Local Marketing Organization Will Be Joined With Florida Citrus Exchange

Plans for the merger of Chase and Company, the oldest marketing agency in Florida, and the Florida Citrus Exchange, were announced today by officials of both companies in Tampa.

The merger will materialize in thirty days and according to Randall Chase, one of the Chase and Company executives will be effected in conformity with a recommendation of the new Federal Farm Board for the closer unification of marketing.

It was pointed out by Mr. Chase that there are about 150 independent agencies in Florida whose activities necessarily overlap and it is for the purpose of avoiding duplication of effort that the consolidation was urged by the Farm Board.

Mr. Chase stated that the merger would only affect the citrus department of his organization and would in no wise alter the operation of the vegetable department. He said that the sales office of the citrus department would be moved to Tampa but that he contemplated no other changes.

Pantages' Lawyers Will Seek Week's Delay For Appeal

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 31 (INS)—When Alexander Pantages, millionaire showman, appears in court tomorrow to be sentenced, his attorneys have indicated they will ask a week's delay in making arguments for a new trial. It was also indicated, an attempt will be made to secure Pantages' freedom on bail while his attorneys endeavor to secure a new trial.

Since his conviction of attacking Miss Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, Pantages has been held in the county jail, with the exception of a few hours when he was allowed to visit his sick wife.

Meanwhile, with the filing of a $250,000 suit by Frederick T. Wise, a prosecution witness during the trial, more trouble was in the offing for the elder millionaire. Wise charges Pantages of falsely accusing him of being a party to a "blackmail plot."

That this was just the beginning of the filing of similar suits, was presaged by the announcement of Attorney S. S. Hahn, who declared he would file a $500,000 suit on behalf of another client and three other unnamed witnesses.

Ghosts And Goblins Will Stalk Tonight In Sanford Ready For Big Hallowe'en

In the festive, if uncalculated, minds of the small boys are lurking today mischievous thoughts which, if carried to fulfillment will spell trouble for a lot of people. This is true because tonight is Hallowe'en, an occasion when the youth of the country, and sometimes the grown-ups, conspire to terrify the timid, to tantalize the bold and to indulge in the mischievous depredations of a harmless nature, albeit sometimes costly.

From the English custom of stacking nuts, ducking for apples in a tub of water and other time-wasting revelries, the Hallowe'en festival has been developed until today the merry-makers do not consider the night successful unless they have lodged at least one automobile in the highest tree or have moved some deserted horse-drawn cart from its lair.

The usual number of ghosts, skeletons and weird figures will undoubtedly stalk about the city tonight and perform their capers amid an atmosphere of carnival excitement. The so-called grown-ups, sometimes joked by the playful antics of the youngsters, will have to keep their opinions to themselves, for if they don't do it, it will be just too bad.

One of the features of the evening's entertainment will be a Hallowe'en celebration at Sanford High School in which the various classes will compete for a cup offered by the faculty for the best stunt presented.

In a statement issued today, Chief of Police Roy Williams declared that he hoped every one would have a good time, but added that property must be protected. Extra policemen will be placed on duty and each school house will be guarded. "As long as the youthful participants in the celebration tonight have their fun in the right way they need not worry about being arrested. But the police will not tolerate the destruction of property," the chief stated.

FRENCH PREMIER IS EXPECTED TO CHOOSE CABINET

PARIS, Oct. 31.—(INS)—Senator Etienne Clementel today expected to take the bull by the horns and reveal a new cabinet containing men he thinks will most strengthen his government, without regard for party affiliations.

He is sufficiently radical in some of his views to gain the good-will of a good many members of the left parties, yet his radicalism does not go so far as to make him unacceptable to the right, or conservative groups.

His government, it is believed, will, if formed, attempt to carry on the financial policy of former Premier Poincare, which proved so successful, while developing the foreign policy of former Premier Briand, with its promise of peace and security.

The other posts, it is expected, will be sprinkled among the radical and center parties. This should bring to Clementel at least the partial support of all parties, and enough votes in the chamber of deputies to insure him a stable administration, it is believed.

Following the futile effort of M. Daladier to form a cabinet, it is hardly believed the left parties can afford to refuse any offer offered them by Clementel. The inability of the left parties to agree among themselves when M. Daladier was trying to form the cabinet made it appear certain today that Clementel's cabinet will have a government far less radical in complexion than was thought possible a week ago.

CAPITAL TAKES STOCK AFTER MART DEBACLE

Washington Begins To Reckon Damage, As Many Results And See What Future Holds

By George H. Palmer
International News Service
Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Now that the worst of the stock market debacle is believed over, financial and political Washington today began to emerge from the storm-clouds, appraise the damage, assay the results and peer at, best, it can get into what the immediate future holds.

There were three aspects of the situation today that particularly engaged the attention of the legislative and executive branches of the government.

1. As a result of the crash, which followed the debacle of high, bank and bond market speculation, it is now considered certain that a real effort will be made in the approaching regular session of Congress to place a cap on speculative activity. A number of senators are working on legislation to amend the Federal Reserve Act to require that a special tax, say 5 per cent, on stocks that are turned over within a 60-day period.

2. There is real concern felt in the Treasury and administration quarters generally over the enormous shakedown of government income, that inevitably will result from the collapse of stock prices. Billions of anticipated profits have been wiped out, and vast amounts of income tax returns, which followed the debacle, are being held up.

3. The Democrats are going to make a much more radical capital out of the situation as they possibly can, with the exception of the congressional elections and the national election of 1932. Evidence of this latter activity was speedily forthcoming today on the basis of the municipal administration.

Senator Lee T. Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate, made his first year without the cabin and superior protection of the Republicans, came out today with a statement in which he laid a major share of the blame for the collapse, directly at the door of the Coolidge-Hoover Administration.

Robinson gave his warning that the Democrats are going to come out from a thousand stump speeches next year's campaign, "where your prosperity may be."

"It," said Robinson, "the foundation of the belief of 'united investors' was faith in the sturdy position of American industry, and also that the prophet and high priests of American prosperity, represented by two personalities, then a former president of the United States, the president of the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of Commerce, had contributed, by their statements, to the creation of an enthusiasm if not frenzy in investors."

"The good faith of these gentlemen may not be impugned except insofar as their aid is justly attributable to the desire for the partisan political advantage which is so often derived from real-estate and business conditions."

4. An army of questionnaires all over the country were being sent out, and the reports are being received.

5. A number of reports from Florida indicated that the bank of Poplar had reduced its deposits to $100,000, and that the bank of Sanford had reduced its deposits to $50,000.

STOCKS REBOUND TO HIGHER LEVEL IN DAY'S TRADING

Bull Forces Take Control As Prices Of Active Stocks Jump From 5 To 12 Points

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(INS)—The stock market rebounded today to a higher level, as the bull forces took control and prices of active stocks jumped from 5 to 12 points.

The market opened with a slight decline, but soon turned around and advanced. The Dow Jones Industrial Average closed at 260.12, up 12.12 points from the previous day's close.

The volume of trading was heavy, and the market showed a strong upward bias. Investors were optimistic about the future of the economy, and this was reflected in the rise in stock prices.

The rise in stock prices was particularly notable in the industrial sector, where many leading companies saw their shares advance significantly.

Post Mortem Examination Ordered To Solve Woman's Death Mystery

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31.—(INS)—The chemical analysis of the viscera of Mrs. Clementine Garrison Tucker, former wealthy Atlanta matron, was ordered to set at rest rumors which have surrounded the mysterious death of the woman which occurred here 13 years ago.

Sam Murrell, local attorney who secured the will for the disinterment Monday of the body of Mrs. Tucker at Anderson, S. C., made that statement today.

"I haven't accused anyone yet," Murrell said, "but should traces of poison be revealed by the analysis, criminal action will follow immediately."

Murrell's statement today followed on the heels of a statement by Dr. Worth P. Yankey, physician who attended Mrs. Tucker in her last illness, that the woman died of pneumonia.

Dr. Edwin Scott, an Atlanta chemist engaged in the investigation, in a preliminary report today declared it would require probably three weeks to complete the examination of the vital organs.

Change Of Gridiron Rules Has Failed To Detract Any From Excitement Of Game

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—In spite of the fretful disquiet of the professional head-shakers, American football seems to be bearing up quite gallantly today under the onerous burden the new rules were supposed to place upon its career. The 1929 season passed the four-year-old post last Saturday and, if anyone has been going around complaining bitterly about the situation, he has failed to cope to the writer's notice. The current code, in fact, seems to have been accepted without comment of any kind and there would seem to be only one conclusion to be drawn from a study of the situation. The conclusion is that football is a bigger game than its rules.

HENRY CHERRY IS SEEN PROMISING END FOR FLORIDA

"Baby Gator" Player Is Declared Worthy To Fill Varsity Berth
GAINESVILLE, Oct. 20.—Another Dale VanSickel is what some of the close followers of freshman football at the University of Florida are saying of Henry Cherry. Leeburg boy, whose showing with the "Baby Gator" thus far this season has led many to believe he is one of the best ends to hit Gatorland in several seasons. "Baby" Cowell, head coach of freshman football, is not a confirmed pessimist even when clouds are dark, nor does he permit enthusiasm to get a head of sound judgment, nevertheless he freely opines that Cherry is a fine prospect, and the equal of any candidate that the freshman football roll has shown in two or three years. Cherry stands 6 ft. 3 inches and weighs 170 pounds.

FREAK FOOTBALL PLAYS

Jim Halligan, a Southern football official, writes from New Orleans about a freak play that happened in a game he refereed way back in 1907 between the Texas A. and M. College and the Louisiana State University, at Baton Rouge, La. The play involved a player on the Aggies by the name of Kelly, a full-blooded Indian who later played on Carlisle. Halligan says that they are still talking about the play that Kelly, the Indian, made and adds that Indian players are always fascinated by the play of their former past and their love of football. It seems that Kelly was the center of attraction and exceeded the expectations of all.

By Will B. Johnston

Balked in his progress, the slippery Indian turned once more across the field, retracing his course for the fourth time without gaining an inch. During this uneasy performance, Kelly was dodging stiff arm, changing feet, dodging and dodging to prevent being tackled while his teammates were blocking and cutting out men. Reaching the side line for the fourth time, the Indian straightened out and ran 40 yards for a touchdown which was the deciding factor in the victory for Texas. Covering the width of the field four times, 160 feet (approximately 50 yards), coupled with a 45-yard run, made Kelly's run about 245 yards in all, a freak hard to beat in football.

The Sanford Herald's policy is to publish news of the world, and to give the people of Sanford, Florida, and the surrounding country, the news of the world.

THURSDAY, OCT. 31, 1929

What would paragraphs do if it weren't for the fappers and their short skirts? But for that matter, what would anybody do?

One of the local merchants says he doesn't object for a town to "jaw down" if there would only be a "boom" afterwards.

A man married a girl because she is sweet enough to eat, but after the honeymoon she offers feeds him dill pickles.

Another lake steamer has gone down with a loss, this time, of one lives. One can get just as wet as down just as dead in a both as in the Atlantic.

Will Rogers says that every time Morgan, Mitchell, Lamont and Baker go into a huddle, the speculators take heart. Probably figure they'll get their quarters back.

The city of Tampa had $46,000 worth of improvement bonds the other day, a fact which would seem to indicate that the investing public is getting enough of stock speculation and is ready to look for safer securities.

DeLand is to have a "Believers in DeLand" club. You cannot expect others to believe in your town until you believe in it yourself. The "Believers" club, which originated in Jacksonville is rapidly spreading its influence all over the state.

It is a sorry state of affairs when only ten percent of the people are qualified to vote in a city election. If the people don't vote who represents them, or how, how can they expect honest government?

There are a great many speculators throughout America today who are seeing Florida real estate deals for a few years ago when they were up and running and discovered that they couldn't borrow money on second mortgages.

It isn't too late to enter The Herald's Steamship Tour contest. Someone is going to win that prize, a two-week trip to New York and other will win each of the other prizes, and one of them might as well go to you as to anyone else if you really want it.

These reporters on the Washington Times have been sentenced to jail for forty-five days for contempt of court because they refused to divulge confidential sources of information. When courts attempt to compel acts which the common consent is wrong, they are obviously forgetting their fundamental purpose.

Earle Jones, who has been managing editor of the Sanford Herald for the past six years, is now identified with the Jacksonville Times Union. This, of course, is a promotion. Yet it may be doubted if Mr. Jones will ever have better opportunity than that that he made good use of in Sanford while at the Herald when it was making its fight for clean politics and honest administration of civil government locally. Orlando, Reporter-Star.

This seems to be the time of year for tag days and drives of one kind or another, but there can be little doubt that the Children's Home Society of Jacksonville is in desperate financial straits and is worthy of all the support we can give it. Orphans from all over the state are taken care of by this institution, and none of us would want to see these unfortunate go hungry. When a tag is presented to you Saturday, think of your own children and what would happen to them if they were suddenly left alone in the world.

When John Rouch Straton died, there passed from the church here one of its most dominant personalities. A leader among fundamentalists, he had done his best to re-plant modern thought in a liberal interpretation of the Bible. He returned as he was in a hatred of modernism, but probably did more than any other one man to check the trend of modern thought, to make people believe that the whole actual, the whole actual. With his death a thorn in the side of New York modernists has been removed.

A Senator Goes Wrong

The recent disclosures of the Senate committee investigating the tariff lobbyists reveal to the public how shamelessly an otherwise honest man can resort to unscrupulous methods when engaged in politics. Men have long been known to do things in the name of corporations which they wouldn't think of doing as individuals. The tariff investigations indicate that men also do things for political purposes which they would hesitate a long time before doing for personal reasons.

It is inconceivable that Hiram Bingham of Connecticut in his personal life would deliberately betray a trust, or would violate any of the recognized principles of good moral conduct. He is not a politician, but a scholar. For years he occupied a chair at Yale University and was recognized by the social and intellectual life of New Haven as a man of high ideals and excellent character.

Only recently he has taken an active part in government. He was first elected lieutenant governor of Connecticut, and almost immediately was appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Connecticut's senior senator. Having spent most of the time in foreign travel, his career in the Senate has had none of the far marks of the spectacular, has been confined more or less to the routine duties of a senator who found himself in a position with which he was unfamiliar and more or less unfitted, until he suddenly was revealed as the employer of Charles Eyanzon, tariff "expert" and super-lobbyist.

Senator Bingham happened to be a member of the Finance Committee, the hearings of which were of such a secret nature and so confidential in character that even the Democratic members of the committee were not admitted when the bill was being framed. Nevertheless the naive senator from Connecticut took into these meetings as his secretary Mr. Eyanzon who was the paid representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, a group supremely interested in high tariff.

Although the attack of Senators Walsh and Caraway upon this inexcusable conduct of Senator Bingham was most caustic and severe, and not a single defender has appeared for him in the Senate, it is hardly probable that he will be expelled from that body, a possibility fully within the power of the Senate members, or that he will be subjected to any disciplinary measures at all vigorous in character, for it is not like a Republican senate to reprove too strongly a Republican member.

Still the general criticism to which Senator Bingham has been subjected by the people of the country as well as the press, which in their spokesman, will probably go a long way toward preventing the re-occurrence of any such breach of etiquette in the future, and has certainly put the gentleman from Connecticut in a position where he should, whether or not he does, hang his head in shame.

Florida Vegetables

There was a time early in the fruit fly campaign when most of us believed that celery was practically the only product of Florida's fertile fields and groves which the government would permit to be grown. This condition might have developed if the campaign had not so successfully been carried out that for a number of weeks now not a single fruit fly has been found in this state. Perhaps as a result, a recent bulletin has been issued by the plant board which sets forth a number of fruits and vegetables in addition to celery which can be raised. Florida is not a one-vegetable state as the voluminous list readily indicates.

At the present time all Florida's vegetables the only ones upon which restrictions still exist are lima beans, eggplant, peppers and tomatoes, and even these may be shipped from certain areas under certain conditions which are specified in the report. But what is most impressive about the bulletin is the large number of vegetables which can be grown in Florida regardless of fruit flies. There are, for instance, artichoke root, artichoke flowering, asparagus, beans, (all snap or string beans, including green beans, pole beans, shelling beans and wax beans), beets (all varieties), and broccoli.

And then there are brussels sprouts, barley, beggarweed, buckwheat, cabbage (all varieties including Chinese, Savoy, red), cantaloupe, caraway, carrots (all varieties), cauliflower, celery, (all varieties), chard, chicory, chives, coconuts, collards, corn (sweet, field, pop), corn salad, fennel, cucumbers, cassava, chufas (earth almonds), crochalaria, dachshens, dill, endive, English peas, escarot, fennel, garlic, gourds (all varieties including chile), grapes (all kinds), herbs, kale, kohlrabi, Kaffir corn, Kudzu, leek, lettuce, lespedeza, mint, mustard, millet, mung beans, nuts (pecans, etc.), okra, onion, oyster plant, oats, parsley, parsnips, and Pe-tsin (Chinese cabbage).

And we have not yet mentioned pineapple, potato, pumpkin, peas (blackeye, pigeon peas, cowpeas, such as iron, Brabham, etc.), peanuts, radishes, rhubarb, rutabagas, romaine, roselet, rape, rice, rye, shallots (multiplier onions), safsy, sorrel, spinach, squash (all varieties), strawberry plants, sweet potatoes, sorghum (all types, including feathered), soy beans, sunflowers, sugar cane, thyme, turnip, tobacco, velvet beans, vetch, watermelons, and yams (all varieties).

MAYBE YES, MAYBE NO

Mrs. Kate Crane Carr, wealthy Alton, Cal., the woman, has been cited for contempt of court because she wrote a letter to Superior Court Judge Charles Allison of San Bernardino asking him to be too severe with six young persons charged with Communist activities in connection with the operation of an alleged Communist camp in Yuba county.

The question raised in this connection is an interesting and important one. More so because of the quenching of Communist activities in the various sections of the country and especially in the south yet even while admitting there is no place for the doctrines and teachings of Red Russia in this country we must still be fair and just.

Judge Allison contends that the letter was "knowingly, willfully and unlawfully" written for the purpose of "influencing, opening and prejudicing him in favor of the defendants."

This, however, can be no more than the jurist's opinion. If this diagnosis of the matter is correct, the question reduces itself to two possibilities—either Mrs.

Florida's New Banks

ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

New reports of the application by the (bank) interests for permission to open national banks in five Florida towns, tell the story of another step forward, putting the financial and economic affairs of Georgia's sister state upon a sound foundation.

Gradually this great commonwealth, in many respects the most favored by nature of any of the states, is doing away with the mushroom growth of its boom days and building up its financial condition so that it may reap to the fullest from the magnificent resources and splendid climatic advantages with which nature has endowed it.

No state in America, according to leading agricultural and government experts, has so wide a variety of products. In no state in the Union can these products be as cheaply raised under as healthy living conditions as in Florida.

With the financial backbone of its great citrus crops, Florida could easily, through dairying and diversified crops of every nature, raise its per capita wealth to the first rank. And this it seems to be well on the way to accomplishing with the solidifying of its financial system to a point where the state can resist without basket the temporary ailments which in the past have retarded its development.

A state which adds the lure of life to the magnificent opportunities for wealth to the degree that Florida does, should be irresistible in its steady march towards happiness and prosperity. No more striking evidence of the appeal of this unique combination could be found than in the story of Alfred DuPont's entry into the banking situation of Florida.

Shortly after the boom, DuPont, a man well on in years and of great wealth, built a magnificent home on the St. Johns river. He expected to retire and spend the remaining days of his life in well-earned enjoyment of the riches he had built up as the result of strenuous years at the head of one of the world's greatest corporations.

But Florida's need for an improved and sounder banking system, as shown by the needless number of financial institutions that closed as a result of the hysteria following the agitation over the Mediterranean fly, and the peculiar appeal which drew in close to the heartstrings of those who knew it brought DuPont to the front with a proposition to replace many of the closed banks with national banks, the very existence of which would add to the soundness of the state's financial situation.

Starting his first bank at Lakeland, with a capital of $100,000 its deposits within a month exceeded $1,500,000. With this hearty cooperation from the citizens of Florida, plans were immediately matured for the establishment of other banks and soon it is expected that a network of small, but essentially sound, national banks will cover the entire state.

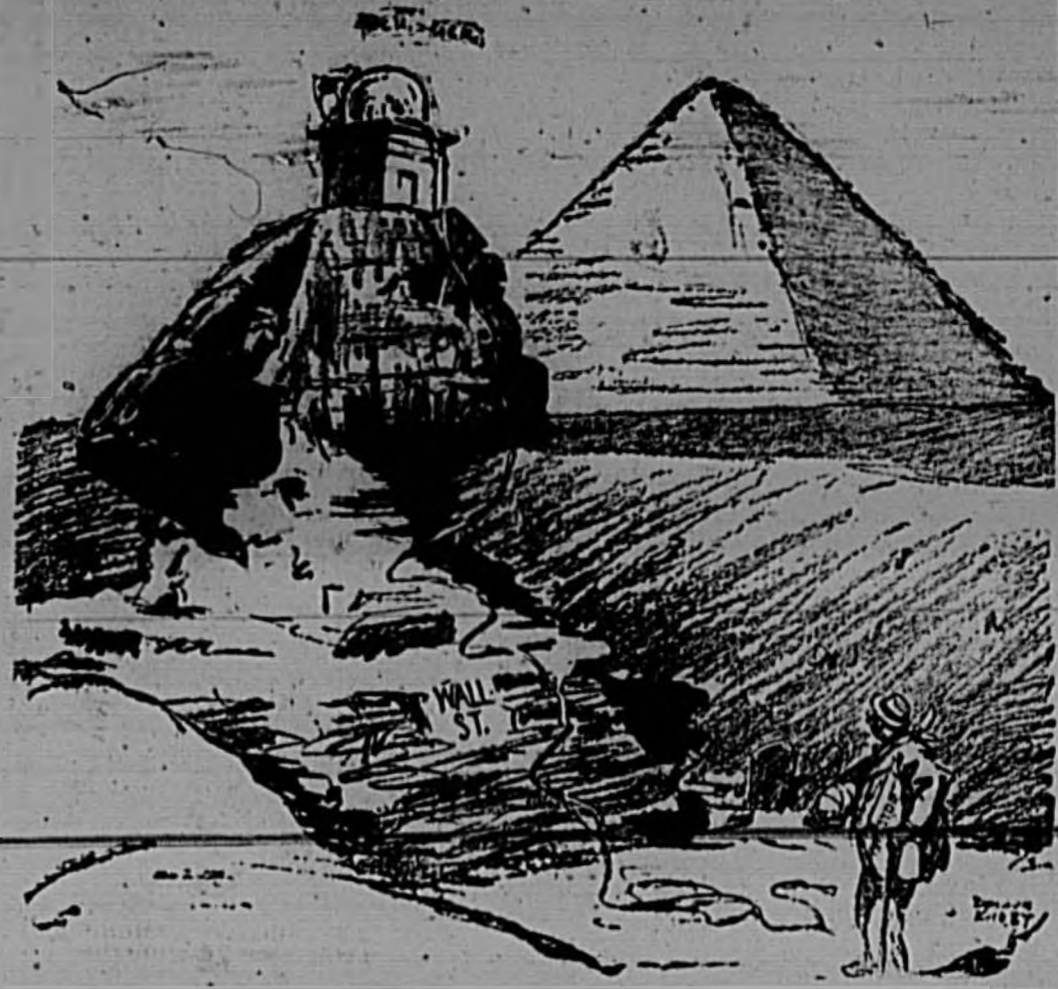

These banks, added to the already considerable number of splendid financial institutions throughout Florida, will mean not only that the banks which Florida has suffered in the past will be fewer, but that those which do come from providential reasons can be met with a firm financial front and will have no lasting results.

The business courage and devotion to their state of the citizens of Florida has been proven time and time again, and the entire country should rejoice over the evidence now presented that the state is building a firm financial foundation which will result in its reaping to the full of the wealth and happiness of life to which it is so fully entitled.

J. E. Jones of Bowling Green has leased the Taylor building west of the railroad, which was formerly used by S. F. Maly for a blacksmith shop, and has opened up an up-to-date blacksmith shop, doing general repairing, horse shoeing, building of truck bodies and farm implements. His family will remain for the present in Bowling Green, but Mr. Jones said if business here justified his family moving here that they would do so as soon as convenient. Fort Meade Leader.

A co-operative hog market, for Columbia and nearby counties is now assured for Lake City, the first week in November, under the personal supervision of L. H. Lewis, livestock specialist of the State Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Lake City and Columbia County Chamber of Commerce. Co-operative sales will continue indefinitely, once or twice a month, or oftener. Mr. Lewis, by the way, before coming to Florida, was employed in a similar capacity by the state of North Carolina, and it was his success in co-operative hog and cattle sales in that state that brought about his employment by this state.—Lake City Gazette.

IT IS UP TO US

BRADENTON HERALD

With only two days intervening between the present and the opening Thursday night of the State-wide luncheon conference the various committees entrusted with the supervision of all detail work should check their programs carefully to see that all loose ends have been properly tied up. This will insure the smoothness that is vital to the success that is hoped for out of the effort that has been launched.

The eyes of Florida and a big section of the country will be turned on Bradenton and Manatee county during the two eventful days of the conference. Because of this we must be certain that no part of the convention preliminary work has been overlooked. It is estimated that more than 100 delegates will attend the conference. Presence of Governor Carr.

Justice Is Not Blind!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Justice is no longer dispensed by ignorant and individual domination. Another ancient prejudice stands convicted by AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE which insists that a jury "twelve good men, tried and true" decide the facts.

"toasting did it" —

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING" the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

The Herald's policy is to report news as it comes, without prejudice or favoritism.

THURSDAY, OCT. 31, 1929

What would paragraphers do if it weren't for the flappers and their short skirts; but for that matter, what would anybody do?

One of the local merchants says he doesn't object for a town to be "blown" if there would only be a "boom" afterwards.

A man marries a girl because she is sweet enough to eat, but after the honeymoon she often feeds him all pickles.

Another lake steamer has gone down with a loss, this time, of nine lives. One can get just as wet or drown just as dead in a bath tub as in the Atlantic.

Will Rogers says that every time Morgan, Mitchell, Lamont and Baker go into a huddle, the speculators take heart. Probably figure they'll get their quarters back.

The city of Tampa sold $340,000 worth of improvement bonds the other day, a fact which would seem to indicate that the investing public is getting enough of stock appreciation and is ready to look for safer securities.

Deland is to have a "Believers in Deland" club. You cannot expect others to believe in your town until you believe in it yourself. The "Believers" club, which originated in Jacksonville is rapidly spreading its influence all over the state.

It is a sorry state of affairs when only ten percent of the people are qualified to vote in a city election. If the people don't care who represents them, how can they expect honest government?

There are a great many speculators throughout America today who are making somewhat like some of our Florida real estate dealers a few years ago when they woke up one morning and discovered that they couldn't borrow money on second mortgages.

It isn't too late to enter The Herald's Steamship Tour contest. Someone is going to win that prize, a two week's trip to New York and return with each of the five other prizes, and one of them might as well go to you to anyone else if you really want it.

Three reporters on the Washington Times have been sentenced to jail for forty-five days for contempt of court because they refused to divulge confidential sources of information. When courts attempt to compel acts which the common consent are wrong, they are obviously forgetting their fundamental purpose.

Earle Jones, who has been managing editor of the Sanford Herald for the past six years, is now identified with the Jacksonville Times Union. This, of course, is a promotion. Yet it may be doubted if Mr. Jones will ever have better opportunities than that he has made good use of in Sanford while on the Herald when it was making its fight for clean politics and honest administration of civil government locally, Orlando, Republic Star.

This seems to be the time of year for "tag" days and drives of some kind or another, but there can be little doubt that the Children's Home Society of Jacksonville is in desperate financial straits and is worthy of all the support we can give it. Orphans from all over the state are taken care of by this institution, and none of us would want to see these unfortunate children hungry. When a tag is presented to you Saturday, think of your own children and what would happen to them if they were suddenly left alone in the world.

When John Rusch Stratton died, there passed from the church horizon one of its most dominant personages. A leader among fundamentalists, he had done his best to resist modern thought to a literal interpretation of the Bible. Stratton, as he was in a battle of modernism, he probably did more than any other one man to check the trend of modern thought, to make people believe that the Bible was the word of God. With his death a torch in the side of New-York modernists has been removed.

A Senator Goes Wrong

The recent disclosures of the Senate committee investigating the tariff lobbyists reveal to the public how shamelessly an otherwise honest man can resort to unscrupulous methods when engaged in politics. Men have long been known to do things in the name of corporations which they wouldn't think of doing as individuals. The tariff investigations indicate that men also do things for political purposes which they would hesitate a long time before doing for personal reasons.

It is inconceivable that Hiram Bingham of Connecticut in his personal life would deliberately betray a trust, or would violate any of the recognized principles of good moral conduct. He is not a politician, but a scholar. For years he occupied a chair at Yale University and was recognized by the social and intellectual life of New Haven as a man of high ideals and excellent character.

Only recently he has taken an active part in government. He was first elected lieutenant governor of Connecticut, and almost immediately was appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Connecticut's senior senator. Having spent most of the time in foreign travel, his career in the Senate has had none of the earmarks of the spectacular, has been confined more or less to the routine duties of a senator who found himself in a position with which he was unfamiliar and more or less unfitted, until he suddenly was revealed as the employer of Charles Eyanson, tariff "expert" and super-lobbyist.

Senator Bingham happened to be a member of the Finance Committee, the hearings of which were of such a character that even the Democratic members of the committee were not admitted when the bill was being framed. Nevertheless the naive senator from Connecticut took into these meetings as his secretary Mr. Eyanson who was the paid representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, a group supremely interested in high tariffs.

Although the attack of Senators Walsh and Caraway upon this inexcusable conduct of Senator Bingham was most caustic and severe, and not a single defender has appeared for him in the Senate, it is hardly probable that he will be expelled from that body, a possibility fully within the power of the Senate members, or that he will be subjected to any disciplinary measures at all vigorous in character, for it is not like a Republican senate to reprove too strongly a Republican member.

Still the general criticism to which Senator Bingham has been subjected by the people of the country as well as the press, which is their spokesman, will probably go a long way toward preventing the re-occurrence of any such breach of etiquette in the future, and has certainly put the gentleman from Connecticut in a position where he should, whether or not he does, hang his head in shame.

Florida Vegetables

There was a time early in the fruit fly campaign when most of us believed that celery was practically the only product of Florida's fertile fields and groves which the government would permit to be grown. This condition might have developed if the campaign had not so successfully been carried out that for a number of weeks now not a single fruit fly has been found in this state. Perhaps as a result, a recent bulletin has been issued by the plant board which sets forth a number of fruits and vegetables in addition to celery which can be raised. Florida is not a one-vegetable state as the voluminous list readily indicates.

At the present time all of Florida's vegetables the only ones upon which restrictions still exist are lima beans, eggplant, peppers and tomatoes, and even these may be shipped from certain areas under certain conditions which are specified in the report. But what is most impressive about the bulletin is the large number of vegetables which can be grown in Florida regardless of fruit flies. There are, for instance, artichoke root, artichoke flowering, asparagus, beans, (all snap or string beans, including green beans, pole beans, shelling beans and wax beans), beets (all varieties), and broccoli.

And then there are brussels sprouts, barley, boggaweed, buckwheat, cabbage (all varieties including Chinese, Savoy, red), cantaloupe, caraway, carrots (all varieties), cauliflower, celery (all varieties), chard, chervil, chives, cucumbers, volkards, corn (sweet, field, pop), corn salad, press, cucumbers, cassava, chufas (earth almonds), epulolaria, dill, endive, English peas, escarol, fennel, garlic, gourds (all varieties including "dibbs"), grasses (all kinds), herbs, kale, kohlrabi, Kaffir corn, Kulan, leek, lettuce, hoppedale, mint, mustard, millet, mung beans, nuts (pecans, etc.), okra, onion, oyster plant, parsley, parsnips, and Pe-tsin (Chinese cabbage).

And we have not yet mentioned pineapple, potato, pumpkin, peas (black-eye, pigron peas, cowpeas, such as iron, Brabham, etc.), peanuts, radishes, rhubarb, rutabagas, romaine, rutabaga, rape, rice, rice, shallots (multiplier onions), salsify, sorrel, spinach, squash (all varieties), strawberry plants, sweet potatoes, sorghum (all types, including feterita), soy beans, sunflowers, sugar cane, thyme, turnip, tobacco, velvet beans, vetch, watermelons, and yams (all varieties).

Mrs. Kate Crane Gatz, wealthy Altamonte-California woman, has been cited for contempt of court because she wrote a letter to Superior Court Judge Charles Altamonte of San Bernardino asking him not to be too severe with six young persons charged with Communist activities in connection with the operation of an alleged Communist camp in Yavapai valley.

The question raised in this connection is an interesting and important one. More so because of the quickening of Communist activities in the various sections of the country and especially in the south yet even while admitting there is no place for the doctrine and teachings of Red Russia in this country we must still be fair and just.

Judge Allison contends that the letter was "knowingly, willfully and unlawfully" written for the purpose of "influencing, coercing and prejudicing him in favor of the defendants."

This, however, can be no more than the jurist's opinion. If this diagnosis of the matter is correct the question reduces itself to two possibilities—either Mrs.

Florida's New Banks

News reports of the application by the DuPont interests for permission to open national banks in five Florida towns, tell the story of another step forward putting the financial and economic affairs of Georgia's sister state upon a sound foundation.

Gradually this great commonwealth, in many respects the most favored by nature of any of the states, in doing away with the mushroom growth of its boom days and building up its financial condition so that it may reap to the fullest from the magnificent resources and splendid climatic advantages with which nature has endowed it.

No state in America, according to leading agricultural and government experts, has so wide a variety of products. In no state in the Union can these products be as cheaply raised under as healthy living conditions as in Florida.

With the financial backbone of its great citrus crops, Florida could easily through diversified and diversified crops of every nature, raise its per capita wealth to the first rank. And this it seems to be well on the way to accomplishing with the solidifying of its financial system to a point where the state can resist without basket the temporary ailments which in the past have retarded its development.

A state which adds the lure of life to the magnificent opportunities for wealth to the degree that Florida does, should be irresistible in its steady march towards happiness and prosperity. No more striking evidence of the appeal of this unique combination could be found than in the story of Alfred I. DuPont's entry into the banking situation of Florida.

Shortly after the boom, DuPont, a man well on in years and of great wealth, built a magnificent home on the St. Johns river. He expected to retire and spend the remaining days of his life in well-earned enjoyment of the riches he had built up as the result of strenuous years at the head of one of the world's greatest corporations.

But Florida's need for an improved and sounder banking system, as shown by the number of financial institutions that closed as a result of the hysteria following the agitation over the Mediterranean Sea, and the peculiar appeal which drew in close to the heartstrings of those who know it brought DuPont to the front with a proposition to replace many of the closed banks with national banks, the very existence of which would add to the soundness of the state's financial situation.

Starting his first bank at Lakeland, with a capital of $100,000 his deposits within a month exceeded $1,500,000. With this hearty cooperation from the citizens of Florida, plans were immediately matured for the establishment of other banks and soon it is expected that a network of small, but essentially sound, national banks will cover the entire state.

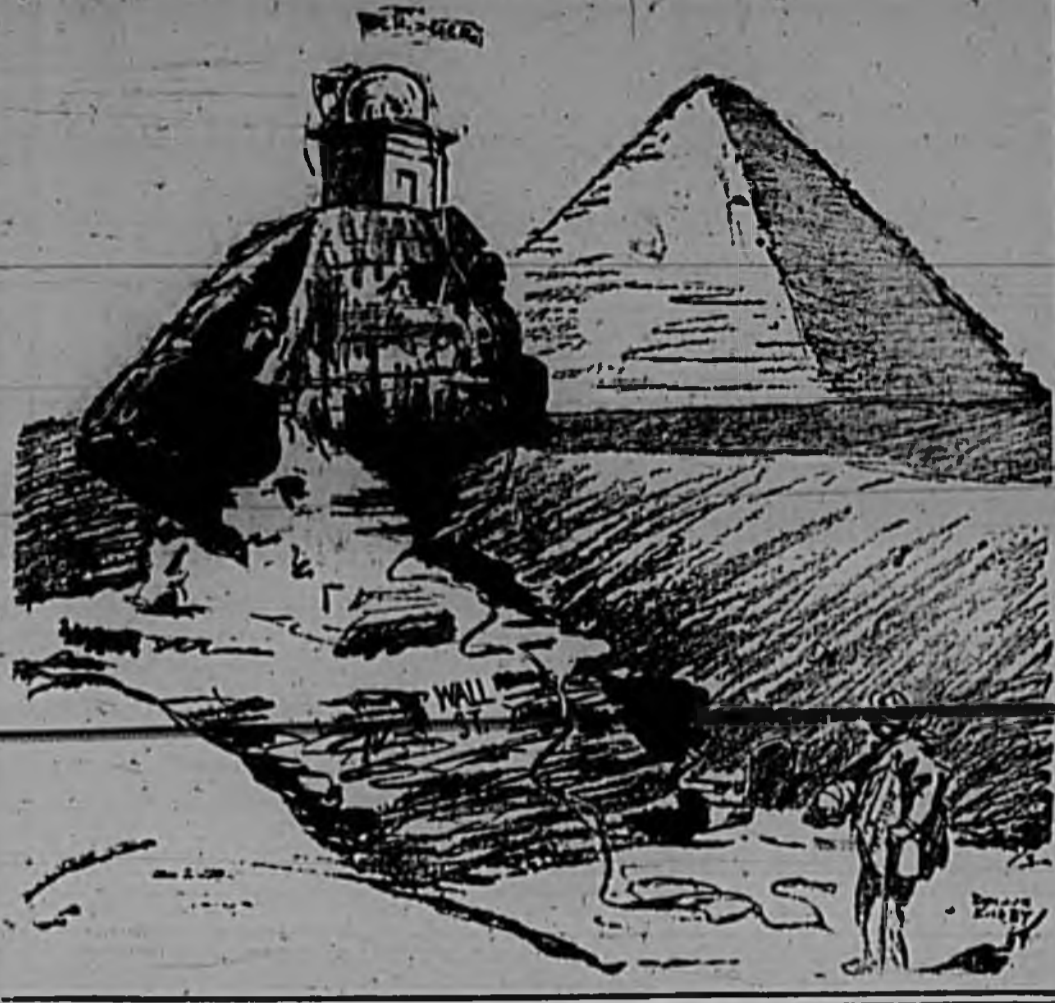

These banks, added to the already considerable number of splendid financial institutions throughout Florida, will mean not only that the backsets which Florida has suffered in the past will be fewer, but that those which do come from providential reasons, can be met with a firm financial front and will have no lasting results.

The business courage and devotion to their state of the citizens of Florida has been proven time and time again, and the entire country should rejoice over the evidence now presented that the state is building a firm financial foundation which will result in its rising to the full of the wealth and happiness of life to which it is so fully entitled.

J. E. Jones of Bowling Green has leased the Taylor building west of the railroad, which was formerly used by S. F. Mabry for a blacksmith shop, and has opened up an up-to-date blacksmith shop, doing general repairing, horse-shoeing, building of truck bodies and farm implements. His family will remain for the present in Bowling Green, but Mr. Jones said if business here justified his family moving here that they would do so as soon as convenient.—Fort Meade Leader.

A co-operative hog market, for Columbia and nearby counties is now assured for Lake City, the first week in November, under the personal supervision of L. H. Lewis, livestock specialist of the State Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Lake City and Columbia County Chamber of Commerce. Co-operative sales will continue indefinitely, once or twice a month, or oftener. Mr. Lewis, by the way, before coming to Florida, was employed in a similar capacity by the state of North Carolina, and it was his success in co-operative hog and cattle sales in that state that brought about his employment by this state.—Lake City Gazette.

BRADENTON HERALD

With only two days intervening between the present and the opening Thursday night of the State-wide luncheon conference the various committees entrusted with the supervision of all detail work should check their programs carefully to see that all loose ends will be properly tied up. This will assure the smoothness that is vital to the success that is hoped for out of the effort that has been launched.

The eyes of Florida and a big section of the country will be turned on Bradenton and Manatee county, during the two eventful days of the conference. Because of this we must be certain that no part of the convention preliminary work has been overlooked. It is estimated that more than 100 delegates will attend the State Conference of Governor Carr-nothing but failure for the next several days. If we follow this course we will have met our obligation to the convention and helped pave the way toward the greater success that is to be Florida's.

The opportunities for gardening are so great that she found far more material for her Florida articles than for those about New England and South Atlantic states. This fact was cited by the speaker to show to those interested in gardening in Florida the chance there is for making this not only a more beautiful state, but to find diversity which adds both to the beauty of the garden and the interest of the gardener.

Members of the Pensacola club stated that Mrs. Wight was interesting and convincing in her talk and said further that after hearing her they felt that the Federation of Garden Clubs of Florida is something that not only can make homes drayer and more beautiful, but Florida more beautiful and desirable.

Mrs. Wight Speaks On Gardens At Meeting
Using "Gardens" as the subject of her talk, Mrs. Henry Wight addressed a number of club women and others interested in a more beautiful Florida at the Pensacola Woman's Club in Pensacola on Thursday morning, Oct. 24. In her talk Mrs. Wight brought out many points and was said to have impressed those who heard her not only with the possibilities of the Garden Clubs, but with the opportunity these have to make Florida, as a whole, celebrated for its cultivated beauty as well as its natural scenery.

Mrs. Wight was recently appointed by one of the editors of the "House Beautiful" to furnish that publication with four articles on the gardens of Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, the New England States, Pennsylvania and New York state. This request followed a former one given Mrs. Wight, in which she featured Florida in a series of six articles.

In her talk before the club members she pointed out that the variety of flora in Florida and

Justice Is Not Blind!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Justice is no longer dispensed by ignorant and individual domination. Another ancient prejudice stands convicted by AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE which insists that a jury "twelve good men, tried and true" decide the facts.

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

ANNIVERSARY OF FAMED TREATISE TO BE OBSERVED

Lutherans Over U. S. To Celebrate 400th Birthday Of Thesis

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 21.—During the last week of October, eighty-one million of Lutherans in practically every country of the world will celebrate the 400th anniversary of the publication in 1529 of Martin Luther's Small Catechism, a book which is more widely used than any other publication except the Bible. Originally written by the great reformer as a guide for church members in their devotional life, the Catechism contains a series of simple questions and answers concerning the Ten Commandments, the Apostles' Creed and the Lord's Prayer, with a few added explanations of the practices of the Church.

have recommended that congregations and groups of congregations throughout the country purchase advertising space in daily and weekly newspapers for the printing of portions of the Catechism that "he who runs" may pause, briefly to think of sacred things. In Chicago a great banquet will be held on Oct. 30 in connection with the convention of the American Federation of Lutheran Brotherhoods, where delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada will join in a fitting commemoration of the centennial. Other conventions throughout the past few months have devoted special sessions to the observance of the event, notably the Second Lutheran World Convention which met in Copenhagen, Denmark, in June.

In Philadelphia at the Krantz Memorial Library of Mt. Airy Theological Seminary a collection of more than 60 American editions of the Catechism, many of them rare and valuable copies, has been placed upon exhibit. In Charleston, S. C., the Catechism Jubilee included such features as mass meetings addressed by prominent test for children in grade schools, an essay contest for high school students, and the general distribution among adults throughout the city of copies of the Catechism. A new book on the history of the Catechism has just been published by the world famous Catechism scholar, Dr. J. M. Roux, of Dubuque, Ia. An intersynodical committee, representing the Lutherans of America, after two years of research has produced a new modern English translation of Luther's original, which it is believed will be considered the standard for future use.

The National Lutheran Council serving the Lutheran general bodies in America has rendered aid in the celebration through supplying to editors of official church papers a series of 10 articles on the historic and doctrinal aspects of the Catechism specially prepared for the occasion by scholars, and through the issuance of two million postage stamps for use on mail matter as an added reminder of the significance of the event.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritation. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. SYNOPSIS
Through a blinding rainstorm an express train is flying across Europe towards Paris. In a private compartment are three friends, Emile, Armand, and Françoise; and Emil, a German. They tell a French girl to share her secrets; each trying to stir the other, when the conductor ushers in a priest. Then two Americans, Jim Travis and Al, seeing the worst places, take possession of them. Travis becomes interested in the girl, who speaks English. An argument between the priest and the three friends arises, the three men laughing at the priest's solemn beliefs. Suddenly there is a crash.

CHAPTER III
Out of the darkness rose red to the mangled. Means of the dying. Keening and wailing of those who watched. Battling and begging for preservation of self. Flares of orange-brilliant fire. Licking tongues of flames. Crunching, snapping of steel. Crackling of wood. Smothering smoke smells. And over all the sharp peat of rain, stinging and cutting, mercilessly drenching and soaking.

The engine and forward coaches of the Express that had but a moment before been flying so fearlessly through the night now lay on their sides, panting, palpitating, a gargantuan steel as its final gasp is being run. The nose of the engine pointed downward, overhanging the wild, rushing river that frothed below. A mass of stone and iron girders that had

He picked the girl up. She been a bridge pile was already all swept away. The jagged ends of the parallel tracks stretched meaninglessly into a space that yawned with the emptiness of a lost loath.

The compartment occupied by the priest and his fellow-travelers lay on its side, the window smashed, the door flung open and half its hinges, the floor uplittered. Emile, Armand and Françoise lay slumped, striking out at one another blindly as they attempted to drag themselves toward the corridor which was now their only means of escape.

Half outside the window, a heavy beam across her hips, plunging her to the ground, lay the girl. Beside her knelt Travis, working frantically to release her. But even his strength was of no avail. His hands were short, his arms weary, his strength, and still the beam seemed to be sinking more and more resolutely. If only he could find someone to help him. He rose to his feet and looked around. Surely there must be someone who for a moment could stop and give assistance.

As he glanced upwards his eyes fell upon an enormous fellow in an unbrothered peasant's blouse crawling slowly across the open door of the compartment. He called to the man, trying to attract his attention. The giant turned his great head and looked down. He nodded and began crawling through the doorway and lowering himself head first down the passageway between the seats. Travis stared in bewilderment at the somewhat strange procedure, and then as the being came closer he saw that his wrist was shackled to the wrist of another, a much smaller man, now lifeless and inert.

The prisoner, wagging his head, sent a powerful shoulder to the protruding end of the beam and with one heave of his enormous muscles raised it. Quickly Travis seized the girl by her shoulder and dragged her from beneath its ponderous load. With a long, shuddering sigh of relief, she collapsed in her rescuer's arms.

Travis laid the girl on the ground and motioned for the peasant to wait. Then he knelt down and searched through the dead guard's clothes for the keys to the handcuffs. Finding them still hanging to a chain attached to the man's wrist, he fitted one into the lock and the shackles fell apart. The giant surveyed his free wrist, then the dead man, and finally turned to Travis, holding out his hand. The two clasped hands for a moment; the one-time prisoner in right hand to go and look for the keys to the handcuffs. The man smiled gratefully, and then began to climb slowly back towards the corridor.

As the peasant disappeared Travis laid the girl gently on the ground, holding out for her last she fall. But she took a few steps back and forth and found that she could walk.

Hoover Seeks To Speed Action On Tariff Measure

Shaking with emotion and obviously suffering from illness which caused his doctor to order him to Florida, Senator James E. Watson, of Ind., Republican leader, today made a dramatic appeal to the Senate to save the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill from disaster. Announcing to the Senate that President Hoover wants a tariff bill passed, Watson proposed that hold efforts be made to compromise the differences of the Democratic-Progressive Republican coalition and the old guard Republicans.

The plea brought prompt response with Senator Borah (R), of Idaho, a leader of the Progressive Republican group, Senator Simmons (D) of North Carolina, Democratic tariff leader and Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi urging speedy action to vet the bill to the President.

During the exchange the Senate paid an unusual tribute to Watson as majority leader by loudly applauding Senator Johnson's expressed hope that Watson will quickly regain his health.

SECRET REVEALED

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(INS)—On Broadway they're explaining Elizabeth Council's absence from the east of "Scarlet Pages" in this manner. Corrected by Elsie Ferguson, the star, for speaking her lines too quickly, the little Georgia girl slowed up at the next performance until she reached the climax of the act. Here she calmly, and with much nonchalance, blew a puff of cigarette smoke in the star's face. The next night an understudy played Miss Council's part.
