Negligence suit filed against city

SANFORD — A negligence suit has been filed against the Sanford Housing Authority and a smoke detector maker by the parents of a 5-month-old girl severely burned in a 1992 crib fire.

The parents of Kristie Thongsamut, who died three days after the Jan. 14, 1992 fire, are seeking to recover medical and funeral expenses as well as lost future services and damages.

At the time of the incident, investigators said it appeared the baby's three-year-old brother started the fire while playing with a lighter.

In the suit, Bounchanh and Shonda Thongsamut allege the smoke detector was not working because it had no cover. The couple claim the housing authority was negligent for not inspecting the device and the smoke detector maker, Fyrnetics Inc. was negligent because it "failed to provide adequate precautions to prevent the non-operation without the cover."

Yulee ticket can claim jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — A lucky ticket purchased last week in the border town of Yulee, north of Jacksonville, can stake whoever owns it to an estimated $8 million jackpot from the latest Florida Lotto game.

A computer check Sunday showed that the Yulee ticket is the only one sold with the numbers 3-6-10-11-34-47 drawn late Saturday.

There were 209 tickets sold with five of the numbers, and they are worth $1,674.50 each; 14,314 tickets have four of the numbers and can be cashed in for $58.50 each, while 273,404 with three numbers are worth $4 each.

This week's Lotto game will also have an estimated jackpot of $8 million.

Dog dies in fall from plane

TAYLORSVILLE BEACH, N.C. — A pilot threw one last ball to his neighbor's dog, got into his floatplane and took off — unaware the dog had hopped onto one of the pontoons.

Ronald Sam didn't know the dog had climbed aboard — and fallen to its death — until notified Saturday by police during a later flight.

Witnesses had reported seeing the dog, a part-Labrador retriever named Baron, fall 1,000 feet from the sky.

The dog went through the roof of a vacant cottage and landed in the kitchen. He apparently died on impact, according to the Alexander County Sheriff's Department.

"I don't know what it says about my flying skills, for me to be able to take off with a 60-pound dog on my plane and not notice it," said Sam, a certified seaplane pilot. No charges were filed.

Correction

Tickets to attend the Lake Mary High School's Miss Lake Mary pageant, to be held in the auditorium Feb. 13, were incorrectly priced in the Herald Sunday. The correct prices are: $4 in advance and $5 at the door.

Patient care update

AIDS clearinghouse being organized

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

A new clearinghouse for AIDS patients is being formed. The service is designed to help patients locate a nursing home or care facility.

"There are some occasions when a person with AIDS has difficulty in finding care beyond hospital care and this organization should be of great help," said Susan Prather of HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital.

"All of our patients at Central Florida Regional receive social service counseling for outpatient treatment," Prather said, "and most of the time, finding a facility for an AIDS patient is not difficult, but this new clearinghouse should be able to give everyone the help they need in finding a suitable nursing home or other care area."

In the past, AIDS patients in the Central Florida area had routinely been sent to nursing homes in St. Petersburg, Lakeland and Ormond Beach, which were known to accept them.

That practice was carried out even though federal and state law forbids public health-care facilities, including nursing homes, from discriminating against AIDS patients.

"On Jan. 21," Prather said, "a group of social work directors from hospitals in Seminole, Orange, and Osceola Counties met with area nursing home administrators and members of the AIDS task force, and this clearinghouse was proposed."

"The first step has been taken," says Kathy Welsh, a Medicaid specialist with the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and a member of the all-volunteer clearinghouse.

"Just about every facility in town was represented," said Cindy Rivers, a reform leader and head of the social work department at Florida Hospital Orlando.

"This (nursing home) community really has pulled together," said Surya Reynolds, district president of the Florida Health Care Association, a nursing home trade group, and one of the leaders of the clearinghouse.

Eleven nursing home representatives are clearinghouse volunteers.

So far, no nursing home has refused to cooperate, said Ms. Reynolds.

The clearinghouse has set up a rotation system that would distribute AIDS patients evenly throughout area nursing homes. No nursing home would get a second patient until each of the others had admitted one.

If a nursing home does not have the medical equipment or the expertise to care for the patient referred to it, the patient would go to another nursing home. The clearinghouse would refer the next available AIDS patient to the home that was skipped, said Ms. Reynolds.

If a home refuses to cooperate, the matter will be referred to HRS, which enforces the state's anti-AIDS discrimination law, Ms. Reynolds said.

All 59 nursing homes in Orange, Seminole, Brevard and Osceola counties are included in the rotation, said Ms. Reynolds.

Central Park Village in Orlando, where Ms. Reynolds works as an administrator, last month admitted an AIDS patient for the first time and cared for him until his death, she said.

"No problems at all," she said. "I don't think anybody really knew what his diagnosis was, except his direct-care giver."

Schools around nation combine to celebrate

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Some aspects of American History are still slighted in the curriculum that is offered in the classroom, some people feel.

In an effort to attempt to make amends for that, February is celebrated as National Black History Month across the country.

In Sanford, Mayor Bettye Smith recently signed a proclamation making this Black History Month in Sanford and the administration at Seminole High School has made arrangements for a variety of celebrations and educational experiences at the school.

"This is a very important aspect of the educational experience at Seminole High School," said assistant principal...

Transient rental housing restudied

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Transient rental housing is back for discussion again. The City Commission is scheduled to consider the latest proposal during a workshop meeting this evening.

The matter has been considered for several months but no action has been taken. The most recent move was a Planning and Zoning workshop on Jan. 21, when the latest requirements were discussed.

P&Z also considered information regarding the matter from the State Department of Business Regulation Division of Hotels and Restaurants.

As a result, a third suggested draft is being presented to the commission tonight. According to Acting City Manager Paul Moore, who prepared the information, "This proposal is limited to transient rental housing and provides definitions that reflect state definitions tied to six month leases."

He continued, "This is a more limited approach, that is intended to provide the building official with the ability to focus on individual properties."

Tietig, also known as Freedom the Clown, has been bringing a message of self-esteem, social responsibility and drug awareness to students and churches in Seminole County for about five years.

Tietig said that he has had his share of the downside of life. A recovering alcoholic, he said that he spent seven years in conflict with the law, refusing to keep the conditions of his probation.

For the last few years, after finding Christ, he has been taking a message of hope to students and their parents and

Old Glory files alone

AUBURNDALE — Folks at the Adams Packing Association were just being friendly when they flew Japan's flag right under Old Glory. After all, their new Japanese business partners were visiting.

Then came some lessons on federal flag rules, and reminders that things weren't always so friendly between the two nations. Japan's flag came down Friday after a Florida Highway Patrol lieutenant informed the citrus company about a 1953 federal law that says flags of separate nations should be flown from separate staffs. The law doesn't include penalties for improper display.

Adams Packing, which recently entered into a joint venture with a Japanese juice company and is aggressively seeking foreign markets to sell a bumper crop of oranges, had hoisted Japan's flag last week as a gesture of courtesy.

By Wednesday, Auburndale City Manager Bobby Green said he was getting phone calls from World War II veterans who were offended by the placement of the Japanese flag on the same pole as the flag they defended.

"We made a technical error," said Adams general manager Bob Roy. "If we boo-bood, then we're sorry. But it wasn't intentional."

Company officials said a second pole would be installed.

Sailor faces court-martial

PENSACOLA — A Navy petty officer whose case led to a transfer of the Navy's ethics-training admiral says he is anxious to speak out at his court martial against charges he made homosexual advances toward other sailors.

"All everybody has heard is one side," Chief Petty Officer Edmond Bonnot said Friday after Naval officials set a March 8 trial date.

He is a former aide to Vice Adm. Jack Fetterman, who was appointed as the Navy's so-called "ethics admiral" to root out sexual bias after the scandal over sexual harassment at the Tailhook convention of Navy aviators.

Allegations that Fetterman tried to protect his aide from a full investigation led him to resign last year as Chief of Naval Education and Training at Pensacola Naval Air Station.

Bonnot, 36, faces five indecent assault charges, two charges of assault with intent to commit sodomy and one charge each of communication of indecent language and solicitation to commit sodomy.

A petty officer testified at a hearing last month that he assumed it was a homosexual advance when Bonnot fondled his chest during a short car trip in 1991. The petty officer also said another sailor told him Bonnot offered to perform oral sex.

Pilot reports trouble before crash

MIAMI — A twin-engine plane headed for Broward County went down and sank in the Atlantic Ocean shortly after the pilot reported engine trouble, officials said.

The Piper Aztec had left Higuadilla, Puerto Rico, and was en route to North Perry Airport in Pembroke Pines when "the pilot reported that the engine was running rough," Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Christy Williams said Sunday from Atlanta.

The plane crashed about eight miles east of Hollywood at 4:38 p.m. EST Sunday. The pilot was believed to be the only one aboard, Williams said.

The Coast Guard and Florida Marine Patrol searched the crash site but found no body, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Simone Adams.

The search was suspended pending further information, the Coast Guard said this morning.

The FAA is investigating.

Jackson urges Haitians to keep pressure

MIAMI — It was part protest, part pep rally when about 7,000 people, led by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, marched through the heart of Miami's Little Haiti neighborhood.

Demonstrators, including civil rights activists, politicians and community leaders, marched more than 20 blocks to the local headquarters of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Jackson urged the crowd to keep pressure on the Clinton Administration to restore democracy in Haiti and to return deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power.

"We want a new policy — Aristide back and safe in Haiti," Jackson told the crowd.

"Aristide sends this message," he said, "a new Haiti, a nonviolent Haiti and a Haiti in transition. ... No more false arrests, no more violence."

The event commemorated the second anniversary of Aristide's inauguration and the seventh anniversary of the end of the Duvalier family regime.

It also was a protest against U.S. immigration policy on Haitians.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Controls on prison industries

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers are considering legislation to ban contracts in which Florida's prison industries program simply buys products and marks them up for resale.

The bills would also require Prison Rehabilitative Industries and Diversified Enterprises to bid on state contracts and make most records available to state investigators.

PRIDE President Pamela Jo Davis said she has no problem releasing records. But she said the bidding requirement could cost PRIDE many state contracts and a ban on pass-through contracts would drive up costs for state agencies, which would have to pay for warehousing and transportation.

"It would seem to me that by us not doing it, the state would pay more money, then they'd lose out on the training of the inmates. I would think it's a lose-lose situation."

—Pamela Jo Davis

It would seem to me that by us not doing it, the state would pay more money, then they'd lose out on the training of the inmates. I would think it's a lose-lose situation.

The legislation comes in the wake of an investigation by the state comptroller prompted by PRIDE's purchase of $45,000 worth of filet mignon and New York strip steaks for patients at Florida State Hospital in Chattahoochee.

The probe found PRIDE purchased $3.4 million in goods in 1991-92 and did nothing to them — except mark them up an average of 12.8 percent. The state could have saved $422,000 by buying the products directly.

PRIDE has interpreted state law as permitting pass-through contracts. But the chairman of the House Corrections Committee said he wants to make it clear — reselling finished products at a markup is unacceptable.

"Any time a state agency can buy something for a cost less than PRIDE, they certainly should be allowed to do that," said Rep. Kelley Smith, D-Palaska.

Currently, PRIDE is not required to bid on most state contracts, but state agencies are required to buy PRIDE products if they are comparable in price and quality to those available privately.

Texas cougar could energize panther line

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — A genetic boost from some Texas relatives would help the Florida panther in its battle against extinction, biologists say.

A dozen Western cougars are being taken to a wilderness area near the Ocala National Forest this week in preparation for release about a week later.

If the cougars establish a foothold, panthers also could be released there in hopes of mingling the species. The state's only wild panthers now are an estimated 30 to 50 in isolated areas of South Florida.

"I think it's the only thing left to do," biologist Chris Belden of the state Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission told The Florida Times-Union in Jacksonville for a story Sunday.

Inbreeding further handicaps the Florida panther in its struggle with loss of habitat, mercury contamination and motor vehicle deaths.

As the number breeding declines, fathers end up mating with daughters. Lack of genetic diversity leads to heart trouble, abnormal sperm and other problems.

"The panthers are in a very dangerous situation genetically," said Judy Hancock, head of the Sierra Club's conservation committee. "They're very low in numbers, and when they get that low, there's trouble surviving."

Some wildlife biologists and organizations question the cross-breeding plan.

Missing radio reporter alive, severely beaten

By MICHAEL MORTON Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — A reporter kidnapped at a state-sponsored demonstration was dumped outside his office, bound, beaten and his head shaved. Radio stations canceled news programs Monday in protest.

Colson Dorne had not been heard for nearly a week, since he telephoned a colleague at Radio Tropic P.M. and told him he was being threatened by demonstrators at pro-government rally at the airport.

Human rights groups sent protests to army chief Raoul Cedras and military-backed Prime Minister Marc Bazin, calling Dolme's disappearance the latest sign in a government campaign against journalists.

Dolme, 26, was freed by his kidnappers outside the radio station at 10:45 p.m. Sunday. He was blindfolded; his hands and legs were tied, he had been severely beaten and his head had been shaved. He was wearing just a T-shirt and undershorts.

After spending the night at the radio station, he gave this account of his ordeal to journalists: He was struck on the head just after finishing his airport report Feb. 1, then thrown into a pickup truck and driven to an unknown destination. He was always blindfolded, except for one long interrogation session under bright lights.

His kidnappers kept asking him if he worked for foreign powers, a reference to international efforts to restore democracy in Haiti after the army overthrew elected President

Jean-Bertrand Aristide in September 1991.

"From Tuesday night to Saturday night, I underwent the ordeal of death," Dolme told reporters. His abductors told him of being involved in Aristide's movement and pledged to give him money if he became an agent for them, Dolme said.

He was beaten, clubbed and kicked, showing bruises on his arms, waist and chest. "It hurts if I laugh," he said. His money and tape recorder were stolen.

According to police records, the woman went to Ford's apartment at 10 p.m. Friday night to give Ford and another male identified only as "Pop" haircuts. After the haircuts, she claimed Ford forced her stay in the bedroom. She said she was struck several times on the head and face. She was released from the apartment at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Man critically wounded Motorist shoots from passing car on I-95

By Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — An apparently unprovoked shot from a passing car critically wounded a man riding along Interstate 95.

Michael Casares, 21, was in intensive care at Memorial Hospital in Hollywood, a spokeswoman said this morning. He was hurt early Sunday as he and a group of friends drove home after a night on the town.

A Ford Mustang zipped past their car, then slowed and pulled even with it, said Marion Mejia, one of Casares' friends. A pistol poked from the Mustang's window.

Casares "had looked over — face to face with the gun. It hit him right here," Mejia said, pointing just under his right eye.

"There were no words exchanged, no gestures, nothing. Can you believe it? You can't shoot somebody just for looking at you."

"There's no known motive whatsoever," Broward Sheriff's Office spokesman Jim Lejedal said.

Casares and his friends had had no problems at the nightclub they'd visited and no traffic trouble with the Mustang. The four men had no record of involvement in crime or gangs, Lejedal said.

The group had never before seen the car or its driver, a white man with ear-length dark hair, Mejia said, adding there were two or three other people in the Mustang.

After he was shot, Casares slumped onto the lap of driver Carlos Nieves, but Nieves kept control of the car, Mejia said. They tried unsuccessfully to catch the Mustang, then raced to the hospital, trying to stop Casares from bleeding during the 10-minute ride.

Investigators searched this morning for the gunman and the Mustang, a late-model 5.0, possibly maroon, with fully tinted windows and a wind foil around the bottom.

Loveless faces Florida charges

By Associated Press

NEW ALBANY, Ind. — Larry Loveless faced charges of rape, sodomy and sexual battery today after being implicated in testimony delivered during a sentencing hearing for a daughter who confessed to the torture slaying of a 12-year-old.

Loveless, 46, waived extradition in Highland County, Fla., and Indiana authorities escorted him back in an airplane. He was being held Sunday night on $300,000 bond in the Floyd County Jail.

The former Indiana resident, who now lives in Florida, was scheduled to appear for an initial hearing today in Floyd Circuit Court.

Loveless faces three felony counts of rape, six counts of sodomy and two counts of sexual battery.

His 17-year-old daughter, Melinda Loveless, pleaded guilty to murder and other charges in the abduction and slaying of 12-year-old Shanda Sharer of Jeffersonville. Melinda Loveless was sentenced to 60 years in prison last month.

Three other teen-agers also were linked to the Jan. 11, 1992, slaying in which Sharer was beaten, cut, choked and then burned to death. Melinda Loveless, then 16, suspected Sharer had stolen her lesbian lover.

In an attempt to explain how the girls could have committed the crimes, two of Melinda Loveless' sisters and two of her cousins testified during a December sentencing hearing that Larry Loveless forced them as young children to have sex with him. They did not say whether Melinda was abused.

Floyd County Prosecutor Stan Faith has called Larry Loveless "a part of the cause and effect of all these events."

An Indiana warrant charged Loveless with 11 counts of sexual abuse between 1968 and 1989, the years he lived with his family in New Albany.

An affidavit filed in Floyd Circuit Court alleges he once chained together three girls and forced intercourse upon them.

The affidavit didn't identify any of the girls or say if they were related to Loveless.

State police detective Sam Sarkisian escorted Loveless back to Indiana.

"We were contacted and advised he was willing to come," said Sarkisian. Loveless had been fighting extradition, and Sarkisian said he didn't know what changed his mind.

New tourism concept

The concept of a vacation barge operating between Sanford and North Carolina is exciting. People would drive their motor homes onto the barge and live in them as they traveled the St. Johns River and Inland Waterway.

Sanford may well be on the verge of being the southern port for an unique tourist attraction.

The beauty along the St. Johns and the excitement of seeing wildlife while touring the waterway should make this an excursion to remember.

The self-propelled barge concept is being considered by Bill Benson, in Wrightsville Beach, N.C., which would be the northern terminus of the trip.

In order to bring Benson's dream to fruition however, a great deal of paperwork will be required, and permits will need to be obtained from many governmental bodies.

Full details have not been revealed at this time. There is no doubt however, that in order to gain approval, some give and take will be required.

We urge everyone who will eventually become involved in this concept to do whatever possible to bring it into existence.

For years, visitors and residents alike have wanted to know why Sanford doesn't do something to promote one of its greatest assets, its location on Lake Monroe. This could be a logical step in the right direction.

It would almost be an Autotrain on the water. People across the state and nation would hear about it, bringing more tourist traffic and adding dollars to the local economy.

Barring any difficulties, we urge community and governmental support for this project. Right now it may be one man's dream, but as contained in the words of a song from "South Pacific," "if you never have dreams, how you gonna make a dream come true."

ACLU's civil war on hate speech laws

Kevin Francis O'Neill, legal director of the ACLU of Ohio Legal Foundation, is a classic civil libertarian in that he believes, with Justice William Brennan, that the First Amendment secures all our other liberties and rights. Accordingly, O'Neill was involved in the successful attempt to have Ohio's "hate crime" law declared unconstitutional by that state's Supreme Court. The statute provided enhanced penalties for crimes committed with bias in mind.

"This is dangerous," said Ohio's Supreme Court, with O'Neill in enthusiastic agreement. "If the legislature can enhance a penalty for crimes committed by reason of racial bigotry, why not by reason of opposition to abortion, war, the elderly (or any other political or moral viewpoint)?"

The Ohio ACLU is in the minority among state affiliates of the American Civil Liberties Union that have taken a stand on adding to the prison terms for crimes committed by bigots. The New York affiliate is enthusiastically willing to punish speech in addition to the penalty for the crime in these cases. The Oregon ACLU not only supports added punishment for bias crimes but actually helped write the state's law curbing the First Amendment in this regard -- a law that has been upheld by Oregon's Supreme Court.

The three ACLU affiliates in California, as could easily have been predicted, prefer a civil rights rather than a civil liberties course in these matters. The civil rights approach is to demand that the government add penalties to crimes involving hate speech while those civil libertarians still in the ACLU believe -- as Leslie Williams, executive director of the dissident Vermont affiliate puts it -- "the legislature should not be able to add several years to a prison sentence for an already punishable crime" because it finds the reasons for the crime offensive.

Over 40 states have "hate crime" laws and the intent, as it advocates keep pointing out, is to send a message to blacks, gays, lesbians -- and other targets of bias crimes -- that the community regards such attacks very seriously and therefore will punish hate crimes more harshly than violent crimes committed without bigotry.

This approach, however, also sends a message to those in any community who are mugged or otherwise assaulted for no other reason than the criminal's lust for money. The message to those random victims is that the injuries they receive, however painful physically and psychologically, are of less concern to the community because the perpetrators in their case were blessedly free of bigotry.

After the Wisconsin Supreme Court declared that state's "hate crime" law -- in a case involving black-on-white crime -- unconstitutional, the Wisconsin State Journal, in an editorial, asked: "Is the mugging of an elderly black woman by a black youth suddenly a less serious crime in the eyes of the law than the same mugging committed by a white youth?"

The U.S. Supreme Court has chosen this Wisconsin case to review, during the present term, thereby probably deciding the fate of all the state's bias-crime laws. Wisconsin's statute adds up to five years prison time for crimes allegedly based on race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation or disability.

The statute provided enhanced penalties for crimes committed with bias in mind.

Open debate spurs national consent

First, the national situation as a pessimist might describe it.

The controversy over President Clinton's determination to bar discrimination against homosexuals in the armed forces illustrates one of contemporary America's most disturbing realities. Our political and cultural system is perilously close to blowing a fuse.

What is most disturbing is that so many of today's unresolved issues impinge upon, or spring from heartfelt moral convictions.

As a result, they have engendered differences which, if they are not actually irreconcilable, often appear to be so on the surface. None will be settled without deeply wounding the losers and politically weakening the winners.

What can be compromised on abortion? Those who oppose it see it as a mortal sin, the murder of a living, if unborn, human being. They are at least as honest, as sincere and as well-versed in their arguments as are the pro-abortionists, who are equally adamant about their convictions. Pro- and anti-abortionists alike believe that compromise is immoral.

Nor is there an easily discernible common ground between those who want homosexuality to be treated as an alternative lifestyle or sexual preference with no moral implications, and those who see it as an abomination of the devil. Gays do not want to go back into the closet of legal repression and public censure from which they have just begun to extricate themselves. The millions of American men and women who consider themselves moral traditionalists will not willingly license, implicitly or explicitly, behavior they deeply believe is as sinful as it is disgusting. Reconciling their warring viewpoints promises to be infinitely more difficult than balancing the budget or shrinking the national debt.

That is the pessimist's case, and it is difficult to refute. Not since the Civil War have such armies of the equally self-righteous been gathered in contending order on the national plain. As with that irrepressible conflict, they say, the outcome is bound to be tragic.

The optimists -- or, at least, the qualified optimists -- see it somewhat differently. They begin with an undeniable proposition. The most contentious subjects of debate today were not even on the national table 30 years ago. Homosexuality as expressed in sexual conduct was illegal in virtually every state and a matter of shame in all. The man who was openly gay was a rare and often vulnerable exception to the rule. So were open lesbians.

As for legal abortion, it was a far-distant prospect in the early 1960s. Roe v. Wade was not even on the horizon. Back-alley butchery was the only alternative for poor and ignorant women who did not wish to give birth to unwanted babies. Foreign havens beckoned the rich and informed. The standing of pro-abortionists in the 1960s was approximately that of anti-slavery Abolitionists in the 1840s. Too much public fervor on the question was invitation to a one-way ticket out of most towns.

But if all of this was true then, and it was, something else was equally true in 1963. The nation had not yet moved resolutely to end legal segregation based on race. White supremacy still defiantly embraced in most of the South. Those who predicted that it would be as dead as John Brown by 1993 were as few as they were far between. In the next few years, dozens of people would be murdered, thousands assaulted and countless unconstitutional laws enacted in the name of segregation forever.

Our political and cultural system is perilously close to blowing a fuse.

Freedom 'of' not 'from' religion

In February we observe Presidents Day in recognition of the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln who bequeathed us ideas of honesty, truthfulness and brotherhood. Also, in February, the Postal Service frequently issues another stamp emblazoned, "Love." Honesty, brotherhood, love are all ideas springing from religious faith and principles. Let's look at the record of religious influence in our national life.

Both houses of Congress open their sessions with prayer by an appointed chaplain. On taking the oath of office, the president and other high officials, do so with one hand upon an open bible. Our military services provide chaplains and religious services for personnel of many different religious backgrounds. The coins of America have long been encribed with "In God We Trust." The same motto was added to paper currency in 1955.

Some would misinterpret the Constitution, claiming it bars all religious acts, symbols, and influence from government, public schools and national life. This is not consistent with either our heritage or with the intent of the Constitution authors. There is a vociferous minority clamoring to make our nation one devoid of religious ideas and principles, without public recognition of God, prayer, or religious faith. They have already made serious inroads upon schools, government, and even the Supreme Court.

Before we draw conclusions, let us look at the backgrounds, this will help clarify both meaning and intent. Our colonial ancestors sought freedoms of religious conscience and practice. Many came to America to escape a climate in which state and church joined hands in forging a particular religion upon the inhabitants of various areas. Intolerance, bigotry, prejudice, and total lack of freedom of religious conscience, was the accepted pattern. As they came to America, they were determined that they would void the abuses of the "old world," and seek to preserve rights and freedoms of conscience and religion.

From this determination, the Constitution and Bill of Rights were created on a foundation of religious faith and principles. The first amendment states that there would be ... no establishment of religion. In other words, there was to be no official religion or church in the new nation.

However, some forget to read further as it states, "...or prohibit the free exercise thereof." Further guaranteed were freedom of speech, assembly, press, and petition of grievances. Guaranteed was freedom "of" religion, not freedom "from" religion.

We should always maintain separation of church and state, -- no state church, no taxation or public funds to support any religion. We want neither a church-run state, nor an atheistic government devoid of humanitarianism, social concerns and religious idealism.

However, we should both cherish and preserve individual religious freedom and expression. We should take positive measures to preserve our religious heritage and ideals, rather than outlawing them from our schools and public life. We seek a democracy of free people, worshipping according to conscience, respecting and enjoying the rights and freedoms guaranteed in our Constitution.

Republican support

Today (Feb. 4), I changed my political party registration from that of Democrat to Republican.

I am grateful for the encouragement and support I have received in making this decision from many Republicans, including former Commissioner Fred Streetman, Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide, Republican State Committeeman Jim Stelling, and Seminole County Republican Party Chairman Doug Elam.

My last campaign for the District 1 County Commission seat was a valuable learning experience for me. I was talked into running by a political activist who promised to secure the necessary financial support. This was never forthcoming and I later learned that this individual is surrounded by controversy and has an agenda considered by many to be totally self-serving.

Democrat Larry Furlong offered me no guidance, no advice, no encouragement, and no support. Democrat Party activists would caution me that my thoughts and words sounded too Republican.

Indeed, I realized almost immediately after the public forums started that my views on many key issues were similar to those of the Republican candidates and stood in contrast to those expressed by Democrat Party workers. I found that I was more comfortable with mainstream Republican views on traditional values -- limited government, private property rights, fiscal frugality, minimum taxes, reasonable environmental regulations, etc.

I'm glad that I was a candidate, because it helped me mature personally and politically. My wife, Carol, and I had the same observations and reached the same conclusions. I don't know whether or not I will seek public office again. I do know, however, that I no longer have the gullibility to be used by selfish promoters. I do know that I am a Republican, not only by registration, but by conviction. I do know that I want to be a part of helping the Republican Party grow and her candidates succeed.

Youths victims of boredom

All of us are outraged over the senseless tragedy which occurred in Eustis, a few days ago. Here we have two young men, alive and unnoticed in the "sea" of mankind who selected a mother and her children to add some "excitement" to their lives. This mother and her children who were in the right place at the wrong time, became targets of "boredom-breaking."

These young men could have chosen to go to a library and selected some good books to read, or played some games of interest, or even participated in some on-one basketball. But they chose to invade and interrupt innocent, decent lives of people whom they did not know.

With all of the technology we embrace, we have become a nation of bored people. It used to be exciting for us to watch men/women soar out into space. But now it is "ho hum" what's new? Many marriages become disturbed because of boredom. Infidelity, abuse and often times violence bespeaks the condition of boredom in our lives. After years of marriage, after talking about the same people and the same incidents, relating the same stories and telling the same jokes, we become desensitized and boredom sets in. Our children become bored with their new toys a few days after Christmas. Buy them new clothes and within weeks they want new clothes.

The recent incidents which occurred on our highways of rock and stone throwing at passing motorists also bespeaks the condition of boredom. Those young people did not know any of those motorists, but they became targets of "boredom-breaking."

The question is, what can we do about our boredom? Even those who watch pornographic movies have become bored with bare bottoms and bare bosoms. Each of us and our families need to avoid in our lives. It is only when we seek that which is everlasting that boredom will have no place in our lives. I pray for the mother and I am deeply saddened over the loss of the children. But one thing I do know, they are in the arms of God. My compassion and sympathy are spiritual, firm, strong and unyielding. There is no space for boredom in the lives of those who seek company with the Holy Spirit. May peace be with you all forever more.

Gloves are off in dispute over Michael Jackson's contract

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — Just how much money does the self-proclaimed King of Pop make, anyway?

The question has tantalized the entertainment world for years. Michael Jackson's latest record and movie deal, signed with Sony in 1991, was rumored to be worth $50 million-plus.

The guessers may find out the truth today, thanks to an obscure lawsuit filed by the inventor of a high-tech microphone allegedly used to record parts of Jackson's blockbuster 1987 album "Bad."

Attorneys for Hugo Zuccarelli, who developed the Holophonics recording technology, have asked a judge to order Sony to turn over a copy of Jackson's contract, which they say contains the smoking gun he needs to win.

The lawsuit doesn't specify which deal it seeks, the most recent or an earlier one.

But record industry insiders say public disclosure of his contracts could prompt bedlam as other artists measure their own deals against the Gloved One's.

Meanwhile, the 2-year-old case has already added several new layers to the enigmatic star's reputation for weirdness.

According to court documents, depositions and interviews, Jackson once turned up the heat in a London hotel room to sauna-like temperatures to protect his voice; got into bed in a darkened studio to soothe his aching joints; and asked Zuccarelli to design a Holophonics-equipped coffin he could sleep in.

But it's the contract Hollywood is most interested in.

In addition to detailing Jackson's generous royalty fees and collateral agreements, the contract presumably contains the singer's movie deals, marketing budgets, advances, album schedules, touring commitments, rights to other projects, special allowances — and probably lists an array of special favors granted to the quirky pop star.

Housing

Moore's memorandum is proposing rejection of a plan advanced by Bob Cassels, a resident of a neighborhood with transient property. It suggests, "A city-wide effort to annually inspect and otherwise regulate all rental housing would require significant additional resources, without necessarily dealing with issues related to transient rental housing in the historic residential neighborhoods."

The latest draft of an ordinance entitled "Transient Rental Housing Standards," is included with the information submitted for discussion by the commission during today's workshop meeting beginning at 5 p.m.

Should the commission approve the latest proposal, the matter could be brought up during tonight's regular commission meeting beginning at 7 p.m. in Sanford City Hall.

Special Vernia Jackson. "The students have an opportunity to learn about the contributions of African-Americans and other ethnic groups on our society."

Jackson said that the students would have the opportunity to experience a multi-cultural variety this month.

There will be an emphasis on the contributions of members of all ethnic groups on the American culture, Jackson said.

There will, however, be an emphasis on the contributions and influences of African-Americans.

"We've invited a variety of African-American speakers from the community to come and talk with our students," she said.

There will also be speakers representing other ethnic groups as well.

Seminole High will celebrate Multiculture Week Feb. 16 through 19 with a celebration of the heritages of all their students.

The school, one of the most ethnically diverse in the district, has put a special emphasis on learning about other cultures.

"We have to work together every day," Jackson said. "This is a rare opportunity we have to learn about each other."

Multiculture Week will culminate with an African-American assembly on Feb. 18.

"That will be an exciting event for all of our students," said Jackson.

School board expected to sign proclamation

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board will hold its regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Included on the agenda is a proclamation making March "Violence Free Community Month."

According to Dr. Edith Valentine, the coordinator of the Seminole County student assistance program, the goal of the effort is to prevent violence through education and awareness activities.

"We have to break this cycle of violence within the community, in Seminole County and elsewhere," Valentine said.

This academic year has seen more incidents of students bringing guns to school than any other year in school board history, district records indicate.

One incident, early in the school year, saw a high school student shooting herself in the leg with a sawed off shotgun that had been brought to school.

"This is the kind of thing we are looking to avoid," Valentine said.

Valentine said that she and the Orange and Seminole Drug-Free Schools and Communities Coalition, the group which asked the school board to accept the proclamation, are working on an agenda which will allow schools to educate students about violence and to teach behaviors that will help students redirect their energies.

"We are working with the community as a whole," said Valentine. "We are trying to develop strategies that will work best."

For the last several months, representatives from neighborhoods, government, the clergy, business, health and human services, law enforcement and education have been meeting to plan the strategy for the educational aspect of the violence-free community month.

"We want everyone's input," said Valentine.

The school board is expected to sign the proclamation tomorrow afternoon and activities will begin in the schools next month.

The school board will meet in the district boardroom, 1211 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford at 3:30 p.m. helping schools raise money for themselves.

"I want to help them out as much as I can," Tietig said. "With my message and with some money for the PTAs."

He said that, often, PTAs are looking for money to help their schools purchase essential equipment.

Through his "edutainment" show, Tietig, an ordained minister in the United Methodist Church, educates young people to what they need to do to become more responsible, productive members of society.

"I try to talk to them on their level," he said. "I try to be as 'for real' as I can."

He said that his humble approach and his willingness to talk to them individually endears him to the young people.

In addition to clowning, he also plays the guitar and sings to the audience.

"I like to play the kind of music that the kids and their parents both like to hear," he said.

Tietig said that his music is secular and a lot of it is more of a folk style, but he believes that the students will enjoy it as well as their parents.

He said that he has recently done a show for the students at Lakeview Middle School and has been invited back to perform at a PTA fundraiser for parents and students.

He said that one-third of the money raised at that event will go to the PTAs for their projects.

"That makes me feel good to be able to do that for the school," he said.

Tietig said that he earns his living by clowning at birthday parties and other private events, but he likes to use his talents to help the community as well.

He will be performing at the Sanford Youth Blast, a Christian celebration, next month.

"I believe that I can do so many positive things for the community through the young people," he said.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Mall shooting goes unnoticed

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — A shooting in the sprawling Mall of America that left three people with minor wounds went unnoticed by most shoppers, police said.

"Many people who heard it thought it was part of the ambience, part of the atmosphere," said Bloomington Police Chief Bob Lutz.

Sunday's shooting occurred after a fight between two groups at an amusement park in the 6-month-old mall, the nation's largest.

One youth pulled out a small-caliber, semiautomatic handgun and opened fire, hitting Rodney Bennett, 16, in the leg and Lawrence Evans, 26, in the hand, Lutz said.

A female employee of Knott's Camp Snoopy also was hit — apparently accidentally — in the thigh, he said.

The woman, who was not identified, and Bennett were hospitalized in satisfactory condition. Evans was treated and released.

Hairdresser fired for improper attire

TRENTON, N.J. — A hairdresser who says she was fired for wearing pants to work at a J.C. Penney store says her dismissal was unfair, and a state women's group is considering a boycott to back her up.

Diane Carter, 38, of Hamilton Township said she was fired Friday for refusing to abide by a new policy at the retailer's Quaker Bridge Mall store that requires female employees to wear skirts.

Carter, who worked in the hair salon for eight years, said she always wore slacks to work because they were more comfortable.

Gasoline prices edge higher

LOS ANGELES — The average price of gasoline nationwide edged higher over the past two weeks because of uncertainty on international futures market, an oil industry analyst said.

The Feb. 5 Lundberg Survey of about 10,000 gas stations showed the overall price of gasoline, including taxes, was 115.61 cents per gallon.

That was a fraction higher than the 115.49 cents average reported in the Jan. 22 survey.

"The international markets have had a psychological impact," analyst Tribby Lundberg said Sunday. "The demand is soft, the recession lingers, yet the prices rise. It's all psychological."

ST. PETERSBURG — From the first time he saw a brain scan image of his wife's deadly tumor, David Reynard suspected her hand-held cellular telephone was to blame.

"Bulls-eye," he said of the golf-ball sized mass above her left ear. "It lined up perfectly with the antenna of the phone."

Reynard's belief that electromagnetic energy radiating from the phone either caused her cancer or sped its growth led to a lawsuit against the manufacturer and a mission to warn others.

"My wife was surely not the first cellular phone user to die," Reynard said, "but I may be the first person to put two and two together."

His appearance last month on CNN's "Larry King Live" gained widespread attention, prompting a flood of denials from the cellular telephone industry and a hastily called hearing on Capitol Hill.

Federal experts told a congressional subcommittee last week there is no definitive evidence showing cellular phones cause cancer, but they noted a dearth of research on the subject and said it begs further study.

Both the National Cancer Institute and the cellular phone industry announced they will conduct their own safety studies.

Reynard, 44, feels vindicated. Initially he was dismissed by the cellular phone industry, the media and even some friends as just a grieving widower.

In 1988, Reynard gave his pregnant wife, Susan, a hand-held cellular phone. For the next 20 months, she used it frequently. Bills showed she spoke about 4,000 minutes a month, Reynard said.

In the spring of 1990, Susan began getting headaches and throwing up. Later, the once-vibrant secretary who could type 120 words a minute found it hard to speak in complete sentences. When her doctor asked her to subtract seven from 100, she couldn't.

Tests confirmed their worst fears — she had a malignant tumor. Surgery eliminated 85 percent of the growth, but doctors estimated she had two years to live.

Reynard spent months trying to find information to back up his hunch that electromagnetic energy from the cellular phone was to blame.

He read government documents, news articles and research papers, among them a 1990 study by a Medical College of Virginia scientist who found some radio waves may accelerate the growth of existing cancer cells.

Although he can't prove a connection, he thought it was unusual that several of the doctors who use his telephone answering service died of brain tumors — and they were heavy cellular phone users.

Last April, just before Mrs. Reynard died at 33, the couple filed a lawsuit in state court blaming phone manufacturer NEC America and local phone network operator QTE Mobilnet of Tampa for the cancer.

Attorney John Lloyd of St. Petersburg, who represents Reynard, said more than a half-dozen people with brain tumors, or their survivors, have contacted him in the last few weeks about filing similar lawsuits.

Reynard, who flunked speech class in high school, recently has given as many as 10 interviews a day to journalists from across the country and as far away as Australia and Hong Kong.

Dahmer still has urge to kill

By KYLE SMITH Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — If he hadn't been caught, Jeffrey Dahmer would probably still be hunting down victims, the serial killer says.

"I wish I could say that it just left completely, but ... there are times when I still do have those old compulsions," Dahmer said in his first interview since he was convicted a year ago.

Police discovered severed heads, refrigerated skulls and preserved genitalia in Dahmer's apartment in Milwaukee on July 22, 1991. He confessed the next day to killing and dismembering 17 young men and boys.

Dahmer, 32, was interviewed Jan. 12 at Columbia Correctional Facility in Portage, Wis., where he's serving 15 consecutive life terms. Excerpts from the interview, scheduled to air this week on the syndicated television show "Inside Edition," were released to reporters Sunday.

Dahmer said he killed and ate parts of his victims' bodies "not because I hated them, but because I wanted to keep them with me."

He said he alone was to blame for the killings. "That's the only person — not parents, not society, not pornography," he said.

His acts, he said, resulted from a compulsion in which sexual fantasies of control and dominance mixed with excitement, fear and pleasure.

Nine years and a stint in the Army passed between Dahmer's first and second killings, but he said he experienced a surge of energy after the second one that made him feel he "was in complete control of the situation."

Dahmer pleaded guilty but insane at his trial and a jury found him to be sane. Wisconsin does not have the death penalty.

Dahmer provided gruesome details of the killings in a matter-of-fact tone, such as how he ate the hearts of his victims and tried to use injections to induce a zombie-like state in them so he could keep them alive.

At one point, he brought body parts to the chocolate factory where he worked, he said. The factory's logo says "Ambrosia — Food of the Gods."

He said he felt so "evil and perverted" that he enjoyed watching the movie "Exorcist III" repeatedly.

Life's getting smaller while ads get cheaper

By Associated Press

NEW YORK — Life magazine will be printed on smaller pages starting with its July issue and will slash advertising prices in May by a whopping 35 percent in a bid to make the monthly publication more appealing to advertisers.

The magazine will also reduce its circulation guarantee for advertisers by 12 percent in July to 1.5 million copies from the current 1.7 million, mainly by shipping fewer copies to independent distribution agents.

Publisher Nora McAniff said Friday that smaller pages and the lower circulation guarantees would cut the magazine's costs.

The new pages, which make Life the same size as Fortune but bigger than the newweeklies, should draw in advertisers who don't want to create ads specifically to fit the current Life page format, she said.

The rate for a full-page, four-color ad in Life will be cut to $49,500 in May from the current $76,605.

A special Valentine's Day wish

Valentine's Day is arriving this coming Sunday. Wouldn't it be apropos to submit a beautiful poem about love?

"Love...Forever Let It Be," was composed by a very sweet Seminole High School senior who is on a CDE work release program from her school and works in Lake Mary. Her name is Ann Elizabeth Ironmonger, she is 18. She wrote the poem for her dad, Warren, and her future stepmom, Judy, on the occasion of their engagement.

Last year Ann won an award for a poem entered in the Curriculum Fair of Eustis High School in Lake County. The poem was entitled "The Shattered Dream." It spoke of "love and peace in the world that will never seem to prevail," says Ann.

Ann does her own original art work and illustrations to accompany her poetry and writings. One of Ann's many goals is to publish a children's book of poetry and art work.

Ann has enough credit to graduate from high school now, but because she wishes her mother, Sue Roam, and stepdad, John, to experience this event with her, Ann is waiting for June to graduate with her classmates.

LOVE...FOREVER LET IT BE
Love - A feeling of natural embrace; When someone smiles and gently touches your face.

Love - A person who is there when you are down; The person who makes you laugh and takes away the frowns.

Love - A certain thing felt between two people alone; It started out small and now it has grown.

Love - A place where you met that person for the very first time; Somewhere where you can make a home and not feel as if it were a crime.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Earnhardt's back

DAYTONA BEACH — Dale Earnhardt drove his Chevrolet from the back of the field twice to win both halves of the 15th annual Busch Clash at Daytona International Speedway.

Earnhardt, who won the 50-mile race for the previous year's pole winners for the fifth time, started 13th and 15th in the two segments, but it didn't take him long to establish his superiority, charging through the field easily.

Kenny Schrader finished two car-lengths behind, followed by Ernie Irvan, Mark Martin, Ricky Rudd, Davey Allison, Kyle Petty, Sterling Marlin, Bill Elliott, Alan Kulwicki, Darrell Waltrip, Rusty Wallace, Brett Bodine, Rick Mast and wild-card entry Jimmy Means.

Purvis dominated ARCA event

DAYTONA BEACH — A 22-car crash on the third lap left pole-starter Jeff Purvis to run away with the ARCA 200 late model stock car race.

Purvis, driving a Chevrolet Lumina, led 71 of the 80 laps on the 2 1/2-mile oval, beating the Ford Thunderbird of fellow front-row starter Loy Allen Jr. to the finish line by 2.2 seconds.

Kirk Shelmerdine finished third, followed by Jeremy Mayfield and defending Permatex Supercar Series champion Bobby Bowsher.

Florida sweeps Tampa

GAINESVILLE — Ron Schott pitched five shutout innings as Florida defeated Tampa 11-5 to sweep a two-game series.

Earlier, the Gators won the completed Saturday's game, which was suspended by rain, 8-6.

AROUND THE NATION

Barkley dunks Magic

PHOENIX — In the first quarter, Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal caved in the basket. In the fourth, his game caved in on him, thanks to Phoenix's Charles Barkley.

O'Neal was gone with 3:16 left, logging 20 points — 14 in the first quarter when his thunderous dunk collapsed the backboard.

But Barkley turned the rookie center into a fall guy while leading the Suns to a 121-105 victory.

Barkley had half of his 28 points and 9 of his 19 rebounds in the fourth period while he faked and tricked O'Neal into four of his six fouls.

Richard Dumas put on a slamfest, scoring a career-high 31 points, while Kevin Johnson added 17 points, nine assists and six steals.

Nick Anderson led Orlando with 26, and Scott Skiles added 23.

Knicks trip Heat

NEW YORK — Tony Campbell came off the bench to score a season-high 21 points, including 10 during a decisive 25-7 run, to spark New York to a 104-82 victory over Miami.

Hurricanes blow one

AUSTIN — Miami reliever Danny Graves hit Texas' Jeff Conway with a pitch, driving home Jerry Taylor with the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning to lead Texas to a 12-11 victory over Miami on Sunday.

Texas (3-1) roared back from a 9-3 deficit in the ninth inning by scoring six runs after two were out to knot the game at 9-9 and went on to sweep the three game series from Miami (0-3).

Jaguars belt Dolphins

MOBILE, Ala. — Alonzo Mitchell scored 14 points to lead South Alabama to a 73-58 Sun Belt win over Jacksonville on Sunday.

Three other Jaguars (11-9 overall, 6-6) joined Mitchell in double figures. Cedric Yelding had 16 points, former Lake City star Charlie Burke 13 and John Blake 10.

Artemus McClary and Kent Shafer led Jacksonville (3-16, 1-10) with 14 points each. Barry Brown added 13 points.

Learning a tough lesson

Lyman boys try to avoid fate of Greyhound girls

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — When you see a loved one suffer a terrible accident, you can't help but talk about it. Not only does it help you deal with the shock, but it provides an opportunity to examine what happened so that you can keep it from happening to you.

That's just about the situation that the Lyman High School boys' soccer team finds itself in this week after seeing the Lyman girls suffer a shocking upset in their district tournament last week.

The Greyhound girls were the No. 1-ranked Class 4A team in the state as well as the district tournament's top seed. Lyman's boys, ranked No. 2 in the state, also carry the top seed into their district tournament.

Lake Howell dashed Lyman's hopes of three straight Class 4A girls' soccer state championships by rallying from a 2-0 deficit with less than 15 minutes to play to beat the Greyhounds 3-2 in overtime last Wednesday.

"It's been brought up in conversation," said Lyman boys' coach Ray Sandidge. "They're aware of it, they if they don't play well or don't finish games off, the same thing could happen to them."

"We know what can happen if we don't play well. They understand that if they play one bad game, it's over."

Lyman opens the tournament by hosting eight-seeded Mainland tonight. Other first round games have No. 2 Lake Mary at home against No. 7 Deltona, No. 3 Lake Brantley entertaining No. 6 Lake Howell and No. 5 Oviedo traveling to No. 4 DeLand. All four games are scheduled to start at 7 p.m.

Unlike the Lyman girls, who had to play without goalkeeper Cheryl Roberts (mononucleosis), the Greyhound boys head into their district tournament at full strength.

"We're finally healthy from all our injuries and sickness," said Sandidge, who added that while physical ability is important, emotional toughness and experience would play equally important roles.

"We know that there are four good teams that could win this district," he said. "If you don't play your best, you're not going to win. As a result, the pressure becomes greater. When you make mistakes in a regular season game, they don't seem to be as monumental as they are in playoffs."

"The biggest difference is momentum. It can swing so heavily in the playoffs. And these are just young men. They play a lot of emotion."

One thing in Lyman's favor is that the Greyhounds have played and won numerous close games over the course of this season and the end of last season, when they scrambled their way through the district tournament all the way to the state semifinals.

"It's nice to have that experience," said Sandidge. "Last year, up until the playoffs, those close games weren't going our way. But ever since last year's Pizza Hut Tournament, even though we lost to Clearwater-Countryside, we've been playing with a lot of confidence."

All they have to do now is avoid any "accidents."

SANFORD — So much for a lack of hitting.

Prior to the start of the season, Seminole Community College head baseball coach Jack Pantellas thought his team would have good pitching and play good defense, but he was unsure if his young charges would hit.

If Saturday's doubleheader sweep against Miami-Dade Community College Kendall Acres at Raider Field is any indication, Pantellas has nothing to worry about.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Just as the varsity has all season, the Lyman High School junior varsity wrestling team dominated the South Seminole Optimists Junior Varsity Tournament this past Saturday at Lake Brantley High School.

While there were no team standings, the Greyhounds won six individual championships while claiming nine of the top 28 places, including both first and second at 103 and 112 pounds.

Leading Lyman were 140-pounder Bill Gore and 189-pounder Nick Popeck. Gore, who pinned Deltona's Carlos Rivera in 2:30 in their title match, was named the tournament's Outstanding Lightweight. Popeck, the tournament's Outstanding Heavyweight, declared John Moss of Pierson-Taylor 10-3 for his championship.

In Lyman's two "Intrasquad" contests, Joe Flores scored a 19-7 major decision over teammate Peter Whittington for the 103-pound crown. At 112 pounds, Joe Gause pinned fellow Greyhound John Sullivan in 3:17.

Also winning championships for Lyman were 152-pounder Ed Peretto and 171-pounder John Delk. Peretto declared Oviedo's Mike Willingham 10-3 in their championship contest. Delk pinned Scott Doherty, also of Oviedo, at 1:59 of their final.

Lake Mary was the only other Seminole County school to win any championships. Brad Harris pinned teammate Mike Faulkner in 1:00 at 135 pounds. At 160 pounds, Jason Dembkowski pinned Lyman's Andrew Hebert in 1:11. Ronel Jump stuck Lake Brantley's James Dorton in 2:55 for the crown at 220 pounds.

Student scorekeepers in unenviable position

Where do I begin?

Last Thursday night at Lake Mary High School, the Lake Mary and Lake Howell girls' basketball teams battled for first place in the Seminole Athletic Conference.

Until we get to the district tournament finals and/or beyond, it was the biggest game of the season, a pair of 20-win teams battling for local bragging rights.

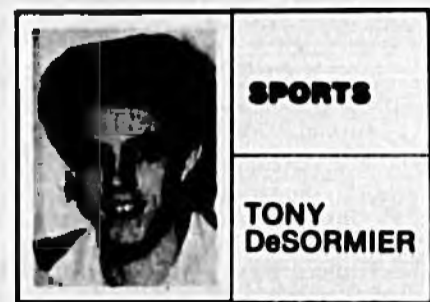

Sadly, the circumstances surrounding the game left much to be desired.

There were disagreements on who scored how many points, who made or didn't make a three-point field goal, and who did or didn't foul out, casting an ugly shadow of suspected improprieties.

In any sport, the highest compliment an official can aspire to is anonymity, to do a job so well as to not be noticed. And that means those individuals keeping the scorebooks and running the time clock as well as those running up and down the floor with whistles in their mouths.

What some fans may not realize is that other than the time remaining on the clock, the scoreboard has no official capacity in the execution of a game whatsoever. It's there strictly for informative purposes.

The official record of a game is awful lot — perhaps too much — of teenagers when we ask them to put aside their loyalty to their school and classmates, especially when a championship is on the line. This is not to suggest that anyone would cheat, but attention to detail suffers when a scorer is caught up in the game.

SPORTS

That's the reason why there's no cheering in the pressbox.

The problem with addressing this situation is that there's no easy answer. A teacher or administrator serving as the official scorer would (should) bring a degree of emotional maturity to the task. But if such an individual were available, you'd assume that he or she would have stepped forward by now.

I've long been the supporter of having officiating organizations offer trained individuals to work as official scorers and clock operators. However, with schools already having to pay two officials $33 each (according to the Florida High School Activities Association By Laws), it doesn't seem likely that anyone's going to be willing to pay two more individuals.

That brings us back to students who are willing to do the job gratis.

What can be done to improve the situation? Several things:

1. Officials have to communicate more clearly, more specifically with those students who are serving as scorers. Don't just flash calls on the run. It's worth the extra few seconds to make sure the correct information is relayed.

2. Both teams should have their scorekeepers sitting side by side at the scorer's table (although that didn't help last Thursday at Lake Mary), constantly crosschecking each other and making sure there are no problems.

3. If there is a problem, bring it to the officials' attention immediately. Don't debate the matter with the game in progress, waiting for the next stoppage in play to get a clarification.

4. The schools should create space around the scorer's table (when seating allows). It's difficult enough to do the job without having fans screaming from the row directly behind you. Keep friends, managers, and other statistics keepers away from the bench. The less distractions, the better.

5. And everybody — coaches, referees, parents, fans, administrators, and sports editors — remember that these are students who are doing a difficult job without recompense. They're there in support of their school, a virtue that demands respect.

Proper pruning is necessary

Know what you are doing before cutting into trees

The best pruning cut is flush with the bark, right? Coating the cut surface of a branch with tree or wound paint will keep out damaging moisture and disease, right? Research has shown that both of these widely-held beliefs are wrong!

GARDENING
TRICIA THOMAS

Once a limb dies or has been removed, the bark quickly grows over to close the wound, a process called callusing. After a few seasons all that is visible is a dimple or some ridges on the bark, and most people assume that all is well. But behind that bark, there is always decay — no matter what pruning was like. Some decay is inevitable, but trees have a remarkable way of restricting its spread by compartmentalizing or walling off the decay.

Trees create a protective barrier around an injury, walling it off from adjacent wood. It does this through complex biochemical changes in the wood that are still not completely understood. These changes arise from a special kind of tissue in a slight ridge around the base of every limb. This slightly swollen area is called the branch collar.

When a limb is lost, the exposed wood begins to decay. But decay is prevented from spreading farther inward by the wall created by the branch collar. Flush cutting often removes at least a part of the branch collar. If that happens, there will be a gap in the decay-resistant compartment. Bacteria and fungi can proceed deeper into the tree. The tree will work to create new protective layers and compartmentalize the decay. But the larger barrier zone makes a weaker trunk more prone to break. A lot of flush-cut pruning can actually kill a tree, because it forces the tree to expend too much energy walling-off the injuries.

Proper pruning, then, means cutting off branches as close as possible to the branch collar without injuring it. Before starting the pruning cut, locate the branch collar — look for the wrinkled area near the trunk, the area will appear slightly swollen. This is called the branch bark ridge and it's your guide to proper pruning. When pruning, place the saw out in front of the ridge and cut downward and slightly outward — at an angle. If you're cutting a heavy limb, you should first make an undercut several inches out from the base of the limb. Otherwise, it will tear the bark as it falls from the tree.

A traditional pruning manual would next instruct you to apply a wound dressing.

Experimental results have shown that tree paints do nothing to prevent decay. In fact, when applied heavily, they can increase decay. If you must camouflage a stark-looking cut, apply a very thin coat — do not use house paint and keep in mind that painting wounds is only cosmetic!

Correct and regular pruning is one of the best things that we can do for our trees. Maintenance pruning should be done at least once a year to remove all weak, damaged or dead branches. The best time to do maintenance pruning is late winter before new growth begins. The exception is citrus, which should be pruned in the spring and summer.

When a tree is injured by nature or your lawn mower — the wound should be immediately cleaned by removing the ragged or torn bark. Take a sharp knife and carefully trace around the wound in the shape of an ellipse. Do not point the ends! This action discourages insects and disease by removing their hiding places and stimulates the tree to begin the healing process.

The importance of proper pruning cannot be overstated. It's incredible how many trees succumb to insects and disease, and even die, due to improper pruning. Trees have been misunderstood and mistreated for centuries, fortunately current research has us back on the right path. For more information on proper pruning, call me at the Agriculture Center at 323-2500 ext. 8558.

Relative insulted over thank-you note

DEAR ABBY: Following the funeral of a close relative, I received a store-bought printed card bearing this poem:

"Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
"or sat quietly on a chair,
"Perhaps you spoke the kindest words
"As any friend could say,
"Perhaps you were not there at all,
"but thought of us that day,
"Whatever you did to console our hearts,
"We thank you so much for whatever the part." (signed) The Entire Jones Family (not their real name).

Abby, this is the most insulting card I have ever received! Not only was I there, I traveled through two states to get there. I also sent a costly floral arrangement and paid for my own lodging.

What a rude message: We don't know whether you made it to the funeral or not — perhaps you weren't even there, but just thought of us instead. I am furious! This stupid message was supposed to be a "thank-you" from the entire Jones family. Abby, the entire Jones family numbers close to 100 people. Believe me, after this, I am not going to speak to any of them. Am I wrong?

ONE OF THE FAMILY
DEAR ONE: Please don't be hasty in your judgment. In all probability, the person who selected the card did not read the message carefully before sending it. This can easily happen in times of stress.

Don't analyze the message; the intent was to thank you for your presence and this lovely floral piece. Overlook the inappropriate poem. Life is too short to be critical when the intentions are good.

DEAR ABBY: On Christmas morning, I found a lost Labrador retriever who was wearing a choke chain and a length of rope. Since the animal shelter could not pick him up until the 26th, I drove around asking people if they recognized him, and posted "Lost Dog" signs with his description. The dog wound up spending the night and was picked up by the shelter the next day.

My husband, who is normally a loving and sensitive man, was irate with me — claiming that it was "mean" to lock up the dog in our fenced yard. Rather, he said, we should have let the dog loose to find its way home.

My fears were that the dog would not know how to get home, and/or be run over trying. Anyway, my husband was an adamant in his stance as I in mine. We would like your opinion, please.

SAN DIEGO DOG LOVER
DEAR DOG LOVER: Since the dog had no license or ID on its choke chain it could have been dumped in your neighborhood by someone who had stolen him or who no longer wanted him. You did the compassionate thing by keeping the dog safely secure while you tried to find the owner. Tell your husband Abby says it's time to bury this bone of contention!

DEAR ABBY: I was appalled to read your letter from the hotel desk clerk. I have been in the hotel business for 18 years, working for the Sheraton Corp., where we are committed to guest satisfaction. I am a trainer these days for all the employees who come to work for our hotel, and we try to stress that if you don't like to serve people, you are in the wrong business!

If this desk clerk whose letter you published came to work for us, I would soon be advising him (or her) to seek some other line of work. Abby, I sure wish you could share with us what hotel resort this "friendly" person was from so we could all avoid that hotel like the plague.

HAPPY TO OBLIGE OUR GUESTS IN OREGON
DEAR HAPPY: Suffice to say — it wasn't a Sheraton!

Wegener's granulomatosis treated with chemotherapy

DEAR DR. GOTT: Two years ago I was diagnosed with Wegener's granulomatosis. I underwent chemotherapy for six months and it went into remission, yet my tests now show a 1:80 reading. Please provide information on this disease.

DEAR READER: Wegener's granulomatosis, an uncommon condition, is marked by multiple areas of inflammation in the upper respiratory tract, lungs and kidneys. Although the cause is unknown, the disease is classified as a disorder of connective tissue, meaning that the body may have turned against its own normal tissues.

Early symptoms include severe nosebleeds, ear and sinus infections, cough, pleurisy, fever, weight loss, and malaise. Later, the inflamed lesions become more widespread, to involve the skin, brain and kidneys, eventually leading to anemia and renal failure.

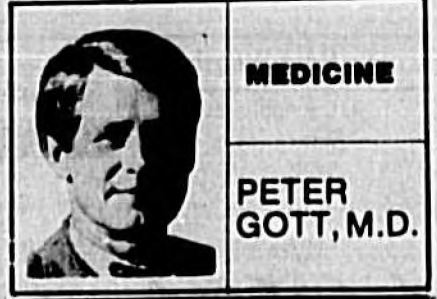

The diagnosis is made by biopsy.

Left untreated, Wegener's granulomatosis is invariably fatal. However, survival has been remarkably improved in the past few years, using chemotherapy (such as cyclophosphamide) and cortisone. Despite the side effects of therapy, such as hair loss and bone marrow poisoning, long-term remission can be achieved. The patient's progress is often monitored by a blood test that measures antibodies to neutrophilic cytoplasmic proteins, a substance that is customarily elevated in the disease.

Judging from your question, you have received appropriate therapy for this serious affliction. The blood test of "1:80" could indicate that additional treatment is warranted, however. Ask your doctor about this.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on a similar disorder of connective tissue.

"Lupus: The Great Imitator." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In a British publication, Tom Scott described New Zealand thus: "Terrible tragedy in the South Seas. Three million people trapped alive!"

In my experience, New Zealanders don't agree with this view. The country's isolation is more a plus than a minus. Even though it takes a major expedition to reach most other countries, the residents do manage it. And there aren't hordes of tourists ruining the country's unique beauty.

An unusually large percentage of the population are enthusiastic bridge players. Today's deal was declared by Malcolm Mayer, many times a Kiwi international.

When a weak hand with a couple of useful nuggets faces a powerhouse, often a natural system struggles. My suggested auction isn't intended to be perfect, but six hearts is the ideal spot. (The original auction was totally artificial.) After winning with dummy's club ace, Mayer cashed the A-K of hearts, preparing to claim. But when East discarded, he had to regroup. Mayer unblocked dummy's A-K of spades, ruffed a club in hand and cashed the Q-J of spades, carefully discarding diamonds from the dummy.

Next came a low diamond. As it couldn't benefit West to ruff declarer's loser, he threw a club. Mayer ruffed another club to get back to hand, now having won the first 10 tricks.

Dummy had the heart six and A-9 of diamonds. Declarer held the heart queen and 7-5 of diamonds. West retained the spade 10 and J-8 of hearts. When South led a diamond, West was held to one trick.

HOROSCOPE

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Feb. 9, 1993

If you have prepared yourself properly, the knowledge and experience you've acquired could lead to a coveted advancement in your field of endeavor in the year ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It might be difficult for you to distinguish between positive or wishful thinking today. One assures success, the other invites disappointment. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Think twice today before putting additional funds into an investment that so far has been rather sour. It's time for you to seriously review this entire situation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be cooperative today, but don't make concessions for the sake of efficiency. Restructuring a deal could weaken it for both you and the other guy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Duties and responsibilities will not take care of themselves today, although you might be inclined to believe they will. Whatever you neglect today could be more difficult to do later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Romance must be handled in a compassionate, considerate manner today. If not, you may do something that could severely hurt the one you love.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The harder you try to impress others today, the less effective you're apt to be. If you want to make a good, lasting impression, be both natural and sincere.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Give praise where it is merited today, but don't use flattery for purposes of manipulation. Others will perceive your intentions and not like them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you are a prudent and careful shopper, but today you could be knowingly extravagant and pay more for something than it is really worth.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Guard against inclinations today to prejudge people whom you do not know too well. Give everyone the benefit of the doubt, and don't tag them with labels they don't deserve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to be a nice person today, you might take on an assignment another should be handling on his or her own. You could wind up being used instead of appreciated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be very mindful of your behavior today, because your social image is a trifle more fragile than usual. If you do something distasteful, it could become the topic of gossip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It won't be what you say today that will make a good impression on others, it will be what you do. Performance, and not personality, will be graded.
