Social Services Seek More Funds From County

Seminole County commissioners, already facing a projected deficit in the 1983-84 budget, have received requests for budget increases from social service agencies.

The biggest single request came from Community Coordinated Child Care representatives who asked for $47,000 for the coming year. The group, which provides child care to poor families, received $30,000 in fiscal 1982-83.

But the agency had to turn away 87 children last year because it didn't have sufficient funds.

The Federation of Senior Citizens asked for $30,000 to fund its Meals on Wheels program. The program, which must now be offered to anyone over 30 years of age, received $27,500 this year.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program is asking for $20,000 for fiscal 1983-84, up $5,000 from this year's allocation. Federal contributions are up to $37,000 but the group is being asked to increase its volunteers and the hours its employees work. RSVP provides transportation for senior citizen volunteers at various agencies.

Lighthouse Youth Ranch representatives asked for $20,000, up from its allocation of $11,811 this year. The representatives said private contributions to the program have declined this year.

Seminole Community Action requested $13,323 for the coming year. The agency, which administers the Head Start program, received $8,500 from the county this year. The money would be used to give salary increases to employees, representatives said.

We Care Inc., a 24-hour intervention group, requested $8,000 for the coming year. The group received $6,000 in 1982-83.

Spouse Abuse representatives asked for $5,000 to handle spouse abuse calls from Seminole County residents. The group, from Orange County, said about 15 percent of its clients are from Seminole County.

Catholic Social Services representatives from Orange County asked for $10,000 to help provide assistance for the needy. But they added that a Seminole County agency could take over their services here.

Demos Ready To Push For New Voters

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee will kick off its year-long voter registration drive July 4 at the Sanford holiday celebration.

Lois Jackson, chairman of the drive for the DEC, said the party will have a booth set up at Fort Mellon Park from noon to 8 p.m. at the celebration to register any person who is not yet qualified to vote in the county.

Beginning July 9, Mrs. Jackson said, the party will have a booth open at Flea World in Sanford from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Saturday.

In addition, various drives in specific areas will be announced as they are planned, she said.

Mervin Melton, party chairman, said the goal in the year-long drive is to register 10,000 new voters in Seminole County.

DEC members deputized by Mrs. Sandy Goard, Seminole County supervisor of elections, to register voters include: Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Virginia Mercer, Marguerite Brennan, Thomas F. Brennan, Sherrill Casey, Charles Glascock, Lisa Glascock, Charlene Graham, Aletha Hamilton, William Hamilton, Jerry Heister, Paula Horowitz, J.C. Ringling, Judith Sledge and Clark Westerfield.

According to Mrs. Goard, Seminole County currently has 78,144 registered voters including: 39,219 Democrats; 32,381 Republicans; 3,581 Independents; 2,843 no party; and 140 others.

Latest population estimates for the county is 204,000.

In other party business, the Democratic Executive Committee at its July 14 meeting at Casaberry city hall will elect a new state committeeman and committeewoman to replace Troy Pland and Dolores Vickers, who have resigned due to the press of private business, Mrs. Jackson said.

She said those interested in serving in either office should contact Meltzer at 834-2732. Mrs. Jackson said the two vacancies have created a lot of interest within the party.

Five Seminole Students Picked For Boys State

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Five students from local high schools will be among the 568 young men who will attend American Legion Boys State on the campus of Florida State University in Tallahassee Sunday-July 2.

American Legion Campbell-Lossing Post 53 of Sanford has selected to sponsor for this year's junior class five youths. They are Steven Grey of Seminole High School and Kyle Frakes, Bryan Joseph, Joe Dalton and Jack Likens, all of Lake Mary High School.

They were selected from a group of 30 aspiring candidates and judged best to represent the post, according to Herbert A. Drueding, Post 53 Boys State chairman.

The Boys State will be guests of honor at the post's Fourth of July barbecue, which will be held 1-6 p.m. at the post home on U.S. Highway 17-92 and will be open to the public.

This will be the 40th session of American Legion Boys State and many of the 18,000 Florida alumni, many have gone on to distinguished public service on the state and national level.

Many dignitaries will address and meet with the Boys State representatives including Gov. Bob Graham, Lt. Wayne Mixson, members of the Cabinet, Florida Supreme Court and the Legislature.

It will be a comprehensive weeklong course in government and patriotism with the delegates encouraged to participate in the hard-fought Boys State city, county, and state elections. Two of the Boys State will be selected to represent Florida at the American Legion Boys State on the campus of the American University in Washington, D.C., later this summer.

Eiffel Tower Or Heaven's Ladder?

It almost looks like Paris is coming to Seminole County. But the mini-Eiffel Tower under construction in Longwood will never reach the scale of the famous tower in Paris. But the American Telephone and Telegraph Long Line microwave tower presents quite an imposing on County Road 427. The tower's height is being increased from 238 to 508 feet to get the necessary elevation to eliminate fading problems in signal transmission due to atmospheric conditions. It is part of a radio relay route between Jacksonville and Miami over which radio and television programs, as well as long distance telephone calls, are transmitted, according to a company spokesman.

Havill: Bonds Not Voter OK'd To Be Fought

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Lake County Property Appraiser Ed Havill said today that attempts by county commissions to protect themselves from the effects of the proposed Citizens' Choice Amendment by passing bond issues will be challenged in court.

A Seminole County assistant county attorney said Tuesday a provision in the proposed Citizens' Choice Amendment to limit government spending could allow county commissions to sidestep the intent of the amendment by passing bond issues to fund programs.

The Citizens' Choice Amendment, sponsored by Havill, will be on the 1984 general election ballot. The amendment would roll back property taxes to their 1980-81 levels and then limit tax revenue increases to two-thirds of the inflation rate set by the Consumer Price Index. The amendment would also put a 5 percent annual cap on property tax increases, excluding new construction.

But a provision in the bill allows counties to exceed the revenue cap in order to generate enough money to repay bonds, according to Assistant County Attorney Bob McMillan.

That could be a relief for Seminole County officials who have been struggling with questions of how to maintain existing services while revenues decline and demands for services continue to escalate.

Seminole County Administrator T. Duncan Rose said today the provision "is not a loophole. It's intended to protect contract rights."

The proposed amendment says revenue limits may be exceeded to the extent necessary to avoid impairment of obligations and contracts and bonds existing on the effective date of this section.

However, Havill said today the provision refers to bond issues approved by the voters, not to bonds approved simply by county commissioners.

"The bonds we refer to are approved by the voters," he said. "Attempts to get other bond issues included would have to defeat a court challenge."

Rose said today that county officials are "obviously concerned about the impact of the Havill amendment. It's affecting some decisions the commissioners make."

He added that county officials are not looking for loopholes to the amendment. "We've been playing it straight with the amendment."

McMillan said the provision has not been discussed at all during budget work sessions.

Commissioners have delayed issuing a $7 million library bond issue because of their fear of the Havill bill's impact and because of projected budget deficits this year. The bond issue would fund construction of four branch libraries in the county but funds for staffing the libraries would come from county tax revenues.

But Rose has recommended $4.2 million worth of capital improvement projects be funded through a bond issue. The projects, renovation of the Courthouse and the County Services Building, (formerly Seminole Memorial Hospital).

The bond issue would significantly reduce a projected county deficit of $7 million in the 1983-84 budget.

Rose said his recommendation for "bonding out capital improvements is based on reducing the shortfall. It makes good sense to defer the costs over a number of years."

County officials have also discussed enacting a county gasoline tax and pledging the tax revenues to a bond issue for road construction.

Under the terms explained by Havill, the county's library bond issue would be exempt from the rollback. However, the capital improvements bond issue and the gas tax bonds would not meet those guidelines.

Consumer Prices Up 0.5 percent In May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer prices rose 0.5 percent in May, with more than half the inflation increase blamed on energy costs, the Labor Department said today.

The jump in prices was the second largest in 11 months, but brought this year's inflation rate through May to only 3 percent when figured on a yearly basis.

Electricity and home heating fuel costs went up for the first time this year and clothing costs rose 0.7 percent, the most in more than 2.5 years.

But gasoline was the major influence on May prices, as dealers kept tacking on additional increases to the nickel-a-gallon tax that went into effect April 1.

During the last two months gasoline prices have gone up 8.3 percent — despite stable world oil prices — after dropping 17.4 percent from their peak level in March 1981, the department said.

The transportation index, the overall category that includes motor fuels, went up 1.3 percent in May, its fastest rise since June.

Food prices were up only 0.3 percent, the smallest increase since February, despite skyrocketing fresh vegetable prices, which climbed 21.3 percent in the past three months.

The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index for May was 297.1, up 3.5 percent in the past 12 months. It was equivalent to a cost of $297.10 for the government's sample "market basket" of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967.

If the May price increase were duplicated for the next 12 months the inflation rate would be 6.7 percent. The inflation rate in 1982 was 3.9 percent. In April, there was a 0.8 percent monthly increase in consumer prices following a 0.1 percent jump in March and a 0.2 percent decline in February.

Housing costs were up 0.3 percent in May, compared to a 0.5 percent rise in the previous month. Housing also was affected by the energy cost push, since the category includes home heating oil prices, up 3.8 percent in May after going down for five consecutive months.

Medical care costs were up a surprisingly moderate 0.4 percent, the smallest increase there since an identical 0.4 percent in November 1977. The medical care index was helped by less acceleration in the cost of drugs and medical supplies.

Hospital room charges, however, went up 1.2 percent.

A miscellaneous category of goods and services was up 0.4 percent.

The sharp 4.2 percent increase in gasoline prices for May was largely unexpected by leading analysts, who had generally assumed the price acceleration that accompanied the April tax increase had passed.

Coal Mine Explosion Kills 7, Injures 3

McCLURE, Va. (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a coal mine in the Appalachian Mountains of southwest Virginia, killing seven people and injuring three others, authorities said today.

Police blocked off the roads to the McClure Mine Number One of the Clinchfield Coal Co. and refused to let anyone but relatives of miners through.

Mark Edwards, a dispatcher for the Dickenson County Sheriff's Department, said today the cause of the explosion is being investigated by federal mining officials and sheriff's investigators. The explosion occurred about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The identities of the dead and the injured were being withheld until authorities could notify their relatives.

Reagan To Fight Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional budget leaders expect the House and Senate to adopt an $859 billion compromise 1984 federal budget next week, despite a vow by President Reagan to defeat it.

The president is not required to sign a congressional budget resolution, but he can veto the spending and tax bills passed later that follow the budget's guidelines.

The budget, approved by the negotiators Monday night, would raise taxes $73 billion over three years, cut Reagan's military buildup, spend $22 billion more than Reagan wants for non-defense programs and produce a deficit of $179 billion.

Quintuplets Doing Fine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thirty-three doctors, some crying for joy, witnessed an event that occurs only once a decade in the United States — the birth of five healthy babies, one right after the other.

The quintuplets, four boys and a girl, were born Tuesday, Pam Ploner, the object of all the medical attention, had been lying on her side for the last 13 weeks to ensure safe delivery. She entered the hospital May 17.

Mrs. Ploner, 27, of suburban Olney, Md., had been taking fertility pills to induce ovulation before her pregnancy. The new mother was in the 33rd week of pregnancy and the infants, her first, were seven weeks premature. They were all reported in good condition.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Thunderstorms, hail and high winds raked the northern Plains today following a day of tornadoes that cut power to homes and smashed buildings, injuring four people who tried to outrun a twister and lost. Snowmelt in the Rockies caused the Colorado River to flood five states. Summer's second day promised more of the steamy temperatures that ushered the season in Tuesday when storms drenched the Plains, the East and the South. The flooding Colorado River pushed Lake Powell, the nation's second largest man-made lake, well past its official "full" point in southern Utah and northern Arizona. It was 4 feet above the "full" mark of 3,700 feet above sea level and rising 4 inches a day. The Bureau of Reclamation raised spillway gates and added temporary wooden barriers to them so the lake would not spill over Glen Canyon dam and worsen floods downstream in Nevada, Arizona and California. Further upstream, sandbagging operations were under way near Grand Junction in western Colorado. Mesa County authorities said a few people had left their homes voluntarily as a precaution. In west central Colorado, Plateau Creek overflowed onto Colorado 65. A day-old court order restricting the release of water from Lake Mead (the largest man-made U.S. lake) behind Hoover Dam was dissolved, and the Bureau of Reclamation resumed its planned release of water, intensifying floods along the Colorado in extreme southern California and Arizona.

Casselberry Man Arrested In Pot Bust

Acting on a tip, Seminole County Drug Task Force Agents observed marijuana being cultivated on a Casselberry apartment balcony, obtained a search warrant and arrested one man for producing the illicit drug.

Christopher J. Alexander, 27, of Apt. 100, Squire One Apartments, 2500 Howell Branch Road, Casselberry, was released from the Seminole County jail Tuesday on $500 cash bond.

Police said a search of the apartment revealed an additional marijuana plant in a bedroom, marijuana, and marijuana seeds.

He was also charged with possession of marijuana and narcotic equipment.

OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE

Richard J. Breyer, 25, of 1734-D Forest Lake Circle, West Palm Beach, was being held at the Seminole County jail in lieu of $500 bond today after he was arrested at an Altamonte Springs apartment and charged with obstructing justice.

Altamonte police report they were called to Apt. 120, Monterey North, Altamonte Springs, at 2:15 a.m. today in reference to a battery. While officers attempted to interview those present, Breyer kept interrupting and refused four warnings to go back to the apartment where he was staying.

NAME OFF LIST

Seminole County deputy sheriff Lt. Tony Calangelo, named but not charged in a federal indictment on marijuana smuggling charges, has had his name expunged from the indictment, according to the office of his lawyer, Altamonte Springs attorney Newman Brock.

Lt. Calangelo has been on paid suspension since it was charged that he and five other people participated in an August 1979 meeting at which importing marijuana was discussed.

Brock said Calangelo is "absolutely innocent". Twenty-one people were ultimately charged in a smuggling operation.

BICYCLES TAKEN

An orange, 10-speed Columbia racing bicycle was taken from a carport at 119 Pinecrest Drive, Sanford, between June 4 and 5:44 p.m. Monday. Its owner, David K. Jernigan, 942H Lake Destiny Drive, Altamonte Springs, told police. The bicycle, with white tape on the handle bars and a black seat, was valued at $150.

A $105 22-inch boys' yellow and red Western Flyer bicycle belonging to 11-year-old Derrick Hagan, 1500 Lake Ave., Sanford, was taken between noon and 1 p.m. Monday from outside the Westside Recreation Center, 919 Persimmon Ave., Sanford, police report.

WRENCHING BREAK-IN

Orange/Seminole Cablevision offices at 2619 South French Ave. were broken into between Monday and 3:54 a.m. Tuesday.

Police report burglars gained entry by breaking a pane of glass on a west door using a wrench and an old towel. It was unknown today if anything is missing from the premises.

Life In The Fast Lane

BURNHAM, Pa. (UPI) — A couple who won $2.6 million in the state lottery started living life in the "fast lane" a bit too soon, police said.

Larry and Jo Ann McCauley arrived at lottery headquarters in Harrisburg, Pa. in a shiny new Corvette to pick up a first payment of about $100,000, and were en route to close on a new house.

Authorities say the couple left the lottery office June 8 and led police on a 100 mph chase, dodging other vehicles, before getting snarled in a roadblock. They face a July 7 preliminary hearing.

"I imagine they can get the best attorney available," state police Sgt. Anthony Pupo said Tuesday.

"They were really flying when they left here, just so pleased to get that much money," said lottery spokesman Ray Shaffer. "Jo Ann kept saying she never saw a check with so many numbers on it."

"They were clocked through radar at 99 mph," said Pupo. "He first indicated he was going to stop, then he took off again in excess of 100 mph."

McCauley, 37, and his wife, 32, were finally nabbed about 20 minutes after the chase began — when their car got caught in a guardrail at a police roadblock.

They are charged with several traffic violations and recklessly endangering other persons.

IN BRIEF

Southern Bell To Get $113 Million Rate Hike

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Public Service Commission has agreed tentatively to give Southern Bell Telephone a $113 million rate increase, but require the company to eliminate service problems that have prompted customers to complain.

Commissioners will meet today to finalize their decisions reached Tuesday and end work on Southern Bell's $349 million rate increase request.

The PSC staff found at least 90 percent of the calls for various forms of operator assistance aren't being answered within 10 seconds as required by the rules; that at least 90 percent of all calls for repair service aren't answered within 20 seconds as required; and that at least 95 percent of all cases in which telephone service is interrupted for some reason aren't cleared up within 24 hours as required.

The PSC staff also found Southern Bell isn't granting the automatic credit or rebate required when telephone service is out for more than 24 hours, and that at least 95 percent of the appointments made with customers by repair personnel aren't being met as required.

The company was given 180 days to present an acceptable plan for correcting the problems.

Marines Have Landed

KEY WEST (UPI) — The second wave of Marines and sailors receiving their first liberty after 3½ months in Lebanon and 22 days at sea prepared to storm ashore today to keep the party going.

The first half of the contingent, about 2,000, filled the bars in boisterous but generally peaceful celebration until just before midnight Tuesday when they had to return to their five amphibious ships in the harbor.

Orange OKs Gas Tax

ORLANDO (UPI) — State officials have estimated that each penny of a controversial 4-cent gas tax will raise $3 million a year for Orange County.

Last week, the Volusia County Council passed a 2-cent gas tax and the Seminole County Commission passed a resolution saying it intends to adopt a 4-cent tax. Osceola County commissioners are considering a 4-cent tax.

Graham To Fight On For School Improvements, Tax Hikes

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House Speaker Lee Moffitt has agreed to a scaled-down version of Senate President Curtis Peterson's "RAISE" bill to end a political dispute holding up approval of a new state budget.

The agreement between Moffitt and Peterson, worked out Tuesday should enable the House and Senate to finalize an $11.3 billion "continuation" budget by Thursday or Friday and end the current special session.

Gov. Bob Graham intends to veto the public school portions of the budget and call a special session for mid-July to continue fighting for the tax increases and school enhancements he feels are essential.

But Graham said Tuesday after learning of the Moffitt-Peterson deal he realizes that "a certain weariness" has left most legislators at the point where they need two or three weeks off.

Graham is going to have to extend the current special session a second time.

Legislators won't be through with their budget by midnight Wednesday, so he has agreed to an extension until midnight Friday. The second extension will be the Legislature's fourth overtime period. The regular 60 days were up June 3.

Moffitt and Peterson gave up trying to negotiate a deal on tax increases for the schools last week and concentrated on passing a "continuation" budget, recognizing that they would be guaranteeing themselves a veto and another

Polishing Touches Put On Water, Waste Bill

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators hope to reach final agreement today on a far-reaching $120 million hazardous waste and water protection bill.

The two sides reached tentative accord Tuesday on all issues but one — an eminent domain controversy to be settled by House Speaker Lee Moffitt and Senate President Curtis Peterson.

The bill, considered historic by its creators, provides for stepped up monitoring of groundwater supplies, the cleanup of hazardous waste sites, tougher reviews of new pesticides, additional restrictions on new septic tank construction and identification of all firms generating hazardous wastes.

The single unresolved issue involves proposed language that would restrict the eminent domain powers of urban water authorities to condemn land in rural areas to sink wells as a source of water for coastal cities.

Peterson, whose Lakeland-based district is largely rural, wants the provision. Moffitt, who represents Tampa, opposes it.

A key breakthrough in the negotiations came when both sides agreed to funnel $100 million to cities and counties to help pay for sewage treatment facilities when federal aid for such projects ends 16 months from now.

The House had been pushing for $125 million but agreed to the lower figure in return for other concessions, including a pledge by senators to consider boosting the figure later.

The money would come in a one-time lump sum from a speedup in the collection of sales tax revenues from large retailers.

Besides the sewer grant funds, the bill proposes $20 million in additional spending for the coming fiscal year. Most of this will come from an existing oil spill trust fund financed by a 2-cent-per-barrel tax on petroleum.

In another major breakthrough, the Senate agreed that 45 percent of the sewer grant money should be set aside for cities with populations less than 35,000. Small city grants, however, would be limited to $3 million each.

The Senate had originally wanted no more than 25 percent of the money set aside, while the House pushed for a 40 percent reserve for cities with less than 25,000 populations.

passed, along with a $10 million version of "RAISE," that includes a seventh academic period and merit pay plan for teachers — which has been Moffitt's top education priority — beginning next fall, but only if the Legislature provides the funding.

And the two sides agree to leave their budget conferees along to resolve their remaining differences in a "continuation" budget.

The compromise "RAISE" bill also establishes tough, new high school graduation standards, including four years of English and three of science and math, to be phased in beginning next year; appropriates $9.5 million for summer school for both teachers and students in math and science; and appropriates $4.5 million to put reading specialists in every high school.

The "continuation" budget will provide an extra 10 percent in funding for education, a substantial increase, but little money for the various quality improvement programs that have been proposed and little for pay raises.

Moffitt said he wants to continue trying to pass new taxes to produce the additional funding for education he feels is necessary, but "the most important thing now is to get our budget done."

CFRH Heartsaver Course For Kids

Students, weighing at least 85 pounds and 12 to 18 years of age, may enroll in a free, three-hour "heartsaver" course at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Tailored specifically for young people, the class is set for 1 to 4 p.m. Friday, July 15, in the classroom at the hospital, 1401 W. Seminole Blvd., Sanford.

For students who qualify, the course will provide the basis for certification in one-person cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

Hands-on practice with mannequins will take place as well as demonstrations of infant resuscitation and airway obstructions. Slide tape programs explaining the importance of healthy living and how to recognize the symptoms of heart attack will be featured.

Mothers of participants are welcome. Enrollment is limited. To register, contact the hospital at 321-4500 or 668-4442, ext. 607.

British Courage, Desire For Vigor

You ask yourself: What are the essential attributes a country must have if it is to remain vigorous? The answer is simple: So long as a country has courage and a passion for excellence it can face the future confidently, no matter how fearsome its present difficulties. — Eric Hoffer

The Conservative Party's impressive victory in recent British elections is, first of all, a personal triumph for its indomitable leader, Margaret Thatcher, who wins a mandate in the United Kingdom with few parallels in this century.

But it is much more. The British people boldly proclaim to the world and to history their determination to be vigorous again — that courage and the passion for excellence abide in this generation as of old. As they have done in other times during their long history, Britons are in the midst of achieving one of the most difficult goals a nation can set for itself and that is to reverse a long downhill slide.

Another significance in this election result is its unusual vindication of the tough, uncompromising leadership of Prime Minister Thatcher, who is proving again how much history is determined by the force of one personality in a critical period. This attractive, 53-year-old housewife and mother of two has emerged as Britain's strongest prime minister since Winston Churchill. And she gives every promise, during the next five years granted her by the electorate, of taking her place alongside the handful of prime ministers who tower in British history because of their impact on their times.

And what a shaker and mover Thatcher has been. She rallied somnolent British clan by ordering a task force to fight a war 8,000 miles away after Argentina occupied the Falkland Islands. She gambled mightily and, thereby, won mightily. She refused to grant political status to Irish nationalist prisoners in Northern Ireland despite appalling prison deaths from self-imposed starvation. And, she has been dismantling Britain's bankrupt welfare state.

Since her election in 1979, inflation and interest rates and the treasury's deficit have fallen sharply chiefly because of "Maggie's proper but unpopular policies," as her supporters say. Her largest liability in the campaign has been an unemployment rate of about 13 percent, up from 5 percent when she took office. Were it not for the electorate's disenchantment with discredited Labor Party remedies, this near-tripling of unemployment would almost ensure defeat at the polls. As it was, the anti-Thatcher slogan, "You Never Had It So Bad," hardly made a dent.

Instead, the Thatcher revolution has polarized British politics, pushing the Tories to the right and Laborites so far left that they splintered, giving rise to the centrist Social Democrats in an uneasy alliance with the Liberals. With Labor's fringe extremists publicly squabbling over nuclear disarmament, middle-of-the-road voters found no rational alternatives to the Conservatives.

Moreover, the weakness of her two chief opponents at this time prompted Thatcher to call for national elections a year earlier than required. Michael Foot, the labor leader, is a shrill advocate, as he is a relic, of 19th century socialism, and Roy Jenkins, the Liberal-Social Democratic leader, has plodded along, unable to close the growing chasm between right and left. So, thanks to fearless opposition as well as Thatcher's skill and resolution, the Conservatives are expected to more than double the 35-seat margin they have held in House of Commons, now expanded by recent redistricting to 650 seats.

Thatcher's aim, in her own words, is "to give Britain a new self-confidence in the world." She has the chance to complete the work of her first term that has brought Britain to a sort of mid-passage toward its late, 20th century renaissance. That will mean lifting Britain's 1 percent annual economic growth during recent years and an economy not much larger than Italy's to productivity, some economists predict, that could surpass such nations as West Germany.

The Conservative victory is a real plus for the United States, for NATO and the free world in general. For U.S. conservatives, it's positively exhilarating.

JEFFREY HART Graduation Kindles Memories

For this Ivy League college professor, the annual commencement brings both joy and a sense of irrecoverable loss.

There is triumph in the blossoming careers of the recent graduates who have been my students, and the sense of visible potentiality among many who are sitting here around me at the commencement ceremonies in the heat of this June morning.

But there is also the sense that they will soon disperse to the corners of the nation and even the world and that the four years have passed all too quickly.

The college "year" in reality lasts only nine months, and campus life is like a speeded-up movie film.

As I listen to the speeches — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker is talking about production, hard work, and "earning it" — I think of some of the recent students here I have known well, and of what they are doing. Many of them have been closely associated with the independent undergraduate newspaper, the Dartmouth Review, which has received a good deal of national attention.

Peter Robinson, who grew up near Albany, N.Y., was an "A" student and columns editor for the Review. He spent a couple of years at Oxford, has almost completed a historical novel, and is one of Vice President George Bush's principal speech writers.

Steve Kelley was an intercollegiate champion pole vaulter and the editorial cartoonist for the Review. While an undergraduate, he won two national cartoon contests. He is now the editorial cartoonist for the San Diego Union newspaper, and his work is carried in more than 350 newspapers.

Gregory Fossedal graduated two years ago, achieved a perfect score on his law school admission tests, and was accepted by Harvard Law School but turned it down for journalism. He was a founder of the Dartmouth Review and a stormy presence on the campus.

Dinegh D'Souza came to the college from Bombay, India, and he is now graduating summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa. Since his freshman year he has been associated with the Dartmouth Review and last year was its editor. For the past two years he has made his way as a free-lance writer, placing his pieces in numerous papers and magazines, and he has somehow found time to write a novel about life in an Indian village torn by Hindu-Muslim strife. The manuscript is being read by a publisher; he has a fellowship to study in California this summer, and editorial job in Princeton this fall, and a contract to write a book about the Rev. Jerry Falwell, whom he got to know well as a student journalist.

U.S.-Soviet Showdown In Iran Feared

WASHINGTON — America's military strategists have a recurring nightmare that comes closer to reality with every passing day. It has to do with Iran, which dominates the Persian Gulf. The latter is the heart that pumps the Middle East's oil to the industrial nations of the West.

Here's the "worst-case scenario" that has the strategists shuddering: The 84-year-old Iranian ruler, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, finally succumbs to the ravages of age. His death plunges Iran into chaos.

The most disciplined underground group — the communist Tudeh party — sets up a government and calls upon the Soviet Union to help stabilize the country. Within days, Russian tanks surge across the Araxes River into northwestern Iran. From Soviet Turkmenia and Afghanistan in the northeast other Red Army columns race for the Strait of Hormuz — the narrow channels through which the oil tankers must pass.

Now the nightmare is just beginning. President Reagan cannot permit the Russians to grab control of the free world's oil. Indeed, Washington has already served notice that U.S. forces will defend our "vital interests" in the Double taxation, again in the forefront in Seminole County, has been an issue in Seminole County since the days of Lawrence Swofford.

While the laws still allowed it, Swofford was mayor of Altamonte Springs and a member of the Seminole County Commission at the same time. He served a total of eight years on the county body in the late 1950s and mid 1960s and about 20 years as chief executive of Altamonte. He ended his political career with almost as many detractors as supporters.

He used to say if someone in elected office does anything he will please some of the people part of the time and displease others equally.

In those early days Altamonte Springs was a quiet, little community of less than 4,000. Among its marks of distinction were a tree lined and shaded two lane State Road 436 and Matland Avenue was also a beautiful tree-lined residential street.

It was in large part due to Swofford that the city grew and prospered. As has been noted many times, it was during his reign that federal funds were acquired for the water system and sewer system that sparked development.

He no longer lives in Altamonte. He has moved away to the mountains of Carolina and is living on a farm.

Swofford used to say the real proof of whether a public official has helped his community is the number of public improvements with plaques bearing his name.

An awful lot of those plaques should still be around in Altamonte including the city hall, the water plants, the Eastmonte civic center and the city sewer plant.

Someday perhaps the city will formally recognize his contributions.

Anyway, Swofford could be heard often talking about double taxation, insisting the city dwellers in the county were treated like second class citizens by the county commission. And he was usually in the minority with his opinion.

It should be remembered, however, that it was Swofford who was among those who spurred and participated in the founding of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County through which much cooperation has been fostered between the cities and the county government.

— And it is that organization, founded in the early 1970s, that sees city officials and county officials sitting down to talk and mutually inform once a month. At one time that was an unusual occurrence.

The organization was founded after Dr. Paul Douglas, head of the Rollins College Center for Practical Politics at the time, conducted with his students a study of the four cities of South Seminole. He urged founding of the organization, giving it the acronym CALNO. The name stood for the first initials of the cities involved, Casselberry, Altamonte Springs, Longwood and North Orlando. North Orlando's name has since been changed to Winter Springs.

When membership in the organization was expanded to include the other cities in the county and the county commission, the name was changed to the more appropriate Council of Local Governments in Seminole County. But somehow the CALNO name hangs on and often that name will pop up in conversations and official reports anyway.

If Swofford were around today, he'd probably tell officials of the cities "I told you so" as new disagreement and controversy over double taxation thought resolved last year, rears its ugly head again.

Mondale Battles Woes

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the aftermath of the Wisconsin straw poll, a stunned Walter Mondale and his top aides are trying to determine what went wrong.

It was a test they were sure they couldn't lose — and yet Sen. Alan Cranston outpolled Mondale by 38 to 35 percent among those attending Wisconsin's Democratic Convention. Colorado's Gary Hart finished third with about 22 percent.

One reason for the loss was simple: Hundreds of delegates who were pledged to vote for Mondale didn't attend the convention. The straw poll was non-binding. Mondale was being touted as the easy winner and it was much too nice a day to spend in a stuffy convention hall.

But Cranston's supporters backed their candidate primarily because of his uncompromising stand on the nuclear freeze. They saw the straw poll as a chance to make a statement about the freeze, and they gave Cranston the victory.

Cranston also was helped by the fact that his team spent weeks organizing for the poll, which it viewed as a major opportunity. In addition, they helped Cranston enormously by paying for the transportation and hotel costs of delegates who planned to vote for him.

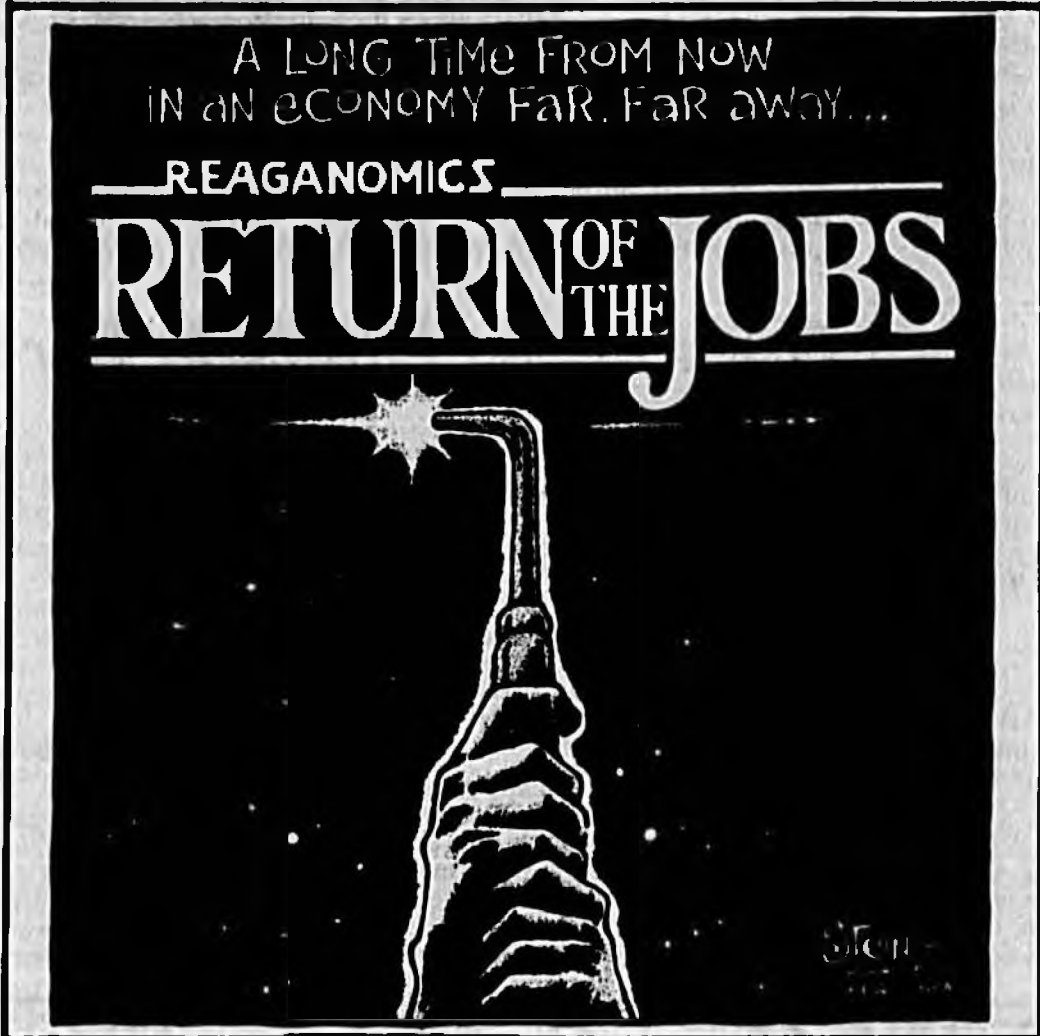

The Mondale camp, however, didn't work terribly hard, since nearly every major state Democratic figure had endorsed the former vice president and he was well ahead in every public opinion poll taken in the state. Therefore, they attribute the loss to the weather and to being out-hustled.

However, the loss spotlights the problems of the early front runner: Everyone assumes that Mondale will win the nomination — and therefore doesn't work hard to make it happen.

The straw poll results also indicate a more basic problem: Mondale has thus far failed to light much of a fire under his supporters. Even his own top aides admit that he has run a cautious campaign — a front-runner's campaign, touching all bases while, above all, avoiding any mistakes.

Other candidates have lashed out at each other and at Mondale, but Mondale has taken the high road. This was evident in his pre-poll speech in Milwaukee, in which he told the delegates, "I'm the preacher's kid who grew up in our rich Midwestern soil. I was raised with the name of Bob La Follette in my car and Hubert Humphrey's hand on my shoulder."

Such platitudes are great for odds-on favorites, but they don't indicate a hard-hitting campaign. Mondale has avoided alienating any of the Democratic power bases, but has also failed to really inspire his followers.

DON GRAFF

Deterrence, Just War

Kermit D. Johnson is a graduate of West Point, Class of '51.

He has served in Korea, Vietnam and Europe. He holds, among other decorations, the Distinguished Service Medal, the Bronze Star and the Meritorious Service Medal.

He is also a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary, an ordained minister of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., a former post chaplain at West Point and the Army War College, which he attended, and a former chief of chaplains of the United States Army.

He retired, as a major general, from active duty in 1982, but not from a continuing concern with military affairs.

Since February of this year, he has been on the staff of the Center for Defense Information, a Washington-based private organization established by former officers to monitor the nation's defense effort. The center supports a strong but balanced and affordable defense in the belief that social, economic and political considerations are equally essential to national security.

General Johnson's particular interest is nuclear war — rather, the threat of war that is implicit in the policy of nuclear deterrence into which this country has been locked for three decades. Rather than adding to our defense capability, he believes, deterrence subtracts from it.

And it is immoral. The very question of a "moral" nuclear policy, he declares with explosive emphasis, is a contradiction in terms.

On this point he identifies closely with the recent pastoral letter of the Catholic bishops. Far from being out of line in speaking out, as their critics implied, Johnson believes the bishops are exactly where the church should be.

"The problem is that nations have historically regarded the church as a pushover. We don't expect this from bishops. We expect church people to be soft and gutless."

Johnson speaks in a pithy vernacular — talk of stable deterrence is "garbage" — studied with point-making quotations from Abraham Lincoln, Reinhold Niebuhr, Charles de Gaulle and Lewis Mumford. The last, he notes, warned about "technological compulsiveness" which in military terms has meant that "anything that comes down the road that scientists can make in the way of a weapon, we just put in the inventory."

We genuflect, he says, to the god of technology. For that and other reasons — good reasons — we slipped into the box of nuclear deterrence in which we now find ourselves.

We need not, however, remain in it. We do have options: unilateral disarmament, continuation of nuclear deterrence, bilateral phased reductions of nuclear inventories.

All three, Johnson believes, are immoral. The first because the defense of the nation, if not all means to that end, remains a moral cause and unilateralism would only reward the Soviets for their nuclear immorality without solving the problem. The second, the policy we are following, because it perpetuates the nuclear arms race. The third because it would retain nuclear weapons.

the Soviets never recognized his unilateral announcement.

— The Soviets could cite historical precedent. During World War II, the Soviet Union and Great Britain "invaded" Iran and divided it into northern and southern spheres of influence. The United States not only endorsed the action but later sent its own troops into Iran. The military occupation lasted until 1948. The Soviets' reluctant withdrawal marked one of the few times the Kremlin has pulled its forces out of occupied territory.

— But the most sobering argument is the presence of 26 Soviet divisions near the Iranian border. They're definitely not border guards and customs officers. They include elite units and sophisticated weapons capable of a full-scale military assault. They are ready to roll.

How would a Soviet invasion of Iran begin? Some 250,000 ground troops, moving behind an awesome battle line of tanks, would lunge across the border. "But any serious aggression could well be spearheaded by first-category airborne divisions," one secret report suggests.

That would require Soviet control of the air. According to U.S. intelligence estimates, the Russians have about 550 fixed-wing aircraft and 500 helicopters in the border region right now.

More significantly, according to another report, "the Soviets have established command and control capability necessary to conduct large-scale military operations (in Iran)." And their 29 fighting ships in the Indian Ocean would pose a serious threat to our sea lines.

The Joint Chiefs estimate that it would take the Kremlin 30 days to mount and sustain a full-scale invasion of Iran. But they warn that an initial attack could be kicked off on much shorter notice: "Four to seven selected Soviet divisions could commence a limited attack into Iran's northwestern and northeastern border areas after a preparation period of about 10 days."

There's no doubt at the Pentagon — or in the Kremlin — that the Russians have the military might to barrel through Iran to the Persian Gulf. Understating it nicely, the Joint Chiefs warn that the Russian invasion force "would possess numerical advantages in both personnel and equipment over U.S. forces."

Love Canal Still Unsafe?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government should not have determined that an area around the Love Canal toxic dump in Niagara Falls, N.Y. is safe enough to live in, a congressional report says.

The Congressional Office of Technology Assessment concluded in its study it could not support a decision made last July by the Department of Health and Human Services that an outer circle area around the Love Canal could be inhabited.

"There remains a need to demonstrate more unequivocally that the EPA (emergency declaration area) is safe immediately and over the long term for human habitation," said the report from the agency, an independent investigative arm of Congress. "If that cannot be done, it may be necessary to accept the original presumption that the area is not habitable."

Since December, the office has examined how the Environmental Protection Agency monitored the Love Canal area. The results from a two-year EPA study were the basis for the July determination the area was fit for people.

The discovery of buried chemical wastes under the Love Canal neighborhood sparked a national controversy over toxic chemical dumps in the late 1970s. Congress eventually created the Superfund program aimed at cleaning up the nation's worst hazardous waste sites.

In July, EPA officials conceded problems remained at Love Canal, but said they believe "there is no more risk living there than in any other city."

But the congressional group said, "With available information, it is not possible to conclude either that unsafe levels of toxic contamination exist or that they do not exist" in the area.

The congressional study was begun at the request of Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y.

The area in question is an outer ring around the dump site. It does not include the area nearest the site, once occupied by 237 now-demolished homes.

Containment work has been done to isolate chemicals in the area. A day after the July report was issued, the EPA announced a $7 million cleanup of remaining areas of the Love Canal to be funded by the Superfund program.

The final determination of rehabilitation is up to the Love Canal Revitalization Agency, chaired by Niagara Falls Mayor Michael O'Laughlin, who has said there have been numerous inquiries about the purchase of homes at the nearly abandoned neighborhood.

Specifically, the congressional study group said it based its conclusion on four factors, including an inadequate design of the EPA study, which contained "important uncertainties over the levels of toxic chemicals detected."

It also said the EPA data provided some indications the area may be contaminated by toxic chemicals from Love Canal.

The report gave no recommendations for revitalization of the area, but said a "paced, cautious" approach was a possible alternative to complete rehabilitation.

Congressional sources said they believe the independent report would slow the revitalization pace.

2 U.S. Newsmen Killed In Grenade Attack

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — Two American journalists were killed when a rocket-propelled grenade fired by Nicaraguan troops across the border demolished their car, the U.S. Embassy said. Nicaragua denied its soldiers were involved.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Robert Callahan said Dial Torgerson, 55, of the Los Angeles Times and freelance photographer Richard Cross, 33, were killed Tuesday when the grenade "utterly destroyed their car."

Col. Cesar Elvir Sierra, official spokesman for the Honduran army, said the journalists' Honduran driver was seriously injured in the attack.

The journalists were returning from the town of Las Trojes and were hit as they approached Clifuentes, less than 2 miles from the Nicaraguan border and 48 miles east of Tegucigalpa.

"Their vehicle could not have been mistaken for a military vehicle," Elvir Sierra said, noting the car rented in Tegucigalpa was white. He said Nicaraguan troops launched the grenade across the border.

Elvir Sierra said that after delays caused by gunfire coming from the Nicaraguan side of the border, the Honduran army retrieved the Americans' bodies from the car.

The Honduran Foreign Ministry originally said William McWhirter, Caribbean bureau chief of Time magazine, had been killed in the same attack. But McWhirter, interviewed later Tuesday in Miami, said, "I've never felt more alive. Considering the alternative, I feel great."

Nicaragua, in responding to a protest note from Honduran Foreign Minister Edgardo Paz Barnica, denied its troops were responsible for the attack.

"At no moment were attacks from Nicaraguan territory made toward Honduran soil nor in the zones described by Foreign Minister Paz Barnica, nor in any part of the border area with Honduras," a Foreign Ministry communique said.

Cross, a graduate student in anthropology at Temple

University in Philadelphia, was given his first assignment for U.S. News & World Report five days ago, the magazine said.

He worked for Newsweek magazine in Nicaragua during the Sandinista-led revolution and as a freelance photographer in El Salvador.

Torgerson was Mexico City bureau chief for the Los Angeles Times, in charge of Latin America coverage, since March 1981. Previously he worked as the newspaper's bureau chief for Africa and Israel, and before that on the metropolitan staff.

Journalists frequently travel to Las Trojes because the Honduran-based rebels are fighting to overrun the Nicaraguan post of El Porvenir, 2 miles directly across the border.

The two journalists, the first Americans killed in the border conflict, died two days after the fourth anniversary of the slaying of U.S. journalist Bill Stewart, killed by troops of the late Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, ousted by the Sandinistas in 1979.

Where The $ Is

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Florida's southern coastal counties led the state again in 1981 in per capita personal income along with Orange County, the only inland area in the state's top 10.

The University of Florida's Bureau of Economic and Business Research said Palm Beach County led the state, with per capita personal income in 1981 of $13,337 — 131.2 percent of the figure for the state as a whole.

The others, in order, were: Sarasota, $12,709 (125 percent); Broward, $12,330 (121.3 percent); Collier, $12,058 (118.6 percent); Indian River, $11,488 (112.8 percent); Martin, $11,224 (110.4 percent); Pinellas, $11,155 (109.7 percent); Dade, $11,047 (108.7 percent); Orange, $10,742 (105.7 percent); and Manatee, $10,552 (98.9 percent).

At the bottom of the list is Union County in north Florida, where 1981 per capita income of $4,831 is only 47.5 percent of the state figure.

Others, in ascending order from the bottom, are: Glades, Liberty, Franklin, Calhoun, Wakulla, Dixie, Lafayette, Bradford and Holmes.

Meanwhile, the bureau reported that Florida's total personal income increased less in 1981 than in the three previous years, but the growth rate of 14.7 percent still outpaced the national rate of 11.7 percent and boosted Floridians' income to more than $103.5 billion.

The bureau noted that the majority of Florida's 18 metropolitan areas rank in the lower half of the per capita personal income scale for 1981 when compared with all other such areas in the country.

The highest ranking metro area in Florida is West Palm Beach-Boca Raton, which is in ninth place nationally.

Another measure of earned income — average earnings per job — shows three Florida coastal counties with earnings higher than the national average of $16,295. These are: Brevard with $16,662; Dade with $16,558; and Nassau with $16,445.

Polish Government Says Pope Breaking Agreement

By Barry James
UPI Senior Editor

WROCLAW, Poland (UPI) — Grumbling about attempts to inject political action into the masses celebrated by Pope John Paul II, the Polish government accused him of breaking the terms of a church-state agreement for his second homecoming.

The vast congregations he has addressed in Warsaw, Czestochowa and elsewhere this week have in effect ended as rallies for the banned Solidarity free trade union — or at least that has been the interpretation by much of the Western press.

The government maintains only a disruptive elements have been responsible for those displays of support.

But at the end of each mass, the pope's blessing has been followed by the full-throated singing of a patriotic hymn and hundreds of thousands of hands raised defiantly in the "V-for-victory" salute for Solidarity.

The country's military regime of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski has avoided blaming the pope but government spokesman Jerzy Urban said church marshals at the masses were not trying hard enough under a church-state agreement to quell the expressions of support for the outlawed union.

Church sources said John Paul's words have delighted some of Poland's younger and more radical Roman Catholic priests, who have supported Solidarity from their pulpits and who are partly responsible for the raised "V" signs at the pope's masses.

Yet he is the same pope who has banned priests from engaging in politics, who has told Roman Catholic clergymen in Latin America to stick to pastoral care and avoid revolutionary commitments, no matter how unjust the situation.

That the pope has told priests to remain above politics apparently does not mean the church, as a human community, cannot play an active role in the affairs of their nations.

On the contrary, the pope is telling the church, which claims to be for more than 90 percent of the country's 36 million people, that it must continue to struggle for the defense of Poland's spiritual and cultural heritage.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Arafat Accuses Syria Of Backing PLO Rebels

By United Press International

Palestinian rebels backed by Syrian tanks and troops routed supporters of Yasser Arafat in fierce fighting in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, but Arafat loyalists were reported massing for a counter-attack.

Arafat sent urgent appeals to 14 nations asking for help in ending the Palestinian rebellion and accused Syria of giving the rebels "complete support."

It was the first time that Arafat had directly accused Syria of supporting the rebellion to oust Arafat as chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Rebels spokesmen have said they decided to take up arms against the PLO chairman because Arafat has been "liquidating" opposition to his policy of negotiating a peaceful settlement for Palestine, rather than continuing to wage war against Israel.

Palestinians Ousted

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt is deporting 20 Palestinian students accused of belonging to an underground communist group working to undermine the Egyptian peace treaty with Israel, government officials said.

Ministry sources said the students were affiliated with the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP).

Women Assault Lawyer In Dowry Killing Protest

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — A Supreme Court lawyer whose wife died under mysterious circumstances came under attack by two hundred angry women who burst into his home, stripped him naked and beat and kicked him, reports said.

The protesters from women's groups marched to a police station where authorities "rescued" him, the Indian Express newspaper said.

The women had demanded the arrest of Saluja for the alleged harassment of his wife, Chandramohini, who died last year under mysterious circumstances. Her parents charge their daughter was killed because they were unable to meet dowry demands for a television, refrigerator and motor scooter.

The Supreme Court has ordered an investigation into the death, but no charges have been filed.

The incident grew out of anger over brides being killed by their in-laws or commit suicide for failure to bring an adequate dowry into marriage. Women's groups have long complained that the Indian government has failed to enforce anti-dowry laws in force since 1961.

In New Delhi alone, 610 cases of bride-burnings were reported in 1982, the highest in the country. According to the all-India Women's Conference, on average 3,000 young brides die each year over dowries.

Rising Knights Face Sliding Rotary Tonight

Craig Dixon, Rotary's hard-throwing righthander, will be on the mound tonight to face Knights of Columbus in the Junior League City Series. Dixon had just a 3-2 record, but he pitched against all of the tough teams. He will be opposed by Leonard Lucas.

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

A more peculiar matchup for a City Championship you may not find than tonight's Junior League battle between the Knights of Columbus and the Rotary. First pitch will be 7 p.m. at Chase Park.

Manager Al Whitted's KOC gang is on a roll. During the second half, it steam rolled the rest of the league, winning nine of 10 games. Coupled with a so-so first half of 5-5, it gave the Knights an overall mark of 14-8.

Manager Ed Korgan's Rotary club has been just the opposite. It overpowered the league during the first half with a 9-1 record. The second half mark, nevertheless, was a dismal 2-6 for an 11-7 total. One game was rained out and another was a double forfeit.

One team on the rise, the other on the slide. The Knights will try to sustain their momentum while Rotary will try to recapture its magic of the first half. Incidentally, the one thing in common the two have is a fourth place finish during their down half of the season.

It's easy to recognize the KOC turnaround. Things started popping for the Knights when David Rape joined the team. "He (Rape) made a big difference," confirmed Whitted. "He can play anywhere and he came in here hitting the ball."

Rape joined the team during the first half after completing his Crooms' baseball season. The blond-haired shortstop immediately started smacking liners all over the field, hitting over .700 for a couple of weeks. Rape finished with a .563 average which led the league. On the mound, he was just as impressive with a 5-0 mark.

Although Korgan is impressed with

City Series

LEONARD
LUCAS
...KOC pitcher

Rape's stick, he said he feels the hot streak is over. "Rape is a good hitter, but he has slowed down the last few weeks," Korgan said. "Everything was easy for him when he first started because he was coming down from a stronger league."

Korgan is just as quick to downplay Rotary's poor second-half showing. He said he feels since his team already qualified for postseason play by winning the first half, the second half was a letdown for his team. "I think the bad second half helped us," he said. "Now, we're anxious to win. The parents probably got on their (players) butts, as well as mine, about losing. We're ready to go now."

Korgan will go with his ace hurler 14-year-old Craig Dixon tonight while Whitted with counter with 13-year-old Leonard Lucas. Dixon, a righthander, was 3-2 during the season. Lucas was 3-4.

"Lucas throws mostly fastballs," said Whitted. "But he does have two curveballs. One, he brings over the top and it drops down. The other, he brings sidearm and it moves across."

Dixon, like Lucas, is a power pitcher. "Dixon has a lot of speed and a little curve," said Korgan.

Each manager feels they have the better hitting team, but a look at the average shows Rotary with the edge. .329 to .313. Catcher Eddie Korgan is hitting .477 to lead Rotary. Dixon (.389), Ron Blake (.364), Mike Edwards (.364) and Bobby Bew (.350) are next in line.

"Bew has really come on the last few games," points out Rotary coach Gary Taylor. "He came from almost nowhere to bat .350."

Behind Rape are Alonzo Gainey (.449) and Lucas (.428). Neither team has a lot of power, the Knights' Stewart Gordon led the league in triples with six and Lucas was third with four. Lucas was also fourth in the league in doubles with five.

Both teams love to run and each has a pretty good catcher, although Rotary definitely rates the edge with the rifle-armed Korgan. Stewart Gordon handles the Knights' pitchers and Whitted is impressed with him. "I'm not that worried about their stealing," said Whitted. "Stewart's a good catcher and we can run some, too."

The series will be a best 2 out of 3 format. The second game will be Thursday night at 7 while a third game, if necessary, will be Tuesday, June 28. During the season, Rotary whipped the Knights twice in the first half. In the second half, KOC won by forfeit and then took the second game last Friday, 9-5.

Oldtime Strategy Session

Former Cincinnati Reds' pitcher Jack Billingham (left) and Buddy Lake hold a little strategy session during last week's Oldtimers game at Sanford Memorial Stadium. The talk paid off as Billingham popped one off the left-field wall to drive in the tying run for the Sanford Oldtimers in a 2-2 tie with the Daytona Beach Islanders. Lake, who holds several Florida State League hitting and pitching records, will play in another Oldtimers game Saturday, July 2 at City Island Park in Daytona Beach against the Islanders. Last year, he drove in the game's only run. Down the bench a bit (from the left), Ronald "Lefty" Renaud, Wilbur "Chico" Davis and Jim Payne rest from their labors. Renaud, who pitched for the Atlanta Crackers before World War II, turned in a shutout inning of relief with two strikeouts. Davis, an old Minneapolis Oiler, and Payne, who pitched in the FSL before coaching at Lyman for years and years, turned in a couple of strong innings in the infield. The Oldtimers and a FSL game between Daytona Beach and Tampa drew 719 fans to the stadium.

Indians' War Dance Produces 7-4 Victory

After three innings Tuesday night, it looked as if the 45-minute rain delay may have been due to a rain dance by manager Don Birle's Altamonte Indians.

After all, the Indians were trailing DeLeon Springs by 4-0 in their District 14, Division 2 Major Top Team Tournament game and maybe a strong dose of showers would give the Altamonte entry a chance for a fresh start on Wednesday.

When the sky cleared, however, the Indians followed their rain dance with a war dance, erupting for seven runs in the fifth inning to knock off DeLeon, 7-4, at Orange City. Altamonte, which has won three straight since losing its opening-round game, plays Southwest Volusia Orange City tonight at 7:30 at Eustis. Orange City hammered Mount Dora, 23-2, Tuesday night at Altamonte Springs.

Altamonte's uprising was started by its youngest Indian, 10-year-old William Thompson who singled to lead off the fifth. Brian Lovett reached on an error and one pitch later Thompson scooted to third on a passed ball. Kevin Waincott followed with a ground ball, but when the infielder threw the ball home to get Thompson at the plate, he knocked the ball loose to score the first run.

After DiFrancesco struck out, Birle lined his second single of the night off the right-field fence. Birle and Waincott, though, were hung up near second base on the play, but a wild throw by the shortstop enabled Lovett to score from third and the other two to scramble back safely.

Todd Christensen followed with a base hit to score another run. Christensen then went to second and the throw. On the next pitch, he moved to third on a passed ball and when the catcher's throw to third sailed into left field, Christensen raced home to give the Indians a 5-4 lead.

Winning pitcher Kent Brubaker then drew a walk and Tony Ganci powered a fastball over the left-field fence to give Altamonte a commanding 7-4 advantage. The homer was the second in two nights for the 12-year-old slugger and his fourth of the year.

Brubaker allowed five hits, struck out four and walked five. Like the Indians, he got stronger after the rain delay. Brubaker retired nine of the last 11 hitters he faced, including 1-2-3 innings in the fourth and sixth.

Before the delay, DeLeon picked up a single run in the second on a single by J.J. Friend and an Altamonte error. In the third, Johnny Gilbert slugged a three-run homer to give DeLeon a 4-0 lead.

"We came back real good," said coach Kelly Waincott. "We played good defense and Brubaker pitched a real good game after the delay."

Oviedo, Altamonte Seniors Reset For Tonight At DeLand

The much anticipated meeting between the Oviedo and Altamonte Senior League teams was put on hold for at least one more day as torrential downpours postponed the game until tonight. The game is still set, weather permitting, for 7:30 p.m. at Howe Field in DeLand.

At the beginning of the District 14, Division 2 Top Team Tournament, the Altamonte Phillies, managed by Gene Letterio, and the Oviedo Giants, managed by Tommy Ferguson, were considered two of the stronger teams in the field. Both teams won their opening games and the two teams were one game away from meeting each other. However, the rivalry was put on hold for the first time when Eustis upended Altamonte last Friday, sending the Phillies into the loser's bracket.

On the very next day, Eustis came back and sent the Giants into the loser's bracket. Oviedo and Altamonte both won their loser's bracket games to set up tonight's meeting. The winner will go on for a rematch with Eustis, which is sitting on top of the tourney with a 3-0 record. The winner tonight will have to beat Eustis twice to take the tourney title.

Altamonte, who beat Lady Lake's Lakers, 6-4, to advance to the loser's bracket final, will probably go with Mike Schmit on the mound tonight. Schmit hurled a two-hitter and struck out 15 in his last outing, a 13-0 shutout of St. Johns. Schmit and Mike Pinckes have been wielding powerful bats as of late as both cracked home runs against Lady Lake. Bill Henley, Dan Beatty, Shane Letterio, Sean Casterline and Pat Luak have all had success at the plate in the tournament while Sandy Hovis has been the Phillies' top relief pitcher. Hovis was the winning pitcher against Lady Lake on Monday.

On the other hand, Oviedo will counter with its ace, Craig Duncan. The Giants advanced with a 13-8 victory over Southwest Volusia Monday night.

Randy Ferguson was the hitting star as he rapped three hits including a pair of doubles. Terry Gammons and Dave Wood had two hits each for the Giants. Wood turned in a solid relief performance against Southwest Volusia.

In other Top Team Tournament action Tuesday, manager Terry Hagen's Altamonte Astros and Pine Hills are tied 0-0 in the third inning of a game suspended by rain in the District 14 Junior Division at West Oak Ridge.

Righthander Randy Green is the author of the shutout for the Astros thus far. Play will be resumed today at 5:30. The Astros dropped a 15-13 decision to West Oak Ridge Monday night in the double-elimination tournament.

Connors Faces Aussie; Pulled Shoulder Muscle Sidelines Austin

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors continues his bid for a second successive Wimbledon title Wednesday when he faces 20-year-old Australian Wally Masur, a product of a nationwide plan designed to put Australian tennis back on the map.

Although Australian standing in world tennis has dipped since the halcyon days of the 1950s and 1960s, a new wave of promising youngsters is emerging. Pat Cash, Craig Miller, John Fitzgerald and Masur are all still in contention here, although Masur's tenure in this year's tournament seems sure to end on the center court when he faces the No. 1 seed Wednesday.

While Connors should be claiming a third round place, his main rival for the singles title, No. 2 seed John McEnroe, will be playing a doubles match. McEnroe teamed with Peter Fleming in first round action against Britain's Chris Bradnam and David Lloyd. McEnroe renews his quest for the singles crown Thursday when he faces Florin Segarceanu of Romania.

Fleming will be in action Wednesday.

action after a second round encounter in the singles with Nduka Odizor, the unranked Nigerian who Monday shocked fourth-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

Odizor, ranked 80th in the world, came back from a two-set deficit to defeat Vilas, who has never preferred playing on grass. Third-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia is idle, and with Vilas now a spectator, No. 5 Mats Wilander of Sweden is the next highest ranking player in action. Not that he planned it that way.

Wilander frittered away a two set advantage over John Fitzgerald of Australia Tuesday night, wasting five match points and allowing the 22-year-old to even the match at two sets apiece.

In women's play, Chris Evert Lloyd, seeded to meet Martina Navratilova in a repeat of last year's final, should not be unduly troubled by Marcella Mesker of Holland, especially if she reproduces the form that brought her a 6-2, 6-1 victory Tuesday over fellow American Alycia Moulton.

Third-seeded Andrea Jaeger, who won

Wimbledon

American, 20-year-old Pam Casale.

There was not much in the way of surprises Tuesday although two of the high-ranking women's seeds dropped out of contention.

Fourth-seeded Tracy Austin withdrew with a pulled shoulder muscle — she is still troubled by a chronic bad back — and sixth-seeded Bettina Bunge of West Germany was eliminated 3-6, 7-6, 11-9 by Switzerland's Christiane Jolissaint.

Otherwise, matters proceeded very much to form.

Navratilova fashioned a 6-1, 6-0 demolition of South African Beverly Mould, conceding only 17 points as she bombarded her opponent with strong volleys.

In men's play, Lendl joined Connors and McEnroe in the second round, carving out a 7-6, 6-1, 6-0 victory over South African Bernie Milton in one hour and 37 minutes.

After taking 57 minutes to win the first set in a tiebreaker, Lendl blasted his way through to the next two sets in only 47 minutes.

Eighth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis had to struggle to avoid becoming the fourth men's seed to lose. Two others — Jimmy Arias and Gene Mayer — previously withdrew. Gerulaitis edged diminutive Ramesh Krishnan of India, 5-7, 7-5, 7-6, 6-7, 6-3.

The New Yorker appeared to have the match well in hand when leading 5-2 in the fourth set, but Krishnan took the next five games to force a deciding set.

The most unusual sight on the courts was that of American Trey Wialke playing in long trousers against the 1972 champion, compatriot Stan Smith. Wialke reached the second round when Smith withdrew with a strained back in the fifth set.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former U.S. Open and Wimbledon tennis champion Arthur Ashe was in stable condition today after undergoing his second coronary bypass operation in four years.

Bernie Wineski, a spokeswoman for St. Luke's Hospital in Manhattan, said Ashe, 39, was in stable condition.

ICBA Girls Hysterical Over Hoop Successes

The Inter-County Basketball Association (ICBA) Seminoles returned home this week from its trip north to participate in "Hoop Hysteria" on Long Island, New York. The Seminoles had huge success with their Junior Varsity girls team which won all five games it played. The varsity boys won one and lost three and finished third in the Ice-breaker Jamboree while the JV boys won two and lost three.

Here is a look at how the ICBA teams fared in New York City:

Junior Varsity Girls

Game 1 — Seminoles 46, Percy Jackson 27
The girls opened up with a 46-27 rout of Percy Jackson Youth Center of Hempstead, N.Y. Kim Forsythe led the way with 11 points while Mary Lokers added 10 and Brenda Redway tossed in six while Lisa McCoy, Amy Duda and Jollee Johnson added four apiece. Lokers was named MVP of the game as she also nabbed 10 rebounds.

Game 2 — Seminoles 37, Walt Whitman 23
Stephanie Nelson and Forsythe netted 10 points apiece as the Seminoles made it two straight with a 14-point victory over Walt Whitman High of South Huntington. Karen McConkey added eight points with her 15-foot lefthanded hook shot.

Game 3 — Seminoles 54, Hempstead 31
Game MVP Nelson poured in 20 points for the ICBA in a rout of Hempstead High's JV team. Lokers added nine points followed by Forsythe with eight and Patti Rae, Beth Elder and Kellie Johnson with four apiece.

Game 4 — Seminoles 49, Northport 29
Another easy win for the Seminoles this time over the JV team from Northport High. Forsythe led the way with 12 points while Nelson tossed in 10. Bea Miranda added six while Rae and McCoy had five apiece.

Game 5 — Seminoles 46, Hempstead Sal. Army 25
The ICBA girls JV finished its trip with a perfect 5-0 record as the final game was as much a breeze as the other four. Forsythe had another big game as she netted 17 points and took MVP honors. Rae added six points followed by Amy Duda with five and McCoy and Redway with four each.

Varsity boys

Game 1 — Hempstead 101, Seminoles 80
Hempstead High finished among the top three in New York state three of the last five years and were too much for the ICBA. Greg and James Pilot scored 15 points each to pace the Seminoles while Eddie Norton and Eric Trombo added 14 apiece and Crockett Bohannon tossed in 10. Trombo was named MVP.

Game 2 — Walt Whitman 66, Seminoles 59
The ICBA trailed by as much as 25 points before firing up and cutting the margin to three late in the third quarter, only to lose by seven points. Greg Pilot hit for 15 points again while James Pilot added 14, Norton 13 and Trombo eight.

Game 3 — Seminoles 3rd in Jamboree
The ICBA finished third out of five teams in a jamboree at Hempstead High. The Seminoles won the last quarter against Percy Jackson White, 19-18, behind Bohannon's seven points.

Game 4 — Northport 75, Seminoles 60
A red-hot shooting Northport High team was too much for the ICBA to overcome as the Seminoles dropped their third straight. Trombo led the way with 15 points followed by James Pilot with 12, Norton 11 and Willis Perry and Bohannon added eight.

Game 5 — Seminoles 78, Friends Academy 68
The varsity picked the last night to play its best game in a victory over Friends Academy despite a 33 point performance by Friends' Derrick Preston. Bohannon led the ICBA with 22 points followed by Trombo with 16 and Norton and James Pilot with 14 each. Norton was named MVP.

Boys Junior Varsity

Game 1 — Hempstead Freshmen 102, Seminoles 67
The ICBA JV got off to a rather lackluster start, losing 35 to Hempstead's Freshmen team. Rob Hughes led the ICBA with 21 points while Vince Florence added 14, Oscar Wilder 12, Phil Florence nine and Glenn Reichle six. Vince Florence took the MVP award.

Game 2 — Walt Whitman JV 76, Seminoles 53
The Seminoles were again overmatched against the Walt Whitman JV squad. Phil Florence had a fine game for the ICBA as he tossed in 16 points while Vince Florence and Reichle added 10 apiece.

Game 3 — Seminoles 67, Hempstead Sal. Army 54
The Seminoles got into the win column over the Hempstead Salvation Army Biddy champs. Hughes and Vince Florence tallied 18 each. Wilder had 12, Reichle eight and Phil Florence seven. Hughes was named MVP.

Game 4 — Seminoles 80, Northport 48
The ICBA JV made it two in a row with a victory over the Northport 8th and 9th grade team. Vince Florence led the way with 18 points, Wilder added 16, Phil Florence 10 and Hughes tossed in eight.

Game 5 — Hempstead Mid. School 68, Seminoles 61
The Seminoles lost a tough one to the Hempstead Middle School in the final game of the trip. Vince Florence took high-scoring honors with 20 points. Wilder chipped in 16 points including 10 in the fourth quarter as the ICBA almost pulled out the win. Hughes added 12 and Wilder was named MVP.

'This Is A Bum Rap Billy's Getting,' Says Savior Zimmer

NEW YORK (UPI) — I've known Billy Martin ever since he first came up with the Yankees. That's more than 30 years. As far as I can remember, I've never made a suggestion to him in all that time, but I've got one for him now.

If he hasn't done so already, I strongly suggest he make it a point to thank Don Zimmer, his third base coach, because if it weren't for him, he wouldn't be managing the Yankees today.

George Steinbrenner. And you have to take his word for it because he's the man who says who stays and who goes with the Yankees.

For you to fully understand how instrumental Zimmer was in Martin holding on to his job, at least for the time being, you have to go back a bit to last Thursday. That was the day Martin was reported on the verge of being fired. Those reports were entirely accurate.

Steinbrenner, Martin and Judge Edd Saper, Martin's close friend and advisor, all had met without telling anyone beforehand in one of Cleveland's better restaurants Wednesday night after the Yankees beat the Indians. Martin's contract was discussed at this meeting.

Saper subsequently characterized the meeting as an amicable one. Maybe it could be described that way in the most general terms, but certain ground rules were established and it was Steinbrenner who did the establishing. To start with, he established the fact that Art Fowler, Martin's buddy, no longer would be the Yankees' pitching coach. He also made it clear Martin was not to be seen conversing or otherwise occupied with a certain young lady he happens to be fond of during working hours.

Supposedly, that took care of everything for the moment. After the Yankees concluded their series with the Indians in Cleveland and returned to New York, however, there was another crisis Friday afternoon when a female researcher from The New York Times accused Martin of ordering her out of the clubhouse at Yankee Stadium in insulting obscene terms. She then found herself barred from the visiting clubhouse also.

Steinbrenner received an immediate call from The Times. When he was informed of one of the remarks Deborah Henschel, the researcher, said Martin had made to her, he personally apologized for his manager.

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN

It was at that point the Yankee owner decided he had had enough. He made up his mind to replace Martin after the Yankees left home Sunday night and began the road trip they are now in Baltimore.

"Billy's career wasn't worth a nickel when the first reports came in and I was told the things that had been said by him," Steinbrenner said Tuesday. "If the facts turned out to be the way The New York Times related them to me, he was gone. I don't care who he was or how many people love him. I simply wouldn't stand for something like that. But I had to get to the bottom of it."

One of the reasons Steinbrenner felt that was essential was because Lee MacPhail, the American League President, had now become involved. How would it look if Martin was fired for some form of misconduct by Steinbrenner and MacPhail ultimately found no reason for disciplining him? It wouldn't look good at all and in baseball as in everything else, looks count.

So the Yankee owner conducted his own investigation. Among those he talked with was Don Zimmer.

"I know Don Zimmer," Steinbrenner said. "He wouldn't lie for his mother. People can't say he and Billy are close friends, either. They're friendly, but they don't pal around together or anything like that. I spoke with Zimmer and he told me he was right there when Billy was talking to the girl from The Times and he heard every word that was said. He told me what Billy said and what he didn't say. I asked him whether Billy had made the specific remark the girl said he had and he said no. He was sure about it."

Another point, and this one was on the other side of the coin, Martin had called attention to the dress the girl was wearing, saying it had a slit far up the side. To that, Steinbrenner said, "I didn't find her dress that much different from those worn in New York."

MacPhail announced the result of his investigation Tuesday and based on the information he was able to gather, he found "no cause for serious disciplinary action" against Martin.

When I spoke with Joe Vecchione, the sports editor of The Times Tuesday, he told me he believed the girl researcher was telling the truth. He added the paper was standing by its original account of the episode printed in its editions last Saturday.

So there it stands, and although Billy Martin is still the manager of the Yankees, he's far from home free.

My feeling is when the time does come for Steinbrenner to let him go for the third time, he won't let him go completely. Possibly he'll merely furlough him, give him a rest for a month or so, and then bring him back for the September stretch run.

Why not? He'll still be paying him. Besides, in essence, isn't that what Steinbrenner has done the last two times anyway?

Allen Eases Cards' Minds With 6-0 Blanking Of Mets

United Press International

The Keith Hernandez for Neil Allen and Rick Ownbey deal has already helped both teams.

One night after Hernandez' two-run homer helped the New York Mets top the St. Louis Cardinals, Neil Allen came back to blank the Mets through eight innings Tuesday night, hurling the Cardinals to a 6-0 victory at New York.

Allen's victory helped prove last week's trade wasn't as one-sided in the Mets favor as many thought.

"It was a sweet victory, especially since it eased a lot of tension in my own mind, in the minds of the people of St. Louis and in (St. Louis manager) Whitey Herzog's mind," Allen said. "I've got to pitch like this to even begin to fill Keith Hernandez' shoes. I don't think I was nearly as valuable to the Mets as he was to the Cardinals."

Allen, making his first appearance for St. Louis, allowed only four hits over eight innings and also drove in the first run of his major league career with a suicide squeeze bunt against his former teammates.

"I was very nervous and very psyched up until the fifth inning," said Allen, who raised his record to 3-7. "After that I just decided to relax. I feel I killed three birds with one stone tonight. I pitched my first game in a Cardinal uniform, I pitched in front of the Cardinal people on TV and I pitched in front of the Met people. I couldn't have started off better in a Cardinal uniform."

Mets manager Frank Howard was impressed with Allen.

"So far the deal looks like a quality deal for both ballclubs," Howard said. "I think Neil Allen's got the type of arm that he could start or relieve. He has an above average fastball and what I think is one of the outstanding curveballs in the history of baseball."

After the Cardinals had taken a 3-0 lead in the second inning on an RBI triple by Ozzie Smith, Allen, after fouling off a suicide squeeze bunt attempt on the first pitch from loser Tom Gorman, 0-1, executed the play perfectly on a 2-2 pitch, even though the Mets knew it was coming.

N.L. Baseball

Pirates 6, Cubs 4

At Pittsburgh, Mike Easler drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and Jason Thompson added a two-run double to pace the Pirates. Rick Rhoden, 4-7, pitched his third complete game of the year, scattering 11 hits in handing the Cubs their third straight loss while the Pirates won their third straight. Chicago starter Dickie Noles, 0-3, took the loss.

Astros 5, Braves 0

At Houston, Phil Garner hit a homer and scored two runs and Mike Scott fired a six-hitter Tuesday night to boost Houston to a 5-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Scott, 3-3, hurled his second shutout and second complete game of the year. He was aided by three double plays, allowed no walks and struck out none. The Braves did not have a runner reach second base.

Garner lined a leadoff home run in the second on a 3-2 pitch off Atlanta starter Phil Niekro, 2-6. Houston added two runs in the fifth on Jose Cruz' RBI double and an RBI single by Ray Knight, who went 4-for-4.

At Los Angeles, Tim Lollar permitted only two singles and cracked a sacrifice fly to lift San Diego. Lollar, 3-4, walked three, struck out six in eight-plus innings and surrendered only a seventh-inning single by Dusty Baker and a ninth-inning hit by Bill Russell. Luis DeLeon finished his sixth save. Alejandro Pena, 6-2, had a four-game winning streak snapped despite yielding just one earned run in six innings.

Reds 6, Giants 5

At San Francisco, Ron Oester's one-out single in the 16th inning scored Paul Householder to lift the Reds. Householder, Nick Esasky and Oester singled consecutively with one out off loser Jim Barr, 0-1, to snap the tie. Esasky's single sent Householder to third and he scored on Oester's single up the middle. Ted Power, 2-4, pitched the final two innings for the win.

Neil Allen befuddled his ex-New York teammates for eight innings to register his first win for St. Louis Tuesday night.

Anti-Infection Process Discovered Which May Aid Leukemia Patients

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Although clinical application is several years away, cancer researchers say a new laboratory discovery eventually may provide new help in fighting infection in leukemia patients undergoing chemotherapy.

Dr. Martin J. Murphy Jr., director of the Bob Hippie Laboratory for Cancer Research, announced the laboratory's discovery of a hormone that regulates production of infection-fighting "granulocyte" white blood cells.

"This significant discovery is a fundamental and major step forward because it enables us to better understand the control of blood cell production, which will eventually enable us to manipulate blood cell production in diseased states," said Murphy.

The newly discovered hormone has been christened "granulopoietin," or "GPO" for short. The next step, which researchers estimate will take at least two years, is to "purify" the hormone.

"When GPO is finally purified, it may be possible to answer vital questions regarding diseases such as leukemia, which is after all, a malignant proliferation of cancerous white blood cells," said Dr. Takaji Miyake, who made the laboratory discovery.

"We have much to do yet," added Miyake, "but we know we are clearly on the correct path."

Murphy said that when GPO is purified, "it is conceivable that we might not only unravel a good deal of the mystery which still cloaks human leukemia, but also by augmenting granulocytes, or white blood cells, which protect us from the bacteria in our environment, GPO might be used to reduce the danger of infection in patients undergoing chemotherapy."

"When the white blood cell number is low, a patient becomes a candidate for infection, as is sometimes the case with patients undergoing intensive chemotherapy," he explained.

Murphy called Miyake's discovery "the first time that the normal molecular regulator of granulocyte production has been identified and documented to have stimulated the actual production of white blood cells in living test animals."

The hormone was discovered by "biochemical fractionation" of proteins found in the urine of patients suffering from a severe blood disorder called "aplastic anemia."

Because more people suffer the blood disorder in Japan than anywhere else in the world, urine was collected from Japanese patients, freeze-dried and shipped to the Hippie laboratory in Dayton for study by Miyake.

Having A Rip Roaring Good Time

Funnyman Rip Taylor, also known as Capt. Hook in the classic Peter Pan now playing at the Bob Carr Auditorium in Orlando, clowns around with "Dawg" and "Super Flea" at Flea World on U.S. Highway 17-92 outside Sanford. Taylor took a break from the stage last week to do some shopping and wound up at the flea market. Wonder if he bought anything?

ECKERD

HOW CAN I OVERCOME MOTION SICKNESS WHEN I TRAVEL?

ECKERD HEALTHLINE

BY FRANCIS SCHENKNER, JR.
ECKERD PHARMACIST

You probably know the symptoms, feelings and frustrations associated with motion sickness. Motion sickness is an illness caused by certain types of motion. The most common signs are nausea, pallor, cold sweating and vomiting. The best therapy for motion sickness is to escape the motion. But if that is not possible, you should:

1. Avoid fatigue.
2. Wear loose-fitting clothing and comfortable shoes.
3. Avoid heavy eating and drinking before and during the trip.
4. Lie down, if possible.
5. Restrict head movement.

You can also prevent the symptoms entirely by purchasing a long-lasting preventative medication. Ask your doctor or pharmacist.

Cook Of The Week

Morrison Team: Dale's 'Chef;' Mary's 'Clean-Up'

By Lou Childers
Herald Correspondent

To Mary Morrison, her husband Dale should be called, "chef of the week" instead of "cook of the week" because as she explains it, a chef doesn't have to clean up his own mess, a cook does.

Dale quickly points out that he learned to cook out of necessity because his wife doesn't like to cook. Mary concurs. It might sound like this couple is feuding, but they have been in total harmony during the 32 years they have been married. Dale cooks and Mary cleans up his mess!

All three of the Morrisons' daughters, Terri Boyette, Sheri "Doe" Jackson, and Kelli Morrison work for Central Florida newspapers.

Since 1972 Dale and Mary have been the proprietors of Home Appliance Center, Sanford, formerly G.H. High's Appliances. Before coming to this area, Dale was a division manager for Frigidaire after serving as an officer in the U.S. Air Force during the Korean Police Action.

Dale says, "I am the youngest of nine children and when World War II was in progress, my two oldest brothers were too old to go, but the next four were in active duty. My sisters were grown and on their own, and it was just Mom and Dad and me." He added that he planted a "Victory Garden" and began sharing the cooking duties with his mother.

He also remembers his first cooking experiences in Boy Scouts about the age of 8 when everyone else wanted to "set the table or clean up" but nobody relished the "kitchen patrol" duty of actual cooking. Naturally, it was Dale to the rescue grilling up the hamburgers and burying the foil wrapped "taters" in the coals of the campfire.

Dale received his Bachelor of Music Education degree from Birmingham Southern, a Methodist college in Birmingham, Ala., and has enjoyed a career as a tenor singer with the Birmingham Symphony, various gospel groups and as a soloist at the Winter Park Presbyterian Church, as well as serving as cantor at a Jewish Temple.

Dale says, "When it comes to cooking, I do it up big. If a recipe calls for 4 pounds of meat, I start out with 10 pounds." He also states the food is generally prepared with the idea of sharing his "vittles" with his DeBary neighbors, including his mother-in-law, Evelyn Chapman.

Dale likes to "keep things simple" and enjoys cooking Eastern or Oriental specialties but explains that lately he has been preferring Steak Fondue. Dale starts out the day before he is going to be fondueing by preparing his Bearnaise Sauce. Just a few minutes before the relaxing meal, Dale cuts a tender sirloin into 1-inch chunks, places them on the table in a large bowl, sets out the extra long fondue forks and plates, the sauce and of course the fondue pot with hot oil. When everyone is around the table, it's "every man for himself" as the participants cook their own steak to the desired perfection.

When Dale is into desserts, which isn't often, he prefers a recipe from a lady who is like a second mother to him, Mary McKinnon of Alabama. Dale got this recipe from her at a recent family reunion where his former teacher served the chocolate and whipped cream cake roll.

As you read Dale's other recipes, Bubbly Steak Stroganoff and Squash Casserole, you will understand why he says, "I try to make it a party when I cook."

BERNAISE SAUCE

1 cup of Mayonnaise
1 tablespoon tarragon leaves, finely crushed
2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
1 tablespoon finely chopped onions (optional)
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
Mix all of the ingredients in a small bowl and store covered in the refrigerator for 24 hours. Used as a dip for steak fondue.

CHOCOLATE WHIPPED CREAM CAKE ROLL

5 eggs separated
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup confectioners sugar

2 tablespoons flour, sifted 3 times
pinch of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 pint heavy cream, whipped
Beat egg yolks, adding sugar gradually. Beat a long time until stiff and pale yellow. Add cocoa, flour, salt and vanilla. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour onto shallow baking sheet lined with wax paper that has been greased on both sides. Bake 15-20 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool 5 minutes on rack; turn out on towel. While hot, roll up in towel as for jelly roll. Cool on wax paper covered with cocoa. Spread with whipped cream, roll again and refrigerate. Serves 12-14.

BUBBLY STEAK STROGANOFF

1 1/2 pounds ground steak
2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce
seasoned salt, garlic, pepper and sugar to taste

Brown meat. Add sauce and seasonings and simmer a few minutes. Mix in bowl: 1 cup sour cream, 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, 6-8 scallions chopped with greens.

Cook 8 oz. package noodles. Drain. Alternate the above 3 layers in casserole, two layers each. Top with a cup of grated New York sharp cheese. Bake in a 350 degree oven or heat until bubbly.

SQUASH CASSEROLE

3 pounds yellow crooked-neck squash
1 cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 can water chestnuts
1 small jar pimento
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 cup sour cream
1 package herb seasoned stuffing
1/4 cup butter

Cook onions, squash and salt in a little water until done. Season with butter. Add soup, sour cream, pimento, and water chestnuts to mixture. Line bottom of casserole with stuffing. (Put approximately one cup of stuffing in mixture.) Put squash mixture in casserole and sprinkle with additional stuffing. Bake uncovered 60 minutes in a 325 degree oven.

Academy Grad In Marines, Study Program In Russia

Erica L. Ryder, a 1979 graduate of Seminole High School, was graduated from the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., on May 25. She received a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in mathematics and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Lt. Ryder will report to the Marine Corps basic school in Quantico, Va. in October following a 6-week study program in Russia and a temporary duty assignment at the naval academy. She was the recipient of a post graduate scholarship in Foreign Studies.

Attending the graduation festivities from Sanford were Lt. Ryder's brother, Mark Ryder, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Harper Jr. and their daughter, Jill Harper.

Upon receiving her commission, the Harper family presented Lt. Ryder with a set of second lieutenant bars worn by Harper some 30 years ago.

Among the activities the Harpers attended with Lt.

Ryder were a boat show, a flight demonstration by the navy's Blue Angels and the Red Arrows from Great Britain, the superintendent's garden party, a color parade, a company party, dance, graduation, commissioning exercise and a tour of the academy.

Orange Mousse Makes A Grand Finale

Some very clever hostesses confide that when planning a dinner party, they decide first on a fabulous dessert.

High on the list of memorable desserts is the magical mousse. A French invention during the Middle Ages, by the fourteenth century it had become one of the most popular dishes in Great Britain. To this day, the mousse has retained its reputation in Europe as the most elegant finish to dinner. It guarantees applause for the hostess, yet is relatively easy for even the novice cook. Prepared ahead, served in pretty dishes or fragile wine glasses, the gossamer light mousse waits in the wings to make a grand entrance into the dining room.

ORANGE MOUSSE ORLANDO

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup sugar
4 large eggs, separated
1/4 cup cold water

1 can (6 ounces) Florida frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
1/4 cup hazelnut liqueur
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
4 Florida oranges, peeled and sectioned
1/4 cup toasted slivered almonds or chopped hazelnuts (optional)

In a medium saucepan combine gelatin and sugar. Beat together egg yolks and water; stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat; stir in concentrated orange juice and liqueur. Chill stirring occasionally, until mixture thickens slightly. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff; fold into gelatin mixture. Fold in whipped cream. Arrange orange sections in 8 large balloon wine glasses. Spoon mousse over orange sections. Top with nuts and orange sections, if desired. Yield: 8 servings.

GLAZED ORANGES VENETIA

6 Florida oranges
1/4 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons Florida orange juice
2 tablespoons Grand Marnier liqueur
Peel 2 oranges with a vegetable peeler, removing zest in long strips. Cut zest into julienne strips 1/4-inch wide. Peel remaining oranges and discard peel. Slice oranges 1/4-inch thick. In small saucepan combine julienne strips with enough water to cover. Cover pan. Bring to boiling. Drain, rinse with cold water. In medium saucepan combine sugar, orange juice, Grand Marnier and julienne orange zest. Cook over low heat 15 to 20 minutes until mixture thickens slightly and coats a spoon. Remove from heat. Add orange slices, mix gently. Cool to room temperature before serving. Yield: 8 servings.

Orange Mousse Orlando is a stunning dessert that will turn a company dinner into a memorable event.

Sour Cream Corn

Florida sweet corn is derived from varieties of Indian corn cultivated in North and South America in prehistoric days. Columbus in 1492 described maize and its use as "a kind of grain called maize of which was made a very well-tasted flour."

Florida is the major source of sweet corn during the winter and early spring as harvesting is most active from November to June. Growers produce both yellow and white varieties.

Sweet corn is an acceptable contributor of carbohydrates and is a fair source of a variety of vitamins and minerals. To select quality sweet corn, look for even rows of bright, plump, milky kernels that are just firm enough to offer slight resistance to pressure. If husks are present, select ears which are green and fresh.

Florida sweet corn receives tender loving care during harvesting to preserve the characteristic sweet flavor. Soon after picking, the corn is rushed to hydrocoolers where the field heat is quickly removed by a bath of ice cold water. This relieves the loss of natural sweetness. When storing corn after purchase, keep corn cold and fairly moist in your refrigerator. "Eat it, don't keep it."

The most popular and most convenient method of serving fresh sweet corn is by boiling or steaming and eating it on-the-cob. Drop husks from corn in kettle of boiling water and cover for five minutes, dip in melted butter, season, and enjoy the delightful goodness of Florida sweet corn. Remember, unlike most vegetables, overcooking results in firm or tough kernels. Eight ears of corn yield approximately two cups of cut corn kernels.

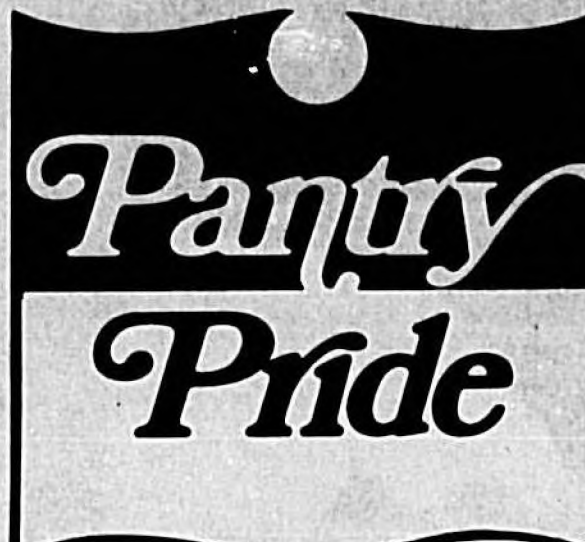

Florida sweet corn may be enjoyed on-the-cob or as an ingredient in puddings, souffles, chowders or breads. We hope you will find these recipes to be some of your corn favorites.

SOUR CREAM CORN
6 slices bacon
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon white pepper
1 cup commercial sour cream
6 ears fresh Florida corn (2 cups)
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Remove husks and silks from corn, rinse ears. Cut kernels from corn to measure 2 cups. Fry bacon; drain and crumble. Set aside.

Saute onion in butter; blend in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually add sour cream, stirring until mixture is smooth. Heat just to boiling; add corn, and heat thoroughly (about 5 minutes). Fold in half of bacon.

Spoon into a greased 1-quart casserole; top with parsley and remaining bacon. Bake at 350 degrees from 25 to 30 minutes. Serves 4 to 6.

Switch Entertaining Ideas To The Outdoors

While barbecuing has become a popular year-round activity for some people, the month of June is the traditional time many switch their entertaining ideas to the yard, patio or deck.

Outdoor cooking has gained many avid fans because of the easy cooking techniques and continuing improvements, such as LP and natural gas barbecue grills. Point out the home economists at Charmglow Products. Gas grills make barbecuing easier with their quick warmup and precise heat control allowing backyard chefs to prepare food at just the right temperature. And the mess and fuss of charcoal and lighter fluid is eliminated thanks to clean gas and permanent pumice briquets.

Modern features such as dual burners and separate controls, warming racks, Pyrex viewing windows, and solid state igniters make the modern gas grill as versatile and easy to use as a kitchen range.

A gas grill costs only pennies to operate, according to Charmglow. An average-sized chicken can be barbecued on a gas barbecue for only about 2 cents, compared to 80 cents on a charcoal grill.

For the benefit of those looking for something special to serve at a cookout, the following recipes are from The Complete Barbecue Cookbook, now available at Charmglow gas dealers and bookstores across the country.

Meat-In-One-Chuck-Roast

3-5 lb. beef chuck roast
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 large onion, sliced
6 medium potatoes, quartered lengthwise
6 large carrots, peeled
1/4 cup cooking oil

1 cup ketchup
1/4 cup water
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons wine vinegar

Brown the roast on a hot grill (high setting on a gas barbecue) for 15 minutes on each side. Remove roast and place it on a large sheet of double-strength aluminum foil. Place the sliced onion on top and the potatoes and carrots around the roast. Combine remaining ingredients in a saucepan. Heat slowly over the grill until the mixture comes to a boil, stirring constantly. Do not boil. Remove and pour over the roast and vegetables. Wrap the foil securely around the roast, sealing the edges well. Place on the grill and cook at low heat for 1 1/2 hours, or until done, with the lid open one Inch. Turn with tongs several times while cooking. Serves 6.

Marinade For Steaks

2 tablespoons oil
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon finely ground pepper
1/4 cup wine vinegar
1 teaspoon chopped fresh parsley
2 cloves garlic, crushed (optional)
1/4 cup lemon juice

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Store in refrigerator until used. Marinade tenderizes and flavors steaks such as round steak. Length of time meat is left in marinade will vary with the size of cut and individual taste. Yields 1 1/4 cups.

Basics Of Good Cooking

By Gaynor Maddox
Special To The Herald
Betty Crocker's "Kitchen Secrets" is now in the bookstores. This is welcome news to all who love good food and like to read about it and work in the kitchen.

Here is a book whose approach is so simply intelligent that almost every cook can enjoy and profit from leafing through it.

The first section of this handsomely illustrated book of 160 pages provides techniques and tips for preparing 30 categories of food from beverages to vegetables. It includes solutions to common problems and is illustrated with color photos, how-to sketches and easy-to-read charts.

The second section, Kitchen Guidelines, offers definitions of cooking terms, rules for measuring ingredients, recommendations for selecting and using kitchen equipment, secrets of selecting more than 100 categories of food and advice on storing food safely.

There is one example. "Cuts of meat are often named for the bones they contain (rib roast, T-bone steak, arm pot roast, to name a few). Bone shape is also an indication of tenderness of a specific cut of meat. Bones in beef, lamb, pork and veal are almost identical in appearance and the seven principal bone groups are arm, blade, rib, loin, hip, leg and breast."

The section on fat and oils answers many questions. For example, what is the difference between corn oil, olive oil, peanut oil and soybean oil? Seasonings are also discussed. What is MSG? Can you make your own seasoned salt? What's the difference between black and white pepper?

The tips in "Kitchen Secrets" will be useful to almost any cook. For instance, did you know that you can soften brown sugar by placing a half an apple or the heel of a loaf of fresh bread in it? The book also introduces to the American kitchen many neglected vegetables such as fennel.

Now that we are in the wedding season, this book, and particularly the Kitchen Guidelines section, is a natural gift for bride and bridegroom. The treatment of basic techniques, including knives, measuring tools and everything from mixing bowls to pastry brushes is excellent.

Make Own Granola

An almond granola served with milk makes a complete breakfast, or may be packed in a can or plastic bag for a fishing trip, or biking or hiking excursion.

ALMOND GRANOLA
4 cups rolled oats
1 1/2 cups slivered almonds
1 cup wheat germ
1/4 cup shredded coconut
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup vegetable oil
In a large bowl, toss together all ingredients to mix thoroughly. Turn into large shallow baking pan. Bake in 350-degree oven, stirring occasionally, 30 minutes. Cool. Break up lumps. Store in airtight containers. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 2 quarts (about 2 pounds).

Reader's Anxieties Affect Her Kidneys

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 28-year-old female and lately I have been having trouble with my nerves. It is affecting my kidneys. I'm OK at home on the weekends when I'm relaxed. When I get on the job I have this awful fear over nothing. Then I get nervous and have to start going to the bathroom. I go to a doctor every three or four months to have my bladder dilated, but I can't talk to him about this. Through the week I drink one cup of coffee and a little more on weekends. Would you please express your views on my problem as I'm on the verge of quitting my job.

DEAR READER—You should discuss your problem with your doctor to be sure you do not have any anatomical or medical problem that may be aggravating your condition.

The urge to urinate can be caused by anxiety, which you call nerves. It is just one of many symptoms anxiety can provoke.

Everyone has some anxiety about something. It is a close cousin to fear. Some people are more threatened by events or situations than others. But I must tell you that if you can determine why you have such fear on the job and overcome it, you will have made an important step forward in developing a mature, stable personality.

Many people have a fear of failure that provokes anxiety. If that is so in your case, you need to accept this and then use some common logic to reassure yourself that you will not be a failure and to help build some self-confidence. You may need some professional counseling to help you overcome your extreme nervousness (anxiety).

As you develop confidence you may not have a problem anymore. Public speaking is a good example. The first time a person does it his hands may shake and his voice tremble but as he gains experience and confidence those symptoms of anxiety disappear.

To help you understand anxiety better, I am sending you The Health Letter 19-8, That Anxious Feeling.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have a 6-year-old granddaughter and every time she takes vitamins she gets a cold and it is so hard to clear her of it. She seems to be allergic to them. Can you explain this? Our physician says he has never heard about vitamins causing a person to take cold.

DEAR READER—Of course he hasn't because vitamins do not cause colds. Colds and related respiratory illnesses are caused by a virus and are really contagious diseases.

You probably put your finger on the problem when you said she seemed to be allergic to vitamins. She may not be allergic to the vitamins themselves but rather to a substance in the vitamin preparation she is taking.

Food allergies, which include allergies to vitamin preparations, can cause the symptoms we identify as a cold, including bronchitis. Even many adults who have allergies think they are having colds. These may be from sources other than food.

And you have to consider that if she is having an allergy maybe it is related to her diet, independent of her vitamin preparations. If the problem continues, ask her doctor about having her seen by an allergist.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Rich Fricson of Austin, Texas, and Bart Bramley of Hartford, Connecticut, managed to defeat a lay-down three no-trump in the Spring Nationals.

North and South were using a Stayman variation which did not require that responder hold four cards in a major to respond two clubs so that Rich decided to attack in the one suit where he might help his partner. He saw no hope of doing anything with his five-card spade suit so he led his four of hearts.

From then on Bart took charge and showed that his Atlantic Coast expertise was also there in the Pacific. He started a match-point swindle by taking his ace of hearts and continuing with the queen.

South ducked and now Bart led his deuce, which South had to win. A club to the ace and a second club back to the jack picked Bart's queen and South could now count five clubs, two spades, one heart and one diamond for his nine-trick contract. He wanted to try for 10.

So he cashed his king of clubs and led the queen of diamonds for a finesse. Bart was in with the king. Declarer was also pretty sure that West held the lost heart and Bart confirmed his feeling by not cashing that card. Instead he led a spade!

South won and led the 10 of diamonds for what he thought was a safe finesse. Bart took his jack and finally produced that nine of hearts for the setting trick and a top score.

Satellite Pick-Up Makes Space History

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Challenger's astronauts used a mechanical arm to grab a West German test satellite floating free in space today in a history-making demonstration to show the shuttle can snatch satellites from orbit for repair and re-use.

The boxy instrument platform called SPAS, a 1½-ton contraption loaded with experiments, was first lifted out of the ship's cargo bay by the 50-foot crane and released as a free-flying satellite as Challenger circled Earth for the 22nd time.

Then John Fabian used wire snares on the end of the arm to snag a special mount on the side of the satellite and lock it to the arm.

"John performed a beautiful release and capture in auto (automatic sequence)," Sally Ride reported at 4:09 a.m. She was helping operate the arm from a separate station on Challenger's flight deck.

The satellite was removed from the shuttle's cargo bay despite a satellite gyroscope problem which sent annoying alarms to the astronauts.

"The SPAS is coming out," reported Robert Crippen at 3:39 a.m. EDT. Fabian was operating the six-jointed, 50-foot crane from the aft station in the Challenger's cabin.

"We've got the SPAS unberthed," Sally Ride said two minutes later.

They and colleagues Frederick Hauck and Norman Thagard worked quickly to get the satellite out of the shuttle because the test satellite was heating up faster than expected.

They had 8 ½ hours to release the satellite — 15 ½ feet long, 14 ½ feet high and 5 feet wide — and then fly up to 1,000 feet from it, maneuver back to a rendezvous and release and grab it five times.

The 17,000-mph orbital ballet was the last big job before the high-spirited crew of America's seventh shuttle mission packs up for Friday's descending dash across the United States to a gliding first-time landing at the Florida spaceport and a greeting from President and Mrs. Reagan.

The weather for landing day remained questionable, but flight director John Cox said a clearing trend appeared to be developing. Challenger cannot land in heavy clouds, rain or strong crosswinds and is equipped to stay aloft two extra days if necessary to wait for better weather.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to use the arm on the 13th shuttle mission next April to pull a crippled sun-watching satellite from orbit, haul it into the cargo bay for repairs by a pair of spacewalking astronauts and then launch it again.

Besides the rescue potential, NASA in the long run hopes to use the shuttle's ability to recover objects for maintenance, satellite servicing and construction jobs.

Kim Tindel, Mrs. Jean Taylor, Miss Jennifer Taylor, Mrs. Diana Mohr, and Mrs. Faye Lee.

Miss Tindel was also honored at a bridal dinner at Maison et Jardin, given by her sister, Miss Robin Tindel. Guests were members of the bridal party.

Attending were Mrs. Lorena Tindel, grandmother of the bride, Miss Angella Tindel, Miss Jeanette Tindel, Miss Melissa Tindel, nieces of the bride.

Please, No More Barbs; Her Name Is 'Barbara'

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem petty to some, but it bothers me a great deal.

My name is "Barbara" — not "Barb" or "Barbie" — and "Barbara" is the way I want to be addressed. I suppose the problem is that I do not hesitate to tell those who call me "Barb" or "Barbie" that I prefer to be called "Barbara."

I have a friend who tells me that when I insist on being called "Barbara," I come off as haughty and arrogant, which drives people (especially men) away. She says I should try to overcome this "psychological hang-up" because it creates a negative impression.

I can't help it. I hate being called "Barbie" — or worse yet, "Barb" — so why should I put up with it. I can't hang a sign around my neck. What do you think?

CALL ME BARBARA

DEAR BARBARA: It's perfectly all right to let people know that you prefer to be called "Barbara," but do so diplomatically (without "barbs"). And if someone should slip, don't make a big deal out of it. A rose by any other name is still fraught with thorns.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 62 and retired. I'm 55 and still work outside the home. Whenever I start making plans (once a year) to visit my parents for 10 days, he starts the old routine, complaining about headaches, stomach pains, etc. Then he sulks and acts hurt until I feel so guilty I have to leave him.

In our 38 years of marriage, every time we have visited my parents together it has been a disaster. He does not get along with them, and they have never cared much for him. He doesn't even want to visit his own parents or our children who live in another state. He hates to travel and says if they want to see him, they can come here.

He keeps telling me that I am the only person who means anything to him and he thinks I should feel the same about him. I can't make him understand that I am not choosing my parents over him. I just need to see them once a year — especially now that they're elderly.

Please give me some encouraging advice, Abby.

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: You have no reason to feel guilty. You husband is not incapacitated, nor is he "ill." He sounds like a spoiled, selfish child.

If this has been going on for 38 years, he's not apt to change, so if you are really plagued with guilt for leaving him, counseling could help you overcome these inappropriate feelings, a local mental health clinic offers this confidential help. Fees are based upon ability to pay.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Grill-In

Lamb Considered 'In' Trend For Barbecue

The word is out...there really are some new and different things to serve for this traditional American feast:

American lamb, in whatever form preferred, cooks well on the grill and is considered the "in" thing to serve. Lamb's very special flavor is enhanced, not overpowered, by marinades and sauces. The price of lamb is right, too, fitting in with the budget of cost-conscious cooks. And if that were not enough, lamb is low in calories. For the next barbecue, why not serve a marinated "butterflied" leg of lamb?

Next on the all-American menu is rice. Rice...American? Absolutely. Over 99% of all the rice eaten in the United States is grown here in the states of Arkansas, California, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and Texas. In fact, the United States grows so much rice that 60% of the crop is exported. Rice in salads is the newer and trendier way to serve this world-wide favorite. Rice is low in calories, 82 per ½ cup, and is super economical — less than 4 cents per serving!

California Brandy is the ingredient that makes this meal "special." It's more reasonable in price than the imported kind. This lighter brandy is fermented and distilled right in California from the world-famous grapes of the San Joaquin Valley. Brandy from California is a better buy, too, and the light flavor goes especially well in summer drinks and meat marinades.

American lamb, American rice and California Brandy can make patriotic meals all year round.

This special leg of lamb is easy to cook on the grill and even in a broiler. When immersed in a brandy marinade hours or a day before cooking, lamb takes on an exotic flavor that will please family and friends alike.

MARINATED BUTTERFLIED LAMB

- 4 to 5-pound leg of lamb (sirloin off)
- 1 cup coarsely chopped carrots
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 4 sprigs parsley
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 3 cups water
- ¼ cup California brandy
- 1 ½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon basil leaves
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Remove fell, trim excess fat and "butterfly" leg of lamb following directions provided in box (or have your meat retailer prepare it). Trim lamb across shank and sirloin ends to form a uniformly-shaped rectangle. (Use this lamb, approximately 1 ½ pounds, for the Braised Lamb recipe.) Make a vegetable garnish with carrots, celery, parsley and garlic. Place in saucepan; add water, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Stir in brandy, salt, basil and pepper and continue cooking, covered, 10 minutes. Cool. Place lamb in utility dish or plastic bag. Pour marinade over lamb, turning to coat. Cover dish or tie bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 4 to 6 hours or overnight, turning several times. Thread 2 long metal skewers through lamb to secure and facilitate turning roast. Place lamb on outdoor grill 5 to 7 inches from heat. Broil at moderate temperature over ash-covered coals to desired degree of doneness: 140°F. for rare; 160°F. for medium and 170°F. for well done. Allow 40 to 60 minutes total cooking time, depending on doneness desired. Turn leg several times, brushing with marinade during cooking. Carve into thin slices. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

*Follow manufacturer's directions for broiling on covered or gas grill. The above directions can be followed for broiling the butterflied leg on a rack in the broiler pan of a range.

Rice and lamb have been eaten together in the Middle East for centuries. So it's no accident that this salad with Middle East seasonings and ingredients goes so well with lamb.

MIDDLE EAST RICE SALAD

- 3 cups hot cooked rice
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper

Side Dishes

Star Fresh Tomatoes

Florida is today's leading state in tomato production. This plump juicy red fruit, yes the tomato is a fruit, is loaded with vitamin C.

There are no prehistoric records about the tomatoes early culture, but it is believed to be native to the Andes Mountain area of South America. Tomatoes, once called "naught and corrupt" by 16th century Englanders, were better known later on as the love apple, fruit given as a token of affection by Europeans.

A large portion of Florida's tomatoes are picked mature green so they will reach you without suffering serious bruises. To ripen for eating, leave tomatoes at room temperature out of direct sunlight. After tomatoes are fully ripe, refrigerate them in your vegetable keeper. When tomatoes are on your menu, remove them several hours before serving. Like many natural foods, they are sweeter and more flavorful when served at room temperature.

Try these kitchen tested recipes from the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

FLORIDA MARINATED TOMATOES

- 2-3 large Florida tomatoes
- 1 ½ cup Italian salad dressing
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ cup very thinly sliced green onion
- ¼ cup minced fresh parsley

Arrange 8 thick tomato slices in a shallow baking dish or pan. Mix together Italian dressing, salt, and mustard. Spoon dressing mixture over tomatoes. Cover. Chill 2 to 3 hours, basting occasionally. To serve, place each tomato on a lettuce leaf and garnish with minced onion, parsley and a little of the dressing. Serves 8.

CORN BREAD-STUFFED TOMATOES

- 1 package cornbread dressing mix
- 6 medium Florida tomatoes
- salt
- pepper
- ½ stick butter.

Prepare dressing following directions for stuffing. Scoop out centers of tomatoes reserving pulp from 3. Salt and pepper inside of tomato shells and the reserved pulp. Combine baked stuffing and tomato pulp. Fill tomato shells. Top with pat of butter.

Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 20 minutes or until stuffing browns and tomatoes are tender. Serves 8.

- ½ teaspoon each salt, crumbled rosemary leaves, oregano leaves and minced garlic
- ¼ teaspoon mint leaves, crumbled
- 1 small zucchini, thinly sliced
- 1 medium tomato, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 4 ounces Feta cheese, cut into small cubes (about ¾ cup)

Spoon rice into large mixing bowl. Blend oil, lemon juice, seasoned pepper, salt, rosemary, oregano, garlic and mint. Stir into rice. Cover and let cool. Add zucchini, tomato and cheese, stirring lightly to combine.

Serve at room temperature or chill before serving. Makes 6 servings.

California brandy is an absolutely delicious addition to refreshing summer drinks and its light and fruity taste blends so well with many juice combinations.

BRANDY COLLINS

- 2 ½ ounces brandy
- 1 to 2 teaspoons sugar
- ½ to 1 ounce lemon juice
- Club soda, iced
- Lemon slice
- Orange slice
- Maraschino cherry

Shake brandy, sugar and lemon juice well with ice. Strain into 14-ounce glass half filled with ice. Add soda and stir. Garnish with fruit. Makes 1 drink.

After the leg of lamb has been butterflied for the grill, quite a bit of meat remains on the bone. Trim the meat from the bone and use for this recipe. Flavored with brandy and served over ginger-flavored rice, in no time lamb is turned into another first-class meal.

BRAISED LAMB WITH GINGERED RICE

- 1 ½ pounds boneless lamb, cut into ¾ to 1-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1 cup water
- Dash nutmeg
- 1 small onion, cut into 8 wedges
- 3 tablespoons raisins
- 1 tablespoon California brandy
- 1 medium cooking apple, cubed

Ginger Rice (below)

Dredge lamb in combined flour, salt and pepper. Brown lamb in cooking oil in large frying pan. Pour off drippings. Add water and nutmeg. Cover and cook slowly 20 minutes. Add onion, raisins and brandy and continue cooking, covered, 20 minutes. Stir in apple and continue cooking, covered, 5 minutes. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Microwave Magic

Italian Favorites All Year

Almost everyone enjoys Italian food, but because it usually takes long cooking which generates heat in the kitchen, we would rather prepare those dishes in cooler weather.

By using the microwave oven, the cooking time is much shorter and little if any heat is produced. So why not try microwaving your Italian favorites.

This recipe for a basic Italian sauce can be divided into 2 or 4 servings and frozen to be used later for a variety of Italian dishes. Having several packages of frozen sauce is a "God send" on days when I'm late getting home from school or I just don't want to get involved in much food preparation.

The sauce can be thawed and served over hot pasta in a matter of minutes.

BASIC ITALIAN SAUCE

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 lb. Italian sausage, cut into small pieces
- 2 med. onions, chopped
- 1 large green pepper chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes
- 2 cups water
- 1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
- 1 large bay leaf
- 2 teaspoons oregano

Midge Mycoff
Home Economist
Seminole Community College

1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 teaspoon basil leaves
1/2 teaspoon savory leaves
1/2 teaspoon marjoram

In a 2-quart microwave safe container, break up the ground beef. Add the pieces of Italian sausage. Microwave at 100% power for 5-8 minutes or until meat is no longer pink. Stir once or twice during the cooking time. Drain excess fat and set aside.

In a 5-quart microwave safe container, combine onions, green pepper, garlic and oil. Microwave covered at 100% power for 4-6 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in meat and the remaining ingredients. Microwave at 100% power for 10 minutes. Reduce power to 70% and microwave 45 minutes to 1 hour or until sauce is thickened and flavors well blended. Remove bay leaf. Place in freezer containers.

To serve, place the frozen sauce in a microwave safe container and microwave covered at 100% power. Break up the sauce and stir during the time.

Manicotti can be prepared in advance refrigerated and microwaved just prior to serving which makes it another busy day dinner entree. A green salad and fresh fruit for dessert complete the meal.

FLORENTINE MANICOTTI

16 Manicotti shells
Prepare manicotti shells as directed on package. Rinse in cold water and drain.

Filling:
1 lb. ground beef
1 (10 oz.) package chopped spinach, defrosted and drained
1 medium onion, chopped
3 eggs beaten
1 cup bread crumbs
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Sauce:
2 cans (15 oz.) tomato sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
3/4 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon basil

Topping:
1 cup ricotta cheese
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
2 teaspoons fresh parsley, chopped
Crumble ground beef into 3-quart casserole and add onion. Microwave at 100% for 4-6 minutes or until no longer pink. Drain. Mix remaining filling ingredients with ground beef. Fill each shell. Arrange in single layer in two 12x8 baking dishes. Mix all sauce ingredients. Pour equally over manicotti in both dishes. Combine topping ingredients. Spoon over sauce in dollops. Microwave one dish at a time at 100% power for 5-8 minutes or until sauce is bubbly and manicotti is heated through. Repeat with remaining dish.

Next week: Microwave special from the microwave oven.

The Fashionable Lunch

If you look around a popular restaurant at lunchtime, chances are you will find that the most fashionable patrons have chosen salad for their entree. Chic means thin and healthy these days, and salads provide a wallop of nutrition with no wasted calories. When the ingredients are thoughtfully chosen and care is taken with the arrangements on the plates, the dish will please the eye as well as the palate. Dressing is important, too, and offers an opportunity for originality in blending flavors.

Two superb examples use classic recipes with a new twist. Oranges, as the Chinese were the first to discover, have an affinity to almost all other foods, adding a delectable bouquet of their own without overwhelming the other ingredients. With delicious Florida varieties available almost year round, they add a sparkle to a winter vegetable or a cold summer pasta salad.

Tuna and Beet Salad with Orange Yogurt Dressing features succulent orange slices with beets, water-packed tuna and red onions, topped with a delightful tart-sweet orange yogurt dressing.

Grapefruit makes the difference in Florida Shrimp Salad. Shrimp, celery, onions, grapefruit sections and green pepper are marinated in a delicious grapefruit vinaigrette. Grapefruit juice adds zest to the simple mayonnaise dressing. The contrast in taste and texture makes this robust salad a treat.

TUNA AND BEET SALAD WITH ORANGE YOGURT DRESSING

Orange Yogurt Dressing:
1 cup (8 ounces) plain yogurt
1/2 cup Florida frozen concentrated orange juice thawed, undiluted
1 tablespoon honey
Mix yogurt, concentrated orange juice and honey in small bowl. Chill. Yield: 1 1/2 cups.

Salad:
3 Florida oranges, peeled and sectioned
1 can (8 ounces) sliced beets, drained
1 small red onion, sliced
2 cans (3 1/2 ounces each) tuna, drained
Salad greens

To section oranges, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane, then cut slice from bottom. Or cut off peel round and round, spiral fashion. Go over fruit again, removing any remaining membrane. Cut along side of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section. Arrange orange sections, beets, onion slices and tuna on salad greens on two serving plates. Top each serving with 2 tablespoons Orange Yogurt Dressing. Yield: 2 servings.

FLORIDA SHRIMP SALAD

2 pounds shrimp, cooked and shelled
2 cups Florida grapefruit sections, drained
3/4 cup diced green pepper
1 cup sliced celery
1 tablespoon minced onion
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
6 tablespoons Florida frozen concentrated grapefruit juice, thawed, undiluted
1/4 cup salad oil
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

In large bowl gently toss shrimp, grapefruit sections, green pepper, celery and onion. Mix paprika, salt, sugar, dry mustard. Stir in concentrated grapefruit juice, oil and hot pepper sauce and beat or shake until blended. Pour over grapefruit-shrimp mixture and chill several hours or overnight. Drain well and serve in grapefruit shells or lettuce cups with Grapefruit Mayonnaise Dressing. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Grapefruit Mayonnaise Dressing:
Blend 2 tablespoons Florida frozen concentrated grapefruit juice, undiluted, with 1/2 cup mayonnaise. Yield 1/2 cup.
