — Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating the theft of a $350 video recorder from the house of Jeffrey Jerome Jones, of 1048 North St., Altamonte Springs. The recorder, which was rented from Canyon Rental of Orlando, was reported stolen Wednesday.

Sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who may have stolen a $250 cassette recorder and a $200 compact disc player Wednesday from the home of Steven Newton, of 989 Lake Irene Drive, Casselberry.

James S. Shulock, of 325 Wymore Road #105, Altamonte Springs, reported to sheriff's deputies, a $312 television, two speakers valued at $600, $150, a $20 rifle, a $110 drill and a $150 watch were stolen from his house Wednesday.

Lena Stallworth, of 704 Brentwood St., Altamonte Springs, gave sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect who may have stolen her $359 television early today.

The 1978 Datsun of Walter Edward West, of 1061 Cochran Road, Geneva, was stolen Tuesday or Wednesday. A sheriff's report valued the car at $1,000.

A burglar stole a $200 chainsaw from a shed behind the Jehovah Witness Kingdom Hall, 1901 State Road 426, Oviedo, May 25 or 26. The loss was reported to sheriff's deputies Wednesday.

A $600 speaker belonging to Music Shack of Orlando, was stolen between May 21 and 27 from the garage at the home of Mike Dolphin, of 605 Stanford Drive, Altamonte Springs, according to a sheriff's report filed Wednesday.

Accused smuggler denied bond

By Susan Loden
 Herald Staff Writer

TAMPA — An Osteen man arrested in Sanford along with his son Tuesday morning by U.S. Customs agents after they allegedly met a marijuana-loaded airplane that landed in a pasture, is being held without bond.

Joe Thomas Russell, 49, the father, and a man arrested at the same time in Dunnellon in connection with the smuggling ring that operated from Belize, in Central America, to Sanford, and Las Vegas, remain jailed. Russell's son, Jeffrey Thomas Russell, 33, of Sanford has been released on $100,000.

A woman who was arrested with the Dunnellon man has been released on $25,000 bond. All are scheduled to make a second appearance in court today in Tampa. Other arrests in the case have been made in Las Vegas and at least two Seminole County suspects, who were allegedly with the Russells, when they reportedly ran from agents when the plane landed, are being sought, said customs Special Agent Joe Ladow in Tampa.

Charges against the four include smuggling, possession of marijuana to distribute, and conspiracy. The pilot of the plane reportedly tipped agents that he had been hired by the Dunnellon man, Gary Dennis Brickey, 39, to deliver 628 pounds of marijuana to Sanford.

The Russells allegedly ran from the landing sight when a U.S. Customs helicopter landed behind the plane in a pasture in the Cameron Avenue area near Lake Jessup. They were caught near Russell's Seafood, State Road 48, east of Sanford. That business is owned by the younger Russell's mother and he is employed there.

The elder Russell in 1981 was convicted on a U.S. Marshal's charge of conspiracy to import marijuana. He was sentenced to two years in prison.

Sex education approved for Seminole students

By Carol Runsey
 UCP Intern

SANFORD — As expected, a sex education program which includes AIDS awareness for middle and high school students, to begin in the fall of 1989, was approved by the Seminole County School Board Wednesday.

The unanimous school board vote came quickly and with little discussion except for board member Pat Telson, who complimented the 14-member Sex Education Committee on its research and recommendations. Board members Ann Neiswender and Larry Betsinger were absent from the meeting.

For eight months, committee members studied national surveys, related research and existing programs from other counties. The committee also conducted a random survey of Seminole County families and discovered the majority were strongly in favor of sex education in the schools. Their findings were presented to the school board at a May 20 work session.

This summer a writing team will begin developing curriculum to be used in life management skills courses for high school students. The course is expected to include information on AIDS, abortion and birth control. Middle school students will receive the information through scheduled health classes. Further study is to be conducted on the possibility of incorporating AIDS instruction into elementary school programs.

Marion G. Dailey, assistant superintendent for instructional services, as in previous discussions, said the emphasis will be placed on abstinence. Homework assignments will be given which require parental involvement. Each school will hold at least one special presentation for parents to inform them on course content. In addition, parents will receive newsletters on upcoming presentations to students. Also, a packet of information regarding suggested books and parenting programs will be available for parents, teachers and administrators.

If parents do not wish their children to receive the information, they may withdraw them only after reviewing the course outline.

Tanker spill forces evacuation

CHEFLAND (UPI) — A tanker truck overturned and spilled a load of gasoline Wednesday night, forcing evacuation of about 200 residents from their homes, authorities said.

"The truck overturned completely with about 6,500 gallons of gas in it," said Florida Highway Patrol dispatcher Charles Roberts.

FHP records show the accident took place at 9:55 p.m. Wednesday in the city limits of Chefland, a small town in north Florida's Levy County, about 30 miles southwest of Gainesville.

Roberts said a 1975 Volkswagen, driven by Melissa Gail Todd of Chefland, ran a stop sign, forcing the truck driver to apply his brakes and swerve. The truck overturned after passing through the intersection.

Trooper Virgil Sandlin investigated the accident, and wrote that gasoline began pouring from the overturned tractor trailer rig.

"It was upside down and about all of it came out," Robert said.

Chefland police dispatcher Mary Elzey said about 200 to 300 people in the area were moved from their homes in case there was an explosion.

"They didn't want to go but they had no choice," Elzey said. "It was a precautionary move."

Emergency units were called in from Levy County and nearby Gainesville.

Senate fails to override Reagan's trade bill veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate failed Wednesday to override President Reagan's veto of the trade reform bill and preserve its labor-backed plant closing provision.

The Senate voted 61-37, short of the two-thirds margin needed to override a veto.

Supporters, stressing the need for a comprehensive U.S. policy to deal with foreign trade abuses and promote American exports, immediately focused their sights on passing a second trade bill, stripped of the controversial plant closing provision.

Reagan vetoed the legislation May 24, largely because he considered the provision requiring companies to give employees 60 days notice before closing a plant or ordering massive layoffs an unnecessary intrusion into business decisions.

Several backers of trade reform said it was possible for Congress to approve a similar measure — minus the plant closing language — that would win Reagan's approval, but they conceded it would be difficult to fend off additional amendments or combat possible delaying tactics by supporters of the plant closing provision.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas suggested Congress could approve another trade bill by Labor Day if House and Senate leaders from both parties and the administration agree to "sit down and work out their differences."

The 1,000-page bill, which died with the Senate's failure to override the veto, took a broad approach to trade reform.

It would have stiffened penalties for foreign countries that violate U.S. rules, help import-battered American companies to regain their place in world markets and create comprehensive retraining programs for displaced workers.

It also would have streamlined export licensing procedures for American products, enhance marketing subsidies for U.S. farm products, improve protections for U.S. patents, copyrights and trademarks, and authorize the United States to participate in a new round of global trade talks in Geneva deemed crucial to halting growing protectionism around the world. The Democratic-controlled House acted on the day of the veto, voting 308-113 to preserve the plant closing language and override the veto, sending it to the Senate for action.

An override requires a two-thirds margin in both the House and Senate to enact a law over the president's objections.

Despite determined efforts by Senate Democratic leaders and ardent lobbying by organized labor, bill supporters appeared unable to sway any of the 36 senators who voted against the trade bill in April, dashing any chance of mustering the 66 votes needed for an override.

"There is no reason not to pass another trade bill this year," Danforth said. "We have spent the time. We have put together a product that is good ... so now, let's go forward."

In the House, Ways and Means chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., a leading architect of the trade bill, favors quick passage of a second version, but the final decision is up to House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas.

Former candidates release delegates, endorse Dukakis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Democratic presidential hopefuls endorsed Wednesday the party's prospective nominee, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, in a pre-convention effort at unity and those who retained delegates from previous primaries released them to join the Dukakis bandwagon.

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois formally threw their support to Dukakis, who picked up enough delegates in Tuesday's primaries to clinch a first-ballot nomination at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta July 18-21.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, who won only the Feb. 6 Iowa caucuses, announced his support of Dukakis during a Wednesday news conference in his hometown of St. Louis. Gephardt ended his campaign March 28 when his message to toughen U.S. trade policy failed to catch on after Iowa.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, also looking ahead to the autumn general election campaign against Republican Vice President George Bush, said he already has endorsed Dukakis and, "I think it's time for Democrats to unify."

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo endorsed Dukakis in an anti-climatic announcement in Albany, N.Y. After declaring in February 1987 that he would not be a presidential candidate, Cuomo did not quash talk of a convention draft until the week before New York's primary April 19, which Dukakis won in a landslide.

Cuomo at first said he would endorse a candidate after the primary, then decided to wait until after all the primaries were over — meaning Wednesday — before making his endorsement.

The Massachusetts governor came out on top Tuesday night over the original field of seven candidates who started in the primaries and caucuses this year.

Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson was the only other contender to finish the primary season in California, New Jersey, Montana and New Mexico.

While he congratulated Dukakis on obtaining the nomination, Jackson said Wednesday he would be going to the convention to press for the liberal issues dear to his constituency. He also has been saying recently that he has "earned consideration" as Dukakis's running mate by virtue of his drawing power within the party.

But Wednesday, former candidates who waited out the primaries quickly threw their support to Dukakis.

Babbitt, who dropped out of the race Feb. 18 after dismal performances in the Iowa caucuses and the Feb. 16 New Hampshire primary, formally endorsed Dukakis, saying on San Francisco's KPIX-TV, "He's run a great campaign. It's time to come together. He's a good man and I'll endorse him."

Simon, at a news conference in Washington, not only endorsed Dukakis but released his 175 national convention delegates. When he suspended his campaign April 7, Simon held onto his delegates — but now they are free to vote for whomever they wish.

The Illinois Democrat, who won only his home state primary March 15, said that as a "super delegate" to the convention, he also would vote for Dukakis.

"The verdict is in," Simon said. "Democratic voters in primaries and caucuses have made clear their decision to nominate Michael Dukakis, who through the course of this campaign has demonstrated his leadership, his skills, his substance and his commitment to progress for all Americans."

Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, the moderate who had hoped that a sweep of the mostly Southern Super Tuesday primaries March 8 would propel him to the front of the pack, suspended his campaign April 21 and held onto his 339 delegates.

N. Korea can't have both ways

North Korea won't send athletes to the Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea, because to do so would be to "condone the policy of two Koreas." North Korean leader Kim Il Sung has relayed that befuddled message to Olympics organizers through President Joaquim Chissano of Mozambique.

It sounds as if Kim needs a long rest. Just last year, his country was demanding the right to be a co-host of the Olympic Games — a demand that also seemed to condone a two-Koreas policy.

South Korea and Olympics officials agreed last year to let North Korea be the host for a few Olympics events — a remarkable concession, considering that North Korea periodically shoots at South Korean soldiers and plants terrorists on South Korean planes. But North Korean leaders would have nothing to do with the offer. They held out for full status as co-hosts or nothing.

There also are indications that Kim wants to disrupt the Games and thereby deprive South Korea of the favorable publicity that comes with staging a successful Olympics. He sought and failed to muster support among Communist countries for a boycott of the Olympics. There also were indications that North Korea had been plotting to sabotage the Summer Games, perhaps by moving troops and military equipment toward the border on the eve of the Games to raise fears of an invasion.

And newspapers in Washington and London reported recently that the North Koreans were conspiring to spoil the Games by making people afraid to travel to Seoul. The stories said Japanese terrorists were being recruited and trained to attack commercial airlines as a way of frightening away tourists.

Kim denied any such intentions. His government has now turned to preparing for a World Youth Festival in North Korea, timed to coincide with the Olympic Games in South Korea. Never mind, apparently, that a competing event also would emphasize the two-Koreas policy.

It's too bad for North Korean athletes and for those who will be denied the chance to compete against the North Koreans. But Kim is having his way. He is seeing to it that only one Korea will be represented at the Olympic Games.

A model utility

Is an energy crisis on the horizon? According to some, yes. Portents there are, to be sure. Oil imports are growing while domestic production is down. Future electrical generating capacity will diminish as old plants approach the end of their useful lives and new plants are not being built to replace them.

But an innovative plan drawn up in Connecticut challenges the notion that to meet future electrical demand, new oil sources must be found and new generating capacity built. The program, which was developed by representatives of environmental groups, Northeast utilities and the state, calls for wide-ranging conservation efforts to cut in half the growth in new electrical demand.

Most of the cost of the plan will be borne by Northeast Utilities, which will spend $20 million next year and even more in future years on the program. Among other things, the utility will help finance energy-saving improvements in homes and offices of present customers, and will help out with the extra costs of designing energy-efficient structures and paying for high-efficiency equipment for new customers.

Though the program sounds like charity, in fact the utility has a vital interest in keeping a lid on future demand.

With financial, environmental and political circumstances making construction of new plants more difficult and expensive than ever, Northeast's plan is a model utilities elsewhere should follow.

World Food Program marks 25th birthday

Recently, I was invited to address the participants at an international conference in Rome convened to mark the 25th anniversary of the World Food Program. This is one of the most successful and yet little known of all international assistance efforts.

Headquartered in Rome, the WFP imaginatively has combined economic development with direct food distribution to the hungry worldwide. It has provided more than $10 billion in food aid during its first quarter century.

The WFP operates as a part of the United Nations system, and especially the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization. Since 1963, it has collected food contributions, cash and services on a voluntary basis from its member nations.

The United States and other countries have their own national food assistance programs, including the U.S. Food for Peace program — which I helped to launch as its first director (1961-62). But more than one-fourth of all the food assistance abroad now moves through the World Food Program.

I take special pride in WFP because it began as a consequence of an offer I made on behalf of the United States at an organizing session in Rome on April 10, 1961. With clearance from President Kennedy, I proposed that the United States contribute an initial $40 million in surplus farm commodities. It was to go toward a start-up global effort totalling $100 million in commodities and cash, with 60 percent coming from other countries.

This offer became the launching pad for the World Food Program.

The WFP has offered emergency assistance in such cases as the Ethiopian famine, the Afghanistan war, and earthquakes in Columbia and Mexico.

But mostly the agency has concentrated on distributing food as a tool of economic development in poor countries. The WFP uses donated food to pay part of the wages of workers engaged in building roads, houses, community centers and in soil conserving, tree planting and water management.

Food assistance and technical help have also been provided for school lunch programs, and for other international feeding arrangements aimed at improving the health of needy children, the sick and the elderly.

In some cases, special food supplements are made available to ensure that vulnerable groups — such as pregnant women, infants and small children — obtain balanced diets.

More than 250 million persons in all parts of the globe. Amazingly, the program functions entirely on a voluntary basis in so far as all donations come from participating countries as they see fit.

The biggest donors are the food-surplus producing countries, headed by the United States and followed by Canada, the Scandinavian countries, Australia, and the European Community. Countries that do not contribute food may offer cash or such services as transportation, shipping and storage.

Naturally, bureaucratic barriers can be anticipated in such a multilateral effort — involving a combination of idealism, egotism, humanitarianism and power struggles. So, it's satisfying to know that this $10 billion global program has generally been a series of success stories, saving and enriching lives.

Reagan extolls summit

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Not to worry, President Reagan has not gone soft on communism.

But he does see "new possibilities" and a "powerful new hope" in terms of Mikhail Gorbachev's leadership in promoting more openness in Soviet society.

Reagan has changed to the extent that he has now seen the Russians on a human, not theoretical level, and he has decided they could be friends. The prospect worries some of his longtime supporters, and Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci is preaching a different tune, apparently fearful of raised expectations and a lower military budget.

The president has embarked on a one-man crusade to seal the bright side of the summit and what it bodes for future relations. In earlier days the Reagan White House would have staged a public relations blitz to put a success stamp on the summit.

But this time around, it is a Reagan show all the way. His own euphoria, like saying that the "visit to Moscow on behalf of the American people was one of the great privileges of my life," is carrying the day.

Substantively there was no breakthrough on the arms control front or any other, but in terms of atmospherics, the president played his role, boldly stressing human rights on Soviet soil, blaming the bureaucracy for the repression, but not laying a glove on Gorbachev.

Reagan is a Johnny-come-lately to injecting the element of human rights into the nation's foreign policy. When he came into office, Alexander Haig, his first secretary of state, said that human rights would be at the bottom of the priority list.

The president himself, as a candidate in the '70s, denounced President Gerald Ford, a fellow Republican, for going to an East-West conference in Helsinki, Finland, in 1975 and signing the accords supporting human rights, more emigration, more freedom.

When Reagan went to Helsinki recently and delivered a major address extolling human rights he failed to mention Ford.

It seems that sitting presidents only want to give credit to predecessors who are long gone — preferably representing the era of the founding fathers. Nor do sitting presidents like to admit they have learned anything in their jobs.

Rift develops over audit of thrift

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear
WASHINGTON — Americans have nearly 1 trillion dollars stashed in the nation's savings and loan institutions, and most people assume their money is safe because the Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulates the thrifts.

But the Bank Board has ripped the rug out from under itself in a case that has some federal bank regulators wondering who is calling the shots — the government or the bankers.

M. Danny Wall, chairman of the Bank Board since last July, is the man under the microscope. When Wall took over the job last year, regulators in the Bank Board's San Francisco regional office were knee deep in an audit of Lincoln Savings and Loan, based in Irvine, Calif.

The acrimonious audit created a rift between Lincoln's owner Charles H. Keating Jr., and the San Francisco regulators. The examiners looked into Lincoln's

WILLIAM RUSHER

It's not time to relax

As indicated in a previous column, I do not share the widespread conservative uneasiness about the basic outcome of the Moscow summit.

The men in the Kremlin have at last realized that their Marxist-Leninist system not only isn't working but that it is going to leave them lagging behind the whole parade of free and creative nations as the 21st century opens. They are trying to fix matters with a little "restructuring" and "openness" — a policy that will merely result in irresistible pressures for more of both.

Inevitably, the process will entail zags as well as zigs, spasms of cracking down, alternating with periods of progress. But the genie is out of the bottle, and nothing the hard-liners can do will force it back inside. Crackdowns will merely stoke the pressures for change. The czars could have told them all about it — including how, at the end of the line, there will be a final scene in a cellar in some provincial city for whatever unlucky wretch is left holding the bag for communism.

But this is certainly no time for the West to be opening the champagne. For one thing, there will undoubtedly be moments on the long, slow slide when the Kremlin bosses turn not only peevish but downright dangerous. It is going to take diplomacy of a high order to keep this mortally ill society dosed with placebos and painkillers while it edges inexorably toward extinction.

Worst of all, the inevitable relaxation of the tensions that have kept the West on its guard for these past 40 years is going to bring out of the woodwork, on this side of the Iron Curtain, all sorts of people who perceive the new situation as a golden opportunity to promote their own agendas.

First and foremost among these is Secretary of Commerce C. William Verity Jr., the archetype of the American businessman who is positively panting to do business with the Kremlin. Mr. Verity has a long and unimpressive history, dating from his days as head of Arco Steel, of promoting trade with the Soviet Union. He didn't wait for glasnost; he was all for it back when Brezhnev was still calling the shots in Moscow.

And Verity is, of course, merely the tip of the iceberg — the most influential of the thousands of American businessmen who will shortly be pulling every wire they can find to make contacts for themselves with relevant sectors of the Soviet economy.

I presume — although on second thought for safety's sake we'd better pray — that the U.S. government has enough sense and self-control to forbid the sale of strategic items to this dying despotism. But that won't be the half of the problem if greedy American businessmen have their way, all the men in the Kremlin need do is relax and watch their system being refurbished and streamlined for them by people who, if they are unable to make it work in the long run, are certainly capable of tuning it up to last a great deal longer than it ordinarily would.

Meanwhile, over on the left, the greed of the businessmen will be more than matched by the greed of those U.S. political constituencies that exist to extract largesse from government. Nobody will be able to tell them (or their representatives in Congress) that there is any longer any serious reason for large defense expenditures.

SCIENCE WORLD

Moscow sweats it out

By Charles Mitchell
MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow sweltered Tuesday on the third day of an uncustomary heat wave with temperatures soaring to a record 95 degrees and officials reporting a dramatic increase in fires — and ice cream consumption.

Temperatures topped 80 degrees for the third day in a row as newspapers warned heart sufferers to shower frequently to stay cool and city dwellers dipped in rivers to beat the heat.

Tuesday's 95 degree temperature was the highest recorded in the city since 1920 when Lenin led the nation and the communist revolution was only three years old. It was also a 100-year record high for June since records were first kept in 1879.

Newspapers reported increases of heat prostration cases in city hospitals but no fatalities were directly tied to the high temperatures, which were about 30 degrees above normal.

A brief rain shower late Tuesday night provided some relief from the scorching daytime temperatures.

Sidewalks resurfaced for last week's summit visit by President Reagan melted under the heat and the heels of women's shoes sunk inches into the hot tar.

Steam rose from streets and sidewalks when city trucks swept through downtown spraying water.

No deaths have been directly linked to the heatwave in Moscow, but the evening Izvestia newspaper said last Saturday's rail station explosion at Arzaman, 250 miles to the east that killed 73 people appears to have been caused by excessive heat buildup in the railcars transporting 120 tons of explosives.

The beaches and earth banks along the Moscow river were jammed with people seeking relief from the heat. Office workers stripped off shirts and ties and plunging into the chilly river waters in their underpants.

Uniformed police kept most of the city's fountains free of bathers.

The official Tass news agency said "demand for ice cream has zoomed dramatically" during the heat wave but gave no exact figures.

Muscovites normally gobble more than 200 tons of ice cream per day. By late afternoon Tuesday, ice cream vendors had closed their sidewalk stalls claiming to be sold out.

told us. "He's made a eunuch out of the regulator. He just clipped their — off. How can San Francisco supervise anyone else when they basically have been called incompetent?"

One official we contacted said that the top echelon at the San Francisco office included "the cream of the regulatory crop."

The deal Lincoln cut with the Bank Board last month was foretold in a confidential agency memo dated Jan. 13, more than four months before the formal vote. Our associate Michael Binstein obtained a copy of the memo. It shows that the Bank Board was annoyed because word had leaked to Binstein that the San Francisco regulators wanted Lincoln to be put in conservatorship. Keating wasn't supposed to know about that recommendation.

The memo also reveals that when Lincoln officials learned of the recommendation, they demanded to have the San Francisco office taken off the case.

Judge orders separate trials for Iran-Contra defendants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge ordered separate trials Wednesday for fired White House aide Oliver North and his three Iran-Contra co-defendants, saying public testimony before Congress last year made a single trial impossible.

At the same time, U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell noted he still has not decided a more important issue — whether the multimillion-dollar case will ever go to trial.

Independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh protested carving up the case into separate trials, telling the judge, "To tear it apart, it seems to me, is going to make each of the parts less meaningful."

But Gesell said the mixture of the conspiracy case and the testimony before congressional investigators by three of the defendants under guarantees of immunity creates a conflict of constitutional rights that can only be avoided by separate trials.

North and his one-time boss at the White House, John Poindexter, were indicted in March, along with Richard Secord and Albert Hakim, for conspiring to defraud the government in the scheme to divert profits from U.S. arms sales to Iran, secretly approved by President Reagan, to the U.S.-supported Nicaraguan Contra rebels through secret Swiss bank accounts.

Poindexter, who was Reagan's national security adviser, and North, of the National Security Council staff, also are accused of obstruction of justice, in part for destroying evidence.

Secord, a retired Air Force major general, and Hakim, his Iranian-born business partner, served as North's private operatives in the covert arms-and-aid operation.

North, Poindexter and Hakim all refused to testify before last summer's special House-Senate investigation until they were given immunity. Congress, intent on hearing from them during the televised hearings, got a court order that guarantees what they said cannot be used against them at trial.

Secord did not demand immunity, but his lawyers said they wanted to use testimony by the others in his defense. Likewise, Poindexter's lawyers said it would be impossible to present an effective defense without using protected testimony by other defendants.

Gesell cited the grants of immunity as creating an insurmountable obstacle to holding a single trial and said separate trials would be needed to ensure that the defendants could use the protected testimony of the others in their own defense.

The investigation of the scandal has cost more than $5 million to date — not counting the expense of the 11 weeks of congressional hearings — and holding four trials would likely cost millions more. The North-Secord "enterprise" turned over about $30 million during its covert life.

The eventual prosecution of the case is up in the air on two other points, Gesell still must decide whether the indictments were "tainted" by exposure to the immunized testimony, which was given while Walsh was still deep in his investigation.

The second issue is whether a federal law that restricts use of classified information at criminal trials represents an unfair burden to the defense. At issue are top secret papers among an estimated 250,000 classified documents the prosecution has deemed relevant to its case.

Gesell said he would rule on those issues by July 1 and, if the decision is to proceed, he would then be in a position to set an initial trial date.

In another ruling Wednesday, Gesell denied a motion by defense lawyers to dismiss the charges because of extensive pretrial publicity or, failing that, to have the trial moved from Washington.

Gesell said experiences in other high-profile cases, such as Watergate, "strongly suggest that a completely impartial jury can be seated."

Comment afterwards on Gesell's ruling for separate trials, Walsh said, "Everyone recognizes that four trials are more burdensome than one, but the court's judgment is that is a necessary requirement."

Asked about whether Congress impaired his prosecution, Walsh said, "I've never criticized Congress. They have their problems. We have ours."

Group says Dade County blacks need more jobs, better facilities

MIAMI (UPI) — The relationship between black civilians and police has improved since race riots earlier this decade, but blacks still need more jobs and better substance abuse facilities, a group said Wednesday.

Larry Capp, director of the Metro-Miami Action Plan, said tension in the community between blacks and police several years ago "was so thick you could cut it with a knife."

Since the group was formed in 1983, more foot patrolmen have been added, police have been paired to provide a racial mix and more police stations have opened. "It's really brought the police department closer to the community," he said.

The group — MAP — was formed six years ago in response to riots in 1980 and 1982 that followed the police shooting deaths of two blacks — a businessman and teenager — in separate incidents.

First lady parties with Mickey

LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) — Nancy Reagan urged foster grandparents Wednesday to help young people fight alcohol and drug abuse and said the seniors can help restore addicts' self-esteem.

About 500 foster grandparents were given free tickets to the Magic Kingdom and Epcot Center. The grandparents were in town for the 11th National Foster Grandparents Jamboree.

The first lady spoke at Epcot Center and toured Mickey's Birthdayland, the first new major attraction in the Magic Kingdom since 1971. She also made concrete hand prints for the new Disney-MGM Studios, due to open this month.

"I've come today to ask you to work with those on drugs whenever the opportunity arises because they need you desperately," Reagan told the grandparents during her 10-minute address.

Governor out of Chisox deal

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez plans to bow out of negotiations to bring the Chicago White Sox to St. Petersburg, saying local officials are better positioned to pursue the deal.

But he warned Wednesday that Florida's $30 million plan to lure the club might prompt Illinois officials to get serious about keeping the Sox at home.

"For those who are waiting for a reason to spend $200 million in Illinois to provide a home for the Chicago White Sox, this may be the message — that Florida has positioned itself to provide a home for the Chicago White Sox," Martinez said.

However, if the Illinois Legislature kills its own inducements package later this month, club owners "can say Florida wants them and that they set up the machinery to receive them," Martinez said.

The city will receive $5 million in each of the next three years, and may retain state sales tax receipts from ticket and concession sales.

AIDS cases doubled in seven years

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — AIDS cases worldwide have more than doubled in the seven years since the disease was first recognized and have spread to 133 countries, yet evidence suggests the virus may have existed since the 1940s or earlier, scientists reported Wednesday.

The proliferation of the incurable disease, which has affected industrialized and developing nations alike, is posing new problems for researchers who say without knowledge of how the disease is spreading, there can be no reliable forecasting of the epidemic.

Writing in the British scientific journal Nature, several teams of scientists explored a new range of data on the spread of the disease, the mysteries it poses and speculation about its origins.

Molecular biologist Gerald Myers of Los Alamos said the two human AIDS viruses, HIV 1 and 2, are about 50 percent alike in their molecular building block sequences.

Sero (blood) surveys that go back in time for Africa and North America show no conspicuous evidence of the virus prior to the mid-1970s," Myers said of blood samplings that searched for the AIDS virus.

But he believes that a progenitor AIDS virus may have existed for 100 or more years and that his studies suggest that HIV 1 and HIV 2 diverged from each other about 40 years ago.

Researchers Robert M. May of Princeton University and Roy Anderson of Imperial College in London say scientists still are unaware of the likely demographic consequences of the virus in various countries.

"In the general population in the United States, HIV (AIDS virus) infection is generally a fraction of 1 percent," May and Anderson said.

Unburied bodies discovered; funeral home closed down

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A funeral home where nine unrefrigerated bodies were found — some stored as long as six weeks — was closed and its owner was being investigated, state officials said Wednesday.

"He is indefinitely out of business," Tom Gallagher, state Department of Professional Regulations Secretary said of Lewis J. Howell, the owner of Howell Morning Glory Chapel funeral home.

A routine visit by DPR inspectors resulted in the discovery Monday of the bodies, Gallagher said. Inspectors looked into the funeral home, which was closed and saw two bodies.

Two bodies were found in a hearse parked outside the funeral home and seven more bodies were discovered inside the funeral home Tuesday and Wednesday, officials said. None of the bodies had been embalmed or refrigerated, officials said.

Police said most of the bodies were transients whose burial expenses were being paid by the city.

Frank Watson, an employee at the funeral home, told police the two bodies in the hearse had been there since Friday.

Inspectors ordered the bodies removed to another funeral home and cremated.

KOC upends Ball Motor Line, 9-4

SANFORD — The Knights of Columbus rode the one hit pitching performance of Mike Maples and Anthony "Redman" Roberts to take a 9-4 victory over Ball Motor Line Wednesday night in Sanford Junior League baseball action at Chase Park.

Maurice Fisher led the offense with two hits, a double and a single, with two runs batted in and two runs scored. Corey Williams added a double with two RBI's and two runs scored. Roberts added a single and two runs scored while Demytry Deamon scored two runs and Tyrone Chibberton and Tony Taylor each scoring one run.

Phil King led Ball Motor Line with a lead off single in the first inning for his team's only hit of the game. King also scored a run off a walk with Tony Holly, Willie Williams and Todd McGall all adding a run scored.

Penguins' Lemieux chosen hockey's MVP

TORONTO (UPI) — Mario Lemieux of the Pittsburgh Penguins was named the NHL's Most Valuable Player Wednesday night, ending Wayne Gretzky's eight-year hold on the honor.

Lemieux captured the scoring title with 70 goals and 98 assists. Gretzky, sidelined for 16 games at mid-season with a leg injury, had 40 goals and 109 assists, finishing 19 points behind Lemieux. "He won the trophy last eight years," Lemieux said. "To me, he's still the best player in the world. It was just too bad he was injured."

Gretzky finished third in the voting, trailing Lemieux and Edmonton teammate Grant Fuhr. Lemieux earned 292 points, including 54 of the 63 first-place votes. Fuhr had 106 points and 4 first-place votes. Gretzky was first on two ballots and had 73 points.

Columbus hurler no-hits Maine

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Scott Nielsen of Columbus pitched a no-hitter Wednesday night to lead the Clippers to a 3-0 victory over the Maine Guides in the International League.

Nielsen faced the minimum 27 batters and threw only 82 pitches in raising his record to 6-3.

He allowed one walk in the second inning and another batter reached first on an error by shortstop Randy Velarde in the fifth, but both runners were erased on double plays.

Defense name of game for Pistons

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Washington really wasn't that good a team: Chicago relied too much on Michael Jordan, and Boston was too old and tired to shoot straight.

Throughout the playoffs, Detroit's opponents have been blamed for an inability to score, but apparently the Detroit defense has been the reason all along. And never was this clearer than after the Pistons' 105-93 upset of the Los Angeles Lakers in the opener of the NBA Finals.

"Success breeds success," Detroit assistant coach Ron Rothstein, a defensive specialist, said Wednesday before practice at the Forum. "Our commitment to defense has grown as we've gotten better."

The Pistons, who have won five of their last six on the road, appear at the top of their game after wresting the home-court advantage from the Lakers Tuesday night. They can take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with another victory Thursday night (6 p.m. EDT) on the Lakers' court.

In Game 1, Detroit limited the defending champions to 39.8 percent shooting, blocked 6 shots to none for Los Angeles and contained the fastbreak that had carried the Lakers to a 9-1 home record in the playoffs. Opponents are hitting just 43 percent of their shots and averaging only 83.5 points a game vs. Detroit in the playoffs this year. And the Pistons have surrendered fewer than 100 points in nine of their last 10 games.

"They flattened out our offense and the shots they gave us we weren't hitting," said Michael Cooper, who missed all 7 shots in the opener. "When you find yourself open you're so surprised and you miss 'em. But I will stick those shots tomorrow."

The Lakers' problems were compounded Wednesday when Magic Johnson did not practice because of the flu. But Johnson, who had 28 points and 10 assists in Game 1, is expected to play Thursday night.

"It's not like there is a death in the family or he broke his leg," Cooper said. "It's only the flu. They have pills for that."

Tyson-Spinks set June 27

No. of rounds still undecided

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — The length of the Mike Tyson-Michael Spinks heavyweight unification bout remained unresolved Wednesday, 19 days before the June 27 bout.

The dispute over whether the bout will be scheduled for 12 or 15 rounds dominated a news conference carried across North America by satellite.

The dispute may cause a split in the heavyweight title, which the fight is supposed to unify. The World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council sanction 12-round title bouts and the International Boxing Federation has 15 round championship bouts.

The distance of a title fight usually is set in the contracts but in this case, wording allowed for 12 or 15 rounds.

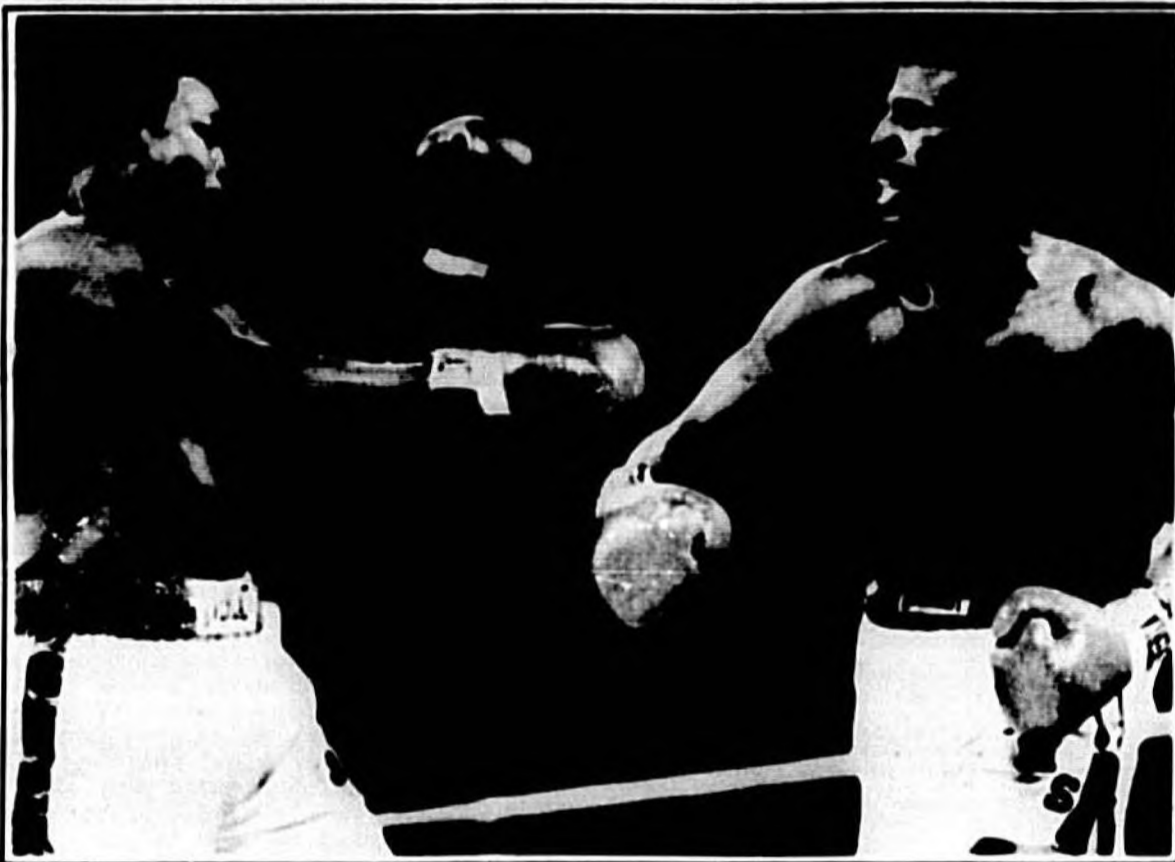

The IBF is supposed to decide the rules for the June 27 bout, but Tyson's manager Bill Cayton said the fight will be 12 rounds.

"I've been asked (by promoter) Don King to make the decision, and I have decided it should be 12 rounds," Cayton said. "Medical evidence is overwhelming that the last three rounds of 15-round bouts have been dangerous."

The IBF last week decided to go to 12 round bouts beginning Sept. 1. IBF President Bob Lee said that decision was not based on medical reasons, but for the sake of promoters in nations that have outlawed 15-round bouts.

Lee said he still favors 15-round title bouts.

"I can't understand why Mike Tyson's manager wants to demean the importance of this fight," Lee said. "Why not make it 10 rounds? Why not play fiddly winks? Fifteen rounds is the true test of a champion."

Michael Spinks (right) takes a swat at former heavyweight champion Larry Holmes. Spinks will have his toughest test to date on June 27 when he battles Mike Tyson in a heavyweight unification bout.

Lee said the IBF will not sanction the bout if it is scheduled for 12 rounds. The WBA and WBC have said they will not sanction a 15-round bout. Tyson holds all three titles, but none of the groups have yet said if they will strip him if he fights without their sanction.

"Hopefully we will get to a table and get it resolved," said Spinks' promoter Butch Lewis. "We'd better get in a room fast. This issue might end up splitting the heavyweight title."

Lee said the other organizations were double-crossing the IBF.

"I'm not going to sit here and let them renegotiate on the rules," Lee said. "Mike Tyson won the IBF title in the ring and when he did, he agreed to fight by our rules."

The fighters prefer 15 rounds, or more.

"Fifteen rounds," Spinks said. "This is a fight. That's the way it's been and that's what I'm used to."

Tyson is expected to earn around $20 million and Spinks is guaranteed $13 million for the bout, which promoters predict will gross $75 million in closed circuit, live gate and other income.

Buckets: Handy and inexpensive

Few pieces of fishing equipment are more handy than the often-ignored five-gallon plastic bucket. These buckets can usually be obtained from flea markets, construction sites, or hardware stores for as little as $1.00.

Plastic five-gallon buckets feature a tight-fitting lid and a strong metal handle. Moreover, these buckets are almost impervious to damage, and will withstand a lot of abuse.

Many anglers have at least one or two uses for these buckets, but in reality, there are literally dozens of uses for these versatile containers. Maybe some of the suggestions listed below will give you some ideas.

1) A container for your castnet. A five-gallon bucket will hold the largest of castnets and will also make a dandy container for the bait that you catch while transferring it to the baitwell.

2) A small livewell. You can use a battery-operated aerator to convert a bucket into a portable livewell.

3) Dry storage. Boats seem never to have enough storage that is truly "dry". A plastic bucket with a tight lid is virtually waterproof and will keep items dry in the harshest of rains or in the worst of salt sprays.

4) Ice chest organizer. A bucket can be cut to fit just inside your big ice chest. Nothing is worse than fish slime on drinks and food. Simply place drinks and food items inside the cut-out bucket and they will be safe and secure from any slime or scales.

5) Lure storage. Cut slits into the top of the bucket and hang big artificial lures on the inside where they will be tangle-free.

6) For camping. Sleeping bags, spare clothing and other items can be stored and protected by a bucket with a top. Buckets with tops can also make tamper-proof food storage containers that even resist the attempts of clever raccoons.

7) A portable toilet for little boats.

8) Portable seat. An overturned bucket makes a great fishing seat or a hunting stool. A boat cushion on the top for additional padding makes the seat even more luxurious.

9) Portable sink. In the boat or around camp, a bucket can be used for kitchen chores. You can even wash clothes in a bucket.

10) Garbage can. On the water or at the camp, plastic buckets make great garbage cans. They clean out easily and you certainly don't have to worry about messing them up.

As you can see from the uses listed above, the lowly five-gallon plastic bucket has earned its place in every boat and campground. It is one of the last "true bargains" that is available to us today.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Plastic buckets often come in ten-gallon sizes. These larger buckets offer all the uses of five-gallon buckets, plus added capacity.

ASU stays alive

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Arizona State Coach Jim Brock can put away his golf clubs for at least two more days.

His top-seeded Sun Devils remained alive in the College World Series Wednesday night, rallying for a 4-3 victory in 10 innings over Wichita State.

In a game that drew a session record of 16,047, Arizona State tied the score with two out in the ninth then used Martin Peralta's RBI single to prevail in the 10th.

"I already had my sand wedge out and was practicing chip shots," Brock said. "I thought I would be out on the golf course."

Arizona State, 59-12, and Wichita State, 56-15-1, both have one loss in the double-elimination phase of the series.

They are scheduled to meet Friday, with the winner facing Stanford or Fullerton State in a winner-take-all game at noon (CDT) Saturday. Fullerton State could advance by ousting Stanford, the defending champion, Thursday.

"We should have won the game," Wichita State Coach Gene Stephenson said. "But it's not the end of the world."

"I don't want you to think Arizona State is going to have any easy time when they come to the ballpark Friday night. They may think they are because they thought they had had an easy time ever since they were going to play us."

With the score 3-3 in the 10th, Kevin Higgins and Steve Willis drew walks off Jim Newlin, 2-2. Pat Cedeno relieved and, one out later, Peralta singled to right center, making a winner of Gordy Farmer, 7-0.

Arizona State tied the score 3-3 in the ninth. Dan Rumsey led off with a double and advanced on an infield out. One out later, Ricky Candelari singled him home. After Mike Burrola delivered his third hit of the game, Stephenson visited starter David Haas but left him in the game. Pat Listach then singled to left, tying the score and knocking out Haas.

"Everybody thought we were going to win," Listach said of the mood on the bench. "Nobody thought we were going to lose the game."

Wichita State took a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Mike Lansing opened with a single, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. After P.J. Forbes walked, Dan Raley singled home a run. Mark Standiford singled home Forbes, knocking out Linty Ingram. Raley scored when Eric Wedge hit into a double play.

But that was it for the Shockers. Reliever Brian Dodd held them scoreless until leaving in the eighth.

KORG, Salvagio's triumph

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer
FIVE POINTS — KORG USA and Salvagio's Boys each came up with victories in the opening round of the Pinto Playoffs Wednesday night before 151 fans at the Seminole Pony Baseball Complex.

KORG had established a 6-3 lead after four innings of play Tuesday and added four more runs in the final inning to take a 10-3 decision over Florida Carbonics. Salvagio's and Advanced Brake then hooked up in a wild battle with Salvagio's hanging on to take a narrow 10-9 victory.

Action in the tourney will resume today with Florida Carbonics and Advanced Brake hooking up at 6 p.m. with Salvagio's and KORG to follow at 8.

Florida Carbonics managed to get a base runner to third in the top of the fourth but that was as close to scoring as it would come as the KORG defense tightened up and played tough. After an out Jamie Tolpeski singled followed by the second out of the inning a single advanced Tolpeski to third before another out retired the side.

KORG then put the game out of reach with four runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. A

Indians sweep Blue Jays, 4-2

United Press International

Last year, the Cleveland Indians staff finished last in virtually every statistical category. After 71 games this year, the Indians lead the majors in complete games with 19, and are second in the American League in saves with 19.

Rich Yett and two relievers combined on a six-hitter and Domingo Ramos had a two-run single Wednesday night, helping the Indians to a 4-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays and a sweep of the three-game series.

"It sounds like you're arguing with yourself to say you want both complete games and saves," said Indians Manager Doc Edwards. "It's a godsend to have both. Our rotation has done the job and the bullpen's backing them up."

Yett, 5-3, allowed two runs on three hits and six walks over 6 2-3 innings. Doug Jones came on in the ninth inning to earn his 14th save. Jones has 10 saves in his last 10 appearances.

"On this team, you can give it over to the bullpen and know they can do the job," Yett said.

Trailing 1-0, the Indians scored three runs in the fifth with the help of two errors, one by Jim Clancy, 3-7. Despite a steady wind blowing in off Lake Erie, Cory Snyder hit the first pitch of the inning to left field for his 13th homer. Snyder has three homers in his last seven games.

Dave Clark reached first when second baseman Nelson Liriano bobbled his grounder. Ron Washington sacrificed and was safe when Clancy misplayed the bunt. Andy Allanson sacrificed and Willie Upshaw was walked intentionally to load the bases.

Ramos followed by grounding a single to left, scoring Clark and Washington for a 3-1 lead.

Cleveland, 36-21, had not been 15 games over .500 since going 45-30 on July 3, 1986. The sweep of Toronto was the Indians' first since 1980.

"Cleveland plays aggressive," Toronto Manager Jimmy Williams said. "They've got good pitchers. You can't make mistakes against them."

At Chicago, pinch hitter Randy Bush delivered a two-run double with one out in the ninth inning lifting Minnesota over the White Sox. Juan Berenguer pitched 1 2-3 innings for the victory. Dave LaPoint, 4-6, was the loser.

Royals 5, A's 4

At Kansas City, Frank White drove in three runs, helping the Royals capture their seventh straight game, a 5-4 victory over Oakland. Bret Saberhagen won for the fourth time in five decisions to improve to 8-5. Dave Stewart, lost for the fourth time in five decisions to go to 9-4.

Angels 5, Rangers 2

At Arlington, Cliff Davis and Tony Armas each drove in two runs and Mike Witt scattered six hits to carry California over Texas. Witt improved his record to 3-7. Bryan Harvey relieved in the ninth for his fifth save. Ray Hayward, 4-3, was the loser.

Brewers 5, Mariners 7

At Seattle, Glenn Braggs belted a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning to rally Milwaukee. Braggs hammered a 1-2 pitch off Mike Jackson, 2-2, for his 10th homer. Mark Clear, 1-0, went two-thirds of an inning for the victory. Dan Plesac worked the ninth for his 13th save.

A new baseball league in the making

By RICHARD L. SNOOK
UPI Sports Writer

SCOUTING REPORT

A new baseball league to rival the American and National Leagues is in the planning stages and it's getting some help from an unlikely source — the majors.

The timing for a new league to threaten the AL and NL couldn't be better. Interest in baseball is at an all-time high, cities without teams have shown they can support big-league ball, the majors are stalling expansion and labor differences exist.

The league, called the Professional Baseball Federation, would sign and develop players before allocating them to member teams. Buyers would be sought for franchises and shares in the league offered to major corporations and, eventually, the general public.

The league possibly could start operation in eight to 10 cities as early as the 1990 season. By coincidence, the current agreement between AL and NL owners and the players' association expires after the 1989 season.

There's no question players for a new league will be available — the majors are seeing to that. In efforts to lower salaries, the majors are signing players to mostly one-year contracts, three ups. With no reserve clause to bind them, name players will be available every year.

It won't be easy. The youngest major league is the American — established in 1901. The Federal League lived two years, 1914-15, the Mexican League ended its brief existence right after World War II and Branch Rickey's hoped-for Continental League never got out of the planning stages in the late 1950s.

But let's say a new league opts for six franchises to start. All it would take for a six-team league is a core of two to four star veteran players, an equal number of promising young players, and some journeymen and rookies.

The fewer Triple-A players in the new league, the better. There are enough in the established major leagues already. All a new league would need to get itself branded "minor league" is to fill rosters with veteran minor-league rejects.

can beat. We have got to be smarter and deny him (the ball) more."

It took just 24 minutes for the Pistons to take virtual control of Game 1. More precisely, it was the three seconds before halftime that put Detroit in command.

After Lambert sank a 3-pointer with three seconds left in the second quarter, Isiah Thomas intercepted Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's inbound pass and buried another long-range basket at the buzzer.

What had been an 11-point lead had suddenly ballooned to 17, and the Pistons pumped their fists as they dashed to the locker room. The Lakers, meanwhile, hung their heads while the capacity crowd at the Forum sat quietly.

"We're used to facing hostile crowds," Thomas said, "and we enjoy hearing the silence."

Thomas' careless inbound pass in Game 5 of the East final against Boston last year probably cost the Pistons a trip to the Finals. This year, his steal of an inbound pass helped Detroit strike the first blow in the championship series.

Still, his steal Tuesday night did little to erase the memory of last year's mistake, he said.

"Basketball is not a game of revenge," he said. "You are never trying to avenge mistakes."

You just try to learn from them." NBA FINALS NOTEBOOK
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Yvonne Johnson, who scored 16 points off the bench in Game 1 of the NBA finals, said there's a reason he wears No. 15 with the Detroit Pistons.

"I was a big fan of Earl Monroe," Johnson said Wednesday. "He made those great one-on-one moves and got open shots. Nobody could make those moves so they called them tricks, but that was great basketball."

Johnson struggled with his shot during the season but apparently has recovered in the playoffs. He sank 10 of 15 attempts in the Eastern Conference clincher over the Celtics and made 7 of 11 against Los Angeles in the 105-93 triumph in the opener.

"It was a bad year for me," he said. "But whenever we had a big game I was there. At least that's how I felt."

Even Laker guard Milt Wagner was unable to avoid the injury jinx that crept up on Los Angeles Wednesday.

Wagner injured his right ankle during practice at the Forum and was listed as questionable for Game 2. Of course, he probably won't play even if he's healthy — the rookie has seen just nine minutes of playoff action.

Magie Johnson, who has the flu, reported for the workout but returned home before it began.

And James Worthy, who suffered a hip pointer when he crashed to the court in Game 1, said he was still sore.

Both players, however, are expected to play Thursday night.

The Pistons demonstrated Tuesday night the Lakers can't unleash their fastbreak if they don't have the ball.

"We couldn't run," said Laker Assistant Coach Bill Bertka, "because they were dribbling the ball all over the place and taking shots at the (24-second) buzzer. Heck, we took only 83 shots and we're usually up about 90."

Detroit's Adrian Dantley may have set the tone when he scored as the 24-second clock expired early in the first quarter amid an 8-0 run. John Salley beat the first-quarter buzzer when he scored, and Isiah Thomas did the same just before halftime with a 3-pointer.

place with 14 pounds. Joe Kremer and Phil Mater held down third place with 13 pounds, 11 ounces while Lowell and David Martindill came in fourth place with 12 pounds, 14 ounces. Carson Byrd and Jason Jarmon took fifth place with 12 pounds, 7 ounces. Bass fishing overall is a bit on the slow side, but bream and catfish are biting strong around the pilings of the new bridge.

Snook are still biting at Sebastian, but anglers have thinned out with the season closure. A few bluefish and trout are keeping fishermen from going home empty-handed.

Captain Jack reports that of-shore fishing is really picking up at Port Canaveral. A lot of dolphin, wahoo, and a few sailfish are being caught from 120 feet out. Don't make a mistake and go too far out. One angler caught a 54-pound wahoo in 70 feet of water. The busy line is slow, with only a few tripletail being caught. Inside the Port, flounder are providing most of the action. Trout are still rated as good in the Banana and Indian Rivers. Make sure to fish the flats and stay in water 4 feet or less.

The New Smyrna jetties are red hot with drum, sheepshead, flounder, whiting, bluefish and other bottomfish biting all day long. A live shrimp on the bottom will not last too long. The north side of the north jetties has been the best spot for steady action.

Stocks mixed, trading heavy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed today in heavy trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 48.36 Wednesday, was off 3.20 to 2099.75 shortly after the market opened.

Advances edged declines 465-462 among the 1,435 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 31,700,000 shares.

Stock prices surged Wednesday in the heaviest trading day of the year as Wall Street brushed aside recent worries over higher inflation and kicked the market's early summer rally back into gear.

It was the second time in less than two weeks that the so-called restrictive "collar" was imposed by the NYSE. The curb on program trading, adopted last February, was last used May 31 when the Dow closed with a gain of 74.68.

Advances swamped declines 1,289-294 among the 1,980 issues traded.

Dollar opens higher in European markets

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar opened higher today against major European currencies. Gold dropped.

The American currency opened in Zurich at 1.4370 Swiss francs, up from Wednesday's closing 1.4325, in Paris at 5.8225 francs against 5.7950, in Amsterdam at 1.9335 guilders against 1.9260, in Frankfurt at 1.7220 marks against 1.7150, and in Milan at 1.280.00 lire against 1.274.25.

In Brussels the greenback opened at 36.18 Belgian francs, up from 36.02.

In London, the pound sterling opened at $1.8095 against Wednesday's closing 1.8155.

At the end of trading in Tokyo today, the dollar closed at 125.43 yen, up from Wednesday's closing 125.32.

The U.S. dollar closed lower against the Canadian dollar at $1.2225, down from $1.2295.

Gold opened lower in Zurich at $454.50 per ounce against $458.50, and in London at $454.40 per ounce, down from $458.25.

Silver opened lower in Zurich at $7 per ounce against $7.15, and unchanged in London at $7.18 per ounce.

Management threatens liquidation of Pan Am

NEW YORK (UPI) — The management of Pan American World Airways Wednesday threatened to sell off part or all of its fleet, routes and facilities if unionized workers do not agree to immediate pay cuts.

In a letter to employees from Pan Am Chairman Thomas Plaskett, the airline said its board authorized management to sell "any, up to all" assets, a spokesman said.

Assets to put up for sale may include "route segments and divisions, maintenance and terminal facilities, aircraft, engines and other equipment," the letter said.

"Such actions will be taken without regard to remaining fleet size, number or geographical coverage of markets, or number of employees," the letter said. "This may be shocking or frightening, but frankly, it should not be surprising."

Citrus Shipments

WINTER HAVEN (UPI) — Today's citrus shipments reported by the Division of Fruit and Vegetable Inspection, Shipping total in 4-5th bushel cartons and cannery totals in 1-3-5th bushel boxes:

Ball — 11,511 grapefruit, 12,108 late oranges.

Export — none.

Truck — 25,035 grapefruit, 46,097 late oranges.

Cannery — 10,568 grapefruit, 472 tangelos, 587,689 late oranges.

Longwood approves permits for school, car dealership

By Jane Casselberry
 Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Two previously controversial projects have been approved unanimously by the city commission. Conditional use requests were granted for a private school and Regency Mazda, an auto dealership without any further objections from the public Monday night.

Barbara Ann Smith was granted conditional use for one year to operate Back to Basics Learning Academy, a private school at 1242 S. County Road 427 in Wildmere Plaza, for kindergarten through first grade.

The public hearing on the school was continued from May 16 after concerns were raised over possible traffic, safety and septic tank problems as well as its proximity to a restaurant that sells beer and wine.

City Administrator Gene DeMarie said Monday night he had met with Mrs. Smith and reviewed each of the concerns, which appear to be without foundation. He recommended approval of the request, as did City Planner Chris Nagle.

Leroy Strickland was granted a conditional use permit to operate a car sales and service business on Highway 17-92 at Orange Avenue on property zoned C-3 general commercial. A portion of the property was previously zoned R-2 and Strickland's rezoning request was turned down by the previous commission, but was finally approved by the commission on April 4.

Most of the early objections to the car dealership by the public were eliminated when the developer agreed to a voluntary declaration of land use conditions to be placed on the property to take care of impact concerns. Strickland has agreed to donate a lot between the construction site and the Longwood Elementary School for a buffer zone to be used as a playground. The city is negotiating with the Seminole County School Board for joint use of the lot.

The developer also agreed to build a sidewalk on the north side of Orange Avenue instead of on the south side as recommended by the Land Planning Agency. The sidewalk is for the safety of children walking from the school to a day care center or to the convenience store. The only entrance or exit to the business will be from Highway 17-92.

Strickland also received approval of a site plan for the 20,000 square foot Mazda sales and service facility. Because of financial problems caused by further delay, the developer was given permission on May 16 to begin site work in anticipation of approval Monday night.

Terry said he is then required to compile the original grounds listed on the petitions with the defensive statements, providing space for signatures. The recall committee will then have up to 60 days to secure signatures of 15 percent of the registered voters, or 628 names.

Those petitions will be submitted to Guard for verification and certification within 30 days. If there are enough signatures, and if Guter and Dennis do not resign within five days, it will be up to the chief circuit judge to fix a date for holding an election within 30-60 days. If there is no general election within that time frame, a special recall election can be held.

Wilson, who was born in North Carolina and moved to Florida in 1960, said that she chose to run as a Republican because of her "political roots" and that campaign expenses were too high as an independent.

A practicing attorney in Cocoa Beach, Wilson has never lost an election and has served as a Brevard County Commissioner, from 1969-72. She was the first woman county commission chairman in the state.

Sudden change upsets digestion

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband and I are vegetarians for moral reasons. We are careful about our nutritional requirements. I have a 3-year-old son from a previous marriage. He is with us four weeks, then with his father one week. Perhaps out of spite, my ex-husband pumps him full of hamburgers, hot dogs, white sugar and no vegetables during the boy's visit. While I'm not concerned about my son eating meat the can make that decision on his own when he's older, he does have problems being unable to move his bowels for days after returning home.

My "ex" will not listen to me at all. Perhaps if you explain medically the trauma my son's digestive tract goes through every five weeks, he will try and help his son by at least giving him fruits and vegetables.

DEAR READER: Vegetarianism is more a question of preference than of medical necessity. Clearly, Americans eat too much red meat and saturated fat. We would probably be a healthier nation if we ate more vegetables and grain. However, a strictly vegetarian diet is not necessary for good health.

Most people adapt to their diets. Bowel problems, such as diarrhea and constipation, can appear when diets are suddenly changed without the body being given an opportunity to adjust. Evidently, this is what is happening to your son when he is repeatedly changed from a high-fiber diet to low-fiber foods.

Since children are often misused as pawns in divorce situations (and sometimes long after), you probably won't get anywhere trying to convince your ex-husband of the pure health (or moral) benefits of vegetarianism. However, I think that he might respond to the observation that your son is physically uncomfortable when his digestive tract is denied the roughage to which it is accustomed. I think that any reasonable adult would want his child to eat a balanced diet, including vegetables and fruit. Try a reasoned approach based on the fact that your son is having difficulty assimilating divergent diets. If your ex-husband truly refuses to listen to you, perhaps he would be willing to sit down with the boy's pediatrician and discuss the child's nutritional needs. You might also consider sending along a bag of fresh fruit with your son when he goes to visit.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Sometimes the bidding suggests that the hand is going to play very well, even when partner has virtually no high-card strength. That's a good time to push to a stumpy game, especially if you think that the defenders will fall into your trap.

South bid spades and hearts, and doubled three diamonds. When North removed the double to three spades, South figured partner for spade support and shortness in diamonds. Deciding that game could be made if East, the opener, held the heart king, South bid four spades. Surprisingly, with a diamond lead, declarer was able to ruff his third diamond. He then took a heart finesse and played ace and a heart. No one could stop him from ruffing the last losing heart with the spade jack in dummy, and that was 10 tricks — a tribute to aggressive bidding. But should anything have been different?

West should realize that declarer has length in spades and hearts, and of course diamonds, since he doubled three diamonds for penalties. Isn't it obvious that South expects a diamond lead when he bids four spades? So why oblige him? If West plays ace and queen of clubs originally, the hand collapses. If declarer wastes the jack of spades to get to dummy to lead a diamond, he will no longer be able to ruff his fourth heart safely, and the game contract will fail.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bode Osof

JUNE 10, 1988

Benefits will be derived in the year ahead through individuals with whom you share close emotional ties. There is a possibility you may go into an enterprise with a relative.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you could have a change of heart regarding a situation where you felt you were being imposed upon. Play it smart and don't voice your discontent. Major changes are ahead for Gemini in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may be a trifle competitive with someone with whom you are closely involved. Stop fueling the one-upmanship game.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The person you are expecting to help you today with something you are hoping to achieve may not. However, an effective substitute could step in.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your ideas and your mate's may conflict today. However, if you sit down and talk things out, you should be able to come up with a solution that will please both of you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If your resources are presently stretched a bit thin, don't do anything now that will strain them further. Clear up old obligations before assuming new ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A course you're presently pursuing may be objectionable to your associates. Try to make adjustments that will arouse their enthusiasm and support.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a hurdle that must be cleared today where your work is concerned. Get it out of the way as early as possible for peace of mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to avoid getting involved with groups or cliques today that include members who make you feel uncomfortable. Why spoil your day?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A member of your family may come under attack by an outsider. Let this troublemaker know where your loyalties lie.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone who can be helpful to you, provided you can make contact, will be more easily approached if you let a friend intercede and break the ice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A situation might present itself today that has profitable potential, but may not be in accord with the way you like to do business. Evaluate it carefully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If a misunderstanding occurs with a person who is usually your ally, don't let it go uncorrected too long. It could turn into a barrier.
