Cars May Sell With Embargo End DETROIT (AP) -- Auto industry

spokesmen predict car shoppers will stop looking and start buying once the Arab oil embargo is lifted.

"The main impact on our business will be to help dispel the cloud of uncertainty about gasoline supplies and prices that has been hanging over us since last October," Ford Vice President John B. Naughton said Thursday.

Spokesmen at the big three auto makers, stung in recent months by an unprecedented slump in big car sales, say they are anxiously awaiting official word that the embargo would be lifted. The auto makers hope the end of the embargo will revive sagging car sales, the spokesmen say.

But even after the embargo ends, industry observers agree that consumer preferences will not switch away from small cars.

Small car sales are easily outpacing 1973 sales levels, while big car sales have slumped more than 50 per cent and total car sales for the 1974 model year have dropped nearly 27 per cent. While the big three haven't attributed the decline entirely to the embargo, executives say consumer uncertainty brought on by the Arab boycott was instrumental in keeping potential car buyers out of the show-

The sales decline has led to the indefinite layoff of 92,000 workers - 12 per cent of the auto makers' hourly work force - and temporary furloughs of another 90,000 workers during the first quarter.

General Motors, which depends on big car sales more than any other manufacturer, has suffered the worst slump with a 37 per cent sales decline and 65,000 workers on indefinite layoff.

It was not at all surprising that the pressure or the President to resign should appear in the halls of Congress as soon as the senators and representatives returned from a recess.

Timing is of critical importance in politics and opponents of President Nixon are well aware that this resurgence of demands for resignation leaves the impression that the pressure for it comes from the American people.

While no one really knows what the American people are thinking at a given time, with the exception of actual election results, a good case can be made that the current clamor is no more than the usual drum beating by the same small group of men. For example, one poll indicates that 48 per cent of the American people would favor impeachment of the President if he were proved guilty of wrongdoing, which he has not been. If the American people were keen on having the President removed from office, if proven guilty the figure would approach 100 per cent. Another poll indicated that 46 per cent of the American people want the President to resign, but an equal percentage do not.

Or, for that matter, we would doubt that there is a strong impeachment tide in either house of Congress. Congressional Quarterly reports that the administration's experts canfind that only 100 of the House's 435 members would vote for impeachment today. Small wonder. If impeachment proceedings begin, Republicans who are worried about being reelected this year would find themselves in the political fire instead of merely in the frying pan. On the other hand, if conviction of the President occurred, Democrats would find Vice President Ford in a commanding position for the 1976 presidential election. Polls show that Mr. Ford is even more popular among Americans than is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the Democrats'

All in all, it appears that the Democrats hope to force the administration to dangle while the damaging Watergate barrage continues. The strategy is abetted by the three groups investigating Watergate — the Senate and House committees and the special prosecutor. Each of them is staffed by platoons of eager young lawyers, all competing with one another for neadlines. As a result each piece of new information, whether valuable or not, is magnified beyond proportion. Before the American people can learn the significance of one revelation, the scene has shifted to yet another one.

No one could withstand this type of treatment, not even members of Congress, and the administration has not. As a result it is faced with the insoluble dilemma of withholding information on the one hand so that it does not give ammunition to those who are attacking it with relish or engaging in Operation Candor which does exactly that. In the meantime, so far as Watergate is concerned, truth, decency, equity and justice writ to served and the American people have reason to be impatient.

Bureaucratic Dinosaur Should Die

for the standby draft system is ends June 30. Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, ROre., calls the draft agency "this bureaucratic dinosaur," and wants it shut down. That would cost money, too; an estimated $41.5 million in severance pay and other expenses. In the age of the volunteer armed forces, no men have been drafted into military service in more than 14 months. None can be unless Congress changes the law, because induction authority expired last While the draft is dormant, the agency is not. The law requires that Selective Service to continue to register young men.

The law also forbids the agency from spending any of its funds to induct anybody. In other words, the money can be used to pay the staff, register young men and keep records - as long as none of that leads to military induction. "This is strictly money for standby," an agency spokesman said. He said the agency would need more funds if it had to go back into the business of drafting men. In the new budget year, about 1.9 million names are expected to be added to the list of potential draftees.

Second Big Loan For Donald Nixon

Phosphate Spill Law

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Phosphate mining companies are now responsible for property damage from spills or dam breaks in Hillsborough County. The County Commission adopted an ordinance Thur-

IRS Change Proposed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - Florida Secretary of State Richard Stone says the Internal Revenue Service should be given independent status in order to prevent a President from using it for political purposes. Stone charged in a statement released Thursday by his U.S. Senate campaign organization that the current method allows a President to use the IRS to "bludgeon his political enemies." The independent status of the IRS would give it the advantages of other regulatory agencies such as the Civil Aeronatics Board and the Federal Communications Commission, Stone said.

"The current method of picking the head of the IRS is too political," he said. "The incumbent President merely sends a name up to the Senate to be confirmed."

Meadows Quiets Booming VCC Bats, SJC Wins 3-2

The saga of the Seminole Junior College — Valencia Community College baseball wars continued Tuesday and it was SJC taking the hill 3-2 at the end of nine innings, and claiming first place in the freshly started Division II race. In this battle, it was a pistol hot Bobby Meadows and a cannon toting Jay Isler that winged the Matadors long enough to come up with a much needed win for Seminole.

The Raiders stopped a five-game losing skid and got a new lease on life with the prestigious division opener for both Meadows, a high kicking freshman southpaw product of Lyman High School, gave up sing'e runs in the first and final innings while allowing just four hits as he quieted the booming bats of Valencia. The Matadors had been producing nearly eight runs per game in other jurior college competition. Isler iofted a fourth inning wind swept drive to the warning track in left field that ended up leading Valencia fielder Sonny Wise into the fence 350 feet from home plate and Wise couldn't hang onto the ball when he crashed into the chain link. The triple drove in Gary Jacobs who had reached

Jim Joiner ripped a low line drive to right through the gap between first and second to send Isler home with run number two of the inning.

The Matadors had reached Meadows for a run in the first when Armond Leonardo walked, went to third on a perfectly executed hit and run by Ken Berger and scored when designated hitter Steve Schuck grounded out to second. Adding what proved to be a crucial insurance run in the seventh, the Raiders chased Intiso off the mound. VCC head coach Floyd Perry replaced the Matador lefthander with hard throwing Gary Gronowski. Skip Skelton led off with a free pass. Wayne Weszka squaring around as if to lay down a sacrifice bunt, drew in the third baseman and chopped a high bounder over third for

Tim Shea advanced both runners with a sacrifice bunt Not wanting to break the string, Kenny Kerr laid down another bunt scoring Skelton and when Weszka running from second didn't stop at third, the return throw from first was Intiso turned in a respectable performance for his six innings of work. He gave up five hits and walked only two. Meadows had to reach back for that something extra in the sixth, eighth and ninth innings and got a circus catch out of Kerr in centerfield to bail him out of a tough final inning challenge from Valencia.

In the sixth and eighth the first man to face Meadows reached first. The Matadors, pesky with the bat all day and capable of moving the runner along with a bunt or hit and run, got a good look at what reaching back is all about. The SJC hurler who struck out six in the game came through with big fans to get the initial outs in both innings to dampen rally Pinch hitter Keith Kushner grounded out to shortstop on a call even Seminole thought could have received the hands Colon Leisher then ripped a triple to right center. Kerr, with his head down and back to home plate, hauled in a 400 plus foot drive off Wise's bat and made an over-the-shoulder

Jones finally caught up with a wind blown pop-up that started out behind second base and ended up in shallow center field. Jones had to make a last second dive to come up with the out. HERALD SCOREBOARD Leisher, SS

Down The Line

By Doug Storum

This year baseball owners and players resorted to the fine art of arbitration to settle their contract differences. In speed's "or" the owner's offer. watch out. Nothing that simple is going to work smoothly two years in a row. Calling in an impartial third party is grand, but when players wise up they could milk owners for more than ever if something received is probably just that, "either" too isn't done about present rules forbidding high "or" too low. Reggie Jackson of the Oakland Athletics made a respectable $75,000 last season. This spring he told his boss Charles O. Finley, he wanted $135,000. Finley offered him an even $100,000. So just like 28 other major league ball players, Jackson decided to go the route of represented ended up 3-2 in favor of the player. table-talks and let a third party hear his and Finley's case and decide who should

In this case Jackson won. Whether 293 was Jackson's basis of argument and what Finley had to say about the matter is still not clear. Mums, was the word for the majority of participants and especially any type of compromise.

Marvin Miller, player representative and John Gaherin, labor counselor for the owners, however, both agreed that the meetings were successful. Miller pointing out that even the players that lost didn't really lose. "They still got the club's best offer." In several instances owners upped their offers just prior to convening the talks. Thirteen players ended up with their club's "best offer."

In addition, Gaherin added he felt that the settlements cleared the air of the "misconception" that owners were people who took unfair advantage of their players each spring. To paraphrase Gaherin, the fact that the procedures resulted in reasonable settlements in itself showed that the system worked. How well it will work in years to come is up for speculation. The Athletics' controversial owner.

Charlie O., has drawn the largest number of players to the tables - five. Finley has been advised by a doctor to sell all his professional athletic teams. The A's, his basketball team the Memphis Tams and his hockey franchise the California Seals. (He's already got enough headaches with the Seals and Tams, as both are occupying the cellar in their respective divisions). Out of the five Oakland players, Finley dropped the ball three times allowing three "unearned requests" to score and ended up paying what the player had asked for Certainly not a desirable, or in this case, a healthy outcome for the A's owner. In addition to Jackson, pitchers Ken Holtzman, Rollie Fingers, and Darold Knowles won their paychecks at the table. Gene Tenace and Joe Rudi ended up taking what Charlie had offered, and both had been offered raises over the 1973 season. The biggest pitfall of arbitration is the fact that, as the rules stand now, there can price doesn't exist). It works on an signing for "either" his requested salary There's plenty of room for greed and exploitative padding, filling up the dotted line and if the two figures just happen to be "either" a little low "or" ridiculously high, then the price that is paid and Getting back to this third party, we find that every arbitrator who sat in on several discussions ended up with a near even record. According to Miller, every arbitrator who presided at two bearings split his decision. Those who had three cases voted 2-1 and those hearing five Arbitration in its sophomoric stages must be changed for the future or else next year practically every player will become inancial glutton and try to get in on a "good thing." Even if owners did possess a degree of satanic stinginess in their souls. they will be forced to offer more than they feel is right in order to keep from getting it's a known fact people learn from experience and this year the players and owners have seen how an arbitrator's hands are tied. Take for example a projection into the future and examine someone like the Pittsburgh Pirates' pitcher "Doc" Ellis. For the past four seasons, Ellis, despite an annual sore arm, has won more games than any other Buc starter. But this year Ellis is expected to be even better following surgery on a knee, which before being operated on was directly correlated with his sore arm.

Can you see him winning more than 20 games this year and next year sit at an arbitration table across from Pirate General Manager Joe Brown waving a sign with some astronomical price like

And then Brown, maybe even raising Ellis' pay 15 grand in hopes of winning the dispute would be actually paying him more than he thought he was worth, even if he were to win 20 games. As outspoken as the "Doc" is, it would be just like him to try and pull a stunt like that. And there are others in major league baseball who wouldn't balk at the same opportunity just to see how much they could get. With the present "no compromise" rule, the arbitrator will have to award one or the other. Neither figure sensible, but one must be chosen. I can smell a rotten tomato in the lettuce patch if some rules aren't changed by this time next year. This year went relatively smoothly. Players like the Minnesota Twins' Tony Oliva, feel they can handle their own contract differences out of court and don't consider it at all necessary. However, some players involved commended it as a "very pleasant experience" while another blasted it as a "It's who you know type of thing" and labeled it as just another case of politics. Undoubtedly it will be used next season. but will needed changes be made? We'll

Why higher electric bills? And why they aren't higher!

THE COST OF LIVING VS THE COST OF ELECTRICITY

Because electricity is so important to us all, we naturally pay close attention to the cost. And since we use it in so many ways, we can't imagine doing without it. It's a vital part of our everyday life. Electricity is known for non-polluting at the point of use, its good qualities: ease of use. convenience, reliability, and cleanliness. In addition to all of these, electricity is inexpensive in comparison with the general cost of living. Inexpensive, despite high construction costs, high interest rates, the fuel crisis and general inflation. And still, electric rates are far below the Cost of Living. We're fortunate. The cost of electricity has been going down for over forty years. There was nothing magical about this reduction. We just developed better technology. We found that bigger power plants could produce energy cheaper. And built more efficient transmission

It worked. During 1973 the average residential cost of 2.27¢ per kilowatt hour of usage approximated the Kwh charges of 1963! And is well below the 3.17¢ Kwh cost of 1953-twenty years earlier! For several years - 1968 through 1971 - this cost dropped to less than 2¢. At 2.27¢ per Kwh, electricity is an inexpensive servant. (A kilowatt hour It is the fuel oil near the so-called is that energy needed to light a 100 watt bulb for

This progressive work is still going on. But it is taking more and more belt tightening and innova ive thinking to bring about increased efficiencies. At FPL, we are dedicated to developing even more efficient, reliable, economical electricity. By economical, we mean the lowest possible cost!

FPL uses a sophisicated computer operation to help plan the available uel mix in order to have the most efficient units generating electricity at the lowest possible costs. We burn the cheapest fuel we have. Run the most efficient units. Whenever we can. We're not happy about the high costs of fuel increasing your monthly bills. We're working as hard as we can to hold any future increases to a minimum. And we are encouraging the search for more domestic rules and new pressures are making it inescapably more expensive to make and distribute this clean Number one, right now, is the worldwide fuel crisis. It has driven the cost of residual fuel oil up. Way up. Up 139 per cent just since October! And we rely on residual fuel oil for 64 percent of our power generation. Just what is residual fuel oil? bottom of the barrel in the oil refining process. Ahead of it comes gasoline, jet tuel, kerosene, light distillates (such as home heating oil and diesel fuel). Then there's the residual. That's our oil. It's sort of a left-over. You can burn it only if you have large furnaces. Like ours. Or a steel mill or large hospital or apartment complex. Domestic U.S. refineries don't make much residual. The average yield is 7.6 per cent of a barrel.

And the ow sulphur residual delivered to FPL at Port Everglades averaged $3.84 per barrel (42 gallons to a barrel). The price had risen to $6.98 per barrel in December. Missionary To ireland

Pastor's Corner

REV. WILLIAM ENNIS All Souls Catholic Church

This coming Sunday is St. Patrick's Day. As an Irishman I would be remiss if I did not devote this column to St. Patrick! According to a seventh century tradition Patrick died in the Province of Ulster (north Ireland) on March 17, 461 A.D. The country of his adoption, almost entirely pagan when he first set foot on it, was virtually Christian when he died. Patrick first came to Ireland — as a captive — in the year 389, in the reign of Niall High King. It was 43 years later, in the year 432, in the reign of LaoghairyHigh King, that he came upon the mission which was so miraculously to change the Islands destiny. As a captive (captured by a party of Irish marauders and sold as a slave in Ireland) his occupation as a shepherd upon a mountainside was fine probation for the holy career that was to be

He states in his "Confessions" that in his wayward youth at home he had forgotten God, and had wandered from Him into the ways of sin. Alone with his herd upon Sliab Mis during the day and night, the months and the seasons, his spirituality was reawakened and God guided his feet to the path of duty again. "I was always careful," he says in his 'Confessions', "to lead my flocks to pasture and to pray fervently. The love and fear of God more and more inflamed by heart; my faith enlarged, my spirit augmented, so that I said a hundred prayers by day an almost as many by night. I arose before day in the snow, in the frost, and the rain, yet I received no harm, nor was I affected with slothfulness. For then the spirit of God was warm within me." Thus he spent seven years in human slavery, working out with God his spiritual freedom. One night in a dream he heard a voice telling him to travel to the seashore at a certain place 200 miles distant, where he would find a ship on which he would make his escape. He found the ship and a three days' voyage brought him to the land from which he had been carried captive. He tells us in his 'Confessions' that even though he was 'home' he could "find no peace for thinking of the country and the people . ." They were the center of the thoughts of the day and the dreams of the night. He was filled with a burning desire to preach the 'faith' to the Irish people. So he went to the continent of Europe, in all probability to Auxerre, to be trained for the priesthood under the renowned bishop Germanus. Years later, having been consecrated Bishop, Pope Clestine commissioned him to carry the gospel to the land of his love - nd conferred on him the Roman noble name Patricius. He first turned his attention to converting the princes, knowing that this would influence the people more than anything else. He organized the Churches to suit local conditions, making his diocese equivalent to the local princedoms, and organized his episcopal sees on the monastic pattern. All during the years of evangelization he met with strong opposition, particularly from the Druids. He speaks in his 'Confessions' of the 12 dangers of his life, and thought of martyrdom as Nevertheless, after a full life, rich with great labors greatly done, blessed by seeing the fruit ripen from the seed he sowed, Patrick passed away in about the year 461 - leaving behind a grief-striken people who had made this man one of their own. The 12 days of his 'wake' are known as Laithi na Caointe, the on, when a whole nation whom he had brought to Christ, bewailed the most mournful loss a nation had ever known. Thus passed away one of the greatest, perhaps the greatest, that Ireland ever knew, or ever will know - still more, one of the dominant personalities of world history, whose influence will end only with the final running out of the sands of

What Confucius was to the Oriental, Moses to the Israelite, Mohammed to the Arab, Patrick was to the Gaelic race . . I finish with his morning prayer:

Christ before me, Christ behind, Christ alone my heart to bind. Christ beneath me, Christ above, Christ around with arms of love.

Christ in all on whom me think, Christ their food and Christ their drink. Christ in all who look on me, Christ in every face I see.

It has been in the newspapers often over the years because someone with the same name as ours has been involved in some terrible scandals. Because of my bed-wetting, I probably never will marry unless I find a girl who has the same problem. It isn't easy to find such a girl because she probably would be too embarrassed to admit it.

How can I meet girls about my age who also wet the bed? If they wrote to you, we could correspond. I promise not to rush into marriage; I would be very cautious and be sure we loved each other first. Thank you.

DEAR WANTS: Instead of looking for a girl with the same problem, look for a girl who qualifies in every other way, then deal with the problem later. A possible solution is the "wet alarm," which awakens you during the night and helps you to keep dry. Another, twin beds.

POLLY'S PROBLEM DEAR POLLY- I would like to know if there is anything that will take OLD tea stains out of a linen tablecloth. They remained after it was washed.-A.B.C.

DEAR POLLY- My Pet Peeve is with healthy people who are too lazy to take a few steps to thedoor of a shop but have to park right in front even if it is a no-parking zone. They do not care about blocking traffic or keeping trucks from unloading. If they those who mean much to you in a credit or business way. Keep Whitten, and great grand-I wish stores had meter maids to give them tickets. Maybe then they would park in the lot and stop blocking traffic.

Other Pet Peeves are salespeople who will not take "No" for an answer and telephone salespeople are the worst. Then, too, there are those people who expect their mail and newspapers to be delivered to the door in all kinds of weather but will not even bother to clean a path in the snow for deliverymen to walk on. I thought there was a law that said people had to clean off their He's escaped the fate of an egg-but what has the chick got to look forward to? The technology that incubated him in twenty-one days now carries him relentlessly toward

We, too, often seem trapped on a similar conveyer belt, caught in a cadence which carries us step by step through life. The carefree days of childhood swiftly wane once schooling begins. Then come jobs, marriage, family, a home.

The list-and the responsibilities of mature life-seems endless. No wonder we long to escape-to "get away from it all."

Yet such daydreams little help us to cope with life today. God's love and wisdom give us the guidance and solace we need. His Church—the church down the street stands ready to meet our needs.
