Growth Presents New Challenges

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Growth is taking on a negative connotation in Florida but there is no way to stop it, says Roy Harris, executive director of the Mid-Florida Development Commission.

Harris spoke Wednesday night to Central Florida legislators from Seminole, Orange and Brevard counties at the Altamonte Springs Civic Center. The lawmakers met to hear reports on expected growth from elected officials, leaders of commerce, industry and utilities companies.

Harris said through the work of his organization, the area is gaining 15,000 to 20,000 new jobs annually. With the number of people moving to Central Florida, jobs must be provided or the area will have trouble with transients, Harris said.

Last year, industries invested $500 million in two counties — Orange and Seminole — and committed 12,000 new jobs.

Harris said another buzz word he is hearing is "impact fees." He said he is being questioned by industrial sources "interested in investing here" of what the words mean. "We need a definition of impact fee," he said.

Harris said industry pays about 75 percent of the taxes in a community and gets about 10 percent of the services provided. He said that private homes do not pay their way.

Noting that industry needs waste water capacity to build, Harris "wondered" if the area is being innovative enough on waste water disposal.

In addition, he said, the state and local government permit process is "strangling industrial development."

"We've got to educate the bureaucrats to think 'let's see how we can help,'" he said.

Comparing the cooperation industrialists get from government in Georgia, Harris said a new industry which he did not identify located in Georgia although its executives had planned to come to Florida.

In a newspaper interview, Harris said the industrialist told a reporter that the governor of Georgia had promised Georgia would only take 90 days to go through the permit process. It actually took 72 days, Harris said. In Florida, the same project would have taken 18 months to acquire all the permits necessary, he said.

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, said that state House Speaker Lee Moffett has appointed a select committee on growth management. Brantley solicited the help of Harris and his organization and the home building industry to compile information on the impact of growth in Central Florida.

"All have to be aware that there are problems that go along with growth," Brantley said.

Roland Williams said he would like to see the name Crooms stand forever.

Crooms

People Ask: Keep Name, If Not Building

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

The name Joseph N. Crooms should be preserved even if Crooms and Seminole high schools are merged, members of Seminole County's black community told school board members Wednesday night.

Most of the blacks in attendance appeared to oppose the merging of the school, once Seminole County's black high school, with Seminole High because of Crooms' importance and the prominence of its founder to the black community.

Some of those in attendance agreed with advisory committee representatives from the two Sanford high schools and Sanford and Lakeview middle schools, that the 550 ninth graders at Crooms should join the 1,200 students in 10th, 11th and 12th grades at Seminole.

It's the name Crooms, not the building, which should be preserved, said Charles Boykin, a graduate of Crooms High School.

"If we follow the advice of the advisory committees, then we should take the name Crooms with us," he said. "The name Crooms should stand as an institution for my sons and daughters."

Others echoed Boykin's feelings. "If you close Crooms the next high school you build should have the name Crooms," Eddie Marling said.

Sara Jacobsen said the name Crooms carries great local prominence that should not be discarded. "But I don't believe Dr. Crooms would recommend segregating these kids under any pretense."

School officials have calculated the cost of operating Crooms is about $2,200 per student, at least $600 more expensive than at the district's other high schools.

The advisory committees cited those figures, plus the necessity to transport students to Seminole for advanced classes and many extracurricular activities (the board spent more than $50,000 last year on bus service between the two Sanford schools) as their reasons for recommending the merger.

But Willie King, representing a group calling themselves Concerned Citizens of Seminole County, said the board "may or may not have valid reasons for merging the two schools."

He said the report from the Crooms committee "misstated the facts."

He said Crooms students are offered a wide selection of classes and extracurricular activities, although they must go to Seminole to participate in some activities.

He argued that test results showing Crooms

It was a packed house at the Seminole County Board of Education office Wednesday night.

students have a lower degree of basic educational skills are misleading. The test scores, he said, do not reflect the education students are getting at Crooms but what they have learned in the first eight grades.

Assistant Superintendent Roger Harris said the costs of operating are correct and reflect the cost of teachers, aides, materials, principals, staff, guidance counselors and other items which must be paid for to keep the school running.

Superintendent Robert Hughes said one reason the cost per student at Crooms is high is because the ninth grade is isolated and because special education programs have been relocated to Lake Mary High School.

"The more grades, more students and more special programs you have the lower the cost," Hughes said.

Hughes told the auditorium full of people at the school board office in Sanford that the Crooms building "has a lot of credibility."

But he said the time is right for making a final decision on whether students from Crooms and Seminole should be merged on one campus.

"We all know it costs more to run two houses than one," he said. "It costs more to run two schools than one."

School Board Chairman Roland Williams, the only black on the five-person board, said, "I have a sensitivity to this and not just because I'm black."

Williams said he attended several schools whose names no longer exist as schools because of integration in the 1960s. When black students were sent to white schools, the black schools' names weren't retained.

"We need to preserve black identity," he said. "The next thing I'd like to see is that the name Crooms stand forever."

He said the board would consider the arguments presented at the public hearing and make a decision on the matter at a future board meeting.

Sheriff Criticizes Task Force Jail Ideas

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk warned Central Florida legislators to look carefully at recommendations of Gov. Bob Graham's special task force on prison overcrowding.

The sheriff predicted Wednesday night during a meeting with Seminole County area state lawmakers that if some of the recommendations are implemented, crime will increase and law enforcement will erode in the state.

He lauded legislators for taking two giant steps forward to fight crime through the laws calling for more judges, more assistant state attorneys and more law enforcement officers. Polk added that Florida's mandatory penalties on drug trafficking are causing drug dealers to overfly Florida in favor of Georgia and South Carolina.

"They know if they are caught here they will get stiff sentences," Polk said.

If the task force recommendations are implemented, he said, the state will be spending money building new county jails rather than building roads and supporting education and law enforcement.

He criticized the following recommendations of the task force:

—Two separate items which, in effect, would grant prisoners as much as 20 days out of each 30-day sentence for gain time. Polk said gain time is time allowed off a sentence "for being good."

"It used to be that people went to jail to be punished," the sheriff said, adding that today prisoners are fed better in his jail than many in private homes in the county.

"They want to go back and let this gain time apply to ones already in prison and set criminals free on the streets before they are rehabilitated," he said.

—Change requirements so that when judges withhold adjudication (allow a defendant's record to be wiped clean if he fulfills all requirements of a sentence) the defendant, no matter what the crime is, will serve in a county jail for the time allotted rather than in a state prison.

—Another change would require that if a defendant is sentenced to less than a year in prison, no matter what the crime, he will serve that time in the county jail. Currently only those persons convicted of a crime for which the law calls for less than one year's imprisonment are housed at the county jail.

—Allow convicts who are sentenced to 25 years in prison for a capital felony to get five years in gain time and thus be free in 20 years. Also it would permit those felons parole in 12½ years. Polk said the parole hearings would be held in the county where the felon was convicted and if the victim of the crime had died or moved away, there would be no one to protest and the chances are the felon would go free. "That's bad," he said. The sheriff noted that the recommendations include funding next year for two new probation and parole commissioners even though the law creating the commission is set to expire in 1987.

Polk urged the legislators to require that judges who have retired voluntarily or have been defeated at the polls stay retired. "If I was defeated at the polls I couldn't come back," he said.

The sheriff pointed to a recent "hideous crime" in Orange County which was too hot for the judges there to handle. He said the judges called in a retired judge from elsewhere and the defendant was sentenced to only five years. He said the retired judge could do this because he isn't accountable to the electorate.

"Two steps forward and now two steps backward," Polk repeated. He said it's a fact that 85 percent of the last 100 persons sent to prison from Seminole County are repeat offenders.

He said the recommendations of the task force include placing the probation and parole commission in authority to make release decisions on prisoners and reducing the number of prisoners per 100,000 population who are kept in the state prison system from the current 275 to 150 in 10 years. "They are going to let criminals free on the streets because of overcrowded conditions in state prisons," he said.

Polk urged the legislators "to kill" some of his bad legislation when it comes before them.

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, chairman of the meeting, said the public is sensitive to the prison time which will be served by those who commit capital offenses. He said a juror who served in a trial of a person accused of kidnapping and then raping and burying a 2-year-old girl alive asked the judge during their deliberations how much time the man would spend in prison for the crime. Brantley said the judge told them 25 years and the jury after further deliberations returned the death penalty.

Polk said he will meet with Attorney Jim Smith, a member of the special task force, on Monday and will try to persuade him to oppose the task force's recommendations. —Donna Estes.

Everybody's Irish One Day A Year

St. Patrick's Day parade routes were outlined in green today, replete with shamrocks and — in the case of New York City's parade — the battle lines drawn as Americans of Irish ancestry celebrate their heritage.

New York's 221st St. Patrick's Day parade has forced church and state officials to take sides in a dispute over the pro-IRA stance of the grand marshal — Michael Flannery, who said he was enjoying the uproar "enormously." About 2 million spectators and 100,000 marchers were expected.

Flannery, 81, was recently acquitted of gun-running charges and said the march would be a demonstration of support for the Irish Republican Army.

At least 16 Catholic schools withdrew from the parade along with Sens. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and former New York Gov. Hugh Carey.

Sanford's Irish (and once-a-year Irish) enjoyed St. Pat's Day today with a downtown parade in Sanford at 4 p. m., which followed a festive community party at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Building parking lot.

In Dublin, Irish officials planned to glorify the country's patron saint and the nation's industrial growth. All the major political parties refused comment on the New York controversy but one government source said, "It's proper that the government should not be represented. We are interested in peace, not violence, in Northern Ireland."

More than 10,000 people were to join Cleveland's 116th St. Patrick's Day parade.

NATION IN BRIEF

Withholding Tax Stalls Social Security Bailout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate must plow through dozens of amendments before it can pass a $165 billion Social Security rescue bill and could be stalled by a controversial move to repeal the new withholding tax.

Debate resumes today on the package that would accelerate payroll tax increases this decade, postpone this year's July cost-of-living increase until January and tax benefits of better-off pensioners for the first time.

The plan also requires new federal workers to join the retirement system beginning next January.

Some of the more controversial amendments would boost the normal retirement age to 68, delay the inclusion of federal workers in the Social Security retirement system until a supplemental retirement fund is established for the new workers and increase benefit protection for older workers with major health problems.

Senators thought they had temporarily put aside a controversial amendment to repeal tax withholding on interest and dividends Wednesday, when they postponed action on the jobs bill to which the amendment was attached.

But a spokesman for Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., suggested he may try to attach the controversial amendment to the Social Security measure.

Freeze Vote Put Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Exhausted by 13 hours of debate and with the clock ticking toward midnight, the House dropped work on a resolution calling for a freeze on nuclear weapons after two attempts to shut off discussion failed.

The resolution, which calls for "a mutual and verifiable freeze on and reductions in nuclear weapons," is strongly opposed by the administration.

Proponents consider the resolution non-binding and argued "it only expresses the will of Congress."

Opponents, often pointing to large, colorful charts supplied by the Pentagon comparing the U.S. and Soviet arsenals, contended it would lock the United States into a military position inferior to the Soviets and tie the hands of President Reagan's arms control negotiators.

Storms stung the Texas Panhandle and dumped 8 inches of snow on Nebraska. Mudslides and highways torn apart by continuous winter storms were barely cleared Wednesday before another Pacific storm, backed by 60 mph winds, slammed into the Northern California coast. A series of winter storms has already left at least 21 people dead since Jan. 1 and caused an estimated $524 million in property and crop damage in California. Cold rain and snow prevailed from the Texas Panhandle to the Great Lakes states and Northern Plains. Two inches of snow iced Minneapolis streets and freezing rain fell across southern Minnesota. Heavy snow blown by gusty winds buffeted southwest Nebraska making driving hazardous. Snow was still falling this morning as Benkelman and Trenton reported 8 inches, McCook 6 and Hayes Center 5. Other areas reported 2 to 4 inches of snow. Storm totals in northwest Kansas ranged up to 7 inches at Goodland with 5 inches at Selden and Oberlin. Thunderstorms plagued southern Florida — pouring more than 1 inch of rain on Key West — and extended north over the southern coast of South Carolina and west across eastern Arkansas, Louisiana, and southeast Texas. Bad Economic Sign

Jobless Benefits Claims Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New claims for unemployment benefits rose to 501,000 during the first week in March, erasing an apparent healthy economic sign from the previous week, the Labor Department reported today.

The over-the-week jump of 41,000 in new claimants for regular state benefits nearly matched the 42,000 decline experienced a week earlier when claims for jobless benefits were slowed because of the Presidents Day holiday.

Today's report by the department's Employment and Training Administration also reflected a sizeable jump in the number of persons receiving benefits after their claims were approved.

Data for the earlier week ended Feb. 26, adjusted for seasonal factors, showed 3,998,000 benefit recipients under state programs, an increase of 282,000 from the previous week. Seasonally adjusted figures for new claims for the week ended March 5 showed 501,000 claimants, compared to 460,000 the previous week, but nearly identical to the 502,000 for the week ended Feb. 19.

Unadjusted data for all benefit programs, including extended benefits and the administration's special supplemental benefit program, showed 6,435,400 recipients in the week.

Last week's report on new claims, which contained data for the holiday week, was the lowest total in nearly a year and one-half.

February's overall unemployment rate was 10.4 percent.

West Virginia also had the highest unemployment rate among those individuals covered by unemployment insurance, 10.9 percent, compared to the national unadjusted insured jobless rate of 5.6 percent.

Following West Virginia were Alaska, 9.5 percent; Idaho, 8.5 percent; Pennsylvania, 8.4 percent; Oregon, 8 percent; Wisconsin, 7.7 percent; Washington, 7.4 percent; Michigan, 7.3 percent; Mississippi, 7.2 percent, and Arkansas, Illinois, and Montana, all 7 percent.

The report followed by a day, an announcement of approval by Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan of final regulations for implementing the administration's $2.6 billion effort to train 1 million jobless workers.

"Governors and local elected officials now have the tools in hand to work in partnership with the private sector to provide a million training opportunities in fiscal year 1964," he said.

The regulations detail the specific roles of the federal, state and local governments and private industry councils.

Suspect In Killing Of 5-Year-Old Girl Reportedly Abused Ex-Wife's Child

By Victor Assersohn
Herald Staff Writer

Suspected child killer Donald Glenn McDougall, 26, who is accused of beating and torturing his girlfriend's 5-year-old daughter, Ursula, to death and tossing her body in an Altamonte Springs pond last fall, reportedly also abused his ex-wife's daughter.

The new accusations are contained in court records prosecutors are using to fight a request to reduce McDougall's $100,000 bond.

McDougall and Susan Barrett Assald, 29, are charged with first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse in connection with the death of Ursula Assald. The pair's trial is scheduled for April.

The allegation that McDougall beat his ex-wife's daughter and that he allegedly confessed to the killing of Ursula Assald are contained in sworn statements in his court file.

McDougall and Ms. Assald have been held in the Seminole County jail since they were both indicted by a grand jury in connection with the September 25 death of the Assald child. Both formerly lived in Altamonte Springs.

The statement of McDougall's ex-wife, Lyn, says that between January 1980 and March 1981, McDougall forced her four-year-old daughter Kimberly Lynn Reece to stand for hours without food or water after she had been beaten, kicked and thrown across a room.

A second statement from an inmate at the Seminole County jail alleges that McDougall confessed to killing Ursula.

Ursula's body was pulled from an Altamonte Springs pond last December after Ms. Assald had told detectives in Riverside, Calif. that her daughter had died September 25 after physical abuse.

Ms. Assald said she and McDougall, who have been living together since 1981, left Seminole County for California to look for work after Ursula's body was dumped in the pond.

Two medical examiners testified Wednesday that Ursula's body was so badly decomposed after having been at the bottom of the pond for so long that no cause of death could be established.

Drs. G.V. Garay and Thomas Hegert, medical examiners for Seminole and Orange counties respectively, said all there was left to examine was some decayed tissue from some of the girl's organs and some skin attached to the skeleton.

Fans Remember The 'Old Redhead'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Entertainer Arthur Godfrey, who charmed millions via television and radio with his homespun charm and unpredictable manner, has died of emphysema and pneumonia. He was 79.

Arthur Godfrey
In 1949

Friends and fans, including President Reagan, mourned the entertainer Wednesday.

"In a long career, he not only won national popularity but triumphed over illness and physical disability in a way that was an inspiration to his fans," Reagan said.

Pat Boone, who got his break on a Godfrey show, said: "America has lost its real life Huckleberry Finn, a freckle-faced, red-haired mischief maker who cared very deeply about people and our world."

Godfrey died at 1:57 p.m. Wednesday at Mount Sinai Hospital in Manhattan, a spokesman for the entertainer said. He had been hospitalized since March 3.

Godfrey, affectionately called "Old Redhead" because of his unruly red hair, was the most popular broadcast entertainer at his peak in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

He was so popular in 1960 that a national poll found Godfrey was more familiar than John F. Kennedy, who was elected president that year.

Godfrey began his career in the 1920s but got his break in 1941 when CBS gave him a half-hour radio show.

In 1945, he captured the national imagination covering the funeral procession of President Franklin Roosevelt. A grief-stricken Godfrey burst into on-the-air tears as Harry Truman neared, then blurted, "God bless President Truman."

By 1948, the radio program "Arthur Godfrey and His Friends" was the nation's top show and eventually went on television.

"Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts," the entertainer's first television show, premiered that year and featured an "applause meter," which measured audience reaction to new talents he introduced on the show.

He was known for poking fun at commercials, often making irreverent wisecracks as he read the advertisements.

Godfrey once had his flying license suspended for buzzing an airport control tower and incurred the wrath of Herman Talmadge — then the governor of Georgia — for allowing black and white performers to appear together.

His most talked-about move probably was the on-the-air firing of singer Julius LaRosa, who Godfrey said had not been faithful to the "family" because he was developing outside interests.

"Now I am no longer free to criticize him, because he is no longer free to answer me," LaRosa said. James Arnold, of Sacramento, Calif., leader of the Four Lads, a singing group that backed Godfrey, said, "Those springing to go into radio and TV should watch old Arthur Godfrey tapes because he was such a master at his craft."

Born Aug. 31, 1903 in New York City, Godfrey was raised in Hasbrouck Heights, N.J. His father was a newspaper man but family setbacks forced him out on his own at 15. He worked as office boy, coal miner, farmhand, bus boy, short-order cook, tire finisher and cemetery lot salesman.

Technicality Could Gut Drug Trafficking Statute

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Top legislative officials say chaos will result if the state's higher courts uphold a series of circuit court decisions in which drug trafficking charges have been dismissed on procedural grounds.

The most recent case was decided in Orange County Tuesday when a circuit court judge dismissed charges against a Miami man on the grounds that the House had failed to read the drug trafficking bill's title three times before it was passed in 1980.

Similar cases arising in Seminole and St. Lucie counties have already been appealed and prosecutors in the Orange County case said they plan to appeal that ruling as well.

The circuit court rulings apply only in the circuits in which they were made, but legislative officials say that if the higher courts uphold those decisions, Florida Statutes will be rendered meaningless.

Tutors Sub For Jocks

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Tutors hired by Florida State University attended class for some athletes, says a committee investigating charges that an FSU history professor gave test answers to student athletes.

But the coordinator of the Florida State athletic department's tutoring program says the committee is wrong if it is suggesting that tutors were paid to attend class for athletes or that the practice was common.

The Tallahassee Democrat Wednesday published the contents of a secret report by a special faculty committee that alleges that graduate students hired by the athletic department as tutors sat in on classes, then typed up notes to be distributed to student athletes enrolled in those courses.

The report says 13 FSU athletes received A's in individualized study courses in Russian history under Dr. Fred Wynot from 1980 to last year. But Wynot has no records showing that the students turned in work to support the grades, the document said.

It also says Wynot went to a geology professor in the fall of 1980 and asked that Rodney Arnold, then a member of the FSU basketball team, be given a passing grade in a course even though Arnold had rarely attended class and had made failing grades.

The geology professor refused, the report states.

Italian Soldier Wounded In Machine Gun Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Unidentified gunmen slightly wounded an Italian soldier today in the third straight day of attacks against members of the multinational peace-keeping force in Lebanon, Italian military sources said.

The attack against the Italians — less than 24 hours after five U.S. Marines were wounded in a hand-grenade assault — heightened fears of an all-out campaign against the peace-keeping force, Lebanese security sources said.

Italian military sources said members of the 1,500-strong Italian contingent came under four machine gun attacks early today during a span of 34 minutes.

On Tuesday, seven members of the Italian contingent were wounded in an ambush near the Beirut International Airport on the southern edge of the capital.

U.S. 'Mata Hari' Arrested

BERN, Switzerland (UPI) — An American barmaid called "The Mata Hari of Bern" was arrested on charges of spying for the Libyan government of Col. Moammar Khadafy, Swiss authorities said today.

Justice Ministry spokesmen said U.S. citizen Alexandria Lincoln, 30, will be tried soon for allegedly passing sensitive political information to Mohammed Abdel Malek, charge d'affaires at the Libyan Embassy in Bern. Malek already has left Switzerland, the Foreign Ministry said.

Apart from confirming Ma. Lincoln's arrest and forthcoming trial, Swiss government officials declined further details on her case. Her hometown in the United States was not immediately known.

Quick! How Much More Aid Is Proposed For El Salvador?

By Jim Anderson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A little multiple choice test on U.S. aid for El Salvador:

How much extra aid is the Reagan administration proposing? (a) $298 million, (b) $177 million, or (c) $110 million?

Answer: All three figures are correct.

All three numbers were used by various newspaper headlines (for example, The New York Times, The Boston Globe and the Washington Post) in reporting President Reagan's speech on the issue last Thursday.

Confusion about the aid to be sent to El Salvador is now near total. It was compounded last week when members of Congress emerged from a White House meeting and reported four different Salvadoran aid figures, ranging from $60 million to $140 million for the emergency military aid package.

In the final version, $298 million is right if you include all the new aid money — economic and military — to be sent to Central America, with the largest chunk going to El Salvador.

If you include both the $67 million economic and $110 million military aid for El Salvador alone, $177 million is right. If you include some Salvadoran training facilities in other countries, $130 million is also correct.

The bewildering array of figures illustrates vividly the criticisms of the U.S. aid program. Some of the critics, such as the General Accounting Office, are within the government.

The general complaints are that the assistance program is so large, confusing and arbitrarily split into various accounts that nobody — an overloaded member of a congressional oversight committee, for instance, or a reporter trying to explain it — can make any sense out of it.

There is, for example, a category of aid known as Economic Support Fund, sort of the chameleon of foreign aid.

Democrats Blast Mayor Jane Byrne's Write-In Campaign

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Jane Byrne's announcement that she will run as a write-in candidate in the April 12 general election, in a last-ditch attempt to remain in office, brought criticism from Democrats nationwide.

Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Gary Hart, D-Colo., a candidate for president, and Democratic National Committee Chairman Charles Manatt all rushed Wednesday to give their support to Rep. Harold Washington, the Democratic nominee.

Washington swept the black vote to defeat Mrs. Byrne and Cook County State's Attorney Richard Daley in the Feb. 22 Democratic primary. After her defeat, the mayor initially endorsed Washington.

Mrs. Byrne said she decided to press ahead with a write-in campaign because neither Washington nor Bernard Epton, the Republican nominee, outlined any programs to keep the city solvent or to ensure its future.

"I've been advised it's a great political risk," she declared of her decision to run as a write-in candidate. "I'm willing to take that risk, even if it means the end of public life and public office."

Mrs. Byrne said neither Epton nor Washington "represents the best interests of all Chicago, the best interests for our future and the future of our children."

Her candidacy is expected to appeal to Democrats who will not support a black candidate but who are unwilling to endorse a Republican.

Washington said Mrs. Byrne's decision gives him a greater chance for victory.

Epton admitted Mayor Byrne's candidacy will harm his campaign.

"It won't help it," he said. "But it's a free country, she can file. It'll be very difficult."

Dellums Says He'll Fight Drug Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., has hired an attorney to fight allegations that he and his staff used or sold cocaine and marijuana.

Dellums appeared in front of his office Wednesday to introduce reporters to attorney Michael Tigar of Washington, who answered most of the questions during a five-minute news conference.

Tigar said he is meeting today with Ethics Committee counsel Joseph Callano and with Lowell Jensen of the Justice Department.

Dellums said, "I am aware of the vague allegations that are directed at us and I flatly deny them."

Dellums said that he wanted to be able to concentrate on "one of the most significant and important debates of our time — to freeze the escalation of nuclear weapons," then left to return to the freeze debate under way in the House.

One reporter told Tigar that Robert Yesh, a former House doorkeeper, alleged that on two or three occasions he sold cocaine directly to Dellums.

The recent battle over Berlin, the largest city the Salvadoran rebels have controlled, has focused attention on the spread of guerrilla strength into the central part of the country from their previous stronghold in the northern provinces. Although the government subsequently retook the city, the fighting added new immediacy to the debate in Washington over more U.S. aid for the Salvadoran administration.

EPA's Hernandez Under Investigation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Less than a week after becoming acting EPA administrator, John Hernandez is the target of at least two congressional investigations and one internal agency review.

Allegations that Hernandez helped change a sensitive report on dioxin contamination have prompted reviews by a House Public Works subcommittee, a House Science and Technology subcommittee, and the Environmental Protection Agency's own inspector general.

Hernandez, who became acting administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency when Anne Burford resigned last week, was to face more congressional questioning today.

He emphatically denied Wednesday that he gave any order to change an EPA report that had blamed Dow Chemical Co. for dioxin contamination of Michigan rivers. But he acknowledged making errors in judgment on the case.

EPA Inspector General Charles Dempsey told United Press International his internal investigators will try to determine the motivation for Hernandez' actions.

Agency sources said the investigators began interviewing EPA scientists Tuesday to trace Hernandez' role in the handling of the study, submitted by officials in EPA's Chicago regional office in May 1981.

An often-tense give-and-take between Hernandez and the public works subcommittee went on for five hours Wednesday, as more than a dozen EPA officials looked on in the huge hearing room.

Hernandez admitted he gave

Dow officials a copy of the study. He did so, he said, because he believed the report "didn't back up the conclusion that Dow was the source."

But after receiving Dow's comments, EPA officials removed a statement that "Dow's discharge represented the major source, if not the only source" of dioxin in the rivers. They also deleted statements linking dioxin to cancer and birth defects.

"I have no idea what was deleted. I did not request anybody to delete anything," said Hernandez.

Asked if his action was "bad judgment," Hernandez said, "No."

Asked if he made "errors in judgment," he said, "Yes."

"Decision makers have to make decisions every day and I'm going on making them."

Marxist Puppet If Too Many Strings

While this isn't a year for blank-check writing, Congress would be wise not to attach too many strings to the new military aid President Reagan plans to ask for El Salvador.

The president is expected to decide shortly in what form he will formally request an estimated $60 million increase in Salvadoran aid, bringing the total package to approximately $110 million.

He has already vowed that the guerrilla conflict won't be "Americanized" in terms of a Vietnam-style combat troop buildup. But clearly, the aid package will require either increasing the 55 military advisers now in El Salvador or a more costly training of Salvadoran army troops on U.S. soil.

Some congressmen, meanwhile, are insisting on such trade-offs as more money in return for demanding that the U.S.-supported government of Alvaro Magana engage in a negotiated settlement with the leftist guerrillas. Another possibility is that any military aid be matched by economic and humanitarian assistance.

Both Sen. Charles Percy, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and House Majority Leader James Wright have indicated that the president probably will get the funds; the major stumbling block is how many more congressional conditions to attach to those already placed on El Salvador aid.

An issue as critical as the extent of U.S. involvement in a strategic nation threatened by a communist-supported insurgency should have consensus support from the president and Congress.

President Reagan could take the money from contingency funds. Yet, so far he is correctly seeking a congressional appropriation, and negotiating with congressional leaders from both parties.

On one point we hope the president will be insistent. That is to vigorously oppose any provision calling for a negotiated settlement automatically giving the guerrilla forces a share of power in El Salvador. The president has said he opposes any negotiations that "short-circuit the democratic process and carve up power behind the people's back." Such a restriction would only undercut a democratically elected government and probably lead to its overthrow by either a dictatorship of the left or the right.

There is a difference between handing over power to leftist guerrillas and encouraging them to take part in the democratic process. The Reagan administration has welcomed President Magana's commitment to free and open elections in early 1984. Chances for the full participation by all Salvadorans are enhanced if rebel backers have assurances against rightist-inspired violence.

President Reagan's support for a small Central American nation under attack from Cuban and Nicaraguan-supported forces has prompted some unfortunate comparisons to Vietnam by college professors and students around the country looking for an excuse to protest.

When the United States sends thousands of troops overseas to protect its allies against possible Soviet aggression, it is absurd to complain about a handful of military advisers desperately needed to keep a neighboring country free.

BERRY'S WORLD

"The Department of the Interior wants to know how soon it can lease or sell Times Beach."

By Michael Beha

Sophomores at Seminole Community College and the University of Central Florida will be among the 23,000 public community college and university students who will take Florida's College-Level Academic Skills Test Saturday.

The test covers the reading writing and mathematics skills expected for students completing their second year of college and is only used for counseling purposes. But beginning Aug. 1, 1984, passing the test will be mandatory for all students receiving an associate of arts degree or entering into the final two years of a four-year program.

About 15,000 students took the test when it was administered earlier this year.

The test is designed to upgrade performance standards at the college level and to establish a base of information about the state's college students.

A nine-program series on the state Legislature for high school social studies students will be telecast on the state's public television stations.

The 30-minute weekly program will discuss controversial subjects such as the state report recommending higher graduation requirements for high school students and raising the drinking age to 21.

The programs will begin on April 7 and the state Department of Education is urging school districts to videotape the programs for use in classes. A study guide to the series, "The Sunshine System—The 1983 Florida Legislature" is being distributed to social studies coordinators throughout the state.

While Seminole County school administrators are negotiating with employee unions to institute a four-day summer work week, Volusia County has already approved the measure.

Under the plan, summer school for Volusia students will begin June 20 and end July 27. For elementary students classes will run from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. with teachers to be at school 30 minutes before classes and 45 minutes after class. Secondary students will attend class from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. with teachers scheduled to be at school from 7:15 a.m. to 1:30 p.m..

Volusia school administrators are also considering a four-day work week at the district office.

Kill The Lights For Protesting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Don't be misled by narrow interpretations of a federal appeals court decision giving demonstrators the right to sleep in tents they have permits to erect on National Park Service property.

A major constitutional issue was at stake in this case. Make no mistake about that. Military snoozers the country over may sleep better at night because of the outcome.

The ruling implies that sleeping may be a form of protest that is protected by the First Amendment.

That is exactly the point sleeping activists have been trying to make for years.

It is evident that grabbing a little shut-eye may be a way of expressing yourself and therefore is covered by the first speech guarantee. Anytime you see demonstrators sawing logs you can be pretty sure they are trying to get a message across.

The message may be only a tact plea for quiet in the vicinity. But they are nonetheless exercising their constitutional right of free speech — particularly when snoring.

I myself happen to be a fairly eloquent sleeper. And while I seldom demonstrate against anything, I agree that keeping me from the arms of Morpheus denies me a means of self-expression.

Does not the late Martin Luther King's "I have a dream" speech still live in memory? And is not dreaming a natural part of slumber?

Of course it is. You don't have to be a federal judge to understand how sleeping and demonstrating complement each other.

Some Constitution experts try to argue that a demonstrator must be talking in his sleep before he is protected by the free speech amendment. That interpretation patently is too strict. The very act of falling asleep can itself speak volumes.

Suppose a potential campaign contributor dozes off while a senator is announcing his candidacy for president.

The message thus imparted is, I submit, more meaningful than any comment he might make to political reporters.

Or what about a drama critic who begins nodding during the second act of a Broadway opening?

His droopy eyelids surely tell us more about his opinion of the play than any review he might write.

Sleep is indeed a pithy form of expression. Or can be when performed by a subtle snoozer.

Is the demonstrator sleeping prone, supine or on his side? Is he stretched out or curled up in a fetal position? Does he breathe through his mouth or nose?

Each of these variations gives a different shade of meaning to the message he is striving to convey about the cause for which he is sleeping.

Since very few park service rangers are trained to distinguish between sleep undertaken for communication and that which merely knits the ravelled sleeve of care, it is well to give all slumber the benefit of the doubt.

Ex-Presidents 'Helped' By Taxpayers

WASHINGTON — Much has been written about the "imperial presidency" — the sometimes-royal splendor in which our chief executives, their families and their huge staffs are pampered at the taxpayers' expense.

But few Americans realize the staggering costs of what might be called the "imperial ex-presidency" — the pensions, expenses, Secret Service protection and office-library upkeep for our former presidents. The situation becomes absurd when you realize that the three current living ex-presidents are all either millionaires or close to it, thanks largely to the opportunities that arose directly from their years in the White House.

The estimated cost of the imperial ex-presidency this year alone is $27 million. Three years ago, the bill was $18 million. And in 1955, when the single ex-president was Harry S. Truman, a man of devoutly democratic tastes, the cost was only $64,000.

In a perverse sort of way, it was the spectacle of Truman, carrying his own luggage into his home in Independence, Mo., and answering his own correspondence after he left office, that inspired Congress to provide staff and stationery expenses for former presidents.

Since that well-intended decision to help a man of modest means cope with the burdens of former high office, the legislated expense accounts for former presidents have ballooned.

Ironically, the growth of ex-presidents' expenses came at a time when any former president — even one who was forced out of office in disgrace — was guaranteed at least a comfortable income from books, lecture fees, directorships and other securities available precisely because he had once held the highest office in the land.

No one wants to see our ex-presidents face financial hardship — like Thomas Jefferson or U.S. Grant, for example — but former presidents have been soaking the taxpayers for staff and expenses used for political purposes and to generate income. A former president's staff allowance now starts at $150,000 a year and decreases to an eventual $95,000.

Oddly enough, it is the ex-president who has been out of office the longest — Richard Nixon — whose staff charges the taxpayers most in one area: travel expenses. Travel vouchers obtained by my associate Vicki Warren show that Nixon's staff ran up travel bills of more than $20,000 last year.

EDUCATION WORLD

Sitcoms For Teaching

By Kenneth R. Clark
UPI Education Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Professor Fonzie? The Dukes of Academe? How about "Eight is Enough" plus "Three's Company" equals...?"

Why not? Folk wisdom says, "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em," and Nicholas Van Dyke, who worries a lot about the education of the young, says that applies to nothing so much as the makers of television.

Since they are not likely to change their prime time ratings-rich menu, and since youngsters are not likely to stop watching "Happy Days" and "Dukes of Hazzard," he said it is up to teachers to mine what the networks do produce for instructional opportunities.

"We're talking not about educational television, but about the kind that the kids are watching by the millions which is called entertainment but in fact is educational," he said.

"In a discussion of sentence construction, if the teacher says, 'How did so-and-so say it on television last night,' you immediately have every hand in the class shooting up because it's the common experience they all have.

"Then the teacher goes on from there and it gets much more sophisticated. The teacher might ask the kids to write another ending to the episode of 'Happy Days'... The main objective is to get at basic curricula areas."

Van Dyke, president of the National Council for Children and Television which he helped found six years ago, was not offering an unsubstantiated opinion.

His group has studied the correlation between education and television extensively and its findings are being spotlighted this week by a Congressionally mandated "National Children and Television Week."

Van Dyke said his group's central mission is to convince teachers that the all-pervasive video medium need not be the archfoe of knowledge, but he admitted it is no easy task.

He said the council set out in 1977 to "take care of the needs of children via a television ... plus the legitimate needs of the industry."

"The problem up until that point was that every time you mentioned the words 'children' and 'television' together it immediately got into a donnybrook," he said.

"The child advocacy people had been throwing bricks at the industry without ever stopping to listen to what was going on on the inside, and the TV people were understandably defensive."

He said the council, comprised of about 40 men and women from all areas of child advocacy and the industry, spent four years meeting once every three months away from the spotlight of publicity.

"We were trying to figure out ways we could constructively better address the needs of children regarding television and do it in a way that worked within the system," he said.

Out of those meetings came a series of seminars and workshops in which teachers were taught to utilize, rather than fight against, "the fascination and preoccupation that kids have with TV."

"The teachers... either can say, 'It's a competitor of my concerns as a teacher and I will ignore it or criticize it,' or they can say, 'Okay, maybe there's a resource here to be used — that we can take a cue from Socrates or John Dooley who said, 'If you're going to be a good teacher, pay attention to what's in the hearts and minds of your students and capitalize on their interests and experiences.'"

"We're interested in feasible ways the TV plays a role in the lives of kids. The council is a very pragmatic organization because its members are very pragmatic people."

VIEWPOINT

Lamar's Law Of Politics

By Dan Batey

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — In the physics books they call it Newton's Third Law of Motion and it goes like this: for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction.

Another observant guy is Lamar Alexander, the young and ambitious Republican governor of Tennessee.

Alexander has observed the clapboard store, baloney-and-cracker traditional ways of Tennesseans. At the same time he has peered into the future, where he sees a George Jetson world full of satellites and video display terminals.

He has taken those two observations and developed what we can call Lamar's Law of Politics: for every political or social trend there is an equal and opposite trend.

An example of Alexander's thinking came as he stood stage right at the Grand Ole Opry House during the launching of the Nashville Network.

Out front was Ray Stevens, singing a song that described Tennessee as paradise. Alexander watched a television monitor and smiled broadly at the thought of traditional entertainment being beamed by satellite to up to 20 million American cable viewers.

"There is not a better example of the old and the new," Alexander said. "Something as old as the Opry being carried on something as new as satellite technology."

The governor said it plainly in his second inaugural address. He outlined an ambitious program to give Tennesseans newfangled skills such as computer programming so they can compete for better jobs.

Another example of Lamar's Law is evident in his prison reform proposals.

While Alexander has spent years promoting the idea of economic strength through better education and job skills training, the idea just doesn't seem to apply to prison inmates.

Job skills training, while not necessarily a new idea, is at least considered progressive. The governor has been accused of advocating a return to slavery, however, in his prison labor attitudes.

In promoting "stoop labor" for inmates, Alexander is satisfying a regressive urge. He knows that churches from Mountain City to Memphis preach giving transgressors unshirled hell, not job skills.

Corollary to Lamar's Law: something progressive, something regressive.

Alexander realizes to get where he is going in politics he has to keep a maximum number of people going along with him.

And he realizes to get them to go with him he has to have something for everyone. Computer training for those who want to challenge the future, picket fences for those who want to stay home and have dinner on the grounds, job skills for the progressives, hellfire for the regressives.

Sir Isaac Newton went to the front of the physics class with his laws of gravity and motion, and Alexander is banking on Lamar's Law to put him at the head of the political class.

Yet Moynihan, as vice chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, has inside information on the IRA and its links to some of the worst international terrorists: Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi, the Italian Red Brigades, West Germany's Baader-Meinhof gang and extremist elements of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Unpublished studies done for the senator document the IRA's ties to terrorists. One such study notes, for example, that "the IRA has received increased financing and arms, including M-16 rifles, through their associations with other guerrilla groups" such as the Red Brigades, Baader-Meinhof and the PLO. The IRA has also received arms from Czechoslovakia.

But probably the IRA's staunchest support comes from Irish-Americans like Flannery. In fact, when the 81-year-old president of the Irish Northern Aid Committee was tried last year on charges of stockpiling machineguns for the IRA, he admitted it in court. But he won acquittal by persuading the jury he had been under the impression he was working with the CIA.

Even Moynihan's glib tongue is no match for blarney like that.

Veterans To Be Honored

Lt. Col. Tomas Carrillo, U.S. Army (ret.), commander of the Central Florida Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars, has announced the 20th annual Massing of Colors and Service of Remembrance honoring the living and dead of all this country's wars to be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Orlando Naval Training Center.

Many units from veterans, patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations from central Florida will participate in the patriotic presentation on the Recruit Training Command parade field under their own flags and banners. The ceremony blends the color of the various uniforms and the memorial service for those who gave their lives in the service of this country.

The 50-State Flag Team and the Bluejackets Chorus, popular groups from the Recruit Training Command, will take part in the ceremony. The Navy Band of Orlando will play under the direction of Lt. William D. Myers.

Rear Admiral Hartington, commander of the center, will be the main speaker. The Training Center Sailor of the Year will be presented with the Military Order Distinguished Service Award in honor of this achievement.

The viewing area is accessible from General Rees Road off Corrine Drive. Personnel at the entrance gate will direct visitors to parking and seating areas.

Soviet Ships Recover Mystery Object From Sea

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — The Australian Defense Department said today the Soviet device plucked from the Indian Ocean by a fleet of Soviet ships was not a ground- or sea-launched missile, but refused to identify it.

One veteran American space-watcher said the recovered object was a satellite that could be a new weapons system for attacking U.S. aircraft carriers.

An Australian Defense Department spokesman said the device landed in the Indian Ocean Wednesday, about 300 miles south of the Australian-administered Coco Islands.

Seven Soviet vessels including a missile-firing cruiser and a heavily armed destroyer had patrolled the splash-down area for a week.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union Wednesday announced the launching of two satellites, Cosmos 1445 and 1446, indicating one of them may have been the object recovered in the Indian Ocean.

Gasohol Spared Tax Hike

The price of gasoline and other motor fuels will go up 11 cents on April 1, except for gasohol.

April 1 is the date when the new federal 5 cent tax and the new 6 cents per gallon levied by the state will be added to fuel taxes.

But the Florida Legislature, apparently in a move to encourage motorists to conserve oil-based fuel, has given gasohol a 100 percent exemption from the 6 cents per gallon sales tax until June 30, 1985.

A 50 percent exemption from the tax will be given from July 1, 1985, to June 30, 1987. Beginning July 1, 1987, motorists will pay the full 5 cent per $1 tax on gasohol purchases the same as those purchasing other forms of motor fuel.

Until June 1, 1985, motorists will pay a 5 percent sales tax based on a per gallon cost of $1.14 on motor fuel, except gasohol, no matter what the price is at the pump.

An All-What Team?

By United Press International
 The University of Virginia's Rick Carlisle has garnered the top award in the Fourth Annual ACC All-Hunk team. The tournament's female assistants select team members on appearance only — no matter how many jump shots or rebounds they make. Carlisle make the list, along with fellow Cavaliers Othell Wilson and Tim Mullen. Two Clemson standouts, Mike Eppley and Murray Jarman, also make the Hunk team, along with Jay Bilas of Duke. U.Va. coach Terry Holland missed out on ACC Hunk Coach of the Year — that honor went to Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins.

Simplifying legalese
 University of Alabama English professor Dr. James C. Raymond has co-authored a book to put legal gobbledeygook into ordinary words anyone can understand. "Dense convoluted legalese is often a maze in which meaning is mangled and logic is lost," says Raymond, who is also assistant dean of the graduate school. He says a simple Bible passage like, "Give us this day our daily bread..." would be changed by lawyers to read: "We respectfully petition, request and entreat that due and adequate provision be made this day and the date hereinafter subscribed..." The book by Raymond and Washington attorney Ronald C. Goldfarb is called "Clear Understandings."

Just plain Mary
 Mary De Young's grandfather was president when she was born in Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington. In 1969, her grandfather Dwight D. Eisenhower died in the room in which she was born. Ms. De Young says she has spent most of her 27 years being "somebody else's somebody" and she enjoys being known just as "Mary" in Columbus, Ga., where she has lived for seven years. "I used to be my grandfather's granddaughter then I was my brother's sister," said Ms. De Young, whose brother David Eisenhower married former President Richard Nixon's daughter Julie. "I was very rebellious because I was always expected to be a certain way," she says, adding her rebelliousness has subsided as her self-confidence has grown.

Hard times at animal shelter
 Ann Fields says pets are the first to go when people lose their jobs. Many of those pets are left at the Fields' Lithonia, Ga., shelter, called Life for God's Stray Animals — putting a strain on the couple who already care for some 1,000 unwanted animals. Mrs. Fields and her husband Jerry take in dogs and cats, nurse the injured and ill ones back to health and give them a home for the rest of their lives. The Fields owe some $12,000 in veterinarian, utility and food bills, but the Fields say they won't give up. "There's no doubt in my mind that I'm sitting right in the center of God's will. He wants me to take care of His animals. It's not easy. But The Good Lord always brings forth an answer somehow," says Mrs. Fields.

Hi-de-ho's
 It was supposed to be one of those formal cultural programs that colleges throw, but veteran jazz hipster Cab Calloway couldn't resist breaking into a few scat-sung "Hi-de-ho's." Calloway, 75, was being lauded for the "Of Minnie the Moocher and Me" exhibit of career memorabilia at Fisk University in Nashville.

Eddie Haskell's back
 Eddie Haskell was Wally's creepy friend on "Leave It To Beaver." You remember him: "Wally, if you're dumb brother tags along. I'm gonna — Oh, good afternoon, Mrs. Cleaver. I was just telling Wallace how pleasant it would be for Theodore to accompany us to the movies." Ken Osmond is back as Eddie on Saturday's two-hour reunion, "Still the Beaver." Beaver is divorced and unemployed and Eddie is a general contractor. "I'd always pictured Eddie as a used car salesman," Osmond told a reporter for the Nashville Tennessean. In real life, Osmond is a motorcycle cop for the Los Angeles Police Department.

Court Orders Crackdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is under court orders to restrict within a year workers' exposure to ethylene oxide, a chemical linked to cancer and chromosome abnormalities.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that OSHA has "unreasonably delayed" reducing levels of the chemicals in the work place.

It ordered the agency to begin drawing up new rules within 30 days to reduce the permissible levels of exposure to ethylene oxide and to have the new rules on the books within a year.

"The record shows a significant risk that some workers, and the children they will hereafter conceive, are subject to grave danger from the employees' exposure to ethylene oxide," the court said Tuesday.

Ethylene oxide is used to sterilize medical equipment and in pesticides, fumigants and industrial chemicals. OSHA rules currently permit workers to be exposed to 50 parts per million of ethylene oxide a day.

One study showed exposure to only 36 parts per million caused significant chromosome changes in workers. Other studies have shown increases in leukemia and stomach cancer in humans exposed to less than 50 parts per million.

A consumer group and four health employee unions have tried since August 1981 to convince OSHA to change its ethylene oxide rules because of the chemical's health effects.

OSHA refused to change its exposure limits for ethylene oxide on an emergency basis, but it announced in September 1981 it would begin the long process of formally changing its rules. However, up to now, rule making has not begun.

A U.S. district judge in January ordered OSHA to immediately reduce its ethylene oxide limits without waiting to formally change its rules. But Tuesday's ruling supersedes those orders and give the agency more time to comply.

More Marriages, Fewer Divorces In 1982

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government statistics show a record number of Americans got married last year and fewer got divorced, but experts say that is not necessarily because people are any happier.

Provisional 1982 data from the National Center for Health Statistics said a record 2.49 million couples were married in 1982. The data showed 1.18 million were divorced, 3 percent less than 1981 and the first drop in two decades.

Marriages were up 2 percent from 1981 and 16 percent from 1975, the year before the latest increase began. The marriage rate — 10.8 per 1,000 population — was up 2 percent from 1981. It was the highest rate since 1973.

The figures from 50 states and the District of Columbia also showed the divorce rate went down nearly 4 percent in 1982, to 5.1 divorces per 1,000 population. The statistics were released Tuesday.

"What we're seeing is that both marriage and divorce rates have stabilized after a period of sharp change in the 1960s and 1970s," Johns Hopkins University sociologist Andrew Cherlin said in an interview.

"The great changes we saw in the 1960s may have worked themselves through society," he said.

Cherlin said the marriage rate dropped in the 1960s because young people were postponing marriage, not rebelling against it. Marriage ages have now stabilized and the rate is back to normal, he said.

Cherlin, like other experts, credits the recession with holding down divorces because couples cannot afford to break up. He said the drop also signals the end of the divorce frenzy of the late 1960s and early 1970s: if the pace had kept up, every marriage eventually would have ended in divorce.

The statistics also showed infant mortality dropped to a record low last year, the overall death rate decreased slightly and births showed a small increase.

Other 1982 statistics:

—The nation's infant mortality rate dropped to 11.2 per 1,000 live births in 1982, down 4 percent from 1981 and a record low. Dr. Edward Brandt, assistant health secretary, told a Senate subcommittee Monday there is no evidence of a reversal of the long-term decline in infant mortality, despite charges by Reagan administration critics of problems caused by budget cuts.

Cochran Throws Perfect Game Lake Brantley Ace Retires 21 Straight Silver Hawks

Just when the Lake Howell Silver Hawks were breaking out of a hitting slump, along comes Lake Brantley's Mark Cochran.

The Patriots' senior right-hander turned the Lake Howell aluminum into metal shavings Wednesday afternoon by hurling a perfect, no-hit, no-run, no-nothing game at the Hawks in Five Star Conference baseball action at Lake Howell.

Teammate John Van Der Weide produced the only run Cochran needed in the sixth inning with a fly ball to center field which scored Scott Anez from third base for the 1-0 victory.

"When Mark is on, he's tough," said Lake Brantley coach Sam Momary. The Patriots improved to 9-4 for the year and 4-4 in the Five Star. Lake Howell, which had won three straight, lost for the 10th time in 15 games. The Hawks are 4-3 in the conference.

Cochran was more than tough Wednesday. He improved his record to 5-1 while retiring all 21 hitters in succession. No ball was hit out of the infield. Seven outs came via ground ball, four were by pop flies and 10 very by strikeouts. Cochran went 3-2 to just three hitters.

"Mark mixed his slider and his curve with his fastball real well," said Momary. "He had complete control. When he gets across all three pitches, most high school kids won't touch him."

What makes Cochran's feat more remarkable is the Silver Hawks have devastated the opposition's pitching the past week. In three victories, Lake Howell has rolled up 36 runs including games of 16 and 12.

The closest thing to a hit Wednesday came in the third inning. David Miller rapped a ground ball up the middle which shortstop Robbins gloved behind the bag at second, whirled and threw Miller out at first.

Robbins also had a hand in the only run to score off hard-luck loser Jimmy Daniels. Scott Anez roped a single to start the sixth inning and Robbins followed with another base hit. Senior Marty Coffey then slapped a ball between short and third which he beat out for a hit to load the bases.

Van Der Weide then drilled a healthy fly ball to center field which chased home Anez with the game's lone tally. The Patriots ran themselves out of further scoring when Robbins and pinch-runner Scott Salmon were both nailed on a double steal. The play went 1-3-5-2-5-2 (Robbins tagged out)-2-5 (Salmon tagged out).

"It was like a Chinese Fire Drill," quipped Momary. "Nobody knew what they were doing."

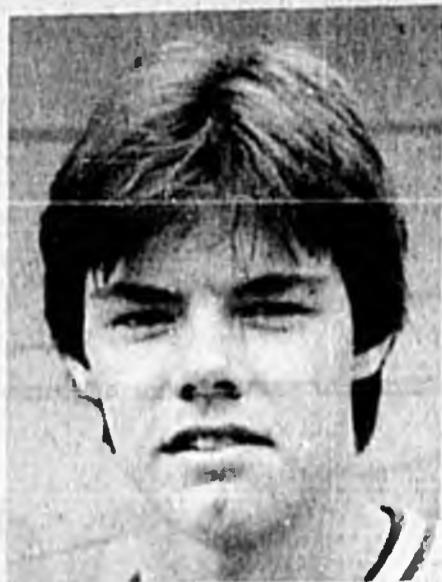

Anez, Robbins, Coffey and Blair

Patten each had two of Brantley's 10 hits. Patten ripped a double in the seventh, but couldn't score.

In the only other baseball game Wednesday, Seminole and Lyman were rained out when the Lyman field was unplayable. The game is rescheduled for tonight at 7:30 at Lyman High School.

Lake Brantley's Mark Cochran realized the dream of every pitcher Wednesday when he pitched a perfect game.

Bell Still Rings For Rangers

POMPANO BEACH (UPI) — Do you believe everything you see and hear? Don't. Your eyes and ears can play tricks on you. The case of Buddy Bell is a good example.

Joe Klein, the general manager of the Texas Rangers, is a man of integrity, one who means what he says, and when he got tired of hearing all the rumors about how Bell was going to be traded earlier this spring, he decided he'd set the record straight once and for all.

"We're not going to trade Buddy Bell period," he declared. He didn't whisper it. He spoke up clearly so that everybody could hear him and know that he meant it. What he said was dutifully reported in many newspapers as well as radio and TV.

As you can see for yourself, Bell is still wearing a Rangers' uniform, but in light of some developments, there is some question whether he still will be when they open their season at home three weeks from now and whether he'll be in the home club dugout or the one for the visitors. He could still be with the Rangers then but will he make it past June 15, the trading deadline? Ah, that is the question.

The White Sox like their ballclub very much. Particularly their pitching. What they're concerned about, though, is third base, where they aren't that strong at all. So what they're in the process of doing is getting up a package that they hope will appeal enough to the Rangers to make them give up Bell. The package includes pitching, which the Rangers sorely need.

Bell is the player the White Sox want most. But if they can't get him, they'll go anywhere they can for an established third baseman. They'd take John Castino but the Twins aren't at all inclined to give him up. They need him too much themselves to play second base for them.

Getting back to Bell, Sparky Anderson, the Tigers' manager, has called him the best player in both leagues. Anderson sometimes is given to hyperbole, but he wouldn't have that much trouble finding support for this one. Don Zimmer calls Bell and Carl Yastrzemski the two best players he ever managed.

Before undergoing arthroscopic surgery on his right knee late last season, Bell played hurt much of the last two years. Even so, he still picked up his fourth straight Gold Glove and made the American League's All-Star team for the fourth time.

His .296 batting average included 67 RBI, 13 homers and 27 doubles and was up two points from the season before. It didn't quite compare with the .329 he hit in 1980 although it still put him among the top 20 hitters in the league.

The four years Bell has been with the Rangers haven't been any more enjoyable than the previous seven he spent with the Indians. Essentially because the Rangers haven't been able to win, but also because they have been beset with so much internal conflict.

Bell felt particularly low this past winter. He kept hearing all kinds of trade rumors involving him and it got to a point where he wasn't sure whether he wanted to stay with the Rangers anymore. That was when he had a talk with their new manager, Doug Rader.

"I thought a trade would be best for me and best for the Rangers," he says taking a quick breather in the dugout. "I felt I had a decision to make and to be honest about it, if Doug Rader hadn't come over here, it would have made my decision much easier. He's probably the only reason I did not ask to be traded. I've known Doug a number of years. He's an intelligent type person and I believe he can do something with this ballclub."

That's very important to Bell. Never having been with a winner, he wants so much to be a part of one. He doesn't blame any of the Rangers' former managers for the club's past failures, but he does have an idea what caused them.

"Pat Corrales and Don Zimmer were excellent managers but the organization didn't give them a lot of room to do what they wanted," he says. "There was a lot of throat cutting inside the organization. It was a bad situation. Nobody knew who the boss was and everybody was trying to be the boss."

Bell doesn't want to resign himself to the possibility of never being with a winner. His father, Gus, who played with the Pirates, Reds, Mets and Braves, participated in the 1961 World Series with Cincinnati.

He believes in what the Rangers are trying to do. Still, if Rader is unable to turn things around, Bell says he won't have any choice but to ask to be traded inside the next year or so.

The White Sox may save him all that trouble long before that.

Seminole Sharon Lawrence strains as she releases the winning throw in the shot put Wednesday. Lawrence also won the discus as the Lady Seminoles topped DeLand, 72-51, in a dual meet.

Lawrence, Caldwell, Jones Lead Seminole Past DeLand

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Sanford's Lady Seminole track team put the muscle and the speed on DeLand Wednesday afternoon to claim at 72-51 dual meet victory at Seminole High School.

While senior Sharon Lawrence muscled her way to twin victories in the shot put and discus, junior Crystal Caldwell and Arlene Jones took care of the rest with two wins each in their specialties. Caldwell took the 220 and 440 dashes while Jones tied a school record in the high jump and won the 110 hurdles.

"Lawrence is improving each time out," said coach Emory Blake about his senior thrower who won the shot with a toss of 35-1 and the discus with a heave of 100-5. "She's a very determined athlete."

Caldwell continued to run away with the longer sprints. She took the 440 in 60 seconds and the 220 in 26.8. "Crystal probably has the most potential of all our girls," said Blake. "By the time she's a senior, she should be college-bound with a good scholarship."

Jones, who also excels in basketball and volleyball, leaped 5-2 to tie Patty Corso's school record. "Arlene was very close to making 5-4 and I'm sure she'll get it before the season is over."

The smooth junior also whipped DeLand's Karen Thomas in the low hurdles, taking that event in 14.9. "Arlene has worked out all week because of a pulled hamstring. I guess she tries harder after she's had a rest," laughed Blake.

As usual, Seminole received strong performances in the relays. Caldwell anchored the team of Jackie Johnson, Katrina Walker and Sharon Jenkins to a 4:16 clocking to win the mile relay. Traci Brown, Charita Medlock, Jackie Fort and Jenkins took the 440 relay in 52.8. Jenkins picked up another first place when she took the 100 dash in 11.2, a Seminole best this year.

On Saturday, Blake's girls will go to the Seabreeze Relays where they have won the past three years. Action begins at 10 a.m.

In other thirldad competition Wednesday, Winter Park took two from Lake

Prep Track

Howell. The girls won, 62-61, while the boys romped, 86-55.

Chul Kim took both hurdles for the boys while Cindy Blocker won the shot and the discus for the girls.

Tangerine Bowl Adopts New Name By 11-1 Vote

LAKELAND (UPI) — The Tangerine Bowl will get a new name — the Florida Citrus Bowl — and a $1 million payoff under a new sponsorship by the Florida Citrus Commission later this year.

The commission accepted a proposal by an 11-1 vote Wednesday for a five-year, $1.25-million commitment that will make the game seventh in the country in money earned by competing teams.

The Tangerine Sports Association, which sponsors the game, also has given its approval and will apply to the National Collegiate Athletic Association for a name change that would be effective for the game next December.

According to Chuck Rohe, executive director of the TSA, each team competing in the bowl will get $500,000, which is $150,000 more than Boston College and Auburn received for playing in last year's game.

"This will make our bowl game a million-dollar bowl game," Rohe said.

Rohe said the expanded payoff will put the new Citrus Bowl as high as seventh nationally in bowl payoffs, behind the Rose, Sugar, Cotton, Orange, Fiesta and Gator bowls.

Maryland Won't Look Past Chattanooga

By United Press International
 The Maryland Terrapins remember the last time they ventured to look ahead.
 Maryland plays Tennessee-Chattanooga tonight in the opening round of the NCAA Midwest Regional at Houston, with the winner facing the No. 1 ranked team in the country — the Houston Cougars.
 "My players aren't looking forward to Houston," said Terrapin coach Lefty Driesell. "If they are they are foolish. They might have been looking forward to playing Virginia in the ACC tournament and we got beat by Georgia Tech in the first round."
 "When you look back on it, that might have been the best thing that could have happened to us. We'll be ready for Chattanooga."
 The Terrapins are one of four Atlantic Coast Conference teams in the NCAA tournament and Driesell said he feels his team is capable of advancing a lot farther into the tourney than some people think.
 "We think we can beat any team in the country right now," said Driesell. "But now we have to prove it."
 Driesell, under fire since a Maryland coed contended he tried to convince her she should drop a sexual harassment complaint against forward Herman Veal, was unwilling to discuss his own controversy leading up to the game.
 "I'm not going to say anything about that (the Veal incident)," Driesell said. "It has had no effect on the team. We don't make excuses when we lose at Maryland. Like I said, I'm too dumb to be affected."

College Basketball

 In the other Midwest Regional game Thursday, Lamar faces Alabama.
 Elsewhere Thursday, West Virginia faces James Madison in the first round of the East Regional at Greensboro, N.C., followed by Virginia Commonwealth, vs. LaSalle; Purdue meets Robert Morris, followed by No. 18 Illinois State, against Ohio U., in the opening round of the Midwest Regional at Tampa, Fla.; and Washington State plays Weber State in the opening round of the Western Regional, followed by Utah vs. Illinois.
Blue Demons Stun Gophers
 The last time DePaul won a first-round game in the National Invitation Tournament, television was the latest rage. Harry S. Truman was president and Ray Meyer was the Blue Demons' coach.
 Thirty-five years have passed, and Meyer has finally seen his long NIT drought come to an end. DePaul got 20 points from Tony Jackson and ran off a 10-0 burst midway through the second half Wednesday night to take a 78-73 first-round NIT victory over visiting Minnesota at Rosemont, Ill.

 The triumph also marked the first time since 1979 that DePaul had won a first-round game in post-season play; the Blue Demons had lost three consecutive NCAA tournament openers.
 "We didn't talk about any of that," Meyer, in his 41st year at DePaul, said of the previous tournament failures. "We got a lot out of our kids. With the crowd behind us, it proves we play well when we receive encouragement."
 Tyrone Corbin added 16 points for the 18-11 Blue Demons. Minnesota closed the season at 18-11.
 The Gophers, who trailed by as many as 16 points, rallied in the closing three minutes but never came closer than 3 points. DePaul led 39-38 at halftime and opened a 56-46 lead in the first five minutes of the second half.
 In other first-round NIT games, Doug Arnold hit a jumper with 5 seconds left to give Texas Christian a 64-62 victory over Tulsa; Jimmy Foster's career-high 31 points gave South Carolina a 100-90 victory over Old Dominion; Iowa defeated St. Bonaventure 90-76 behind Steve Burt's 33 points; Aclé Sanders scored 7 of his 11 points in overtime to lead New Orleans to a 99-94 triumph over Louisiana State, and Charlie Sitton scored 23 points and Steve Woodside and Danny Evans added 18 each to lead Oregon State to a 77-59 victory over Idaho.

South Seminole Bobcats Complete Perfect Season

The Inter-County Basketball Association entered its season-ending playoffs with undefeated leaders in each division. But, when the 20-game tournament ended, only one survived with an unblemished record.

The South Seminole Bobcats defeated the Jackson Heights Pacmen, 63-34. In the 8th grade varsity boys division final to add a 3-0 mark in the playoffs to a 10-0 regular season record. Darryl Relford took charge for South Seminole, scoring 20 of his game-high 29 points in the second half. Oscar Wilde added 17 for South Seminole and Darryn Crist chipped in eight points and grabbed 15 rebounds. Rob Hughes led the Pacmen with 12 points and Randy Ferguson added 11.

In the 6th-7th grade playoffs, Winter Park entered the tourney with a 10-0 regular season record and added two more victories in the playoffs to advance to the finals. Winter Park met the Jackson Heights Bruins (7-3 regular season) in the finals and the Bruins, who had previously lost to Winter Park by the score of 41-19, came up with a 47-41 upset.

Garth Bolton poured in 24 points and Ricky Hampton added 11 for the Bruins while Rodney Taylor and Terrance Gaines had 12 points apiece for Winter Park.

In a third place consolation battle, the South Seminole Tomcats topped the Jackson Heights Bobcats, 38-29. John Flath and J.J. Miller led the Tomcats with 11 points apiece while John Pettit had 14 for the Bobcats.

Michelle Duda led the Terrors with 13 points followed by Adrienne Wood with eight. Rocio Barreto led the Kittens with eight.

Romero's Double Leads Brewers To Win

By United Press International

The Milwaukee Brewers' hitting, a long time strong suit for the team, has not cooled over the winter.

Ed Romero smacked a run-scoring double with one out in the eighth inning Wednesday to break a 7-7 tie and give the Milwaukee Brewers their sixth consecutive exhibition victory, a 9-7 triumph over the California Angels.

Milwaukee, 8-1, took a 7-5 lead on a two-run homer by Ben Oglivie in the fifth, but California rallied with single runs in the seventh and eighth to tie the game.

Romero's double scored Randy Ready, who had reached on an infield hit. The Brewers added an insurance run when Ted Simmons delivered his third single of the day to score Romero.

The teams combined for 33 hits, including 13 for extra bases.

Fred Lynn had a homer and Mike Brown had two triples for California. Milwaukee got a triple from Paul Mollitor, Oglivie's homer and five doubles.

In other exhibition games:

At Pompano Beach, George Wright's two-out, three-run homer capped a five-run ninth inning rally and led the Texas Rangers to a 10-7 Grapefruit League victory over the Houston Astros.

Baseball

At St. Petersburg, Tito Landrum doubled home the lead run and Glenn Brummer singled in an insurance run in the seventh inning to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 9-7 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. St. Louis ace Joaquin Andujar pitched five innings of one-hit ball in a B-game as the Cardinals beat the Reds 1-0. In the A-game, Keith Hernandez had a double and two singles for the Cardinals, scoring two runs and driving in one. David Green, who was batting .421 this spring, had a two-run pinch triple in the third inning.

At Dunedin, back-to-back doubles by Dave Collins and Jesse Barfield in the fifth inning paced the Toronto Blue Jays to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Starter Mike Eichhorn was the winner while newcomer Floyd Bannister took the loss.

At Orlando, Minnesota raked Philadelphia pitchers for 17 hits, including seven extra base hits. In posting an 8-5 triumph over the Phillies, Tom Brunansky singled and hit a two-run homer, Gary Gaetti and Randy Bush hit two doubles each, Jim Eisenreich tripled and Kent Hrbek added a double in Minnesota's biggest hit output of the spring. Bill Robinson and Tony Perez slugged Philadelphia homers.

At Winter Haven, Tom Verzyer cracked his first homer of the spring and then singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning to lead the New York Mets to an 11-6 victory over Boston. With the game tied 4-4, Rusty Tillman led off the eighth with a double off loser Dennis Boyd. Mike Howard beat out a bunt single and Verzyer followed with an RBI single. New York rookie Darryl Strawberry cracked his first homer and Brian Giles added a three-run shot. Tony Armas homered for the Red Sox.

At West Palm Beach, the Pittsburgh Pirates smashed three home runs in the ninth inning for a 4-2 triumph over Atlanta. Dick Davis led off the Pirates' spree with a one-out homer in the ninth to tie the game 2-2. One out later, Dale Berra and Jose Ortiz hit consecutive solo homers. Pittsburgh starter Larry McWilliams suffered an injury to his right forearm in the third inning when he was spiked by Claudell Washington. McWilliams left the game and the injury required 22 stitches, but he is not expected to miss his next turn.

Cash Gifts Get Hearty Endorsement

DEAR ABBY: I've written to you three times in my life - so far - and two of my letters have appeared in your column. Not bad! Here goes again: Re money gifts at weddings: Why not? So many young people live together for a while before they tie the knot and really don't need any more serving pieces, toasters or blenders.

We gave both of our nephews money for wedding gifts. One of them pooled all his cash gifts and used it for something he really needed - a sizable down payment on a car.

I think the "correct" thing to do in every situation is what is sensible and practical for the people involved.

Any gift given with love and consideration for the recipients is "correct" in my book. Who cares what the etiquette books say!

T.J.F. IN AGAWAM, MASS.
DEAR T.J.F.: I agree. But the etiquette books say that cash gifts are "correct." What is incorrect is a wedding invitation accompanied by the suggestion that a gift of cash is preferred. In other words, it's okay to give cash, but it's not okay to ask for it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are having a knock-down, drag-out fight about a point of etiquette.

Here's the situation: My husband and I were dinner guests at the home of a couple in another city. On returning home the following day, we sent the hostess an exceptionally lovely arrangement of flowers to express our appreciation.

It's been two months, and we've heard nothing from the hostess to indicate that our flowers were received. (Never mind a "thank-you.") My husband maintains that our flowers were a "thank-you" for the dinner, and it's not necessary for her to thank us for having thanked her.

I say the hostess should have at least let us know our flowers were received. Who's right?

Dear Abby

WIFE
DEAR WIFE: You are the hostess should have acknowledged the flowers and thanked you for them.

DEAR ABBY: Your column featuring the questionnaire to determine whether you are an alcoholic brought tears to my eyes.

I remember taking that test a year ago at my second A.A. meeting. The results convinced me that I was an alcoholic and had to do something about it.

When I was 17, I found myself drinking Coffee Royals at 8:30 a.m. to face my day. I had been drinking and drugging since I was 12. I was a basket case.

I am 18 now, and I have not had a drink, or drugs of any kind, for nearly a year. Tomorrow will be my first anniversary!

Alcoholics Anonymous has definitely saved my life. I have everything going for me. I came from a life of hell, and today I have a hell of a life!

Thanks for constantly plugging A.A. That column made my day.

BOBBYS.
DEAR BOBBY: No thanks due me. A.A. threw you a lifeline. You caught it. Congratulations.

Housing Boom Keeps Going

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Enthusiastic builders kept the housing boom growing in February, boosting new housing construction to a surprisingly strong annual rate of 1.756 million units a year, the government reported.

The bench mark annual rate remained the strongest in 3 1/2 years the Commerce Department said Wednesday, 93 percent ahead of a year earlier and 2.9 percent higher than January.

Analysts had expected January's record 33.4 percent jump in housing starts, that benefited from unusually good weather, to be followed by a mild decline, especially since February was marked by some unusually bad weather.

Instead the report confirmed the best hopes of the housing industry that the boom developed since late last year had exceptionally strong roots in lower interest rates.

"This is encouraging news," a White House spokesman said.

Building permits also increased 1 percent in February.

"It's the first real evidence that we have had that the housing recovery is sustainable," said Warren Dunn, vice president of the Mortgage Bankers

Association. "So it's a kind of across-the-board very encouraging, very positive sign."

As a result of February's increase, the nation's largest construction trade group, the National Association of Home Builders, raised its forecast Wednesday for 1983 housing starts to 1.448 million, a 50,000-unit increase from its previous forecast.

That would be 36.4 percent ahead of last year which was the worst for housing since 1946.

"I didn't think we could continue to produce at these high levels, but it seems I was wrong," Michael Sumthraist, chief economist of the home builders' association, said. "It's a surprise number."

The government report showed single family housing starts last month declined 8.45 percent.

Starts of apartments with more than one unit soared 38.8 percent in February.

"The housing recovery started last September, picked up momentum during the next three months and accelerated in January and February," said Seattle developer Harry Pryde, president of the home builders' association.

Jobs Bill Sidetracked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both sides claimed their parliamentary operations were a success, but in the meantime the jobs bill they fought over fell into a coma and the Senate put it aside temporarily.

At issue was a banking industry move, sponsored by Sen. Robert Kastan, R-Wis., to repeal the 10 percent tax withholding on interest and dividends — opposed by President Reagan and the Senate Republican leadership. Kastan attached his amendment to the jobs program bill. With all the wrangling over the amendment, the jobs bill languished. The next move comes Friday when the Senate will vote again on limiting debate on the bill. A similar move failed by 10 votes Wednesday. Until then, the Senate was debating Social Security.

On the other side of the Capitol meantime, Rep. Norman D'Amours, D-N.H., planned today to force the House to vote on repealing the withholding. He planned to file a discharge petition to move his repeal bill out of the Ways and Means Committee and to the floor.

An aide to GOP leader Howard Baker said chances to work on the jobs bill in the Senate would be better Friday.

Congressional OK For Anti-Crime Bills Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration expects Congress to approve most elements of an anti-crime initiative President Reagan offered as a means of "rolling back the tide of criminal activity" across the country.

Reagan sent the legislative proposal to Capitol Hill Wednesday with a letter that asked for quick approval to "firm law enforcement authorities and federal prosecutors with important new tools with which to fight crime."

Attorney General William French Smith, describing the initiative as "a comprehensive approach to restoring the balance between the forces of law and the forces of lawlessness," rated the chances of passage as "very good."

The package, which Congress will address through a series of separate bills, is a synthesis of new proposals and many that Reagan made last fall, when he pledged "a comprehensive attack on drug trafficking and organized crime."

In addition to establishing tougher penalties for crimes ranging from espionage to the attempted laundering of money, Reagan recommended several changes in federal criminal law that would limit the rights of defendants.

"Many of our proposals were considered by the 97th Congress. Others are new," Reagan said. "Each is important in rolling back the tide of criminal activity that threatens our nation, our families and our way of life."

Senate Democrats unveiled their own anti-crime package a short time later, which included creation of a Cabinet-level office to coordinate drug enforcement. A similar provision led Reagan to veto a bill containing some of his own priorities in January.

"We feel strongly that an office of this kind is essential to give order and direction to drug enforcement," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Democrats' task force on crime.

Biden said there is strong support "on both sides of the aisle and we are hopeful that we can reach an accommodation with the president on this issue this year."

As expected, Reagan renewed his call for revision of the "exclusionary rule," which bars the use of illegally obtained evidence. He suggests law officers be required only to show they had a "reasonable good faith" belief their actions were legal.

Among the proposals expected to generate controversy is reinstatement of the death penalty in certain cases of espionage, treason and homicide.

Reagan also wants to restrict use of the insanity defense — a proposal that gained in popularity after the defense was used successfully by John Hinckley Jr., who shot the president and three others two years ago.

Swallowing Air May Be Problem

DEAR DR. LAMB - I burp a lot all night and sometimes pass a lot of gas. I had a check up not long ago and the doctor said the gas could be from swallowing air. I did not have a stomach test or X-ray or proctoscope.

I eat bran and cereal for breakfast and at noon with a glass of milk and have a small lunch at night with a cup of warm milk before going to bed. Could I be allergic to milk? I'm 73 years old. I drink one cup of decaffeinated coffee for breakfast but do not smoke.

You could have an intolerance to milk, probably not an allergy but an inability to digest the double sugar in milk. You can test this rather simply by eliminating all milk and milk products from your diet for a short while and see if that helps to get rid of your gaseousness.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Bridge hand analysis table showing North and South hands, vulnerable status, and opening lead.

great guns until you handed us this goose egg.

The game was duplicate and South's analysis had been correct. East and West had really worked him over.

It had started with East's jump to three clubs. Not that crowding the bidding had done the damage. No South player was going to be shut out after North's takeout double and four spades was a very normal final contract. It was just that West got off to the ace of clubs lead and that East dropped the deuce.

It was West's second play of the diamond ace that was the killer. Now East dropped the nine. West continued with the queen and East put the last nails in the coffin by overtaking and then giving West a diamond ruff.

"Looks like normal, good defense to me," remarked West. "We didn't do anything sensational."

That good defense had produced a result way above normal. South's goose egg analysis had been correct. Every other South who had played in spades had collected 10 tricks.
