Services Held For Fallen Marine

Linda Martin of 144 Roann Drive, Oviedo, above, is consoled by her husband, James, as she clutches to her chest the U.S. flag that draped the casket of her son, Lance Corporal Jack Lee Martin. Right, she is escorted by Marine Capt. William R. O'Neill, of the Marine Reserves unit in Orlando, at the Osteen Cemetery Saturday. The Marine honor guard provided full military honors for Martin, 22, who was one of the American servicemen who died in Beirut, Lebanon, Oct. 23, as the result of the terrorist bombing of the Marine headquarters. Between 150 and 200 family members and friends gathered earlier to pay their respects to the fallen Marine at funeral services at Gramkow Funeral Home in Sanford, including several of his fellow Marines in dress uniform. Rain fell on the funeral procession as it left for the drive to Osteen, but skies cleared.

Games Begin Senior Citizens Primed For Competition

By Donna Estes

Calling the Golden Age Games "master sports," Jack Kelly told a crowd at Sanford City Hall this morning that the rapidly growing athletic activity among senior citizens "is going to be the wave of the future."

Kelly, vice president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and a four time Olympian himself, lauded the camaraderie and mutual respect of older athletes, as he and other dignitaries took part in opening ceremonies for the ninth annual Golden Age Games.

Given particular attention was "Grandpa" Jim Mason of Sanford, who at 95 is the oldest participant in the games. He will be competing in both billiards and bowling.

Multi-colored helium-filled balloons, released during the ceremony, dotted otherwise overcast skies as a display symbolizing the zest for the occasion felt by the more than 2,000 persons aged 55 and older who have signed up to compete in events ranging from bicycling and running to checkers and pinocle. The games run through Saturday.

A parade which formed at 4th Street and proceeded down Park Avenue to city hall to begin the ceremonies included four high school bands and numerous other units.

At city hall, the gathering, called by Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce officials the largest ever to attend opening ceremonies, were entertained by the band from the Naval Training Center in Orlando.

Emma Spencer and Buddy Lake, recently inducted into the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame, ran around the city hall carrying torches to light the flame there signifying the spirit of the games.

Mrs. Spencer is a former tennis coach at Seminole Community College and the University of California and is given credit for having coached many of the finest tennis players in Seminole Jack Kelly, vice president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, wishes participants well in the Golden Age Games at Sanford. Kelly promised to come back and compete another year when his schedule permits.

County for many years. Lake was a star baseball player in the old Florida state league.

Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore gave his usual welcoming speech, saying the single word, "Welcome." And U.S. Rep. Jim McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, commended the games' participants for their youthful spirit and for striving for personal excellence.

Among the other dignitaries were Miss Florida, Kim Boyce, and Miss Sanford, Muffin Bales.

Also represented were General Foods, Sea World, Weeki Wachee, Silver Springs, Cypress Gardens, Ronald McDonald of McDonald's restaurants, all sponsors of various events during the six-days contest.

Gene Keltner, manager of the Central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross and a member of the U.S. Olympics sub-committee on swimming, introduced Kelly, calling him one of the outstanding gentlemen in America. He noted that Kelly represented the United States in the Olympics in 1948, 1952, 1956 and 1960 in single and double sculls.

Kelly, 56, promised he will return to future games in Sanford as a participant, when his schedule permits.

Master of ceremonies for the event was Jack Horner, president of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. At the end of the 45-minute ceremony, Jim Jernigan, Sanford parks and recreation director and general chairman of the games committee, officially declared the activities open.

Consumer Spirits, Buying Intentions Up

Holiday Sales Boom Expected

By Micheal Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Local merchants, like their counterparts nationwide, are gearing up for what they feel will be the best Christmas shopping season in five years.

"It's going to be great," said Jim Walker of K-Mart in Sanford. "Things are picking up."

He said Christmas sales should reflect the improvement in the economy over the past year. People have been spending more all year, Walker said, so the holiday shopping season, usually the best time of year for merchants, should be a bonanza.

Jim Brautigan, manager of the Altamonte Mall said he anticipates business "will be extremely good this year."

"This should be the best in five years," he said. "More people are working and they appear to have more confidence in the economy so they're spending more."

Brautigan said the past two

Christmas seasons were not very good because of the poor economy.

"The stores at the mall feel the same way and they're all gearing up for a great season."

A national economics publication forecasts a boom year for Christmas sales.

The current issue of Financial Digest said disposable income is up this year, unemployment is down, inflation has slowed and consumer spending is on the rise.

"It is hardly surprising, then, that consumer spirits and buying intentions are brightening," the magazine said.

Financial Digest agrees that this year's shopping season could be the most prosperous in five years.

The brisker shopping season likely will mean fewer discounts. Stores have marked down prices during recent Christmas shopping seasons in attempts to lure customers, the article said.

"And, unlike past years of lackluster Christmas sales when retailers got caught with large volumes of unsold inventories as demand did not meet expectations, this time consumers may face shortages of various products, if retailers keep stocks lean," the publication said.

Walker said sales of more expensive items such as televisions and microwave ovens have already increased.

"People aren't holding back," he said.

An increase in the number of layaways at the store is another good indication that the Christmas surge has already begun, Walker said.

Christmas preparations are also under way at Zayre's in Sanford. Manager Bob Evans said a team from the store's main office is expected in the store next week to determine how much stock should be ordered for Christmas.

"We traditionally increase stock," he said. But Evans said how much stock will be ordered is dependent upon the store's sales during the year.

But an economist with the state Department of Employment Security put a damper on things. He said indications are that the Christmas shopping season will be about the same as the past few years.

The economy has remained strong in this area, particularly in Seminole County, throughout the recession of 1981-82, said Sterling Tuck. Since there was no big drop-off the past two years there's no real reason to expect a surge this year, he said.

However Tuck said the economy will receive a boost during the last three months of the year.

"Just before Halloween there's a traditional upturn in the economy," said Tuck.

At J.C. Penney's in Sanford, it's already the Christmas season.

Strike Bonanza

Greyhound's business may be going to the dogs because of the bus drivers' strike, but for its competition, Trailways, it is proving to be a bonanza.

"My business is fantastic," said John Root, Trailways' commissioned agent for Sanford. "It has at least doubled and the full impact has not been reached yet."

"Everybody is being accommodated," he added. "They have put on extra buses. One goes out 20 minutes after the regularly scheduled bus and they check with me to see how many passengers are getting on here. If there are more than there are seats available on the first bus, they will divert the second one to stop here also."

Root said he is considering expanding his hours to accommodate travelers on the 8 p.m. bus and will decide later this week. If it is warranted he said he might continue expanded hours after the strike. His present hours are 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Opposed Sewage Plant Expansion TODAY On County Board's Agenda Tonight

A controversial plan to expand a south Seminole County sewage treatment plant will be presented to the county's Board of Adjustment at a 7 p.m. meeting today in the courthouse.

County commissioners are seeking to expand the Lynwood sewage treatment plant off Bear Lake Road near in Casselberry to a capacity of 300,000 gallons per day from its present 85,000 gallon capacity.

Commissioners made an agreement last fall with developers from Florida Residential Communities and Oxford Development Co. to expand the plant to serve new developments proposed by the firms. In exchange for guaranteed sewage service, the developers are paying for the expansion.

Work began in August clearing land and constructing sediment ponds needed for the larger facility.

Then neighbors got into the act. The Lynwood Homeowners Association threatened to sue commissioners to stop the project. They also revealed that a zoning agreement when the plant was originally constructed in 1961 only covered the 85,000 gallon per day plant and not the remainder of the 10-acre site.

The developers, who had already installed some sewer lines to connect to the enlarged plant, then threatened to file a suit of their own if work was stopped on the project.

To resolve the problem, commissioners asked the Board of Adjustment to approve a special exception to permit expansion of the plant.

Lynwood residents have continued their opposition to the expansion plans. They claim the property is in an environmentally sensitive area which has been adversely affected by the sewage treatment system.

They claim that effluent from the treatment plant has fouled Mirror Lake and has seeped into the underground water supply, possibly contaminating area wells.

County officials have agreed to test wells in the area to determine if they have been contaminated. If the tests reveal that wells are contaminated, they could decide to connect those residents to a county water system.

The Board of Adjustment's decision can be appealed within 30 days to county commissioners. Any decision can ultimately be appealed in Seminole Circuit Court.—Micheal Beha

Christensen Seeks Re-Election

Incumbent County Commissioner Barbara Christensen has begun her campaign for re-election. Mrs. Christensen, who defeated incumbent Democrat Bob French in the 1980 Republican sweep of Seminole County, said she has begun planning fundraisers for the campaign.

A re-match has been ruled out because of redistricting which moved French's residence to another district. He lost to District 2 Commissioner Robert Sturm in 1982.

So far, no one has officially announced their intent to challenge Mrs. Christensen for the seat.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Kissimmee Man Charged In Fatal Traffic Accident

ORLANDO (UPI) — A Kissimmee man has been charged in a hit-and-run accident on Interstate 4 that killed an off-duty Tampa police officer.

Daniel Hoag, 42, was charged with manslaughter while driving under the influence of alcohol and leaving the scene of an accident with a fatality.

He was being held today in the Orange County Jail on $20,000 bond.

Tampa police Sgt. Gary Pricher, 31, died instantly Friday night when he was hit by a pickup truck. He had stopped to help a disabled bus on I-4 near the Osceola County line.

Pricher was killed and seven other people were slightly injured when the truck plowed through the group standing about 10 feet from the highway. The bus was taking about 20 people from Orlando to the Joe Walsh-Stevie Nicks concert in Lakeland.

Hoag was arrested Saturday after he called police and said his truck had been involved in an accident. Hoag told authorities he had been kidnapped by a hitchhiker, who was driving the car at the time of the accident.

Funeral Replaces Party

MIAMI (UPI) — Plans for a surprise golden wedding anniversary were replaced with a funeral when the couple was killed by a cab that veered across Biscayne Boulevard and hit them at their flower stand.

The golden anniversary party planned for Sunday was to have included a catered dinner, a band and a rabbi to re-enact Dorothy and Hyman Milman's wedding ceremony. It was an elaborate surprise party to make up for the one the Milmans could not afford when they were married 50 years ago. Friends and relatives from Philadelphia, New York, Seattle and Washington had arrived.

The Milmans were buried Sunday without ever knowing what had been planned for them.

They were killed Friday on the eve of their 50th anniversary. A cab crossed several lanes of traffic on Biscayne Boulevard, veered 30 feet off the road and smashed into their flower stand on the palm-lined street.

Florida Going Batty

By United Press International
Florida has been a haven for rabid bats this year, but state health officials are at a loss to explain the phenomenon.

So far this year, 66 rabid bats have been discovered statewide, said Dr. William Bigler, epidemiology supervisor for the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Graham Could Beat Hawkins

By United Press International
Gov. Bob Graham and U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins are popular with Florida voters, but Graham would win if he sought a Senate seat in a contest with the Winter Park Republican now, a Gallup survey shows.

The poll also reveals that almost two-thirds of the state's registered voters favor a lottery, even though 52 percent are opposed to casino gambling.

It also showed that 44 percent of Florida's registered voters favor the tax rollback initiative called Proposition 1, while 29 percent are opposed.

Both Graham and Mrs. Hawkins receive high marks from the electorate, the poll showed. Sixty-seven percent said they approved of Graham's handling of the governorship, while 60 percent said they supported Mrs. Hawkins' work in the Senate.

But if the balloting were conducted now, Graham would win 58 percent of the Florida vote while Mrs. Hawkins would garner only 35 percent, the poll said.

Many political observers believe Graham will challenge Mrs. Hawkins in 1986, when her first Senate term expires and Graham reaches the constitutional limit of two gubernatorial terms.

Graham would not comment about the results of the poll. Mrs. Hawkins, who said she is "most definitely" running for re-election, would not elaborate on the survey's findings.

"The election is three years away and it's impossible to predict who my opponent or opponents might be," she said.

When asked about a state-administered lottery, two-thirds of the voters said they would support one, although 52 percent said they were generally opposed to casino gambling in Florida.

That represents a shift of opinion since 1978, when a casino gambling initiative was defeated by a 2-1 margin in the state. But the numbers on casino gambling changed when respondents were asked more detailed questions.

When asked whether they would support gambling if revenues were earmarked for education and other social services, 52 percent said they would favor it. When asked about casino gambling restricted to Miami Beach only, 65 percent said they would oppose it.

Meanwhile, few people know much about Proposition 1, an initiative referendum to cut state and local government revenues and spending that will appear on the November 1984 ballot. Twenty-seven percent said they were still undecided.

"Proposition 1 ... faces an uncertain future," Gallup analysts said. "Currently, it would appear that much of the electorate is not sufficiently informed about Proposition 1 to pass judgment on the issue."

The survey was taken by Gallup pollsters in Princeton, N.J. who interviewed 781 randomly selected registered voters in Florida by telephone between Oct. 7 and Oct. 15. The margin of error is plus or minus 4 percent. The poll was conducted in cooperation with the Miami Herald, the Tampa Tribune and WTVJ-TV in Miami.

Panel: Growth Laws Must Be Backed Up With State Money

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Laws needed to protect the environment and check Florida's growth must be backed up with money or the state will face overburdening development by the year 2000, a governor's advisory group says.

Sixty-five educators, politicians, business people, artists, journalists and students from Broward and Palm Beach counties met at Florida Atlantic University's Broward County campus Friday and Saturday as part of the "Governor's Challenge Program."

Unless the laws are passed and the money is allocated, Florida's growth will be out of control by the turn of the century, the group said.

"There is a tendency to pass legislation that legislators think is good, but which does not force the Legislature to come up with funding," said FAU political science professor Bruce Williams, a participant.

"It's easy to pass legislation to make you look good. It's difficult to bite the bullet and provide the money," he said.

Nine conferences like the one at FAU are planned statewide. They are to come up with 63 recommendations for the governor to consider in recommending legislation for the 1984 session of the Florida Legislature.

"What we're trying to do is give people who are willing to write the legislation something to think about," said Bill Lindsey, executive director of the Fort Lauderdale Housing Authority.

The Fort Lauderdale group will submit recommendations that would make the state government clearly accountable for directing growth and establish a statewide protection program for farmlands, wetlands and coastline.

The plan would include an on-going monitoring program. Without that protection, most of the state's natural resources could be irreversibly damaged by the turn of the century, the group said.

EDB Problem Worse Than First Thought; Search For Deadly Chemical Intensifies

ORLANDO (UPI) — With the revelation that use of the cancer-causing pesticide ethylene dibromide was more widespread than first believed, Florida environmental officials are intensifying their search for EDB contamination.

According to published reports, records show that state agriculture officials applied massive doses of EDB to 10 times more land than was first believed.

State health officials fear the discovery of more widespread use of the pesticide could lead to greater water contamination.

"It increases our concern," said Dr. Stephen King, state health officer of the recent discovery. "It obviously increases the area where we have to look. We have an obligation to keep looking."

The reports showed that the state treated 4,268 acres with EDB from 1961 to 1983 — far above the original estimation of 422 acres.

"This isn't all of it, this is just what agriculture put down," said Howard Rhodes, DER's director of environmental programs. "There were lots of other users — golf courses, peanut and soybean farmers, next to citrus, are the biggest ones we've found."

EDB has been linked to cancer, nerve damage and sterility in humans since studies began nearly a decade ago.

Hawaii, California and Georgia also have found EDB-contaminated wells, but Florida's problem appears to be large scale.

In Florida, four city water systems and hundreds of private wells have been found contaminated by EDB, which federal environmental officials say is the strongest carcinogen ever identified. State laboratories have been testing 200 water samples a week since the end of July when fears of EDB-tainted water first came to light.

Environmental officials also fear EDB lingers long after it's applied. Those concerns were intensified last week when contaminated drinking wells were found in Brandon, a small Hillsborough County town, an area that had been treated with the pesticide 15 years ago.

DER officials have started constructing a detailed map of areas where the state Department of Agriculture applied EDB.

"Instead of slowing, this EDB problem keeps getting bigger and bigger," said Victoria Tschinkel, secretary of the state Department of Environmental Regulation.

Woman Glad Her Misery Has Company

DEAR ABBY: Last week I read in your column a letter from a young woman who discovered that her mother had been having an affair with her husband. Believe it or not, I was happy to read it because I realized that I was not alone! My mother and husband had an ongoing affair for 16 years before I found out. It had been going on right under my nose and I never suspected a thing. It's been a year now, and I'm still struggling with the anger, bitterness and feelings of betrayal. I'm seeing a counselor who is helping me deal with this. Until I read that letter in your column, I thought I was the only person in the world in such a bizarre situation. Abby, you do such a great service by allowing people to tell their stories. So many times we feel we're so alone that no one could possibly know what we're going through and how we feel. Now I'm sure I'm going to make it. Thanks for being there.

Dear Abby

CLIMBING BACK UP IN COLORADO SPRINGS

DEAR CLIMBING: Don't thank me; that's what I'm here for. Please write again and let me know how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: On a recent trip returning from London, I was driven to near madness by a hyperactive 5-year-old boy who ran up and down the aisles screaming and intentionally ramming people with his toy truck while his parents drank martinis and beamed at him.

After the third time he connected with my second-degree sunburn, I gave up hoping for either the flight attendants or the parents to discipline the child. I told the mother bluntly that the next time the boy rammed me I would probably "ram" him back.

A plane is no place for a child to be running around unsupervised. Also, it was not what I paid a thousand dollars for.

Perhaps major airlines should schedule two or three flights a week for families on long trips — and those of us who want some peace and quiet can fly on the other days when no children under a certain age are allowed on those flights. A sensible idea?

DEB IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR DEB: Sensible indeed. But please don't offer the major airlines suggestions until they resolve their own major problem — surviving.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the 58-year-old feminist who is enraged by the phrase, "Who gives this woman in marriage?"

I always wanted my father to walk me down the aisle, but I never particularly cared for the tradition of being "given away." Although I did not express my feelings about this, after my father walked me down the aisle, and the minister asked, "Who gives this woman in marriage," my father said, "With her mother's and my best wishes, she happily gives herself."

By the way, I had a real "family" wedding: My grandfather was the minister, and my grandmother was my matron of honor!

LISANNE IN N.C.

DEAR LISANNE: Beautiful!

CONFIDENTIAL TO A FOOL IN LOVE IN FRESNO: When a man tells you he's breaking up with you because you are "too good" for him — believe him. He knows himself better than you do.

Pankhurst To Meet Thursday

Officer Terri Trautman of the Longwood Police Department will be the guest speaker at the Thursday, Nov. 10 meeting of Pankhurst.

The luncheon meeting will be held at the Cookery, located on the Seminole Community College campus. Officer Trautman will discuss her career as a police officer, sharing some of the obstacles she has had to overcome and some of her experiences as a female in a male dominated field.

Reservations may be made by calling 834-9699 in the evening. The public is cordially invited.

Pankhurst was formed in 1980 to bring women together through development, service, education, and leadership. Composed of women with a variety of interests and backgrounds, membership is open to any woman who is 18 years of age or older.

Virginia Mercer, left, chairman of the Public Affairs Department of the Woman's Club of Sanford, introduced guest speaker Sandra Goard, at the club's November meeting.

Elections Supervisor Explains Voting Duty To Woman's Club

"A ballot not cast is in fact a vote against the form of government that permits it," according to Sandra Goard, Supervisor of Elections appointed by Governor Graham to fill the unexpired term of Camilla Bruce.

Introduced at the Sanford Woman's Club luncheon Nov. 2, by Virginia Mercer, chairman of the Public Affairs Department, Mrs. Goard continued, "The greatest threat to our way of life is posed by extreme apathy on the part of citizens who do not care enough to cast their ballot."

As an example of this apathy she cited the September 1982 primary with a turnout of only 20%. The second primary in October of 1982 had an even lower 10% turnout. "This," she said, "is discouraging because it means that a small minority of registered voters is making decisions for the majority and this is not the democratic way."

Mrs. Goard is a resident of Geneva and has worked in the office of the Supervisor of Elections for the past six years prior to her appointment to that position. She discussed the responsibilities and duties of her office and emphasized that the main responsibility was to register voters.

In 1981 there were 15 precincts and 8,000 registered voters in Seminole County. Today there are 72 precincts and 80,000 registered voters. There are 32,803 registered female voters and 37,826 registered male voters. Women could exercise a powerful influence upon the outcome of county elections.

Another responsibility, according to Mrs. Goard, is that of keeping voter registration current. Seventeen thousand thirteen permanent registration renewal cards were mailed in 1983. About six thousand of these were returned as undeliverable. Research is presently under way to locate any of these people still in the county.

Other responsibilities noted include notifying overseas voters of elections, qualifying candidates, conducting certified elections and printing ballots for the county elections. Mrs. Goard mentioned that it was becoming increasingly more difficult to find appropriate places to vote and that for the 1982 elections 25 ballot styles had to be printed because of the manner in which the county was divided for elections.

Currently, efforts are being made to educate young people on registration and balloting procedures by visiting the various high schools to demonstrate these procedures. A number of places in the county are open for voter registration, City Hall during the week, a branch office in the Interstate Mall and from now through January a booth at Flea World.

Mrs. Goard announced a change in the voter ID card. It will contain more information for the voter such as his congressional district and precinct number, etc. Information on the back of the card will make it easier for voters to advise the Office of the Supervisor of Elections of changes in address, name and party preference.

During the question and answer period that followed her talk, Mrs. Goard said that all records in her office are public. Anyone can look at them, but it is illegal to copy by any means any part of them.

The regular meeting of the club was called to order by president Pat Foster. "Reflections" for November was given by Kate Nash. She presented a tribute to the flag, excerpts from a speech delivered by Henry Ward Beecher, April 14, 1865, at Ft. Sumner.

Martha Yancey introduced and welcomed two new members, Mrs. Fred Harris and Mrs. Wayne Keeling.

Secretary Ann Brisson reported that the club had given $150 to the General Henry Shelton Sanford Historical Museum making the club a charter member of that organization.

Emy Bill, chairman for the Golden Age Games, advised members to advise her soon if they wished to participate in the bridge and canasta tournament Nov. 11, since space in the clubhouse is limited.

Bettye Smith, chairman of the Conservation Department, stated that her committee had chosen "Water" as the project for the year. Members will be acquainted with the meaning of the terminology currently in use by conservationists and with the action taken or not taken concerning water conservation.

Peggy Deere, district chairman for the Hacienda Girl's Ranch, a state project, reported that 27 girls are currently living at the Ranch. The Woman's Club has already donated $597.25 to the building program which is badly needed to accommodate more girls seeking admittance.

President Pat Foster thanked the chairman, Beth Welchob, and members of the hostess committee for a job well done.

Several potted plants were donated by Pat Sentell as door prizes.

Bartender Has To Have Caffeine 'Fix'

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'm concerned that I've developed a dependence on caffeine. I'm a night bartender in a busy bar. It's important that I work hard and stay "up" like an entertainer in front of an audience. I find that in between coffee breaks I become grouchy, uncoordinated, easily bored and less able to joke and chat with customers. Sometimes I get very weak for short periods.

I never drink a lot of coffee at one time. I just keep a constant level of one or two cups in my system all the time. I have trouble getting out of bed in the morning, sometimes sleeping nine and 10 hours. Even when I get six or seven hours of sleep I feel awful when I get up. I've tried to stop drinking coffee but I get too weak. I've tried to mix decaffeinated coffee in with the regular coffee but I still notice the difference.

How can I ease myself off caffeine without affecting my job performance? Also how can I solve the problem of wanting to oversleep and feeling bad when I get up? DEAR READER—Your description of your problem is a perfect example of the effects of caffeine. It is a drug habit and a person can develop a dependence on it. Caffeine is a brain stimulant and you are correct in describing the "up" feeling.

You would probably do better in withdrawing if you could take a two-week vacation. Taper off by using only a cup or two a day. Then one—and then none. This helps prevent withdrawal symptoms. Start exercising to stimulate yourself. Set a limit on how long you will allow yourself to stay in bed and when you first get up force yourself to exercise. Exercise does wake up the system and energizes a person. That is why you need to avoid too much exercise immediately before bedtime.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a freckle-faced boy and am worried about some ugly freckles. I have them on my face, arms, shoulders and even some on my neck and chest. I'm sick of them. Is there any way that I can get rid of some of them? Is there a cream for skin that will fade them? How can I prevent myself from getting more? Is it true that these will blend together as I get older? If not, how should I deal with them?

DEAR READER—I was a freckle-faced boy, too, but didn't mind the fact that my nose looked like a turkey egg. As you have been told, as you grow up the freckles tend to disappear or be less noticeable. You would have to search hard to see freckles on my face today, but I do have them on the back of my arms. I can assure you they will never hurt you. I don't advise trying anything to fade them, just let nature take its course. They are just localized increased pigment production. They may even make you look younger as you get older and want to look young.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY NOVEMBER 8, 1983
Time will be spent in the coming year in pursuit of knowledge which can be adapted to your immediate needs. Your quest will be successful and profitable.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Serious matters can be accommodated today in a positive fashion. You'll be remarkably able to solve any problems to which you put your mind. Order now: The New Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities and more. Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to give your zodiac sign.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't permit any more to slide by with persons indebted to you. See if you can now work out an arrangement for some type of payment schedule.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to feel a strong need for companionship today, but you won't enjoy being around talkers. Seek out doers.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In furthering personal ambitions today, success is more likely if you keep your objectives to yourself. Don't broadcast your intentions.
PISCES (Feb. 20-29) Something for which you are hoping may sound like a pipe dream to others. However, if you stay your present course it could become a reality.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things should work out well today in a matter where you share something of a serious nature with another. However, patience is still required.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Review the advice given to you recently by an associate whose judgment you respect. It may contain the answers you're seeking.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you are entitled to compensation for something you did for another, today is a good day to call it to this person's attention.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Profound relationships can now be established with two persons you've met socially. The three of you will have much in common.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Now is the time to rid yourself of a number of distasteful chores you've been sidestepping. They're not as difficult as you've made them out to be.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You need some form of social outlet today, but restrict it to old friends with whom you feel comfortable. Don't wait upon them to make the arrangements.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are now ripe to substantially add to your material resources. What's in the wind is quite large, but it may take time to develop.

experts going wrong." Jim: "Today's article involves a couple of Canadian world class players in an important match. The bidding is as it actually took place. We don't approve of it. The actual bidders don't, either. In fact, we won't try to show the proper way to bid the hand except that six clubs is a fair contract and was reached at the other table."

Oswald: "The play at seven diamonds was almost as bad as the bidding, but there was almost no way to go down the way the cards lay." Jim: "A trump was opened. South cashed dummy's ace and queen, noting the fall of the jack from West. Then he led ace and a small club, which he ruffed in hope that the king would fall. The king and 10 of trumps were cashed and West discarded two small hearts, allowing South to cash four hearts. Then all South needed was a successful spade finesse to bring home the silly grand slam."

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby Oswald: "In the first days of the Bridge World magazine, Fly Clubber wrote about experts at their best and worst. We have a policy never to mention names unfavorably, but let's show some modern examples of
