

An Announcement --

Now effective-and only with very few exceptions- complete changes of programmes will be given on Saturday - Monday - Wednesday and Friday - Four Complete changes of shows each week - Programmes formerly changed on Sunday will be changed on Saturday - The many advantages of this plan are readily obvious - Heretofore business social and other obligations have prevented many from seeing oftentimes our finest attractions -

Business people at leisure Saturday afternoon may with their friends or families attend the matinee - A Social obligation re-paid with a theatre party is convenient, in-expensive and very acceptable -

From a civic view point it is expected that many out of town people will be attracted and accordingly others will profit by this plan.

For Tonight and Sunday we are pleased to announce Joan Crawford in "Paid" from Bayard Veiller's Tremendous stage success "Within the Law" and then to follow thru January

Harold Lloyd in "Feet First" Marie Dressler-Polly Moran in "Reducing"
Ruth Chatterton in "The Right To Love"
Eddie Cantor "Whoopce" "Morocco" Billie Dove in "One Night at Susie's"
"Hell's Angels" "Abe Lincoln" Will Rogers in "Lightnin"
Jack Oakie in "Sea Legs" Janet Gaynor-Charles Farrell in "The Man Who Came Back"
Gloria Swanson in "What a Widow"

And that's not all --

Here's another new departure --

On Friday of Each Week

Commencing January 2nd we will present - in addition to a selected Feature Picture

4 acts Vitaphone 4 acts
audeville

Bringing to you the Selected Vaudeville Artists as only appear on the Big Time Vaudeville Circuits in the Great Metropolis' Variety entertainment such as you would never see outside of the larger northern cities and while this is an added expense of no mean proportion admission will remain unchanged.

We thank you for the very splended support you have always extended us and trust that this announcement will further assure you of our sincere desire to afford you at all times the very best entertainment to be had.

May the New Year bring You Much Happiness and a full quota of Prosperity.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

PERFECT PEACE—Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee.—Isaiah 26:3.

PRAYER—Father, give us sweet repose in Thee. May love, joy, gentleness, and goodness bear flower and fruit in our lives.

HOW COULD IT HAVE HAPPENED?

Old Omar Khayyam was a bibulous bard, Who rarely embarked on the wagon, But who always evinced a devoted regard For the stuff that was kept in the flagon. He may not have lipped as much as supposed, But through all of the ages succeeding, His books of his quatrains have rarely been closed, And they still make agreeable reading. His name stands today both secure and resplendent, Though he never once dreamed of a Volstead amendment.

The wise-witted Horace, who had to depend For his monthly supply of securities, On the pithy purse of an affluent friend, Was a bearcat at writing awful verses. He also was fond of a nip now and then, Upon any occasion whatever. But no ode ever flowed from the nib of his pen Which was not uncommonly clever. And this talent of his was profusely exhibited, Long before even beer and light wines were prohibited.

Lord Byron, though somewhat addicted to swank, Was lad of unusual talents, And the widely known fact that he now and the drank Did not tetter him far off his balance. You don't find him quoted as much as you did, But he had all the poetic graces, And disclosed his great gifts as a rough-writing kid. When he put the old muse through its paces, If you've not read his output you'd better not miss it, Though he wrote in a time before wine was illicit. —By James J. Montague.

Florida Banks Lead

It is doubtful if many people realize that Florida banks are making the best showing of any other state. Failures have been so prevalent in the few years past that the impression is pretty well rooted that Florida banks don't stack up so well. But the fact is that most of our troubles are behind us and the remaining institutions are in such excellent condition that the comptroller of the currency recently made the statement that our banks are showing the way for the rest of the country. This is gratifying news and is the best evidence that Florida's return to prosperity will be hastened by safe and constructive financial institutions.

"When the comptroller of the currency speaks," says the Florida Times-Union, "with reference to national banks he speaks with full knowledge of their actual condition, he being furnished regularly with sworn reports, made by bank officials who make detailed statements of the actual condition of their respective banks, as required by law.

"Therefore, when the comptroller of the currency told Roger W. Babson, a few days before Christmas, that the banks of Florida make the best showing, at this time, compared with the banks of all other states in the Union, he spoke with full knowledge of actual conditions. Mr. Babson was on his way from New England to his winter home in Florida and stopped in Washington for a brief period. While in the national capital, he called on the United States comptroller of the currency. During the interview this official asked Mr. Babson: 'In what state of the union do the banks make the best showing at this time?' Mr. Babson hesitated to make an answer, although he keeps a very close watch, himself, of banking conditions. So the comptroller of the currency answered his own question by saying: 'You may be surprised to know that the banks of Florida make the best showing at this time. This information, coming from the government's official having to do with banking, not only is reliable but also gives the very highest rating possible to Florida banks, that are known to have large amounts of money on deposit for use, at this time, for all lawful purposes, and to meet every obligation.

"Florida people have very good reason for being highly gratified with the present condition of their banks, which, through all this period of depression, have been able to withstand the financial storm that, in other sections of the country have been felt very severely. The rating which the comptroller of the currency has given to Florida banks is not only reassuring but also it is a testimonial to the financial efficiency of Florida bankers to whose cautious and safe management the present high rating is due.

"The people of this state are to be congratulated on having banks that are entirely worthy of their faith and confidence. They have every reasonable assurance that their banks are substantial, and that their funds are being properly safeguarded, otherwise the high rating given by the comptroller of the currency in Washington could not and would not be accorded. It is the duty of the people of this state to see to it that nothing be done by depositors and individuals generally to impair the credit and the usefulness of their banking institutions."

Paying For Opportunities

In the economic world what is one person's misfortune is usually another's good luck. When the country is staggering under the burden of a business depression many huge fortunes are in the making, because it is at this time that the opportunities for bargain investments are most prevalent. The price of stocks now are in numerous cases down so low that their purchase almost assures a handsome advance in value. Of course, some one had to pay for bringing about this situation but what is one man's loss is surely going to be another man's gain.

The condition of real estate in Florida offers the same possibilities for accruing wealth. Property in most instances can be bought at a figure far below a fair and conservative estimate in normal times. But due to a general uneasiness about making investments and the unsettled tax problems, which must be solved so as not to destroy our economic foundation, only the wisest are taking advantage of the situation. Everyone who owned real estate in Florida has lost money, in most cases much money, but in the process they opened a field for investment of great promise.

Misfortunes in California in the nature of a freeze in some parts of the citrus belt, while not a sporting thing to hope for by our growers, nevertheless cannot help but add to the chances of a more successful crop in this state, a thing which will not be regretted by any of us. So it appears that adversity for some means better times for others and since the whole country at present seems to be taking it on the chin, it is logical to say that everyone in the near future will be given a fine chance to make up for the hardships of the present.

HOT AND COLD Wonderful America! Where the sun shines hot and the wind blows cold. Where half the population that swelters in California and Florida doesn't know how the other half can shiver elsewhere. Read the following authentic weather bulletins from this broad and versatile land.

LOS ANGELES—It was so warm in this city today that school children were hacking up asphalt streets and using them for chewing gum. Hollywood has discarded the lower part of its pajamas.

HOULTON, Me.—The thermometer struck 60 below zero this morning. There is great suffering among the fur-bearing animals that bobbed their pelts last summer.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASEN

After several months absence from Europe, M. Emil Vandervelde, the Belgian minister of state, disembarked at Marseilles and passed through Paris on his way home to Brussels. He said that his journey had taken him right across Russia, Siberia, Manchuria and China. As M. Vandervelde has been a periodic visitor to Russia, he was there in 1917, 1918 and in 1922—he was asked what he thought of the Soviet regime in 1930. "When I passed through Moscow and several of the new manufacturing cities a few months ago I was struck by the real and very visible efforts of industrial reconstruction. According to the most modern methods, the spectacle of the entire Soviet Union working, so feverishly in one of the wonders of the age, I asked myself: Whence do the Soviets draw their power? Certainly not from foreign banks. The riddle is solved when you know that the government in that country has the monopoly on foreign trade. It undercuts world prices in order to make money. Heavy taxation, both direct and indirect, furnish enormous sums to the state. The state buys at extremely low prices from the peasants and sells back to the population with an astonishing profit." "And what about China, M. Vandervelde?" "What is going on there in China is nothing else but the will of a people to control its own business and dispose of its own future. It is an application of that right which was so dear to the late President Wilson. There is no doubt that the present Chinese Government, the Kuomintang, exercises a dictatorship. It is a beneficent dictatorship, and I believe it is necessary in the present circumstances. Very laudable efforts are being made to perfect the political education of that huge people. One of the most interesting things in China that I came into contact with is the large industrial cities. In spite of the distressing civil wars and the disruption in the interior, China is rapidly evolving in a direction which Western nations can only contemplate with sympathy and encouragement."

Who remembers that the Treaty of Versailles, in Article 246, demands that Germany shall return the skull of the Sultan Mkwawa? This poser is put by Reuter's Berlin correspondent, who adds that the Negro tribe of which Mkwawa was the chief believe that the skull has magical properties. This belief prompted the insertion in the Peace Treaty, under the heading of "Special Provisions," of the following: Germany will hand over to His Britannic Majesty's Government the skull of the Sultan Mkwawa, which was removed from the Protectorate of German East Africa and taken to Germany. The six months provided for the delivery of the skull elapsed many years ago, and still it has not been handed over. Rumor has it that at one of the League of Nations meetings a prominent British statesman reminded the late Dr. Stresemann of the omission. Dr. Stresemann made inquiries and discovered that it was nowhere to be found in Germany, where, moreover, it was regarded as a legend that had never existed in fact. Meanwhile, the subjects of the late Sultan deplore the loss of their fetish and the Treaty of Versailles of necessity remains unfulfilled.

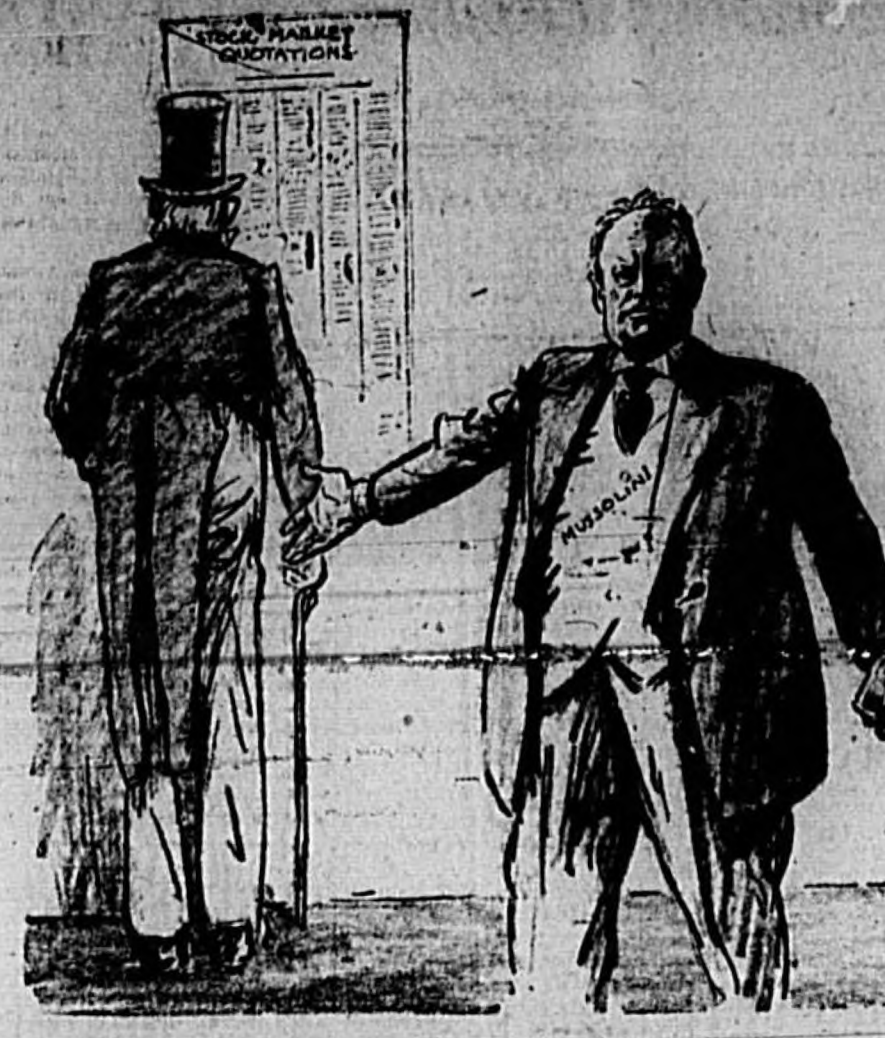

In Spain a good—and sometimes a very bad—Catholic crosses himself when a train he is in starts; before engaging in a street riot on passing a church; when about to murder an aunt; after buying a lottery ticket, and so on. But it has been given to a Lancashire lad to teach Spain how such symbolic piety may be carried to perfection, reports the Observer. A boxer called Carvill was acting as sparring partner to the giant Italian Carnera before his match with the Spanish champion, Pacifino Urcudun. In the course of the day's work he got a "nasty one" on the "Ambling Alp's" jaw. It was a bigger punch than he meant, and the audience could see in his anxious face that he expected retributory justice, which would be very painful. Did he jump away from it? Did he cover himself against the smashing

THAT'S what big sister said to her boy friend as she pulled little brother out from under the sofa. But wait till big sister and the boy friend are man and wife, with a home of their own to run. Then how much more she'll realize the truth of her observation!

For then the age old problems will come pressing hard. So much in the pocketbook. So much on the shopping list. Will it fit? Then's when the little things make the big difference. The little savings—the small economies—the slightly better values of which a good housekeeper takes advantage.

Then's when big sister will read the advertisements as she never read them before. Comparing values; learning reliable brands; watching the bargain and reduction announcements. . . . The advertisements will help her in a thousand ways to take care of the little things, acquire the little short-cuts in time and effort—in the big job of running a home.

BORAH SCOFFS AT 3RD PARTY TALK IN NATION

(Continued from page one) In 1932 for the presidency and he reasserted his own republicanism. Senator Borah made the following comment on the current discussion over formation of a third party:

"My observation and my reading leads me to the opinion that new parties cannot be successfully organized by a few men or by a few leaders, however able and sincere they may be. New parties have to come up from the grass roots. It takes some single dominating issue accompanied by a dramatic crisis to swing people from their old political opinions and place them in new positions.

"There are at least four or five vital issues before our people and a new party could not agree upon a platform on all of them any more than can the old parties. Take power, prohibition, farm relief, and the duty of the state and the duty of the nation with reference to at least two great problems. Who will write the platform that will weld together not a few leaders but well together constituencies throughout the country? I do not see any new party but I do see some resignments which will be evinced more in legislative matters than in open announcements upon the part of either leaders or constituents. That has already taken place to a marked degree.

Meanwhile, the drive against Senator Norris initiated by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, and supported vigorously by Representative Wood, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, still seemed deadlocked.

Norris has refused to head a third party and has declined to get out of the Republican party. Other Senate independents likewise have given notice they will vote with the Republicans again on organization and will retain their party label whatever may be the effective months hence in the national convention.

President Hoover is still holding aloof from the Republican battle and Joseph B. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, is awaiting an apology from Chairman Nye of the Senate campaign funds committee for terminating a $10,000 fund of the party in the last campaign "dash fund." Nye made reply in a statement from Miami yesterday.

The endorsement given Saturday by Senator Norris to Governor Roosevelt's attitude on the power issue provoked considerable discussion yesterday. Others of the Senate Republican independent wing hastened to state privately they were not endorsing Governor Roosevelt as a Democratic nominee in 1932 against Herbert Hoover.

Representative Wood said: "Just what Senator Norris will do in 1932 if the Democrats fail to heed his warnings can only be left to conjecture as he already has declined Dr. John Dewey's request to again transfer his political allegiance and become the presidential candidate of a third party."

Senator Norris said: "Some newspaper articles published yesterday based upon an interview which I had Saturday evening, the impression that I intended to support Governor Roosevelt for president in 1932 I regret. I have made no such statement. I have said nothing upon which such a conclusion could be based."

"In the presence of a score of reputable Washington correspondents I expressed my admiration for Governor Roosevelt as a man and expressed my general agreement with him on the power issue. I made that response to direct question of whether I would support Governor Roosevelt if he were nominated for president on the Democratic ticket in 1932."

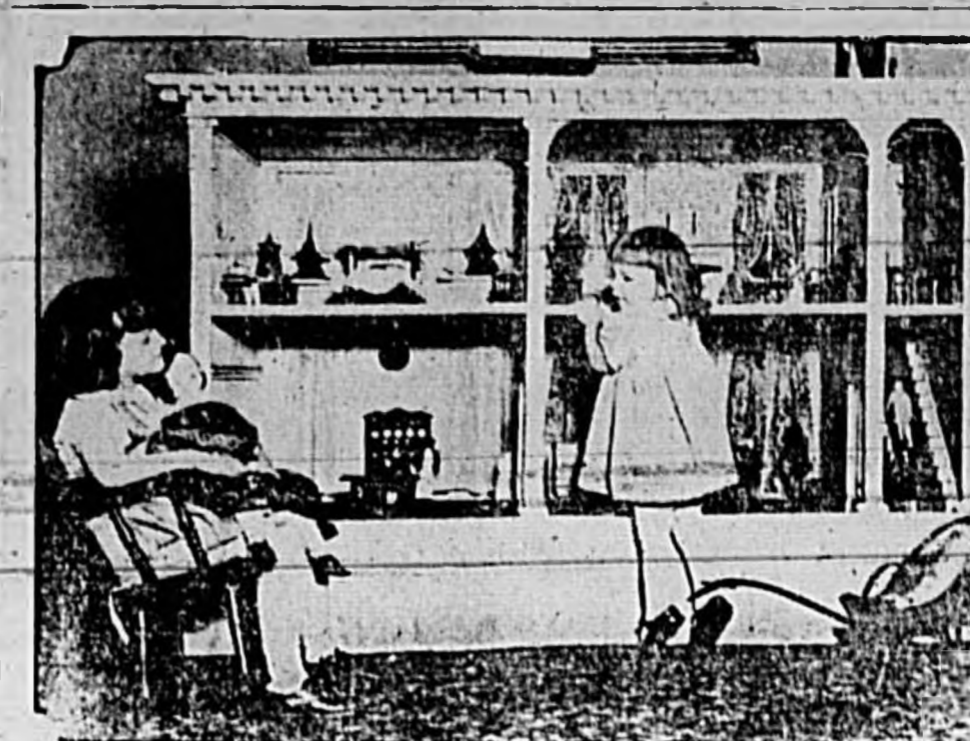

"I stated specifically that I had not made up my mind whom I would support for president in 1932, that the nomination had not been made; that I am a Republican, and I believe a good Republican, and it is not part of my business to nominate a Democrat for the presidency."

Wood, after scanning the newspaper interviews, gave his statement asserting that Norris "now is assuming to be a dictator to the Democratic party."

"Although he campaigned for office only last month as a Republican and was elected as such," Wood said, "he throws off the Republican mantle and proceeds to dictate to the Democratic party whom it shall and shall not nominate for the presidency in 1932 if it expects to find him battling under its banner in the next campaign as it did in 1928."
