Burglary ring cracked

Sheriff's deputies halt crime spree in Sanford

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — A burglary ring that had been operating in Sanford for several months was cracked by Sheriff's deputies on Tuesday. The deputies arrested five men and seized a large amount of stolen property, including electronics, clothing, and furniture. The men were charged with burglary, possession of stolen property, and conspiracy. The burglary ring had been responsible for several high-profile burglaries in Sanford, including the theft of a large amount of cash from a local business. The Sheriff's Office is currently investigating the whereabouts of the stolen property.

Allegations surround liquor license request

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — A request for a liquor license by a local business has sparked allegations of bribery and improper influence. The business, which is located in Sanford, has applied for a liquor license from the Seminole County Board of Commissioners. However, several community members have accused the business of offering bribes to board members to secure the license. The board is currently reviewing the application and has scheduled a public hearing on the matter.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Doctor criticized for promoting death

WEST PALM BEACH — A doctor willing to help an AIDS patient kill himself is improperly promoting assisted suicide, according to a psychologist who testified for the state Wednesday in a right-to-die case.

"A strong bias seems to be operating," said Dr. David Clark, who heads the suicide research center at Rush Medical College in Chicago.

He said he is concerned that Dr. Cecil McIver's promotion of physician assisted death caused him to neglect critical information when he evaluated Charles Hall, who is suing the state for the right to die.

Among the items that most bothered Clark was a diagnosis of depression in Hall's medical records.

Clark challenged McIver's distinction between depression resulting from one's situation and depression caused by a chemical imbalance. There is no difference in the treatment and suicide rates in both types of depression, he said.

But McIver, a physician from Jupiter, denied that his beliefs and actions on the subject have created a professional conflict of interest with 35-year-old Hall or two other men who had filed suit but died before the case went to trial.

Hall, of Beverly Hills, is asking a judge to stop State Attorney Barry Krischer from filing criminal charges against McIver if he gives Hall a lethal dose of drugs. Hall's lawyer contends the 128-year-old law against assisted suicide violates his rights to privacy.

And even the state's witness said there might be a time when suicide is appropriate.

"I will not say there is no such thing as a reasonable suicide," he said. "If we were going to put it into law, we must be very, very smart about the standards."

Gross, who represents Krischer, said Hall's privacy rights do not extend that far. The state is responsible for preserving life and preventing suicide, especially for the elderly, mentally incompetent and other vulnerable citizens, Gross said.

Gross pointed to a letter McIver sent to Robert Cron, an Oldemar man who had also asked McIver to give him a lethal dose of drugs before cancer killed him. McIver's letter congratulates Cron on his decision and commends him for a noble undertaking that would strike a blow for social policy.

Four sentenced in spy stores case

MIAMI — Four men convicted of selling electronic bugs received light sentences Wednesday, even as the judge said the listening devices could have endangered U.S. security and might have been used by drug traffickers.

U.S. District Judge K. Michael Moore sentenced three of the men to probation. The other, Eliezer Arce, the former general manager of Spy Shops International, got five months in prison.

The trial was the first that came out of 40 raids in 24 cities in 1994, including New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Chicago.

The Miami stores were selling listening devices in such things as ashtrays, beepers and light bulbs, prosecutors said.

The equipment was imported from Micro Electronics of Tokyo, prosecutors said. An American sales representative pleaded guilty about a year ago in New York City to illegal importation of the bugging devices. He testified against the four men sentenced Wednesday.

The next trial starts later this month in New York City, assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Bosovich said Wednesday.

Bosovich said the bugging devices were sold to anyone and that many could have ended up in the hands of drug cartels.

U.S. Customs agents have found bugging devices in drug shipments, put there apparently to ferret out anyone trying to skim profits, Bosovich said.

Bosovich asked for prison for all four defendants. He said the surveillance devices also could have been used to invade the privacy of Americans, perhaps in their own bedrooms.

The owner of the three stores, John Demeter, is to be sentenced Jan. 14. Moore will also decide on that date if Spy Shops should be fined.

Those getting probation Wednesday were John Biro, the manager of a Spy Shop store near Fort Lauderdale; Alfredo Ferrer, a salesman; and Steve Alon, a Canadian and Israeli citizen who imported the listening devices from Japan.

Alon got two years' probation, including four months' confinement at his home in Las Vegas. During those four months he would be allowed only to go to work and to do his shopping. He also was fined $6,000.

Arce, the general manager of all three stores, said he would appeal his five-month sentence.

Biro got three years' probation, including four months' home confinement. Ferrer got one year probation, including four months' home confinement and a $1,000 fine.

Each of the four defendants could have been ordered to pay up to $1.5 million each in fines in addition to 40 years in prison.

BellSouth rate refund goes to the long distance companies

By BILL BERSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Cutting $40.7 million from the fees Florida's largest local telephone company charges long-distance providers will cut customers' bills, say companies like AT&T and MCI.

"AT&T will always use access-rate reductions to reduce costs to consumers," spokeswoman Julie Spechler said Wednesday.

The state Public Service Commission voted to allocate all of a $40.7 million BellSouth rate reduction to lowering the fees BellSouth charges long distance companies to connect with its customers.

BellSouth had proposed using $16 million of the money to trim charges for some business and residential phone services — including eliminating installation charges for a second home telephone line.

"We thought our proposal was more of a direct reduction in costs to our customers," BellSouth spokesman Spero Canton said.

But the PSC's staff recommended using the entire $40.7

million to lower access rates. Long distance companies said those fees were many times BellSouth's actual costs to hook them up with its customers.

The amount was part of $64 million in BellSouth rate refunds for 1997, the final installment of a three-year, $1 billion rate reduction the company agreed to in a 1994 settlement of an investigation into overcharges.

Nelson promises to trim State Farm's premiums

By BILL BERSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's largest property insurer won't get nearly the hundreds of dollars in charges it says it needs to recoup payments into a state catastrophe fund, state insurance officials say.

State Farm proposes adding surcharges averaging 32.1 percent to homeowners' premiums to get back money it paid into the hurricane catastrophe fund created to help guard insurers against huge storm losses.

The charges would range from lows of 6.6 percent in some non-coastal areas to a high of 47.1 percent in Dade County where the storm damage risk is high.

But the surcharges need Insurance Commissioner Bill Nelson's approval, spokesman Dan McLaughlin said.

Nelson was out of town Wednesday but McLaughlin said the commissioner was advised of the proposed charges.

"There's no way he is approving the amounts State Farm has requested," said McLaughlin.

Nelson will rule on the request in a few weeks, he said.

Collier County policyholders would face the second highest charges, after Dade, with a 43 percent surcharge, and Broward and Palm Beach counties with 37.4 percent surcharges.

The proposed Dade County increase would raise an average homeowner's annual premium by $534 to $1,665.

"It is extremely costly," acknowledged David Hill, assistant general counsel for State Farm. But he added, "We feel the full amount is justified."

Scratch one up for poor Mrs. Cluck Cluck's rights

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

KEYSTONE HEIGHTS — Not many chickens have their own page on the Internet. Then again, not many chickens have ruffled as many feathers as Mrs. Cluck Cluck.

Mrs. Cluck Cluck has been the subject of town meetings, legal machinations and a Web page in this north Florida community, which recently ordered the red hen out of its home.

It seems poultry are not allowed in residential areas, except when they're slow-roasting in the kitchen. But Mrs. Cluck Cluck's family refuses to let her fly the coop.

"It's my children's pet," Niurka Martin said.

The City Council has not been sympathetic. In December, it ordered the Martins to get rid of the chicken in 30 days or face fines of up to $500 a day and 60 days in jail.

The Martins paid $300 to draft a new ordinance allowing residents to keep one special pet — such as chicken.

Until the ordinance changes, Mrs. Cluck Cluck is staying with friends of the Martins. If it is not approved, the banishment order stands.

The order of exile turned Mrs. Cluck Cluck into a celebrity.

Scores of people signed petitions to name Mrs. Cluck Cluck an honorary citizen.

The Martins sought the aid of chicken-lovers everywhere, establishing a web page titled "Cluck Cluck vs. City Hall."

Karen Davis, president of United Poultry Concerns Inc., a chicken-rights organization in Potomac, Md., said the Martins have her support.

"My hen, Ethel Murmur, relishes these moments, and so do I," she said of the quality time spent with her pet. "They are lively, zeaty, they are very companionable. They relish all kinds of attention."

The Martins agree. Mrs. Cluck Cluck likes to be petted, frolics with the family cat, hangs out with their dog and eats from the hands of the Martins' four children.

Sheriff's Auto Theft Unit honored today

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Seminole County sheriff's Auto Theft Unit was presented with an award this morning by the Florida Motor Vehicle Theft Prevention Authority.

The award honors the sheriff's department for its proactive methods of combating auto thefts in the county.

Sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said there were 1,316 auto thefts in unincorporated Seminole County in 1996, a 12 percent reduction from 1995. The percentage of auto thefts resulting in arrests increased from 12 percent in 1995 to 16 percent during the first six months of 1996.

This past year, investigators Scott Fyfe and Vince Kaufman of the sheriff's auto theft unit made eight arrests for grand theft auto, including two for operating a chop shop. The arrests reportedly broke up a major auto theft ring that stole cars in Seminole, Orange, Brevard, Volusia and Lake counties, and shipped them to Puerto Rico.

The sheriff's office was one of the first law enforcement agencies in Central Florida to use cellular packet data technology to detect stolen vehicles. Investigator Fyfe recovered stolen vehicles totalling over $184,000 by using the cellular technology.

McDonough said the Auto Theft Unit also has produced its own 20-minute video which is used to teach juveniles about the consequences of auto theft. Of all auto thefts, 48 percent are committed by juveniles.

McDonough added that the unit has distributed 29,000 theft prevention fliers to the Expressway Authority. They are handed out as motorists pass through the toll booths on the GreeneWay.

The award this morning was presented in a ceremony at Ramada Inn, U.S. Highway 27, in Ocala.

We've got to do something

No sooner do Sanford police and Seminole County sheriff's deputies make arrests in connection with several bank robberies, than more occur. No one is releasing any statistics, but we believe, in reporting on criminal activities, that bank robberies are more common these days than they have been since the Roaring 20s.

Some people have said they believe it is being caused by the government cutting back on food stamp distribution, and the state cutting welfare payments to people who do not return to the workforce over a given period of years.

There are those among us who must obtain money somehow. Either being incapable of earning a living, too lazy, or believing they can get rich through crime, the rob banks, burglarize homes, steal vehicles, and mug unsuspecting victims.

But whether it is robberies, burglaries or bank robberies, we believe one of the most common reasons is not the need for more money for food in the home. It is the need for drug money.

Purchasing marijuana, cocaine, crack cocaine or some of the other drugs is not cheap. People become addicted to drugs, and the sellers know it. Users are willing to pay any price just to continue their addiction.

What we believe we need, more than anything else to solve a large majority of our problems, is a major crackdown on those who import drugs into our state, and into our communities.

Street drug dealers don't just wave a magic wand and come up with a load of cocaine out of thin air. It is being brought here by someone else, who obtains it from someone else, and so it goes.

It's great that our Sanford police QUAD-Squad and sheriff's department CCIB unit continue to attack street level drug sales activities. They are certainly accomplishing their tasks.

But what we need is more federal government intervention. We are sick and tired of being told the government can only supply Florida with a half dozen or more drug agents to concentrate on illegal transportation.

Millions of dollars are wasted on pork-barrel spending, but the citizens of Florida are left to almost fend for themselves in fighting what we believe is the most damaging crime, drug sales.

A gas station cannot sell gas unless it gets delivered. Likewise, street drug sellers cannot go far in selling their products if they find them difficult to obtain.

What will it take? Perhaps contacting our local state representatives and urging them to push the federal government for some worthwhile help. Perhaps contacting our federal government delegates and telling them we are tired of being pushed aside in the allocation of government funds.

Urging on the part of only a few will do nothing. No one has listened in the past and there is no reason for them to listen now.

News stories seldom report any major arrests in drug importation cartels. This should be proof-positive that nothing is being done.

But if everyone bands together and demands more help and federal intervention in eliminating the importers and major distributors, something might be accomplished.

Imagine it: Seeing the good

"I have a very vivid imagination," a friend said to me, almost apologetically, as we picked our way through a downtown building that is being renovated.

We looked around at the walls, peeled all the way back to the external brick, and the ceilings, knocked back to the beams, and saw a beautiful apartment and a studio.

Wires hanging from the ceiling and dust an inch thick below our feet looked like beautiful light fixtures and glossy hardwood floors.

So what's wrong with a little imagination? If you can't see the potential for good in an old building, or a child, or a friend who is struggling through some hard times you're not looking hard enough.

Why is it that we have no trouble at all looking around us and seeing all that's wrong with the world, but we can't even fathom what's right with it? Why is it so easy to see the bad and so difficult to see the good?

My daughter Genevieve is a cool kid. She loves everyone.

the people about whom other people, including me, say "He's a jerk" or "She's a witch," she's ready to greet with a hug.

I asked her once about a particular person who she greeted with a hug. The rest of us see him as an arrogant, self-absorbed, intolerant, rude creep.

"What would make you want to give him a hug?" I asked.

"He likes bunnies," she announced. "Besides, he needs a hug to make him get nicer."

I guess you have to use a little imagination to see that.

But not enough of us bother.

Capitalism for the masses

The 13-member Social Security Advisory Council met for two and a half years and agreed to disagree. They finally put forth three alternative proposals, and began publicly bickering, bickering, bickering.

There is a temptation to say thanks for nothing to the group, which included representatives of business, labor, the self-employed and the public at large. But that would much underestimate the service rendered.

All the councilmembers agree that the current harum-scarum campaign designed to show that Social Security will "go broke" is mostly bunk. It's a problem, not a crisis. It can be fixed, without much pain if we act soon.

All three proposals break away from a total reliance on what councilmember Carolyn Weaver of the American Enterprise Institute calls the "nip-and-tuck" school of reform: raise the retirement age a little bit, raise taxation on upper-income recipients a little bit, and so on. Such little changes can be useful, but they do not provide a whole answer to the current condition of Social Security, particularly for young people.

All three plans involve a serious structural reform as well as the snip-snip routine. All involve at least the likelihood of placing a substantial part of Social Security assets in private stocks rather than in government bonds.

Over the last 70 years -- which saw a bone-crushing depression, many recessions, a world war and smaller wars -- American common stocks grew in value by an average of 7.2 percent per year, after discounting for inflation. By contrast, the way Social Security is now set up, younger workers will only get a return of 1 percent to 2 percent, if that.

That means, for example, a 25-year-old today would accumulate $185,000 at 1 percent, $228,000 at 2 percent or $792,000 at 7.2 percent.

So agreement about common stock investment of Social Security represents real headway. If any of these plans are followed, Americans will get more bang for their buck, and more retirement from their resources.

The biggest difference between the three plans involves who gets to invest the money in what.

The "Maintenance of Benefits" plan recommends that, over time, the federal government invest a trillion or so dollars in the stock market and pump the proceeds from that investment back into the government, which will then disburse Social Security benefits in the current manner.

The "Individual Accounts" plan recommends that workers get a small and diluted IRA-type account in addition to regular Social Security benefits. The investment choices would be limited to a few government-selected funds. The government would hold all the accounts.

The "Personal Security Account" plan (PSA), designed by councilmembers Sylvester

Scheiber of Watson Wyatt Worldwide Consultants and Carolyn Weaver, goes further. Workers would get half of their pension contributions in their own accounts, which would be held in financial institutions of their own choosing and invested in a wide variety of stocks also of their own choosing. (There is a guaranteed baseline benefit.)

I'm for PSA. The mathematics of all the plans is complex. It is the sociology and psychology of PSA that makes it a winner.

Just think of what we've seen and heard in recent years. Many Americans have been downsized, breaking the bonds of corporate paternalism. Many Americans are burned up about huge salaries and bonuses going to corporate CEOs. We hear that Americans are "splitting apart." We hear that so many people feel like victims in a country of "us" vs. "them." Our president says that "the era of big government is over." Both parties preach self-reliance, responsibility, opportunity and privatization. We have seen that socialism is a burmer, unsuccessful in creating real wealth.

Capitalism for the masses is an old idea, and a good one. In recent years we have seen a proliferation of IRAs, 401(k) plans, mutual funds, equity index funds and consumer-oriented financial institutions sited in shopping malls. Millions of middle-class Americans have been learning how to do what the upper class tried to do all along: harness American wealth for their own purposes. They have become capitalists and direct shareholders in the American economy. They think about growth rates, interest rates, inflation, tax rates, business cycles and business regulation in new and often more realistic ways. More than before, they are masters of their own financial destiny. This is the right time to make such an opportunity available to all.

As capitalism expands, a lot of "them" can become "us." It brings us together as shareholders-in-common. Capitalism doesn't make every man a king, but it can help make every man a player.

Social Security should be reformed not because it has failed but because it has succeeded. We have seen that some sorts of social engineering work quite well, even if not perfectly. The elderly have gained in dignity and in material well-being. Now we can use that base to make pensioners into participants.

There is a temptation to say thanks for nothing to the group

Bible stories put to good use

One of the greatest sagas in all of literature is the story of Joseph and his brothers. Although it is in the Bible, we never hear it read in church because it is too long. It takes up 14 chapters in Genesis (from 37 to 50).

One summer when I was a parish minister in Boston, I got the idea to read the Joseph story to my congregation in weekly installments so they could hear the story from beginning to end.

When the summer was over, a visitor who had been attending the services every Sunday since June came up to me and said, "I've been coming back here every week because I had to see how the story came out."

The book of Genesis has always fascinated Bible readers with its sometimes thrilling stories of creation: Adam and Eve and their sons Cain and Abel; Noah and the flood, and the quirks and foibles of the families of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

"Three of the world's great religions -- Judaism, Christianity and Islam -- have been inspired by these tales of wonder and awe," said USA Today in an article on the 10-part PBS television series by Bill Moyers, "Genesis: A Living Conversation," that began last fall.

Some of the Genesis stories strain the credulity of the modern reader, but more and more people are searching, nevertheless, to find ways to apply the ancient stories to today.

Let me tell you about how my friend Susie brought the Genesis story of Laban and Jacob up to date in her life.

Jacob tended the flocks of his uncle Laban. Later there came a time when he entertained thoughts of striking out on his own.

He made a deal with his uncle that, when he was ready to leave Laban's employ, he would be allowed to take all the striped (or streaked) cattle in his uncle's flock. That would constitute his wages for all his years of labor. This was agreeable to Laban, who didn't reckon with Jacob's tricky mind. Jacob got some tree branches and cut strips of bark off them so that they had a striped appearance. Then he placed the limbs in the watering troughs where the cattle came to drink just before giving birth to their young.

The people of the Near East, like Jacob, believed that any offspring would have the characteristics of whatever it was the mother was grazing on at birthing time.

As the cattle drank, they naturally stared at the striped branches in the watering holes and, sure enough, when the new baby cattle were born, they were all striped.

And, says the story in Genesis, since the deal was that all the striped cattle would belong to Jacob, he ended up a rich man, "with flocks numbering in the thousands."

I told this story once to my friend Susie when she was expecting her first child. She was hoping the baby would look just like her husband Paul.

Paul is no better looking than the next guy but of course Susie adored him. She could think of nothing better than to have a baby who looked just like him.

I told her there is still this belief in Persia (Iran today) that a child will look like the person on whom the mother-to-be gazes before the birth. I suggested that Susie spend as much time as possible looking at Paul before the baby was born.

The last time I saw Jennifer she was 10 years old, and believe it or not, she looked exactly like her father!

The book of Genesis has always fascinated Bible readers

Third, fourth and fifth grade students from Goldsboro Elementary School's STAR program recently created floral arrangements for the dining room of the Good Samaritan Home, which they presented to Thelma Mika, administrator of the home. The students who created the displays included Johnathan Chapman, Anthony Holley, Brandon Hughes, Nicholas Scott and Lee Richardson. Their teachers, not pictured, are Mrs. Togle, Mrs. Park and Mrs. Alexander.

McAdam said the program tries to promote scientific and technical literacy in a fun, yet important way. He said the teachers will gather local weather information and help to send the information to their counterparts across the nation over the Internet.

About 4,000 teachers in nearly 60 locations across the country will take part in the program this semester. They will be trained to become AMS-sanctioned weather education resource teachers at their schools.

"We want to make sure they can go back to their schools and teach the students about this aspect of science," McAdam said. The class is free to the teachers and counts as a graduate level or continuing education credit.

"This is a full 13-week course," McAdam said. "It's a distance learning course so they will have training in both the meteorological techniques and in the computer technology."

The participants in the program from around the country interact with one another and work closely with local meteorologists who assist with the program.

The participants learn about gathering meteorological data and using that data to study weather as it happens. The class is very fast-paced, McAdam said.

The program is financed by the National Science Foundation along with the National Weather Service and the University of New York College at Brockport.

McAdam said SCC and Seminole County were invited to take part in the program after he attended a workshop in Kansas City last year.

He said there are five sites in Florida where the program is being held, more than any other state. "It's a pretty prestigious thing," he said.

Perex, reportedly arrested earlier in connection with the burglary investigation, was already in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. Tuesday, it was found he was wanted on a charge of driving with a suspended license.

Another person, arrested on Jan. 2, was identified as a juvenile. After being booked at the jail, he was taken to the Juvenile Detention Facility.

Individual arrest reports were not immediately available on Perex or the juvenile.

Sunnyside Up: Good food for your brain

So, you want to be noticed

In his latest collection, author Tobias Wolff spins a story about a man who calls in his obituary to his local newspaper.

When the editor finds out the man isn't dead, he fires the reporter who didn't check out the obit.

The man who didn't die takes the reporter to lunch, and pretty soon the reporter realizes the why and how of the hoax.

Seems the man didn't feel sufficiently appreciated, and thought news of his death might make people take notice.

Which brings today's big questions:

Do you want to be noticed? Do you deserve the 15 minutes of fame Andy Warhol used to say came to everyone?

In 40 years of writing stories about people from almost every walk of life, I've met 2,764 (I made up this number) who said, "You're not putting this in the paper, are you?"

In the same time I met twice that many people (5,528 stretching things again) who said, "and you can quote me."

And, then there were the ones who said, "you can quote me," who wished they hadn't.

Years ago when I began writing baseball in Washington, D.C., most of the players were readily available.

In those days, most of the Washington players made $20,000 or less per season, and most worked at off-season jobs.

At salary time, these guys were known to beg for some "good ink."

Russ White

STAFF WRITER

Spiro T. Agnew

I don't imagine Albert Belle needing to do this.

The late and not necessarily so great Spiro Agnew once called the press "nattering nabobs of negativity." This in one of his kinder moments as vice president of the United States.

I recall covering a celebrity tennis match at Georgetown University's McDonough Gym, where "Andre" Agnew backhanded his chums of the fourth estate.

No big deal to me but I remember Sally Quinn, covering the event for the Style section of the Washington Post, being miffed when pushed away by a couple Secret Service guys.

"The Vice President is naked and cannot talk," Quinn quoted one of the agents in her artistic lead.

Close enough, girl.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey, on the other part, loved the press.

One day he called up a bunch of Washington sportswriters and had us come to his office.

Frequently, he visited the locker rooms at then D.C.

Stadium, searching for photographers and writers to capture the occasion.

Smart fellow, HHHH. The Metrodome in Minneapolis is named for him, right?

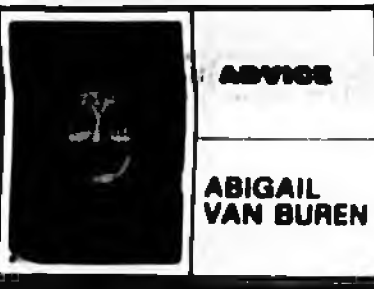

Ever heard of a Spiro Stadium or Agnew Arena?

I believe most people wouldn't mind seeing their name in the newspaper or seeing themselves on TV - at least once.

Like the fellow in the Tobias Wolff short story, an obit might be the lone opportunity.

But wouldn't it be your luck if there were typos or your name was misspelled? RIP.

Invitation to dinner may be your signal to leave

ADVICE

you to stay for dinner, it means you stayed too long.

Mary should not lie and ask her friend for a rain check. Her friend may then assume that Mary likes liver and invite her another time for a liver dinner. Instead she should thank the hostess and say she's sorry, but she can't stay for dinner.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to address these comments to "Annoyed in New Mexico." This incident happened here in Atlanta, and it involves the use of the Spanish language.

My uncle and aunt — both blue-eyed and blond — were fresh from Panama. She's a public health nurse and he's in charge of mosquito control.

While they were attending a baseball game, two Spanish-speaking fans seated behind them gave a running discourse on everything that was wrong with the United States, Atlanta, the ball players and their acquaintances.

When the game was over, Aunt Erma and Uncle Ray stood up, turned to their critics and in fluent Spanish, suggested that if they didn't like the benefits our country had to offer, they should return to their point of origin.

My advice: Be careful whom you talk Spanish in front of. Sign me...

HABLO ESPANOL IN GEORGIA DEAR HABLO: As one who speaks enough Spanish to make myself understood, may I add my two cents worth? Es verdad!

Round one to Oviedo

Thomas leads Lions past Rams

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY — Experience proved to be a deciding factor Wednesday night as the Oviedo Lions topped the Lake Mary Rams 76-70 in a battle of Seminole Athletic Conference boys' basketball powers.

"Their guards' experience was the difference tonight," said Lake Mary coach Mike Gaudreau. "Our guards don't have that experience yet and we struggle occasionally. We didn't want to play their game, but we did for just a short span in the second quarter and it cost us."

"When we are patient and run the offense we generally get the shot we want. But when we aren't patient we try to force the ball inside." The Rams (10-3) led by four points after one period, but the Lions (12-3) got their running game going and outscored the hosts 26-9 in the second period to take a 40-27 halftime lead.

The teams played even in the third quarter and Oviedo held a 14 point lead mid-way in the fourth quarter before Lake Mary started a rally. Jamal Harrison hit one free throw with 3:00 to play to cut the Oviedo lead to five points.

The Lions then got a free throw from Jason Dangerfield and a lay-up from Ben Knapp on a pass from Seth Fowler to push the lead to eight.

The Rams would get as close as four points twice in the final minute, but could get no closer. Aaron Thomas led Oviedo with 28 points, while Knapp added 20 and Darren Rogers 14.

"Aaron Thomas was outstanding in this game," said Gaudreau. "I've never seen him play better. We were worried about Fowler and Rogers, but it was Thomas that got us. Knapp also amazed me with his outside shooting. They've got a heck of a team."

Rollins-bound Matt Townsley netted a game-high 29 points for Lake Mary, while Paul Heik added 10 points. Lake Mary will host rival Seminole on Friday, while Oviedo hosts Lake Howell in another important SAC battle.

RAMS GIRLS 14-0

OVIDO — Lauren Bradley scored a game-high 19 points and Stephanie Dale added 13 as the state's No. 5 ranked Class 6A team, Lake Mary, topped Oviedo 54-45 in a girls Seminole Athletic Conference basketball game Tuesday night.

Kris Dedelow led Oviedo (12-5) with 10 points. The Rams are now 14-0 on the season and will travel to Sanford tonight for a titanic battle with undefeated Seminole starting at 7:30 p.m.

AF V splits; Girls romp

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Seminole High School boys' basketball team split a pair of games, while the girls' squad picked right up from where it left off as the local hoop teams started their post-holiday schedule.

Tuesday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium, Arrow Force V saw a tremendous fourth quarter comeback effort fall just short as Osceola edged Seminole 47-44 in a Class 5A-District 6 contest. Sean Whitman (12 points) and Cornelius Blue (10 points) led AFV.

But the boys of head coach Bob Traina came back Wednesday night and overcame a special Lake Brantley defense to nip the Patriots 42-39 in a Seminole Athletic Conference game.

"They played a 1-3-1 zone and doubled Blue," said Traina, who saw his team improve to 7-10. "We played well and stayed patient until we could make a run at

"Mr. Sunshine" highlights SpeedWorld card

Special to the Herald

BITHLO — Orlando SpeedWorld returned to action last Friday night after a two week break for cold weather and the Christmas holiday.

Fans enjoyed "balmy" 60-degree temperatures as they watched "Mr. Sunshine", Kevin Lawrence, take the 25-lap Late Model feature.

Lawrence, driving the Sunshine Race Cars of Orlando Port City House Car, used a lap seven caution for Jeff Emery's blown engine to his advantage as he passed early leader Tuffy Hester to lead the remainder of the event and post his second win of the new season.

Hester and Vermont's Dennis Demers kept the pressure on Lawrence but had to settle for second and third. Tim Huston and David King rounded out the top five.

Lake Mary's Hank Sanders came back from an early tangle to take the win in a highly competitive Modified feature event, his first of the season! Leon Harriman led most of the race but could not hold off Sanders and had to settle for second ahead of Raulie Morse, Joe Middleton and Tank Tucker.

Osteen's Bobby Sears held off a host of challengers to record his third Limited Late Model win of the 1997 season. Earl Beckner topped a great battle behind Sears to claim second, his fourth runner-up finish in eight races this season. Completing the top five were Larry Osteen, Paul Colgan and the Racing Adventures School Car of New Mexico's Jerry Harpole Jr.

Conrad Grenier kept his win streak going in the Mini-Stocks with an easy victory over Dink Sullivan, Richard Newton, Ron Abeles and Pedie Allison.

Russ Shaw grabbed his initial checkered flag in the Sportsman Class, taking the drop when Sanford's Jerry Smith dropped off the pace while leading. R.J. Romano tried hard but had to settle for second with Sanford's Danny Zukowski coming back from an earlier crash to take a well deserved third spot in his battered Oldsmobile. Todd Schweitzer and Todd Shoff filled out the top five.

Johnny Love enjoyed the victory spoils for the first time in his career in the Bomber Class. Love worked the outside lane to his advantage to defeat a large field of cars. Ron Adams outduked Mike Pepper for second with Chad Pierce and Jeff Wright rounding out the top five.

Tim Walters took the Run-A-Bout feature, while Paul Malm dominated the 4-Cylinder Bomber finale.

Tomorrow over 25 cars are expected as the Legend Cars return for their first points race of the season. There will also be a full program of Late Models, Limited Late Models, Modifieds, Sportsman, Bombers, Mini-Stocks, 4-Cylinder Bombers and Run-A-Bouts.

Racing starts at 8 p.m. every Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld with adult front gate admission $15 and kids 11-and-under free. For race information, call (407)

the end. We didn't do a good job of adjusting to the officiating in the first half. "They outshot us 19 (good for 15 points) to four from the free throw line in the first half. They only had three baskets, so it was the free throws that was keeping them in the game." Andy Mariette paced the Arrow Force V attack with 13 points, while Whitman added nine points and Kenny Edwards six points. Orlando Bennett equalled Mariette for game-high scoring honors, netting 13 for the Patriots. The night proved to be a big one for Seminole as the freshman (48-38) and junior varsity (68-48) also won their games. "The kids are not hanging their heads," said Trains. "We have not been consistent, but they are working hard and we are getting a little better each time out. We're not that far from being a winning team, we've been in almost every game. We just want to hang around and have a chance to win at the end."

The boys will look to stretch their winning streak to two games when they travel to Lake Mary on Friday night.

GIRLS NOW 18-0

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - The Seminole High School girls hardly looked like a team that had not played in three weeks as they scored almost as many points in the first quarter (21) as host Lake Brantley did in the game (25) as the Fighting Seminole crushed the Patriots 78-25 in Seminole Athletic Conference action Tuesday night.

Shemeka Stokes (18 points), Dana Merrick (17 points), Haneefah Miller (14 points) and Tamara Gichrist (12 points) led the way for the Tribe, which is ranked No. 4 in the state in Class 5A this week.

Tonight's Semantics, which is now 18-0 on the season, will host Lake Mary (14-0) and ranked No. 5 in Class 6A) at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium starting at 7:30 p.m.

Ear procedure is too far out

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please comment on the New Age rage called "ear coning." Is it all that it's cracked up to be?

DEAR READER: Based on the newspaper article you sent me about this bizarre practice, I learned that ear coning is claimed — by its proponents — to improve sight and balance and mental clarity, make people unwind, soothe tension, vacuum the sinuses — and clean the ears.

The technique is simple. A foot-long cone of paper is placed in the ear and the end is lit with a match. Apparently, warmed air then circulates into the ear canal. Ear coners insist that the process is harmless, even pleasurable.

Ear, nose-and-throat specialists have debunked ear-coning as a useless waste of money and point out that there are better ways to clean the ears — by using peroxide and warm water, for example. Moreover, most health practitioners believe that the other claims of "coners" are simply ludicrous — and may actually delay proper medical attention for conditions such as infections.

I have no firsthand knowledge of ear coning, so I will keep an open mind about the practice. Whether or not you endorse the new rage is up to you. But the whole concept sounds a little silly.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has psoriasis, for which he was prescribed cortisone cream. Although this remedy is effective for the rash on his scalp, it doesn't work on his body because it rubs off. He is miserable, and we are at our wits' end.

DEAR READER: Psoriasis, a common skin condition marked by itchy, irregular, scaling blemishes, is often treated successfully with cortisone cream. But the therapy is not always effective.

Your husband should be examined by a dermatologist because there are other treatment options available.

For instance, occlusive dressings may help. After applying the cream at night, cover the affected area with plastic wrap. This may serve to "turbo charge" the cortisone.

Second, your husband might find relief from ultraviolet light therapy. The dermatologist can supervise this treatment, which consists of applying a special ointment that is then subjected to UV radiation.

Finally, many skin specialists are now prescribing methotrexate, an anti-cancer drug that seems not only to reduce the psoriatic rash but also prevents the arthritis that frequently accompanies psoriasis. There are risks to this therapy — notably damage to the liver and bone marrow, which can be monitored with blood tests — but the success rates are significant, even in severe cases.

Ask the dermatologist about this.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Eczema and Psoriasis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10116. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from Peyronie's disease. Is there any cure?

DEAR READER: Sometimes, as men age, the erectile portions of the penis become scarred and don't work properly, leading to crooked erections that may make intercourse difficult or impossible. The cause of this common affliction is unknown.

If the degree of deformity is slight, many experts recommend vitamin E pills (about 600 to 800 units a day). In

A few cases, this harmless therapy may improve the situation.

In men with more pronounced erectile problems, urologists often resort to cortisone injections into the scarred areas. Serious deformity may require corrective surgery.

Although Peyronie's disease is, by present methods, incurable, there are various treatments available. See a urologist for specific advice.

Scrambling for home

By Phillip Alder

The American Contract Bridge League (ACBL) puts out a monthly 150 page magazine called The Bridge Bulletin. Mailed free to members, it contains tournament reports and results, instructive articles for all standards of player and advertisements for anything bridge-related: events, clothing, books, cruises, and so on.

My main regret is that the ACBL Board hasn't authorized the move from the Bulletin's small-page layout to a Time-magazine format. This would surely be more appealing to non-bridge advertisers. And it would make the publication look so much more attractive.

In last October's issue, this deal was in Frank Stewart's article. How would you try to make two spades after West leads the heart two?

First, Stewart discusses the bidding. He isn't fond of North's two-spade preference, preferring a pass. At the table, after winning with dummy's heart ace, South immediately played three rounds of clubs. Disaster! East led a fourth round. West ruffing and switching to a diamond. Now South did well to get out for one down.

It is better to scramble tricks. Assuming West's heart-two lead is honest, it looks as though the hearts are splitting 4-4. So, ruff a heart in hand at trick two. Cash the club ace, play a club to dummy's king and ruff another heart. After you return to the dummy with a diamond, a third heart ruff brings your trick total to seven. And you are still holding the trump ace.
