Senate Passes Contra Aid

By E. Michael Myers
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate rejected warnings that President Reagan is leading the nation into another Vietnam quagmire and approved Wednesday his chief foreign aid request — $100 million to Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Senators first cracked a stubborn filibuster against the hotly contested aid package, then moved deliberately to a vote that passed the often imperiled bill Reagan insists is needed to stop communist subversion in Central America.

The vote was 53 to 47 in favor of the aid and senators promptly began voting on the underlying $8.2 billion military construction bill that would give the Contra package final Senate passage.

Approval of the aid measure, defeated once in the House but passed by the lower chamber, means it will go to a congressional conference meeting in September to work out minor differences between House and Senate versions of the underlying military bill.

The Contra package includes $70 million in military aid and $30 in other supplies for the CIA-backed rebels Reagan calls "freedom fighters" who are trying to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government. It would be the first overt U.S. aid to the Contras since 1984.

Senate supporters initially failed to bust an opposition filibuster on the bill but succeeded in limiting debate with a second vote.

"Aid to the Contras is the first step toward a Vietnam in Nicaragua," Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., warned his colleagues. "(There is) no consensus for what is in the Senate or among the American people."

But the aid issue was linked to another major foreign policy issue — popular proposed sanctions against the white-ruled government of South Africa.

Under complex parliamentary rules agreed to by all sides, closure, or limits on debate, had to be invoked against both issues or each could have fallen victim to filibusters.

The Senate first voted 59-40, one short of the needed 60, against cloture on aid to the estimated 15,000 rebels. It then

Sanford, County Each Feels It's Right In Suit

Officials Bare Differences

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford commissioners are disappointed, but for the most part not surprised, that Seminole County is bringing suit in an attempt to invalidate an annexation the city approved Monday night.

City commissioners also say a court determination will clarify the different annexation statute interpretations their respective counsels offer and further, hopefully produce a measure of settlement in regard to the governments' apparently divergent municipal expansion philosophies.

Sanford commissioners do not, however, hold much hope for such a meeting of the minds with Bill Kirchoff, the county commissioner who lives in Sanford and includes the city as part of his district.

Kirchoff was one of three county commissioners who voted Tuesday night to bring suit against Sanford for annexing approximately 20 acres of unincorporated county land. The city's land acquisition was undertaken through a request from the property's owner.

Kirchoff and County Commission Chairman Bob Sturm voted in support of the suit on a motion offered by Commissioner Fred Streetman. County Commissioners Sandra Glenn and Barbara Christensen opposed the motion.

Board Also Approves 17 Residential Appeals

By Paul C. Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

Flea World flea market will get another crack at expansion and 17 Maitland Avenue property owners in south Seminole County may have the opportunity to convert their residential land to office use.

The county's Planning and Zoning Commission, acting as the Local Planning Agency, recommended approval of the proposed plans, presented during a five-hour public hearing on 30 requests for proposed amendments to the county's Comprehensive Land Use Plan Wednesday night.

The recommendations will be sent to the county commission for official action. The amendments are being considered to the "comp plan", a growth planning document, which designates county area land use districts.

Flea World owner Syd Levy's request for expansion on the 103 acre parcel flea market, just south of Sanford on U.S. 17-92, had been shot down by the county commission after planning and zoning review had recommended approval in May.

About one-third of the land is now being used as the market complex. The remaining two-thirds of the land are designated in near equal amounts of general rural and preservation area. Levy requested the LPA consider changing the comp plan to allow a change from general rural to commercial planned unit development.

Levy told the panel Wednesday night that he still desired to construct an exhibition center and warehouse at the site, but said he used public input from last May's failed effort to satisfy concerns.

"We've made significant changes," Levy said. He said he planned to dedicate for county control a one-third mile "heavily wooded" portion of his property between the market and Sunland Estates residential area as a buffer; keep the closest building at the site a half-mile away from the residents; will leave an area of the site bordering on County Road 427 as a buffer area; and would not now ask for access from the site into the road.

Judge: No Jail Halt

Action To Stop Police Building

A face-off between representatives for a group of Longwood residents and city officials battling over the construction of a police station on church-deeded land did not occur because the circuit judge hearing the case said the emergency hearing was called in too short a time from the filing of the suit.

Circuit Judge Dominick J. Salfi ordered both sides to continue preparing their cases and request another date to air their difference.

The hearing is in response to a suit filed by David R. Gunter Sr., of Longwood, against Longwood Mayor Larry Goldberg, deputy mayor, June Lormann, and commissioners Harvey Smerlison, Ed Myers and Perry Faulkner.

Gunter, who lives at 1068 Cheltenham Court, said he represents a group of Longwood residents who want the construction stopped.

The suit claims that commission voted to build a police station and proceeded contrary to the city charter and the state laws to dedicate for county use the police station on property which could only be used for park purposes as expressed in a deed from the Episcopal Diocese of South Florida, which dedicated the property to the city in 1938.

The deed states "use of the land for public park purposes only and if not so used the land reverts to the party of the first

New School Attendance Plan Passed

By Angela Woodhall
Herald Staff Writer

The School Board of Seminole County unanimously approved Wednesday a new high school attendance policy requiring students who accumulate more than 16 unexcused absences during the school year to make up all missed work and pass a comprehensive final exam.

Concern with principals and teachers arbitrarily denying credit to some students last year prompted the policy adoption. Seminole wrote its own guidelines after checking state laws and attendance policies in surrounding counties.

"The biggest change in absentee policy over last year," said Jack Heisler, director of secondary education, "is that the new rule puts the burden of responsibility directly on the students and their parents."

"Last year," Heisler said, "sixteen or more absences automatically meant a student could lose course credit and possibly not be able to graduate. There were a significant number of parent-initiated appeals. However, Ned Julian (school board attorney) was concerned that we were not in compliance with state laws so we changed the policy. Now students will have an opportunity to make up work toward their graduation credits."

Heisler said he wasn't sure if the new rules would lessen or aggravate attendance problems. "We won't know until the revised policy is given to students and we see what happens."

In other action, the board unanimously approved the purchase of an eight-passenger stationwagon, marking the first time a vehicle other than a school bus will be used by Seminole County to transport children.

Crossing a narrow, aging bridge en route to school, the station wagon will chauffeur about 4 or 5 remotely located students.

"Until now a regular school bus was used to transport these children," said Michael Mizwicki, principal of Lawton Mizwicki Elementary School, Oviedo. "However, a new law said no vehicle over three tons could cross that bridge.

"Our smallest school vehicle weighed more than three tons," Mizwicki said, "so our only other solution would have been to drive a school bus down highway 434 to highway 50 and then take back roads into Lockwood, through Orange County, past the University of Central Florida. This would have meant close to an hour's driving time, one way. Richard Well, director of transportation, had two weeks to come up with an alternative plan. We're pleased with his solution."

School board members also approved the appointment of Thomas Brewer as the new assistant director of maintenance.

County Accepts Wetlands Report

Wetlands in Seminole County need to be protected and managed, Seminole County Commissioners agreed Tuesday. They accepted an interim report and recommendations from the county Wetlands Review Committee, which is developing a wetlands management ordinance.

The proposed ordinance is expected to reach the county's Local Planning Agency in October, and the county commission in November.

Major provisions of the Wetlands Management Program include:

- Regulating wetlands according to significance.
- "Not all wetlands are created equal," the report said. "Some wetlands perform valuable functions while others have been disturbed or are too small to be of community concern." It continues. It calls for assessing wetland significance to be regulated accordingly.
- Provide certainty in the

Sanford Changes Wastewater Plan

Sanford commissioners on Monday adopted the city's revised wastewater disposal plan, paid $217,000 to the wastewater management project's contractor and consulting engineers, and approved the airport authority's self-funded $3.7 million 1986-87 budget proposal.

The measures were part of a series of administrative actions commissioners took Monday while addressing a 20 item agenda and its 60 pages of back-up information.

After completing agenda item considerations, commissioners collectively agreed to Commissioner Dave Farr's proposal for the police department BATmobile to be paid off with a combination of city and police funds.

Community contributions provided $35,000 of the Breath Alcohol Testing unit's $38,000 purchase and outfitting price last spring. Commissioners agreed Monday the $3,000 balance for unit equipment will be paid with equal shares of city contingency funds and police law enforcement trust funds.

The $3.7 million Sanford Airport Authority budget commissioners approved Monday concentrates primarily on maintenance of existing operations, with provisions for road repair and parking and fencing installation and rehabilitation.

The airport budget takes effect Oct. 1, as does the city's.

Commissioners' action Monday to adopt the amended wastewater disposal plan was pre-

NATION IN BRIEF

Senate Panel Slates Votes On Rehnquist, Scalia Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee is preparing to vote on Justice William Rehnquist to be the nation's 16th chief justice amid charges that he is racially insensitive and questions about his dependence on a powerful drug for four years.

The 18-member committee scheduled a vote today on Rehnquist's nomination and the nomination of federal appeals court Judge Antonin Scalia to be an associate justice.

Although denounced by civil rights groups and feminists for views on race and women's issues, both men are expected to be approved by the committee and the Senate when it votes in September.

Only three Democrats have said publicly they would oppose Rehnquist's nomination, and they admitted there is little chance of defeating him. In 1971, Rehnquist was confirmed as an associate justice after a stormy session on the Senate floor.

House Axes Weapons Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New chemical and anti-satellite weapons have become the latest casualties in the House's war on President Reagan's defense program.

Continuing work on the $286 billion defense bill Wednesday, the House voted to eliminate funds for a new generation of chemical weapons and to extend for one year the ban on tests of a new anti-satellite weapon.

The votes gave House arms control advocates a clean sweep of their issues in the bill. Earlier in the week the House voted to require adherence to the SALT 2 treaty, to force a nuclear testing ban, and to freeze 1987 "Star Wars" spending at this year's $3.1 billion figure.

The 210-209 vote to eliminate $68 million for production of new chemical weapons saw-sawed back and forth, and victory was assured only when Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., switched his vote from "no" to "yes" at the last minute.

1st Lady's Maid Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nancy Reagan's personal maid, a Paraguayan-born naturalized American who traveled worldwide with the first lady, has pleaded innocent to charges of helping to smuggle small-caliber arms and ammunition out of the country.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Wednesday Anita Castelo, 45, who helped the first lady with her wardrobe as a member of the White House household staff, pleaded not guilty to the charges in federal court.

She has been accused, along with two Paraguayan nationals, of trying to smuggle small arms and ammunition into Paraguay. Castelo's part in the operation may not be extensive.

Speakes said Castelo, who has traveled with Mrs. Reagan on all her trips abroad, was placed on administrative leave last Thursday and will continue to receive her annual salary of $17,430 while the case is pending in court.

development review and approval process.

Under the existing Land Development Code, "the regulation of wetlands is largely dependent on policy interpretation of the current code provision prohibiting the 'alteration, sitation, or reduction of natural retention and filtering capabilities of on-site wetlands.' The (new) wetlands program provides clear and concise groundrules or performance standards which must be met during development activities," the report says.

— Provide a means for evaluating program effectiveness.

"Performance standards can be tested for effectiveness and updated on a regular basis as the program is implemented and monitored," the report says.

— Provide flexibility in development design.

"Wetlands can be used in meeting Land Development Code requirements for stormwater storage, recreation, and buffers," the report says. "Mitigation-compensation may be used on a site-specific basis."

— Tailor regulations to fit local approval procedures.

"The Wetlands Management Program provides for an appropriate level of staff review and submittal requirements. Permits are issued concurrent with other development approvals where possible, and approving boards are provided appropriate information for development approvals," the report says.

Wetland Review Committee member Polly Miller recommended the commission adopt the management program, which includes a county wetland zoning district to be made part of the Land Development Code, a planning guideline for natural resources, produce wetlands district maps, and a district wetlands field guide. The committee also recommended the commission establish a monitoring evaluation and updating program to update and revise the standards and requested that mitigation criteria be developed after initial monitoring and evaluation is performed.

Builder, forestry and agricultural representatives at the meeting had no objections for the proposed ordinance. The plan could be adopted by the end of the year, after public hearings this fall.

City Charter Amendments Proposed

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Proposed amendments to the city's charter are scheduled to be on the ballot at the Longwood city election Dec. 2. A public hearing on the proposals is scheduled for September, after which they will be put in official ordinance form.

If approved by the voters, the amendments would not be effective until 1989.

"You all did a super job," Longwood Mayor Larry Goldberg told members of the Charter Review Committee after the city commission had okayed almost all of the committee's recommendations for revising the charter. Appointed on Oct. 14, 1985 to review the charter and make recommendations for any needed changes, committee members met nine times for that purpose, their final meeting July 30.

Committee Chairman Lynette Dennis presented the recommendations to the city commission at a special meeting Monday night.

Other committee members include co-chairman Alice Lewis, Rick Bullington, Edward Kanaasky and James Kleinman.

Many of the revisions tentatively approved by the commission relate to city elections. If passed by the voters, the date for the city election would change from the first Tuesday in December to the first Tuesday in November to correspond with state and national elections. Also under the proposed amendments, winning city commission candidates would be sworn in within 15 days after the election instead of in January and unopposed candidates would not have to be listed on the ballot thus eliminating the need for an election should all of the candidates be unopposed.

Also, candidates would no longer have to have a nomination petition signed and any qualified voter would be eligible to file to run for city commissioner. The charter review committee had recommended a non-refundable qualifying fee of $50 for each candidate, but the commission changed it to 5 percent of a commissioner's salary whatever it might be at the time.

City commissioners would qualify in the district in which they live and elected at large, by receiving the highest number of votes. The committee had recommended this to eliminate run-off elections, but City Attorney Ann Colby suggested some provision is needed for a run-off in case of a tie vote.

The recommendation that an acting city administrator not be appointed for a period exceeding 90 days was changed by the commission to 120 days to allow enough time for a new city administrator to be hired and move. City Administrator Ron Waller pointed out that he had a 60-day notice clause in his contract in his former city and such is not uncommon.

Lynette Dennis, right, chairman of the Longwood Charter Review Committee, presents plaque to City Clerk Don Terry for his "hard work and long hours of service" working with the committee. Other committee members, from left, Rick Bullington, Edward Kanaasky, and co-chairman Alice Lewis.

Under the proposed amendments, the administrator would not be able to serve as head of a department in addition to his or her position. Last year Police Chief Greg Manning served as acting city administrator while continuing in his police post.

The commission agreed to a recommendation that the charter be amended to call for the appointment of an Advisory Charter Committee to review the charter and make recommendations not less than every three years.

The commission rejected a recommendation by the committee that the requirement that the city attorney to be a member in good standing of the Florida Bar Association and have practiced in the State of Florida for at least five years prior to appointment be deleted. The commissioners said they feel these two requirements were valuable in screening candidates for city attorney.

Commissioners agreed with the recommendation that the city attorney and city clerk be hired for indefinite terms at such compensation as is deemed necessary.

The administrator would be required to prepare and submit to the commission a five-year capital program by July 1 each year. The committee stated additional time is required to submit a five-year capital program and it should be submitted with the budget which is required on July 1 and the commission agreed. It would be impossible for the administrator to submit a five-year capital program without information required and available during the budget process.

The committee stated that the adoption of the capital program is dependent upon the budget adopted and the time sequence should be the same. Dates for adoption of the general budget are required to be held during the month of September and by state law must be adopted prior to the start of the next fiscal year (Oct. 1.) The proposed amendment will require that the capital program and the budget be adopted prior to the end of the fiscal year.

Under the proposed changes the budget can only be amended by ordinance and not by resolution.

In other business Monday night, the commission:

● Voted to change the first meeting in September from Sept. 1 to Sept. 8 because of the Labor Day holiday.

● Authorized the city attorney to prepare an ordinance would control how free newspapers and fliers can be distributed to homes in the city. Some residents had complained about them being thrown in their yards in spite of requests to the distributors that they be stopped. Mrs. Colby said the city can't infringe on the distributors first amendment rights, by prohibiting them completely, but can require that they be put in place where they won't litter the lawn, driveway and streets and clog up drains.

● Voted 4-1 to approve the payment of the final bill submitted by former city attorney Gerald Korman for $3,970. Voting against the payment was Commissioner Perry Faulkner, who objected to Korman's charging 1 1/4 hours for conferences with Mayor Goldberg. "I didn't feel there was a good enough explanation," Faulkner said.

The city's planning advisors are to meet with city commission, land planning agency, board of adjustment, parks and recreation advisory committee, and historical commission on Aug. 27 at 7 p.m. to discuss the updating of the city's comprehensive plan.

Sri Lankans Traveled From West Germany

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (UPI) — Some of the 152 Sri Lankan refugees plucked from the Atlantic off Canada lived in West Germany and sailed from France on a Chinese freighter, said a German who claimed he helped plan the exodus.

Waldemar Steen, 61, a German and a self-described adviser to asylum seekers said Wednesday in Jork, West Germany, that 25 of the Sri Lankans came from Stade, northwest of Hamburg, and others came from Jork, Hamburg and the Ruhr city of Essen.

Stehn said in a television interview that the Sri Lankans gathered in Jork across the Elbe River from Hamburg on July 27 to take buses for France and there they boarded a Chinese freighter.

"Jork was the collection point," Stehn said. "They came here to get transportation to France. They came in twos and threes."

Asked by the television interviewer why the Tamils left Germany, where some 37,000 of them reside, Steen answered,

"Who says Germany is safe?"

A spokesman for the town of Jork confirmed that six Sri Lankans who had applied for asylum in West Germany have not been seen recently. He said the flats they had lived now were vacant.

Although 37,000 Sri Lankans have gone to Germany, West Germany is considering ways of halting a flood of refugees who have been coming from the Middle East, Asia and Africa.

Most of the Sri Lankans who have ended up in West Germany, have flown to East Berlin and then crossed the border into West Berlin or gone straight to West Germany from East Berlin.

The castoffs, who were among the 152 found drifting in crammed two lifeboats off Canada, told rescuers Tuesday they were stranded in Canadian waters for five days and paid up to $5,000 each for passage from India to Canada to flee civil strife in their Asian island homeland.

But a veteran member of Newfoundland's Sri Lankan community, who interviewed many of the boat people, disputed their itinerary and said many carried German newspapers, West German telephone numbers and German currency.

"I don't think they are telling the truth at all," Rod Singarayer told the Toronto Star. "I think they started out in Germany not India."

Singarayer said that the 143 men, four women and five children claimed they fled Sri Lanka because of the civil war there between the radical Tamils and the majority Sinhales so they could qualify as refugees and remain in Canada.

"They are survivalists," he said. "They wanted to be in Canada permanently."

Canada's Immigration Minister Benoit Bouchard said Tuesday the new refugees would be given special one-year permits if it is confirmed they were from Sri Lanka, an island nation off the southeast coast of India.

The West German news service DPA reported the Sri Lankans went to France late last month and there boarded the Chinese freighter.

Government spokesmen at ministries in West Germany and France denied the mystery vessel originated at ports in their countries.

Canadian Transport officials concede they may never find the vessel that brought the Tamils into Canadian waters.

"We may never be able to know for sure where the vessel came from, how it got here, or who it was owned by," Bruce Reid of the Transport Ministry said.

Casselberry Man Gets 2-Years In Product Scam

A 65-year-old Casselberry man was sentenced to two years in prison Wednesday and ordered to pay about $50,000 in restitution in connection with a mobile home roof coating scam.

Sentenced was Richard W. Walker, who was found guilty in June of five counts of grand theft by misrepresentation.

Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor, who also ordered Walker to serve 20 years probation, chastised him for using his mustached and white-haired resemblance to Colonel Sanders, of the fried chicken franchise fame, to solicit people's trust in him.

According to court records, Walker promised five people, who paid between $3,989 and $18,990 each, the right to sell and apply a roof coating for mobile homes.

Walker, however, did not have a patented coating and sold individuals similar territories though the sales areas were to be exclusive. The blking occurred between 1982 and 1984, according to court records.

He reportedly told the victims that could make $20,000 to $100,000 a year with the roof coating. He was also to help them in advertising the product, marketing and application.

WEATHER

LOCAL REPORT: Thunderstorms drenched Seminole County Wednesday afternoon with 2.10 inches recorded at the Sanford Sewage Treatment Plant. .99 at the University of Florida Agricultural Research and Education Center on Celery Avenue and .75 at the Casselberry Sewage Treatment Plant. There was a high of 92 Wednesday and a reading of 70 at 8 a.m. today at the center. More thundershowers are expected this afternoon and tonight.

NATIONAL REPORT: Thunderstorms that triggered a damaging tornado in Dodge City, Kan., and soaked Flagstaff, Ariz., with more rain in one hour than the city normally gets in the entire month of August, deluged the nation's midsection today. Rain fell over the lower Missouri Valley, the Gulf Coast and the drought-stricken Southeast, where a fourth day of rain made farmers optimistic about some late-season crops. The tornado touched down in Dodge City Wednesday night, ripping part of the roof off the private Lakeshore Club 3 miles north of town. None of the members inside at the time were injured, police dispatcher Sarah Teel said. The twister also destroyed a camper trailer and a building several miles away, she said. "Fortunately, there were no casualties or injuries." Up to 7 inches of rain fell on parts of Nebraska, Missouri, Louisiana and Iowa Wednesday, prompting flood warnings as some rivers and creeks spilled over their banks. Flash flood watches were posted through the morning for parts of Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri, the National Weather Service said. Nearly 3 inches of rain fell in about one hour at Flagstaff Wednesday, flooding Interstate Highway 17, uprooting trees and causing mudslides. Wednesday's rain exceeded the average rainfall of 2.62 inches for the month of August at Flagstaff. The Southeast enjoyed its fourth straight day of rain today, leaving a glimmer of hope for some farmers who have watched a summer-long drought cause an estimated $2.5 billion in crop damage. "A good portion — about 50 percent — of the area will receive rain today," NWS meteorologist Pete Reynolds said. "There is still an unstable air mass over the area and there's a lot of moisture in the air." Greg Johnson, an agricultural meteorologist in North Carolina, said the rain fell too late to salvage withered corn but would help cattle producers and growers of late crops. "A lot of the hardest-hit farmers are cattle producers," Johnson said.

Seminole Commission Creates New Voting Precinct, Pays For MTA Election

Seminole County Commissioners created a new voting precinct and reimbursed the county elections office for the cost of the Metropolitan Transit Authority referendum during Tuesday afternoon's commission session.

The newly created precinct, Precinct 93, puts 518 voters between the Little Wekiva River and Interstate 4 in their own voting area, shortening their trip to polling places. Included in the new precinct are the Wingfield Reserve, Markham Ridge, Stonewood Farm, and Mandarin subdivisions areas. Those voters were formerly a part of the 54th precinct.

Precinct 54, which includes 1,738 voters in Sabal Point, Whisper Wood, and Cypress Landing, is now bounded by the Little Wekiva River, Wekiva River, and Winter Springs Road. Adjoining precincts to the south of the 54th precinct including precincts 71, 92, 9, and 60 remain the same, as do all other county polling areas.

The failed MTA referendum to finance road improvements through property taxes earlier this year cost the county $44,530. In preparing to pay for this fall's primary and general elections, Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard requested repayment from the county for the cost of the MTA vote. The money comes from the county's contingency fund into the personal services and operating fund.

County Approves Gas Tax Formula

Approval was given to the formula which will be used to divide an estimated $6 million in gasoline tax revenues annually among Seminole County and its seven cities by the Seminole County Commission Tuesday.

To be finally adopted, the controversial formula must also be approved by cities representing at least 50 percent of the county's population.

The "Local Option Gas Tax" formula for dividing the money was given tentative approval by the county and city representatives last week. But the formula will now go before each city government for official action.

Under the formula approved by the county, the county's share of the revenue — to be used for road and drainage improvements — will be 63.6 percent of the total tax take, while the cities are to get 36.4 percent. If approved, the new formula will be used starting in 1988.

About $5 million in gas tax money already collected has been tied up in an appeal to the governor and cabinet by the city of Altamonte Springs. The city has reportedly said it would consider dropping its appeal, thus releasing the money, if a new formula is adopted.

Under the new formula, the city's shares will "float", or change depending on road improvement spending. Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess said he is hopeful that the cities can give approval to the new formula by the end of the month.

OPEC Should Be Thwarted

Oil prices on the world's spot markets jumped 20 to 30 percent after the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced it would reduce production during September and October. Although previous OPEC efforts to control production always have failed, the cartel's desperate need to boost oil prices has convinced some experts that members won't cheat on this latest agreement.

This vivid reminder of OPEC's ability to disrupt world oil markets should strengthen American resolve to maintain a strong domestic oil industry. Never again should the United States become as energy dependent on OPEC as it was during the 1970s.

The recent collapse of world oil prices, from $28 to less than $10 a barrel, has benefited nearly every segment of the U.S. economy. Gasoline is cheaper now than at any time since 1978. Lower energy costs have kept inflation in check and helped stimulate the nation's still-sluggish economy.

But the same market forces that produced the worldwide oil surplus and drastically lowered energy costs threaten again to make the United States overly dependent upon OPEC. Just as high prices encouraged the search for domestic oil during the early 1980s, recent low prices have brought U.S. oil exploration and drilling activity to a near standstill. There are fewer drilling rigs operating in the United States this month than at any time since World War II.

In 1979, U.S. oil imports peaked at 9 million barrels a day, or 48 percent of total consumption. Last year, imports had declined to less than 5 million barrels a day, and represented only 31.5 percent of U.S. consumption. The key to this remarkable turnaround was conservation. From 1978 to 1985, the United States actually reduced oil consumption by nearly 17 percent.

But if oil prices stabilize at $15 a barrel and federal energy policy remains unchanged, U.S. oil consumption is expected to increase by as much as 3 million barrels a day by 1991, while domestic production would fall by roughly the same amount. Thus, oil imports would increase by as much as 6 million barrels a day and account for 50 to 60 percent of U.S. oil consumption. Most of these additional imports would come from OPEC.

Without a strong domestic oil and gas industry to counter OPEC, the energy crisis of the 1970s could be repeated.

This disheartening scenario can be avoided if Congress acts to stimulate domestic oil production. Indeed, the Senate took an important first step in that direction recently by voting to repeal the windfall-profits tax on domestic oil, which was imposed in 1980 when Congress decontrolled the price of American crude. Because it doesn't take effect until oil prices exceed $18 a barrel, the government is not collecting a dime in windfall-profits taxes today.

Nevertheless, the tax weakens incentives for domestic oil producers to engage in costly exploration because its taxes could claim 70 percent of future oil revenue above $18.50 a barrel. Clearly, the windfall-profits tax ought to be repealed.

Congress also should decontrol the price of natural gas and abolish restrictions on the use of gas by utilities and industries. Moreover, there may never be a better time to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve than with the current low-priced oil. The strategic reserve was designed to protect the United States from disruptions in oil supply. But only 500 million of the 750 million barrels designated are now in storage.

Continued energy conservation and a strong domestic oil industry are America's best safeguards against future energy shocks. By using energy wisely and encouraging development of its domestic energy resources, the United States can reduce OPEC's influence on the world's economy and its energy policies.

RUSTY BROWN

The Burned Heart Lesson Of 'Heartburn'

Is there something to be learned from "Heartburn"?

Is it just a two-hour movie with popular box-office stars, Meryl Streep and Jack Nicholson, playing off the scandalous side of Washington? Is it merely a fast-moving, best-selling roman a clef of wisecracks and badinage? Or, is it valuable insight into the disintegration of a marriage and its accompanying anguish and sadness?

It is, I think, all three of these. Here we have two well-known people — one, Carl Bernstein, half of the celebrated journalistic team credited with blowing the lid off Watergate; the other, Nora Ephron, witty essayist, author and screen writer.

The scandal in their high-profile marriage — his affair with the wife of the British ambassador — became a stunning item in a Washington gossip column, then, a barely disguised novel written by Ephron, and now, a summer movie.

To top it off, Bernstein gets his rebuttal in this month's issue of Playboy magazine, telling of his legal maneuvering to get some control over how he's portrayed in the script. Perhaps that is why the movie is gentler on him than the book.

Be that as it may, the pain of the situation still comes through: a candidly told real-life trauma of a woman with a two-year-old child and soon to have another who discovers her husband is having an affair. "There I was, seven months gone," she writes, "awaybacked, awkward, bloated, lopy, with a belly button that looked like a pumpkin stem and feet that felt like old cucumbers."

The shock of discovery hits her hard. She writes, "You decide to love him, you decide to trust him, you're... in the day-to-dayness of the marriage, and you kind of notice things aren't what they were, but it's a distant bell.... And then when something does turn out to be wrong, it isn't that you knew all along, it's that you were somewhere else."

In the movie, we see her going through her husband's desk and finding the bills for flowers, long-distance phone calls and secret trips the lovers took together. She is shaking with rage when she confronts her husband with a drawerful of evidence.

Anyone who has faced a similar awakening knows the anger and humiliation, the crumbling self-esteem, the enormous sense of failure.

A friend of Ephron's, who weathered a similar wrench, advises her to wait it out. She gives that a try, but when the affair continues, decides she would "rather die than sit here and pretend it's OK ... rather die than spend five more minutes wondering where you are and anticipating the next betrayal."

We sense her choice won't be easy when we see her boarding the plane — her newborn strapped to her chest, clutching the hand of her toddler, who struggles on baby legs, to climb the high steps onto the aircraft.

Would it have been better for her to stay? I don't know. Constancy, after all, is the wellspring of marriage. We think of a marriage certificate as a talisman to ward off the evil of temptation.

But infidelities happen — often, we suppose — and the innocent partner has two rude truths to reckon with: accepting the reality of the transgression; and figuring out what to do about it.

And here is where the book and movie go beyond a kiss-and-tell episode between notables. It's a public exposure of primal emotions. A lot of women have had to deal with Ephron's dilemma — whether to live on with a known betrayer, or to venture forth to the unknown. Either road is a despairing turning point in a woman's life.

Trust betrayed doesn't always destroy a marriage. But it leaves a scar that's hard to hide, a heartburn that doesn't go away. That's the lesson of "Heartburn."

Senate Grade Report

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Breathes there a student who wouldn't rush to sign up for Senate 101 with professor Ken Uston?

Just look at the man's credentials: graduate of Harvard Business School, made millions playing blackjack, wrote a best seller on how to beat video games.

And, best of all, Uston is a soft grader. He does not flunk his students.

Unfortunately for students in general, admission to the professor's course is limited.

To get it in, you have to be a member of the U.S. Senate and if you are a member of the U.S. Senate you also can't get out.

The latest project of this multifaceted man is grading the performance of senators on television and the first report cards have been mailed out.

In the entire 100-member class, no one flunked. Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., tried but Uston gave him a D-plus, which is nothing to write home to Montana about but is a ways from rock bottom in Uston's grading system.

A flat D translated into "bad" and there is always the well-known F, which is "really bad."

Although the grading period covered the month of July, which features such major issues as tax reform, overriding President Reagan's veto, the Manion nomination and the urgent supplemental appropriations bill, there were some truants.

Unable to keep up with the pace of the Senate, the grades were actually based on the first week of June when television began, the final week before the July Fourth recess and several days at random.

During that period, Sens. Jake Garn, R-Utah, Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., James McClure, R-Idaho, and Paul Trible, R-Va., "never said a word" and Sens. David Pryor, D-Ark., Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and John Warner, R-Va., "appeared only briefly" and did not get a grade.

Uston sent to the media only the individual report cards of three senators — Sens. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore. — and they all did well.

Uston plans to grade the senators monthly and the results, as the major issues shift, should be interesting.

Uncle Sam's Island Resort Is A Steal

By Jack Anderson

and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — One of the great bargain vacation spots in the Caribbean is Water Island in the U.S. Virgin Islands. It may not be a bargain for the vacationers who stay there — you could easily spend $3,000 for a week at the Sea Cliff hotel — but for the resort operators it's a cut-rate bonanza, thanks to a benevolent Uncle Sam.

Water Island, a former Army base, is owned by the U.S. taxpayers, in whose behalf it has been mismanaged for the last 34 years by the Interior Department. Thanks to an incredibly generous lease, the resort owner, Water Isle Hotel and Beach Club Ltd., made more than $1 million last year — but paid the Interior Department the magnificent sum of $18,635 for a year's rent on the entire island.

Until 18 months ago, when the current leaseholder built a $12 million hotel and resort complex, the government never got anything approaching $18,000 for its annual

DON GRAFF

Jesse And Friends

It seems something crucial is missing for North Carolina's senior senatorial scourge unless he has some Latin American thug to be speaking up for in opposition to the position of his own government.

The thug of the moment is Gen. Augusto Pinochet, the president of Chile whose claim to political legitimacy rests on bullets, not ballots. Of late, Reagan administration policymakers have been taking a dim view of Pinochet's blatantly brutal governing style and his resistance to a transfer of power to an elected regime.

The view got very dim indeed recently when Pinochet's troops reportedly incinerated a couple of young opponents. Washington registered disapproval by having U.S. Ambassador Harry G. Barnes Jr. attend the funeral.

So guess who promptly turns up in Chile? Jesse Helms, of course, publicly backing Pinochet and accusing the ambassador of disloyalty to his own president. Well, that murky business sputters on, with allegations of confidential State Department information possibly being leaked to Chile via a Helms associate, and Helms counter-accusing State of carrying on a vendetta against him. Et cetera, et cetera, et cetera.

Our point is, however, the Helms taste in Latins in general. Before Pinochet, some may remember, there was "Major Bob," as he was familiarly but far from affectionately known around the American embassy in El Salvador.

Full name Roberto D'Aubuisson. He was the fiery right-wing leader who was narrowly defeated in the 1984 Salvadoran presidential election.

D'Aubuisson had long been linked with the "death squads" that were rapidly taking care of El Salvador's overpopulation problem. If he wasn't directing their operations, he certainly knew who was. He also played a central, if still ambiguous, role in a reported 1984 plot to assassinate the U.S. ambassador to El Salvador.

Helms, naturally, was D'Aubuisson's most outspoken — and eventually virtually only — defender on Capitol Hill. Major Bob, the senator argued, was getting a bum publicity rap and had been denied the Salvadoran presidency by the U.S. Embassy's interference in the elections on his opponent's behalf.

When the reported plot against the ambassador came to light, it was none other than Helms who, at the specific request of the Reagan administration, relayed the word to D'Aubuisson to cool it.

Major Bob has maintained he knew nothing about the nasty business until he got that word. But the evidence strongly suggests that at the very least he knew to whom to pass the word. The plot was cooled.

D'Aubuisson has maintained a much lower profile since that incident. In September of last year, he stepped down as leader of his party, the National Republican Alliance, reportedly because he had become an embarrassment to the wealthy business figures who are the bankrollers.

rental. Terms of the lease set the monthly rent for the island at $250 — about what you might pay for a couple of days in one of Sea Cliff's air-conditioned rooms. The government was also supposed to collect a tiny percentage of the tenant's gross receipts above $200,000 a year, but before the hotel was built, the government's cut never amounted to much — for a variety of reasons.

Chief among these reasons, according to an inspector general's audit, was that the earlier leaseholders consistently underestimated their gross receipts to arrive at the government's percentage. Another reason may have been that the earlier leaseholders never paid any rent at all. No one can be sure, because the Interior Department failed to keep proper records on its potentially lucrative resort property.

Thwarted by the department's inadequate files, the auditors asked for the current leaseholder's ledgers, only to learn that they had been destroyed in a flood that hit the Illinois office of the parent company. The auditors set to work painstakingly reconstructing the revenue figures from work papers and other surviving documents.

"Results showed that reconstructed gross receipts were significantly higher than amounts used by (the previous leaseholder) to compute rent payments," the auditors reported. They estimated the difference to be $122,211 in 1978 and $372,234 in 1979.

Interior Department official Larry Morgan blamed the terms of the lease. "The lease was designed to provide economic development on the island because the federal government didn't want to put any money into it," Morgan told our reporter David Davis. But, he added, the lease was drafted in such vague terms that development of the island's potential was not made mandatory.

So for years a succession of leaseholders simply paid the $250 a month rent and did nothing to develop their bargain property.

SCIENCE WORLD

Ocean Bottom Plants

By Deltha Ricks
UPI Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A deep-sea exploration 8,000 feet below the waves of the Pacific has confirmed what scientists only theorized just a few years ago — not all higher life forms rely on energy from the sun.

Marine scientists in an Alvin submersible — like the one used to explore the Titanic — found sea organisms that produce their own complex organic compounds, the crucial molecular building blocks that sustain life.

"Scientists once thought all animals were intimately linked to the surface," said marine chemist Kenneth Johnson of the University of California, Santa Barbara.

"No one really felt that a chemically based community existed among higher life forms — everyone seemed to think of this great link to photosynthesis."

Scientists thought the sun, by sparking the process of photosynthesis in green plants, produced the organic compounds — amino acids, sugars and carbohydrates — that virtually all higher life forms need to construct proteins.

Animals breathed the oxygenated air and ate plants or other animals that consumed plants — and the energy derived from photosynthesis was passed on.

But a nagging question remained, said Johnson, especially after thriving sea life was discovered by marine scientists in 1977 near the Galapagos Islands thousands of feet underwater in an area where biologists did not think higher life forms lived.

Photosynthesis cannot function in complete darkness, Johnson said.

So what did? The chemist and his team of deep-sea explorers found communities of giant tube worms, mussels, clams and crabs that had a "symbiotic relationship with the bacteria" clustered around huge mineral-rich cracks on the ocean floor.

"These animals are living on the chemical energy from the center of the earth," he said.

The bacteria, Johnson found during a deep-sea chemical analysis with a special probe aboard the Alvin, combine the sulfide with oxygen in seawater to form sulfate, a process that releases energy to form the molecules needed to sustain life.

They ran a low-budget resort in the island's old fort, and rented much of the island in small lots for vacation homes.

How the inspector general got into the act is instructive: The Environmental Protection Agency served Interior with papers in 1982 charging the tenants on Water Island with serious violations of federal and territorial laws. Garbage was being burned and landfilled without proper permits, while raw sewage was being dumped directly into the Caribbean. "Literally, what they had was hoses running from houses," Morgan said.

Alerted to the island's problems (and perhaps to its existence) by the EPA, Interior officials found that such records as there were had been scattered among three different agency offices. The inspector general's bloodhounds were called in to sniff out the facts.

It was only then that the Interior Department's lackadaisical management of its valuable property for 34 years was discovered — and the tenants' years of abuse.

Letter Carriers Given OK To To Solicit Funds

Altamonte Springs letter carriers are scheduled to be collecting donations instead of delivering letters Sunday.

The Seminole County Commission Tuesday approved the Altamonte Letter Carriers Association request to solicit donations for the Muscular Dystrophy Association at three intersections on Sunday.

In a letter to commissioners requesting permission to collect the donations, John Medeiros, association president, said a July 4th dunk tank fundraiser had already raised $3,636 for the cause.

Sunday's activities are called "Tag Day", and motorists stopped at the intersections will be given a button with each donation.

Letter carriers will be at the following intersections from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. Sunday:

- U.S. Highway 17-92 and State Road 434.
- State Road 434 and Montgomery Road.
- State Road 434 and Markham Woods Road.

The letter carriers hope to raise $1,500 from the Tag Day donations.

Decision Expected Today In Judge Candidate's Challenge

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Whether the quest for a new circuit judgeship in the Seminole-Brevard Circuit is a two-lawyer dash or a default shoe-in is set to be decided today by a circuit judge.

Circuit Judge Charles McClure in Tallahassee heard arguments Wednesday regarding a civil suit brought by judge candidate Joe Rosier of Lake Mary against his opponent County Judge Lawrence Johnston of Merritt Island, and the Department of Elections.

Rosier maintains in his suit filed Aug. 7 that Johnston's resignation letter does not clearly state that Johnston has resigned his office to run, as required by law. Johnston counters that Gov. Bob Graham has accepted his resignation letter, as well as the Department of Elections, and that three candidates are running for his position as a county judge in Brevard County.

Johnston's resignation becomes effective Jan. 5, 1987.

McClure told the attorneys for both candidates that he would issue an opinion today and put in writing at a later date. Rosier asked for a speedy decision because of the upcoming Sept. 2 primary, which is the election date for the new seat because only two candidates are in the nonpartisan race.

If McClure decides in favor of Rosier, Johnston would become an invalid candidate and Rosier, the lone candidate, would become the new circuit judge, according to the suit.

Johnston said he was shocked "a tactic such as this" would be used in a judges race.

In the suit, Johnston's resignation letter states he intends to resign Jan. 5, the day before the new circuit judge will take office. He has told the Evening Herald that as of Jan. 6 he will either be the new circuit judge or a private attorney, but not a county judge, his current position.

Rosier, however, says in the suit, which was filed on his behalf by an attorney defeated by Johnston in 1980, that Johnston's saying he intends to resign is different than Johnston saying he will resign.

Rosier said he filed the suit for a clarification of the resign-to-run law and not to knock Johnston out of the race.

Japanese Use New Rocket To Put Satellites In Orbit

TOKYO (UPI) — A new Japanese rocket carried two satellites into orbit Wednesday on its first flight test, improving the nation's launch capability at a time when the American and European space programs are having trouble.

Yataro Mitsubayashi, director-general of the Science and Technology Agency, hailed the success of the first domestically-designed liquid fuel engine as "a major step forward toward Japan's space development in the future."

The National Space Development Agency said the H-1 rocket blasted off at 5:45 a.m. from the national space center in southern Japan, 14 minutes behind schedule, and released a satellite for use by amateur radio stations and another for geodetic surveys.

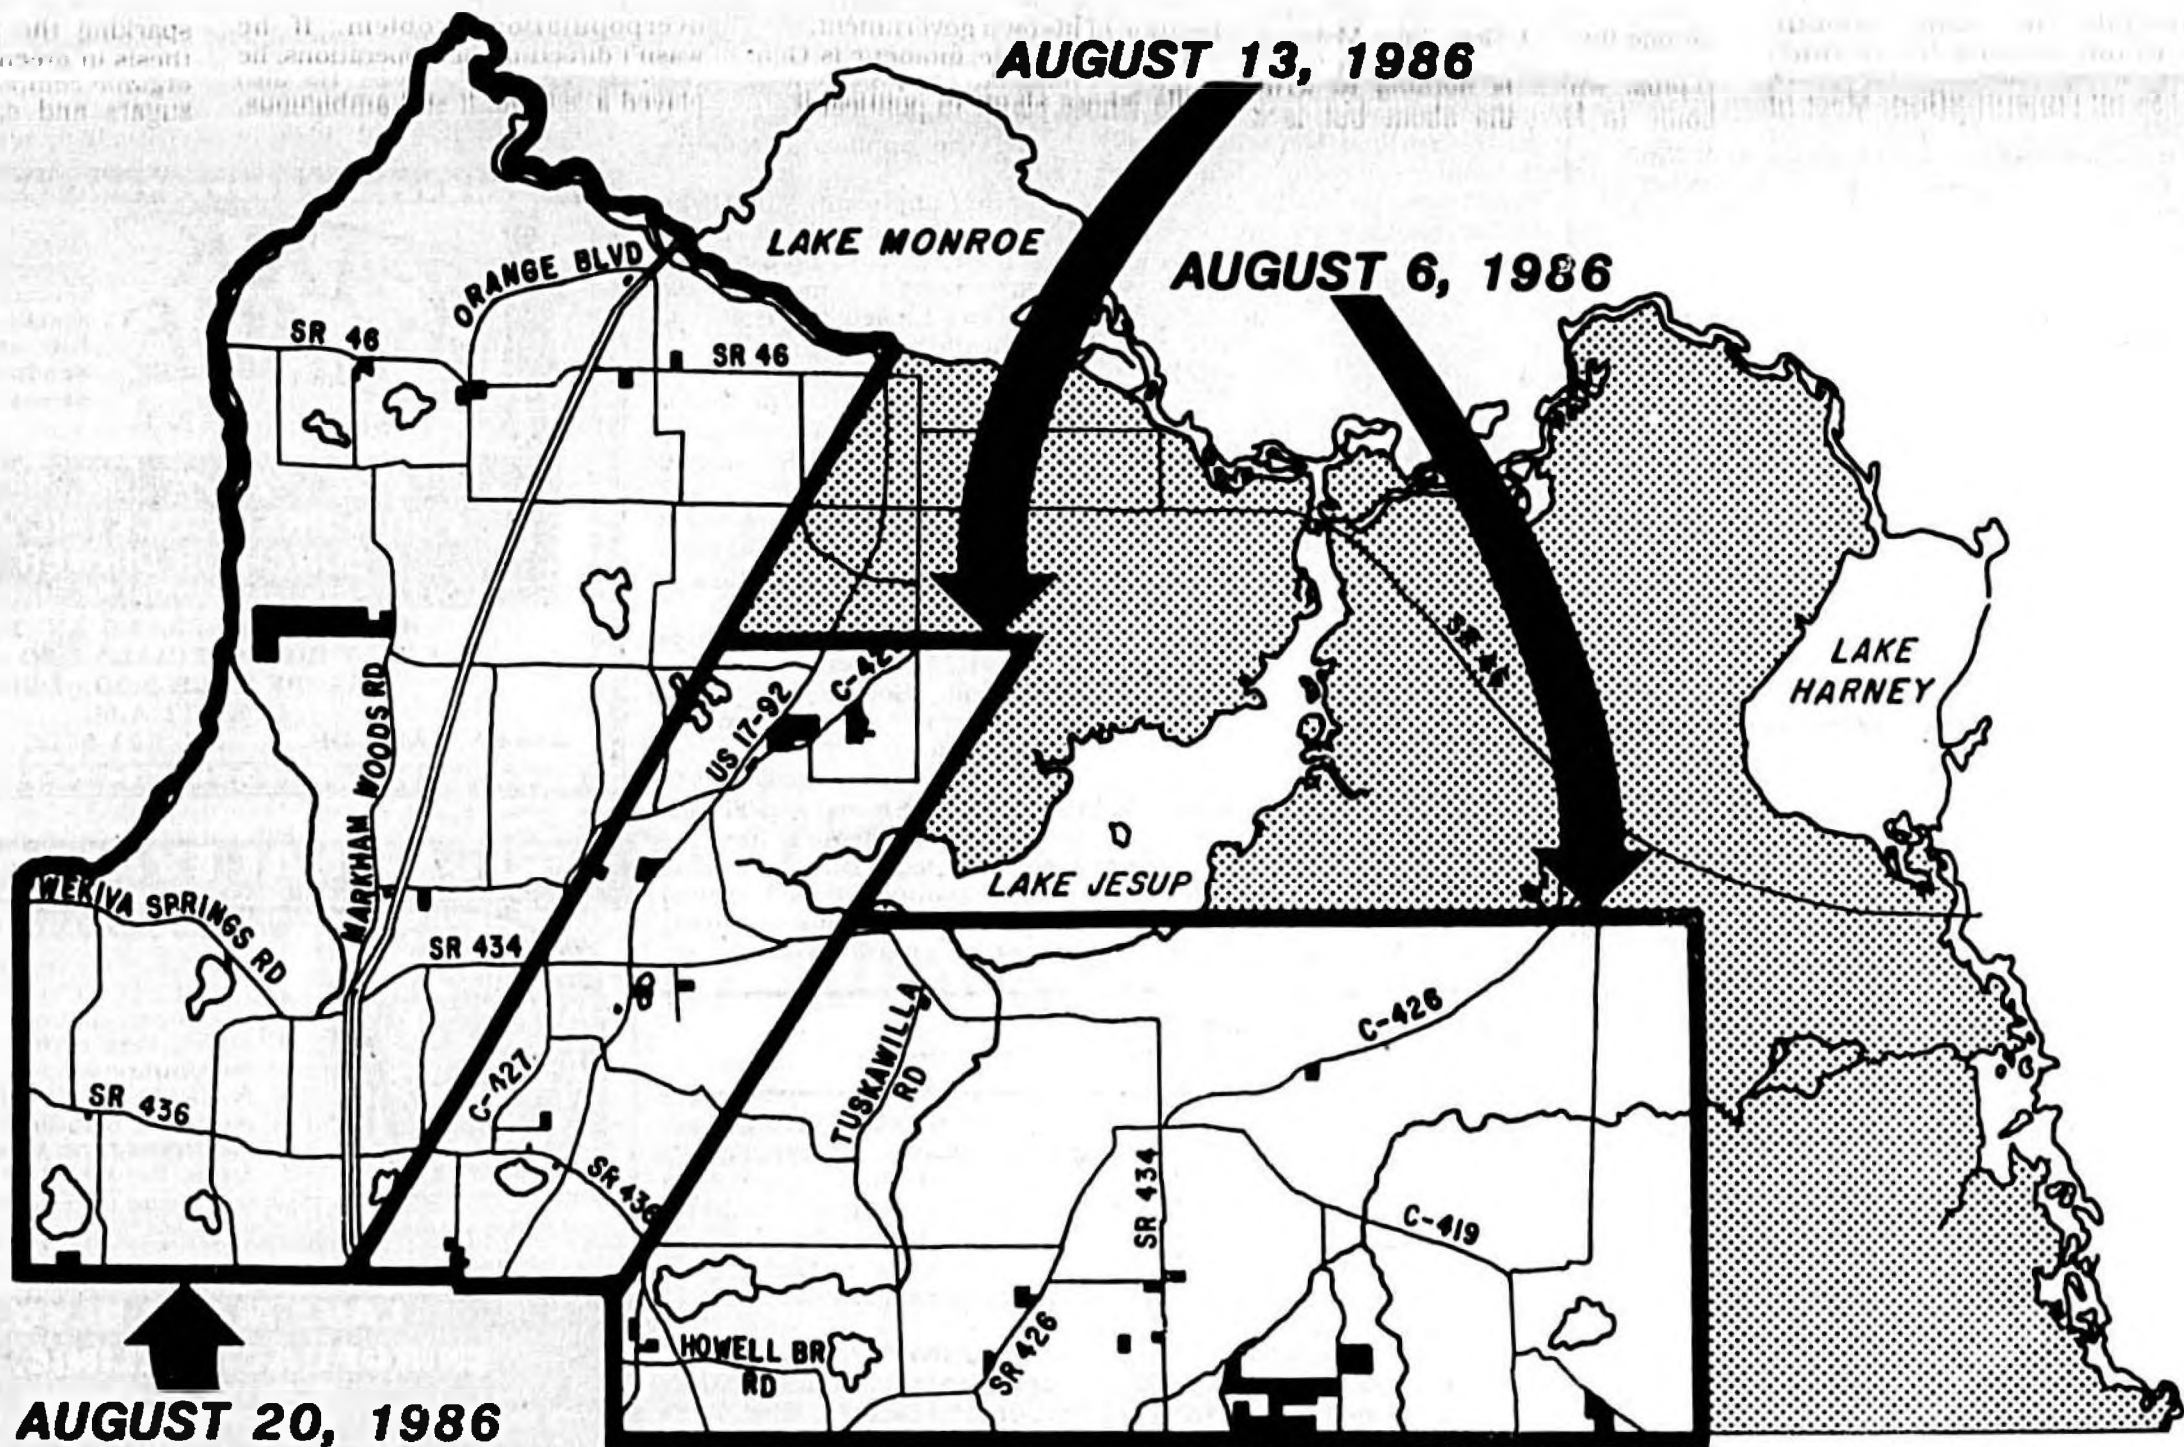

The LE5 engine was developed by the Japanese space agency at a cost of $286 million, and was designed for more powerful rockets, which will be used to launch spacecraft in the 1990s, agency officials said.

The key to the rocket is its new 10.5-ton thrust LE5 engine in its second stage. The engine burns super cold liquid hydrogen with liquid oxygen — the most potent rocket combination in use, and the same propellants used by America's space shuttle main engines.

The failure of the American space shuttle Challenger last January and the subsequent failure of American Titan and Delta rockets and a French Ariane rocket have had a serious impact on companies with satellites to be launched, forcing some to look at Chinese and Russian rockets.

NOTICE OF CHANGE OF LAND USE PUBLIC HEARING TO BE HELD AUGUST 6, 13, AND 20, 1986

The purpose of this Hearing is to consider the requested amendments and to provide recommendations to the Board of County Commissioners regarding the requested amendments and the continued appropriateness of land use designations within certain portions of the map printed in this advertisement. LPA recommendations will be transmitted to the Board of County Commissioners and the Department of Community Affairs (for state and public agency review) prior to final action on the requested amendments.

Beirut Car Bomb Blast Kills At Least 15, Wounds 100

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A car rigged with 220 pounds of explosives went off today near a hospital in Christian east Beirut where a Christian leader who escaped an assassination attempt was hospitalized. At least 15 people were killed and 100 others were injured.

Civil Defense official Elie Honein said a German-made Mercedes sedan car packed with 220 pounds of TNT exploded at 10:03 a.m. in a busy street in Dora, near the St. Joseph hospital and opposite a gas station, causing huge fires.

Police said at least 15 people were killed, seven of which were burned in their cars, and 100 were wounded and taken to hospitals.

The blast caused a fire that gutted a five-story building, demolished 45 houses, and set ablaze dozens of cars and shops.

Blacks Offered Limited Voting

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI) — The government said it is willing to let blacks hold their first national election to choose leaders who would negotiate a power-sharing agreement with President Pieter Botha.

Constitutional Development Minister Chris Heunis told supporters of the ruling white National Party Wednesday that blacks could elect representatives to a proposed National Statutory Council.

He said, however, the election would only be open to leaders who rejected violence as a means of achieving political goals.

Heunis and other Cabinet ministers made it clear the outlawed African National Congress and its jailed leader, Nelson Mandela, would not be allowed to participate. He gave no details of the terms for such an election.

Florida Power & Light Faces Nuclear Power Violations Fine

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff has proposed a $300,000 fine against Florida Power & Light Co. for violations of NRC rules in the operation of its Turkey Point nuclear power plant near Homestead, Fla., the NRC said Wednesday.

But while the NRC staff found violations in six main areas and the fines could have been "substantially" higher because of a poor prior performance record, the agency said FP&L took "extensive action" to "identify and correct problems."

FP&L has 30 days to pay the civil penalty — or to protest it in whole or in part.

The enforcement action was based on findings from NRC inspections at Turkey Point last August, November, January and February, and from FP&L follow-up action after the inspections.

More Counties Seek Drought Aid

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Although federal disaster assistance is now available for farmers in 12 north Florida counties afflicted by the Southeast drought, farmers in 10 more counties await a decision on whether their counties will be declared disaster areas.

Because they are contiguous to afflicted counties in Alabama and Georgia, the Florida counties of Okaloosa, Walton, Holmes, Jackson, Gadsden, Leon, Jefferson, Madison, Hamilton, Columbia, Baker and Nassau are covered by disaster declarations issued for those states last week, officials said.

The county commission majority contends Sanford added insult to previous legal injury by attaching a newly annexed parcel to the western-most tip of approximately 230 acres Sanford annexed last year and the county filed a yet-to-be resolved suit to win back.

The 230 acre parcel consists of two adjacent sites and all told, the acquisitions extend Sanford's western border and tax base almost to Interstate-4, between State Road 46 and the Seaboard Coastline right-of-way.

The parcels are surrounded on three sides by county land and therefore not sufficiently "compact and contiguous" to the city's border, which the county contends is a violation of annexation statutes.

The county further contends the new annexation is not attached to a legal city border, and further, regardless of whether the 230 acre annexation is declared a valid extension of Sanford's border, the newly acquired parcel is not sufficiently contiguous to this land mass to avoid the creation of an illegal enclave.

Sanford's position is "we are legal on all counts, and that's what I'll be arguing in court," City Attorney Bill Colbert said.

He also said "it appears the city's position is the correct one," from his interpretation of annexation laws and the parcels' configuration.

Kirchhoff said today he doesn't feel the county "will have any problem at all winning both suits."

He also said he does not oppose Sanford's growth, "as long as it's legal. And that hasn't been the case with these annexations."

The county's decision to file the latest suit came as follow-up to Monday's city commission meeting, when Assistant County Attorney Louie Groot asked Sanford commissioners to delay the annexation until the previous suit has been resolved. Groot also represented the county in two other annexation delay requests city commissioners denied Monday.

On Tuesday, Kirchhoff proposed legal challenges of these two annexations as well, although both motions fell in 3-2 votes, having received support only from Sturm.

In response to Kirchhoff's actions, City Commissioner John Mercer said "He may live in Sanford, but he definitely doesn't vote as if he has any feelings for Sanford, and never has."

Commissioners Bob Thomas and Milton Smith expressed similar sentiments, while Mayor Bettye Smith and City City Commissioner Dave Farr both said they viewed Kirchhoff's position as

"disappointing."

Farr said Kirchhoff "doesn't appear to be in tune with what we're trying to accomplish. We're trying to raise revenue through expansion, but that seems to have placed us in an adversarial position with him."

Kirchhoff said city commissioners "are welcome to call me" to discuss their sentiments, and Farr, in apparent anticipation of that response questioned why Kirchhoff "has made no attempts to contact the city commission to see if we can work things out."

Kirchhoff said his votes considered benefit of the county as a whole. He said the annexations having created enclaves, city property surrounding county land, have also created confusion regarding which governments' police and fire departments will provide the service to these areas.

"Things get too confusing and while you're deciding who'll provide the service, you're losing time getting it there," he said.

With the exception of Thomas, Sanford commissioners said they were not surprised the county is challenging the annexation. Mayor Smith said the presence of Groot and a court reporter at Monday's meeting, "gave me a pretty good idea what was going to happen next."

Thomas, however, said he didn't expect the litigation.

"I thought the Yankee Lake suit soured everyone's taste for that," Thomas said. "Maybe they feel differently because they won."

Sanford launched a condemnation suit last winter in an attempt to invalidate the county's purchase of the Yankee Lake parcel. Both governments eyed the site as a location for their respective wastewater management programs.

City Commissioner Milton Smith said the county's vote to file suit "is all right with me. I certainly don't like the costs involved, but we think we're right and they (the county) say we're wrong. At this point I think we need a court to decide. Then we can get on with things, and hopefully begin working together."

Mayor Smith and Farr both said they viewed neither their actions nor the county's as acts of aggression.

"Both governments are doing what is felt to be legally right, but unfortunately that puts us on opposite sides of the fence," Farr said.

"I'm not out to fight, and I don't think the county is either," Mayor Smith said. "We're both following what we feel are proper courses and I think there is always that sort of adversarial position between counties and cities when it comes to territory."

She added, however, "I do think our county is particularly bad that way."

voted 89-11 to limit debate on the proposed sanctions, which include restrictions on new U.S. business investment in South Africa.

Under the agreement, however, the popular sanctions bill became endangered — so the Senate reversed itself and voted 82-37 to invoke cloture on Contra aid.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., an opponent of the aid but a strong supporter of the sanctions legislation, moved to rescue the sanctions bill by calling for cloture on both issues. Weicker said the Senate effectively had backed aid to the rebels Tuesday when it voted 54-46 against a move to kill the package.

"This has been a three-legged race long enough," Weicker said. "It is time to untie the runners — Contra aid and South Africa. You win some and you lose some and you go on to the next matter."

In March, the aid package was passed by the Senate but defeated by the House, and Reagan was forced to sweeten the deal by adding to the bill about $300 million in economic aid for Guatemala, Costa Rica, Honduras, and El Salvador.

part." The property, which was known as Peppermint Park, adjoins Christ Episcopal Church and is between Church Avenue and Jesup Avenue.

Although the proposed use of the land is in question, groundbreaking was held at the site on June 19. Cost of the police building when finished is to be $732,997.

City officials are also being accused of violating Article 7, Section 10, of the U.S. Constitution, by using public funds on the property "which ultimately benefits a private religious organization" and violating separation of church and state. The suit also states the city is violating the Constitution by pledging credit for a private purpose to fund the building on private property "which will ultimately, or has reverted" to the trustees of the diocese (now the Diocese of Central Florida.)

The area designated as "preservation" will also be dedicated to the county as a drainage water conservation easement, which will be under county government's control.

Levy also said he did not anticipate a great traffic increase in the area if the expansion is eventually approved.

"The expansion would just keep people at the market longer," Levy said.

The changes in the new proposal, including the buffer areas "should make a difference to our neighbors," he added. "We can live without access onto 427 for now. It's not everything we wanted, but we can live with it."

He pointed out that the proposed expansion project had already cost him over $100,000 in engineering and legal fees.

The was no audience opposition to the requested amendment, and the request was recommended for approval by the board on a 7-0 vote.

Maitland Avenue property owners in south Seminole County, near Maitland and Altamonte Springs, told the panel that the widening to four lanes of the avenue and heavy traffic had diminished the quality of their home lives, as well as decreased the property values as residences.

The mostly adjoining homes lie on Maitland Avenue between Oranole Road and the Seminole-Orange county line.

They requested a comp plan amendment to allow for potential rezoning from low density residential to low intensity commercial use. Four of the lots are on the west side of the avenue, and 14 are on the east side.

One additional parcel north of Oranole Road on the road was also recommended for approval. One other property owner withdrew a request for consideration of designation change for seven acres north of Oranole Road.

"Nobody will buy our homes to live in with 20,000 cars going by every day," Mrs. T.E. Shue, one of the applicants told the panel.

Another applicant, Mrs. Glenn Sparkman said, "This is no longer a residential neighborhood." She said the noise and speed of traffic is making life unpleasant and unsafe.

"We can't even open our doors and windows because of traffic (exhaust) fumes," she added, and likened living on the avenue to having a home on a truck route. She said many residents are now renting their homes to tenants.

Others said the condition of some of the homes is deteriorating. "Some of the homes look like crap" one south county resident said.

Spokesmen for homeowners in the Oakland Shores and Florida Haven developments behind the properties requesting new land use designation lobbied against the potential rezoning by saying it would create possible infringement on their residential neighborhoods.

An apparent compromise was struck with commission member Alda Rowe's motion to recommend approval of a change in land use from low density residential to medium density residential use.

The motion was approved by a 7-0 vote with board members Rowe, Dot Meadors, chairman Sue Lewis, Jim Weinberg, Harry Hagle, Michael Davis, and Joe Creamons voting to recommend the change amendment to the comp plan.

ceeded by a public hearing, held last month, and will followed with its presentation to the state for approval on Aug. 20.

Sanford is acting under a state Department of Environmental Regulation edict to cease treated wastewater disposal in Lake Monroe and originally targeted the Yankee Lake parcel, west of the city, as site for compliance.

Following an inability to secure the site through litigation last winter and spring, Sanford focused on city-owned properties as sites for disposal of highly treated wastewater through spray irrigation systems.

Approximately $43,000 of the $217,000 wastewater program expenditure commissioners approved Monday went for engineering studies to establish the revised disposal plan's viability.

These studies and additional documentation will be presented by Sanford to the state at the Aug. 20 session. The meeting will also address transfer to the revised project of the approximately $8.25 million the state had pledged Sanford for implementation of its proposed Yankee Lake-based project.

The city is also seeking an additional $550,000 in DER funding for the revised project. This funding would be secured through alleviation of certain grant restraints the state had placed on the proposed Yankee Lake effort, Sanford Engineering and Planning Director Bill Simmons said.

The $217,000 wastewater program expenditure will be paid in its entirety from the city's utility fund, with five-sixths of these monies reimbursed the fund after the Aug. 26 closing on the $16.98 million wastewater project bond commissioners authorized last month.

Approximately $6,000 of the $217,000 project payment is related to engineers' part in the bond preparation, while $184,000 of the expenditure represents the first payment Sanford has made to its contractor for wastewater program implementation. City Manager Frank Falson said. These monies went for efforts at the Poplar Avenue sewage treatment plant, as part of work necessary to upgrade and expand the facility.

The approximately $3,000 balance went for project efforts in preparation for separation of the city's combined storm and sanitary sewer lines.

One Last Cast For A Special Fishing Friend

Fishing buddies are special friends. Most of us have been fishing many years, and we have at least one friend that we go fishing with most of the time.

You get to know this person very well when you spend 6-8 hours a day with them in the small confines of a boat. Both of you usually develop a strong friendship over the years by sharing this small space and by respecting rights and feelings of the other person.

Out on the water there are no pretenses. Barriers are broken down, and you are just two anglers in a boat enjoying the wonders of nature and sharing a great sport.

Fishing buddies often know each other's innermost feelings, and they frequently talk about matters that are difficult to discuss with others.

There is something therapeutic about being on the water. Things that had loomed so ominously earlier suddenly lose their somber perspective.

Some fishing trips are good while others are not so successful, but both of you have a good time regardless of the number of fish caught. An experience has been shared together that results in many tall tales when you both return to your respective homes.

My life was recently saddened by the death of my good fishing buddy, Charles Fletemeyer.

"Flete" loved life and the great outdoors. In his late 60s, and with failing health, he would always drive up promptly at 4:30 a.m. We would fish hard all day, and Flete would always want to get in "one last cast" before we went home.

His favorite fish was the seatrout, and Flete spent many tireless hours fishing for this species. Some of his happiest times were spent watching seatrout clobber finger mullet on he surface and fighting these tasty fish to the boat.

Jim Shupe

Flete also liked to shrimp at Oak Hill and troll for speckled perch on Lake Monroe.

One of the trips I remember the most was a beautiful spring day when we succeeded in filling up an ice chest with flounder at Port Canaveral. Flete's eyes gleamed like those of a young boy.

Flete seemed to draw strength from our fishing trips. The fresh air and the water appeared to temporarily bolster his poor health.

We shared many hours together in the boat, and a binding friendship developed over the years. I grew to respect Flete's candid manner and his straightforward approach in dealing with life, and eventually with death.

I will miss my fishing buddy, Flete, a great deal, but I know the fishing is much better for him where he is now.

Ron Rowline of Highland Park Fish Camp reports that bass fishing is slow due to the hot weather. Fish at night or early in the morning for best results. Bream and catfish are biting right through the heat of the day if the fishermen can start it. Use muscades, grass shrimp, or worms and fish in the river or in Lake Woodruff.

Dell Abernethy is vacationing out of state, but a phone call to Okeechobee Fish Camp confirms the fact that it indeed is hot and the bass are not cooperating with the fishermen. Bream and catfish are being caught around the new bridge.

The freak cold water current that moved into the east coast has slowed action down at Sebastian Inlet. The redfish are still biting, but the snook and the seatrout have slowed down dramatically. There will be a lot of hungry fish when the water warms up again.

Captain Jack of Port Canaveral reports that the busy line is slow at the present time. Okeechobee anglers are picking up dolphin, wahoo, king mackerel and a few sailfish at scattered water depths. Cobia are being caught on some of the offshore wrecks. Bottom fishing is slow due to the cold water temperatures. Redfish are cooperating in the Banana and Indian rivers, but seatrout have slowed down due to the hot weather.

Sheepshead, drum, flounder, redfish, and bluefish are keeping anglers busy at the New Smyrna Jetty. Live shrimp and finger mullet are the best live baits. Many anglers are loading up on sheepshead while fishing in the shade of the bridges in the New Smyrna area. Fiddler crabs are the best bait for sheepshead.

Prep Gridders Camp In For Nervous Night

All of the Seminole County high school football players are probably a little nervous right now. With practice starting Friday, it marks the end of their summer and the beginning of a period in which they will bust their tails for the next three months.

Aug. 15 is an alarming date to all prep football players.

The players have mixed emotions right now. I know since I have played football for 10 years and played my final two years at Lake Brantley High School.

I had enjoyed a nice summer and wasn't sure if I was ready to block and tackle for four hours a day in the intense heat. I was looking forward to the season, though, and realized that if I wanted to do well I would have to pay the price.

There is no doubt in my mind that the first two weeks of practice are the most difficult. Most coaches have two practices a day, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. In between practice, players are so worn out that all they can do is get rest because they know that they will need all of the energy that they can muster up it when the afternoon session rolls around.

The first few days are in shorts and shirts since Florida requires three days of practice without hitting. Since there is no hitting allowed, the coaches have no choice but to run agility and conditioning drills.

At the end of practice coaches will have the players run sprints. I hated sprints with a passion and often felt that I was going to pass out during them. Conditioning is one of the most difficult parts of practice but even though I didn't like to admit it, it is also one of the most helpful parts.

Coaches will go over blocking assignments and defensive formations during the first few days. Basically, the coaches are trying to familiarize the players with what they learned in the spring.

Once the three days of non-hitting are over, the real fun begins. Hitting starts immediately. Coaches and players are both anxious to get a few licks in. At Brantley, the first thing we did was a drill called "hamburger." The drill lived up to its name as there were some enough big hits to that it made those on the receiving end feel like ground up meat.

The offensive linemen will have lots of fun on the first day of hitting as they greet an old friend known as the sled. Most teams have a five- or seven-man sled in which the coach sits on top of it and makes the linemen push it for what seems like an eternity.

The sled increases leg strength and driving power. The coach will yell "drive, drive, drive," so quickly and loudly that the command is extremely hard to understand.

The defensive players will immediately start to participate in tackling drills. Coaches will look over the players and search for the hard hitters.

The offensive backs will be in another group. Quarterback and receivers will work on pass patterns while running backs will be taking hand-offs.

The Seminole County players should be a little nervous right now. Each player will be fighting it out in an attempt to earn a starting position. Coaches don't care if a player was a starter the previous year as everyone is equal when practice begins.

I didn't like the first few weeks of practice at all. There were times when I was so dehydrated that I thought I was seeing mirages. The heat is intense and when a water break came around it seems heavenly.

If the players can get through the first few weeks, their desire to compete will take over and practice will not seem so bad. It gets a little easier as the season progresses. Once the games roll around coaches will usually have harder practices on Monday and Tuesday and have softer practices on Wednesday and Thursday. Practice begins to get routine and once the players are in shape, it is a breeze.

For those of you out there who will be seniors, try your best to make it through the first few weeks. It seems that it is really a pain but believe me you will miss it once it is over.

So make your senior season a memorable one. You will definitely miss the game once you no longer have a reason to get nervous on Aug. 14.

Herschel Walker, a former All-America at Georgia, signed a $5 million contract Wednesday with Dallas. Walker has played in the USFL for the past three years.

Herschel's Big Bucks Erase Dorsett's Smile

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — The smile Tony Dorsett wore as he posed for the Dallas Cowboys media guide cover with Coach Tom Landry has disappeared.

Dorsett's discontent, he said Wednesday, has less to do with the fact that there now is another Heisman Trophy winner in the Cowboys picture — former USFL star Herschel Walker — than with Walker's reported $5 million over five years.

Dorsett, while praising Walker's talents, said he was angry with Cowboys management for altering the team's salary structure to sign the former New Jersey Generals back and said he wanted to make more money or be traded.

"I can appreciate talent, and Herschel Walker. If you're out there and when I see you, I will tell you it's nothing against you personally," Dorsett said. "... But management has taken it upon themselves to take a special route."

"Why is this (Walker's signing) a special case? We players who have been around here have been through these doors trying to negotiate. We heard about these salary structures numerous times. Now, the salary structure has jumped up."

Representatives of Walker and the Cowboys ended a 22-hour negotiating session Wednesday by coming to terms on what the Dallas Times Herald reported was a five-year, $5 million contract that will make Walker the highest-paid player on the team.

Football

Skins Sign Bryant, 9A

Dorsett and defensive tackle Randy White are currently the highest-paid players at a reported $700,000 to $750,000 in salary, bonuses and other compensation. Quarterback Danny White has the team's highest base salary at $605,000, according to published reports.

But while team officials celebrated Walker's signing, Dorsett said he and other veteran players were angry that the Cowboys went to such lengths to sign Walker while stalling negotiations with other players.

"You have a tight end here, Doug Cosbie, who was promised a contract or he wasn't going to report to camp, yet he hasn't signed," Dorsett said. "Our starting quarterback, Danny White, our starting receiver, Tony Hill, all these guys have been trying to negotiate all off-season, and they can't seem to get it done. Yet management stayed up all night trying to work out this deal for Herschel."

Cosbie, who left Thousand Oaks for Dallas on Wednesday to be with his pregnant wife, and team officials reached agreement late Wednesday on new contract terms, the team said. Cosbie was expected back in camp today.

Dorsett also said he didn't like playing "second fiddle" to Walker, who will return to camp Friday to sign his contract and begin workouts.

"If that's the role they want me to take, put me on the bench and don't use my talents. Just pay me to sit around or trade me," he said. "Go get some receivers, some offensive linemen, whatever you want, I'm at the top of my game. They should be able to get something for me."

Noting his career rushing total of 10,832 yards, sixth-best in NFL history, Dorsett said, "To bring someone in here who hasn't contributed a yard and to pay him twice what they pay me... what it tells me is that I'm no longer their back."

Cowboys spokesman Doug Todd said Cowboys president Tex Schramm has not talked to Dorsett and would have no comment on the running back's remarks.

Joe Bailey, the team's vice president, told radio station KRLD that the dispute was "a tempest in a teapot" that will be settled once Schramm and Dorsett can confer.

Landry said Walker would back up Dorsett at halfback until he is comfortable with the Cowboys' offense.

Martinez: I'll Be Ready For Next Call

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Dave Martinez, Gene Michael and Billy Williams all agree on one thing — a player who bats .121 doesn't last long in the major leagues. Martinez, the author of the paltry .121 percentage during a 34-game tour of duty with the Chicago Cubs this summer, was the first to admit his at-bats wasn't launching line drives as it did in past years.

When Michael summoned the Casselberry center fielder and told him it was time for more seasoning on the farm, Martinez didn't have any trouble packing his bags and accepting the demotion to the Cubs' Class AAA Iowa Oaks.

"In a way, I was glad," Martinez said of the Aug. 3 transfer. "I'll get my stuff together down there."

Martinez, Michael and Williams all agree on another thing — a player of Martinez' caliber won't be down on the farm very long.

"Dave has all it takes to be an excellent big-league hitter," Williams, the Cubs' batting instructor, said about his lefthanded hitting protegee. "He just needs to get the confidence. He has good bat speed and a good eye. He was just a little overmatched his first time around."

And Williams, who was also a sweet-swinging lefty during his 18 seasons with the Cubs, said Martinez' struggles reminded him of a youngster who surfaced in Wrigley Field in 1959.

"I was given a job in the starting outfield during my rookie year," Williams said. "There was a lot of pressure. I didn't hit anything for the first week and the manager sat me down. I just took the time to evaluate what I had been doing wrong. I was all right after that and I think Dave will be the same way."

All right was putting it mildly. Williams, who played in 1,117 consecutive games from 1962-1972, accumulated a .290 career batting average, 2,711 hits, 426 home runs and 1,476 runs batted in during his distinguished career.

Martinez gave an indication of getting his "stuff together" Monday night when he collected three hits in four at-bats and provided the game-winning RBI in an Iowa victory. The Oaks swept a double-header Tuesday, so Martinez' presence has indeed helped them.

Michael said he hopes Martinez will bring his bat back and help the Cubs on Sept. 1 when the rosters expand to 40 players and the former Lake Howell High School standout is expected to return.

All three agree the second time around facing N.L. pitchers has to be more productive than the first. Martinez was hitless in his first 11 major-league at-bats and things didn't get much better after that. Martinez started against righthanded hurlers for a week, then played sparingly as a defensive replacement and a pinch hitter.

He finished with eight hits in 66 at-bats. He scored 10 runs, stole four bases in five attempts. The 5-10, 165-pounder slugged a homer and drove in five runs.

"We gave him a chance (to play center field everyday) and he didn't hit enough to hold it," Michael said. "But he did do a good job defensively in center field. He showed he could run the ball down for us."

"But when (Jerry) Mumphrey started hitting the ball and (Bob) Dernier came back from the disabled list, Dave didn't get much of a chance to play. He's a fine kid and I like him a lot. He has good work habits, so he'll bounce back."

The Cubs had Martinez on an accelerated program to the big time. While playing for Winston-Salem last year, the 21-year-old outfielder led the Class A Carolina League in batting average (.342) and slugging percentage (.438).

"Martinez is going to hit, and hit plenty, when he learns to relax at the plate."

— Michael

Schiraldi Stops KC

Mets general manager Frank Coe says trades should be judged in retrospect, so Boston fans shouldn't condemn the Red Sox too quickly for trading Bob Ojeda to New York.

Calvin Schiraldi, one of the players the Red Sox obtained in an eight-player deal with New York, is asserting himself as Boston's bullpen stopper. The 24-year-old right-hander notched his fourth save in five appearances since being recalled from the minors and helped the Red Sox defeat the Royals 5-2 Wednesday night at Kansas City.

"He has been the difference for us since he got here," Red Sox first baseman Bill Buckner said. "I think we've got the best pitching in the division now. We have five healthy starters and a guy in the pen shutting them down."

Schiraldi relieved Tom Seaver with two out and two on in the eighth inning and got Steve Balboni to line out. Relief pitching, and pitching in general, has always been a problem for the Red Sox. Schiraldi and Joe Sambito, another former Met, have plugged some holes in the Boston bullpen this year.

"Schiraldi has been a good addition," Boston second baseman Marty Barrett said. "He goes after hitters. We need a guy like that to punch some hitters out."

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the Red Sox and maintained Boston's 3 1/2 game lead over New York in the AL East.

Boston took a 4-0 lead in the first inning off Charlie Leibrandt, 9-10. Marty Barrett doubled with one out and scored on Jim Rice's double, one of six two-base hits by the Red Sox. After a two-out walk to Dwight Evans, Buckner singled in Rice, Tony Armas doubled in Evans and Rich Gedman singled in Buckner.

Yankees 4, Indians 0

At New York, Tommy John, making his second start after a two-month layoff, scattered six hits over 7 1-3 innings and Don Mattingly homered and scored twice to lead the Yankees. John, 5-1, was activated from the 21-day disabled list Aug. 8. He was removed with runners on first and second in the seventh. Dave Righetti finished for his 27th save. Tom Candiotti, 11-9, was the loser.

Orioles 7, Blue Jays 6

At Baltimore, Larry Sheets drilled his 15th homer with one out in the 13th inning to lift the Orioles. Sheets hit a 1-0 pitch off Luis Aquino, 0-1, Toronto's fifth pitcher. Don Aase, 5-3, pitched three innings, his longest stint of the season, for the victory.

Rangers 5, Brewers 4

At Arlington, Texas, Ruben Sierra singled home Don Slaught from third base with two out in the 12th inning to lift the Rangers. Slaught, pinch-hitting for Darrell Porter, doubled off Jose John Henry Johnson, 0-1, and advanced to third on Steve Buechele's sacrifice. Greg Harris, 8-8, was the winner. Texas used at least five pitchers for the fourth straight game.

Perez To Retire; Chambliss Shows Gossage His Pop

United Press International

One veteran first baseman announced his retirement Wednesday while another showed there was still pop in his bat.

Tony Perez, apologizing for the recent confusion surrounding his plans, said Wednesday he will retire this season with the Cincinnati Reds.

"I wanted to make the announcement in the next week or two weeks," said the 44-year-old Perez during a news conference at Riverfront Stadium. "But now this happened and now I have to make it. Anyway, right now I am announcing my official retirement."

At Atlanta, 37-year-old Chris Chambliss hit a two-out, three-run home run to cap a four-run ninth inning Wednesday night and rally the Braves to an 8-7 victory over the San Diego Padres.

With the Padres leading 7-4 and one out, Omar Moreno doubled off reliever Rich Gossage, 5-5, for his fifth hit of the game. Ken Oberkfell walked and, one out later, Ken Griffey singled to score Moreno. Chambliss ripped an O-1 pitch over the right-center field fence for his second home run to make a winner of Gene Garber, 5-3.

Chambliss entered the game with only seven RBI and only one home run — on his first at-bat of Opening Day.

"I get a rush every time I play," Chambliss said. "These last three days I've had a chance to start some. That's enough of a thrill for me."

Perez was not as effective as Chambliss Wednesday night, going 0-for-4, but the Reds still rallied to beat the San Francisco Giants.

At Cincinnati, Kurt Stillwell's three-run single highlighted a three-run eighth-inning rally that lifted the Reds to an 8-6 victory over the Giants.

"I want to stay with the club," Perez said.

Tim Raines doubled, stole a base and drove in his 50th run of the season to raise his average to .3325. San Francisco's Chris Brown leads the N.L. with a .3333 mark.

At Chicago, Shawn Dunston's two-run homer capped a three-run eighth-inning rally that carried the Cubs. Dunston belted the first pitch from Don Robinson, 2-2, for his 13th homer — the most by a Cub shortstop since Ernie Banks hit 29 in 1961. Frank DiPino, 2-7, was the winner. Lee Smith pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

At Philadelphia, Mike Schmidt hit a two-run homer to key a four-run first inning and power the Phillies. Ron Roenicke, Gary Redus and Luis Aguayo also hit home runs as the Phillies tagged Mets starter Bob Ojeda, 12-4, with the loss. Philadelphia rookie left-hander Bruce Ruffin improved to 4-3.

At Houston, Orel Hershey, 12-8, fired a five-hitter over 8-2-3 innings and Greg Brock and Mike Scioscia each drove in two runs in a four-run first inning to lift Los Angeles. Tom Niedenfuer collected his eighth save. Houston's Kevin Bass extended his hitting streak to 20 games, an NL season high. Mike Scott fell to 12-8.

...Martinez

Winston-Salem won the first-half championship.

Martinez, who also throws left-handed, established himself as a good contact hitter, striking out just once every 13 at-bats and leading the league in walk-strikeout ratio.

Another impressive showing in spring training at Scottsdale, Ariz. this year almost earned him a spot on the Cubs' opening day roster. Chicago, however, was bogged down with too many high-salaried players to bring along a 21-year-old rookie.

weeks before relocating his stroke and raising his average to .285. USA Today proclaimed him the best defensive outfielder in the American Association and when Michael replaced Jim Frey in mid-June, his first move was to summon Martinez and left-handed pitcher Jamie Moyer.

"I just tried to do too much at one time," Martinez said about his 50 days in the majors. "My pitch selection was pretty bad. I knew they were expecting a lot from me and I was pressing at the plate."

The word around the Wrigley Field press box was that Cubs' President and General Manager Dallas Green was under pressure to show the fruits of the farm system. The Cubs are overloaded with ancient players with fat contracts and a fresh source of talent is necessary for them to compete in the N.L. East in future years.

Thus, Martinez, as the Cubs' top prospect, was rushed to the big time before he was ready.

"Martinez has to learn to relax and find himself at the plate," Michael said. "He never did find himself. He was pressing, feeling for the ball. If he goes down and relaxes, he'll hit the ball like he did before."

"Martinez is going to hit, and hit plenty, when he learns to relax at the plate," he added. Martinez echoed his skipper's comments. "I want to get as many ABs at low as possible," he said. "I'm just going to relax and have fun. I never figured I'd be in the big leagues this soon anyway."

"Now, I know what I have to do. I'll be ready the next time they call. Mentally, I'm fine and physically, I'll always be ready." Especially for an Aug. 31 telephone call.

Maryland Cuts Games

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The University of Maryland basketball team will eliminate all games from its schedule for the upcoming fall semester and establish a strengthened academic support program.

At a news conference Wednesday, head basketball coach Charles "Lefty" Driesell said the team will cancel two or three games plus participation in a November tournament, and reschedule two or three more games for the spring semester.

"By doing this we allow our student athletes the advantage of having the entire first semester to concentrate on their school work and hopefully do well in the classroom," Driesell said.

Tway will play his first round today along with such "name" players as Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Raymond Floyd, Calvin Peete and Ben Crenshaw.

Altamonte Springs bail bondsman and used car dealer Sheldon Polakoff, 56, has been released on $2,500 bond after having been jailed in Seminole County on an Orange County warrant. He has been charged with insurance fraud and grand theft in connection with a reputed false insurance claim.

A Seminole County sheriff's department arrest report said Polakoff was arrested at 3:41 p.m. Tuesday at his home at 632 Mariner Way. The charges stem from his having reported in February that a 1981 Cadillac was stolen from his R & S Auto Sales, U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park.

The stripped car was recovered by Orlando police and Polakoff is being accused of falsely reporting the vehicle stolen and receiving over $6,000 in insurance payments from a South Carolina Company.

When the car stopped, he said, several other men appeared and one beat him with a golf club and took the keys to his car. He got out to get the keys and was reportedly attacked by the group. His car was also beaten with the golf clubs, a sheriff's report said.

Community Chorus Needs Singers For Fall Activities

The Community Chorus of Seminole Community College is calling upon all former members of Chorales, Chorale, and other choirs of the college to return to campus Monday evenings this fall as participants in the Community Chorus. Dr. Burt Perinchief, director of choral activities at the college since 1967, invites alumni of the college choirs to become a part of the musical activities of this group of singers representing a broad spectrum of ages, cultural and religious backgrounds as well as musical interests. No audition is required to membership.

The Term I repertoire for the S.C.C. Community Chorus will include some of the "most beloved choruses from the great choral masterworks," according to Perinchief. On the lighter side, the director has selected songs from Stephen Foster.

Community Chorus will meet Monday evenings at 7 p.m. beginning Sept. 8 in Roo C-106 in the Fine Arts Building. Leisure Time registration will be conducted at the first rehearsal. College credit registration must be completed in the administration building of the college by Aug. 29.

For information call 323-1450, extension 438.

Dr. Eugene Silverstein, M.D., P.A., medical director of Florida North's Psychiatric Unit and the outpatient and Crisis Stabilization Unit psychiatrist for the center, will lead the class with the assistance of Kimberly Pogue, M.S., a psychotherapist also with the center. The classes will meet once a week from 4:45 p.m.-6:15 p.m. for six weeks.

The course work includes providing specific advice to parents on how to handle problems ranging from eating habits, grades, curfews to such acting out behaviors as inappropriate language, violent outburst, and running away.

Space is limited. Contact Kimberly Pogue, 831-2411, during normal business hours. There is a fee for enrollment.

Democrats Invited To Function

Former Sanford Navy Officer Heads Training System Center

At 40 years of age, the Naval Training Systems Center has become the technical focus of a major industry in Central Florida.

In early 1988 the Center will move, with more than 1,000 people, to a new home in the Central Florida Research Park, next to the University of Central Florida. This unique situation, coupled with the presence of over 100 private corporations in Central Florida dedicated to simulation and training, has created the opportunity and atmosphere for the Center of Excellence for Simulation and Training Technology.

Approximately 1,500 people representing the military, industry, academia, and government leaders, will celebrate NTSC's 40th anniversary on Aug. 13 with a picnic at the Naval Training Center Orlando. Guest of honor will be Vice Admiral J.B. Wilkinson, Jr., Commander, Naval Air Systems Command, Washington, DC.

The Naval Training Systems Center is headed by Capt. Charles Dana Rowley, USN, commanding officer, and W.H. Lindahl, technical director.

Capt. Rowley is a native of Ambridge, Pa., and a graduate of Rollins College in Winter Park.

He enlisted in the Navy in 1959 and was commissioned an ensign and designated a Naval aviation observer in April, 1961.

Capt. Rowley completed Bom-bardier/Navigation Training in the A-3B Skywarrior and A-3J (A-5A) Vigilante aircraft in Heavy Attack Squadron THREE at Sanford prior to reporting to Heavy Attack Squadron SEVEN (VAH-7) for operational duty in June 1962. He remained in VAH-7, the first Vigilante squadron, through a transition to the RA-5C reconnaissance aircraft in 1966.

Except for one tour at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., where he graduated from the U.S. Navy Test Pilot School, Capt. Rowley's operational flying career was in the Heavy Attack/Reconnaissance Attack squadrons homebased at Sanford, Albany, Georgia, and Key West. He completed seven extended deployments in the Vigilante aircraft and commanded Reconnaissance Attack Squadron SIX from January, 1978 through February, 1977.

Capt. Rowley's post-command experience, prior to assuming his present position, was in Washington, D.C. He was Assistant Project Manager for Tactical Air Reconnaissance in the Naval Air Systems Command Headquarters from February, 1977 through March, 1979. He then served as the Program Coordinator for Tactical Air Reconnaissance Systems within the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations (Air Warfare) from April, 1979 to October, 1981. He returned to the Naval Air Systems Command as the Director, Computer Resources and Avionics Systems Division/Program Manager for Avionics from October, 1981 to July, 1985. In that capacity, Capt. Rowley also served as Navy principal and chairman of the Joint Services Review Committee for Avionics, a tri-service organization chartered by the Service assistant secretaries for research and development, to implement avionics standardization.

Capt. Rowley assumed command of the Naval Training Equipment Center on Aug. 28, 1985. The command was renamed the Naval Training Systems Center on October 1, 1985.

Capt. Rowley's personal decorations include the Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross, Meritorious Service Medal, 12 Strike/Flight Air Medals and Navy Commandation Medal (with Combat V).

Capt. Rowley is married to the former Miss Penrose Hutchison of Sanford. They have a son, Charles D. Jr., 19.

Holding-Turner Nuptials Spoken

Carrie Lynn Holding and Michael Leon Turner were married at 2:00 p.m. on July 5 at St. Augustine Catholic Church, Casselberry. Father Dennis Harten OSA was the officiating clergyman for the traditional double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of George E. and Diane M. Holding, 313 Tall Pine Lane, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of William L. and Shirley P. Turner, 824 Cherokee Circle, Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a silk organza gown fashioned along the Victorian silhouette. Venise lace, pearls and sequins embellished the neckline, basque bodice and long tapered sleeves. The skirt, bordered in a wide ruffle, extended into a ruffled chapel train. She carried a cascade of yellow and white daisies interspersed with fern. A charmingly and schiffli lace cap, accented with arched pearls and seed pearls, held her fingertip veil of silk illusion with a scalloped edge.

Kathern Bauder attended the

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Leon Turner

bride as maid of honor. She wore an aqua-colored gown and carried a bouquet of daisies.

Bridesmaids were Anne Burke, Charlotte Holding, Charlene Holding and Misty Griffin. They also wore aqua gowns and carried bouquets of daisies.

Billy Allen Turner served the bridegroom as best man. Charles Severance, David Hastings, Tony VanVolkenburg and Wickham Elerbee III.

Flower girls were Alyssa Burke and Charlotte Holding. Joshua Burke was the ring bearer.

Following a reception at Eastmonte Civic Center, Altamonte Springs, the newlyweds are making their home in Geneva. The bride is employed as a cosmetologist and the bridegroom is employed as a surveyor.

Graves Family To Meet

The Graves Family Association will be hosting a national Graves Family Gathering for members and descendants of all the various Graves/Greaves/Grave families in America in suburban Washington, D.C., the last weekend of September.

The place is the Quality Inn Arlington Hotel in Arlington, Va. Registration on Friday, Sept. 26, will be followed by a dinner and meeting that night. On Saturday there will be discussions about the various families, specific help for the attendees, a business meeting, socializing, dinner and a speaker.

For more information, contact Kenneth Vance Graves, 261 South St., Wrentham, Mass. 02093, home phone (617) 384-8084. Graves, editor of the Graves Family Newsletter and author of several Graves family books, will be at the gathering.

The Graves family is one of the oldest in America. Capt. Thomas Graves settled in Jamestown, Va. in 1608, and other Graves settlers arrived in New England and elsewhere in the 1600s and later.

German settlers arrived in Pennsylvania and changed their name from Graff to Graves before migrating to North Carolina, Tennessee, Indiana and elsewhere. Quaker Graves families settled in Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Other Graves immigrants arrived in Canada. Many descendants live today in all parts of the U.S. and Canada.

Florida National Guard Holds Graduation

Sometimes, Self-Help Works For People

DEAR DR. GOTT — At age 54, I was stricken with severe osteoarthritis. Indocin helped. Then I tried a diet that eliminates red meat, dairy products, eggs and citrus fruits, and encourages the consumption of white-meat poultry, vegetables, cereals and grains. On my own, I've eliminated caffeine, alcohol, soft drinks and smoking. After six weeks, I was able to drop the Indocin. Maybe the arthritis would have gone into remission without the diet, and this program obviously isn't for everyone, but it worked for me. Is there any scientific reason for its success?

DEAR READER — Some people with arthritis find that they feel better after eliminating certain foods from their diets. I do not know any scientific basis for this finding. Osteoarthritis is caused by the gradual wearing down of joint surfaces; it usually is helped by the use of selected anti-inflammatory, anti-pain medications.

Nonetheless, I respect the experiences of patients who discover ways to help themselves. Your diet seems to be nutritionally sound; I certainly endorse your choice to give up alcohol, smoking and caffeine. Don't forget to check with your doctor periodically to make sure that your newfound diet is permitting you to stay healthy in areas other than joints.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my new Health Report, UNDERSTANDING OSTEOARTHRITIS. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Our son is 30 and suffers from torticollis, or wry neck. It started in 1982 after he spent an entire day carrying shingles to the roof of a two-story house. Then, in 1983, he was thrown from a truck and received a gash in his right lumbar region. He's been to several doctors and a chiropractor, and has taken muscle relaxants and tranquilizers. Recently he had five or six seizures, but an EEG determined that he's not epileptic. He's not able to work. Shows no improvement and, naturally, is quite depressed. Where do we go from here?

DEAR READER — I have trouble connecting your son's torticollis to his 1983 back injury and to his seizures. The back injury should have healed by now. Seizures always indicate a problem; epilepsy is not always the cause. I believe that your son should have a complete neurological examination to determine the cause of his seizures.

Torticollis is a common condition that is caused by spasm of the neck muscles. It usually can be treated with physiotherapy — hot packs, ultrasound and so forth.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

The late Doug Drury made his mark in competitive bridge more than 30 years ago, when he won back-to-back National Men's Pairs championships in 1954 and 1955. Today's deal shows Drury at his best, successfully coping with imaginative defensive play by West.

Although I don't recommend a takeout double with the North cards (since North has only two diamonds, the preferred call is two clubs), that action led to a reasonable three no-trump contract. When Drury with the king and played a club, West won the diamond and relied on his partner's discouraging three of spades, which denied as much as the spade queen. West further knew that he had little chance of finding his partner with more than a jack after Drury had jumped to two no-trump. But he took his best shot. He led the queen of hearts. It is easy to see what effect this will have if declarer plays carelessly and covers the queen. Dummy's king will win, another club will be played, and West can cash his heart ace and lead a heart to East's jack. Now East's fourth heart will set three no-trump.

But Drury was having none of that. He allowed the heart queen to hold the trick. West won his best by playing a low heart. West no good. Declarer Drury went right up with the king, knocked out the club ace and made his contract when West could do no more than cash his ace of hearts.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 15, 1986

The returns and recognition you've been hoping for in your work will come in the year ahead. However, you are not apt to receive them in the way you think.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Difficult tasks can be concluded to your satisfaction today, provided you have some get-up-and-go. Don't start something and leave it half-finished. Major changes are ahead for Leos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Instead of complaining from the sidelines about the poor way a situation is being handled, step in today and reorganize things from top to bottom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have accumulated a small sum of money, spend it on your family today. It will be much more appreciated than if you blow it on passing fancies.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) People with whom you associate today might not be as perceptive as you. If you think their plans don't make sense, substitute your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be grateful for any benefits that come to you through others today. Instead of expecting more from them, devise ways to repay them for what they've already done.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In a commercial dealing today, certain key parts of the picture might be unclear to you. Don't take any direct action until you're sure of all the facts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your intuitive insights should be very accurate today. However, you must be sure to execute your ideas as cleverly as you envision them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Good things can happen for you today as long as respect your own ideals and standards. Don't let associates convince you otherwise.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can hit important targets today, provided you do not entangle yourself with individuals who have no real interest in your aims and can't contribute to them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, honor agreements you've made, even though you may now see you could have done better had you bargained more wisely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll feel better about yourself today if you do your best on the job. Don't be a goldbricker.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your instincts are apt to be a bit more on target today than your more rational assessments. To be safe, use all of your faculties.

Seven Freedoms Symbolized By Spikes On Liberty's Crown

DEAR READERS: It all began when a Missouri reader asked me what the seven spikes on the crown of the Statue of Liberty stood for. I suggested that he write to the Mayor of New York and inquire. He did. Mayor Koch replied (in part):

Dear Abby

Just for some latitude
Catching what's hitting the fan. Sir,
If you'd just let me cope
Without your soft soap
As I wearily, fearfully hold onto hope
Knowing either I can or I can't, Sir.

BETTY IN SOLANA BEACH

"According to the Statue of Liberty/Ellis Island Foundation, there is a twofold symbolism in the seven spikes in the Statue of Liberty's crown. They stand for the seven seas and the seven continents. America brings together people from every continent and they have to cross every ocean to get here — or they did before the airplane."

I should have known that answer was not quite accurate because actually there are not only seven seas — depending on one's definition of a "sea" — but that's another column.

Today, I received what appears to be a more authoritative explanation. It was published in Letters to the Editor in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette on the Fourth of July:

THE SEVEN SPIKES OF LADY LIBERTY'S CROWN

As the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty is observed, we should reflect upon what it stands for. It is the spirit of freedom that the Lady Liberty represents. We must not forget the principles involved. When we notice the seven spikes on her crown, we should consider the seven freedoms that number represents:

1. Civil liberty. The liberty of an individual to conduct his own affairs as he thinks proper, provided he neither infringes on the equal liberty of others nor offends against the good morals or laws under which he is living.

2. Moral liberty. Such a freedom is essential to render a person responsible for what he does or what he doesn't do.

3. National liberty. The liberty of a nation to make its own laws and elect its own executive.

4. Natural liberty. Unrestricted freedom to exercise all natural functions in their proper places.

5. Personal liberty. Liberty to go out of one's house or nation and return again without restraint.

6. Political liberty. The right to participate in political elections and civil offices, and to have a voice in the administration of the laws under which you live as a citizen.

7. Religious liberty. Freedom in religious opinions, and in both private and public worship, provided such freedom in no way interferes with the equal liberty of others.

The Statue of Liberty celebration will happen only once in our lifetime, and its commemoration of 100 years of liberty is what it's all about.

PHILLIP J. RAPICH, PITTSBURGH

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned I had breast cancer. While making the emotional and physical adjustments, then seeking treatment, undergoing surgery and radiation, I became inspired — you might say driven — to compose the enclosed verse. I believe it speaks a message to family members, close friends, casual well-wishers, and even cool-headed physicians, that they should hear. People don't seem to realize all the preaching, and even scolding, a cancer sufferer must endure in the way of pep talks: It's more than a platitude That one's own attitude Helps in the fight against cancer But cancer, I'm sure, Is enough to endure Without being its cause and its cheerful, fast cure! So I'd feel real gratitude

Students may also audit classes on a space available basis. Advisors are available by appointment to meet with adults who are considering enrollment.

The curriculum in the School of Continuing Education offers basic and advanced classes in traditional academic areas as well as specialized electives.

Organizational Behavior and Organizational Communication are two of the new majors available to students. An innovative, team-taught humanities course will become part of the core curriculum in September; the class is partially funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The Bonanza Days Are Gone

Rise, Fall And Leveling Out Of The Networks

By Mark Schwed
UPI TV Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — There were all sorts of cataclysmic predictions about the fall of the networks.

The explosion of cable hookups and a dizzying number of channel choices for viewers would kill networks for sure.

If cable didn't kill the networks, the satellite dish would. Or the proliferation of programming from independent stations and syndicators would topple network television's stranglehold on American audiences.

And if all that didn't work, then the videocassette revolution would finally spell doom.

To all concerned, apocolypse was now, or just around the bend, for the mighty networks.

The networks have certainly felt the blows from all of the above, and more.

The bonanza days are gone for ABC, NBC and CBS. The rising power of affiliate stations is reducing network clout and new competitors, such as Fox Television, keep popping up. The total pool of broadcast advertising dollars is smaller.

Still, network television is not likely to disappear from American living rooms.

"The reports of our death five years ago were greatly exaggerated," said George Schweizer, vice president of communication and information at CBS Broadcast Group.

"The promise of the competitors was nothing more than that, a promise. While they've carved out a nice niche for themselves it's been a very narrow universe."

Network audiences have dipped 19 percent in prime time and 22 percent in daytime in the last decade, said Eileen Shaw Agress, vice president of corporate planning for ABC, at a recent convention of the International Radio and Television Society.

According to the A.C. Nielsen Co., network television's share of total U.S. television households was 86 percent in 1984-85, down 3 percent from 83-84. Independent television accounted for 15 percent, basic cable 14 percent, pay cable 6 percent, and public television had 3 percent.

But the network declines stabilized this year. The total network audience actually increased by about a half-million people, while audiences for such premium cable services as Home Box Office were flat.

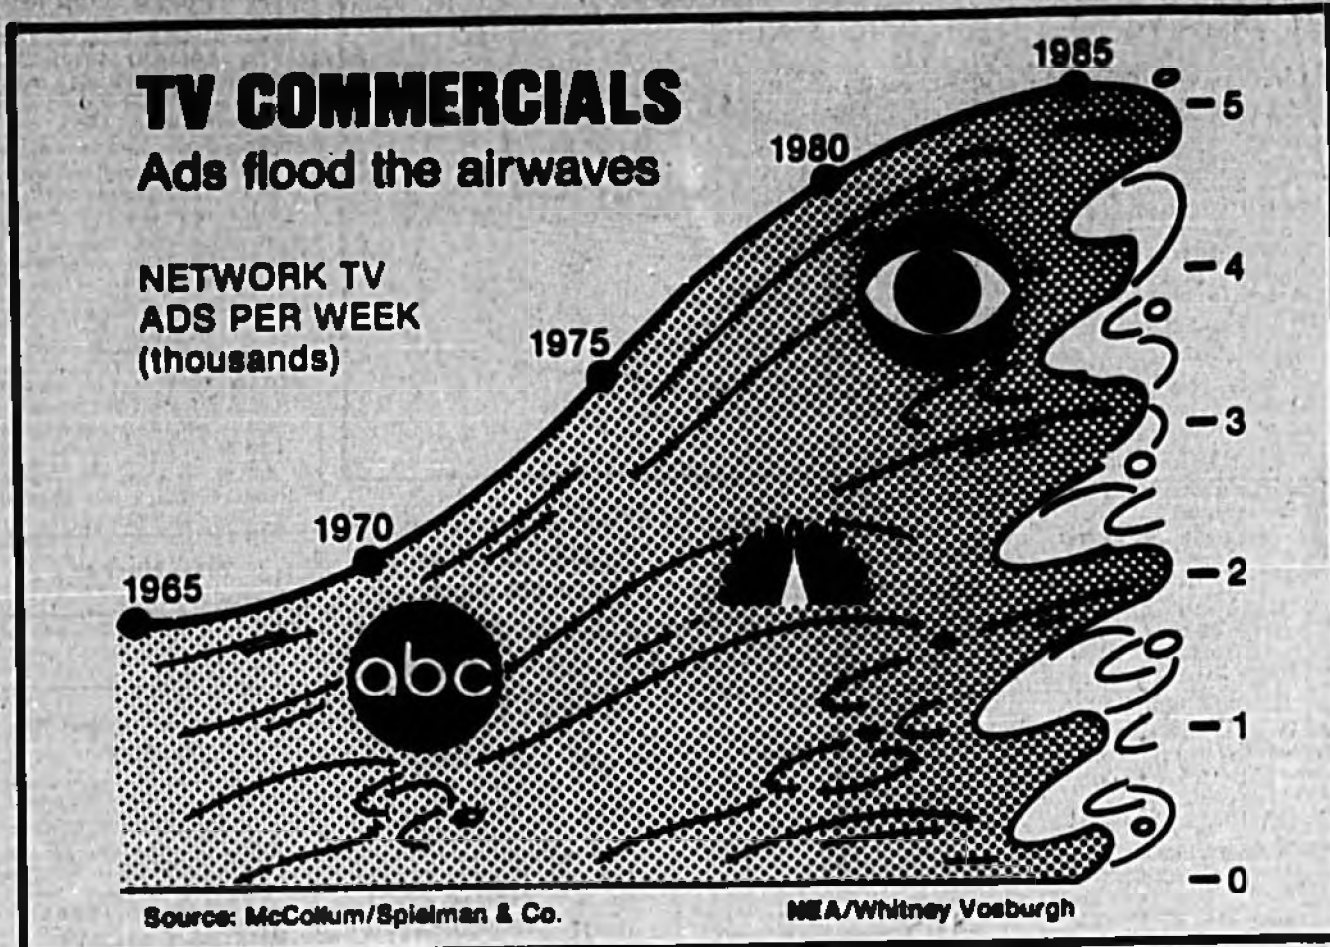

Network television still delivers what nobody else can — the mass audience.

"We are delighted to see that, in the face of new syndicated entries, expanding VCR penetration, and ongoing cable competition, the three networks have effectively protected their flanks," said Joel M. Segal, executive vice president of broadcasting at Ted Bates Advertising, in his annual prime-time review report.

"Homes, women 18-49, and men 18-49 ratings all rose last fall," Segal said. "The key point is that for the time being the networks seem to be holding their own. Like most cataclysmic predictions, the forecasts of massive network declines need not be taken literally."

N.W. Ayer, Inc., another New York agency, said network erosion "ground to a complete halt" in 1985-86.

At William Esty Company, Inc., a report on the

There's a trend toward shorter TV commercials - but far more of them. On the networks alone, the weekly ad total has nearly tripled since 1965.

prime-time season concluded that the networks "have managed to reverse the falling rating trend which has plagued them since the communications satellite started bringing cable and more independent television station offerings into our households."

Doomsday did not dawn for many reasons.

Cable: At first, cable companies like HBO, Showtime, MTV, CNN and The Nashville Network enjoyed periods of tremendous growth. But the growth is peaking. Major cost overruns severely retarded the wiring of cable TV homes in major urban areas and it was just not cost efficient to expand in rural areas.

There wasn't enough quality programming to go around. "Quite possibly, viewers have begun to tire of the lower quality and often older programs shown by these services," the William Esty Co. said.

Instead of continuing to erode the network audience, the cable services began to compete with themselves.

Satellite dishes: When the cable services began scrambling their signals, the satellite dish lost its sheen. Now dish owners must buy expensive decoders to unscramble each signal. The dish was never expected to make more than a dent, but now it's not even a ripple in network viewership.

Independent television: Non-network stations also enjoyed enormous growth but have started to reach a saturation point, especially in major markets, and they subsist on a diet of reruns and old movies. Many are UHF stations and although there are some exceptions, they are not the dominant stations in their markets.

Videocassette recorders: VCRs were the scariest beast of all. The prediction was that people would spend their time watching bought or rented tapes of first-run movies instead of the same old mix of sitcoms, dramas, and action-adventure shows on network television. Or VCR owners would record prime time and use their machines to zip (fast-forward through commercials) and zap (erase commercials) on playback.

While some of this did happen, networks have decided that the VCR, now in more than one-third of the nation's homes, is friend, not enemy.

Bill Rubens, NBC vice president for research, said VCRs actually benefit network television by "time shifting" shows for later viewing.

"VCRs provide us with viewers who would have otherwise been unavailable to commercial television," Rubens told TV critics in Los Angeles recently. NBC's research showed that network TV shows account for nearly three-fourths of all home recording use.

Still, not all is swell in networkland, and the "big three" are responding with staff cuts and programming cutbacks.

Between 1980 and 1984 TV ad revenues grew at nearly 14 percent a year, but in 1985, revenues were down 2.5 percent from the prior year. It was the first downturn since 1971, when cigarette advertising was banned.

Revenues for 1986 may be flat or even below last year, and Media Science Reports forecasts that between 1986 and 1990 network television revenue will grow at an unimpressive average of 5 percent.

SCC Computer System To Help Students Avoid Course Requirement Muddle

By Angela Woodhull
Herald Staff Writer

"What courses do I need to graduate?" is the question all college students pose. But students have discovered counselors sometimes give them conflicting information.

Seminole Community College has a solution—a computerized, standardized graduation check list. Beginning this fall, any student who has ever attended SCC since it opened 20 years ago can see any counselor and receive uniform graduation course credit information, according to SCC vice president Dr. James Sawyer.

The computer terminal and its program were displayed at Seminole Community College's regular board meeting Tuesday. Software for the program was developed with a $12,000 grant written by SCC's dean of counselors, Dr. Marguerite Culp. Pilot testing of the project will begin fall semester, with the program scheduled to operate in full swing by January 1987.

SCC students have two routes to graduation—follow the latest catalog requirements or follow old catalog requirements from the time they started, provided they did not skip any regular semesters.

The computer system will show students what courses they still need, given either option.

"About ten per cent of our students will still need counselor assistance to pinpoint complex record analyses," Culp predicted, "but the majority of our students will be served well once the new system is fully functioning."

In other action Tuesday, the board approved a renewed contract between the Institute of Higher Education (IRC) and SCC for the purpose of doing joint research.

"At the present time, our main research project is a two-year follow-up study on our graduates who go on to four year universities," said Norris Minor, dean of institutional analysis and research. Located at the University of Florida, the IRC teams up with several community colleges and other Florida state universities for collective research analyses.

The board also approved on-site training programs with Tri-City Electric and Central Florida Chapter of Associated Builders and Contractors, Inc., allowing students preparing for jobs in electrical or building construction to get on-the-job experience.

Board members also approved fee waivers or reduced tuition for senior citizens, employees, high school students earning college credits, and part-time professional staff.

The board also agreed to swap diesel equipment for some welding equipment located at Daytona Beach Community college.

Mayfair Grounds Worker Injured In Lawn Mower Accident

A Mayfair golf course grounds worker was in good condition this morning at Florida Hospital North, after undergoing two hours of reconstructive surgery Tuesday on his left foot, which was severely cut earlier in the day when he slipped while mowing a course green.

The employee, Randy Enslin, 21, of Sorrento, nearly severed his left toe when he fell and caught his foot under a mower he was using to cut grass along a steep lake bank on the ninth fairway at approximately 10:45 a.m., Mayfair Supervisor Ted Daum said.

Enslin was using a fly-mow, a light hand driven mower which floats at ground level, and is approximately the same size as a conventional, wheel driven mower, Daum said.

"It was kind of a freak accident,"

Daum said, because the fly-mow "is very low to the ground and I've never heard of someone getting their foot caught under one."

He also said the accident was unusual because the fly-mow has a safety bar which is held by its user and automatically turns the machine off when released. Enslin apparently "didn't let go of the safety bar when he slipped, so the machine unfortunately didn't go off," said Daum.

A golfer who saw the accident assisted Enslin into a golf cart and took him to the Mayfair pro shop, where ice was applied to the foot and an ambulance called, Daum said.

Daum said Enslin has worked at Mayfair since the beginning of the summer.

Study Finds No Link In Pill, Breast Cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — A major government study released Wednesday found that birth control pills do not appear to increase a woman's chances of developing breast cancer, regardless of the type of pill she uses or whether the disease runs in her family.

"That's good news for women," said Dr. Louise B. Tyrer, vice president for medical affairs for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America. "I think it should be very reassuring to all oral contraceptive users and those contemplating its use."

In the largest survey of its kind, researchers at the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta found no indication any of the more than 30 forms of oral contraceptives available increased the chances of developing breast cancer.

Although there was some indication that certain types of birth control pills actually provided a protective effect against breast cancer, the findings were too small to be considered statistically significant, the researchers said.

Despite earlier studies that suggested the contrary, the researchers found no increased risk among women who had a previous experience of benign breast disease, had a history of breast cancer in their family or who started using the pill before their first pregnancy.

About 10 million women in the United States use oral contraceptives, making the pill second only to sterilization as the most common form of birth control.

Previous studies had indicated that hormones in some forms of oral contraceptives might make some women more susceptible to breast cancer, the most common form of cancer among women.

In the new study, published in The New England Journal of Medicine, researchers interviewed 4,711 women ages 20 to 54 nationwide who had been diagnosed with breast cancer for the first time and compared them to another 4,676 women who did not have breast cancer.

The women in the study had used contraceptives for up to 15 years and were questioned about their medical and family history and the type and duration of their contraceptive use.

Using a complex statistical analysis, the researchers found that the relative risk of breast cancer among women who used oral contraceptives compared to those who did not was the same.

Of the 4,711 women who had breast cancer, 2,264 had used oral contraceptives at some time in their lives. Of the 4,676 women who did not have breast cancer, 2,367 women had used oral contraceptives at some point.

Other studies have found that birth control pills appear to offer some protection from cancer of the ovaries and uterus.

"Overall I think it's fantastic news," Dr. Richard W. Sattin, the principle author of the study said.

In Flight Smoking Ban Recommended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Academy of Sciences called for a ban on smoking aboard domestic commercial airlines today, saying the health and safety of passengers were endangered and full-time crews received exposure equal to a "one-pack-a-day smoker."

Environmental tobacco smoke, known as ETS, aboard airliners is the most frequent source of complaint about cabin air quality, said the new report for the Federal Aviation Administration and Congress.

"The committee recommends a ban on smoking on all domestic commercial flights, for four major reasons: to lessen irritation and discomfort to passengers and crew, to reduce potential health hazards to cabin crew associated with ETS, to eliminate the possibility of fires caused by cigarettes and to bring the cabin air quality into line with established standards for other closed environments," the report said.

The academy committee estimated a full-time flight attendant received exposure "approximately equal to that associated with living with a one-pack-a-day smoker."

The Tobacco Institute, a trade association for U.S. cigarette manufacturers based in Washington, said Tuesday regulations segregating smokers from non-smokers aboard commercial flights are working well and scientific evidence indicates no ban is necessary.

"The message from 15 years of in-flight testing is clear: Cigarette smoking is not a proven health problem on commercial airliners," the institute said in a statement.

Action on Smoking and Health, an anti-smoking lobbying group, said in a short statement it may file a lawsuit to ban smoking on commercial flights.

Not only is there increased competition, but there is less total ad money being spent.

"We are caught in a direct chain of effect of the national economy and consumer spending," CBS's Schweizer says. "The economy is moving along slowly."

Remember the cola wars, the burger wars, the computer wars and the telephone wars that fueled massive media spending in the 80s? Not a peep in 1986.

The only way to maintain market share and keep the profit percentage up in the face of a declining advertising pool is to cut costs. ABC, NBC and CBS have all undergone staff reductions in 1985 and 1986 and there will be more.

The biggest expense for networks is program costs — news, entertainment and sports. Managing those costs is a critical issue. When Don Johnson held out for more money from "Miami Vice" this year, there was talk of replacing him. Eventually he got a raise, but not what he was asking.

And there is talk of dropping NFL football games because networks are losing millions on the telecasts. After this coming season's Super Bowl, the networks' five-year contract with the NFL ends. The critical negotiation comes in 1987. "We don't print money here. We sell product," says Schweizer.

At ABC, taken over by Capital Cities this year, the cost-cutting will be visible this fall.

Instead of spending $500,000-$800,000 for a one-hour program against NBC's phenomenally popular "The Cosby Show" and "Family Ties" block Thursday night, the time has been given to ABC News for "Our World" hosted by Linda Ellerbee. The news program will cost much less than an entertainment division show.

The idea is that if you can't beat NBC, why throw money down the drain.

There are direct competitors trying to take on the "big three."

Cable News Network, not a prime time entertainment competitor, still drains advertising dollars and audience.

Fox Broadcasting Co. can sign on 79 independent television stations, buy some programs, sign network stars like Joan Rivers and create a "Fourth Network." The new age also involves changes in the relationship between networks and their affiliated stations.

Local stations, using smaller and cheaper satellite transmission technology, can act like mini-networks. A station in Maine can cover the rain in Spain and put it on the 6 o'clock news the same day.

More and more, big-city stations with big budgets are covering major events on their own. According to an article in Columbia Journalism Review, big-city TV news directors are beginning to believe that network news divisions have outlived their usefulness.

Ernest Leiser, who recently retired as vice president and deputy director of news for CBS, says this will be apparent on election night 1988. He predicts, his tongue only partly in his cheek, that many of the affiliates will use ABC, CBS and NBC only as cut-ins, or brief interruptions of their own coverage.
