WEDNESDAY, NOV. 1, 1933

THE LORD HEARETH: The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles.—Psalm 34: 17.

WANTED
A MAN TO LEAD

There isn't a lad but wants to grow
Manly and true at heart,
And every lad would like to know
The secret we impart.
No man's desire to slack or whine
Oh! haven't you heard him plead?
He'll follow a man at play or work,
It only the man will lead.

Who are the men to lead today,
Starting an hour or two,
Thinking the lad the game to play
Just as a man should do?
Who'll lead the boys in calling—
Come,
Here are the boys, indeed,
Who can tell what they might become—
If only the men will lead?

Major and golf and winter sport
Fill up the time a lot.
But wouldn't you like to feel you'd taught
Even a boy a knock?
Character more we need,
How can a lad know what to do
If there isn't a man to lead?

Who are the men to lead a hand?
Who'll lead the boys in wide,
Men who will rise in every land,
Bringing the "arrest Divide"
Nation and flags and tongue unite
Joining each class and creed, Here are the boys who WOULD do right
But where are the MEN to lead?

Middle Western farmers, who have seen industrial prices rising and agricultural prices declining, are asking an NRA code for themselves. They seem to think that NRA means nothing but higher prices. They forget that NRA also means minimum wages considerably higher than those paid by even the most progressive firms, and also minimum working hours which would give the average man a better standard of living than he has now. Also that if it meant higher prices for what he bought, what's the use of the code in the world markets is considerably lower?

While advocating the establishment of a code through competition of forces prices down, the federal government seeks a bid

At the same time it offers

The Necessity Of It

We suppose it was because they were in a hurry but last night, with First Street fairly crowded, when a car backed out of a parking space and started right in the middle of the street, the drivers of a dozen cars, thus impeded, immediately sounded their horns. The lady with the stalled motor, excited by the unpleasant commotion behind, flooded the carburetor, and finally had to be pushed out of the way.

The incident reminded us of an article we read the other day by Bruce Barton. He quotes someone as saying with regard to the courtesy of the highways, "I have driven a car for more than twenty years. In all that time I have never known a traffic jam to be broken up by the tooting of automobile horns. Yet whenever there is a jam people continue to toot their horns." Mr. Barton then gives a list of some of his own experiences along this line:

Item: I have traveled on railroad trains for a third of a century. Invariably, when the train approaches its destination, half the passengers in the car jump from their seats and crowd into the narrow corridor. There they jostle each other, step on each other's toes, poke their elbows into each other's ribs and generally harass their nervous systems and increase their blood-pressure. I have never known any man to make a profit by being the first one off the train, yet men continue to fight for this privilege as if their lives depended upon it.

Item: I have ridden in elevators for many years. In every building of consequence there are several of them, and they depart at intervals of less than a minute. I have never known any man to improve his position in society by rushing through a half-closed elevator door and crowding himself into a car already overfilled. Yet men continue to rush and to crowd.

Item: I have used the telephone ever since my childhood. In that long period I have never known any man to achieve quicker or more satisfactory service by jiggling the hook savagely up and down. Yet men continue to jiggle the hook.

Item: I have eaten in restaurants and on dining cars for many years. In all that period I have never known of a man whose business was seriously hurt by the fact that the waiter took two minutes extra in the kitchen. Yet men grow apoplectic under this slight annoyance.

We used to think that this impetuosity of the general public was due to the fact that everybody was so busy, everybody was making so much money, that to have to wait a minute while some ninkimpoop fuddled with his starter, was actually costing them so much money that it was no wonder they were so. But what of the case now? Most of us could delay at a busy street corner all day long without losing much. And yet we hurry along and fume over traffic jams just as we used to do.

We had even dared to hope that with the reduction of working hours to 35 or 40 a week for so large a proportion of our population this general American characteristic of get-somewhere-in-a-hurry might be somewhat allayed. But last night's incident has convinced us that we are wrong again.

Live Targets

The men who do things for the sheer fun of doing them and not for public acclaim or other rewards which usually come with them, are few and far between and are perhaps most to be admired when they are found. Such a man as "Lawrence of Arabia," who always does his duty exactly as he sees it, better than anyone else could do it, and without thought or desire of compensation, is not a common species.

It will be recalled that Colonel Lawrence, an Oxford man who had specialized in archeology and who was not supposed to be physically constituted for the more vigorous pursuits of the army, went down to the Mesopotamia when the World War broke, won over the desert tribesmen to the cause of the Allies and as their commander in chief successfully led their revolt against Turkey.

For the brilliance of his work and his undaunted courage in the face of overwhelming odds, Great Britain offered him every conceivable reward. He could have been a peer in the British government. He could have received a life grant from the British exchequer. He was awarded every conceivable decoration. He turned them all down. And suddenly he disappeared from public view.

Years later he turned up as a private in the British air corps. Though the war has long since been over, and there is no enemy for such a warrior to engage, nevertheless his life is still full of many hazardous undertakings. Recently we read that he is now engaged in manipulating a motor boat and as a live target for air bombers. It was planned to make them sufficiently strong to withstand the shock of a direct hit without sinking and without undue danger to the crew.

In order to test these boats, Shaw, as he is now known, tries them out. He gets in them with a small crew of trained men, speeds along some deserted river or lake, while military planes zoom overhead dropping bombs on him. His game of course is to avoid being hit. The purpose of the bombers above is to blow him up. It is hoped by the technicians back home that the boat, in the event of a direct hit, will prove sufficiently strong, to enable Shaw and his men at least to save their lives.

So difficult is the breathing in the metal covered cabin that the crew must wear gas masks for protection against fumes from the engine, as well as crash helmets and heavy caps, the former to obviate head injuries when bombs land on the roof of the cabin and the latter to prevent deafness from the concussion. Thus far none of the crew have been injured and the tests have been regarded as successful.

These men, and others like them, who are constantly experimenting with dangerous devices, are the unsung heroes of our times. Like the bacteriologists who investigate the germs of sleeping sickness, they are daily taking their lives in their hands in order that science may perfect better methods of protecting mankind. They do it without thought of personal reward or public glory.

A FARMER'S CODE FOR RETAILERS
CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

An unexpected victor emerges from the long struggle over the NRA retail code. No school of merchandising, no group of retailers, no organization of consumers, not the Government itself but the American farmer turns up as the chief gainer under this instrument for establishing fair merchandising practices among 1,000,000 American retailers. For the most striking feature of the agreement is the exemption of small storekeepers in small towns, storekeepers whose increased costs would have been passed along in higher prices to their customers—mainly farmers.

Another indication that the Administration was acutely "farmer-conscious" in formulating this code, is the fact that the cost-plus-10-percent plan for fixing fair prices was abandoned. Instead it is provided that prices "should be" based on wholesale plus an allowance for wages of store labor. And recognized loopholes are allowed for meeting competitors' price cuts. It was only a short time ago that the National Retailers' Association told President Roosevelt that unless the cost-plus-10-percent plan was adopted hundreds of storekeepers would go to the wall. But the farmers are in revolt against rising prices on things they buy.

Most of these increases are due to the operation of NRA codes in for several months.

George A. Fox and daughter, Miss Martha Fox, went over to Oviedo Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Carter in their touring car and spent a pleasant day with relatives.

The levying of process taxes which amount to sales taxes on food and clothing, the whole effort to raise farm prices by artificial means, and the discrimination against the cities in this new reform, may all prove to be impractical methods of helping the farmer. But Americans who live in cities will test them without

RETAIL CODE HAS DUAL PURPOSE AS BUSINESS BOON
Merchant, Consumer Both Protected By Act Now In Effect

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Details of the master retail code, which goes into effect Oct. 30 and expires June 16, 1935, and affects more than 1,000,000 stores and 5,000,000 employees, show that it accomplishes the double purpose of protecting the consuming public against unauthorized price increases and misleading advertising as well as merchants against unfair trade practices. Proprietors in communities of less than 2,500, employing not more than 5 persons, with the exception of chain stores, were exempted from the code by Executive order.

That the public is pleased with the results of the minute studies carried on by the government since the first hearing on Aug. 23 is shown in a flood of messages to the White House and headquarters of NRA.

Settlement of the "stop loss" issue was accomplished by provisions for merchandise any non-negotiable check, company check, or other evidence of wage payment issued by any individual or private profit organization in payment of wages or as an advance upon unearned wages. A negotiable instrument issued by any individual or private profit organization in payment of wages shall be accepted only if it is payable in cash within one month of the date of issue. This paragraph shall not apply in cases where the cash funds of any individual or organization are rendered temporarily unavailable due to the closing by state or federal order of the bank in which such funds are deposited.

No retailer shall extend trade in the form of goods, money or services to any person other than his own employees engaged exclusively in the retail trade, upon any employer's guarantee of part or all of said person's future doubt will further promote him, using his splendid ability in the financial affairs of the country. Governor Hardee is already a familiar figure in the comptroller's office and in executive circles. Governor Hardee will be in Washington most of his time but plans to continue his home in Live Oak and will spend considerable time there, looking after business affairs which will go on uninterrupted. He is president of the Commercial Bank of Live Oak.

For 10 years Governor Hardee has been secretary of the Governor's Conference and held this office while the President was governor of New York. For 30 years Cary Hardee has been identified actively with the banking business.

As governor of Florida, he took over the reins of state government, when it was essential that business policies be applied to the fiscal program. His success in that regard is to be judged best by the fact that when he retired as governor of Florida the state was in as good financial condition as at any time in its history, with bills paid promptly and a very creditable balance in the state treasury. His general administration was regarded as one marked by state wide prosperity.

The governor will be joined here shortly by Mrs. Hardee. There are seven closed banks in the District of Columbia, with total resources amounting to $17,000,000.

The appointment to this position was not unexpected. It is in line with what official Washington learned months ago that President Roosevelt was determined to have Cary Hardee as part of his administration close to him and in Washington.

stock in the federal home loan banks, and $1,000,000 was advanced for stock of the home owners loan corporation. Altogether $50,370,000 has been advanced to these agencies.

The corporation also authorized advances of $2,022,500 for relief purposes, a part of which went to concerns preparing to make wine in the event of prohibition repeal, but none of this fund has been disbursed up to Sept. 30.

Of the $47,790,200 authorized for financial institutions $20,000,000 went to banks and trust companies, including $11,000,000 to aid the reorganization of liquidation banks, $6,667,000 to assist small business concerns, $3,000,000 to the federal land bank at Omaha, $2,910,000 to joint stock land banks and $1,253,800 to regional agricultural credit corporations, the remainder going to insurance, building and loan and other institutions.

Loans authorized amounting to $1,774,491 either were withdrawn or cancelled in September. In the same month the corporation sold $10,000,000 in debentures to the treasury, making the total outstanding $1,720,000,000.

Data On Early History Of College Is Sought

LAKELAND, Oct. 23.—Prof. Harris G. Sims, head of the department of Journalism at Southern College, Lakeland, is seeking the co-operation of Sanford citizens who have data that will shed light on what the institution did between 1885 and 1915.

Authentic information and photographs of historical value are needed by Professor Sims for a history of Southern, which he is writing at the suggestion of President Ludd M. Spivey.

The history will be published in book form and issued as a part of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Southern's founding. It will include, besides approximately 50,000 words of editorial matter, photographs of Southern former presidents and photographs of buildings the institution has occupied.

Professor Sims is especially anxious to have old newspaper clippings, programs, catalogs, annuals and other similar records.

Minutes of meetings of the board of trustees from 1885 to 1903 have been unearthed, but many more supplemental facts are needed. Before being moved to Lakeland 11 years ago, Southern had carried on at Orlando, Leesburg, Palm Harbor and Clearwater Beach.

CUBANS CALL ON MENDIETA TO LEAD THEM

Veteran Nationalist Is Widely In Demand; Terror Again Reigns In Havana Streets

HAVANA, Nov. 2.—(A.P.)—All eyes were on Carlos Mendieta today as Cubans turned back to their political council tables after a night of near terror in the capital. Demands were renewed that the veteran nationalist leader replace Grau.

Twelve bombs were exploded during the night, one while it was being examined at police headquarters by an explosives expert. He was fatally injured. Many others, wounded in that and other blasts, were in a serious condition today. Neighborhoods were thrown into pandemonium from the blasts and rifle and machine gun firing.

In the midst of the disorders, Captain Pedro Gonzalez of the army was named Police Chief to succeed Chief Franco, who was granted an "indefinite leave" because of "ill health."

Colonel Mendieta, leader of the powerful Nationalists, still was undecided whether he should sacrifice his political future by becoming provisional president and reliable circles said he favored the return of Carlos Manuel de Céspedes.

President Grau San Martin told the press yesterday that "the present government and constitution will be modified. The present judiciary commission will resign and a legislative assembly will be created."

While political conferences continued to hold the spotlight in Havana, the labor situation in the provinces continued to grow worse with the inauguration of an attempted 24-hour general strike at Santiago. It was still too early to tell whether the strike was fully effective. Street cars, buses and newspapers had suspended operations and stores were closing to prevent looting.

Fire Destroys Part Of Negro Residence Today

A small one-story shack was partially destroyed, and the roof of the former P. L. Miller home at 601 Magnolia Avenue was slightly damaged as the result of two fires here during the past 24 hours.

The Miller residence, now occupied by C. M. Boyd, caught fire at about 3:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon, probably from chimney sparks which fell on the shingle roof. The damage was slight.

This morning a one-story wooden home owned by the M. F. Robinson estate and occupied by a negro named P. Jones, at 608 East Sixth Street caught fire and was partly destroyed before flames could reach the scene. The damage there was about $150, the family losing a considerable quantity of personal property. Children who played with matches are held responsible for this blaze.

SELF CONTROL FOR BUSINESS IS PROPOSED

Johnson Okeys Mighty Project Offered By Swope To Succeed Present NRA Plans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(A.P.)—Substitution of permanent self government of business and industry for the temporary work of the national recovery administration was proposed yesterday by Gerard Swope and drew immediate agreement from Hugh S. Johnson.

The New York industrialist outlined the plan at a meeting of the business advisory and planning council of the commerce department. A few hours later Johnson, the industrial administrator, indicated his agreement in a press conference.

At about the same time, Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States, was telling reporters that he favored the principle of the plan.

Harriman said there had been a great deal of dissatisfaction among business men over the NRA program and that "very little of the present NRA" would be retained under the Swope proposal.

Action on the Swope plan was postponed for committee study at the suggestion of Harriman in (Continued On Page Two)

Baffling Mystery Faces Police Who Discover 3 Bodies

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 2.—(A.P.)—Three bodies, locked in a red frame house, gave investigators today a murder mystery as baffling as a fiction thriller.

Breaking into the Robert F. Hayter home, officers last night found the bodies of Mrs. Hayter, 50, and her children, Nell, 14, and Sidney, 17, on the floors of two second story rooms. Lights blazed and all gas jets were open. Mrs. Hayter and Sidney were shot through the head, but Nell had been clubbed, apparently with a baseball bat.

They apparently had been dead since last Friday night, since the mother was clad in a dress she had worn to a lodge meeting then. Hayter, a traveling salesman, out of town for several weeks, was in Oklahoma City, and he left for his home immediately.

All doors were locked and blocked with chairs, just one window was unatched, that leading to a porch roof from the upstairs room where Sidney was found.

Government Entomologists Explain Highlights Of Work To Kiwanians

Highlights of the work being done locally by the United States Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Entomology were explained to Sanford Kiwanians, meeting at the Monexuma Hotel yesterday by Dr. C. F. Stahl and Dr. C. B. Wisecup, who are associated with Kiwanian C. O. Bure as research workers for the Bureau here.

Dr. Stahl explained the functions of the various governmental agencies which set out to solve problems that are nation-wide. He said that the State Experiment Station at Gainesville is purely a research bureau which has the solving of local agricultural problems as a prime objective.

The Extension Service is the agency which distributes the results of experiments at Gainesville to farmers and growers around the state, while the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Pathology to which he belongs has research as its objective.

Dr. Stahl said that four projects now are engaging the attention of his staff—the control leaf hopper, the study of various insecticides, plant cut worms, and the cricket mole.

Before concluding his talk he extended the Kiwanians and the public an invitation to visit the Elm Avenue office of the Bureau at any time.

Dr. Wisecup discussed several features of experiments which his group is completing in relation to a substitute for arsenical sprays. He reported that progress is being made in many directions and he warned all growers to "be sure that the spray you use for your plants is the spray you want because there are sprays that are of value on one plant but are ineffective against insects on another." WILCOX PLAN TO ESTABLISH FARM COLONIES OKEYED

Million Dollar Project Aimed At Relieving Conditions For Poor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(A.P.)—A plan to establish six subsistence homestead colonies in Florida at a cost of $1,000,000 has been approved by the Federal board created to start such units. Representative J. Mark Wilcox of the Fourth Florida District announced yesterday.

The plan now is in the hands of the public works administration, and, in event of favorable action there, must be approved by the President. Yesterday's approval came from a board organized to direct the expenditure of $25,000,000 for such groups.

It is proposed to establish three colonies, at a cost of $100,000 each, in national park lands in Northwest and North-Central Florida. A fourth would be near Tampa, another near Jacksonville, while the remaining one would be in the lower East Coast area.

The colonies would clear, improve and equip the homestead units in tracts of approximately 40 acres each. The occupants of these would then be selected from the relief rolls, in the section in which the project is located.

The first qualification of these prospective occupants would be that they are experienced farmers. Under competent direction the occupants would work their farms until the venture was on a profitable basis, then the tract would be sold to him on a long term basis.

Under the plan each of the $100,000 colonies would provide for 60 families, while the East Coast tract would provide ground for from 150 to 200 families each, Representative Wilcox said.

REGISTRATION BOOTH IS BEING BUILT AT ZOO

What will eventually be a Chamber of Commerce tourist registration booth and soft drink stand is now in process of erection on the grounds of the Sanford Municipal Zoo. It will be completed tomorrow, according to James Macintosh, zoo superintendent, and it will be opened for business probably next Sunday.

Under a plan now set up, the booth will be operated by volunteer workers, probably Girl or Boy Scouts. All visitors to the zoo, especially out-of-state visitors, will be asked to sign a registration card which will carry the name and address of the visitor, the number of his home town newspaper and his editor, and the editor's impression of the zoo and the city.
