Seminole Energy Unit To Meet

Odd-Even Gas Rationing Is Eyed

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
Herald Staff Writer

A special meeting of the Seminole County Energy Committee has been tentatively called for Monday to discuss contingency plans in the event the supply of gasoline and diesel fuel to the area continues to diminish, committee chairman JoAnn Blackmon said today.

The energy committee was formed a month ago at the request of Gov. Bob Graham, who instructed officials in each county to assemble a panel to formulate plans in the event of a fuel shortage. Monday's meeting would be the first called in Seminole County.

Ms. Blackmon said the county could be on the threshold of a serious problem, but that any tentative plans for fuel-conserving measures would almost surely be voluntary.

"The problem is enforcement. We have no authority to enforce any plan we put into effect," she said. One possibility that may be reviewed, Ms. Blackmon said, is the odd-even gas buying schemes now in effect in other Florida counties. Thursday Dade and Sarasota counties imposed mandatory gas rationing and at least six other counties have adopted the voluntary odd-even sales systems.

Odd-even plans allow gas to be sold to persons on alternate days, depending on the last digit of their license plate.

The mandatory rationing plan was ordered in Dade County after officials said the voluntary plan was not working. Officials said voluntary rationing was widely ignored by service station employees, who feared they might be beaten by motorists if they refused to sell them gasoline.

Whether or not Seminole County will have to enact some sort of fuel-saving plan may depend on the length of the truckers strike, Ms. Blackmon said.

"The fuel is there but getting it transported is the problem. I'd hate to say yes or no right now to the question of whether or not we'll have to take some action. That's what we'll discuss Monday," she said.

But chairman of the board of county commissioners Bob French said he feels any talk of gas rationing at this point is premature. He said he will call any special meeting of the commissioners until input and recommendations from the energy committee have been reviewed.

"I definitely think talk of rationing at this point is premature. If the board meets on the subject we will discuss three things. One, is there a problem; two, what is the magnitude of that problem; and three, what is a constructive way of dealing with that problem."

Ms. Blackmon said she has not heard reports of panic-buying yet. She said that because of the allocation schedule most retail service stations are now operating under, it should be expected that supplies of gas would be dwindling toward the end of the month.

"At this point I'd prefer to let the retail stations do what they are doing. That is, set their own hours and close when they have to rather than impose any plan," Ms. Blackmon said.

The concern now, she said, is whether or not stations' supplies of gas for next month can be delivered. Deliveries would become curtailed if the truckers strike is prolonged, she said.

The threat of a disruption of deliveries has a number of area station operators worried. Said Al Black, vice-president of Saxon Petroleum at the Port of Sanford: "The present situation will not improve until the transportation supply is reinstated to normal as prior to the truckers' strike."

"Gasoline remains in scarce supply due to the fact that allocations based on supplies one year ago this month have been allocated downward, which means we will be getting even less volume."

A number of area stations have already depleted their gas supply and have had to shut down.

Cars line up for gas today at station at French Avenue and 18th Street, Sanford.

Motorists Mad And Station Owners Packing Guns

United Press International

New Jersey's energy commissioner blamed oil refiners for the fuel shortage, a Shell Oil Co. executive blamed "the glutny of the American public," and angry motorists from Florida to New York blamed service-station operators so violently that some of them started packing guns.

All along the nation's East Coast, gasoline supplies dried Thursday and as lines grew at besieged pumps, efforts to enforce odd-even license number rationing resulted in outrage.

"I will not argue with people," said Dade County Fla. service station operator Mike Matasovski. "I don't want to get killed."

In New York, service station association director Mac Victor said it was too early to tell if the state's new odd-even rationing plan would work.

"There were a lot of near fights in the gas lines and my men are scared," he said.

In Miami, a number of station attendants strapped pistols to their belts and trimmed hours of operation — even to emergency vehicles.

New Jersey Energy Commissioner Joel Jacobson, in a letter to Rep. Edward Patten, D-N.J., said he has been told 12 tankers were sitting in Delaware Bay unable to unload full cargoes of gasoline or crude oil because refineries were filled.

He asked Patten to "demand a full accounting from the multinational oil industry of why their storage tanks brim over while our car tanks run dry — in short, why are their tankers lying offshore?"

In Bloomfield, Conn., Shell Oil Co. executive Herb Hewitt offered another reason for the fuel famine.

"If you go to the root cause of this whole energy crisis, part of it is the glutny of the American public for the end product," he said. "They appear almost like a child who's had its lollipop taken away."

A New York City driver said he waited in line for almost three hours, only to be told he could buy only $2 worth of gasoline.

Striking Truckers Watch As Haulers Pass Picket Lines

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The first trucks of a convoy of tankers ordered to ship gasoline out of strikebound Port Everglades crossed the independent truckers' picket line without incident shortly after 7 a.m. today and began filling up with gasoline.

National Guardsmen were not posted at the port or escorting the tankers, but state troopers rode in the cab of the tankers, escorting them into the oil and gasoline loading area of the port.

At a National Guard armory about a mile from the port, a National Guard sergeant said, "All day long this is going to be happening. They'll come here (the armory), get an escort and go down to the port to fill up."

The sergeant, who declined to give his name, said Guardsmen would be deployed "when they run out of (PEP) manpower, or if there's any sniping problem."

Striking independent truckers stood quietly outside the entrance to the terminal, drinking coffee, eating breakfast and watching the first two trucks enter. They had no comment.

Tanker trucks involved came from all over the state. John Brady, a Chevron official, said Chevron had six McKensie Trucking Co. trucks coming in from Tallahassee.

Brady indicated the first deliveries would not go to service stations serving the general public.

"The most important points are on a high priority list," he said. Among the examples he cited on the high priority list were farmers, transport firms and police departments.

Gov. Bob Graham ordered the call-up of nearly 800 National Guard members Thursday after 100 truckers meeting at Port Everglades rejected his proposal to end the walkout.

In Tampa, National Guard troops, wearing battle fatigues and steel helmets and armed with either M-16 automatic rifles or shotguns, were deployed by 9 p.m. Thursday. They began guard duty at selected terminals of the Port of Tampa and one guardsman was assigned to ride with each law officer patrolling the port.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement reported at least four truckers were fired at by snipers.

Graham said 100 Guardsmen would be available for duty at Tampa and 600 on hand in south Florida.

President Carter will end the special priority allocations of diesel fuel to farmers, a move designed to defuse the anger over shortages fueling a nationwide truckers strike, sources said today.

Since May 11, the government has made it a rule to give farmers 100 percent of diesel fuel needed for their machines — with truckers, consumers and others sharing what was left over.

The formal announcement of Carter's decision may come as early as today and no later than Saturday, the sources said.

Trucking Problems Locally? Depends On Who's Talking

By BRAD PURDOM
Herald Staff Writer

Produce haulers at the state Farmer's Market in Sanford say the trucker's strike is having little effect on them because their season is almost finished.

Buddy Corley of Corley Produce Company said today the only people who are having any problems because of the strike are those who handle Zellwood corn. Everyone else, he said, already has hauled most of the stocks.

According to Richard Packard of Datz and Packard Produce, however even Zellwood corn haulers are having few problems.

"We have enough produce in our warehouse to last us through the weekend," said Laynon Goodman, manager of Winn-Dixie in Sanford. "By Monday we will be feeling the pinch in almost all departments though," he added.

John Copeland, manager of Food Barn in Sanford, said he is buying produce from individuals out of their gardens trying to keep his racks full. "Right now I'm doing okay, but it's going to get bad if the truckers' strike isn't settled soon."

Public Market at Sanford Plaza reported no problems with deliveries so far and Fairway Market, Sanford also reported no trouble so far.

Gary Mathews, assistant manager of Jewel T Discount Store, Sanford, said no problems have cropped up yet. "We didn't get a truck today, but we expect one tomorrow."

The manager of Food World of Casselberry said he will be moving anything today and I sure couldn't tell you anything about tomorrow."

Independent truckers sitting by their trucks at a gas station across the street from the market, said Transport Brokerage was "completely shut down." They said the company would remain so until the strike ended.

"We got a shipment of produce today, but the soft fruit season (grapes, plums, pears, etc.) is just beginning and most of it comes from California. There is a two or three-day lag and I am sure we will be eventually affected by the truckers' strike," he added.

One trucker, who asked not to be identified said he had shut down because "I don't want

Sugar: The Truth of The Matter Here

DEAR DR. LAMB— In this day of talking about natural foods and vitamins, I would like you to comment about this in your column. Some say white refined sugar is a killer and raw sugar should be used.

DEAR READER— First, does contain a lot of calories. In some instances people need additional calories and it is a good source of them. In our society where there is a constant battle of the bulge, such calories are often not useful.

SHS 20th Class Reunion

There were embraces, shrieks of excitement, smiles—and maybe a few tears when the 1959 class of Seminole High School gathered at Sanora Clubhouse for the 20th class reunion.

Light conversation was exchanged. "You haven't changed a bit," or, "I would know you anywhere."

Henry Schumacher, class president, welcomed the crowd, and called their attention to a display of—"oldie but goodie" photographs of the class—some dating back to the fifth grade.

Cecil Dandridge presented trophies to the couple with the most children, the couple with the youngest child, the couple who had been married the longest, and the couple who had been married the shortest period of time.

Two classmates recognized for traveling the farthest distance to attend the reunion were Willis Ozler from San Francisco and Frances Jimenez Reiman from Highland Mills, N.Y.

Classmates reminisced way into the early morning hours. The general feeling seemed to be, "Let's do it again in five years!"—DORIS DIETRICH

Dad's New Friend Has $$ Signs In Her Eyes

DEAR ABBY: At 82, father is becoming increasingly frail and forgetful. He has substantial means and has lived alone with a housekeeper since Mother died five years ago.

Now the problem: Some former friends who wronged Dad in business years ago have suddenly started to visit him regularly.

I don't want to deprive my father of any real happiness in his last years, but neither do I want him to fall prey to these opportunists I do not trust.

DEAR CONCERNED: How much your father should be protected "for his own good" and whether he's competent to make his own decisions are proper questions to discuss with his lawyer and physician.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful diamond ring which was given to me by my mother-in-law when I became engaged.

When the time comes, I will offer the ring to my son for his bride—and that poses a problem because I have twin sons.

Three-Point Field Goals Get Final NBA Approval

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (UPI) — A yearlong test for three-point field goals was agreed upon Thursday by the NBA Board of Governors...

Lakers. NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien predicted approval by the board.

The board approved Thursday the sale of the Houston Rockets to Alberquerque, N.M. businessman George Maloff.

O'Brien said the discussion over the three-point basket, used on an experimental basis during last year's exhibition season, turned into a "lively debate."

The basic thrust was the traditionalists debating those who have experienced the three-point play, O'Brien said.

The motion did carry and for next season any shot made from beyond 22 to 24 feet will be awarded three, rather than the usual two points.

The board and the advisory committee did not in their view think there was satisfactory evidence there was a plus factor to show its success.

The NBA employed 38 referees last season and expect to hire only 26 or 27 this season, NBA supervisor of officials Norm Drucker said.

The clock will not be reset. —The board adopted a resolution making all fines issued by the commissioner payable directly by the player with no reimbursement from the franchise.

—The rules committee vetoed a proposal to legalize zone defense.

Newark Bears Reunited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Standing there in the directors' room, courtly and soft-spoken, as usual, with the late afternoon sunlight catching the iron gray in his hair as well as the thin blue pin-stripe in his cotton and polyester summer suit, Tommy Byrne, who they once called "The Wild Man," looked more like some clean-cut, well-turned-out candidate running for governor.

"Nothing like that," said Tommy Byrne, who still holds the record for giving up the most walks in one season by any Yankee pitcher. "I'm very happy doing what I'm doing."

Byrne is the mayor of Wake Forest, N.C., where he went to school and from where he jumped straight from the campus to the Newark Bears of the International League in 1940.

He and 10 other former Bears were honored at The Meadows in East Haverford, N.J. Wednesday night and you never saw so many guys so happy to see each other.

Holmes, Weaver Tangle

NEW YORK (UPI) — He's known as "the other heavyweight" champion, and Friday night's bout probably won't do much to improve his status.

Larry Holmes is an overwhelming favorite tonight when he defends his World Boxing Council heavyweight title against unheralded Mike Weaver, an ex-Marine who's never beaten a ranked fighter.

No matter what he does, Holmes seems to live in the shadow of Muhammad Ali. The 29-year-old Easton, Pa. native is 30-0 with 21 knockouts but still has never gained widespread public acceptance as heavyweight champion because of the presence of Ali.

"I'm the fighting champion," said Holmes, in an obvious slap at Ali, who has not fought since regaining his title for the third time last September by defeating Leon Spinks.

Molitor Bunt Beats Twins

UPI Sports Writer Minnesota Manager Gene Mauer, an admirer of outstanding baseball talent, probably will salute Milwaukee's Paul Molitor — as soon as he gets over the shock.

Molitor, who finished No. 2 to Lou Whitaker last season in the voting for American League Rookie of the Year, has been trying harder and the results have been extraordinary.

"What do you want me to say? I'll say anything you want me to," Mauer snapped in response to one question.

John Castino's only play was to first base. The ball skittered past first baseman Ron Jackson, scoring Yount, who reached on a fielder's choice, working second on an infield single and moved to third on a groundout.

Mauer was in no mood to salute anyone after Minnesota's fifth straight loss.

"What do you want me to say? I'll say anything you want me to," Mauer snapped in response to one question.

McDonald Ignites Stromberg

Jim McDonald banged out a home run, triple and single Thursday night to lead Stromberg-Carlson to a 6-5 victory over Howard's Mobil in the Sanford Men's Softball Association.

Chuck McMillan homered for the losers.

Orlando Helicopters trimmed Whigham Furniture, 5-4 as Rob Simpson homered and Tolle Frank had two hits. Steve Ferrell was 3-for-3 for the losers.

Watson Within Striking Distance At Oakville

OAKVILLE, Ontario (UPI) — Tom Watson weighed his words carefully, then conceded he is playing well enough to win the Canadian Open golf tournament.

Watson does not lead the $250,000 tournament going into Friday's second round, but he is within two strokes of leader Jack Newton of Australia, after a Thursday round of 6-under-par 66.

Bracketed together at 68 were Bob Murphy, Terry Diehl, Bob Lunn and D.A. Weirburg. But Watson, after his failure to make the cut in last week's U.S. Open at Toledo, Ohio, is the man to watch.

"I don't know why you fellows keep bringing that (U.S. Open) up," Watson chided reporters. "That is past history. I play for today. I play for tomorrow."

A stroke back of Watson, with a 7-under-par 67, were two-time winner Len Trevino, Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller and Johnny Miller, whose last victory came in the 1976 Bob Hope Classic.

The 29-year-old Kansas City native said, "I did not play as well as I would, but I'm playing well enough to win. There's a lot of golf left, but I'm in a good position."

Twenty-seven players started the tournament at 9 a.m.

Monopoly Showdown In Sanford

It was quiet in the hall. The morning's crowd had been reduced to two. The players sat in folding chairs facing each other across a card table. The banker opened a new game and counted two stacks of money. This was the showdown. In less than 90 minutes one of the players would be the Monopoly champ of Sanford.

Twenty-seven players gathered at the Woman's Club Saturday morning to battle it out in a tournament sponsored by the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole. After a series of games the finalists were Pat Scott, president of the Ballet Guild and Laurey La More, an office worker for a grocery chain.

Lunch was over and the final game was to be played. Joe Monserrat, tournament chairman, was the banker. A 90 minute time limit was set and play began at 2:30.

Since the first Monopoly game was sold com-mercially by Parker Brothers in 1935, more than 80 million sets have been sold throughout the world. The game is currently sold in 29 countries and is printed in 18 different languages. According to Parker Brothers, in the 40 years the game has been on the market, they have built more than 2½ billion little green houses.

For several years local tournaments have been held with the help of Parker Brothers and winners have played in regional, national, and world championship games. The most recent being held in Monte Carlo in 1977. The next to be in Bermuda in 1980. Site of the regional tournaments are Boston, Dallas, Chicago and San Francisco.

The local finals opened fast and furious with more than 15 properties being bought in the first five minutes. Atlantic Avenue, New York Avenue and the Electric Company among the first purchased.

In an auction for Mediterranean Avenue which retails for $60, Mrs. La More took it for $61. Mrs. Scott threw the dice and moved on to Boardwalk, buying it.

An hour into the game the end was near when Mrs. Scott landed on North Carolina Avenue. With three houses on it she owed Mrs. La More $900 in rent. Houses had to be sold and all but three properties were mortgaged to raise the funds.

Down to Marvin Gardens, Atlantic Avenue, and Ventnor Avenue, Mrs. Scott rolled the dice and moved down the board to Oriental Avenue. Owned by Mrs. La More, the rent on the property with a bright red hotel came to $500. Pat Scott was bankrupt. Laurey La More of Lake Mary was champ!

Both are eligible to participate, at their own expense, in a regional tournament this fall.

Peggy Lipton: No Desire To Return To 'Jungle'

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — She is a gentle woman who found herself, for a time, in the jungle. She survived, but she has no wish to go back there again.
 That, in a somewhat vague nutshell, is the story of Peggy Lipton. Recently, she dipped into the jungle briefly, when they had a televised reunion of her old "Mod Squad" series, but she says she's going back to home, hearth and children again.

 Peggy hadn't worked for six years, after "Mod Squad" went off in 1973. And there were some things she liked about getting back to work.
 "I enjoyed the creative aspect," she says, "and I found that the attention I got was nice. For a while, I thought maybe my ambition might have been rekindled. But that feeling didn't last very long."

 She had some ambition, when she was much younger, when she was starting out in the business. But now, she thinks all that was directed toward "making it" and she made it, so "now I don't have to make it any more."
 When she quit, or rather, when the series stopped, in February of 1973, practically the first thing Peggy Lipton did was to get pregnant. She was (and is) married to musician Quincy Jones. They now have two daughters, who are 5 and 3.
 Between having children and tending to their needs, Peggy Lipton didn't give much thought to acting the next five years or so. There were sporadic offers although she says, candidly, "People were not exactly knocking down my door to hire me."
 So she did nothing. She is, basically, a shy, almost fearful woman, and was content to be Mrs. Quincy Jones, wife and mother. She says that she thinks Q, as she and most people call him, was happy with that turn of events, too.
 "I think Q would prefer directions now. As a child she had been a pianist, and she has taken up piano studies again. She has also become somewhat domesticated — "Before I got married I had never cooked in my life, because I had never had a home of my own. It's been the best experience for me."

 Motherhood is, however, her main occupation these days. She says she believes it is "almost impossible" to raise a family and continue with a career.
 One of the main concerns she and Jones had was in what faith to raise their two daughters.
 "Q had been raised as a Catholic," she says, "but religion didn't matter to him. I was raised Jewish and it does matter to me. So the girls are being raised Jewish."
 "One curious thing about that Q's mother, who is in her 70s, has investigated all religions and now goes to a Jewish synagogue. And his 12-year-old daughter, Tina, by his first marriage — his first wife was Swedish — was never religious. But now, because of me, I guess, she is interested in Judaism, too."
 Now that Peggy Lipton has come out — slightly — of her retirement, the big question is: Will she stay out?
 "They talked to me, seriously, about a role in 'Charlie's Angels,'" she says. "But, no, I don't want to do a series. And I don't want to do guest starring roles on series, either. If I could find a good movie or a good TV movie, yes, I might do it."
 "I wouldn't feel so threatened any more."

Has Bogart's Face

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Humphrey Bogart died 21 years ago, but visitors to MGM's Stage 25 are shocked to see a man who resembles Bogey so closely it is difficult to believe he is not a reincarnation.

Bogart's cynical, straightforward, sometimes belligerent personality traits. The overall effect can be paralyzing to Bogart's friends and acquaintances, especially when he's dressed in a three-piece, 40s-style pin striped suit, trench coat and slouch hat.
 Sacchi wears the wardrobe in "The Man With Bogart's Face," taken from the novel by Andrew Fenady who is also producing the film.
 Sacchi flicked his eyes briefly on the visitor to the set and feigned disinterest, just as Bogart used to do. But, of course, not in reality.
 "Yeah," he said, baring his teeth in a cold smile. "I've looked like Bogart since I was a kid. When I was in high school, the other kids never let me forget it. I'd rather have looked like Paul Newman or Robert Redford. The likeness became more pronounced when I began acting in 1965 at NYU. In the late 1960s I began doing TV commercials, some of them based on the fact that I looked like Bogart."
 Sacchi says he lost many roles when producers told him he looked too much like Bogart. Then came the Bogart craze and Woody Allen's "Play It Again, Sam."
 Bogart became a nostalgia fad and Sacchi capitalized on it.
 He's toured some 300 colleges with "Bogey's Back," a 20-minute monologue on the life of the famed star and adding memorable scenes from such Bogart movies as "Dead End," "The Caine Mutiny," "Casablanca," "Knock On Any Door," "The Maltese Falcon," and "The African Queen."
 Producer Fenady had another actor picked out for the role until Sacchi walked into his office for an interview.
 "I went into shock," Fenady said. "Bob doesn't need to do an impersonation. The physical impact is enough. When he began talking, I knew I had Bogart."

Now he's starring in a new movie, "The Man With Bogart's Face," a chillingly accurate title.
 Sacchi, a New Yorker of Italian descent, is the same height and weight as the original. His dark eyes, straight brows, short, combed-back hair and facial characteristics are uncannily Bogart.
 He has developed the same facial tic and peculiarly lispng speech. He draws his lips away from his teeth in a humorless grin precisely in the manner of Bogart just before he pulled the trigger.
 Sacchi's body language is Bogart's as well. He tugs at his lower lip pensively in imitation of the star. And when he chooses, his voice so closely resembles Bogey's it is eerie. The only thing missing is the scar on Bogart's upper lip.
 Curiously, and no doubt purposely, Sacchi affects

The script involves a man bent on becoming a private detective. He undergoes plastic surgery to look like Bogart and then assumes the names of two of Bogart's memorable private eye characters Sam (Sam Spade) and Marlow (Philip Marlowe).
 The $4 million film is a drama, by any means a spoof on Bogart films. The script is typical early Bogart, involving villains not unlike those played by Sidney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre.

Movies Coming To Fla.

By SAM MILLER
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — With one feature movie and part of another earmarked for a Florida shooting schedule, Gov. Bob Graham and state Commerce Secretary Sidney Levin have their sights set on a still bigger prize — Robert Altman's scheduled $20 million film, "Popeye."

Altman plans to make "Popeye" next year. He has narrowed his choices to Florida and the island of Malta.

Altman recently finished shooting "Health" in St. Petersburg.

Levin said Tuesday that Graham's weekend trip to Hollywood brought a commitment for the filming in Florida of actor Burt Reynolds' $8 million movie, "Smoky and the Bandit, Part II."

Levin said he and Graham also were told that scenes from "The Island," based on a Peter Benchly novel, will be shot in south Florida, although most of the filming will be done on the island of Antigua.

"Smoky and the Bandit," in which Reynolds played a beer smuggler chased by Sheriff Jackie Gleason, made more money than almost any other film in Hollywood history and the sequel "will be a good sized project and a highly visible one."

"Burt Reynolds was extremely excited, almost ecstatic. He's going to appear on the 'Tonight' show Thursday and tell the story," said Levin.

Robbery Said Possible Motive

Altamonte Man Found Beaten To Death

By SHARON CARRASCO
 Herald Staff Writer
 A 52-year-old Altamonte Springs man has been identified as the murder victim found Friday afternoon beneath the State Road 436 overpass at Interstate 4 in Altamonte Springs, according to police.
 George A. Blount, 52, of 306 Cherokee Court, Altamonte Springs, was identified by his wife Saturday morning at the Seminole Memorial Hospital.
 Blount, who is the father of three children, was an unemployed engineer at the time of his death. He is a former employee of International Telephone and Telegraph in North Carolina.

 Sgt. Jim Perry of the Altamonte Springs police, said Blount might have been the victim of a robbery but added the investigation is too preliminary to say for sure.
 Blount usually didn't even carry a wallet with him, Perry said. No money was found in his pockets when police arrived but Blount's pockets could have been rifled by his assailant, Perry speculated.
 No identification was found on Blount but Altamonte Springs police were able to tentatively identify him by canvassing the immediate area.
 "He was well known in the area," Perry said.

Perry said he would have more information after he receives the results of the autopsy.
 Dr. Sara Irgang, assistant medical examiner of Seminole County, performed an autopsy on Blount this morning to determine the exact cause of death.
 Blount was not shot in the back of the head as initially believed, but struck with a sharp object, Dr. Irgang said.
 Dr. Irgang said an x-ray revealed Blount had suffered a fractured skull and there was no bullet wound. Prior to the autopsy, she speculated he could have been struck with a tire iron.

 Blount's body was found about 2 p.m. Friday by a work crew under the Department of Transportation who were busy clearing the area of debris, according to Altamonte police.
 "We don't really know how long Blount was there but we think he was there at least 12 hours," Perry said.
 Perry would not speculate on whether Blount had been killed elsewhere and then transported to the roadside until he had received the autopsy results.

Gas Stations Cut Hours, Close Down

By JANE CASSELDERRY
 Herald Staff Writer
 The lack of long lines of cars waiting for gasoline in the Sanford area this weekend is not a sign for optimism. Those stations not out of gas are selling their daily quota early and closing for the day.
 Burns Texaco on French Avenue ran out of gas last Tuesday and a spokesman said they can't get any more until July 1. "We can't get delivery, they say we used up our quota," he said, "but I don't believe it."
 The Fina station on West First Street is out of gas and the spokesman said he didn't have the "slightest idea" when they would be getting more.
 Clem Leonard Shell on Park Avenue, Sanford, ran out of gas Thursday, got delivery on Friday, but shut down about 9:30 Saturday morning for the weekend.
 A spokesman for Sanford Exxon on Sanford Avenue said Friday they had been out of everything, but premium grade gasoline for three days and they didn't know when they would be getting more because of the truck strike.
 "The drivers can't leave the terminal," he said.
 Cargo station on Orlando Drive, Sanford, has a 2,000 gallons a day quota, which usually lasts from 3-5 hours, a spokesman said Saturday. When the quota is sold the pumps are closed. The station is closed on Sunday. He said his supply of high test and regular were getting low, but he hoped to get a delivery Saturday afternoon.
 Butler's Amoco on French Avenue, Sanford reported no trouble in getting supplies delivered, but in order to stretch gas within monthly quotas they have set a daily quota and a $3 limit to each customer.
 Dekle's Gulf on French Avenue reported steady lines Friday morning, but by 9:15 were out of gas until Saturday. "People are getting concerned about the situation," the spokesman said.
 Things were much the same in other parts of the county.
 Bob's Texaco, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, was closed Saturday. A spokesman said they had sold 1,500 gallons Friday after receiving a delivery. "We had long lines Friday and some of them were getting pretty nasty," he said.
 Foley's Amoco, Casselberry, sold out their quota and closed by noon on Saturday, but said they had gas and would reopen again on Sunday.
 Imperial Florida Oil Co. station on State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs described the situation as "very bad."
 "We have long lines and we are out of every thing but unleaded," the spokesman said. "We ran out of regular and ethyl last night and don't know when we will get more — maybe Monday."
 A special meeting of the Seminole Energy Committee has been tentatively called for Monday to discuss contingency plans in the event the supply of gasoline and diesel fuel to the area continue to diminish.
 One possibility to be reviewed, according to committee chairman JoAnn Blackmon is the odd-even gas sales system already in effect in some other Florida counties.
 Odd-even plans allow gas to be sold to persons on alternate days depending on the last digit of their license plate.
 Florida National Guardsmen have the gasoline delivery trucks rolling around the clock, but re-supplying a lone dry south Florida may take the rest of the weekend.
 Gov. Bob Graham acted to stem the fuel crisis four days into the strike by independent gasoline haulers, who are demanding a 30 percent rate increase.
 By late Friday, 67 military and civilian tankers were making gas supply runs with guardmen riding shotgun with the drivers. Using emergency powers Friday, Graham commandeered commercial gasoline carriers from four companies.
 He mobilized a fleet of 138 commercial tankers, which will be used along with trucks from the National Guard. Bright yellow signs reading "Operated by Florida National Guard" covered over the insignia of one trucking firm as the trucks pulled out of Port Everglades.
 Guard Col. Robert Ensslin estimated there will be 150 Guard-operated trucks moving gas today.
 Graham called up nearly 800 guardsmen Thursday to provide security at both Port Everglades and the Port of Tampa and drive gasoline tankers in south Florida. Then when it became obvious Friday that the few tankers being assembled could not ease the south Florida gas crisis, he ordered the takeover of the commercial tankers.
 "The action we've taken over the last two days is extraordinary, but it was necessary," Graham said.
 The reaction from the striking truck drivers, who had earlier rejected a proposal from Graham designed to get them back to work, was to do nothing. "We're going to sit here and wait. We're in the drivers seat," said Robert Adams.

This scene typical at stations this weekend.

There's No Shortage Of Angry Motorists As Situation Worsens

By United Press International
 On the first weekend of summer, the gasoline supply situation is at its worst in much of the country but there is no shortage of anger, accusation and frustration.
 Officials in the Northeast were telling motorists to stay off the road, a group of congressmen were telling Energy Secretary James Schlesinger to quit, and the Carter administration was telling Americans to get used to the energy shortage.
 Things were bad Friday. Gas was selling for as much as $1.50 a gallon in the New York metropolitan area and some drivers waited in lines 3 to 4 hours to find out there was no gas available. The weekend figured to be worse.
 The Automobile Club of New York, which estimated that 90 percent of the state's service stations would be closed Sunday, told drivers simply to stay home. In nearby Connecticut, Gov. Ella Grasso told motorists: "Please limit extra travel this weekend."
 President Carter received a letter Friday from Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., describing Schlesinger as "the most incompetent government official in memory."
 Dodd, one of 27 congressmen calling for Schlesinger's firing, blamed the energy chief for the "lack of confidence of the American people in current energy policy and the confusion over conflicting information on fuel supplies."
 In Connecticut, the New York metropolitan area, New Jersey, Maryland, northern Virginia and the District of Columbia, the odd-even system of rationing wasn't working very well, mostly because many stations were closed.
 Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Delaware were limiting gas purchases. Rhode Island stations, faced with hundreds of Connecticut drivers swarming into the state, would serve only those whose plates ended with even numbers.
 In south Florida's populous Miami-Fort Lauderdale area where a strike by independent truck drivers has cut off most gasoline supplies, Gov. Bob Graham Friday issued an executive order commandeering privately owned tank trucks to get fuel to gas stations.
 In Minnesota, a spokesman for the state's Service Stations Association said its members will vote Monday night on whether to pump out their remaining June gasoline allocation within a few days and close for the month.
 Brian Ettesvold, executive secretary of the organization, said that probably would cause panic at the gas pumps but dealers felt "betrayed" and "know of no other way to impress Washington with their plight."
 Dallas, Fort Worth, and Houston, with a gas shortage and long lines of motorists, were starting the odd-even system Monday, with other communities requesting similar rationing.
 Vice President Walter Mondale told the Minnesota Bar Association Friday the Americans were going to have to face the energy shortage rather than look for "phantoms" on which to blame it.
 And the U.S. Coast Guard denied Friday that fuel tankers were anchored in the Delaware Bay unable to unload because refineries were filled to capacity.

Budget Leaves Lake Mary $90,000 Short

By BRAD PURDOM
 Herald Staff Writer
 The city of Lake Mary will run out of money to cover its day to day expenses by the middle of August, says the city's treasurer Mrs. Madeline Papa.
 Papa said the city will fall $90,000 short in general operating expenses before it receives any more funds of a significant amount in mid-November.
 Mrs. Pat Southward, city councilman, told the council an increase in taxes would be necessary to cover the city's operating expenses over the long haul. For the short term, City Manager Phil Kulbes said the city may dip into its reserves.
 "We should have raised taxes last year by at least one mill," Southward said Friday. One mill equals $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property value.
 Over-estimations of incoming funds, as well as a 1978-79 budget that was apparently faulty in at least one place and misleading in another, have caused the problem, Southward said.
 "We should have known," she said. "We should have caught these problems before now."
 The budget's major problem was that it led city council members to believe they were beginning the year with much more money than they actually had. The budget indicated the city had $176,000 in available funds left over from the previous year. In fact, only about $52,000 of that was available for use. The other $124,000 was money the council either couldn't legally touch or had already earmarked for specific purposes.
 The extra $124,000 included more than $45,000 of legally untouchable funds. This money was made up of police pensions, firemen's pensions, and other monies tied up in escrow accounts or city bonds.
 The rest of the $124,000 had already been reserved for the construction of new roads and city buildings. This money, called the city's "reserves," amounted to $87,000. According to Southward, these reserves had been built up over the city's five year history through "pinching and scrimping."
 Now, to get out of their bind, Kulbes says he is "relatively certain" the council will have to spend its reserves.
 The reserves can be used only with council approval.
 The apparent mistake in the budget also occurred in the adding up of funds to be budgeted. More than $17,000 in expected bond proceeds were not included in two different categories, according to Southward and Papa. The money was added to the city's budget once as a "tax" and once as an "intergovernmental revenue."
 In addition to these problems, the budget over-estimated the amount of money the city would receive in property taxes by about $22,000, said Papa. In 1976 the city received about $96,000 in property taxes. In 1977 the figure was $125,000, and by 1978 it was $129,000. The budget for 1979 then predicted a property tax income of $139,000. By the time the city's fiscal year is over (October 1), however, Papa said it will have collected only about $122,000.
 Southward said the cause of this is twofold. First, the city's taxable base decreased this year for the first time. Second, the estimate was not properly discounted to account for people who fail to pay their taxes or who do so late. It also failed to consider, she said, the loss of revenue caused by the period of time between when a home is appraised and when the tax on it is collected.

 For example, a home may be assessed at the beginning of the year as a vacant lot because it is still under construction. The tax then collected at the end of the year is for a vacant lot, even though the house may have been finished and occupied soon after the assessment.
 Other over-estimations in the budget were less preventable, Southward said. Among them were lower traffic fine totals, less income from cigarette taxes due to a new state formula for dividing up themoney, and an apparent mix-up of mobile home tags on the state's part.
 Papa explained that the state had apparently assigned some mobile home owners Seminole County tags when they should have been assigned Lake Mary tags. This resulted in the county receiving some money that the city should have gotten, she said.
 According to Mayor Walter Sorenson, Lake Mary always hits a dead spot in incoming funds about this time of the year.
 "That's what cash carry-forward is for," he said at the city council's Thursday night meeting.
 But according to Southward, the city thought it would have $176,000 when it hit the "dead spot." Instead, she said, it has just $52,600.
 Papa said Friday night the city would, therefore, run out of money in the middle of August. Based on average operating expenses of $30,000 per month, she said the city would be short $90,000 by the time it receives any significant funds in mid-November.
 Since any increase in property taxes must be approved by Lake Mary voters, it is probably too late for such an increase to help the current situation at all. Thus, says Kulbes, the city will have to dip into its reserves.
 Lake Mary's 1978-79 budget was prepared by Papa's

PAT SOUTHWARD
 Faise taxes
 predecessor, S. Sigfrid Pearson of Longwood.
 Pearson was "let go," said Kulbes, because "he was alleged to have procrastinated on his duties."
 "There was a misunderstanding between Sig and the council as to his duties," Kulbes continued. "They hired him on the basis of his background, which was excellent."
