

Extra! Extra! Lions Feed Boys, Reverse Old Order

Quoting Max Stewart, "the old procedure of feeding boys to lions was reversed at Sanlando Springs Friday afternoon, when Sanford Lions fed boy members of the Seminoles team which won the ninth annual championship series."

Before the food was set before them after an evening of swimming and other games, Milton Haddock, Seminoles star, was presented with a baseball in honor of the fact that his scholastic record was the highest in Sanford Grammar School during the year.

Again quoting Mr. Stewart, "Doc Epps, pinch-hitter for the Seminoles in their last game of the championship series, won the 'hot-dog' eating contest with both hands tied behind him. After the contest, however, it was found out that he was not eligible for the championship or the contest, as he passed his 13th birthday 30 years before the contest began."

Those enjoying the picnic were the following members of the 1935 championship team: Eugene Cochran, William Branan, Arthur Wrasan, Richard Meriwether, El-

Palmer Lauds New Sanford Ball Club As Best In Years

Take it from Floyd "Bub" Palmer, former Central Florida and Northeast Florida League umpire, the present Sanford Baseball Club is the smartest which has appeared in this city since Sanford won the Florida State League pennant in 1927 when such stars as Ben Cantwell, Johnny Wilson, Rip Dunbar, and Otto Dumas appeared here.

He made this statement this morning after having witnessed yesterday's Fed victory over the strong Deland team, and he offered his view-point because he believes local fans should lend their united support to what he terms "one of the greatest young teams in this or any other semi-pro league in Florida."

Palmer, declaring the fact that "smart" baseball will win in any league, credited Manager Bill Cobb with having lined up an outstanding group of clean, young college and semi-pro stars who began clicking three games ago. He said that "smart" baseball, he said, is the "smart" baseball he saw last Thursday, pointing particularly to Walker scoring from first in the first inning of that game, on what he termed "heads-up" baseball.

"Smart" baseball led to the defeat of the Reds yesterday, Palmer said as he also lauded Doc Harden as one of the most capable right-handers he has ever seen.

Palmer paid particular tribute to young Tom Walker, brother of the famous star as being "as good a lead-off man as I've seen in three seasons."

"Sanford baseball fans should give this club wholehearted support from now on," Palmer said, concluding his short discussion of the club and its chances of making the second half of the league season. "You want to see an aggressive bunch of college and semi-pro stars who can hit and play in the field, and I think the Sanford club has just what it takes to do it."

Burpee Seed Store Now Air Conditioned

Having recently completed the only air-conditioned seed store-room in the southeast, C. R. Mason, local manager of the Burpee wholesale seed store, revealed this morning that he expected to move into his new location on West First Street sometime before the first of July.

Mr. Mason stated that his new office contains the only air-conditioned seed store-room in the southeast, a room which maintains constantly a room temperature of from 57 to 60 degrees. In this room will be stored practically all of his smaller seed, especially flower and vegetable. This "seed" room has an advantage over the regular refrigeration plants in that it does away with moisture, which is as damaging to the seeds as hot weather. The coils in the system used by Mr. Mason are placed above the room, and the cold air is drawn through the room and forced out the opposite side by a fan, thus eliminating the moisture usually present with the coils.

Burpee Seed Company has been in business some sixty years and is one of the oldest and strongest of the companies. The local branch supplies all of the seeds for all of the Florida counties from Florida and the West Indies.

SUBSTITUTION POSSESSIONS: And he paid into them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness for a man's life consists not in the abundance of the things which he possesses.—Luke 12:15.

If you can bar "unfair trade practices" by federal statute, why not pass a law prohibiting automobile accidents?

Redistribution of wealth may be just a political program for taking money away from those who earned it and giving it to those who didn't.

Paraguay and Bolivia evidently decided to stop fighting when they discovered American newspapers were giving bigger headlines to Mussolini's Abyssinian affair.

A constitutional taxman expects that ours is a government of checks and balances. The checker, we suppose, goes to the floor holders, and the balance act in the end.

How long is a week? Frankford President Roosevelt for going fishing with Vincent Astor. How long is a week? Frankford.

Frankford says a lot about an automobile. He says that the automobile is the biggest business in the world. He says that the automobile is the greatest invention since the wheel. He says that the automobile is the greatest invention since the wheel.

The President of the Florida Educational Association predicts that the 1935-36 school year will be the best yet. He says that the 1935-36 school year will be the best yet. He says that the 1935-36 school year will be the best yet.

As might have been expected a number of North Florida newspapers are endorsing Sanford farmers who have asked for a geological survey before the construction of the cross-state canal. Those sections in the immediate vicinity of the proposed canal seem to feel that the spending of one or two hundred million dollars in that section during the next two or three years would offset any disadvantages the canal might have for Florida farmers. Besides, they insist, if it is true that Florida growers would benefit through obtaining a cheaper route to Eastern markets, Florida farmers would equally benefit by the cheaper route to Middle Western markets.

Karl Lohmann's little misadventure at commencement exercises the other night results in a story told by D. O. McInerney on himself. McInerney had been invited to deliver the principal address at the evening at a banquet while he was still a young man and unacquainted to public speaking. When the time came to speak he delivered his address, but he says he "didn't know what he was saying." He says he "didn't know what he was saying." He says he "didn't know what he was saying."

An Unfair Ruling

Fresh from Sing Sing where he had been serving a five year sentence, Edwin C. ("Alabama") Pitts arrived in Albany N. Y. where he expected to join the Albany Senators with whom he had signed a contract to play at $250 a month, only to find that under the terms of a special ruling of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, he is prohibited not only from playing with the Senators but also with any other professional baseball team.

Pitts had been sentenced to Sing Sing as the consequence of a rash and dangerous escapade in which he with two other comrades engaged when he was a mere youth of twenty years. With pistols they had held up and robbed a restaurant. It was Pitts' first offense. He was promptly seized, and upon a plea of guilty, was given a five year sentence.

At Sing Sing, according to Warden Lawes, Pitts was an ideal prisoner. Never having engaged in any sports before, he immediately joined the prison baseball and football teams, and because of his excellent physique, he made quite a name for himself. Lou Little, Columbia coach, who has seen him play, says he is one of the best in the game. Pitts also took advantage of every other opportunity the prison afforded and his confinement of five years effected a complete cure of his anti-social ways.

When it became known that Pitts was soon to be paroled, a number of baseball teams began to bid for his services, simply because he had developed into a first class ball player. A contract was signed with the Albany Senators and Pitts was all set to make a decent place for himself in the world. Then came the ruling of the National Association. Pitts couldn't play professional baseball because he was an ex-convict.

We don't know much about the social etiquette of this sort of thing or the aristocratic background necessary to become a baseball player, but we hope that Judge K. M. Landis, to whom the case has been appealed, may find some way of setting aside the National Association's ruling, or some excuse for allowing Pitts to carry out the terms on his contract. It hardly seems to us that so great a sport as the national pastime could afford to be so unsportsmanlike as to sack a man when he is down.

If every other profession followed the lead of the baseball association in barring their ranks to Pitts because as a youth of twenty he had made a mistake which brought him into conflict with the law, then what chance of permanent reform would the man have? If he is not to be allowed to make an honest living, how can he be expected to avoid a dishonest one?

We have read a great deal in recent years about the persecution of former prisoners since they have served their sentences. We know that they are followed from one place to another by detectives who warn their employers and succeed in one way or another in getting them fired from their jobs. They bound them from pillar to post until from sheer necessity they are forced into crime again.

This Pitts affair lends truth to the stories we have heard of a man who has paid his debt to society as denoted a receipt in full. After his obligation has been met, society expects him to continue to pay interest.

"Don't's" For Swimmers

With the arrival of warm weather, the desire of boys and girls as well as their parents, in most instances, to go swimming, the importance of reducing the hazards of bathing becomes paramount.

The Tampa chapter of the American Red Cross opened its annual summer course in water safety and life saving the other day, issuing the following list of "don't's" for swimmers:

- 1. Don't swim in full moonlight. Wait at least two hours after eating.
2. Don't swim if you're tired or drowsy.
3. Don't swim if you're exhausted. Rest on your back and breathe in ashore.
4. Don't swim if you have heart trouble.
5. Don't dive without actual knowledge of the depth of the water.
6. Don't struggle if caught in a swift current or under tow. The force of the current will bring you to surface. Then work toward shore.
7. Don't wade into the water with your arms above your head. You'll not be ready to stroke if you step into a hole.
8. You'll lean backward when wading into the water. Always be ready to fall forward.
9. Don't go swimming alone.
10. Don't go for long swims without being accompanied by a boat.
11. Don't swim in unsupervised places.
12. Don't swim the last.
13. Don't accept dives.
14. Don't engage in horseplay.
15. Don't cry for help in fun. You may some time need help and you won't get it.

"Our investigations of water accidents show that almost every one is the direct result of the violation of one or another of these safety rules," according to the Red Cross.

SANFORD TWENTY YEARS AGO

The annual Sunday school excursion yesterday to DeLeon Springs was largely attended, there being 150 tickets sold on the train between Sanford and the Springs. As many other excursions in cars from this city, the crowd was estimated as being about 650 and a glance at the springs about noon would convince anyone that there were about 1000 present.

CANAL DESERVES MORE STUDY

TAMPA TIMES

Reports from New York, to the effect that $25,000,000 has been earmarked by the National Emergency Council for preliminary work on a sea level canal across Florida, have been met with categorical denials from Washington, where it is declared that no such action has been taken, nor is it in immediate prospect.

However, it is certain that, if the huge project, involving an ultimate expenditure of upwards of $125,000,000, finally is undertaken, a good part of any preliminary appropriation or allocation of funds should go for the most extensive investigation and survey of underground water courses and supplies, to determine the effect a canal might be expected to have on water supplies of practically all of Florida lying south of the proposed waterway.

It is common knowledge that much of the water supply of Central and South Florida comes from an intricate and at present unmaped system of underground channels, many of these being equal to good-sized rivers. These subterranean water courses appear on the surface of many points, discharging themselves as great springs, Silver Springs, at Ocala; Crystal Springs, south of the Hillsborough River; Sulphur Springs, here at Tampa; and Hemocoma Spring, at the head of the river of that name, are a few of these huge springs. Other surface openings of these underground rivers are to be found in many of the deep lakes scattered throughout this section.

These subsurface streams, eroded in the course of uncounted centuries in the limestone that underlies most of the lower peninsula, furnish water for areas covering thousands of square miles. Goodly quantities of this water are used for military purposes, had it been possible to divert such necessary enterprises so easily.

Most any old woman of an abstracted mind claims that sea-level canals are a mistake in all certain water supply, if it were deemed wise to cut a canal through the Florida peninsula. But to prove the charge is something else. In this instance it has not been established.

The average person will assume that Maj. Gen. H. B. Markham, chief of United States engineers, would know as much about the probable effects of a canal opening through the Florida peninsula for the purpose of shortening the ship routes of the world as of supplementing the transportation facilities. They could have been used as a precedent against canal dig for military purposes, had it been possible to divert such necessary enterprises so easily.

There's a girl in the neighborhood that might return a favor to a friend or that might be easily swayed by local self-interest. The situation is something like that. The situation is something like that. The situation is something like that.

There's a girl in the neighborhood that might return a favor to a friend or that might be easily swayed by local self-interest. The situation is something like that. The situation is something like that. The situation is something like that.

Young Roosevelt Would Speed Up Rulings By Court

Claims GOP is Hiding Behind Cloak of U. S. Constitution

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Fla., June 12.—(AP)—James Roosevelt, tall, slender son of the President, urged yesterday provision be made for earlier determination of the constitutionality of Congressional Acts such as the NRA.

He charged that Republicans, seeking to regain lost power, are "hiding under the cloak of the Constitution of the United States." Roosevelt, secretary of the Young Democratic Club of America, addressed a meeting of National young Democrats. He came here from a similar rally at Annapolis, Tex.

"As we all realize," he said, "the NRA act over other Administrative measures passed during the first session of the Seventy-third Congress, was the result of a call to action, because of a major crisis in the lives of the individual American. For four years previously that action had been disastrously withheld."

"Unfortunately, the fathers of our country did not provide machinery for the determination by the Supreme Court of the constitutionality of legislative proposals before their enactment. To this is added the burden of slow trial through the courts. News has this past day overnight been so greatly regretted."

"I, for one, would like to propose that provision be made in the immediate future for the earlier determination of the constitutionality of the acts of the national legislature."

The President, he added, cleared the opinion of the highest court, and has sought the advice of the people as to "massed means of striking the admitted grievance of the past few years."

"The issue is clear," he said, "either we as a party solve these problems to the satisfaction of the people and maintain our lead ahead with the great social purposes which aims to secure permanent prosperity for our people, regardless of occupation, or we drift back into the control of those whose training and heritage would lead us to that stage which Abraham Lincoln so dramatically declared to be impossible—half slave and half free."

From the year 1920 to the year 1932, under Republican Administrations, we saw the results in this country of letting a nation accumulate and develop vast economic wealth without at the same time setting up measures to distribute that wealth evenly amongst the entire population.

PALATKA NEWS

The best reason for believing that a cross-state canal will be authorized by President Roosevelt and his work administration, if we entirely overlook the merits of the project as worth including, is that during the past week a violent and apparently systematic campaign of opposition has been launched.

This has broken out at Sanford where the railroad poll is mighty and where it is easy for the people to vote with alarm the danger of a vanishing water supply in a state that contains a larger percentage of aquifer than any other state in the Union.

These might be depressed with the simple refutation that similar reasons could have been advanced against the construction of the Panama Canal or any other big ship for the purpose of shortening the ship routes of the world or supplementing the transportation facilities. They could have been used as a precedent against canal dig for military purposes, had it been possible to divert such necessary enterprises so easily.

China Openly Defies Japan New Crisis

Officers Told To Prepare For Eventualities In Case Japs Press Invasion

Peking, June 13.—China cannot accept the north China demarcation line, national government officials said early yesterday because they would reduce China to the status of a Japanese protectorate.

A statement—the first since the Japanese aggressive leaders—was made shortly after the national government's executive body, met in an emergency session and reported to reject some of the Japanese demands.

Some 400 more Japanese fighters moved into Pien-tsin, east of Peking, and the Japanese council was said to have decided to advance upon Peiping.

The Japanese carry out their advance upon Peiping, said a Japanese official in Peking.

Japanese authorities are pressing new demands upon the Chinese officials in Peking, and the Japanese military forces, whose demands may still more sweeping plans.

The Chinese government has refused acceptance of the national government's demand for the replacement of persons confirmed reports current that the Japanese military forces, whose demands may still more sweeping plans.

Walker Claims Construction Of Canal Will Bring Damage

Editor Charges Jacksonville Group With Attempt To Suppress Damaging Reports

WINTER HAVEN, June 13.—Charging that advocates of the cross state ship canal have sought to suppress the report on it by army engineers, Marvin H. Walker, editor of the Florida Grower, said today that "the people of Florida would rise against them if they knew what that report said about their water supplies."

"Those who propose this surgical operation on our landscape have allowed their enthusiasm to blind them to the great danger in disturbing the fine balance between our fresh and salt waters," he declared at a meeting of the Winter Haven chamber of commerce.

"They are so busy thinking of the $150,000,000 and more that will be spent in building this canal that they bear not the warnings of every competent geologist who has studied this situation that Florida may suffer immeasurably and irreversibly."

Wilson Denies Any Outside Influence Sought Mass Meet

Chuluota Grower Explains Reasons For Anti-Canal Session

James Wilson, prominent Chuluota grower who also is president of the Oviedo Farmers' Club, issued a statement here yesterday afternoon in which he denies that "any solicitation or request from any other interests" than growers and shippers of Central Florida was involved in the calling of an anti-cross-state canal meeting here last Wednesday night. He acted as chairman of the meeting.

Addressing himself to the Florida press which has commented considerably since Wednesday night, either for or against the canal project, Mr. Wilson asked that they assist him in clearing up "mis-statements" which he says were made in many news articles and editorials carried in the press.

His statement is as follows: "I wish to clear up mis-statements that have been printed in several dailies following an open meeting of the farmers and citrus growers of Central Florida.

"This meeting was called on Wednesday, June 5, to which all interested farmers and citrus growers in the central section of the state were invited. This meeting originated among the farmers and growers without any solicitation or request from any other interests.

"An investigation was made by responsible parties as to what effects the construction of the cross state canal might have on the citrus industry of Florida. The result of this investigation plainly discloses that if the cross-state canal is constructed that the farmers and growers face a very serious problem in the lowering of the water supply in both the lakes and the wells in this peninsula.

"The investigation thoroughly discloses that the water in the underground strata is not only being lowered but is being carried to the sea.

"The national government provisionally makes provision for all of the Japanese demands, and the Japanese military forces, whose demands may still more sweeping plans.

Sholtz Lauded As Greatest Executive In Modern History

Lake City, June 13.—Lasting Governor Sholtz as the greatest executive in modern history, and the recent Legislature the most effective and economical in a like period of time.

John B. Hodges, attorney and chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, presented his view of Tallahassee proceedings to members of the Kiwanis Club here at their last meeting.

The 1935 Legislature was divided into blocs, said Hodges. "But despite all this, it was the best session and co-operated more with the Governor than any other in my knowledge since I was 25 years of age," remarked the state party chairman.

Discussing the chain store legislation, Colonel Hodges expressed the personal opinion that this would prove to be unconstitutional.

Tampan, Who Bet Friend He Could See U.S. Without Money, In Sight Of Goal

Tallahassee, June 12.—"Damned-if-not" said Tallahasseeans this past week-end when they gazed at Paul Livingston's conclusive proof that he, his wife and dog had toured the United States without spending a cent.

Livingston rolled into town Friday afternoon in a fifteen dollar Chevrolet and registered at the Floridian. Saturday morning he stuck a bill with "Compliments of the Florida" inscribed thereon in his pocket and proceeded to spend the day pleasantly in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Livingston had their meals at the best restaurants and tea rooms in the city and had their car repaired, both without cost. They spent Saturday night at the Chevrolet with expenses underwritten by the management.

Trial Balloon Season Finds Leaders Busy

Prime Objective Of Next Six Months Is To Make Tests Of Popular Opinion

By BRYON PRICE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Current political happenings can be observed with clearer perspective if it is remembered that this is a season for trial balloons.

In all political camps the prime objective of the next six months will be to test out popular opinion. The favorite way of doing this is to throw out from various angles a plentiful assortment of suggestions and ideas and see what happens to them.

That is why it is especially hazardous just now to jump to conclusions about the real intentions of any political group.

To say that the 1936 election is being fought in a spirit of "trial balloons" is not to say that many of the flowers which bloom so profusely in the summer and fall of a pre-presidential year will be missing from the garden entirely when spring comes again.

The Springfield conference of Republicans has stated some general principles on which at least the party could build next year.

But no one should suppose that has committed the party to those principles. It was a general conference. The greatest pains were taken to keep it non-partisan. There were party factions even in the Mid West which either refused or failed to participate.

Finally and most important of all from the standpoint of present political strategy is the recognition that the 1936 election will be a party contest. It is not a contest of ideas.

It is not a contest of the present Republican organization is having great difficulty getting together even a campaign meeting for 1936. If the "Springfield" idea is not more fruitful of such meetings, some other approach must be found.

Will it be the "Republican" approach? The answer to that question will be decided by the final national convention. There are three realizations including the fact that the Republican party is not a monolith and that the "Republican" approach is not a monolith.

The biggest and brightest Democratic balloon now afloat is that of a possible revision of the constitution.

When Mr. Roosevelt spoke as he did at the already famous press conference, many people concluded he not only favored constitutional changes, but would make that question the paramount issue in 1936.

Actually, he had said no such thing. His words were very ambiguous.

Raymond Bullock Given Seven Year Prison Sentence

Former Manager Of Western Union Asks For Clemency

WEST PALM BEACH, June 13.—Raymond H. Bullock, of this city, who entered pleas of guilty several weeks ago to forging two money orders last October while manager for the Western Union Company here, was given two sentences aggregating seven years in the state penitentiary by Judge John L. Moore in criminal court Tuesday afternoon.

Lee Royal, of Jacksonville, was given a total of 10 years on his conviction on two counts as a forger.

Bullock received two years for forgery of a $500 money order and five years for forgery of a $7,500 telegraph draft, the sentences to run consecutively.

Royal was given five years on each count, the sentences to run consecutively also.

Bullock exhibited his first signs of emotion as he finished a statement to the court before sentence was pronounced. Tears welled from his eyes when he asked for clemency in behalf of his wife and little girl.

"During only six weeks of my life I have ever done anything of a criminal nature," he told the court.

"I will give myself up to my own free will and accord while I was in a country where it is not a crime to be a forger."

Ransom Money Is Spent In Little Town In Indiana

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., June 13.—Homer Pope, proprietor of a filling station at Wauville, Ind., reported to police today that a man driving a sedan bearing California license plates tendered him a $10 bill bearing the number of a note given for the ransom of George Weperhauer.

Pope reported that the man was accompanied by a woman and a girl. He said the man drove away without waiting for change after giving him the bill in payment for gasoline.

Several Hundred Killed In Blast At Powder Factory

BERLIN, June 12.—Several hundred persons were reported killed today in a blast at a explosives factory at Berlin near Wittenberg.

All the factory's workshops were destroyed.

Many houses in the vicinity were demolished, and windows panes for a radius of several miles were destroyed.

Between noon and 3:00 P. M. ambulances were carrying the mangled bodies of the dead and dying workers from the debris of the factory to hastily constructed sheds near the scene.

Physicians, surgeons, and Red Cross workers from throughout the district were summoned to Berlin.

The Florida reported he heard little comment about the ruling on NRA except in expressions of concern over the probable effect on the agricultural adjustment program.

Hauptmann's Case Goes Into Justices' Hands On June 20

Decision Probably Will Not Be Released Until Late In October, Is Prediction

TRENTON, N. J., June 13.—(AP)—Fourteen black-robed justices of the court of errors and appeals will take the life of Bruno Richard Hauptmann in their hands June 20 to determine if he must die for the 1935 kidnap-slaying of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

For four and a half hours—the defense has been assigned three, and the state an hour and a half—they will listen to oral arguments in the quiet, white-walled room. But this will be only preliminary, for during the whole of the summer they will study individually the ten-volume record of the trial at Flemington before deciding whether Hauptmann's appeal from conviction is justified.

The decision probably will be made late in October. Eight votes will be needed for Hauptmann to get a new trial. A 7-7 vote will send the case back to the county courthouse for the first six weeks of this year.

Chancellor Luther A. Campbell, the state's highest judicial officer, will preside at the appeal hearing. With him will be Chief Justice Thomas J. Bragan and seven associate justices of the Supreme Court and five lay judges. Normally the court is composed of 14 men, but there is one lay vacancy, and Justice Thomas W. Trechard, who sat at the Flemington trial, will not take part in the appeal.

Hauptmann himself will not be present at the hearing, and the attendance will be limited to about 15 persons.

The carpenter's lawyers, C. Lloyd Fisher, Frederick A. Pope and Robert Rosencrans, have assigned 101 reasons why they think Hauptmann's conviction is unjust.

Miami Air Races To Be Held In December

MIAMI, June 13.—Miami's annual air races will be held next season on Dec. 12-14, it was decided yesterday.

Officials approved the date of the annual air races approximately a month ago. The change was expected to reduce accident danger. Last year a number of crashes and deaths occurred because of flying in and leaving the races unimpeded dangerous weather conditions.

Officials also expected the change to make the problem of accommodation for some 200 visitors expected at the show an easier one, since the peak of the tourist season is not reached until January.

Final Vote On NRA Extension Due Tomorrow

Roosevelt Ready To Accept Measure Passed By Senate After Filibuster

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—Final Congressional approval of the NRA extension resolution by tomorrow night was indicated today when President Roosevelt told House leaders he was willing to accept this measure passed earlier in the day by the Senate after crushing a fifteen and one-half hour filibuster by Senator Long, Democrat of Louisiana.

Having cranked Long, the Senate at 4:10 A. M. today adopted a resolution to extend the life of the NRA until next April.

The vote was 41 to 15.

Senators then went wearily home to sleep.

House leaders conferred this morning on how final action should be taken on the plan whereby business men would be allowed to make agreements governing labor conditions and unfair trade practices, but under an amendment by Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, accepted at 10:30 a. m., the anti-strike law enforcement would be tightened.

Long and his speechmaking, steady talking, and cease giving, ended finally at 4:00 A. M., having started some shortly after 11:00 p. m.

The Congressman was succeeded by Senator Schacht, Republican of Minnesota, but the blind Senator confined himself to a written speech which was read by the clerk.

This took about an hour.

Then Senator McCarren, Democrat of Nevada, who had been in the night with questions and in negotiations with leaders took the floor but did not talk long.

When he finished there was no one else to talk and the Senate rushed rapidly to a final vote.

Senator Black, Democrat of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate air mail committee, said today he would favor legislation to make pan American airways take a cut in foreign air mail rates if it declined to accept a 20 percent decrease recommended by the Postoffice Department yesterday.

Blind Boys Amaze Group As They Play Baseball, Football

NEW YORK, June 12.—Blind boys that trilled met the cheering crash of bats yesterday in one of the most amazing athletic exhibitions in history.

Eleven blind youths played baseball, football and basketball in the gymnasium of Wesley's Child's Home School (the Home).

They used rubber balls with bells inside. Pitched, batted or tossed, the balls rang. In football, were the hearing and the sense of direction of the blind players, after three years of training that spectators gasped at the speed which they played.

In basketball, a normal student pitched for both sides. The eight blind players missed. Being guided then between bases by runners ignored them.

Football was played almost entirely by "feet," their instructor, Walter J. Dugan, said this was harder for them to learn. They first played the game with marbles for men on a table field marked with ruled lines. They took expertly to it on a pedicure area 10 yards long and five wide.

In basketball they too grew from a marked position.
