Search To Resume For Man Missing In Boat Mishap

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Searching was expected to resume today for an Orange City man who disappeared Saturday after he dove into the St. Johns River to rescue a woman knocked into the water during a night-time boating accident.

Officials Sunday held out little hope that they would find Tommy Lively, 29, alive. They canvassed by boat and helicopter a two-mile stretch of the river Saturday night and Sunday, according to published reports. No information about the incident was being released today by the Volusia County sheriff's Department or the Coast Guard.

Lively was one of two men who dove into the coffee-dark river to attempt on helping Peggy Bethel, 27, of Goldenrod, according to reports. Lively, however, was unable to rescue Mrs. Bethel and floated into the watery darkness despite efforts to save him. Lively, Mrs. Bethel, and the second man, her husband Jimmy, 36, could swim, according to Lively's father-in-law, Fred Good, of Sanford.

"We're heartstuck. We're a close family," Good said.

The 9:30 p.m. incident followed the 28-foot cabin cruiser Mrs. Bethel was on scraping a channel marker north of the St. Johns and Wekiva River confluence. The battery-power light on the channel marker was not operating because it had been vandalized. It reportedly did have reflectors on it. Good said the marker sits 60 to 70 feet into the river which is high this time of year and with a strong current.

On the boat at the time of the incident was Good, his wife, two daughters and their husbands, including Lively, and the Bethels. They had left Sanford about 4 p.m. for a 22-mile excursion on the St. Johns. After dinner at a restaurant on Lake Beresford, they were cruising back to Sanford when the pleasure boat's port bow hit the marker, according to reports.

The impact tossed Mrs. Bethel into the water on the starboard side of the boat. When she surfaced, she hollered for her husband. He and Lively dove in. Lively, who jumped in from the rear of the boat, reached the woman first but then reportedly told her to let go or he would sink. She then made her way to the boat which has backed up to them while her husband pursued Lively, who was slightly heavier than Bethel. Bethel tried to tug Lively by the neck but apparently the man struggled in the 15-foot-deep water and kept hauling him under. Bethel also tried to tug the man by the shirt but couldn't because the current kept dragging him away. Bethel searched for the man until he was exhausted. Good also searched with officials until about midnight, according to reports.

Good said Lively had not been drinking. Bethel and Lively worked for Good's company, Briar Construction Co. of Longwood.

Awareness Training

More than 1,000 boy scouts, cub scouts and supervisors from 24 units around Seminole County learned an important lesson. They camped out Friday afternoon for the weekend on the grounds at South Seminole Community Hospital, Longwood, for Seminole District's Boy Scout Handicap Awareness Fall Camporee and learned what it's like for the handicapped to participate in such events. They had a hand or foot bound while trying to tie knots and perform other tasks, and played games blindfolded or in wheelchairs. Above, scouts cooked meals on open campfires around tents, while Raymond Rylander, right, member of Sanford contingent, scrapes what's left of dinner into receptacle.

Longwood Man's Killer Faces Death

An Orlando man accused of fatally slitting the throat of a Longwood man while in a reputed homosexual hangout has been found guilty of first-degree murder.

James Edward Osborn, 28, faces electrocution or at least 25 years for the death of Paul David Switzer, 49, 101 Butternut Lane, Longwood. The jury will make its sentencing recommendation Dec. 16. Circuit Judge Emerson R. Thompson Jr. is not bound by the suggestion.

The body of Switzer, a hospital consultant, was found nude and with fatal stab wound in his torso Feb. 11 in the Parliament House, a reputed homosexual hangout on Orange Blossom Trail, according to police spokesman Jeff Peck.

Switzer died about 11:30 p.m. One witness spotted a bloody sheet through the open door of a room and saw a man going through a wallet. The witness, who described the suspect to the police, said the partially clad man then fled.

Assistant State Attorney Jeff Ashton said Osborn led Switzer to believe they were going to have sex. However, once they were nude in the room, Osborn, behind Switzer, attacked him with a knife slitting the older man's throat and stabbing him in the heart, back and legs.

Osborn was initially arrested Feb. 13 in connection with the theft of a van. He had been linked through a telephone tip to both the theft of the vehicle from an Orlando church parking lot and the killing of Switzer. After the arrest, the murder charges were added.

When arrested, Osborn had a wallet and credit cards belonging to Switzer and had tried to pay for repairs on the van with one of Switzer's checks, Ashton said.

It took the jury about 2½ hours to reach the guilty verdict.

Belgrade To Answer U.S. Extradition Request

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Yugoslav officials today promised to respond to a U.S. request for the extradition of Mohammed Abu Abbas, named as the mastermind of the Achille Lauro hijacking, but the PLO reported Abbas had already left Yugoslavia.

Vidoje Zarkovic, president of the ruling Communist Party, said early today the government would issue a statement "soon" on the extradition request for Abbas, whose flight from Rome to Yugoslavia Saturday prompted a U.S. protest to the Italian government.

An official at the Palestine Liberation Organization office in Belgrade said Abbas had already left the country.

"Abbas was just passing through Yugoslavia on his trip out of Italy," said the official, who would not comment on Abbas' destination. "He was not on an official visit here and therefore it was not necessary for him to meet any Yugoslav officials."

Abbas' departure could not be independently confirmed and CBS News, which interviewed Abbas Sunday, said they had spoken to him in Belgrade again today.

A White House spokesman said the administration "has no official confirmation he has gone. If it turns out he has gone elsewhere, we will have to assess the situation."

In the interview, Abbas said an extradition was unnecessary and that he would be willing to come to the United States if he is granted immunity from prosecution.

"If Reagan is ready to announce a guarantee for me, I'm ready to go and talk to the Americans and explain everything very clear," Abbas said through a translator.

Abbas made the same offer during an interview with the Egyptian Middle East News Agency.

In an interview with the Kuwait news agency, Abbas thanked the Yugoslav government for granting him refuge in Belgrade and for not giving in to U.S. demands for his extradition. He praised the Italian government for "its courageous attitude and support of the cause of the Palestinian people."

Abbas said the Achille Lauro was not the hijackers' original target, nor "was their aim to threaten the lives of the passengers."

He said the hijackers were on their way to the Israeli port of

It Won't Hurt A Bit

Robert Wyche, 8, looks skeptical but Eunice Demps is telling him it won't hurt a bit as she takes a blood sample from his finger for a sickle cell anemia test. Robert's cousin, Victor DeFreese, 11, waits his turn. The testing was offered at the Castle Brewer Court Community Room in Sanford Saturday as part of a screening program by the Tri-County Sickle Cell Foundation.

Sanford Hearing To Consider Historic Board, District

The Sanford City Commission will hold a public hearing tonight to consider establishing a historic preservation board and an initial historic district in the downtown area of the city. They will be also consider regulations pertaining to the proposed district.

The 11-member board would named to four-year terms and would be chosen from representatives of several fields such as architects, landscapers, attorneys, and planners, as well as, members of historical societies, the chamber of commerce and the Sanford Development Board.

Boundaries for the historic district would be North Myrtle Avenue on the west, Fulton Street and E. Commercial Street on the north, Third Street on the south, and North Sanford Avenue on the east.

The commission will be meeting at 7 p.m. in the city commission room of city hall at 300 N. Park Ave.

Up for final approval will be annexation of property lying at the northwest corner of the intersection of Airport Boulevard and Country Club Road at the request of of William A. and Jean B. Cagle, owners. The ordinance was tabled from the meeting of August 26 at the owners' request.

The commission will consider a request from the Sanford Housing Authority for the city to cooperate with the authority in making an application for a Community Development Block Grant that would "improve living conditions for citizens of the city." Candeb, Fleissig and Associates, Inc., which is familiar with the CDBG program and requirements for applications, has agreed to assist the authority in preparing an application, according to Elliott L. Smith, executive director.

The Housing Authority needs the city's concurrence to proceed with development of the grant application because all applications for CDBG funds must be submitted by a local municipality.

Also on the agenda will be a request by Lori Enterprises to sell alcoholic beverages in a GC-2 (general commercial) zone for consumption

Win Or Lose, Lobbyist Gets Their Attention

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When someone dresses in costume and distributes treats on Capitol Hill in October, it doesn't mean it's Halloween. It means a lobbyist has come up with a new way to pitch an idea to Congress.

And in the staid, pin-striped world of Washington lobbyists, Pamela Kostmayer stands out.

Last week, Kostmayer, accompanied by an assistant dressed in a Panda costume, criss-crossed Capitol Hill distributing jeans to members of Congress and the press. The message: "The textile bill gets America by the seat of the pants."

Kostmayer, 34, is a public relations consultant currently representing the American Fair Trade Council, a group of retailers and importers that opposes a bill to cut textile imports.

She kicked off her client's $500,000 lobbying campaign two weeks earlier by distributing small stuffed teddy bears with a two-sided price tag. One side listed the lower price the bear sells for now, and on the other side, a price tag more than three times higher that the group said consumers would pay if the import bill becomes law. Most stuffed toys and dolls are made in whole or in part overseas.

The following week it was imported socks, with the message: "The textile bill socks it to America." In each case, the gifts were accompanied by articles and statistics to substantiate her client's case that import quotas would raise consumer prices and in the long run, cost American jobs in import-sensitive industries.

Despite her efforts, the House last week overwhelmingly approved the textile bill that its supporters argued was necessary to save the domestic textile industry and the thousands of people it employs. One of those supporters was her husband, Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa.

But the battle is not yet over as a modified

Power Loss Affected 1,500

There were 1,500 Florida Power and Light Customers without power for awhile Saturday night, some of them for as much as an hour and eight minutes, Bruce Berger, manager of the Sanford District, said today.

The outage occurred at 8:13 p.m. at the Grandview Substation mainline feeder when there was a shortcircuit in the underground cable. To restore power quickly to homes and businesses cutoff, four substitute lines were used.

The area left in the dark by the outage stretched from Goldsboro to Seminole High School and included Country Club Manor and part of 24th Street.

Berger said repairs should be completed today and the mainline feeder be put back in service.

Deadline Approaches In Chrysler-UAW Talks

DETROIT (UPI) — With no progress reported in talks between company and union bargainers, the possibility of a strike Tuesday by Chrysler Corp.'s 70,000 U.S. employees continues to grow stronger.

Subcommittees met Sunday to discuss benefits, grievances and non-economic issues, but no meeting of the whole bargaining group occurred, a United Auto Workers union spokesman said.

UAW President Owen Bieber said Saturday that a strike by Chrysler Corp.'s U.S. employees is likely at midnight Tuesday if the company does not stop "dragging its feet" in negotiations on a new contract.

Bieber said contract talks with Chrysler Corp. were proceeding at a dangerously slow pace. No progress was reported Sunday.

"Obviously, these negotiations are moving too slowly," Bieber told reporters at a union briefing at Chrysler headquarters in Highland Park. "The corporation, in my opinion, is dragging its feet at this point."

"I am not sure if Chrysler Corporation management wants a strike. Certainly, if they don't get going, that's exactly what's going to happen. If they don't move off of their unrealistic position, that's where we'll end up."

Price Is Right Voice Stilled

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Johnny Olson, the announcer on some of radio and TV's most popular programs for 40 years and most famous for his thundering "Come on down!" on "The Price Is Right," is dead of a stroke. He was 75.

Olson died Saturday of a brain hemorrhage at St. John's Hospital, where he was taken after suffering a stroke last Sunday night on his way to his Hollywood apartment from the airport, Marc Breslow, director of the popular CBS game show, said.

"Price Is Right" host Bob Barker said Olson, who never missed a taping before the stroke, "read reams of copy" without a mistake, "always making it interesting and exciting," and also did warmups and skits on the show.

"There isn't a single person at CBS ... who didn't love Johnny Olson," Breslow said. "There was only one Johnny Olson, he wasn't just an announcer. He was a performer."

"He had this operatic voice and he could read an entire page in one breath, just like lyrics."

Women Can't Get Top Law Jobs

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor says "tenacious social barriers" still keep females from top areas in the legal profession, but success is not impossible.

"Single-minded determination can make changes for women," O'Connor told 200 cheering women jurists Sunday at the National Association of Women Judges.

However, the job outlook for women lawyers is far from bright, O'Connor told the group she helped found in 1979.

"The number of female judges remains disproportionately small," said O'Connor, who was named to the Supreme Court by President Reagan. "Only 4 percent are women."

"Some of this is due to a late start in the profession, but it is mainly due to tenacious social barriers," she said. Society still expects that women will do other things rather than embark on a professional law career, O'Connor said.

Rape, Assault Up 7%

South, West Pace Nation In Higher Crime Rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More crimes being reported in Southern and Western cities accounted for most of a 3 percent rise in crime so far this year, with those regions pacing the nation in a resurgence of violence, the FBI says.

In announcing the new crime figures Sunday, FBI Director William Webster said the 3 percent increase in offenses reported to authorities in the first half of 1985 is the first semiannual rise since 1981.

Last year, the crime index dropped 3 percent.

"We're seeing an upsurge in crime," an FBI spokesman said. "You've seen a decrease in crime in the last few years and now all of a sudden you're seeing an increase."

The FBI's crime index gauges offenses reported to about 12,000 law enforcement agencies across the country. Nationally, violent crime rose 4 percent and property crime almost 3 percent.

Forcible rape and aggravated assault were up 7 percent and the spokesman said the increases concern law enforcement officials.

"These crimes are basically uncontrollable crimes of passion. There is little you can do to prevent them," he said.

Webster said the South and West accounted for the national increase so far this year. The Midwest recorded a 1 percent decline and the Northeast stayed virtually the same.

Historically, the spokesman said, the South and West have been ahead of the rest of the country in rising crime statistics.

"These trends indicate conceivably increases will spread" to other regions of the country, FBI investigators told Webster.

In Atlanta, reported crimes jumped from 23,059 between January and June 1984 to 27,248 over the same period this year.

Tampa also showed a dramatic gain — from 15,773 to 19,904, and rape there alone rose by almost 500 cases over the same six-month period.

Reported crimes in Phoenix rose from 33,316 to 39,023, and aggravated assault almost doubled. Portland, Ore., posted almost 5,000 more offenses with increases in every category except car theft.

Several other large cities, including Houston, Washington, New York, Detroit and Honolulu showed marked declines.

Among the violent offenses of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault, only murder showed a decline of 2 percent. Robbery stayed the same.

Offenses in all categories of property crime increases in number.

The volume of crimes reached all-time highs in 1980 and 1981, with yearly figures showing more than 13 million offenses reported nationwide.

Faulty Brakes Suspected In Bus-Train Crash

BRAMWELL, W.Va. (UPI) — A bus carrying a church choir and congregation members slammed into a freight train, killing four people and injuring 25, apparently because its brakes failed at a crossing, officials said.

The bus was carrying 32 members of the Bibleway Pentecostal Apostolic Church of Christ of Roanoke, Va., to a service in Havoac, W.Va., when it plowed into the 30th car of a 40-car Norfolk Southern train loaded with gravel.

The State Police said there were no skid marks on the highway and a passenger reported the bus appeared to lose its brakes while going down the hill toward the crossing on U.S. Route 52.

"The preliminary indication is that the brakes may have failed on the bus," State Police trooper J.E. Ratliff said. "One of the passengers said it appeared the bus was traveling at about 20 to 25 mph. It's a downhill grade."

"It was total chaos," said David Corcoran, publisher of the Welch Daily News, who drove by the scene with his wife moments after the wreck.

"When we got there people were just screaming and yelling and climbing out of the windows," he said.

Four people were killed, including the bus driver and one of the ministers aboard, and 25 people were injured, Ratliff said.

The injured were taken to three hospitals and officials said

15 people were admitted. One person was listed in critical condition, one was serious but stable and 13 were stable.

Corcoran said the entire front end of the bus was crushed and there was no rear exit.

"The survivors were sitting along the roadside. Nobody knew what to do. I ran back to call for the ambulances," he said.

"One man took off his white shirt and wrapped it around the head of a bleeding woman. There were three elderly people laying on the ground. There were children there. One little boy had a gash on his head. His father was holding him and he was covered with blood."

The dead were identified as Howard Stout, 34, the driver; the Rev. Hugh McGill, 84; and James Conner, 48, and George Johnston, 79, members of the 550-member congregation.

The bus was owned by In-nercity Bus Lines in Roanoke. The firm's owner, Henry Fields, said the bus had new brakes and tires.

"The bus was in A-No. 1 shape," he said, adding that Stout also had driven the bus Saturday and "bragged on it."

Ratliff said an investigation to determine the cause of the wreck could take two days. "We have people coming in to examine the bus to see if the bus's brakes are faulty," he said.

Priest On Trial Accused Of Sexually Abusing Boys

LAFAYETTE, La. (UPI) — A Roman Catholic priest who admits he sexually abused as many as 37 boys, some of them in the church confessional, hopes to win acquittal on the grounds he suffers from what his attorneys say is an incurable mental illness.

Jury selection was to begin today before District Judge Hugh Brunson in the trial of the Rev. Gilbert Gauthier, accused of molesting 11 boys between 1978 and 1983.

Several of the boys, now teenagers, are scheduled to testify in his trial, being held in the heart of heavily Catholic Acadiana.

If convicted, Gauthier, who has been suspended from the priesthood and told court officials his victims numbered "35, 36, 37, something like that," could be sentenced to life imprisonment.

The National Catholic Reporter has speculated this may be the first such trial in the United States.

District Attorney Nathan Stansbury alleges some of the incidents occurred in the guise of religious ceremonies with altar boys and other youths.

Defense attorneys say Gauthier suffers from incurable pedophilia and should be found not guilty by reason of insanity.

Gauthier has been charged with 23 counts of aggravated rape, pornography and crimes against nature. He will be tried separately on an additional 11 counts of indecent behavior with juveniles.

The 40-year-old priest has spent two years in mental institutions. Most recently, he has been a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, where he is undergoing treatment using a drug called Depo-Provera, also known as "chemical castration."

NATIONAL FORECAST: Rain threatened to flood parts of Kansas and Oklahoma early today, as snow persisted in eastern Colorado and fog shrouded parts of Pennsylvania.

More than seven inches of rain Sunday deluged Haskell, a town of 2,500 in northeast Oklahoma. "We're flooded," said Haskell police officer Jim Frazier.

"Probably 99 percent of the town is flooded, but not heavily. We've only had two businesses damaged." Flash flood watches were posted for southern and southeast Kansas, as well as portions of north central and northeastern Oklahoma. Heavy rain also fell in the western reaches of the lower Ohio Valley.

Rain dampened eastern North Carolina, northern Maine, the middle Missouri Valley and parts of southern California. Wintry weather continued to push across Colorado. The weather service Sunday night posted travelers' advisories for the northern and central mountains.

EXTENDED FORECAST: Florida except northwest — Partly cloudy. A slight chance of showers or thunderstorms mainly north on Thursday.

Highs: mid 80s to around 90. Lows in 60s north and 70s south.

AREA FORECAST — Today...mostly sunny. A slight chance of afternoon thunderstorms. High low 90s. Wind south to southwest 5 to 10 mph. Rain chance 20 percent. Tonight...mostly fair with the low in the low 70s. Light wind. Tuesday...sunny with the high in the lower 90s. Wind south to southwest 5 to 10 mph.

Despondent Mom Kills Kids, Shoots Self, Police Say

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — A despondent mother fulfilled her son's nightmare by killing the boy and his sister in their sleep, then tried to commit suicide because she could not support her family on three jobs, police said.

"She believed in strong family ties. Maybe she wanted them with her," said Michele Looky, a longtime neighbor of the mother, Leda Quintano, 37.

Quintano shot her sleeping children several times each with a .25-caliber handgun, then reloaded the gun and shot herself under the chin, firing straight up, investigator Bruce Hahn of the Broward County Medical Examiner's Office said.

Quintano was listed in stable condition at Memorial Hospital in Hollywood. Her children, Diego Arce, 15, and Barbara Arce, 13, died early Saturday of multiple gunshot wounds to the head and body.

Diego told friends a week ago that he had a nightmare in which his mother killed him in his sleep with a sword.

"He had mentioned to other students that he had a dream about his mother coming into his room and killing him," said Sam Johnson, the children's debate teacher at Hollywood Hills High School.

"He seemed a bit apprehensive about it," a classmate said. "It seemed to trouble him. It's kind of scary."

Police and neighbors said Quintano, a single parent whose former husband lives in Chile, tried to support her family by delivering newspapers in the morning and pizzas in the evening. She also took cleaning jobs but her family was facing eviction, neighbors said.

"She didn't like leaving them alone so much," said neighbor Linda Cole. "She worked all the time, so much that everyone barely knew her."

A co-worker went to the family's unlocked apartment when Quintano failed to show up for work Saturday morning.

"The puzzle here is why she felt it necessary to kill the children when she obviously loved them and took care of them," sheriff's spokesman Jim Lejald said.

Quintano left a suicide note but detectives declined to reveal its contents because they plan to file charges against her if she survives. Sheriff Nick Navarro said, however, that Quintano was despondent over her financial condition and her divorce several years earlier.

Neighbor Patricia Marple said Quintano was facing eviction after apparently falling three months behind in the rent.

"She should have done it to herself first," Marple added. "They had a chance. She took it away. To take those children's lives ... I would take mine first before my children."

Diego was a popular student and Barbara was "very quiet, shy and very sweet," Johnson said.

"It's just going to be hard to go back in the classroom Monday morning and look at those two empty seats," he said.

CDC Reports Infection Increase In Hospitals

ATLANTA (UPI) — About two million of the 40 million Americans hospitalized each year get infections that sometimes are fatal, prompting health officials to warn that "danger lurks inside the hospital doors" for many patients.

The Centers for Disease Control estimates that 80,000 to 100,000 patients die each year as a direct or indirect result of hospital-acquired infection, and officials said the threat is growing.

Hospital infections are as common as admissions for cancer or accidental injuries and are four times as numerous as admissions for heart attacks, the CDC said.

CDC data shows hospital infection is lengthening patients' stays an average of four days and adding an average $800 to their bills.

"For many patients, danger lurks inside the hospital doors," said Dr. Kenneth Rothman, a University of Massachusetts Medical School public health professor. "The greatest risk that the hospital presents is infection."

About a third of the hospital-acquired infections are "easily preventable," the CDC said.

Eleven babies at Chandler Medical Center in Lexington, Ky., got hepatitis in 1982 from transfusions of tainted blood and the disease spread to three more children and 34 relatives and hospital workers, the CDC reported.

Officials said the outbreak could have been prevented had hospital workers washed their hands more often.

Hospitals are not required to report most outbreaks of infections. Voluntary disclosure of outbreaks is rare because hospitals fear lawsuits and bad publicity, officials said.

"If the physicians don't want infections reported, you'd better believe they're not going to be reported," said Dr. Wallace Birch, Alabama state epidemiologist.

Urinary tract infections account for more than 40 percent of all hospital infections and kill about 3,500 patients a year, officials said.

Confidential reports of hospital infection outbreaks at 338 hospitals gathered by the CDC show 5.7 percent of all hospital admissions in the mid-1970s resulted in infections.

The CDC said infection rates are higher now because operations are more complex, drugs encourage infection and lower hospital budgets have reduced carefulness and control.

Heathrow Replaces Huskey In Marketing

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

An in-house sales operation known as Heathrow Realty has been set up to market Jeno Paulucci's luxury development near Lake Mary, replacing Huskey Realty which has marketed Heathrow since it began in 1983.

Gary Gamble, 42, who has been involved in real estate at the Hilton Head, S.C., island resort for the past 13 years, has been named to head Heathrow Realty as president, according to Roger Soderstrom, president of Heathrow Land and Development Co. He has been on the job a week.

"This is one of the best long-term planned unit developments I've ever looked at and this is a real career move for me," Gamble said. "I've experienced a real commitment here you don't typically find in the real estate industry, not leverage, but the financial backing it takes to make a community like this a success."

Gamble said, "The market has been somewhat soft, but we're going to do everything we can to put Heathrow on top of the market board. We've got the product, now it's up to us."

Soderstrom said it was not a matter of E. Everette Huskey's not doing a good job. He said Huskey will remain as an advisor and will still be very much involved with Heathrow — he will still list and market a Heathrow condominium development known as The Hamptons.

"We knew sooner or later that we'd be setting up our own marketing operation. The situation right now is developed to that point," Soderstrom said. "We have completed the first phase and are well into Phase II with our International Business Center and other businesses scheduled for 1986 for a total mix use."

Soderstrom said he will be marketing principally commercial developments within Heathrow and Gamble will be geared up mainly for residential sales. The Heathrow Realty office will be located at the development.

Gamble, who has brought with him from Hilton Head David Morrison, who is vice president of sales and marketing for Heathrow Realty, said he is in the first stages of organizing his sales team and staffing it with sales managers and sales people. They are also preparing their 1986 marketing plan.

Gamble hopes to duplicate his sales success at Hilton Head at Heathrow. He started his own real estate firm on Hilton Head and had annual sales of $45 million when he sold the business, he said. He then did all the marketing for the Ginn Corporation which had the Sea Pines Plantation Co., Hilton Head Co., and several resort condominium projects in Georgia, North Carolina, and Florida, handling $60 million in sales a year, he added.

Individually and through the companies he managed, Gamble said has accumulated in excess of $300 million in sales over the past 13 years.

A 1969 graduate of Princeton School of Theology and a former United Methodist minister, Gamble is married and his wife Katherine and four children will be joining him here soon.

There have been 42 single-family detached homes sold at an average price of $425,000, as well as a number of condominiums that bring the total sold to 65, Soderstrom said.

Price tags for Heathrow homes range from $250,000 to $1.5 million. Two new developments set for early next year will add townhouses and patio homes, Soderstrom said.

The 500-acre International Business center has attracted the interest of several companies who are either coming or considering relocating their corporate headquarters at Heathrow, according to Soderstrom.

Cabot, Cabot and Forbes of Boston, Mass., is developing 350,000 square feet of office space as a joint venture with Heathrow over a three-year period with the first phase to get underway by the end of the year, Soderstrom said.

Man Says Carson Would Shut Down AIDS Clinic

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A hypnotist once married to former sex symbol Lana Turner claims television star Johnny Carson is trying to shut down his free clinic for cancer and AIDS patients.

To stop Carson, Ronald Dante filed a $1 billion cross-complaint against the "Tonight Show" host Friday. The suit is a response to an August lawsuit filed by the comedian against Dante, claiming the hypnotist used a picture of Carson without his permission to advertise the Psycho Neurology Foundation in Huntington Beach.

"Carson's suit is really against the cancer and AIDS patients, knowing full well that I cannot afford his unheard-of suit of $51 million," Dante said.

Dante said he began the clinic for cancer patients in 1969 and expanded it to cover AIDS victims four years ago. He claims it is supported entirely with the donations of the 1,000 people cured by the clinic's free hypnosis.

The hypnotists who work at the clinic receive training from Dante in exchange for an agreement to donate 12 hours of work, he said.

A picture of Dante sitting with Carson at a table and captioned, "Dr. Dante being interviewed by Johnny Carson," was used in newspaper ads for the clinic with banner headlines reading, "How To Be a Hypnotherapist. Absolutely Free!"

Jerry Staub, one of Carson's attorneys, said the photo was taken with Carson's permission "sixteen or seventeen years ago," but Dante has no right to use it in advertising.

Pentagon Proposes To Scrap Federal Pay System

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon is proposing that civil service pay grades be scrapped and that agency heads should be allowed to set wage scales for the nation's 2 million federal workers, Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., said today.

Barnes, co-chairman of the congressional Federal Government Service Task Force, said the plan would replace the present pay rates with a new system that would empower agency chiefs to decide civilian federal employees' pay, grades and incentive systems.

The proposal also would allow agency chiefs to write their own guidelines for such a system, which Barnes said "would politicize the federal workforce by allowing managers to reward political loyalists and penalize career federal workers doing their best to implement programs and uphold the law."

Barnes said the proposal was tested with Pentagon engineers and scientists at San Diego and China Lake, Calif., and. "This sample clearly does not represent a fair cross-section of the wide variety of occupations in the federal workforce."

Based on that limited sample, Barnes said, "We don't know the consequences of sweeping changes proposed in this plan on worker pay, morale, productivity, hiring, budget costs and service to taxpayers."

"This proposal offers what may well be a sound idea — creating some major pay-related performance incentives — but it extends to an absurd extreme based on modest results from a very limited trial run."

The Pentagon had no immediate comment on the proposal.

The proposal has been sent as a draft bill to House Speaker Thomas O'Neill and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, Barnes said.

Wages for civilian federal workers are based on a 15-grade system and within each grade are middle steps.

Woman Sues Amtrak Over Fall In Restroom

A plunge to the restroom floor of a passenger train car is the basis of a suit filed in Seminole Circuit Court against Amtrak.

Kathryn Suggs, of Alachua, is asking for an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000 from National Railroad Passenger Corp., also known as Amtrak.

In the suit Ms. Suggs states that she was in the passenger car on the night of May 22, 1984. She says she got up around midnight to use the restroom which, she states in the suit, was dimly lighted.

Because of the dim light, Ms. Suggs says, she assumed a curtain hanging in the restroom was the wall.

While in the small room, the train lurched, Ms. Suggs said. She grabbed for what she thought was the wall but got only curtains, and she fell to the restroom floor, she says in the suit.

She charges Amtrak was negligent in not only allowing the restroom to be dimly lighted but for not warning her that the train was going to lurch.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. No trial date has been set.

SEX ASSAULT
A 20-year-old Lake Mary man has been arrested after being accused of having sex with a 12-year-old girl.

According to an arrest report, the girl said she submitted to a man on July 22 and 27 this year. She said she was not coerced and noted the incidents in her diary, particularly the first encounter. A medical examination supported the girl's claim.

The alleged incident came to light following a confrontation between the suspect, his parents and the girl's mother. The confrontation was prompted by the girl's belief that she was pregnant, which, according to tests, she is not, the report said. She was interviewed by an investigator Wednesday.

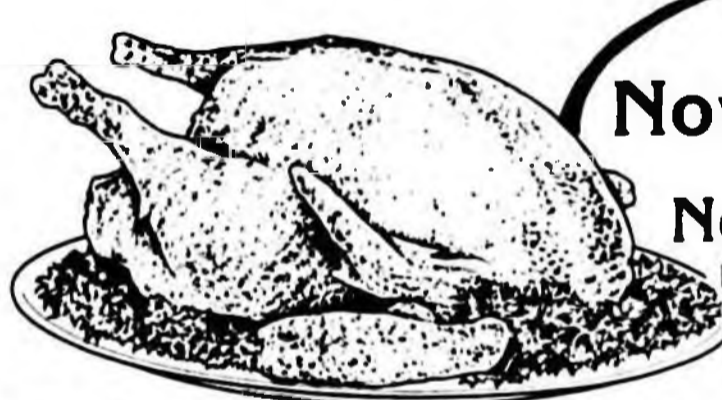

Arrested and charged Friday with carnal intercourse is Russel Lee Morgan, of 955-103 Lake Forrest, Lake Mary. He was being held on $8,000 bond Saturday in the Seminole County jail.

IMPERSONATION
A Casselberry man has been arrested on charges of impersonating a police officer.

According to a deputy sheriff's report, a witness told them a man at the Semoran Skateway, 1109 E. Semoran Blvd., Casselberry, was wearing a jacket with an officer's badge on the lapel. The deputies investigated and stopped a man who had an officer badge engraved with the name Raymond A. Penmaul, sergeant.

Arrested and charged with impersonating an officer was Ronald Steel Schweitzer, 19, of 360 Violet Dell Court. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Curtail Soviet Presence In U.S.

The recent parade of Soviet and Soviet-bloc defectors is inflicting spectacular damage these days on the KGB, the Kremlin's vast secret police-foreign espionage organization. Even as U.S. officials celebrate these counter-espionage coups, they should be moving decisively to contain the KGB's inevitable counterattack.

But first, the known Soviet setbacks. Among the recent defections acknowledged publicly by Western intelligence: The KGB station chief in London, the deputy director of Soviet military intelligence in Athens, and the East German spymaster for all of Latin America. And even these notable defections pale in significance with that of Vitaly Yurchenko, reliably described as the fifth-ranking official in the KGB.

Mr. Yurchenko, now being debriefed by the Central Intelligence Agency, almost certainly had access to the identities of an estimated 2,500 Soviet agents in Western Europe and hundreds more in the United States. Indeed, Mr. Yurchenko's defection in Rome at the end of July may well have prompted the spate of subsequent defections, including those of West German double agents and of Soviets working clandestinely for Western intelligence services. Mr. Yurchenko is also said to have identified several past members of the CIA as Soviet agents.

What is certain, of course, is that the KGB will seek to recoup once the predictable purge of culpable officials is completed back in Moscow. And nowhere will the KGB be more eager to rebuild its agent network and otherwise re-establish its former presence than in the United States, seat of the principal opposition to the worldwide spread of Soviet power.

Fortunately, the Reagan administration has within its power the ability to cripple this counterattack before it begins. How? By dramatically reducing the size of the official Soviet presence in the United States.

FBI Director William Webster has said repeatedly that about one-third of all Soviet diplomats and other officials stationed in this country are, in fact, intelligence agents employed by the KGB or its military intelligence counterpart, the GRU. At last count, this official Soviet community here in the United States numbered 949, not counting dependents. This is more than three times the size of the official U.S. delegation in the Soviet Union.

The Soviet total includes the Soviet embassy in Washington (279), the Soviet mission to the United Nations (236), Soviet members of the U.N. Secretariat (303), the Soviet consulate in San Francisco (41), Soviet trade delegations (50), and supposed journalists (40). By contrast, the official American presence in the Soviet Union numbers only 276 diplomats plus a handful of American businessmen and journalists.

Strict reciprocity — the only sensible diplomatic principle in dealing with the Soviets — demands that the Soviet presence in the United States be reduced to levels equal with that accorded the United States in the Soviet Union. Congress agrees, witness its passage this year of the Leahy-Cohen bill giving the State Department until January to recommend ways to equalize the official Soviet and American missions.

President Reagan can get things started by ordering (quietly if pre-summit diplomacy is a consideration) a ban on issuing visas to Soviets designated to replace the KGB operatives fingered by Vitaly Yurchenko.

DICK WEST

The Year They Tore The Doghouse Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year being the 40th anniversary of practically everything else, it was a pleasure to be reminded that the "Peanuts" comic strip is only 35 years old and that former President Nixon's famous "Checkers" speech was delivered 33 years ago.

Possibly there are some readers who weren't even born the evening of that fateful broadcast in 1952 when Nixon brought instant renown to a small cocker spaniel.

Checkers was only a 5-month-old puppy at the time and Nixon was a mere 39-year-old Republican vice presidential candidate. So those whose memories have slipped can be forgiven.

Checkers lived until 1964 and was buried in October of that year in a pet cemetery on Long Island. As human time is measured, the dog would have been about 84 years old.

In other words, if Checkers were still alive, the pooch would now be pushing 250, which is older the Nixon and many other human beings.

In 1952, Nixon, a U.S. senator from California, was running on the GOP ticket with Dwight Eisenhower. He had been identified as the beneficiary of a "slush fund" and had scheduled a nationwide radio-television speech in an effort to save his political career.

As recounted in his book Six Crises, Nixon was urged by Eisenhower to disclose any gifts he might have received while holding public office. That is where Checkers came in.

"One other thing I probably should tell you," said Nixon, who already had told the audience about his wife's "good Republican cloth coat."

"A man down in Texas heard Pat on the radio mention the fact that our two youngsters would like to have a dog. And, believe it or not, the day before we left on this campaign trip, we got a message from Union Station in Baltimore saying they had a package for us.

"We went down to get it and you know what it was? It was a little cocker spaniel dog in a crate. ... Black and white, spotted. And our little girl — Tricia, the 6-year-old — named it Checkers."

Nixon went on to add that his "kids love the dog" and vowed to keep it "regardless of what they say about it."

The impact was even more immediate than Charles Schultz' introduction of the "Peanuts" cast. As they say, there wasn't a dry eye in the house.

The Republican National Committee received around a million favorable letters and telegrams and Eisenhower kept Nixon as his running mate with the immortal line, "You're my boy."

The rest, as they say, is history. But poor Checkers never made it to the White House. By the time Nixon was first elected president in 1968, the cocker spaniel had been replaced as "first dog."

An Irish setter named King Timahoe, the poodle Vicky and Pasha, a Yorkshire terrier, all had their moments in the sun before it went into eclipse with Nixon's "Watergate" resignation.

Checkers now lies in the Bide-a-Wee Memorial Park along with assorted horses, rabbits, monkeys, birds, grasshoppers and other fondly remembered pets. It was as though someone pulled away the football as Checkers was about to kick off.

SCIENCE WORLD

Preventing Implant Rejection

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texas researchers have developed a new treatment that may prevent the body from rejecting surgical implants, from catheters to artificial hearts.

Doctors at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas said they have successfully coated plastics used in implants with a chemical compound that prevents the formation of blood clots.

These blood clots, the body's natural defense toward a foreign object, can threaten the life of an implant patient because they may break away from the plastic and cause kidney failure, strokes and heart attacks, said research director Dr. Robert Eberhart, chairman of the biomedical engineering program at the university.

Doctors currently treat implant patients with drugs that prevent clotting but that also promote bleeding, he said.

The Texas project is part of $6 million worth of research into artificial implant compatibility funded by the National Institutes of Health, said Frank D. Altieri, deputy chief of the devices and technology division of the National Institutes of Health outside Washington.

"Eliminating blood clots goes a long way to easing those problems associated with artificial implants," said Altieri. But he cautioned it may be years before the body's unique defense system against artificial implants is controlled.

"Progress has been steady but slow," he said.

The technique developed by doctors in Texas has been patented, but it may be a year before it is tested in humans, Eberhart said.

In laboratory experiments, plastics were coated with a chemical compound of fatty hydrocarbons that attract a protein in the blood called albumin. The protein coats the surface of the artificial implant as it tries to break down the hydrocarbons and carry them off — its natural function, said Eberhart.

The albumin cover shields the artificial implant from clotting agents in the blood, which recognize the albumin and pass by, he said. The albumin molecules eventually break away from the plastic but are immediately replaced by others.

"We have created a living shield that continuously renews itself," said Eberhart, who said the chemical coating remains intact and does not appear to wear away, he said.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Changes At Interpol

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The spread of terrorism and the need for greater efficiency have brought change — and controversy — to Interpol, the international police information-sharing organization.

Interpol's recent general assembly — its 54th — was the first to take place in the United States in more than 25 years. The sessions were closed to the public and the press, but it was clear that the 62-year-old organization is undergoing rapid change.

The real Interpol barely resembles the Interpol in mystery and spy fiction. It has no force of agents roaming the globe in search of international criminals. Instead, Interpol — a United Nations-sanctioned association of 138 national police forces — operates as an information clearinghouse. It's based in St. Cloud, France, outside of Paris, and its 250 employees gather and disseminate information that helps its members to track criminals.

In 1983, for example, a Liberian government official fled his country with a large chunk of the national treasury. Liberian authorities contacted Interpol and a warrant was issued, which Interpol members see as grounds for arresting an individual. From information supplied by Interpol, FBI agents tracked the Liberian official to Massachusetts, where he was arrested and held for extradition back to Liberia.

Interpol also helped with the investigation into the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II in 1981. Italian authorities sent the fingerprints of the still-unnamed assailant to Interpol headquarters. Within minutes, he was identified as Mehmet Ali Agca — based on information previously supplied by Turkey, where he was wanted on murder charges.

In the past 15 years, Interpol has been under fire for its antiquated methods and its refusal to become involved in terrorism cases.

Interpol has always kept its information on 3-by-5 cards and in paper files. However, it has begun to transfer its data to computers and will be fully automated within the next year.

Interpol has been hindered in sharing information on terrorism because its constitution forbids intervention in political, racial, religious or military matters involving member countries. Since Interpol defines terrorist acts as "political," it totally avoids dealing with them.

However, at its 1984 general assembly in Luxembourg, Interpol voted to change its rules: It will now involve itself in cases in which crimes are committed even if they are "politically motivated."

The organization also is undergoing a change that some of its older members find somewhat sinister and hard to accept. Since World War II, Interpol has always been viewed as a French organization, since it's based in France and has always been headed by a Frenchman. But last year, Raymond E. Kendall, commander of New Scotland Yard's Criminal Investigation Department, was elected its secretary-general, the person in charge of day-to-day operations. In addition, John Simpson, director of the U.S. Secret Service, became Interpol's first American president.

In a July 8 speech to the American Bar Association, Reagan included Iran, Nicaragua and Libya among five "outlaw states" and sponsors of terrorism — and all three are Interpol members.

Simpson said that criminal information-sharing is "not an open-door policy" and said that the dissemination of such data is "very closely monitored."

Deputy U.S. Attorney General D. Lowell Jensen, who headed the U.S. delegation to the Interpol general assembly, said that U.S. law-enforcement officials don't see the Interpol membership of Iran, Libya and Nicaragua as "a derogation of the president's position."

DON GRAFF

An Almost Material World

FUZHOU, China (NEA) — "Material Girl" pounds out of the sound system behind the bar.

Does the young bartender know what he has tuned us into?

He smiles, shrugs and in more than adequate English says that the broadcast is coming from Guangzhou and he doesn't understand the words. Guangzhou is the big city some 400 miles down the coast, formerly Canton. They literally speak another language there than they do here, where a dialect of Mandarin predominates.

But Madonna is not delivering her message from the material world in fluent Cantonese. It is doubtful that could be lost on the bartender, whatever his language limitations, and it certainly could not escape whatever authorities in Canton or elsewhere approved this particular number for an officially communist China's public airways.

Whatever the explanation, it would seem to be a small but significant indication of how rapidly and radically China is changing less than a decade after the violently anti-material Cultural Revolution was brought to an end.

There are others. We are in the Dong Hu (West Lake) Hotel, an international-class facility designed for a tourist trade the local authorities hope will develop rapidly now that Fujian Province, of which Fuzhou is the principal city and capital, has been opened to foreign visitors.

The 10-story hotel is a good start. The comfortable, fully equipped rooms are in the impersonal modern style one encounters these days everywhere from Wiesbaden to Walla Walla. The restaurant offers an acceptable Western menu, although it is questionable that what is presented as steak ever had any connection with a steer. Water buffalo is probably more like it.

Fuzhou — Foochow in the pre-Pinyin transliteration — also has its points. A city of more than a million with broad, tree-lined boulevards, heavy traffic and in the midst of a construction boom, it appears superficially almost Western.

Madonna, as it turns out, was only the warm-up. Evenings, the bar at the Dong Hu becomes a disco. It has been going strong — and loud — since early this year, according to an affable province official.

The kids here are either very quick learners or were practicing somewhere in secret. They can dance.

It is perhaps the most stunning evidence of change yet. But can it last?

JACK ANDERSON

U.S. Intelligence Pays Well For Secrets

By Jack Anderson
and
Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — How much does it cost the United States to buy or steal a secret from a foreign country? $10? $10,000? $1 million?

It's one of the best-kept secrets in Washington, for unlike most other entities of the federal bureaucracy, the hydra-headed intelligence community gets to keep its budget confidential. And no one in Congress seems to worry whether the spy agencies are cost-effective in what they do.

It may seem a hopeless quest, but let's see if we can't do a pioneer accounting of U.S. intelligence gathering, and get an idea of what it costs the taxpayers for the secrets the various agencies pry out of our adversaries.

How much do we pay for the spy satellites, the human agents, the analysts who weigh the information and the computers that collate it all? And what do we get in return?

Except for the CIA and a couple of obscure military units, which devote some money and manpower to covert action, the dozen-plus federal intelligence bodies exist primarily to collect and analyze information. So their entire budgets should be counted on the cost side of the ledger.

Easier said than done, of course, but from sources familiar with the budget process and from other information we've gathered, we can make an educated guess.

The CIA's annual budget is close to $1 billion. The code-breaking National Security Agency's is much higher, about $10 billion a year. The little-known National Reconnaissance Office, whose very existence in the Pentagon is classified, spends at least $2 billion and possibly as much as $4 billion a year on spy satellites.

Then add at least another $2 billion for the Defense Intelligence Agency and the intelligence-gathering arms of the four individual military services and the departments of State, Treasury and Energy.

A significant expense, but impossible to calculate, is the man-hours spent by ambassadors and Foreign Service personnel, gathering information that is passed along to the intelligence services.

Adding it all up, a plausible estimate is that the government spends roughly $18 billion a year to collect foreign secrets.

Now how do we figure out the number of secrets this $18 billion buys? No one can say for sure, but as luck would have it, there is an obscure agency that provides the material necessary for a reasonable guess.

The Information Security Oversight Office makes an annual count of all government agencies' classification decisions — how many documents they stamp confidential, secret and top secret. Its latest report puts the number of these "original classification decisions" at 881,943 last year.

The problem with this figure is that the great bulk of it refers to made-in-U.S.A. secrets the agencies want to protect, not secrets coming from overseas. Domestic secrets are usually classified confidential or secret, and these levels comprise 98 percent of the classification decisions, according to the oversight office's report. The remaining 2 percent — or 17,789 — were classified top secret.

Even making the unlikely assumption that all 881,943 decisions involved foreign secrets, it would factor out to $20,409.48 per secret, according to our calculator.

But if we rate intelligence-gathering agencies only by the hottest stuff they get — the top secrets — the cost works out to a little more than a million bucks for each one.

'Old Warriors' Covet 6-4 Year

When you have young warriors like Earnie Lewis, Jeff Blake, Ardine Daniels, Curtis Rudolph, Sonny Osborn and Dwayne Willis running around the Seminole warpath, there's a tendency to look to the future, which looks very promising indeed.

But the core of any team is its veterans. And without the every day trench-work duty of seniors Alan Kendall, Mike Luster, James Rowe, Dexter Franklin, Carl Tipton, Mike Levant and Rick Kelly, Friday's 17-10 victory over Lake Brantley's Patriots wouldn't have been possible.

Several of these young men have logged three years of varsity time, and although they have endured some tough times, they said Friday amid an energized locker room that win five consecutive wins to finish the season is not beyond reach.

Kendall, a two-way performer on the lines, said the Seminoles weren't doing that much to give quarterback Blake a sack-free evening. "We were just setting up and killing everybody in our area," he said. "Jeff ran all most of the rollouts opposite the tight end and that took an extra defender away."

After four consecutive losses, Kendall said the victory was well received. "Boy, this is a great feeling," he said. "I hope to have this feeling after the next five games."

"It's a lot more fun to come home on a happy bus from the road trips."

Kendall and his teammates wouldn't have to wait long for the next bus ride. The Seminoles travel to Daytona Beach Thursday to play Seabreeze in a key District 4A-5 game. The 4-0 Sanderabs are ranked ninth in the state poll.

Levant, who has provided a good shot in the arm to the offensive backfield, said, "We really need this win. It's the greatest feeling in the world. We want to go 6-4 so we need five more."

Luster, a bright spot on the defensive line despite a rib injury, was cited for a courageous effort by defensive line coach Roger Beathard. "Luster played with pain," Beathard said. "He's got a skull coming, too. On that interception return (by Dennis Lawrence), he knocked a guy flat on his back."

"We needed this win for morale," Luster said. "Our defense really had a good game. We were using the swim and the slap, anything we could get to get to the quarterback."

The tactics paid off as Patriot David DeLiaeco was sacked several times and hurried into four interceptions. Three by Daryl Taylor and one by Lawrence.

"Daryl had a DB's dream," Franklin said about the trio of thefts. "I guess cause he's small they were challenging him. He sure did the job."

Defensive coordinator James Paul was the first to agree. "Daryl just did an outstanding job," he said. "He broke on the ball real well, had good reaction to the tip and stepped in front on the slant."

Greg Register, defensive backfield coach, said Taylor got every bounce. "He's only been with the defensive backs two weeks but he reacts real well," he said. "He played well as a defensive back on the JVs last year, though."

Kelly, who forms one of the best linebacking corps around with Brian Brinson and Lewis, sacked DeLiaeco for an 11-yard loss during one of the game's critical junctures.

He said improvement was the key to the victory. "We're all improved a lot," he said. "I know this was my best game of my life. I'm improved 100 percent. It just feels great to be a part of this proud team."

A team which hopes to be even prouder Thursday night.

While the Seminoles earned their first win this past weekend, the Tampa Bay Bucs are still searching. The Buccaneers, 0-6, literally threw away a three-point lead and the game with 5:58 to play when LeRoy Ervin returned a Steve DeBerg over-throw 34 yards for a TD. The Rams won, 31-27.

Best Friends Hartsfield, Washington Bail Rams Out Of Jams

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Best friends always help each other out in a jam. Ray Hartsfield and Byron Washington have been tight friends and teammates for four years at Lake Mary. Both play receiver and defensive back for Lake Mary's Rams and the Sanford duo has a knack for knowing where the other is all the time.

Friday night, Hartsfield and Washington helped each other out and, in the process, led Lake Mary to a 12-7 victory over Lake Howell's Silver Hawks in a crucial Seminole Athletic Conference game.

Washington played a key role on offense and particularly on defense. The senior standout caught four passes for 61 yards, recovered two fumbles and came up with the play of the game when he intercepted Mark Wainwright's fourth-down pass in the end zone with less than a minute to play.

Hartsfield was in the right place at the right time in two key situations. On Lake Mary's winning touchdown drive, he recovered a fumble by Washington and advanced it to the Lake Howell six-yard line. Then, on Washington's fourth-quarter interception, Hartsfield was there to tell Washington, who had thoughts of running it out, to down the ball in the end zone.

"Byron (Washington) played one heck of a game," Hartsfield said. "He made the big plays tonight."

No one knew that better than the coach. "Byron is a great prospect," Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said. "He's a great hitter on defense and tonight he seemed to be in the right place when we needed it most."

Along with lending Washington a helping hand, Hartsfield had a fine all-around game. He returned the opening kickoff 51 yards to the Lake Howell 34, but the Rams failed to score. For the game, Hartsfield had 62 yards in kickoff returns, ran the ball three times for 11 yards and made some big stops on defense.

Washington's first big play of the game came with five minutes left in the first quarter. Lake Mary had a second and four at their own 23-yard-line when quarterback Shane Letterio threw a sideline screen to Washington. The speedy senior then eluded a couple tacklers and broke down the sidelines for a 42-yard gain down to the Lake Howell 21.

"That was a little screen play that was planned just to get us a first down," Washington said. "But I shook off one guy and then saw the end zone. Finally, a Lake Howell guy knocked me out of bounds but it was a big play."

Lake Mary went on to score six plays later for a 6-0 lead. The Silver Hawks, who had over 200 yards total offense but also had four turnovers, went on to take a 7-6 halftime lead.

The Rams put their second scoring drive together late in the third quarter and extended it into the fourth. With sophomore running back John Curry doing most of the work, Lake Mary drove down to the Lake Howell 24.

But, after Letterio was thrown for a loss on first down, and an incomplete pass on second, the Rams faced a third-and-13. Letterio then found Washington in the open and he broke a few tackles and picked up 11 yards. While trying to fight for the first down, Washington fumbled the ball.

Shownda, Barnett Attain All America

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Seminole High's tremendous 1985 track season was the talk of the town for some time in the city of Sanford. Now, the squad has attained national recognition.

Shownda Martin and Frank Barnett along with the girls mile relay team were recently selected National High School All-America by the National Athletic Coaches Association.

Martin, as a freshman, won the 880 yard dash at the 4A State Meet and destroyed the state record in the process. Her time of 2:09.50 (converted to 800 meters) was the fourth fastest time in the nation and less than two seconds off the top time (2:07.60) which was turned in by Shelly McBride of Crete, Ill.

The top 10 times in each event were All-America.

"They had told me over the summer I was probably going to be ranked," Martin said. "But I was kind of surprised when I found out. At first, I couldn't believe it. I thought they may have messed up because I thought there were a lot of girls with better times."

Martin was also part of the mile relay team that won the event at the state meet in record time. Seminole's time of 3:47.10 ranked fifth in the nation (converted to 1,600 meter relay). The top time was 3:43.30 by a team from Pasadena, Cal.

The Seminole High mile relay team included Martin and Dorehelle Webster, both freshman last season, along with seniors Glenda Bass and Trina Walker. While Webster and Martin continue to excel for Seminole, Bass and Walker are now running cross country and will run track at Florida A&M University.

Seminole coach Emory Blake said he found out last week about the selections. He said the girls will each receive plaques and certificates.

"It's really great for a couple young kids like Shownda and Dorehelle to be All-America," Blake said. "And the two seniors that we had were All-America, too. That's a pretty good record."

Martin went on to win the 800 meters in the National Junior Olympics meet this past summer at Seattle. The experience she gained in the national meets will make her that much more competitive this coming track season.

"We still don't know what her full potential is," Blake said. "We expect bigger and better things out of Shownda this year. We're going to concentrate on running her in the open quarter and 880. We're working on her conditioning so she can run both events in the big meets."

For Martin, being All-America as a freshman is a great accomplishment. But she has three more seasons to go and won't rest on what she's already done.

"I'm just going to go out and start new again this year," Martin said.

Barnett merited All-America status in the 110 meter high hurdles with his converted time (from 120 yards) of 13.74 which was fourth in the nation. Actually, it was tied for third with Hialeah-Miami Lakes Michael Timpson who barely nudged out Barnett at the state meet and had the same time of 13.74.

Barnett is now attending the University of Arizona while Timpson is a pass receiver and kick returner for the Penn State football team.

Billy Pentek, the state champion in the mile last season as a junior, was named All-America Honorable Mention.

Lyman, Rams Make Names

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — While Fort Lauderdale Pine Crest and Winter Park were battling for the team title at the National Spa And Pool Institute Meet at the Justus Aquatic Center, Lyman and Lake Mary were making names for themselves among state-class competition.

With 51 teams and 904 swimmers vying for places in the top 16, Lyman managed an impressive 10th-place finish in the combined scores and a shocking fifth place finish in the boys'.

The most surprising happening of the meet occurred when Pine Crest handed the Wildcats their first defeat in over three years 633.5-417.5 in combined scores. However, the 'Cats managed to nip the Pine Crest boys, 289.5-286.

Charlie "Chazz" Rose led the boys' assault by scoring the most points for the 'Hounds. Rose finished fourth in the 100 backstroke at 55.27 and placed 10th in the 50 freestyle with a time of 22.78.

Meanwhile, hard-working Tom Mooney and Chuck Reinighaus added the only other individual places for the Greyhounds. Reinighaus placed seventh in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:06.84. Mooney added an 11th in the 100 free with a finishing time of 51.16.

On the girls' side sophomore Karen Long and Milette Webber led the way. Long finished 15th in the 50 free at 26.7 and Webber added a 15th in the 100 fly with a time of 1:04.56.

Lake Mary, with its fantastic freshmen, finished 17th overall and 16th in the boys' meet. Leading the way for the Rams was senior Todd Stebbins.

Swimming

Stebbins, starting to overcome his early-season mediocrity, washed away his doubts about being average with an overpowering swim in the 100 fly. Stebbins managed to touch in third at 54.63.

The other outstanding Ram was freshman dynamo Karl Kuchma. Kuchma showed he can swim with the big boys as he had an outstanding 100 breast swim to finish third in 1:04.16. Kuchma also placed 15th in the 200 individual medley with a time of 2:12.65.

In the girls' competition for the Rams, it was all Kelly Wise. Wise, only a freshman, splashed her way to a ninth place finish in the 100 breast and an 11th in the 200 I.M. with times of 1:12.16 and 2:16.62, respectively.

Across the county for Trinity Prep, the Salts turned in All America swims by Rachael Weightman and Chris Donahue.

Weightman earned All America honors in the 500 free with a winning time of 4:58.61. Weightman also won the 200 free, using a track start showed to her by Olympic gold medalist Rowdy Gaines, with a time of 1:52.1. Weightman was also named the most valuable swimmer by scoring 40 points, the most one can score in a meet.

Donahue, on the other hand, achieved All America consideration by winning the 100 breast with a time of 1:00.36. Donahue also placed sixth in the 200 I.M. with a finishing time of 1:59.58.

Cards Rake L.A.

Fernando Valenzuela will be on the mound Tuesday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers try to check the hot bats of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Redbirds raked the Dodgers, 12-2, Sunday to even their National League Championship Playoff Series at 2-2. The Kansas Royals stayed off elimination with a 2-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. See Page 6A for all the details.

'Sloppy' Rams Overhaul Bucs

TAMPA (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams returned home Sunday still unbeaten, untied and barely unshamed.

In a sloppy, uninspired performance more befitting a basement club than a 6-0 team, the Rams used second-half interception returns by LeRoy Irvin and Carl Ekern for touchdowns en route to a 31-27 victory over the still winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Los Angeles committed four turnovers, suffered seven sacks and had 11 penalties for 94 yards as only the errant right arm of Tampa Bay's Steve DeBerg kept the Rams perfect in NFL standings.

"There is nothing to it," said Los Angeles Coach John Robinson with a nervous laugh. "I hope we can live through the season. It was wild and chaotic out there today. We had an overwhelming amount of penalties in the first half (8-69) and we were trying to drown in our own mistakes. We seem to be the type of team that takes advantage of turnovers and we're happy to get out of town with the win. I think we're the kind of team you have to like."

Not if you're a football purist. After the majesty of last week's goal-line stand against Minnesota, preserving a 13-10 triumph, the Rams left their game behind in Anaheim, Calif. Los Angeles gained just 282 yards in total offense and virtually handed the Buccaneers a 20-14 halftime advantage.

Ekern, an inside linebacker, gave the Rams a 24-20 lead with 4:11 left in the

Samocki Leads 'Ho-Hum' Lady Hawk Win

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Seminole County cross country teams were divided between a pair of meets in the Central Florida area Saturday and there were some outstanding performances at both.

●In the Boone Invitational at Orlando, Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks wrote another chapter in the book on pack running as the top-ranked team in the state (4A) rolled to another first place. Meanwhile, Lake Brantley's young Lady Patriots continued their march upward with a second place finish. In the Boone boys meet, Lake Howell sophomore Anthony Howe led the Silver Hawks to a fourth place finish.

●In the Bishop Moore Invitational at the University of Central Florida, Seminole High's girls took third place with a strong showing from its top three. The Seminole boys were fourth behind three teams ranked in the top 10 in the state (4A).

For Lake Howell, which finished with a team score of 33, junior Lisa Samocki led the way as she won the two-mile race on a hot and humid Saturday morning with a time of 11:48. Following Samocki in the top five were junior Martha Fonseca (third at 12:16), freshman Jenny Bolt (eighth at 12:52), sophomore Bonnie Oliver (ninth at 13:05) and junior Mary Fonseca (12th at 13:07). Also running for the Hawks were seniors Angie Smith (14th at 13:12) and Amy Ertel (17th at 13:26).

"It wasn't pretty but sometimes they're not," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said. "After Florida State it was kind of anticlimatic. The girls aren't going to stay charged up all the time. But it was a nice win."

Lake Brantley turned in a fine performance despite a tough week of practice. The Lady Patriots took second in the meet with a team score of 89.

"It was a surprise to get the runnerup trophy," Brantley coach Mary Littlebrant said. "We worked really hard physically last week and we didn't put much into it emotionally Saturday. We're really preparing for the DeLand Invitational."

Sophomore Colleen Lievertz was first in for the Lady Patriots as she finished 11th at 13:06 followed by junior Michelle Herbst who was 15th at 13:23. Completing the top five were senior Kim Pacetelli (13:28) and freshmen Heather Camino (13:33) and

Cross Country

Heather Hammontree (13:47).

In the girls junior varsity race, Lake Howell took first place with a team score of 26 followed by Brantley at 50. Three of the Lady Hawks top five took a wrong turn in the race but they got back in the right direction in time to lead the JV Lady Hawks to victory.

Lake Howell's top five included Rachel Barnes (first at 13:03), Kim Laseur (fourth at 14:41), Cindy Oliver (sixth at 14:45), Terry Gringer (seventh at 14:59) and Kim Hammontree (eighth at 15:04).

In the Boone boys meet, eighth-ranked Palm Bay came out on top, edging out 3A power Titusville by one point, 66-67. Orlando Colonial was a close third at 69 followed by Lake Howell at 93, Lyman at 122, Boone at 141 and Lake Brantley at 180.

Howe, the Lyman Freshman-Sophomore meet champion, took fourth place with a time of 16:06. Colonial's Alan Salyers was first at 15:51.

At UCF, sophomores Shownda

Martin and Dorehelle Webster and senior Debbie Coleman all finished in the top 10 as Seminole High took third place with a team score of 86. Orange Park was first at 39 and Clearwater Countryside second at 49. Both teams that finished ahead of the Lady Seminoles are ranked in the top 10 in the state.

Martin finished fourth in the race with a time of 12:34 and Webster was fifth at 12:44. Coleman was ninth at 13:21 to give Seminole a score of 18 after its first three runners were in. But, as has been the case all season, the Lady Tribe's third and fourth runners were too far back as the next two places added up to 68.

Orange Park's Ellie Runice was the individual champion with a time of 12:11.

Lake Mary's girls finished seventh with a team score of 151. The Lady Rams' top five included Tabatha Gano (22nd at 14:39), Heather Heikkila (26th at 14:48), Debi Smith (32nd at 15:11), Lisa Shelby (35th at 16:09) and Marjan Stonerock (36th at 16:21).

In the Bishop Moore boys meet, top-ranked Clearwater Countryside had three of the top five individuals and finished with a team score of 26 compared to 41 for fourth-ranked Gainesville Buchholz, 73 for fifth-ranked Orange Park and 107 for Seminole High.

Senior Billy Penick led the Tribe as he finished fifth with a time of 15:51. Countryside's Roger Letchworth, the top-ranked individual in the state, won at 15:22.

LADY GREYHOUNDS PLACE 7TH

While Lake Howell and Seminole High's boys and girls were doing well in Central Florida meets, another team journeyed outside of the area and turned in a sensational performance.

Winter Park's Lady Wildcats, ranked third going into the meet, topped second-ranked Largo, 46-60, at the Brandon Bishop Invitational. Kim Bovis and Amy Gamber, two of the top individuals in the state, led the way for the Lady Wildcats.

Meanwhile, another area team didn't fare as well in Brandon as Lyman's Lady Greyhounds finished seventh out of 15 teams with a team score of 177.

"We had a few people who sat out and a few who had bad races," Lyman coach Joe Laughlin said. "It was not one of our better meets. We'll just chalk it up as a learning experience and hope to do better next time."

Wadkins Fires 63, Nips Hoch

LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) — Every time Scott Hoch made another birdie he was only able to keep even with the hard-charging Lanny Wadkins.

Wadkins, who is among the favorites for Player of the Year honors, gained one stroke and then another Sunday en route to a 9-under-par 63 and the $70,000 first prize in the Walt Disney World Classic.

"Sure it is (disappointing)," said Hoch, who led after the second and third rounds, but finished in a tie for second with Mike Donald at 20-under 268, one stroke behind Wadkins.

"But it would be more disappointing if I didn't play well. The guy had to hit a 63 to beat me."

Hoch said every time he thought he had furthered his lead with a birdie, he would look at the leader board and find Wadkins had also birdied.

"I was getting very upset," said Wadkins. "One time I thought I had a lead of a shot or two. I looked up and it was tied. One time I thought I had gone into the lead, looked up and I was a shot behind."

"It was getting kind of frustrating I said, 'Well, I'll just have to keep making birdies.'"

Wadkins, with his third victory of the season and 15th on the PGA tour, strung together three solid rounds — 68, 67 and 69 — before his record-tying 63, on the 7,150-yard Magnolia course at Walt Disney World.

Wadkins, 35, faltered at the start of the round, driving his ball into the rough on No. 1 and near a tree on No. 2, but saved both for par. He birdied No. 3 and eagled No. 4, and missed short putts for birdies on No. 8 and No. 9 before taking off. He birdied six of the next seven holes.

Wadkins called the 90-plus temperature and high humidity "oppressive" but said the weather was not as much of a factor as it could have been.

"I've never spent a week anywhere in Florida (before) where there wasn't wind. This was just unbelievable, an entire week of no wind here at all."

Donald began the day in second, two strokes behind Hoch. The 30-year-old from Hollywood, Fla., had six birdies, including four on the back nine, to offset a bogey on No. 9.

Donald and Hoch each earned $35,200.

Gary Koch and Payne Stewart, the 1983 tournament winner, finished at 19-under at 269, followed by Gary McCord at 17 under and Andy Bean another stroke back.

third period when he stepped in front of a DeBerg slant pass intended for Jerry Bell and scampered 33 yards for a touchdown.

With boos ringing in his helmet, DeBerg fired a 13-yard TD pass to Gerald Carter to put Tampa Bay back ahead early in the fourth quarter, capping a 57-yard drive. DeBerg sustained the march with a 24-yard completion to Theo Bell on third-and-five from the Tampa Bay 48.

With 5:58 left, DeBerg overthrew Carter and Irvin took the theft and dashed 34 yards for the winning score. Irvin also intercepted DeBerg's next pass as the disconsolate crowd of 39,607 broke into a chant of "We want Young," referring to celebrated backup quarterback Steve Young of Tampa Bay.

"When I was in Denver and (Craig) Morton was the quarterback, they were yelling for me," said DeBerg, who completed 14-of-34 passes for 161 yards with four interceptions. "Last year when (Jack) Thompson was quarterback, they did the same. I felt like the defense played outstanding and we should win when we play that well. I take a large part of the blame; I threw two interceptions for TDs and that was the difference."

Eric Dickerson, who fumbled twice while gaining 75 yards on 25 carries, scored on a 6-yard run and Dieter Brock threw a 23-yard TD pass to Bobby Duckworth in the first half for the Rams, who also got a 27-yard field goal by Mike Lamsford in the third period.

The resilient Brock shook off the seven sacks to complete 16-of-23 passes for 195 yards.

DeBerg also had a 17-yard scoring pass to Kevin House, James Wilder plunged over from a yard out and rookie Donald Igwebukwe kicked field goals of 34 and 49 yards for the Buccaneers, who are winless under new coach Leeman Bennett.

The former Atlanta coach, asked about the possibility of Young starting for DeBerg next week in Miami, replied, "I have no plans to make any changes on my original thoughts." Bennett reiterated Young will not play for at least the next several weeks.

L.A. Turns To Valenzuela To Cool Off Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — If recent history holds, the St. Louis Cardinals are in perfect shape today for the fifth game of the National League playoffs.

The Cardinals, who admit to having played poor baseball in the opening two games against Los Angeles, squared their best-of-seven series with a 12-2 rout of the Dodgers Sunday night.

The Dodgers, who looked so sharp in gaining a 2-0 lead in the series after triumphs at Dodger Stadium, look to their ace, Fernando Valenzuela, to end a streak of home domination in the NLCS. Valenzuela was the winner in Game 1 of the series.

The last 12 games in the NLCS have been won by the home team. Ironically, the last team to win on the road was Philadelphia with Steve Carlton besting Jerry Reuss on Oct. 4, 1983.

St. Louis, which has played as well at home as it did poorly on the road, will go with veteran right-hander Bob Forsch against Valenzuela. Forsch hasn't pitched in 10 days but his last outing was a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs that clinched a tie for the division championship.

"We're down to a best-of-three series," said Dodger manager

Tommy Lasorda, whose team was victimized by a nine-run second inning in Game 4, the biggest in playoff history. "It was just another ball game. We lost. We are tied 2-2."

The Dodgers figure to have an edge with Valenzuela, even though the Cardinals bats came alive without the presence of Vince Coleman, injured in a freak accident with the automatic tarp before the game.

Valenzuela yielded only one run in the Dodgers' opening 4-1 victory, scattering seven hits over 6 1/3 innings.

"I'm confident he is going to give us a good game," said Los Angeles catcher Mike Scioscia. "I think it's just a coincidence we have played well at home and played poorly on the road."

Forsch, who made three relief appearances against Los Angeles this year, is 8-11 lifetime against the Dodgers.

"I don't want to talk before I pitch," Forsch said.

"We need a great performance from Forsch and I think we'll get it," said St. Louis second baseman Tommy Herr. "We don't want to go to LA down a game."

Forsch got the nod from St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog over Joaquin Andujar, who was roughed up in Game 2. However, Andujar will pitch the sixth game and John Tudor, the winner in the fourth game, will again come back on three days rest if a seventh game is necessary.

Herzog had considered not starting Coleman, who suffered contusions on his left leg, against Valenzuela in the opener. Tito Landrum, who replaced Coleman in the lineup, made the decision to rest Coleman today that much easier when he went 4-for-5, drove in three runs and scored once.

Landrum and Jack Clark, who came to life with three hits, three runs scored and a RBI, each had a pair of hits in the nine-run second that saw 14 men go to the plate.

"I don't know if Vince's injury inspired us. We were sorry it happened and we hope he recovers," said Landrum, who tied a NLCS mark with four hits.

Coleman should be ready for a sixth game in LA on Wednesday.

Reuss gave up seven of the nine runs, leaving after 1 2/3 innings. He might have escaped most of the damage had third baseball Bill Madlock handled a sharp grounder by Cesar Cedeno after Clark had led off with a single.

"When you have a second inning like that it is very, very difficult to come back," said Lasorda. "Everything they hit that inning found a way to get through."

Madlock's inability to field the grounder wasn't an error but two other misplays in the inning also cost the Dodgers. Reuss failed to handle a squeeze bunt attempt by Tudor that netted another run and shortstop Mariano Duncan did not handle a sharp grounder by Ozzie Smith which also drove in a run.

Players' Union, Management Deny Drug Test Is 'Imminent'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Though a broadcast report Sunday said major league baseball players were close to accepting mandatory drug testing, spokesmen for the players' union and management said no such agreement was imminent.

Larry King, reporting on NBC's pregame show "NFL 85" said, "We have learned exclusively that major league baseball will soon sign an historic agreement with the Players Association regarding testing for drugs. We checked it out with two sources and it is a firm story."

However, Lee MacPhail, president of the owners' Player Relations Committee, and Donald Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, denied the report.

"We have a ways to go" before an agreement is reached, MacPhail said in an interview with UPI. He declined to describe specifics of the proposal.

MacPhail said the players' union and management met Friday in their first discussion of the drug testing issue. He said the management team presented a proposal which generally followed the outlines of a drug plan advocated by Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

Jackson's Shutout Staves Off Elimination

A.L. Playoffs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Danny Jackson's pitching kept both Dan Quisenberry and Al Oliver out of Game 5 of the American League Championship Series. As a result, there will be a Game 6.

Jackson scattered eight hits and stranded eight Toronto runners Sunday to help the Kansas City Royals stave off elimination with a 2-0 victory over the Blue Jays. It was the first complete game performance by either side in this year's AL playoffs.

And that was good news for the Royals, whose normally reliable bullpen has become disaster prone as Kansas City fell behind 3-1 in the best-of-seven series. Twice Oliver entered games late and delivered a game-winning hit off Quisenberry, the American League Fireman of the Year.

But with the left-handed Jackson pitching his way out of jam after jam, the left-handed hitting Oliver remained on the bench. And Quisenberry, who has allowed four runs and seven hits in 3 2/3 innings, remained seated in the bullpen.

Jackson was at both his worst and his best in the fifth and sixth innings of his first career post-season start.

Garth Iorg singled to open the fifth off Jackson and went to third when Ernie Whitl followed with a double. But Jackson then retired Tony Fernandez on a groundout to third, Damaso Garcia on a pop out to second and Lloyd Moseby on a groundout to second to preserve his 2-0 lead.

The Blue Jays then loaded the bases in the sixth on singles by Jesse Barfield and Willie Upshaw and a walk to Iorg. But Jackson induced Whitl to bounce into an inning-ending groundout to second base.

"Danny had a rough time in the middle innings," Kansas City manager Dick Howser said. "Some guys might look to the bullpen in that situation but not Danny Jackson. He wanted the ball."

Whitl was the first in a string of 10 consecutive Blue Jays retired by Jackson from the sixth through the end of the game.

"I think Jackson is one of the best left-handers in the league," said Toronto outfielder Jesse Barfield. "Give him credit. He got the outs."

That sends the series back to Toronto for Game 6 Tuesday night and, if necessary, Game 7 on Wednesday. The Royals will attempt to become only the fourth team in baseball history to rally from a 3-1 deficit to win a post-season series.

"We've got a chance now," Howser said. "We've got a better chance now. We have to win only two in a row instead of three. It's going to be tough."

"They're at home," Howser said, "but if our pitching can come close to what we had Sunday, we can get this thing done. This club has won two and three games in a row this season."

The Royals jumped in front 1-0 off Jimmy Key in the first inning when Lonnie Smith doubled, stole third and came home on an RBI groundout by George Brett. Singles by Frank White and Steve Balboni and a sacrifice fly by Darryl Motley then closed out the scoring in the second.

"When you only score two runs, you need a shutout," Howser said. "We PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Gordon Johncock, the two-time Indianapolis 500 champion who retired from racing last May, said Sunday he intends to rejoin the Indy-car circuit.

PHOENIX (UPI) — The chase for the CART driving championship has become a family affair.

A Unser Sr., who took the Phoenix 150 lead midway through the race and lapped the field Sunday to take the victory, moved past his son, Al Jr., into first place in the CART point standings with one race remaining.

didn't have any other choice. Danny just shut them down — that's something we haven't been able to do this series. We've had leads but we haven't been able to hold them. I'm just glad we had Danny out there."

Howser will send 14-game winner Mark Gubicza out for his first ever post-season start Tuesday night against Doyle Alexander, who was roughed up for five runs on seven hits and gave up two home runs to George Brett in Game 3. The Royals wound up winning that one, 6-5, with Jim Clancy absorbing the loss.

"If we can't win one out of two," said Barfield, "we don't deserve to be there. We just have to tighten our belts. Every game is important."

Israel Calls Delegate An Admitted Terrorist

LONDON (UPI) — British officials today cancelled a meeting with two senior Palestine Liberation Organization officials — one described by Israel as an admitted terrorist — because they refused to formally recognize Israel's right to exist, the Foreign Office said.

"We are deeply disappointed that the opportunity offered by this meeting has been missed," Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe said in announcing the last-minute cancellation.

Howe did meet the foreign minister and deputy prime minister of Jordan, who had planned to participate with the two Palestinians. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher invited the Jordanian-PLO delegation to Britain last month in hopes of creating a breakthrough in the flagging Middle East peace process.

Howe said Thatcher's invitation was based on an "understanding" that the PLO delegates "personally supported a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute on the basis of the relevant United Nations resolutions and were opposed to terrorism and violence."

Coalition Retains Majority?

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Belgians voted to maintain the controlling Christian Democrat-Liberal coalition in Parliament in general elections that focused on economic austerity policies.

With 90 percent of the votes in from Sunday's election, forecasts showed the Christian Democrats won 69 seats in the 212-member Chamber of Representatives — a gain of eight — and the Liberals garnered 46, for a loss of six.

Together, the coalition would hold 115 seats, two more than in the previous Parliament.

When full returns are in today, King Baudouin is expected to consult party leaders on the formation of the next government.

The opposition Socialists, who campaigned for more state investments to revive the economy, were expected to win 67 seats — a gain of six over the previous Parliament.

The environmentalist Greens party was expected to win nine seats, up from four, while the Communists were expected to lose their two seats in the Chamber, the first time they would be ousted since the end of World War II.

Bush, Zhao Discuss Differences

PEKING (UPI) — Vice President George Bush began talks today with Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang that were expected to focus on such key irritants as trade relations and U.S. links with Taiwan, officials said.

Bush, flanked by top State Department and national security officials, met with Zhao and Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian across a negotiating table in the Great Hall of the People.

U.S. officials said the two leaders were likely to focus on trouble spots in Sino-American ties, such as mounting U.S. trade protectionism and American links with Taiwan, which Peking considers a rebel province.

The official Peking Review magazine today accused the United States of obstructing the reunification of China and warned the Taiwan issue posed potentially "critical setbacks" to Sino-U.S. relations.

Evacuation Is Ended At Site Of Ammonia Leak

LAKE CITY (UPI) — Some 500 people are back home today after being evacuated when a freight train derailed and a tanker leaked anhydrous ammonia in their rural neighborhood.

All but about 10 people in the Fairfield neighborhood returned home Sunday night after hazardous chemical experts sealed the leak. The others were not permitted to return as a precautionary measure, said officer Monica Taylor of the Columbia County Sheriff's Department.

"Actually there were two cars leaking," she said. "All of the chemicals have been removed from the main one."

She said a small leak in the second tanker was being repaired.

The tanker was punctured Saturday about 5 p.m. when a Seaboard Coastline train derailed about six miles west of Lake City. Thirty-eight cars derailed, five of them filled with anhydrous ammonia, said firefighter Rodney Helms. Anhydrous ammonia contains no water but is pressurized to liquid form and is used to make fertilizer.

Teen Dies During Legal Battle

MIAMI (UPI) — A comatose teenager whose family was working to stop doctors from disconnecting her life-support systems died of cardiac failure before the legal issues could be resolved.

Katherine Norlega, 17, was pronounced dead at 8:25 a.m. Saturday after her heart stopped beating, a hospital spokesman said Sunday. Funeral services are scheduled for today at St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

Dr. Mario Nanes, the neurosurgeon in charge of her case, said her family was in the hospital with her when she died.

Kathy had been in a coma since Aug. 25 when the car she was driving smashed head-on into a pickup truck. Doctors at Mount Sinai said she was brain-dead when she transferred to the hospital Aug. 29 and sought to disconnect her life-support system.

Americans Win Nobel Prize For Medicine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — American geneticists Michael S. Brown and Joseph L. Goldstein today won the 1985 Nobel Prize for Medicine for discovering new ways to treat and prevent certain types of artery disease and heart attacks.

Brown and Goldstein have said their research may one day make it "possible for many people to have their steak and live to enjoy it, too," according to the Nobel committee.

The Nobel Medicine Prize Committee cited Goldstein, professor and chairman of the department of molecular genetics at the University of Texas-Dallas, and Brown, a professor in the same department, for their discoveries in "the regulation of cholesterol metabolism."

The doctors discovered that atherosclerosis and heart attacks may stem from genetic defects in a cell molecule called the low density lipoprotein, or LDL, receptor, from which cholesterol in the blood is extracted.

"The discoveries made by Brown and Goldstein have drastically widened our understanding of the cholesterol metabolism and increased our possibilities to prevent and treat atherosclerosis and heart attacks," the committee said.

Atherosclerosis, the most common form of hardening of the arteries, or arteriosclerosis, is a disease in which fatty deposits from food build up on the inner walls of arteries, setting the stage for a heart attack or stroke.

The blood vessels become narrowed, reducing blood flow and increasing the danger that a clot may block an artery.

Ashdod "to launch a suicide mission in occupied territory" to avenge the Oct. 1 Israeli attack on PLO headquarters in Tunisia that killed at least 73 people.

Abbas denied the four hijackers shot Klinghoffer, claiming he died of fright.

Zarkovic's promise to answer the extradition request came during a joint news conference with Willy Brandt, president of the West German Social Democratic Party.

"Yugoslavia is a sovereign country which solves such issues after considering all relevant facts," Zarkovic said. "Yugoslav competent organs will make a statement soon."

FBI Director William Webster, in an interview on the CBS News program "Face the Nation" Sunday in Washington, said Yugoslavia had already rejected the request.

U.S. Ambassador to Italy Maxwell Rabb, in a meeting Sunday in Rome with Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti, voiced his displeasure at Italy's decision to let Abbas and a colleague leave for Yugoslavia.

The two flew by commercial airline to Belgrade Saturday, shortly after U.S. authorities had issued a warrant for his arrest.

"I pointed out that it is incomprehensible to the government of the United States and to the people of the United States how Abbas could be permitted to leave Italy," Rabb told reporters after the two-hour, 40-minute meeting.

The U.S. envoy, a personal friend of President Reagan, delivered a strongly worded written protest from Washington to the office of Prime Minister Bettino Craxi following the departure of Abbas and the other Palestinian official.

Craxi said Sunday Italy's release of Abbas will seem "just and wise" when all the "facts are known and examined."

Abbas, leader of a Palestine Liberation Organization splinter group, the Palestine Liberation Faction, and the other man arrived in Italy aboard an Egyptian airliner carrying the four hijackers of the cruise ship.

The airliner was intercepted by U.S. warplanes Thursday as it took the hijackers to what they apparently thought was safe haven in Tunisia or Algeria.

In Washington Sunday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes described Abbas as a "notorious Palestinian terrorist." Other administration officials have said he is responsible for several terrorist acts in Israel.

In Cairo, U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Vellotes said all the Americans had conducted themselves with courage and dignity during the hijacking.

The New York Times reported today that Stanley Kubacki, a Philadelphia judge held hostage aboard the cruise ship, said the ship's chief bartender told him he saw two terrorists shoot and kill Klinghoffer. If the report is correct, the bartender would be the only witness to the killing.

The property is located at 2680 Orlando Drive in the Fairway Plaza. The city Planning and zoning board has recommended that the commission grant the request.

Final action is also scheduled for an ordinance closing, vacating, and abandoning a portion of Georgia Avenue between West 25th Street and West 24th Street and a portion of West 24th Place lying between Georgia Avenue and Hartwell Avenue, reserving a utility easement. The petitioner is Cris Crissmond of G&C Engineering Consultants.

The commission will consider a request by John P. White of Plants at Work, which has an office at 106 E. First St., to operate a peddler's table for four hours each Saturday morning in the Rand Mall outside of the Hampton Gardens Restaurant to sell plants and flowers, pottery and baskets.

The city code requires that such displays be moved after two hours.

In his request White said, "We have discussed our intentions with business owners on First Street and they have given positive endorsement of our idea." He said a petition with signatures from downtown business people will be presented if necessary.

Plants at Work has been in-involved in the interior plantscape, landscape, and maintenance business in the city since 1984. White said he has permission from the building owner Gerald Gross to set up the table under the bridge that connects the two buildings.

Other items on the agenda:

- A public hearing to consider closing, vacating and abandoning a portion of Depot Avenue lying between Wylly Avenue and vacated Lemon Street and abutting the westerly right-of-way line of Seaboard Coastline right-of-way.

- Requests for time extensions on condemnations by Johnny Williams concerning 1703 W. 15th St.; Gary Williams, 815 E. 7th St.; Lula Mae Bryant, 909 Pecan Ave.;

and Bobby Jackson, 109 Mangoustine Ave.

- Discussion of a name for the park in Academy Manor.

- Acceptance of a utility easement from Dr. Charles Hardwick and authorization of water and sewer lines to be placed on the east side of the Public Works Complex.

- Report by Alvin Jones, president, of the Youth Advisory Committee's first project.

- Preliminary consideration of the following ordinances: amendments to the building code submitted by the Central Examining Board tabled from the Sept. 23 meeting; reviewing rates for system development charges; and setting up a Human Relations Committee.

Art Group Meeting

The Sanford-Seminole Art Association will meet today to view a mural and discuss pricing of art objects for an upcoming show.

The meeting will be held at the Sanford School Museum, Seventh St. and Myrtle Ave., Sanford at 7 p.m.

The discussion concerns entries in the coming St. Johns River Arts and Craft Festival, Oct. 26-27.

version of the bill is pending in the Senate and President Reagan, who opposes both versions, is expected to veto the bill if it ever reaches his desk.

When she joined a Washington public relations firm three years ago, "I was told if I scheduled an early morning event, I should give the press coffee and donuts," Kostmayer said in an interview. "After attending a few boring press conferences, I decided they would rather have visuals."

And that's what she gives them. Kostmayer, who got her early training as a publicist with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, decided a picture was truly worth a thousand words when dealing with complicated national issues.

For example, a few years ago she decided to wheel coffins and urns with price tags into a Senate committee room to demonstrate how her client would comply with a new federal rule requiring funeral homes to inform their customers of the variety of prices available for their services.

For another client seeking legislation to protect brand-name garment makers from counterfeiters, she dressed twins in identical outfits and sent them to Capitol Hill to ask lawmakers, "Which twin has the phony?" The bill was approved.

Asked what it was like to go home in the evening to her husband, who was one of the 262 House members that voted for the textile bill, Kostmayer replied: "Interesting."

She said they constantly tried to outdo each other by unearthing new facts on the issue.

"I know when he is losing ground when he repeats himself," she said before the House vote. But for round one at least, it was Mrs., not Mr., Kostmayer who lost ground.

Witness Search Delays Organ Donor's Charity

DEAR ABBY: I sent for a donor form from the Living Bank because I wanted to donate my organs after my death. I received the form, but I can't get any witnesses to sign it.

My husband said, "You can't imagine how hard it would be for me to agree to something like that."

Dear Abby

The rest of my family refused because they are afraid some doctors might get "scalpel happy" and start removing the organs they need before I'm dead.

I took the form to church five Sundays in a row trying to get two witnesses for my signature, but nobody would sign it. They said I might need all my parts at the Resurrection, and they didn't want to be responsible for my being resurrected without a badly needed organ.

The only person who was willing to sign is my son, and he's only 17. What else can I do, short of standing on a street corner soliciting signatures from total strangers?

KATHERINE IN GEORGETOWN, TEXAS

DEAR KATHERINE: Your husband needs to understand that willing one's organs after death in order to improve the quality of life for the living is one of the most noble and generous acts a person can perform. Besides, you own your body — your husband doesn't.

The possibility that some "scalpel-happy" surgeon might "murder" a patient for his parts is unrealistic, as a patient must be pronounced dead by two doctors before a death certificate is signed.

And as for "needing" all your organs for the Resurrection, the benevolent act of willing one's organs after death has been approved by most religions, so should you return to life again in the body of your previous life, trust the good Lord to miraculously restore or replace the missing parts.

Please give my regards to your 17-year-old son, who apparently inherited his mother's generosity and compassion.

DEAR ABBY: That tears it! In all the years I've been reading your column, I've never written to you, but I can't let the letter from "My Side of It" go unchallenged!

"My Side of It" excuses her failure to acknowledge her wedding gifts because she was three months' pregnant, feeling lousy, and had to drag herself to work daily because her husband was laid off and they needed the money.

Why couldn't her laid-off husband write the thank-you notes? The wedding gifts were for both of them, weren't they? Or is he the kind of "man" who thinks all the writing in the family is the wife's responsibility?

DISGUSTED IN CANADA

DEAR DISGUSTED: You will be heartened to know that many others asked that question. Although I don't know what kind of "man" he is, I suspect it never occurred to either one of them that he should have tackled the job.

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.)

In And Around Longwood School's P.E. Department Recipient Of State Award

Longwood Elementary School's principal, David Scott, has announced that the school's Physical Education Department will receive the State Recognition Award from the Florida Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance for their unique and outstanding gymnastics and tumbling scores.

This program consists of physical education class activities, an after school group and a performing team called the Tumbling Tornadoes.

The Tumbling Tornadoes consist of almost 50 boys and girls who range in age from kindergarten through the fifth grade. They perform at schools, fairs, special celebrations and for civic organizations. Last year over 10,000 people saw their shows presenting tumbling skills, music, comedy, audience participation and an unicycle act. Teacher Michael Platt developed and directs the outstanding physical education program.

The award will be presented at the F.A.H.P.E.R.D. State Conference Awards Banquet on Oct. 18 at the Daytona Beach Plaza Hotel.

and membership chairman. Members will celebrate the organization's 24th birthday with a special cake baked and decorated for the occasion.

Hostesses are Doreene Fish, chairman, with Ida Cox, Lynda Buffalo and Kathleen Buffalo assisting.

South Seminole Community Hospital and Rock Lake Middle School are working together to make learning fun for the health education students at the Longwood school. On Oct. 15-17, the students will participate in a Health Fair that centers on the students' health education curriculum.

The Health Fair will be held in the Media Center at Rock Lake Middle School and will feature educational displays and activities and some health screenings provided by area health agencies, including the American Heart Association, the American Lung Association, the American Diabetes Association, the American Cancer Society, Central Florida Blood Bank, the Public Health Department, West Lake Hospital and South Seminole Community Hospital.

The agencies will provide information that will help to answer the students' questions about noncommunicable diseases, such as diabetes and cancer, the effects of smoking, blood disorders, blood pressure, AIDS, venereal disease, adolescent drug abuse, suicide, and how adolescents deal with stress. Parents are also encouraged to attend the fair.

Dental Assistants Recognition Week Set

Dental Assistants are indispensable members of the dental healthcare team, according to Bonnie Bonner, certified dental assistant of Sanford. "They are vital to the success and viability of any dental practice," she said.

Dental Assistants Recognition Week, scheduled for Oct. 20-26, acknowledges the contributions that dental assistants have made to the dental profession and offers an opportunity to recognize the commitment and dedication they exhibit throughout the year.

The theme of this year's celebration, which follows ADA's 61st annual session, is "The Sky's the Limit."

The ADA has been the recognized voice of dental assisting for over 60 years. It remains committed to enhancing the public image and the stature of the dental assisting profession and providing quality healthcare to the public.

The Cause Of Lupus Still Unknown Today

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — Lupus Awareness Week begins Oct. 13. Would you please comment on lupus?

DEAR READER — In Latin, "lupus" means "wolf." The disease of lupus erythematosus is aptly named. It is savage and vicious. The illness, which is of unknown cause, afflicts the body's connective tissue so that normal organs are attacked by the very cells that should be protecting them. Of the rare dozen or so specific types of lupus, the two most common forms are discoid lupus and systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE). The discoid variety results in skin abnormalities that vary from minor rashes to major scarring and tumor-like growths. Discoid lupus may lead to the more serious SLE.

Systemic lupus is a multisystem disorder, subject to remissions and recurrences. Since it is a disease of connective tissue, it affects the material that acts as cement to hold tissues together. SLE primarily affects joints, skin, mucous membranes and the kidneys. However, 40 percent of SLE patients have cardiovascular involvement; 30 percent have lung complications.

The "butterfly rash" that is supposed to be the hallmark of lupus occurs across the bridge of the nose and both upper cheeks. The disease can cause memory loss, impairment of perception and bleeding problems due to a deficiency in blood-coagulation protein. In fact, there is a "lupus anticoagulant" present in the bloodstreams of many SLE patients. Doctors have found this factor in some women who have had numerous miscarriages, despite the observation that such women have no other signs of SLE.

Lupus affects more women than men, and more black women than white. The peak onset is during the ages of 15 to 25, and the mortality rate approaches 20 percent. Kidney involvement, in the form of nephritis, is the most ominous consequence.

Doctors do not know what causes lupus: viral and genetic factors are suspected. Lupus is not thought to be contagious. Although the number of new cases appears to be increasing, specialists are unsure whether this represents a true increase in the disease rate or whether it simply reflects a greater awareness of the condition. As more sophisticated laboratory techniques (like blood tests) become available, the diagnosis can be made earlier and in younger patients.

To complicate matters further, several widely used drugs — such as hydralazine and procainamide — produce a lupus-like syndrome that usually regresses when the offending medicines are withdrawn.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When the opening lead of the spade 10 brought the queen, king and ace, declarer was in trouble. If clubs divided 3-3 and the club king was outside, he might just be able to catch five heart tricks, four club tricks, the spade ace and the diamond A-K to make his contract.

What about the bidding? It's certainly OK for North to invite with four no-trump. To ask for aces, North could have bid a suit over South's two no-trump and then bid four no-trump, or he might have jumped to four clubs as Gerber over two no-trump. Should South have accepted the invitation? Although South has 19 high-card points, he has no five-card suit and no 10s or nines to help take tricks. Furthermore, South quickly showed why he should have been conservative: He botched the play.

After winning the spade ace, he played a low heart to the queen and was finished. He could take a successful club finesse, but he could no longer make all five heart tricks and still get to dummy enough times to take a second club finesse and then cash the long club. If he plays a second low heart to dummy, West will split his 9-8, preventing declarer from taking all the heart tricks. Do you see the winning line? The first heart declarer leads must be the jack.

When West follows, it's safe to overtake with an honor in dummy. Even though the suit splits 5-0, South can play toward the A-K-10-7 later, and West cannot hurt him by splitting the 9-8.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY OCTOBER 14 1985

Your possibilities for increased income look exceptionally promising for the year ahead. However, you must be careful not to spend what you get as fast as it comes in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) S i m p l y to manage your resources as sensibly as possible today. Don't buy things you can't afford hoping you'll be able to pay for them later. Trying to patch up a romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Guard against being unduly opinionated today. If you show disrespect for the ideas of others, they'll reject your suggestions — including the ones with merit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do nothing today that is contrary to the dictates of your common sense. Problems could result in matters where you go against your better judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Disappointment is likely today if the only reason you give is in hopes of getting a lot more in return. Generous gestures must be sincere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An associate might try to use you in some manner to make himself look good in front of others today. Don't be a patsy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be in a talkative mood today, and this is well and good, but be careful not to speak without thinking. You could wound a sensitive friend's feelings.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Monitor your behavior carefully today so you don't further impose upon a friend who has already gone out of his way to be of assistance to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't seek a critique from close companions today unless you're prepared for candid replies. What they say might displease you.

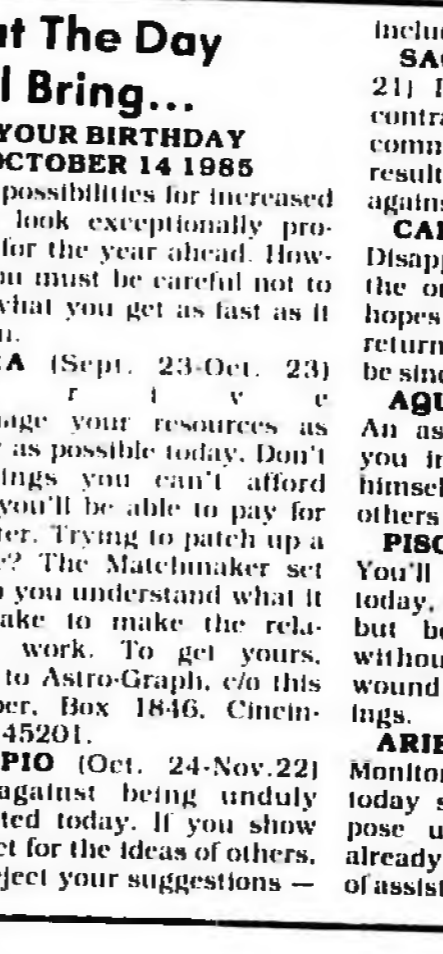

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best not to attempt a tough task today if your heart is not in your work, especially if it is something you promised to do for someone else.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are too possessive or demanding of your loved one today, Cupid may hit you with a few blunt arrows. Treat your sweetheart as you'd like to be treated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to rule the roost with a heavy hand today. Friction on the home front can be avoided if you aren't intolerant or temperamental.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might do more talking and thinking about things that should be done instead of doing them. Words don't move mountains; action does.
