School Officials Lobby To Head Off Vocational Cuts

Seminole County school officials are working to convince the state Legislature that their vocational programs are worth keeping.

A recent state report told the Department of Education and state legislators that too much emphasis is being placed on vocational education. The report recommended reducing the number of offerings and cutting expenditures for vocational programs.

But Betty Hogle, coordinator of vocational programs in Seminole County schools, said the programs offered here are "meeting the needs of the community."

She said about 10,000 of the district's 36,000 students participate in vocational programs. "There are some kids who stay in school just for the vocational programs," she said. "If you take away those programs the number of dropouts will increase."

The programs are beneficial to the students and to the community because they provide a training center for local employers, give students a job skill and turn students into taxpayers when they graduate, she said.

The drafting program at Seminole High School is one of the standout programs, she said.

That 2½-year-old program, taught by Bob Schmitt, has about an 80 percent placement ratio.

"My priority here is job placement," Schmitt explained. Many of his students have gone on to jobs at Southeast Video and Page Air Services of Florida in Orlando, Camp Dresser and McKee near Altamonte Springs and other businesses in the area.

Schmitt's program currently has about 50 students. Twenty-one students are in the Drafting I course, which meets one hour a day for a semester. Drafting II students are in class for two hours a day. Drafting III students are in class for two hours a day or work as interns or apprentices at various businesses.

For Ron Kidd, his internship at Page Air Services was the doorway to a $12,000-a-year job with the firm drawing designs for the interiors of airplanes. He recently helped with drawings for more than $20 million in renovations to a plane purchased by Jordan's King Hussein.

"I really don't know where I would be if I hadn't been in the class," Kidd said.

Students in Schmitt's class get hands-on experience drafting machinery, land use maps, automobiles and other things using computer equipment. The school has an Apple II computer with drawing capabilities—one of only two in central Florida schools.

Schmitt said the students all work at their own level. "They are encouraged to use their creativity," he said. "Creativity kills boredom. And while they may not be able to use it on their first job it will help them get that first job."

Seminole students also have the opportunity to receive training in auto mechanics.

Howard Butcher, who teaches the program, said he works with an advisory group of community businesses to determine the program taught to students.

'Hello, I'm A Computer...'

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

If you have a telephone, you probably have been interrupted on numerous occasions by annoying phone calls from solicitors who want to sell something, have a "valuable" gift to give away or want to ask questions.

Fed up with these human solicitors? Well, the next voice you hear may be a computer.

It takes some people a while to realize they are talking with a computer:

One computer caller making calls to area residents now reportedly uses the direct approach.

It opens a conversation with "Hello, I'm a computer." Then it asks if the person answering the phone is interested in earning extra money part-time at home.

If told "yes," the computer begins to get personal, wanting to know "How old are you?"

After receiving an answer, it then wants to know "Are you interested in making extra money and can you spare three to four hours a week from your home?"

If it receives a "yes," it asks for the person's current mailing address. If it doesn't receive an answer, the computer says "I'm sorry, I didn't understand you." Still if there is no answer the computer will close with, "I see, well that will be all for now."

A Longwood resident who reported receiving such a call from a computer which wanted to sell her aluminum siding said she hung up. "But the next time I'm just going to leave the phone off the hook. I understand that really ties them up."

Southern Bell and American Bell spokesmen said their companies do not produce or market these machines but only lease the lines either regular access lines or WATS lines.

The tape recorders or computers used as electronic salesmen are set up by individual companies, said American Bell spokesman Lee Carrier in Atlanta. Some larger firms set up their own computers, while others use a computer on a time share basis.

Both Carrier and Sanford Southern Bell Manager Larry Strickler admitted having received computerized calls and being just as annoyed as anyone else.

"Most operate with a WATS line using a computer to dial individual numbers. But they could order from 1 to 100 access lines depending on how many they need," Carrier said. "Most of the calls are long distance, so the WATS lines are cheaper. For instance, a company can set up in Atlanta and saturate the entire southeast. As long as they pay their phone bills the telephone company has no control over the operation."

The technology is fairly simple using automatic dialing equipment and multi-channel answering. They can dial 20 lines and have 20 recordings going simultaneously, Carrier said. It is a software program.

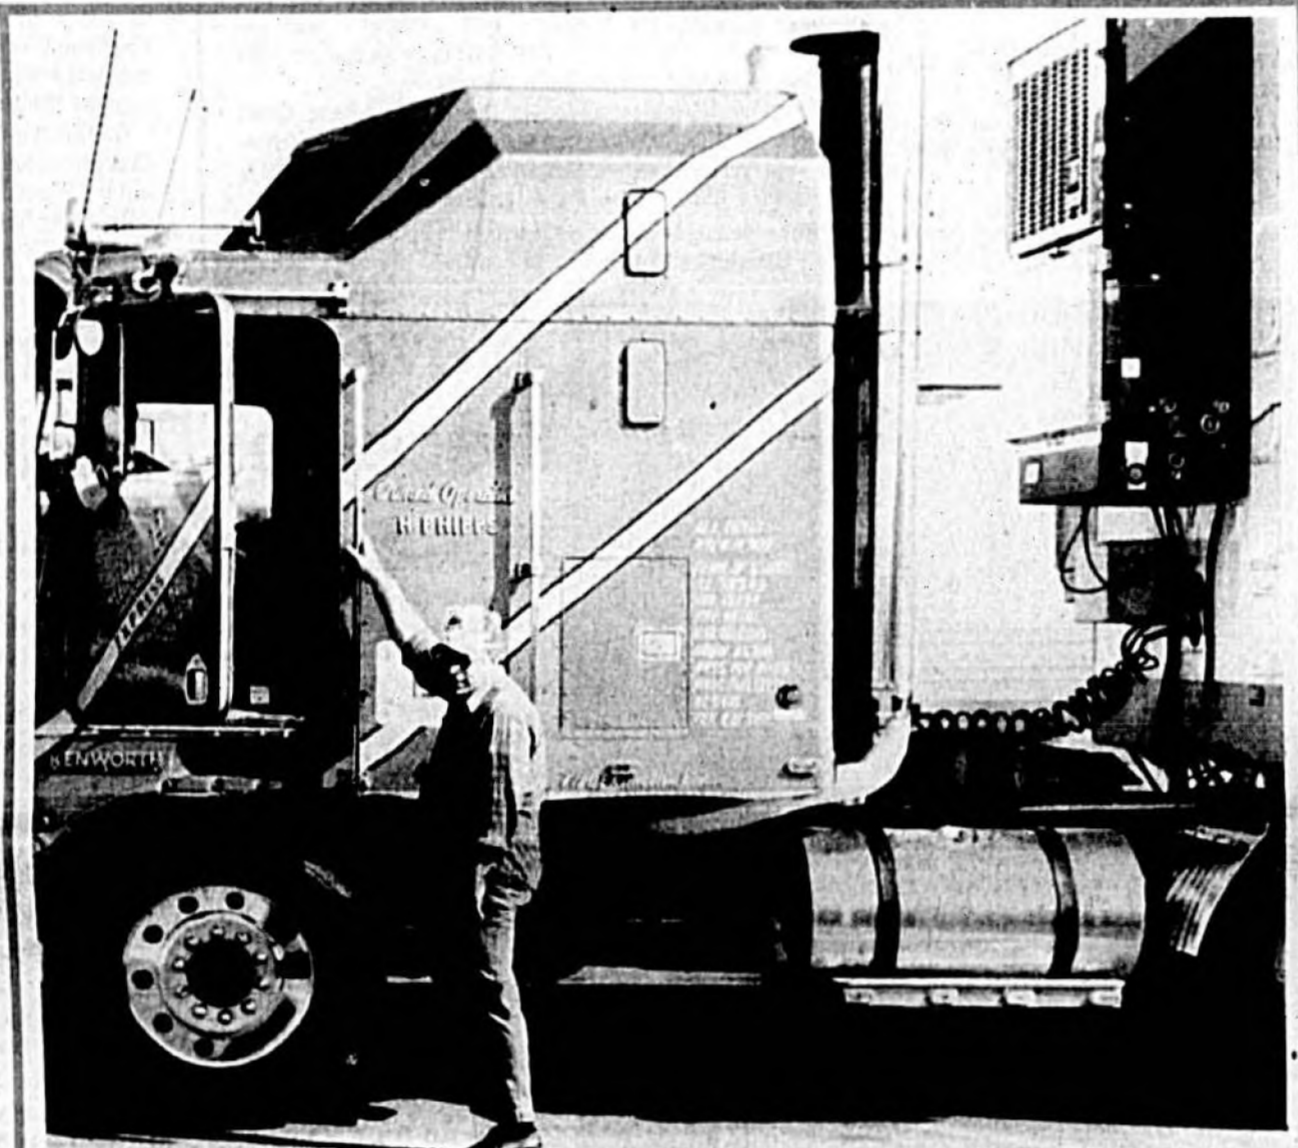

They purchase telephone numbers and demographic lists from companies, such as Time Magazine.

"If you ever order something and fill out a card, you get on a mailing list," Carrier said. "And the telephone company is one of the few firms where the information from customers is protected by law."

Carrier said there probably will be an increasing number of this computer-type solicitation.

From the demographic lists the computer can select persons in a certain financial or age bracket, persons with children, or specific interest groups.

Now, all you have to do is program your telephone answering device to converse with the computer and you won't have to be bothered with these unwanted "trash" calls.

Independent trucker Red Phipps says truckers are being caught between ever rising state and federal taxes and a proposed Jan. 31 truckers strike which could lead to violence and financial hardship.

Truckers Strike Gets Little Local Support

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer
(Second In A Two Part Series)

The Independent Truckers Association, a national organization, has called on its members to go on strike Jan. 31.

The purpose of the strike is to put pressure on Congress to repeal the five-cent gasoline hike tax scheduled to go into effect April 1, increases slated for 1984 in federal highway use taxes, and to nullify the 55 mile per hour speed limit.

But independent truckers from Seminole County say they won't go on strike, are indicating no support, although they sympathize with the intentions of the walkout.

And many out-of-state truckers who make hauls in and out of Seminole say they will park their trucks if a strike is called.

They don't think the strike will do any good. But they are afraid for themselves and their expensive equipment if they work during a strike.

Interviewed at the Sanford Farmer's Market, an independent trucker from Lake Mary said, "I don't know enough about the proposed strike to know what I will do." He added that a strike over rising fuel prices a decade ago did no good.

And a Sanford-based trucker said, "It ain't gonna do no good." Both men said they feared reprisals from brokers if their names were published, pointing out that they depend on brokers for work.

John Barrington of Altamonte Springs, an independent trucker for the past four years, said he has heard rumblings about a strike, but he believes striking is not a proper way to handle the problem.

"The only thing that will happen is a lot of poor truckers won't be able to pay for their equipment," Barrington said.

Barrington, who hauls tropical foliage from Seminole County to Texas, says he has an 1980 truck and refrigerated

Pay Raise

Lake Mary Workers Get Second Hike In A Month

Lake Mary's 20 city employees have gotten their second 4 percent across-the-board pay raise in a month.

Insisting to a man that they don't like across-the-board pay raises, City Commissioners nevertheless granted the increases retroactive to Oct. 1 by a 4-1 vote Thursday night.

In late December, the previous City Commission granted a 4 percent across-the-board raise, also retroactive to Oct. 1.

The cost of the combined raises is $21,500 annually.

Commissioner Ray Fox fought the increases, saying his colleagues were using up all the money designated in the budget for pay raises and rejecting any part of the $2,100 study on a pay scale, job classification and performance analysis recently completed by consultants, Long and Associates of Ft. Lauderdale.

Fox said that by using all the money budgeted for pay raises, the commission has foreordained that no more raises would be granted this fiscal year.

Earlier in the evening, commissioners listened for 35 minutes as company representative Donald Long explained the firm's proposal for judging employees' performances for annual merit increases.

Commissioner Russ Megonegal said he was disappointed with the Long report, noting he had requested data from the firm showing how it had arrived at various pay scales for individual employees. Although he was promised the data by Thursday, Long did not turn the promised information over to the City Commission.

Megonegal said although he is opposed to across-the-board pay raises, the resulting salaries would still be below the Long recommendations.

"By no means is this an end to the procedure (of bringing salaries up to an acceptable level)," Megonegal said, indicating that further salary adjustments would be forthcoming.

Fox said he was opposed to granting the increases now, saying across-the-board raises is the wrong way to go. He said it is hard to compare other communities with Lake Mary. Fox warned that with an ever declining tax base, the time is not far off when the city may not be able to pay employees what they want.

Long's 35-minute presentation on a method of judging employee performance was not well received by the commission. The criticism began when Long said he would be at City Hall Friday to talk with "key employees" about how the job performance analysis forms would be used.

Commissioner Burt Perinchief said Long was getting the "cart before the horse." He said that Long apparently intended to discuss with employees implementing a plan which had not yet been accepted by the commission.

Perinchief was especially offended about Long's continual use of the word "high achievers." He said as an educator, he has heard the term "until I feel like vomiting."

Perinchief said government seems to be leaning toward standardizing and pigeonholing without regard to people. "They are not all doers and creators," he said, adding that not all jobs allow creativity. "I've seen a lot of high achievers go down the tube because they cannot handle being a celebrity or competition."

Megonegal said he would like to read the Long report before considering action.

Meanwhile, Fox suggested that the commission, by "granting raises based on emotion," had set aside any possibility of considering a job classification and pay plan this year.

He suggested that the commission write Long and Associates a check for the pay classification plan and job performance analysis and ignore its recommendations. — DONNA ESTES

10 Years Ago

When America Marched Out Of Vietnam

By TOM TIEDE

Good evening. I have asked for this radio and television time tonight for the purpose of announcing that we today have concluded an agreement to end the war and bring peace with honor in Vietnam and Southeast Asia. — Richard Nixon, Jan. 23, 1973.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — And that's how it ended. Ten years ago. After decades of wretched destruction, at home as well as abroad, President Nixon took command of the airwaves to say that the longest and most frustrating conflict in U.S. history had come to a close with a stalemate.

More than 47,000 Americans had been killed. At least $148 billion had been spent.

Now, on Jan. 23, 1973, it was over.

It was not a day for merrymaking, however. The end was more a time for subdued relief than wild delight. Some people danced in the streets in Nauvoo, Ill., and motorists honked their horns on the highways, but, for the most part, the day they signed the peace treaty was almost routine.

At Fort Jackson, S.C., 300 people were too involved with bingo to watch the TV announcement. In Wayne, Mich., the city council voted not to watch the presentation. When a TV station in Chicago interrupted an all-star basketball game with the news, hundreds of irate viewers protested.

The mood was not surprising. The commander of the American Legion, Frank D'Amico, explained that there was "nothing to celebrate." He said the United States had been in Vietnam for more than 20 years, and all it had to show for it were fresh graves, world ridicule and a sundered population.

The 20 years began in 1950. Vietnam had already been at war for a decade, first with the Japanese who occupied the country during World War II, and then with the French who sought to regain control after 1945. The U.S. sent 35 military advisors in 1950 to aid the French effort.

And that's all there was to it for a while: a token U.S. involvement to help stop what the government said was a communist design on Indochina. Then, in 1959, two American advisors were killed in a terrorist attack, the U.S. contingent was increased to 685, and the escalation began.

In time Washington dispatched 10,000 men a week to take over the reins of a war that had started as a civil dispute. Altogether, more than 2 million GIs participated; they shot more bullets than any army had fired in history, and they dropped more bombs than were released in World War II.

Some of the bullets were fired at the innocent. In 1971, a nondescript Army lieutenant named William Calley was convicted by a military court of having ordered the murder of 22 civilians in the village of My Lai in 1968; he was sen-

Henry Kissinger and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho met privately for hours in January 1973 before reaching an agreement that ended the Vietnam War. For the Vietnamese, however, the fight continued.

IN BRIEF

El Salvador Certified For U.S. Military Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite admitted shortcomings, the administration has ignored outcries from human rights organizations and certified the government of El Salvador for continued U.S. military aid. The biennial certification required by law, will directly affect $25 million in military assistance funds. Additionally, it is an important symbol throughout Latin America of U.S. support for friendly governments.

Americas Watch and the American Civil Liberties Union said Thursday, "The State Department action showed contempt for the Congress by certifying a regime whose death squads commit 200 murders a month."

Baker To Leave Senate

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker will quit the Senate at the end of his current term, but is leaving the door open for a 1984 presidential bid if President Reagan does not run again.

If the president seeks another term, Baker said he would be interested in making the race in 1988 and, "I might even begin exploring the possibilities very actively" after 1984.

Baker said he intends to remain Senate Republican leader while completing the last two years of his term.

Student Planned Shooting

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—An eighth-grade boy who began firing a gun during study hall, killing one boy and seriously wounding another before killing himself, "knew exactly what he was doing" because he left a note detailing his plans, police say.

Investigators initially speculated David F. Lawler was firing at random when he pulled two handguns during a study hall at Parkway South Junior High Thursday in the unincorporated village of Manchester and began firing. Lawler and one boy were killed and another seriously wounded.

That theory changed when a three-page, handwritten suicide note was discovered Friday, tucked in one of Lawler's textbooks, detectives said.

Police refused to release the text of the note, but said it revealed Lawler planned to shoot two classmates and himself.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: A paralyzing winter storm lashed the ice-encrusted South with hurricane-force winds, freezing rain and 17 inches of snow, then churned north, coating roads from Texas to Illinois with a treacherous glaze and knocking out power to thousands. The ice and snowstorms have been blamed for at least 20 deaths since Tuesday—including five in Oklahoma. Hurricane-force winds knocked out power to hundreds of thousands in the South-most of them in Georgia, Alabama and the Carolinas. The weather caused scores of accidents and closed schools in hundreds of districts. Kentucky Gov. John Y. Brown gave state employees the day off rather than have them drive on a thick sheet of ice. Government offices also were closed in South Carolina and Georgia. More freezing rain and snow were forecast for Virginia and the Carolinas today. Seventeen inches of snow buried Lubbock, Texas, Friday. Two runways at Atlanta's Hartsfield Airport were closed due to ice and snow Friday when a landing Delta Air Lines plane turned too sharply and got stuck in the mud off the field's remaining open runway.

Schoettelkotte Is Certified As Army Secretary Civilian Aide

The U.S. Army recently conducted a special investiture ceremony for the new civilian aide to the secretary of the Army for Florida at the Citrus Club in Orlando. J. Wallace Schoettelkotte was presented a certificate of appointment from the secretary of the Army by Lt. Gen. Donald E. Rosenblum, commander of First U.S. Army, headquartered in Fort Meade, Md.

As a civilian aide, Schoettelkotte will interpret information about the Army's missions and objectives to the people of Florida and provide the community's point of view to Secretary John O. Marsh Jr., and other senior Army officials.

He also will advise commanders of the Army National Guard, the Army Reserve and the ROTC within the state. Civilian aides serve a two-year term without pay. They represent each state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Schoettelkotte, who has served in the U.S. Naval Air Reserve, is a graduate of Memphis State University.

A resident of Winter Park, he is chairman of the Seminole County Port Authority, chairman of the Seminole County Tourist Development Council and owner of several Holiday Inns.

Other affiliations include membership in the Sons of the American Revolution, the Military Order of the Stars and Bars, Sons of Confederate Veterans, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity. The civilian aides program was started after World War I. A group of citizens concerned with national defense, the Military Training Camps Association (MTCA), was promoting military training for civilians who could be called to active duty immediately in the event of war. In November 1922 Secretary of War John Weeks appointed some individuals from the MTCA to be Civilian Aides to the Secretary of War.

Originally the civilian aides consisted of a chief civilian aide and an aide from each corps area, each state and the District of Columbia. Each appointment was for a period of four years, and then, as now, the aides served without pay.

Since then the focus and structure of the program has changed. During World War II civilian aides were called upon to perform highly important and often confidential missions for the then Secretary of War.

Aides today are selected by and respond to the secretary of the Army.

J. Wallace Schoettelkotte of Winter Park receives his credentials as civilian aide to the secretary of the army from Lt. Gen. Donald E. Rosenblum, commander of First U.S. Army.

Abortion Ruling Decade Old

Anniversary Of 'Bloody Monday' Ruling Noted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An anti-abortion leader calls the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion a "bloody" decision that has cost the lives of more than 10 million "defenseless children."

But supporters of the Jan. 22, 1973, decision reaffirmed their belief in the decision Friday and said they would work to overturn restrictive laws that make it difficult for poor women to obtain abortions.

"The United States Supreme Court was wrong—dead wrong—when they ruled 10 years ago unborn babies are not deserving of legal protection," said Peter Gemma, Jr., executive director of the National Pro-life Political Action Committee, and anti-abortion lobby.

"Since that 'Bloody Monday' decision, more than 10 million defenseless children have been aborted in their mothers' womb," Gemma said in a statement.

He said the decade-old decision had generated a growing anti-abortion movement that could exercise increased power in Congress but warned "it may take another 10 years of political action, educational efforts and legal challenges before there is a complete turnaround of the 1973 abortion-on-demand Supreme Court rulings."

But a group of Roman Catholics who support the 1973 decision, Catholics for a Free Choice, pledged it will join others in seeking to overturn the restrictive gains the anti-abortion movement has made in the past.

"The central issue resolved in the 1973 Supreme Court decision was the constitutional right of all women—rich or poor—to choose abortion," said Frances Kissling, executive director of Catholics for a Free Choice.

"Public funding to enable poor women to obtain abortions is a clear issue of social and economic justice," she said, adding her group would seek to develop a grass-roots campaign urging Catholics to work for a restoration of public funding of abortions for the poor.

Anti-Abortion Bill Backed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Reagan has endorsed a bill to prohibit use of federal funds for abortions for the poor, bolstering activists who planned a march today to demonstrate unity in the divided right to life movement.

On the eve of the 10th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion, Reagan endorsed a bill introduced Jan. 6 by Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., that defines the beginning of life at conception and says the Supreme Court erred.

New Christian School Receives Zoning OK

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission has given its blessing to a request for a conditional use to permit the operation of a private Christian school in existing classrooms at the Church of God, 801 W. 2nd St.

The Rev. William Thompson, pastor said he plans to open the school with kindergarten through third grade classes in August.

And if demand develops, additional grades through the secondary level will be added in the future.

"Hopefully, we will start with 20 students per grade in each of the four levels, opening with 75 to 80 children," Thompson said.

"We have not progressed to the point where we know how much the tuition per child will be," he said.

"We will teach a traditional school with emphasis on Christian conduct and character. We will teach Christianity," he said.

In other business Thursday night, the commission granted conditional uses after public hearings on nine other requests. A conditional use is permitted under the city's zoning code with the approval of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The advisory board's decision is final unless someone wants to appeal to the City Commission.

Other conditional uses granted were:
 — A self-service gasoline pump to be located at the LJI' Champ Food store at 2990 S. Sanford Ave.
 — A church annex for the Church of Christ at 116 W. 16th St. The property is located west of the existing Church of Christ at 1512 W. 15th St.
 — A church for Freedom Assembly of God at 1515 W. 5th St. The property is on the southwest corner of 5th Street, across from Seminole Gardens Apartments.
 — A home occupation for an environmental consultant at 3291 Sanford Ave., Apartment 61, Sanford Court Apartments.
 — A home occupation for forestry servicing for telephone service and mail order at 1108 S. Myrtle Ave.
 — A home occupation for pressure cleaning business with telephone service only at 221 Tuskegee St., Academy Manor subdivision.
 — A home occupation with telephone service only for a Class B air conditioning contractor at 2411 Lake Ave.
 — A home occupation with telephone service only at Apartment 60, Master's Cove, 2744 Ridgewood Ave.
 — A home occupation telephone service only for a trim carpenter, Apartment 68, Master's Cove, 2748 Ridgewood Ave.

Site plans were also approved for a church for Freedom Assembly of God at 1515 W. 5th St.; a building for a Pizza Hut at 3852 Orlando Drive, east of Village Marketplace and south of Cumberland Farms; and an addition to the existing publisher's service bureau for storage at 1100 E. 25th St.

Dog's 'Credibility' Focus Of Murder Trial

Whether a tracking dog can follow a scent accurately enough to convict a man of murder is expected to be the focus of arguments when Juan Ramos' murder trial resumes Monday. Ramos, 26, is accused of brutally murdering Mary Sue Cobb, a Cocoa homemaker whose nude body was found stabbed 17 times, the knife still embedded in her chest.

One of Ramos' attorneys, public defender J.R. Russo Jr., asked to bar testimony from a dog handler whose German shepherd trailed Ramos based on the scent of the knife and Mrs. Cobb's blouse.

Prosecutors contend the tracking dog is a special "highly trained" breed with a keen sense of smell.

Russo contends the validity of the scenting test is too uncertain to be used as evidence. He said opinions of dog handlers who specialize in tracking vary regarding the amount of time a scent lasts and the best conditions for such tests.

Brevard Circuit Judge William Woodson admitted the dog handler's testimony, saying he will allow the jury to determine the credibility of the testimony.

A neighbor said she saw Ramos dashing from the area of the Cobb home April 27, the morning the 27-year-old housewife was killed. Testimony earlier in the week contradicted Ramos' statement that he went to work at 7 a.m. that day.

The trial recessed Friday after hair and fiber analyst David Jernigan testified a hair found on Cobb's body did not belong to Ramos or to any crime scene investigators. He said none of Ramos' hair was found at the Cobb home.

Lack of Ramos' hair at the crime scene is a significant part of his defense. Ramos has maintained his innocence since he was indicted in June. His attorneys contend he was singled out by police and that detectives failed to fully investigate other suspects.

They also claim the case is prejudiced because Ramos is a Cuban refugee who came to the U.S. on the 1980 Mariel boatlift.

BREATHALYZER CHALLENGED

A ruling is expected from Seminole County Judge Alan Dickey possibly by Monday on a motion which could invalidate many drunk driving cases made in Seminole since a new tough driving under the influence law went into effect on July 1.

On Thursday, lawyer Steve Horneffer, a former Assistant State Attorney, asked Dickey to throw out the results of two blood-alcohol tests taken from his clients on the grounds that the state failed to enact guidelines covering the use and maintenance of breathalyzer machines prior to the law's enactment.

In making his argument before Dickey, Horneffer said the new DUI law required the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to hold public hearings and prepare regulations for administering breath tests.

However, no hearings were held and no guidelines issued until Dec. 15 when emergency rules were adopted, Horneffer said.

Dickey "has been ruminating over my motion since I filed it about two weeks ago," Horneffer said. "I'm hoping we'll get a ruling by Monday. But," he added, "he has been known to take up to nine months to rule on something like this."

FIREFIGHTERS BATTLE BRUSH FIRE
 Forest rangers and firefighters from Seminole County, Casselberry and Winter Springs fought a brush fire in Lake Avenue, Winter Springs, Wednesday morning.

The fire, which investigators think may have been deliberately started, burned 10 acres of brush as it was fanned by erratic winds which sprang up around 11 a.m.

It took over an hour to extinguish the blaze. Rangers, using tractors to build fire breaks, and firefighters stopped the flames from racing up a ridge and threatening a new house.

POT FARMER CONVICTED

A former worker at the Central Florida Zoo who was arrested in a pot field near the zoo has been convicted of possession of marijuana.

But similar charges against a 24-year-old woman arrested after a raid on her home in which police found $100,000 worth of marijuana were dropped because police had illegally searched her house.

In the case against the former zoo worker, Jesse Dwight Mitchell of 1335 Elliot Ave., Sanford, a six-woman jury found him guilty Wednesday of possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana.

He was arrested September 20 in a wooded area next to the zoo near Sanford, where about 30 marijuana plants up to six feet tall were found growing. Mitchell denied any knowledge of the illegal plants and testified Wednesday that he usually placed his bike near the woods and would walk through the dense fields. He said he had wandered off the path and had become lost. Police, however, claimed the plants were his and he had been looking after them.

Mitchell was convicted of burglary in 1976 and was serving 10 years probation at the time of his arrest.

A sentencing date has not been set.

Earlier Wednesday, Judge Joseph S. Davis Jr. ruled that police illegally searched the residence of Lisa Darlene Eaddy who was living near Lake Howell High School when she was arrested by Seminole County Drug Task Force agents on Sept. 29.

Agents said they saw marijuana plants growing near the house, and could be seen from the street. But that was not sufficient reason for police to enter the house where more marijuana was found, Davis ruled.

Assistant State attorney Steve Plotnick said that without the evidence from inside the house there could be no case.

"The law provides great protection for people's homes," Plotnick said. "The bottom line is that the law says that some guilty people will go free rather than relax those stringent standards."

$2,000 TAKEN WHILE MAN SLEEPS

James William Fitzsimmons fell asleep for an hour and a half in his room at the Fountain Lodge motel in Sanford on Wednesday afternoon and when he woke up he found that his wallet containing $2,000 had been taken.

He told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that he suspected a man called Scott McCormick of Albany, New York, who had been in the room with him.

No arrests have been made in the case.

Temik's Maker Disputes Federal Residue Claim

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—The manufacturer of Temik says numerous tests found no traces of the pesticide in the groundwater of a remote Hillsborough County area where a disputed federal study purportedly found a lingering Temik residue.

The state Department of Environmental Regulation said Friday it plans to conduct its own tests at the site and has asked the federal Environmental Protection Agency to clarify whether it stands by its 1980 study or not.

State officials emphasized that even if the federal findings were valid, there has been no evidence found to suggest a health problem exists in the area.

Hastings Prosecution Ends

MIAMI (UPI)—Prosecutors are wrapping up their bribery conspiracy case against U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings, but concede the evidence is almost wholly circumstantial.

Justice Department attorneys concluded their case at today's half-day session.

Hastings, 46, is conducting his own defense of the bribery conspiracy and obstruction of justice charges against him, the first-ever criminal prosecution of a sitting federal judge. He is scheduled to begin his defense Monday.

An Altamonte Springs native, Hastings is accused by the government of conspiring with Washington, D.C., attorney William A. Borders Jr., a longtime friend, to solicit a $150,000 bribe from two racketeers convicted in Hastings' court. Borders was convicted of bribery conspiracy charges last summer as a result of the FBI's undercover investigation of the two men and sentenced to five years in prison. An appeal is pending.

Nude Dancing Or Bust

FORT WALTON BEACH (UPI)—A new burlesque house featuring go-go dancers 24 hours a day and no sales of booze will be a "blue ribbon recipe" to circumvent a city anti-nudity law, a club owner says.

Cash Moore said Friday he has notified the state Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco of his plans to divide his current lounge featuring nude dancers into two parts. One half will contain a bar and the other will have nude dancers, adult films and sale of non-alcoholic beverages, Moore said.

The city ordinance bans nudity in establishments where alcoholic beverages are served.

Jaruzelski Calls For End To Foreign Food Blackmail

WARSAW, Poland (UPI)—Military leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski said Poland must eliminate foreign "food blackmail" and called for increases in agricultural production to avert economic and social problems.

Jaruzelski did not mention the American sanctions against Poland, but his reference to "external blackmail" appeared obviously aimed at them.

Poland's political crisis of 1970 and 1980 were sparked by food shortages and price increases.

OPEC Fights For Survival

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI)—OPEC oil ministers prepared today for a crucial meeting seen as a last-ditch attempt to enforce production quotas to prop up prices and avert a collapse of the oil cartel.

Effects of OPEC disunity could include a price war that would send the price of oil plummeting and possibly spark a world banking crisis, they said.

Yamani reportedly is arguing a price collapse would endanger the entire world banking system, because many oil-producing nations like Mexico and Nigeria desperately need high oil revenue to avoid defaulting on loans.

Reining-In Mr. Rostow

President Reagan was betting on a long shot when he decided in 1981 to put Eugene V. Rostow in charge of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. Rostow's qualifications were imposing enough — experience as an arms negotiator going back to the Johnson years — but the same experience as a Democrat made him a difficult fit in a new Republican administration.

Rostow saw eye to eye with Mr. Reagan on the inadequacies and danger of the SALT II Treaty, which had proved unacceptable to the U.S. Senate. Indeed, he had broken with President Jimmy Carter over SALT II issues. It was Rostow who suggested that the term Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, which produced the acronym SALT, be dropped in favor of START, for Strategic Arms Reduction Talks, better emphasizing the goal the Reagan administration was bringing to arms negotiations. Rostow supported Mr. Reagan's call for a major investment in defense to restore the U.S. deterrent as we entered a new phase of arms negotiations with the Soviet Union.

For all that, Rostow is now out, in what appears to be a general shake-up of the arms control agency. The unstated reasons run the gamut from recent health problems limiting Rostow's activities, to a Democratic charge that he is being sacrificed to satisfy Senate conservatives who have been suspicious of him all along.

The stagecraft evident in the removal of Rostow suggests to us that he is the victim of a problem not unlike the one that led to Alexander Haig's departure as secretary of state last June. Gen. Haig was demanding a looser rein in making policy than Mr. Reagan could afford to give him, and the same appears to be the case with Rostow.

In announcing his replacement, the administration went out of its way to reassert that the president is in charge of arms control policy, and the director of the arms control agency serves under the guidance of the secretary of state. In other words, Mr. Reagan and Secretary George Shultz are taking charge as arms negotiations move toward center stage in U.S.-Soviet relations. Kenneth Adelman, nominated to succeed Rostow, knows exactly where he stands.

There is another reason why the shake-up seems designed to cure a personality problem rather than change the style or direction of arms negotiations. The administration also made a point of announcing that our two chief arms negotiators — Edward Rowley, at the START talks, and Paul Nitze, conducting the negotiations on medium-range missiles in Europe, will remain on the job.

The administration's vote of confidence in these able negotiators, and the clarification of Mr. Reagan's direct link with arms control policy, should help Vice President George Bush in his forthcoming mission to Western Europe. Among other things, his swing through seven countries is aimed at convincing our allies that the United States is as interested as they are in seeking progress in arms negotiations, and that there is more than rhetoric in Mr. Reagan's stated goal of achieving an actual reduction in nuclear arms.

Europeans are said to be impatient for a U.S. response to the "peace offensive" by the new Soviet leader Yuri Andropov. He is trying to convince Western Europe that arms reductions would be easy if only the Americans were not so warlike. Inasmuch as the Europeans should know better than to buy that line, it's disappointing that Bush's trip is necessary.

BERRY'S WORLD

"His mom and dad are really neat! No form of behavior is considered unacceptable!"

A woman's legs are gawked at, talked about, constructively or cruelly evaluated, flaunted if they are slim and shapely and covered up if they don't measure up.

Men have scrutinized, surveyed and critiqued woman's gams since centuries before the Year I. But I seriously doubt that many women would give a second look to a man's knees, joints and calf unless they are part of the complete physique. Don't overlook charm and sparkling eyes.

We'll wait and see.

The Sanford Chapters of Beta Sigma Phi will be conducting a Legs Contest in conjunction with the Valentine Charity Ball Saturday, Feb. 12, at the Sanford Civic Center. Ball proceeds will benefit Seminole Mutual Concert Association.

Ball chairman Margie Belne says she expects the contest to be "lots of fun." But Margie admits some of the lagging leg contestants are leery about publicly displaying their limbs.

The contestants are men.

The idea when the contest was born was for businesses and organizations to sponsor a contestant which ball revelers will vote on Feb. 12. But not too many men are willing to show their legs — even for the concert association.

Now, the women can whistle—or hiss—at lots of legs at the ball.

To date, according to Margie, Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore and Delbert Abney will represent the Sunland Corporation in the contest. Seminole County Sheriff's Department's candidate is Sheriff John Polk with Phil Roche, manager of Lossing Transfer, the choice of Sanford Kiwanis Club.

And if that isn't enough, Seminole County school superintendent Bob Hughes will be sponsored by Seminole Education Association. John Reichert, assistant principal of Lake Mary High School, will show his legs for the concert association.

Ricky Byrd, service consultant, will represent Sanford Heating and Air Conditioning.

The cafeteria at Central Florida Regional Hospital is one of the most popular spots in the facility these days. A large board is on display featuring 39 sets of legs belonging to CFRH employees and the medical staff.

The CFRH Employees Activities Committee is sponsoring a candidate in the contest. But they are holding their own contest. Employees have the options of voting for their favorite candidate by Monday.

Two questions will surely be raised at the ball by master of ceremonies Harry Cup, talk show host. Who will be the Queen of Hearts among the Valentine Girls, and who will get the most votes for Mr. Legs?

Manners Are Back, Thank You

I'm glad I've lived long enough to experience a cycle.

They tell us the age of manners — abandoned with scorn during the '60s and '70s — has returned. I couldn't be more pleased.

When I was a kid, my mother used to always say, "Now, mind your p's and q's." I minded them and her, too. But that type of behavior became almost obsolete.

To this day, I don't know what the letters "p" and "q" stand for. If they meant remembering to thank your chum's mother for inviting you over to play and not eating cookies in their living room, I adhered to them.

In time, I took p's and q's to mean not being rude and asking things, like, "Does your mother dye her hair?" or lying across the dinner table or waving a fork while talking.

Later, I learned that mannerly people knew how to answer formal wedding invitations, write sympathy notes on plain white paper and send thank you's for gifts and dinner parties.

But p's and q's weren't limited to table etiquette and thank you notes. The major thrust was how to be considerate, respectful and avoid hurting another's feelings — even if it meant swallowing a snide remark or not telling the unvarnished truth when a friend asked for an opinion.

Manners made living easier and gave us a feeling of security in dealing with others. We each knew what was expected of us.

However, many of the niceties and the orderliness went out when the "me" generation came in. Manners were considered fakery and etiquette and imposition incompatible with naturalness and honesty. It became "in" to be natural in dress, eating habits, posture and conversation.

Contempt for conformity often replaced courtesy and self-preoccupation replaced politeness and consideration.

Many adults, myself included, had difficulty enduring the new disdain. Once, when I complained about the lack of thank you's, I was told, "It is hypocritical for the giver to expect anything in return. If you do, that is your problem."

I ignored it when people I knew well commandeered my bread and butter plate and leaned their knife against it, instead of across the rim, but I couldn't help shuddering at teeth-picking in public.

Now, hurray! The counter-revolution has begun. Manners are staging a comeback. An old pattern is being recycled.

At the forefront of the movement is Washington Post writer Judith Martin, author of the immensely popular syndicated column "Miss Manners." She opposes total naturalness, saying, "Two-year-olds eat naturally, and that's not polite."

I love her for declaring that the main techniques of child-rearing are "one, example, and two, nagging. It's an unbeatable combination."

Courses in etiquette for youngsters as young as 5 are cropping up all around the country.

There are even workshops for business executives. A woman who teaches "Good Taste in Business" claims her course spares execs from bungling opportunities for success, such as the man who lost a $300,000 job offer because he ordered his turbot medium-rare.

Freeing Prisoner Sign From Andropov?

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has said he is waiting for a positive sign from Yuri Andropov before he will consider the Soviet leader's expressed hopes for friendlier relations more than just empty rhetoric.

Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan or a relaxation of the repression in Poland is probably too much to expect. But there is a simple act of decency Andropov could make that would demonstrate his good intentions — and would cost him nothing.

He could let Anatoly Shcharansky go. Shcharansky is the 35-year-old "refusenik" who angered the Kremlin by championing the cause of Soviet Jews who want to emigrate to Israel. In 1977 he was sentenced to 13 years in prison for treason.

Even in the depths of the Gulag, Shcharansky has refused to surrender. He is engaged in a hunger strike as a desperate, dramatic protest. His jailers have been force-feeding him, but his health is reportedly precarious.

The men in the Kremlin would dearly love to have the world forget Shcharansky. But this will not happen. Just this week,

JEFFREY HART

Sex: A Sad Story

No doubt we are not going back to the sexual roles of the 1950's, which, as I was reminded when doing the research for my new book on that decade, contained some pretty strange things.

Nevertheless, the changes that have recently taken place in the role of women in our society have introduced a whole new set of problems of their own.

A couple of years ago, Gloria Steinem, a pioneer leader of the radical feminists, made a speech in which she reflected thus: "What has happened," she said, "is that we are becoming the men we once wanted to marry."

There's a good deal of truth and not a little sadness in this reflection, as I see it borne out, for example, in my female college students.

They tend to get caught in a tough paradox. On the one hand, they view the world of business and the professions as a cruel and male-dominated part of society, and they wish to liberate men from it. But in striving to enter it, these young women become — necessarily — pretty tough and competitive themselves. On the whole, ambitious female students are much more ferocious in the pursuit of grades than are their male counterparts, and from all reports they are tigresses on the corporate ladder and in the professions.

Then they face the problem of having children. Some decide to forego a family in the name of a career, not a particularly heart-warming prospect. But, if they decide to have children, many demand the right to devote a minimum of attention to the household, again in the name of career success. As Ms. Steinem remarked, they "are becoming the men we once wanted to marry."

Midge Decter, that astute First Lady of neo-conservatism, recently had some reflections on all of this in The American Spectator.

"The men that 'we' once wanted to marry," she writes, "have responded to this assault on their worldly directed masculine untenderness in one of two ways — and in many, many cases in both ways simultaneously.

"First, they have withdrawn from the rigors of their allegedly no-longer-wanted and no-longer-needed performances as successful providers and protectors of the household. Female-headed households have become probably the most active growth stock on the American market of social phenomena.

"Meanwhile, men have begun to display an unprecedented degree of preoccupation with what were once by and large held to be feminine concerns: such as the care, beautification, and ornamentation (including perfuming) of their bodies; the state of their emotions, finely celebrated and openly discussed; and the quality of their sex lives.

"A happy outcome, from the point of view of those wishing to eradicate distinctions between the sexes. But it somehow does not seem beside the point to ask, if this is a condition to be desired, how come there is so much resentment and discontent on the faces and in the voices of both sexes?"

Midge Decter notes that many men have simply given in and allowed themselves to be defined by liberated women, whether wives, girlfriends, professional colleagues, or daughters. She might have turned Steinem's epigram around and said: "The men are becoming the women they wanted to marry."

Not surprisingly, one detects rumblings of revolt, since, after all, the differences between the sexes has always been the focus of interest and excitement.

Hence the elegiac popularity of figures like Humphrey Bogart, Gary Cooper, and John Wayne. It seems to me no small part of the widespread contempt in which Jimmy Carter was held that he was perceived as dominated and manipulated by his powerful wife.

Hence, too, the popularity of books like "Real Men Don't Eat Quiche."

Most of us do not really recognize in Phil Donahue or Robert Redford plausible alternatives to Bogart or Cooper. Hence, the popularity of movies celebrating traditional maleness, such as "An Officer and a Gentleman," "Breaker Morant," and "Chariots of Fire."

Something at least partly traditional is stirring in the culture, and it's about time.

JULIAN BOND

Let Brutes Stay Here

The United States wants Dennis Brutes to leave.

Dennis Brutes isn't one of those recently discovered Nazis who slipped into the United States after World War II with a little help from pro-Nazi friends in the State Department.

And he isn't any other kind of criminal who committed a crime he didn't report when he entered the land of the brave and the home of the free.

But the United States still wants him to leave. Luckily for Brutes, the United States doesn't want him to go home.

They just want him to leave here. Home for Brutes is actually two countries — the Republic of South Africa and the two-year-old nation of Zimbabwe.

Brutes doesn't want to go to either place, and has told American authorities at the State Department's Bureau of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs that he fears for his life should he return to his parents' homeland — South Africa — or Zimbabwe.

And the United States agrees. But it wants him to leave here nonetheless.

Dennis Brutes, who teaches at Northwestern University in suburban Chicago, was born in what was Southern Rhodesia to South African parents but lived in South Africa itself until 1966. (It is fiction to say that Brutes or his parents are citizens of South Africa; no black person has citizenship rights in the apartheid state. None can vote and none can live, without special permission, on the majority of South African soil which is reserved for whites.)

Brutes' story is as complicated as Africa's modern history. He left South Africa in 1966 under a British passport — a document regularly available to many of the empire's former colonial subjects until Jan. 1, 1983, when Britain's new nationality act, creating three categories of British subjects, went into effect.

But Brutes' United Kingdom passport was good in 1966 and was reissued 10 years later, and in 1978, 1979 and 1980.

In 1980, however, Southern Rhodesia ceased to exist. It became Zimbabwe, and the British counsel in Chicago told Brutes that his UK passport would not be renewed. He was advised to seek a passport from the new nation of Zimbabwe, which he did.

In a rare burst of candor, the chief of the asylum division of the State Department's human rights bureau, Lawrence Arthur, agreed with Brutes' fear of life and limb should he be required to return to South Africa or Zimbabwe. Arthur advised the immigration court that will decide Dennis Brutes' fate that Brutes has a well-founded fear of persecution in South Africa.

"We would not recommend that he be returned to Zimbabwe," wrote Arthur, noting that Brutes cited the assassination, allegedly by South African agents, of an official of the African National Congress in Zimbabwe.

Other supporters of Professor Brutes had detailed repeated South African invasions of each of the states surrounding the white-ruled state, and expressed fear that his criticism of apartheid had marked him if he returns to the land of his birth.

But Lawrence Arthur offers the immigration court, and Dennis Brutes, another slightly less unattractive alternative — Great Britain.

consolidated his power in the Kremlin.

And it would be only a first step. There are still about 10,000 Soviet Jews who have applied for exit visas and have been refused. Since October 1979, when emigration reached its peak of 4,746 the number of Jews allowed to leave the Soviet Union has fallen drastically. In 1980, only 1,424 were permitted to emigrate; in 1981 the total was 368; last year, only 168.

There is no telling what would happen if Andropov chooses to let Shcharansky go. He undoubtedly realizes that he can't let Shcharansky alone emigrate. An embarrassment to the Kremlin even in prison, Shcharansky would be even more troublesome outside Russia if the other refusenik's weren't allowed to leave also.

And that might well open the floodgates. Official estimates put the number of Soviet Jews at 1.8 million; my sources say the true figure is probably close to 2.5 million. Given the Kremlin's long history of Jewish persecution, many — perhaps most — of these Soviet Jews would leap at the chance to emigrate.

Bikes At Sanford Middle Often Stolen

Mom Wants To Stop Theft Of Bicycles

To whomever has had a bike stolen from Sanford Middle School, I would like to talk to you! Call 322-2766. How long are we going to support the thieves in this community? I don't know about you, but I'm mad and I would like very much to do something about it. Can you afford to keep buying bikes for your kids to go to school on? I saw three kids in the office and know of five or more who have lost bikes from that school this year! If you could have seen their eyes full of tears, you'd want to do something. What would you do if something you valued very much was stolen from you?

The kids can't help themselves so I'm more than willing with your help to please stop this from happening to anymore kids. First we the parents can get the school to improve on a location with a higher fence, and maybe someone to look out for the bikes on different occasions or to at least ask questions when someone is there unlocking a bike before school is out. If the school had to replace the bike stolen, do you think something would be done before now? My child is worth it!

Theft Of Child's Presents Upsetting

I would like to address this letter to the person or persons who thoughtlessly invaded our yard the week of January 10, 1983, in which our 3-year-old's Christmas presents, a new red metal fire chief's car and red 16 inch AMF tricycle were stolen. Yes, she is heartbroken and wants to know why someone would take her new toys. Worse yet she wonders if Santa decided she has been a bad girl and has taken back her new toys. It's hard to be parents of small children and teach them the values of honesty, respect and caring of other people's belongings and property when people turn around and either take or steal from them. For a three-year-old does not understand the word or phrase stolen or taken. This is not an easy thing to explain to a small child when you yourself as a parent or as an adult really cannot understand the reason behind this type of theft. I really am shocked to think that someone would come down to the level of stealing children's toys in the privacy and safety of their own fenced in back yard. It's most disturbing to think in a small community minded town of Sanford we cannot let our small children play outside without cause for concern and fear that the next time it may not be the toy car or trike but worse yet the child that rides it may be taken or harmed. I know there are more serious crimes committed everyday, but it tends to follow true to form that the small crimes lead to bigger and more serious ones. I honestly hope the person who did this to our daughter reads this letter and realizes who he really has hurt. Ask yourself: Was it really worth hurting a 3-year-old's joy of riding her new Christmas toys she loved so dearly? We know how much it hurts her, because she tells us everyday.

Homeowners Suffer With Pit Smells

This letter will state the point of view of a large segment of Hidden Lake, Sanford, homeowners, referring to a series of unbiased articles by Evening Herald reporter Donna Estes published recently in your newspaper concerning a stench emanating from a pit west of Art Lane in an unincorporated area of Seminole County, owned by Ralph H. Peacock, his wife, Violet, and nephew, James Durs Jr. The pit is being filled with waste material from the buildings of Cardinal Industries, Inc., and from a roof building company. This material is mostly man made and is known to have a large content of chemicals in its manufacture. When allowed to disintegrate in stagnant water in the pit, fumes and gases are emitted which we contend are hazardous to our health; causing nausea, headaches, coughing and loss of sleep. We respectfully differ with the opinions of several of our city, county and state officials who have indicated that the stink presents no health hazard. Must there be the presence of a life-threatening ailment before foul-smelling, debilitating fumes are recognized as health hazards? Thus far, admittedly, the pit is being filled for free; while the families of over fifty homeowners pay with prolonged suffering.

Blood Bank Grateful

The first week in January the Central Florida Blood Bank experienced an unexpected critical shortage of O and B types of blood despite the fact we had a great response from volunteer blood donors during the month of December. Even with the best planning one cannot accurately predict how much blood will be required to ensure coverage of patients' needs. During the New Year's weekend, several patients used unusually large amounts of O and B types of blood. In addition, we need approximately 250 pints on an average daily basis to supply patients located in 22 hospitals and four dialysis centers in seven Central Florida counties. We had to make a major media appeal as a last resort to avoid a crisis. The response from volunteer blood donors and the media helped us through dangerously low blood supplies. On behalf of the Central Florida Blood Bank, and the patients we serve, we would like to express our appreciation to the media and our heartfelt gratitude to each person who rolled up their sleeve to give, so others might live.

Demos Face Double Drowning Risk?

By DAVID Y. DENHOLM

When I was a young man I put in many summers as a lifeguard. Those who haven't been through it might be interested to learn that most of a lifeguard's training consists of learning how to keep from becoming the victim of the person you are trying to save. A double drowning of both the victim and the lifesaver is the biggest single threat to job tenure for a lifeguard. With this in mind, it might be a good idea for the Democratic Party to get on down to the YMCA for a few lessons in lifesaving. The American union movement has been having increasing trouble keeping its head above water. Ever since 1955, union membership as a percentage of the private sector work force, has been declining. Unions are losing the majority of NRB elections and workers are voting in record numbers to decertify unions. Despite union political muscle, no major piece of new pro-union legislation has been approved by Congress in recent years. Now as the unions go down for the second or third time—I've lost count—they have devised a plan to save themselves by helping the Democratic Party pick a presidential candidate for 1984. For the union movement, it's a calculated risk. If they name the candidate and the candidate wins, the unions win big. If the candidate loses, well, the unions didn't have much to lose anyway. The union plan goes something like this. They will meet in December of 1983 to select a Democratic Party candidate for President and give that candidate support in obtaining the nomination of the Democratic Party. Given the considerable impact that union support might have within the rather limited context of the Democratic Party presidential nominee selection process, the unions might just be able to pull off the first part of the plan. But, then what? Any nominee selected in such a manner would find himself cast as the leading defender of, and apologist for, the incredible array of special powers and privileges which the unions have acquired over the years. Can you imagine how such a candidate would respond to questions about union power at a press conference? Q. Mr. Candidate, under present federal law unions are exempt from prosecution for crimes of extortion so long as the objective of the extortion is a "legitimate" union goal. Do you favor continuation of this special exemption? Q. Mr. Candidate, 20 states have exercised their right under Section 14 (b) of the National Labor Relations Act to pass laws protecting workers from being forced to support a union as a condition of employment. The unions, which support you, advocate repeal of Section 14 (b). This would repeal these right-to-work laws. Would you support repeal of Section 14 (b)? Q. Mr. Candidate, according to conservative estimates the Davis-Bacon Act, under which the Department of Labor sets wages on federally financed construction projects, causes the waste of about $2.3 billion per year in taxes. The only beneficiaries of the Davis-Bacon Act are the unions which support you. How do you stand on repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act? Q. Mr. Candidate, unions are specifically exempted from coverage by the nation's anti-trust laws. Many people believe that this exemption has allowed them to become larger and more powerful than they ought to be. How do you stand on extending the anti-trust laws to union activity? Q. Mr. Candidate, for years now the unions have advocated a federal law to preempt state law on public employment. The law supported by the unions would legalize strikes by public employee unions. How do you stand on legalizing strikes against government? Q. Mr. Candidate, Lane Kirkland, the president of the AFL-CIO, has said that the unions would organize street riots if that was what it took to accomplish their goals. How do you feel about the use of organized violence as a means of accomplishing social and political goals? This list could be virtually endless because the list of special privileges and legal immunities for unions is virtually endless. It is inconceivable that any candidate who espoused these positions could be elected by a majority of the American public. The Democratic Party may need and want the money and manpower the union movement has to offer, but unless it can figure out how to keep the unions from taking it down with them, the headlines the day after the election in 1984 will report the largest "double drowning" in history. David Y. Denholm is president of the Public Service Research Council, a national citizens' lobby concerned with public sector union power.

Grandparents Have Rights To Kids

Q. My son and his wife are getting divorced after 13 years of marriage. Unfortunately it has been a sad and bitter battle and they are now engaged in a custody fight. They have two children who I love dearly, and I am fearful that I may be deprived of the joy of seeing them. Do grandparents have any right at all?

Growing Older
U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper

A. You are experiencing one of the most disturbing and painful realities of modern life. With so many marriages ending in divorce, more and more grandparents are facing the prospect of losing their grandchildren. The special bond between grandparents and grandchildren has always been celebrated in this nation, but the issue of grandparent visitation rights is only now emerging as an important aspect of family law.

To answer your question directly, grandparents do have rights, but the extent of them is unclear. Most states have laws allowing grandparents to petition in court for visitation rights, but those laws are not uniform and one cannot be certain what remedies will be available when a grandparent is denied access by a parent or guardian. Fortunately, a growing awareness of this potentially tragic problem has led to the formation of organizations to assist grandparents and to a determination on the part of many national leaders to bring more compassion and uniformity to this delicate area of the law. A recent hearing of the Human Services Subcommittee of our Aging Committee highlighted the problems faced by grandparents cut off from their grandchildren. It was clear from the testimony of grandparents and psychiatrists that the emotional bond between grandparents and grandchildren is second only to that between parents and children. I suggest you contact Grandparents-Children's Rights, Inc., 5728 Bayonne Ave., Haslett, Mich. 48840, and Foundation for Grandparenting, 10 West Hyatt Ave., Mount Kisco, N.Y. 10549 for support and information. Q. I've been retired for several years and drawing an adequate pension from my former employer. I recently applied for a part-time position in specialized tool and die—similar to my old job—that calls for only about 45 hours a month. The company advertising the position is affiliated with my old employer. The personnel director said he wanted to hire me but that my pension benefits would be suspended if I worked over 40 hours per month for this employer. What's this all about? A. The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) is a federal law that protects employees covered by private pension and welfare benefit plans. ERISA sets certain minimum standards that pension plans must satisfy on such matters as employee eligibility, vesting, funding, fiduciary responsibility, and reporting and disclosure. ERISA does not regulate the amount one may earn while receiving pension benefits, nor does it set the level of benefits. But it does permit a pension plan to suspend the payment of normal retirement benefits to a retiree if he returns to work for more than 40 hours per month for an employer who maintains the plan through which he is receiving his pension payments. Benefits may also be suspended if the retiree returns to any work for more than 40 hours per month in the same industry, the same trade and the same geographical area covered by the plan when benefits began. It is important to note that 40 hours is a minimum Labor Department guideline, and plans may allow an employed retiree to work more than 40 hours in a month without suspending his benefits. I would suggest you talk to your prospective employer and the administrator of your pension plan to see whether some equitable arrangement could be worked out so you could continue to receive all or a portion of your monthly retirement benefit during your re-employment.

MX Missile Meaning Obscured

By M. STANTON EVANS
The debate about the MX missile and its "basing mode" is so bogged down in technical jargon that the real significance of the issue has been obscured. Critics of the MX say the demand for this extrapowerful new missile and new methods of concealing it proves a "military-industrial complex" calls the tune in national affairs. The truth is just the opposite. The need for the MX arises, not from American muscle-flexing, but from woeful weakness. We have dug ourselves into a military hole from which, it is hoped, this weapon can extract us. For the past 20 years, with relatively little fanfare, the United States has pursued a course of military backdown. We have dismantled intermediate-range missiles in Europe, junked several thousand strategic aircraft, cut back our air defenses, reduced our number of long-range missiles, and refused to develop an antimissile defense (ABM). We have not deployed a new strategic weapon system since 1967. The theory behind all this was that by pulling back "provocative" weapons and refusing to protect our cities, we would show the Soviets how peaceful we are. This would overcome their suspicions of us, and cause them to follow our example—renouncing further weapons and leaving their cities open to attack. This would produce a "stable balance of terror," leading to peace and more disarmament. Unfortunately, it didn't work that way. While we were marking time or moving backwards, the Soviets were forging ahead to build their war machine as rapidly as possible. They have been working to develop powerful new missiles, harden their launching sites, deploy new airplanes, and develop antimissile defenses—doing all the things we hoped they wouldn't do. While we were getting weaker, they were growing stronger. As a result of these contrasting trends, according to recent intelligence estimates, the Communists can now knock out our strategic missiles. But because of their superhardened launch sites, we can't do the same to them. The MX and its "basing mode" are efforts to deal with this problem: The missile is supposed to be powerful enough to take out Soviet missile sites; the "basing mode" dispute arises because we don't have an ABM to knock down Soviet missiles, and have to develop some way of hiding the MX. In other words, the drive for the MX is a result, not of America's yen for overpowering military strength, but of our incredible binge of self-inflicted weakness. Mr. M. Stanton Evans is editor of the Enterprise News Service.

IN BRIEF

Cardinal Crew Installs 53-Unit Modules In Georgia

A five-man crew and the operator of a 50-ton crane recently "set" modules for the construction of the Stillwater Apartments, a 53-unit factory-built multi-family modular residential complex being developed by Cardinal Industries of Sanford on Leafmore Drive off of Waters Avenue in Savannah, Ga.

The six-ton modules, produced on a 490-foot assembly line in Cardinal's 125,000-square-foot Sanford plant, are transported to the job site and placed on pre-built crawl-space foundations at the rate of one every six minutes.

"The six-sided modules," according to William Gauchat, Cardinal's director of construction, "are strong enough to be lifted by the roof alone. This allows us, says Gauchat, to set the complete project in only a few days." The individual living units, Gauchat explains, are set back-to-back and side-by-side, resulting in two independent walls between each apartment. The double walls especially the insulated party walls, provides maximum energy, sound and fire control.

After the modules are "set", little on-site work remains and the development can be opened months before a similar project utilizing conventional construction.

Alvarez Named President

Joe A. Alvarez, Jr., formerly vice president of Central Constructors, Inc., has been promoted to president of the Altamonte Springs general contracting and construction management firm.

Alvarez joined Central Constructors (formerly Harrison Central Construction Corp.) as vice president in the Fall of 1982.

Prior to joining Central Constructors, Alvarez, who lives in Longwood, was employed by M.R. Harrison Construction Corp. for nine years. He joined the Miami construction firm in 1973 as a project engineer and was promoted to project manager in 1978. He managed a number of multi-million dollar projects while there.

Alvarez received his bachelor of science degree in engineering from the University of South Florida. He is a Certified General Contractor in the state of Florida and a licensed real estate salesman.

Spegele Is A Top Dealer

William R. Spegele of Casselberry has earned recognition as one of Chrysler Corporation's top automobile dealership sales managers in the nation.

Spegele, employed by Luke Potter Dodge, Inc., in Winter Park, was one of 75 members of Chrysler's Sales Managers Society Inner Circle group participating in a three-day National Sales Conference in New Orleans.

As recognition of outstanding accomplishments, Spegele received a Plaque and specially-designed gold ring.

Walker To Retire At UCF

Lynn W. Walker, the first and only director of libraries at the University of Central Florida, will retire from that post Aug. 31 after more than 30 years of state service.

Walker, the third professional employee to be hired by the then-new university, in September 1966, has seen the library grow to more than 400,000 volumes and a current $8 million expansion-renovation that will provide much needed space for an expanding student population and research activities.

Walker was director of the engineering and physics library at the University of Florida prior to joining UCF. He is a native of Okkechobee, Florida, and a 1950 Florida graduate. He subsequently earned a master's degree in library science from Florida State University.

Southeast Income Up 7%

Southeast Banking Corporation has reported net income for the year ended Dec. 31 of $52.6 million, a 7 percent increase over the $49.3 million reported for the same period a year ago. Per share earnings for 1982 totaled $3.03, a 4 percent decrease from the $3.15 earned in 1981.

Southeast's average number of outstanding common shares and equivalents was 17.4 million for 1982, compared with 15.7 million for 1981 which accounts for the year-to-year decrease in 1982 earnings per share. The increase in average shares outstanding was due to new shares issued in connection with an acquisition at the beginning of the 1981 fourth quarter and to dividend reinvestment, stock purchase and employee related stock plans.

Southeast's 1982 year-end results include an after-tax gain of $3.9 million, or 22 cents per share, from the sale of an office building in Orlando during the 1982 third quarter.

For the fourth quarter of 1982, Southeast had total net income of $15.0 million, a 20 percent increase over the $12.5 million for the fourth quarter of 1981. On a per share basis, 1982 fourth quarter earnings were 85 cents or 10 percent above the 73 cents earned in the fourth quarter of 1981.

At December 31, 1982, Southeast's total assets were up 15 percent to $7.3 billion from $6.5 billion in 1981; total loans were up 14 percent to $3.8 billion from $3.1 billion in 1981; total stockholders' equity was up 11 percent to $430.5 million from $387.8 million in 1981; and total deposits were up 11 percent to $5.5 billion from $5.0 billion in 1981.

45% Of Homes In Seminole County

Parade Of Homes To Begin On Feb. 5

The biggest annual event in the Central Florida housing industry—the Parade of Homes—will kick off Feb. 5 and will run through Feb. 20.

This year, 45 percent of the new homes in the 30th annual parade will be in Central Florida.

Sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida, the parade offers something for everyone, with new homes in all styles and price ranges. The event traditionally attracts thousands.

Sixty new homes, ranging in price from $38,000 to $375,000, will be on display.

"The variety of homes entered this year is enormous," said Parade of Homes Co-Chairman Bing Hacker. "Every price range, and every style imaginable will be available. As usual, the parade entries reflect the best and most innovative that Central Florida's Builders have to offer."

Co-Chairman Ron Schwartz agreed that the Central Florida area, perhaps more than any other region, offers residential architectural styling of all types.

"We have a lot of young professionals, a lot of retirees, a lot of middle income people and a lot of people who are very well-to-do," Schwartz said. "Because the population is so diversified, the housing demand is also very diversified."

One major trend that is reflected in the 1983 parade is a move toward more multi-family housing. Nearly 40 percent of the new homes entered are attached, Schwartz said — more than ever before in the history of the Mid-Florida Parade.

"Multi-family living is an ideal way to go for many people," Schwartz said. "Young couples, retirees and more and more singles are finding multi-family housing to be ideal for their needs."

Like the single family homes in the parade, the multi-family entries reflect a wide range of prices. The lowest-priced attached entry is a $38,000 condominium by Bon-Aire Development, located in Orlando's Lemontree development. The highest priced attached home is Harkins Corporation's luxurious $160,000 entry in Plantation Oaks.

"With the kind of innovative designs our builders are doing, you don't sacrifice privacy or space with multi-family," Schwartz said.

But the mainstay of the parade continues to be the single family home.

Potential buyers will be able to tour single family homes of every style and price range — from a $46,000 entry in Sanford by Residential Communities of America to a $375,000 Winter Park mansion by Vogel Construction Co. The Vogel home on Joline Court is expected to attract many visitors. The spectacular 5,200-square-foot home features an entry of Travertine Marble and accents brass throughout.

All parade entries will be judged. The homes have been grouped into categories according to selling price — seven categories for single family homes and four for attached units. Judging teams will be made up of qualified homebuying prospects whose names were submitted by area builders. The teams from the general public will select two finalists in each category. The winners will then be selected by representatives of other Florida Home Builders Associations.

The winners in each category will be announced during the final weekend of the parade.

A special parade magazine also will be published this year. The publication will include drawings, descriptions, and directions to each of the 60 entries. There will also be a large map of the Greater Orlando area with the home locations marked.

"There will be a limited number of Parade of Homes magazines available at each of the parade homes," Hacker said. "For those who don't receive one or want extras, contact the Home Builders Association at 898-7661."

Participating Builders will be All State Homes, Inc., Area

Multi-Family Sales Outpace Single-Family Sales

Multi-family housing in Central Florida is selling nearly twice as fast as its single-family counterpart, according to a recent marketing study conducted by Republic Funding Corporation of Florida (RFC), a multi-faceted real estate brokerage.

Figures from the study show that the area's multi-family projects have experienced an average monthly sales pace of five units compared to sales of 3.1 units among single-family developments, says Jim Williford, RFC's director of marketing services.

The findings were based on a continuing study of more than 125 residential developments in Orange, Seminole and northern Osceola counties.

"The pendulum is definitely swinging in favor of multi-family housing—not so much by choice but for economics," explains Williford. "The meteoric rise in the cost of new single-family housing brought about by record level mortgage interest rates has priced out a major percentage of the home buying market. As a result, prospective buyers have been forced to look to alternative housing styles such as condominium apartments, townhomes and attached patio homes if they hope to realize the American dream of home ownership. The demand for traditional single-family ownership is there but the resources are not."

Williford adds that just 10 years ago nearly half of the labor force could afford to own a home. "But in the past decade the cost of housing has soared until we've reached the point where less than 10 percent of the home buying market can afford a new single-family home at today's prices," he says. "And every time prices rise $2,000 another 1-2 percent fall by the wayside."

The nation's housing experts estimate that more than 25 percent of the country's urban population lives in some form of multi-family housing and that by the year 2000 that figure will swell to 50 percent.

"With median price of a new home approaching $80,000, builders are being forced to come up with viable housing alternatives," says Williford. "High density, multi-family housing provides one of the best alternatives because it can reduce land costs significantly which can result in a lower home price to the consumer."

According to Williford, the average single-family project in the family study consisted of 223 units compared to 111 units in the multi-family developments. Yet, the average 30-day inventory is twice as much among multi-family projects (9.8 units versus 4.4 units) than single-family.

The study also showed that 97 percent of the single-family projects are utilizing a broker co-op program, compared to 88 percent of the multi-family developments. Closely associated, 89 percent of the single-family projects generally handled sales through a builder-developer representative compared to 71 percent for multi-family.

Barnett Posts Record Earnings

Record 1982 earnings of $64.6 million were reported by Barnett Banks of Florida, Inc.

The company's income before securities transactions increased 42 percent from $45.5 million in 1981, announced Charles E. Rice, president and chief executive officer. Because of a 24 percent increase in outstanding shares, primary earnings per share increased 15 percent to $3.94 from $3.44 in 1981. On a fully diluted per-share basis, the increase was 12 percent to $3.75 from the $3.36 reported in 1981.

Net income (after securities transactions) was $56.8 million for 1982, an increase of 38 percent from $41.2 million in 1981.

Barnett's record 1982 performance was primarily attributable to continuing earning-asset growth and a higher net yield on earning assets, Rice said. Average earning assets were $5.2 billion in 1982, an increase of 30 percent from $4 billion in 1981. Net interest income was $282 million, 41 percent above the $200 million in 1981.

Fourth-quarter results provided Barnett's 24th consecutive quarter of earnings increases, with record highs in the last 19. The quarter's income before securities transactions was $16.7 million, up 39 percent from $12 million in the 1981 period. This was equal to $1.02 in primary earnings per share (88 cents in fourth-quarter 1981) and 97 cents in fully diluted earnings per share (87 cents in the 1981 period).

Stromberg-Carlson Installs System

Alaska's second Stromberg-Carlson DCO System is also a first. The newest system installed includes the first Local Line Switch (LLS) installed in Alaska according to Donald L. Hoffman, vice president of Telco sales. Placed in service at the Juneau and Douglas Telephone Co. (an operating company of the Continental Telephone Co. of the Northwest), the system provides telephone service to the community of Sterling and is the host office for two digital satellite units serving Mendenhall and Auke Bay.

All three communities are in a fishing area north of Juneau. There are approximately 25,000 subscribers in the area who receive telephone service over more than 8,000 digital lines. The new DCO System with the LLS offers them a full line of custom-calling features, pushbutton dialing, and Centralized Automatic Message Accounting (CAMA).

Stromberg-Carlson also has placed in service another System Century Digital Central Office with the new Local Line Switch (LLS) for the Continental Telephone Co. of Virginia in Haymarket. The first was installed in Smithfield in November 1982.

The Haymarket DCO System is a 3,100-line, Class 5 central office, serving an area west of Washington, D.C., that is experiencing significant growth," said James M. Bridges, president of Stromberg-Carlson. With the LLS, the system can accommodate the telecommunications needs that accompany growth.

"Continental's second cutover in Virginia went just as smoothly as its first," Bridges added. "Now we are concentrating on bringing digital telecommunications to three small communities in the area through the Haymarket office by means of our Remote Line Switch (RLS). Three RLSs will be shipped to Continental by the end of March."

Telephone System Consolidates

United Telephone System's affiliates in Florida have consolidated under one name. "United Telephone Company of Florida," according to Troy Todd, president of the Florida company.

Florida Telephone Corp., based in Leesburg; the Winter Park Telephone Co., and Orange City Telephone Co. now are being called by the new name. United's affiliate based in Fort Myers has been called United Telephone Company of Florida since 1967.

The consolidated telephone company encompasses some 200 communities throughout 20 counties in Florida. The company provides service to nearly 600,000 customers in a 15,900-square-mile area which is almost 30 percent of the state.

The United Telephone System, with operations in 20 states and 3,000 communities, is the nation's second largest independent (non-Bell) telephone system.

In many areas of Central Florida, United Telephone customers can now dial direct overseas, according to F. R. McPherson, vice president at Winter Park.

International Direct Distance Dialing (IDDD) is a new service designed to make calling overseas faster and easier.

To make an overseas call, all customers now need to do is dial "011," the international access code, (or "01" if the call is collect, person to person or calling card). Next, dial the country code, the city code and finally the local number. The installation of new digital switching equipment by United Telephone has also resulted in number changes for approximately 2,000 of United's Central Florida customers.

The addition of this new advanced switching equipment will require number changes for nearly 1,600 subscribers in the Casselberry area who have phone numbers beginning in 83 or 33 and some 400 customers in the Maitland Center area who have phone numbers beginning in 62 or 64.

McPherson said the reasons for the addition of this new equipment are to keep pace with the company's growth and to enhance the quality of service to United's customers in this area.

Same Old Story — Forfeits Kill Seminoles

Seminole High's wrestlers gave up 24 points by forfeits Friday night but still managed to stay close to Daytona Beach Seabreeze. Only a narrow loss by Kevin Tapscott and an injury to Tony Turner kept the Tribe from winning as Seabreeze's Sand Crabs escaped Seminole High with a 36-33 victory.

"We wrestled extremely well," Seminole coach Scott Sherman said. "Tapscott beat his guy all over the mat but the referee somehow had the other guy ahead. That and Turner's were the key matches."

Tapscott wound up losing to Seabreeze's Bruce Barclay, 9-8, and, in the opening seconds of Turner's match, Bill McKerman "picked Turner up and body slammed him to the mat," Sherman said. "He was unable to go on because of an injury and had to default."

Seminole got off to an early lead as Stan Ferguson won by forfeit in the 101-weight class and Mike Clark pinned his opponent. One of the most impressive performances for the Tribe was Ronnie Watson's in the 115-pound class. Watson pinned last year's conference champion, Marshall Free, 1:10 into the match.

When Vince Clark pinned Jim Garnett at 3:32 in the 148-pound match, Seminole took a commanding 33-9 lead, but the Tribe didn't score the rest of the match.

Once again, lack of personnel in the heavier weights loomed ominous in Seminole's downfall. The Tribe forfeited the 189, 223 and heavyweight classes.

Seminole will try to rebound Wednesday night when it travels to Apopka and next Saturday Seminole will be in a triangular meet with New Smyrna Beach and Mainland at New Smyrna Beach.

has some really tough wrestlers," he said. "I thought we gave one of our best efforts of the year."

The Rams received strong performances from juniors Jack Likens (108), Bob Olson (141) and Robert Rawls (UNL). Likens, in a return match with Jim Syvertson who he beat for the Lyman Christmas championship, dominated the Hornet ace for a 3-1 win.

The talented junior "shucked" Syvertson and used a single-leg takedown for a 2-0 first-period edge. Syvertson escaped in the second period but Likens tacked on an escape in the third for the victory.

Olsen dropped Joe Corso, 10-2, by building up points and takedowns and near falls throughout the match. "Olsen was close to pinning him. He just couldn't turn him."

Rawls, 15-1 for the year, was taken down by Mark Yerashunas in the first period, but the monstrous 6-0, 320-pound Sanford resident rolled Yerashunas over and pinned him in a scant 33 seconds.

Schwartz was impressed with the work of juniors Ed Ades (223) and Ned Kolbjornsen. Ades had a 9-0 lead in the third period against tough Don Brown before he tried a "Peterson" which didn't work and got pinned.

Kolbjornsen battled Tom Dekleva to a 7-7 standoff after tussling behind, 4-0. "Ned completely dominated the third period," said Schwartz. "If he would have had 30 more seconds, he would have beaten him."

Greyhounds Stick Lake Howell, 37-23

In a big county matchup Friday night, Lyman's Greyhounds turned in a powerful performance, stopping Lake Howell, 37-23, at Lake Howell. Just a week ago, the Silver Hawks were a close second to Lyman in the conference tournament.

"It really wasn't that easy," said Lyman coach Skip Pletzer. "There were a lot of close matches, but for a change things went our way. We got the breaks."

The Greyhounds, 3-4-2, built a commanding 37-11 lead before forfeiting the final two weight classes.

Pletzer pointed to four matches as the determining factors.

Chris Battle (101) slipped past Paul Cina, 3-1. Cina was second in last week's conference meet. Pat Bell (108) scrambled back three times from deficits to finally overhaul Paul O'Callahan, 10-8. Freshman Chris Waxler (135) dominated Pete Glertych and Shane Harwell (170) upset conference champion Steve Cina, 7-3.

"If those four matches go the other way, we may get beat," said Pletzer. "But all four guys did a real good job." Lyman hosts the Seminole County Freshman Tournament Monday at 3:30 p.m.

Fought Blisters Course, Watson

PALMSPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — John Fought who whipped past Craig Stadler to take the lead going into the third round in the $375,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic, had some acerbic comments about another player — Tom Watson.

"Tom Watson has his opinions like everyone else, but he's not God," Fought said Friday.

Watson angered Fought last week by saying he didn't think the 100th through 125th money winners on the PGA tour should be exempt from qualifying, that they should be forced to qualify each Monday for every tournament.

Fought was No. 125 on the money list last year.

"It's easy for Tom to say," an angry Fought said. "He makes a million dollars a year. He doesn't understand what it's like to play poorly ... to struggle. I respect his game of golf, but I think he's dead wrong."

Hours earlier he let his actions do the real talking, blistering the Indian Wells Country Club with a 10-underpar 62 to take Craig Stadler's position in the lead.

Stadler entered the third round with what appeared to be a commanding lead of six strokes after rounds of 63 and 66. But playing on the tougher Bermuda Dunes course he carded his first bogey of the tournament and turned in an even-par 71. He now is at 15-under for the tournament, two strokes behind Fought.

Fought, 28, who earned just $28,598 last year in attaining the 125th and final qualifying spot, shot a 69 Wednesday at the Bermuda Dunes course, the toughest of the four being used, and came back with a 68 Thursday at La Quinta.

Pro Golf

Friday he put together consecutive 31s at Indian Wells, considered the easiest of the four courses, to drop to 17-under-par 199 for the tournament.

"I've never shot 10-under in a tournament before," Fought said in amazement at his own accomplishment. "Heck, how can you get much lower than that?"

Only one man has, in the 24 years of the tournament. Bert Yancey carded a 61 — on the same course — in 1974.

Stadler said he did everything well and still shot a 72.

"Nothing happened out there," the 1982 Masters champion said. "I played well. I missed only two greens in regulation. But I just couldn't get the ball in the hole. But there's still a lot of golf left."

A stroke behind Stadler at 14-under 202 was Ray Floyd, who shot a 67 at Bermuda Dunes to go with previous rounds of 68 and 67. At 203 was Chip Beck (67 Friday at the Tamarisk course).

Hal Sutton was alone at 204 while three golfers, including 1981 Bing Crosby winner John Cook, Rex Caldwell and Keith Fergus were deadlocked at 12-under-par 204.

The tournament ends Sunday with $67,500 for the winner.

SARASOTA (UPI) — Veteran Anne Marie Palli of Phoenix, Ariz., fired a final round 73 Friday to take medalist honors in the LPGA Qualifying School tourney with a 54-hole total of 214.

Paul Holmes, Lake Mary defensive ace, turns back a threat by New Smyrna Beach in Friday's soccer match. The Rams blanked the Barracudas, 2-0, at Lake Mary High School.

Lake Mary goalie Joe Dalton returned to action with a shutout performance Friday while Donald Kelly and Mark Volchko booted goals as the Rams whipped New Smyrna Beach, 2-0, in prep soccer at Lake Mary High School.

The victory lifts the Rams' record to 7-5. Lake Mary played Lake Brantley Saturday. The Rams are on the road Wednesday at Florida Central for a 4 p.m. match.

"It was a good game for Dalton to return," said coach Larry McCorkle. "He got his feet wet but he was never really tested."

The Rams outshot the Barracudas, 29-10, but couldn't dent the scoring column until the second half. "We could have won 8 or 9-0," said McCorkle. "But we had our usual first-half troubles. It would mean so much for our confidence if we could just get a goal early."

Lake Mary finally broke on top, 1-0, with 19 minutes elapsed in the second half as Kelly snared a rebound off the New Smyrna keeper and blasted in his 15th goal of the season.

The swift sophomore had dribbled the ball from midfield, evading several defenders before booting it off the NSB keeper. The ball deflected to Kelly and he rummed it home.

Nine minutes later, Volchko scored on a similar play, dodging defenders on a half-the-field excursion before following up a deflected shot for a 2-0 lead.

The New Smyrna goalie turned in 20 saves while Dalton countered with 10. It was his first game after sitting out three weeks with a knee injury.

Although Dalton is back in the Ram fold, Kelly, who has eight assists along with his 15 goals, has a slight case of mononucleosis and will miss about a week, according to McCorkle.

"We're really going to miss Donald," said McCorkle. "Not only for his goals, but his assists too. He generates most of our offense. It'll be a day-by-day situation whether he can play or not."

McCorkle cited Jose Delrosario and David Andreone for their defensive work Friday. "They were finding the outlet man instead of just kicking the ball upfield," said McCorkle. "That helped us control the game better."

The Rams also took the junior varsity game against Oviedo as Louis Rosen kicked in two goals for Lake Mary.

Jerry Dickerson, a 160-pounder from Sanford, knocked out Ed Beise in the first round Friday.

Dickerson Flattens Beise In 1st

DAYTONA BEACH — Sanford's Jerry Dickerson floored Brad Beise with a succession of right-hand leads to gain a technical knockout after just 33 seconds of the first round in Golden Gloves District Tournament action at the Bavarian Beer Garden.

Dickerson, undefeated at 169 pounds, advances to Saturday night's championship round.

"Dickerson had never fought a southpaw (Beise) before," said manager Vic "Taco" Perez. "As soon as we saw the guy was left-handed, I said 'get him with a right-hand lead.'"

Boxing

The move paid off as the light-quick Dickerson smacked Beise with the first punch of the fight and sent him sprawling. The former Seminole High basketball player followed up with several more jolts to the face and the referee stopped the bout.

The action was part of the 11-card bout which kicked off the Golden Gloves Tournament for the state of Florida. The fighters got at it again Saturday before advancing to Sanford for a Feb. 4 show.

After the Sanford show, the tournament moves to Orlando for bouts on Feb. 17-18 prior to the State Championship Tournament on March 9, 10, 11 and 12.

All four tournaments are sponsored by Melbourne's WMOD TV, channel 43. Friday's fights will be aired Saturday night at 8.

Vazquez Leads Brantley Girls, Boys' Comeback Fails

Rhonda Vazquez poured in 17 points and Linda Nunez added 10 as the Lady Patriots of Lake Brantley went on a second half binge to claim a 48-39 victory over Apopka Friday night at Apopka.

Apopka, 3-13, held a 27-25 halftime lead but went cold in the second half, scoring only 14 points. Meanwhile, Brantley, 6-11, scored 21 second-half points en route to its second victory of the season over Apopka. Lake Brantley raised its Five Star Conference record to 5-6.

The Lady Patriots host Edgewater Monday night and return to conference action Tuesday night at Daytona Beach Seabreeze.

LAKE BRANTLEY (18)

APOPKA (39)
Grant 20, McMiller 7, Griffin 10, Robinson 2. Totals: 19-1-4 39.

Total fouls: Lake Brantley 8, Apopka 10. Fouled out: None. Technicals: None.

Lake Brantley's boys were not as fortunate as the girls as Apopka built a big lead early and hung on for a 69-63 victory.

At one point in the second quarter, Apopka, 5-10, had a 37-21 lead but Brantley, 4-12, went in at halftime trailing by only nine points at 39-30.

The Patriots opened the second half with six straight points to cut Apopka's lead to 39-36, but the Blue Darters ran off 10 straight points to pull ahead, 49-36.

The Patriots didn't fold though, Lake Brantley went on a 14-2 scoring binge to cut Apopka's lead to 51-50 early in the fourth quarter.

Apopka again went on a scoring spree of its own and built a 57-50 lead, after that the Patriots could get no closer than four points.

Paul Hoffman poured in 27 points for the Patriots and Dennis Groseclose added 12.

LAKE BRANTLEY (63)

Sixers Run To 14th Straight

United Press International
If Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham's comments mean anything, he's afraid the 76ers' might catch the Seattle Swoon.

With the 76ers' 14th straight victory Friday night, a 10-117 decision over slumping Seattle, the SuperSonics who opened the season with a 12-game winning streak, have now lost 10 of 11.

"We have to keep striving to be better in all phases of the game," said Cunningham even though his team opened a 32-point lead over Seattle after 2½ periods and coasted the rest of the way. "Right now we're on a nice roll, but we can't be complacent and ... sit back and admire it."

Moses Malone paced the 76ers with a season-high 34 points on 12-of-19 shooting and pulled down 14 rebounds. Julius Erving added 27 points and Andrew Toney contributed 19.

"They're the best team we've seen this year," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "They're playing unselfishly and moving the ball well ... it's a great team."

David Thompson led Seattle with 26 points and Jack Sikma, starting his first game since suffering a sprained ankle Dec. 28, scored 14 points with 12 rebounds.

In other games, Kansas City topped Houston, 115-108, Los Angeles beat San Antonio, 119-110, Golden State defeated Denver, 136-121, New Jersey clipped Cleveland, 105-99, Boston beat Chicago, 117-106, Milwaukee defeated Washington, 111-104, Indiana outdied Phoenix, 118-117, and Utah clubbed New York, 108-93.

Capitals Fall To Nordiques

United Press International
Even the Washington Capitals have a letdown sometimes.

The Capitals, flying high after recent impressive victories over Chicago and Philadelphia, fell to the Quebec Nordiques, 5-4, at Landover, Md., Friday night after having recovered from a 4-1 deficit to tie the game. Anton Stastny's power-play goal with 5:52 left was the deciding goal.

In the only other game, Winnipeg topped the New York Rangers, 4-1.

Valenzuela To Shake Up L.A.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Here we go again. Remember how Fernando Valenzuela got the Dodgers all shook up by asking them for $1.4 million last year. Well, guess what he's going to ask for this year? Same thing — $1.4 million.

A 19-game winner last season, Valenzuela, now vacationing in Mexico, will be making his request in the next few days because the deadline for filing for arbitration is next Tuesday. More than likely, that's where Fernando will wind up next month. His momma didn't raise any dumb kids . . .

First thing Don Shula and the rest of Miami's coaches warned the Dolphins was to forget about how well they performed against the Charges. The Jets will be a brand new ball game Sunday . . .

The big weeklong meeting of Olympic officials winds up Friday and a temporary furor over "gouging" countries for housing their athletes in this city during the 1984 Olympics proved to be simply that — temporary and without any real substance.

At the seat of the trouble was a proposal by the Los Angeles Olympic Committee that all committees pay a 20-day minimum for their athletes who stay in the Olympic Village although the Games themselves will only last 16 days. Some countries complained they were being overcharged.

"I can't understand what all the fuss is about," says Richard Perelman of the Los Angeles Olympic Committee.

"Try to find anywhere in the world where you can get housing, eat all you want, secure transportation, then go out and dance and be entertained all for $35 a day. I don't know if we can do it or we can't, but we will."

Before this Olympic session was set up, Peter Uberroth, president of the Los Angeles

Olympic Committee asked his other committee members what they felt was the primary goal to be achieved at these meetings.

He got all kinds of answers, but the one he listened, then shook his head.

Then he said, to all his associates. "Our primary goal is to make friends."

Uberroth and the rest of the Los Angeles Olympic Committee are all entitled to take a bow.

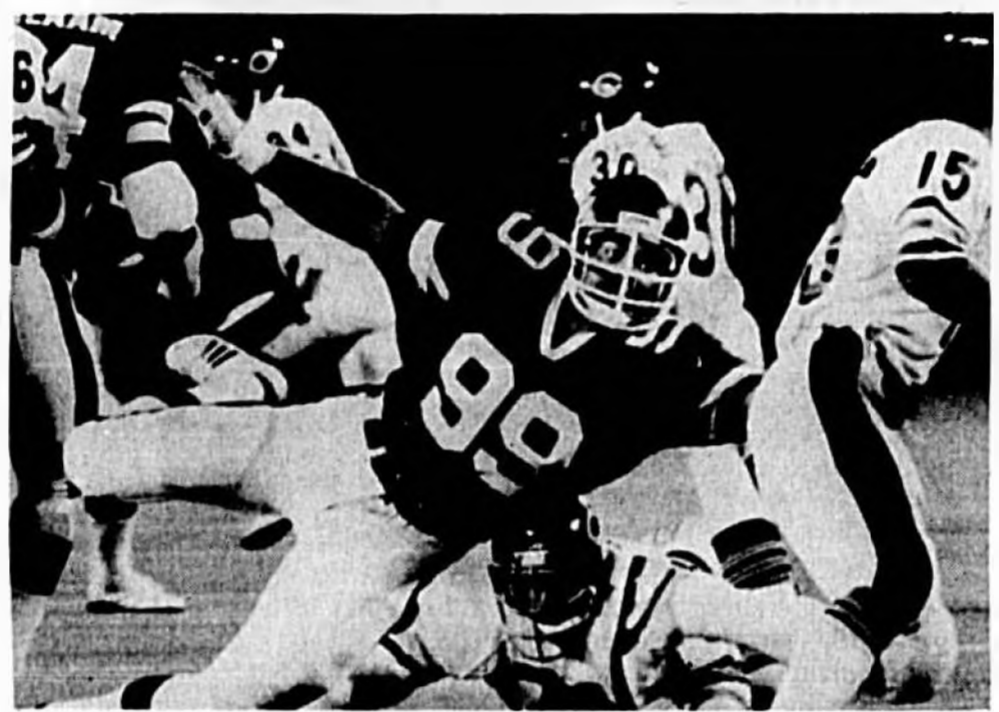

You never saw so much good fellowship as there was at this get together. It looked more like one of those good old-fashioned Shriners' conventions . . .

Dave Winfield sees Billy Martin's rehiring as helping the Yankee players. "Maybe it'll take some pressure off the guys," he says . . .

Ronney and Steve Garvey were never exactly buddy-buddy with the Dodgers, but Garvey, who recently signed as a free agent with the Padres, told them the 34-year-old Cey could still help them.

The Padres made a pitch for Cey before the Cubs got him but the Dodgers apparently weren't too eager to send the veteran third baseman to San Diego where he would have been reunited with Garvey.

Cey did all right money-wise with the Cubs. In addition to the $3.5 million he'll get from them over the next five years, he also received $500,000 up front.

Mark Gastineau, No. 99, is the NFL defender of the year. The flashy New York Jet lineman succeeds teammate Joe Klecko in winning the NEA George Halas award.

Pregame Joust Sets Stage For Struggle

MIAMI (UPI) — The last few days before the AFC championship game between the Miami Dolphins and the New York Jets have resembled the kind of back-and-forth you get before a heavyweight championship fight.

The Jets say the Dolphins use chop blocks. The Dolphins say the Jets hold. The Jets say Miami Coach Don Shula gets a break from the officials. The Dolphins say the Jets take cheap shots. Then both sides say they either didn't mean it, or were misquoted.

What remains is the promise of a quality game. The Dolphins already have beaten the Jets, 45-28 and 20-19, this season. But both teams are saying that doesn't mean anything anymore.

As Shula put it Friday night: "Everything we've done — all the accomplishments — now go on the line. They forget about the loser in a hurry, and we want to be the team they continue to talk about."

The winner goes to the Super Bowl. It would be the first appearance since the 1973 season for Miami and the 1969 Super Bowl for the Jets.

Early in the week, Jet tackle Mark Gastineau said the Dolphins make a practice of using the tight end to block down on a defensive lineman while an offensive tackle has him engaged. That's called a chop block and it's against the rules. The Dolphins said they block first with the tight end, then with a tackle, which is legal.

Later in the week, Jet Coach Walt Michaels said: "Any block that is not called is a legal block as far as I'm concerned. It's as simple as that."

Then came the holding accusations from the Dolphins.

Pro Football

"They are saying things, but they are probably one of the better clubs in the league at holding," said Miami safety Lyle Blackwood. "They are just trying to draw attention to us."

The Jets retaliated with the frequently repeated allegation that Shula gets preferential treatment from officials because he is a member of the NFL Competition Committee, which determines NFL rules. The Miami coach bridled.

"I'm getting tired of answering that question," Shula said. "... I've had my share of penalties."

Then came a hint from Miami cornerback Gerald Small that once in a while, the Jets might sneak in a late hit.

"They have a couple of guys on their team who are known for cheap shots," Small said. Linebacker Tom "Newton is one of them and (Stan) Blinka has gotten that reputation. I think they get caught up in the game."

This time denial came from Woody Bennett, a former Jet running back who has seen action for the Dolphins in shortyardage situations the last three weeks.

"Well, you know, they really aren't cheap shot artists," Bennett said. "What they do is engage with a person and intimidate him."

"Everybody is trying to look out for Tom Newton. He's not really a cheap-shot artist. He's probably one of the best special teams players I've ever seen."

Greyhounds Hang 38th Loss On Howell; Girls Win

By BRENT SMARTT
Herald Sports Writer

From examining the fact that three-fourths isn't as much as a whole, one can understand the fate of coach Greg Robinson's frustrated Lake Howell Silver Hawks in their 53-46 defeat at the hands of Lyman's Greyhounds, in a Five Star Conference matchup in Longwood.

Shutout much of the initial period, Lake Howell, 0-15, saw its chances dwindle as Lyman raced to a 12-2 first-period edge. The Hawks would spend the remainder of the evening fighting this lead unsuccessfully.

"We're gonna have to do something to get us going in the first quarter," said Robinson after Howell lost its 38th straight game. "We played them (Lyman) pretty close in the second half. The first quarter just killed us."

Indeed the Hawks never did get going as Lyman's swarming zone press kept Howell from moving the ball over half court, not to mention to the bucket. Only a John Hamrick layup would avoid a first quarter shutout, but Lyman's failure to penetrate Howell's zone and missed opportunities would keep the Hawks somewhat in the contest.

In the second quarter, the Greyhounds got out early to run the margin to 18-4 on good guard play by Rod Hillman. After Lyman's early success, both clubs became error-prone as Lyman went into halftime with a 28-11 bulge.

The visiting Hawks finally got things hitting on all gears in the third, out-scoring the 'Hounds, 17-14, in the period on junior Efreem Brooks' 10-point quarter, mostly on long jumpers.

Heading into the final stanza, both clubs traded tallies much of the period with the 'Hounds' standout senior guard Alexis Cleveland and Howell's guards Brooks and Ed Norton providing the offense. At the midway point of the period, Howell would pull to 49-40 but the Hawks never got any closer or made any serious challenge.

"I thought we played real well in the first half," said Lyman boss, Lawrence.

Prep Basketball

"The second half was real methodical, but we played a good all-around team game. They played us even in the second half."

In the opposite lockerroom, Robinson, whose Hawks slip to 0-15 and 0-8 in conference play, could only wonder. "I think we're just in awe of some of the people we play at the beginning. I was pleased with the rebounding, but not at all with the free-throw shooting.

In the scoring column, Cleveland led Lyman, now 8-6 and 5-4 in the conference, with 20. Guard mate Hillman followed with 13 and center Tom Felter had 10. For Howell, Brooks finished with 18, while Norton had 9.

In the girl's preliminary Lake Howell's once-beat (17-1) and undefeated in Five-Star play (9-0) Lady Silver Hawks escaped with a 58-48 conference triumph.

Trailing much of the contest, Dennis Codrey's seventh-ranked Hawks shook their sloppy, early play to mount a late third-quarter surge to pull within one at 37-36 heading into the final stanza.

The turning point came in the fourth as coach Dick Copeland's 'Hounds attacked to match the Hawks in a running game.

Taking a 38-37 lead at the 7:00 mark, Howell held the lead through poor free-throw shooting, until the Lyman squad regained the edge at 43-42 at 4:44 on a Vikki McMurrer layup.

But at 4:06, Howell's lanky center Chiquita Miller hit a short jumper to reclaim the lead for good at 44-43. From here, Codrey's girls ran off four unanswered buckets to outdistance Lyman, 50-43, with 2:24 left.

Lyman bounced right back with five unanswered points of its own to close to 50-48 at 1:48 but that would end the Greyhound scoring on the night. Howell's Tammy Johnson quickly raced down-court for two quick counter tallies to ice the Lake Howell victory.

Howell's skipper Codrey held high praise for Lyman after the contest. "The Lyman girls did a good job tonight. They'll (Lyman) bounce back and be tough now."

"They're doing what they can do. We just got a few breaks otherwise they could have won this one," he added.

Lyman's Copeland pointed out his clubs downfall. "We started playing their game. We got into a running game with them and you just can't do that."

He also mentioned Howell's bench strength. "They just wore us down with all their good players off the bench. We also created some tiredness by running so much with them," he said.

In the statistics, Howell's Miller led all efforts with 22.

For the scrappy Greyhounds, McMurrer (16), Pam Jackson (12), and Kim Gorum (10) did the scoring.

...Peace Treaty Failed To Halt The War In Indochina

tended to 20 years and was released after a few months. Calley was the exception, of course. Most GIs fought the war as properly as they could under the circumstances. Still, the U.S. involvement was condemned around the world, by friends and foes alike, and millions of Americans were hopelessly divided by what seemed to be an endless slaughter. There were many attempts to end it, to be sure. But most of them were futile. Henry Cabot Lodge tried to arrange truce talks in Warsaw as early as 1966, but he failed. And Lyndon Johnson offered to meet North Vietnamese leaders on a neutral ship, in international waters, but they refused. Then, in 1968, U.S. troubleshooter W. Averell Harriman set up a peace conference in Paris. Harriman and Cyrus Vance represented the United States. The conference was held in the ornate grand ballroom what had once been the Majestic Hotel. And the atmosphere was thick with bitterness and acrimony. The South Vietnamese delegate refused to speak directly to Madam Nguyen Thi Binh, the representative of the Viet Cong, and the communists whined away long hours with sudden reports of no consequence. At first, the participants could not even agree on the shape of the table. Madam Binh objected to an oblong table because it had unequal sides. Pham Danh Lam, the chief negotiator for the South Vietnamese, turned down a square table because he opposed equality. Finally, the delegates agreed to a large round table, with green baize. That was to be the last agreement for more than four years. The parties continued to meet almost every week, but there was no progress to speak of through 1972. At one point in the negotiations, Madam Binh said the United States did not want peace so much as it wanted to murder children. Madam Binh said a lot of things during the sessions. She was more or less the top performer at the conference. She was graceful, sophisticated and full of hate; she gave interviews at a home in a Paris suburb, and wept convincingly when she told of Viet Cong suffering and solidarity. "I have seen babies with their legs blown off," she said once, "and I have seen wives collapse on the caskets of their husbands. But I have not seen surrender. We will not give up, either in Paris or in Vietnam. We will continue this struggle until the United States goes home." The U.S. started to do just that shortly after Nixon took office in 1969. In June of that year, when the number of U.S. troops in Vietnam stood at an unprecedented 541,000, he ordered the first of many withdrawals. By the end of 1972 there were only 27,000 American GIs remaining. Then, with the United States all but out, the Paris peace conference came suddenly to life. During one six-day period in mid-January, Henry Kissinger, Nixon's emissary to the talks, and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho talked privately for 35 hours. Afterward, Nixon called off the last of the bombing of the North Vietnamese, and a treaty was printed. The treaty covered nine main points, four of which were crucial. One, the cease fire would begin at 7 p.m., Washington time, Jan. 27. Two, the U.S. would withdraw completely in 60 days. Three, prisoners would be exchanged. And, four, the truce would be supervised by a 1,160 member commission with members from four nations. Le Duc Tho said the truce represented victory for the communists. South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu said it was a vindication for allied cooperation. But on balance, it was neither; Kissinger was to say later that it was a compromise struck by parties with no palatable alternatives. The compromise was sealed at a stiff, unemotional ceremony in Paris. It took 18 minutes. William Rogers signed for the U.S., using 20 pens. The Vietnamese belligerents would not shake hands for photographers. Kissinger said all of the delegates had aged during the peace process. But at least they survived it. Many others had not. More than 3 million people died during the war, and as many as 1 million of them may have been killed during the four years of the Paris conference. Actually, some 100 people died in Vietnam on the very day the truce was signed. One of the latter was an American army colonel named William Nolde. He was killed during an artillery bombardment of the U.S. military installation at An Loc. His wife said she had a premonition of it. He was from Mount Pleasant, Mich., and he was the last American to die before the peace. The colonel's death put a pall on peace celebrations in Mount Pleasant. But people there said there probably would not have been many shouts anyway. The war had become an embarrassment; Elton McNeil, a University of Minnesota psychiatrist, put it this way: "We just got garbagged." There were some festivities in Vietnam. Right after the peace announcement, Viet Cong flags were hoisted all around Saigon, and loudspeakers played martial music in Hanoi. Some of the GIs who were left put flowers in their rifle barrels, while others ceremoniously buried ammunition. Yet the relief in Vietnam was tempered by the ambiguities of the moment. Particularly those surrounding the keeping of the peace. Four nations had been chosen to oversee the Paris treaty, but bookmakers in Tay Ninh province were giving more than 30-to-one odds against their success. Sure enough, the bookmakers were right. Two million American servicemen could not force conciliation in Southeast Asia, and neither could the observers from Canada, Hungary, Indonesia and Poland. The fighting did not really stop in Vietnam, nor did it in neighboring Laos and Cambodia. Things got worse when the last of the U.S. troops departed in March of 1973. The South Vietnamese government was not strong enough to stand alone. In 1975 the communists took over the south, as U.S. diplomats fled in fear; the regimes in Laos and Cambodia also toppled. And fate was to be equally cruel to some of the human players in the Indo-Chinese drama. Two U.S. presidents were chased from office, for different reasons. One South Vietnam premier is now a liquor store owner in exile. And the Viet Cong stars have been largely ignored in the new Vietnam. Still, the future was not to be told on Jan. 23, 1973. So there was even some optimism on the day they signed the treaty. Pres. Nixon referred to a "peace with honor" five times during his announcement, and an opinion poll suggested that 58 percent of the people agreed with the assessment. Yes there were more sighs than cheers. And the Dow Jones stock market average dropped 13 points the following day. But ship captains blew their horns in the New Orleans harbor. And in Longmeadow, Mass., a bell that had been forged by Paul Revere was rung into the late hours of the night. In a few days the newspapers returned to Watergate. And more than 550 prisoners of war were repatriated. In a week Time magazine ran a cover story about popular music, and everybody was talking about a Marlon Brando sex film. For America, the war it couldn't win was at least completed.

...Truckers

van. For years prior to operating independently, he leased his equipment to a trucking company. "The federal taxes are very harsh," he said, estimating the new gas and use taxes will cost him an additional $5,000 a year. Ted Phipps and his wife, Harlean, of Plymouth, N.C., have been working together in the trucking industry for 22 years. "I've heard of the proposed strike," he said, "and I agree with them. I've got to participate." He pointed to his blue truck and trailer, noting it cost $125,000 and he has only one more year before it will be paid for. "We're about to go broke," he said. Harlean agreed, noting that last year while they grossed about $120,000, their net income was about $19,000. "The road and tire taxes are just too much," he said. "Everything we've got—our home and furnishings—are tied to this truck. The new federal taxes will cost us $1,800 to $2,800 more a year. We are struggling to haul freight now for the same amount we received four to five years ago. "We hauled cukes five years ago for the same rate and fuel costs three times as much. It used to cost $30 to get a load of cabbage unloaded and now it costs $75," Phipps said. Phipps said Harlean shares driving with him and is a big help. "If you're driving produce out of Florida to New York, you need two drivers," he said. "If we load up on Monday at 3, they want us in New York by Tuesday night." Phipps predicted that truckers who must go to or through Alabama, Ohio or Pennsylvania, will shut down. "If you roll trucks through those states during a strike, you'll be in trouble," he said, hinting at the violence that marked the truckers' strike of the '70s. Sidney Bunch of Tyler, N.C., an independent trucker for the past 27 years, said in the past a man could buy and pay for a truck, and pay a driver. "I sent my wife and daughter to college and set my son up in business with what I earned," Bunch said. "Now, I'm struggling to stay in business myself. "As soon as I get home from this trip, I'm going to park my truck in my yard. There are some young boys who are truckers out there and they will shoot your tires off," he said, noting that tires for an 18-wheeler cost more than $300 each. "Truckers are the worst enemy of truckers. If they would do this and do it in the right way, they might accomplish something," Bunch said. Bobby Short of Georgetown, Del. who has been in the business for three years says he could probably pay the additional five cents tax, but the increase in the highway tax is just more than he can afford. "I've damn near got to park my truck," he said. "Everybody's going to have to go on the strike. We can't afford to pay union men the costs of unloading and pay the higher fees too," he said. Short also said it won't be safe to drive on the roads in the North if the independent truckers go out on strike. He added, however, he can afford to sit the strike out. His wife is working. Detailing one financial aspect of the trucker's plight, Short said that the rate per case of cabbage out of Sanford has been $1.90. Two weeks ago Friday, however, the rate dropped to $1.50. "The legal limit is 780 boxes. At $1.90 a box, a load would have sold at the old rate for $1,482. Under the $1.50 rate, it sold for $1,170. A trucker would have lost $312 on that load," Short said. "No one is saying anything about raising the rates we can charge." The 55 mph speed limit was also a favorite complaint of the truckers interviewed. Without exception they said that abiding by that law is also an extra burden for big rig drivers. They said it takes more fuel to drive a truck at 55 miles per hour than it does at a higher speed. Meanwhile, the independent truckers are concerned not only about the highway use tax increases, but also about the proposed five-cent-a-gallon in taxes on fuel being considered in Florida and the proposed hike doubling of the cost of vehicle license plates. "I just don't believe the federal government and the states can blame the road deterioration on truckers," Short said. The others agreed. And Vicky Getman, of Vickie's permit service at the Farmer's Market, has taken the truckers' case to Tallahassee, speaking to legislators individually. "Some are listening," she said, adding that others are just plain rude.

for students to disassemble, repair, and reassemble brakes, engines, cooling systems and other parts of the car. In the final year of the program, students get hands-on experience repairing their own vehicles or cars brought in through the program. When a student graduates from the program he is qualified to work as a mechanic, Butcher said. While the program is in its first year, one student already is employed at a local garage, Butcher said. He also has several students who have jobs lined up after graduation.

"I keep records of their testing," he said. "If they apply for a job, I can take their records down to the employer and show him exactly what they can do." Catherine Alexander, who teaches secretarial and office skills at Seminole High, said her students also work in cooperative programs with local businesses. At graduation, many go on to work with the businesses where they served the internship, Mrs. Alexander said. Her students also receive training in job interview strategies.

"That's something we didn't have a few years ago," said Karen Coleman, an administrative trainee with the school district. "We prepared students for the job but didn't worry about training them for the interview," she said. And Seminole High Assistant Principal Jim Thompson said even though the school offers a wide range of specialized vocational skills, that training is only a part of the total school program. "We are a comprehensive school," Thompson said. "We provide opportunities for vocational training but we also give the regular academic curriculum."

Reagan To Propose Contingency Tax Hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan will propose in his 1984 budget about $135 billion in contingency tax increases for later years, including a possible oil import fee that may raise gasoline prices, if the deficit is too large. Despite congressional opposition to the idea, administration officials said Friday Reagan decided to include the contingency tax package in the budget proposal he will submit to Congress Jan. 31.

The taxes would take effect Oct. 1, 1985 if the deficit is higher than about $100 billion, administration officials said. Administration officials who asked not to be identified said Reagan will ask for a combination of energy taxes and an income surtax to raise $40 billion to $50 billion in fiscal 1986 and a total of about $135 billion over a three-year period. They said specific details had not been worked out.

Another item in the package is a one-time 4 percent to 5 percent surtax on income, similar to one President Lyndon Johnson imposed to help pay for the Vietnam War. The government also may try to tax employees for part of the health insurance contributions made by their employers, which could raise as much as $9.7 billion in fiscal 1986.

Clayda and Ashby Jones are both artists — in different areas. He is the painter and she arranges flowers — among her other artistic endeavors.

Cooking breakfast for large crowds is just one of Ashby Jones' volunteer services. He says, 'I can't cook past 10 a.m. After that, all of my culinary arts go out of the window.'

Ashby Jones A Sanford Man For All Seasons

By DORIS DIETRICH
PEOPLE Editor

Ashby Jones changes hats often during a normal, busy day. And he always has. The 60-year-old public servant from Sanford is husband, father, grandfather, teacher, singer, artist and sometimes a breakfast cook if he is cornered early in the morning.

"I can't cook past 10 a.m.," the pleasant volunteer says. "After that, all my culinary arts go out of the window." A self-described ham, as he calmly puts it, Ashby is likely to be cast center stage in a comedy skit now and then. He is willing to attempt just about anything.

Ashby Jones is a man for all seasons. Born in Columbus, Ga. Ashby's family moved to Sanford from Daytona Beach in 1937. His father owned a drug store where the Perkins Men's Store is now located on East First Street. After Ashby graduated from Seminole High School in 1940, his family moved to Ocala.

Prior to entering Seminole County government in 1961, Ashby put in 11 years on the railroad, worked as bookkeeper for Wall Plumbing and clerked at "Doc" McReynolds Drug Store nights.

He also spent several years working in the insurance field and served a hitch in the U.S. Navy.

On his job at Seminole County Courthouse, Jones serves as deputy clerk under Arthur Beckwith Jr., Clerk of Circuit Court for Seminole County.

Ashby has been a member of the Kiwanis Club for 17 years. Weekly at 7:30 a.m., his wits are constructively criticized at the Sanford Toastmasters Club meeting.

An active member of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford, Ashby has held nearly every office in the church. Presently he sings in the choir and has taught a Sunday School class for "12 or 15 years," he says. "What started out as young adults is now middle-aged," he laughs.

About 12 years ago, Ashby began taking art seriously. Having studied mechanical drawing, "I knew perspective pretty well," he says. He signed up for art classes at Seminole Community College in 1970 under Beth Hodges. "She is a very good artist," he acknowledges.

Later he studied under E.B. Stowe of Indian Mound Village, Sanford, and Judy Maloney, Sanford. He is a member of the Sanford Seminole Art Association and exhibits in all of the SSAA member shows.

Ashby's attractive wife of 40 years, Clayda, shares his enthusiasm for painting, a perfect complement to her music and writing. She also sings in the church choir. Explaining that she is not an artist, Clayda pointed to a still life she painted. "He stood over me and told me every stroke to make," she laughs.

The Jones charming home in Idyllwilde is a melange of soft citrus tones in yellows and pale greens, Clayda's favorite colors. Over the cozy round ice cream parlor type table in the breakfast nook is a collage of the Joneses two grandsons, "so that we can enjoy them," the proud grandmother beams.

Clayda and Ashby are the parents of two children, Leslie Jones, a legal secretary in Memphis, and Glenn Jones, music director for Seabreeze Junior High School, Daytona Beach.

The Jones home has all the elements for a superbly staged art show. Seascapes, landscapes and still life paintings are tastefully displayed on the walls of every room. Splashes of carefully combined colors artistically incorporated on canvas is Ashby's style of expressing himself.

On one wall of his meticulously neat home studio is a framed poem, "The Artist," written by Clayda. Mementos, tubes of oil paints, brushes and thinner indicate the busy artist's love for his rewarding avocation.

Proudly showing a silver medal he won in Sanford's Golden Age Games for Art was followed by a wide grin while Ashby explained the gold medal—won for his art during the 1982 Golden Age Games. "I'm really proud of this one," he says.

Clayda travels with Ashby several times a year to art shows in which he exhibits and sells. Sometimes he gets his price and sometimes he doesn't. "I kind of make enough to get the frames paid for and about break even," he explains.

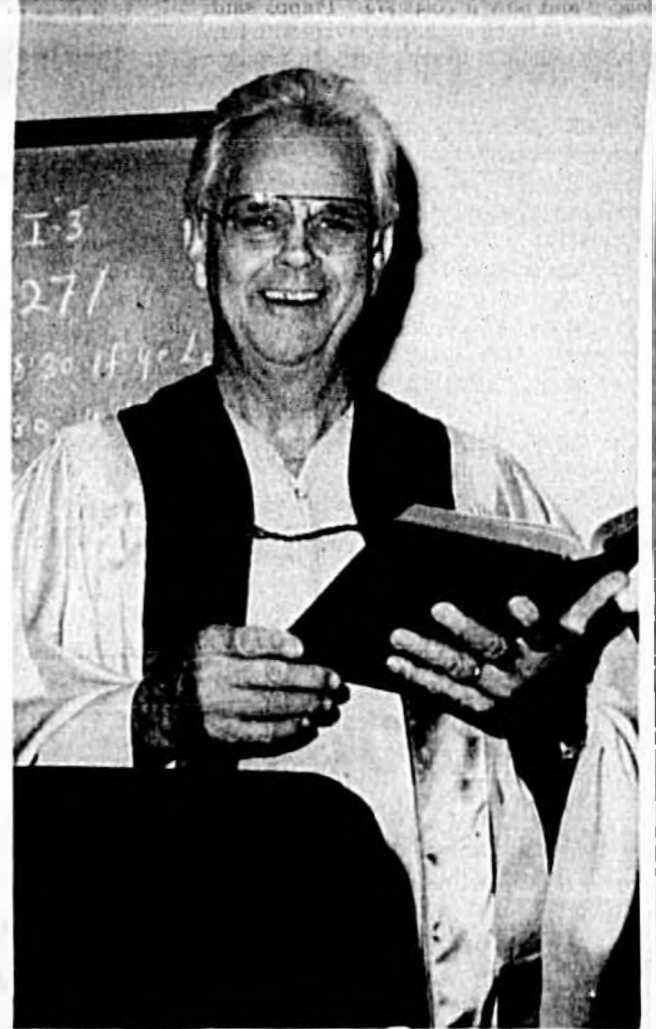

An artist's lot is not easy. Art enthusiasts can be painstakingly picky. A critic either likes a painting—or dislikes it. "If (painting) isn't lucrative unless you paint fulltime or are established," he says.

Ashby mentioned the forthcoming SSAA member show on Feb. 26 where he will be exhibiting and selling. The show, free to the public, will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center.

The Joneses are a happy, sharing couple who pitch in when needed—from loading the home dishwasher to giving the community a helping hand. They share many common interests—from digging in the good earth to exploring all facets of the fine arts.

Ashby says, "If you take the Golden Rule seriously, it helps." This is his creed—his philosophy: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Ashby Jones sings in the church choir.

Grand Prix Racers Line Up, Speculate And Crash

By KAREN WARNER
Herald Correspondent

The sun was just beginning to rise as the cars and trailers began to arrive in the pit area at the NCR parking lot, Lake Mary, for the Second Annual Grand Prix. It was a cool brisk morning and a gusty breeze added a chill that you could feel all the way down to your bones.

Volunteers were arriving in preparation for the two days of racing. There were tables to be set up, and mountains of tires to be placed around the curves to act as safety buffers. Officials were slowly making their way around the point nine mile track checking for possible obstructions or hazards.

Many of the racers had already spent two weeks preparing for this weekend—spending all of their free time replacing and repairing worn parts.

The drivers and pit crews worked together to unload the gear they had brought with them and gently lifted out the go-karts. The only distraction they allowed was in taking time to greet the other drivers as they arrived.

Most of them knew each other, and greeted each other with hand shakes and slaps on the back. They laughingly joked to one another about past races and their victories and defeats.

Two hours of set-up was ahead of them to be ready for the warm-ups that they greatly needed. With wrenches in chilled hands, every engine bolt would need to be tightened, the clutch and gears would be adjusted, air pressure in the tires would be checked and the mix of the fuel would be tested.

Then, slowly, the driver would slide into the seat and sit there for awhile and get the feel of the kart, again carefully checking the steering and pedals. After the kart was completely set-up to the drivers' satisfaction, they would have to register, then go to the weight scale for a final check.

The different classes of racing are decided by the weight of the kart and driver. Many of the drivers will run in more than one class by changing the weight of the kart. They can add lead weights or delete them to get in under the weight requirements.

The drivers vary in age. Most of them are from late teens to early 30s. Many brought their wives and children along for the extra support. Nothing to do now, but wait until race time.

One by one, they silently lined up at the starting line. Nervously they waited for the time that the silence would be broken with the explosion of engines wanting to break free into full throttle. The drivers could hear the pounding of their hearts and the blood rushing through their veins. Hesitantly, as they adjusted their helmets, they would look from left to right, at the karts and drivers beside them at the starting line. Who will the winner be?

They pushed aside any thoughts they had about the danger they were going to face. Hidden by the gloves they wore were sweating palms, firmly holding the steering wheel. On the outside they gave the appearance of being cool and calm, but even the spectators could sense the excitement and anticipation the drivers were feeling. This was, after all the moment they had worked so hard for.

To some, it was just for fun. But for many it was a chance to test their skill, in a serious challenge of man against man, kart against kart.

The flagman entered into view and in his hand was the symbol that the race was about to begin. The drivers started their engines. Slowly, the flag was raised, and paused, for what seemed like an endless time. Every muscle in the drivers' bodies tightened and the pounding in their chest increased. There was a lump in their throats that made it impossible to swallow. Suddenly the flag was lowered and the air was filled with the sound of screaming engines. The race has begun.

Among the many trophies that could be handed out over the two days of racing created some problems for several racers. Howard Lewis, a five year veteran of the racing circuit, had his share of them. Over the 2-day races, Howard had a total of three clutches blow on him. He was able to make repairs and still get some racing in. He placed fourth place in one heat, and eighth place in two others.

When asked about the track set up at NCR, he said "It's great. Some of the curves are really dangerous, but the track is one of the best I've raced on." Howard has two young daughters that get to spend the weekend at grandma's house while he races. He said "It's a great time for my wife and I to spend some time alone."

Will he allow his daughters to follow in his footsteps? "Not if I have anything to do with it," he chuckled.

He is employed with United Telephone as a repair and installation man who lives in Longwood.

Curtis Hoffman, 225 Ridge Road, Lake Mary, and his new $2,000 Yamaha 100 CC were not as fortunate.

On Saturday, 19-year-old Curtis was excited about this race. It was to be the fifth race he has ever been in. He was doing fine until he was going around a curve and the kart in front of him stalled, causing Curtis to swerve to avoid a collision. His kart hit an embankment, flipped into the air, throwing him up about four feet and into a ravine on the side of the track.

Ambulance workers rushed down the ravine and gave medical assistance to Curtis, who was thought to have suffered a leg fracture. A splint was applied and he was rushed to the hospital via ambulance.

Luckily Curtis was not seriously injured. But he did receive several torn ligaments in his leg, a shoulder popped from its socket and several bruises. He was able to leave the hospital with the aid of crutches.

Curtis, a strong and determined young man, while waiting for the X-rays, asked his mom if she thought his kart could be fixed in time for Sunday's races. He was unaware that he had totaled out his kart.

He was up and around on Sunday, at the track, but this time only as a spectator. By the end of the afternoon, Curtis had already picked out the kart he is going to purchase.

In speaking with Curtis on Sunday, he explained that "you take a chance every time that you get out on the track. The possibility is always there. I don't intend for this to stop me."

Aside from his racing, he intends to enroll in a business course at Seminole Community College.

First Mistake Fooling Around; Second, Telling Wife

DEAR ABBY: My parents have been married for over 35 years. They've raised a fine family and deserve to have a wonderful retirement. But something happened about 10 years ago that has had a devastating effect on their marriage, and things have been going downhill ever since.

My father had an affair with a woman of questionable character. It lasted three years. No one knew (no gossip), but for some reason he unloaded the whole story on my mother. She couldn't eat for weeks, and she was so shaken and distraught she required medical treatment. To this day she is a very bitter woman. Their relationship is only tolerable, even though my father has done everything in his power to make it up to her.

They tried counseling. It helped him to forgive himself, but it hasn't helped her to forgive him.

Can a woman ever really forgive an unfaithful spouse? I know if the shoe were on the other foot, Dad would have forgiven her. Is there such a thing as male and female mentality? How can we help Mother?

Dear Abby

DAUGHTER IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR DAUGHTER: The ability to forgive an unfaithful spouse comes no more easily to a man than a woman. "Confessions" of this kind usually do more harm than good. That was your father's second mistake. (The first was fooling around with another woman.)

Yes, women can forgive if they really want to. Your mother needs to get into therapy to find out why she's hanging on to her bitterness. Urge her to get help. If she refuses, she's expressing her sick determination to suffer — and make everyone around her miserable, too.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old, average-looking male with a four-year college education who seems to have terrible luck finding a young woman. I have joined dating clubs, which cost me a lot and got me nowhere. I am not in the habit of going to bars, but I was so desperate for female companionship one night I went to a bar and picked up a young woman and she turned out to be a prostitute.

I see guys all around me with girls, and they don't appear to have any more on the ball than I have. What's wrong with me? I'm starting to worry about myself, Abby. I've even prayed to St. Jude, and I'm not even Catholic.

I consider having a companion of the opposite sex more important than a job or career. I want someone to share my life with. Without that, everything else is meaningless. Can you help me?

LONELY IN DENVER
DEAR LONELY: What are your outside interests? The theater? Music? Museums? Art? Dancing? Sports? Antique cars? There are any number of places to meet people (church included) that will bring you into contact with women whose interests are the same as yours, which is a good starting point. Enroll in some extension courses at your local university. And let everyone at work know that you're interested in meeting someone. Everyone has a "lovely" cousin, niece, neighbor or friend who is itching to meet a nice guy who doesn't want to go to bars to meet a nice girl.

Every teenager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a loong, stamped (37 cents), addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 33223, Hollywood, Calif. 90032.

In And Around Lake Mary Thanks To Volunteers, CIA Building $$ Boosted

The Lake Mary CIA is trying to recuperate this week from the weeks and hours of work and planning that went into making the Grand Prix races successful.

It is fortunate to have a group of such dedicated people who gave so much of themselves in helping to make Lake Mary the growing and beautiful community that it is.

The proceeds from this event (about $5,000) will be used in the community Center Building Fund, which is a greatly needed facility that will be of benefit to the entire area.

A special thank you to CIA president Dick Fess for the time he gave, and also to the hundreds of volunteers who worked so hard.

The CIA has an annual meeting set for Jan. 24 at 8:00 p.m. in city hall. The agenda includes a retrospective look into the past year of service and suggestions on any improvements that could be made. There are also three seats open on the Board of Directors and elections will be held to fill the vacancies.

Nominations of new officers will also be accepted. The meeting is open to the public. Community involvement is encouraged.

A meeting of the Planning and Zoning Board is set for 8 p.m. Jan. 25 at city hall.

The Lake Mary Woman's Club will meet at the fire hall on Jan. 27 at 10 a.m. Planned in a program presented by Bob Stoddard, Public Relations officer of the

Lake Mary Correspondent
323-9034

Karen Warner

Lake Mary Fire Department.

Bob will be speaking on Fire Prevention in the home. The women will be given a tour of the fire hall and the equipment that is used by the fire fighters. Following will be a luncheon at Cafe Sorrento.

Seminole Heights Baptist Church will begin a new Bible Study Program on Jan. 30. This study will take a revealing look into the New Testament book of 1st Peter.

The study begins Sunday, Jan. 30 at 6 p.m. in the auditorium at Lake Mary High School, and will continue, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Covenant Presbyterian Church, corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and U.S. Highway 17-92.

On Jan. 5, 12 Brownies from Troop 905 in Lake Mary, had a great time at Sea World. The trip was planned to teach the girls about the adaptability of mammals such as seals and otters.

A special performance of the sea lions and otters was put on in honor of the Troop. Adding to the excitement was a 600 pound sea lion that came up into the audience to give the Brownies kisses.

It's Girl Scout Cookie time again. On Jan. 26 the sale will officially begin. Door to door sales will be kept down to a minimum for safety reasons so in order to purchase cookies you may have to go to these designated areas: Brownie Troop No. 504, under leadership of Donna Young, will have a booth out at Flea World on U.S. Highway 17-92; Jan. 29 and 30, Brownie Troop No. 905, under leadership of Donna Foley, will have a table set up at Winn Dixie food store the same weekend. Junior Troop No. 441, under leadership of Peggy Stickler, will be at Flea World the following Saturday, Feb. 5.

The Brownies of Troop No. 504 are trying to raise money so they can spend a week at Girl Scout Camp Makahwee in Chuluota and if possible, a trip to Disney World. Junior Troop No. 441 is saving for a trip to the home of Juliet Lowe, founder of the Girl Scouts, in Savannah, Ga.

According to Peggy Stickler, many young girls who are interested in becoming Juniors cannot because there are not enough leaders for that age group. They are on a waiting list. If anyone is interested in becoming a leader, please contact Peggy at 323-1838.

This column is for the people of Lake Mary and encourages readers' participation. If you have any information that would be of interest to the community, special birthdays or anniversaries, or parties, call me at 323-9034.

Students Named To Honor Society

Twenty-four Seminole County students attending the University of Central Florida have been initiated into Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society for overall academic excellence founded in 1897 at the University of Maine.

Among those honored at the traditional campus ceremony are:
From Winter Springs: Alicia L. Key, Judith A. Phelps, Toni L. Schillo and Linda Van De Graff.

Mrs. D. C. Spivey, program chairman of Mimosa Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford, presents Wildflower seed to Jack Reed, roadside development coordinator for Florida's Department of Transportation.

I-4 Beautification Set By Garden Club Circle

Mimosa Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford became interested in having a program on Wildflowers during the past club year, according to Mrs. D. C. Spivey, program chairman, who conducted a research, followed by the presentation of a program.

After speaking to Mimosa Circle, Mrs. Spivey was invited to speak to Central Circle and to the Garden Club of Sanford Horticulture Committee.

As a result of this program, the circle agreed to contact Mrs. Hugh Simmons, the Council of State Garden Clubs. Roadside Development Chairman for information concerning planting Wildflowers along Florida's Interstate Highways.

Mrs. Simmons supplied the information needed but by this time the planting season was over for last year. It was decided to wait until this club year to purchase and gather the seed.

At this time, Mimosa Circle is presenting Wildflower Seed to Jack Reed, roadside development coordinator of the State of Florida Department of Transportation. Reed says he will see that the seed are planted and taken care of.

"Reed is a very congenial and helpful person," Mrs. Spivey says. "We gratefully acknowledge his assistance in this project."

Any other circle or club interested in helping Mimosa Circle beautify Interstate 4 with Wildflowers should contact him (904-734-2171), Mrs. Spivey says.

Society Honors Minott With Distinguished Service Award

It was like attending the Metropolitan Opera while listening to Sanford's songbird, Mrs. Patricia Merritt Hitchmon when she appeared in a concert with accompanists Sandra Petty and Dale Stafford.

The Afro-American Society of Seminole Community College sponsored Heritage Jubilee, a celebration of Black Leadership, Jan. 14, at the SCC Concert Hall.

The evening of music was held in commemoration of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on his birthday. Heritage Jubilee is a varied and spirited celebration of leadership in America with special emphasis on the contributions of all black leaders who are too often forgotten.

The prayer was offered by the Rev. Robert Doctor and the welcome was given by Dr. Earl Weldon, president of SCC. Vice president of the Afro-American Society Barbara Jackson gave the invocation.

Selections sung by soloist Patricia Merritt Hitchmon, were "Ave Maria" by Franz Schubert, "He Shall Feed His Flock," recitative and aria from "The Messiah" by Georg F. Handel and several other pieces.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of the 1983 Distinguished Service Award to Earl E. Minott in recognition of three decades of unselfish, dedicated devotion as a musician and educator to thousands of students and persons who have passed his way.

Mr. Minott was the recipient of many awards and plaques presented to him by his family, church, Seminole High School and other organizations. He has touched the lives of many in Sanford, and other communities.

His dream as a young man was to be a musician, teacher and leader in the community in which he lives. For over 30 years he has inspired many a young mind in the school system of Sanford and Seminole County.

He is presently assistant principal 11 at Seminole High School where he is well-respected and loved by his co-workers and students.

Even with a busy school schedule, Mr. Minott is organist and an ordained deacon of St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church; vice president, Seminole Chapter, Florida A and M University Alumni Association; music director of the Bicentennial Concert Choir; Esteemed Lecturing Knight, IBPO Elks of the World and secretary, Kiwanis Club of East-West Sanford.

He also belongs to the local National Education Association, Phi Delta Kappa, Greater Orlando Chapter, National Association of Notaries and is VIP representative for the Central Florida United Cerebral Palsy.

Briefly

Youth Quake '83 Features Singer And All-American

Youth Quake '83, an advance feature event of the upcoming Central Florida Billy Graham Crusade, will be held Friday, at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Orlando.

Larnelle Harris, popular young Gospel singer whose fourth album received the Dove Award for Best Contemporary Black Gospel Album, will be featured as guest soloist.

Recently chosen as Best Male Vocalist by Religion in Media, Harris has sung in several Billy Graham Crusades, and has appeared on national television.

Also appearing at the Youth Quake will be Darby Cottle, a Florida State University senior and two-time All-American shortstop for the FSU girls' softball team.

Active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes at FSU, Miss Cottle played for two years on the national championship softball team. In 1981 she was named top amateur softball player of the year by the U.S. Olympic Committee, and in 1982 she won the Broderick Award for Softball.

Admission will be free for this first of two Youth Quakes scheduled in advance of the Central Florida Billy Graham Crusade, April 10-17, in the Tangerine Bowl.

January Bible Study

The First Baptist Church, Sanford, will begin its January Bible Study on Sunday in the 11 a.m. worship hour. The theme of the study will be "A Message of Encouragement," which takes its text from 1 Peter. The study is approved by the Southern Baptist Convention and will be led by the Rev. Paul E. Murphy.

OMS Mission Conference

The 28th Annual Missions Conference, sponsored by OMS International, will convene, Thursday evening through Sunday at the Lake Yale Baptist Assembly, on Route 452 between Leesburg and Eustis.

The conference begins 7:15 p.m. Thursday with music led by the Rev. Howard Jacob of Allentown, Pa. Speakers for the conference will be: The Rev. J. B. Crouse of Korea, the Rev. John Woodhouse of Tell the World Crusades, Dr. Ed Kilbourne missionary to Peking, China, and Korea, now vice-president-at-large for OMS and the Rev. Harold Brown of Haiti.

Other features of the conference will be the World Intercessor rally on Friday at 1:15 p.m. led by Alice Huff, director of World Intercessors for OMS. On Saturday afternoon seminars will be conducted by Men for Missions, led by S. E. director Francis Mula, Motivated Woman by Faith Weber and Development by Charles Spicer. Men for Missions founder Dwight Ferguson will also be at the conference.

After the seminars on Saturday afternoon there will be reports by the Rev. Dale McClain, of Casselberry, missionary returning to Hong Kong and the Rev. Harold J. Peasley of South Africa.

The conference closes on Sunday with Bible study hour at 9 a.m. followed by a missionary panel and closing message by Rev. Crouse.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Lake Yale Baptist Assembly (904) 357-3050.

Mission Emphasis

The annual mission emphasis weekend at Community United Methodist Church, Highway 17-92, Casselberry, will begin with a dinner Saturday, Jan. 29 at 6:30 p.m. in fellowship hall. The Rev. Virgil E. Maybray, executive secretary of the Evangelical Council of Good News, Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. Mabry will lead the conference. He will speak at the dinner, which will be followed by a slide-tape presentation on the work of Wycliffe Bible Translators Pat and Melinda Edmiston, members of the church, in Papua, New Guinea. On Sunday there will be a breakfast followed by church services and Sunday School at 9:30 and 11 a.m. Local missions sponsored by the church will also be represented.

Joy Fellowship Has Study

The Joy Fellowship women's group of Trinity Assembly of God will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the church at 875 Elkcam Boulevard, Deltona. Mrs. Nancy Evans is leading a series on "A Measure of a Woman."

Annual Meeting At Trinity

Trinity Assembly of God, 875 Elkcam Boulevard, Deltona, will hold its annual business meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the church sanctuary.

Youth Alive Sharing

The Youth Alive Fellowship (ages 13-18) of Trinity Assembly of God, Deltona, will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the church under the direction of Youth Pastor Mike Modica. Afterwards they will go out for pizza.

Center Elects

The Sanford Christian Sharing Center has elected Gary De Busk, pastor of Ravenna Park Baptist Church to serve as president and Annabelle Henderson of First Presbyterian Church, Sanford, as vice president.

PIE IN THE EYE

All set for the "Pie in the Eye" Choir enrollment contest, Feb. 6-March 6, between First Baptist Church of Sanford and First Baptist, Winter Park are David Haines (left), minister of music at Sanford and Billy Jack, minister of music, at Winter Park, while their music secretaries, Marilyn Wright, left, and Sue Pearson stand by crutches and wheelchair in case one of the choir directors should get injured in the "battle." The contest will culminate in a fellowship picnic at which the losers will treat the winners and losing director will get a pie in his face. Purpose of the event is to create rapport between the churches as well as increase choir membership.

Tuskawilla United Methodist Church on Red Bug Lake Road, Casselberry, recently consecrated first phase of its facility.

Church Holds Consecration

Tuskawilla United Methodist Church, located in one of the fastest growing areas of Central Florida, recently consecrated its new $324,000 facility at 3925 Red Bug Lake Road, Casselberry.

The 7,000 square-foot multi-purpose building designed by architect Lynn Ten Eyck, is the first phase of a planned building program. Bomar Construction Inc. was the contractor.

The Rev. Barbara Williams Riddle, minister, began the church which celebrated its second birthday in December, with 18 persons in attendance. The church, which grew 60 percent in membership last year, now has 190 members and an average attendance of 170. Prior to completion of the new building, the congregation met in the Red Bug Elementary School.

The church received a $100,000 gift from the Orlando District to its building fund and a $200,000 loan at nine percent interest from the Florida Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Orlando District Superintendent Robert Bledsoe was the guest speaker for the Jan. 9 consecration service. The choir from the Santalando United Methodist Church, where Mrs. Riddle's husband, James, serves as minister of music, joined with the Tuskawilla Choir to provide special music.

The building includes a large flexible room with folding doors, which serves as a worship center and meeting room, eight classrooms, two offices, and a kitchen.

Mrs. Riddle credits the population explosion in the area of the church as one reason for the congregation's rapid growth. "We have 10-20 visitors each Sunday," she added.

Anger Is Dangerous To Health

Violence, we all agree, is bad. But what about anger, which gives rise to violence—and to broken families, mental illness and much of our unhappiness. Is anger bad too?

On that we do not all agree. In the January issue of Psychology Today magazine, a clinical professor of behavioral medicine and psychiatry at the University of Virginia gives a long list of troubles that follow in the train of suppressed anger — including greater risk of premature heart attack and major dental problems as well as increased hostility and heightened probability of homicide and spouse and child abuse.

Dr. W. Doyle Gentry is responding to a writer in the November issue of the same magazine who cited new research indicating "there is little evidence that suppressing anger is dangerous to health."

Gentry's further point is that suppressing anger may be dangerous not only to the angry person's health but to the health of the person he is angry at — that is, suppressing anger can lead to violence. By letting your anger out in words, you and your opponent have something to talk about which can forestall a rain of harmful blows.

What did Jesus say about anger? We don't really know. According to the King James Version of the Bible, Jesus said in the Sermon on the Mount, "He that is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment." But a later translation, "The New Oxford Bible," omits the words, "without a cause."

This follows many of the earliest manuscripts of the Bible which quote Jesus as saying simply, "He that is angry with his brother shall be in danger of the judgment." Some scholars feel the words, "without a cause," are an addition of later Bible editors.

Even if anger may be called for at times, I agree with those who say that we are living in an age that "defies" the expression of anger.

"Anger today is becoming one of our most praised values," writes Melvin Maddocks, a columnist for the Christian Science Monitor. "In raising anger to an emotional ideal, we have gravely misgauged the limited utility of adrenalin's quick flashes."

What can we do about it? "There is one thing we can do about it," says Maddocks. "We can refuse to glamorize anger, especially when it is self-indulgence — the sound of baby shoes stomping."

Religion Is Not Dying

Today a lot of people are lamenting over the decline of religion, but the interesting thing is that this has always been so. Nietzsche, back in the 1800s, wrote a book on the first page of which Zarathustra is made to ask, "does the man not know that God is dead?" And a generation ago, Harry E. Barnes entitled a book, "The Twilight of Christianity."

But I expect come next Sunday millions of people will still be worshipping in churches, and a century from now, the same will be true. Why will religion not die? Because it has a powerful hold on us; it ministers to human needs. It is one of these needs I wish to discuss in this article: THE UNQUENCHABLE THIRST FOR MEANING IN LIFE.

Animals do not seem to be disturbed about the meaning of anything. No squirrel bothers about why it is a squirrel. But a human is always wondering, wondering, wondering. Why am I what I am? Who am I? Sometimes he tries to forget himself in "pastimes" but always something breaks through the crust of forgetfulness and wrings from him the question: "What meaning does my life have?" and there is no answer that can be supplied by gadgetry or science.

I feel certain that Time magazine isn't concerned with promoting religion, but sometime ago one of its stories started with Marx's famous assertion: "It's the people's opiate. Common people will never be happy until religion is abolished." (Marx said that more than 150 years ago, and it still seems to be the Communist party's official line.)

Time's article went on to state: "Behind the Iron Curtain a dreadful question is often heard

Saints And Sinners
George Plagenz

Robert Raines, who wrote "To Kiss the Joy," is another who believes that one thing this world needs is a thermostat for hotheads.

"Sometimes when I let all my anger out," says Raines, "it may give me momentary relief but it may destroy someone else. Sometimes I should hold my anger in for the sake of another."

Now we are back to where we began. Won't holding in our anger be dangerous?

"There is not one shred of evidence that it is dangerous to suppress anger," says Dr. John Decker, a physiologist at Arizona State University. Anger is a deliberate choice, he says, and can be avoided with no ill effects.

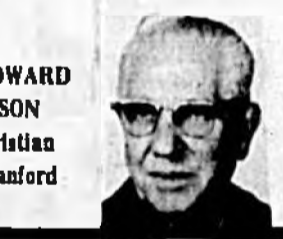

Anger, once forgotten, has no more force, Decker insists. It is when a person continues to harass himself by remembering old hurts that anger may well cause depression — and worse.

This person experiences the hurt not once but maybe a hundred times "and a person can stand only so many defeats."

Open House

The four-day Lutheran Open House begins Jan. 30 at Redeemer Lutheran Church, at 2525 Oak Ave., Sanford, with special 7:30 p.m. services featuring guest speaker the Rev. Jan Munch of Decatur, Ill.

"The whole community is invited to drop in and get better acquainted said the pastor, the Rev. E.A. Reuscher. For additional details call 322-3552.

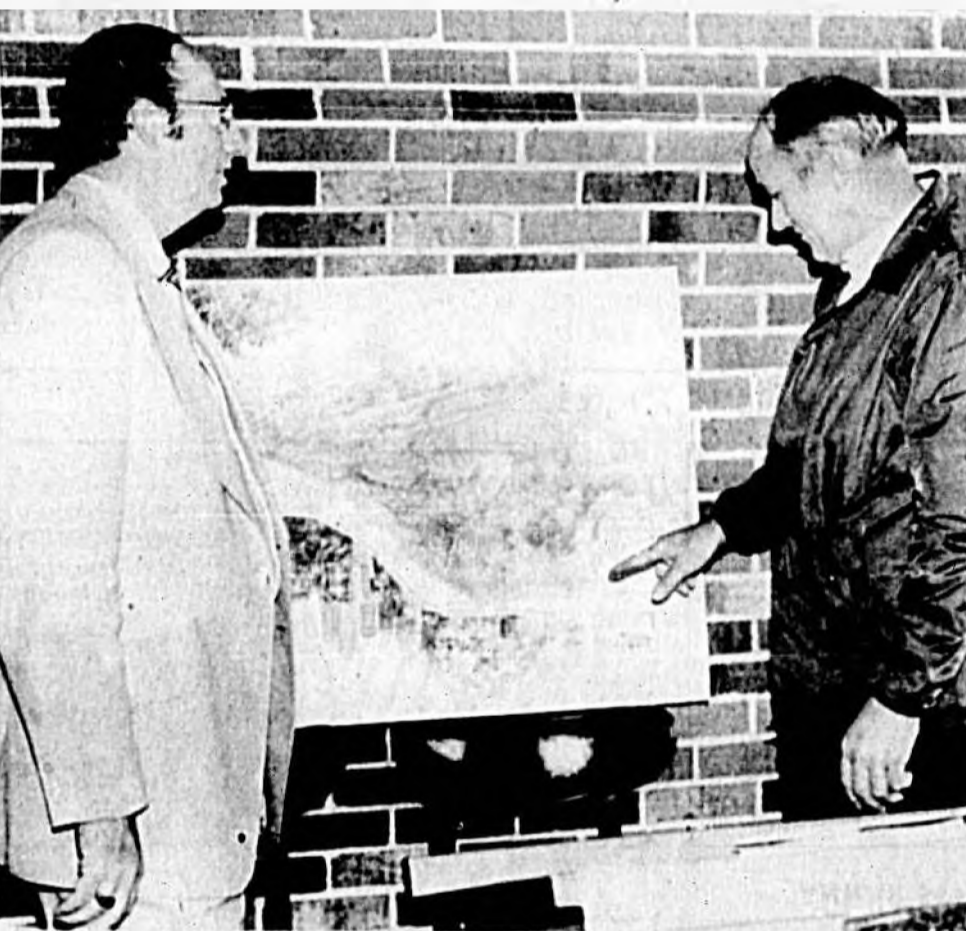

REV. S. EDWARD JOHNSON
First Christian Church, Sanford

in homes, cafes, and classrooms: "What is the meaning of life? Polish young people, the article went on, are bothered by it. A student in Warsaw asked, 'Professor, could you tell me the meaning of life?' The professor paused a moment, then he said, "We Marxists have always pooch-pooched this question, and said the idea of God is a superstition. But now I think that as long as people suffer, die, or lose what they love, the question about God will always come up."

Then he concluded — and the Time reporter said it was almost as if he wistfully glanced over his shoulder at Moses, Isaiah and Jesus "maybe we need some beliefs that will satisfy a person's deepest questions."

I feel certain that there is in all of us an unquenchable thirst for meaning in our lives. No one ever obliterates religion. "Lord, to whom else shall we go, You have the words of eternal life." No, my friends, I can never believe that religion is in danger of dying — not so long as we humans are interested in life. To find meaning in our lives much of the time we have to live on faith even when we don't have the answers to all of our questions, but of this we can be sure, if we hold on we will later enjoy the privilege of understanding, and even give thanks, for what we are and who we are.

SUNRISE SERVICE

Sanford Ministerial Association President Peter Courlas, pastor of Sanford Alliance Church, left, discusses plans for Easter Sunrise service to be held April 3 on Lake Monroe, with Hulon Black, right, who is chairman of the event. Tentative plans call for having the speaker and massed choirs to be aboard the Bay Queen cruise boat off shore.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Bridge hand analysis. North: ♠ J73, ♥ AK, ♦ KJ754, ♣ AK2. East: ♠ A982, ♥ 107653, ♦ 8, ♣ 74. South: ♠ KQ1664, ♥ J9, ♦ AQ102, ♣ J10. Dealer: South. Vulnerable: East-West. Opening lead: ♠8. Analysis: South won the diamond lead in dummy and led the three trumps to his king, which held the trick. A second trump went to dummy's jack as West ducked again. At this point, South stopped to figure out if he could guard against the possibility that West might just have been dealt one diamond and two clubs. Then South justified his faith in his ability to play the dummy. He cashed dummy's ace-king of hearts and clubs before leading that third trump. West won and led a heart. South ruffed, drew the last trump and claimed his contract. Note that if South had led that third trump before playing those ace-kings he would have been struck in dummy and unable to get to his hand to shut out West's nine of spades. HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, January 23, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY January 23, 1983. Although it may not come in a sudden windfall, if you have patience and persistence the chances to strengthen your material security are good in the year ahead. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's true that you have rights, but so do the other guys. Don't get so locked-in on something that you fail to respect the family's interests. 1983 predictions for Aquarius are now ready. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those days when you could be a trifle too emotional, and overreach to situations. Be aware of the problem and you should be able to control it. ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a tendency to reward the new and exciting person in your life. This is fine, but take care not to slight an old pal in the process. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In your determination to achieve your goals today, take care you don't appear to be too self-serving. Your image would suffer. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) One of your greatest assets is your curiosity about everything, but if you lack purpose in life this can also work against you. Follow a blueprint. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should a misunderstanding arise today with a pal over something material, ask yourself if it's more valuable to you than the friendship. You might back off. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone of whom you thought quite highly may disappoint you today. Don't let this spoil the association. We are all human. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you have any doubts about the outcome of an innovative project, it's best to back off for the time being. This is not one of your more creative days. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'd be better off spending a quiet day at home today. You're not in the mood for a lot of frolicking. Your patience might be short. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Tolerance may be called for today in dealing with family members, especially your mate. Be a good sport. Turn the other cheek instead of arguing. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's a rarity when your mental faculties are out of order, but today could be one of those days. Don't tackle any thought-provoking projects. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If possible, avoid all financial transactions today, whether they be shopping, renegotiating allowances or gambling. Chances are you'd come out on the short end.

For Monday, January 24, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY January 24, 1983. Benefits could develop for you this coming year through your affiliation with clubs or political groups. It will behoove you to get out and make new contacts. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your purse could suffer today if you pal around with free-spending companions. You have some extravagant whims which they may trigger. 1983 predictions for Aquarians are now ready. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Guard against tendencies today to seek to place the blame on others for things for which they are not responsible. Admit to your mistakes. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Rather than stick with unworkable ideas today, be prepared to adjust your thinking. Be open-minded as to suggestions. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep a tight reign on your financial expenditures today. If you let your guard down, there's a chance you'll spend more than you should. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Both you and your mate must be careful today not to do things the other finds objectionable. Even small disagreements could get out of hand. CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you fail to keep pace with your duties today, things could begin to pile up and cause you frustrations. You won't work well under pressure. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to put yourself in a position today where control of important matters is in the hands of others. Maintain authority. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your possibilities for success will be lessened considerably today if you do things fitfully. Be persistent concerning your objectives. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take extra pains to be a good listener today. Your attention span may not be up to par. You might not grasp facts as readily as you normally do. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be very careful today in business dealings, especially if you're involved in a joint venture. Double-check everything your counterpart does. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your independence will be important to you today. Try to avoid situations which could prevent you from moving around as freely as you'd like. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is not a good day to experiment with untested work procedures. Stick to methods which experience tells you produce results.
