Gunman Releases Hostage, Now Faces Kidnap Charges

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Anthony G. Kiritsis, the revenge-minded gunman who thought he could walk away free by releasing unharmed a hostage he held for 63 hours, instead faces kidnapping charges after police grabbed him. Despite a promise of immunity from prosecution, Kiritsis, 44, was seized Thursday night after he released mortgage company executive Richard O. Hall unharmed from a third-story apartment he had fooled police into thinking was rigged with dynamite. Kiritsis, enraged because he felt Hall's company swindled him in a property deal, was held on $250,000 bond awaiting arraignment on state kidnapping charges. Prosecutors said the immunity offer was invalid because Kiritsis failed to keep his part of an agreement to let Hall come out of the building alone.

Joan Little To Join Program

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little's application to join the work-release program at the Women's Correction Center here is expected to be approved within two weeks by state parole officials. Ms. Little gained national fame in 1975 when she was acquitted of murder charges in the death of a jailer she said attacked her in the Beaufort County Jail. She had been jailed pending appeal of a breaking and entering conviction for which she is now serving a 7-to-10-year sentence. Parole authorities denied parole in December.

El Motorman Had Marijuana?

CHICAGO (AP) — Marijuana was found in four hand-rolled cigarettes allegedly found in the bag of a motorman whose elevated train crashed last week and killed 11 persons, police say. First Deputy Police Supt. Michael Spiotto said Thursday that laboratory tests proved the cigarettes contained marijuana, but added it would be "very tricky" to prove in court that the cigarettes belonged to the motorman because police lost track of them temporarily. Spiotto said the department had no plans to charge the motorman, Stephen Martin, with possession of marijuana.

WORLD IN BRIEF

British Say Soviets, Allies, Ignoring Rhodesia Ban

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council has made public British charges that the Soviet Bloc and four other countries of the Soviet Bloc are doing business secretly with Rhodesia via Swiss companies despite U.N. sanctions against trade with the white-minority regime. A U.N. report released Thursday said Britain charged that the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Romania and Bulgaria have been buying tobacco and agricultural goods from Rhodesia in exchange for chemicals, metals and other goods from Eastern Europe. Soviet and Romanian representatives denied it.

Rhodesia Pressure Urged

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Nigeria's strongman, Lt. Gen. Obasanjo, says heavy pressure by the United States on the white Rhodesian regime is the only way to bring a peaceful transition to black rule. Obasanjo made the statement at a news conference Thursday following a threehour meeting with touring Ambassador Andrew Young. Young leaves for London today, winding up a 10-day visit to Tanzania, Kenya and Nigeria, where he talked with leaders from 16 African nations.

India's Chief Of State Dies

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed, India's 71-year-old figurehead chief of state, died of a heart attack today, bringing a temporary halt to the heated election campaign threatening Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. The government proclaimed a 13-day period of national mourning but announced that the election of a new lower house of Parliament would be held as scheduled on March 16. Vice President B.D. Jatti was sworn in by the chief justice as acting president.

Illinois Youth Also Faces Life Probation Prison Term Meted For Murder Try

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer

An 18-year-old Springfield, Ill., youth has pleaded guilty in circuit court at Sanford to the attempted murder of a grocery store clerk during a September holiday. John Arthur Yasell Jr., entered the plea before Circuit Judge Robert McGregor Thursday after plea negotiations recommending to the court a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison plus life probation.

Judge McGregor said due to the youthfulness of the defendant, who was a juvenile at the time of the shooting and robbery, that he would agree to a sentence of not less than three years or more than 10 years prison plus the probation.

McGregor warned Yasell that if he violates probation he faces a life prison sentence. Sentencing for Yasell was set for March 31. A minimum mandatory three year prison sentence is required in the case due to the use of a firearm in the offense.

Yasell said he participated in the robbery of a food store in southwest Seminole after another juvenile threatened to "blow me out of his home where I was staying if I didn't come up with some money." He said the other boy furnished two pistols used in the holdup.

Bruce Edward Lerch, 18, and Robert Lee Wilkerson Jr., 18, also of Illinois, earlier pleaded guilty to aggravated battery in the case and are awaiting sentencing. They could get maximum 18-year prison terms.

Store clerk Kim Jaramillo was shot twice in the stomach during the robbery as she handed over money from the cash register at Little Food Town, 2220 Bear Road.

Yasell said Thursday that the clerk "thought we were joking about it being a holdup until I pulled out the gun." The youth said his memory is "hazy" about the shooting but "somebody hit my gun, I don't know who."

Joseph Cracoli said if he were single he'd plead innocent and go to trial. "But with two small kids and another on the way I can't chance going to jail," he said.

Cracoli told the court, however, that he took a box of $129 chain saw from the shelf at Zayre's, Fern Park, on Dec. 3 and had wheeled it out of the store in a shopping cart when he was apprehended by watchful security personnel.

Assistant State Atty. William Heffernan said Zayre employs Cracoli's wife and put a pair of children's tennis shoes in her purse and Cracoli take the chain saw and then "broke in the extreme front of the store before slipping out." Security personnel recovered the merchandise when Cracoli was arrested.

Cracoli pleaded no contest in county court and is awaiting sentencing on a misdemeanor charge.

Cracoli, who said he'd been unemployed for five months and needed money for heating oil and shoes for his children, who were aged two and four, when he was arrested, said he now has a job in a butcher shop at Fern Park and is working seven days a week to get on his feet financially.

He assured the court that in the future if he's jobless "I won't do what I did before."

Judge McGregor said the court is giving Cracoli "an opportunity to show people who've helped him that he's a good person," and withheld adjudication of guilt in the felony case. He warned Cracoli that if he violates the law "in any respect" during the probationary year that he'll face a five-year prison sentence.

In other cases, Douglas Bryant Halalip Sr., 60, of Sanford, pleaded guilty to grand larceny of a trailer and welder owned by a Lakeland man. Halalip was allowed to remain free on bond during a presentence investigation and pending sentencing on March 21. He was ordered to try to recover the welder, sold to an Osteen resident for $250, and return it to its owner, if possible.

An indicted Phoenix, Ariz., juvenile pleaded guilty to attempted armed robbery in the Oct. 11 holdup of the Shop 'N Go store, SR-34 and Presview Ave., west of Longwood.

Harry Roy Robinson, 17, was ordered held in jail during a presentence investigation. He could get a maximum 10-year prison sentence on the plea. Sentencing was set for March 31 at Sanford.

Tools, Engine Parts Recovered

Seminole sheriff's deputies have arrested a Sanford man connection with burglaries at three area businesses in which several thousand dollars in tools, auto parts and merchandise was stolen.

Being held in county jail today in lieu of $15,000 bond on three counts of burglary and a grand larceny charge was George William Parris, 19, of 2194 W. First St., Sanford.

Sheriff's deputies said Parris is charged in connection with January burglaries at the Central Florida Zoo, a service station at Lake Monroe, and Tanner Diesel Service at such as lighting for walkways, ramps for the handicapped and solving erosion and drainage problems. Wilson will answer Sanford city commissioners' questions at their Monday night meeting relating to HUD's urban homesteading program. At the commission's Jan. 24 meeting, Wilson requested the city's participation in the program.

Under the plan, federally owned housing in Sanford could be conveyed to citizens who would agree to bring the houses up to city code requirements and live in them for at least three years.

SELA staff would assist the "homesteaders" in acquiring federal loans to renovate the houses if the city approves the program for Sanford. The city would not be asked to make the loans, Wilson said. — Mark Weisberg

Re-Roofing Planned For Housing Project

The Sanford Housing Authority (SHA) board of directors Thursday night approved a $14,115 contract with Adcock Roofing of Sanford for the re-roofing of six buildings in the Castle Brewer Court on West Ninth Street.

The board also authorized Executive Director Thomas H. Wilson III to review the development budgets for Lake Monroe Terrace and Redding Gardens.

"The complexes cost less to build than we estimated," Wilson said. "We received permission from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to install smoke detectors and fire escapes and to put a public address system in the community facility."

The remaining money could be used for additional items

SANFORD WOMAN HURT IN CRASH

Seminole sheriff's deputies said Joyce Green, 21, of 137 Scott Dr., Sanford, was admitted at Seminole Memorial Hospital with facial cuts and possible other injuries Thursday afternoon after the car she was driving, above, crashed into a tree on 21st St. near Sipes Ave., Midway. Early today her condition was listed as "good." Damages to the auto were estimated at $1,200, according to sheriff's reports.

Missing Defendant Hunted 6 Criminal Trials Delayed

Six circuit court criminal cases that had been docketed for trial this week before Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor in Sanford have been delayed until later this month.

A bench warrant was ordered issued for the arrest of Gloria Dean Burke, 25, of Sanford, after a court-appointed attorney said he hasn't seen his client and doesn't know where she is. Miss Burke's trial on four counts, accusing her of uttering a forgery in connection with checks totaling $675 cashed at a Sanford bank in October and November, was rescheduled for the week of Feb. 21.

Other cases continued for trial Feb. 21 include:

— Ralph Anthony Ringgold, 29, of Sanford, accused of aggravated assault and battery. — Charles Jess Palmer, 38, of 702 E. 20th St., Sanford, burglar, grand larceny and receiving stolen property.

— Thomas F. Stratton, 36, of Orlando, obtaining property by worthless check.

— Collin Sidney Manning, 30, 1722 W. First St., Sanford, burglar, grand larceny and receiving stolen property.

— Walter Cornelius Seymour, 21, of 1701 W. 15th St., Sanford, accused of attempted sexual battery.

— Lewis David Wade, 28, of Lake Mary, accused of two counts of sexual battery.

The trial of Jim Vincent Suarez, 59, of Altamonte Springs, on a charge of obtaining property by worthless check was continued for trial the week of March 14.

State Atty. Douglas Cheshire's office has dropped prosecution of the following suspects on these charges:

— Eugene Orville Brooks, 33, of 702 E. 20th St., Sanford, grand larceny.

— Charles Jess Palmer, 38, of 702 E. 20th St., Sanford, burglar, grand larceny and receiving stolen property.

WINNING SMILE

The name's different, but the smile's the same — as John Hendricks of Southside Elementary School, Sanford, displays his form as one of the winners in the contest finale to National Children's Dental Health Week. John was incorrectly identified in Thursday's Evening Herald as Mark Blathner of Lake Orienta School — another smiling-contest winner.

Property Tax Rebate Plans May Cut Taxes By $86 Million

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A Senate committee is considering various property-tax rebate proposals that could aid as many as 572,000 Floridians by lowering their taxes as much as $86 million.

The Senate Finance Committee was told Thursday that major proposals in the "circuit breaker" tax plan would cost the state from $47 million to $86 million, depending on the range of benefits.

Under the concept, homeowners would get rebates of up to $250 for property taxes paid over a certain percentage of their income.

Supporters say the beauty of the plan is that it would aid renters, since up to 20 per cent of their rent goes for property tax payments.

Prisoner Health Care Rapped

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Lawmakers have fired off letters to prison director Louie Wainwright and Gov. Reubin Askew demanding to know what is being done about alleged mismanagement of prisoner health care.

Members of the appropriations subcommittee that handles funding for the Department of Offender Rehabilitation (DOR) expressed dismay Thursday at the findings of a Senate staff report.

That report said the state's $6.3-million program for prisoner health care was plagued by disorganization and poor personnel practices.

Reports Termed 'Premature'

TALLAHASSEE (AP) Reports that Gov. Reubin Askew's budget could force the need for $200 million in new taxes are premature because the budget hasn't yet been completed, Askew's top aide said Thursday.

But Senate Finance Chairman Jack Gordon, D-Miami Beach, said he was sticking by his statement that Askew aides have said the governor's budget is now $200 million above revenue estimates for next year.

Since Askew must submit a balanced budget when he makes his recommendations to lawmakers later this month, that would mean raising taxes.

Judges Study Law Courses

TALLAHASSEE (AP) Judges who are not lawyers have to brush up on the law before they can put people in jail, the Florida Supreme Court says.

The high court ruled Thursday that judges who are not lawyers cannot try cases where the penalty could include jail unless they have completed special law courses.

The decision affects 33 nonlawyer judges, most of them county judges from rural areas. Most of the non-lawyer judges are enrolled in a special course at the University of Florida, but they are not scheduled to graduate until June 30.

Court: No Pot At Home, Either

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Floridians don't have the legal right to smoke marijuana in the privacy of their homes, the Florida Supreme Court says.

"We reject the notion that smoking marijuana at home is the type of conduct protected by the constitutional right to privacy," the Court said Thursday in a 6-1 decision authored by Justice Alan Sundberg.

The court ruled on the appeal of John Roger Laird and Lorraine A. Coffey, who were convicted in Fort Lauderdale of possession of marijuana in Laird's apartment. They were placed on 2½ years probation.

5-Year-Old 'Awarded' Doctorate

MANCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Ann Marie Green's parents know their daughter is intelligent. But even they were stunned when she was awarded a doctorate degree in arts from the University of Michigan.

Ann Marie is 5. The degree came in the mail this week. But it was intended for another Ann Marie Green who lives in a rural area north of here, U-M officials said.

"I'm a very proud father and when we received the transcript I was very pleased that the University of Michigan recognized the outstanding education program we have and the brilliant children we have in Manchester kindergarten classes," said William Green, Ann Marie's father. Green is superintendent of Manchester schools.

FUNDING THE BALL

A $200 check was presented by the Seminole Sunrise Kiwanis to the Xi Beta Eta sorority to aid that group in preparing Valentine Ball, scheduled for 9 p.m. Saturday at the Sanford Civic Center. Proceeds from the ball will go to the Seminole Youth Ranch. Kiwanis president Jim Rowe (left) does the honors while Valentine Queen candidate Linda Keeling, Valentine candidate Cliff Miller, and Kiwanis youth services panel chairman Larry Sinclair look on.

Pettigrew May Join Revampers

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Former state House Speaker Richard Pettigrew has been asked by President Carter to join the team that will try to reorganize the federal government.

"We haven't reached any conclusions or made any decisions at this point," Pettigrew said Thursday after meeting in Washington with Carter. "We explored on a very preliminary basis some role in the reorganization plan."

Pettigrew also met Thursday with Carter aide Hamilton Jordan and Thomas B. Lince, director of the Office of Management and Budget. If he joins the Carter administration, Pettigrew will be one of the highest-ranking Floridians in Washington.

Pettigrew, who currently practices law in Miami, directed a major reorganization of Florida state government in 1969. He helped reduce more than 200 state agencies to a constitutional limit of not more than 25.

Youth Can Serve In Many Ways

The concept of universal national service is older on these shores than the Republic itself, and now as the country puts the scars of a divisive war behind it the concept is gathering momentum again.

In Colonial days and up through the Civil War, the service it entailed was military. The Second Amendment in the Bill of Rights, certifying the right of every citizen to keep and bear arms, expresses the principle that each citizen is under obligation to serve the community if needed.

A generation ago Dwight Eisenhower urged universal military training, speaking both as a soldier concerned with the manpower needs of the armed forces and as a statesman troubled by inequities in the draft program that existed then. Now Mississippi's Sen. John Stennis suggests that the draft be reinstated, "like it or not," to meet U.S. military requirements and standards.

There are, however, more than military battles to be fought in and for this country. The public service programs of the Kennedy years — the Peace Corps and VISTA, for example — showed that there is a vast reservoir of talent and enthusiasm waiting to be tapped, that there are many victories which youthful vigor, properly channeled, can win.

During the presidential campaign, Walter Mondale said that he and Jimmy Carter, if elected, would seek to revitalize the Peace Corps to the numbers and spirit of the 1960s, when its size and budget were about double that of today's. On the other side of the aisle, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker has proposed immediate national debate on a program of compulsory public service for 18- and 19-year-old youths. With military service as an option, it would serve both the Carter-Mondale goals and those of Sen. Stennis.

A recent Gallup Poll indicates broad national support for a compulsory year of service to the nation. In terms of age, men 18 to 24 — the bracket most affected — divided almost evenly for and against, but a surprisingly large 91 per cent in that age group preferred military service. Overall, a similar year of service by women won only 40 per cent approval.

The times no longer require that men — and women too — be called on at a moment's notice to snatch a musket off the wall and go into combat. Today's battles can be against ignorance, pollution, disease, crime and disaster, and there is an army of energetic, idealistic youth.

There is no better lesson in democracy than participation in its disciplines, and civic duty has always been at the heart of the American philosophy.

However, an equally great American tradition is volunteerism. Let the debate be. Sen. Baker calls for ensue. Our contribution is that if the groundswell for service to country is as great as indicated, inspirational leadership in Washington can obviate the need for compulsory civilian service.

Bells Bottom Again

The Navy's enlisted men apparently want to reestablish the swashbuckling image associated with their discontinued uniform of bell-bottom trousers, jumper and white hat.

According to a poll conducted by the Navy Times, more than 80 per cent of the sailors are unhappy with the coat-and-tie uniform authorized in 1973 and made universal last July 1.

More than nostalgia is involved, however. Sailors complained of the new uniform being hard to store in inadequate shipboard lockers and of requiring ironing. There have also been complaints of the present uniform demanding more of clothing allowances.

The official publication reported that more than 80,000 sailors responded to its survey, about one of every seven on active duty.

If the cost of the old bell-bottom garb is indeed less than the new uniform, the Navy should take its own poll. A uniform that would boost Navy morale and, at the same time, please the taxpayers is worthy of reinstatement.

BERRY'S WORLD

Around

The Clock

By AUDIE MURPHY

Those scruffy gangster-leprechauns that invaded my household at the invitation of Timothy Dooley have departed, albeit reluctantly.

Not that they didn't accomplish a fair amount of mischief before they left. It was had enough that they reversed the flow of the Gulf Stream and brought that miserable cold wave to Florida a few weeks ago. But they didn't stop there — they went so far as to tamper with the architecture of Florida's new capitol.

This all started when my leprechaun friend Tim Dooley invited that pack — called the Rooneys — to Florida for a vacation. And I consented to let them stay at my house, because I figured if we didn't do something the entire continent of North America might be buried under a snowdrift for the next hundred years or so. I mean, those little buggers are spiteful.

So they came down to Florida, and like all tourists, they wanted to see all the sights. The trouble started when Tim took them to the Central Florida Zoo and they aped the animals. The zoo animals couldn't see Tim or the Rooneys, but they like Festus at all, and she had to mace him with plastic dust to get her point across. To make a long story short, the Rooneys' trip to Disney World wasn't any more peaceful than their trip to the zoo had been.

Just the next piece of mischief they pulled before they left was fouling up the new capitol in Tallahassee. They figured it would be a good joke if the door to the bathroom in the governor's office was too small for a person to get through, especially if he's in a hurry. So, using a little leprechaun magic, they arranged to make the door pretty darn narrow.

And they didn't stop there. In a stroke of Rooney genius, they got on the telephone and invited all the newsmen in the area to a press conference in the governor's new office. (The governor was nowhere around, of course.) Then the little scamps conjured up two cases of beer and put a sign on them saying 'Help yourselves. I'll be here after awhile' and signed it "The Governor."

Then the Rooneys just sat back and watched the fun.

Maybe it will turn out to have been inexperience (after all, they've only been there three weeks) and maybe it will end up being McGovern's finest hour, but so far the Carter Administration is making some puzzling moves in the area of foreign affairs.

First, Vice President Walter Mondale discovered the Berlin Wall. He allowed as how very few walls had been built to keep people in (he might find Solzhenitsyn's Gulag Archipelago informative).

Then, Americans who held out hope that a Carter White House would be tough-minded about security matters got a jolt when Mondale announced in Tokyo that U.S. ground troops would definitely be pulled out of South Korea (on a timetable to be announced).

Japanese Foreign Minister Hatoyama said of the move, "If you look at history, it is a fact that war occurred once in Korea because of withdrawal of U.S. troops there. Hence, our anxieties."

Next, Andrew Young, the new Ambassador to the U.N., moved to center state with a lot of rhetorical strokes toward the Third World. He went on television's "Who's Who" and had this fascinating exchange with Dan Rafter:

RATHER: We were in Vietnam at the beginning of the 60s. The Cubans will bring a certain stability and order — to Angola, for instance, and that the enemy — all over the world, I think, is chattering about a nation with a military unit that's disciplined. It can be ordered in, it can be ordered out. I have no question in my mind but that we could negotiate very successfully withdrawal of Cuban troops from Southern Africa.

YOUNG: The Cubans were in Angola at the invitation of the N.P.L.A. and the Cubans are in States to be in Vietnam, why isn't it wrong for the Cubans to be in Angola?

It can be ordered in, it can be ordered out. I have no question in my mind but that we could negotiate very successfully withdrawal of Cuban troops from Southern Africa.

YOUNG: The Cubans were in Angola at the invitation of the N.P.L.A. and the Cubans are in States to be in Vietnam, why isn't it wrong for the Cubans to be in Angola?

YOUNG: The Cubans were in Angola at the invitation of the N.P.L.A. and the Cubans are in States to be in Vietnam, why isn't it wrong for the Cubans to be in Angola?

Then the Rooneys just sat back and watched the fun.

Maybe it will turn out to have been inexperience (after all, they've only been there three weeks) and maybe it will end up being McGovern's finest hour, but so far the Carter Administration is making some puzzling moves in the area of foreign affairs.

First, Vice President Walter Mondale discovered the Berlin Wall. He allowed as how very few walls had been built to keep people in (he might find Solzhenitsyn's Gulag Archipelago informative).

Then, Americans who held out hope that a Carter White House would be tough-minded about security matters got a jolt when Mondale announced in Tokyo that U.S. ground troops would definitely be pulled out of South Korea (on a timetable to be announced).

Japanese Foreign Minister Hatoyama said of the move, "If you look at history, it is a fact that war occurred once in Korea because of withdrawal of U.S. troops there. Hence, our anxieties."

Next, Andrew Young, the new Ambassador to the U.N., moved to center state with a lot of rhetorical strokes toward the Third World. He went on television's "Who's Who" and had this fascinating exchange with Dan Rafter:

RATHER: We were in Vietnam at the beginning of the 60s. The Cubans will bring a certain stability and order — to Angola, for instance, and that the enemy — all over the world, I think, is chattering about a nation with a military unit that's disciplined. It can be ordered in, it can be ordered out. I have no question in my mind but that we could negotiate very successfully withdrawal of Cuban troops from Southern Africa.

YOUNG: The Cubans were in Angola at the invitation of the N.P.L.A. and the Cubans are in States to be in Vietnam, why isn't it wrong for the Cubans to be in Angola?

Pollution Fears Cut Oil Search

The exploitation of oil and gas deposits off this country's northern Atlantic Coast has long been stalled by fears of possible environmental damage.

The massive oil spill caused by the wreck of the Argo Merchant off Nantuxet, which threatened New England coasts and fisheries, another spill in the Delaware River and, before that, the explosion of a tanker in Los Angeles Harbor, have certainly done nothing to calm the fears.

Paradoxically, however, these tanker accidents have provided one of the best arguments in favor of going ahead with offshore oil and gas development, asserts George H. Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association.

He cites a recent congressional study which found that most oil pollution in the ocean comes from land-based sewage runoff and from tankers being in imported oil, not from offshore drilling and production.

Another point frequently overlooked, he says, is that much of the proposed drilling on the Atlantic continental shelf will, it is anticipated, produce natural gas, which does not pollute water, air or land. To the extent that this clean-burning fuel is found, it will help to alleviate both air pollution in urban, high-density areas and dependence on foreign oil brought by tanker.

On the other hand, there have been some pretty spectacular pollution incidents caused by tankers. The 1967 Santa Barbara blowout blew to mind, as well as at least a couple other serious spills or platform explosions in the Gulf of Mexico in recent years.

To the extent that we drill more and offshore wells, the chances of pollution accidents must inevitably increase, even if — on balance — the danger is less than that from tankers.

One fact that won't go away is that the country needs new sources of oil and gas, and nowhere are they more badly needed than in the Northeast. According to a study this one by the Brookhaven National Laboratory, the Northeast's already heavy dependence on foreign petroleum will double by the end of the century if Atlantic offshore reserves are not developed.

We are, almost literally, caught between the devil and the deep blue sea.

Competition Smell Scares Off Perfumers

WASHINGTON — The corporate giants who dominate the billion-dollar-a-year perfume industry couldn't stand the smell of a little competition.

They quietly put the squeeze on a small businessman who succeeded in duplicating their expensive perfumes and selling them at cut-rate prices. The cosmetics tycoons pressured suppliers not to provide him with perfume and urged newspapers not to run his ads.

The conspiracy against Murray Puznak can be documented directly from conversations which he secretly recorded. We have listened to the tape recordings.

The enterprising Puznak thought he had a million-dollar idea. He would duplicate the fragrances of famous perfumes and offer them to low-budget customers.

It was all quite legal. It would also have been quite profitable if the big perfume companies had left him alone. Puznak began to advertise broadly: "We want Chanel No. 5 customers." Then he bottled a delicate fragrance similar to Chanel No. 5 and labeled the substitute "Copy Cat."

Next: Uranium Shortage?

NEW YORK (AP) — The uranium industry is warning, as the natural gas industry did in years gone by, that it reserves full faith and credit in the requirements being scheduled for it by energy authorities.

As a result, at least one uranium producer, the Atlas Corp., is urging a crash program of exploration and development, financed in part by huge government loans, additional tax credits and depletion allowances.

Edward R. Farley, Jr., Atlas president, said an investment of at least $10 billion will be needed to meet the nation's uranium needs within the next 25 years, for exploration, new mines and additional processing plants.

"The uranium industry is in no position to supply that kind of capital," he said.

Atlas was one of the first U.S. companies to enter the uranium mining business in the late 1940s. It has since expanded to include supply to yellowcake to a number of the 55 nuclear power plants in the United States.

He said the inability of his and other companies to meet requirements could result in serious social and economic dislocations, possibly resulting in power shortages, higher electricity bills and slowed economic growth.

Under his plan, the federal government would put up a large part of the $10 billion he feels is needed.

"Companies, individuals, partnerships, whatever they be, would have to prove that a commercial ore body" before obtaining funds, he said.

If the explorers discover uranium they would be required to repay the loans, but if their efforts resulted in finding the ore, the loans would be forgiven.

The federal government has been conducting an airplane survey over a 700,000-square-mile area of the country in search of deposits. The information is fed into computers to pinpoint possible exploration sites for private industry.

Most uranium deposits presently are situated in the western part of the country, but known deposits exist in Tennessee and North Carolina, and a recent government survey suggests there may be ore in Pennsylvania and Maine.

Current, somewhat vague plans call for nuclear energy to provide about 15 per cent of the nation's electricity by 1985, about double the current level, with the percentage rising to 50 per cent or so by the year 2000.

Industry maintains the uranium reserves simply do not exist to meet that schedule, and that "the annual gap between our production of uranium and our needs is growing every year."

litres cases brought on one fraction of the uranium we have here."

Footnote: The frustrated Puznak, unable to get action from the government, has brought civil suits against several major perfume companies. Because the suit is still pending, none of the parties involved would talk to us about the matter.

WATCH OUT WASTE! — The Veterans Administration can no longer cope with the paperwork of distributing $14 billion in checks to veterans each year. So the beleaguered bureaucrats have asked for $94 million to set up a computer system to help process the checks.

Beau Baugh Sniffs $5,000 Paycheck

MIAMI (AP) — Gopher Beau Baugh has a chance at a $5,000 paycheck in a renewed effort to escape the shadow of his sister, Laura Baugh.

While Laura tees off across town in the opening round of a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament, Baugh tries to preserve a two-stroke lead in the final 18 holes of a 54-hole, $25,000 American Golf Tour (AGT) event at the Country Club of Miami.

Even though the new AGT lacks prestige, the $5,000 top prize in this pay-to-play event is $2,500 less than Laura's $25,000 prize in the $50,000 LPGA tournament.

Baugh, 24, who paid $250 for a membership and $100 for the tournament, came to use the winner's cash and the confidence. He almost gave up competitive golf after failing last November to qualify for a Professional Golfers Association tour card.

He missed a card by two strokes two years ago, then shot 77s the last two days of November's qualifier to miss a card by five strokes.

"I took a week to think about it," said the Cerritos, Calif., golfer. "I talked to both Laura and my older brother, who used to play, and I really had to ask myself if I was good enough to continue."

"I had a job lined up as an assistant pro, but I decided to keep going. I had an inner faith that I could do it. But I know that this is the decision year for me."

He shot a two-under 70 Thursday on the 6,272-yard course for a 36-hole total of 137.

Chasing him are Barney Thompson of Barbourville, W.Va., 68-139; Curt Madison, Gainesville, Ga., 70-141.

Harwich, Mass., 72-140; Phil Hancock, Panama City, Fla., 73-141; and Tommy Valentine, Gainesville, Ga., 74-141.

"This is a godsend," said Baugh. "If I don't go, I don't know what the heck I'm going to do."

How Fast To Run A Mile?

NEW YORK (AP) — He is just a slip of a lad — 5 feet, 6 inches tall and only 130 pounds — who appears lost inside his heavy storm coat.

"It isn't the size of a man that determines how fast he can run a mile," insists Niall O'Shaughnessy, the tiny veterinarian's son from County Limerick in Ireland. "It's how tough he is and how quickly he can move his legs."

The supreme test of Niall's toughness and speed comes Saturday night in the U.S. Olympic Invitational Track Meet at Madison Square Garden with much of the country watching on television (NBC-3 p.m. EST).

He will go head-to-head with, among others, New Zealand's 16-foot-1 John Walker, the Olympic 1500-meter gold medalist, world record-holder in the mile and premier distance runner for the last three years.

With Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, who holds the world mark for 1500 meters, still duking a confrontation with Walker for political reasons, O'Shaughnessy figures to be the severest threat to the big New Zealander in the blue-ribbon mile.

Some track buffs are predicting a likely upset for the 21-year-old kid from across the Atlantic who has put a splash of green on the cardinal and white colors of the University of Arkansas, where he is studying to be an engineer.

"I am really looking forward to the race," O'Shaughnessy says. "I am no longer awed by names and reputations. I now go into every race with confidence."

Until the current indoor campaign, the frail-looking Irishman languished in obscurity — an Irishman recognized only by his coach, John McDonnell, an Irish immigrant from County Mayo, and himself.

He made the Irish Olympic team and competed at Montreal without attracting any attention. He ran in the 800 meters as a quadrilateral meet in Missouri. Then he clocked 2:15.5 in the 1000 meters, second fastest ever.

McDonnell was touring his native Ireland for track talent four years ago when he paused in a little village of Adare, a community of 500 to 600 people, and caught sight of a scrawny kid in a high school race.

"But everybody learned to spell and pronounce O'Shaughnessy's unusual first name — pronounced 'Nile,' as in the river — when he ran a 3:55.4 indoor mile, second-best of all time, in a quadrilateral meet in Missouri. Then he clocked 2:15.5 in the 1000 meters, second fastest ever."

beliefs, "each placed a special trust in God," and he added: "These who were the strongest intellectually were also the strongest spiritually..."

He deplored denominational rivalry, just as he has most notable presidents, in terms that would not become common until the modern ecumenical movement. He said: "I wish I could make every member of a Christian church feel that just as far as he spends his time in quarreling with other Christians of other churches he is helping to discredit Christianity in the eyes of the world..."

As a student at Harvard, he taught a lively, heavily attended Sunday School class at Episcopal Church in the city of Washington, D.C. for three years, but the rector ousted him on learning he belonged to another denomination and intended to stay in it.

Gunman Captured

CINCINNATI (AP)—Police today captured a shotgun-wielding man who had abducted eight hostages at a home for unwed mothers Friday night. The gunman, Jesse Coulter, and all the hostages were safe, police said.

Coulter had threatened to "blow them away" unless he was given information on his son who had been born at the home 20 years ago and given up for adoption.

The ordeal came to an end shortly before noon when police announced: "It's all over. All hostages are free and safe."

The former Mrs. Coulter, mother of the child born 20 years ago, who had entered the home with her former husband, emerged first with a coat over her head. He followed 10 minutes later. They were both handcuffed as they were led to a police car and taken from the scene.

Earlier, six of the eight hostages had escaped and fled screaming from the building and police said the saved-off shotgun had somehow been wrestled away from Coulter.

Police said the 38-year-old Coulter, who is from Detroit, walked into the home with his former wife, Rita, Friday night, pulled out a sawed-off shotgun and herded the eight people into the small room.

He demanded the return of a son he said was born to his former wife at the home 20 years ago, and threatened to harm his hostages if authorities did not comply.

"He's got us stalemated," police Capt. Donald Slaughter said after the all-night vigil. "We tried every approach in the book, and every time we get something going, it just drops."

Division B: It's On The Job

Unpaid--'They Do A Whale Of A Job'

By BOB LLOYD
 Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Sheriff John Polk believes that citizen cooperation is a "must" for efficient law enforcement. And there's a group of 20 citizens he says his department couldn't function without.

That group of 20 citizens is known as the sheriff's department Division "B."

"We just don't have the manpower," Polk says, "without Division B."

Some law enforcement agencies call their groups "auxiliaries" or "reserves," but Polk says his department's Division B is staffed by citizens who are part-time sworn officers with the full powers of deputy sheriffs.

"As part-time officers they have more powers than 'reserves,'" notes Chief Deputy Sheriff Duane Harrell. "They aren't paid wages but the department furnishes their uniforms and leather, so they technically are compensated by the county."

The men and women of Division B furnish their own sidearms and must have completed the 320-hour Police Standards Course and must be certified as qualified officers by the state.

Some of the Division B officers can work in the detention and communications divisions of the sheriff's department while they are completing the required schooling.

Not everyone can become a Division B officer. Harrell said applicants undergo background checks screening them as do applicants for regular sheriff's road patrol deputies.

Polk recently attended a Division B meeting at the Sanford courthouse and administered the deputy's oath to the group.

As sworn, bonded deputies Division B officers ride with regular deputies on patrol. They also can ride patrol alone or in pairs and do the same jobs as regular patrol deputies.

Polk attributes the success of a recent series of "stakeouts" that netted two suspects in connection with a string of burglaries in part to the volunteer help of several Division B members.

"They worked hard, long hours and it paid off," he said.

At least one Division B member is a certified breathalyzer operator and is available on call to assist sheriff's deputies and police departments when needed.

Division B deputies must work at least two shifts, or a total of 16 hours each month. But a number of Division B officers contribute up to and including as many as 200 hours a month. They must also attend monthly in-service training sessions of several hours.

In the in-service training sessions Division B officers receive See DIVISION B, Page 2A

WAITING TO GIVE THOSE EMERGENCY LOANS

It was business as usual today at the U.S. Farmers Home Administration (FHA) office in Sanford — with Wilson Gordon, assistant county supervisor, and a couple of chairs waiting for emergency freeze applicants to show up. Gordon had only a couple of definite appointments to handle Saturday, but was ordered to keep the office open the whole weekend. He expects to spend most of Sunday checking applications for emergency five per cent, long-term loans made available under the disaster designation awarded Seminole and 34 other counties in Florida by President Carter resulting from the January freeze. Deadline for application to replace physical losses is April 1; deadline for production losses is Oct. 31. P.S. Gordon finally had company in mid-morning Saturday when one of his applicants appeared.
