Mall jobs going, going...

Local people very qualified

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — With less than six weeks until the grand opening of the Seminole Towne Center mall, things are really starting to fall into place.

Finishing touches are being put on the buildings. Paint is being splashed on the walls. Chrome is being buffed to a mirrored finish. Glass is being polished.

And the employment positions at the stores are being filled.

From retail sales positions to jobs in the security departments, the employment possibilities are filling fast.

"We've been very, very pleased with the people we've seen here in Sanford," said Vicki Lasker, who directs the French Avenue recruitment office for Burdines. "We are very excited about the interest there has been. We had more than 1,000 people apply for the 175 available positions."

At Parisian's employment site at Longwood Village shopping center on State Road 434, store manager Donna Holdnak is "very excited about the quality" of applicants who have turned out seeking employment with the upscale store.

She said more than 1,200 have

Trek focuses on minority hiring

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — They waited an hour by the old clock at Magnolia Square Saturday for more people to join their march for jobs to the Seminole Towne Center mall. Shortly after 11 a.m., carrying day-glo orange and yellow poster board signs proclaiming "Minority Mall Jobs Now," the five protesters set out walking in the blazing sun down First Street for the five mile trek to the mall site.

Sanford businessman Gene Schumann and his wife, Bambi, who own Variety Shoes at Third Street and Magnolia Avenue helped organize the protest over concern local residents, especially minorities, are not getting jobs promised by mall developer Melvin Simon and Associates. The couple is white but a large percentage of their customers are African-American or other minorities from Sanford.

"You as taxpayers are invited to support the mall but are not invited to be paid employees," stated the flyer distributed by Schumann. From the construction phase through the planned mid-September opening, local minorities are not getting the jobs which would help the local economy, the organizer claimed. Schumann's brother worked construction at the mall and reported few minorities worked on

Residents appeal ruling that nixes chain link fences

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Whether or not chain link fences will be permitted in certain sections of the city is expected to be determined during the Sanford City Commission work session and regular meeting Monday.

During the work session, the commission is scheduled to discuss a proposed ordinance which prohibits chain link fences in the front yard for all residential uses, but with certain exceptions.

During the regular commission meeting, three requests have been made to have the city overturn denials made by the Board of Adjustment regarding chain link fences in front yards.

According to the wording of the prepared ordinance to be discussed, "In areas of the city that have existing chain link fences in the front yard area, the administrative official may permit chain link fences in the front yard area of single-family uses outside the designated Historic Residential District, upon determination that a majority of houses on both sides of the street in

Church asks the city to see the light over sign

SANFORD — First Baptist Church, 519 Park Avenue in Sanford, wants to continue using a sign board in front of the church. Getting permission to do so however, is proving to be complicated.

On June 1, the church submitted an application with the Historic Preservation Board which would allow it to re-use a previous back-lighted sign board with removable letters. The sign is in a new brick and stucco structure, which matches the new brick on the sanctuary building.

The board voted to allow the church to use the sign, but omit the back-lighting, using in its place, a front floodlight.

In voting on the matter, the HPB specified a portion of the city code which says, "signs shall not be internally illuminated."

The sign has been in use for many years, but during the re-bricking and construction, was taken down. In order to place it back in service once again however, city codes say it must be brought up to the standards of codes enacted since the sign was originally approved.

Monday night, during the Sanford City Commission meeting, the church is appealing the decision made by the HPB.

Fireworks are just the beginning

SANFORD — A drive to obtain finances for the 1996 Fourth fireworks display in Sanford has grown with the addition of three events under a single trust fund.

Rod Layer, former president of the Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association, (SHDWA), managed to obtain the assistance of the local Paralyzed Veterans of America as a non-profit organization to assist in the fund drive for this year's fireworks display. Enough money was gathered to make the Independence Day observance an exceptional display.

During the event, efforts got underway by a number of "bucket brigade" volunteers, to pass containers for donations to get next year's event underway.

Since that time, Layer has continued to seek financial support.

Now, he says, "I have established a non-profit trust to promote Sanford even further." Layer is planning to expand the July Fourth event to

Ethics panel asked to add to probe

TALLAHASSEE — An advocate for the disabled is asking the state ethics commission to add its own probe to the ongoing investigations into Sen. Alberto Gutman's ties to the health care industry.

"The public needs to be assured that Senator Gutman did not violate the trust of the public by violating the ethical standards of an elected official," John Garon of Plantation wrote in a complaint to the state Commission on Ethics.

Ethics Commission executive director Bonnie Williams said Thursday the commission wouldn't publicly confirm a complaint until it takes some action.

Garon is a quadriplegic who receives Medicaid disability payments. He cited reports that Gutman, who chairs the Senate Health Care Committee, earned a $500,000 consulting fee for helping to arrange the sale of a Miami health maintenance organization in November 1994.

Gutman, R-Miami, didn't return calls for comment. He has said he got approval from the Senate's counsel before entering into the agreement.

Garon said he filed the complaint because he was alarmed that Gutman gained personal wealth from an HMO at a time when his committee was required to vote on legislation affecting the health plans.

State ethics laws prohibit public officials from using their positions for private gain.

Jury awards $300,000

MIAMI — A jury Friday awarded $300,000 to a girl who filed suit against Kmart alleging inadequate security at the store resulted in her being sexually assaulted.

The girl, who was then 9, had been shopping with her mother at a Kmart in Hialeah when the incident occurred in January 1992. She was approached by a man after she left the bathroom and went looking for her mother and was subsequently assaulted in an employee-only area at the back of the store.

Following a two-week trial, the jury awarded $300,000 for past and future psychiatric expenses. Though jurors found the mother 90 percent responsible for the incident and Kmart 10 percent to blame, the corporation is liable for the entire amount because they are considered economic damages, said the girl's attorney, John Leighton.

"We're very pleased with the fact this child will now have psychiatric care for the rest of her life after this horrible incident," Leighton said.

The lawsuit filed in July 1994 sought in excess of $50,000 in damages. No one was ever arrested for the crime.

Susan Kent, one of the attorneys for Kmart, said letting the girl, identified only as D.C.M. in the complaint, go to the bathroom alone was an "invitation for trouble."

She said the facts of the case did not show Kmart's security was lacking.

"They (jurors) worked diligently and conscientiously to reach this result, and it is certainly something they think is fair," said Kent.

She was uncertain if Kmart would appeal the verdict.

Nursing home accused of elderly abuse

TAMPA — State regulators are seeking to take control of a nursing home where they say elderly people have been killed, raped and injured by other residents who are violent and mentally ill.

The Agency for Health Care Administration, which licenses nursing homes, shut down a 23-bed wing of The Ambrosia Home on Friday, saying administrators were running the wing like a jail.

A Hillsborough County judge is expected to rule Thursday on a petition filed by the agency to name new managers.

Officials said the nursing home, which has 75 residents, locked up frail elderly residents with violent mentally ill residents in the 23-bed unit.

"They placed them in a locked unit and that should not have been done," AHCA spokeswoman Colleen David said Saturday from Tallahassee.

David said the agency was moving the residents in the locked unit to other facilities in the area.

In its petition, the AHCA said "some of the aggressive mentally ill residents (in the locked unit) have killed, injured, fought and committed sexual battery upon other residents. The Ambrosia Home has failed to intervene."

This is the second Hillsborough County nursing home targeted by state officials this year. Riverside Nursing Facility, which had a history of serious problems dating back to 1992, was shut down in February.

The administrator at Riverside in 1992 and 1993, Mary Alice Desasau, is the current administrator of The Ambrosia Home.

Messages seeking comment from Desasau or other supervisors were left Saturday at the home.

The Ambrosia Home was relicensed in January after an inspection in November that found dozens of problems, including inadequate staff and possible misuse of antipsychotic drugs.

Crime of domestic violence

Life gets tougher for repeat offenders

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A 24-year-old professional boxer with a long criminal record got out of prison early in December 1993 after serving eight months of a 6½-year sentence for auto theft and drug possession.

In April, Douglas Norris of Pensacola was rearrested and charged with aggravated battery on his fiancée for choking her. He faced going back to prison for violating conditions of his release.

At a parole hearing to decide whether he would return to prison, the woman recanted and testified Norris didn't touch her. She said she got the red marks on her neck while the couple was "playing around" and "rough housing."

Norris was reinstated to supervised release last month, despite a parole officer's initial recommendation that he be sent back to prison.

Florida Parole Commissioner Patricia Grogan said she deals with domestic violence cases like the one involving Norris every week. She said felons on conditional or supervised release rarely return to prison on domestic violence charges.

Grogan also is chairwoman of the Governor's Task Force on Domestic Violence. She is working to get parole officials to change the way they investigate domestic violence involving felons who are on early release and are arrested for abusing their wives or girlfriends.

Domestic violence cases pose sticky situations for law enforcement authorities. Many times, victims either recant their stories or refuse to cooperate in charges against their spouses.

"There are a lot of different reasons — economic reasons, they think they're in love with the guy," said Grogan. "The biggest problem is fear. The problem is they end up getting killed."

While Grogan, a former state senator from Brevard County, hopes to send more abusive criminals back to prison, a group of lawyers is trying to win clemency for women convicted of killing their abusive husbands or boyfriends.

The Florida Bar Foundation established the Battered Women's Clemency Project last year and has identified 60 women who will use the battered spouse syndrome to seek clemency.

A special review panel has interviewed one female inmate and will report to the parole commission shortly, which will decide whether to recommend clemency to the governor and Cabinet.

Alma Gonzalez-Neimeiser, a Tallahassee lawyer heading the project, said the purpose isn't to retry the cases or show the women shouldn't have been convicted. Instead, it was to give free legal representation to women who didn't have much choice to escape their abuse.

"A woman should not have to choose between life in prison or death at the hands of their abusers," she said.

The number of domestic violence crimes in Florida has increased in each of the past three years. There were almost 120,000 incidents last year, according to Florida Department of Law Enforcement figures.

Selective Service clerk, E.B. Carter, disclosed that 18- and 19-year-olds would get to spend Christmas at home as probably none of them would be needed to fill the draft quotas before January. Drafting of this group had been authorized the previous week by Congress. There were approximately 300 Seminole County youth registered in this group.

There was to be a stamp bond sales campaign throughout the nation during the week, sponsored by the "Minute Women." Mrs. M.B. Smith, local chairman, announced that the selling booths would be located at Yowell Company, H and A

Among the organizations who would be filling the booths were the PTA, Garden Club, Woman's Club, Church of Christ Scientist, Presbyterian Auxiliary, Methodist Women, Baptist Missionary Union, Christian Church, Episcopal Guild, American Legion Auxiliary and Eastern Star.

Stressing the need for proper personal identification in event of a calamity during the present war emergency, William J. Toll outlined a tentative program in preparation for countywide distribution of identification tags. Mr. Toll had recently been appointed chairman of the Identification Committee of the Seminole County Defense Council by Gov. Spessard Holland.

Mr. Toll stated that wearing of the tags would not be compulsory, but everyone would be urged to cooperate. Tags would cost only five cents and could be worn on a chain around the neck or anywhere else about the person.

Top flight instructor in nation might be Sanford aircraft ace

By NICK PPRIFAU
 Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Savage Aviation, Inc., 3015 Carrier Ave. at the Orlando Sanford Airport, may be headed for nationwide recognition.
 Tommy Savage operates the company in Sanford, is a flight instructor, teacher of ground school, and operates aircraft rental and flight simulator. He is a designated Federal Aviation Authority pilot examiner and FAA written test examiner.

Now, he is close to national prominence. Savage has been nominated as Flight Instructor of the Year for 1995.
 Each year, the FAA looks to recognize and reward outstanding contributions to the aviation industry by active flight instructors. Nominees for each district are judged on the basis of specific accomplishments and superior performance.
 One nominee is selected and recognized by each district. Savage was named number one in the recent district judging in Atlanta.

 Steven E. Moore, president of Florida Association of Flight Instructors, who nominated Savage for this year's award, commented, "Tom is a winner in our district, and as far as I'm concerned, he stands a good chance of being named top instructor in the entire nation when the national awards are presented in late October in Washington, D.C."
 In submitting his letter of nomination, Moore said, "Mr. See Savage, Page 8A"

On renaming the armory

A move to change the name from the National Guard's Sanford Armory to Evans Armory appears heading for reality. The change is to be officially made during the 50th Victory Reunion of the 31st Division in Orlando on Aug. 24.

The 124th Infantry, headquartered in and operating from Sanford has had a long and noteworthy history. Through the years, members of the guard unit have been called to serve in war as well as peacetime operations.

One of the guardsman was Staff Sergeant Robert L. Evans, a resident of Sanford. He was a medic with the 124th who lost his life during a battle on Mindanao in the Philippines in May, 1945. The renaming is to be in his honor.

National Guard officials say it will be the only armory in the state named after a non-commissioned officer.

With this in mind, some residents have indicated they would prefer to have the armory named in honor of the late General J.C. Hutchison.

Others have observed that even Henry Shelton Sanford was a major general, so, in effect, the armory is already named for a military leader. Of course the title was given in connection with the Minnesota State militia to whom he gave several cannons.

One concern is that this is another facility which has been historically identified as "Sanford" now being changed, such as the airport and air show.

Sgt. Evans, Maj. Gen. Sanford, and Gen. Hutchison all have direct descendants living in the local area.

It isn't proper to judge which of the three is more deserving. Evans however, was killed during a battle while in the service of his country.

During patriotic events, we often here speakers suggest we remember those who gave their very lives so that our nation could remain free. By naming the Sanford armory in honor of Sgt. Evans, we believe we are taking a step in that direction.

Affirmative action

California recently altered its stance on Affirmative Action. Warnings that racism will run rampant are overblown. Claims that Affirmative Action is dead is also a misstatement. What this decision has done is send a message to the nation that the Affirmative Action laws as they exist today are in need of review and in some cases, abandonment.

Affirmative Action programs have begun to promote the very racism that they were supposed to eliminate. Instead of rewarding individuals for their performance, they reward based on race and gender. The unfortunate byproduct is that they lead toward quotas, fraud and reverse discrimination. The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. had it right when he said that our children need to be judged on ... "the content of their character, not the color of their skin."

Diversity based on individual performance should be the goal we all seek. This makes sound economic sense for business as well as the educational community. However, to give jobs promotions, contracts and opportunities based on race or gender hurts not only the organization but the "minorities" they are supposed to be helping. Instead of promoting programs that highlight racial and gender differences, it would seem a better moral duty for the businesses and universities to highlight programs that take individuals for what they can do and to aggressively punish those who deny jobs and opportunities based on race and gender.

California made a decision that may not appear to be "politically" correct but it is forcing the nation to take a hard look at the way we are "helping" minorities. We should encourage the programs that help minorities compete on an equal level and let us focus on rewarding an individual's performance, not their race or gender.

The concept of year round school

Year Round Education is not a new concept. During the 19th century, several school districts observed a schedule different from the traditional nine months of school and three months' vacation. Buffalo, N.Y. had a 12-month calendar, Baltimore Md.; Cincinnati, Ohio and Chicago, Ill. had an 11 month school calendar. New York City held school for 49 weeks. Notwithstanding these early efforts at a non-traditional school year, it was not until the 1960s and 1970s that Year Round Education began to be considered a viable option. Originally traditional school calendars were conceived to coincide with planting and harvesting, when we were more agrarian.

The Year Round Education concept has been debated pro and con. Studies completed since 1991 give a big boost to the concept. Dr. Walter L. Winters, formerly associate director of research for San Diego city schools summarized 19 recent studies in a publication for the National Association of Year Round Education. The studies covered 58 possible areas that could be given plus, minus, or mixed grades; 83 percent were rated plus, 5 percent were rated minus and 12 percent were mixed results. Tests utilized for these studies included: the California Achievement Test (CAT); Stanford Achievement Test (SAT); Iowa Test of Basic Skills (ITBS); Science Research Associates (SRA) and the Gates MacGinitie Reading Test. The studies were conducted in California, Texas, Florida, Ohio, Virginia and Georgia.

SWEETING

One of the arguments advanced for support of Year Round Education is the fact that foreign students spend more time in school. Research conducted by the International Educational Association revealed that the median achievement for foreign students was above that of American students. The study was flawed because there was no recognition of the fact that in other industrialized nations only the most talented and advantaged students continue in the higher grades. When the studies were limited to the top American students, there were more favorable outcomes.

The Phi Delta Kappan Center for Evaluation Development and Research compiled a series of studies addressing Year Round Education. It was noted that the actual "engaged learning time" or time on task was more of a catalyst for improving achievement scores than simply having more time available.

Dr. Paul Hagerly discussed Year Round Education in Seminole County. The elementary and middle schools are on the same track. Middle and elementary school students returned to school July 17, 1995. Senior high school resumed Aug. 7, 1995.

There are 13 elementary schools participating in the multi-track schedule because of the increased student population. This allows for schools to be at 80 percent capacity at all times. Thus, 20 percent of the faculty and students are on intersession. Year Round Education has meant adjustments for administrators and teachers. Principals have 20 percent of their team (teachers) off at any given time. Some teachers have of necessity changed classrooms about four times per year.

The University of Central Florida's study "Perceptions Regarding Year Round Education in Orange County Public Schools," reviewed eight multi-track schools and seven single track schools. Results revealed that students, parents and school personnel were "overwhelmingly satisfied" with both schedules. Positive outcomes attributed to Year Round Education in general are: decrease in students dropping out of school, decline in juvenile delinquency, increased achievement for all students (intersession allows for remediation or enhancement); less forgetting of information learned, and more cost effective.

Psychics: Go armed with facts

I'm going to explore the psychic issue. The modern day psychic is not much different from those in centuries past. They probably dress better and most of them call themselves professional psychics. Many of them belong to things like the Association for Research and Enlightenment (ARE). ARE was begun by Edgar Cayce, a reputed psychic from the first half of the 20th century. Like Nostradamus, another reputed psychic/prophet from an earlier time, Cayce used evasive and garbled language for his prophecies.

People wrote to Cayce about their illnesses. He would then prescribe what they should do to get better. Some people did get better. That's because many illnesses, like the common cold, are self-terminating. No matter whether or not you take medicine, you eventually get better. Cayce had some rather spectacular failures. He and his supporters used sometimes wild rationalizations to explain away these failures. There was more than one instance where he prescribed a cure for individuals who were already dead. This despite the fact that Cayce claimed to be able to divine the illness and a cure for it from one letter. The letter was his gateway to the person. I don't see how you can prescribe a cure for someone who's dead.

Nostradamus used similar techniques in his day. He was an actual physician who discovered early in his career that publishing and predicting paid more than the moderate sum physicians made in his time. Because of his education, his cure rate may have been better than Cayce's, but his financial readings were not successful. Nor were the predictions he made. A prolific writer of prophecies, the only ones he wrote that have been proved true are the retroactive prophecies. Prophecies written after the fact. I can write those kind and be accurate.

If you are really interested in New Age beliefs, please read the works of the skeptics as well. (It may be called New Age, but it's the same thing people have been doing for centuries. A medium and a channeler are just two words for the same thing.) James Randi, an internationally known magician and escape artist, has spent most of his years as an investigator of the paranormal, occult and supernatural. For many years he has carried a certified check for $10,000 around with him. Anyone who can demonstrate genuine psychic ability will be rewarded with that check. He has never had to sign it over to anyone. Randi has written several books on the paranormal, exposing the tricks that those in the trade use.

Astrology, a tool that some psychics use, is little more than a bad joke. Three thousand years ago, Babylonians charted the stars. Considering their lack of instrumentation, they did a phenomenal job. It was not, however, a completely accurate one. It was also geocentric, based on the theory that the universe revolves around the earth. Most people abandoned that theory centuries ago. This is the star chart that astrologers use to this day.

Not believing in something does not mean I believe the person is a fake. Although there

MARY

are many outright frauds operating today as psychics, there are also a large number of people who genuinely believe they are psychic. I had a friend like that in college. She was a sweet, wonderful person who read my future for me. She told me I would get married when I was 27 and have two children. I was gullible in my youth, so when I became engaged at the age of 23, I was terrified something terrible was going to happen to prevent the wedding. I was married right after my 24th birthday with no terrible calamities befalling me. (Unless you count what the best man and my cousin did to the car and our luggage.) And I have three children. I had read UFO and psychic books prior to this, but afterwards, I began reading books from both sides of the issue. (It's much harder to find books debunking either subject.)

You may say you know of a case where a psychic was right. Sometimes they are. It's the law of averages. The ones who know human nature and are able to read body language are probably better than the others. I can tell, 80 percent of the time, when my kids are lying. I always know when they're up to something. But this doesn't make me psychic.

In a four year period, top-rated professional psychics writing for a tabloid made 364 predictions. Out of those, four were correct. That's 98.9 percent wrong. A historian who has studied statistics and psychology could get better odds with educated guessing.

Most psychics know too, that disasters, especially earthquakes, are good predictions. There are thousands of major and minor quakes a year, with a major quake somewhere every two or three weeks. So when a psychic predicts an earthquake, it's a pretty safe bet. What you won't find are psychics who predict the actual location and the time of the earthquake.

I don't believe that my writing this will stop people from believing in psychics. Other writers have spoken out against parapsychology and astrology for centuries.

Where is the harm in all this? Does it really hurt if someone believes that if they work at it, they might attain psychic powers? Does it really hurt that people consult horoscopes and psychics before they make decisions about their life? Well, if we spend time and money trying to attain something that is not attainable, what are we missing out on? If we let psychics plan our futures and do our thinking for us, aren't we endangering our ability to think for ourselves?

If you think that New Age beliefs and mysticism are for you, go for it. But go armed with the facts.

Live mines linger when fighting ends

WASHINGTON — Most of the world's 20 million refugees would love to return home, yet for many of them a single evil stands in their way: land mines.

The world is in the midst of a mine crisis. Experts at the United Nations estimate there are about 100 million active land mines in the world today, spread across 62 countries. These mines kill or injure more than 26,000 people each year, mostly in Third World countries that have been beset by civil war or other strife.

One-third of the victims are children. In many cases, these deadly weapons continue to take life and limb indiscriminately long after the conflicts they were designed for have subsided.

Nobody is more passionate about the subject than U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, who notes that mines are often placed in commercial or civilian areas rather than military venues to prevent innocent people from moving about.

"There is a global land mine crisis going on, and we need to do more about it," he told our associate Dale Van, Atta in a recent interview. "They put them everywhere — in village fields, so the people have been fearful to plant crops, at power stations, in water treatment plants — everywhere. So even when people want to return home, they can't. They must wait for the mines to be cleared and that is taking longer than we hoped."

Cambodia is a good case in point. Ravaged for years by fighting between the Khmer Rouge and other factions, the country has since become a symbol of triumph for U.N. peacekeepers. After peace was restored several years ago, the U.N. launched a largely successful program to repatriate all Cambodian refugees by promising land. But they had to renege because so much land was unusable because of mines. So the United Nations simply paid out cash grants of $50 per adult and $25 per child for returning.

The United States currently contributes a lion's share of the nearly $40 million that the U.N. spends each year on the effort. Though Boutros-Ghali wouldn't say so, his aides claim he is very disappointed at the small amounts of money that donor nations — particularly those that produced the mines in the first place — are willing to give to the demining effort.

Without international assistance, U.N. officials note, the mine problem is only going to get worse. In Cambodia, where one of every 236 citizens is an amputee due to mine blasts, an estimated 7- to 9-million mines remain scattered across the countryside.

The U.N. estimates the total cost for removing a single mine is between $200 and $1,000. Since Cambodia's annual per capita Gross Domestic Product is only $200 per person, that means the cost of demining would take every penny produced in the economy for the next one to five years.

Even countries that can afford demining find they can't do it fast enough. At a cost of $700 million, the Kuwaiti government has cleared more than 1.6 million mines since the end of the Gulf War. But the effort claimed the lives of 84 workers, and more mines still remain.

While the U.S. government and U.N. officials are trying to reduce the problem, more mines are being laid — at the rate of 500,000 to 1 million a year. Experts estimate that $33 billion would be required to remove all the mines worldwide, but at the current pace it would take more than 1,000 years to do it — and that's only if new mines are not planted.

The world is in the midst of a mine crisis.

Consumer prices up, led by food costs Savage

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices rose a moderate 0.2 percent in July, as the biggest drop in gasoline prices in more than four years helped offset rising food costs.

The Labor Department said today that its Consumer Price Index is now increasing at a 3.1 percent annual rate for the first seven months of 1995, compared to 2.7 percent for all of last year. Still, July's rise in the index was double June's tiny 0.1 percent climb.

In another report, the Commerce Department said a big drop in automobile purchases helped cause an unexpected 0.1 percent decline in retail sales. They had staged a robust rebound the previous two months.

While inflationary pressures are up a bit from last year, the news on the cost-of-living front generally has been good as the economy slowed dramatically this year.

The Labor Department said that, even excluding the volatile food and energy costs, consumer prices rose an expected 0.2 percent last month — identical to the previous two months.

On Thursday, the department reported that plunging gasoline and energy costs helped hold wholesale prices steady in July. And analysts said a drop in raw material prices bodes well for at least the near future.

In the fifth year of an economic expansion, the nation has seen the best string of inflation reports since the 1980s.

To keep matters under control, the Federal Reserve raised interest rates seven times over a one-year stretch ending in February and then declared victory over inflation in July, when it lowered a key short-term rate for the first time in nearly three years.

The economy essentially was flat in the second quarter, but is expected to regain moderate momentum in the latter half of 1995.

Gasoline prices fell 2.1 percent in July, the steepest decline since they plunged 4.6 percent in March 1991. Analysts said falling crude oil prices have accompanied an abundance in gasoline supplies.

Overall, energy costs dipped 0.8 percent last month, the largest drop since a 0.9 percent slide in May 1994 and the first decline in four months.

Food prices rose 0.2 percent in July, compared to 0.1 percent the previous two months, led by higher prices for beef and veal.

"Falling gasoline prices are more than offsetting rising meat prices," said economist Donald Ratajczak at Georgia State University in Atlanta in advance of today's report. He predicted the trend will continue.

There were some mixed results for food prices. Tomatoes soared 12.6 percent, the largest increase in three months. But the price of lettuce plummeted 19.9 percent, after diving 38.8 percent in June.

Airline fares fell 1.3 percent last month, the biggest decline since a 3.2 percent drop in December.

Savage has been an active aviation safety counselor since 1984 and a member of the Orlando FSDO-15 FAA Speakers Bureau. In addition, he has conducted monthly FAA-sponsored safety seminars for the past 11 years, receiving numerous certificates and awards of recognition and appreciation from many of the various aviation organizations for his contributions to aviation training and safety.

He explained how, in June of 1992, Savage, with the help of the local Orlando FSDO-15, was instrumental in the organization of the CFI Education Clinic Program, offered each month to interested flight instructors and pilots interested in becoming flight instructors.

"This year," he continued, "approximately 1,500 flight instructors attended these seminars held at various locations throughout the district. One seminar, in Lakeland on May 20, had over 150 flight instructors in attendance."

Even though nominations are being submitted from the various FAA districts across the nation, Moore told the Sanford Herald he sees no reason why Tom Savage couldn't be named as the top instructor in the nation at the October meeting.

Violence

domestic violence declined during the same period, from 245 in 1992 to 230 last year. But assaults and reports of threats or intimidation increased.

There are no statistics on the number of inmates on early release who have been arrested on domestic violence charges. Grogan said she has seen enough of them since joining the parole commission three months ago to believe it is a problem.

She said she is trying to get parole officials to handle domestic violence investigations of felons on supervised or conditional release the same way prosecutors pursue an original crime.

Instead of relying solely on a victim's testimony, authorities should use police and other witnesses to prosecute a domestic violence case and show a felon violated conditions of his release, she said.

Grogan said she is working with parole officials to get them to conduct broader investigations into domestic violence cases and use the same type of legal strategies as prosecutors.

In Dade County, prosecutors have gotten convictions on nearly 100 percent of the domestic violence cases they have taken to trial though 95 percent of the time victims refuse to cooperate.

"We build domestic violence cases like homicide cases. We assume the victim can't testify," said Margaret Henghold, deputy chief of Dade's domestic violence unit.

Grogan already is responsible for one change at the parole commission that she hopes will help victims of domestic violence.

The commission enacted a new rule in June aimed at keeping guns out of the hands of inmates who have finished their prison terms but have a penchant for domestic violence.

Students

These days, however, the path is not always so clearly defined and schools are struggling to find ways to make the curriculum relevant to whatever students may find along the way.

Even those students heading for college need skills that could help them find employment prior to or during their post secondary careers. And students taking the vocational or technological path will need skills that were previously reserved for the college bound in order to perform their job tasks effectively.

"We need to prepare our students for the workplace," school board member Larry Strickler has said on previous occasions as the board and staff look at the ways in which money is apportioned in the classroom. "That should be our primary concern."

Through programs like the Academy of Health Careers at Seminole High School and the Apprenticeship cooperative program between Siemens Stromberg Carlson and Lyman High School, students are able to learn skills that will allow them to find work immediately upon graduation or before.

"The students are getting the training here that they did not used to get until after graduation," said Nancy Julian, director of the Academy of Health Careers. "We are preparing them for work and for post secondary studies."

Local employers who have dealt with the young people from the Seminole County schools, say they are pleased with the quality of students.

"They are very well prepared," said Donna Holdnak, store manager for the Parisian department store which will open next month with a handful of Seminole County high school students in positions at the Seminole Towne Center location. "I have no complaints with the young people who applied for positions here."

Hiring

the project, he claimed. Three blacks participated in the march, a Sanford woman who was rejected after filling out applications for department store sales jobs, a minister from Winter Park and an Orlando man who just wanted to offer his support.

"They are not hiring blacks," Schumann asserted, "there are 2,500 jobs at the mall opening in 30 days and local blacks need to be employed there."

Youth counselor and substitute teacher Aneka Mitchell, Sanford, applied for retail sales positions at Burdines and Parisian, citing her "people skills" and her experience working part time during college in a clothing store in New Jersey. Notified by letter, no job was available using her skills. Mitchell noted no one interviewed her, as indicated in the letter.

Rev. Fred Robinson of the Worldwide Revival Center, Winter Park came to the protest after talking to about six blacks in a supermarket checkout line, who had all received similar letters, after filling out applications. The letters stated they were not qualified for the available positions.

Mall marketing director Martha Mannarino said the mall management and individual stores are still hiring both full and part-time workers, although the major portion of the construction phase of the project is winding down.

A job fair Aug. 25-26 at the Sanford Civic Center is scheduled in hopes of attracting local, qualified job applicants. Mall tenants including the department store anchors, smaller specialty stores as well as food vendors hire their own personnel. Parisian may participate in the job fair, Mannarino said but she had no up to date information on Penneys or Dillard's hiring progress or if they will have representatives at the job fair.

Mannarino said newspaper advertisements and posted signs at the mall site requesting resumes from potential employees in maintenance, operations and security yielded little response.

Housed in a trailer at the mall site before moving into their offices, Mannarino noted signs have been posted since May seeking resumes.

"There are certain requirements," she explained, "just like there are certain requirements for any job." Employers generally select the most qualified applicants for the job with the necessary training and experience.

After reviewing the resumes, individuals who qualify are asked to submit an application, interviewed and possibly hired, if they are the most qualified.

The mall management is still seeking security officers, a dispatcher, customer service representatives for the information booth and an office receptionist.

The job fair will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., presented by the City of Sanford and Florida Jobs and Benefits.

First woman cadet at The Citadel

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Shannon Faulkner took her place in a long gray line Saturday at The Citadel, becoming the first female cadet in 152 years of all-male Southern tradition at the publicly funded military college.

Ms. Faulkner entered the campus by a side gate, not seeing protest signs at the main gate, including a banner held by a dozen women that read "Save the Males."

"It's a black day for The Citadel," said Sallie Baldwin. "Shannon does not speak for us. She's not welcome here."

On the opposite corner were about 50 supporters, with signs reading "The Males are Saved" and "The Citadel Mentality is Not Now a Reality."

Ms. Faulkner, stern-faced, would not talk with reporters when she arrived on campus shortly after 7:30 a.m., accompanied by federal marshals, her parents and her lawyers.

Later, she told reporters: "All I can say is everything is going well."

Ms. Faulkner has said she will not be the last woman to wear The Citadel gray uniform, although school officials said they are pressing on with court appeals to keep other women from following her.

Just one day earlier, two U.S. Supreme Court justices had rejected the school's latest bid to stop her.

"I feel disappointed in how the case ended up," said junior David Williams, a member of India Company, the cadet unit which Ms. Faulkner will join. "Hopefully everything will work out. I'd obviously prefer it stayed all male."

Man convicted of dismembering dad

BECKLEY, W.Va. — Jurors took just 20 minutes to convict a man who matter-of-factly testified how he fatally shot his father, hacked the body into small pieces and stuffed them into cardboard boxes.

"I kept drinking Pepto Bismol through this whole trial," said prosecutor Kirsten Keller. "He was completely without emotion on the witness stand when he described how he cut the skull into four pieces so that it couldn't be identified."

William Bradford, 44, was also found guilty of raping his stepmother.

The convictions could bring him life behind bars when he is sentenced Sept. 1.

Prosecutors said Bradford shot his father, James Bradford, 68, last year, used an ax to hack the body into 21 pieces, and then stuffed them into boxes in a nearby shed. They said Bradford was seeking revenge after his father accused him of stealing $5,375 worth of property.

Bradford said he wanted to help his stepmother out of an abusive relationship and dismembered the body to try to cover up the killing.

Doctors suspend Mantle's chemotherapy

DALLAS — With chemotherapy postponed indefinitely, doctors are trying to make Mickey Mantle as comfortable as possible as the weakened baseball Hall of Famer battles an aggressive cancer.

"We're trying to let him rest and we're observing him closely," said Denise Kile Walton, spokeswoman for Baylor University Medical Center. "He's pretty weak, so anything beyond just pain treatment would be difficult to try."

For now, she said, any decision to treat the cancer that has spread from his liver to a lung and to his abdomen is "very much a day-to-day situation."

Mantle, 63, remained in serious condition today.

A new cancer-fighting method was to have begun Friday, said close friend, attorney Roy True. But he added that now, "I don't think they're considering it."

Mantle entered Baylor on May 28 complaining of stomach pains and underwent a transplant June 8 to replace his liver, which had been ravaged by cancer, hepatitis and years of hard drinking.

On Aug. 1, doctors announced the cancer had spread to his right lung, and he re-entered the hospital Aug. 4 for treatment of anemia stemming from his chemotherapy.

Hospital representatives said Mantle spent Friday "resting in comfort," enjoying the company of friends and family.

New York Yankees teammates Whitey Ford, Hank Bauer, Bill "Moose" Skowron, Bobby Richardson and Johnny Blanchard visited Mantle on Thursday.

"He was in great spirits. We had a good time," Skowron said. "He's fighting. He won't give up."

Clinton's Bosnia policy

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders say President Clinton has a stronger chance of winning a veto battle over his Bosnia policy next month because of a Croatian offensive that has put new pressure on the Serbs to negotiate for peace.

Clinton initiated a foreign-policy showdown with Congress on Friday by vetoing legislation that would end U.S. participation in the international arms embargo against Bosnia. He said the measure would widen the four-year war and drag U.S. forces into the fighting.

"Now that there's been a real change on the ground and the Serbs have been rolled back in the western part of Bosnia and in Croatia by the Croats, I hope we have a chance to make a decent peace here," the president said Friday in an interview on cable television's MTV.

"This is an important moment in Bosnia," Clinton said. "Events in the past few weeks have opened new possibilities for negotiations."

Hypnotists say they can help

NASHUA, N.H. — Need help with your taxes? Looking for a non-surgical way to enlarge your breasts? Want to cluck like a chicken?

Tried hypnosis?

The National Guild of Hypnotists says it can help you with everything from losing weight to regaining your memory. More than 1,000 hypnotists and onlookers gathered Friday at the guild's annual convention to share the discovery that hypnosis isn't just for sideshows anymore.

Hypnosis is "very well accepted as a complementary therapy by many medical professionals ... all over the world," said Dwight Damon, president of the 5,000-member group.

When the guild started 44 years ago, it comprised mostly stage performers known for making people cluck like chickens or faint with a snap of the finger.

Today, about 90 percent of hypnotists work in clinical or professional settings, while only 10 percent work on the stage, Damon said.

This year's convention features seminars on topics ranging from improving one's sex life to enlarging one's breasts. The convention runs through Sunday.

Sign

The HPB decision overturned, project architect Cindy McGinnis wrote to the commission stating that there are other churches nearby which are allowed to use backlit signs. She pointed out that the land across the street from the sign is a parking lot and the lights would not be bright enough to disturb nearby residents.

Should the Historic Preservation Board's decision remain unchanged, McGinnis says the church would have to extend power lines, plus install spotlights for the front of the sign which would produce an unnecessary expense.

The appeal on the denial is slated for consideration during the regular meeting of the Sanford City Commission Monday evening, beginning at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of City Hall.

the block have chain link fences in the front yard area."

During a June 9 meeting of the Board of Adjustment, four applications for chain link fences in front yards were considered. All four of them were denied by unanimous votes, "because (the request) is not consistent with the Land Development Regulation."

Three of the four have now been brought to the commission for hearings recommending the commission overturn the denial. The three residences are located at 212 Bradshaw Drive, 2603 Elm Ave., and 901 W. 24th St.

The proposed ordinance to be considered does not specifically prevent chain link fences outside of the designated historic district.

For non-residential areas, barbed wire and/or chain link fences are prohibited in front yard areas, but may be granted through a waiver (from the Planning and Zoning Commission), based on security considerations. In such cases, however, special landscaping may be required in addition to other measures to prevent an unsightly appearance.

The ordinance is to be discussed by the commission during the work session beginning at 4 p.m. in the city manager's conference room on the second floor of the city hall with the appeals on the denials listed as the first three items of the regular meeting beginning at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers Monday night.

assessments, including the cost of the fence.

There are also some exceptions to the ordinance. For example, a fence is allowed in front yards of historic properties and in front yards of properties that are part of a historic district.

The ordinance also allows for a waiver of the ordinance if the applicant can demonstrate that the fence is necessary for the health, safety or general welfare of the community.

The commission is expected to vote on the ordinance during its regular meeting on Monday night.

The commission is also expected to consider several other items, including a report on the city's financial condition and a report on the city's personnel policies.

The commission is also expected to consider a report on the city's water and sewer utility operating fund and a report on the city's water and sewer utility operating fund.

applied for the 150 available positions.

"We have a very diverse group at our store," she said. "And we have had the opportunity to be very selective."

Holdnak said Parisian began screening applicants in May, a full month or two before the other stores started their search.

Both Lasker and Holdnak said they were pleased with the qualifications and the skill level of the applicants who sought work at their stores.

"We have a very fine community to choose from," Lasker said. "We are very pleased and excited."

While the workforce ranges in age from 17 to 70, Holdnak said, she found none of the applicants lacking in the skills necessary to staff the store properly.

"We've had no trouble at all," she said.

Most of the stores are wrapping up the hiring process for the Sanford mall, which is set to open officially on Sept. 21.

Some of the smaller stores in the mall are just getting underway in the process, Holdnak said.

"But we had a lot more people we needed to interview and hire," she explained.

As the rest of the country eases into the autumn season, the shopping season in Sanford will explode in a kaleidoscope of colorful shopping bags of red, orange and gold, expertly filled by a qualified work staff.

"It's going to be great," Lasker said.

Hundreds killed in witchcraft cases

PIETERSBURG, South Africa (AP) — Hundreds of people were murdered last year in ritual killings or on suspicion of being witches, according to a government report.

The Commission on Witchcraft and Ritual Violence reported Friday that 277 people were killed in witchcraft-related cases in South Africa's poor Northern Province between April 1994 and April 1995. Often the victims were burned alive in their homes.

Hundreds of others were assaulted by angry mobs after being identified as witches, the interim report said.

Belief in witchcraft is thriving in all levels of society, it said, adding that elderly women were the most common targets of accusations of witchcraft.

Prosecution of witchcraft-related killings is difficult because of the reluctance of witnesses to speak and deep-rooted beliefs that the murders were necessary to protect a village.

The commission, set up by the provincial government after a spate of killings late last year, proposed the government begin a media campaign to persuade people to stop hunting for witches.

Storm builds strength in Gulf

MONTERREY, Mexico — Tropical Storm Gabrielle weakened as it raked the coastal plains of northeastern Mexico today after a landfall with near-hurricane strength.

On the western side of Mexico, Hurricane Flossie veered past Baja California. And still far out in the Atlantic, Hurricane Felix moved westward toward Bermuda.

Gabrielle had sustained winds of 70 mph — 4 mph short of hurricane force — shortly before moving inland at mid-afternoon Friday along a sparsely populated area of Mexico's eastern coast.

But by evening, maximum sustained winds had fallen to 45 mph and the U.S. National Weather Service said further weakening was expected as the storm moved westward at about 5 mph.

Richard Hagan, a meteorologist at the Weather Service station in Brownsville, Texas, was skeptical that the storm would do much to fill reservoirs in a border region suffering its worst drought in decades.

"We could be getting an awful lot of rain on the ground before this thing is over. It just won't be getting into the lakes," he said.

Across the border, where the drought has hit just as hard, Mexicans followed the storm's progress closely.

"We hope it will ease the drought, but it's too early to tell," said Roberto Tobar, spokesman for the National Water Commission in Ciudad Victoria, 80 miles inland and 300 miles north of Mexico City.

But by mid-morning, the storm was about 150 miles out in the Pacific and officials had reopened the peninsula's southernmost ports. It was moving slightly westward.

Flossie left a trail of coastal flooding and closed ports along Mexico's Pacific Coast. At least two fishermen were missing.

In the Atlantic, Hurricane Felix was about 770 miles south-southeast of Bermuda early today, moving northwest at about 17 mph. It carried winds of 110 mph.

Forecasters said if Felix stayed on that path, it would likely miss Florida, coming closer to Bermuda. However, they cautioned that Felix has ample time to change course before then.

Defector: Campaign to overthrow Saddam

By JAMAL HALABY
Associated Press Writer

AMMAN, Jordan — In his first public appearance since fleeing Iraq, Saddam Hussein's son-in-law and former right-hand man condemned his longtime chief for bringing misery to the Iraqi people and announced a campaign to topple him.

The threat from Maj. Gen. Hussein Kamel al-Majid, a former defense minister, could be the most serious challenge to Saddam's rule since the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

Al-Majid masterminded Iraq's secret nuclear armament programs in the 1980s and built up the army's elite Republican Guard units, which spearheaded Iraq's 1980-88 war against Iran.

He said he left Iraq because Saddam was more interested in defying the outside world than bringing about an end to the economic embargo imposed by the United Nations after Iraq invaded Kuwait in 1990. The sanctions have led to severe shortages of food, medicine and other supplies in Iraq, although the elite, al-Majid said, was not affected.

"We were not being harmed ... in the leadership," he said. "But the people are suffering."

He said he made his criticism plain to other members of Saddam's inner circle in recent months, "but unfortunately no correction was made."

Therefore, "we'll work to overthrow the existing regime ... through political and through military means," he told a news conference at King Hussein's al-Qasr Al-Sagheer palace.

Al-Majid also said he was willing to reveal secrets pertaining to Iraq's secret weapons program "if it is in the interest of Iraq."

Al-Majid drove out of Iraq in a convoy with his brother, Col. Saddam Kamel al-Majid, and their wives, Raghad and Rana, both daughters of Saddam. His brother did not speak at the news conference.

In Washington, a White House official said al-Majid's news conference "underscores the extent of Saddam's isolation."

Speaking on condition of anonymity, the official said "his insider's account of the situation in Iraq shows clearly who is responsible for the suffering there."

Asserting that Saddam had deployed Republican Guard soldiers on every street in Baghdad, al-Majid called on "all officers in the Iraqi army in the Republican Guard ... and all government officials, to be prepared for the coming change, which will turn Iraq into something modern."

Iraqi officers "know what this call means," he said, though still referring to Saddam as "President."

Al-Majid said he had established contacts to carry out his plans with officials inside Iraq and with foreign governments, but said there was no dialogue with Washington yet.

"We will establish new and developed relations with the world and get rid of what is shameful and what caused the backwardness of the society," he said.

The White House official would not comment on whether U.S. or U.N. representatives have talked to al-Majid.

The news conference was al-Majid's first public appearance in years out of a military uniform — he wore a dark Western suit, white shirt and tie.

Speaking in measured tones, he said his group, which included the two couples' children, a cousin and 15 army officers, passed the border unimpeded. "I am a known personality and I don't think that a checkpoint of a few soldiers would dare to stop me."

Al-Majid said he was "astonished" by Saddam's accusations that he had embezzled millions of dollars before leaving, and warned he might retaliate to continued charges by revealing some "extremely serious and dangerous" secrets about the Iraqi leader.

Saddam on Friday accused al-Majid of "betrayal" and "stealing millions of dollars" of the Iraqi people's money. He indicated he would continue to press for the return of the

Perot presses politicians to keep promises

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

DALLAS — Looking to force the politicians to keep their promises to his supporters, Ross Perot is urging Congress to reach a bipartisan commitment to enact campaign finance, lobbying and other political reforms this year.

Perot made his suggestion for a "Second Contract with America" on Friday night after leaders of both parties enthusiastically embraced the idea of political reform — even while most such proposals are entangled in partisan gridlock in Washington.

"This cancerous growth of money and special interest influences threatens the founding principle of our democracy: that government exists for the benefit of the many, not the few," Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut, the Democratic National Committee's general chairman, told a meeting of Perot's United We Stand America organization.

Bluntly questioning the GOP's commitment to reform, Dodd said Republicans were captive to their big donors.

"Those who write the checks now expect to write the laws as well," Dodd said, contending that food safety and pollution standards were at risk. "I don't believe that is the kind of change Americans voted for."

Taking issue with that, Republican National Chairman Haley Barbour said the new GOP-run Congress was keeping the promises it made in last year's elections, by cutting government programs and taxes as it moves toward a balanced budget.

"The party of the 21st century has to win your trust the old-fashioned way: earn it," Barbour said.

The audience for the jockeying — Perot critics in both parties called it pandering — numbered about 3,000 in the Dallas convention center. Perot had predicted some 8,000 members of his organization would attend, and the turnout would have been even slimmer were it not for students and other groups that were allowed in for free.

Still, the turnout didn't discourage the politicians from paying homage to Perot — who gained 19 percent of the popular vote as an independent presidential candidate in 1992 — and his followers.

"The independent movement you launched three years ago is a big part of the change that is shaking Washington like nothing I have ever seen," said House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas. House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., called the United We Stand members "my fellow revolutionaries."

Today, the second day of Perot's bipartisan speech-a-thon, the forum was hearing from 10 Republican presidential candidates. On Sunday, the attendees will discuss the future of the organization.

Echoing fellow Democrat Dick Gephardt of Missouri urged Perot's supporters to help him push "radical and fundamental political and campaign reform."

Not to be outdone, Gingrich said Republicans were for dramatic reforms, too. Yet Gingrich said he was not ready to keep his end of a handshake deal with President Clinton to form a bipartisan commission to recommend campaign, lobbying and political reforms.

Gingrich and Clinton struck the deal in June, but Gingrich has refused to act on it. On Thursday, Clinton chided Gingrich for his inaction, and said he would have been spanked growing up had he reneged on a promise.

Speaking in a defiant tone, Gingrich said he would not be rushed and wanted to study the issue. He said any commission named in haste likely would see its recommendations doomed to failure.

Hoping to force the politicians to keep their word, Perot suggested a 100-day plan to enact campaign finance, lobbying and other reforms before the end of this year. "Put those reforms through," he said.

Jesse Jackson and Perot, both possible independent candidates in the 1996 presidential race, shook hands and hugged on stage after Jackson addressed the gathering.

Speaking to reporters later, Jackson said he had until December to decide whether to enter the Democratic primaries, and until perhaps May of next year to decide whether to mount an independent bid. "It would be premature to say," was his answer when asked about his plans.

As for his political plans, Perot said he had none.

"No — that's not what it's all about," Perot said when asked if the weekend session was a springboard to another White House run. "Please." But he passed up an opportunity to flatly rule out a 1996 candidacy.

Swiss Scientists Discover New Energy Product

Lugano, Switzerland—After 25 years of research Lightning B88 was developed with the help of Swiss Laboratories. After extensive testing with amazing results, Lightning B88 is now available in the United States. Scientists are amazed at Lightning B88's results on improved memory, attitude and athletic performance.

In a double blind cross-over trial on university students in Italy, Lightning B88 was given twice daily for 12 weeks. The results were astonishing. Students obtained higher scores in math, logic and physical education.

This new discovery has been a windfall for working and active people that seem to run short of energy around mid-afternoon and need a little extra lift. Lightning B88 when taken in the morning gives a sustained, balanced form of energy throughout the day.

During an interview in Chicago, a beautician stated, "I used to go home exhausted after being on my feet all day. Now it's just incredible. I go home with extra energy and really enjoy my family more." Lightning B88 is a necessary boost for students, professionals and senior citizens.

Lightning B88 is now available at most K-Mart Pharmacies including:

On Saturday, Iraq's state-run newspapers vilified al-Majid, calling him a "traitor dwarf" who sold out to foreign powers.

King Hussein has granted asylum to Al-Majid and his brother, who was head of the special security forces guarding the regime.

The group has been given refuge at a fortified farm in Naour, a small town 18 miles southwest of Amman.

Al-Majid said Saddam's intelligence agents had attempted to assassinate him. He did not elaborate, but called the attempts "futile."

He also predicted a blood bath in the wake of his defection.

"It is natural that a lot of people, not within the ruling family, will be randomly apprehended," he said. "Also, there are going to be executions."

King Hussein met Saturday with the commander of the U.S. Naval Central Command, Gen. James Henry Binford Peay III, whose area covers the Middle East, to discuss the Iraqi developments. Jordanian officials said.

A very soggy start

Rain stops Ice game after opening festivities

By GARY COATOAM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Even though rain interrupted the Sanford Ice's season-opener against Melbourne Saturday at Sanford Memorial Stadium, it seems that nothing can dampen the enthusiasm of 70-year-old Rossey Weeks.

"I wanted to play baseball since I was very young," Weeks said. "Baseball is just in my blood."

Weeks, who was a member of the 1947 Rockford Peaches that the movie 'A League of Their Own' was based on, was on hand to throw out the first pitch of the season for Sanford's entry in the United States Women's Baseball League.

A hard rain forced the suspension of Saturday's game with the Brevard Sharks leading 1-0 in the bottom of the second inning. Lizz Crowley staked the Melbourne squad to the lead by leading off the game with a double, stealing third, and scoring on a sacrifice fly by Debbie Nolan.

The game will be resumed at 11 a.m. today as part of a doubleheader. The second game, the regularly scheduled meeting, will be played 30 minutes after the conclusion of game one. Stuff, the Orlando Magic mascot, is scheduled to be appear from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Weeks was 11-for-17 in 1947 before her career was cut short by an injury. She recalled many memories from her days in the AAGPBL as she watched the Ice and Sharks play. Weeks even took a few moments Saturday to reflect on her favorite memory. The picture involved teammate Norma Metralis and the home plate umpire.

"We had little skirts on, and the umpire must have been looking at our legs or something," Weeks said. "Norma struck out, and I came up to bat next. I stepped into the batter's box and the umpire said 'You were just up.' We argued about it for a few minutes, and I finally called Norma out of the dugout. She came out and the umpire admitted that he made a mistake."

The AAGPBL Weeks played in started when many major league baseball players enlisted in the United States Armed Forces during World War II. The former AAGPBL catcher feels the 1994 Major League Baseball Players strike gives such leagues a chance at rebirth.

"This is a wonderful time to start this league because of the mess that the men have made of the game," Weeks said. "I'm so excited about this league."

Weeks says the young league's survival is dependant upon strong community support. She suggests that fans will be able to get more enthusiastic about the games if they pick favorite players.

"It's going to take dedication from people in town," Weeks said. "If they don't support the league, it will be gone. There just wasn't enough publicity last year."

"You start by getting girls who want to play. Once you get people behind those teams, it just grows. P.K. Wrigley had the money back in 1947, so the girls always had a place to play. When people found out how hard we played, they started coming to watch us."

Weeks, who played seven games for the Racine Belles and Rockford Peaches of the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League in 1947, was delighted to be at the ballpark despite the threatening weather conditions.

Rain doesn't slow Ice Opening Day ceremonies

The Sanford Ice held a gala Opening Day ceremony at Sanford Memorial Stadium before the rains came and halted the game in the middle of the second inning.

After balloons were released (top, left) and the Sanford American Legion Post 53 color guard (top right photo from left to right) of Gary Hamilton, Sam Smith, Tony Bruno and Randy Lowery presented the American Flag for the National Anthem, former Rockford Peaches catcher Rossey Weeks threw out the first ball.

The Ice will host a doubleheader with the Brevard Lady Sharks today starting at 11 a.m. Stuff, the Orlando Magic mascot, is also scheduled to make an appearance.

Lighter Smith ready for senior campaign

By JOHN MARINI
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — University of Central Florida senior tailback Marquette Smith, from Casselberry, has been impressive in practice to this point, prompting head coach Gene McDowell to sing his praises.

"He's quick and elusive ... he's just a great player," said McDowell. "It all starts with his heart and his approach to the game. And he's probably in the best shape he's been in since high school when he was the Gatorade Player of the Year (1990)."

A lot of Smith's early practice success is due to hard off-season work. He reported to camp weighing 183, compared to 206, which he weighed after spring drills.

"I knew I had to come into camp lighter to play my best, and have the kind of season I'm capable of," said Smith, a graduate of Lake Howell High School. "This is my senior year and I didn't want to have any regrets, thinking 'If only I had worked harder.' Also, I was having back problems when I weighed that much, but now my back doesn't bother me at all."

The coaches got an early indication of the impact of Smith's off-season training when he was clocked at 4.37 seconds in the 40-yard dash Wednesday, second quickest on the squad. He was timed at 4.60 in the spring.

Even while playing at 195 last season, Smith became only the third back in school history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a single season, gaining 1,058 on 194 carries in his first season after transferring from Florida State.

Magazine is an enthusiasts dream

Do you love the outdoors? Enjoy reading? How about wildlife art? If you answered yes to any of those questions, a subscription to Florida Wildlife magazine could be perfect for you.

FISHING
JIM SHUPE

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports smooth seas and very clean water on Pelican Flats. Every day the water is cleaning up closer inshore with calmer seas. Pelican Flats has plenty of small king mackerel and scattered cobia. There are also plenty of husky barracuda on the prowl. Further offshore, dolphin and wahoo are scattered. Inside the Port, sheepshead and flounder are biting good. Redfish are rated as fair on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

Ponce Inlet has good action with live or dead shrimp with sheepshead, drum, redfish, flounder, small bluefish and small jack crevalle. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

It contains beautiful photographs and many interesting stories and tidbits about wildlife in our state.

Bas action is at a standstill, and will not improve until cooler weather. Night fishing will improve with the upcoming full moon. Plastic worms and topwater lures will all work well at dark.

The next edition of Florida Wildlife not only contains excellent articles, but also features the 1995 cover contest winner, "Kestrels" by Sarasota wildlife artist Linda Thompson will grace the front and back covers of the September-October issue.

Thompson's drawing of the small birds of prey is also available as a free, 11" x 17" print to those ordering a three-year subscription to Florida Wildlife.

"This issue is always one of our favorites because of the art contest," said Florida Wildlife editor Dick Sublette. "People fall in love with the cover, and once they look inside they fall in love with our articles too."

The September-October issue of the magazine includes articles on "Becoming an Outdoors Woman," "Hunting Mourning Doves," and "Dry Prairie and Its Birds," but Sublette is most excited about a special investigative piece titled "Profile of a Poacher" by Carolee Boyles-Sprekel.

"A wildlife officer goes undercover to detail the business of illegal poaching," Sublette said. "It's probably one of the best pieces we've run in the magazine since I've been here."

A three-year subscription to Florida Wildlife costs $27 and makes a great gift. One-year subscriptions are available for $10 and two-year for $19. If you would like to order the magazine, or send it to someone as a gift, call (804) 488-5563 or write to Florida Wildlife, 620 S. Meridian St., Tallahassee, FL 32399-1600 for an order form.

Florida State No. 1 in preseason poll

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

If preseason polls determined the national championship, Florida State would have a college football dynasty.

For the fourth time in eight years, the Seminoles will start the season as the No. 1 team in The Associated Press poll. They also were the preseason pick in 1988, 1991 and 1993, when they won their only national title.

Florida State, which has finished in the top four for eight straight seasons, beat out defending national champion Nebraska for the top spot in the preseason poll. The Seminoles received 31 first-place votes and 1,498 points, while the second-place Cornhuskers got 15 firsts and 1,439 points.

It is the sixth straight season and seventh time in eight years that a school from Florida has been No. 1 in the preseason poll. Miami was the top team in 1990 and 1992, and Florida in 1994.

Texas A&M is third, its highest preseason ranking since starting No. 2 in 1957. The Aggies, along with Auburn and Washington, are coming off NCAA probation this year.

Penn State, which finished second last season despite a perfect record, will open the 1995 season at No. 4. Rounding out the Top 10 are Florida, Auburn, Southern Cal, Tennessee, Notre Dame and Alabama, which was put on NCAA probation earlier this month.

Probation teams are eligible in the AP poll, comprised of 62 sports writers and broadcasters from across the country.

Texas A&M and Florida each received six first-place votes. Auburn received two firsts, while Penn State and Tennessee got one apiece.

Miami is 11th, the first time since 1985 that the Hurricanes haven't started in the Top 10. North Carolina, Wisconsin, Boston College and West Ohio State is 12th, followed by Colorado, Michigan, Oklahoma, Washington tied for the final spot.

IN BRIEF

Pod nights planned

SANFORD — Idyllwild Elementary School will hold two pod nights where parents can meet their youngsters' teachers. Kindergarten, grades 2 and 4 will have their pod night on Tuesday, Aug. 15. Grades 1, 3 and 5 will have their pod night on Thursday, Aug. 17. Each night will begin with a short PTA meeting at 6:30 p.m. Classroom visitations will be at 7 and 7:30 p.m. For more information call the school at 322-8823.

OSC seeks volunteers

ORLANDO — Busytown, the Orlando Science Center's newest national touring exhibit, has some unique opportunities for volunteers. The science center is currently recruiting volunteers ages 15 and older who enjoy working with children who are available to work a four hour shift at least three times per month from Sept. 23 through Jan. 7, 1996. A personal interview and a three hour orientation will precede placement. Spanish speaking volunteers are especially encouraged to apply. For further information or for a volunteer application, call the Orlando Science Center Volunteer Department at 896-7151.

Spring Lake SAC meeting

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Spring Lake Elementary School School Advisory Council (SAC) will hold its first meeting on Thursday, Aug. 17 at 7 p.m. The meeting will take place in the library. This will be an organizational meeting to plan for the 1995-96 school year. All parents and community members are invited to attend SAC meetings throughout the year. For more information, call the school at 862-2662.

Bus drivers win

SANFORD — Seminole County school bus driver James Roark drove a school bus in International Competition in Canada and drove home with a sixth place award. Driver James Green came in 14th in the same competition. Sponsored by the National School Transportation Association, the School Bus Driver International Safety Competition is designed to recognize excellence in school bus drivers as well as to allow them the opportunity to demonstrate the skills and responsible performance of their demanding jobs. Seventy-four drivers from the United States and Canada competed in the four-day event. The winner scored the highest in driving skills on a difficult ground course and in a written examination on rules of the road for pupil transportation. Contestants also score points on their ability to judge defects in school buses. In Seminole County, 320 bus drivers transport 25,000 students daily.

Let us know

The Sanford Herald wants to know what is happening at your school.

Send the information to the Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771 or fax it to us at 407-323-9408.

Seminole County kids excel

Students from all over Seminole County excel at whatever they do.

For their achievements, they receive honors and awards both here and across the nation.

Often, the hard work and honors go unnoticed beyond the friends and family of the individual.

We think that good work is good news and we want to let everyone know about how great our youngsters are in Seminole County.

So, spread the news about what our locals are doing. Good work, y'all.

POP CULTURE™ by Steve McGarry

Keanu Reeves isn't the only actor in the ranks of Los Angeles rock band Dogstar.

Frontman and guitarist Greg Miller made his feature film debut opposite Sandra Bullock in 1990's "Who Shot Pat?" and drummer Robert Mallhouse is best known for his stint on the daytime soap "Days Of Our Lives."

Reeves plays bass in the outfit, whose lineup is completed by singer/guitarist Bret Domrose.

1.) In which 1991 movie did Reeves star with Red Hot Chili Peppers bassist Flea?

2.) In which 1991 movie did Reeves star with the artist who took "She's Like the Wind" into the Top Five on the record charts?

Answers: 1.) My Own Private Idaho

Many special activities take place during the month of August. Here's a list of four August events. See if you can locate, on the map, the state each statement describes. (Hint: the outline of each state is under the map.)

- 1.) Colorado became the 38th state on Aug. 1, 1876. Find Colorado on the map and color it orange.
- 2.) On Aug. 10, 1821 Missouri became the 24th state. Find Missouri on the map and color it red.
- 3.) Happy Birthday President Clinton. He was born in Hope, Arkansas Aug. 19, 1946. Find Arkansas on the map and color it blue.
- 4.) Hawaii became the 50th state on Aug. 21, 1959. Color Hawaii purple.

How about that reading assignment?

County commissioner Win Adams and the other members of the Seminole County Presidential Search Committee have a great deal of reading to do over the next few weeks. Members of the committee have to read 101 packets of resumes for those who applied for the top spot at the college.

DOCTOR _____

POLICE _____

NEIGHBOR _____

Emergency medical technicians, or EMT's, are trained ambulance workers. EMT's are often called when people dial the emergency number, 911.

On the telephone above, there is space for important emergency numbers. Write the emergency numbers for your doctor, the police, and a neighbor in the spaces. Color the telephone and cut it out. Tape it to your refrigerator or near your telephone so you will be ready in case of an emergency. Below are hints for emergencies.

1. In some cities and towns, you can't call "911" to report a fire or medical emergency. Ask if "911" is available where you live. If it is not, find out the number to call if there is an emergency.
2. If there is a fire:
 - leave your house immediately.
 - never open a door that is hot.
 - crawl on the floor if there is smoke.
 - drop to the ground and roll if your clothes are on fire.
 - do not go back into your house for any reason.

GARAGE SALE GUIDELINES

1. Advertise what people want! Children's clothing, dishes, collectibles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items.
2. Make it convenient to shop at your garage sale! Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors.
3. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handling. Make sure one person is on duty at all times at a centralized location preferably with a calculator or adding machine.
4. Provide prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is this?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining.
5. Get an early start. Set up displays the evening before, if possible.
6. Departmentalize. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly areas. Group furniture, clothing, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar merchandise.
7. Specialize. Establish one area for "Under $5", another for "Under $11". Consider having a batch of items that are "FREE" with purchase of "$3". Remember the youngsters, too. Encourage this with small, low priced items that are appropriate for this purpose.
8. Time your sale carefully! Have it at a time when most people are at home and unconcerned with special events.
9. Combine your efforts! Incorporate your sale with a neighbor for more variety and greater impact.
10. Be specific! When advertising your sale in the newspaper, list individual items. Don't simply say, "several things available." Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers.
11. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the prime reason for holding the sale is to turn your unwanted items into cash!

Anniversaries: 50th for Creamers; 25, Boutins

"We've had a beautiful life," James Q. "Jim" Creamer said of his 50-year marriage to the girl of his dreams, Jacqueline Roper ("Jackie"). On Aug. 23, Jackie and Jim will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Robert John and Sharon Marie Boutin on their wedding day, Aug. 2, 1970.

Jackie is a native of Coffeyville, Kan., and Jim was born at Southport, Fla. "I'm an old sand crab and redneck from way back," he laughed.

Jim met Jackie when he was in the U.S. Navy. She worked at an aircraft factory in Wichita, Kan. He said as the raging winds of World War II were dying down, he had recently been in the European Theater of War and had returned to Jacksonville en route to Japan via San Diego. He telephoned Jackie, she came to Jax, but there was a three-day waiting period to marry in Florida and time was of the essence. They headed back to her home in Kansas and stopped in Montgomery, Ala. to tie the knot by a justice of the peace.

The Creamers had many ports of call including Kodiak, Alaska with two young children. Jim was an aviation electronics technician flying patrol planes. "I was flying all over the whole area including the Aleutian chain," he said. From Kodiak, the family flew to the North Pole. They recall responding to evacuation drills in Alaska when an alarm would sound off at 3 a.m. and they had to pack up the kids and supplies and take a bus to a cove until the all-clear signal sounded.

Jackie kept the home fires burning while Jim traveled the world. "All over the world — you look at anything on TV — I've been there." He has been to all the continents and major islands. "We made the first aircraft passage through the Suez Canal," he said.

Jim spent 24 years in the Navy and retired in 1964 to the home in Sanford he and Jackie purchased while they were stationed here in 1957. "We have really, really had a great life here" See Dietrich, Page 2C

150 register for Little League; local psychic holds workshop

Lake Mary Little League held their first day of registration, Saturday, Aug. 5 at the Lake Mary and Sanford Kmarts. The first day of sign-ups brought in about 150 registrants. Many people will wait until tryouts, a requirement for the older teams, to register. Don Willis, league president, believes the league will reach or pass its goal of 400.

Registration for the new girls' softball team was lighter than expected the first weekend, but that is expected to pick up this weekend as more people get the word out about the new program.

Minor baseball and all softball tryouts will be Thursday, Aug. 17, at 5:30 p.m. at the complex.

Registration will continue through 5 p.m. today at both Kmarts. If you missed registration, you can call the player agent, Polly Willis at 330-9498.

SHAY KOEGEL

The Central Florida Resale Association sponsored the fashion show held at the Sheraton Orlando North in Maitland on Aug. 5 to benefit the Heart of Florida Civitan Club, a single adults' association dedicated to community service. The club was founded in 1984 and helps to provide activities for the mentally and physically disabled adults and children in the area and the youth by sponsoring such programs as the Rock Haven program for teens, the Middle School Team Awards Program, and the ORHS Hubbard Hospitality House.

Although the final amount has not been tallied, the Heart of Florida Civitan Club expects that the fashion show will have raised approximately $600 for their community service projects and, according to Bari Stone, a member of the Civitan Club, "there is a strong possibility that the Central Florida Resale Association is interested in a spring fashion show as a result of the success of the pre-fall exhibition."

The fashion show was moderated by Sherry Speedman, proprietor of Double Take II in Ocoee, who introduced over 100

MARVA HAWKINS

Camilla Wilson Barnes reached another rung in her ladder of success on June 24. She participated in Nova Southeastern's 26th annual commencement ceremony. The ceremony was held at the Sunrise Musical Theatre City, Sunrise, Fla. It was the largest class of business students ever graduated from any university (3,800 graduate students from the School of Business only).

Camilla plans to take a year to rest before her next step in advancing towards her life's goal, becoming an attorney. "This year was very difficult but, I made it" said Camilla. "I would like to take a break from education for a year before I attempt my journey to law school I plan to use the knowledge and skills I learned in graduate school to advance my already established business (Reflections of "U" salon). And devote more quality time with my husband, George, who has been my rock of Gibraltar. He stuck by me through hard times in school and supported me in my every move and decision. I could not have made it if it wasn't for him. This degree belongs to my loving husband; cousin, Patricia Whatley; my mentor Clifford Pringle and especially my devoted customers who stuck by me through the duration. I wish to thank each and everyone that helped make this moment of success possible. See Hawkins, Page 2C

Scouts honor Father Baumann

The Central Florida Council of the Boy Scouts of America recently honored Longwood resident, Father Stephen Baumann, for his outstanding service to youth and the community. Father Baumann has given of his time and energy to insure that hundreds of boys experience the scouting program. He was selected by his peers from more than 8,000 Central Florida scouting volunteers to receive the Silver Beaver award.

As a Catholic school educator for more than 15 years, "Father Steve" witnessed firsthand the benefits of young men getting into scouting. When Troop #38 at Saint Mary Magdalene's School had no scoutmaster, he stepped forward. Under his leadership, the troop grew tremendously in youth members and programs.

In 1991, Father Steve committed his life to God and the church by becoming a priest. Following his formal seminary education in Wisconsin, he returned to the area where he is currently associate pastor at the Church of the Annunciation in Longwood. He is currently the chartered representative for Troop #849 and Pack #630. During Wood Badge, he arrives at La-No-Che Scout Reservation on Sundays at 6:30 a.m. to conduct morning mass.

Father Steve is also a member of the Rotary Club of Longwood, B.P.O.E. Elks Lodge, a chaplain for the Knights of Columbus, chaplain for the Orlando Diocese Catholic Committee on Scouting and a member of the Florida Sheriff's Youth Ranches.

(In Sanford) Jim recalls.

After the Navy and settling the family in Sanford, it was time for Jim to find another career, but times were tough and a recession was in progress. He said he held many jobs, "but I never drew an unemployment check." He was employed as a stock broker, sold encyclopedias, and worked at preparing income tax returns and bookkeeping out of his home for 20 years. At age 51, Jim received a PGA apprentice card and was the golf pro at Osteen Golf Course. Today, he is an avid golfer and has dozens and dozens of golf clubs.

On Aug. 8, the Herald published an article, "Hobbyist of the Week," about Jackie and her artistic endeavors. Name it and Jackie does it. Their home is a veritable museum of everything from delicate crocheted dollies to a variety of priceless collectibles. At one time, Jackie was a teacher at the Little Red Schoolhouse in Sanford and also enjoyed playing golf.

Today, the Creamers swim nearly everyday and travel all over the country in their motor home. They stay at RV camps with swimming pools. Naturally, Jim plays golf along the way while Jackie engages in her needlework and other hobbies. Their travel companions are their two dogs, Sugar, a miniature dachshund, Fifi, a maltepo, and Tatoo, a parrot who sings country music, according to Jim.

The couple have three children: Peggy Shuck, Sanford; Dr. Andrew Creamer, Longwood; and Rex Creamer, Orting, Wash. There are six grandchildren, two great grands and another one on the way.

Celebration plans are uncertain, but Jim suspects the family will go to a dinner theater.

Oh, yes, Jim would marry Jackie all over again. "We've had one heck of a life," he said.

And ditto for Jackie. "We've had it real nice," she said. "We're real good companions."

Boutin married 25 years

Robert John and Sharon Marie Boutin celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on Aug. 2. They were married on that date in 1970 by the Rev. Von Spreckleson at the Resurrection Lutheran Church, Orlando.

The couple renewed their wedding vows and celebrated at a family dinner at home. Their children are Jonathan Scott and Christine Boutin, Robert David Boutin and Karl Lewis Boutin, all of Sanford.

The couple enjoy walking on the beach. Their secret for a long, happy marriage is "communication and knowing that arguing is okay."

Dancers win in national contest

The 1995 School of Dance Arts Competition Team received national recognition recently at the Dolphin Hotel at Walt Disney World. The team of 35 dancers varying in age from 9 to 18 received numerous first place awards and five of their competition pieces were chosen by two separate panels of judges to appear in the prestigious championship finals. Studios from across the country participated.

The local group, known as the SODA Pops, were in the spotlight and won the National Championship award which carried a cash prize of $500. They then climaxed even that by being named "Best in Show" for $5,000 and the title presented by the U.S. National Open Talent Championship which was sponsored by the Professional Dance Teachers Association. Co-director Valerie Rye Weld received special recognition when she won the only trophy awarded for choreography.

The SODA Pops team also won a cash award for "Best Costume" in the senior division for a dance, "Secretaries' R Us."

To complete their national U.S. open talent competition experience, dancers took scholarship classes following the final day of competitions. As a result of their individual efforts for master ballet, jazz and tap teachers, the local dancers took six of the 12 awards given out.

These included scholarships to studios in New York and California, as well as complimentary fees for dance conventions throughout the southeast for the next year.

Finally, two of Miriam & Valerie's School of Dance Arts students also won the much sought after title of "Dancer of the Year," the junior dancer being 12-year-old Angela Baragona and the senior dancer Jacob Twilleager.

Congratulations are certainly in order for this award-winning, hardworking and very talented group of young people.

Following are members of the 1995 competition team: Kelly Bruss, Crista Anderson, April Michels, Jennifer Lanier, Lindsay Lanier, Diana Hutton, Heather Bell, Roxanne Hirt, Lindsey Von Weller, Caitlin Valentine, Jennifer Russi, Shylon McLamb, Jacquelyn Ralston, Courtney Roberts, Dion Leonhard, Miriam Rosenberg, Karolyn Mantuano, Anita Todd, Angela Baragona, Sarah Twilleager, Jacob Twilleager, Natalie Weld, Dixie Daimwood, Lacy Nobles, Valerie Tartano, Anne Sandefur, Ashley Foster, Emily Keyser, Christina Prusak, Elizabeth Davis, Sarah Rosenberg.

Kiwanians attend convention

Charlotte and Walt Smith and Charlotte and Al Rosin have returned from Las Vegas where the fellows were delegates from the Sanford Kiwanis Club to the International Kiwanis Convention.

The Rosins flew out to Vegas and the Smiths drove their motor home. They visited the Grand Canyon and later Utah.

Walt said they saw snow at Cedar City and the temperature was 38 degrees three mornings. However, Phoenix made up for it with a sweltering 115 degrees.

It's a boy

Bonnie and Gary Taylor announce the birth of their son, Charles Samuel Xavier Taylor, on June 5, 1995. Young CSX's maternal grandparents are Ruth and Bill Wieboldt and his paternal grandparents are Jean and Bill Taylor, all of Sanford. Maternal great-grandmother is Lois Pugh, 96, of Lake Mary.

CSX is the couple's first child and already has 15 train-themed outfits. Bonnie has long been a rail fan and added the X to the name she chose to match the CSX Railroad. According to Daddy Gary, the baby's name, Charles, is for Dr. Charles Stein, a Daytona Beach physician and son of Mrs. Doris Stein of Sanford.

Keep country alive

Central Florida Blood Bank will join with radio station K-92 FM in inviting local residents to Keep Country Alive by becoming summer blood donors.

That blood drive will take place from Monday, Aug. 14 through Friday, Aug. 25 at one of the many Central Florida Blood Bank locations.

This important summer blood drive is designed to help offset the traditionally low summer blood supply.

With central Floridians on vacations, there are fewer donors to contribute blood.

And with increased travelling comes increased traffic incidents.

This creates a serious strain in local blood supplies.

All residents are encouraged to help ensure an adequate blood supply by donating during this important summer blood drive.

One individual's donation can save up to five lives.

Only five percent of the population gives blood, while 60 percent will need blood at some time.

To meet the blood supply needs for the 14-county area served by the Central Florida Blood Bank, a minimum of 700 units must be collected daily, five days a week.

Donating blood is a safe and easy procedure which only takes 30 to 45 minutes.

Donors must be in good health, be at least 17-years-old and weigh a minimum of 100 pounds.

For more information, call the blood bank at 849-6100.

Elderly services update

CASSELBERRY — The Area Agency on Aging of Central Florida is a non-profit public agency which plans and coordinates the development of community services for the elderly.

It finances non-profit agencies to provide service in Seminole County as well as Brevard, Orange and Osceola counties.

The Agency reported that the disaster planning implemented this past year among the agencies was effective in aiding the elderly clients during the recent weather emergencies, such as Hurricane Erin.

The Senior Helpline was manned and all clients were contacted to assess their needs for evacuation.

In Seminole County, Better Living for Seniors opened but operated from other facilities due to damage at their own offices.

All social and congregate facilities have remained opened. Meals to homebound clients are being delivered on schedule.

For more information, call the Area Agency on Aging of Central Florida at 823-1330.

Lunch with the doctor

The Wellness Center in Winter Park will present the next in their series of Lunch with the Doctor Programs on Thursday, Aug. 17.

The subject of the program will be "Everything you need to know about your nose and sinuses."

The lunch will be with Henry Ho, M.D., an ear, nose and throat specialist.

The lunch will be from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. at the Peggy and Philip B. Crosby Wellness Center, 2006 Mitsell Ave., Winter Park.

The lunch is free for Wellness Center members and $5 for non-members.

The space is limited to 30 people. For more information, call 644-3606, ext. 236.

Walktoberfest set

The American Diabetes Association is sponsoring their annual Walktoberfest on Saturday, Sept. 30.

It will take place at the Winter Park Mall at 9 a.m.

The money raised during the walk will help the American Diabetes Association as they work toward a cure for the disease.

According to the association, as many as half the 60,000 central Floridians with diabetes do not know they have it until they are confronted with one of the terrible complications such as blindness, heart disease, stroke and leg or foot amputations.

For more information on participating in the Walktoberfest or sponsoring the walkers, call 660-1928.

Budget cuts mean higher health premiums for elderly

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congressional Republicans have yet to spell out exactly how they plan to save $270 billion from Medicare, but there's no mystery to where more than $60 billion will come from.

Beneficiaries would pay that much more in higher Medicare Part B premiums, which the GOP wants to raise faster than current law allows.

Republican leaders, including the chairmen of the Senate Budget and Finance committees, favor making the elderly keep paying 31.5 percent of the costs of Medicare Part B, which helps pay doctors' fees and some other out-of-hospital costs.

President Clinton, on the other hand, wants to let the monthly premiums revert to covering 25 percent of the costs. That would save $18 billion.

In either case, the premium, now $46.10, will climb over the next seven years.

But the elderly and disabled will be paying $97.50 a month for coverage in 2002 if the Republicans prevail, and $77.40 if Clinton gets his way — a difference of more than $20.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich has said the Republican reforms will require seniors to pay "a little bit" each year more for Medicare, just as they have in past years.

The Medicare premium, which started at just $3 a month in 1966, has taken several complicated twists in recent years.

In an era when medical bills were markedly lower, it originally was pegged to cover 50 percent of costs.

In recent years, it was supposed to cover 25 percent, meaning that $3 was subsidized from general revenues for every $1 that beneficiaries paid.

Congress in 1990 fixed the premium rates for 1991-95. But expenses rose less than expected, thanks to steps Congress also took to rein in doctor fees.

As a result, last year's Medicare premium of $41.10 covered 33 percent of the costs of doctor bills, lab tests, ambulance services and other out-of-hospital expenses. This year, the premium covers 31.5 percent of those costs.

The Republican budget plan assumes premiums will be kept at that level.

That would mean a $55.10 premium on January 1, 1996, $60.40 in 1997, $66.30 in 1998 and larger increases in later years, reaching $97.50 in 2002.

If Congress does nothing, the premium in 1996 would fall to $43.70, then climb to $47.90 in 1997 and $52.60 in 1998 — representing 25 percent of the costs.

After that, Clinton wants the premiums to stay at the 25 percent level, producing a premium of $77.40 by 2002.

Under current law, if Congress did nothing, premiums after 1998 could rise only as fast as inflation.

Since medical costs customarily rise much faster

Fur coats in vegetarian restaurants

Americans flirt with the idea of eating meals without meat

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

Diners at the Chamberlain's Cafe in the Gooding's Plaza in Longwood come in a variety of shapes and sizes.

From the fittest to those who are looking at the easiest way to cut a little fat from their diets.

"I just want to eat a little lighter sometimes," said Mary Rothwell. "Burgers, tacos and pizzas get a little boring. Sometimes I just like a change."

Denise Law is "definitely not a vegetarian," but comes to the restaurant with her friends and just pretends there's meat in the veggie burger she orders.

"I leave here and go get a Whopper, though," she admitted.

Lauri Shane, on the other hand, is a vegetarian. She and Law are best friends, she said.

"It is a whole lifestyle change," she said. "I grew up in a carnivorous house. I ate meat until I was 20 years old. I have come around to this very slowly, but I am healthier and happier than I have ever been. Some day she'll come around too."

In Evanston, Ill., some of the new customers at the Blind Faith vegetarian restaurant, sport fur coats.

"That's very frustrating for me and my staff," says manager Rob Levin. "But we don't kick them out. We get a real variety of customers these days."

Mink-garbed diners may be a disturbing sight to purist vegetarians, who are animal defenders of old. But they're a sign of a sea change in vegetarian eating.

Spurred more by concerns for their health than pity for animals, many Americans are becoming part-time vegetarians, gobbling down vegetable brochettes or avocado burritos one day while enjoying their chops another.

"They're not coming out and saying I want to save Bambi," says Linda Gilbert, president of the Dea Moinea, Iowa-based research firm HealthFocus Inc. "People are getting into it because they want to eat less fat."

You can see the change on menus, on grocery shelves, at supper tables. Restaurants can't get away without offering meatless entrees. Supermarket sales of imitation meats are booming. Nearly a quarter of the new Nestle's Lean Cuisine frozen dinners in the last two years have been meatless.

The popularity of such food has become so great that PBS plans the first nationally broadcast vegetarian cooking show in December, with Mollie Katzen, author of such classics as the "Moosewood Cookbook."

"As recently as a couple of years ago, people at PBS were nervous about the show being vegetarian. They were saying, 'should we even use the v-word?'" she said in an interview. "Now we're going to use it prominently!"

The revolution in American attitudes toward health and food played a big part in turning vegetarianism from a Cinderella of cuisines to a belle of the table.

Once, bland vegetarian products were found only in health food stores frequented by people seen by the rest of the population as, well, flaky. Moreover, vegetarian foods often depended on cheese and eggs, making them rich and fatty.

But the American obsession with getting fit, along with the discovery that fat is the enemy, transformed vegetarian eating — just at the time that a broader audience was discovering it.

Add to this the inspiration of ethnic cooking and the new availability of varied produce, and vegetarianism began to look downright tantalizing.

"It's not like the old days when you'd be eating lettuce and rice, rabbit food," says Patrick Downey, manager of Angelica's Kitchen, a trendy vegetarian restaurant in New York city's East Village.

Angelica's dishes up a variety of Asian-inspired meals ranging from vegetable sushi with lemon-ginger sauce to "garden bowls" of Japanese broth laden with seaweed, shiitake mushrooms, ginger and vegetables.

Strict vegetarians are rare. Up to 2 million Americans — 1 percent of the population — completely abstain from meat, poultry or fish, according to a survey by the Baltimore-based Vegetarian Resource Group.

But per-capita annual consumption of red meat fell from 131.7 pounds in 1970 to 111.7 pounds in 1993. Meanwhile, consumption of poultry leaped from 33.8 pounds to 61.1 pounds and fish inched from 12 to 15 pounds, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Some 12 million Americans consider themselves vegetarian — even while many admit to eating some meat — a finding that underscores the growing appeal of part-time vegetarianism.

"I eat fish and chicken," said Karyn Davis of Longwood. "But I think I'm a vegetarian for the most part. I don't ever eat red meat."

Some companies are cashing in on the trend.

Archer Daniels Midland Co. has sold a veggie burger under the Green Giant label nationally for a year, with results "far beyond our expectations," says Larry Cunningham at ADM.

Linda McCartney, wife of the former Beatle, has sold 10 million frozen vegetarian meals — such as "Mexican-style Stew With Spanish Rice" — since introducing them in 10 U.S. test markets last year.

Sales of imitation meat or poultry products shot from $44 million in 1994 to nearly $65 million in 1995, in the years ending in March, according to the research firm A.C. Nielsen Inc.

"You don't find food categories that grow like that. Most grow 3 to 5 percent a year," says Don Ludemann, manager of strategy and brand development for Green Giant, a Pillsbury Co. brand.

Melissa Pidgeon said the ready-made products available in Seminole County stores are limited, but with the right ingredients and a little effort, vegetarian meals can be tasty and exciting.

"You can have everything from burgers to burritos to stir fry and all of it without meat," she said.

Outside the home, Americans are seeking less meat as well.

While red meat is still the No. 1 item ordered, today 70 to 80 percent of restaurants offer meatless items as an entree, says Jeff Prince, senior director of the National Restaurant Association.

There are exceptions, of course. Although McDonald's offers meatless burgers in the Netherlands, it plans no such fare here. And Burger King tested veggie burgers at 38 outlets in 1993, without whopping success.

Still, a restaurant guide put out by the Vegetarian Journal has ballooned from 1,000 listings in 1990 to 2,000 today, including children's camps and adult resorts that offer meatless eating.

"You feel better. You look better. And you're not killing animals," Blake Daniels, a diner at Chamberlain's, said. "Why wouldn't you be a vegetarian?"

Using ultrasound to inject insulin without a needle

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A patch that uses sound waves to open passages through the skin could be used to deliver insulin and other drugs painlessly, say researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

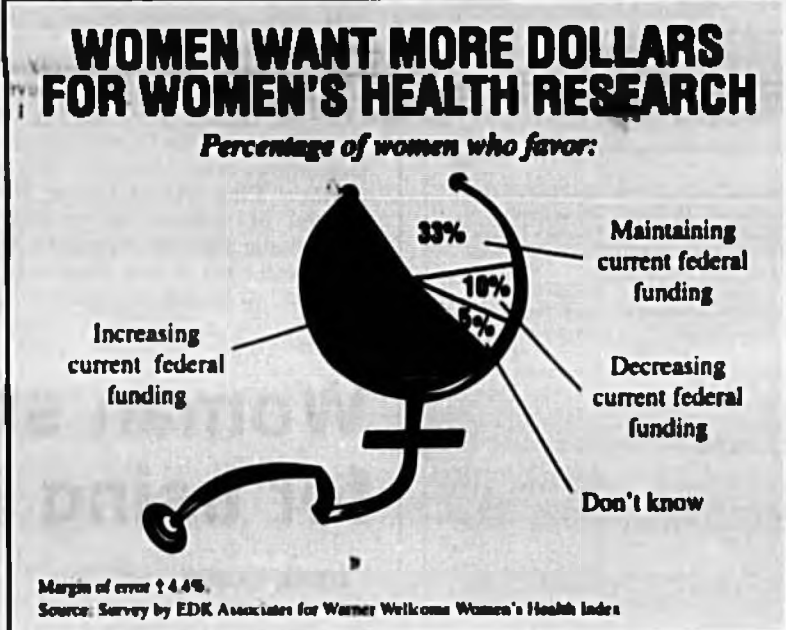

"An ultrasonic unit applied to the skin can cause insulin or some other medication to go through the skin over a period of time," MIT professor Robert Langer said Thursday. He said the sound waves, which are of a frequency that can't be heard, causes the skin to be more permeable and to absorb the drugs.

A report on the research was published today in Science, the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Langer said the system works by using sound waves to force air pockets in the thin, outer-most layer of the skin to oscillate. This causes the tightly bound cells to become misaligned and allows even large molecules of medicine to slip inside. Once past the outer skin layer, he said, the drug is absorbed by the body.

Eventually, said Langer, an ultrasound unit may be combined with a medicinal patch that is saturated with a drug. He said the ultrasound unit could electronically regulate the speed and dose of medicine absorbed by the skin, thus giving precise control of the drug therapy.

Langer said experiments with the technique have been conducted on human cadavers and on laboratory animals.

Calton Homes reported selling 21 homes for the month of July, for a dollar volume of $3.2 million. The announcement was made by Calton President Don Knutson. The company presently has eight active communities in Seminole and Orange counties.

Investors defrauded

ORLANDO. — The Securities and Exchange Commission has accused a former securities dealer in Winter Park of defrauding at least 195 investors of $6 million.

Ronald M. Zook, 32, collected millions of dollars to buy overseas bank debentures that he said would yield annual returns of 80 percent to 216 percent, the SEC said in a lawsuit filed Monday.

Zook never invested the money, using it instead for personal expenses, for his businesses and to make payments to investors, the agency alleged in U.S. District Court in Orlando.

Zook was president and owner of Financial Concepts Group International Inc., of the Orlando suburb of Winter Park.

The Martin County sheriff's department began investigating Zook and his company in May for alleged mismanagement of investors' money. Several investors in Martin and St. Lucie counties had complained that checks they received from Zook had bounced.

Zook could not be located for comment. His company no longer operates.

Medicaid fraud uncovered

ORLANDO. — A husband and wife ministry team have agreed to compensate the state $150,000 for fraudulent billing of Medicaid treatments that included counseling an 18-month-old for a pot-smoking habit.

The state alleged that the Orlando Recovery Center, operated by Leonard and Fay Knight, billed for marijuana-dependence counseling for patients 3 to 6 years old, as well as the 18-month-old. The cases were fictitious, officials said.

The Knights pleaded no contest this past Monday to 11 counts of Medicaid fraud and agreed to pay restitution, penalties and the cost of an investigation.

Circuit Judge Alice Blackwell White suspended a 12-month jail sentence.

The Knights' attorney, William Sheaffer, said the plea agreement represents their acknowledgement of their responsibility as owners, but that they still blamed much of their problems on unscrupulous employees.

The Florida Attorney General's Medicaid Fraud Control Unit is conducting investigations into fraud losses to the state Medicaid program amounting to $500 million, officials said.

Coldwell honors Jacobs

LONGWOOD — Karen Jacobs of the Coldwell Banker Longwood office was recently honored as one of Coldwell Banker West Central Florida's top 25 associates. The award was presented during the company's annual mid-year breakfast on July 21 in Tampa.

She has been with Coldwell for seven years.

The Longwood Coldwell office is located at 2160 W. State Road 434.

The company has six offices serving the two counties, including branches in Sanford and Lake Mary.

Owner's business dream has come true

SANFORD — B.Bee's Home Cooking, 2511 Sanford Ave., opened its doors for business on Tuesday, August 1. B.Bee Rumph and his wife, Ramona, plan to serve the city of Sanford with a smile and some good grub.

Their hope is to offer hot, well-balanced meals in a friendly and speedy manner. Gathering for a few laughs and a full tummy was the idea that Rumph had in mind when he decided that the restaurant business was for him.

Rumph, formerly owner and operator of Affordable Limo, cited that his dream has always been to own his own business. Now, beginning his next business, Rumph said, "I was looking for a place like this to eat. I figured this was a place I'd like to eat at."

He continued by adding, "I wanted it to be like an old fashioned hometown eatery from the old days. To sum it up, I wanted it to be like how it was on Sunday when your mom cooked a big Sunday dinner and everybody got together and enjoyed the food and the time together."

Presently, B.Bee's Home Cooking is open 11:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday although Rumph has plans to extend hours by the end of September to include an early morning breakfast beginning at 5 a.m. and late night hours to 11 p.m. for night owls.

"I know no other place where someone can get a homecooked meal for that late in the evening," said Rumph. "I want to be able to reach people at all times when they may be looking for a good meal."

The menu offers a changeable daily variety of meats, seafood, vegetables, breads and desserts. Tables and booths are cheerfully adorned with silk arrangements and Rumph spoke proudly about his cook, "Ernest," the former chef for 25 years of Holiday Inn Marina.

With a seating capacity for 32, Rumph expressed his desire to eventually outgrow the small atmosphere and launch a bigger and better restaurant in the Real Mashed Potatoes, Macaroni and Cheese, Shrimp Fried Rice, Mustard Greens, Collard Greens, Black-eyed Peas, Charbroiled Hamburgers plus homemade Sweet Potato Pie and Upside Down Cake and Dump Cake.

Casselberry area.

He and his wife work side by side with several waitresses to serve the full capacity crowds they already have.

In the words of the Beverly Hillbillies, Rumph would like to say, "You all come back now, ya here."

SANFORD — Jet Lift International, an airline management and marketing company based at the Orlando Sanford Airport, has reported completing one of the largest single negotiated contracts.

Jet Lift International and its sister company AirCharter World, of San Francisco, have announced the signing of a three year subservice aircraft contract between Kiwi Travel International Airlines of Hamilton, New Zealand, and AV Atlantic Airlines, based in Savannah, Ga.

Beginning Aug. 22, AV Atlantic will provide a Boeing 727-200 state-3 aircraft (173 seats) to Kiwi, to be placed into daily service between Hamilton, New Zealand, Sydney and Brisbane, Australia, and various South Pacific destinations.

Randy Lee of Jet Lift International in Sanford explained that this has no relationship to Kiwi International. "This is Kiwi! Travel International Airlines," he stressed, "dealing with specific travel trips rather than regular flight routes."

The 727 is scheduled to be replaced after the first year of operation with a Boeing 737-300 aircraft.

This is the largest contract completed by Jet Lift and represents a $20 million contract for AV Atlantic over the next three years.

BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
What is the most important aspect of a good marriage? Well, obviously it is difficult to single out one item, but I agree with the British actress Nanette Newman, who said, "A good marriage is at least 80 percent good luck in finding the right person at the right time. The rest is trust."

In bridge, you must trust your partner's bidding and play. (If you don't, get a new partner.) However, when you are the declarer, you must be wary of trusting the defenders, who are not married to you. Yet sometimes they can be trusted to give you the right clue.

North's three-heart rebid showed an invitational hand (about 11 support points for hearts) with three hearts.

West guessed well to lead his singleton diamond (though in isolation, I don't think it's a good lead). After winning with the ace, East returned the diamond eight, a suit-preference signal for spades. Being a trusting partner, West, after ruffing, switched to the spade three. East took dummy's queen with his ace and returned the spade 10 to dummy's king.

Declarer played a heart to his ace and cashed the heart king, groaning when West discarded: "one down."

"Sorry, partner," said South. "I misguessed."

"No, you didn't," replied North. "You didn't trust. First, probably West wouldn't have led a singleton with queen-third of hearts. But more important is that if West had the heart queen, East would have led another diamond when in with the spade ace. When East returned a spade, he could be trusted to have the trump queen."

Phillip Alder's book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available.
