Zoo docent classes planned

SANFORD — The Central Florida Zoological Park, 3755 N. Highway 17-92, is once again preparing for a docent training program. Two new classes are scheduled to begin January 19 and 22.

The classes will be running concurrently, one every Wednesday, and one on Saturday for eight weeks. There is a $25 tuition fee for what amounts to a mini-zoology course. Applicants must be 16 years of age or older.

Marketing director Andrea Farmer explained, "The Central Florida Zoo is more than a place to see exotic and native animals. It is an educational facility used by more than 50,000 school age children and groups each year. "Young people learn about the animals at the zoo, their characteristics and future in the wild," she said. "The children and other groups learn through tours led by the docents, who are volunteer teachers."

During 1992, over 12,000 hours of time were volunteered by the docents in helping educate zoo visitors.

After completing the training program, docents are qualified to lead guided tours of the zoo as well as provide animal encounters. Docents also conduct outreach programs which take animals into the community and give educational slide presentations.

Farmer suggests that anyone interested in becoming involved in this challenging and rewarding program should contact the zoo, at 323-4450, extension 121.

Brown plans town meetings

SANFORD — U.S. Congresswoman Corrine Brown, of the 3rd Congressional District, has obtained use of the City Commission Conference Room on the first floor of the Sanford City Hall.

Brown will be in the meeting room from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., on the second Tuesday of each month. She invites any citizens who have comments, suggestions or complaints to feel free to visit and discuss them with her.

STOP members discuss petition

LAKE MARY — The Seminole County Chapter of STOP will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at the Lake Mary Community Center, 260 N. County Club Rd.

STOP (Stop Turning Out Prisoners) members will discuss a petition drive to get signatures for a constitutional amendment that would require prisoners to serve 85 percent of their sentences.

Statewide, 43,000 signatures are needed to get the amendment on the November ballot. Due to prison over-crowding, Florida inmates serve only 30 to 40 percent of their sentences.

Safe case cracked

Sanford cops arrest three in restaurant burglary

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Police say they have solved a case involving the theft of a safe from Shoney's Restaurant on December 17. Three persons have been arrested in connection with the case.

Police Commander Dennis Whitmire said that several persons reportedly had broken into the restaurant at 3150 Orlando Drive through the rear of the building, and used a wheeled dolly to roll the safe out of the building.

"They then put it in a car and drove to the Day's Inn on W. S.R. 46, where they broke the safe open with an ax and removed the contents, which were estimated at $3,866 in cash," he said.

The safe was located shortly afterward in a ditch near the motel. The contents were missing.

Following an intensive investigation, three persons were arrested in connection with the crime. One, James Strahle, 29, of 102 Paddock Court, Sanford, was arrested last Thursday afternoon. Whitmire said Strahle assisted police in locating the other two who were reportedly with him during the burglary.

All three apparently lived at the same Paddock Court address.

Gallery hopes to relocate

SANFORD — One of the cultural centers of downtown Sanford is closing its doors. First Street Gallery, 203 E. First Street, is seeking to relocate.

The gallery, headquarters for the St. Lucia Festival and Sanford Historic Trust, moved into the space in March, 1991. Since that time, it is estimated that over 11,000 people from 38 states and 14 foreign countries have stopped in to see the various art exhibits and displays.

Gallery director Kay Bartholomew, explained that Jerry Gross, who manages the building, has allowed the gallery to occupy the space at a reduced rate. "The space was perfect for an art gallery," she said. "It is a prime location, and we understand his need

County tree farm irks some

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Tax critics and tree nurserymen continued their assault on Seminole County's two-year-old tree farm Tuesday, calling low-cost operations projections "budget trickery" and saying the program was an assault on free enterprise.

Commissioners agreed to seek formal bids from nurserymen to determine if their declarations of lower prices were legitimate.

In September, Grant Malloy, president of Central Florida Taxpayer's Action Network and a shrubbery nurseryman, questioned the proposed $79,210 budget for the program, saying costs for the tree farm at Yankee Lake were greater than reported by the staff.

Public Works director Larry Sellers reported Tuesday the county expects to produce 4,500 trees during the next five years at a total cost of $166,300. But tree professionals said the projection was SANFORD — A 20-year-old Altamonte Springs resident was indicted by a Seminole County Grand Jury Tuesday for first degree felony murder in the October death of his three-month old daughter.

David Michael Bernier, 591 Lake Minnie Drive, Sanford was arrested Tuesday on the murder indictment in the death of his daughter, Kaitlin. The medical examiner reported the baby died of blunt force trauma to the body on October 29. Bernier is also charged with aggravated child abuse.

Bernier and his wife were living in an apartment on Douglas Avenue in Altamonte Springs at the time of the infant's death.

Assistant state attorney Joseph D'Achille Jr., who presented the case to the grand jury, said the couple moved since the infant's death. Altamonte Springs police arrested Bernier at Lake Recovery House, a men's rehabilitation center

New programs: Keeping kids in school

A chance after being expelled

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Students who have run afoul of school board policy and who are expelled from school now have a second chance to reap the benefits of a good education.

On Tuesday afternoon, the Seminole County school board approved the initiation of the REAP program. REAP, which is an acronym for Realizing Educational and Attitudinal Potential, will allow students already expelled from school to return to the fold to pursue their GED high school equivalency diploma. Younger students even have the potential of returning to school with credits earned in the program.

According to board member Larry Strickler, there have been complaints from those who thought the idea was nothing but a system which would tell "bad kids" that it was alright to get into trouble.

"This is not a reward for bad kids. This is a last ditch effort to save some kids," he said. "It's one last chance."

The district will spend about $200,000 a year to help support the program when it is operating at capacity with 45 to 60 students enrolled.

"I'm hoping the small amount we're spending will pay off in big dividends very soon," he noted.

REAP will be operated by the Private Industry Council of Central Florida and will take place at the SANFORD — Once your little one is out of your sight in the morning do you know where he is?

Parents often drop their children off at school or send them to the bus stop in the morning and don't consider their whereabouts until dismissal.

"There was no policy in place for keeping better track of the students," said Debra Adams, the parent of a student at Midway Elementary School. "Before, when a student was absent, the only thing that was required was that the student bring in a note when he or she went back."

Adams said she saw problems with the system.

"If something were wrong, we wouldn't know about it until late in the afternoon," she said.

So Adams, a member of the School Advisory Board (SAC) at Midway, worked with the school administration to create SNAP (Safety Net Attendance Program).

It will take effect next week, on Jan. 19.

The program will require parents to call the school prior to 9:30 a.m. each day that a student will be absent from class.

A special automated telephone line has been installed at the school's new full service school clinic. Parents will be expected to

Boys charged in theft of FBI property

TAMPA — A group of young boys were out to steal a car, but police say they got more than they bargained for when they found the trunk full of SWAT-team weapons belonging to the FBI.

Three juveniles were charged Tuesday with several counts of grand theft auto and grand theft of a firearm, said Tampa police Maj. Ken Taylor.

"It looks like they didn't realize it was an FBI agent's car until they opened up the trunk — then it was surprise, surprise, surprise," said police spokesman Steve Cole said. "Apparently, they divided up all the weapons."

A dozen people, including five youths ranging in age from 11 to 15, were questioned after officers spotted two of the boys carrying an FBI-issue shotgun and .357-caliber handgun through an apartment complex, Cole said.

Police served a warrant on a house in Tampa on Tuesday and found the stolen 9mm submachine gun called an MP5. Seven people were at the house and interviewed by police, but were not taken into custody.

The 1991 Oldsmobile was stolen from a south Tampa motel Monday afternoon and recovered later that night with its trunk pried open and its contents missing.

FBI spokesman Larry Curtin said agents do not normally carry this kind of weaponry in their cars. In this case, the agent from a SWAT team on Florida's east coast came to Tampa for firearms training, and he was required to have all of the weapons available for qualification, he said.

And while investigators do not believe the perpetrator realized the car was an FBI vehicle until after the theft, Curtin said it is not known how the thief managed to circumvent a car alarm and other "physical" theft deterrents that were in place on the car.

Manatee deaths down

TALLAHASSEE — Manatee deaths in Florida fell for the fourth consecutive year, but marine scientists fear the numbers won't hold.

Manatee deaths in 1993 were down 11 percent to 145, compared to 163 in 1992, said Scott Wright, a spokesman for the state Division of Marine Resources.

"It's better down than up, but we've seen reductions in mortality in the past, and unfortunately, the dips were followed by rather sharp increases," Wright said.

A record 206 manatees died in 1990, partly because of cold weather.

Boat-related deaths slipped to 35 in 1993, compared with 38 in 1992. The 53 killed in 1991 was a record, according to state statistics.

Wright said he'd like to believe the latest numbers reflect boaters being more careful in the water, but "it could just mean the number of manatees is down."

Special speed limits are in effect in posted manatee protection zones from Nov. 15 to March 31.

Scientists are planning a statewide manatee count by airplane this month.

City denies abortion clinic's plea

MELBOURNE — The Melbourne City Council has affirmed its decision not to enforce a buffer zone around an abortion clinic which frequently has been the target of protests by anti-abortion groups.

The council voted 5-2 Tuesday to continue to not enforce the 32-foot zone around the Aware Woman Center for Choice.

A judge had ordered protesters to observe the buffer zone, but the city stopped enforcing in October after the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta raised questions as to the constitutionality of the zone.

"Melbourne has not acted strongly enough to discourage this vicious extremist band of radical extortionists," clinic owner Patricia Baird-Windle told the council. "I demand that we be given equal protection under law."

The Florida Supreme Court and Attorney General Robert Butterworth immediately expressed support for the buffer zone, but the city wouldn't budge.

"At the moment, based on the decision of the federal court, the enforcement of this injunction against unnamed third parties violates their First Amendment rights," said City Attorney Jim Reinman.

The case was returned to Florida courts and has not yet been decided.

Council members Pat Poole and Sandy Mavrellis voted against supporting the staff's decision.

"I don't see why we ever stopped enforcing it," Poole said. "I think until the law changes, we should be doing whatever the law says."

Police officers continue to patrol the area on days the clinic performs the surgery.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

HRS given new name, focus

Chiles wants social agency called Department of Family Services

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — From stacks of citizens' and state employees' suggestions, Gov. Lawton Chiles chose "Department of Family Services" as the best name to signal a revival of Florida's beleaguered social services agency.

Though some lawmakers said the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services needs more than a name change, Chiles said Tuesday a new name would reflect actual improvements under way at the 37,000-employee agency.

"The new name symbolizes a new focus, a commitment to build stronger families, prevent problems before they occur, and provide effective treatment as quickly as we possibly can when they do occur," he said.

If the Legislature approves the change, existing expense money will pay to update letterheads, signs and computers without an additional appropriation, HRS Secretary Jim Towey said.

But some lawmakers questioned whether the agency should even survive in its present form.

"It's going to take a whole lot more than changing the name to solve the problems at HRS," said Sen. Ander Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville, seeking the Republican nomination to run against Chiles.

State Republican Chairman Tom Slade accused Chiles of putting symbolism before substance.

"Changing the name of HRS won't help one needy child, punish one juvenile delinquent or change the fact that under Gov. Chiles' administration HRS has been horribly mismanaged," Slade said.

The hunt for a new name drew wide interest, however. Towey and Chiles reviewed hundreds of suggestions, as diverse as "Department of Empowerment," "Department of Lawton," and "Feed My Lambs."

In fact, Chiles hesitated as he introduced Towey as "secretary of the Department of..." He turned to Towey and Lt. Gov. Buddy Mackay. "Family Services," they chimed in.

The name was proposed by HRS worker Kelly Reyes of New Port Richey and by private citizen Joseph Patronie of Port Saint Lucie, who said it denotes "duty, dimension and demeanor."

In a postscript to his letter, Patronie also complimented former HRS Secretary Bob Williams' integrity, and advised Towey: "Cover your flanks."

Williams resigned in March amid confusion over computer errors that ended up making an additional $173 million available for the current state budget.

Reward offered in murder of tax collector

By Associated Press

MIAMI — A tax collector was just "doing his job" when he froze a restaurateur's bank account, and police say he was shot to death because of it.

Donald E. Bonham, 61, was shot four times as he carried groceries into his North Miami Beach home the morning before Christmas.

On Tuesday, a multi-agency task force, which includes the FBI and Interpol, announced a $10,000 reward offered by the Florida Department of Revenue for information leading to the arrest of Pietro Venezia, 40.

Venezia, who is charged in a warrant with first-degree murder, owns Ristorante Buccione Inc., an expensive Italian cafe in Miami's trendy Coconut Grove area.

"The motive for this murder is the fact that Mr. Bonham had frozen the suspect's assets," said police lead investigator, Lt. Linda Kozlowski. Bonham's death is the first job-related murder in the department's history.

"This is a tragic, irrational act unprecedented in the history of our agency," said Larry Fuchs, the department's executive director. "Mr. Bonham was killed just for doing his job."

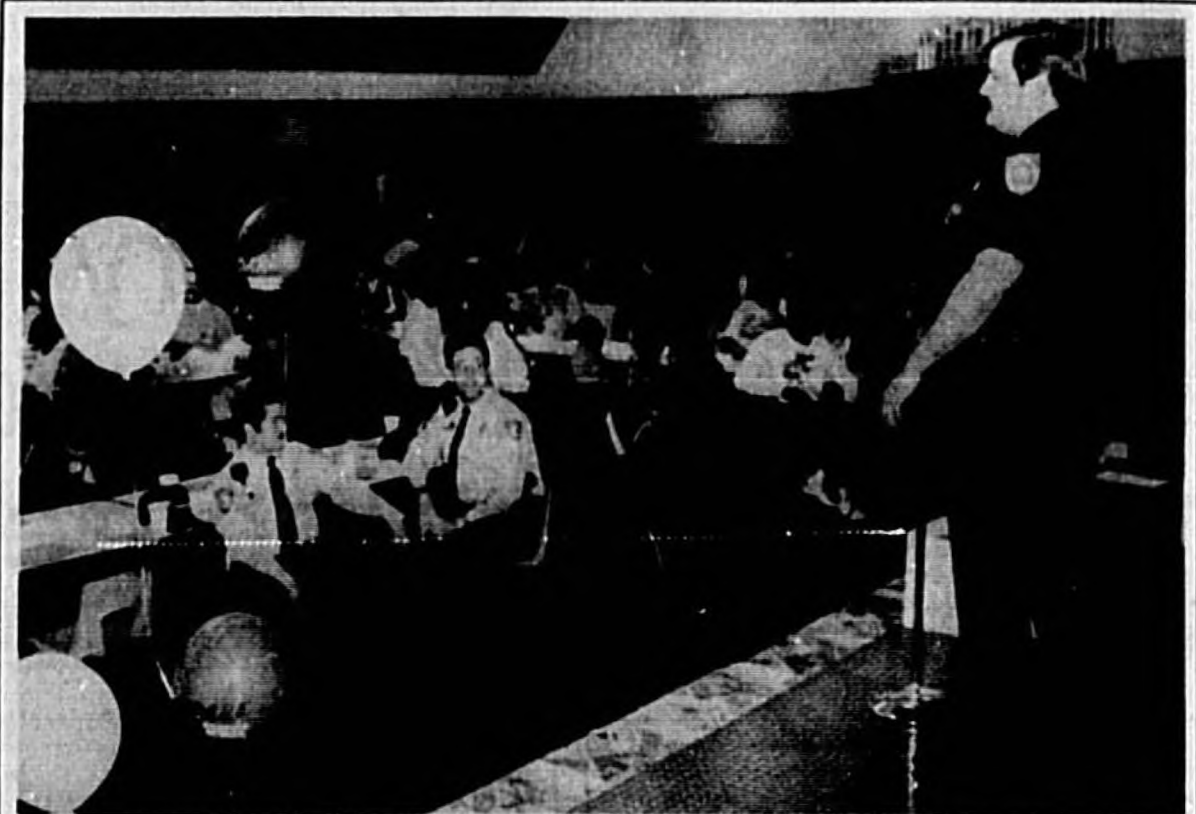

Authorities would not disclose information about Venezia's frozen bank account.

Venezia was a witness in the 1992 Court Broom judicial corruption trial that snared five former judges who were accused of taking cash bribes to fix cases. Venezia testified for the government that lawyers paid for judges' meals at his restaurant in exchange for being appointed to represent poor defendants.

Fuchs said the investigation into Venezia's taxes was not related to the corruption case.

Bonham, who earned $21,700 a year, was not a tax investigator or a sworn law enforcement officer. He joined the department in 1988.

The department has provided psychological counseling for Bonham's co-workers.

Drug arrest

Sheriff's deputies conducted a traffic stop Monday, which resulted in a drug arrest. Michael Tarnell Davis, 18, of 1110 W. 3rd Street, Sanford, was stopped on Old Lake Mary Road near Southwest Road, at approximately 1 a.m., when deputies reported seeing his car being driven with no headlights. Officers said Davis gave them permission to search his vehicle, and several drugs and related items were located. He was arrested on charges of possession of marijuana over 20 grams, and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. He was also issued a traffic citation for driving with no headlights.

Deputies said during their investigation, a female in Davis' car attempted to interfere. April M. Knight, 22, of 2450 Center Street, Sanford, was arrested on a charge of resisting without violence.

During a strip search at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, deputies reported finding a large baggie containing 92 small baggies of marijuana in Davis' pants. He was given the additional charge of introducing contraband to a county detention facility.

Suspected robber nabbed

Preston Simpson, 33, of 2451 Sanford Avenue, was arrested by Seminole County deputies Monday. According to the arrest report, Simpson reportedly approached a man walking on Marker Street, accosted him and took $20 in currency, a $220 gold chain and a $100 watch from the man. Deputies said when they located Simpson on Marker Street, he ran into some woods, then into a utility room behind a residence. When officers attempted to apprehend him, they said he physically fought with them and had to be subdued. Simpson was charged with strong armed robbery and resisting arrest with violence.

Reckless driving charge

Sheriff's deputies arrested Ralph Louis Lapham, 21, of Orlando, Monday. Deputies said he was seen driving his car erratically on Hunt Club Boulevard, and subsequently struck a vehicle and nearly hit several others. He was finally stopped off Wekiva Springs Road near Longwood, where deputies said he abandoned the vehicle and attempted to flee. He was apprehended and charged with reckless driving and fleeing and attempting to elude an officer.

Florida Highway Patrol troopers investigated the vehicles which were reportedly struck by Lapham, and found the car he was driving was owned by a roommate whom troopers said did not give him permission to drive it. The FHP charged Lapham with grand theft auto, and leaving the scene of an accident with property damage.

DUI arrest

Sanford police arrested Lynne Adele Evans, 34, of 259 Maine Road, Lake Mary, on U.S. Highway 17-92 and 25th Street on Monday. Police said she reportedly had been in a rear-end collision with another vehicle. She was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

Domestic case

Sheriff's deputies arrested Freddie Lee Williams, 25, of 2850-S 21st Street, Sanford, in Fern Park. Deputies said he was in a vehicle on U.S. Highway 17-92, involved in an altercation with a female. He was charged with battery, domestic violence, and resisting an officer without violence. He was also found to be wanted on a warrant for failing to appear on a charge of sale of a controlled substance. After being taken to the John L. Polk Correctional Facility, deputies found he was also wanted on a warrant for failing to appear on a violation of the open container law.

SIU arrest

Members of the Special Investigative Unit of the Sanford police arrested Duane Jerrod Jackson, 20, of 1008 Holly Avenue Monday. Police said an informant reported that Jackson was believed to be involved in drug activities. Police located him in front of a store in the 600 block of W. 11th Street. He was charged with possession of crack cocaine with intent to distribute.

Warrants served

• John Wilfred Kelsey, 29, 303 Oak Street, Longwood, was arrested by deputies at his residence Monday. He was wanted on a capias for possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.
• Frankie Carl Reed, 50, with no local address, was located by Sanford police behind a residence in the 400 block of Palmetto Avenue Monday. He was wanted on a warrant for violation of parole on a conviction of burglary.
• Dietra Evette Williams, 21, 38 Shenandoah Village, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police at the hospital Monday. She was wanted on a warrant for failing to appear to pay a fine.

Crime: Hotels' new safety plan

By The Associated Press

HEATHROW — The hotel industry is responding to crime by beefing up security measures and equipment, educating employees and cooperating with business and tourism officials.

The American Automobile Association said only 1 percent of the 22,000 lodging establishments rated in its annual TourBook will not meet new room-safety requirements by the end of this year.

AAA called for deadbolt locks, door peepholes, and special locks for sliding doors in all the hotels receiving its "recommended" ratings. The 290 lodgings that do not comply, will not be included in the 1995 TourBook, available to AAA's 35 million members.

"The new requirements were implemented as part of AAA's ongoing commitment to traveler safety and the knowledge that our members want these security measures in accommodations," said Kris Krause, director of AAA's Industry Evaluations.

More than 17,000 properties, or 79 percent of the 22,000 rated hotels, already meet the stronger requirements, he said.

Hotel operators also are beefing up outside security in places such as parking lots and hallways, and instructing personnel about protective measures.

The National Business Travel Association is trying to help.

The NBTA is providing company travel managers with questionnaires that are filled in by hotels to list specific services and security measures they provide.

The questionnaires ask hotels whether doors have deadbolts and peepholes, whether parking areas are lighted and patrolled, whether there are uniformed security personnel and whether the staff been trained in security measures.

Security at a glance

Hotel and motel security officials, the American Automobile Association and the tourist industry make a series of recommendations for travelers. Among them:

- Check for proper lighting in the parking lot, lobby and hallways.
- Ask desk clerks about security personnel.
- Make sure doors have deadbolts and peepholes in hallways.
- Carry a rubber doorstop as an added way to stop intruders.

• Make sure the telephone works.

• Check, or otherwise secure, all valuables at all times.

• Make sure that automatic doors close tightly and don't hang up on heavy carpeting.

• Ensure that hotel personnel do not reveal guest identities and room numbers.

• Use hotels that have inside corridors so that all visitors must walk past the front desk to get to guest rooms.

• Be suspicious.

Other questions deal with separate floors for women, duplicate keys, the frequency of changing door locks and fire safety.

A growing number of travel managers want such security information before bookings are made, said Michael Kabo, chairman of NBTA's hotel committee.

Charges dropped in shooting incident

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Charges were dropped Monday against a Sanford man who was charged with shooting at two brothers on a Lake Mary street in July.

Assistant state attorney Jerry Jones discontinued prosecution of charges of aggravated assault and shooting at/within/into a car against Michael Ray Cunningham, 44.

Two Sanford brothers claimed Cunningham fired two rounds at them on Country Club Road July 2. Lance and Travis McCabe, both of Sanford, said they were involved in an altercation over a traffic incident with Cunningham. They claimed all parties remained in their respective vehicles but that Cunningham fired a handgun at them, striking their car.

Cunningham told authorities the brothers threw a soft drink at him and one man approached his car with a baseball bat at a stop light on Lake Mary Boulevard at Longwood-Lake Mary Road. Further, Cunningham said he fired the shots because he was being pursued by the pair on Country Club Road.

Jones said the charges were dropped because some of the initial statements of the brothers were not substantiated by witnesses, who now reside out-of-state. In addition, a Sanford police officer overheard one of the victims discussing the incident saying that if the roles had been reversed, he would have fired shots, too.

"I thought dropping the charges was best," Jones said.

'Homicide' hits the Nielsen ratings big

NEW YORK (AP) — Seems like "Homicide" is full of life.

Little-watched during its brief run last season, the NBC police drama cracked the Top 10 last week.

In its season premiere, "Homicide: Life on the Street" copped a 17.3 rating and was the No. 10 show of the week, the A.C. Nielsen Co. said Tuesday.

Was guest star Robin Williams solely accountable for the big tune-in, or have viewers finally caught up with this arresting series?

That remains to be seen. Current plans are for the series to run just four weeks, although continued high ratings could mean its return in the fall.

Overall for the week of Jan. 3-10, ABC won with a 14.1 rating. CBS had a 13.4, NBC a 12.0 and Fox a 7.5. One ratings point equals 942,000 households. In the evening news ratings, "ABC World News Tonight" kept its hold on the top spot with an 11.0. "NBC Nightly News" had an 11.0 and "The CBS Evening News" a 10.9.

Here are the top 10 shows, their network and rating: "Home Improvement," ABC, 23.1; "Seinfeld," NBC, 22.5; "60 Minutes," CBS, 20.9; "Roseanne," ABC, 20.5; "Frasier," NBC, 20.0; "Coach," ABC, 19.7; "Grace Under Fire," ABC, 19.4; "Murder, She Wrote," CBS, 19.1; CBS Sunday Movie: "Snowbound," 18.2; "Homicide: Life on the Street," NBC, 17.3.

Crackdown on 'adult' fun

The City of Sanford has officially approved a set of rules which govern adult entertainment establishments. The measure passed without any objections.

This does not mean such businesses cannot operate within the city limits. Those that do however, will be required to be located in specific commercial zones.

In making a presentation to the City Commission Monday night, Orange/Osceola Assistant State Attorney Joe Cochierella commented that persons who would start such businesses are fully aware of methods to fight municipal laws. "Whenever a government tries to regulate something," he said, "they will never be immune from litigation."

At this point, either no one has indicated any intentions of opening such a business in Sanford, or those who know about it are remaining silent. Yet city officials urged a rapid enactment of this governing ordinance.

Cochierella explained that whenever such an adult entertainment business is established, the commercial value of property anywhere near it plummets. He told the city commission that the newly passed ordinance is not as much a moral issue as it is for the protection of property values and for limiting criminal activities.

From comments heard about Sanford's ordinances, we believe they are worth consideration by other government bodies. If we have a concerted effort on the part of our cities and counties, we will be giving the message that adult entertainment businesses are not welcome.

No matter what our governments do, we probably will not eliminate this type of business. What we can do however, is enact such strict regulations that they will be hesitant to attempt moving in.

Whether there was some hidden urgency to enact adult entertainment ordinances or not, we commend the city for prompt and what appears to be a well prepared response.

Cochierella told Sanford it had much stricter rules and regulations than Orange County or Orlando.

We urge those cities who presently have some adult entertainment codes to examine the Sanford ordinances. If changes are warranted, immediate action should be taken to avoid problems in the future.

Answers to Waco tragedy?

Eighty six innocent men, women and children were murdered at the Mount Carmel Compound in Waco, Texas. April 19, 1993 will be remembered as a day of infamy.

Is this the first strike by the federal government against organized religion?

Were the AFT agents part of the multi jurisdictional task force?

Were they really soldiers of the United Nations?

Were UN troops massing for an invasion of Texas from Arkansas?

Why is the federal government after your gun?

Why does the mass media brush off the Branch Davidians as kooks?

For answers to these and other questions concerning the Waco tragedy you are cordially invited to attend a speech by Linda Thompson, Saturday, Jan. 15, 1994 at 7 p.m. It will be held at the Winter Park Civic Center, 1050 West Morse Blvd., Winter Park.

BEN WATTENBERG

One columnist's menu for 1994

HILTON HEAD, S.C. — Along with some personal New Year's resolutions, readers deserve a sense of what to expect their columnists to write about in the year to come. I offer no guarantees, but here are some of the things I expect to look at, that I swear, started out as a random list but retroactively arranged itself into the modest theme of "Can America re-organize itself and save the world?" (Such small topics are a specialty here at "Renaissance Weekend.")

Welfare. The big question is whether the Clinton administration is going to come up with just another plan to tinker with welfare, or follow the public will and do something dramatic. Any dramatic proposal will mean pitched battle with liberal interest groups, but could go a long way toward changing what's gone wrong in America, and serve as a global model. The public dialogue about welfare gets scrambled when it is said that "good jobs" must be "created" in order to get people off of welfare and on to work. It's not going to happen. Governments don't create jobs. Most people start out in "bad jobs," and work their way up.

Crime. It too is driven by public outrage. It too is growing world-wide. The most important crime bill in American history has been passed by the Senate. By establishing regional federal prisons for violent state prisoners while demanding that states stop playing softball with parole it could actually cut the crime rate. The bill must still pass the House. Again, liberals are in opposition. Again, the outcome will depend on which way the White House pushes.

Quotas. How the president and the courts interpret the 1991 Civil Rights Act with its doctrine of "disparate impact" may sound legalistic. But it deals with the idea of merit, which determines whether diversity is a blessing or a curse for America. It ties right into the issue of immigration, about which I also expect to write. Quotas and immigration, like the rest of the list here, are problems around the world. Health Care. Another global issue. I heard the White House case here. They say it is a crisis, that the number of uninsured keeps rising, that their plan will offer more choice and less regulation, that it won't hurt medical research. So I resolve to give it a close look before I touch it again. When I do, I'm going to try to look at it from the doctor's point of view. Doctors are often unsung heroes, we patients are the beneficiaries.

The Election. Voters chose Bill Clinton in large measure on his pledge to break up the "something-for-nothing" syndrome. (That's Clinton's phrase.) It is up in the air whether Team Clinton is doing that, and whether Congress is helping or hindering. Something-for-nothing involves issues like welfare, crime, quotas, budget deficits and many more — issues where voters have clear, tough preferences. Voters won't have a chance to assay what Clinton has done until 1996, but they will get a chance to judge their members of Congress this year. If incumbents don't respond, I hope voters send them a message. That's how to change America, and the world.

On the personal side, I, like most Americans, also resolve to spend more time with my family and more time on my work.

Infertility: How far do we go?

BOSTON — It's been 15 years since Louise Brown's birth was flashed across the globe in headlines announcing the arrival of the first "test-tube baby." In retrospect, her conception in a petri dish from her mother's egg and father's sperm seems relatively natural.

Today, a man's sperm can meet a woman's egg for a one-night stand in a laboratory. The genetic offspring of these strangers can then be placed in a second woman's womb, and given to yet another couple for raising.

In the years between Baby Louise and Teen-ager Louise we learned to subdivide the very word mother into functions: genetic mother, gestational mother, birth mother, social mother. We spawned an entire generation of ethical worries about reproductive science and human nature.

Now, from Europe, comes the next generation of these fertile questions. They have arrived unexpectedly, carrying uncomfortable little identification tags that read "retirement babies" and "fetus farming."

In Italy and England, women who were infertile for the most natural of all reasons — they had passed menopause — have been impregnated as late in life as 59 and 62 years old. With the egg from a young woman and the sperm from a younger husband, with hormones pumped in and dollars freely spent, they have broken the biological barrier.

In Scotland, a researcher announced in a calm scientific voice that within a few years, we will be able to "harvest" eggs from an aborted female fetus. He raised the specter of children whose own genetic mothers were literally never born.

I don't think there are thousands of women eagerly waiting for the chance to cash in their Social Security checks for maternity clothes and diapers. Nor do I think that a woman who chooses to have an abortion would want her female fetus to become a mother. I cannot imagine that the same woman who decides not to be a birth mother, for example, would consent to becoming a birth grandmother.

But these cases raise deep anxieties about the choices that science now offers and human beings now have to make. And they are by no means the last nor most unsettling options.

Last week, for example, the French government proposed banning the use of donor eggs for the in vitro fertilization of post-menopausal women. But what if these eggs belonged to the women themselves? A few years ago, before soldiers went off to the Persian Gulf War a number banked their sperm. If women want to beat the biological clock, will they deposit their eggs in some holding tank for future use?

The notion of taking eggs from aborted fetuses is grotesque. But how long is it before someone suggests filling the "shortage" of eggs in other ways. Will brain-dead or dying females become egg donors the way they are now kidney and liver donors. Will we harvest eggs to conceive our own grandchildren?

We need some ethical stop signs. One stop sign goes up at the idea of using fetal eggs at all. Another stop sign should go up at the sight of the dollar sign. In no way should eggs or sperm be bought and sold in the marketplace.

Will such stop signs make it harder for infertile couples to have children? Maybe so. Every step on this reproductive hi-tech-way, from in vitro fertilization to cloning has been defended as a way to help with the real pain of infertility.

But how much of a help is it? For every woman who eventually delivers a child, how many others are led further and further down paths of false hope that don't have to end now until death.

Even if this technology does produce a picture-perfect baby for some couples, it's fair to ask how much we should sacrifice in moral and scientific terms for that portrait. In the end, this may be the toughest ethical issue.

We live in a world that is bursting at the seams with children. We cannot count the unwanted and the underfed those in need of families. In such a world, how much should be devoted to the problems of infertility?

Before Baby Louise began life in a petri dish, we depended on nature, the life cycles, the human body, to determine our limits. Now we must depend on the heart and the brain. At times, they seem like much less reliable organs.

We learned to subdivide the very word mother into functions.

Military's recycling funds going for fun

WASHINGTON — At a time when 16,000 military families are on food stamps, the Pentagon is pouring millions of dollars a year into golf courses, jogging trails and ski equipment.

The recreation activities are being funded in the name of recycling. But "going green" at the Pentagon has more to do with manicuring the green grass of golf courses than raising environmental consciousness.

The Pentagon's recycling program, which began in 1982, encourages military base commanders to sell recyclable materials — such as cardboard and paper — instead of sending them off to landfills. The proceeds are supposed to pay the costs of the program and fund environmental and safety projects. If there's any money left over, it can be added to the base's Morale, Welfare and Recreation fund.

But a recent audit by the General Accounting Office reveals that base commanders are routinely selling items that are specifically excluded from the recycling program and do not reduce the waste stream. These materials include: crashed aircraft, jet engines, vehicles, aircraft and ship parts, electrical components and unopened containers of oil or solvent.

By pouring the proceeds from these sales into the recycling program, base commanders are beefing up their MWR funds to the tune of unaccounted millions. GAO has concluded that because of this "widespread abuse... millions of dollars are being used annually for MWR activities that should be used instead to offset the need for appropriated funds or be returned to the U.S. Treasury."

In fact, while the recycling program was designed to cut down on waste, GAO found that about 90 percent of the program's proceeds come from items that wouldn't otherwise go into the waste stream. The Norfolk Naval Base in Virginia, for example, sold $789,000 worth of F-14 aircraft brake parts. The Toccole Army Depot in Utah received almost $2 million from the sale of Army all-terrain vehicles that require mutilation prior to sale.

"These items were paid for by taxpayers in the first place," one GAO source told our associate Ed Henry. "Any proceeds from selling them should be sent back to the treasury to cut the deficit. It shouldn't be put into the recycling program, which ultimately funds recreation."

The recreation activities that are being funded include the construction and renovation of golf courses, jogging and running trails and fitness centers. Bases are also purchasing golf carts, four-wheel drive trucks, vans, station wagons, and recreational camping, boating and skiing equipment.

Official proceeds have climbed from a mere $1.5 million in fiscal year 1983 to a whopping $37 million in fiscal year 1992. But some bases are also holding their own sales instead of selling the material through the authorized disposal offices. This makes the exact amount of money that bases are raking in — and subsequently spending on MWR activities — nearly impossible to track.

Normally, each base raises its own MWR funds from enlisted personnel to maintain recreational equipment for everyone to use. Unfortunately, recreation and welfare funds don't always trickle down to the troops. In 1989, we reported that officials at Andrews Air Force Base used MWR funds to buy and maintain a Mercedes-Benz reserved exclusively for a four-star general who visited the base a handful of times each month.

The recreation activities are being funded in the name of recycling.

Nazis' paths to Argentina discovered

Files provide tidbits on infamous Nazis including Josef Mengele

By IAN KATZ
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Researchers sifting through hundreds of thousands of documents are finding detailed accounts on how Nazi criminals and collaborators entered Argentina after World War II.

The files, released by President Carlos Menem almost two years ago, have provided some tidbits on infamous Nazis such as Josef Mengele.

Perhaps more importantly, they show that dozens of war criminals and hundreds of collaborators immigrated to Argentina, often with the help of high-ranking government officials.

"With every day of work, we find more names," said Beatriz Rubel-Gurevich, director of an eight-member research team sponsored by Jewish organizations. "And there are a lot more files to look at."

The researchers are uncovering most of the details at the Foreign Ministry archives, tucked away in a dilapidated warehouse in a working-class Buenos Aires neighborhood.

One of the best-documented cases is that of Milan Stoyadinovich, pro-Nazi prime minister of Yugoslavia, who signed a cooperation accord with Italy in 1937 and visited Adolf Hitler in 1938 before being forced to resign the following year.

Documents seen by The Associated Press show that the Foreign Ministry rejected his visa request in June 1947 after the U.S. State Department warned that he might try to enter South America.

But a top ministry official intervened, writing in a memorandum that Stoyadinovich was "a person of recognized morality" and recomending that he receive a visa.

Later memos indicate that the foreign minister and immigration director personally approved Stoyadinovich's visa. In August 1947, his wife and two daughters were allowed into Argentina. Stoyadinovich followed them a month later. Researchers have no information on what became of him.

But for Hanny Dreifuss Hirschheimer, a 20-year-old German Jew, Argentina's doors were shut.

Her May 1946 visa application, made to the Argentine Embassy in Uruguay, received the following response from an official there: "In addition to being a Jew, I have negative reports on her past. Therefore I believe that entrance should be refused."

Foreign Ministry records show that those exact words were written on the applications of many Jews who applied for visas.

"But to believe that there was only one, pro-Nazi, anti-Semitic Argentina would be a mistake," said head researcher Adrian Jmelizky. "There were many politicians and officials who openly opposed immigration based on ideology."

Many Jews and Nazis immigrated to Argentina through embassies that sold visas to anyone.

The Argentine Embassy in China sold hundreds of visas, some for as much as $2,500, to both Jews and Nazis in 1946-47, the researchers said. About 250 buyers were not allowed to enter Argentina because the government nullified their visas after learning of the embassy's scheme.

It has been widely debated in Argentina whether the 1946-55 government of Juan Peron was ideologically aligned with Hitler or allowed Nazis into the country because of their scientific and military expertise.

White House reassesses review

President claims innocence in Whitewater issue

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — Stung by Democratic defections, the White House is reevaluating its opposition to a special investigation of President Clinton's investment in a controversial Arkansas land development.

Clinton on Tuesday insisted anew that neither he nor Hillary Rodham Clinton had done anything improper in a Whitewater Development Corp. investment in the 1980s that he said proved a money loser.

"The most important thing to me and the most important thing to the American people is I'm completely relaxed about this because I didn't do anything wrong except I made a bad business deal," Clinton told CBS-TV in Prague, Czech Republic.

But Clinton suggested he was revisiting the subject of an independent review because his decision to give his Whitewater records to the Justice Department had not quieted the political controversy over the matter.

"We gave it all to them, then people said, 'That's not enough,' so I think we need to evaluate that and see where we are," Clinton said when asked whether he opposed having Attorney General Janet Reno name a special prosecutor to review Whitewater.

Clinton's comments as he visited Eastern Europe came as aides back home in Washington scrambled to reassess a damage-control strategy that had been anchored on painting the calls for a special prosecutor as partisan sniping from Republicans.

But since the weekend, a growing number of Democrats, including at least eight senators, have joined Republicans in recommending an independent investigation, stripping the White House of its argument that such demands were the product of politics.

None of the Democrats has suggested any wrongdoing by the Clintons. But they have said Clinton risks a protracted, distracting political fight over Whitewater that could be avoided through an independent investigation.

"I think the world of Janet Reno and of the president and I want him to get back on his agenda and not have this thing get dragged out," Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr., said in an interview.

Gallagher: Small businesses can comparison-shop now for insurance

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Now that small businesses can comparison shop for health coverage, the insurance industry will be forced to become more competitive, Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher said.

Thanks to reforms enacted last year, in three months' time, small businesses will be able to call the state Department of Insurance to get rates for uniform plans offered by different companies.

"This is the first time the public has been able to actually compare rates," Gallagher told reporters Tuesday.

Thirty-seven insurers and 18 health maintenance organizations have proposals pending in Gallagher's office. Information on nine companies that have had their filings approved is now available; the department's toll-free number is 1-800-342-2762.

Last year lawmakers decided all insurance companies that want to do business in the small-group market must sell policies to all customers who want to buy them, regardless of medical background.

"What that basically means is that they must give you the policy if you're a small business," Gallagher said. "There is no medical underwriting. No matter what you have in regards to a health care problem, they may not underwrite that."

That "guaranteed access" provision became effective for businesses with three to 50 employees this month and will expand to businesses with one or two workers April 15.

The Legislature also adopted modified "community rating." That means insurance companies can no longer base their rates on the history of the claims they receive. Instead, rates are linked to only five factors: area, family, age, gender and tobacco. Modified community rating may make initial premiums higher than they would have been under the old experience-based rating system. But renewal rates will be much smaller because a phenomenon known as the "death spiral" will be prevented, Gallagher said.

A death spiral occurred when an insurance company raised rates and healthy customers dropped their policies, knowing they'd be able to buy new ones. Policyholders with health problems, however, were stuck since they would not qualify for new insurance. The flight of healthy customers accelerated the rate increases, since the pool of policyholders became smaller and sicker, until finally very few very sick people were left paying very high rates.

Researcher: Program successful in preventing teen pregnancies

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A 1990 law that gave grants to schools with high pregnancy rates to pay for better health services and prevention programs seems to have had some success, a university researcher said.

Nationwide, programs have had a hard time preventing teen pregnancies, according to Carolyn Herrington, a researcher at Florida State University.

"We basically do not know how to reduce the rising rates of teen-age pregnancy," she told the Senate Education Committee. "But this Florida program does show some positive indications."

Herrington cautioned, however, more study is needed to confirm the preliminary results, partly because teen-age pregnancy rates are hard to track. Although Herrington's report was prepared a year ago, she presented her first legislative testimony on the study Tuesday. After much debate in 1990 about sex education, birth control and abortion, state lawmakers decided to provide grants for supplemental health services to schools with high pregnancy rates. With local approval, birth control could be provided, but not information about abortion.

To get the money, schools had to work with the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. They could follow model programs or design their own.

Some $9 million is spent on the program for approximately 50 schools, serving 8 percent of the state's students. However, Gov. Lawton Chiles has proposed increasing the funds by another $4 million, Herrington said.

Most of the money has been spent on hiring new school nurses, Herrington told the committee.

Nearly 56 percent of the 36 schools visited by researchers reported a decrease in the number of pregnancies. Not quite 14 percent reported no change and almost 31 percent reported an increase.

Projects seemed to become more effective in their second year, according to the report. Seventy-one percent of the schools operating a program for a second year reported a drop in teen pregnancies.

call that number to report an absence.

Each teacher will take, as they do now, attendance each morning.

The two lists are then compared.

If a student is not in class and the parent has not called, the school will make an effort to contact the family.

"Sometimes the parents will have forgotten to call in," Adams said. "But we will also be able to find out if there was a problem by 10 o'clock in the morning," Adams explained.

The school administration accepted Adams' suggestion with open arms, she said. School officials are always looking for ways to ensure the safety of the students.

The introduction of SNAP was not prompted by any incident involving a student.

"But we want to be sure nothing happens," she said

PIC's Reflections office building on Lake Mary Boulevard in extreme southern Sanford.

The district will provide transportation to those students who are unable to get to the site of their own accord.

The school board will pay PIC $28 per student per day for the first 30 students enrolled in the program. In addition when the number of students rises above 30 and then above 45, the amount would rise to allow the program to hire additional teachers.

The district will also contribute $46,000 to PIC to pay start up costs such as the purchase of desks, computers and educational equipment.

Students who have already been expelled from traditional schools will be recommended to the program. However, those students who were expelled for violent offenses, such as use of a weapon against another person, will not be eligible for the program.

According to Tom Marcy, executive director of high school education for the district, about a dozen youngsters will be in classes at PIC when the program gets underway on Feb. 1.

He has high hopes for the students, but he isn't expecting miracles. "We don't expect to transform them into angels over night, but we do want to see a dramatic turnaround," he said.

Students in the program will be required to earn a grade point average of at least 1.5 on a four point scale. They are also expected to reduce the number of discipline referrals they incur.

Students will be expected to behave according to district policy.

PIC will also get a bonus for each student who achieves higher than a 2.5 grade point average. They will also earn extra money from the district if there is a better than 92 percent attendance record for the students.

Strickler, who also serves on the PIC board of directors did not vote on the recommendation, citing a conflict of interest. All the other board members voted for approval, however.

to get a greater return on his investment."

Bartholomew said Gross is reportedly leasing the building at a commercial fee for use as an antique gallery.

"He has offered us the use of a nearby facility," she said, "but it is on the second floor, with no direct access, and no restroom facilities. I doubt if we would consider that."

Bartholomew said the gallery's Board of Directors will be meeting with Gross this Saturday to discuss other options which may be pursued.

Gross said he would discuss other possible options at that time, but would not comment this morning on any of the proposals. "We will be putting in an antique shop where the gallery is presently located," he said.

The adjoining business, at the corner of First Street and Magnolia Square, formerly housing Soup To Nuts restaurant, is also managed by Gross. That building has also been vacated, and Gross said the plans are to lease it to become a separate antique shop, not connected with the one planned at 203 E. First Street.

The present location is still open, but no exhibits are on display. "We may use this interim time to try to sell some of the framed portraits we have been given," Bartholomew commented this morning, "but that's something we will have to work on. Actually, we don't know how soon before we actually have to get out of the building."

"We started this venture with a few willing workers who cleaned, painted and bought used furniture," she explained, "doing it all with limited funds of under $1,500. In the meantime we have contributed to the culture of Sanford and provided an outlet for artists and other talents."

"If we can do that and survive for three years," she added, "then I know we can meet this challenge now."

Dr. Karen Copp, current president, views the change as positive. "Certainly it is a growing pain, but transitions are always exciting times and we will just go on to bigger and better things," she said.

The "Florida Scenes" watercolor exhibit scheduled to open this Friday at the gallery has been cancelled, but plans for other functions are continuing.

The "Pops on the Square" musical event planned for this spring is still scheduled. The event will feature original music about Sanford as well as dancing. Richard Ryan, the gallery's incoming president, is chairman of that event.

Bartholomew said she felt saddened that the gallery would have to move from such an outstanding location. "But it's all in the name of progress," she said. "We have all been working on improving the development of downtown Sanford, and this is just one of those developments which will be bringing new business into town."

"This move is actually a by-product of growth," she added, "and for that, we feel very enthusiastic."

Trees

artificially low. "These people are naive or lying to you," said Charles Cox, a Seminole County tree nurseryman.

The tree farm was begun in 1992 at the recommendation of the late Bob Sturm in an effort to reduce the cost of landscaping roadways and parks. At the time, county officials estimated a roadway landscaping program would cost $390,000 per year.

During the first year of operation, the county spent $55,700 to establish the nursery and hire a caretaker at $18,314 per year. This year, the county budgeted $79,210 to step up production and another $15,774 to buy a truck and telephone connection for the program for a total of $150,684. Sellers said the program will produce 500 trees next year, then 750 trees each year thereafter.

Jim Knight, of the Florida Nursery Growers Association, said all the trees acquired so far by the county should be given to the schools and the county should return to buying trees from wholesale nurseries, saying the program was "interfering with the private sector."

"You want us to give them away?" asked a surprised commissioner Pat Warren.

Commissioner Daryl McLain quizzed the tree farmers, asking them their price to produce the same number trees. Cox said approximately $300,000.

"Now let me get this straight, you say the county should spend more money to buy trees from the private sector to landscape roads?" asked an equally surprised McLain.

"Yes," was Knight's answer.

Malloy's comments that the staff-produced figures amounted to budget trickery and "I question the credibility of the staff preparing these figures" brought mixed reactions from commissioners and staff. Warren said she also questioned the credibility of the staff for buying magnolias and wax myrtles for road landscaping, saying both were unsuitable.

Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide said he was opposed to the tree farm's competition with private businessmen and supported McLain's call for bids. Commissioner Larry Furlong took offense at Malloy's comments and said "I thought CFTAN was supposed to save taxpayer's money, not spend more of it." Commissioner Carlton Henley said he was undecided, but supported the request for bids.

The discussion was ended before Sellers had an opportunity to respond to the accusations. An angry County Manager Ron Rabun said he wants commissioners to give his staff a chance to respond. "I want staff equal time to put our commentary to their commentary," said Rabun. "We need an opportunity to respond to some pretty inflammatory statements."

No additional worksessions have been scheduled.

Whitmire said Everson was apparently the driver of the vehicle used in the robbery.

All three are now in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. Strahle was charged earlier with burglary and grand theft. The other two were to be similarly charged yesterday.

Normal ties with Vietnam? MIA groups livid

By GEORGE QEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Signs that the administration may lift the U.S. trade embargo against Vietnam are drawing opposition from veterans and MIA-POW groups, who argue that Hanoi could do far more in accounting for missing Americans.

While administration officials use words like "superb" and "excellent" to describe Vietnamese cooperation, its critics insist that Vietnam is holding the remains of hundreds of American servicemen.

"The Vietnamese have purposely chosen not to repatriate these remains," says Ann Mills Griffiths, executive director of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

A senior administration official replies that U.S. experts who examined the issue have concluded that "if remains were stored in the past, that's no longer the case."

Another breakthrough cited by the administration was the initiation last week of the largest MIA search mission since the end of the war — eight teams totaling 84 American specialists. They will comb old battlefields until the end of the month.

Growing administration support for ending the embargo appears based partly on a trip to Vietnam by Assistant Secretary of State Winston Lord in mid-December. Lord, who heads the East Asia bureau, was said to have been impressed by Vietnam's cooperation and has been signaling that there is no longer a good reason for keeping the embargo. Five senators who recently visited Vietnam agreed the embargo should be lifted and normal relations established.

The issue is expected to be taken up shortly by President Clinton, who during his first year in office eased some restrictions on dealings with Vietnam. But Clinton has insisted on "the fullest possible accounting" as the price for normal relations with Hanoi.

The embargo has been in effect since the U.S.-backed Saigon government was driven from power in 1975, leading to the unification of Vietnam under Hanoi's domination.

American companies complain that while they remain shut out, East Asian competitors have moved aggressively to take advantage of the improved investment climate in Vietnam.

Anticipating that Clinton is about to lift the embargo, veterans organizations have been lobbying against such a move.

The national commander of the American Legion told the group's 16,000 posts in the United States this week to begin organizing letter-writing and telephone campaigns against lifting the embargo.

In a statement released in Washington and Hanoi, the commander, Bruce Thiesen, called for a "no-holds barred, call-in-every-clip, twist-every-arm campaign" by the 3.1 million-member veterans group.

Griffiths worries that once the embargo is lifted, the Vietnamese will no longer have any incentive to cooperate in providing an accounting for the 1,600 American servicemen still missing and presumed to have died in Vietnam. Most of the other 600 missing from the Indochina War are believed to have died in Laos.

Richard Childress, who was a Vietnam specialist on the National Security Council during previous administrations, says highly publicized searches of battlefields by U.S. soldiers are only marginally effective.

"They avoid the central problem which is that the Vietnamese have the information we need but are withholding it," Childress says.

Carl Ford, a senior Pentagon official during the Bush administration, agrees. "Everything we've learned in recent years tells us how much more the Vietnamese are withholding," says Ford, quoted by the San Diego Union.

The administration, countering its critics, says 67 sets of remains were returned from Vietnam in 1993, the third highest total for any year since the end of the war.

Sue Scott, chairman of the board of the National League of Families, responds that only two have been confirmed as remains of Americans. She calls the Vietnamese record of cooperation "dismal."

But administration officials say Vietnam's record is improving on "discrepancy cases" — Americans unaccounted for even though they were seen alive at the time of their capture. Vietnam also has cooperated in allowing U.S. officials to resolve more than 100 instances of live sightings.

"In no case were we able to determine that the information (on the alleged live sighting) was accurate," an official said.

Radiation experiments abetted by Cold War and 'doctor knows best'

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK — Early in 1957, when the Soviet Union had acquired the H-bomb but hadn't yet put Sputnik in orbit, the U.S. government told its citizens that some of them would have to be sacrificed to assure America's survival.

"We must gamble with the probability of radiation damage to a few individuals in order to secure the survival of the total society," C.W. Shilling of the Atomic Energy Commission said in a speech at Hunter College. "The game we are playing with Russia... is for keeps."

That response to the fears aroused by the Cold War contributed to a series of human radiation experiments in the 1940s and '50s that some scientists say were dangerous and ethically indefensible.

Hundreds of pregnant women, prisoners, mentally ill and others were exposed to radiation, sometimes without even being told they were part of an experiment.

The attitude toward radiation was so casual that doctors did experiments on their own, without informing their superiors.

"It is probable that some clinicians were doing 'ad hoc' research that was not approved either locally or centrally, and for which no formal record exists," the Department of Veterans Affairs said in a statement Saturday.

The extent of that experimentation may never be known.

Many of the radiation experiments, which would never be allowed today, reflect not only Cold War fears but also what was then a far different public attitude toward doctors.

"Informed consent was informal," said Francis Mase, director of radiation protection programs at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "It used to be the doc putting his arm around your shoulder and telling you it wouldn't hurt. And you would trust the doctor and consent to it."

"To hear that such things went on in the 1940s and 1950s is regrettable, but not surprising," said Dr. Robert Levine, who teaches medical ethics at the Yale University School of Medicine.

Today, elaborate procedures are used to assure that patients are fully informed of an experiment's risks and benefits before they volunteer. In the postwar years, those standards were just beginning to evolve, Levine said.

"What we essentially had was the so-called community standard of informed consent," he said. "That is, in getting informed consent you had to do whatever the community of practitioners considered appropriate."

In other words, doctors know best. "It wasn't until 1957 that we realized other people might have an interest," Levine said.

Even in the 1950s, however, some doctors strenuously objected to the Atomic Energy Commission's willingness to endanger volunteers without their knowledge.

The experiments "have a little of the Buchenwald touch," Dr. Joseph Hamilton, an Atomic Energy Commission biologist, wrote to a senior commission official in 1950. The reference was to the wartime experiments conducted by the Nazis on concentration camp prisoners.

Those experiments led, after World War II, to the creation of the Nuremberg Code. Its first principle says that the willing participation of informed subjects is a moral requirement for human experimentation, according to Arthur L. Caplan, director of the Center for Biomedical Ethics at the University of Minnesota.

"It is indisputably clear that in terms of moral requirements you were supposed to get the knowledgeable consent of your subjects. You couldn't fool them, you couldn't deceive them, you couldn't lie to them," Caplan said.

"In that sense, the experiments we're talking about fail dismally. They are clearly in violation of the standard we articulated in Nuremberg."

Caplan objects to the idea that the radiation experiments should be excused because of Cold War hysteria or a different attitude toward doctors.

"It is disturbing to see people try to say that standards were different," he said. "That's not true as far as informed consent goes. And it's disturbing that we allowed the Cold War to justify deceiving civilians."

Rape case stirs debate

Keyboard communicators for the autistic under fire

By DEB RIECHMANN
Associated Press Writer

FREDERICK, Md. — The 9-year-old autistic girl had been communicating with an electronic keyboard for four months when her therapist asked what was bothering her one day.

With help from the therapist, she typed, "Hepulldownmy pants." And later, "itrytogetawaybuthecaught meandyelledatme."

A few days after that, a detective and a social worker interviewed the girl. This time she typed "heputhisupme."

The translation, according to prosecutors: "He put his up me."

The allegations have led to rape charges against a retarded aide at the girl's school and have stirred debate over the reliability of "facilitated communication."

Facilitated communication is used to help people with autism and other disabilities that rob them of speech. A therapist supports the person's hand or arm and offers encouragement as he or she spells out messages on a keyboard or ABC board.

In the Maryland girl's case, she typed out the allegations in 1992 as her therapist, Cecilia Hedges, stabilized her arm.

After a doctor concluded the girl had a "healed sexual injury" to the vaginal area, David Ross, 27, was charged in May with raping the youngster between 1989 and 1991 at the Rock Creek School for special education students.

Douglas Biklen, a special education professor, helped introduce facilitated communication to America after learning about it in 1989 from an educator in Australia. He is director of the Facilitated Communication Institute at Syracuse University.

Like Biklen, advocates contend that with help from a facilitator the knowledge and intellect of people without speech can be tapped. Critics, however, claim that facilitated communication is a sham and that in many cases, it's the facilitator's messages that are typed.

During a hearing Monday in Circuit Court, the reliability of the practice was debated.

"I've had several successes with children but have also had some that I don't feel it works for at all," Ms. Hedges testified. "My experience with (the girl) is that it does work with her."

But Howard Shane, a specialist in communications disorders at Children's Hospital in Boston, said he thought it was implausible that the girl, who was functioning at the level of a 2-year-old, could type messages with the intellectual ability of a 10-year-old.

"Without instruction, she could write? She could read?" Shane asked.

And Marcia Datlow Smith, a psychologist from Rockville, testified that she found that her patients typed gibberish and random letters when they were being guided by facilitators who did not know the answers to questions being asked.

Scott Rolle, an attorney for the defendant, asked the court to exclude the girl's typed messages from the trial, which is scheduled to begin June 21.

The judge compromised and ordered a test to determine whether the therapist influenced the messages. Details of the test have not been worked out.

According to the defense attorney, facilitated communication has made its way into more than a dozen court cases. But he said he knows of only two, one in Kansas and one in Wisconsin, where it was allowed as testimony during a trial.

He said there has been only one successful prosecution using facilitated communication, the case of a Wichita, Kan., man who was convicted March 31 of fondling and sodomizing an 11-year-old autistic boy.

Jurors in that case said, however, that they relied more on the man's admission to police and a close friend than on the facilitated communication testimony from the youngster.

Clinton's festive night ends with a bit of a scare

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

PRAGUE, Czech Republic — It was unnerving for a moment: Secret Service agents scrambling after a loud bang went off near the U.S. president.

Apparently it was just a firecracker, but it put a damper on what had been a festive night on the town Tuesday for President Clinton and his host, Czech President Vaclav Havel.

"Don't bring him out," a Secret Service agent ordered on his wrist radio as Clinton was about to leave a jazz club he and Havel had been visiting. The loud sound came moments before behind a crowd of bystanders on the street.

Clinton and Havel remained in the club while the president's armored limousine was backed up on the sidewalk to put its door close to the entrance. Clinton got into the car with just a quick glance at hundreds of people waiting nearby. A Secret Service agent held a bulletproof coat next to the president.

Clinton returned to his hotel without further incident. White House communications director Mark Gearan said later the Secret Service believed the noise to have been caused by a firecracker. He said the limousine was moved as "just an extra caution."

Until then, it had been a nostalgic night of fun for Clinton, in Prague after 24 years. He ate schnitzel, sipped beer and jammed with a band in one of the old city's oldest jazz clubs. "I've had two pilseners and that's my limit," Clinton said as he sipped water at the club.

Havel gave the president a saxophone, and Clinton did a respectable turn on "Summertime" and "My Funny Valentine" to the delight of the locals.

Clinton last visited Prague as a student on his way home from Moscow in what he calls "that now-famous trip." The Moscow visit was seized upon by opponents in last year's election campaign as something sinister.

Clinton stayed in 1970 in the apartment of Bedrich and Jirina Kopold, the parents of Oxford classmate Jan Kopold, and he told them he might come back as ambassador one day. He went the promise one better by coming back as president.

The Kopolds, whose son has since died, were reunited with Clinton at a pub called, "At the Golden Tiger."

Earlier, Clinton and Havel walked across the 14th century Charles Bridge, one of the city's most famous landmarks. The bridge was illuminated for the occasion with spotlights that highlighted statues lining the sides. The presidents stopped along the way to admire some of the 30 baroque sculptures.

It was a chaotic scene as hundreds of reporters preceded them. Thousands of people jammed the narrow cobblestone streets around the bridge as Clinton toured the old section of Prague.

At the St. Salvator church, Clinton plunged into a round of handshaking. He and Havel, a playwright before he became a politician, strolled quickly to the Golden Tiger, a traditional hangout of Prague writers and intellectuals.

The two presidents went to one of the stout wooden tables and Clinton dug into a schnitzel-filled potato pancake and drank a Czech Pilsener beer. He kept up a running dialogue with about 30 fellow patrons.

Outside, police and American security men scuffled with some 200 journalists who tried to get in.

Clinton and Havel then headed to busy Narodni Street to lay white lilies at the spot where students clashed with police on Nov. 17, 1989, the start of the Havel-led revolution that ousted Communist rule.

They went to the jazz club from there.

AROUND THE STATE

Gators get past Bulls

ST. PETERSBURG — Florida's Dan Cross stole an inbound pass with 23 seconds left to seal a 69-64 win over South Florida on Tuesday.

Guard Craig Brown scored 16 points to lead the Gators (12-2) to their fourth consecutive win.

St. Petersburg native Dametri Hill scored 14 points for Florida. Cross finished with 13 points. Andrew DeClercq added 12 and grabbed nine rebounds.

USF (8-5) was paced by Jesse Salters' game-high 20 points and 10 rebounds. Robert Polk scored 16 points. Donzel Rush added 12.

FIU overtakes Florida Atlantic

BOCA RATON — Chuck Stuart scored 28 points and Eric Lawson sank two free throws with 31.8 seconds left to reclaim Florida International's lead in a 72-70 win over winless Florida Atlantic on Tuesday.

James Mazyck scored 24 points for Florida International (5-7). Craig Buchanan led Florida Atlantic with 21 points.

People's Choice voting begins

LAKE CITY — The inaugural People's Choice Awards honoring the state's top amateur and professional athletes will be announced next month and presented at the Florida Sports Hall of Fame induction ceremony in April.

Sports fans throughout the state are participating in balloting that runs through Jan. 23. Ballots are available at all Winn-Dixie stores, and anyone submitting an entry will be eligible to win a chance to play golf with Steve Spurrier, Bobby Bowden or Dennis Erickson.

The People's Choice Awards, sponsored by Dairy Farmers Inc., will honor the male and female amateur athletes of the year as well as the state's premier male and female pro athletes.

AROUND THE NATION

FSU falls to Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Joe Smith had 23 points, 20 rebounds and six blocks Tuesday night as Maryland handed Florida State its third straight loss, 80-74.

Exrec Hipp scored 23 points for Maryland (9-3, 2-1 Atlantic Coast Conference).

Maurice Robinson had 16 points and Bob Sura, who came in with an ACC-best 21.6 scoring average, had 13 for FSU (7-4, 0-3).

Kings cool off Miami

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Wayman Tisdale scored 23 points, and the Sacramento Kings made an 11-0 run late in the game for a 103-95 victory over the Miami Heat on Tuesday night.

The loss broke a four-game road winning streak for the Heat, and delayed coach Kevin Loughery's 600th career victory.

Walt Williams had 18 points and Mitch Richmond 15 for the Kings, who had three scoring runs of 10 or more points in the game. Lionel Simmons scored 10 points of his 18 points down the stretch to seal the win.

Steve Smith had 26 points and Grant Long added 14 for the Heat.

Holiday layoff hasn't dulled Discount Propane

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Discount Propane picked up right where it left off at the end of the fall season, opening the Sanford Recreation Department 1994 Men's Tuesday Night Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball League with a 15-run rout victory at Chase Park.

Jack Lewis and Shawn Grimes had four hits each and Lewis and Mike D'Amico scored four runs each as Discount Propane (which has been the champion of the past two Tuesday night leagues) collected 22 hits while holding Ken Rummel Chevrolet to nine singles in a 16-1 five-inning win.

In other games on opening night, Ace Drilling dropped Whelchel & Howard 12-9 in eight innings and Whelchel & Howard came back to outscore Gager Pest Control 19-11.

Action will continue all week as other men's leagues open their Polar Bear season's tonight (Wednesday) at Chase and Thursday at both Chase and Pinehurst Park.

The win was the 15th straight for Discount Propane (dating back to June 29, 1993, when it fell 13-12 to Ken Rummel Chevrolet in the spring league) and 17th in 18 starts since last May 25. Overall, the team, managed by Roger Kinnaird, is 21-3 since joining the Sanford leagues under the sponsorship of ABB Power last April.

Pacing the Discount Propane attack were Lewis (double, three singles, four runs), Grimes (four

Doing the hitting for Ken Rummel Chevrolet were David Goldstick (two singles), Jim Davis (single, run), Terrell Ervin (single, RBI) and Scott Murphy, Mark Aten, Scott Fletcher, Jeff Furell and Kirby Swinehart (one single each).

Ace Drilling, a new entry to Sanford, took a 6-0 lead after two innings before Whelchel & Howard scrapped its way back to tie the score at 9-9 after seven innings.

In the top of the eighth inning, Ron Warren led off the frame for Ace Drilling with an inside-the-park home run. James Thompson singled and moved to third on a double by Rick Gardner before Brian Sprinkle singled in one run. Another scored on a throwing error.

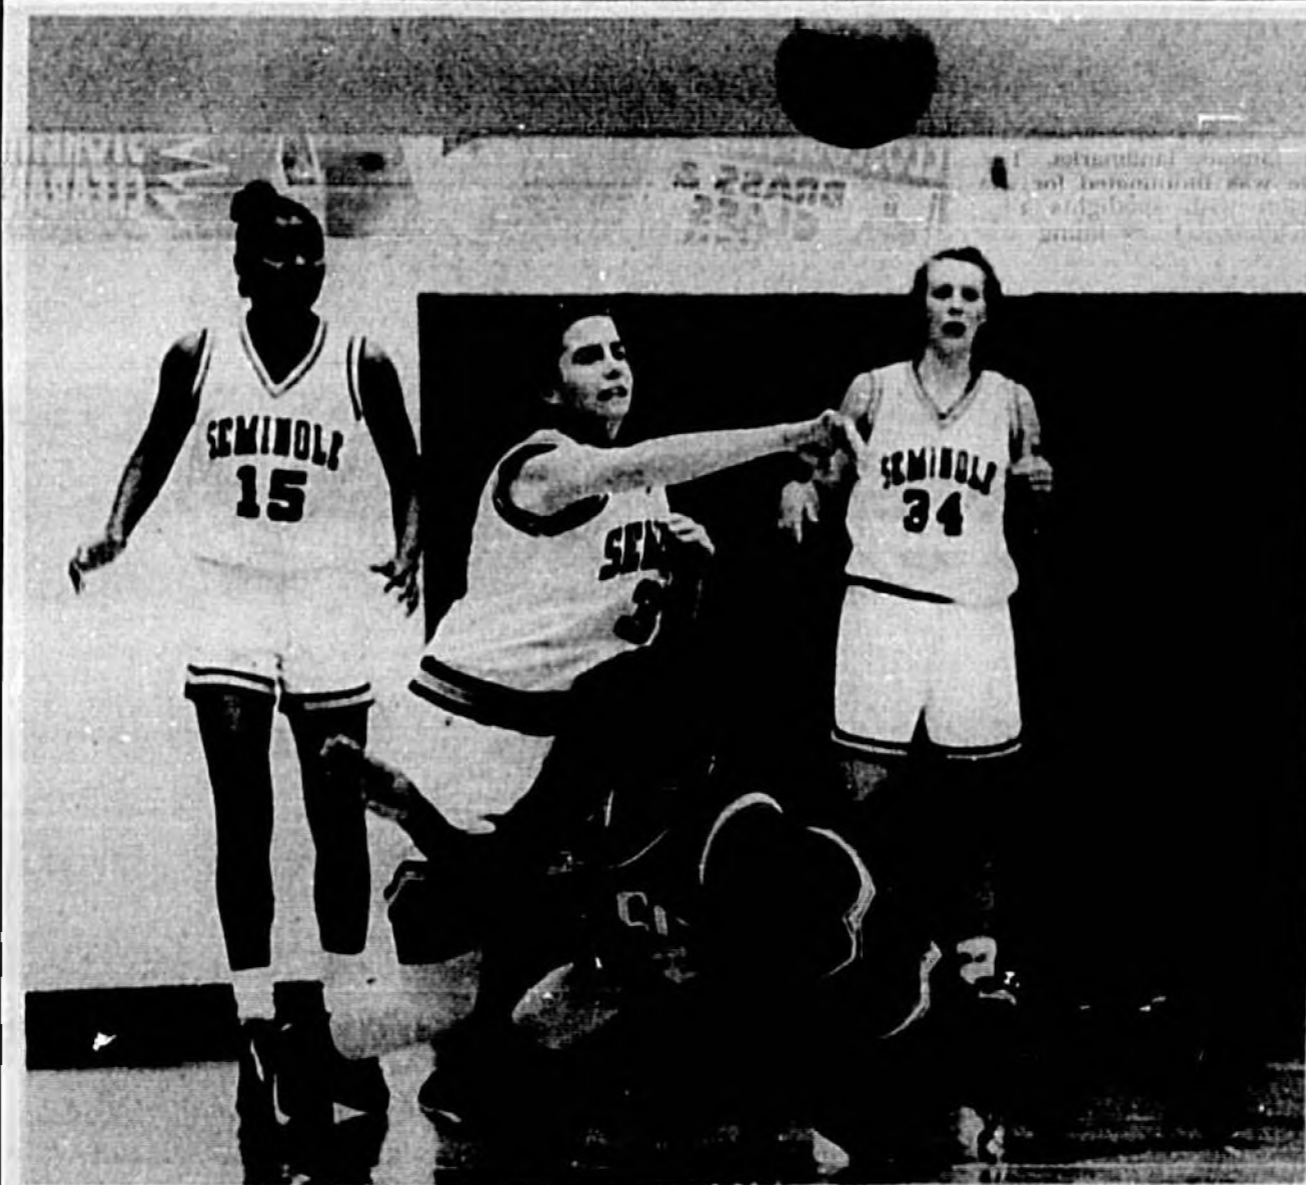

Doing the damage for Ace Drilling were Scott Gering (double, three singles, two runs, RBI), Warren (home run, single, two runs, three RBI), Tom Bleickel (two singles, two

Wood rolls to third Late Model win of '94

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Orlando's Ricky Wood dominated Late Model action last Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway, cruising to his third feature win of the season.

Wood, driving the Advanced Hermetics Camaro, started on the pole and went on to lead every circuit in securing his victory.

"We're off to a good season," said Wood, 29, who has been racing since he was 13 years old. "I've got three feature wins, two heat wins, and I'm leading in FASCAR (Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing) points at both tracks. The funny thing about it is I'm using my old Modified motor."

"I have to thank my crew chief, Chuck (Green), who's been doing a real good job keeping the car running, and also the people at Advanced Hermetics, who joined our team as a sponsor."

Crossing the stripe behind Wood were Russ Whitaker, Steve Throop, Bruce Everett, and Kevin Heath.

"This is our best finish in a long time and one we're really pleased with," said Whitaker, 35, who resides in Deltona and has been racing for five years.

"It seems like we've been working forever to get all the bugs out of the car. Little by little, we're getting there. It takes a lot of hard work and a bunch of money to go fast. If we can pick up some sponsorship, it would sure help."

Fresh off a victory Friday night at Orlando Speedway, Barbara Pierce took top honors again Saturday

Hill: Hardaway the only choice as NBA's top rookie

By FRED GOODALL
AP Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Orlando coach Brian Hill insists there's no other choice.

When he thinks about the early race for NBA rookie of the year, he can't get the Magic's Anfernee Hardaway out of his mind.

Jamal Mashburn and Chris Webber may have higher scoring averages, but Hill says no rookie has played better than Hardaway has in helping Orlando to the best start in the team's five-year history.

"Maybe statistically Mashburn and Webber are better, but (Hardaway's) playing on the best basketball team of the three, and he's making the best contribution," Hill said after the 6-foot-7 guard scored 28 points and had six assists and four steals in Monday night's 115-100 victory over the Houston Rockets.

"Mashburn is playing on a team where he has to score all the time and Webber, up until (Chris) Mullin came back, was playing on a team where he had to score all the time. So in my opinion he's the runaway rookie of the year. I don't think there's anyone close."

Through 32 games, all as a starter, Hardaway is averaging 14.3 points, 4.8 rebounds and 5.6 assists per game. The Magic is 19-13 and gaining more and more confidence in themselves as well as the team's top draft pick.

In comparison, Mashburn is averaging 20.2 points, 5.3 rebounds and 2.9 assists for the Dallas Mavericks, who have the NBA's worst record. Webber is producing 16.5 points, 9.1 rebounds and 3.8 assists per game for the injury-riddled Golden State Warriors.

"I said from the beginning this is a team that's going to be playing better as the season progresses," Hill said.

"It was all a matter of getting comfortable with Penny and learning how to use him, both offensively and defensively. He's such an instinctive basketball player, though, it's easy. The game comes so easy to him."

Not in the beginning, though.

The draft-day trade that brought him and three future picks to Orlando in exchange for Webber was not popular with fans, who envisioned Webber teaming with Shaquille O'Neal to lead the Magic to the playoffs this season.

Hardaway struggled during the preseason and was booed by fans, who were eventually won over by his versatility, unselfishness and zest for the game. At 6-7, he's able to use his size to dominate smaller guards and quickness to take advantage of bigger players he encounters driving to the basket.

"I saw him play this summer in Houston, so I'm not surprised by what he's doing," said Rockets center Hakeem Olajuwon. "He's a fantastic player. He creates opportunities for

Garvey comes out on top in World 150

Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Mike Garvey raced around Mario Gosselin with 36 laps to go last Saturday night and went on to claim the championship in the World 150 for Late Models at Volusia County Speedway.

At the end of the 150-lap event on the half-mile asphalt oval, the only other drivers on the lead lap along with Garvey were Gosselin and Mike Franklin.

Garvey, of Merritt Island, returned to Volusia County Speedway after a 1993 win with the NASCAR All Pro Series touring group of Late Models to race the NASCAR short track ahead of a group of 15 tough competitors.

"I blistered a right front tire," Garvey said. "And I never blister a tire out here. I was just waiting for a late break and thankfully, I got it. I feel real bad about Ronnie Roach. I don't race like that."

Garvey was referring to lap 52, when Garvey bumped Roach, who lost control on the front straightaway, spun, and nailed the inside pit wall.

Following Garvey, Gosselin, and Franklin across the finish line were Jack Cook and Bobby Blake, both two laps down from the three lead-lap finishers.

In other divisions raced at Volusia County Speedway last Saturday night:

- Ray Fulford of Holly Hill finally got his first feature win at VCS, coming out on top in the 25-lap Pro Stock feature.
- Peter Chichitano won the 20-lap Super Stocks main event.
- Wayne Heckle took the top spot in the 25-lap Florida Modifieds event.
- Derrick Luthie was the winner in the 20-lap Mini Stocks headliner.

Fulford ran the entire 1993 season in the Street Stock division without a win, including a race that he was leading into the final lap when a lug stud on his right rear wheel broke, earning him a special jacket presented at the VCS awards banquet that honored him for "Almost One Win."

While Fulford dodged the dubious distinction of repeating the honor with his season-opening win, his victory came when early leader Jeff Miller, last year's Street Stock champion, had to retire late in the race.

"Jeff had me," Fulford said. "I don't know what happened to Jeff. I guess he broke. I finally got lucky."

Fulford was followed across the start/finish line by Dean Bennett, D.J. Braddock, Dennis Bennett, and Donnie Williams.

Chichitano, a regular in the VCS Late Model Stocks division during the 1993 campaign, moved into 1994's new Super Stock division and claimed a trip to the winner's circle for the first time.

"If we get a few more cars in this class, we'll have a great time," said Chichitano, who resides in Palm Coast.

Like Fulford, Chichitano benefited when the early leader — DeLand's Earl Mark — ran into trouble late in the race.

"Earl blew up in front of me," Chichitano said. "He and David Ponder were running real tough."

Filling out the top five behind Chichitano were Ponder, Jerry Gilliard, Terry Russell, and Chad Allman.

In the Florida Modifieds final, Heckle led Wray Shafer, Denzil Cormican, Lewis Beldock, and Mark Beldock.

Trailing Luthie in the Mini Stock main event were Robert Ham, Rod Hutcher, Wes Filyaw, and Dave Johnson.

Racing action returns to Volusia County Speedway on Saturday, Jan. 22, with a card of racing headlined by the World 200 for Late Models. Also scheduled to run that night are the Pro Stocks, Super Stocks, Florida Modifieds, and Mini Stocks.

Lakeland 17-year-old bests Late Model field

By PAUL MARBOLIA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Seventeen-year-old rookie sensation Tully Hester took the measure of the Late Model field Friday night at Orlando Speedworld, scoring his first ever career Late Model win.

Starting from the outside pole, Hester, a resident of Lakeland, duelled briefly with Scott Bramlett before assuming a lead he would never relinquish.

"I've been close the last few months and tonight, I finally got the win," said Hester, who had six top-five finishes in seven starts going into Friday night's feature event.

"Everything was just perfect. The car was great. I had no trouble staying ahead of the field tonight. Lee (Faulk) and the other guys did a real good job keeping me in the race."

Trailing Hester and Bramlett to the stripe were Ricky Wood, Scott Reeves, and Ricky Marshall.

The evening's Florida Modified feature also was won by a Lakeland driver — Raymond Lovelady.

Lovelady led every lap on the way to first win of the season. Jim Crowe Jr., Wayne Parker, Wally Patterson, and Pop Tucker rounded out the top five.

Limited Late Model honors went to Timmy Todd, giving him three feature wins on the young season. Chasing Todd to the checkers were Michael Williams, Darren Gould, Gary Schlichter, and Jeff Kolp.

Bobby Sears chalked up win No. 4 of the 1994 season, leading most of the way to win the Mini-Stock feature over Dink Sullivan, David Lecklitter, Kelly Jarrett, and Gene Van Alstine.

Barbara Pierce dominated the Sportman feature, finishing a full straightaway ahead of runner-up Paul Colgan. Coming in behind the two leaders were Rick Johns, Jeff Rule, and David Gould.

Other winners last Friday night were John Smith (Bombers), Jim Cook (Run-Arounds), Jim Erb (Four-Cylinder Bombers), and Brett Weber (Four-Cylinder Enduro).

night in the Sportsman division.

Crossing the stripe four car lengths behind Pierce was Art Chapman. Rounding out the top five were David Gould, Don Tracey, and Steve Redditt.

Howard Osteen outduelled Perry Crowe, Danny Bancroft, Joe Middleton, and Wayne

Parker to register his first-ever Florida Modified victory.

After starting on the pole, Gary Frosh used the advantage to win his second Bomber main event of the season. Finishing second through fifth, respectively, were Bobby Stevens, Glen Castro, John Mitchell, and Chuck Vola.

New Smyrna Beach driver Bob

Doxie held off a hard charge by Conrad Grenier to win his first-ever Mini-Stock feature.

"I owe this win to Wayne Graham," said Doxie, who has been racing for two seasons. "Every week, he gets the car going faster and faster. Right now, we're more competitive than we've ever been."

Bobby Sears, Mike Barnes Jr.,

and Keith French trailed Doxie and Grenier to the checkered flag.

Other feature winners last Saturday night were Timmy Todd (Limited Late Models), James Crawford (Go-Karts), Shannon Smith (Run-Arounds), and Gary Hinkle (Demolition Derby).

Also, Keith Denton (double, two runs), Rick Gardner (double, run, RBI), Lonnie Clark (single, two runs, RBI), Jerry Governale (single, run, RBI), Mike Marshall (single, RBI) and Kelly Denton (run).

Powering the Whelchel & Howard attack were Craig Tossel (double, two singles, two RBI), Mike Graves (double, two singles, two runs), Terry Russel (two singles, run, RBI), and Chris Wargo (two singles, RBI).

Other contributors were Emmitt Davis, Brian Howard and Mike McLohon (two singles and one run each), Eric Johnson (single, two RBI), Vince Howard and Steve Aten (one single and one run each) and Denny Clayton (run, RBI).

The final game of the evening saw Whelchel & Howard and Gager Pest Control trade the lead back-and-forth until the fifth inning when, with Gager leading 10-9, Whelchel & Howard put a six spot on the board, then followed that with a four-run inning in the sixth to open up some breathing room.

Contributing to a 24-hit Whelchel & Howard attack were Graves (five singles, two runs, two RBI), Clayton (double, two singles, three runs, three RBI), Tossel (three singles, run, three RBI), Brian Howard (three singles, two RBI), Duane Lee (double, two runs, two RBI), McLohon (two singles, two runs, RBI) and Steve Aten (two singles, RBI).

Also contributing were Russel (single, two runs, two RBI), Davis (single, run, RBI), Vince Howard (single, two runs), Johnson (single, run), Wargo (two runs) and Dan Goodling (run).

Providing the offense for Gager Pest Control were Donnie McCoy (three singles, three runs, RBI), Tom Clark (home run, double, two runs, four RBI), Todd Morgan (double, single, two RBI), Wayne Walker (two singles, two runs, three RBI), Wayne Gager (two singles, two runs), Stan Immitch (two singles, run), Ron Cardell and Terry Wilcox (one single each), Scott Wade (run) and Frank Turner (RBI).

Grand Prix of Miami won't move until '96

Associated Press

MIAMI — Although the Grand Prix of Miami has undergone a complete overhaul on its car types, it will not change sites until at least 1996.

The 21th annual race is contracted to remain here through 1997. But city officials' plans to expand the Port of Miami may force the race to relocate to the yet-to-be completed Homestead Motorports Complex by 1996.

"We plan to live up to our commitment," said the race's creator Ralph Sanchez, who is president of Miami Motorsports, the race's promoter. "But I can't give up one site and not have the other one ready."

The race will run through Miami's downtown streets Feb. 26-27 with the more moderately priced Trans-Ams instead of the multi-million dollar International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) race cars.

The $36.5 million Homestead complex broke ground Aug. 24, but was ordered to halt construction two weeks later because of environmentalists' concerns about the preservation of what Sanchez referred to as 30 acres of "low-quality wetlands".

An environmental meeting will be held in Homestead Thursday to determine whether permits will be issued so that stadium construction can restart as soon as possible. If so, the estimated time of completion is 13 months, which would most likely be too late to stage next year's Grand Prix.

"If we can't hold the Grand Prix there, we'll come back with a second event," Sanchez said. "The (Sports Car Club of America) has already committed to a six-hour endurance race, the first time ever for Trans-Ams. That will probably be the first major event at Homestead, the future of racing in South Florida."

Sanchez said the switch from the more expensive IMSA prototypes to the SCCA Trans-Ams, which cost about $200,000 per car, would open up the race to the entire field, rather than the wealthiest car manufacturers.

Cook of the Week

Baking just comes naturally to therapist

LAKE MARY — Having a full-time career, raising a teenage daughter, and being a very active member of her church, Ruthanne Alarcon is finding out that there is more in the way of desire to bake than there is time left in her day. Be that as it may, Alarcon somehow always seems to find a way to get the wonderful aroma of her baking to fill her lovely Lake Mary home.

Alarcon is quick to explain that when it comes to baking or cooking, she is pretty much "self-taught." She said, "I never cooked much as a young girl, living at home. Basically, most of my cooking knowledge came along a bit later, in my adult life. I guess you could call it on-the-job training." When it comes right down to a preference between cooking and baking, baking wins hands down with Alarcon.

Career-wise, Alarcon has been working for 12 years in the field of occupational therapy. She specializes in hand therapy. Most recently she's taken a position with Hand Rehabilitative Service in Altamonte Springs, and feels that she has found the perfect blend within her work place.

Born and raised in Pennsylvania, moving to Florida was a welcome change, especially where the climate is concerned. "We came to Florida about seven years ago for a vacation," says Alarcon. "The weather was wonderful and jobs in my field were abundant, so a few years later we made the move to live in Florida." Alarcon's daughter, Melissa, also enjoys living in Florida. Melissa, 13, currently attends Lakeview Middle School.

For the most part Alarcon and Melissa are homebodies. Getting settled in with her new job is very exciting for Alarcon, however, it's still "kind of like that first day at a new school," she said. They both enjoy being active with their church. Lake Mary Community Church has a small congregation right now as it is just starting to grow. "But, we're big in warmth and fellowship," says Alarcon. While at home, with a bit of free time, Alarcon enjoys quilting. "I hope to have a quilt on the frame within the next week," she said. Some of her quilt work is displayed throughout her home which she has also tastefully and beautifully blended with some of her favorite antiques passed down through the family.

Most of Alarcon's recipes have followed the same path down through the family. Blueberry Bread is a favorite among many of the Alarcon's friends. This recipe was passed down through the family from Alarcon's grandmother, to her sister and finally to Alarcon.

Spanish Creole is what Alarcon calls "my 25-minute dinner." It's a very colorful dish with an aroma that will get you moving to the dinner table.

SPANISH CREOLE

1 lb. ground beef, browned

- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 can (28 oz.) crushed tomatoes
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 tsp. chili powder
- Blend all ingredients together and simmer 25 minutes. Serve with rice.
- MEXICAN CHICKEN
- 1 pint sour cream
- 3 (10 oz.) cans of Rotel tomatoes, drained
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 4 cups cooked chicken or turkey, chopped (6 breasts steamed 20 minutes)
- 1 lb. grated Monterey Jack cheese
- 12-14 tortillas
- Mix sour cream, tomatoes and onion together. In 3-quart case-

Warm up to hearty soup put together in minutes

Few things are as inviting when you come in from the cold of winter than the aroma of a soup or stew. We often associate these foods with long oven or range-top simmering, but many are easy to make in the microwave oven.

Most soups and stews are as economical as they are easy to make. You can substitute ingredients, utilize leftovers — meat and vegetables, and stretch small amounts of meat, fish or poultry to make many servings.

Soup and stews can provide nourishing, substantial main meals as well as good lunches and snacks. Served with a salad, crusty rolls or cornbread, they make a satisfying meal combination.

Lentils are a type of bean but cook more quickly than most dry beans. This recipe is rich in protein so can be used as a meatless main dish when teamed with a vegetable, salad and rolls.

SPANISH LENTIL SOUP

- 1 1/4 cups lentils
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3 cups water
- 1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes, undrained
- 1 can (12 oz.) corn, undrained
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup catsup
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 tsp. chili powder
- 1/2 tsp. garlic powder
- 1/2 tsp. pepper

Wash and drain lentils. Combine lentils, onions and water in 3-quart casserole. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 30-35 minutes or until lentils are just about tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover.

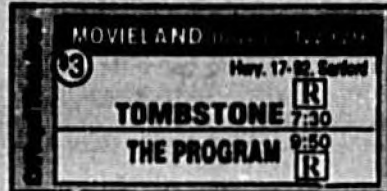

Microwave on 100 percent power 20-25 minutes or until lentils are tender and most of the liquid is absorbed. About 6 servings.

Note: Bits of left-over ham can be added.

A rich cheese soup like this one is nearly a meal in itself.

CHEESE SOUP

- 1 cup diced carrots
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 6 Tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 tsp. dry mustard
- 2 Tbsp. instant chicken bouillon granules
- 4 cups milk
- 4 oz. processed cheese spread

2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

1/4 cup beer or white wine, if desired

Combine carrots, onion and butter in 2-quart batter bowl. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered 6-7 minutes or until carrots are just about tender. Blend in flour, mustard and bouillon. Stir in milk.

Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 14-16 minutes or until mixture boils, stirring several times during the last half of cooking time. Crumble processed cheese and add to soup along with Cheddar cheese. Stir until blended. Stir in wine or beer.

Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 2-3 minutes or until heated through.

About 5 servings.

Enjoy flavors of the southwest with this hearty chili stew.

MEXICAN CHILI STEW

- 1 lb. lean ground beef or ground turkey
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 can tomatoes (28 oz.)
- 1 can chili beans (15 oz.)
- 1 can (4 oz. diced green chilies, drained)
- 1 Tbsp. flour
- 1 tsp. sugar

Prunes brighten simple salad

Sometimes, just one special element can transform a salad from "ordinary" to extraordinary. New lemon essence pitted prunes are just such an ingredient. With their fresh citrus flavor and satisfying, chewy texture, they add a tantalizing, bright quality to almost any combination of fresh vegetables and fruit.

Lemon Prune and Apple Salad for All Seasons is a luscious example. It gets its unique flavor from a generous cup of natural lemon essence pitted prunes which are halved and tossed with crisp, chopped romaine lettuce, a crunchy apple, thinly sliced red onion and toasted walnuts.

LEMON PRUNE AND APPLE SALAD FOR ALL SEASONS
 1 small head romaine lettuce, cored, washed and chopped
 1 cup lemon essence pitted prunes, cut into halves
 1/4 red apple, coarsely chopped

Prunes, apples, nuts and greens go into salad.

(Gala or Jonathan, if available)
 1/4 cup thinly sliced red onion
 1/4 cup walnut pieces, toasted
 Poppy Seed Dressing (recipe follows), optional
Poppy Seed Dressing
 3 Tbsp. yellow onion, chopped
 2 Tbsp. cider vinegar
 4 tsp. honey
 1 Tbsp. vegetable oil
 1/4 tsp. salt

2 tsp. poppy seeds
 In blender container place all dressing ingredients except poppy seeds. Blend until smooth. Stir in poppy seeds. Makes 1/2 cup.
 *Note: To toast walnuts in microwave, place on glass pie plate. Microwave on high (100 percent) 3 minutes, turning once during cooking time.

A little word research cures reader's curiosity

DEAR ABBY: Almost all pharmacies use "Rx" as an identifying symbol, so I have been asking pharmacists the origin of this symbol.

Thus far, I have asked perhaps two dozen in different parts of the country, and not one of them was quite certain.

"It's probably Latin," say some. "I think it's a Greek derivation," say others.

A few others have said, "Why not ask Dear Abby?"

So I am. You may use my name.

across the R's leg is a sign of the Roman god Jupiter, patron of medicine. The symbol looks like Rx and is pronounced that way."

DEAR ABBY: I was intrigued by the letter about Johnny Lujack because of an incident that took place in 1945 after Johnny Lujack had become a household name.

I was a corporal in the Army Air Corps, stationed at Boca Raton, Fla. I was on a three-day pass and had gone to Palm Beach. Late one night, I was walking down a deserted street when a motorcycle careened down the street, skidded at high speed, throwing the driver into the middle of the roadway, unconscious.

I raced to give him aid, and an ensign on the other side of the street also raced to help him. Together we hailed a car and helped the injured party into the car and saw him off to the hospital.

The ensign and I talked for a minute, then went for a cup of coffee. He asked me where I was staying. I told him I was sleeping in the lobby of a nearby hotel, but I had to get out by 6 a.m. because it was against the rules to rent a hotel room to an enlisted man.

The ensign invited me to share his room as he had twin beds. Then he said, "Maybe we should introduce ourselves."

I said, "My name is Emil Kohn." He replied, "Mine is Johnny Lujack."

 role layer tortillas on bottom (tear into quarters). Next, add chicken or turkey mixture. Next layer Monterey Jack cheese. Repeat layers as above but finish with cheese on top. Bake 1 hour at 325°F. If you wish, this dish can be frozen and reheated later. Serves 8.

FRENCH DRESSING

1 cup vegetable oil
 1/4 cup vinegar, preferably wine vinegar
 1/4 cup lemon juice
 1/4 cup ketchup or chili sauce
 1/4 cup sugar
 1/4 cup honey
 1 tsp. salt
 1 tsp. celery seed
 2 tsp. grated onion or substitute onion powder
 1/16 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
 1/8 tsp. paprika
 1/4 tsp. dry mustard
 1/16 tsp. garlic powder
 Place all ingredients in bowl/blender. Blend together with rotary beater or blender.

BLUEBERRY BREAD

1/4 cup flour
 1/4 cup sugar
 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
 1/4 tsp. baking soda
 1/2 tsp. salt
 2 Tbsp. butter
 1/4 cup orange juice
 1 grated orange peel
 1 egg, beaten
 1 cup blueberries, frozen
 1/4 cup flour
 1 tsp. almond flavor extract
 1/4 cup chopped almonds
 Mix together first 5 ingredients. Melt butter in 1/4 cup boiling water. Add orange juice and orange peel. Cool. Blend in beaten egg; fold in frozen blueberries and flour. Blend in extract and chopped almonds. Pour into loaf pan and bake at 350°F. for 45-50 minutes.

POPPY SEED CAKE

1/4 cup poppy seeds
 1 cup buttermilk
 1 cup butter
 1 1/2 cups sugar
 4 eggs
 1 tsp. vanilla
 2 1/2 cups flour
 2 tsp. baking powder
 1 tsp. baking soda
 1 tsp. anise
 1/2 cup sugar
 Soak poppy seed in buttermilk. Set aside. Cream butter and sugar together. Next, add eggs one at a time mixing well. Add vanilla. In a separate bowl, blend flour, baking powder and soda together. Alternating dry ingredients with buttermilk/poppy seed mixture, pour into creamed mixture, stirring after each addition. Pour half batter into greased Bundt pan. Sprinkle blended sugar and anise on top. Add remaining batter. Bake for 1 hour at 350°F. approximately 45 minutes.

There's good news about impotence

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I always enjoy your column and hope you will do one on impotence.

DEAR READER: I receive a constant stream of letters inquiring about impotence, one of mankind's most ubiquitous ailments, which is marked by an inability to achieve erection. The causes are legion and range from circulatory deficiencies (common) to psychological factors (rare).

In my practice of general internal medicine, the most frequent cause of impotence is prescription medication. Almost any drug used for hypertension or heart ailments can affect sexual functioning, often with disastrous consequences to a partner's happiness. Consequently, my standard approach for any impotent patient on medication is to alter, stop or change the drugs. In many cases, potency returns in a matter of days.

Another surprisingly common cause of impotence in my practice is alcohol abuse. I'm not referring to the skid-row bum. In contrast, I see perfectly normal, successful men who are "social drinkers" -- with sexual problems. Many of these men are retired, and it is in this group that the effects of moderate alcohol can be most damaging, because as we age, we become less tolerant of the substance. In a guy 70 years old, a couple of stiff ones before dinner and a night cap at bedtime can have a profoundly negative effect on potency.

Therefore, when I see such patients, I tell them to cut down on alcohol for, better, eliminate it for a few days. This can produce astonishing results.

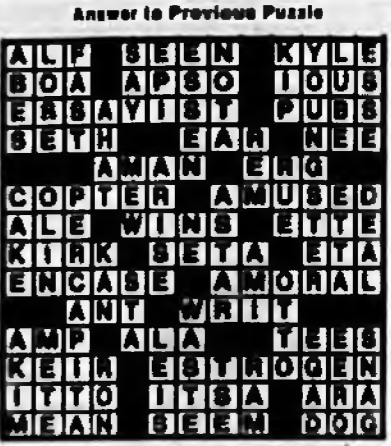

Of course, many cases of impotence are due to severe circulatory problems, such as the premature arteriosclerosis seen in diabetic men. In such instances, referral to a urologist is mandatory because special therapy -- such as vascular surgery or penile implants -- may be necessary. The good news: Most cases of impotence are treatable, or even curable.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Impotence." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title. Copyright 1994, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Let's take a second look at the excellent new book by Englishmen Terence Reese and David Bird, "All You Need to Know About Play" (Gollancz, $25, 800-274-2221). Of course, it doesn't contain everything you need to know; and, in my opinion, it has some material on rare squeezes that could have been omitted. But, along with the many full deals, there are several single-suit combinations to demonstrate what is possible in this fascinating game.

Today's deal is in one of the defense sections. Take the East seat. Against six spades, your partner leads the club 10. Declarer wins in hand with the queen, cashes his spade ace and plays a spade to dummy's king, partner following both times. Now comes dummy's singleton heart. How do you defend? North's two-heart response was a transfer bid showing at least five spades. South jumped to three spades to show a maximum with four-card support. You are faced with a perennial problem. When a side-suit singleton is led from the dummy, should you win with the ace or duck? Usually it is right to play low smoothly.

Of course, if the ace is the setting trick, take it. But otherwise what might be lost on the roundabout normally comes back with interest on the swings. Maybe declarer has a K-J combination he must guess correctly. Or the deal is like this one. If you win with the heart ace, declarer has two discards for dummy's diamond losers; whereas if you duck, sacrificing one heart trick, your side receives two diamond tricks in return.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Jan. 13, 1994

The course you are presently pursuing should produce the types of rewards you anticipate in the year ahead. However, if you begin making unnecessary changes it could throw everything off kilter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It might be wise not to attend special sales today that offer unique bargains for unique merchandise. There's a chance you may buy things you'll never use. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be optimistic regarding your objectives today, but also be careful not to stamp "Mission Accomplished" on projects which are too early to call.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Before swinging into action to day reanalyze your motivation to be certain it justifies your course of behavior. There's a strong probability it might not.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Think twice before advising friends about their problems today. Although your suggestions will be sincere and well-intentioned, they could be faulty.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) For the sake of harmony today, keep unpopular opinions to yourself. If you champion views with which others disagree, it could cause serious friction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your work habits might be far beneath their usual standards today. Tasks or assignments you treat indifferently may have to be completely redone at a later date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Guard against inclinations to overindulge today. The extra food that passes through your lips may later look unsightly on your hips.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you extend an invitation to others today, be absolutely certain it is sincere. It looks like they will accept your kind offer of hospitality.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your "easy come, easy go" frame of mind today could work to your detriment if you play things too loose. Treat serious matters with the respect they deserve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're in a pretty good cycle for personal gain, but you could also have some peaks and troughs regarding your extravagant whims. Today they may be rather strong.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a chance you might step out of character today and put on some pretenses and airs in order to impress others. Poor results are likely, because it's a role you're not apt to play well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Forego temptations today to embellish the facts a bit in order to add spice to your tales of accomplishments. You'll attract attention, but not the kind you'll appreciate. Copyright 1994, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
