Gasoline Prices Down And Still Falling

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

With the price for regular down to $1.00 at least one Seminole County self-service station, area dealers agree the bottom price is not yet in sight.

Large supplies and a drop in demand have resulted in a buyer's market for the dealers, it's war.

The 76 Station at U.S. Highway 17-92 and State Road 436 in Casselberry was advertising regular gasoline this week for $1.00 and unleaded at $1.10. Strickland's Sunoco Station at State Road 434 and U.S. Highway 17-92 has dropped its price to $1.02 for regular and $1.06 for unleaded.

Prices are also competitive on the other three corners of the State Road 434 and U.S. 17-92 intersection in Lungwood. Texaco is advertising regular for $1.03 and unleaded is $1.10, regular for $1.04 and unleaded for $1.10. Exxon regular is $1.04, unleaded is $1.12.

It's clear that the continued drop in the price of crude oil now reflected on the wholesale level and at the gas pump is good news to motorists.

Those who heat their homes with oil have also benefited not only from lower prices, but the unusually warm winter that eliminated the need for heating except for a few days so far this winter.

Earl Higginbotham, Sanford distributor and jobber for Chevron petroleum products, said that since Nov. 25 wholesale gas prices have dropped 6 cents a gallon for regular, unleaded and diesel fuel.

Business was off 27 percent in 1982 compared to the previous year, Higginbotham said. Reasons for this include broader use of smaller cars, and motorists being more conservation-mindful because of the economy and the energy crisis.

The OPEC countries stepped up their standard of living and now people are using less gasoline. They have to sell more crude to maintain their same income, but in order to do that they have to reduce the price," Higginbotham said.

"We are not as dependent on them anymore as we were back in 1973 as we have located extra oil fields in this country," he observed. "Look for the price to keep coming down. Everyone has an over supply and they have to get rid of it."

"The price of heating oil has dropped 6 cents a gallon, too. My tanks are full of heating fuel and nobody is buying because of the warm winter," Higginbotham added.

"Prices are still falling," said Mel Dekle, owner of Dekle's Gas at 101 S. French Ave. in Sanford. "There is a gas glut because they have more crude oil than they can sell." Self-service regular at his Dekle's station sells for $1.04.

December marked the fifth straight month that Florida gasoline prices had recorded a price decline, according to the AAA Clubs of Florida Fuel Gauge report. Price drops have been most apparent at the self-service pump where regular dropped an average of 1.8 cents per gallon and unleaded 1.3 cents statewide in a month.

Since July, self-service regular has declined by 6.7 cents per gallon and unleaded by 5.7 cents, according to the AAA report.

Gasoline prices at the pump nationwide have declined nearly 10 cents a gallon during the past year, according to oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg, who credits the drop in part to an unexpected decline in the demand for unleaded fuel.

In 1978, dealers sold more gasoline than ever before—115.4 billion gallons—but 1982 ended with an estimated 102.5 billion gallons.

The publisher of the Lundberg Letter said the average pump prices may continue to decline because some of the characteristics of the 1982 gasoline market may be just beginning to exert themselves.

Lundberg, who surveys 18,000 gasoline stations in all 50 states each month, said the average price of all types of gasoline is currently $1.22 per gallon, compared to more than $1.31 a year ago.

The Florida AAA survey revealed average gasoline prices in the Orlando area area as follows: full service-regular in December $1.35 as compared to $1.35 in November; unleaded, December, $1.42 as compared to $1.42 in November; self-service-regular, $1.13 in December as compared to $1.15 in November; unleaded, $1.22 in December as compared to $1.25 in November.

In a spot check of area service stations, prices for regular (self-service) ranged from $1.00 to $1.27. Prices for unleaded ranged from $1.08 to $1.34.

Here are some of the area prices:

The Highway Oil station at 2425 S. French Ave., Sanford, is a full-service station and prices are $1.04 for regular; $1.11 for unleaded; and $1.159 for diesel.

At Williams & Son Amoco U.S. 17-92 and Lake Mary Boulevard, self-service prices are $1.088 for regular and $1.177 for unleaded; full-service, $1.355 for regular and $1.448 for unleaded. Sanford Exxon, 2990 S. Sanford Ave., sells self-service gas at $1.11 for regular and $1.17 for unleaded; full-service prices are $1.21 for regular and $1.27 for unleaded.

Have gas prices ended their steady upward march of the last decade? As measured by the Department of Energy in key urban areas, the average price dropped even lower at the end of the third quarter of 1982.

Martin Luther King Day To Be Observed

Seminole County schools will observe Martin Luther King Day on Friday.

Most of the activities will be classroom assignments, with students assigned to do special projects relating to the life of the slain civil rights leader.

At Sanford's Crooms High School, special reports will be given in civics classes, Jean Jones said.

At Midway Elementary School, plans still are being developed for a King Day observance.

District-wide special announcements will be read at each of the 42 schools, commemorating the life of the civil rights leader. The special announcements will discuss King's life and the strides made by black students since the beginning of the civil rights movement in the 1950s.

School Superintendent Robert Hughes said America has moved closer to fulfilling the goal of providing an equal opportunity for an outstanding education to every child.

"In 1950, only 10 percent of America's black students were graduated from high school. In 1977, 78 percent of our black students graduated from high school, and that number continues to grow."

King's birthday is January 15.

State prison officials want the power to force local governments to accept the construction of prisons in their areas. But...

Do You Want A Prison In Your Neighborhood?

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn says she supports a plan to give the state power to locate prisons within the counties over the objections of local officials.

Related story on Page 2A.

Mrs. Glenn said the proposal, suggested by State Department of Corrections officials, may be a good idea.

"I think they're probably right," Mrs. Glenn said. "I have served on state corrections committees and observed the problems you have in locating prisons."

Dr. Pam Davis, a deputy corrections secretary, said the department cannot eliminate the state's severe prison overcrowding problem as long as local governments can use their zoning power to veto plans to locate prisons in their area.

Ms. Davis said the corrections department will often select a site for a prison, be ready to work out a deal with property owners, and then find the county government refuses to zone the property for a prison.

The DOC plan would give the department the power to force local governments to

Blind Date For Seminole Dispatcher Ends In Death

By VICTOR ASSERSOHN
Herald Staff Writer

For the past 17 months of her life, Seminole County sheriff's dispatcher Vicki Petticrew had worked sending deputies to aid those in need. Early Friday morning, the roles were reversed, and Ms. Petticrew, out on a blind date, became the one needing help. But it came too late and she was later found dead in a car parked outside a Sanford nightspot.

She and her male companion, Michael Barabas, also a police dispatcher who worked for the Altamonte Springs Police department, had been drinking at The Barn, U.S. Highway 17-92 and 13th Street, on Thursday night and had fallen asleep in a car Ms. Petticrew had borrowed from a friend while hers was being repaired.

Barabas, according to paramedics, woke up to find his companion dead and called the Sanford Fire Department.

Fireman Paul Keith helped take the dead woman, a divorced mother of two, from an older green Chevy Nova.

"The woman was in the driver's seat. The man was out by the road waving us in. He said that he had shaken the woman to wake her up. There were no fumes in the car and the windows were shut," Keith said.

Police theorize that Barabas and Ms. Petticrew, who lived at 583 Blue Springs Court in Orange City, had been drinking at The Barn. When the bar closed at 2 a.m., she apparently went out to the car, started the engine to keep warm and was asphyxiated by carbon monoxide.

Parents Of Hooky-Playing Kids May Soon Find Themselves In Court

Who is the missing student? About 5 percent of Seminole County's 36,000 students miss school each day. But which of them are really ill and which ones are playing hooky? That's the problem that faces the school district's attendance officers.

Playing hooky from school is practically an American tradition. So much so that few parents get bent out of shape if their kids cut class now and then.

But state education officials don't see it that way and plan to attack the problem by making parents more responsible for their truant children.

Don Croyle, a Seminole County attendance officer for 13 years, thinks the idea will work, but he's reserving judgment until a final plan has been drawn up.

"One of the quickest ways to solve the truancy problem is to make the parents as responsible as the children," Croyle said.

But Croyle said under the current system, the program would be too unwieldy. "If they would bring the whole ball of wax under the Circuit Courts it would be more efficient."

He explained that under current state laws, non-attendance by children is handled by the Circuit Courts, negligence by their parents is the responsibility of the various county courts.

But there's a problem with that set-up.

"It's the time element," Croyle said. "We need to shorten the time between the act and the hearing." Juvenile Court appearances can be arranged in about 10 days. But by the time hearings are scheduled in county court it can be months before any action is taken.

Croyle believes the courts can play an important role in forcing the parents to acknowledge their responsibility to send their children to school.

"Guardians must attend the hearings but the binding is on the kid," he said. "Suing the parent could force the parent to say 'I can't handle him.' If parents would admit they can't handle their children we'd give them a ton of help."

The court is the last resort, Croyle said.

For most truants, a conference is sufficient. Of the 200 referrals Croyle received in the first three months of this school year, none were taken to court.

"For most of the children, talk is enough. As long as they know where you're coming from you don't have any problems," he said.

Croyle's method is direct. He lays it on the line. If the child continues to miss school they will go to court.

"But there's a question of credibility. I don't blow smoke. If I catch them again we go to court," he said.

If a conference doesn't work, then Croyle accumulates all the information available on the student from school records.

"If I have to go past counseling, I find out all there is to know about the kid," he said. "I know when he spits last."

In court, if Croyle proves the child is truant, the judge orders the child to attend school. If he doesn't attend school the child is in contempt and can be locked up for up to 6 months.

"In 70 to 80 percent of the cases, the first court appearance solves the problem," Croyle said. Of the remaining 30 percent, 70 percent of those respond when they receive the contempt citation.

For the remaining few, truancy is chronic, perhaps unresolvable.

"Usually, the kid is already in trouble with the law," he said. "He's out on the street much of the time, possibly involved with drugs or alcohol."

For those students, suspension or expulsion may be the only answer to the problem.

But Croyle prefers not to dwell on the suspended students or even the ones he takes to court. Those students are very few, he said.

"No one ever hears anything about the work we do with kids, keeping them in school and out of trouble," Croyle said.

It is those kids that he feels a reward in helping. But he added that help is available for any child that needs it. The important thing is parent cooperation: Parents must contact the schools if they need help, Croyle said.

He said the schools can provide all sorts of assistance to the children if administrators are aware of problems. Counseling for children with emotional problems, drug addiction or learning disabilities, free lunches, medical care, dental work, eye glasses and other essential aid can be provided, Croyle said.

IN BRIEF

Abortion Clinic Owner Charged With Manslaughter

MIAMI (UPI) — The owner of a clinic where four women have died after undergoing abortions during the past four years has been arrested and charged with manslaughter.

Hipolito Barreiro, 53, who is not licensed to practice in the state of Florida, surrendered Friday at the State Attorney's Office. He was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Shirley Payne, 33, on Tuesday.

Barreiro, the owner of the Women's Care Center in Miami, is accused of asking a licensed physician to take the blame for Payne's abortion.

In addition to manslaughter, he is charged with practicing medicine without a license, tampering with a witness, performing an abortion without a license and performing an abortion without a license that resulted in death.

Pulitzer Fight Drags On

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — Confronted by a myriad of post-trial wranglings in the jet-set Pulitzer divorce, a judge told lawyers for the publishing heir and his ex-wife he won't help decide how to divide the household furnishings.

Attorneys for Roxanne and Herbert "Peter" Pulitzer told Circuit Judge Carl Harper they were sharply divided over who should get which tables, chairs, other furniture and personal effects. They asked Harper to intervene, but he refused.

Attorneys for Mrs. Pulitzer say she will appeal Harper's Dec. 28 decision to take the couple's children away from her and deny her a substantial portion of Pulitzer's millions. They filed a motion for retrial Friday, a preliminary step to appealing. Harper did not rule on the retrial motion.

Heiress Killer Convicted

TAVARES (UPI) — J.B. "Pig" Parker has become the third of four young black Fort Pierce fruit pickers to be found guilty in Evinrude heiress Frances Julia Slater's robbery-abduction and murder, which netted the robbers $134.

Two others, John Earl Bush and Alfonso Cave, already have been convicted and sentenced to die in the electric chair. A fourth, Terry Wayne Johnson, goes on trial in April.

An all-white circuit court jury convicted Parker, 20, of first-degree murder, armed robbery and kidnapping in the stabbing and shooting death of the 18-year-old all-night convenience store clerk. Jurors deliberated only two hours before convicting Parker.

IN BRIEF

NATO Urged To Accept Non-Aggression Pact

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Kremlin said the Warsaw Pact's non-aggression proposal offers NATO a chance to stem the arms race and welcomed the fact the United States has not dismissed it out of hand.

The proposal adopted at the Warsaw Pact summit in Prague this week calls for members of the West and East-Bloc alliances to pledge they would not use nuclear or conventional weapons to attack each other.

The Reagan administration's response to the Prague document pointed out the United States has long subscribed to the principle of non-aggression. A State Department spokesman said the proposal did not seem new.

The Kremlin statement Friday and the Prague document appeared to form part of an East Bloc effort to sway public opinion in Western Europe against the planned deployment later this year of 572 U.S.-made Pershing-2 and cruise missiles.

Tripoli Truce Reported

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Opposing warlords in Tripoli have drafted a compromise plan, sources say, to try to end a week of artillery, rocket and mortar duels that has left 25,000 people homeless and 93 dead in Lebanon's second largest city.

A government source in Beirut said warring pro- and anti-Syrian factions prepared a draft for an overall truce in a meeting late Friday, but Syrian approval still was required.

The truce reportedly calls for the withdrawal of all pro-Syrian fighters from the city in exchange for a pledge by Lebanese nationalists to drop a demand for the withdrawal of Syrian army troops from the area. That would be left to the central government in Beirut to request at a future date.

Appeal Considered In Case Affecting 122 Death Row Inmates

ATLANTA (UPI) — The attorney for a Florida man whose death penalty appeal was rejected by the 11th District Court of Appeal — removing a legal barrier that could affect more than 100 condemned inmates — said Friday he will decide in a few days whether to appeal the decision.

Laurin Wollan, attorney for convicted killer Alvin Bernard Ford, 29, said late Friday he had not yet seen the court's ruling and would wait a few days to read the opinion before deciding whether to appeal.

Wollan said he won't see the ruling until next week. Until then, he won't know how it will affect another 122 Death Row inmates who, like Ford, claim in a class-action suit the Florida Supreme Court unfairly considered their psychological profiles when deciding whether to spare them.

The appeals court ruled that use of the profiles was not unconstitutional even though defense lawyers never had a chance to respond to the profiles, clearly they or challenge them.

But even if the court completely rejects that contention, it is not likely to result in a sudden spree of executions, said Wollan, a Florida State University law professor.

$275,000 More Is Needed To Do Job

State Allocates Too Little For East Road

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The $225,000 allocated by the Florida Legislature to improve East Road—the entrance to Seminole Community College—is not nearly enough money to do the job.

Lake Mary City Manager Phil Kubles reported to the City Commission Thursday night, that the road, which lies within the city's bounds, will cost a total of $500,000 to improve and expand sufficiently to alleviate the bottleneck which occurs there at peak hours.

Kubles said that he and other officials met with state Department of Transportation officers Thursday to consider the problem. Kubles said the DOT expects it will cost

$100,000 to purchase the necessary right-of-way to widen the entrance road off U.S. Highway 17-92, some $385,000 to build the road and install a traffic signal on 17-92, and another $15,000 "to pay for goofs which DOT may make in the process."

Attending the meeting with Kubles were Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson, Seminole County Engineer Bill Bush, county Public Works Director Jack Schuder, County Commissioner Bob Sturm, R.T. Milwee, assistant to SCC President Earl Weldon, and DOT personnel.

The entrance road when completed will be 80 feet wide with a 15 foot median strip. The additional right-of-way which must be acquired includes 20 feet along the road's western boundary and 10 feet along the eastern boundary, Kubles said.

Commissioner Ray Fox objected to the entire project, saying he doesn't think "spending $500,000 on the road is the greatest thing since sliced bread."

Kubles however, pointed out that SCC now has 23,000 registered students, adding that traffic waiting to turn left off 17-92 onto the SCC campus, stretches for blocks during peak hours.

Kubles also said the expansion plans for the road include an area for bike-riding students from 17-92.

Lake Mary Commissioner Burt Perinchief, said there are two big problems at SCC—the traffic patterns on the campus itself and the dangerous situation at 17-92 at East Road. "It's difficult to get north bound traffic on 17-92 across the highway to East Road," he said.

Perinchief said the college has never had an expert survey done on the traffic pattern on the campus, noting that Lake Mary Police Chief Harry Benson offered to help with a traffic study at one point but his offer was ignored.

Although the college campus is within the boundaries of the city of Sanford, East Road is a Lake Mary street and that's why the city is involved, Kubles said.

'Economy Will Get Better'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan worked and relaxed at Camp David today after putting out a rosy forecast the long-awaited economic recovery will begin in the second half of the year.

Admittedly seeking to counter "gloom and doom" reports of slow economic growth this year, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters Friday:

"We expect this third and fourth quarter — the latter half of 1983 — to begin the recovery and the period of sustained growth we anticipate through the end of the forecasting period."

During testimony to congressional committees on the 1983 budget last year, administration officials predicted the economic recovery would begin in the spring of 1982, then the summer, and finally the fall.

Speakes said the housing and auto industries already were making "a strong recovery" and improvements were "unprecedented" in some areas. He also cited the drop in interest rates and the rise in the stock market as indications the U.S. was emerging from its deepest recession since the Great Depression.

Streetman Named To GOP Board

Fred Streetman Jr. of Longwood has been elected to represent the fifth Congressional District on the executive board of the Republican Party of Florida.

Streetman has served two terms as the GOP state committeeman for Seminole County, is past chairman of the county's party and a former member of the National Republican Platform Committee.

President and owner of a surgical supply company, Streetman serves on two Seminole County advisory committees, is a member of the U.S. Small Business Administration Advisory Council and was a delegate to the governor's Conference on Small Business. He is a board member and past president of the Seminole County Youth Sports Association.

Streetman said the most pressing business before the state Republican Party is adoption of a new constitution and rules.

"One of my personal interests is to assist in achieving some changes in our state party which will help our candidates throughout the state achieve the degree of election successes we have enjoyed in Seminole County and Central Florida," Streetman said.

OUR READERS WRITE Phone Sales People Are Not Appreciated

Is there any way to stop Sandy, Margaret, Carol, Debbie, Mary Lou, Elizabeth and etc.? They all sell aluminum siding over the telephone and I don't want any? In fact I hate aluminum siding when the phone gets me out of the bath tub, out of a sound sleep or makes me miss the weather report on television.

I know my house is sadly in need of repairs but I've decided to let it fall down. I'm afraid of being "ripped off". One of my favorite columnists, with whom I often disagree, says when we get ripped off it is due to our "stupidity". I think it's due to "ignorance".

There are so many areas where I am ignorant: how to fix an air conditioner, cranky plumbing, a lawn mower, car or television or screen doors.

And when I read so much about contractors who cheat on school roofs so kids stay drier in the ancient grammar school on Seventh Street than in the new schools, and hear that the new city jail needs a new roof.

Then I remember the young man who checked my air conditioner. He stood on the ground, looked up at the air conditioner which is just under the roof, and pronounced it in "good condition". He gave me a bill for twenty-two dollars.

(A friend had borrowed his ladder!) I haven't any faith.

Do you suppose other people, too, have lost faith and are letting their homes go without repairs? Could it have something to do with our sick economy? In a democracy we are all responsible for the decay of our country. Every inferior job we do wastes natural resources and makes our country poorer.

When I was a little girl I lived in a house that was then one hundred years old. I am a "senior citizen" yet I'm told that tough old house is still standing. Why do condominiums fall down before they are finished? Greedy contractors and lazy laborers.

No 'Free' Money When Taxes Involved

On Monday, Jan. 3, 1983, the Evening Herald published on the front page a story regarding Seminole County and its cities' loss of over 2 million dollars due to proposed death of federal revenue sharing.

City Managers Knowles of Sanford and Etchberger of Altamonte Springs suggest intense lobbying of our congressmen and senators to keep these funds coming. Certainly these learned gentlemen know where this money comes from. It is not free money; in fact, it is very expensive money. A former congressman and a former senator told me that taxpayers' money sent to Washington and returned to the States lost a minimum of 25 percent in the transaction.

We have our own locally elected officials. They should shoulder the burden and responsibility of raising the money needed to properly finance the operations of their entities. This would also keep the taxpayers in closer touch with local officials.

We all complain about high governmental deficits. The constant pressure applied to Congress for "free" money is largely the reason for those deficits.

Economy Hurting Program

Social Security System Sound

Q. Some of my friends say Social Security is paying for much more than was intended by its original architects. They say it has become the world's biggest welfare program—with new benefits being added as if there were no tomorrow—and that's why it's in big trouble today. Is this true?

A. In a word, "no." Social Security's problems stem from the decline of our economy and from rising unemployment and the failure of payroll taxes, which finance the system, to keep up with the cost-of-living, to which benefits are linked. What really needs reform are our economic policies and not the Social Security system itself.

Spouse and survivors' insurance were added to old-age benefits in the Social Security system by 1939 amendments, disability insurance was added in 1956, and hospital insurance (Medicare) was added in 1965. The present cost of the old age and survivors' insurance program (which includes spouse and survivor benefits) is almost exactly the same—9.3 percent of payroll—as it was estimated to be in 1935 when the system was created. Two separate taxes and trust funds were established for the disability-insurance programs, both of which are self-financing.

Growing Older

The addition of survivor and disability benefits simply rounded out the package of protection in a manner consistent with insurance principles. Because there is a much smaller probability that disability or survivor claims will arise before age 65 than there is the probability of a person reaching retirement age and receiving those benefits, there is more real "insurance" in these benefits than in retirement benefits.

The Social Security Administration also operates the Supplemental Security Income program for the elderly, blind and disabled poor, but the funds for SSI come completely from general revenues, not Social Security trust funds. Other programs included in the Social Security Act, such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children, are administered by agencies other than SSA.

The idea that Social Security has become a "Christmas tree" of benefits is truly a misconception. While we must deal with the system's fiscal problems, we should not be deluded as to their source.

Q. My father-in-law is always receiving offerings through the mail for some strange product or literature. He has serious arthritis problems, and last week some "health company" sent him a pamphlet offering a cure—for a price. It isn't just the potential waste of money that bothers me. It's the false hopes that are raised by this "miraculous" cure. Someone should put a stop to this robbery through the mails.

A. Someone has. New legislation to combat mail fraud was recently passed by the Congress. The law will give the U.S. Postal Service new powers to move quickly against suspected mail racketeers. This action is of particular significance to the elderly because older citizens are the group most often victimized by mail fraud schemes.

While the elderly comprise 11 percent of the population, they represent 30 percent of all mail fraud victims.

Many older Americans who are retired, living on fixed incomes, or in ill health, are deeply affected by advertisements offering glowing work-at-home opportunities or new "miracle" cures, and many have been cheated of their life savings. That is why this legislation is of such significance.

The Mail Order Consumer Fraud Protection law gives the U.S. Postal Service subpoena authority which will enable the service to demand an advertised product immediately upon payment, rather than waiting months for a distributor to send it. This means the product can be tested quickly and lets the Postal Service get out of the "catch-22" trap which has limited its investigative impact.

With the new authority, the Postal Service will have much quicker access to the products and information it needs, to show that fraud may be taking place, and that further investigation is called for. The law also has safeguards against any misuse of the new powers.

Soviet Secret Police (KGB) Marks 65th Anniversary

By CHRISTOPHER C. HARMON
(Editor's Note: Christopher Harmon is a student at Claremont Graduate School, specializing in the Soviet Union.)

Because Lenin believed that "The courts must not be terror, but must formulate the motives underlying it (and) legalize it as a principle," he created the Soviet secret police 65 years ago this month on Dec. 20, 1917. Once called the Cheka, and now known as the KGB, the organization has had many names throughout its history. It has known only one purpose, however: to act as the "Sword and Shield" of the Communist Party of the USSR.

The Cheka, or "All-Russian Extraordinary Commission for Combating Counter-Revolution, Speculation, and Sabotage," began as an investigative agency charged to search out deviant communists. It was swiftly transformed into a secret police force with innumerable duties and few discernible restraints. Feliks Dzerzhinsky, the agency's first director, laid down his policy: "We stand for organized terror," he declared. Under his direction, the first 200,000 "official" executions occurred; hundreds of thousands of other Russians disappeared into the first Soviet Gulag Archipelagoes, where uprisings cost 300,000 more lives.

Already by March 1921, Petrograd sailors the naval forces which had helped instigate the Revolution four years earlier issued a manifesto declaring communism to have "brought the workers, instead of freedom, an ever-present fear of being dragged into the torture chambers of the Cheka, which exceeds by many times in its horrors the gendarmic administration of the Czarist regime." And yet the Leninist-Dzerzhinsky regime was to appear almost mild by contrast with that of Stalin and Beria which succeeded it.

Dzerzhinsky Square, two blocks from the Kremlin, is the site of KGB headquarters. The building is not marked; everyone knows what it is. There is a new statue of Dzerzhinsky, raised by Khrushchev, who, if he closed some of Stalin's concentration camps and executed Stalin's chief of secret police, Beria, nonetheless pledged to "strengthen in every way revolutionary vigilance and the organ of state security." He renamed the agency the "Committee for State Security," or KGB, but still called its personnel "our Chekists." He brought the reorganized KGB more within the control of the Party, and gave it more funding as well as new, international dimensions.

The Brezhnev legacy was one of explosive growth. And it was under Brezhnev's eye that Yuri Andropov and his lieutenants made their steady advance into positions of government and party power. No KGB chief since Stalin's Beria had even been a Politburo member; Andropov became one in 1973. The next year he received the Order of Lenin for his "direct and active part in working out and implementing the home and foreign policies of our party and the Soviet state." Since 1977, KGB personnel have been winning the highest kinds of government and party positions and honors. The KGB chief of the Azerbaijan sector, Geydar Aliyev, had not even been part of the Politburo; suddenly he is First Deputy Premier, the possible successor to Premier Tikhonov. The promotion of KGB head Andropov to general secretary of the Communist Party upon Brezhnev's death was, of course, without any precedent in Soviet history.

The new KGB chief is a 64-year-old Ukrainian, Vitaly Fedorchuk. He commands perhaps 90,000 staff of officers, some 2-300,000 specially armed border troops, and tens of thousands of other paid informants and agents. If he has a budget, it is virtually unlimited. And government, party, and army organizations provide logistical and other support free.

The "Chief Directorates" conduct foreign operations, border control, and routine and special operations against the Soviet population, foreigners, and tourists. The KGB works closely with, and oversees, the GRU, or military intelligence service of the Red Army General Staff. KGB officers staff the armed forces at every echelon down to the company level. They wear military uniforms, but report through their own chain of command, and can disobey military orders. KGB sub-divisions and special departments protect all Party members and their families, maintain the ruling elite's communications, oversee finance and probe economic crimes, monitor and control domestic sentiment, maintain archives and special technical laboratories, and, in entities like the Serbsky Institute for Forensic Psychiatry in Moscow, pioneer the use of medicine for malevolent political purposes. The "Fifth Chief Directorate," formed in 1970, combats expressions of religious and nationalist feeling, political dissidence, and intellectual and artistic independence. There are special departments in some field offices for "Jewish Affairs."

During the last few years, this national and international apparatus has crushed a nascent Soviet peace movement with arrests and psychiatric treatment, while funneling large sums into the same kind of movements in the West, and spending millions on "peace" front organizations based in Moscow, Sophia and Prague. It has arrested the last of the founders of "Smot" a free trade union movement in the USSR, while leading and paying for union strikes in Portugal, New Zealand and Costa Rica. It has brought to heel the last members of the "Helinski Watch" committee on human rights, even as it built up a new gulag for 100,000 political prisoners, many of them women, for construction of the new pipeline. It regularly dispatches KGB and GRU "scientists" to pose at, and politicize, international scientific conventions; yet at least two legitimate Soviet scientists were kidnapped by the KGB from an Austrian U.N. agency when their loyalties became suspect.

Other recent operations include firing upon a Ukrainian crowd protesting poor food and health conditions in factories, kidnapping an Afghan Ambassador to Czechoslovakia off the streets of Prague, the use of Aeroflot and other personnel to influence ETA terrorists in Spain and southern France, the theft of thousands of classified military documents from our NATO allies and from the Government Accounting Agency in Washington D.C., and giving guerrilla training, directly or through the P.L.O. to "neo-Nazi" terrorists from Western European countries.

But the most masterful of the KGB's operations has been its careful construction of the intelligence and "active measures" networks in its satellite countries. In wartime, Stalin's secret police cooperated with the Gestapo to identify and liquidate the most democratic of the resistance leaders in Poland and Czechoslovakia. Since the war, Eastern Europeans have been taken to special Soviet intelligence schools, where each national group is kept separate from the others, and all are studied, tested, and sometimes co-opted by the Soviet "uncles." By dominating each satellite's intelligence apparatus as it dominates their governments, Moscow has added a parallel network to its own, allowing more intense activities within the Bloc and expanded international operations. The East German service, for example, is directed by Misha Wolf, an Andropov protégé. East Germany maintains between eight and ten thousand agents in Western Germany, helps the KGB handle the Palestinian guerrillas, including Fatah's internal security unit, and polices the police in Ethiopia, Angola and Mozambique.

Czech intelligence agents, serving Cuba at Castro's request between 1959 and 1961, helped to prepare Cuba for the eventual and complete surrender of its own DGI service to the KGB's control. Czechoslovakia has been a refuge for Italian terrorists since the 1940s, and Karlovy Vary and other training centers routinely serve the Red Brigades. Secret service operations against Czech emigres on French soil earned a formal protest from Francois Mitterand this January. Even the supposedly "maverick" and "independent" Romanians were recently discovered to be conducting widespread KGB espionage operations from their embassy in Washington D.C.

The KGB must be taken seriously. Recently England's Royal Academy voted to retain as one of its own Anthony Blunt, a confessed and convicted Soviet spy. Deriding those who sought Blunt's expulsion from the Academy, historian A.J.P. Taylor said: "It was just like McCarthy in America all over again."

He was wrong. The KGB is a potent organization threatening in a deadly way not only people under Soviet rule but Westerners as well. It is not McCarthyism to take action against those who hid it.

Lenin believed that "the scientific concept of dictatorship means neither more nor less than unlimited power resting directly on force." Until such time as the USSR is ruled by popular consent, it will continue to be ruled by force and by fear. These are the only means of persuasion "our Chekists" have ever known.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Rush-Hampton To Offer New Tabletop Air System

In response to consumer demand, Rush-Hampton Industries will introduce a promotional tabletop air treatment system at the Housewares Show later this month in Chicago.

For the first time retailers will be able to offer consumers an Ecologizer system at a price point well under $15 when coupled with a $3 factory rebate. Model 0705, which cleans the air in rooms up to 2000 cubic feet, contains the CA-90 advanced scientific formula filter, which sets all Ecologizer systems apart.

Ecologizer systems with the unique CA-90 formula remove household and tobacco smoke odors and harmful gases such as hydrogen sulfide, ammonia, and formaldehyde from indoor air.

"We're not sacrificing quality," said Murray Craig, Vice President of Marketing. "Ecologizer systems are based on years of scientific research, and model 0705 is no different. We are offering the consumer a quality product at a price that's more than competitive. We expect consumer response to be excellent."

Rush-Hampton Industries is a leader in the development of air and water treatment systems, as well as other environmentally related products.

Mama Jean Native Daughter Has A Long History Of Doing Real Nice Things

By LORI DREW
Special to the Herald

A child who lives with laughter learns to be happy. And a grandchild who gets a double dose earns a degree. The next step is spreading it around — and Jean McLain does it at her day care center and preschool on South Elm Avenue in Sanford.

Fifty-two-year-old Mrs. McLain owns and operates Krayola Kollege and is considered by many to be a grandmother to all. So the surname goes, and the preferred "Mama Jean" is fondly emitted from the mouths of "her children" and adult friends as well.

"Mama Jean does so many really fine things for people," said Jackie Caolo, who formerly taught water safety to Krayola Kollege attendees. "You'd think each one of those children was her grandchild."

Mrs. McLain admits to caring for each one as though he or she were her own. And she believes her love for working with children stems from the "really close family" atmosphere she grew up in. "My grandparents were real special to me," she adds. "I guess I just want these kids to have the opportunities I got and gave to my (two) children. "Do we have fun here?" said Mama Jean to one bright-eyed youngster. Just a smile and a slow, shy nod came back.

What child would not have fun in a day care center with Mama Jean to lead them in a rhythm band, in song, to the parks and to the lakes for fishing? She even leads them in prayer and then takes them in her van to look for a public nativity scene of which, by the way, there were none displayed in Sanford this past Christmas, according to Mrs. McLain and her companions).

"I don't want to be a sitting service," she said. "I believe that every day, these children should learn something."

The 2-year-olds through the 11-year-olds learn inside and outside the small schoolhouse converted from Mrs. McLain's old home. Some of the more than 40 enrolled children attend preschool from 9 a.m. till noon.

Others come after their grade school classes. Still others are brought by working mothers in the wee hours of the morning when Mama Jean opens Krayola Kollege at 6:30. All get a taste of "home-away-from home sweet home-away-from home."

But it is not merely the children who receive the love and patience and understanding Mama Jean practices. She is apt to find jobs for people she hardly knows in addition to offering help to perfect strangers.

"I was down and out and I needed a job," said Irma Wilson. "Mama Jean took me in. I think she's just the sweetest, nicest person I've ever worked for."

Mrs. Caola also opined. "Mama Jean has a long history of doing real, real nice things. She never runs out of energy."

Mrs. McLain was born and raised in Sanford, but that does not limit her good deeds to local residents. "When they started bringing refugees over, I asked the minister, doctor and everyone if they knew of any such family in the area. I wanted to help them," said Mrs. McLain. "Well they didn't know of anyone."

Then one day approximately seven years ago, she noticed an Oriental-looking family in a department store.

After following the father, mother and two children around the store, Mama Jean said she finally walked up and said, "I'd like to help your children."

The Vietnamese mother and her youngsters then began visiting Mrs. McLain at the school, and soon thereafter, at no charge, she taught them English and the American customs.

"It was the happiest, funniest and most loving experience I've ever had," said Mama Jean about her adopted Vietnamese family. It's an obvious personal satisfaction that she obtains from giving. And the giving doesn't stop. "I've always had one child on scholarship at all times." And high school students who once spent their childhood days with Mama Jean come back not only to say hello, but also to look for a small part-time job. A generous Mama Jean says she's happy to oblige. "It is a help. It gives them a job and responsibility."

She looks at her own responsibilities to the children and to herself, and in her roles as wife, mother, grandmother, director of Krayola Kollege and friend, Mrs. McLain says she tries to live by "the golden rule."

"Do you know what the golden rule is, Chris?" she asked her eldest of four grandsons. "It's to do unto others as you . . . would have them do unto you," the sixth grader responded with only slight hesitation.

"If everyone lived by the golden rule, it wouldn't be a bad world," Mama Jean said.

"There are kids who would never go on a train if we didn't take them," added the woman who has been in the preschool and day care business for 22 years. It is not unusual for a group of 30 children, decked in Krayola Kollege T-shirts, to be seen riding the "Liberty Train" or at the Central Florida Zoo or even at the Altamonte Mall at Christmas time, sitting upon Santa's lap, including a jolly Mama Jean.

"I love the children to have experiences," she said. "I knew a 6-year-old. She had never seen the ocean. So I took her."

It is perhaps that sort of attitude which makes current and prior students of Mama Jean's call out on the street to her. And Mrs. McLain admits, "I don't ever go to the movies when someone doesn't say, 'Heh Mama Jean!'"

The day care center has thus far survived seven years, and according to Mama Jean, there's no end in sight to the caring. "I love it!"

But one dream has yet to be fulfilled for the woman who ran for Sanford city commissioner four years ago because she feels the town officials "need a woman's viewpoint." She lost that race, coming in third out of seven. But she says she has no idea how the next battle for her dream will turn out.

Her dream is for a swimming pool at the house-like day care center. And it was spurred by recent state legislation requiring children at day care centers to swim only at certified pools, Mrs. McLain explained. Mrs. Caolo's pool, where, in past summers, Krayola Kollege attendees learned the fundamentals, is not certified by the state, according to the director. "So now these children don't have a place to swim. There is no public pool in Sanford."

Mrs. McLain persists, "There are so many lakes, ditches and ponds in Florida, every child should know basic water safety." So my dream is to have a swimming pool here so these kids would have the opportunity to learn how to swim. It could save their lives."

Meanwhile, there's always the movies and fishing and ceramics and skating every week to keep "her children" and her happy. "There's a lot of laughing around here," said Mama Jean.

There is still hope for the children living with laughter that they may grow up happy. As for Mama Jean, she says, "It keeps me young."

Lt. Col. James M. Moye III, 42, is congratulated by his wife Kathy at promotion ceremonies. Born in Sanford, Moye has lived all over the world during his military career and is the recipient of numerous medals.

Sanford's Son Moye Ends 25-Year Army Career With No Regrets

More than three decades ago, this Sanford boy was "just an average kid around the neighborhood."

Helen Moye of Sanford, now believes her son is very special—especially after one bachelor's degree, three children, at least four foreign country tours, promotions equivalent to 13 pay grades and 25 years of faithful service to the United States Army.

James M. Moye III, a Sanford native who now lives with his wife and three sons in El Paso, Texas, recently retired from the military as a lieutenant colonel at the age of 42, his sister Miriam Jenkins explained.

"Daddy came to Sanford in 1906 when he was 6 years old," said Mrs. Jenkins. "The whole family from daddy on down graduated from Seminole High School."

An obviously sentimental family concerned with tradition was not upset when their eldest son of four children decided to join the Army after high school rather than follow in his father's footsteps.

"His daddy was a railroad engineer with Seaboard coastline. This used to be a big railroad town," said Mrs. Moye. "We were happy he joined the Army. (At that time,) he hadn't made up his mind what he wanted to do."

Young Moye still had not made up his mind after his first hitch as an enlisted man. His sister remembers his separation from the service. "Jimmy found the job market not that great, so he re-enlisted and went to OCS (Officer Candidate School). And Mrs. Moye recalls him saying, "Mother, I can get an education right where I am."

The lieutenant colonel received his bachelor's degree in administration with financial assistance from the Army. "The Army put him all the way through college," said Mrs. Moye. "He received a lot of education (while serving the Army), and he really loved it."

It was after graduation from OCS in Fort Sill, Okla., 18 years ago that Moye married his wife, Kathy. But the West Coast of the United States was not the only travel opportunities this military family was afforded.

"He has lived all over the world," said his mother. Moye was stationed in Germany, Korea, Greenland and Vietnam in addition to several stateside locations in his 25 years of active duty.

Yet, his sister explained, at each station, Moye's responsibilities evolved around defense missile systems. "So much of his work was classified," his mother interjected. "So we didn't really know the specifics."

Whatever his duties entailed, Moye must have performed them well, as he was awarded several medals, including two Bronze Stars, the Legion of Merit and "quite a few" Meritorious Service Medals, according to Mrs. Jenkins.

Letters From Home Ease Loneliness Of Servicemen

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, you urged your readers to write to the lonesome servicemen in Korea, and you gave an address for those who wanted to initiate a correspondence.

Well, I just wanted you to know that I wrote, and yesterday I received a wonderful response from a staff sergeant stationed six miles south of the DMZ in Korea. I hope to build a long and mutually happy relationship with my newfound pen pal!

Please run that address again. It's a great feeling to be able to raise the morale of our service people so far away from home. Too many of us don't realize how much a letter can brighten the day of a soldier stationed at a remote place in some foreign country.

Thanks so much for caring, Abby.

R. IN SUN VALLEY, CALIF.

DEAR H.L.: The address: Operation Dear Abby, c/o Commanding General U.S. 8th Army, APO San Francisco, Calif. 96311

P.S. And don't forget there are women in the service, too!

DEAR ABBY: I've kept silent long enough, and now I must comment on a nosy neighbor who thought a grieving widower should wait a year — the official mourning period — before dating.

My mother passed away, and six weeks later my father invited a lonely widow out to dinner. My father loved my mother dearly, but upon losing her, the loneliness and depression were too much for him to bear alone.

A person has his God, his family and his friends. But sometimes he needs someone to hold, to love and to keep him company.

I hope your readers will not judge too harshly widows and widowers who seemingly are "out and about" too soon.

It certainly beats staying home with a lump in your throat, looking at an empty armchair that stirs up sad memories.

AN UNDERSTANDING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Amen.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend, raised and married in the Catholic Church, and she's been divorced for six years. She has five children.

She is being married again — in the Catholic Church! I told her I understood that a divorced Catholic cannot get married in the church, and she told me that she had her marriage annulled, so as far as the church is concerned it never took place! Also, I thought that after five years a marriage cannot be annulled.

OK, so her marriage is erased, wiped out — it never happened — but what about her five children? They happened! So if her first marriage never took place, doesn't that make her children illegitimate?

PROTESTANT NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: No. The Catholic Church recognizes civil law, therefore the children are legitimate.

An annulment does not mean the marriage never took place. To annul means to nullify, repeal, cancel, to make void. And there's no time limit; a marriage of any duration can be annulled.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've seen everything — the preposterous idea of adding thank-you notes to the endorsement of checks sent as gifts in order to save the recipient the trouble of acknowledging them separately.

Abby, sometimes the endorsements on checks must be carefully examined for validation, routing and other reasons, which might be difficult if a message like "Thank you, Grandma, this will buy that neat sweater I've had my eye on" or a clever drawing is added.

Perhaps as the practice grows, our competitive, eager-to-please banks will have their checks printed with matching envelopes for thank-you messages!

OVERDRAWN IN SOUTH CAROLINA

If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38921, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

CIA To Sponsor Second Annual Florida Grand Prix

The weekend of Jan. 15 and 16, the Lake Mary Community Improvement Association (CIA) is sponsoring the second annual Florida State Grand Prix.

Over 250 drivers of all ages and go-karts from all over the country will compete in this exciting event. Over 90 trophies will be on hand to award to the winners.

There will be five races each afternoon with many of these go-karts reaching speeds in excess of 100 mph. On both days, driver practice and warm-up begins at 9 a.m., and competition racing starts no later than 11:15 a.m.

This event is taking place at the NCR building on Lake Emma Road with spectator stands erected in the parking lot.

The point 9 mile track extends around the building and out to Lake Emma Road.

Admission is free to spectators but to enter the pit area there is a $5.00 pit pass charge. According to CIA president Dick Fess, plenty of refreshments will be available including "the best barbecue in the area."

The volunteer firemen and police will be assisting, but more volunteers are needed to help in setting up the spectators stands and in getting the food service van ready.

Anyone wanting to help should attend a meeting at city hall, Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Also needed are advertisers, businesses or individuals to help in the funding by sponsoring the trophies and go-karts. The cost of sponsoring is $160.

All proceeds from this Grand Prix will go into the Lake Mary CIA Community Center and Emergency Shelter Building Fund. Last year the CIA raised over $4,000 and this year their goal is for more conversation to her brother in El Paso, where Moye and his family have decided to continue living, much like many retired Navy families have continued to reside in the once-"Navy town" of Sanford.

Moye completed his 25 years at Fort Bliss as Commander, First Battalion, Seventh ADA, and he began his new civilian career as an insurance agent with South Western Life Insurance, El Paso.

Why did he voluntarily end his Army career? "He received a great education. He's been all over the world," Mrs. Moye explains. "He's given the government 25 years of his life, and he says that's enough."

It was enough for Moye, yet, when asked if he would "do it all over again," he responded, "Sure would." Through his sister, the Sanford native could not say one Army experience was more memorable than another. "He's just impressed with the whole 25 years!"—LORI DREW Grady Kimsey, Jone's art instructor at Seminole Community College, will also be among the festival exhibitors. It was Grady who encouraged Jone to enter a festival application, she says.

Four Strings

Only four strings! But these four strings offer endless possibilities of tone and harmony.

And yet, improperly played, these four strings can bring forth unbelievable discord!

There are four strings in life—with similar possibilities. Mind... Character... Courage... Faith!

The truths that fill our minds, the ideals that mold our character, the purposes to which our courage is given, the realities in which we believe; these can fill our lives with rich beauty and happiness or drab ugliness and sorrow.

For centuries our churches and synagogues have been the maestro of these strings of life—helping men to bring from their own souls the harmony and beauty God has put there.

You can find music in everyday living through regular worship and prayer.

Mildred Bishop Retires As Church Secretary

Retiring after more than 27 years as church secretary at First United Methodist Church, Sanford, Mildred S. Bishop will be honored by members and friends at a retirement dinner and program this Sunday at the church beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Although she is retiring from the job she has held since July, 1955, she has plenty to look forward to. She is planning her wedding scheduled for Jan. 22 at 2 p.m. at First United Methodist Church with her former boss, the Rev. Leo King officiating. A widow, Mrs. Bishop will marry F. Hood Coker, a widower whom she met at the church. They will be leaving in May for North Carolina where they will spend the summer at Blowing Rock.

She joined the church in 1944 and taught Sunday School and was treasurer of the Women's Society before becoming church secretary. The Rev. Milton Wyatt was pastor when she took the job. Since then she has worked with the following ministers: John P. Adams, T.C. Osteen, Eugene Rutland Sr., Robert M. Jenkins, James Ulmer, Julius Byers and Leo King as well as their associates, Scott Harris, Brett Sanford, and Richard Vitolo. The job included being secretary to the pastor and the church, financial secretary, receptionist and "general flunky," she said. "It has meant so much to me and I have made so many lasting friendships with the people of the church," said Mrs. Bishop. "I appreciate the thoughtfulness of all the members."

A resident of Sanford since the 20s, Mrs. Bishop worked in the auditing office of the Mayfair Hotel for four seasons prior to going to work at the church. A native Floridian, she was born in Ocala. She has one son, Tommy, of Lawrenceville, Ga.

"Mildred has served very effectively as church secretary," said the Rev. King, "and has been able to handle all kinds of work from receptionist to administrative work. She is well loved by all of our people."

Peace Essays Judged

Four central Floridians will judge essays in the fifth annual Peace Essay contest, sponsored by the Orlando Religious Society of Friends (Quakers), which is offered to senior high school students in Orange and Seminole counties.

Judges are the following: Kevin Burke, of Orlando, who has a B.A. degree in humanities from Rollins College. He is active in St. Mary Margaret Catholic church and is involved with the Central Florida Nuclear Freeze campaign.

Georgine (Mrs. Thomas) Mickler, of Chuluota, is associated with her husband in Mickler's Floridians, specializing in books and information about the state.

Dr. John Burnside, of Winter Park, is a native Floridian who is a consultant and writer on matters of solar energy and is active in the Florida Solar Coalition.

James G. Sherwood is a partner in Commercial Services, Inc., of Winter Park. He is a writer on peace subjects and active in the Florida Nuclear Freeze campaign. He is also a trustee of the Orlando Friends Meeting.

Cash prizes in the 1982 Peace Essay contest will be awarded on Saturday, Jan. 22, in the Friends Meeting House, 318 E. Marks St., Orlando during Peace Day activities.

In Church Growth

Length Of Pastor's Stay Is A Factor

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer
The Methodist system of pastoral appointments may have to be changed if the denomination wants to see increased evangelism and church growth, according to an evangelism leader.

Rev. George G. (Chuck) Hunter, evangelism executive with the denomination's Board of Discipleship, said the present system of pastoral appointments — which originated with John Wesley 200 years ago — "sometimes functions as an unconscious growth obstruction."

"Church growth research reports a very strong correlation between lengthy pastorates and congregational growth and development," Hunter told a recent meeting of the denomination's Council of Bishops.

"Specifically, years 5, 6 and 7 are the most likely to be growth years in the life history of a pastorate," he added.

But it is precisely in those years that, under the Methodist appointment system, ministers are frequently moved to another congregation.

"Whenever the appointment system is consciously used for objectives other than enabling the mission of congregations, there are tradeoffs," he said.

"For instance, where an appointment is used to 'give a promotion' ... or to 'solve a problem,' that can frustrate the mission of the congregation," he said. "The widespread use of salary as a determinant of 'who should go where' undoubtedly also has its tradeoffs."

Hunter also challenged the practice of ordaining clergy for life and said it was an obstacle to effective evangelism.

"Life tenure for all ordained clergy is a luxury that we can no longer afford," he told the 9.5 million-member denomination's bishops.

"Each conference (regional grouping of congregations) has some clergy persons who are devoid of the gifts and graces necessary to adequately lead congregations," he said.

While he said there were "fewer such clergy than one might think" those few are "very itinerant, and in a career span can half wreck half the congregations in a conference."

"Many of these churches do not recover their former strength within the next decade," he added.

LAYMEN OF THE YEAR

Dottie Head and Orville Touchton were honored by First United Methodist Church, Sanford, as the Lay Woman and Layman of the Year for 1982. Awards were presented by the Rev. Leo King, pastor. She has served as the director of Stewardship and Volunteer Office work and he is teacher of the Men's Bible Class and chaplain of the Methodist Men.

TO SPEAK

The Rev. Dan R. Callahan, national evangelist for the Church of God, will conduct revival services at Sanford Church of God, 801 W. 22nd St., Jan. 9-16 at 6 p.m. on Sunday and 7 p.m. weekdays. In the ministry for 22 years, he has served as district overseer, and on the state Evangelism and Youth and Christian Education Boards.

Methodists Plan District Rallies

The United Methodist Church's Florida Annual Conference will officially launch the intensive phase of the $8.5 million church Development Financial Campaign during the month of January with rallies in Orlando, DeLand and 10 other districts.

The DeLand District rally will be held Jan. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church, DeLand. The Orlando District churches will rally at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 20 at Asbury United Methodist Church, Maitland.

These rallies have been planned to provide motivation, information and a unifying enthusiasm for the leadership of local United Methodist Churches. Bishop Earl G. Hunt Jr., resident Bishop of the Florida Area, will keynote each of the rallies, and will, along with others, interpret the need and nature of the Church Development Financial Campaign. Assisting in each district will be the district superintendent, key lay people and the Rev. James Christie, of the General Board of Global Ministries, Director for the Campaign.

The goal for this campaign is to raise $8.5 million dollars over a three-year period for United Methodist church development purposes in the Florida Conference. The monies raised will be used for capital facilities only, including such areas as: launching new churches, assisting existing churches in strategic areas, church relocations, and church mergers and church redevelopment in areas with promise.

The Florida Conference made this commitment to church development at the Florida Annual Conference in May of 1982. Due to the fact that the population of Florida is increasing at the rate of 43.4 percent during 1970 through 1980, with an overall growth of 44 percent during the last 30 years, the projection is that Florida will continue to have an estimated 30.4 percent increase from 1980 through 1990. This means a population of nearly 14 million permanent residents by the end of the century.

The polls indicate that of these residents approximately 8 percent will claim United Methodist identity.

Religious Roots Of Vegetarians

One of the results of the recession is a change in our eating habits. Americans are eating more vegetables. Even the consumption of broccoli, the most unpopular of vegetables among children, is up.

Already before the recession, world food shortages were forcing many populations to switch from a heavy meat diet to vegetarianism. It has been pointed out that when grain is passed through the stomach of an animal and we eat the meat, it takes about eight acres to produce as much food as we could get from one acre if we ate the food directly.

The early vegetarians (in the 19th century) gave up meat on moral and religious grounds.

Didn't God say, "I give you all plants... and every tree-bearing fruit: They shall be yours for food?"

Didn't the book of Proverbs warn, "Be not among riotous eaters of flesh?"

Didn't St. Paul say, "Meat commandeth us not to God?"

Certainly economics and food shortages were not a factor in the vegetarian diet reform in the 19th Century. Just the opposite.

In those days a "cheap, abundant food supply and a robust habit of life sent our ancestors off on a gigantic gastronomic binge which knew no limits," says Gerald Carson in his book, "The Cornflake Crusade."

It tells the story of the food faddists — mostly clergymen and members of evangelical sects — who brought ready-to-eat breakfast foods into the American home.

Gluttony and the frying pan were ruining the American stomach. Even the poor expected to sit down to two or three major dishes at each meal.

Midday dinner consisted of two meats, gravies, pickles, vegetables, cheese and bread and butter, topped off by pudding or pie, "perhaps with fruit to fill in the chinks."

The 19th century man would have scorned the modern breakfast of orange juice, cereal, toast and coffee. He wanted two meats, bread and potatoes, salt and pepper, pickles, and sometimes eggs, toast, hot cakes, biscuits and butter.

"Overeating is killing twice as many as rum," said the Boston Moral Reformer in the 1830s.

The manner of eating was no more delicate than the quantity of food consumed. The American gentleman of the times ate with blinding speed, "shoveling his victuals in with his knife and afterward cleaning his teeth with his pocketknife."

Onto the scene now came Rev. Sylvester Graham, a Presbyterian clergyman remembered best for graham crackers. (Graham became the generic name for any coarsely ground wheat.)

Graham saw only one hope for mankind — "a spare diet and a course of vegetables." He recommended that food should be cool and chewed slowly and thoroughly with abundant salivation. Water was not to be drunk with meals.

By the 1890s the fashion in eating had switched to "wholegrain foods, cheerful meals, slow eating, occasional fasting and the cautious use of fats."

Sister Ellen White, a leading Seventh-day Adventist of the period, made vegetarianism a major tenet of the sect.

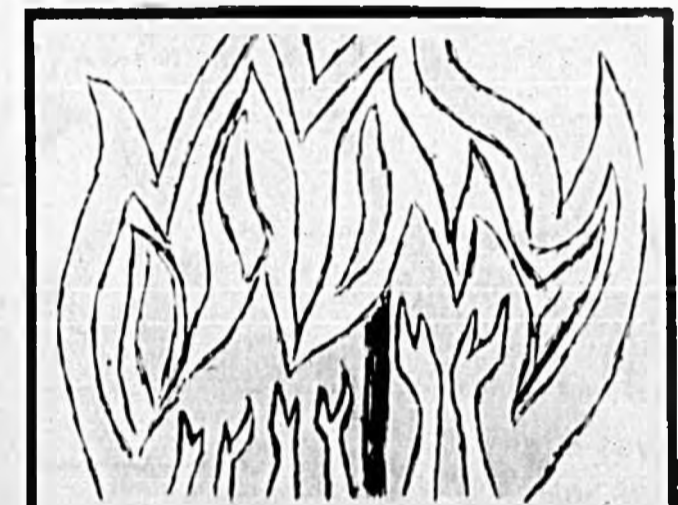

Vegetarians in history have included Socrates, Plato, da Vinci, Einstein, Mahatma Gandhi, John Milton and George Bernard Shaw. Shaw, who lived to be 94, became a vegetarian at the age of 25. He remained healthy throughout his life.

But the great Irish playwright was particular about his vegetables. He had his cook buy only the best and frequently put his chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce at her disposal so she could go into London to get an eggplant or imported pineapple that Shaw craved.

play and counterplay between experts can be most interesting even though an unimportant overtrick is all that is involved. South's four-spade contract is not in danger. The most he can lose will be two hearts and the king of spades.

Look at all the cards and you can see that South can drop West's singleton king and make five, but the percentage play favors taking the finesse and letting that king score on this occasion.

West led out the king and ace of hearts. East's normal play would be to signal by echoing with the five, then the three. Had he done so, West would lead a third heart. East would be unable to overruff dummy's 10.

Expert East saw that this would tell declarer that West held any missing trump honors so expert East played the three first.

West led a club at trick three. An ordinary declarer would win in dummy and take the spade finesse.

Expert South won in his own hand and ruffed his last heart. When East failed to ruff, declarer knew where the missing king was. He played the trump ace and dropped his majesty.
