The boys, aged 10 and 12, were turned over to juvenile authorities Tuesday, sheriff's deputies said.

"They were from a very, very poor home and confessed to four or five other burglaries," added William Mathews, principal of Forest Park School.

Briarwood Zoning Change Bid Delayed

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

ALAMONTE SPRINGS—Public hearing on the requested rezoning to office building on Ronnie Drive, the first block inside Briarwood subdivision, has again been delayed — this time until mid-September.

Adjacent property owners in the 15-year-old development have fought the rezoning for the past year. The property was annexed into the city early this year, but the change in zoning from residential was turned down by city council.

Attorney Vernon Mize, representing owners seeking the rezoning for the property near SR 436, asked for a postponement until 6:30 p.m. Sept. 17 after the resignation of Councilman Don Myers was announced.

Mize received a postponement in early May when Councilman Dan Dorfman was absent due to a lengthy business trip.

Mize, noting the issue is controversial, said he would like a full five-man council present when the rezoning is considered.

The engineer said the city also has a problem with Crane's Roost. Extensive development is located to the south and west of the Crane's Roost.

Palm said that the rains have shown a $150,000 sewer lift station must be constructed at the Spring Valley Apartments on Wymore Road and that the city when it receives interim sewer construction funds from the state should also ask money for the lift station.

A deal with the Seminole County Commission to purchase the city's sixth month old $120,000 designated severe drainage problems in two city areas an emergency and authorized Mayor Norman Floyd to negotiate inclusion of corrective work in two open ended arrangements with contractors.

Floyd said the city can use the tree planter, purchased last year after several old and large trees were chopped down, only at certain times and the city would be getting the best end of the trade.

The board gave preliminary approval to a new court cost ordinance, setting a public hearing on the proposed law for 6:30 p.m., July 30.

The proposed ordinance requires a fee of $5 to $10 costs with fines from $1 to $25; $10 to $15 costs for fines of $25 to $100 and $15 to $100 costs with fines of $101 to $500.

Floyd reported that the city has no contract with Price Waterhouse and can stop work by the firm which is studying computerizing city accounts.

City Auditor Charles Lanning last week said the city cannot use the information gained at this time and that the proposed system was too exotic.

Floyd said there was "an awful lot of duplication" in the study which was initially to cost $9,000, then went to $17,000 plus out of pocket expenses for a total of $23,000.

Windfall

The city is to receive a windfall of some $300,000 in the fiscal year, according to Floyd. He said that the valuation for tax purposes of property within the city is $12,629,579, double last year's total.

At five mills tax, Floyd said the city can expect property tax revenue of $638,265, double the current year.

Atkins' firm was in association with a New York company, the unsuccessful bidder on a controversial fire fund insurance contract eventually awarded to the Gainesville Insurance Agency Inc., although bids by Atkins' firm and one other were lower.

The state Cabinet, on June 19, 1973, at O'Malley's recommendation, approved the higher contract for the state's self-insurance fund on state bonds.

Witnesses summoned Tuesday and today indicated that the grand jury had turned its attention to the way the state awards insurance contracts.

One person questioned Tuesday was Fred Parker, a Tallahassee attorney and a member of the state Board of Regents.

He told reporters afterwards that he represented some insurance firms "but they don't have anything to do with this."

One firm he represents is headed by Robert Atkins of Tallahassee, who also was questioned by the grand jury.

State Utility Officials Paint Bleak Picture For Financing

Three top officers of the state's largest electric utilities painted a bleak picture for the future financing of the inflationary spiral can be reversed and earnings can be improved to attract investor capital.

In a presentation before the Florida Public Service Commission in Tallahassee, Marshall McDonald, president of Florida Power & Light Company, said "The fuel crisis of the winter has become the economic crisis of the summer and future."

McDonald noted that many Floridians asked about the Consolidated Edison Utility crisis in New York and wondered if it can happen here. He told them, he said, that it is not imminent but that it could happen. The key is adequate return on investment.

He reported on various economies and efficiencies that have been instituted by Florida Power & Light in a war on costs.

Each authorization for a new employee must be approved on my desk. It's quite a drastic measure, he said. McDonald said the utility had even gone so far as to make studies which consider the balance between the cost of service and the quality of service.

He cited a retrenchment in capital expenditure as another cutback to improve the Florida Power & Light earnings picture.

John H. Hudiburgh, executive vice president of Florida Power & Light, talked about the squeeze on seeking investment capital. "Florida Power & Light will require about $563,000,000 in capital expenditures in 1974 ($2,000,000 for each work day) just to keep pace," he said, "with the vast majority of it having to be secured from external money markets."

Hudiburgh noted that not only have interest rates sky rocketed but the competition for money from all segments of the economy, especially the non-regulated areas, is fierce. "The wonder of it is, will there be any money available at all price?" he said.

Florida Power & Light's last bond sales were at the record interest rate of 8 1/2 per cent for some $100,000,000.

Seminole Grand Jury Gets Holiday Recess

The Seminole County Grand Jury investigating the city of Altamonte Springs has adjourned for the 4th of July holidays and is not expected to report until late next week at the earliest.

Assistant State Atty. Bill Staley said today the 18-member body will not return until July 11, when it will resume drafting its report and recommendations.

No one involved in the investigation will comment on what — if any — indictments are expected.

However, as reported previously in The Herald, the probe has centered on allegations of illegal campaign contributions and gifts to past and present city officials.

Also a target of investigators are charges by present and former city brass that ex-mayor Lawrence Swofford prevented the city from enforcing the city's building and fire codes.

Swofford has denied the charges, and Friday reportedly waived immunity from prosecution to testify for 3 1/2 hours in front of the nine-man, nine-woman grand jury.

Other city officials who waived immunity to testify include Mayor Norman Floyd, who is under indictment in December, Police Chief Justus East, Fire Chief Tom Siegfried, and City Councilmen Helen Keyser and Don Myers.

Only one city official, Public Works Administrator Don Bundy, refused to waive immunity, prompting the grand jury to decline to hear his testimony.

Developers who testified included ex-Altamonte resident owner Lester Mandell, Wilson Knott and Lester Zimmerman.

Lori Wilson Runs Again For Senate

MERRITT ISLAND — Senator Lori Wilson announced today she will run for re-election as the independent state senator from District 16.

Her announcement ended speculation that she might run for higher state office or might join one of the major political parties in the up-coming primaries.

She pointed out that even though she is the incumbent, she is running for re-election as an independent state senator again to get enough petition signatures to get her name on the general election ballot. Revised Florida law requires signatures of five per cent of the voters, or approximately 8,700 in her district of Brevard, Seminole, Osceola and independent Orange Counties.

Sen. Wilson was the only independent and the only woman in the 46-member Florida Senate the past two years. She won election to that post in 1972 by defeating Democrat Tom Dolan, Cocoa Beach banker; Republican Hugh Evans, Melbourne merchant and former county commissioner; and Mrs. Barbara Moorhead, Titusville trailer camp operator who also ran as an independent.

Witnesses summoned Tuesday and today indicated that the grand jury had turned its attention to the way the state awards insurance contracts.

One person questioned Tuesday was Fred Parker, a Tallahassee attorney and a member of the state Board of Regents.

Escapee Wounded

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Escaped convict John Wesley Elder was listed in critical condition today from a shotgun wound received while trying to flee police.

Elder, 21, was cornered in the Eustis apartment of a girlfriend Tuesday night and was shot when he tried to leap from a window, police said.

He was transferred to a hospital in Orlando.

Elder escaped last month from an Oklahoma federal prison where he was serving a 45-year sentence in the $18,000 robbery of the Bank of Mount Dora and an attempt to extort money from the bank's president by kidnapping his daughter.

Police had been searching for Elder in the Eustis area since Thursday when he eluded officers by running through an orange grove.

Sailor Home To Die

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Canoer victim Tim Nunley has returned home, perhaps for the last time, for more treatment for the deadly disease Navy doctors admit they at first failed to diagnose.

Almost simultaneously, his parents asked a federal judge to take testimony from the 19-year-old sailor concerning his Navy medical treatment in case he dies before a suit can be filed.

"It's good to be back in Jacksonville," said Nunley, who was discharged from the Navy last week. "I never knew," he said of one shark that mangled Billy's arms and legs. "We were strictly in the hands of God."

Horne, 43, his wife, Diane, 34, and their children, Billy, Edward Jr., Diana Jo, 14, Gerald Paul, 11, and Melissa, 4, were on a vacation cruise from their home in Houston, Tex., to the Bahamas when tragedy struck. Four other children did not make the trip.

The surviving members were admitted to the Tyndall hospital for observation, spokesman said.

Horne said the family left the Florida Panhandle city of Carabelle late Monday aboard their 43-foot boat, the "Princess Ann." They were headed for Tarpon Springs, north of St. Petersburg, when they ran into trouble.

The sharks hit "We didn't know the sharks were around until the very last," Horne said Tuesday in an attack that fatally wounded Billy, 10. Another son, Edward Jr., 3, also died, apparently of exposure or drowning.

Saudi Arabia Takes Oil Title From U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States has dropped from No. 11 world crude oil production to No. 2, and it may be on its way down to No. 3.

Latest production figures from Saudi Arabia show that it is now the world leader in crude production with nearly 9 million barrels produced daily in May.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union, generally considered a close third, has been creeping up slowly. Soviet production figures are difficult to obtain, but many oil experts think the U.S.S.R. will pass the United States soon, if it hasn't done so already.

The drop from No. 1 is a benchmark in American oil industry history. It reflects the continuing deterioration of American oil production, a decline that started slowly from the high point of 10.8 million barrels a day in November of 1971 to its current level of about 8.5 million barrels a day. The U.S. had been the No. 1 producer since the turn of the century.

Comparing United States production figures to those of Saudi Arabia is tricky business. The weekly U.S. figures provided by the American Petroleum Institute lump crude oil production together with something called lease condensate. Saudi Arabia produces no lease condensate, so its figures represent crude oil only.

Editorial Economics Has Perennial Cloud

We've never claimed any particular expertise in economics; any discipline with so many different theories—none of which can be proven—never seemed like a particularly fruitful calling.

Nor have we ever felt it necessary to apologize for our ignorance, particularly after reading a remark attributed to a German businessman about the international monetary system. "I know of only four men who understand it," said the German, "and they disagree."

Which brings us to the heart of today's essay. How would you like to be an economics professor today? No way.

We'd go to the moon, do five years in the 'slammer' or invest our money in the World Football League before we'd ever get up in front of a group of students and try to explain today's economy.

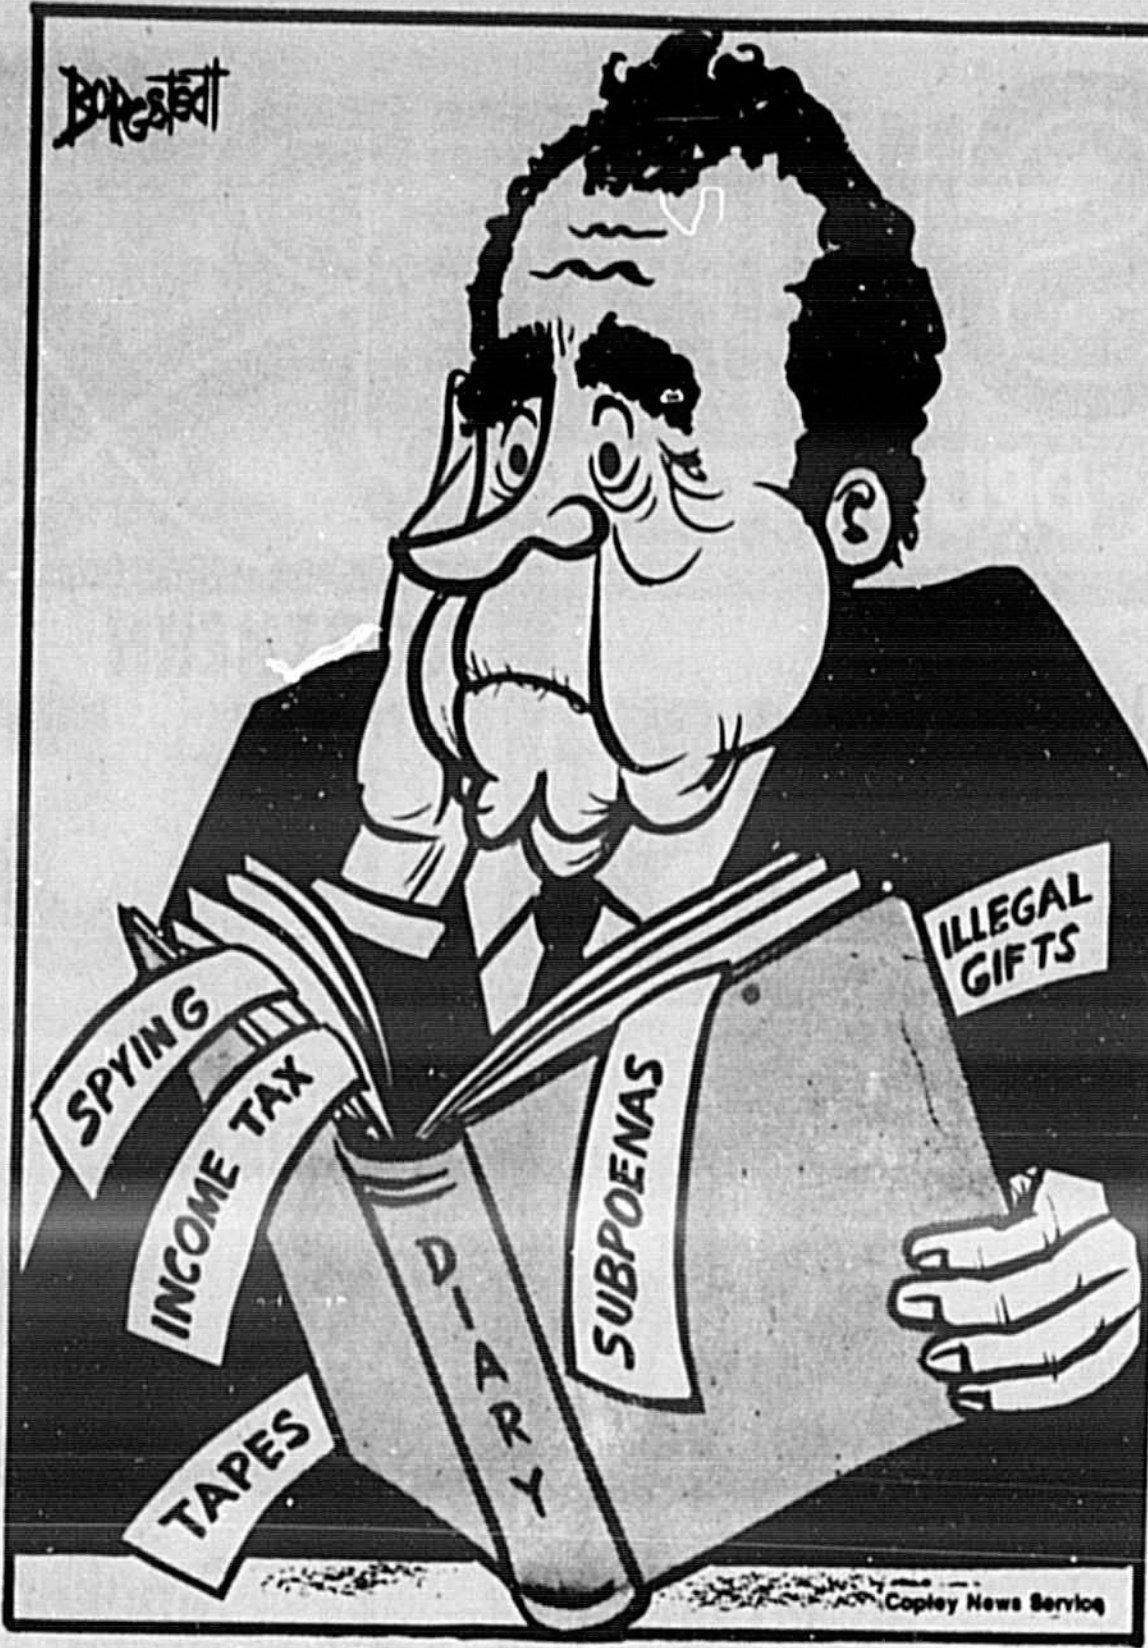

There's just no way it makes any sense. Even the law of supply and demand seems to have been repealed.

Consider, for instance, the series the Herald is currently running on meat prices. Broken down to its essentials it seems we have two choices: cows. Simple logic would suggest that if we have too many cows then we should have a lot of meat at reasonable prices, right? Wrong.

It seems that the livestock producer won't sell his cows because they cost him more to raise than the wholesaler is willing to pay. And when the wholesaler does get his hands on some cows he'll raise the price to the retailer if he is to make a profit, and the retailer can't do much for the consumer.

U.S. consumers are now spending more than $1 billion a year on non-prescription, "over-the-counter" medication.

According to Product Management, an authoritative publication on the drug marketing business, American families spent an average of $4.72 on nonprescription drugs in 1972, the last year for which complete figures are available.

Economic Vulnerability Reason Europe Gloomy

MADRID — The overwhelming impression sustained on a quick swing around Western Europe in these long days of early summer is one of gloomy foreboding.

Most of the European nations just now; but Europe's dependence on them is nearly total, and the realization of that fact has come as a nasty shock.

It is true, as we repeatedly warned before the January 1973 trial of the Watergate Seven, that the White House was trying to buy their silence. In return for pleasing guilty and keeping silent, they were paid living expenses and legal fees.

Students Have Pal In Askey Honest Politicians Deserve Recognition

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — It was tough and go when Gov. Reubin Askew recently signed into law a bill granting state university student governments control over student activity fees.

The new law gives student politicians control over $9.5 million in activity fees, which come to $34 a quarter for each full-time student.

Facing a deadline for action on the bill, Askew apparently had not decided whether to sign it or veto it. He sat at his desk with a veto message at one hand and the bill at the other.

Our stories about the President's strategy have now been confirmed by the White House transcripts. These also show that the President planned to leak secret information from the secret grand jury proceedings.

But it was the original Watergate prosecutors, more than anyone else, who thwarted the White House cover-up. After wretapper James McCord gave them their first break, the prosecutors immediately hauled the tight-lipped G. Gordon Liddy before he resigned in April.

FLORIDA TODAY

TAMPALASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Travelers to seven Florida cities now have expanded alternatives to air, and officials of the state's oldest commuter airline say they'll soon have a different look, too.

Florida Airlines officials say the added flights included two round trips daily between Tampa and Sarasota; from Tampa to Fort Myers and Miami; and twice daily flights Monday through Friday between Tampa, Ocala, Gainesville and Tallahassee.

Hours earlier, the same Cabinet majority rejected O'Malley's related criticisms of Jay Landers, and confirmed Gov. Reubin Askew's appointment of Landers as director of the island from Leisure Properties Ltd.

A motion by O'Malley that the full Cabinet call for a grand jury investigation of the St. George purchase died after one would second the move.

O'Malley said Askew was not the best of friends lately. Sources close to O'Malley have confirmed his pique over a grand jury investigation into allegations that he accepted $400,000 from the Florida Petroleum Marketers Association.

Askew appointed the special prosecutor who is handling the case, State Atty. Edward Austin of Jacksonville, and issued an order allowing the grand jury to turn its attention to other alleged corruption in state government after the panel indicated former Education Commissioner Floyd Christian on 19 counts of bribery, perjury and conspiracy.

Gene Brown, who owns a 20 per cent interest in Leisure Properties, is law partner of Jim Smith, Askew's present campaign manager and a former gubernatorial aide.

Smith and Landers worked together as Askew aides in 1972 on voter approval of $20 million in bonds to buy environmentally endangered and park lands.

O'Malley criticized Landers for traveling at state expense to a number of Florida cities to promote approval of the bond issue.

O'Malley Criticizes State Land Purchase

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A barrage of criticism by Treasurer Thomas O'Malley of a $6.5 million state land purchase and of the appointment of a land management chief has been rejected by fellow Cabinet members.

The Cabinet, capping a marathon nine-hour meeting Tuesday, voted 5-1 to complete the $6.5 million purchase of 1,486 acres of beachfront land on St. George Island near Apalachicola.

Jack Anderson Honest Politicians Deserve Recognition

WASHINGTON — All politicians shouldn't be tarred by the misdeeds of a few power-hungry men who floundered while they basked in the sunshine of Key Biscayne and San Clemente.

The stories should be written, too, of the honorable politicians — men like the courageous, small-town mayor who turned down a $500,000 bribe and risked the wrath of the Mafia rather than compromise his integrity.

His name, Bert Ross, deserves a big headline. The 31-year-old mayor of Fort Lee, N.J., in the heart of Mafia country, allegedly was offered $500,000 to help obtain zoning variances for a multimillion-dollar commercial complex.

Ross reported the bribe offer to the FBI, which asked him to go ahead with the arrangements but to wear a hidden listening device.

On May 28, he met two local developers at a Paramus, N.J. restaurant. One of them pushed a thick manila envelope across the table at him. It was stuffed with $100,000 in small bills, the first of five installments — more money than the young mayor had ever seen.

Outside in the parking lot, the FBI was tuned in. The two developers were suspected and indicated five days later for conspiracy to commit bribery.

But the drama was only beginning. Ross received a phone call at his home the morning of May 31 from Joseph Diaco. He was one of the two men at the restaurant rendezvous.

Allegedly, he growled menacingly that he had just received a grand jury subpoena, and he threatened the mayor's life. It was not a threat to be taken lightly. For Diaco, according to official records, is on close terms with the Mafia family of Ruggero "Richie the Boss" Botardo.

The FBI placed Ross and his wife Laurie under protective custody. The mayor now runs his town in exile, moving from place to place with a troop of federal bodyguards. He keeps in touch with his associates, family and friends by telephone only, his whereabouts known only to the feds.

Warning: Not Reading Could Be Hazardous

By DON OAKLEY
The Herald Services
U.S. consumers are now spending more than $1 billion a year on non-prescription, "over-the-counter" medication.

According to Product Management, an authoritative publication on the drug marketing business, American families spent an average of $4.72 on nonprescription drugs in 1972, the last year for which complete figures are available.

Cough and cold products, aspirin and vitamins headed the list in that order. No statistics are available to indicate how many people suffer serious, even fatal, injuries from overdoses of these products.

There must be reasons for this, and one that immediately comes to mind is that there isn't just one label to read. There are six sides on the package that a product comes in, all usually with information on them. Then there is the container label itself, which can wrap around and thus offer advice on four sides.

In addition, there are often separate printed instructions. Many people feel overwhelmed by all that type. Complicating the matter is the lengthy and detailed information which must, by law, appear on all non-prescription labeling.

Spying Ridiculous To Spy

By TOM TIEDE
The Herald Services
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — While the national agitation continues concerning the morality of governmental spying on people or each other, one of America's best-known spies says the industry is repulsive.

Herb Philbrick, once a Communist counterparty for the FBI, says from his current perspective as a private citizen that "there's too much snooping going on today — it's everybody spying on everybody and I think it's just ridiculous."

Philbrick, you'll recall, was the New England public relations executive who in the early 1940s stumbled across an anti-war group that he facted as the Communist front. He told the FBI and for the next nine years, acted as both comrade and agent. In the end it was Philbrick's testimony — 25 years ago this spring — that saved the government's case against 11 top U.S. Communists.

The 11 Reds went to jail and Philbrick went on eventually to obscurity. Now living in a middle-class home in a Washington suburb with a wife, daughter and loud dog, Philbrick is a testimony to irony. He's not the only one in the nation with misgivings about the state of spycraft; and, to make his situation even more sardonic, it may be that spies are now held in lower esteem than Communists.

Jerry Davies, O'Malley's press aide, said most of the other absences were caused by O'Malley's involvement in conventions or committee meetings of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Nixon, Brezhnev Aiming For 10-Year Nuclear Limitation

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev agreed today to aim for a 10-year pact limiting offensive nuclear weapons but abandoned their search for a permanent accord.

In a joint communique summing up their third summit conference, the American president and the chief of the Soviet Communist party also committed their governments to stop underground nuclear weapons tests with an explosive force of more than 150 kilotons and to put new limits on their missile defense systems.

The underground test treaty is to take effect in 21 months, on March 31, 1976, and requires the approval of two-thirds of the U.S. Senate.

With their 1972 ban on some offensive weapons running out in 1977, the two leaders agreed that a new treaty should be completed "at the earliest possible date" and should run until 1985.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told newsmen the two leaders had agreed on a permanent ban on offensive nuclear weapons. But he said the third annual Nixon-Brezhnev summit "shouldn't be seen in terms of hitting a home run on one occasion."

The 150-kiloton ceiling on underground nuclear explosions to which Nixon and Brezhnev agreed is equivalent to the explosive force of 150,000 tons of TNT, or 7 1/2 times the force of the atomic bomb that the United States dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Argentina Continues Mourning For Peron

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — An endless river of mourning Argentines, four and six abreast in lines that inched along for hours, filed past President Juan D. Peron's casket today.

Peron's widow, Isabel, postponed the state funeral until Thursday so more people could touch his lips with flowers, but police soon began pushing away those who got close.

Peron's widow, Isabel, postponed the state funeral until Thursday so more people could touch his lips with flowers, but police soon began pushing away those who got close.

The agreement on missile defense systems expands the 1972 treaty which limited the two countries to two such installations each. Only one is in place in each country—the Soviets protecting Moscow and the American system shielding Minuteman missiles at Grand Forks, N.D.

Kissinger said this "has profound strategic consequences" since multiple warheads were developed primarily to overcome the antiballistic missiles, or ABMs.

Nixon and Brezhnev also advocated that measures be taken to guard against changing the environment for military purposes.

The communique touched on a number of world problems and other negotiations that are going on.

The two leaders said "removal of the danger of war and tension" in the Middle East was of paramount importance and urgency.

When he comes to Washington in 1975. On his way home Nixon was to stop at Loring Air Force Base in Caribou, Maine, for a televised report to the American people about 7:30 p.m. EDT. Vice President Gerald Ford was to meet him there and appear with him on the telecast.

The New Rustler Has Avocado Eyes

FALLBROOK, Calif. (AP)—A standup comic could probably get 30 minutes and 90 laughs with tales of "The Avocado Rustlers," but it's no joke to growers of the fruit in Southern California.

Midway through this season's harvest, thieves have stolen almost $1 million worth of the state's $25-million crop. Most of the avocados are grown in the Fallbrook area, in San Diego County, and nestled among leathery leaves in often-fenced, rural orchards, the green fruit are tempting targets.

Many of the stolen avocados are sold at cut-rate prices to independent food stores and roadside stands. Growers generally get 45 cents a pound for the fruit.

"The losses are in the millions of pounds, not counting the penny-a-ounce stuff such as 50 or 100 pounds, which are common losses," says G.J. Clasen, president of the Avocado Growers Bargaining Council.

"A grower lost 1,600 pounds once, and I'm not even consid-

Dear Abby Streaker Finally Did It By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I did it. I did it. I finally did it! I streaked in front of an audience last night. I showered, dusted my self with rose-scented powder, made my face up, and brushed my hair. Then I slipped into a pair of pretty pink high heels (and nothing else) and I took off like a flash into the living room, where my audience of one was watching television. I paused briefly, twirled around once, and then ran back into the bedroom.

When I returned to the living room (clothed), my husband said, "Have you lost your mind, woman?"

Abby, I'm only 33. Could this mean that I am already out of shape?

STREAKER
No, but your husband could be.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the boy who hated gym because he was lousy in competitive sports brought back memories.

I was also lousy in gym, and when the teacher had the captains choose up sides, I was always the last one to be chosen. I can't describe the humiliation I suffered. I would get sick before every P.E. class, and cry in the showers afterwards.

Abby, why can't all the kids who are poor in gym have a physical fitness program of their own without having to compete with those who are fair, good and excellent? With calisthenics, trampoline, jumping rope etc. they could get just as much exercise as the kids who go out for football, basketball volleyball and track.

My own sense of failure started with the relay races in grammar school. If only I had been taught to run for the joy of running and not to beat the other team! But the name of the game was competition—even in first grade. Pity, S.F.

DEAR S: Thank you for your

Bickering Children Upset Wife

By GEORGE W. CRANE PH.D., M.D.

CASE A-675: Opal J. aged 34, is a frustrated wife.

"But it isn't my husband," she protested, "that is driving me almost crazy.

"No: it's our 4 children, ranging in ages from 7 to 13. For we live 150 miles from our husband's parents, who reside on a farm.

"And we make frequent trips from Chicago to spend the weekend down there.

"Our children sit in the back of the car and within about 30 minutes, they begin to quarrel and pick on each other till their daddy threatens to stop the car and use his belt on them.

"Although I try to keep them fairly quiet, it just seems impossible to do so, for they are so full of energy they can't sit still for the 3-hour trip.

"Dr. Crane, what can we do to save my husband's nerves and my own sanity on these auto trips?"

Mrs. Crane and I can fully sympathize with Opal and her husband.

For we had 5 children, plus 2 dogs, in the back of our 7-passenger Packard when we'd also drive to our summer home on the farm.

Here in Chicago, they'd often invade my office where I'd be typing this "Worry Clinic" column and romp, wrestle, quarrel and produce bedlam around me.

So I learned to concentrate on my typewriter and thus would ignore much of their racket.

But on a 4-hour auto trip, I'd finally grow irritable at the free-for-all rumpus that soon would develop in the back seat. So I finally developed this schedule to reduce the turmoil and channel their energy in more constructive outlets:

(1) Stop at 75-mile intervals to get 5 gallons of gasoline. Then I'd encourage a foot race around the block to help expend some of their surplus energy.

(2) Pass around some good comic books, especially those "Classics Illustrated," which would occupy their attention for maybe 30 minutes.

Then we'd let them exchange comic books after they had finished the one originally allotted to each.

But ration these comic books, so you have some extra ammunition when their tenor mounts too high.

(3) Develop games involving observance of the surrounding countryside.

(4) Pencil and paper games were also employed, as my daily newspaper quiz column "Test Your Horse Sense," which contains 10 points.

To add motivation, I'd give them a nickel if they rated "Average" (5 to 6), or a dime for "Superior" (7 to 8) and 15 cents for a "Very Superior" score.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Middlemen: High Income Isn't Profitable

The supermarket which sells it to you.

The latest Agriculture Department survey shows the price of farm-produced food increased three-tenths of 1 per cent in May.

That meant that on an annual basis, it cost $173.73 to feed a hypothetical family of 3.2 persons — up $5 from April.

The government said that if middlemen had passed along the savings resulting from lower prices paid to farmers, the consumer would have saved $34 on an annual basis.

Morrell, a part of United Brands, had 1973 sales of $1.25 billion. Profits, said Paul, were "less than 1 per cent."

The packer got 7.4 cents of the dollar you spent for beef this April, compared to 6.2 cents a year ago. The industry claims the money is going for increased costs.

Paul said he could not provide specific expense figures for the beginning of 1974 compared to previous years. He said that 75 cents out of every dollar that Morrell spends to produce the meat for shipment to supermarkets goes for the meat itself.

Half of the rest, he said, goes for labor, adding that wages and fringe benefits for some employees have risen $1 an hour in the past year. The average industry wage is $8.29, compared to $7.41 last year.

Paul said earnings for the beginning of 1974 are below last year, but he declined to give the figures.

The animal that Morrell slaughters is sold to supermarkets like Pantry Pride-Food Fair, the nation's fourth-largest chain in terms of sales.

Supermarkets are getting 30.6 cents of your beef dollar, compared to 28.7 cents last year.

Clarence Adams, head of the National Association of Food Chains, recently urged all retail stores to feature beef, to offer more specials, to move the meat to the consumer, creating a greater demand, getting rid of the over-supply and pushing up wholesale prices.

The supermarkets say they already have been bringing down the price of meat, even if the consumer doesn't think so. They argue that government figures don't take into account the time lag between a drop at the wholesale level and a decline at the supermarket counter.

"We have made sure that consumers do get the benefit of lower wholesale prices by lowering our retail meat prices," said Harold Friedland, vice president of Pantry Pride-Food Fair.

Pantry Pride had a net profit of just over $2 million last year, or about one-tenth of one per cent. One reason for the low average figures was the closing of unprofitable stores and the loss of $4 million in assets. This year, the chain expects sales of $2.3 billion and increased profits.

John Kovaleski is the manager of a Pantry Pride supermarket in Newark, N.J. He presides over a $6 to $7 million business a year, but says he has virtually no autonomy.

Kovaleski does not have the power to set the price on any item — unless it is perishable and will not last the night. The shipments he gets are billed at retail prices. He's told what his gross profit is, but doesn't know the net figures.

Those figures all are kept at company headquarters in Philadelphia and chain spokesmen do not give out dollars and cents estimates. They do say, however, that labor costs went up 18.4 per cent over the past year; light and power 38.6 per cent; paper bags 31.5 per cent; interest rates 55 per cent; and laundry costs 40 per cent.

Kovaleski gets a profit quota for each department, telling him how much money he should make overall. It runs about 17 per cent for meat. He says he doesn't know how much money is left after operating costs and other expenses come out of that 17 per cent.

A.D. Davis, chairman of the board of Winn-Dixie Stores, a chain based in Jacksonville, Fla., reels off figures to show that meat prices have declined sharply since the start of the year. Sirloin steak, $1.49 a pound at a Winn-Dixie in Atlanta, Ga., compared to $1.59 in January; chuck roast, 69 cents compared to 89 cents in January; ground beef, 69 cents compared to $1.09 in January.

If costs are down, why aren't people buying? "The consumer got ripped off last year," said Davis, adding that boycotts, shortages, withholding actions contributed to customer confusion. "Now we have to win them back."

Ford Prices Up

DETROIT (AP) — Prices for Ford Motor Co. cars and trucks built in North America are up an average of 5.8 per cent. Ford, the nation's second largest auto manufacturer, announced the average 1.3 per cent increase in retail base prices Tuesday, citing higher steel costs as the principal reason. The announcement came less than two months after company officials said there would be no further price increases this model year, and less than a week after Chrysler Corp. announced price increases, also attributed to higher steel costs.

Miss U.S.A. in Manila

MANILA (AP) — Karen Morrison, the 5-foot-11 Miss U.S.A., towered over her companions as 28 contestants in the Miss Universe pageant arrived here in one batch today.

Other contestants were to arrive later today and by day's end virtually all the beauties competing in the July 21 contest were expected to be here.

George Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace tentatively has accepted an invitation to address the Association of State Democratic Chairmen in Washington, D.C., next week.

A Wallace aide Tuesday said the governor plans to speak during his luncheon July 11.

Alabama Democratic Chairman Robert Vance, who was recently re-elected to the state party job over the opposition of a Wallace candidate, is president of the national organization.

Ford Best Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford will be the best man Friday at the wedding of his son, Michael Gerald, in Catonsville, Md.

Ford's office announced Tuesday that Michael, the Ford's eldest son, would be married to Gayle Ann Brumbaugh of Catonsville in the Chapel Hill United Presbyterian Church.

Michael Ford, 24, has just completed the first of a three-year course at the Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary in South Hamilton, Mass. He is a 1972 graduate of Wake Forest University, where he met his bride-to-be. She was graduated from Wake Forest last year.

Nixon Pal Indicted

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — C. Arnholt Smith, a friend and backer of President Nixon who once railed over a billion-dollar banking and industrial empire, has pleaded innocent after being indicted on a charge of conspiring to misapply $170 million in bank funds. Smith, 75, pleaded innocent before a federal magistrate Tuesday after the grand jury returned its 25-count indictment in U.S. District Court. If convicted on all counts, Smith could be sentenced to 125 years in prison and fined $175,000.

Blue Grass Convention

CHILHOWIE, Va. (AP) — As much as the dialects spoken there, music is the language of the eastern mountains and river bottoms where many of America's early settlers stopped during the westward movement of the last two centuries.

American folk music exists in many forms. This music, like those who play and sing it, is primarily of English, Irish, Scottish and Welsh origin, and in certain cases can be traced back as far as Elizabethan times.

In the more commercialized and modernized versions it is known as hillbilly, or country and western, and many practitioners of the original music have gone on to success in this field.

Warren Hospitalized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Chief Justice Earl Warren was reported in fair condition after hospitalization for heart trouble.

Dr. Oscar Mann, Warren's physician, said the 83-year-old former justice was hospitalized Tuesday with congestive heart failure and coronary insufficiency. Warren, who was hospitalized for about a week last month with a similar problem, was stricken at his home here, Dr. Mann said.

'Gate Staff Reviews Dem Campaign Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of the Senate Watergate committee is reconsidering its preliminary reports criticizing the campaign finances of Democrats Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern.

Staff Democrats, apparently without telling Republicans, have agreed to review new material to be submitted by McGovern aides. The aides complained that a preliminary report was unfair in suggesting that McGovern may have violated the spirit of the law forbidding corporate campaign donations when he forced some creditors, including corporations, to settle leftover campaign bills for $33,000 less than the full amounts.

Humphrey complained to top Democrats and Republican staff members, and agreed to submit new information about his personal finances and instructed his lawyer to draw up a legal brief for the staff detailing his use of more than $100,000 in personal funds in his 1972 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Earlier, the staff said Humphrey had failed to turn over requested documents.

One committee source said Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., had called Democratic staff members and ordered that the McGovern section of the preliminary report be taken out. However, chief counsel Samuel Dash denied any final decision had been made.

Dash would not confirm or deny that Ervin had expressed a personal interest in the McGovern section, but said that at the same time his presidential campaign committee was forcing creditors to swallow bad debts.

Chief Republican counsel Fred Thompson said Dash hadn't told him that McGovern aides had complained directly, nor that any reconsideration was under way. "If they're working something out, it's being done unilaterally," Thompson said.

The McGovern draft said that $340,000 in leftover funds, raised for McGovern's presidential campaign, were shifted to his current Senate re-election race in South Dakota. It said that at the same time his presidential campaign committee was forcing creditors to swallow bad debts.

A McGovern aide, John Ho-lumb, called the report a "cheap shot," and said the principal presidential committee was in the red at the time it asked creditors to settle for 50 cents on the dollar. He said the state and local campaign finance officials had ordered the leftover $340,000 sent to the Senate race, preventing McGovern from paying off presidential debts with it.

The McGovern draft was written by a Republican aide and edited in final form by assistant Democratic counsel David Dorson. Dash said neither he nor Ervin had seen it before it was leaked to newsmen.

In other Watergate developments: —Two former aides to John D. Ehrlichman testified his only involvement in approving the Ellsberg operation was to make sure it would not be traced to the White House.

—The staff of the Senate Watergate committee is reconsidering preliminary reports criticizing the campaign finances of Democrats Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern.

—A federal court denied C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo's plea for an order barring the Watergate committee from inquiring further into his affairs or citing him for contempt.

Ehrlichman Concern: Mrs. King White House Lawyer Gets No White House Link In Atlanta

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman's only caution in approving a concealed entry into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was to make sure the operation would not be traced to the White House, according to platters trial testimony.

Former Ehrlichman aides David R. Young and Egil "Bud" Krogh Jr. agreed on Tuesday that the possible illegality of the break-in at Dr. Lewis J. Fielding's Beverly Hills, Calif., office was never raised beforehand.

In separate testimony Tuesday, both men were unable to recollect such explicit terms as burglary or break-in in discussing the operation with Ehrlichman for the Sept. 3, 1971, illegal search for Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

In addition to the charge of conspiracy to violate Fielding's rights, Ehrlichman, once President Nixon's principal domestic affairs adviser, also is charged on four counts of lying to the FBI and a federal grand jury.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hundreds bid a final farewell today to the slain Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr.

The funeral was set for Ebenezer Baptist Church where Mrs. King, 70, was shot to death during a service Sunday while she played the Lord's Prayer on the organ. Her father, husband and two sons have served as pastor there for 80 years.

She is survived by her husband, Dr. Martin Luther King Sr., 74, and a daughter, Mrs. Christine King Farris. Her younger son, the Rev. A. A. King, drowned in his backyard pool in 1969.

Hunt was "the prime thing that you damn well better get done," is regarded by the White House as potentially the most damaging issue in the impeachment inquiry.

St. Clair's first witness will be Paul O'Brien, a lawyer for Nixon's re-election campaign committee, who set the payment in motion by relaying Hunt's demand for money to Dean.

At the closed door session, O'Brien is expected to testify that Hunt's lawyer, William O. Bittman, arranged for him to meet Hunt in Bittman's office on March 16, 1973, where Hunt made his request. O'Brien notified Dean the same day.

Like Chop Suey Tacos Originated In The United States

By SHIRLEY GALLINA
The Herald Services
LOS ANGELES — Tacos — they're as American as chop suey.
Chop suey originated in the United States, not in China.
So did the taco, although most of the millions of Americans who eat it think it's a Mexican import.
But, Blanca Schneider of suburban Hermosa Beach insists it's an American adaptation of the Mexican cuisine.
Mrs. Schneider is a mixture of the two cultures herself.
She was born in Monterrey, Mexico, but her family moved to San Diego, Calif., when she was 15 days old. Both her parents were of European heritage, and her father, a mining engineer, was an American.
Mrs. Schneider didn't forget her Mexican origin. She taught Spanish for 14 years at Compton Junior College and Redondo Beach Adult Education classes, and specializes in the Mexican cuisine.

"I learned to cook helping mother prepare for fiestas. Mine is what we call 'al gusto' cooking. This means cooking according to one's taste or judgment."
Mrs. Schneider says that when she gives a party, she serves a combination of dishes.
"I offer two kinds of enchiladas, tacos, Mexican rice, fried beans and chiles rellenos."
"With this, I serve a green salad, and a light dessert such as ice cream, fruit or Mexican candy."
When preparing for a party, she often makes her own green chile salsa (sauce), but for regular cooking, she usually uses the canned salsa.
Her family, which includes her husband, William, three grown children and seven grandchildren, like her gorditas. The name means "fat little tortillas," as they are thick instead of thin.

"For this you need the masa, the true Mexican ground corn mixed with other ingredients," she says.
Why not plan your own fiesta, a day try some of Mrs. Schneider's unusual recipes? Her enchiladas jocoqui (pronounced hoh-ky), which are made with sour cream and Jack cheese, and are very light in texture.
When your guests are served, say "Buen provecho." "That means the same as bon appetit, or 'may you enjoy it,'" Mrs. Schneider says.
ENCHILADAS JOCOQUI
1 dozen corn tortillas
1.5 lb. Jack cheese, grated
2 small (4 oz. each) can green chiles drained and chopped
1 pint sour cream

Salt and pepper to taste
Oil for frying
1 or 2 (7 oz.) cans green chile salsa
Combine cheese, chiles, sour cream, salt and pepper.
Heat oil and fry each tortilla for just seconds. Keep limp. Overfrying will make them hard. Drain all tortillas on paper towels.
Spread about 2 tablespoons of the mixture on each tortilla, and roll up. Reserve one-third of the mixture and set aside.
Place rolled tortillas in a lightly greased pan or shallow casserole in a single layer.
Spread remaining mixture over top. Bake for 25 minutes at 325 degrees. Pass heated chile salsa separately.
To complete meal, serve with refried beans, a tossed green salad, French bread or tortillas.

The Spy Who Couldn't Remember Names

By ELLIE GROSSMAN The Herald Services

he asks the middle-aged waiter in a sabbie voice "I'm with the authority. Hungarian goulash," comes the reply, "respectfully. 'Absolutely not!'"

DUSKO POPOV through double-cross, it was through the plans of the British intelligence," he says modestly, "and not my own merit."

"Before I'd meet the Germans, I'd have two very intensive weeks of training with my British case officer. And I have a very lively memory. In my youth, I never had any trouble passing exams. I'd pass them brilliantly and then forget everything. I have no merit because I simply used my memory."

Popov did not write his book for self-glorification, he says. "I'm told that Ian Fleming said he based his character James Bond to some degree on me and my experiences. Could be," Feats two lines in "Spy Counterparty." And, elsewhere in the book: "The squat man started to move in on me. A table was separating us, and I shoved it in his midsection. He doubled up, etc."

Rather, he wrote it out of concern for this country, which he loves as his own, he says. He wants to prevent the tragedy of another Pearl Harbor, he says.

Askew Orders Probe Of Sheriff's Department

By MARK WEINZ
And CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writers

A state investigation of alleged misconduct in Sheriff John Polk's department centers around misappropriation of surplus and other property in the department's legal custody, The Herald has learned.

A special prosecutor appointed by Gov. Reubin Askew is reportedly investigating accounting and disposal procedures for items turned into the sheriff's office as lost or stolen property and other items declared "surplus," according to sources.

The sources indicate that

JOHN POLK

Polk himself is not involved in any charges of wrongdoing, but that deputies close to him are being investigated.

The possibility of departmental misconduct involving property in the department's custody first came to public attention late last year when the sheriff fired Detective Johnny Wright for misappropriating a shotgun from the department's custody and using the weapons to pay off personal debts.

At a hearing in January, Wright, apparently confused by a prosecutor's question, confessed to taking more than one shotgun from the department's custody and using the weapons to pay off personal debts.

Other problems believed involved in the probe include use by deputies of items recovered from thieves but unclaimed by owners, such as stereo record players which have been observed in deputies' offices.

Polk today denied any knowledge of the stereos being used by some of his deputies, but admitted he did not know how long lost or stolen property is held by his department if the legal owner cannot be found.

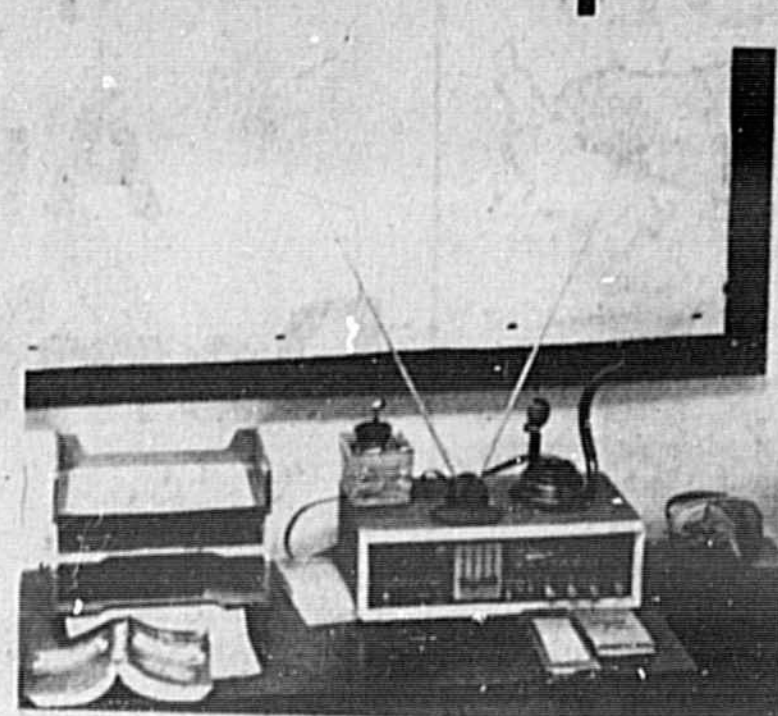

"It's not allowed to be used. It's stored, and I can't recall any being sold," Polk said.

Polk said he first learned of the special investigation late Wednesday from news media reports out of Tallahassee, and that he has not been officially notified of the probe.

However, Polk said, he was aware of an audit being conducted on the orders of state Auditor General Ernest Ellison. A hint of possible record keeping problems surfaced two months ago when County Commissioner Greg Drummond asked Polk to require monthly audits of the jail commissary and Police Benevolent Fund.

Drummond today said he felt both matters had been cleared up by Polk, and that neither appeared to be "heinous in nature or intent by the officers involved — it was just sloppy bookkeeping."

STOLEN STEREO BEING USED
...In detectives' office

Officials in Tallahassee said Ellison's report has not been completed and will not be made public for at least a month.

The sheriff said he will cooperate fully with Gainesville State Atty. Eugene Whitworth when the governor's special prosecutor arrives in Sanford.

"The only statement I can make at this time is that the auditors are here," Polk said. "The auditors have the records and I will cooperate fully."

The last assignment handled by Whitworth, who could not be reached today for comment, involved the sheriff and chief deputy of Baker County, near Jacksonville.

Askew removed both officers following their indictment by a Grand Jury.

The special prosecutor was appointed after Seminole State Atty. Abbott Herring requested he not be assigned the case.

Herring, who said his office works closely with Polk's on a daily basis, explained he could not comment on what the problem area was because "there may be some serious questions and in case there is any impropriety I would prefer another state's attorney to be handling the case."

Special Prosecutor

Naming a special prosecutor "doesn't necessarily mean there will be a grand jury probe of the sheriff's office," Herring said, indicating that Whitworth would make that decision.

"The state attorney's office has done some legwork for the auditors. They are usually out of town and if they want any answers or data they call the state's attorneys office. That is standard procedure," Herring said today from his Melbourne home.

Whitworth's orders from Askew's office require him to investigate and take any other such action as he may deem appropriate so that justice may be served in connection with allegations of official misconduct on the part of the Seminole Sheriff's office."

Happy Birthday you wonderful country...

The flag at the Spolski household was flying at 6:45 a.m. today. Have yours up yet!

This is what it's all about, neighbors. Perhaps the kids will immediately recognize the following. However, I'm not too sure that some of us "oldsters" have read or heard it for some time...

"We hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all Men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness."

Americans Mark 198th Birthday

By The Associated Press
Americans mark their 198th national birthday today with traditional giant flags, parades, picnics, and traffic jams. And, perhaps for the last time, legal fireworks.

There were contrabands Wednesday to the tone of celebration as angry Vietnam veterans gathered in Washington, and firefighters—which safety officials are trying to ban—injured at least two children. But most plans remained light-hearted.

As officials planned fireworks and a folklore displays for the area near the Washington Monument, Vietnam Veterans said they would demonstrate today to support their demands for more education and employment benefits.

On Wednesday, police clashed with a contingent of about 300 veterans demanding that the Paris peace accords be implemented. At least eight demonstrators were treated for head, leg and arm injuries, and two policemen received attention for bruises.

In the 18 states where fireworks are still legal, this year could be the last in which to celebrate by setting them off privately. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission tried to prohibit their use by June 18, but the ban was put off for more hearings after the fireworks industry opposed it.

The National Safety Council estimated between 450 and 500 persons might die in traffic accidents across the nation. In Washington, President Nixon issued a Fourth of July statement lauding "an outpouring of affection and respect for the nation" which he said he found on his recent trips abroad.

Among events around the country today, in Columbus, Ohio, celebrants hope to be equal to a 1,000-pound pizza assembled by local bakers. New Yorkers plan to fly a 475-pound flag from the George Washington Bridge, square dance in Lower Manhattan and shoot fireworks over historic Governor's Island in the harbor.

The hazards were underscored by two accidents: In Brooklyn, N.Y., 14-year-old Steven Schwartz lost his right hand Wednesday when 28 firecrackers stuffed into a can exploded prematurely. In Missoula, Mont., 10-year-old William McGill was reported in serious condition after a gas-line-dipped firecracker exploded Wednesday and ignited a nearby gasoline can. Private use of firecrackers is illegal in both states.

With the promise of plentiful gasoline supplies on a four-day weekend, millions are taking to the highways to visit relatives or escape sweltering cities.

U.S. - Soviet Fears Bared

Editor's Note: Barry Schwelb, regularly assigned to the Associated Press staff covering the State Department in Washington, was in Moscow for the summit conference and is now accompanying Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on his swing around Western Europe.

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — President Nixon's summit meeting with Leonid Brezhnev made some modest gains toward checking the technological explosion in nuclear weapons. But it also laid bare immense fears of American and Soviet military leaders.

The Soviet nightmare is that the United States holds such a commanding advantage in weapons, the Russians can never catch up. On the American side, there is fear of some future inferiority.

These fears turned out to be the major obstacle to the agreement to reduce further the offensive arsenals of the two superpowers.

On the plus side, the summit produced: 1. Agreement not to build the second missile defense installation permitted each country under their 1972 treaty. 2. A new treaty to halt underground nuclear tests with an explosive force of more than 150 kilotons beginning March 31, 1976. 3. Agreement to hold talks on measures to prevent warfare by weather changes and other environmental means. 4. A commitment to try to

President Hails Summit

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon is here for a long holiday weekend after a summit meeting with Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow which he pictured as helping to "lead the world out of the summits of war up to the summits of peace."

Nixon stopped briefly at Limestone, Maine, Wednesday night to make a nationally broadcast speech in which he reported in general terms on more than 24 hours of negotiating sessions with Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Reminiscent of Nixon appearances in past campaigns, the speech site was an airbase hangar where Vice President Gerald R. Ford and about 200 persons greeted the President and Mrs. Nixon.

The speech reiterated points covered in the Moscow communiqué that listed the limited summit achievements, including agreements to further restrict antiballistic missile systems and ban some under-unable to settle on a formula to curb multilateral missile systems, the President said in Maine that the summit was part of a process of making the trend toward better American-Soviet relations irreversible.

White House staff chief Alexander M. Haig Jr., told reporters aboard Nixon's plane on the homeward flight: "The President is feeling fine. His leg is all right ... he really needs a break and a rest in Florida."

Nixon has been suffering from plebitis in his left leg since early this month, but Haig said "the situation is under control."

Nixon was welcomed by Ford as having contributed to "making the world a little safer and a little saner."

The vice president introduced the President as "Blessed are the peacemakers."

Altamonte Fighting Flooding

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — City crews were out until 2 this morning pumping flood waters out of a section of Spring Oaks subdivision back into the Little Wekiva River and Sandbagging river culverts.

Mayor Norman Floyd said the pumping operation and sandbagging is continuing today to keep the river from backing up into the housing development. County Commissioners John Kimbrough and Dick Williams, present during the early morning operation, supplied sand bags from the county road department, Floyd said.

The sandbags will remain in place until river flooding conditions pass, he said. "We will let the engineers worry about it later."

Floyd appealed to Orange County engineers late Wednesday to order that weirs in the Rosemont section of Orange County taken out to relieve flooding problems there be replaced and drainage waters diverted from the river.

With the river already at flood peak and additional water from Orange County coupled with more drainage via new culverts under SR 436, Montgomery Road has also flooded, Floyd said.

As the river level rose Montgomery Road began acting as a dam, he said. City crews, using a dragline, cut through the road to direct the water back to the river, Floyd said.

"The Little Wekiva is extremely high," Floyd said. "The two small culverts under Montgomery Road wouldn't carry all the water."

He said hopefully the county and city can work together to pave Montgomery Road and provide adequate drainage for the Montgomery Road area. Estimated a cost of $250,000 to properly correct the problem, Floyd said developers of property along the road are indicating a willingness to participate financially in the venture.

The best answer to preventing future flooding in Altamonte is a citywide drainage system, said Floyd, who estimated it would cost $4 million. He said financing could be accomplished through a long term bond issue and federal and state grants.

Meanwhile in Longwood, City Council Chairman Donald Schreiner ordered firemen back into the Land Avenue area to resume water pumping operations. Schreiner said that although water was successfully pumped out of the Land Avenue right-of-way and back yards the persistent rains since have placed the area again in distress.

He said that one resident — the most severely flooded — plans to move out until sanitary facilities can once again be used. Councilmen earlier this week commissioned a new engineering study of the area to find a way drainage can successfully be accomplished. Previous plans were unworkable, Schreiner said.

Army engineers began today surveying 15 Florida counties to see if rain damage suffered by Central Floridians is severe enough to qualify them for federal disaster funds.

A spokesman said Wednesday the survey would be used to answer requests by Gov. Reubin Askew for aid from the Federal Disaster Relief Assistance Agency.

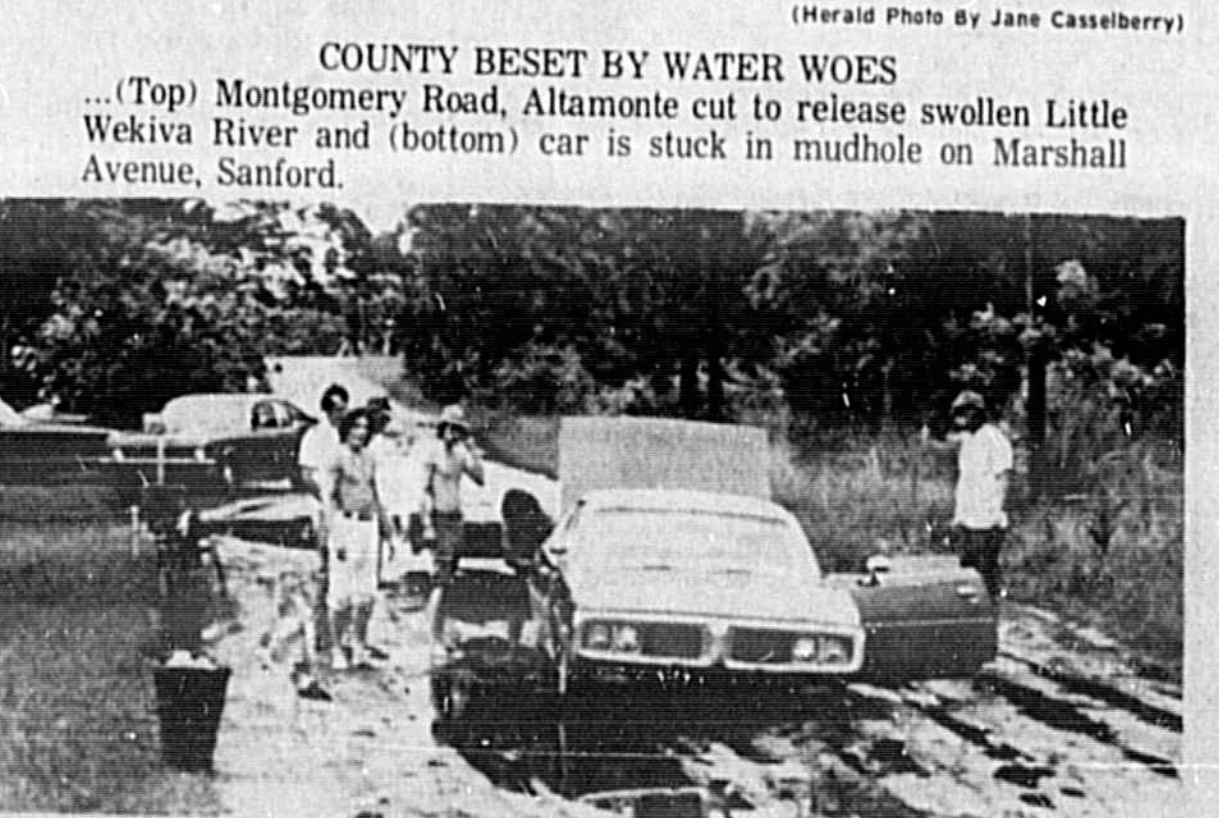

Ten teams of two men each will inspect private and public damage, with the final decision to be made by the FEMA, said Gail G. Green of the Army Corps of Engineers' emergency operations office in Jacksonville. Included in the survey will be Charlotte, Citrus, Collier, Marion, Orange, Pasco, DeSoto, Hernando, Pinellas, Polk, Sarasota and Hillsborough, Lee, Manatee, Brevard counties, said Green.
