Alzheimer's Disease Different Problem

DEAR DR. GOTT — Please explain the difference between hardening of the arteries and Alzheimer's disease. What are the symptoms of each, and is there anything that can be done for either one?

DEAR READER — Hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis) can be likened to the changes that take place in an old waterpipe. Rust and debris may build up over time and eventually cause partial blockage or complete obstruction. In a human, bloodflow is diminished as the blockage builds up and the internal diameter of the artery is narrowed. Organs supplied by the diseased artery may be unable to obtain sufficient circulation and oxygen. At this point, tissue damage may become apparent, usually in the form of muscle cramps (claudication) or heart cramps (angina). If arteries to the brain are affected, mental changes can result. However, most authorities now believe that strokes and senility are more likely caused by tiny blood clots which form on the inner surfaces of arteriosclerotic arteries, rather than by progressive oxygen depletion.

Alzheimer's disease is a different problem. Although the early manifestations of this terrifying illness can resemble nerve disorders caused by arteriosclerosis, Alzheimer's results in progressive, untreatable and baffling neurological disability. No one knows its cause. It usually affects perfectly normal people who do not have arteriosclerosis. Hardening of the arteries can be treated by a variety of means — or at least its manifestations can be eased. Alzheimer's is, unfortunately, incurable with present treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I was diagnosed as having sarcoidosis. I am now being treated with a high, closely monitored dosage of prednisone along with potassium. How long can this illness last, and is it serious? What are the effects of long-term use of prednisone?

DEAR READER — Sarcoidosis is a chronic inflammation of unknown cause. It typically affects lymph nodes, causing them to enlarge. Prednisone, a form of cortisone, is the only consistently successful treatment, but it can be risky. Among other unpleasant side effects, prednisone causes hypertension, change in facial characteristics, diminished immunity to infection, mental changes, bone softening, cataracts and diabetes.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Proper trump management can call for unusual plays, particularly when trumps are breaking badly. When South opened the bidding and then jumped in his second suit, North rightly felt that his queens in his partner's suits, plus his A-K of spades, were worth a strong slam invitation. He jumped to five hearts, which simply said, "Partner, if you can control diamonds, we have a slam." Having the singleton diamond ace, South was happy to accept.

Of course the queen of diamonds was led. Declarer won the ace and played the heart ace. With the bad trump split, declarer had work to do. He immediately played to the club queen and led dummy's remaining club. West won and continued diamonds. South ruffed and began leading out high clubs. If West ruffed, declarer could overruff with the heart queen in dummy and then draw the remaining trumps. However, instead of ruffing, West discarded all three of his spades on South's club run. Eventually, when declarer was forced to play a spade, West ruffed in with the setting trick.

Was there a solution? As a matter of fact, yes. After winning the queen of clubs, declarer should cash dummy's ace of spades. Now play can proceed as before. The only difference is that at the finish, declarer will be able to throw all of dummy's spades on the good clubs if West fails to ruff in. Then his last spade can be trumped with the heart queen in dummy. Declarer could even have cashed both high spades before continuing with clubs, but that would be risking a ruff if West started with only one spade.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

Your Birthday Jan. 25, 1986

Be selective in the year ahead regarding who you pick as a partner. Defeat will be the product of a poor choice; victory will be the prize for a wise one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Difficulties may arise in an important relationship today. When dealing with others on a one-to-one basis, treat all as you would like to be treated yourself. Major changes are ahead for Aquarians in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're not likely to work too well under pressure today. If you take on more than you can handle or let things go until the last minute, frustrations will result.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you might be out of step with others. Don't take an unyielding position on something everyone else opposes just to flex your muscles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If the outside world doesn't treat you as you think it should today, don't come home and take it out on innocent members of your household.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An uncontrolled temper could be your downfall today. Mind what you say, instead of responding with angry words you'll later regret.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make every effort to keep current on your financial obligations now. Don't fall behind, especially if you are indebted to a friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's best today not to discuss issues with your mate where you have opposing views. Both of you have low kindling points and a serious argument could result.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone who has done you a big favor might want you to reciprocate today. Don't make it obvious that you're annoyed about this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's important today to be around those with whom you feel at ease. Group activities that include people you don't like won't be any fun.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be enthusiastic and eager to go today, but unfortunately, associates whose support you need might drag their feet and halt your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to point the finger of blame at others today for your mistakes. Friends will not tolerate any shifts of guilt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful with whom you associate today because you might be held accountable for things they do wrong. Don't be a fall guy.

A Short Run...

...A Silent Run

By Susan Loden
Herald Feature Writer

When enjoying Seminole County waterways many carry on the tradition of the American Indian and paddle their own canoes.

They go for a silent run and skim along the surface to enjoy the scenery in these long, narrow, curved-sided craft, which run on people power, steered by the paddler in the rear of the boat.

Katie Moncrief, who grew up on the banks of a lake in Washington State and who now lives on the shore of the Little Wekiva River and runs a campground on the Wekiva River, just west of Sanford, said canoeing is the way she most enjoys the scenic sights that surround her.

About two or three times a week Mrs. Moncrief, 60, takes to the water in a canoe. She also rents canoes and books passage on "river run" canoe trips for other adventurers drawn to this mode of recreation and transportation.

"I was practically raised in a canoe," Mrs. Moncrief said. "It's a natural. My first toy was a canoe and I paddled a canoe to my first job."

Although she makes her living with canoes, her work is her play. Canoeing is still her favorite form of recreation. "On my day off I try to get a couple of friends to go down the river with me."

Mrs. Moncrief said her canoe travels downstream with the current of the Wekiva River, and "there's no way you can get lost."

But you might get lost in adventure, caught up in the sighting of gators, deer, turtles and other wildlife that still have a foothold in the wooded, watery area, she said. And a woodsy picnic might be enjoyed on shore.

Quietness is a major drawing card for the canoeist, Mrs. Moncrief said. And the sleek canoe can maneuver into nooks and crannies of a waterway, where no other craft could pass, she said.

Darrell Leidigh, a 55-year-old Longwood canoe manufacturer said a canoe also gives you a license to trespass, access to areas via waterways which might be off limits via land.

"It's a good way to explore," Leidigh said. "It's very portable and the least expensive and easiest way to get into the wilderness," he said. And even if civilization is just over the river bank, Leidigh said, along the shore there is usually a stand of wilderness left.

"You can touch nature," Mrs. Moncrief said. "You see wildlife. There are a lot of little critters that you can see every single day no matter what time of day you go out. It's just a real quiet, nice time."

But, Mrs. Moncrief said, she may have spoiled canoeing for her children who are now adults.

"One of my New Year's resolutions is to take maybe a two week canoe trip. I'll say, 'Come with me,' and they say, 'I don't think so Mom.' The reason is when they were little and I did so much canoeing and long trips, they had to sit still and sit in the middle of the canoe and keep quiet."

"Who would want to canoe under those conditions?!" Mrs. Moncrief laughed.

She has reformed. Although quiet and stillness is still a rule of the day in a canoe. "My grandchildren love it," Mrs. Moncrief said. "I let them paddle."

No real stamina is needed to paddle a canoe, she said. "The main thing is being able to steer. It doesn't take a lot of strength. We have little children coming out using them. If they've had camp training that's great. Otherwise I give them a little instruction on how to steer."

"The person in the back does all the steering. The front paddler is just doing a physical maneuver, just straight paddling, no steering at all. We always give two paddles per canoe even if there are three or four people, because you can get in a state of imbalance if too many try to paddle," Mrs. Moncrief said.

Canoeing can be done alone and canoeists are required by law to have life preservers in their craft, she said. Rental canoes, which are available for about $2.50 an hour or for about $10 for a day or for a river run, are stable craft, Mrs. Moncrief said. Perhaps a bit more stable than the craft addicted canoeists buy to make a quicker cut through the water.

The typical canoe, Leidigh said, is 16 feet long and weighs about 65 pounds. It's made of fiberglass or plastic and seats two to three.

In Central Florida, because Leidigh's company is stationed in the area, the canoeist can become the owner of a canoe with a $100 to $250 investment. In other areas of the country the same canoe at retail prices would be tagged at $400 to $500, he said.

The investment for local canoeists is so little, Leidigh said, that even if they just use their craft once a year, they are likely to keep and store it until the desire to canoe comes back after the initial novelty wears off.

"You won't see many canoes advertised for sale in the want ads," he said. "Canoeing is very popular," Leidigh, who ranks his business as probably fourth in the nation in distributing canoes, sells about 5,000 each year nationwide, including about 500 local sales.

If you aren't ready to buy, you can test the waters in a rental canoe.
