Rosenwald Boycott Continues In Effect

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

The smoldering boycott at Rosenwald Elementary School rekindled today with placard-carrying picketers marching around the facility in protest of a school board decision to phase out the 46-year-old school. Although it's been reported that protesting blacks have called for a countywide boycott of Seminole schools, a spokesman said today the only thing that is finalized is continued boycotting of Rosenwald. There is nothing definite on the countywide thing.

However, White said continued meetings of Seminole blacks are going on all over the county in an effort to determine if the countywide boycott is needed and just what it would accomplish.

James Gadsden, a black spokesman, said last week the countywide boycott had been called off in hopes of receiving assistance from the federal government. Gadsden also said Rosenwald marchers had been asked to get their children back in school — but they didn't. The issue centers on a school board decision to bus 211 blacks out of their school and into Casseberry Elementary and convert Rosenwald into a center for trainable mentally handicapped children.

The blacks say the school is out of their school and into Casseberry Elementary and convert Rosenwald into a center for trainable mentally handicapped children. SUPT. WILLIAM LAYER

Layer has said the boycott is in violation of state attendance laws, but also says the law would be difficult to enforce because of the large number of protesters. He hopes the state will provide an answer.

Identity Of Two Plane Crash Victims Still Uncertain

Lake County authorities today were trying to establish the identity of two persons killed near Eustis yesterday when a surplus Army T-34 fighter-trainer crashed into a wooded area, exploded and burned.

The crash victims were burned beyond recognition, but authorities said the wreckage of the plane was tentatively identified as that of a T-34 based at Sanford Airport and owned by Maitland dentist M.D. Schulke, 44.

Lake County Sheriff's deputies said Schulke had flown out of Sanford Airport Sunday morning in a T-34 with his 17-year-old son, Jeff, and has not been heard from since.

A woman reported seeing the plane in a spin just before it disappeared behind some trees, a deputy said.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are investigating the cause of the crash about 10 miles east of Eustis near SR-44.

Investigators said Schulke's dental records were to be used today in efforts to identify the crash victims.

A woods fire resulting from the plane crash burned approximately 10 acres, according to Forestry service officials.

Officials said Johnny Bolton, a Maitland auto dealer and friend of Schulke, tentatively identified the plane wreckage as that of Schulke's red, white and blue former Army trainer.

Schulke, a member of the Warbirds, an association of pilots owning World War II vintage aircraft, bought a P-51 Mustang fighter in 1971 in partnership with Bolton and became well known for appearances at the Sanford Air Show.

Sanford To Join In Suit To Regain City Courts

Sanford city officials, well aware of the disadvantage of losing their municipal court, are now participating in a move to prevent other Florida cities from having to forfeit municipal courts for county courts.

City Commissioners this afternoon, during their 4 o'clock meeting, are expected to approve a resolution in support of the lost municipal court is not a move by the Florida League of Cities (F.L.C.) to have the state legislature pass an amendment authorizing municipal courts as optional to cities.

Unless the amendment is passed, an article of the state constitution will abolish all municipal courts by 1977.

City officials are hopeful the move will pave the way for Sanford to reinstate its municipal court.

But optimism in retrieving the lost municipal court is not running high.

"It is a very remote chance we might be able to get the municipal court back," said City Manager Warren "Pete" Knowles.

Sanford voluntarily abolished its municipal court in 1973 in order that Seminole County would be eligible to receive two county judgeships.

But, "this has proved to be one of the biggest mistakes in the city government's life," Knowles said.

The loss of the municipal court has cost the city both money and time, according to Knowles.

Knowles said the municipal court met twice a week to handle civil cases, but under the county court system, cases may take up to 30 days to be heard.

The F.L.C. contends that if municipal courts are abolished the cities "will suffer from a public safety standpoint, fiscally and administratively."

Commissioners last week instructed City Attorney Vernon Mize to draw up a resolution in support of the F.L.C. action.

Apopka Man Held On Murder Charge

A 21-year-old mechanic, employed by the City of Apopka, was being held in Seminole County Jail today in connection with the slaying early Sunday of Paige Edward Evans, 21, of 1748 Old Apopka Road, was arrested by Sheriff's Detective Lt. George Abby after he surrendered to Florida Highway Patrol Trooper J.T. Byrne shortly after the shooting death of Johnny Jones, 26, of Eighth St., Apopka, on U.S. 441 at Via Palma Circle at the western tip of Seminole County.

Officials said Jones was shot in the neck with a .22 caliber pistol while riding early Sunday in a car driven by Evans' wife Martha.

Deputy Ed Standley reported that Evans, in another car, had been looking for his wife when he saw her on U.S. 441 driving a car with a male passenger.

Officers said the two cars stopped and Jones was shot and Mrs. Evans followed her husband "back down the road" and told him they should go back to the shooting scene.

Standley said Trooper Byrne arrived and Evans got into the highway patrol car, putting a loaded .22 caliber pistol on the front seat.

Deputies said Jones' 20-year-old common law wife, Martha Forrest, identified the slaying victim.

Three Held On Robbery Charges

Three men were arrested by Sanford police and sheriff's detectives over the weekend on robbery charges.

Charles Anthony Sweet, 19, of 1711 W. 15th St., and John Henry Wimberly, 21, of 1300 W. Seventh St., both Sanford, were held in county jail on $10,000 bond each following their arrests on circuit court warrants by Sanford Police Detective Walter Jones.

Michael J. Cooper, 27, of Orlando, was held on $8,000 bond following his arrest on two robbery charges by Sheriff's Detective Sgt. William Hogan. Hogan said the cases involved the robberies of two juvenile hitchhikers in late January.

In other weekend arrests, sheriff's deputies jailed William Bradley Fahrman, 41, were Johnny Anthony Stroud, 19, and Robert Dean LaFrancis, 18, both of 201 Monroe Ave., Maitland.

Altamonte officers also jailed Thomas Maxwell Wynn, 33, of 66 Griggs Ave., Casselberry, on $5,000 bond on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident with injuries.

William Vernon Fox, 21, of 403 Myrtle Ave., Sanford, was charged by police with discharging a shotgun in public during a disturbance on Myrtle Ave. and Fourth St.

In weekend burglary reports, Dr. Michael Weinstock reported $1,000 in dental gold missing after a break-in at his 703 Palm Springs Road, Altamonte Springs, dentist office.

Mrs. Andrew Carraway, of 432 Elliott, Sanford, reported a $5,000 diamond bracelet, $80 cash and a metal box with important papers was missing after a break-in at her home.

Burglars hit recreation areas at Stromberg-Carlson, Rhinehart Road, Lake Mary, and Red Lion Square Apts., south Seminole, according to deputies. A $160 canoe was taken at the Stromberg-Carlson recreation area and stereo equipment valued at $400 was missing at the apartment complex.

Three grenades, possibly of Russian or Chinese make, were turned over to the sheriff's department for investigation after the devices were found by two youths.

Police Could Enter Court Pleas Today

Defense attorneys for six Sanford policemen and two other men charged in burglaries revealed today that their clients may plead guilty to lesser offenses as results of plea negotiations with State Atty. Abbott Herring's office.

Eight suspects, if convicted as charged with burglary, could face maximum 10 to 20-year terms.

Under lesser offenses being considered for guilty pleas and maximum sentences could range from one year in county jail to 15 years in prison.

Announcement of plea bargaining came this morning in the chambers of Circuit Court Judge Clarence T. Johnson Jr. as the court "sound" the week's criminal trial docket to determine order of trials.

Scheduled for trial this week is Paul Raleigh Sessions, 22, of 428 Scott Ave., Sessions is an auxiliary policeman and a city building inspector who was suspended after his arrest Jan. 9 by police after an internal department investigation in a series of area burglaries.

Defense attorney Newman Brock told the court that Sessions "would be part of the package" if the policeman enter guilty pleas.

Docketed for trial the week of Feb. 24 in the cases are: animal control officer Robert Ray Campbell Jr., 23, 151 Palmtoe Ave., police patrolman William Douglas Wagner, 24, 2832 Mohawk Ave., and auxiliary policeman Robert A. Shaw, 29, 2409 DeCottee Avenue.

Bulletin

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Public Service Commission refused today to grant an immediate 3.82-million rate increase requested by the Water Park Telephone Co. The commission ordered hearings into the request. The action suspended the increase which otherwise would have gone into effect automatically under a new law requiring PSC action within 30 days after a request is submitted.

Postal Rate Hike Predicted In Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal rates will go up by the end of the year and it will cost 12 or 13 cents to mail a first-class letter that now carries a 10-cent stamp, says Postmaster Gen. Benjamin F. Ballar. "We are experiencing some very substantial cost increases. We are presently operating at a deficit," Ballar said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Pensions Are Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — While government budget deficits mount, a pension formula is starting to cost taxpayers billions of dollars in excess federal employee retirement checks. Pensions for nearly two million retired civilian and military personnel are supposed to keep pace with the rising cost of living. But an ingredient added to the adjustment formula five years ago is pushing pensions increasingly above the cost of living in an escalating pattern that could easily cost the government $10 billion by 1990.

Dean's Life Threatened

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP) — Former White House lawyer John W. Dean III delivered his scheduled speech before a college audience here in spite of two threats against his life.

The threats were made in separate telephone calls to the Oneonta Star newspaper. Each caller told the newspaper that Dean was to be shot, the newspaper reported.

Dean's speech Sunday evening at the State University College at Oneonta was marked by some looting and hissing from the audience, but no incidents were reported. No arrests were made, police said. When asked what special precautions the police took because of the threats, an official said, "We made sure we got out of town safely."

Medical Profession Shaken

BOSTON (AP) — The manslaughter conviction of Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin for the death of an aborted fetus has raised fears among some physicians of new restrictions on abortions. "The verdict will send shock waves into the medical community," said William J. Carran, professor of legal medicine at Harvard. "Within the next week it's just going to have shocking impact on physicians ... doing any procedures of this kind." Edelin, 35, was convicted over the weekend for the death of a fetus during a legal abortion performed in October 1972.

Ford Ready For Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, after a recent barnstorming stint around the country, is launching a face-to-face campaign for his energy and economic programs among members of the House and Senate. He has invited the Senate Republican steering committee to dinner at the White House tonight and is planning breakfasts, dinners, receptions every day through Thursday for other legislators from both parties.

Port, Oil Firm Lease Is Studied

The Seminole County Port Authority (SCOPA) tonight will receive a proposed agreement to lease 2.6 acres to Sav-More Oil Terminals, Inc., in order that the oil company may construct a tube oil packaging plant.

The lease, prepared by SCOPA Attorney William Hutchison, will be presented to the board for initial discussion at the board's 8 p.m. meeting. Sav-More is the oil company that is currently locating 10 additional storage tanks at the port.

The storage tanks are being floated on barges from Lake Monroe to the port, but Port administrator Jim Ryan said the river at present is too low to float the remaining eight tanks and the transferring will have to wait until the water level rises before the tanks can be floated the 3.2 miles.

Firm Ordered To Restore Monroe Development

A Volusia County developer, Stone Island Construction Company and its President, H. M. Huffman, has been directed by United States District Court Judge John A. Reed Jr., to restore an illegal waterfront development located on the southeastern shore of Lake Monroe.

The developers entered into an agreement to restore the area after charges of illegal filling and excavation in the navigable waters were filed, based upon a joint investigation by the Jacksonville District U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the State of Florida department of Pollution Control.

The United States originally brought a civil action for restoration and fines in April 1974. In its Complaint, the United States charged that Stone Island Construction Company had placed waste and fill materials in the waters of Lake Monroe and Bethel Creek in violation of Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899. In addition, the United States charged that Stone Island Construction Company had excavated a series of canals which were connected to Lake Monroe without a Department of the Army permit.

Under the terms of the court order, the developer is required to restore flow to Bethel Creek by making clear "cuts" fifty feet wide at three hundred foot intervals through the piled up fill material. The bed of Bethel Creek is to be restored to its original width and depth by the removal of debris and fill. In addition, the canal system, which is presently connected to Lake Monroe is to be "plugged" so as to prevent further possible pollution from the development reaching Lake Monroe. The case was handled for the Government by Department of Justice Attorney Lloyd Guerci.

Army Engineers point to cases such as this and prior restoration orders issued to Rich Brothers and Louis Bills as a reminder to developers and individuals of the necessity of acquiring state and federal permits before dredging canals or placing fill in wetland areas below the mean high water line (tidal areas) or ordinary high water line (non-tidal areas).

Bentsen Announces Bid For Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., a wealthy Texan with more money than tangible political support, today became the fifth formal entrant into the 1976 Democratic presidential race. "The paramount issue is economic recovery," Bentsen said, declaring he would offer his party and the nation "leadership which is at once candid, unafraid and positive."

Bentsen formally unveiled his candidacy at a news conference and reception in Washington before flying to Houston, Tex., for a second news conference and reception.

In making official his campaign plans that had been obvious for months, Bentsen cited his business and political background, including three terms in the House. "I believe this blend of private and public outlooks, Washington and non-Washington viewpoints, and legislative as well as administrative experience is what is required of the nation's leadership in the last half of this turbulent decade," the Texas senator said.

Bentsen providing jobs to pull the nation out of its current economic recession, he said "we must also restore an economic system which provides diversity of opportunity for earning a living and gives meaning to the dream of individual independence."

Sharply critical in recent speeches of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Bentsen said, "We must have a foreign policy which gives as much

Over the side goes a massive load of logs from this $8.2 million self-dumping log carrier on the Powell River in British Columbia. The new carrier, the first of its kind, utilizes a system of ballast tanks and pumps to lift its long load over the side.

NEW STYLE OF DUMPING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paid informants of the FBI were traveling abroad to spy on revolutionary groups here and overseas. CIA agents were infiltrating domestic anti-war groups as part of a plan to penetrate the Soviet intelligence system, according to two accounts.

The reported activities showed the overlapping operations of the two intelligence agencies. The CIA is limited by law to foreign intelligence operations while the FBI handles internal security functions.

Meanwhile, two former CIA counterintelligence officers and a former security director of the agency were to testify today before the Rockefeller commission's investigation of CIA domestic spying operations.

The officials, all of whom retired at the end of 1974, are Howard J. Osborn, director of security, N. Scott Miller, chief of operations in the counterintelligence staff, and Raymond G. Bocca, deputy chief of the counterintelligence unit.

Ray S. Cline, deputy director for intelligence in the CIA until 1966, said the attempt to gain entrance to the Soviet intelligence system through anti-war activists here was unsuccessful.

"Some guy got the bright idea weight to interdependence as it does to military strength." He said the Republican administration in Washington "has failed to govern with either wisdom or foresight."

"It has bounced from crisis to crisis," Bentsen added. "It has reacted to the problems of the moment. It is without specific goals. It is without sensible plans."

He chose a holiday, when few other news events were likely to occur, to announce his candidacy in the Senate Caucus Room, a traditional launching pad for presidential candidates.

Under a Texas law passed in 1960 for the late Lyndon B. Johnson, Bentsen will be able to run for both the presidency and re-election to the Senate in 1976. In the past 18 months, Bentsen has taken advantage of his job as chairman of the 1974 Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee to travel widely while making little effort to hide his interest in the presidency.

He has raised more than $1 million, much of it from Texas, but has less visible political backing than two other Democrats with comparable financial resources, Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

However, he hopes to appeal to Democrats as a moderate with a business background. As a political performer, he is smooth, articulate and bland.

The 54-year-old freshman Democrat is a former member of the House and a successful businessman. In becoming a formal candidate, Bentsen joins Jackson, Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., former Gov. Jimmy Carter, D-Ga., and former Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Ola.

They could be joined soon by Wallace, Sen. Birch E. Bayh of Indiana (former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina and a number of others.

A native of Mission in the Rio Grande Valley, Bentsen was elected to the House at the age of 27 but retired six years later and moved to Houston where he entered business.

He became president of Lincoln Consolidated, a large financial holding institution and held several major corporate directorships before re-entering politics in the 1970 Senate race. Backed by his state's conservative Democratic establishment, Bentsen unseated liberal Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough in a bitter Democratic primary and then won the general election against Republican George Bush.

As a freshman senator, Bentsen led a battle in the Armed Services Committee to slow development of the Trident missile-firing submarine to give more time to study the necessity of the boat. As a member of the Finance Committee, he played a major role in the enactment last year of important changes in federal pension laws.

Two motorcyclists, one of them a Sanford teen-ager, were killed and four others injured yesterday in an accident 10 miles west of Daytona Beach on Interstate 4, the Florida Highway Patrol reported.

State troopers identified the dead cyclists as James Benjamin Ashford, 23, of Apt. 49 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, and Milton Scott, 33, of Daytona Beach.

Born in Sanford, Ashford attended Crosses High School, later graduating from school in Brooklyn, N.Y. He was employed as manager of Seminole Gardens Apartments and attended Freewill Holiness Church.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Ashford of Apt. 49, Castle Brewer Court, and sisters, three brothers and a grandmother.

Troopers said the accident occurred when one motorcycle swerved and flipped over in front of three other motorcycles.

Treated and released at Halifax Hospital, Daytona Beach, was James Isaac, 34, Apt. 27 William Clark Court, Johnnie Lee McCall, 26, 114 W. 13th Place, and Ishmael Harris, 26, 1511 Dixie Way, D of Sanford, and Gwendolyn D. Wilson, 19, of East Boston, according to San Hospital spokesman.

Robert Dale Burns, 24, of Sanford, was injured by his motorcycle through a fence west of Mulberry Saturday night. —Bertha Bond, 53, of Tallahassee, crashed Friday night when her car rolled over into a creek after striking a bridge abutment on State Road 99 just south of Lloyd in Jefferson County.

Clifton Childs, 27, of Laurel Hills in Okaloosa County, killed when the pickup truck he was riding in Saturday crossed the center line on S.R. 85 just across the Florida state line from Florida, Ala., and collided with another vehicle.

Jesse Meuse, Rosenwald principal, said about 25 blacks around the school today, while only one student marched into the classroom.

Neither black leaders nor laymen had heard anything today from the promised investigation by federal officials. "I wish they would get here," Lauer said.

MIAMI (AP) — There are about 60,000 illegal aliens in Florida working at jobs desperately needed, citrus growers, U.S. citizens, and many of the aliens are encouraged to work by stingy employers, officials say.

"We know that some employers have exploited these illegal aliens," says Louis Gidel, acting director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Miami.

Gidel has not been publicized but he has had cases of aliens who, after being caught, tell us that their employers used them as a source of cheap labor. The employers knew they were hiring illegal aliens. But they got away with paying them half the normal wages," he said.

Gidel's office estimates that two-thirds of the state's 90,000 illegal aliens hold jobs. Officials have estimated that 65,000 of the aliens are in Palm Beach, Broward and Dade Counties. Gidel said he knew of 200 aliens discovered working at South Florida construction jobs last year who provided sworn testimony that their employers knew of their status before hiring them.

"Of course, all employers deny knowing about it," Gidel said. "Many employers don't like the embarrassment and bad publicity of news stories about illegal aliens being discovered in their place of business.

House To Open Probe Of Justices' Records

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A House impeachment committee prepared today to receive Judicial Qualifications Commission records of investigations of three Supreme Court justices. The receipt will open to the public for the first time the probe of Justice David McCain, which reportedly involved court assistance given by him to lawyers who were active in his political campaign and then won the general election against Republican George Bush.

Women's Prison 'Calm'

LOWELL, Fla. (AP) — The women's section of the Florida Correctional Institution was reported calm today, after ten inmates and a guard suffered minor injuries in an hour-long disturbance. "It's pretty quiet now," said prison Supt. Phil Shuford. "It didn't develop into a riot situation. It was a disturbance."

Destin Crash Is Checked

DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration officials today were investigating the crash of a light airplane about two miles from a closed airport. Three persons died in the crash. Okaloosa County Sheriff's deputies said pilot David Norman of Winston-Salem, N.C., Carol Hodges, 33, and Linda Robinson, 23, both of Fort Walton Beach, died early Sunday when the Cessna 440 crashed near the Destin-Fort Walton Beach airport.

Pickers' Wages Given Cut

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The sagging economy has led to a bumper crop of fruit pickers. So in a move reminiscent of the Great Depression, citrus growers are cutting wages, officials say. "We've got labor running out of our ears," says Hal Schwier, an area supervisor for the Florida Office of Rural Manpower Services. "I personally don't remember a time when we had this many people working in the fields during the Great Depression."

Jacobson's Proctor Shops occupies 40,000 square feet in the authentic old colonial Williamsburg-designed Longwood Village Shopping Center.

New Shopping Center Goes Colonial

LONGWOOD — In keeping with the nation's fast approaching bicentennial, Seminole County's newest shopping facility, the Longwood Village Shopping Center, is designed in the 200-year-old colonial Williamsburg style.

Built of brick especially imported from Florida from the kilns of Georgia, the center, located north of SR 434 near Interstate 4, features roofing selected to give a black slate effect. Solid copper is featured in the roofing over the bay windows and columns are of heart redwood.

Redwood window sills and moulding were completed with care for craftsmanship and detail in the classic manner. The Jacobson's Proctor Shops, the major department store in the center, occupies 60,000 square feet of the 123,000 square feet in the first phase of construction.

Another 27,000 square feet is planned as a second phase of the center at a later date. Jacobson's, an old established firm that goes back into the late 1800's, started as a small store in its original Michigan operations. The chain now is one of the finer women's apparel centers' operations in the country, and is recognized as a fashion house.

In addition to shops all over the State of Michigan and the Longwood facility, Jacobson's Proctor also has a store in Winter Park and a Jacobson's Yankee Traveler in Sarasota. Bill Casper, assistant manager at the Longwood store, said the firm is planning for future growth and will have at least six stores in the area in the not too distant future.

Jacobson's Proctor Shops has also gone into the men's apparel line, the home furnishings area, decorator shop, decorator accessories, gifts, bedding, and table linens, children's clothing and shoe shop. Casey pointed out Jacobson's

Proctor Shop in the Longwood Village Shopping Center works strictly as a specialty operation. Even though on a large scale as far as square footage is concerned, each area of merchandise has its own appeal.

The people working the floor in the elegant atmosphere have a very personal approach and strive to accommodate the customer. The environment in the shop is warm to make it enjoyable and a pleasure to shop.

Each area has its own section and is treated separately. In addition to the regular 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. open hours Monday through Saturday, the Jacobson's Proctor Shops is open on Thursdays and Fridays to 9 p.m., for shopping convenience.

George S. Laurent, one of the general partners in the Longwood Village Shopping Center Ltd., told The Herald Jacobson's Proctor is also opening an art gallery in the center, St. Laurent said.

The second large store in the center, a Public Super Market, is to open its 25,000 square foot foot outlet tomorrow at 9 a.m. St. Laurent said the center also features a Seminole fine quality Italian style restaurant, a Security Federal Savings and Loan, Mrs. Magna's Candy (now open), Longwood Jewelry Inc., to open in May, an insurance counselor's office to open in about three weeks, a pediatrician's office, and Sim's Office Supply, now open. Sim's Office Supply has another outlet in Winter Park.

Negotiations are underway with an ice cream parlor concern, with Penthouse Studios, and with two drug store operators to locate in the center, St. Laurent said.

Norwood, who lives in the county, between Orlo and Goldenrod, and his wife have two children, Dennis, a senior at Orlo High School, and Julie, 14, a freshman at Lake Howell High School.

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer LONGWOOD — Publix Super Markets Inc. will open its fourth Florida store and 19th Seminole County facility with appropriate ceremonies at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the Longwood Village Shopping Center. Publix markets are usually identified by a standard store front at many of its facilities throughout Florida. The employee-owned corporation has three other stores in Seminole County — at Seminole Plaza, Casselberry, Sanford Plaza, and Butler.

Lloyd Norwood, a long time resident of Seminole County and a veteran of 30 years with the firm, is the Longwood store's manager. Donnie Malodun is retail manager in charge of meat marketing is Harley Cox. Don Mann is produce manager and John Dushman is assistant store manager.

The new Public emphasizes the firm's slogan "Where Shopping is a Pleasure" with its clean lines and rich paneling. The super market's layout is similar to that of all Publix stores, making it convenient for the shopper to find his or her way around the facility. Store hours will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

The Longwood store will be the first in Seminole County to use the computerized cash register system which can easily be adapted in the future to the "scanner" method for automatic ringing up of purchases.

The new Public emphasizes the firm's slogan "Where Shopping is a Pleasure" with its clean lines and rich paneling. The super market's layout is similar to that of all Publix stores, making it convenient for the shopper to find his or her way around the facility. Store hours will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

The Longwood store will be the first in Seminole County to use the computerized cash register system which can easily be adapted in the future to the "scanner" method for automatic ringing up of purchases.

Negotiations are underway with an ice cream parlor concern, with Penthouse Studios, and with two drug store operators to locate in the center, St. Laurent said.

Washington Gave Nation Meaning

It has always been difficult not to become maudlin, to resort to cliches, when talking about George Washington.

"The father of his country." "First in his peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen."

As if by way of compensation, attempts are made from time to time to knock Washington off the distant, towering pedestal he occupies in American history and bring him down to our own size — or lower.

A few years ago, for example, someone made a humorous analysis of the painstakingly detailed evocative account Washington submitted to the Continental Congress after the Revolution. While it showed that the general enjoyed his glass of Madeira, it hardly proved he was anything but a scrupulously conscientious public servant.

Disparaging reference is sometimes made to the fact that Washington was a slaveowner, a member of the aristocratic class — ignoring the humanitarianism of the man, especially when viewed against the context of the times in which he lived — ignoring the very real risk he took in losing everything he had, including his life, in a cause far from universally supported by his fellow colonists.

Such attempts to belittle Washington merely prove the opposite of what they intend. When this man is compared with some of the modern world's revolutionary "heroes" he grows in stature all the more.

Washington never countenanced terrorism against the enemy. He never had a political or ideological opponent shot or imprisoned. He never sought power over anyone — indeed, shunned it. His legacy has been nothing but good.

Even with 200 years of hindsight to benefit them, historians can arrive at no estimate of Washington different from that of his contemporaries. Without him, there would have been no United States of America.

There is simply no other way of putting it. As Americans approach the Bicentennial, as they restudy the Revolution and its aftermath, it is to be hoped that they will refresh their appreciation of this fact.

Only Washington kept the dream of independence alive in the dark days at the end of 1776 when at one point the Continental Army was reduced to a rickety long struggle to its successful conclusion.

Later, when the United States began its experiment under the Constitution, only Washington commanded the affection, respect and confidence needed by its first president to surmount the squabbling rivalries of the nascent political parties and set the infant nation well launched on its course of destiny.

Without George Washington, no United States. What more can possibly be said?

Going Extra Mile

Only a handful of persons who evaded their military obligations during the Vietnam war accepted the administration's offer of conditional clemency in the first four months of the program which began on Sept. 16.

However, as the initial Feb. 1 deadline approached the Clemency Board had a surge of business, as did the Department of Defense which handles deserters and the Department of Justice which is processing unconvicted service evaders.

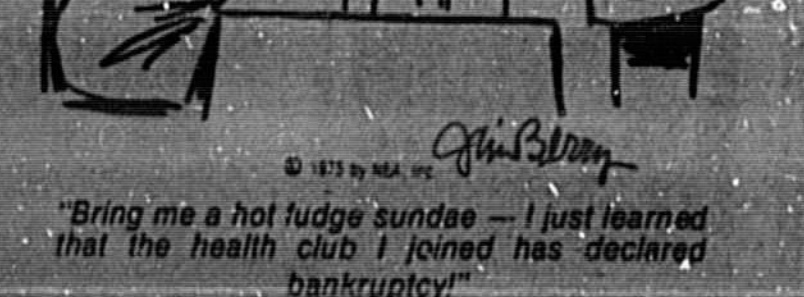

The surge of applications for clemency undermines earlier convictions of the Clemency Board that the shirkers from duty were not taking advantage of the nation's benevolence because enough of them had not been of the government's program.

The last four runs of persons seeking clemency also pull the rug out from under arguments of the most militant draft dodgers that the administration's offer is not a generous one. Thousands of persons would not be attracted to it if it were unfair.

Finally, the fact that thousands of persons admit their mistake — and are willing to perform national service to be redeemed — precludes any further concessions to those who erred and expected the nation to apologize for their pusillanimous conduct.

The administration went the extra mile in extending the deadline for clemency from Feb. 16 to March 1. To delay it any more would be to open new national wounds instead of healing old ones.

BERRY'S WORLD

Bring me a hot fudge sundae — I just learned that the health club I joined has declared bankruptcy.

Around The Clock

About that "fake" robbery — staged by students. I can't help but believe in a certain sign I have hanging close by my typewriter: "I know you believe you understand what you think I said, but I am not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant."

Wrong, Mr. Friedman. What they should do — all who had a part in this farce — is to get down on their knees and say a grateful prayer!

Can you imagine the negative reaction which would have been generated by an indignant public if that "assistant" deputy had actually gone through with his "responsibilities" and actually arrested these people? Darned if he did, and certainly there will be some who'll damn him for not doing his job, too.

Finally, would someone please tell me why the kids actually had to film this in the first place? What more could be "learned" from this film which isn't actually on TV practically every night?

You can't ever tell, though. Howard J. Friedman, executive assistant to Florida Commissioner of Education Halph Turlington said he thought the students should be commended. "They should get a medal for their ingenuity."

I can't help but sit back and contemplate what our national legislative leaders have on their minds. Take gun control for example.

TOM TIEDE Gorilla, Congress Do Dance

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — After a few months of mutually agreed truce, the longest war in American history is about to recommence: the battle of the military budget is heating up on Capitol Hill.

Caravans of green limousines are depositing grim-faced men in uniforms in the corridors, truckloads of Pentagon papers are being summoned to shore up defenses. On the other side are 25 thoroughly baffled members of Congress. The fight normally is about as one-sided as kissing the dead.

At issue is the taxpayers' money. Some $83 to $105 billion of it, depending on what figures are used. The sum, as New Hampshire's Sen. Tom McIntyre has said, "numbs the mind. If you gave your wife a million dollars and told her to spend $1,000 a day, it'd take her three years. A sometimes can't understand how the military, which requests 100,000 times $1 million can spend so fast."

The services, however, care little about the McIntyre puzzle. They are prepared to grapple to the last ditch for the last penny. And what a force they are, when the mission is obtaining for money. One estimate has it that from 25,000 to 30,000 military people take part in preparing and selling the budget. Small wonder they are known to routinely overrun the resistance offered by the Joint Armed Services committees, which must take voting recommendations to the full assemblies with less than a dozen staff members participating.

Not that the resistance is all that dedicated. Traditionally committee thinking has been, as one house staffer says, to "take a billion or two, and show the folks at home they're working hard, but otherwise go along." The thinking of the committee majorities, a large proportion of which are also members of the military reserves, is that the nation can afford to limp on national defense. The Pentagon maximizes this sympathy, says budget critic and former Army Lt. Col. Ed King, by "telling the committee members all the things that'll scare jabbers out of them, but saying nothing more than that."

Besides the scare tactics, the Pentagon uses a kind of domestic pacification program to convince the respective committees. Members are regularly invited to top secret briefings, absolved with personal attention, and treated to cocktail parties, dinners and some other portions of the good life the military budget brings about.

In fairness, it must be said that some members of the joint committees are not easily impressed. "About the best they could do, if they wanted to," says South Dakota's George McGovern, would be to simply figure the budget is always 5 to 10 per cent too high — and log off the obvious."

When the issue reaches the House and Senate floors, to be sure, some members as McGovern do vote to lay off the obnoxious.

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In these violent times, the know-nothings are apt to vent their frustration with explosives. Since 1971, 62 bombs have been found in federal buildings across the country.

Only last month, a bomb was sneaked into a ladies' room at the State Department. It caved in walls, shattered windows and left a geyser of water and pipes. The damage extended to 30 rooms on three floors.

We sent reporter Carl Manning into the granite and sandstone compounds of government, therefore, to see how many bombs he could plant.

He carried an attaché case containing four books and a portable radio. Demolition experts assured us that enough C4 plastic explosives could have been concealed inside the portable radio to equal 10 sticks of dynamite.

Almost everywhere, the guards gave the radio no more than a cursory glance. There were no visible bomb-detecting devices in any of the federal buildings.

DON OAKLEY Trading Fairly With Soviets

One important fact to be emphasized in this matter of trade with the Soviet Union: What collapsed was not the idea of trade itself between the United States and the U.S.S.R. but U.S. subsidized trading.

Under the terms of the proposed agreement, the United States would have loaned to the Soviet Union 47 per cent of what it was borrowing at 9 per cent. We would, in effect, have been paying them to buy from us — and the Soviet Union is not exactly your typical struggling underdeveloped nation.

It seems clear now that what killed the deal was not U.S. insistence on liberalized emigration for Russian Jews but the amendment to the trade advisory committee to Sen. Adlai Stevenson III (D., Ill.) which would have limited subsidized credits to $300 million over four years.

This is a paltry sum for a nation the size of the Soviet Union and one which it evidently cannot do without. The price to its sovereignty, chided was not worth the price to its sovereignty of according to U.S. demands regarding Jewish emigration, even though the deal would have been sweetened by granting the same tariff trading partners.

"Trade and detente can move forward without this trade bill," insists Democratic Rep. Charles A. Vanik of Ohio, who along with Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) has come in for much criticism because of their co-authorship of the emigration clause.

Most of our mutual trading interests with the Soviets are in nonmilitary areas, Vanik points out. "We can buy all the resources they want to sell. We can sell them all the technology and materials we want to. The only thing we don't have to facilitate is this trading in taxpayer-subsidized credit."

Any American businessman who wants to sell to the Soviet Union can do so, and can get the credit he needs from a domestic or international bank.

President Ford not only has a Democratic Congress to contend with in his drive to slow the growth of government spending. There is resistance in the ranks of his own official family.

Last December, for example, Richard O. Simpson, chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, complained bitterly in a letter to the President about the administration's proposed 1976 fiscal year budget for the commission.

RAY CROMLEY Economic Planning In Cloud

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The small-like economic recovery and continued high unemployment projected in President Ford's budget are no accident.

In private talks, Mr. Ford's economic advisers make clear they believe this country cannot solve its energy and inflation problems, which worry them on the long run far more than today's recession, unless they carefully manipulate the price and consumption of energy and other essential products now in short supply as thoroughly as they can without reaching a breaking point in the nation's economy.

Anything less, they are convinced, would dangerously prolong our military and economic dependence on unpredictable decisions by the foreign nations which control the world's exportable oil resources. And lead to unbearable inflation.

Since both inflation and our demand for foreign oil have strong built-in growth, we will have to run hard to hold our own. These advisers have calculated mathematically exactly how hard we must run, and matched their computer results with the maximum we can bear in suffering and industrial lag.

They have mapped out a program which comes as close as they dare to the point where these lines meet. They have no way — except through their computer calculations — of knowing whether they have gone too far.

The President's experts have made repeated miscalculations in recent economic predictions. But these scholars retain all their old belief in themselves. They say there is now new data which gives them confidence they are correct and their detractors wrong.

After talking with these men, I am convinced they believe their computer mathematics. But I question their sense of reality. Economic theory is not a science which can be applied so precisely to real life.

Robert S. McNamara, as secretary of Defense, had an almost religious belief in the infallibility of computers, forgetting that answers speeded up by these machines are no better than the assumptions fed in.

And in making their precise calculations, the men who counsel the President, start with assumptions that may be very shaky indeed. For they are based on philosophy and interpretation.

When I majored in mathematics, professors stressed time and again that numbers and theories had no meaning except as they could be related to and proven in real life. This rule apparently has not reached President Ford's planners. Their background discussions are filled with words — matrices, elasticity, money theory. Attempting to pin these men down on how they reached their conclusions, produces a circumlocutory answer: "We did a lot of studies, considered all possibilities. Took all possible variations and contingencies into account."

Last year the fiscal year budgeted $37.5 billion and received a little over $35 billion. This year it wants $49.8 billion but has been told that $35.6 billion is all it is going to get.

WATCH ON WASTE: Meredith Johnson, a senior Smithsonian Institution official, is away on a four-month, taxpayer-paid vacation.

His payroll file, which we have obtained, is loaded with claims for compensatory time. A typical memo dated April 15, 1974, claims 46 extra hours "worked at home as a necessity to keep up with the demands of my understaffed office."

He also applied for time off for working long hours at special events such as the Folklife Festival, Inaugural ball and the opening of the Hirshhorn Museum.

Young Swedes Joining 'Establishment'

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — In a country that reeled through the sexual revolution, women's lib, and tens of social reforms before the rest of the world caught on, people took note of the night, this winter when Swedish student radicals held their annual dinner in black tie.

It seemed to be an effort by the onetime socialist radicals to grab onto what looks like a remarkable trend among Swedish youth toward conservatism, in politics and life-style.

Highlighting this trend is the fact that conservatives have taken over student politics in Sweden and have placed one of their men at the head of the National Union of Students.

At the same time, there seems to be a return to older traditions in the way young people are running their lives. The couple is back. After a long period of disinterest, the Swedish Statistics Institute now says that marriages are increasing for the first time in several years, while the average marrying age is dropping to both men and women as it did in the '60s.

Statistically, marriages increased from 19.3 per thousand for the January-June period, 1974, to 20.6 per thousand during the June-September period, 1974.

During the last decade the age of marriage fell from 23.3 to 21.4 for women.

Short hair, tweed jackets and ties are everywhere and skirts are smoking marijuana, they're not talking about it. Student communes have dwindled to two in the Stockholm area from about a dozen or two during the late '60s and early '70s.

Cambodian Troops Driven From Mekong Position

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian government's drive to reopen the Mekong River supply route from South Vietnam received a severe setback today when a government battalion was driven from positions on one bank of the river, military sources said.

The government sent about 500 men to the river where they were in an effort to break the Khmer Rouge blockade that has virtually choked off supply traffic from South Vietnam to Phnom Penh. Because of the insurgents' guns and rockets along the river and their mines in the water, only three small convoys have gotten through since Christmas Eve.

The government force came under continuous attack from the Khmer Rouge and suffered heavy casualties. Five navy landing craft were reported damaged. The Cambodian air force bombed insurgent positions with cluster bombs, but this did not diminish the Khmer Rouge attack.

A big American "bribe" to bring ammunition and other critically needed military supplies to Phnom Penh has been under way since last week, but without leaving any trace for a long airlift, an American official said.

Art Thieves Hit Again With 28 Paintings Taken

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Twenty-eight paintings by French and Italian impressionists were stolen during the night from the modern art gallery of Milan's Municipal Museum, police reported today.

It was Italy's second major art theft this month. Three priceless Renaissance paintings by Raphael and Piero della Francesca were stolen on Feb. 5 from the Ducal Palace in Urbino and are still missing.

Police said the total value of the paintings stolen from the Milan museum was estimated at $1.5 million. They included works by Rembrandt, Cezanne, Gauguin, Van Gogh, Bonnard, Corot and the Italiani Fattori, Segantini and Boccioni.

The thieves entered the museum in downtown Milan through a window they broke while the watchmen on duty were inspecting other galleries.

"They were extremely fast and precise," a police spokesman said. "We picked up the best works and disappeared without leaving any trace, except the broken window."

Police speculated that thieves were either working on commission for a collector or would ransom.

In the past three years, the number of art thefts in Italy has more than doubled. In 1974, 10,562 works were stolen, 2,500 more than in 1973 and 5,452 more than in 1972.

A police spokesman blamed a general increase of crime in Italy and the more widespread knowledge of art values.

The main reason, however, is that it is extremely easy to steal art works from Italian museums," said the superintendent of Milan's Brera Art Gallery.

Board Seeks Plan For Woodlands

By ED PRICKETT Herald Staff Writer
School Supt. William Lyster said today the move of an elementary school from Altamonte Springs to Longwood won't be accomplished this year and that portable classrooms will be moved in to alleviate overcrowding.

The Woodlands controversy first hit the news when James Lyons and Harold Vickers of Orlando filed suit in circuit court in Sanford seeking to stop payments by the school board to its firm's president, George Saunders, or his wife, Jo Ann, the firm's secretary.

The Sanford suit charges the Saunders with diverting funds paid by the school board for their own use and benefit. Lyons and Vickers filed the suit in their capacity as 50 per cent stockholders in Building Movers Inc.

Lyster said the legal actions will make it virtually impossible to complete the Woodlands move this year. Saunders is a former Orange County Democratic chair, and his wife, Jo Ann made a recent unsuccessful bid for U.S. Congress.

After the emergency 9:30 session on the Woodlands issue, the school board is scheduled to consider pending disbursements of two bus drivers in the county. Mrs. Bernice Gayler was dismissed in January of this year, and Jeffrey Hogg was suspended in October of last year.

Both former drivers are appealing their dismissals to the school board.

Airlines Stock Switch Faces Scrutiny By CAB, Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan for check-ride to become a major stockholder of financially troubled Pan American Airways has been endorsed by the Federal administration, but still faces further government scrutiny.

A joint announcement Sunday by the State Department, and the embassy of Iran said the agreement between the Middle East country and Pan Am still requires the approval of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The announcement said the agreement contains a provision that Iran will make no effort to control the management or operation of the airline.

No details of the agreement were disclosed formally, but Iranian Ambassador Ardeshir Zohabi said his government will acquire 13 per cent of Pan Am's stock. He said some $230 million and probably more are involved in the stock and loan agreement.

The agreement, worked out after months of quiet negotiations, indicates the administration has satisfied itself that Iranian investment in the airline does not pose any threat to American defense policy or economic security.

The Pentagon was unimpressed. It has had recent operations on whether Iran's participation in Pan Am would affect the Defense Department in controlling the airline and its planes in case of a military emergency.

But the joint announcement said the agreement will include "appropriate provisions which would satisfy various requirements of the U.S. Defense Department."

Parsons Wins Daytona 500

By CARL VANZURA Herald Correspondent

DAYTONA BEACH — Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., took the lead in the Daytona 500 Sunday with two laps remaining when David Pearson spun out to capture the race and win $41,665 in the richest stock car race ever held.

The race saw 21 lead changes between seven drivers with Parsons leading 69 laps. Parsons led only four laps. A caution came out on lap 163 when Coo Coo Martin blew a motor, enabling Parsons to get back in the same lap as the leaders.

Just before the caution, the leaders came in for a pit stop with Parsons still on the track. The yellow flag was the break that Parsons needed and it elevated him into the race for the checkered flag.

On the restart, A.J. Foyt and Pearson hooked up into a draft and pulled away from the field as Dave Marcis and Parsons were battling to get back into the draft. Parsons later said that Marcis almost cost him a chance for victory as he slowed him down while Pearson pulled away.

Parsons and Ramo Stott managed to hook up and pull away from Marcis, but could not make up any ground on Pearson. Petty, who had been having radiator problems all day and was nine laps down, passed them and Parsons hooked up in his draft.

Following Petty, Parsons made up a second lap to draw to less than a second behind Pearson. On the 197th lap going down the backstretch at close to 200 mph, Pearson slid sideways, whipping out his chance for his first 500 victory.

Immediately after the race, Parsons said, "Don't ask me. I'm not going to say anything about it. I would rather not talk about it."

Later he said, "I got spun out. But I'd just as soon not talk about it. People who were watching knew who did it. They know who was over there with me."

Cale Yarborough said, "I was behind Richie Panch and Pearson. I guess Pearson was going to slingshot past. I don't know whether he cut back in too soon or what, but he clipped me and spun out. I hate to see it happen to him."

Parsons, who was directly behind the action, said it looked like somebody touched Pearson causing the spin. He said he would have liked to out-run Pearson instead of capitalizing on the misfortune.

Going into the final lap, Parsons said he almost cried because he couldn't believe he was winning. The pit crews of the other cars were standing on the wall cheering Parsons to victory. It's one of the best things to happen to racing in a long time," A.J. Foyt said.

Other drivers felt that Parsons' win pumped life into independent race drivers.

The race had just started when Jim Vandiver lost control of his car in the third turn causing a nine car wreck that took singing star Marty Robbins, Grant Adcox and Dan Daughtry from the race.

Pole-sitter Donnie Allison went out early with a broken fuel pump. A few laps later, teammate Johnny Rutherford went out with a bad motor.

Buddy Baker, who had a full lap lead on the field, made a routine pit stop and when he pulled out the timing on his car went bad putting him out of the race.

At the halfway mark, it was Baker leading with Petty and Pearson in close pursuit. Petty then started losing laps with an overheating problem caused by a pin-hole leak in his radiator.

In a post race interview, Parsons said he was aided by the draft set up by Petty. When Petty passed Parsons, he waved for Parsons to get in his draft.

Parsons was running second behind Pearson. "Sure," Petty said. "If he hadn't been second, he would not have been running with us. He couldn't draft Pearson and he was having trouble drafting me. I would have done the same for anyone."

Ingram Captures Permatex

DAYTONA BEACH — Jack Ingram of Asheville, N.C., the national champion for the last three years in NASCAR Late Models, survived a wreck-marred Permatex 300 to take his first win Saturday.

In 1972, Ingram finished sixth after leading, then leaving with a blown motor. In '73 he was 15th and he was third last year.

The race was two laps old when Terry Mock and Red Farmer touched coming out of the tri-oval, causing both cars to go into the dirt and flip at least six times. Mock, a driver who runs locally at Volusia County Speedway and was last year's winter national champion, was making his first start on a major speedway and his second start on asphalt.

Farmer is a former national champion and won the 300 in 1971. Both cars were destroyed and Farmer was admitted at Halifax Hospital. He was not seriously injured.

Mock was checked and discharged. It was a few laps later when another local driver, Phil Finney of Merritt Island, blew an engine going into the first turn and spun high to the wall where he collided with Charlie Blanton.

The race settled down to good racing between Bobby Allison, Morgan Shephard and Ingram. The lead changed until Shephard came into the pits cutting in front of Allison, causing Allison to hit Shephard in the rear.

The front end of Allison's car was banged up. Morgan came into the pits so fast he spun out and nearly hit Darrell Waltrip, who was already in the pits.

Allison was fuming after the rear-end collision that wiped out his chance of winning.

Allison refused to name who he talked about, but he said, "At the time, I felt like punching him in the nose."

Shephard said, "I felt the engine tighten up and I put the brakes on kind of hard. I really hate that I messed Allison up."

Sex, Nudity Scenes Aren't For Television

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Sex is not a spectacle sport," says one television executive. That's why explicit sex and nudity are absent from commercial television. "They're terrified," says another. "They're terrified of the network censors." They go with the winds. Their policies are on and then off. You can never predict what they're going to do.

Kerney and Stanley say they take their cues from critics who write or phone in complaints. But Burns thinks there is another group which exerts an undue amount of pressure about morality — independent station owners.

"Most of these station owners are church-going Anglo-Saxons who have set themselves up as arbiters of public taste," says Burns.

"We get a hell of a lot of feedback from people who think the public is more accepting than the station owners; I think the public is more liberal than anybody has given them credit for."

Stanley doesn't use "liberal" and "conservative" labels but speaks in equally harsh terms of "good taste" and "decency."

"It's a question of what you want in your living room," says the NBC executive. "Do you want your husband to bring home a half-dressed boomer. If you don't, then why turn on the television if that's what you're going to see?"

That nudity is used in British television programs is not surprising, says Stanley. "I think that the television industry in Britain is more liberal than ours."

Nudity is far from a regular commodity on England's BBC-TV, but a spokesman for the independent public funded network said in London that it never automatically ruled out nudity.

"The National Association of Broadcasters' Television Code specifies that nudity is the responsibility of the American people."

"Between Los Angeles and New York there are a lot of very sensitive and very moral people."

Kerney adds: "We've come a long way in the last few years, but I think we've come as far as we can."

For most of its history, TV was noted for shock-outlets, modest situation comedies, and fluffy variety shows.

"All in the Family" broke this mold in 1971.

Now daytime soap operas, Saturday night comedies, medical dramas, late night talk
