How To Tell A Monkey

There comes a time in the life of all men when it becomes increasingly difficult to differentiate between the species homo and the anthropoid.

"Parents, who have sons at the tree-climbing age when they sometimes act more like monkeys than boys," a newspaper writer insists, "can take heart from the announcement of scientists at Smithsonian Institution that an accompanying difficulty of the same period—the often unmanageable 'cowlick' atop Johnny's head—is true evidence that their offspring is human after all and not a throwback to some remote, prehistoric tree-dwelling ancestor."

"Dr. T. D. Stewart, physical anthropologist of the institution, who has been studying the different hair patterns found in man and the various ape-like animals reports that the 'cowlick' is a constant character sign in human beings, but a very rare occurrence among the anthropoids. True the orang-utans, have something resembling cowlicks, but in these apes the unruly hairgrowth springs from the back instead of the front of the head."

In its physical make-up a cowlick in man is a point of hair divergence. Most hair grows in one direction from its point of emergence from the skin. Not so the cowlick. It favors either North, East, South or West, but grows in all directions at once.

If a boy's hair started at the forehead and streamed rearward to the back of his neck it might be easier for his mother—but it would not be quite so human. "Streamlined" hair is the mark of a gorilla, a chimpanzee and the orang. Man, alone, to be different, has the cowlick.

No Deadline For Women

According to a report recently submitted to Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, there is no particular reason why women who have reached the age of forty should not continue to work and progress in their chosen professions.

The Director of the Woman's Bureau of the Labor Department says that forty is no longer considered the deadline for a woman's advance in business.

"The survey was conducted by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs," the Tampa Tribune explains. "Those responsible for the survey, in which more than 20,000 members of the 1,350 club-affiliated with the Federation were questioned, feel that it proves that age is no longer a great handicap to the business woman, provided she has initiative."

"In a former study made by the Federation, in cooperation with the University of Michigan, the highest median earnings were those between 45 and 50 years of age. The arresting fact of the present report is that the highest median is found for a still older group, between 50 and 60, bringing further handicap to the earnings of the business or professional woman."

"The present survey revealed that earnings increased with experience and with age up to 60. They were on a higher level for single than for married women. They were highest in the Northeast and Far North Central sections of the country, increasing with the size of the community."

"The median or average age of the more than 20,000 business and professional women covered in the survey was 39 1/2 years, the youngest member being 17, the oldest 79. The average woman had 13 1/2 years of occupational experience to her credit and apparently looked forward to at least 20 years more of gainful activity."

"And justifiably so, it would seem," the report declares, "judging by the positions held by the older women in the group, those of 60 and over, for example. One thing the study does show: that is that the sooner we discard the line of talk about scrapping the old worker the fairer game we shall play all around."

The Ships And How To Recognize Them

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

If one may judge by announcers, newspaper caption writers and casual enthusiasts, the interest in the fleet greatly exceeds the information about it. One newspaper published a magnificent photograph of the heavy cruiser Indianapolis as the "U. S. Battleship New York, one of the super-dreadnoughts." No one has mistaken the two aircraft carriers, which are as unmistakable as they are extraordinary, but as to the other types and classes there appears to reign a happy and landlubberly confusion.

The "backbone of the fleet" is of course the ten battleships now anchored in the North River. The latest and most powerful are the West Virginia, Maryland and Colorado, each carrying eight 16-inch guns in four two-gun turrets. They are our three "post-Dreadnaught" battleships. They have the clipper bow familiar in all late ships of the battle line. Next in age are the California (flagship of the Battle Force) and Tennessee, carrying three 14-inch guns instead of two 16-inch in each of their four turrets. Otherwise, these five ships are almost identical in appearance, never having been modernized, they all retain the lattice masts, like waste-paper baskets, once characteristic of our Navy, and their two funnels, small in proportion to the ships, are noticeable features.

The next most modern are the Mississippi and New Mexico, again armed with twelve 11-inch guns in three-gun turrets. They are similar in hull form to the later vessels, but recent modernization has changed the upper works completely. Each has but one large funnel, and the forecast has been replaced by a massive tower of bridge and control stations—following the most recent trend in ship design abroad. The Pennsylvania, although the fleet flagship is older still, having been completed before our entry into the war. Though like-wise armed with twelve 11-inch guns in four triple turrets, she differs in a number of ways from the two preceding ships. Modernized at an earlier date, she carries the tripod masts with large fire control tops as developed by the British war-time navy. She is without the graceful clipper bows with long overhang of the later ships, and in this respect resembles the die leather, footprints in the dew, the musty smell of dead leaves in the wood, the odor of bacon cooking in a campfire, or possibly the golden eyes of a Llewellyn setter—and she told her audience that "Whatever these things are, guard them carefully and do not forget to take time to live."

Those attending the luncheon were: Mrs. Dean, Asher Peter of Orlando, and Frederick Fox of Augusta, Ga., as guests, and Rotarians Paul Stine, who presided, Karl Lehmann, Harry Stevens, George Harden, H. M. Watson, S. G. Gray, S. Puleston, G. W. Spencer, R. F. Montsalvatge, H. B. Pope, Leonard McLucas, Martin J. Bram, R. J. Holly, Sr., H. H. Coleman, F. C. MacMahon, J. A. Wright, S. O. Shinholser, W. A. Leffer, W. C. Hutchison, and A. W. Epps.

All have two rather heavy funnels with a marked "rake"; all carry tripod masts. With the Indianapolis, however—the President's review ship and the latest one now here—the bridges are built up into a tower which almost conceals the tripod foremast. The oldest of these ships are the Pensacola and Salt Lake City, which can be distinguished by their flush decks and the fact that they carry four turrets (ten 8-inch guns). The remainder have long forecastles, large airplane hangers amidships and only three turrets, which, with three main battery guns in each, give them but nine in all. Such are the main elements of modern sea power. Among the principal modern naval types only the long, trim and ominous fleet submarines are now missing from New York Harbor.

GOP WARNING IS SOUNDED BY FLETCHER

Assuming Office At Head Of Committee He Says Country Must Put On Brakes

CHICAGO, June 7.—(A.P.)—Henry P. Fletcher, new national chairman of the Republican National Committee met its members today and told them the country "must put on the brakes."

"We've got to bring a realization to the people of what is happening in Washington. We've got to make them realize what is going to happen to them unless the brakes are put on," he said.

Fletcher praised the committee for the new statement of party policy which it announced yesterday.

"Under that banner we can win the fall elections and every other election," he said. "You have united for all of us to go into the fight thinking we are going to win."

Fletcher came to launch the party's campaign to regain its prestige in the fall Congressional elections.

Paralyzing Strike In Steel Industry Looms As Probable

By The Associated Press
Despite the determined efforts of Hugh Johnson, Recovery administrator, to make peace in a paralyzing strike in the steel industry today became hourly more probable while outbreaks of violence in the Alabama mines fields and Cincinnati's typewriter company strike caused a tightening of police vigilance. From San Francisco however, came a hint of a break in the long-shutdown strike, with the release of all Alaska shipping.

Roosevelt Signs Stock Market Control Bill, Seeks Board To Administer Its Powers

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(A.P.)—President Roosevelt signed the stock market control bill yesterday and turned to the processes of setting it to functioning, the first step of which is the appointment of a five-man commission to administer and enforce it.

By its own terms, the bill will become effective, with the exception of its margin provisions, July 1, if the regulatory board has been named prior to that time.

Washington generally expects James M. Landis, federal trade commissioner, who played a prominent part in drafting the measure, will be one of the five selected, thus necessitating also the appointment of a new trade commissioner.

BROAD AMERICAN FARM BELT SEEN GLOOM SHROUDED OVER 8 TIMES

Recent Rains Failed To Break Drouth; Relief Unsighted

(By The Associated Press)
Despite cooler weather and intermittent rains that mitigated severity of the disastrous 1934 drouth, pessimism shrouded the broad American farm belt, Wednesday, having found substantiation in the reports of two government agencies.

As the toll of aridly spread eastward having dead crops in burned fields through wide stretches of the Middle West grain lands, a weather bureau bulletin said recent rains had failed to break the drouth and permanent relief was not yet in sight.

Clarke Robertson Fined $10 And Costs For Having "Abused" Frank Ferguson

ORLANDO, June 7.—Clarke Robertson must pay $10 and costs to the State of Florida for the peace of mind he received by unbending himself of certain expletives directed at Frank L. Ferguson several weeks ago, a criminal court jury decreed Wednesday after deliberating for two hours.

The trial was attended by a record crowd of city and county officials, bankers, business men, automobile engineers, capitalists and members of the Taxpayers' League, who many times were called to order by the court when they laughed at the testimony given in the case.

In his declaration Ferguson had stated that Robertson had gripped his neck when the two men confronted each other in the attention. Robertson declared to the court that he had false teeth and, therefore, could not grip them in the face of the plaintiff.

FIRST STEPS TOWARD BIG NAVY TAKEN

Swanson Okeys Plan For Construction Of 21 Ships To Be Ready In 5 Years

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(A.P.)—In the Navy's first definite move toward treaty strength, Secretary Swanson yesterday approved plans for the construction of 21 Naval vessels.

Fourteen destroyers and six submarines, Swanson said, will be the first ships built under the Vinson plan to lay down by 1939 the 102 remaining fighting craft permitted by treaty.

They will be constructed with $100,000,000 of earmarked Public Works funds to be provided in the deficiency appropriation bill pending in the Senate.

In addition, one heavy and three light cruisers will be built out of current appropriations from special funds approved yesterday. Swanson said the Navy hoped to open bids some time in August.

The United States, under treaty, can lay down before Dec. 31, 1935, 66 destroyers totaling 39,200 tons and 20 submarines aggregating 24,200 tons.

The call for which plans were approved yesterday will bring these totals down to 51 destroyers of about 17,500 tons and 21 submarines of about 27,000 tons still to build.
