Seminole Youth Involved

Orange JDC Attendant Suspended During Probe

A SHOW OF COLORS

Liberty Bell, alias Dalene Pinderson; and Uncle Sam, alias Matthew Sheldon, pupils at the Northside Christian School, Altamonte Springs, do their thing rehearsing for the annual patriotic program tonight at 7 at the Mallard Civic Center. It's open to the public. Historic songs, speeches and documents will be presented.

An attendant at the Orange County Juvenile Detention Center, Orlando, has been suspended without pay pending the outcome of an investigation into allegations the attendant tried to get one detained youth to fight a Seminole County boy also being held at the center. Officials of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS), the Orange County Sheriff's Department and the Orange-Osceola State Attorney's office that are investigating the matter, according to HRS officials.

The investigations being conducted separately are expected to be completed by the end of the week, according to John Hoag, public information officer for HRS.

"There is no evidence of any real abuse," said Hoag. He explained a fight did not take place.

"There is an allegation that a worker made some kind of request to another detained youth and asked that other youth to take some form of retaliation for some of the things the other youth (Seminole County boy) had done," said Hoag.

Hoag said he could not release the name of any of the people involved in the alleged incident, including the attendant.

"We aren't at liberty to go into any details of an on-going investigation," commented Hoag.

The Seminole County youth, a 13-year-old, was arrested late last month in Casselberry. However, Casselberry police declined comment on the youth's arrest, noting they are prohibited by law from releasing information concerning juveniles.

The youth was placed in the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center the day of his arrest April 23, according to Hoag.

"This child was moved from the Seminole County facility to Orange County because he was disruptive," said Hoag.

"The Orange County center is larger and newer and they are easily able to separate the older boys from the younger boys and the bigger boys from the littler boys," commented Hoag. "The move was made because they thought he would be safer in a larger facility where he could be separated from the other, bigger boys if he became disruptive. It was feared his tendency to be disruptive might cause him to get hurt, if he could not be separated from other boys."

A staff supervisor at the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center was dismissed following an investigation of the alleged beating of five juveniles at the center Feb. 20.

An unnamed child care worker resigned in the case. That child care worker was alleged to have struck the five youths while working under the supervision of Mrs. Virginia Miller, 36, of 308 Airport Blvd., Sanford.

The state's Career Service Committee has granted Mrs. Miller's application for an appeal of the firing. A hearing on that appeal will be held in the "near future," according to her attorney James Perry, Sanford.

The Runaways They Blame Homelife

Thousands of runaways are reported each year around the U.S. Seminole County reports one a day. In the third of a series, The Herald today looks at the role of the family in the lives of runaways.

When Pat Murry decided to leave the priesthood one year ago, he gave a lot of thought to how he was going to spend the rest of his life.

"I thought about some kind of sales job, but I couldn't do that," said the affable Irishman. "I knew I had to do something helping people."

As head of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) Family Intervention Team (FIT) in Seminole County, he has been working to help children with family problems.

Those problems often culminate in children running away from home.

"I often said that there is not running to something, but away from something," he said of runaways.

"A significant percentage of runaways alleged that conditions at home are intolerable," according to Tom Weinberg, supervisor of the HRS intake center in Seminole County.

Children need security in their homelife, Weinberg said. When this security is disrupted, it may lead to a runaway.

"Usually, if things are okay in the home they'll adjust to it."

$2.5 Million Worth Seized

Two Nabbed In Pot Ring Bust

DEPUTY LITTLETON ...he spotted plane

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

Two men have already been arrested and the search continues today for three other men believed to be part of a smuggling operation which netted Seminole County sheriff's deputies 123 bales, each weighing 60 pounds, of marijuana valued at $2.5 million.

One of the men, arrested early this morning while making a telephone call from a Geneva convenience store, was identified as Carlton David Buehrer, 25, of Anna Maria, Fla. The second man, arrested at Day's Inn at State Road 46 and 14 late this morning was identified as Dennis Lutz, 25, of Bradenton.

Lutz was charged with being a principal in the importation of marijuana. He is in custody in lieu of $6,000 bond and scheduled for a court appearance once this afternoon.

Buehrer, according to sheriff's spokesman John Spolski, told deputies he is a student at Manatee Junior College. He is being held in lieu of $6,000 bond at the Seminole County jail charged with importation of cannabis in excess of 100 pounds. He faced his first court appearance at 1:30 p.m. today.

More than 20 policemen, aided by police in a helicopter, airplane and using K-9 dogs, are searching an area of between five and eight square miles east of Sanford thick with overgrown weeds and bushes.

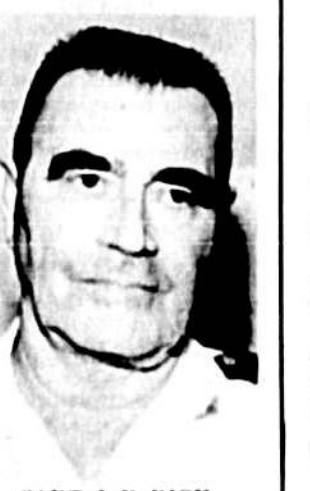

They are looking for four men who abandoned two camper-type trucks with four-wheel drive loaded with the marijuana and bearing Alabama license tags.

The incident began as deputy Chuck Littleton of the department's range and river patrol was on routine duty watching for poachers.

Shortly after 4 p.m. he spotted a 19-3 making an approach at the abandoned Decora Airstrip, last used for pilot training during World War II.

As he arrived at the air strip the DC-3 was taking off and the men in the two campers were pulling away. Littleton chased the campers down one of the runways and they split in opposite directions, one heading north, the other west.

Littleton followed the van heading north until it came to a stop

Sanford Commission: Bar-B-Que Yes—Beer, Wine 'No'

By LEONARD KRANSBORN
Herald Staff Writer

It will be soft drinks and water instead of beer and wine served with the bar-b-que ribs for customers at Guy's Bar-B-Que as a result of action Monday by the Sanford City Commission.

After hearing a plea from restaurant attorney William Heffernan and a counter-plea from fellow commissioner A.A. McClanahan, commissioners unanimously voted — with McClanahan abstaining — to deny a request from the restaurant to grant a change in zoning to allow the sale of wine and beer for on-premise consumption.

The property is zoned residential-commercial — and a zoning change to general commercial had been requested.

Commenting on the rejection, Smith and his attorney were appearing before the commission's to give Smith a "trial run," Smith pressed out petitions which he said were signed by customers who

"We are against the change and many of these homeowners like myself have been there for almost 20 years," McClanahan said. He also listed several city residents which he said had "survived without selling beer and wine."

"I am opposed to the G-2 zoning in such an area because you have to take into consideration the residents and I think the R-1 designation protects the residents with a buffer zone," said Commissioner John Morris after the vote.

Commissioner Julian Stanstrom echoed Morris's remarks, adding, "When every neighbor is opposed to the idea, you can't ignore something like that."

When McClanahan addressed the commissioners he also presented petitions which owner George Smith said "I'm not hot about it but am rather disappointed." He added that he does intend to pursue the issue but has yet to decide how.

According to City Manager W.E. Knowles, Smith could come back to the city commission and ask it to reconsider the vote. Knowles noted, though, that in his years as city manager he has never seen this course of action taken.

Brzezinski was met at the Tokyo airport by Ambassador Mike Mansfield, who drove him to the U.S. Embassy before paying a courtesy call on Prime Minister Takao Fukuda.

Tokyo newspapers reported from Peking that Brzezinski told the Chinese that Americans "recognize and share the determination of China to resist efforts by any country to establish world or regional hegemony."

Park Put Up For Sale By County Womens' Panel

By DORIS DIETRICH
Five-acre park on State Road 66 at the Wekiva River. Price, $50,000 to $77,000. Call any trustee on the board of the Seminole County Federation of Women's Club (SCFWC).

The unwanted park that has been "a big headache" is about to lose its owners of 94 years. Donated to SCFWC in 1904 by Joe and Lovick Cameron, the five-acre tract, the Wekiva Federation of Women's Club Park, was intended as a recreational facility for the club women and their families for generations to come.

But, according to Marion Eggers, president of SCFWC, the park has been nothing "but a headache" during the nine years she has been in the federation. "To sell or not to sell the park was the main item on the agenda at the SCFWC meeting Monday at the Woman's Club of Sanford.

Mrs. Eggers explained that the adjoining public boat ramp of which nobody wanted to assume the responsibility creates serious problems. Two fences installed by the federation have been vandalized by trespassers. There is no police protection.

Mrs. Eggers said insurance coverage became necessary after Sanford Attorney Kenneth McIntosh informed her the federation could be held liable should a trespasser incur injury on the property.

The only income from the property is a $15 monthly leasing fee paid by the Seventh-day Adventist Church for a youth camp program.

Mrs. Eggers said that in recent years, the federation has had difficulty in acquiring members to serve on the board of trustees. Currently serving with her are Mrs.

THE SCENE AS PARK'S FUTURE DEBATED

Recreation advisory committee, said, "It is hopeful the county will purchase the park. I would like to see it maintained for public use. The park will go on the market as soon as Attorney McIntosh and the trustees can finalize legal matters pertinent to the sale. Mrs. Swinney was voted to act as the federation's agent in selling the property."

In a heavily-shrubbed area. He got a partial look of three men running into the undergrowth, Spolaski said. The tractor engine was discovered abandoned after it had been spotted by the pilot of the Orange County helicopter that hovered over the site until police arrived. Footprints at the site indicate there were two men in the van, Spolaski said.

The two-engine DC-3 and a smaller airplane, tracked by radar at the Orlando International Airport, were last spotted headed south. Spolaski said police believe the smaller plane may have been used for aerial surveillance since it declined to respond to attempts to contact it from the Orlando tower.

Spolaski said today's search is being concentrated at the abandoned air strip, the Geneva area and nearby St. John's River. He said although finding someone in the thick foliage is a tedious task, police believe they can find the four since they know of no other means the men have to escape and it is doubtful they could have gotten out of the area on foot.

The marijuana, which is being guarded at an undisclosed location, was compressed in burlap bags. Its value is being estimated on the basis of $500 per pound, Spolaski said.

How To Blow A Marriage
LONDON (UPI) — Walter Judge finally blew his 35-year-old marriage. Deputy Judge Philip Cox granted Judge's wife a divorce Friday because of the man's incessant whistling. "It was loud and monotonous," the judge said of the 67-year-old Judge's whistling. "He would indulge in this silly whistling and singing byways."

'Son Of Sam': Court Chaos

NEW YORK (UPI) — David Berkowitz, who pleaded guilty to six murders in the year-long "Son of Sam" slayings May 8, appeared in court Monday for sentencing and it was in late chaos. Arriving an hour and 23 minutes late, Berkowitz sang "Stacy was a whore" to the tune of "Ring Around the Rosy," then "That's right, that's right; I'd kill her again!" he said.

The judge referred to was Stacy Moskowitz, the last person he had shot to death, he said, on the order of demons. Stacy's mother screamed out, "You animal! How dare you say that!"

Casselberry's Alligator Gets Wild-Preserve Home

By DONNA ESTES, Herald Staff Writer
The alligator that has resided in the stabilization ponds at the Casselberry sewer treatment plant for the past year, depleting the duck population, eating an occasional bird and unknowingly assisting the city in a sewer treatment process, has been removed to a wildlife preserve.

The alligator had lived in the four stabilization ponds, at the Winter Park Drive plant, swimming from one to the other through large connecting pipes. "It pretty well depleted the duck population in the ponds," he said. "There are only two left. I hope the two are a male and a female and before you know it there will be a flock of ducks back again," said Schrader.

The alligator was no sooner gone than State Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) officers made an unannounced inspection of the sewer plant last week and suggested that the city order the stabilization ponds cleaned immediately on an emergency basis or the state could cite the city for violation of the law.

Consulting Engineer B. C. Conklin estimated that during the wet season as much as 15 percent of the sewage treated by the city is drainage water that has infiltrated into the sewer lines.

Teachers Push For Religious Holidays

A teacher union request for increased personal leave days that would put county educators on equal footing with their Volusia County counterparts and one step ahead of Orange County teachers has been proposed by the Seminole Education Association (SEA).

In asking for the increase of personal leave days Rosenthal noted that the school board may have engineered the problem of religious discrimination. He noted that the primary Christian holidays of Christmas and Easter fall during the already scheduled spring and winter vacations, while most of the non-Christian observances fall outside those breaks.

Cowley and School Superintendent W. F. Layer also stress that the scheduling of the vacations has been at the same time for several years. "I guess you could say that it is traditional," Layer said.

It is difficult to determine the exact number of employees that would be affected by the SEA proposal. The school system and the union do not have any figures as to just how many non-Christians there are on the school payroll.

Cowley said if the teachers are given the four holidays, the board would have to extend it to bus drivers, non-instructional personnel and other school employees.

The board negotiator added that specific reasons are required because "it is human nature to abuse the privilege and we have had some abuses."

Layer confirmed the rejection stating: "There is a big difference in wanting to go and needing to go."

Both Layer and Cowley noted that teachers have never been denied days off for religious reasons.

"As far as I know we have not denied employees another day off for religious reasons. We have let them have that personal day with pay so we would not be discriminating. It has been handled as an exception rather than a rule," Cowley said.

The grant being sought totals $183,084 with the city's contribution totaling $41,029. The city has also applied for a grant of $80,748 with the city's contribution of $22,409 for planning for the city's share of the sewer intercepting lines to connect to the Orlando regional sewer plant at Iron Bridge.

Consulting Engineer B. C. Conklin estimated that during the wet season as much as 15 percent of the sewage treated by the city is drainage water that has infiltrated into the sewer lines.

The Greening Of Alaska

Alaska is a vast piece of real estate. It is appropriate, therefore, that the House Interior Committee has put in a vast amount of time writing a bill that will be fateful for Alaska's future.

The full House is now preparing to decide what will become of millions of acres of federal land that still lie virtually untouched in our remote northern state.

Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus has referred to Alaska as the "crown jewels" of our nation—an apt description of its mountain ranges and forests teeming with wildlife.

The jewel box, however, also contains oil, gas, minerals and timber resources which the country needs.

Although the issue of an oil pipeline route through Alaska was settled several years ago, echoes of that battle will be heard in the debate on the proposed Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act.

Again, Congress faces the question of where to draw the line between preservation of unspoiled wilderness and development of natural resources important to the Alaskan economy and the nation as a whole.

Compromises are inevitable, but most of them have been made in the years of deliberation now coming to a head.

The bill which emerged from the House committee strikes us as a rational balance between the interests of conservation and jobs, the two forces in a familiar tug-of-war.

The statistics of the Alaska bill are mind-boggling.

It would expand the state's three national park and create 10 new ones, increasing park area from 7.5 million to 50.2 million acres. It would add 1.1 million acres to four existing wildlife refuges and create two new ones totaling another 25.7 million acres.

Segments of 22 rivers would be protected by the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The point of greatest controversy is the designation of 74.2 million acres within those parks and refuges as wilderness, off-limits to any further incursion by roads or other facilities.

Significantly, however, none of the known oil, gas and minerals deposits in Alaska is included in the protected areas. The bill does not appear to be "locking up" a significant amount of underground resources.

Alaska provides an opportunity for the United States to avoid mistakes that were made by previous generations in the rush to settle and develop the pristine wilderness of the "lower 48" states.

The bill now before Congress does not affect the 148 million acres placed under state and tribal jurisdiction when Alaska joined the Union and the fate of that considerable area remains in Alaskan hands.

What is at issue is the future of "unreserved federal lands," which are a national heritage.

They have come down to us with their desolate majesty unspoiled, and it is now up to Congress to assure that this priceless treasure is passed on to generations yet to come.

They say you have to watch out for the strong, silent type. If that's the case, better keep an eye on Pat Reno. He's both strong and silent. And, his final days as a student at Seminole High School are running short.

It's a little more than three weeks until graduation. Everyone admits Pat has certainly gotten his ticks out of high school. More specifically, Senzine has gotten it out of kicking anything from football to soccer balls. He probably can't resist walking down a sidewalk without kicking a paper cup or can.

Reno was named the Optimist Club's selection as the top athlete from Seminole. He made all-conference football at two positions (tackle and kicking specialist), was a star goalie for the soccer team and also was on the swimming team. He once made 34 saves in a soccer game against Winter Park.

Pat won't have much time to be looking back on his high school career or read his great clippings. He has received a presidential appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He reports July 6. He is the first Seminole High youngster to receive this honor since Mike Daum in 1971.

Typically, Pat doesn't have much to say about his appointment. "It's a normal choice of spring sport would be baseball. However, what he considers 'strong language' exists in prep baseball circles, and he simply avoided the diamond sport because of personal convictions. That's why he was on the swimming team."

Reno carries a 2.67 scholastic average, and is a member of the National Honor Society.

At Annapolis, Reno won't be able to play both football and soccer. The seasons overlap. Given a choice, he will probably stick with soccer. At any rate, it is a decision he won't have to worry about until fall arrives.

"He has already passed his physical examination, been accepted and everything," added his mother. "So it is final."

An interesting insight into the makeup of this young man are the way his goals and objectives, but not the way he goes about achieving them. Pat's normal choice of spring sport would be baseball. However, what he considers "strong language" exists in prep baseball circles, and he simply avoided the diamond sport because of personal convictions. That's why he was on the swimming team.

Reno carries a 2.67 scholastic average, and is a member of the National Honor Society.

Military Hospitals: So Sick

WASHINGTON —(NEA) — The hospital serving one Army base in Georgia is so overcrowded that doctors must see as many as 100 patients daily. The physicians work in two tents, built as temporary structures by German prisoners of war in 1942.

In Louisiana, a new Navy hospital built at a cost of more than $21 million boasts a 200-bed capacity and the most modern medical equipment. Yet patient admissions have averaged less than five per day since the facility opened.

The striking contrast between those hospitals vividly illustrates the scandalously inept planning, coordination and management of the 190 hospitals and 130 clinics operated around the world by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Known as the Military Health Services System, that network of facilities bears the responsibility of providing health care for 9 million people — members and retirees of the armed forces, their dependents and their survivors.

Operation of the system this year will cost the taxpayers an estimated $2.5 billion, a figure that covers only domestic facilities. But there is increasing evidence that neither the patients nor the public is getting their money's worth.

After Rep. Robin L. Beard, R-Tenn., last year visited the base hospital at the Army's Fort Stewart, just west of Savannah, Ga., he reported that "the physical facilities... were not only substandard, they were hazardous."

The hospital had authority to hire 30 doctors. But its staff numbered only 20 physicians, and they were responsible for serving 60,000 potential patients. One lone internist was available to serve 15,000 active-duty troops.

A new hospital has been authorized, but it won't be completed until 1983 and will have a capacity of only 125 beds. "It probably will be inadequate to meet patient requirements at the time of its completion," predicts Beard.

The Navy has no such problems with the F. Edward Hebert Hospital in New Orleans. Completed early last year, it is named after the Louisiana Democrat who retired in 1978 after serving 36 years in the House of Representatives.

More than a year after the hospital was opened, less than half of its 260 beds are in place and most of those are vacant. The monthly occupancy rate has averaged less than 15 percent.

The patly dollars returned in rebates or saved on next year's policies are of no help to those citizens struggling to survive financially. They are further burdened by the truck owner who must pass on his skyrocketing insurance bill.

The question is: How do we insure every driver, whether he wants or can afford insurance? The answer is by passing legislation establishing the proposed Florida Auto Drivers Self Insurance Fund (FADSIF).

FADSIF is automatic, no-fault auto and truck insurance, paid for at the gas pump by a 20 cents per gallon fee, and run by the state. Coverage would be $60,000.00 direct out of pocket losses; everyone involved in an accident. In effect, the people would own their own insurance program.

The average driver would pay $125-$150 per year. Businessmen would also see drastic reductions in their insurance. Additional or umbrella coverage could be bought from carriers by those who need it.

Georgia Farm Sales May Rekindle Feud

WASHINGTON — Foreign land speculators have pushed into "warped" nest in President Carter's backyard. They just acquired a small family farm in Georgia may rekindle a smoldering feud between Jimmy Carter and Carl Sanders.

Both men had ambitions to become governor of Georgia in 1976. The primary campaign pitted Sanders, the savvy former state legislator and millionaire attorney against Carter, the folksy small-town peanut farmer. Carter blocked Sanders from regaining the governorship in a bitter battle. The wounds have not yet healed on either side.

No they may find themselves on opposite sides of a Georgia land grab. As part of our continuing reports on the buying of America by foreigners, we disclosed that a single international investment company has purchased at least 17,000 acres of Georgia farmland. Unconvinced sales could run total acreage to twice that figure.

The firm, Transatlantic Consultants, Inc., of Munich, Germany has been acquiring small, debt-ridden family farms for European investors. The company's Georgia hunter, Philip Beagle, has taken over the operation of the farm under its present owner, Southern Farm Services, Ltd.

This came to the attention of Diane Brunson, a member of the Georgia Democratic State Committee, whose husband farms 700 acres outside Statesboro, Ga. Alarmed over the gobbling up of family farms, she flew to Washington and marched straight into the White House with her evidence.

She told the story of Transatlantic's land grab to her comrad from Georgia, Ronnylynn Carter. Diane spoke passionately about the plight of Georgia's small farmers who have been forced to sell out because of drought, crop disease and low grain prices.

Diane showed the First Lady land deeds to back up her story. Ronnylynn spread out the deeds in her lap and examined them closely. Diane pointed to the left-hand corner of the deeds where the name of the law firm was displayed. It was Carl Sanders' name.

That was four dollars worth of lettuce — I hope you enjoyed it.

Insurance Bill

FADSIF is fair. The less you drive, the less you pay. Everyone who owns a car or truck in Florida will save money, no matter where he or she may live. Age, sex, locality, and all rating methods now utilized by carriers would be abolished. Everyone would pay the same, and pay no more because of a traffic ticket.

The members of FADSIF, Inc., call upon their fellow motorists and businessmen throughout the state to request that their legislators give careful consideration to the FADSIF proposal. The people can no longer afford to guarantee the insurance companies excessive profits, while every third driver is uninsured.

Having collected this enormous amount of money, insurance companies paid out only $60.6 million in total losses. That left $54.4 million for operating costs and profit. For instance, State Farm admitted to earning a profit of 25 cent per auto premium alone. To call this obscene is to be charitable.

The patly dollars returned in rebates or saved on next year's policies are of no help to those citizens struggling to survive financially. They are further burdened by the truck owner who must pass on his skyrocketing insurance bill.

Happy Days For Aerospace

By DON GRAFF

Business has its ups and downs, perhaps no part of it more so than the aerospace industry. It seems only yesterday that Lockheed had to be rescued from bankruptcy by a federal loan and drastic reinforcement by Boeing made Seattle an economic disaster area.

But, that was yesterday. Today, the plane makers are riding a boom with all signs indicating the best is yet to come. Demand for new equipment is strong from both domestic and foreign airlines.

The biggest news in this respect is Boeing's nearly $1 billion deal with Singapore for a fleet of new passenger jets, the largest single sale in commercial aviation history.

Lockheed is not far behind with a half-billion-dollar sale of wide-body TriStars to Pan American Airways and a smaller order from Saudi Arabian Airlines.

The final member of the big three, McDonnell Douglas, has an initial $170 million deal with United Airlines which, with options, could eventually work out to three times that figure.

The boom is rooted in a basically strong international airline industry which is now beginning to replace its aging jet fleets. It was overbuying for these fleets, particularly of the jumbo jets early in the decade, which contributed greatly to the depressed market for new planes in recent years.

The slow market is clearly over with no indications of a similar glut again developing, although manufacturers, particularly Boeing, are preparing to introduce some new models, contributed greatly to the depressed market for new planes in recent years.

A bonus for the economy in general of the aerospace boom is the effect on the U.S. trade and the currently disastrous state of the U.S. balance of payments.

U.S. manufacturers dominate the world commercial aircraft market — Boeing alone controls about half. Their exports are expected to reach $9.4 billion by the end of the current year, which should offset a considerable quantity of OPEC oil and Japanese electronics.

Hard currencies are a super-exclusive bunch. Since the dollar has been inflated, there have been only three fully certified members of the club — West Germany's mark, Japan's yen and Switzerland's franc.

MAHALO, ALOHA
It was mahalo (thanks) and aloha (farewell) until the fall of the Community Methodist Church in Casselberry. The Golden Years senior citizens group held the last of nine scheduled dinners. The theme was Hawaiian. Dressed in mums and aloha shirts with leis, 210 maikai (handsome, good) senior citizens gathered for food, prizes, songs and music. Dan Brokaw (center) director of music, greets Freeda Hasinger while her husband, Henry, seems to approve.

Hatred For Father Surfaces In Essay

DEAR ABBY: The teacher called me for a conference because of an essay my daughter had written as part of a class assignment. It was titled "My Father," and it went like this:

"My father is the worst father in the whole world. I am ashamed of him. He went through Friday from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. There are four full-time employees. Road service calls are welcome. Telephone 328-9516 for service.

Heavy rainstorms precipitate problems for car owners driving through flooded streets, Franta said. "Water splashes up on the wiring and when the car doesn't want to start, our business always picks up in rainy weather," he added.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is not what you'd call "handsome." He's middle-aged, a little on the flabby side, and he's losing his hair. But he's a bus driver, and Abby, I don't think you know how crazy some women are for bus drivers. I must be the uniform, because the women fall all over him as if he were a marine captain or something.

Bill says that most of the women on his run are mental cases. They have tried to tip him, give him their phone numbers, and they fight for the seat right behind the driver so they can blow on his neck. One lady even PINCHED him.

Should I ask Bill to get into some other line of work? Or should I let him stay on that bus with all those crazy women?

THE DRIVER'S WIFE: DEAR WIFE: Men who meet the public (in uniform and out) will be tipped, leered, and even pinched occasionally. Give him his of love. And treat him. If a man is happy at home, he won't look left or right.

DEAR ABBY: I love my wife, Paula, and she loves me. No problems whatsoever.

DEAR ABBY: I can't speak for husbands, but many wives have a "save-it-for-later" complex. Simply tell your little darling that it is later than she thinks!

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (14 cents) envelope to Abby, 122 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211.

Jim Boone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Boone of Longwood, was the top winner in the 1978 Conservation Contest, sponsored by the Orange County Sportsmen's Association. A Lyman High School Senior, Jim won a $1,000 scholarship, which he will use next year when he attends Seminole Community College. His theme was entitled, "Apathy in Conservation." 'At 85, As Good As I Ever Was'

Mrs. Etta Appleby shows her latest venture in needlecraft — gold fringed draperies and a colorful throw (unfinished) — at her home on her 95th birthday.

By DORIS DIETRICH OURSELVES Editor

"When I was 85, I was as good as I ever was..." These words were clearly spoken by Mrs. A.K. (Etta) Appleby at her 95th birthday Saturday — her 95th birthday.

What was Sanford like when Mrs. Appleby arrived here?

"It's been 87 years ago and we still have the same paper (The Herald), she smiled.

But there have been so many changes.

Mrs. Appleby remembers: When Sanford's boundary south stopped at 20th Street and Park Avenue. When Sanford had public transportation, livery stables and open air markets downtown.

When the First United Methodist Church began construction.

When her present spacious Spanish style home with 20 acres, built in 1929, was purchased for $400.

When the family lived on Crystal Lake in Lake Mary. "Lake Mary has changed so much," she said.

What would Mrs. Appleby consider the most major change in Sanford since her arrival here in 1914 from Charleston, S.C.?

"Roads. The number of roads built. They just go every which way," she said.

Mrs. Appleby lived alone in her present home until four years ago. She was moving a heavy limb following a storm when she suffered a heart attack.

Until that time, she did all her work, including the yard work.

At age 88, Mrs. Appleby was still climbing ladders. She had never been hospitalized until then.

A daughter, Bernice Jackson who lives with her mother said the diagnosis for this confinement was "ulcers."

Mrs. Appleby said the illness was caused from consuming too much fish and milk.

"Incredible" is the only word to describe this fantastic and fascinating lady.

Her late husband was the yardmaster for Atlantic Coastline Railroad. "His mother lived with us for 40 years," Mrs. Appleby said. Life in Sanford has been

Crash Kills TV Producer

San Barbara, Calif. (UPI)—A twin-engine Cessna 337 Skystrater that crashed in the mountains above Santa Barbara Sunday, killing television producer Bruce Geller, was a programming executive for CBS in the late 1960s and ABC entertainment executive Stephen Gentry, apparently hit a mountain while gliding in fog, the coroner's office said Monday.

SWEET SOUNDS When the English Estate Recorder Ensemble, directed by Debbie Clifton, played at the Florida Music Educators' Association state convention in January, members received a standing ovation. The group received a similar greeting Monday evening playing with the Seminole Community Choir at the Chorale Festival at SCC.

'Bing Crosby: His Life And Legend'

NEW YORK (UPI)—There have been few men in public life as successful as Bing Crosby—and as complex—as Bing Crosby. Hiding behind the easy-going, stanchant facade of the pipe-smoking crooner who swung a golf club or tossed an old lady into the air was a man who had suffered from depression and physical disability of his own making.
