Italian Islands Hit In New Allied Raids

President Warns Axis Against Use Of Poisonous Gas When Invasion Commences

WASHINGTON, June 9. (AP)—The Army Chemical Warfare Service today warned the nation that effective protective devices have been developed in case Allied soldiers have to face poison gas in invading Europe. President Roosevelt spoke again of the possibility of the Axis resorting to such promised retaliation if they did.

The U.S. Army itself has developed a stand-by production of poison gas, and Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, said if the enemy starts using war gases, "We have plenty to give back and they'll probably get more than they give out."

By sea and air the Allies bludgeoned Italy's Mediterranean citadels of Pantelleria, Sardinia and Sicily and stepped up the assault of Axis-occupied Greece. Italian headquarters announced that the garrison at Pantelleria had refused to surrender on an invitation contained in leaflets dropped from the air. Since May 9 the island has been attacked 140 times.

Other war developments today included President Roosevelt's third warning to the Axis against the use of poison gas, Russia's repulse of German attacks in two sectors, the bombing of four enemy bases by United States planes in the southwest Pacific, and a warning to the Japanese by a Tokyo parliament speaker to prepare for a long war.

News Restrictions Seen As Setting Bad Precedent

(First of two articles on wartime news restrictions.)

By Jack STINNETT

Washington, June 9.—War-time news restrictions have had three important effects on the visits of such foreign personages as Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

(1) On the surface, they have cut complications for the news men and visiting bigwigs to the irreducible minimum.

(2) They have amplified the job of the Secret Service, which is charged with guarding these visitors, in spite of the fact that war has increased Secret Service responsibilities a thousand fold.

(3) They are establishing a dangerous precedent against complete freedom of the press, recently manifested in Bermuda and the world food conference at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The latest visit of Churchill to this country doesn't quite cover all the points, it does illustrate the lengths to which news restrictions have gone.

News men here, generally speaking, wanted that Churchill was on his way.

Except for his two speeches in England and before Congress, Churchill had no contact with the United States press throughout nearly all of his stay. His few public pronouncements were made through the British Press service in the form of handouts, and President Roosevelt, in his personal refusal to comment on the occasion, had Churchill and his military advisers had held.

On the surface, Churchill and Roosevelt didn't have any worry about the press or public reactions, nor did news men have to worry about getting beaten on any story.

The actual situation goes much deeper than that, however.

A secret conference between Churchill and Roosevelt could very easily stir up an intense public opinion, destructive in some of the United Nations.

As for the newsmen, to have to operate totally in the dark is one of the greatest complications of all. The press of this nation has demonstrated a dozen times over (as in the case of the President's trip) that it can keep a secret, but knowing that secret in advance gives the press an opportunity to interpret the news adequately and intelligently when it does break.

Washington observers say it is this demonstration of lack of confidence that is rapidly giving rise to criticism against news restrictions. The lack of confidence reached a climax in the original plans on the White Sulphur Springs food conference, where subject matter affecting every individual in this country and most of the world was being discussed, a subject (the future feeding of the world) that could not be stretched of the imagination be interpreted as a military secret. Yet if original plans had gone through, the press would have been barred completely from any look in on the conference at all.

On the other hand, probably never in the history of this nation has the press been so free as in the first World War. President Wilson followed the precedent of his predecessors, eliminated all press conferences, and practically all cabinet members and military officials followed suit.

(Next Issue: News Restrictions At the Job of Secret Service.)

BETTY CORRODI and AL RAFFIN were enjoying reading a nice part of some kind with colorful designs, maybe Chinese, but on it. HAROLD CHAPMAN was reporting the meeting through the door and a waiter in seating himself at the table. GEORGE SCOVER, BOBBY CALAHAN, and ARBEN DANFELS, wandered in and out creating in MR. $90,000 In War Bonds Sold In Lake County

With three banks and eight post offices unreported at noon, Saturday, June 8, Lake County has again gone over the top in purchases of War Savings Bonds. With a quota of $74,400, and on E bonds at cost price counting, reports already received by the Lake County Chamber of Commerce show over $90,000 worth of these bonds sold by banks and post offices.

Groveland and Montverde are outstanding communities as far as both towns having more than doubled their quota. Groveland post office reporting $8,950 on a quota of $3,000, and Montverde reporting $266.25 on a quota of $100.

The First Federal Saving & Loan Association of Eustis sold more than a third of Eustis' quota and Umatilla State Bank over sold Umatilla's quota by more than $1,000.

In addition to the sale of E bonds, reports of sales show sales of over $5,000 in stamps and $20,000 in F and G bonds, with the indication that holders of unpled stamp books are being encouraged to sell these books and exchange them for E bonds.

The June quota is higher than for May, but with local chairman, Barks and postmaster continuing their fine work Lake County will surely meet it as usual, and have some to spare.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

PAUL TRIED LEARNING, BUT IT DID NOT BRING RESULTS AS LOVE DID. THEY WERE WHEN YOU ARE IN A TIGHT PLACE IN LIFE: LOVE NEVER FAILS.—1 Cor. 13:3.

UNDER THE SKIN

This is a war between the Oriental races and the Occidental races for the domination of the world. Hearst, the editor of the National Post, writes: 'The Nazis, who are clever chaps. Make Aryans of friendly Japs. But Hearst, who is cleverer by far, proclaims that the war is a struggle between the white and the yellow races.'

The OPA is planning to cut the price of coffee which is very nice if you can get it.

The way the chickens have been coming home to roost lately, you'd think their market price would be lower than ever.

Economic Formula

'Do you know how these economic figures out the cost of living?' 'Sure. They take your income—whatever it may be—and add 10 per cent.'—Pathfinder.—Yeah, it's easy.

It is the story of the unloaded gun again which causes the accident. This time it was William Donner Roosevelt, son of Elliott Roosevelt and grandson of the President. The test year old boy was playing with a .32 rifle when it went off accidentally and killed an 11 year old playmate.

Big Leased

Hotel Manager: Did you give that soldier a call at seven? Maid: Yes, sir, but he didn't wake up. I had to go in and shake him. Hotel Manager: Don't you know better than to go into a soldier's room like that? Maid: Yes, I do now.—Winter Haven Herald.

The War Labor Board has issued an order abolishing pay differentials between white and colored workers. There is no reason, the WLB insists, why a colored man should be paid less than a white man for the same work just because he is colored. And conversely, of course there is no reason why a colored man should receive the same pay as a white man for less work just because he is colored.

The pathetic fallacy of the OPA is emphasized to us by a local farmer who points out that price ceilings prevented profits on all crops regarded by the government as essential, such as potatoes, while good returns were realized by farmers on all 'non essential' crops such as celery on which no ceilings were placed. Anyone outside of Washington could tell the President, or whoever it is that runs this country, that the continuation of any such policy will result in the loss of essential foodstuffs, non-essential foods plentiful.

Most of the Roosevelts are in the service in this war as they were in the last. The four sons of the Franklin Roosevelt are in the Army, Navy or Marine corps. The three sons of Theodore Roosevelt, though now in middle age, are in the Army. One of them, Kermit Roosevelt, a major in the Army, was killed in the Philippines. Another, Quentin, was killed in the Pacific. The third, Elliott, is a Brigadier General in the Army. One of his sons, Elliott, is in the Army. Just before the war, he was in the Navy.

Down in Miami Beach where the Army had one shortly after the war, a young man named John J. O'Connell, a private in the Army, was killed in the Philippines. Another, Quentin, was killed in the Pacific. The third, Elliott, is a Brigadier General in the Army. One of his sons, Elliott, is in the Army. Just before the war, he was in the Navy.

Child Delinquency

One does not have to view with alarm the entire activities and attitudes of the younger generation to recognize that certain soft spots are developing because of conditions brought about by the war which if not corrected can lead to serious consequences for the individual and for the public.

In a recent issue of The Herald we were shocked to find on the front page three news stories dealing with thefts apparently perpetrated by boys or girls. Musical instruments were stolen from the Junior High school. The USO building was robbed of $39.58 and 50 cartons of cigarettes. A girl's apartment was robbed and her roommate was missing.

This was but the sequel of a series of similar events in recent weeks. Last week the Young People's Club was broken into and robbed for the eighth time. The Police department has reported that a gang of four or five boys has been responsible for numerous thefts around the city. Nor is stealing the only crime with which local youths have been identified.

The responsibility for this state of affairs rests squarely on the shoulders of the parents. The excuse is given that both the father and mother are working away from home; or that the father is in the army and that the mother is too busy with her numerous other activities to give her children the proper attention. But we fear that such excuses are more in the nature of alibis.

Too often, we believe, the trouble lies in the easy money which so many parents these days are making and the tendency to spend it at liquor parties and on night life in general. In the tendency which so many people have these days of ridiculing the church and all it stands for in front of their children, to berate business and political leaders, and to assume that every man of means got his by stealing.

The Herald regrets the trouble it has been having on some of its delivery routes. These boys are well paid for their work, making more money for the time they put in, than they could doing anything else. It is easy to see which boys receive the proper encouragement at home to work, which boys have been trained to accept their full share of responsibility in life, and to render real service for the money they receive.

We do not believe there is any easy solution in times such as these for child delinquency. One city we know of has shown that it recognizes the root of the evil by passing an ordinance which provides punishment for the parent when a child is convicted of violating the law. Heretofore we have shied the names of delinquent children; publishing the names of the parents might help.

But putting children to work would do more good than anything we can think of. 'An idle brain is the devil's workshop'. In this day and time there is plenty of work to be done, when business houses and service establishments have to turn down business simply because they cannot get the necessary help, it is everyone's patriotic duty to work. There is no time for children to be running the streets.

Florida Mangoes

The mango season in South Florida is on in full swing and if you haven't eaten mangoes, you haven't lived. Unfortunately they do not do well this far north as the trees are very susceptible to the cold in winter, but reports from Miami and Fort Myers where they are plentiful indicate there will be many for shipments this summer.

'The Hayden is a beautiful piece of fruit,' says the Fort Myers News-Press. 'Even the prettiest peach and apple cannot vie with the red and gold of the Hayden mango. But most soldiers will not get Haydens as their introduction to this "Florida apple." They will start on the common seedling varieties—apple, turpentine and kidney—now dangling on the many trees in Fort Myers. These are somewhat stringy but are equally juicy and are considered prime eating by seasoned mango addicts. The horticultural Johnsons, profess to prefer the Haydens, Mulgobas, Johnsons, Cecils and Sandersays.'

'Some of the oldest and largest mango trees in Florida grow in Fort Myers where they were an early introduction by our fruit loving pioneer citizens. The mango comes from India but has spread all over the tropical zone and has a greater planting than apples in cooler countries. The Mangifera indica, as it is scientifically known, is ranked as a sacred tree in Hindu folklore and its antiquity is unquestioned. A unique floral monument was left by an early emperor of North China who set out a single grove of 100,000 mango trees which were found to be fruiting hundreds of years later by a party of English travelers. India yellow used in water color painting comes from mango bark and natives of the tropics have long used mango twigs for tooth brushes. The timber of the tree resembles light colored walnut and is used to make gun stocks, tea boxes and window frames.'

'Here in Lee county the largest plantings of budded mangoes—the fancy kind, are to be found on Pine Island and down McGregor boulevard. After many experiments it has been proved that the Hayden is the best commercial bet although a mango crop is always a gamble. The trees will bloom several times but any high wind or rain knocks off the pollen and prevents fruitage. Fancy fruit is more chancy than the hardy seedlings.'

'Florida housewives make pies and preserves of green mangoes and turn the fruit into chutneys and catsups. But it is the fully ripe mango that really provides a gustatory treat. The aroma is spicy as is flavor. The flesh, yellow to orange, is juicy and really melts in the mouth. The flavor is its own. It suggests the apricot and a pineapple but it is neither. It is a mango—rich, delicious, acid, spicy. It is just now getting to the eating stage but it will be gone—all gone—too soon.'

SPEAKING OF RUG CHEWING!

By AGNEW WELSH

Propos of Memorial Day the National Geographic Society compiled a list of our losses in manpower in the seven wars in which we have engaged since becoming a national entity and the total is three-quarters of a million. That of the Spanish American war was the least—700 and the heaviest was in the struggle between the North and South (1861-65) when 110,070 Union and 74,324 Confederate soldiers laid down their lives. We lost 4,044 men in the revolution, 1,271 in the war of 1812; the Mexican war cost us 1,281 lives and World War I, 50,510. Up to the present our loss in the war the magazines places at 18,941 while others claim it has been 30,000. These figures do not include those of the Seminoles war with the Indians nor those of the tribes of the West.

Walter Duranty, an eminent journalist, wrote in the March issue of a national magazine: 'I am sure that no small part of Hitler's success has been due to the way in which he induced German and world opinion to believe that Bolshevism was a disease for which Nazi-Fascism was the cure or, in the vernacular, giving one the itch to cure salt rheum.'

President Edward Benes, of Czechoslovakia, told a New York press club that Germany would soon collapse from internal corruption; that politicians, freedom of mprison, relaxing of ration rules are being bought among officials, officers, Gestapo agents and politicians. He intimated that German morale has hanging by a slender thread and all that was needed to break it was a few E.H. Altman, Mrs. W.E. Hollis, head, and the Misses Ruth Gillette, Charlotte Smith, Olive Le-sette and Bessie Prescott.

We go into the war in a big way. In our part in the first world war an enlistee was moved three times before being inducted into service; now it takes eight transfers; then the railroads hauled about 11 1/2 million tons of army freight from July, 1916, to June, 1917; in a corresponding period of this war they carried 41 million tons of war freight.

Fact-finding Thorsildson states that a Florida man has invented a machine to pick poultry and it will peel garments off 150 fowls in an hour—completely defeathering them.

We are wasteful in many ways if you will reflect you know that you throw away the great bulk of the common wooden match. It is said that shortening it a quarter-inch would save 400 carloads of soft white pine per year—quite an item considering its scarcity and the price of lumber.

A press service quotes Dr. C. C. Pierce, of the U.S. Health Service on the danger so many women in public employment encounter in order to hold their jobs by the illegal avoidance of motherhood, risking life, health, body and soul. He says that from this cause from eight to ten thousand women lose their lives each year.

Here is a corking good rationing story. The new points are brains, three points; tongue, nine. You may be useful but listen to this statement by a great chemical organization: Propylene glycol, 'the chemical of a thousand uses,' is a petroleum derivative, being a byproduct of the new method of producing gasoline by what is known as the cracking process. For war use it largely replaces glycerine. The old alchemists wasted their time in trying to transmute the baser metals into gold; they should have studied chemistry. By the way, it is claimed that common ammonia has 1,800 uses.

Official sources report that 15,200,000 women are engaged in war work and that two million more are to be asked to come out of the kitchen. Lots of them will come a running.

It is claimed that the CIO is seeking to unionize Red Cross workers; next they will want to union the angels.

No wonder there is a paper shortage as the new ration books require 39 tons of paper for Florida alone.

Silver has a higher value than for awhile past. The subsidiary coin is coming into use in the metal arts to such extent that last year nearly 194 million ounces (its unit of weight) were used, being three times as much as for 1940, says Pathfinder weekly, which hints at a boom in price of the white metal.

Estimates are that we have enough coal to last us two thousand years—twice that long if we didn't have this war; sufficient copper to run us but 23 years and iron ore to last possibly ten years longer than that; but petroleum will reach the scarcity level in ten years. Then how will you operate your cars? If we would turn alcohol to a more useful purpose than drinking it, some genius would find a way to thus utilize its power.

Up to June 1, the U.S. manufacturers had turned out 100,000 war planes and that is what will win the war.

With a flock of planes so huge it clouded the sky and took hours to cross the English channel to pound the life out of German in-

Capital's Double Talk Defined In Red-Tape Language Lingo

WASHINGTON, June 9.—A dictionary of red-tape language is being compiled by a Washington newspaper columnist from definitions supplied by government employees and capital callers who have got lost in the maze of incomprehensible words that have been flung at them. For the guidance of New Yorkers who may have to visit Washington some day there is presented herewith some of the choicer definitions amassed by Jerry Kittus, of 'The Washington Post'.

'Under consideration.' Never dustries; with continuous, round-the-clock attack on poor little Sicily, they will begin to realize war is all the Sherman said it was and then some.

Something has herein been said about foreign travel in and out of the 'hood' of Miami. A local paper made the statement that a plane arrived or departed from Miami each five minutes.

Ernie Pyle said they had a New Union front; they call it 'anxiety neurosis.' It says the slip and boom of plane attacks are over so soon you do not have time to regard them but it is the continuous artillery fire that gets on their nerves and becomes unmanageable; there are some who simply can not take it. He said he had seen many pliable cases of those mental breakdowns.

While conversing with present service men soldiers of the W.W.I. there has been a definite change in camp slang—usage about the only word retaining its old significance is the term for coffee—'mud.'

One of the several amendments to the state constitution to be voted on next year will be creating three new senatorial districts—two in West and two in South Florida. You can always get votes to create new political jobs.

The Homestead Leader-Enterprise quotes County Agent Stanford as estimating Dade county's crop area for 1943 to be as follows: tomatoes, 10,000 acres; beans, 3,500; potatoes, 1,200; sundry truck crops 8,300 acres.

About 1918 bachelor James Deering, to some of the hardest workers in Dade county, bought 150 acres of land fronting on Biscayne bay. For more than three years a force between Miami and Coconut Grove, of 1,200 laborers and artisans worked to convert the mangrove swamp into one of the finest valleys in the U.S.—an Italian villa that he named Villa Vignya and it cost him ten million dollars. On Christmas eve, 1916, it was thrown open for the mayor's winter home. A few years later he died at sea and since then the huge palace and grounds have been a 'white elephant,' as no one wants it or is able or willing to bear the upkeep. It is in the county duplicate for $2,868,748. The estate owns several other properties in the area valued for taxation at $275,000. One of these is Biscayne Key, in which the old Cape Florida lighthouse stands, taxed at $146,387.

The Florida legislature has added another figure to the patchwork quilt known as Florida's laws, by removing the justices of peace in Dade county from a fee basis and placing them on a salary. One would think that a law was good for one county of the state would be good for all.

A Miami musician's fad is collecting pianos and he has 70 of these bulky instruments. It would be quite generally supposed that she does not live in a one room cottage per se she is obliged to dust them herself.

Farmers Wind Up Busy Six-Month Period Resolved To Continue Effort

Sanford, Fla., June 7. (Special Staff)—The turn of the year, June 30, will find Florida farmers completing one of the busiest six-month periods of their lives and ready to swing into the home stretch of 1943 with a continuation of the tremendous effort they have made since January 1 to meet their production goals in the war-time agricultural program.

Reviewing the winter-spring period today, the State Agricultural Extension Service brought out these salient points of developments, problems, and achievements:

While complete reports are not yet available, it is practically certain that spring farrowing topped most for any similar period in many years and sent farmers well on the way toward meeting their 1943 pork production goal.

People, corn and oats planting started in 1942 by a wide margin, as farmers prepared to do their part in meeting peanut oil and feed needs.

More acreage has been planted to the longer staple varieties of upland cotton than in many a year in response to higher prices and government needs.

Late cold damaged considerable acreage of garden crops, but replantings were made as soon as possible in most cases. It also produced the tung crop.

Livestock and poultry numbers swelled to a new high. In view of meat rationing, there were more chickens raised in cities than ever before. Egg production for the period was higher than for the first six months of 1942.

Entomologists Are Fighting Bugs To Protect Soldiers

By JOHN GROVER AP Features Writer BELTSVILLE, Md.—Bugs that literally eat the pants of U.S. soldiers are not the least hazard of tropical warfare.

Until U.S. Department of Agriculture entomologists came to the rescue, Yank troops in the tropics were in danger of going into battle like Gunga Din, wearing "nothing much before and rather less than 'arf o' that behind."

Tropical uniforms are cotton. Cotton is mostly cellulose. Cellulose is ice cream and cake for termites. Tents, parachute harness and other cotton equipment were in constant danger of "evaporating" if left on the ground for an instant.

Termites-Tamer That's where Dr. Raymond St. George, termite-tamer extraordinaire, at the Agriculture Department's experimental farm, stepped into the picture. Dr. St. George hasn't got anything against termites personally, but his job is to protect bigger and better stamachers for them.

Meat of his previous work has been concerned with protecting wooden structures from termites. Wood is cellulose, too. Damages done by termites runs into the hundreds of millions annually.

The job of keeping tropical troops presentable, or at least decent, is only partly done. Dr. St. George's chemical stomachaches for termites are strictly military secrets, but the bare outline of his test methods gives a hint just how big his job is.

Uniform fabrics are protected by impregnating the cloth with chemicals which repel termites. That sounds simple enough, but back of it may be months of patient experiments.

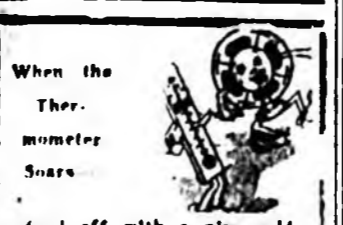

Chemically Protected First, the Army Medical Department must conduct a separate series of tests with each compound to determine whether they are toxic to man. Then the chemicals must pass many tests devised by Dr. St. George and other Department of Agriculture scientists.

While Dr. St. George is cooking up investigation for his termites other experts are working with compounds to retard mold and mildew.

Most of the tests are done in a special laboratory. Patches of fabric, one impregnated and one untreated, are exposed to a colony of termites. The extent of damage after a stated period determines the rating of the chemical as a termite repellent. That's only half the story, though. After the laboratory tests, field tests must be made with each chemical.

Impregnating compounds already are in use by the Army. Dr. St. George aim at finding a better one. When he's finished, there won't be any danger that a Yank in the tropics will suddenly discover that while he was sitting down to lunch in the field the seat of his pants was lunch for a termite.

Ruth, Meusel, Combs Trio Hailed By Stengel As Greatest Outfield

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Features Sports Editor
NEW YORK—Down through the years the Speaker-Lewis-Hopper trio has been hailed as baseball's greatest outfield but Casey Stengel, a one-time flycatcher himself, casts a dissenting ballot.

Figuring that the Boston Braves maestro, stretched out on a Boston hospital bed, had time hanging heavy on his hands, we asked him to recall the great outfield he had seen, and rank them.

And Casey, that delightful combination of comedian and commander, passed the renowned Red Sox group to name the New York Yankees' Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel and Earl Combs as his No. 1 selection.

Stengel has always been a National League partisan and it may go hard with him to place in the senior circuit when his own team did not do it, but he is a single National League trier among his four selections. Here's how he rates them:

1. Ruth, Meusel and Combs of the Yankees.

2. Tris Speaker, Duffy Lewis and Harry Hooper of the Red Sox.

3. Joe DiMaggio, Tommy Henrich and Charles Keller of the Yankees.

4. T. Cobb, Wahoo Sam Crawford and Bob Veach of the Tigers.

That Yankee trio played as a unit for five years, 1925 through 1930, and averaged well over 300 hitting each year. In 1927 was its peak year. That was the season Ruth set the all-time home run mark at 60 and the Yankees battered the Pirates four straight in the World Series. The outfield averaged .349 at bat. Ruth and Combs hit .356 each and Meusel hit .337. Paced by Ruth, they were all long distance hitters, likely to hit one into the stands at any moment. They were also a crack defensive unit.

The Red Sox group rightly belongs right on the heels of the Yankee threesome. They were together from 1910 through 1915 and, in Speaker, possessed one of the greatest hitters of the league and a defensive hawk still regarded as the peer of all centerfielders. Lewis was a good fielder and hitter while Hooper has done of the finest throwing arms in the game. Speaker's best year was 1912 when he hit .383 but the group's average was tops in 1911 at .315. Speaker hit .321, Hooper .311 and Lewis .311 and Lewis .307.

The DiMaggio-Keller-Henrich outfit was certainly the best seen in the last decade or so. They played together from 1936 through 1942 and 1939 was their best year with a combined average of .330. DiMaggio led the league at bat with .381, Keller had .334 and Henrich .277. never high, he was a long distance slugger and hit many homers. Keller and DiMaggio were always among the league leaders in homers and runs batted in. All had good throwing arms. And some even regarded DiMaggio as Speaker's peer as a centerfielder.

The Detroit entry had its best combined average, .327, in 1916 when Cobb hit .313 and Crawford .309. Cobb was baseball's greatest all-around star, top at bat and on the bases, and a good fielder and thrower.

Stengel, who was struck by an automobile just before the season began and sustained a broken leg, confined his selections to outfielders he had seen. Others he might have led off with a National League trio that boasted the biggest combined average of all time—an even 400. That was Ed Delahanty, Billy Hamilton and Sam Thompson of the Phillies of 1894.

Actually, there have been nine outfield units which show a higher average than Stengel's Ruth-Meusel-Combs selection. Tops among modern outfielders as hitting units is the Detroit unit of 1925 with a .380 average; Cobb had .378, Harry Hallman .399 and Red Wingo .370. The CHICAGO, (Professional girls softball), with a $100,000 bankroll and the brains of two top-notch baseball organizations behind it, hopes after spending this summer in an experimental hot-house to blossom forth next year in the nation's big cities—right alongside its big brother, major league baseball.

When Phillip K. Wrigley, the Chicago Cubs' owner, and Branch Rickey, the Brooklyn Dodgers' vice president and general manager, formed the all-American girls' softball league, they weren't just doing it to throw away excess cash. They visualize a day when fans will jam the big city ball parks to watch young ladies "bang" players perform.

Operational Setup

This year the all-American girls' softball league will operate on a minimum scale, in four smaller cities in the Chicago area. But the operational setup is the same that will be used if their dream of a couple of major softball leagues and a flock of minors some day comes true.

Everything possible is being done to keep the girls' league from resembling the men's game. The girls will wear three-quarter length skirts—no slacks, no shorts. Bertha hairnets are out. And the salaries being offered are good enough to assure the finest and fairest of talent.

For instance the lowest salary called for in a current contract is $45 a week, more than the average stenographer or factory girl gets, and far above the pay of the average Class B minor leaguer.

The best salary is $85 a week, comparing favorably with the pay received by players in the top minor leagues.

And in usual baseball style the girls get all their expenses paid while they're on the road.

League Signs Girls

Instead of being under contract to their respective clubs, the girls will be signed by the league which will distribute the talent at the start of the season as equally as possible among the four teams. The first games are listed for May 30 with upwards of 100 contests carded for each club.

There are a few changes made in the standard softball playing rules. The pitcher is 40 feet instead of 45 feet from the plate. There are only nine players on each team, with the traditional short fielder eliminated. Base runners may take a leadoff. The pitcher may use a rock to facilitate deception in delivery.

The four member cities—Keokuk and Racine in Wisconsin, South Bend, Ind., and Rockford, Ill.—have been chosen because of SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Pfc Marty Schwartz figures he may have uncovered a second Gene Tunney on a married woman who may prove to be the best heavyweight boxing prospect to come out of the military services in this war.

The possible contender for the Louis' crown is Pvt. Jack Vanderlinde, 17 years old, six-foot-one inch tall, and weighing 190 pounds without an ounce of visible fat.

Trainer of Marine Sergeant Barney Ross in the years the latter held the junior welterweight, lightweight and welterweight championships of the world, Private Schwartz has served here as boxing instructor in the Marine Corps Base's Recruit Depot for almost a year and during that time has refereed approximately 300 bouts staged by young Marines from every section of the nation.

Vanderlinde, now serving as a physical instructor in the Recruit Depot, hails from Sioux City, South Dakota.

Changed His Mind

Schwartz, who calls Chicago home, thought for a time, that in Private Dudley Richardson, USMC, 24, of San Jose, California, also a six-footer a likely looking heavyweight prospect. But when he matched the hard hitting Vanderlinde and Richardson he changed his mind. The strapping South Dakotan won the unanimous decision of the judges in a slambang three-round fight.

"I've seen hundreds of young fighters come and go, but I'm willing to go on record that Vanderlinde is the best looking heavyweight prospect I have seen in many a year," said Schwartz.

So enthused is Schwartz over Vanderlinde that he spends a deal of time daily with the youth in teaching him the fine points of boxing.

"I used to be considered a good fighter in shipyard circles and in knocking about the country with my dad, a construction engineer, but this Vanderlinde is the best looking young heavyweight I ever swapped punches with and I fought in some dozen states," said Richardson.

Undaunted by the fact that the carnival was playing 30 miles from his home, Vanderlinde hitchhiked his way there, challenged the carnival fighter and knocked him cold in the second round.

"Yes, I like to fight and when this war is over I hope Marty Schwartz will take me under his wing and let me see just what I can do in the ring," said Vanderlinde modestly. "I have been blessed with a strong body and I intend to keep it so."

And Mart Schwartz said: "You bet I want this Vanderlinde after the war is over. After all, the Marines turned a heavyweight champion, Gene Tunney, out after World War I and maybe we have another in Vanderlinde. Ho, in my opinion, seems to have what it takes to make a real champion."

The rest-pause that refreshes
Welcome in peace...
more welcome in war work

WAR plant managers will tell you that anything that contributes to contented workers makes better workers. In plant after plant it has been found that a rest-pause breaks monotony, lessens tiredness and tension.

When you add refreshment to a rest-pause, you not only have a pause that rests, but refreshes, too. A moment for ice-cold Coca-Cola makes a rest-pause take on more meaning... promoting contentment that leads to more work and better work. Yes, contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

Pantelleria Garrison Surrenders To Allies

Mussolini Has Case Of Invasion Jitters As Key Island Defenses Surrender

WASHINGTON, June 11, (AP) — President Roosevelt today declared the surrender of Pantelleria was very good news and appealed indirectly but strongly to Italy to get out of the war. He said the Italian people now had an opportunity to choose the kind of non-Nazi, non-Fascist government they want.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, June 11, (AP)—Allied headquarters announced today the Italian island of Pantelleria had surrendered and was being occupied by Allied forces. This surrender is the result of a period of continuous and intense air bombardment, supported by naval bombardment, a special communication and "two previous offers of surrender made to the commanders were ignored."

News came shortly after the Italian radio announced a second demand for the surrender had been turned down.

Military observers expect the surrender of the Italian island of Pantelleria to show the fall of Sicily, it was announced today after 19 days of incessant aerial and naval assault.

The Pantelleria garrison, estimated at 8,000 men surrendered unconditionally, thus placing in Allied hands a key stepping stone only 50 miles from Sicily. Activities in other sectors were minor, although a Berlin military commentator said the German invasion armies were ready to open their summer campaign in Sicily in the southwest Pacific.

Benito Mussolini's frantic invasion efforts were disclosed in a Rome radio announcement of the mass firing and shelling of prefects in 20 provincial capitals up and down Italy and in Bardonia and Sicily.

This announcement was broadcast between several trumpet blasts that at each hour goes by we wait the enemy and by plaintive anniversary reminiscences on what might have been if Italy's colonial ambitions had been realized after the last war.

This was far removed from Mussolini's boast that he strutted out on the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia three years ago to declare war, and to shout: "The time has come when Italy's need for expansion is about to be realized."

Fever rising elsewhere in Europe.

Italy's occupation army of 50,000 in Corsica was reported working actively to strengthen its defenses against the real threat of Allied invasion and action by French patriots who were reported hiding in the mountains awaiting the signal to spring upon the fascists.

WITH A SECOND ALLIED DEMAND that its garrison surrender reported rejected, the island of Pantelleria, Italian outpost in the Mediterranean, finally gave up today after being under the heaviest assault the Allies have launched so far in this war. The attack is reported to have been a synchronized sea and air assault, with the big guns of the British Mediterranean fleet aiding the Allied air fleets in reducing the island fortress. Mayor Higgins Has Plan For Building City

Asks Help Of Large Income Taxpayers In Raising Funds For Improvements

Suggesting that Sanford and Seminole County should begin their post-war planning now and make arrangements to provide their own funds for public improvements and to furnish jobs to returning soldiers, Mayor Ed Higgins today pointed out that large income taxpayers might make donations to the City or County for specific purposes, with most of it coming out of the income tax.

Mayor Higgins' statement in full, supported by facts and figures, is as follows:

"At a recent meeting of the Florida Commercial Secretaries Association held in Miami, which I had the privilege to attend, the matter of post-war planning was discussed very thoroughly, and everyone agreed that each community should join the State and the Nation in making plans to provide employment for returning soldiers and sailors and also to take up the slack that will be caused by the abandonment or removal of the military camps from the State.

"There were two lines of thought as to how this work should be done. The Federal Government to furnish the money to carry out this work, but there was a different opinion that really predominated, that if we are going to depend upon the Federal Government to do this work, we are then actually sanctioning the continuation of such organizations as A. F. A., P. W. and other combinations that tend to take the conduct of our affairs away from our local people and centralize it in Washington.

"It was particularly pointed out by representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce that it was the duty of every community to take care of its own problems themselves and it was the duty of the citizens and business men, that do not approve of Federal Government subsidization, to provide funds to carry out such work.

"The building of public roads and improvement of waterways are primarily government projects, however, the selection of the various branches of the government were related to-day by Sen. E. F. Housholder, who acted as chairman of the committee, and who also during the session was president pro tem of the Senate.

"I went to the Legislature feeling that we could save large sums of money in government expenditures, and that reductions were necessary," he said.

"The committee worked to that end and after five weeks we brought in a bill which if adopted would have resulted in a saving of $800,000.00 in the fiscal year 1943-44, and a net saving of $1,396,805.72.

"However, as soon as the news of the cuts made in the budget reached the various heads of our government, things began to buzz, and when we finally acted on the bill, enough persuasion was used to almost wipe out the recommended savings of the committee bill.

"Sen. Housholder added that he was disappointed at this result, and yet at the same time talked economy at every opportunity.

"The House passed their own appropriation bill in place of our bill and sent it over, and we promptly sent it back."

"As a consequence, a conference committee of which I was named chairman was appointed to try to come to an agreement.

"We worked for a week during the last part of the session trying to get it together, and to be sure that was a hard thing for eight men to do when there were so many conflicting views.

"We finally agreed on the day before the session ended, and the conference report was reported to the Senate and the House, and although we had worked seven weeks on the bill, it passed both branches of the Legislature without our being read, and within not more than 40 minutes.

"When everything was finally tabulated we did succeed in making a saving of around $900,000, much less than we had planned in the beginning, but something worth fighting for after all," concluded Sen. Housholder.

Ickes Fines Miners For Striking

Green Predicts Revolt If Cost Of Living Isn't Cut By $2,000,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 11, (AP) — A powder keg atmosphere hung over the nation's coal fields today as government times on miners for the first walkout brought threats of new strikes.

W. H. Clegg, toward the wage increase agreement between the United Mine Workers and a Pennsylvania group of operators contributed to the tenaciousness of the situation.

"Predicting a spontaneous revolt of wage earners unless living costs are cut President William Green of the American Federation of Labor told a Senate committee today a $2,000,000,000 annual subsidy is necessary to roll back living costs to levels of 13 months ago.

"When coal strikes threatened at the U. I. West's empty demand of what he called a brutal application of economic sanctions."

The decision by Secretary Ickes that bituminous miners who took part in the June 1-5 walkout will be fined $1 a day.

Lewis returned from saying that he would do about the action taken by the government. Another bituminous miner who took part in the June 1-5 walkout will be fined $1 a day.
